Q. — Why is there no left-turn lane at the newly widened intersection of 30th St. where it runs into College Avenue?

A. — Plans are to add a turn lane there. The portion of 30th east of College is to be widened even more, however, by Furrs as part of its new building construction there. After this, the street area east of College is to receive a final layer of paving and striping.

Supply unaffected by gas plant blaze

Although some had yet to receive official word from their home or regional offices, Snyder wholesalers were almost unanimous in noting that Tuesday's fire and subsequent shutdown at the Cosden refinery in Big Spring would have little effect on local gasoline supplies.

Regarding cost of gasoline, however, some increases were at least said possible due to the extra transportation costs of bringing gas to the city from greater distances while the Big Spring plant's production is curtailed.

Local Exxon representative Olin Bunch said that as far as he knew there is still plenty of gas available in the area but he is anticipating a slight price increase due solely to increased shipping costs.

Bunch noted that his supplies will likely have to come from San Antonio or Dallas and the shipping charges from those locations will run three to four cents higher per gallon.

Mickey Nunley at Line and Line — local Chevron jobbers — said that the Cosden shutdown does create problems in that they will now have to get their gas from an El Paso refinery.

According to Nunley, Chevron has guaranteed them adequate supplies, however.

A spokesman for Bill Burns Oil Co. — which handles Texaco products for Scurry County — said that they would begin getting gas first from Lubbock and then San Antonio or El Paso as available supplies dictated.

Staffers at McCormick Marketing Inc. — the local Phillips 66 dealer — had not received any word from their suppliers as of 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Good response noted regarding truck route plan

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

A favorable response from Abilene-based highway officials was said received Tuesday regarding the chance of state funds to finance an extension of Farm-to-Market Road 1611 from west 37th St. to the Big Spring Hwy.

This was the indication Wednesday morning from the group of local citizens who discussed the possibility with Roger G. Welsch, district engineer for District 8 of the Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The meeting was viewed as the first step toward completing what would be the second phase of the FM 1611 truck route around western Snyder.

This would then offer an alternate route for truck traffic traveling the four major highways into Snyder, in the process relieving the downtown square of such traffic.

In addition to funding, however, the plan entails the acquisition of right-of-way across affected property.

If pursued, this portion of the project is still ahead for local supporters of the idea.

Plans to complete the first half of the FM 1611 project have already been set in motion.

A July bid letting is now set for this portion of the project — linking the Lubbock Hwy. (U.S. Hwy 84) to west 37th St.

A contingency of representatives from the county, city and chamber of commerce attended the meeting Tuesday in Abilene. Presenting the case for the group was County Judge Preston Wilson.

According to group members, Welsch said the project would rate high on the area's priority list for funding next year.

These state funds are still to be approved by the state legislature during its current session, however.

Assuming no problems arise in legislative funding, Welsch indicated the local project stood a good chance of being approved.

He said District 8 normally receives sufficient farm-to-market road funding to complete a six-mile strip. The local project entails some four miles.

If the district is not given farm-to-market monies — noted as a possibility with cuts now being considered for all state funds — Welsch said a local delegation might still receive funding by presenting its case directly to Austin-based state highway officials.

Assuming "all the right things happen," however, the quickest time frame for funding and actual construction would still be some two years, he noted.

Also attending and offering comments from Scurry County were commissioner court members Eldon Perry, Hassie

One-act advances at district

Snyder High School moved another step down the road to the State UIL one-act play contest Tuesday, advancing to Area competition from the District 2-AAAA contest held in Worsham Auditorium.

Dr. Michael Gerlach of Texas Tech University — serving as critic-judge for the contest — chose the SHS production of "Romeo and Juliet" and Pecos High School's production of Henrick Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" as the best of four productions presented.

Both will return to Worsham Auditorium next Tuesday for the Area contest.

Seven of the Snyder players were singled out for individual honors Tuesday including Brad Vincent who was named best actor for his portrayal of Romeo.

Beth Jackson of Pecos — who played the title role of Hedda Gabler in their production — was chosen for the best actress award.

College preparing to offer drivers ed

Following a request by Snyder school officials, Western Texas College is now moving ahead with plans to assume fulltime the drivers education responsibilities for local high school-age youth.

The first course offering under the new arrangement is now set to begin April 15 through the continuing education department at WTC.

WTC has offered drivers ed in the past, but only during summer months. Current plans are to offer driver's ed on a year-round basis.

The public school district had approached the college about assuming it fulltime since state funding to reimburse the district has been sharply cutback.

College board members gave the go-ahead to accept the program fulltime "if feasible" during their monthly meeting March 11.

As part of the agreement with the school district, Snyder ISD has agreed to provide the college the driving "simulator" — which simulates driving conditions for students before they actually take to the road.

The course involves 32 hours of lab time plus eight hours on the simulator and four hours actual driving time.

For the course set to begin April 15, Larry Scott will be instructor. Class will meet from 3:45 until 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday at Snyder High School.

Students enrolled will complete the driving requirement after completion of the spring semester at SHS.

Fees for the course will be $150 per student — an amount college officials note is a break-even expense — and enrollment will be

$1,500 salary hike to superintendent

Snyder Superintendent Bob Hawes was granted a $1,500 a year pay increase Tuesday — a salary hike characterized as both a "confidence" rating by the board and a corrective step since Hawes was the only school administrator who did not receive a pay raise last fall.

The action came during a special called meeting of school trustees. Hawes salary goes from $58,500 to $60,000.

Trustees were in executive session almost 50 minutes before coming back into open session and voting to increase the superintendent's salary. The vote was unanimous.

Teachers and administrators all received a substantial pay increase this fall in part due to mandates by House Bill 72.

Hawes was employed by the board May 24 and officially assumed the superintendent's post June 1.

In addition to the pay increase, the superintendent's position was placed into the "step" pay scale for the district at the same level as a teacher with a masters degree.

The salary changes are to be effective April 1.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Water is a colorless liquid that turns dark when little boys wash in it."

Eddie Williams, Snyder High School biology teacher, tells about one of his most embarrassing moments.

"The second year of my teaching career here in Snyder I experienced a very embarrassing first day in one of my biology classes.

"The first day of school I always laid the law down and spelled out the rules for the coming year. I was standing at the front of a rather large aquarium as I told the students, in a rather serious manner, what I expected of them.

"Somehow the kids were not responding as I had expected. I saw suppressed grins that soon turned into laughter. I glanced down and realized that in my zeal to make my point, I was leaning on the aquarium and my tie was floating along with the fish.

"I seldom wear a tie anymore."

Nancy Fletcher of Snyder said several years ago her family lived in a very small town where "you knew everyone and everyone attended anything that was going on.

"My daughter was four years old and we were attending the county livestock show. We were in the stands watching the steer show when into the ring came one girl that was quite large who was showing a steer that was very large.

"It just so happened the girl and steer were both blond and both had long curly hair. Just at the moment when things were really quiet in the barn, my young daughter stood up and in a loud voice said, 'Look Mama, she's as big as her cow.'

"Needless to say, I quickly looked for the mother who, thank goodness, was on the other side of the barn. I put my hand over my daughter's mought and explained she should not say things like that. The whole stands were rocking with laughter."

Arms talk

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. negotiators, armed with congressional approval for more MX nuclear missiles and the backing of NATO defense ministers for research into space-based defenses, opened talks with Soviet officials today on the possible reduction of long-range rockets.

NATO meets

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said today the NATO allies had shown "a lot of interest" in participating in American research of a space-based missile defense.

Weinberger formally invited NATO defense ministers Tuesday to join in the multi-billion dollar research program of space weapons to protect the Western alliance against Soviet missiles.

Arrest Pierce

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Bruce Carroll Pierce, believed to be the leader of the militant white supremacist group The Order, was captured by the FBI Tuesday night in Rossville, Ga., according to a published report.

Agents seized a van loaded with grenades, pipe bombs, automatic weapons, chemicals and crossbows, The Chattanooga Times reported in its Wednesday editions.

Pierce, 30, was carrying three handguns but offered no resistance, Atlanta FBI special agent John Burke told the newspaper.

The newspaper said the capture followed a three-day stakeout of a business in Rossville, a town just south of Chattanooga.

Bright quits A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Dallas businessman H.R. "Bum" Bright says he quit the Texas A&M University System board of regents because he didn't want to be part of a board "where votes are pulled like puppets on a string" by Gov. Mark White.

Bright, an oilman and principal owner of the Dallas Cowboys professional football team, had served as chairman of the nine-member board since 1981 when he was appointed by former Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican.

He was removed as chairman Tuesday, then quit the board completely after complaining that White insisted on his support in a possible re-election bid.

White issued a three-paragraph statement, saying he was surprised at Bright's decision but refused comment on the allegations.

"I had told him in recent weeks that I appreciated his efforts as chairman of the Board of Regents," the governor said. "He has demonstrated strong leadership in holding down university costs during a difficult period in state budgeting history."

By a 7-0 vote, agribusinessman David Eller of Houston was named to succeed Bright as chairman. Eller, along with new vice chairman Joe Reynolds, a Houston attorney, are both White appointees to the board. White and Reynolds are former law partners.

Eller and Bright abstained from voting.

After the balloting, Bright said he had a statement to make. He told of meeting White a few weeks ago when he was reminded by the governor that "you have served the last two years at my pleasure because I control the votes on the board," according to Bright.

Bright said the governor told him he had done an excellent job, but he quoted the governor as saying: "However, if I run for re-election I've got to know the chairman of the board of Texas A&M University is behind me."

Suspected stolen goods are seized

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Generators, radios and other tools and equipment valued at $100,000 have been seized and one man arrested in an investigation into alleged thefts from the Palo Verde nuclear plant, authorities said.

An affidavit filed by law-enforcement authorities said Charles D. Felkins, 37, was arrested March 11 when law-enforcement officers seized tools and equipment in two storage units.

The affidavit said the seized material was valued at $100,000 and that much had been identified as coming from the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Statioon, which is under construction about 50 miles west of downtown Phoenix.

The material included generators, air compressors, tires, radios and tools, an investigator for the racketeering and organized-crime unit of the Maricopa County Attorney's office said in the affidavit.

Felkins, who was indicted March 14, was released without bail shortly after his arrest. A May 14 trial was scheduled before Superior Court Judge Joseph Howe.

The indictment, the existence of which was not reported until this week, charged Felkins with racketeering, conspiracy and three counts of trafficking in stolen property.

Felkins had been employed by Becthel Power Coran.

Bill would protect eyes

AUSTIN (AP) — Bills to help problem drinkers and exempt some farm and ranch equipment from property taxes have been approved in the state Senate.

Those lawmakers also on Tuesday approved a measure that would allow solutions other than silver nitrate to be placed in children's eyes within two hours of birth.

Silver nitrate has been required for newborns to prevent blindness resulting from venereal diseases, but the state health department asked for a change in the law because other solutions have been found to be effectiye.

A Senate bill from Sen. Chet Brooks would authorize peace officers or magistrates to release a person picked up for public intoxication if another adult takes responsibility for him or if the person agrees to participate in an alcohol treatment program.

Vote clears way to save Odessa

AUSTIN (AP) — House budget writers are prepared to withdraw the death threat they voted on state universities in Odessa and Galveston.

A procedural vote Tuesday cleared the way for the House Appropriations Committee to go back and undo its Monday votes to yank funding from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and Texas A&M at Galveston.

"We'll work it out some way," said Chairman Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield. "If it's not here, it will be done somewhere else."

Also Tuesday, the committee voted to lop 20 percent off the appropriation for the state's Washington lobbyist, but the panel rejected attempts to cut much more.

The apparent game plan on the two colleges is to reconsider the votes after the rest of the budget is written by the committee, possibly Friday.

TDC increase voted by committee

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections would get $220 million more than previously recommended for 1986-87 spending if a Senate Finance Committee proposal is approved.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, stressed the increase was needed to help the state reach a settlement in a 12-year-old law suit filed by unhappy convicts.

"What it does is allow us to go to the bargaining table and try to resolve this case so that we can regain control over our own prisons," Farabee said after his proposal was approved Tuesday.

Another $100 million was authorized for long-range planning and construction.

The action approved appropriations totaling $936.7 million in 1986-87 for TDC in the Senate spending bill, which will be debated about May 1.

Lawmakers seeking compromise

AUSTIN (AP) — State lawmakers attempting to compromise on two proposed comprehensive water plans fell short on coming to terms over the differences.

A 10-member water conference committee decided Tuesday to look things over carefully before adopting or agreeing to any legislation.

"We want it to read just right," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, sponsor of the $1.2 billion Senate water plan.

The five representatives and five senators are attempting to agree upon a state water plan suitable to both houses, as well as one that will be approved by voters.

The House approved an $800 million proposal by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Amarillo, earlier in the session.

The committee took a stab at streamlining differences involving ground water rights. Montford's bill allows the state to regulate ground water pumping if local voters fail to do so.

Craddick's bill calls for local voters to reject controls on ground water pumping.

"Water is private property by law," Craddick reminded the Senate side. He said water under the ground belongs to the property owner.

New bills would outlaw pull tabs

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation that would outlaw pull tabs and require a 5-cent deposit on all beverage cans and bottles would alleviate some of the state's litter problem, several legislators say.

Industry officials, however, told the House Liquor Regulation Committee on Tuesday such a law wouldn't reduce littering but would only create lost jobs.

Reps. Ralph Wallace, D-Houston, Lena Guerrero, D-Austin, and Terral Smith, R-Austin, all are pushing bills concerning beverage can deposits and pull tabs. All three bills were sent to subcommittee.

"We don't want Texas to be the dumping grounds for pull tab cans," Wallace said. He said 5 million pounds of aluminium cans were gathered in Texas last year.

Smith said his bill would make it illegal for cans under one gallon to have pull tabs. He said pull tabs are polluting Texas beaches and lakes and have killed wildlife.

WHEAT LEAF RUST POSING THREAT

Wheat growers in Scurry County need to keep a sharp lookout for leaf rust disease on their crop this spring.

Conditions seem to be right for a major leaf rust problem over much of the state.

Leaf rust is caused by a fungus and appears as small, round orange spots on the leaves. A heavy infection will defoliate the plant and interfere with grain development.

Many wheat varieties are susceptible to leaf rust fungus, but the incidence of the organism varies greatly from year to year.

One of the best practices for dealing with leaf rust is to plant resistant varieties or at least several different varieties of wheat each year. Then, if the disease becomes a problem, not all varieties may be affected. Producers that plant all their wheat acreage to a susceptible variety generally suffer the greatest losses when a leaf rust epidemic hits.

With good yield prospects this spring because of favorable moisture conditions, producers will need to consider applying a fungicide to their wheat if leaf rust becomes a threat. Using a fungicide is a good alternative if the potential yield exceeds 40 bushels per acre.

Two types of fungicides are available that vary in effectiveness and cost. The systemic-type, Bayleton, is quite effective but expensive. Protectant-type fungicides such as Manzate 200 and Dithane M-45 are less expensive but are effective for only a short period.

Time of fungicide application is also critical. A producer must consider the susceptibility of the variety being grown, the potential for continued disease development and the growth stage of the crop. Generally, the flag leaf should be protected from the time it is formed until the grain is filled.

When the threat of leaf rust is great and potential yields exceed 60 bushels per acre, growers should apply a fungicide prior to the development of the flag leaf. In this case, the systemic-type fungicide should be applied at the time of jointing and again as the flag leaf begins to unfold. With protectant-type fungicides, additional applications may be needed to get the same level of control.

Actual control level depends on how well the fungicide application is timed, how well it is applied and the seriousness of the rust problem. Fungicides are almost always applied by air, and best results are achieved when the correct dosage is made in five gallons of water per acre.

Producers expecting a good wheat harvest this spring should be able to get a good return on money spent for fungicides to control leaf rust, assuming there are no other limiting factors.

Producers in Scurry County should analyze their yield potential and the seriousness of the rust problem before deciding to treat the Wheat Leaf Rust.

Party ideas top meeting

Parties and special occasions highlighted last Thursday's meeting of the Honey Do Extension Homemakers in the home of Ethel Head.

Kathryn Roberts, county home extension agent, explained different types of parties to the six members present. She demonstrated table decorations, unique ways to serve food and other aspects of entertaining.

During the business session led by president Shirley Bullard, the group made plans to entertain another extension homemakers club in May. They also discussed the bazaar slated for October.

The organization will hold a workshop at 9:30 a.m. on April 18 in the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

Recipe roundup continues...

Cookbook needs more recipes

When good friends get together, often the talk turns to cooking and eating food. This can be especially true if the friends are from different backgrounds or different geographical areas.

Such was the case last week when Claire Ohl of Clermont, Australia visited Jean and Jess Everett. She is in this country for the March 30 wedding of her son, Dave Appleton, to Keely Santerre of Arlington.

Some county residents remember Dave as a student at Western Texas College. While a student, he worked for the Everetts and the families became friends.

Ohl shared this recipe with the Everetts to be included in the cookbook being prepared by the Scurry County Sesquicentennial Cookbook Committee.

The Australian meat pie came into popularity during the depression years. Enterprising women made them at home for their husbands to peddle on street corners. They sold for about a penny each.

Today the little pies are eaten mostly at football matches, rodeos, cricket matches, picnic race meetings or at any public sporting occasion. They are kept warm in electric "pie heaters" or "bush heaters" made from 44 gallon drums and fueled with wood or coal. Shelves are welded inside to hold the pies.

AUSTRALIAN MEAT PIES

Filling:

2 lbs. round steak, cut into large chunks
2 chopped onions
1½ cups water
1 beef stock cube, crumbled
1 tablespoon tomato paste
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Salt
Freshly ground pepper
6 tablespoons flour
Extra water to mix

Pastry:

1 lb. packet ready rolled puff pastry (Fillo pastry) or 2 packets frozen puff pastry, thawed
1 egg yolk, lightly beaten

Step 1: Place all the filling ingredients except the flour and extra water into a large, heavy base saucepan. Bring to boil, lower heat and simmer, covered with a lid, for 45 minutes. Remove lid and simmer uncovered for an additional 30 to 45 minutes or until meat is tender. Mix the flour and a little extra water to a smooth paste and gradually add to meat mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and thickens, about 4 to 5 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Step 2: Lightly flour a board and place sheets of ready rolled pastry onto surface or roll out thawed puff pastry to about ⅛ inch thickness. Cut around upturned 5 inch pie plates about ½ inch out from the edge. Cut out 16 circles in all re-rolling pastry trimmings if necessary.

Step 3: Line each pie plate with a round of pastry and prick the base several times with a fork. Using a sharp knife, trim off any excess pastry from around the edges of pie plates. Spoon about 3 tablespoons of meat filling into each pie case.

Step 4: Brush around the edge of each pie case with water and top with another round of pastry, pressing edges together firmly. Cut a hole in the top of each pie with a sharp knife and mark a decorative pattern around the edges of pies with fork tines. Brush tops of pies with beaten egg yolk and bake in a hot oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes or until golden brown.

The cookbook committee will accept recipes for the publication until April 30. Interested persons are asked to submit their recipe and a brief (50 words or less) history to Jean Everett, Rt. 3, Box 18, Snyder, 79549. A photograph may also be included.

The late Cornelius Slavenburg of the Netherlands was the winner of the World Pair Championship in Amsterdam in 1966. Bob Slavenburg, a gregarious and charming person, particularly enjoyed a dramatic result achieved through artifice. This deal certainly qualifies.

Slavenburg, sitting South, made a two-heart overcall. When his partner raised, there was no question that he would bid five hearts rather than allow vulnerable opponents to play four spades. The dummy was a disappointment. Still, declarer played dummy's spade king on the opening lead of the spade deuce and got the hoped-for spade continuation after East's ace had won. He ruffed and led a diamond. West rose with the ace and continued spades. Slavenburg ruffed and began to play his trumps. In fact, he played all his trumps without even cashing any of his good diamond tricks in dummy. Madness, you say.

But place yourself in the position of either West or East. Surely declarer had a little diamond left. Therefore West felt it was absolutely necessary for him to keep the jack and two small diamonds. And East felt the same imperative existed for him — namely, to keep all his diamonds. Alas, both hapless defenders came down to singleton club honors, and the last four tricks were taken by declarer's suddenly solid club holding.

Yes, someone should have known, but the deal is history.

T.C. Goss, the Traden Hoss, whom we all knew has gone away and will never be back to help those in need in these troubled days. When there was no one to turn to for material help, they would turn to him and because of his big heart he would always give in. We know we will never see & hear him smile and laugh anymore, maybe see his picture on the wall or own one of his cars, but those of us that he helped and friends that he knew will never forget T.C., the one that did help us make it through.

Goetz doesn't testify

NEW YORK (AP) — "Speechless" after his terms for testifying before a grand jury were rejected, Bernhard Goetz blamed prosecutors for taking away his chance to tell the panel why he shot four youths on a subway train Dec. 22.

But District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said that when it was time for Goetz to testify Tuesday, he tried to "unreasonably and unfairly limit the grand jury's inquiry" by insisting questions be limited to the events of two days last December.

MX heads for 4th vote in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — With three votes down and one to go, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill says the last hope of stopping spending for the MX missile is to convince conservative Democrats it bears too high a cost.

"That's the only argument we've got out there," O'Neill said in the aftermath of the slender 219-213 vote by which the House on Tuesday voted to authorize $1.5 billion to build a second installment of 21 MX missiles.

"Certainly, we're going to try and switch it around," the speaker said. "It comes down to the fact that a lot of conservatives in my party will have to look at the price tag."

Other Democrats called the vote "the high-water mark" for the missile system.

They predicted that even if the House votes to appropriate the money, future administration requests for the MX will be slashed and President Reagan will never get the fleet of 100 MX missiles he seeks.

The second vote, to actually appropriate the MX money, was expected today or Thursday.

Critics argued that MX, which stands for Missile Experimental but which Reagan calls "the Peacekeeper," is too expensive, too vulnerable to Soviet attack, and too likely to destabilize the U.S.-Soviet nuclear balance.

The assigned mission of each highly accurate MX is to hurl 10 nuclear war heads at separate targets over ranges of more than 8,000 miles.

The weapon has been controversial for a dozen years, largely because of disagreement on how to base it. Present plans are to place the MX in existing — and vulnerable — Minuteman missile silos in Nebraska and Wyoming with the hope of fortifying those installations at a later date.

Reagan hailed the House action as "a vote for peace, for a safer future, and for success" at the arms control talks with the Soviet Union in Geneva.

Republicans applauded but many Democratic liberals booed and hissed as Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., defied the majority opinion in his party to defend MX as a potent bargaining lever that can be used to pry an acceptable arms reduction agreement from the Soviet Union at the Geneva talks.

"To vote no on these mssiles would be in effect giving help to the Soviet Union," said Aspin, who is chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the Congress, I beg of you, the negotiators are at the table, let's give them the tools so they can do the job," Aspin said.

A total 158 Republicans and 61 Democrats voted for the MX spending. Voting against it were 189 Democrats and 24 Republicans. By tradition, O'Neill as speaker did not vote and there are two vacancies among the 435 House seats.

The White House is asking Congress to approve later in the year a $4 billion appropriation to build an additional 48 MX missiles.

Deadly force use limited by court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that police may not shoot unarmed suspects fleeing from crimes when there is no apparent threat of harm to police officers or others.

By a 6-3 vote, the court struck down a Tennessee law that authorized police to shoot at fleeing felons, a statute said to be similar to those in about half the states.

The court said the Tennessee law is unconstitutional insofar as it authorized deadly force against apparently unarmed, non-dangerous fleeing suspects.

"It is not better that all felony suspects die than that they escape," said Justice Byron R. White for the court.

"Where the suspect poses no immediate threat to the officer and no threat to others, the harm resulting from failing to apprehend him does not justify the use of deadly force to do so," White said.

The ruling does not prevent police from using deadly force when there is "probable cause" to believe the suspect is dangerous.

White said the Tennessee law is constitutional only in authorizing police to shoot to kill "if the suspect threatens the officer with a weapon or there is probable cause to believe that he has committed a crime involving the infliction or threatened infliction of serious physical harm."

In such cases, White continued, deadly force is permissible to prevent escape "if, where feasible, some warning has been given."

Births

A baby girl weighing 6 lbs. 15 ozs. was born to Dana and Melvin Riggins of 3210 Avenue K at 2:40 p.m. on March 26 in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Head injuries in city wreck

A 32-year-old Snyder man was admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital early Wednesday morning suffering from what were called minor head injuries sustained in a one-vehicle traffic mishap here.

A hospital spokesman said Wednesday morning that Fred James Wilkenson of 1607 13th St. was in stable condition after being treated for lacerations to the head. Additional tests were to be run today, they said.

According to accident reports, Wilkenson was injured at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday when he apparently lost control of a 1982 Chevrolet he was driving which collided with a Texas Electric Service Co. utility pole in the 2200 Block of Ave. E.

Broken hose was cause of explosion

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — A meter testing company's broken hose has been blamed for a spectacular explosion and fire that could be seen up to three miles away from the Cosden Oil and Chemical Co. refinery.

The blast occurred just before 1 p.m. Tuesday at the plant, sparking a blaze that took firefighters four hours to bring under control, said Big Spring police Lt. Jerry Edwards.

No injuries were reported, although the fire forced a shutdown in operations at the plant — a subsidiary of American Petrofina — that will last for days, a company spokesman said.

A nearby mobile home park was evacuated soon after the blaze began, but residents were allowed back in their homes by mid-afternoon, Big Spring police said.

Nativity scene upheld by court

WASHINGTON (AP) — An evenly divided Supreme Court today upheld a ruling that forces a New York community to provide public land for a privately sponsored Christmas Nativity scene each year.

The justices, by a 4-4 vote, ruled that Scarsdale, N.Y., must permit the placing of a Nativity scene in the park in the middle of town.

Such tie votes do not set any national precedent because it is possible that in some future case the same issue will be decided by all nine justices.

Justice Lewis F. Powell, who missed hearing arguments in the Scarsdale case while recuperating from prostate surgery, did not participate in deciding the case. The tie vote automatically upheld a ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but the justices issued no opinion of their own.

The court's one-sentence upholding of the lower court's ruling did not tell how each individual justice voted.

Obituaries

Beatrice Reep

Services for Beatrice Reep, 81, of Sweetwater are set for 3 p.m. Thursday at Bell-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Dan Burrow of West Side Baptist officiating, assisted by the Rev. Neal Shepherd. Burial will be at Snyder Cemetery under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

She died at approximately 7 p.m. Monday at Cook Memorial Hospital in Levelland.

She married Joseph William Reep Feb. 6, 1922 in Fisher County. He died Nov. 11, 1982.

She was born Sept. 7, 1903 in Denton County, Tex. and came to Scurry County in 1916 with her parents, Mattie Lee and Samuel T. Minor.

She owned Bea's Beauty Shop in Sweetwater for a number of years, retiring in 1982.

She was preceded in death by three sisters, one brother, one grandson, Ronnie Shepherd in 1965.

Congress slashes foreign aid despite security concerns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite administration claims that national security will be harmed, Congress is trying to slash President Reagan's foreign aid proposal, led by lawmakers battling budget deficits and tired of U.S. support for controversial dictatorships.

"I fully intend to cut your budget by $1 billion," Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee, told a State Department official at a hearing Tuesday. "Can't we afford to limit (some aid) for a year or two until we get our house in order?"

Other committees were already at work cutting Reagan's request for $13.2 billion in foreign aid for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee tentatively decided to freeze spending at 1985 levels, about $600 million less than Reagan requested. The chairman of the panel, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said the freeze proposal "has not left the administration particularly happy," but, "we are attempting to arrive at a bill which has a hope of passing on the floor."

Over in the House, the foreign affairs subcommittees proposed a plan worth about $250 million less than the president wanted.

Reflecting traditional congressional support for Israel, the subcommittee dealing with the Mideast left intact Reagan's proposal for $3 billion in economic and military assistance to Israel and $2.33 billion in similar aid for Egypt.

The panels, however, recommended cuts in proposed aid or restrictions on its use in many countries, notably the Philippines, Pakistan, Turkey and Lebanon and other nations identified by the administration as vital links in global security.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., head of the Asia subcommittee, said that instead of hiking assistance to such regimes, the administration should cut aid to encourage reforms.

"The Philippines continues to be led by corrupt officers," Solarz said.

Noting that a Pakistani businessman recently was caught in the United States allegedly trying to buy equipment usable in an atomic bomb program, Solarz suggested that the Asia subcommittee's proposed $25 million cut in Pakistan aid would show that the United States is serious about halting the spread of nuclear weapons.

The administration, nevertheless, warned that without the full funding, U.S. security interests would be harmed.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz sent the House committee a lengthy, program-by-program defense of the Reagan proposal, urging the panel to reject many of the subcommittees' recommendations.

In a typical objection — to the cut in aid to the Philippines — Shultz said the proposal "virtually ignores the gravity of the growing communist insurgency in the Philippines and the need to help the Philippine military deal effectively with this threat."

William Schneider, under secretary of state for security assistance, refused to budge when Democratic members of the appropriations subcommittee urged him to list just a few countries where aid could be cut.

In every case, reductions from the president's proposal would cause "irreparable harm" to U.S. security goals around the world, Schneider said.

Dallas high winds injure at least one

DALLAS (AP) — High winds that ripped through northeast Dallas injured at least one person, uprooted trees, downed power lines and damaged scores of buildings, giving clean-up crews plenty of work today, authorities say.

Amid a blast of emergency sirens, winds partially shredded two service stations late Tuesday night and brought Big Tex, a 20-foot-high advertisement for a liquor store, to his knees.

Police cordoned off about a square mile of streets and searched under the glare of helicopter searchlights for injured people in an apartment complex where windows were blown out and some roofs collapsed.

Officials said they found no injuries there, but about two miles to the northeast, a man suffered a broken collarbone.

"We had a fellow injured in the White Rock Lake area," said Capt. W.A. Richardson of the city Fire Department. "His car was turned over by the winds."

The man was in stable condition early today in the emergency room of Southeastern Methodist Hospital, said Jeff Place, nursing supervisor.

The National Weather Service's tornado warning in Dallas County expired just before midnight, and forecasters said that despite reported sightings of two funnel clouds, no tornadoes had touched down.

"There definitely were no tornadoes, just high winds," said a weather service forecaster who asked not to be identified. He said trained spotters reported that the sky was composed of "low-hanging clouds, with no rotation."

Honorable mention all-star cast awards were presented to Patrick Malone as Tybalt and Jamie Cofer who plays Benvolio in the production.

Pecos actors claiming all-star cast medallions for their work Tuesday were Briar McNutt and Laurence Jackson along with Dalland Shannon who was named to the honorable mention cast.

Three performers in Sweetwater High's production of "Medal of Honor Rag" — named alternate play to the area contest — also claimed individual awards.

Amy McKenzie and James Carl were all-star selections for Sweetwater with Jim Sanders included on the honorable mention list.

Fort Stockton High's production of "The Bad Seed" — which had been named alternate from the 2-AAAA West Zone last week — was also entered in Tuesday's contest as a replacement for the Midland Lee Freshman School's production of "Little Women."

The Midland school reportedly had to drop out of the competition due to one of their leading players being declared ineligible under the new statewide "pass-to-play" rule.

Three members of the Fort Stockton cast won individual awards including David Bennett, Zana Matthies and Jeana Cacy — all selected for the honorable mention all-star cast.

Joining Snyder and Pecos here for next Tuesday's Area contest will be theatre troupes representing Levelland High and Lubbock Dunbar High — both of whom were declared winners in the District 1-AAAA contest held Tuesday also.

The Levelland group will be performing a play called "Close Ties" while the Dunbar entry will be "The Diary of Adam and Eve."

Vegetables grow in small spaces

By Dick Raymond

Everyone loves home-grown vegetables. But sometimes we make up excuses for not gardening. One of the most popular is "but I don't have the space."

Well, I've been fooling around with patio containers for a number of years, just to see what I could grow in the way of vegetables and herbs. I grew ear corn and anything else I tried. I don't recommend growing corn, because it's just not worth it for a few ears. But practically everything else works great.

I've sown seed potatoes in a bushel basket and harvested many handfuls of beautiful spuds, full-sized. The plant itself is attractive, too.

So, "no land" or "no space" doesn't need to stop anyone from having fresh vegetables of their own. Try hanging baskets of herbs, or pickle cukes.

Keep in mind: Any container of soil in full sun (which all tubs of growing vegetables require) needs regular watering. It dries out faster than soil in-ground, since it's surrounded on all sides by warm air.

Also, most folks have containers set out on patios, terraces and windowsills, often surrounded by masonry, which absorbs and stores heat. So it's very important to be prepared to soak those containers just about every day throughout the summer.

If you're traveling, you can arrange for a house-sitter to water them. Offer some fresh harvest as a reward.

Here's what you need to know:

Choose containers that are a good 10 inches or more deep (to allow for ample root growth). There should be drainage holes in the bottom. I've grown vegetables in baskets, wooden flower boxes, old tires, various pails and buckets. Use your imagination.

Fill the containers with a rich mix of soil, compost and filler material to absorb moisture (peat moss or vermiculite are good). Also, mix a handful of commercial fertilizer into the lower reaches of the container. Sow seed or transplant plants the way you would in the garden. Don't be afraid to crowd them. The foliage cover will shade the soil and keep it moist and cool.

I've grown over a dozen vegetables, from tomato plants to cabbages and eggplants in one tub 18 inches in diameter. As I pull an onion or a scallion it just leaves that much more room for beets and carrots to expand. As a crop of lettuce is completed, I use the space for an additional sowing of onion sets, or a late harvest of chard.

Each week, I add some house-plant fertilizer to the water. Or I side-dress the container with a few spoonfuls of commercial fertilizer such as 5-10-10 once or twice during the growing season.

But water is the key. These containers need a lot. But for that, there's no stopping us from growing full-sized vegetables in sunny, outdoor containers. The only real problem is letting those cherry tomatoes get truly red and ripe before a hand grabs them.

NASA trims monkey experiment on spacelab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Fear of infecting astronauts with a semian herpes virus has caused NASA to fly only two monkeys, instead of the planned four, on a flight next month of a laboratory aboard the space shuttle.

Two of four monkey cages aboard the spacelab will be empty, said Robert Overmyer, the mission commander, because NASA managers worried about the "remote" chance of infecting the seven-man crew with a disease called herpes virus samarai.

Overmyer said tests showed that four squirrel monkeys that had been trained to fly on the mission were carriers of the herpes virus. NASA management decided to reject those monkeys, he said, and look for others. He said they could find only two that were both virus-free and hardy enough to make the flight.

"I feel very comfortable with our position to fly pathogen-free monkeys," Overmyer said. "We don't know how it (the virus) would react in zero gravity."

The monkeys are being flown to test a new cage that will be used in future space flights to house animals. Also aboard the flight are 24 rats. The seven-day spacelab mission is scheduled for launch on April 29.

Dr. Bill Thornton, a physician-astronaut and a member of the spacelab crew, said most experts had considered the virus to be non-infective for humans but an extensive NASA study of monkey handlers uncovered proof that the virus did in fact transfer from one monkey to humans.

In man, he said, the virus has not developed the lesions common from other types of herpes. But blood tests of the monkey handlers, he said, showed antibodies of the disease.

Thornton, who will care for the monkeys and rats during the mission, said the astronauts will be required to change out waste collection trays for the animals, and that the air of the cages and the spacecraft cabin will mingle. For this reason, said the doctor, he felt the decision "wise" to exclude from flight monkeys infected with herpes.

Hypertension symptoms vary

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 37-year-old male and was recently diagnosed as having high blood pressure. My doctor prescribed 80 mg. of Inderal a day, which I have taken regularly.

I feel much better now, more relaxed, less anxious and with less pressure in my chest. However, everything I read says that hypertension has no symptoms and can't be felt by the patient, yet I think I felt it. Can you explain this?

DEAR READER — When you say that you feel better, you are not telling me that some pain has disappeared. The fact that hypertension has no symptoms does not mean that one may not feel tense. A tense person who has high blood pressure in response to tension may feel much better when the high blood pressure is controlled. Most people like this probably have "adrenaline personalities."

Adrenaline is the "fight or flight" hormone that is released during stress. It speeds up the body's motor to prepare for a crisis, and this can increase one's blood pressure. Inderal and other beta-blockers neutralize this adrenaline effect. With that adrenaline stimulation gone, one then feels better. Many people who have high blood pressure do not even have the tense, anxious adrenaline feeling you must have had.

You will want to read The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station. New York, NY 10019.

A person who has had the response you had should avoid caffeine, as found in coffee, tea and some colas. Caffeine has an adrenaline effect, as does the nicotine in cigarettes. Coffee and cigarettes will make Inderal less effective.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 50-year-old female. I have a hiatal hernia and take Lanoxin once a day for the valve in my heart. When I'm sleeping, I sometimes wake up and can't get my breath. This lasts for a little while, but it scares me because I think I won't be able to get my breath. I get out of bed and fling my arms out and just try to breathe, but there's really nothing I can do. Could I die from being unable to get my breath? What causes this? My doctor doesn't seem to know.

DEAR READER — It is often difficult to know what a patient has when the problem is intermittent and the physician can't see it happen. There are two main possibilities. You might have a fairly large hiatal hernia, and enough of your stomach may slide through the hole in the diaphragm into the chest to crowd your lungs. Sleep with the head of your bed elevated 18 inches and don't go to bed until several hours after your last meal.

The other possibility is that you accumulate fluid in your lungs because of your heart condition. I don't know the exact nature of your heart problem, so I can't say for certain. This does happen with some heart conditions and causes attacks of breathlessness, or paroxysmal nocturnal dyspnea.

It sometimes helps to improve the heart's function, and particularly to eliminate excess body water. The seriousness of the problem depends on its cause.

Final arguments are scheduled

DALLAS (AP) — Final arguments are set to begin today in the trial of Charles Walter "Doc" Morrison, accused in a shooting spree at a lounge which killed two men and wounded four others.

A Dallas police investigator testified Tuesday that Morrison told him once the shooting began at the northwest Dallas lounge, he intended to kill everyone at the bar.
