Carter to resume focus on energy issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, whose reshaping of his White House staff is expected to consume less of his time than his Cabinet shakeup, is likely to return to work this week on energy issues.

"Now that the Cabinet-level changes have been made, there will be additional focusing of the president's attention on the Energy Mobilization Board and the Energy Security Corp.," White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday.

Proposals to establish the board, intended to cut through red tape to speed up development of energy projects, and to create the energy corporation, to finance energy development, were sent to Congress last week. The Senate Energy Committee tentatively agreed Saturday to support the mobilization board.

While he has completed the firings that shook his Cabinet last week, the president is still looking for a new secretary of housing and urban development, a new Federal Reserve Board chairman and a new transportation secretary.

Some of the changes he is contemplating in his White House staff, although unlikely to add any new faces to the inner circle of advisers, may be revealed this week, Powell said.

And Hamilton Jordan, Carter's newly named chief of staff, said today that the president intends to widen "the circle of persons inside and outside government that will give him advice."

In an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" program, Jordan was questioned about the number of Georgians advising Carter.

"The shakeup is not over...." Jordan replied. "It is not an unusual thing for a president to have people in the White House around him from their home state."

He added that the "influence of the Georgians on the staff — myself included — has been greatly exaggerated. My new responsibilities as chief of staff have been greatly exaggerated. I will not stand between the president and his Cabinet. I will not be the boss of the Cabinet. I will try to work to manage in a better way the affairs of the White House."

In another interview today, presidential troubleshooter Robert Strauss said Washingtonians have overreacted to the Cabinet changes because the capital is "a company town."

"We haven't kept it in perspective as well as the people across America have," Strauss said on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" show.

"The president said all along that he was going to restructure his government."

Carter, in a meeting with several reporters Saturday, made clear that he wants to see some stability returned to White House operations, after nearly three weeks of uncertainty. It was also made clear that Carter knows what changes he thinks should be made to strengthen the staff and increase the diversity of his advisers.

Reporters also learned that the overriding theme in the Cabinet shakeup was loyalty, a point stressed Sunday by Jordan, who said on NBC's

"Meet the Press":

"Once the president makes a decision on policy or a piece of legislation, it is the responsibility of people in government to support that action or leave the government."

Carter clearly felt that Joseph A. Califano Jr., whom he fired as secretary of health, education and welfare, had been working at cross-purposes to presidential goals.

It was understood that the president expects his Cabinet members to be team players and that if he had made an error in the past, he felt it was in waiting as long as he did to use dismissals to make this clear.

Shakeup: Time will tell if 'maneuvers' working

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just think of a hunter with only one shot in his rifle taking aim at a charging buffalo.

That, suggests a governmental official, is the position in which President Carter finds himself after taking aim at his Cabinet last week.

But unlike the buffalo hunter, who will know immediately whether his shot was good enough to save his life, this official says Carter and the rest of us may have to wait several months to learn whether the president's work was sufficient to save his political life.

"We're still seeing the round come out of the barrel," said the official, a Carter ally who requested anonymity.

The president's view is that the Cabinet shakeup and the pending White House staff realignment are intended to improve the work of his administration, removing, among others, the Cabinet members who were not team players and who were unsuccessful in legislative efforts.

He is adamant in stressing that political considerations did not play a part in the diverse events that began almost three weeks ago at Camp

An analysis

David when he canceled a planned energy speech.

Carter made his views known to a group of reporters invited to the White House over the weekend.

But one government official, who is unlikely to be affected by Carter's intensive evaluation of the administration's performance, said he felt the president's re-election concerns were "absolutely" behind the sudden shifts.

He and others said the staff changes are intertwined with the president's fortunes in 1980, when the nation will go to the polls and issue its own report card to him.

"You have to put your four-year presidency into the next 180 days," said this official, who also asked not to be named.

His message was clear: During the six months before the presidential primary elections begin, the president must prove that, with some new faces and revised White House operations, he can overcome the inefficiencies and political gaffes that have plagued his first 30 months in office.

After the next 180 days, the president will have just a few more months, during the early primary elections, to get the public's response.

"He's been going down," the official said. "He'll go down some more." But around mid-September, by this forecast, the president's political fortunes will turn around, barring any unforeseen difficulty.

With the president making clear that loyalty will be rewarded, this official said, "the political operation (at the White House) must be feeling pretty good."

Lebanon to protest air raids before U.N. Security Council

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon will bring a protest to the U.N. Security Council against Israeli air raids south of Beirut that killed more than 20 persons and injured at least 60 Sunday, a government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said most of the casualties were Lebanese civilians returning along the Mediterranean highway from weekend picnics. He said rescue teams were still searching for more victims.

Israeli jets returned to the skies over southern Lebanon today, apparently on reconnaissance missions. Palestinian anti-aircraft cannon and missiles fired on the intruders but did not report any hits.

Prime Minister Salim el Hoss condemned the attack as "an ugly crime against innocent civilians" and urged other nations "to act to stop Israeli aggression against a U.N. member-state."

Israel said its planes attacked Palestinian "terrorist concentrations," but the Palestine Liberation Organization said only three guerrillas were killed.

The government spokesman said the U.S. government would be asked to put pressure on Israel to halt its attacks. Similar appeals in the past have brought no results.

A witness to one of the raids Sunday evening said it caused "enormous damage." Residents in Beirut heard the distant thuds of rockets hitting the Palestinian towns of Damour, Haret al-Naameeh, Sarafand and nearby targets 12 to 20 miles south of the capital.

Provincial officials in Sidon said Syrian MIG jets scrambled to meet the intruders and "chased" them away. They said the Israeli pilots apparently did not want to tangle with the Syrians.

A brief Israeli communique said all planes returned safely.

It was the first Israeli air raid in Lebanon since June 27, when Israeli and Syrian jets clashed in the skies over Damour in their first dogfight in five years.

Clerk 'satisfactory' after convenience store shooting

A Midland store clerk was listed in satisfactory condition in Midland Memorial Hospital today after he was shot about 3:10 a.m. Sunday in an armed robbery at a convenience store, officials said.

Robert Lorang Blessing, 23, 2438 Whitmire Blvd., was shot in the shoulder when a man robbing the 7-Eleven store, 1912 N. Big Spring St., apparently became angry about the small amount of money in the cash register, police said.

Blessing told police the man who shot him was in the store about 1 a.m.

The man may have hidden in the back of the store or taken the guard bar off the rear door and entered later, police speculated, because when Blessing went to the stockroom about 3:10 a.m., the man confronted him there.

The man had a handgun, Blessing told police, and told him to get the money out of the cash register.

When Blessing brought the money to the man, Blessing told police, the man became angry about the small amount of cash in the register.

Cocking the gun, the man aimed it at Blessing who, feeling he was about to be shot, pushed the gun to one side, the clerk told police.

As Blessing pushed the gun aside, it fired, wounding him in the left shoulder, police said.

The man escaped with an undetermined amount of cash, officers said. Blessing was transported by ambulance to Midland Memorial Hospital, authorities indicated.

Nicaragua's government wants to try Somoza for war crimes

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua's revolutionary government is going to request the extradition of dictator Anastasio Somoza to face trial for war crimes, but it says there will be no wholesale execution of his supporters like those after the revolution in Iran.

There will be "no death penalty in Nicaragua and no executions ordered by the courts," the new chief justice of the Supreme Court, Roberto Arguelo Hurtado, told reporters Sunday.

"It is possible there may be excesses including executions before we can get regular courts organized," said Arguelo. "But they will only be personal vendettas or just plain hate between people and any executions will not be authorized."

The chief justice said his court would appoint new judges for the lower courts as soon as possible. Until that is done, he said, justice is being administered by three-member military-civilian tribunals authorized to maintain public order and try persons accused of civil and war crimes.

"Later each of their sentences will be reviewed to determine if they should stand or go to a higher court,"

Arguelo said.

One of the five members of the junta heading the government, Sergio Ramirez Mercado, told a news conference the government was going to ask the United States for Somoza's extradition and was preparing the charges against him.

He said the ousted dictator, who fled to an estate he owns in Miami Beach and is now yachting in the Caribbean, was "responsible for the destruction and the deaths of thousands of Nicaraguans." He also accused the deposed president and his associates of taking "every last cent out of the national bank reserves." And he said Somoza was plotting to return to Nicaragua with an army.

The chief justice said members of the national guard who have taken refuge in Red Cross centers would be given safe conduct out of the country if they are cleared of war crimes charges.

"Each case will be reviewed to determine if any are guilty of war crimes," he said.

Ulrich Bedard of the Red Cross said the relief organization has about 3,000 to 4,000 national guardsmen and their families in its custody, and "every day we are getting information about more."

He said there have been no reports of reprisals against guardsmen by Sandinista guerrillas. But he said there were reports of reprisals against guardsmen by civilians, and he refused to discuss them.

Midlander among state honorees

Midland business and civic leader Larry J. Bell, 30, today was named one of the five Outstanding Young Texans of 1979 by the Texas Jaycees.

The honor was to be announced by the state Jaycee president at a press conference this afternoon at Midland Regional Airport.

The honor is the highest award made to a Jaycee member by the state organization.

Bell, president of HBF Corp. and a past president of the Midland Jaycees, received the Distinguished Service Award from the local chapter in January.

Last year, he was the first Midland Jaycee to win the national Clint Dunagan Memorial Award as one of the top 20 regional Jaycee directors.

Bell had served as supervising state officer for Jaycee chapters in 32 West Texas counties during 1977, traveling more than 34,000 miles and making more than 150 visits and meetings.

While he served, the region grew into the largest one in Texas, adding 10 chapters and more than 800 members. He earned the national award after being named top regional director by the Texas Jaycees that year.

Bell also will be listed with several other Texas men in the 1979 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America, an annual awards publication.

Other Midlanders listed in the publication are Joe Chavez Alcala, Philip Kennedy Brown Jr., Jerry Campbell, Vincent Joseph Coffey, Norman Walter Smith and Richard Carman Jolly.

Four men arrested in kidnapping

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A fourth man was arrested early today on federal charges of kidnapping and extortion in connection with the abduction of a banker's wife whose husband paid $300,000 for her release.

Three men were arrested Sunday following Joan Dedrick's release 42 hours after she was abducted from her West Milford home on Friday.

Mrs. Dedrick's husband paid the ransom following tense negotiations with the kidnapers, including a 21-hour period when the abductors were out of contact.

William Dedrick re-established contact with the kidnapers early Sunday after making a public appeal for his wife's release.

The FBI said the fourth suspect was arrested at 1 a.m. today at his home in Paterson. He was identified as Gaetano Allessandro, 23.

The three suspects arrested Sunday were identified as Guillermo Jesus Caceres, 22, Angel Humberto Cedano, 22, and Salvatore Lacognata, 23, all of Paterson.

All were scheduled to go before a U.S. magistrate today, the FBI said.

Caceres and Cedano were arrested Sunday at a Paterson tenement staked out by the FBI. Lacognata was arrested later in front of his home. All were held without bond in the Metropolitan Correction Center in New York.

FBI spokesman Michael McDonnell would not say whether the ransom was recovered.

Caceres and Cedano were seized moments after Mrs. Dedrick, 46, met reporters on the lawn of the couple's home, authorities said. Also at the news conference was her husband, executive vice president of the Franklin Bank in Paterson.

"I'm home, I'm home," said Mrs. Dedrick.

"She was released exhausted, but not physically harmed," said Dedrick. "This is a joyous occasion for all of us."

Mrs. Dedrick arrived home about 6 a.m. Neither she nor the FBI would reveal details of events following her abduction Friday morning.

FBI Special Agent Arthur Meister said she was released at a gas station in Teaneck at 4 a.m. Sunday. A resident in Teaneck, a Bergen County community about 25 miles from the Dedricks' home, called the FBI when Mrs. Dedrick appeared at the door.

"She was bound, but not physically hurt," Meister said. "Apparently she was physically unharmed; however, emotionally, she was upset."

Brown takes Carter's SALT case to Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown told the Senate Armed Services Committee today he would not hesitate to recommend terminating the SALT II treaty if the Soviet Union were detected in a major violation of its provisions.

"I would not hesitate to recommend to the president that we take whatever steps necessary to meet the threat — including, if need be, treaty abrogation," Brown said.

The defense secretary took the Carter administration's case for the strategic arms limitation pact before some of its toughest critics with the opening of hearings by the Armed Services Committee.

He told the panel that "we can adequately verify Soviet compliance with the provisions of SALT II. We will be able, by our own intelligence efforts, to detect a Soviet violation in time to react so as to block or offset any substantive military advantage that could result from the violation."

Brown also emphasized the administration's determination to spend whatever is necessary to modernize U.S. defense forces and maintain military balance with the Soviet Union.

"Our overall deterrent is not as weak as the pessimists would have us believe," he said. "It is not as strong as I would like it to be."

Noting that the strategic nuclear forces covered by the treaty "count for a relatively small portion of our defense expenditures," Brown said the agreement would free funds to upgrade other parts of U.S. defense forces.

Brown was the first of several administration witnesses scheduled to appear before the Armed Services Committee this week in support of the agreement.

While the panel does not have formal jurisdiction for the treaty, its views on the military significance of the pact will be influential in the Senate.

Formal jurisdiction lies with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which opened hearings two weeks ago. Some of the treaty's most vocal critics are on the Armed Services Committee, including Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., John Tower, R-Texas, Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Bundy's murder trial entering fifth week

MIAMI (AP) — The murder trial of Theodore Bundy entered its fifth week today as the defendant and prosecutors conferred with the judge over final jury instructions.

Judge Edward D. Cowart is expected to instruct the jury by Wednesday on how to decide whether Bundy fatally clubbed and strangled two women in the early morning of Jan. 15, 1978. The two were among four women savagely attacked at Florida State University.

After the conference, a psychologist and a dentist were expected to complete a defense attack on the reliability of state evidence.

Psychologist Dr. David Kuypers was expected to criticize the reliability of Nita Neary, who testified she saw Bundy leave the sorority house, club in hand, shortly after the killings.

Kuypers testified during earlier arguments over whether Miss Neary's testimony should be presented to the jury. He said a police hypnotist caused the young woman to experience what in effect were hallucinations during a session eight days after the killings.

Cowart eventually allowed Miss Neary to testify, saying her description of the stranger was not materially changed by the discrepancies produced under hypnosis.

The end of the defense case comes on the heels of turmoil between Bundy and his lawyers. Late last week, Bundy, a former law student, said he would take over his own defense because his attorneys were avoiding him. He later reconsidered and said a compromise had been reached, but the attorney who was to give closing arguments quit the case and Bundy's chief public defender tried to.

Bundy, whose family lives in Tacoma, Wash., also is accused of killing a 12-year-old girl in Lake City, Fla., and a Michigan nurse vacationing in Colorado. He was convicted on a kidnapping charge in Utah.

The fire caused heavy damage to the kitchen and bedroom of the house and heat and smoke damage to the rest of the structure, Odessa fire officials said.

Assassination Committee's recent report called 'hoax'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Instead of answering questions, the House Assassinations Committee's recent report on the murders of President Kennedy and the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was a "hoax," according to the committee's former chief counsel, Richard Sprague.

"All they did was evolve another conspiracy theory," Sprague said in an interview published in The Sunday Bulletin.

The former assistant district attorney served as the committee's chief counsel for six months in 1976-77 before resigning in a dispute with the panel's leaders.

The committee's 686-page report, released last week, concluded that "it was possible ... that an individual organized crime leader, or a small combination of leaders, might have participated in a conspiracy to assassinate President Kennedy."

The committee also concluded that there was a "95 percent" chance that more than one gunman fired at Kennedy and that the brothers of James Earl Ray "probably" assisted his flight after the murder of King.

"It is outrageous and irresponsible for them to spend $5.4 million to produce a report that says this 'might have' happened or that 'probably occurred,'" Sprague said.

"Let them answer the questions one-by-one. Who are the conspirators? How did they get together? When did they get together?"

Sprague gained a national reputation as the dogged special prosecutor of the killers of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph Yablonski. He tracked that conspiracy through several layers of the UMW to former UMW president W.A. "Tony" Boyle, who is now in prison for ordering the assassination.

Sprague said he had formed no personal opinion on whether the Kennedy or King deaths resulted from conspiracies.

Iran's Khomeini bans all music

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Saying "music is no different from opium," Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has banned all music from Iran's air waves, the official Pars news agency reported today.

The 79-year-old leader of the Iranian revolution told a group of employees from a radio station in Darya the broadcasting of music was "treason against the country and against our youth."

Like opium, "music also stupefies a person listening to it and makes the brain inactive and frivolous," he said.

Niagara Falls 'deadline' passes without incident

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The mayor of this resort city said he felt "a sense of relief" when the time for a predicted landslide at Niagara Falls passed and only normal amounts of water flowed over the world-famous attraction.

But the self-styled psychic who started all the concern with a prediction of disaster says she only missed on the timing.

Mayor Michael O'Laughlin was on board the Maid of the Mist tour boat when Niagara Falls at Sunday's predicted rockslide hour of 4:56 p.m., O'Laughlin had joked earlier "there's a priority established for abandoning ship — mayors go first."

Pat St. John of Bridgewater, Conn., who had predicted an unusual amount of water would flood over the falls, drowning dead children on the tour boat, remained undaunted by the non-event. She said an accident will happen at the falls — some day — at 4:56.

"I still feel it's going to happen," said Mrs. St. John. "There's no doubt in my mind about the time, 4:56, and the event."

Sunday, thousands of people lined the sides of the huge gorge at the predicted time of disaster.

Under the Horseshoe Falls, a tour boat from the Maid of the Mist fleet toured as usual, but this time with a cargo of civic leaders and about 50 reporters and photographers. On the towering cliffs around the gorge tourists exchanged waves with passengers of the boat.

On the Maid of the Mist, owner Jim Green looked up and said, "I haven't seen them line up like that since Red Hill went over the falls." Hill, a 1950s daredevil, was killed when he tried to go over the falls in a makeshift craft.

Eyes then began turning to watches, then back to the falls. At 4:56 p.m. the only sound was the water rushing over the falls.

The reaction of the spectators above the gorge was mixed. Michael O'Sullivan of Niagara Falls sang, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary."

Said Samshed Arjani of Hamilton, Ont.: "I drove all the way here and nothing happened."

The concern over a possible rockslide at the falls began on July 4 with Mrs. St. John's prediction. A week later, Martha Ramsey of Skaneateles, N.Y., said she foresaw a rockslide or an earthquake there.

Those fears seemed to gain credence when a seismic alarm sounded at the Terrapin Point observation point above the falls. After an investigation by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, it was determined that the alarm was working properly and the rocks had shifted.

Ships rescue 371 Vietnam refugees

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The West German ships Josefturn and Philippturn picked up 371 Vietnamese refugees in the South China Sea off the southeast coast of Malaysia, the West Germany Embassy reported today.

The embassy's information officer, Fritz Diehm, said Malaysian immigration officials let the refugees land because they will be resettled in West Germany. He said his government will take in any refugee picked up by West German ships.

West German states have agreed to resettle 5,400 Indochinese refugees from camps in Malaysia and other Southeast Asian countries in the next few months.

260,000 homes pledged

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The U.N. conference on Indo-Chinese refugees has ended after producing pledges of asylum for 260,000 of the 400,000 refugees in Southeast Asian nations, $190 million for the relief program, new transit centers and a Vietnamese promise to cut off the exodus temporarily.

"The conference in many ways was a success," said U.S. Ambassador Dick Clark, President Carter's special envoy for the refugee problem, "but all the promises, pledges and initiatives now have to be followed up. Actions will have to be taken."

That was the thinking, too, of the Southeast Asian nations of "first asylum" — Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines and Singapore which, with Hong Kong, have been flooded with those who have fled from Vietnam and Cambodia. These governments brought the refugee problem to a crisis by refusing to accept any more.

The conference's pledges were "altogether encouraging," said Malaysian Home Minister Ghazalle Shafie, but there must be "some dramatic development to make the deeds match the words."

Despite Vietnam's promise to try to stop what it called the "illegal departures," the other Southeast Asian countries still refused to comply with U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's appeal that they lift their blockade against further refugee boats. Refugee officials in Malaysia said 400 Vietnamese who landed there a month ago were towed out to sea Saturday, the last day of the two-day Geneva conference.

Other reports from Southeast Asia said there had been a big drop in the number of refugees landing on the coasts and islands of Indonesia and

Guerrillas kidnap Catholics

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe Rhodesia (AP) — Black nationalist guerrillas have kidnapped about 40 black Roman Catholics, including a priest, nuns and nurses, from a remote jungle mission and marched them 15 miles into Mozambique, church and security sources said today.

Among the captives were the children of lay members who helped the missionaries serve hundreds of villagers at the Marymount Mission, 110 miles northeast of Salisbury in the disease-ridden, impoverished Chinamoa tribal reserve.

The entire black staff including a Jesuit priest, six nuns, two novices and four nurses "disappeared" from the mission, Monsignor Helmut Reckter, the churchman in charge of the area, said.

The Rev. Karl Steffans, the German Jesuit who founded the mission school, church and hospital a decade ago, flew there on Friday for a routine inspection and found the place deserted.

Steffans abandoned his post at Marymount early this year after guerrillas operating from Mozambique killed seven Jesuits and forced the closing of most other missions in the area.

"The place was partly ransacked, medical supplies and food had been stolen and it was all as silent as a cemetery," Steffans told The Associated Press today. "It was a sad picture."

Police trackers followed footprints said to be those of the guerrilla abductors and their captives through 15 miles of coarse bush to the border with Mozambique, where Robert Mugabe's guerrillas are based, church sources said.

Malaysia, Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien assured delegates and journalists this was a demonstration of Hanoi's "good will." He said it was the result of increased coastal surveillance.

But many of the Western and Southeast Asian delegates were skeptical.

Some said the decrease was a "negotiating tactic." Others said the start of the monsoon rains in the South China Sea probably were discouraging would-be refugees from attempting the dangerous voyage.

Singapore Foreign Minister S. Rajaratnam said the drop disproved

Vietnam's claim that it has no control over the exodus.

"If they can turn off the flow for a few days, they can turn it off permanently," he said.

Some concern was expressed that the moratorium on refugee departures from Vietnam conflicted with the U.N.

Charter's guarantee of the right of free movement. Waldheim told a new conference he recognized there was some "contradiction." But many delegates characterized the moratorium as a lesser evil than continuation of the exodus with no place for the refugees to go.

Refugees say 85 massacred

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Eight Vietnamese refugees say Vietnamese troops massacred 85 other refugees when their crowded boat ran aground on a reef off Spratly Island in the South China Sea.

The survivors included two 15-year-old boys, two former members of the South Vietnamese air force, two fishermen, a mechanic and the owner of the boat. They reported 20 men, 20 women and 45 children were killed or drowned when they tried to escape.

The survivors said they swam about three miles to Parola Island, where they were rescued by Philippine marines. The attack reportedly occurred on June 20-21 but did not become public knowledge until The Associated Press obtained a copy of a report by the survivors. Diplomatic sources confirmed there was an attack, but the Vietnamese Embassy claimed it had no knowledge of it.

Spratly Island, only 500 yards long by 300 yards wide, is part of a tiny island group claimed by Vietnam, China and the Philippines. It is about 400 miles east of Vietnam and nearly the same distance west of the Philippine island of Palawan, where the Vietnamese survivors are being cared for.

The survivors gave the following account in their report:

On June 18, 93 Vietnamese boarded a fishing boat from an island off Nha Trang, in southern Vietnam, to flee their country. Their voyage was uneventful until shortly after dusk on June 20 when the boat hit a reef about 150 yards off Spratly Island.

"Right after the accident, all men jumped out into the water and all efforts were made to push the boat back to the deep water, but all were in vain."

Flashlights were seen on the island. Four men with a life preserver were sent to the island along with two sick children "to ask for help and medical care. Suddenly, shots were heard, breaking the silence of the night." One of the four men swam back to the boat and said that men speaking Vietnamese had ordered the group to come closer and then opened fire, killing the other three refugees.

Attempts to float the boat failed and at dawn "the island appeared in front of us as a small one, dotted with some coconut trees. At this point, the communists did not make any move and we innocently thought that we could come in and ask for help."

A man and his ailing mother started for shore with a life preserver but when they were halfway there the men on the island opened fire again, and "the two died in front of our eyes."

The refugees raised their clasped hands, begging for mercy, and saw "some movements on the island, and big guns, mortars, grenade launchers were pointed to us."

"Suddenly, one mortar shell fell right on the front part of our boat, killing 20 persons instantly and injuring many. There was panic on the boat."

"A group of communist soldiers then got out of the bunkers and lined up along the shoreline, using their AK-47 rifles to gun us down one after the other."

About 20 refugees jumped into the sea and began swimming away from the soldiers. When they were several hundred yards from shore, they saw another island they believed to be about three miles away.

Down Nicaragua way

The people of this country simply are going to have to resign themselves to accept a certain amount of anti-Americanism as a new government takes over in Nicaragua.

We should not allow the normal reaction of that new government to provoke us into becoming anti-Nicaraguan in return.

The United States' long-established "good neighbor" policy is still the best guide for our relationships in Latin America. That means no interference in the internal affairs of our good neighbors to the south. It also means a willingness to be helpful and friendly with our neighbor nations, if they want our help and friendship.

Nicaragua's President Anastasio Somoza, realizing that his regime was approaching an end, resigned last week and quickly took up residence at Miami, Fla. By resigning, he probably felt he still would have some power to influence future events in Nicaragua.

Had the fighting gone on to the bitter end, there undoubtedly would have been the same kind of bloody aftermath that we now are seeing in Iran. Tyranny begets terrorism begets retribution in a cycle that goes on and on, even after peace breaks out.

The real question right now is what kind of government will come into being to replace Somoza. The outcome is tremendously important to Latin America, the United States, and the Free World.

A growing danger now is that the Marxists and non-Marxist elements of the Sandinistas will fight it out for control of the country. Something of this nature very well could happen before this gets into print.

There are three competing factions within the Sandinista Front: The Tercerista, or moderate non-Marxists who were pinned down in fighting on the Southern Front; the Prolonged Popular War (GPP), composed of Marxists, and the Proletariat (P), also Marxist but of the Maoist stripe. The Marxist Sandinistas control Nicaragua's cities and towns.

The Sandinista Marxists have been given substantial but surreptitious support by the Soviet Union and its satellites in Eastern Europe. Moreover, a small but effective international brigade of Communists had been fighting alongside the GPP with volunteers from such disparate nations as East Germany and Panama.

The Sandinista guerrillas, in a bid for international recognition, had formed a provisional junta to govern the country during a three-year reconstruction period. It is interesting to note that despite the predominate Marxist control over the National Liberation Front, only one Marxist was named to the junta. Nevertheless, there is reason to fear that, without outside help, the junta will be hostage to the Marxists, and will lack the strength to govern.

Yet, this undoubtedly is the provisional junta which is taking over or has taken over. It isn't the brightest and most encouraging picture in the world, is it? But this is the way it has and is happening in Nicaragua, and part of the blame must rest with diplomatic blundering by the White House and U.S. State Department.

It is not known how strongly the Sandinista guerrillas will react to the history of American intervention and domination of their country, dating back to the early years of this century. That history, however, guarantees that they will be anti-American to a degree.

If the U.S. had continued the tradition of intervention, Somoza perhaps would still be in charge. But we, perhaps correctly and at long last, reversed that traditional policy. Now we must live with the consequences. It is hoped that is does not take the better part of another century in order to establish free and equal relations between the United States of America and the independent nation of Nicaragua.

A Castro-type Communist dictatorship in Nicaragua could mean the fall of Central America and stepped-up Marxist guerrilla warfare against oil-rich Mexico and Venezuela, not to say against the Panama Canal.

Meanwhile, the United States should be standing by, offering its help to care for battle victims and in rebuilding the economy, when and if asked.

'ALL RIGHT, TROOPS - WHAT WE NEED NOW IS CONFIDENCE'

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Clearing the DC-10 for return to the skies may end one specific air safety problem, but plenty more remain.

How will they be dealt with — one at a time following each new disaster, or with a well-planned, comprehensive approach that will bring safety techniques abreast of air travel's speed, comfort and convenience?

It depends on the public's awareness of the problems, and the pressure that can be brought on airlines and government regulators to come to grips with them. To find out what are the greatest dangers facing the flying public, we surveyed aviation experts, employees and consumer groups.

The answers varied, in large part depending on the particular axe that each group has to grind. But the basic problem all parties agreed on is our increasingly crowded skies — a problem that can only get more serious as the years go by.

Air travel is booming. Sharper competition, lower prices, the growth of private aviation, even the growing difficulty of going long distance by automobile, have all contributed to an irreversible upsurge in flying. The number of passengers increased 13 percent last year alone.

But airport facilities and safety equipment haven't kept pace with the Jet Age technology that has made air travel so cheap and popular. Terminals that were up-to-date a decade ago are now clogged with traffic, increasing the already heavy risks of the most critical moments in aviation: Takeoffs, approaches and landings.

One solution, favored especially by private pilots, is the provision of small "satellite" airports near metropolitan areas to relieve congestion at the commercial facilities. The airline industry looks to its technicians for a solution: Planes could land even closer together, according to the Air Transport Association, if engineers could solve the problem of "wake vortex," the powerful swirl of air that follows a jet in flight.

For their part, the airline pilots have for years been agitating for more advanced safety equipment. Though they're better off than Charles Lindbergh, who could see where the Spirit of St. Louis was going only through a periscope, today's jet pilots must still depend ultimately on their own vision to avoid other aircraft in the high-speed traffic jams over airports. They desperately need a computerized collision-avoidance system to prevent mid-air crashes like the one that claimed 144 lives at San Diego last year.

Critics of the Federal Aviation Administration, including Ralph Nader's Aviation Consumer Action Project and the Airline Passengers Association, say the FAA is slow to anticipate safety problems, bestirring itself only after disaster strikes. They cite the DC-10's structural defects, such as the engine-mount crack that caused the recent crash in Chicago and the cargo-door latch failure that took 346 lives in a 1974 Paris crash.

Federal regulators deny that they have sacrificed passenger safety to the "keep 'em flying" demands of the airline industry. The FAA traditionally counters criticism by noting that, on a per-mile basis, air travel is far safer than driving on the nation's highways.

Other problems include pilot fatigue — exacerbated by the time lag and irregular hours brought on by high-speed jet travel — and inadequate crash survivability safeguards that can keep a minor accident from turning into a holocaust of fire or toxic fumes. Both these problems involve economic factors of profit and loss, and so far neither the airline industry nor the FAA is convinced that correction is worth the expense.

Russian linguist should address SALT in Senate

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

ORLANDO, Fla. — Lev Navrozov, a linguist, engineer and intellectual, should be among the witnesses who are addressing the SALT II question in the Senate. He is not, of course, because American experts universally agree that no Russian can possibly know as much about the Soviet Union as an American college professor.

After all, Navrozov, who spent most of his life in the Soviet Union and is 50 times smarter than the Harvard faculty, has no degree in Soviet studies. Such is the absurdity of our times.

Navrozov has addressed the SALT II question anyway in lectures and articles. He compares SALT to the Maginot Line, the famous string of fortifications on which France depended for protection against a German attack. France, you will recall, fell to the German attack quicker than a cheese soufflé in a 9.8 Richter scale earthquake.

Charley Reese

In an article in "Midstream," Navrozov addresses the question of verification by critiquing two articles — one by Jan. M. Lodal in "Foreign Affairs" and another by Rep. Les Aspin in "Scientific American." Actually, critique is an understatement. Navrozov demolishes them.

Lodal is easy. Stripped of its academic gobblegook, Lodal's argument is that SALT II really can't be verified but don't worry, the Soviets have agreed in writing not to violate it. As Navrozov puts it, Lodal is concerned about proper legal stipulations in the proper legal papers, neither of which bear any relationship to Soviet intentions and capabilities.

As for Aspin, a protégé of former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, Navrozov lays out a series of unsupported assertions and groundless assumptions like an Eskimo laying out fish to dry.

Anyone familiar with Aspin would not be surprised since he is easily the most aggressively obtuse thinker in the House. Navrozov begins by pointing out that the CIA itself has admitted that for 11 years prior to 1975 American intelligence grossly underestimated the size of Soviet forces, the rate of the Soviet buildup, and the amount of resources the Soviets were devoting to the buildup.

"To sum up," he writes, "even if the SALT agreements were verifiable and ensured strategic parity, they would be a mortally dangerous trap, based on an admitted, allegedly honest, mortally dangerous mistake." He then quotes the testimony of American intelligence officials before Congress to the effect that American intelligence was surprised by the Soviet acquisition of a broad ocean Navy.

"If the whole intelligence community could not detect the building in Soviet shipyards of a broad ocean Navy, how can the U.S. intelligence claim to know that certain production lines do not operate inside some Soviet surface or underground enterprises in areas where no foreign foot has stepped since 1945," he writes.

They can't, of course. As for vague hints that the CIA has spies in the Soviet Union, Navrozov asserts, "...actually no Western agency has even planted a single agent inside the post-1921 Soviet infrastructure, and those fearless Soviet inhabitants who volunteered their information were all given away immediately to the Soviet secret police through the farcical ignorance and ineptitude of Western intelligence."

Navrozov then points out that Soviet scientists anticipated spy satellites in the 1950s and launched massive studies of wave camouflage and by the 1960s had developed materials and methods for camouflage throughout the electromagnetic spectrum.

Observing that Aspin assumes a high degree of sophistication on the U.S. side and a "peasants" capability on the Russian side, Navrozov asks if the officials who spent billions of dollars and thousands of lives failing to defend South Vietnam would care to lecture the Soviet military establishment which regained control of Czechoslovakia in a matter of hours and guided North Vietnam to victory without the loss of a single Soviet life.

INSIDE REPORT:

Presidential pique over magazine baffles lawmakers

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter's altered view of Americans, posing new pitfalls for his administration, were revealed when he opened one Camp David meeting with members of Congress by complaining about People magazine.

The lawmakers, prepared for a serious energy discussion, were baffled by presidential pique over the amiable picture magazine. He tied People's alleged irreverence for marriage with a decline in national spirit on which he blamed the country's woes. While the congressmen wanted to modify the Clean Air Act, President Carter wanted to cleanse the national spirit.

This abandoned his old credo that Americans deserved a government as good as themselves. Whatever its greater accuracy, the president's critical new view of his fellow citizens contains dangerous potential for rationalizing and minimizing his administration's shortcomings.

That potential was exposed at Camp David when the president opened group discussions with each new contingent of distinguished visitors by warning of a "malaise" in the land, sapping public morale and enthusiasm. The assassinations of great national leaders and "ignominious defeat" in Vietnam had sapped national resolve.

In a morning session with Senate and House experts on energy, the president took off from that point to lament public disrespect for institutions. Congress, he noted, had a favorable rating of 18 to 19 percent. The institution of marriage had declined. Why, Carter went on, just pick up a copy of People magazine and it never depicts wives or husbands but shows so-and-so's playmate or roommate. "He was really upset about this," one senator told us.

The reaction was one of confusion. "I couldn't get over the idea of the president reading People magazine," one Democratic senator confessed, "and so, maybe I missed the point." One suspicious Republican senator thought Carter was sniping at his challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who has been featured in the magazine with his girlfriend, singer Linda Ronstadt.

But most of those present were literal-minded Democratic lawmakers, their briefcases stuffed with proposals. Having come to the mountain to talk about legislation, they were in no mood for a sermon. "The president was only commenting in passing on marriage and stuff like that," one Democratic leader assured us in a viewpoint widespread among his colleagues. "Don't take it too seriously."

Widespread, but wrong. What practical congressmen thought was an insubstantial appetizer was in fact intended by the evangelical president as the main course. Unlike congressional leaders who put their faith in legislation, the president feels there is no long-term solution short of national revival.

Accurate or not, that viewpoint downgraded cabinet suggestions that Carter revive his presidency with dramatic substantive proposals. Carter rejected proposals by Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal to decontrol gasoline, partly because he doubted such action attacks the "malaise." For the same reason, he has seen no need for one cabinet member's recommendation to suspend the Clean Air Act, permitting big increases in coal use.

More ominous is the fear, shared by some Carter supporters, that the president may travel the melancholy path blazed 60 years ago by Woodrow Wilson in blaming the nation for mistakes of government. Certainly, private and public administration statements in recent weeks have judged how the ordinary citizen, not his leader, responds to crisis.

But throughout the first two years of his presidency, Carter had nothing to say about a national "malaise" or of the cumulative impact of assassinations and the then unmentioned "ignominious defeat" in Vietnam. Not until his own ratings tumbled was there such intense concern with public morality.

Indeed, the fact Carter felt constrained to use Camp David for his meetings is in itself evidence of change. "The president just feels more comfortable at Camp David than in the White House," one senior aide explained. But this was not the case through most of 1978, when Carter enjoyed living and working in the Executive Mansion.

Carter's new distaste for the White House coincides with his new criticism of his fellow Americans. Like Carter, Woodrow Wilson (as described by biographer Gene Smith) regarded the American people "the most generous, the best, the most idealistic of all the world." When his policies failed, Wilson blamed those same people after "our enemies have...poisoned the wells of public opinion" rather than his own mistakes. Jimmy Carter at Camp David exhibited dangerous signs of starting down that route.

DEAR ABBY

When he's alone, he's with a bum

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of nine boys. Their father is dead. Rudy, 23, is my oldest. He married Agnes, a 15-year-old girl, because she said he got her pregnant. Their baby is 2 now and is the picture of the fellow Agnes went with before Rudy married her.

Their marriage is on the rocks because she is pregnant by a sailor she met when she went to visit her mother in Seattle. Rudy won't take her back because he's in love with a 21-year-old girl who has two babies and is expecting a third by a fellow who isn't her husband although she's still married.

Rudy gets unemployment. He runs all night and lies around my house all day. He acts real crazy. I never know if he's on drugs or just drunk. All 'Disco fingers' poses problem.

BOSTON (AP) — Besides the problems of fitting into tight, slinky clothes and enduring the blare of loud music, a team of doctors has identified another hazard of disco dancing — disco fingers.

Doctors at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore say disco dancers may develop an infection if they constantly snap their fingers while moving to the music.

In a letter in the New England Journal of Medicine, the doctors told of treating a 17-year-old girl who had such a finger infection. "She made an uneventful recovery," they wrote.

Midlanders make joint effort of preparing children's books

By SUSAN RUTHERFORD
Lifestyle Writer

Three Midlanders have discovered that writing children's books is an adult-size job.

Writers Trudie Thomason and Kathy Michelson, with artist Nancy Smith, are having their values scrutinized along with their technical skills as they turn their joint efforts over to an area publisher.

Preparing a set of posters, coloring books and workbooks for each alphabetical consonant, the three have been directed to forget stereotypes, get good ethnic and economic mixes, and reverse family roles.

This means they get mommy out of the kitchen and put daddy in front of the stove. No damsels in distress are saved by young heroes. Characters have a world of facial features and colors, many of them coming from ghetto or tenement homes in large cities.

"There can be no violence," said Trudie, a former teacher at Midland's St. Ann's School who helped form the trio when all were teaching there. "No bombs in banana pudding—I had to substitute 'bugs' for 'bombs' in one story."

The three jointly recognized an absence of coordinated educational material for the early years. They approached Gamco Industries, Inc. of Big Spring, publishers of teaching materials, who advertise nationally. Their base is in New York.

Among the group, only Nancy is still teaching. Kathy has gone into full-time writing and Trudie will soon be transferred to Dallas with her husband's job.

Nancy's contribution has been the drawing of original characters who are outside the stereotypes. Criticizing her own work, she says some of her figures are too "cartoony" and she works on ways to make them fit somewhere between stylized and realistic.

Trudie is responsible for the posters, which are designed to hang in classrooms and be read by an adult. A poster for each consonant features a story with a repetition of words with one consonant sound. One of her stories focuses on a retiring teacher being rewarded by her students on her last day at work. In another, children are told how mommies may be many things and that no job outside the home is off limits.

Kathy writes the coloring books and workbooks, gearing them to the reading level of a child. Here again, each consonant sound is repeated over and over while being woven into a story. A remedial reading instructor who says the materials are intended for pre-school ages through the elementary years, she believes they would be especially good for remedial reading classes. She often finds herself writing for little boys, she adds. "I have two little boys and there are more little boys than girls in remedial reading classes."

a person has reached middle age? — FORTY AND CURIOUS

DEAR FORTY: When he (or she) climbs out of the bathtub and is glad to find the full-length mirror all steamed up!

DEAR ABBY: I have a lazy teenage daughter who has to be reminded over and over again to write thank-you notes for gifts she receives at Christmas, her birthday and, more recently, for her high-school graduation. Now she has a new cop-out. She thanks people for their gifts by telephone. Her grandparents live 1,500 miles away and so do most of her aunts and uncles, so the calls aren't exactly free. She says she will pay for the calls herself, but so far I haven't seen a penny.

Her father was furious when she told us she was planning to thank everyone for her graduation gifts by phone, but we both agreed it would be better than not taking them at all. Daughter argues that a phone call is much more personal and gives her a chance to ask how they are and to tell them what she is doing, how the family is, etc.

Do you think a telephoned thanks is proper? — MOTHER OF A TEEN

DEAR MOTHER: A written thanks is better. But a phone call is better than no thanks at all.

No reward for housework

CHICAGO (AP) — A wife is not entitled to market-value compensation for cooking, washing dishes and other housework in a divorce settlement, a judge has ruled.

The decision, handed down by Circuit Judge Charles J. Fleck, resulted from a suit filed by Claire K. Gallagher, wife of Sears Roebuck and Co. vice president John F. Gallagher.

asked for $100,000 annually and $1.5 million in the property settlement.

Her attorney, Michael Minton, said Mrs. Gallagher's suit was the first of its kind in the country to base a property settlement on compensation for housework. She had projected earnings she would have accrued during her 32-year marriage if Gallagher had paid her the minimum wage plus the salary of a manager, Minton said.

Search for bodies to continue

MARION, N.C. (AP) — McDowell County officials may have to cover 10 square miles of mountain land in search of six bodies which may be buried there if the man who tipped them won't point out the graves.

A bond hearing was scheduled today for Danny Parton, 29, who is charged with two counts of first-degree murder stemming from his tale of having killed eight women and burying them in shallow graves.

The charges were filed Friday after Parton, of North Cove, led deputies to the isolated, three-foot-deep graves of two women.

He told officials, "There are six more." But Saturday, Parton told authorities there were no more bodies. A steady rain all weekend prevented searchers from going into the area.

McDowell County Sheriff Bobby Haynes said searchers would wade into the heavily wooded area as soon as weather permitted.

Parton has not recanted his confession of killing the two women whose bodies were found Friday. One of the women has been identified as Cathy Mosley, of Gaston County, who lived with Parton for more than two years. The other woman was not identified.

Parton's mother, Viola Burnette of Gastonia, visited her son Saturday at McDowell County Jail. Later, as authorities searched the tin-roofed, four-room house where Parton lived the talked about her son.

"Naturally, I'm his mother and I don't want to think he did it," Mrs. Burnette declared as she stood on the wooden porch of the house.

"But if he did it, I'm glad he told that he did it," she said.

Without Parton's help, Haynes said, looking for graves in the mountains "is like looking for a needle in a haystack."

Six die in 707 crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Boeing 707 cargo plane belonging to Lebanon's Trans-Mediterranean Airways crashed during a training flight at Beirut airport today, killing its six-man Lebanese crew, airport security officials said.

The jet was angling down for landing when a wing hit the edge of the tarmac, the officials said.

Jeff Wilson, shown above, is a skilled and helpful person with extensive experience. He is the manager of MARC Camera, which is located at 9 Imperial Shopping Center.

MARC Camera courses soon

Jeff Wilson, manager of MARC Camera, announces that their popular course in basic camera technique is starting again very soon. The course is designed for the inexperienced camera buff, and will increase the enjoyment of their customers in the use of their cameras.

The photography course gives some history of photography, and the principles of the camera. Understanding of the basics is an aid to technique improvement.

Access to a camera is necessary to take the course, and pencil and paper for note taking. Assignments will be made, and analysis of the results, by the instructor.

Come by MARC Camera without delay to get more information and to enroll for the course which will give you "All those things your folder which came with your camera doesn't tell you!"

MARC Camera is a fresh new store, only six months old. They have a comprehensive stock of cameras (some of the brands: Kodak, Nikon, Canon, Olympus, Minolta, Pentax, Konica), supplies, accessories, lenses, gadget bags, darkroom supplies. They stock enlargers by Omega and Beseler.

MARC Camera has both black and white and color darkrooms for rent.

Instant passport pictures are made at MARC Camera. They are made four to a sheet, at one time, and take only 60 seconds from exposure to finish. They are in color, size 2x2, and would also make excellent resume pictures.

MARC Camera is a rewarding place to visit for the casual, amateur photographer or the most experienced, serious one. Jeff Wilson is glad to respond to questions.

Come by very soon to enroll in the photography course, or to learn for yourself what a "treasure trove" for the photographer is to be found at MARC Camera, 9 Imperial Shopping Center, Wadley and Midkiff.

Browning given suspended sentence

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — John Val Browning, former president of Browning Arms Co., has been given a suspended two-year prison sentence and placed on two years probation for obstructing justice.

Browning, grandson of gun inventor John M. Browning, was accused of importing thousands of rifles from Belgium and of not paying the proper customs duty.

On June 8, a federal court jury acquitted Browning of illegally importing Japanese rifles and of obstructing an investigation into the Japanese rifles, but he was convicted of obstruction in the Belgium incident.

U.S. District Judge Bruce S. Jenkins said Friday he suspended the prison sentence, but ordered Browning to pay up to $40,000 in court costs "which isn't often done in matters of this kind."

"Most probably we will appeal" the case, Browning said. "I don't feel I have done anything."

Browning was accused of evading $900,000 in import fees on .22-caliber rifles by deliberately understating their value.

The prosecution alleged he struck a deal with Fabrique Nationale of Belgium and Miroku Firearms of Japan to mislead the U.S. Customs Service about the real value of guns imported between 1966-70.

Fabrique Nationale has since acquired control of the Browning Arms Co., which operates from Morgan, Utah, and Arnold, Mo.

Outlook for troubled forests in British Columbia brightens

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — The outlook in British Columbia's troubled forest industry brightened as one large union local accepted a two-year contract and another moved to settle a thorny issue at a key Vancouver Island pulp mill.

Syd Thompson, president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, the union's largest, said Friday that the 5,500 members had voted 71 percent in favor of the new contract.

He also said he expects full approval by the 37,000 coastal and southern interior woodworkers. Results are to be released Wednesday.

Meanwhile in Nanaimo, striking employees of MacMillan Bloedel's Harma pulp mill said they would end a 2-week-old strike if management retained a full-time first-aid attendant in Wood Room No. 4.

Local 8 of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, said the offer would be presented to management as soon as a meeting could be arranged.

Mobilization board gets tentative Senate approval

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Energy Committee got rolling on President Carter's new energy plan Saturday, giving tentative approval to creation of a new governmental authority to expedite construction of high priority energy projects.

The committee took no conclusive votes, but agreed informally to set up a national energy mobilization board.

The version supported by the panel during a rare Saturday meeting varies from the president's proposal. Instead of setting up a three-member board within the White House, the committee would name a single Cabinet-level official who would get advice from three advisers from labor, business and the public sectors of the economy.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., was the chief sponsor of the measure which is likely to receive final action by the committee next week.

The board is designed to overcome delays in the construction of refineries, pipelines, synthetic fuel plants and other projects which would reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil.

Jackson likened the proposed panel to the War Production Board in the "helped break up logjams" in the manufacture of war goods during World War II.

Now, Jackson said, a similar authority is needed because important projects are frequently delayed by overlapping local, state and federal regulatory requirements.

Environmentalists say they fear that consideration of potential damage to the air and water might be sacrificed by the board to the need for greater energy production.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said Saturday the law creating the board should make clear that existing federal environmental laws should not be nullified, although procedures for meeting environmental demands would be speeded up.

Under the president's proposal, up to 75 energy projects could be designated as critical by the board and speeded along to completion.

Meanwhile, Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said Saturday that another key portion of the president's new energy package would not be acted on by the full Senate before Congress begins a month-long recess Aug. 3.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, wants to use the August recess to review the impact of the multibillion-dollar synthetic fuels proposal on the federal budget, Byrd said.

But Byrd said the Senate would act before the recess on a standby gasoline rationing plan.

A "windfall profits" tax on the earnings of oil companies — a levy which would finance most of president's new energy proposals — could keep the Senate in session for the first week or two of the scheduled recess, he said.

Most workers escape Texas City explosions

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — "They ran." That's how most workers at Amoco's Texas City refinery managed to escape two tremendous explosions that injured 14 Saturday, according to Amoco's Pat Donovan.

Miss Donovan said they ran because a safety siren went off seconds before the blast.

"It alerted our people there was a leak, and they evacuated the area," she said. "I don't know how much warning they had. It was a minute or less."

The two blasts were caused by a leak of either propane or butane gas, according to plant officials. The explosions were so strong residents reported shattered windows as far as 20 blocks away from the Gulf Coast refinery.

Plant manager Larry Durland said three of the 14 injured workers were hospitalized, but said "It's a miracle no one was hurt any worse and there were no fatalities."

Durland said there were 17 men working in the unit when the safety horn sounded. He said the injured were hurt while they were sprinting away from the first explosion, but said the three hospitalized were listed in satisfactory condition.

"There will be a big impact on our production of unleaded gasoline," Durland said. "I can't say how much."

The plant had the capacity to handle 415,000 barrels of crude oil a day, and had been making 300,000 barrels of gasoline daily, he said.

Miss Donovan said the plant was operating Sunday, except for the damaged areas, and that other Amoco refineries may be asked to take up the slack for the damaged facility here.

Pollution threat over

By LEW WHEATON

BON ACCORD, Tobago (AP) — The immediate threat of pollution to Tobago's beaches from the collision of the supertankers Atlantic Empress and Aegean Captain three nights ago appeared to be over today.

Currents and winds broke up the oil slick and carried it away from the island. There was no longer any significant leakage from the Aegean Captain, and the other 1,000-foot ship was towed out into the Atlantic to let the crude oil still aboard was to be transferred to other tankers.

The $45-million, Greek-owned Atlantic Empress was reported a "total loss;" 27 of the two ships' 75 Greek crew members were missing and feared dead, and five of the 48 survivors were injured.

The total amount of oil lost could not be determined yet, but it appeared to be less than half the record 54 million gallons spilled when the tanker Amoco Cadiz was wrecked just off the French coast last year.

The two supertankers were reported carrying about 70 million gallons each. The Aegean Captain, which was damaged in the bow, reportedly lost about 4 million gallons. A spokesman for the Mobil Oil Co., the owner of the oil aboard the Atlantic Empress, estimated the maximum spillage from that ship at 20 million gallons, "and much of that was burned away," he said.

A Trinidad-Tobago official said an inquest would begin this week to determine the cause of the collision late Thursday in the open Atlantic 20 miles off the northeast tip of Tobago.

The collision set both ships afire. The blaze on the Aegean Captain was put out early Saturday, and the ship was towed stern first to a point 10 miles off Tobago to be inspected by officials of the Trinidad-Tobago coast guard. They were to determine if it would be safe to bring the ship to the Trinidad dockyard for emergency repairs to the crushed bow.

The Atlantic Empress was hit amidships and four or five of its 20 cargo tanks were believed ruptured. The fire aboard it was still burning today, and no attempt was being made to put it out. Mobil officials explained that it posed no significant danger to the ship and was helping the pollution situation by burning off escaping oil.

The blaze was "considerably smaller" late Sunday, they reported. Mobil ordered three smaller tankers from Beaumont, Tex., to siphon off the oil remaining in the Empress when men could be put aboard her. Oil company sources said the pumping operation might take two weeks.

Meanwhile, the bulk was being towed slowly out into the Atlantic. By noon Sunday it was about 30 miles offshore.

A Mobil spokesman said the Empress appeared to be a "total constructive loss," meaning it would not be worth rebuilding and would be scrapped.

Mobil spokeswoman Susan Force said the oil slick from the Empress was about 60 miles long and two miles at its widest while that from the Aegean Captain was about 25 miles long and two miles at its widest.

She said they were being swept westward into the Caribbean, passing at least 10 miles north of Tobago, then swinging toward the island of Grenada, 100 miles to the northwest.

But she and cleanup experts said the sun, the currents, and wave and wind action were rapidly dispersing the oil, and it posed no immediate threat to any shoreline.

Because of the natural dispersion, Mobil officials delayed carrying out a plan to spray chemical dispersants on the slick.

The Empress, which was bound from the Persian Gulf to Beaumont when the collision occurred, is owned by Sun Enterprise of Piraeus, Greece. The Aegean Captain, which was en route from the Dutch Caribbean island of Bonaire to Singapore, is owned by Coltrush Ltd. of London.

Flames and smoke shoot skyward from a fire in a gasoline storage tank at BP Oil Co. yard today at Baltimore, Md. Three firefighters were slightly injured battling the blaze, which started when gasoline overflowed during pumping operations. The seven-alarm fire was controlled in 90 minutes. (AP Laserphoto)

'Average Americans' react to big shakeup

By The Associated Press

One week after President Carter told Americans the nation suffers a "crisis of confidence," some members of Congress and political figures say they are not so confident of his leadership.

Within days of Carter's address on the nation's energy and inflation problems, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal were out of office — two of the five Cabinet officers fired or allowed to resign in a major administration shakeup.

But what did some of the "average Americans" — people like those the president consulted before he spoke and acted — think?

The Associated Press asked seven Americans what they thought of the president's speech. A week later, the AP went back to six of those people — one man was on vacation — and asked what they thought of Jimmy Carter now.

A Coal Miner

CHESAPEAKE, W.Va. (AP) — Coal miner Grant McGuire says President Carter stopped cleaning house too soon. "I think we need to clean house at the White House all the way from the doorkeeper to the head honcho," he said.

McGuire, 52, a miner for 33 years and a lifelong Democrat, had said he was discouraged by the president's decision to limit oil imports. But now he's discouraged. The president has said little about his plans for coal and has endorsed nuclear power.

Carter "is not too much interested in coal," he said. "He's not pushed it. He's spent too much time with these firings and hirings."

McGuire said he had voted for Carter. "I figure he did the speech and the firings and hirings because he wants to stay in (office). I would say he knows he's weak and he's trying to make changes."

A Retired Businessman

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — "I think this business with the Cabinet is strictly a political move to show his strength," said Marriott Nadler, 69, who retired here from New Jersey in 1975.

The president, Nadler said, is trying to show people he can be strong because he has been criticized for weakness. But he gives Carter low marks for the effort, particularly his decision to name Hamilton Jordan the White House chief of staff.

"I think it was a lousy political move," he said. "If you were a top executive of General Motors or a top professor and they asked you to come in and take over a Cabinet job, would you want to report to Hamilton Jordan?"

Nadler, who ran a small chain of dry cleaning stores before he retired, characterized Jordan as "a real Washington playboy."

"I think any Cabinet that he's (Carter's) going to have now will be inferior to the Cabinet he had," he said.

A Gasoline Dealer

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — "What's showing now is his inability to be president, the pressures are bringing it out," said Charles Matties, past president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers.

Matties said he thinks the president's Cabinet changes were designed to weed out independent thinkers, and he called the appointment of Hamilton Jordan as chief of staff "an insult to the nation."

"Jimmy Carter is so insecure right now...he's bringing in the 'yes' men," said the four-term Republican member of the state House of Representatives.

Matties, who is a member of the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers' Association's board of directors and a director of the Petroleum Congress executive committee, had characterized the president's speech as "the usual missionary talk."

"The man is not qualified to be president. The error we made in the last election is now coming into full view," Matties said.

A Missouri Farmer

OSAGE CITY, Mo. (AP) — Jim Hofmann was initially pleased with the president's energy-inflation speech, but now he's having second thoughts — particularly about an Energy Mobilization Board that Carter proposed to speed up energy programs.

"I guess the one thing that didn't hit me that night was he is getting the government deeper into the energy problem," said the Osage County farmer who raises cattle, corn and alfalfa on a 500-acre spread. "I'm a little disappointed that the government isn't turning this over more to private industry."

Hofmann says the President's Cabinet changes might have been better received if he had mentioned them in his speech.

"This week would have gone a lot better if he had not had those firings," he said. Noting Carter's emphasis had been on getting a handle on energy, he said the Cabinet shuffle didn't "add another drop of oil to the nation's energy needs."

An Oil Executive

LOS ANGELES — "Carter talks about image and confidence, things like that, when the real problem is substance," said David Button, manager of economic planning and policy for the Getty Oil Co.

The president, he said, lacks substance. And what is "incredible" Button said, is that Carter asked for advice at Camp David, acted on the advice, then fired many people who gave him that advice.

"The logic is incredible, and it becomes even more incredible if you believe that the theme behind all of his actions concerns enhancing his image. Carter's image is very transparent. When you look through, there's nothing there. There's no substance."

Button had been critical of Carter's plan to create a new bureaucracy to deal with energy problems, and he said that after a careful reading of the speech he's convinced the president's energy plan will be a "major wasteful boondoggle at best, and at worst will have some very negative impacts on the economy."

A Baptist Theologian

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The Rev. Kenneth Cauthen says the Cabinet shakeup was "a jarring note that created some disharmony" with Carter's energy message.

Cauthen, an American Baptist theologian at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, said after the speech that Carter "was right in seeing the problem of energy in the larger context of a crisis of spirit.... That was one of the more important things about the speech, and needed saying."

He said in an interview after the Cabinet shakeup that he thinks the mass resignation strategy was "overkill."

"I have not understood the reason he asked for the resignations of all of his Cabinet when he only wanted to replace a few," said Cauthen. "I guess he wanted to be dramatic and create the impression that he is moving ahead in some decisive ways."

GARAGE SALE
Patio Sale. Yard Sale. Whatever term you use, it's an enjoyable and profitable experience. It's your opportunity to "clean up" while you "clean out." You'll become re-acquainted with your neighbors and meet new friends, and the fresh air is good for your health.

Check your attic, basement, garage and closets for good, but no longer useful items — furniture, tools, the list goes on and on. Every item should be priced, of course. You may want to combine your sale with a friend or neighbor. Choose your days, get your signs ready and place your ad in the Classified section. Your ad should list a few key items, give the date, time, and good directions.

A friendly Classified Ad-Visor will help you word your Garage Sale ad for maximum results.

Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie singles to center in the first game of a doubleheader against Cleveland Sunday as the Brewers extended their winning streak to 10 games. (AP Laserphoto)

Sages Belle Star beat by hairline

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Streakin Six, a colt who's been to the races only four times and showed a tendency to generate a solid closing wallop, pounded out a hairline victory in Sunday's 16th running of the Rainbow Quarter Horse Futurity here.

Streakin Six cut it pretty thin, counting on the knockout punch in the final strides.

He and Sages Belle Star were locked so closely on the finish, the stewards took a long and studious examination of the photo finish picture before issuing their verdict.

It was Streakin Six in front, alright, but the margin was only about an inch.

That tiny inch turned into a huge bonanza for Anne B. Tandy of Ft. Worth. Mrs. Tandy got Streakin Six from the Tom B. Burnett Cattle Co. of Ft. Worth.

First place in the futurity came to $173,285.

The gross purse of the race, including the previous days consolation was $500,100.

Sunday's race reached $422,815.

Streakin Six is trained by H. Don Farris. Denny Cardoza is the pilot.

The colt, who now holds a career record of three wins and two seconds, covered the 400-yard Rainbow distance in an off-track clocking of 20.17.

That time was a few fractions slower than the top qualifying time chaked up two weeks ago by Denim N Diamonds.

But, Denim N Diamonds swift clocking didn't help the filly in Sunday's blue chip showdown as she faded to a disappointing sixth as the 5-2 second favorite.

Wagering on the race hit $93,829, a seasonal record.

As soon as the betting windows opened for the Rainbow, Streakin Six was the people's choice. He left the starting gate as 7-5 favorite.

Payouts were 4.80, 3.40, 3.20.

Sages Belle Star, owned by J.H. Crouch Jr. of Midland, Texas, refunded 4.00 and 3.40 at just under 4-1. Gary Sumpter does the riding. Roger Fagan is the trainer.

Streakin Six and Sages Belle Star share a common papa in Easy Six. Easy Six, owned by the Burnett Cattle Co., died of a viral infection last December.

Third in the futurity went to Thats Raney. A 25-1 shot owned by Hugh Tucker and Bill J. Reed. The colt was 2 1/4 length behind Sages Belle Star at the finish.

Third was worth $40,598. Steve Fuller was up. The show price was 6.60.

The remaining order of finish with purse money earned: Fourth—Call Me Smooth, $21,289.30, owned by Roy Browning; Fifth—Chicks Charger Bar $19,308.90, owned by Bobby Perez Sr. and Pete Perez Jr.; Sixth—Denim N Diamonds $18,813.80, R.D. Hubbard of Wichita, Kan.; Seventh—The Wheel Horse $18,313.70, Robert W. Moore of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Eighth—Easy Maneuver $17,823.60, Clarence Sharbauer Jr., of Midland and Anne B. Tandy of Ft. Worth; Ninth—Pa Pa Wheelie $17,328.00 B.N. Adams of Houston; Tenth—Nine Ohs $16,833.00, William C. Porter of Mathis, Texas.

Weibring wins a title

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — The first PGA victory is always special, but it had greater meaning for D.A. Weibring, who dedicated his triumph in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open to his ailing father who taught him the game, and the golfer's pregnant wife.

"I dedicated the win to both of them," said Weibring after firing a sensational 65 in Sunday's final round to stave off a charge by Milwaukee Open winner Calvin Peete and finish the tournament with a record 266, 14-under par.

Moments after parring the 18th hole to assure the victory, Weibring turned to his 62-year-old father, who had suffered a heart attack a week ago, and said: "I tried hard for you, Dad."

The elder Weibring grinned broadly and exclaimed, "This is the biggest thrill of my life."

The 26-year-old blond pro said the victory was also special for his wife, Kristy, who is five months pregnant with the couple's first child.

"She was with me all the way, good and bad," said Weibring, who has missed the cut nine times on the PGA tour this year.

"Some guys rate girls from one to ten. Well, my wife's off the chart."

One of the day's highlights came when ageless wonder Sam Snead, who had made PGA history Friday by becoming the first man on the tour ever to shoot his age — 67 — topped the remarkable achievement Sunday by carding a 66, making him the first PGA pro ever to shoot below his age.

"I don't feel any different than I did 10 years ago, except maybe I'm a little heavier," Snead said.

Weibring strung together rounds of 67, 65, 69 and 65 on the 6,514-yard, par 70 Oakwood Country Club course. The win put a check for $36,000 in his pocket and boosted his year's earnings on the tour to $64,479.

Late Sox rally sinks California

By The Associated Press

Dwight Evans smacked a three-run homer in the ninth inning to tie the game 5-5 and Bob Watson's single drove in the winning run in the 10th as the Boston Red Sox edged the California Angels 6-5 Sunday.

Consecutive doubles by Carney Lansford and Dan Ford ignited a four-run Angels' eighth inning that gave California a 5-2 lead.

However, the Red Sox sent the game into extra innings in the ninth on Evans' homer, his 13th. Fred Lynn then led off the 10th with a single, Carl Yastrzemski walked and Watson singled off Angels rookie Mark Clear.

ELSEWHERE in the American League, Eddie Murray smacked his 13th homer of the season to spark a three-run Baltimore eighth inning that carried the Orioles to a 4-1 victory over the Oakland A's. Steve Stone, 7-7, tossed a seven-hitter for Baltimore.

George Brett belted three home runs to lead the Royals over the Texas Rangers, 7-6, but it took a bases-loaded RBI single by Willie Wilson to score the decisive run in the ninth inning.

Brett, the American League All-Star third baseman the last four years, slammed two-run homers in the first and fifth innings, then lashed a solo shot in the seventh.

New York Yankees reliever Don Hood made his first start of the year when scheduled starter Catfish Hunter's father died, and he combined with Jim Kaat for a three-hitter as the Yankees beat Seattle 4-0. Thurman Munson drove in two runs for the Yanks.

Jerry Morales' single — one of only two hits off White Sox rookie Jerry Scarbery in seven innings — drove in the only run of the game as Detroit blanked Chicago 1-0. Milt Wilcox and Aurelio Lopez combined for the five-hit shutout.

Glenn Adams homered and drove in two runs, and Rob Wilfong had three RBI to help the Minnesota Twins clobber Toronto 13-1. Pete Redfern and Mike Marshall combined on a seven-hitter for the Twins.

Milwaukee swept a pair from the Cleveland Indians to run their winning streak to 10 games. Cecil Cooper drove in five runs and homered twice to power the Brewers to a 14-5 victory in the opener, and Sal Bando and Buck Martinez each had two RBI for a 5-3 Milwaukee victory in the nightcap.

IN THE National League, Jose Cruz's two-out infield single in the ninth inning drove in the winning run as Houston beat St. Louis 7-6.

Mike Schmidt cracked his 33rd homer of the season, a two-run shot, and Greg Gross drove in a pair of runs with a single to power the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-2 victory over San Diego.

Dave Lopes laid down a perfect squeeze bunt to the right side with one out in the bottom of the ninth to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets. Knuckleballer Charlie Hough started for only the second time in his nine years in the majors and held the Mets to one run in six innings.

In one of three doubleheaders in the NL, Cincinnati and the Chicago Cubs split. Dave Concepcion smacked a grand slam homer as the Reds won the opener 12-1. Larry Blittner broke a 4-4 tie with a two-run single in the sixth inning as the Cubs won the nightcap 8-4.

Left-hander Vida Blue notched the 150th victory of his career with relief help from Pedro Borbon as the San Francisco Giants whipped Montreal 8-6 in the first game of their doubleheader. Bill North drove in three runs. In the second game, Montreal exploded for 13 runs in three innings — five in the fourth and four each in the fifth and sixth innings — for a 15-5 victory over San Francisco. Ellis Valentine had a homer in each game for Montreal.

The Pittsburgh Pirates waited through nearly four hours of rain delay and rebounded to beat Atlanta 5-4 in the first game of their doubleheader on Mike Easler's two-run pinch single. Pitcher Jim Bibby hit a two-run homer in the nightcap to give the Pirates a 3-2 victory as Pittsburgh moved to within 1/2 game of the league leading Montreal Expos.

Cain's death shocks Cardinals

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals were in mourning today following the sudden death of tight end J.V. Cain, presumed to be a perfect physical specimen, due to cardiac arrest suffered in practice.

Cain, a sixth-season National Football League veteran, collapsed Sunday night while running a pass pattern drill at Lindenwood College, the team's training camp site. He died about 90 minutes later despite cardiopulmonary resuscitation efforts.

"I am shocked beyond description," said Cards owner Bill Bidwill, who was among a cluster of club officials who went to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Cain was taken.

"He was a wonderful gentleman and a superb athlete. It's a terrible tragedy," said Bidwill. "He was a man we will all miss, more than anything as a person."

Cain, who missed all of the 1978 NFL season following surgery to repair a torn Achilles tendon suffered in training camp, reported early for this year's drills and passed a physical examination with flying colors.

"His injury had come along just great," said Steve Curran, a team spokesman. "The doctors were really surprised at how well he'd come along. He was a physical fitness buff. He was in great shape."

Curran said Cain collapsed at about 8:30 p.m. while the Cardinals were engaged in a no-contact drill watched by hundreds of spectators.

The 6-foot-4, 225-pound Cain, St. Louis' top draft choice in 1974, had just completed a pattern, he said. When he fell to the ground, Dr. Bernard Garfinkel of the team's medical staff went to his aid and began administering the cardiopulmonary procedure until joined by a life support team.

Curran said the 75-member Cards squad was stunned by what happened.

"When they (the players) saw that the CPR was started, it just got dead silent," Curran said. "A lot of people on the sidelines bowed their heads in prayer. At one point, Coach (Bud) Wilkinson had the players on a line in prayer. They kept yelling, 'Come on,

J.V., come on, J.V.' There were tears. It was very emotional."

Curran said the Cardinals chartered a jet aircraft to fly to Houston, Cain's hometown, to pick up the his wife, Jeanne, and his father, who are among survivors.

A workout which was scheduled for this morning was canceled. An autopsy on Cain and his funeral arrangements were pending.

Cain's death came on his 28th birthday. The former all-Big Eight star at Colorado had 76 career pass receptions for 1,014 yards and nine touchdowns.

His best year was 1976, when he snared 26 for five touchdowns. After 1977, he tied the Washington Redskins' Jean Fugett for a berth on the National Conference's Pro Bowl team but was denied the honor because St. Louis finished below Washington in East Division standings.

A stunned Wilkinson, who is beginning his second year as the Cards' coach, issued a statement labeling Cain's death "not the result of a football-related injury.

"How and why these things happen and to whom always is a great mystery," Wilkinson said. "Because of his deep desire to continue to play the game, J.V. Cain's death challenges all of us not to waste days — to live and make a contribution each day as best we know how."

Now that temperatures and electric bills are up, your air conditioner needs all the help it can get.

Hot summer temperatures make your air conditioner work longer and harder. That's what drives up your electric bill.

But there are some things you can do to help. Change or clean your air conditioner's filter to let air flow freely. And trim grass and weeds from around the outside unit for good air circulation.

Inside, close blinds and drapes to help keep out the heat. And try to cut down on the number of times you open doors — an open door lets hot air rush in.

Keep your thermostat set at 78° or higher.

To feel cool at this temperature, use a small portable fan to circulate air in the room.

Merit Changes Smoking.

'Enriched Flavor' cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

Not too long ago, smokers believed that if a cigarette had less tar, it had less taste too. Low tar cigarettes simply didn't taste very good.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And in three short years, smoking changed:

1. No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!
2. MERIT has swept past over 50 other brands in record time.
3. MERIT is continuing to attract high tar smokers—the most taste-conscious smokers of all!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes toward low tar smoking.
