Today

Mexico Looks Better.
Mellon and Hoover.
More Automobiles Wanted
Bootleg Love.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
Copyright, 1927, By Star Company

As the week starts there seems less probability of trouble with Mexico. Senator Heflin, of Alabama, injecting the religious issue quite violently into the war question, did not creat the excitement that, perhaps, was hoped for.

That the pope should want war between Mexico and this country is incredible, there could be only one end to such a war and that vatican would hardly want to put what is now a 95 per cent Catholic country, in spite of passing government antagonism to the church, under control of what is, in fact, a Protestant government.

* * *

The Mexican government continues the campaign against the Catholic church. Four more priests have been deported and many Mexicans are arrested, accused of spreading propaganda against President Calles.

* * *

One thing that guarantees prosperity, can be said of this country with President Coolidge at the head.

Uncle Sam has men working for him that really know the United States, what it needs and that know business, which is prosperity's backbone.

* * *

Mr. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, as able a financier as there is in the world, works for his government at the salary of a chief clerk. He has reduced the nation's debt by thousands of millions already, and his plan, if adhered to, will wipe out the debt in a few years, if that be desired.

And, thinking of his own country first, Mr. Mellon has protected the interests of the United States in connection with its foreign debts.

* * *

Mr. Hoover, before he went to work for the government as secretary of commerce, had training in engineering, mining and business in many parts of the world. The work done, the result accomplished by Mr. Hoover, with the co-operation of the president and other earnest men in the administration and in the senate, entitle Mr. Hoover to the country's thanks.

* * *

With Hiram Johnson, and others, he has undoubtedly put through the important development of the Colorado river. The commission, of which he is the head, makes it certain that the farm products of the middle west will have access by water to the Atlantic through the St. Lawrence, and cheap freight rates to Europe will increase the value of the farmer's wheat from 8 to 16 cents a bushel in the world markets. Also there is good reason to hope that an adequate waterway will follow from the Great Lakes through the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico.

* * *

If in doubt about the automobile industry, you should have attended the automobile show in New Yory City during the past week Each important maker had something new to show, and people crowded to see in hundreds of thousands. Men and women stood in line waiting to buy tickets. It was difficult to move about in the neighborhood of the principal exhibits. Those that talk about an "automobile saturation point" don't realize how many millions of Americans are planning to get their first automobile or a new and better automobile.

* * *

Judge Lindsey, of Denver's juvenile court, says "bootleg love" infects the nation. Such terms as "free love" and "trial marriage" are constantly used, and the foundations of marriage and the home are undermined. Marriage seems to be a failure and Judge Lindsey, suggests this for debate:

"Resolved, that the institutes of marriage can be improved by men."

* * *

Men often mistake passing symptoms for a permanent condition, man has been improving marriage steadily for a hundred thousand years. British husbands are no longer allowed by law, as once they were, "to beat their wives with a stick no thicker than the husband's thumb."

* * *

Women have rights in their own children and property, which formerly they had not.

And as for "free love" and "trial marriage" those are words that need not worry you.

The important question is what do the young people of today, the fathers and mothers of tomorrow want? More than 90 per cent of them want permanent happy marriage based on love that will last forever, and they expect to find it. Some will be disappointed, but the human race will go on trying until men become really civilized. And it is the institution of marriage, the influence of mothers on the children that will do the civilizing.

MANY FAIL IN ICY WATERS OF CHANNEL

By Universal Service.

ABOARD S. S. AVALON, CATALINA CHANNEL, Jan. 15. (By Radio) — George Young was still leading Norman Ross by less than one-fourth of a mile at 10:15 p. m. The two were between seven and eight miles from the Mainland.

All the rest of the 103 starters were seemingly out of the race, though this report had not been officially confirmed. Because of the darkness and lack of communication, it was not possible to learn whether the dozen swimmers who were still in an hour ago had quit.

ASSOCIATED PRESS TUG OFF SAN PEDRO BY WIRELESS TO WILMINGTON, Calif., Jan. 15. (AP)—George Young of Toronto at 10:30 tonight was less than four miles from the California mainland and the $25,000 first prize hung up by William Wrigley Jr., for the first person to swim the San Pedro channel. Young was cutting through the water at a terrific clip for a man who had been swimming steadily for nearly 12 hours. He was headed for Point Vicente.

ABOARD ASSOCIATED PRESS TUG, OFF POINT VINCENTE, CALIF., BY WIRELESS TO WILMINGTON, Jan. 15. (AP)—At 9:45 tonight George Young, fleet swimming youth from Toronto, Ont., and Norman Ross huge paddler from Chicago, apparently were the only remaining strugglers in the San Pedro channel swim. Young was leading about a mile and a half and swimming strongly. The two men were being aided by a strengthening current from the northwest and at this time were but little more than seven miles from the mainland.

Young and Ross were coming in from the northwest, headed toward the shore area between Point Firmin and Point Vincente, along the Palos Verdes estate north of San Pedro.

William E. Logg of Avalon, on Santa Catalina Island, was reported pushing steadily forward on a bee-line toward the San Pedro lightship, approximately the same distance from shore as Young. Currents from the northeast in the morning were expected to throw him off his course toward Long Beach, thereby lengthening his swim to nearly fairly miles.

Clara Belle Barrett of Pelham, N. Y., who swam for nearly 24 hours in an attempt to cross the English channel, was not far behind Logg speed boat couriers said and was going into better position as the night wore on.

Who th eight swimmers reported remianing in the marathon were could not be definitely told. Reports from various sources were conflicting but a majority agreed on the total number of swimmers remaining in the water.

MOODY TAKES OATH TUESDAY AS GOVERNOR

Dan Goes in As Lone Star State's Youngest Governor

GUNS TO FIRE SALUTE

Open-Air Ceremony Will Be Staged if Weather Permits It

AUSTIN, Jan. 15.(AP)—The "governor's salute" of 17 rounds will boom here Tuesday, first for the outgoing governor, Miriam A. Ferguson, and next for Dan Moody, shortly after he becomes governor of Texas, Adjutant General Dallas J. Matthews said Saturday.

Austin is grooming itself to welcome Moody with an impressive, outdoor inauguration that will attract thousands.

Within six years, the red-haired Moody has worked his way from the comparative obscurity of the county attorneyship of Williamson county to the threshhold of the governor's office—a spectacular rise that has captured the popular fancy.

Open-Air Festival.

Unless bad weather interferes, the 33-year-old man who is to be Texas' youngest chief executive will be inaugurated on a large platform on the steps of the main capitol entrance. The platform will face south toward Congress avenue, to Austin what Pennsylvania avenue is to Washington.

The 150 representatives will form a semi-circle about the 31 senators who will be seated directly in front of the platform. Each legislator will have two chairs reserved for himself and any one other person.

It is estimated that from 15,000 to 20,000 can crowd within hearing distance of the platform, providing radio impliflers are installed, as planned.

Hundreds will come from Williamson county, where Moody was born and reared.

60 On Platform.

The platform will accommodate about 60. Among those expected to have platform seats are, Governor Ferguson and her husband, James E. Ferguson, former governor; Mrs. Dan Moody, who is to be the youngest first lady of the state; Miss Mary Moody of Taylor, sister of the governor-elect, who has contributed much to his success.

J. L. Feeler, general chairman of the local inauguration committee and John W. Hornsby, chairman of the invitations committee, both of whom have had a part in inauguration plans for several governors, are among Austin citizens who will be on the platform.

The ceremonies are scheduled to start Tuesday noon. Just before 12 o'clock, a three-inch cannon on the capitol grounds will begin the firing of the farewell salute to Mrs. Ferguson, Texas' first woman governor. It will require 170 seconds to fire the 17 rounds.

What Will Ma Say?

Much interest attaches to Governor Ferguson's speech committing to Moody the duties and obligations of the state's highest office. Two years ago, upon retiring in favor of Mrs. Ferguson, Pat M. Neff of Mrs. Ferguson with, "in my office Waco, summarized his welcome to I leave you three things: a lily, an open Bible, and a picture of Woodrow Wilson."

After being sworn in by Chief Justice C. M. Cureton of the supreme court Moody will make his inaugural address. Moody, in taking the oath, will kiss a Bible, used in the inauguration of most of Texas' governors.

Barry Miller of Dallas will be sworn in as lieutenant governor, and will make an address.

From midnight Monday until after the inauguration, vehicular traffic will not be permitted through the capitol grounds. Soldiers of company D, 141st infantry, Texas National Guard will be used to handle the crowd, Adjutant General Matthews said.

BONNER GOES ON TRIAL IN BOMB DEATHS

Corpus Christi Court Will Hear Case Opening On Monday

KIN STAND BY HIM

Wife of Dead Man, Who Is His Mother-in-Law, Backs Him

By Universal Service.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 15.—Frank H. Bonner, 28, electrical engineer and dancing master, must stand trial in district criminal court here Monday. He is charged with the murder of J. A. Barnes, and Barnes' son, Jesse, 7, here Nov. 14, 1923.

Barnes and his son were killed when the father opened a package marked "magazines" and a bomb exploded. The state contends Bonner sent the express package in an effort to get rid of Barnes, who was said to oppose the marriage of his daughter to Bonner.

Mrs. Barnes and her daughter, now Bonner's wife, have stood by Bonner in his repeated declarations of innocence.

The trial was originally set for January 3, but was postponed due to the illness of an important state witness.

SAN ANTONIO ATTORNEYS TO AID PROSECUTION

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 15.(AP)—Two Bexar county assistant district attorneys will assist in the prosecution of Frank H. Bonner, whose trial on charges of murder in connection with the death of J. A. Barnes, is set for Monday at Corpus Christi. Lamar Seeligson, chief assistant and Fred N. Cowen were designated by District Attorney C. M. Chambers Saturday after a request was received from Attorney General Dan Moody that he send aid to District Attorney George Westervelt, who is allowed no regular assistant under the law. Seeligson and Cowen expected to leave Sunday morning in order to confer with Westervelt before the trial.

The state will be ready for trial, according to information received here. The case was passed two weeks ago when called because of the state's important witnesses were absent. It was said that all witnesses had been located and were expected to be on hand.

Early Trial Asked

The defense insisted on an early trial when the case was called and sought to take up an application for habeas corpus to obtain bond. The state was not ready to proceed with the habeas corpus hearing and Judge Cunningham set the habeas corpus hearing also for next Monday and declared if the state was not ready then to proceed with the trial he would insist on taking up the habeas corpus hearing.

Barnes and his 7-year-old son, Jesse, were killed when a bomb exploded in their Corpus Christi home Nov. 21, 1923. Investigation showed the bomb had been sent from San Antonio from the American Express office and two boys were found who declared they had taken the infernal machine to the express office at the request of a stranger.

Jury Hears Of Threats By Chipps On Norris

Two Defense Witnesses Swear That Slain Man Threatened to Kill Fiery Pastor

BY GENE FOWLER
Universal Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service, Inc.)

AUSTIN, Jan. 15.—Ghostly police whistles were blown this evening over the ashes of Dexter E. Chipps, slain by the Rev. J. Frank Norris last July 17. Counsel for Norris set up a self defense theory through the testimony of L. H. Nutt, Fort Worth bank auditor. Nutt was in the Norris study when the pastor shot Chipps. The day ended in a loud wrangle.

After Nutt had pictured his fundamentalist pastor as the aggrieved party in the Chipps-Norris death debate, he indicated that Chipps had uttered: "I'll kill you."

Stormy cross-examination of Nutt ended and former Patrolman Fred D. Holland of Fort Worth began to testify to Chipps' many alleged moral lapses.

Holland Heard Threats

Holland said he had heard Chipps, presumably drunk, tell what he intended to do to the Rev. Norris.

Holland, who said he never had seen Chipps sober, was parking his car in front of the Texas Hotel, Fort Worth.

Q.—"When was that?"

A.—"July 15, late, about 10 o'clock at night."

Q.—"Whom was Chipps talking to?"

A.—"Harry Connor, city detective."

Q.—"What was the conversation?"

A.—"Chipps was telling Connor: 'I'm going to kill a blank, blank, blank.' Conner asked 'who?' Chipps said: 'Frank Norris.' Conner asked: 'When?' Chipps answered: 'Either tonight or tomorrow night.'"

This was two days before the slaying. The witness went to Norris' study the next day after the alleged threat and warned Norris, he testified. In detail he outlined to the pastor the lumberman's past.

Chipps' Character Attacked

Here the witness gave to the jury a list of Chipps' alleged lapses in righteousness. It seemed that the echoes of many police whistles, the whack of night sticks and the plop of knuckles was being wafted toward the court room from Chipps' grave. For, according to Holland's testimony Chipps was constantly trying to slug policemen; becoming overserved with liquor; getting ejected from hotels; suffered frequent arrest and giving vent to gun-play and homicidal threats.

Holland's introduction to the late Mr. Chipps, two and one-half years ago, led to a fight. Chipps said Holland was drunk. Holland tried to persuade Chipps to go home, but finally had to do this by knocking Chipps down.

So big was the crowd today that witnesses had to use a window to get to the stand.

Crowd Jams Court

During recess, the jury was piloted through the throng by sheriffs who toiled like subway guards in the 5 o'clock rush at Times Square. But it took 10 minutes to get the jurors out of the room.

During the testimony of Holland, near the session's close, Dayton Moses, for the defense, rose and roared at Ted Reed, Texas Ranger and writer. Reed was sitting in front of the bench. Moses shouted: "I want the court to instruct that man (Reed) from sitting there and smirking at witnesses for the defense."

"Wild Bill" McLean was up on his feet immediately. Wild Bill allowed that a private citizen was being attacked. It was a life-sized row. Several attorneys were trying to talk at once.

It was 5:10 o'clock this evening before court recessed until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Nutt Describes Chipps.

When the big bodied Chipps placed himself on a settee in the study of the Rev. Norris, he impressed Nutt as a desperate person, Nutt testified during the day. Nutt's word picture of the Fort Worth lumberman a few minutes before Chipps reel d in his death throes, described a man of thunderous, evil manner. As he told the jury:

"My impression was that he would kill Dr. Norris unless prevented."

And again: "Chipps appeared angry, determined and dangerous."

Chipps seemed vicious to Nutt, Fort Worth banker and trustee of the Rev. Norris' First Baptist church. In contrast to the menacing, threatening Chipps—as Nutt depicted him, the Rev. Norris was calm and mild. He sat at his desk, solemn but unmoved, when Chipps hurled at him this imprecation:

Threat to Kill.

"If you don't let up on Meacham (mayor of Fort Worth), I'll kill you."

The Rev. Norris had replied to

"SNAKE EYES"

Hard Luck and Law Grabs 34 In Dice Game.

Raids on two gambling games by the sheriff's department last night brought 31 negroes and three white men into Justice R. V. Gwynn's court. The big haul of the night's operations was made at a farm dwelling about seven miles west of the city and a mile and a half north of the Seymour road, where a negro dance was in progress.

Deputies Cliff Keirsey, Dick Morris, W. P. Timmons and W. W. Belcher surrounded the house about 9:30 and on entering found the dice game in progress. After a stampede, in which furniture and lamps were overturned, the officers counted 28 men who had been engaged with the gallo ing dominoes, three of whom were whites.

A raid on a negro residence in the flats earlier in the night resulted in the arrest of six blacks.

Of the 34, eight pleaded not guilty, and 24 pleaded guilty, three of whom were unable to pay their fines and were committed to jail.

ROBBERS STEAL CAR

Second Holdup Staged After Slaying By Bandits Who Espcape

Special to The Record News.

BORGER, Jan. 16. (1:30 a. m. Sunday)—Bloodhounds rushed by automobile from Plainview were early this morning to be put on the trail of two masked bandits who shot and killed Mrs. A. A. Monte, wife of a filling station proprietor at Whittenberg, on the outskirts of Borger, in a pistol battle just before midnight Saturday. Meanwhile, Police Chief Fred Williams headed an automobile posse in pursuit of the supposed bandit car which was seen to speed away across the Canadian river north of Borger shortly after the killing. Another holdup, in which $60 was taken from a store in Isom, on the southern outskirts of Borger, and theft of an automobile in Borger were also credited to the bandit-killers.

Woman Uses Gun.

Mrs. Monte, according to information filed with Night Police Sergeant W. H. Gassaway, was in the living room of the Monte filling station, when two masked bandits compelled her husband and two others to hold up their hands in the service station adjoining. Discovering what was occurring, Mrs. Monte armed herself and entered upon the scene of the holdup firing at the bandits. Her shots went wild, however, and one of the bandits, returning the fire, wounded Mrs. Monte fatally. The bandits then fled, making their escape in the car which they are thought to have stolen in Borger.

Another Holdup.

Within a few minutes after the slaying of Mrs. Monte, a second holdup was reported to the Borger police, this being the raid in Isom which netted $60. The Isom robbery was also staged by two masked bandits whose description tallied with that given by witnesses to the slaying of Mrs. Monte at Whittenberg.

Night Sergeant Gassaway stated that the police have a good description of the two bandits and that fingerprints were also obtained on the scene of the shooting of Mrs. Monte.

Borger Folks Incensed.

Considerable feeling was in evidence in Borger tonight as news of the slaying of Mrs. Monte spread. Many volunteer possemen appeared at police headquarters, offering their services in the pursuit of the bandits. Bloodhounds to be used in tracking the bandits were requested of Plainview authorities, 100 miles south of this city and were rushed immediately by automobile, according to word from Plainview authorities.

Speaker Names Committee Chiefs For House of Texas Legislature

AUSTIN, Jan. 15. (AP)—Predictions that the regular session of the 40th legislature would be distinguished by constructive legislation, rather than partisan debate, in a measure were borne out during the initial week ending Saturday.

In the house 144 bills and 11 joint resolutions were introduced. The only bill finally passed was senate bill number one appropriating $165,000 for mileage, per diem and contingent expenses.

In the senate, six of the 56 bills introduced were passed, while six joint resolutions also were introduced.

COWART TELLS AIMS OF RACE

Wichita Falls Man Seeking Police-Fire Post

J. O. Cowart, a resident of Wichita Falls for the past five years, has announced his candidacy for the office of police and fire commissioner. He moved here from Haskell.

An attorney by profession, he is now engaged in the grocery business under the firm name of J. C. Cowart and Son.

His knowledge of law, he believes, especially qualifies him for police commissioner and also qualifies him for the many complex questions coming before the entire body of the commissioners of the city. Mr. Cowart says he will give his entire time and attention to the office and will place the dignity of the police court on a high plane and see that every one charged with a violation of the city ordinances gets a fair and impartial trial as the law directs.

Mr. Cowart declared he realizes the responsibility of the office of police commissioner, and that the future welfare and prosperity of the city depends, in a great measure, on the character of the man that is placed in power to enforce the laws of the city. Cities are judged in a large measure by the outside world as individuals are judged, therefore, the man who has been selected by the voters of the city and given the power to rule and regulate the police power of the city should see to it that nothing is allowed to be done in the city that will cast a reflection on the citizenship of the city, he said. Mr. Cowart believes that all laws should be righteously and justly enforced and by so doing will create respect for the law, and that criminals can thrive only where the law is lax and not properly enforced. The hi-jacker, burglar, automobile thief, bootlegger, professional gamblers and disorderly houses live and thrive in a city only because the law is not enforced by the man who has been elected by the people to protect them against that class of people who have no regard for the law, and no respect for the law-abiding citizens of the city.

Mr. Cowart is a member of the First Baptist church of Wichita Falls, a member of the Masonic order, a native Mississippian and a Texan by adoption, and believes in the golden rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

He earnestly requests the voters of the city, both men and women, to go to the city hall on April 5 and cast their vote for him for police commissioner of the city of Wichita Falls, and if elected promises to give faithful service.

J. O. Cowart Saturday made formal announcement of his candidacy for the police and fire commissioner's post in the coming elections.

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" at once if bilious or constipated

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonfull of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grownups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

Don't Scramble, Boys, But Here's Your Chance To Buy Auto For 98 Cents

Don't crowd, boys, but there's no excuse for any man not owning an automobile now, unless the legislature raises the gas tax to 50 cents a gallon. Here's the latest auto prices:

One Ford touring, 98 cents.
Essex coach, $9.98.
Cadillac, $32.48.

There are others, including one for $2.98, all guaranteed to have genuine rubber tires, and to run under their own power. Sounds like a bargain counter at a department store fire sale, but its the prices on used cars announced and advertised by Frank Queisser, of the Wichita Hudson-Essex.

According to Mr. Queisser there's no catch in it, and first come first to trundle out in a Ford, Essex, Cadillac, kiddy-kar or what have you. Of course this news story doesn't hurt the genial police commissioner's sale. But what can you do when a man sells autos for 98 cents?

The free-for-all scramble is announced for Saturday, Jan. 22, at Queisser's place at 1104 Scott.

BUNCO ARTIST GETS LIBERTY

Governor Frees Man Who Swindled Norfleet

AUSTIN, Jan. 15. (AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has signed the proclamation granting a full pardon to W. B. Spencer, sentenced to eight years from Tarrant county in connection with the swindling of J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center by a group of confidence men.

NORFLEET WROTE NEW CHAPTER IN CRIMINOLOGY

Frank Norfleet's man hunt, after a gang led by Joe Furey of California had swindled him of $56,000 in Fort Worth and Dallas, in December of 1919, was the most relentless and spectacularly successful in his history of American criminology.

Norfleet was a prosperous ranchman when he went to Dallas on a land deal. He was penniless when the swindlers got through him. He resolved to capture them himself, alive, and bring them to justice—and he did.

One by one the swindlers were tracked down, until all five had been accounted for. One committed suicide in the Washington, D. C. jail while the "mastermind," Joe Furey, died in the Texas penitentiary.

Spencer was the last to be caught by Norfleet. He was chased from one end of America to the other, was captured in Montreal, Canada, and escaped in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Norfleet is now living on his farm in Hale county, in a comfortable brick bungalow, resting from the exploit that mide him in a space of seven years the most famous trailer in America.

SHEP SCORES OVER RADIO

"Why Does He Want To Be Mayor?" Asks Fan

The musical proclivities of Mayor and Mrs. R. E. Shepherd and the civic status of Wichita Falls, Texas, were broadcast to the world last night.

Wife Accompanist

Going "on the air" over WBAP, Fort Worth, the genial Wichita Falls executive and his wife gave a delightful entertainment that, apparently, circulated over a considerable portion of the United States. For 30 minutes "Shep" sang while his wife played the piano accompaniments and soon after the program started the Hired Hand, announcer for the station, began acknowledging receipt of telegraph and telephone calls of appreciation.

Shepherd opened with "Let the End of the World Come Tomorrow" and followed it with "Just A Cottage Small," "Just A Bit of Heaven," "Mother Macree," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "What A Wonderful World It Would Be" and "If With All Your Heart."

Tells of Wichita Falls

Between times, the Hired Hand made liberal use of the name of Wichita Falls as the place which furnished the singing mayor and his wife. Wires were announced as having been received from Dallas, McKinney, Archer City, Oklahoma City, Bellevue and many from Wichita Falls. Included in those sending messages from this city were Horrace Robbins, C. H. Verschoyle, C. G. Bunnenburg, Jerry Schaffer, W. E. McBroom, Will Ellis, Jimmy Roberson and others.

Scores of phone calls were sent to the radio station from Fort Worth fans who were listening in. One of the wires from Dallas inquired "why does a guy like that want to be mayor?" and another remarked that the mayor's concert was one of the best WBAP had ever arranged.

The Shepherds were on the air from 10 p. m. to 10:30, sandwiched in between two concerts by The Sunflower Girl, the headliner of the station.

News From the South — P. T. A. Activities

Business First. — Child Welfare

Unique Luncheon — Had the Flu?

DEAR KITTY: With the departure of the college crowd following the holidays and the rush of the new year parties over, we have at last settled down to a more safe and sane pace, and my friend you reckoned exactly right when you prophesied that we would do just that. However, with the coming of an interesting announcement from South Texas, that of the approaching wedding of Jarrell Gose of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gose Sr., and Kitty West Schreiner of San Antonio, whose marriage is scheduled for the first of March, I am thinking that probably the most important social of the week of interest here has been the doings down there. For there is where the elaborate party took place last week when the approaching nuptials were announced and the news was brought home by Kitty's friend, Ivy V. Larkin, who returned home Wednesday after a whirl of events.

* * *

THE bride to be is well known here where she has been a frequent visitor and is decidedly popular in the younger social set. And while things have been more or less quiet the past week, I am sure that everything is due to "pick up" so society has only about two months for it's mad rush before Lent which falls on the second day of March this year, when we are supposed to renounce the world, the flesh and the devil. So now for awhile anyway, everybody—will be plunging into the whirlpool of gayety and giving or going to a party, morning, noon and night.

* * *

BUSINESS first has been the slogan of women's clubs lately, and before another thing is done, all have had elections of officers and with their heads together have planned and discussed work and programs for the future. The last one to announce new officers is the Unity Junior, a child of the senior organization and composed of the daughters mostly of the Unity members. Mrs. Harry White was elected president; Mrs. Wilbur Cahoon, vice-president; Mrs. Jack Speegle, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. Jouette Bonner, treasurer; Mrs. Stayton Bonner, critic; Mrs. Jim Barnard, parliamentarian, and a program committee composed of Mesdames Skeen Staley, C. I. Francis and George Gutzman.

* * *

ONE of the most elaborate affairs of the week, and exceptionally unique, was the Scandinavian luncheon served by the social committee of the Standard club at the home of Mrs. C. E. Bailey on Friday. Carrying out the idea in keeping with their course of study which has included Scandinavian literature, all the menu was composed of dishes common to Norway, Sweden, Poland and Holland.

Women responsible for the original idea and the preparation of the luncheon were Mesdames A. C. Price, O. M. De Siere and S. M. Kennemer.

* * *

AND then the Parent-Teacher associations. With the beginnings of meetings since the suspension during the holidays, these groups of women all over the city, have indeed been as busy as the proverdial bee. And this all reminds me that a bulletin from Mrs. Will T. Decherd, publicity chairman at Austin, says, "The year of 1927 began auspiciously for the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations. Word has been received from the national summer round-up campaign, that a Texas Parent-Teacher association, that of Del Rio, had won first place in the 1926 campaign. The Delineator, realizing the great possibility for good in this campaign offered this year, as last, prizes that amount to $500. One hundred and fifty dollars of this will go to Del Rio to be used to further the child welfare work in that locality.

"The summer round-up of the children is an endeavor on the part of the Parent-Teacher associations to enter a class of children in first grade as nearly 100 per cent free from remediable physical defects as possible. This entails examinations by competent physicians and then the correction of such defects as may have been found. Some parents already awake to their responsibility for the physical, mental and spiritual welfare of the children, eagerly welcome the clinic and have defects corrected at once, while others have to be tactfully instructed by Parent-Teacher association committees and gradually led to assume the responsibility along this line. Not only is the child benefitted but the community at large is saved unnecessary expense for many absences are prevented by vacinating children before school begins, by removing handicaps such as diseased tonsils, adenoids and other remediable troubles that cause unnecessary delay in the progress of classes.

* * *

"THIS campaign is not only attracting attention of Parent-Teacher associations but national headquarters reports 275 requests for information about the work from state departments of education, county and local superintendents of schools, home demonstration agents, universities and colleges, libraries, state departments of health, health nurses, and other national organizations interested in child welfare. Requests have been answered from Canada, France, Panama and Switzerland.

"The summer round-up of children will be continued as a permanent activity of the National Congress. The first information sheet containing the requirements from the 1927 campaign and the plan of procedure was ready December 15. The campaign proper will begin May first."

Now after being practical, I will become flippant, and ask you the question, are you in style this winter, Kitty? Have you the flu? If not, catch it 'fore you come to Wichita Falls. Right now the blow outs have been confined mostly to the noses, as between the business meetings, the committee meetings and sickness, social blowouts have not been plentiful. And one of the patients recently has been your friend—

Visitor In Norris' Study Swears He Heard Chipps Threaten To Kill Pastor

Defense Presents Testimony to Show Norris Shot Chipps to Save Himself

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 15. (AP)—The tragedy of last July 17, in the upper chamber of the First Baptist Church office building at Fort Worth, were Dr. J. Frank Norris prepared some of his sermons, was re-enacted in District Court room here today.

L. H. Nutt, bank auditor, church trustee, member of the church finance committee and Superintendent of the Young Peoples' Department of Norris' Sunday school, was the chief actor and he portrayed, by word and gesture, the final action the life of Dexter E. Chipps, Fort Worth lumberman.

Like Mrs. Rosie Parker, the star witness for the state, Nutt happened in on the tragedy which cost Chipps his life and Dr. Norris a murder trial. Nutt was the only eye-witness other than Norris and his testimony was the high water mark of Dr. Norris' defense today.

Mrs. Parker told yesterday she had stepped to the threshold of Norris' outer office just as Chippe came through the inner door and a moment later was shot. She saw what occurred on the outside of that door. Nutt today told what had happened on the other side of the door.

Nutt Testifies.

Mr. Nutt testified that Chippe came to Norris' office unannounced and threatened to kill the pastor if he did not quit attacking Chipps' friends. He was shot when he made an apparent move to reach his hip pocket.

Following Nutt, who occupied the stand the greater part of the day, several character witnesses were put on in an effort to show that Chipps had a bad reputation as a drinker and that while under the influence of liquor he was quarrelsome and unruly.

Considerable of this testimony about Chippe was given by Fred Dt Holland, a former Fort Worth policeman, who testified he had heard Chipps threaten to kill Norris on the day before Norris killed Chipps. Holland said he told Norris of this threat and gave the pastor other information about Chipps' actions and troubles.

Mr. Nutt withstood an intense cross examination from Attorney William McLean for the state, but stuck to the main points of his story. He was passed back and forth from state to defense a half dozen times before the story was completed in its minutest detail.

Holland Resigned.

Mr. Holland, who resigned from the Fort Worth police force because the chief would not extend his ninety-day leave so he could work in the oil fields, testified he had seen Chipps with Detective Harry Conner in front of the Texas Hotel at Fort Worth on the morning of July 16, the day before Chippe was killed. He stepped up to the pair, Conner holding Chippe by the arm, and heard Chipps say he was going to kill Norris, linking an oath with his name.

Following Holland's testimony, court adjourned until 9 a. m., Monday. Dr. Norris showed considerable strain and emotion, especially during the recital of Chipps' death.

"What did Chippe say?"

"If you do, I'll kill you," Chippe said.

"Dr. Norris said, there's the door," and asked him to go. Chippe remained standing, looking at Norris.

Chippe Made Threat.

"Norris said he'd repeat what he had said and Chippe replied, "I'll kill you."

Nutt stood up and acted out what happened for the jury.

Chippe made a motion with his right hand toward his hip, and as he did his coat opened. Chipps had opened the door and said "Let's go to it."

"Dr. Norris stood at his desk at my rear. As Chippe made the movement to his hip, the shots rang out. There were three shots."

The witness indicated the rapidity with a stick, striking the floor.

"Chippe stooped over to pick something from the floor. It appeared to be something in a brown leather case. He then walked back into Dr. Norris' office, took a few steps, and fell to the floor. He began to bleed.

"Chipps' tone was determined and he had the appearance of a man who was angry, determined and dangerous."

"What was the impression he made on your mind," Simpson asked, "with reference to what he was going to do to Dr. Norris?"

State objected to the question.

State Overruled.

Judge Hamilton overruled the objection.

"The impression on me was that Chippe would kill Dr. Norris unless prevented," Nutt said.

He said Norris was calm and did not use any abusive language. Nutt previously testified Norris had told Chippe he did not want to have any trouble with him.

"Did you ever see a gun in Dr. Norris' hand before those shots rang out?" Simpson asked.

"I did not. Never."

"Are you a friend of Dr. Norris?"

"Yes."

"Do you want to see Dr. Norris acquitted and if so why?"

The judge sustained an objection to the question.

Nutt said he did not see any woman appear in the door as Norris shot. Mrs. Rosie Parker yesterday said she saw the shooting while standing in the doorway.

Written Statement.

Nutt made a written statement to District Attorney Robert Hanger of Fort Worth, the evening of the shooting.

"Why didn't you look on Chippe' body to see if he had anything to kill Norris with?" William McLean, special prosecutor asked.

"I didn't think of it," was the answer.

"Did you hear Dr. Norris say just after the shooting, "Well, boys, I'll preach in the same old place tomorrow?"

Defense objected and state said the purpose was to show that Norris was calm and cool just after the shooting. Oojection overruled. The defense insisted the remark was made so long after the killing (two hours) that it was immaterial.

Killing Admitted.

"Don't you know that Norris preached twice the next day and that he admitted killing Chippe?" McLean asked.

Witness said he believed so.

"Who opened the door when Chippe started out?"

"Norris opened it."

"Did Norris shoot Chippe?"

"I don't know."

"Weren't you and Norris the only ones in the room?"

"Yes."

"Well, you didn't shoot him, did you?"

"No."

McLean asked Nutt if he did not tell the grand jury he did not know how many shots were fired. Nutt didn't remember.

"Didn't you swear before the grand jury that what you saw Chippe pick up from the floor of Norris' office was a comb?" McLean asked.

"I can't remember."

Blood On Floor.

"Didn't you hear Miss Hartwell tell the janitor to mop up the blood in the ante-room?" McLean asked.

"I think she told him to mop up in the private office."

"But the body was there then wasn't it?"

"I don't remember."

"Didn't you tell the grand jury Chippe shook hands with you when he came into Norris' office?"

"I think I did."

Williams First Witness

H. M. Williams, of Fort Worth, city salesman for the Moore Rubber company, was introduced by defense as the first witness of the day in the Norris murder trial to rebut testimony given yesterday by H. S. Rains.

Rains said he heard Norris remark, "I've killed me a man."

The witness said Norris made this remark as he emerged from the room where D. E. Chipps had been killed. Chippe was shot in the pastor's study in the First Baptist church office building last July.

Williams said sometime after the killing he asked Rains what he knew about the case.

"I don't know a damn thing, Bill," the witness quoted Raine as saying.

Williams said he understood Rains disliked Norris. Attorney Dayton Moses attempted to have the witness comment on what Rains had said concerning a certain sermon by Norris, when the prosecution objected that the defense had not laid "the proper predicate" because there was no evidence that Rains had made any statement about a sermon.

Rains Recalled

After argument, Rains was then recalled to the stand and was asked whether Williams had said he had heard "a very good sermon by Norris over the radio and that Rains ought to listen in on Norris' sermons."

Rains denied that Williams had said that to him.

"And didn't you curse Norris" asked Moses.

"I did not," the witness replied. "I have nothing against Dr. Norris."

Williams then resumed the stand, stating that Rains told him he didn't care to hear Norris. Rains using an oath.

"Rains said if they fooled with him he would tell what Norris said at Rains' wife's funeral," Williams testified.

Attorney McLean plied Williams with questions about what Rains said when the latter came down from the room where he had seen Chippe' body on the floor. Williams said Rains told a different story every time he related it, but the witness was unable to present the various versions of the tale.

Williams denied that Rains had said he heard Dr. Norris declare "I've killed me a man."

Nutt Next Called

L. H. Nutt, eye-witness to the killing was called next to tell for the first time publicly his version of the shooting which he witnessed in Norris' study. He is auditor in the Fort Worth National bank, and a trustee, a member of the finance committee an dsuperintendent of the poung people's department of Norris' Sunday school.

During Nutt's recital, Dr. Norris sat apparently in deep study, a handkerchief held to his face, occasionally to his eyes. At times he was in the post of prayer.

Nutt said he left his office shortly after 4 p. m. of the Saturday when Chippe was killed. He bought some fruit and then visited Norris. His visits to Norris on church business were frequent.

The defense brought in a replica of the Norris study similar to the one introduced yesterday by the state but showing the position of the furniture.

Mr. Nutt indicated the furniture, as Attorney Marvin Simpson for the defense, pointed to each article. The jury stood around the model. He pointed out a chair where he was seated while conferring with Norris and the desk at which Norris sat.

Nutt reached Norris' office about 4:30 p. m. He talked first to Miss Jane Hartwell, the pastor's secretary, and then went into Dr. Norris' office.

The first words spoken were by Norris.

"Dr. Norris said, 'do you know Chippa?'"

"I replied that I thought Chippe did business at our bank.

"Shortly after this Chippe entered the door of the office. Dr. Norris was seated at his desk."

Saw Chippe in Office

"Did he knock?" Simpson asked.

"No. The first I saw of him he was in the room. He said: 'I'm Chippe'."

"I rose to my feet. Chippe said, 'I know this man,' referring to me. I sat down and Chippe said he was a lumberman and then he too sat down.

"Chippe said: 'I've got something to say.' He then turned toward Norris and said: 'If you say anything more about my friends, Meacham, Austin and Roach, I'm going to kill you.' He had his fist clinched.

"Norris replied: 'My sermon is already announced for Sunday and I'm going to preach it'."

Did Not Discuss Case.

"When did you discuss with Norris what you were going to swear and what he was going to swear?"

"I don't know as we talked about what we were going to swear."

McLean attempted to show there had been two pistols in Norris' office. Nutt said the pistol shown him before the grand jury was not the one Norris used.

"From the time Chippe entered the office didn't you swear that Chippe did not utter an oath?" McLean continued in cross-examination.

"Don't remember, but believe that is true."

"Didn't you say that Norris told Chippe' I don't want any more out of you. There's the door."

McLean read this from an affidavit Nutt was supposed to have made. The witness admitted he may have made this remark.

Nutt later admitted that Norris did show Chippe the door and told him he didn't want another word out of him.

"Did Chippe leave?"

"No. He stood there a while before the door was opened."

"Has anyone explained to you the law on provoking difficulties?"

"No."

Norris Went to Door.

"Did Norris follow Chippe to the door?"

"Chippe went out first and Norris walked to the door."

"Did Norris have his six-shooter with him?"

"Don't know."

"As Norris followed Chippe didn't he say, "I repeat all I've said?"

"Words to that effect," Nutt replied.

Numerous objections by defense were overruled.

"After Chippe staggered back and fell into the corner did you go over there and administer to that man?" McLean asked.

"No, I didn't."

"Did Norris?"

"No."

Nutt admitted he could not see the door where Mrs. Parker said she stood from the chair he was sitting in.

Nutt was still on the stand when court resumed after recess.

"Didn't Chippe say to Norris, "If you don't quit preaching about my friends I will kill you?" Didn't he say, "If?" McLean asked.

"I can't say," Mr. Nutt replied.

Heard Threats Before.

Nutt testified he told Chippe, Dr. Norris had heard men make threats against the pastor before.

"Where was Dr. Norris when Chippe said he'd kill him?" Attorney Simpson asked.

"Don't remember."

Nutt said Norris was near his desk when Chippe said, "Let's go to it."

Simpson had Nutt face the jury and tell them why he didn't interfere in the situation.

"I don't know why I didn't interfere," Nutt replied.

On redirect examination by Simpson, Nutt said Chippe declared when he came into Norris' office, "I've got something to say and mean. I'm shooting straight."

McLean asked him why he didn't give the balance of Chippe' statement as set out in Nutt's affidavit and the defense strenuously objected. McLean said he asked the question to show "animus" on the part of the witness. The objection was overruled.

Nutt said he didn't remember the remainder of the statement. The witness was shifted back and forth between prosecution and defense. McLean asked him about his affidavit made about an hour and a half after the killing. The lawyer had him read the affidavit. Nutt said there were some discrepancies in the document, though he had signed it.

Truth Questions.

"Do you mean to swear a statement made within an hour and a half after the killing was not true?"

"It was true in the main," Nutt said.

McLean then read a portion of the affidavit in which Norris was quoted as following:

"I don't want any more out of you. There is the door."

The affidavit also said Chippe "reluctantly got up and walked out of the office door."

Nutt said this was true as far as it went but that it did not state all that Chippe did.

"Dr. Norris invited him out several times before he left," Nutt said.

McLean's cross examination was severe and he drew from Nutt admissions that perhaps some details in his affidavit were slightly incorrect. The state was trying hard to break down the defense star witness.

Fort Worth Police Officer Attacks Character Of Chipps In Norris Evidence

L. H. Nutt Undergoes Grilling At Hands of Chief Counsel For State

Chipps, perhaps with a trace of irony:

"Well, my sermon has been announced. Perhaps you should come around and hear it."

This was on Saturday, July 17, last. The sermon would be preached the next day. It was here that Nutt, who said he was the only person present at the Norris-Chipps death interview, addressed Chipps. He said:

"The Rev. Norris has heard that kind of threat before."

Nutt had testified before a grand jury shortly after the supposedly blustering Chipps toppled to the pastor's study floor. Today, however, was the first time his version of slaying was given in public.

Testimony Compared.

Comparison of Nutt's grand jury testimony with his statements of today was made by W. P. (Wild Bill) McLean, stormy leader of the special prosecution corps.

It seemed to some that certain supposed discrepancies did not shake Nutt materially. Nutt was and is avowedly friendly to the defense and eager to see his pastor vindicated, he admitted, but he stayed on the main track, whereas, certain other witnesses have developed flat wheels and have had difficulty in negotiating switches.

Norris was unarmed, so far as Nutt knew. He did not see the actual trigger action of Norris. His eyes at that time were riveted on Chipps. The latter had departed once, only to reappear at the scene again. Bald, about forty-six years old, dignified and of a bearing in keeping with his title of superintendent of the young married peoples department of the First Baptist Sunday school, Nutt did not hesitate when answering questions.

Witness Testifies Slowly.

Neither did he seem overeager to get in his replies.

He had left his bank at 4 o'clock on the afternoon that Chipps was killed. He had called at the church to arrange for a substitute Sunday school teacher assigned for class next day. He had called on the Rev. Norris.

Here the defense announced that it had a model of the church business offices including the pastor's study. It might be called a "surprise model," for it had been prepared secretly.

The state on Tuesday presented a model of the office. It appeared that the defense was not to be outdone. The trial may develop into the "battle of the models." The new model contains little pieces of furniture to indicate who sat where and why.

Nutt had stopped en route to the church to purchase grapes and cherries. His arrival at the study was at about 4:30 o'clock. Shortly thereafter, Chipps unannounced, bulked through the door from an anteroom.

Nutt added:

"Chipps entered the west door. I was sitting to the west of Dr. Norris' desk at the time Chipps came in."

Question: "What were the first words he said?"

Chipps Walks In.

He said: "I'm Chippe." I rose up and he said: "I know this man I know him down at the bank." He started over to the settee in the northwest corner of Dr. Norris' study.

As he took his seat he addressed himself to me and said: "I'm D. E. Chipps, the lumberman who sells lumber all over the country and lots of it." Immediately after he was seated he said: "I'll say to you," looking in my direction and then turning to Dr. Norris: "If you talk about Meacham, Austin and Roach any more, I'm going to kill you." He had his fist clenched and a determined, defiant, mean look and—

Prosecutor McLean objected, saying that the witness might be trying to make a speech. The court ruled: "You may state the facts." By a slip, the court referred to Nutt as Mr. Chipps, whereup Mr. Nutt rose gravely and said that although it might make little difference, "My name isn't Chipps." He continued that he told Chipps the Rev. Norris had received threats like that before.

When the Rev. Norris informed Chipps of his intention to preach a sermon and that Chipps might want to hear it, the lumberman was quoted by Nutt as follows:

He Heard Threat.

"Dr. Norris said:

"'I don't want any trouble with you. There's the door.' Mr. Chipps refused to go. He remained standing there, his lips purple, and he was looking toward Dr. Norris."

Q—What else took place then?

A—I can't recall what Mr. Chipps said next except Dr. Norris had to tell him a second time, may be three times, to go. Finally Mr. Chipps reluctantly walked out."

Objection by the prosecution to the word "reluctantly." The objection was sustained.

Q—What did Mr. Chipps do?

A—He went out slowly through the west door, the one where he had come in.

Q—Who opened the door?

A—I don't remember.

Q—Can you tell where Dr. Norris was standing at the time Mr. Chipps passed out the door?

A—He was just about in front of me.

Q—How far from you?

A—Possibly two or three or four feet.

Q—What took place if anything after Chipps went out of the door?

A—Dr. Norris said: "I repeat what I've said."

Q—What did Chipps say?

Threat Was Repeated.

A—He said: "I'll kill you."

Dr. Norris, the witness continued, then resumed a seat at his desk.

Just then Chipps returned to the door.

Q—What did you hear before you saw Chipps?

A—I heard Chipps say: "Let's go to it."

The witness explained that he could have seen Chipps before he heard his voice, but had not looked in that direction until he did hear the supposed threat. Nutt was asked to describe Chipps' exact motions and appearance. Nutt stood down from the witness box. He reached with his right hand in the general direction of his hip. He raised his left hand level with his chin. He explained he did not know just what gesture Chipps intended or accomplished with that movement. He added:

"He made a motion with his right arm and I saw his coat roll back. I could see part of his chest or shirt. He made some motion over his left shoulder. Just what it was I can't explain."

Q—What happened then?

Shots Rang Out.

A—Next thing, shots rang out.

Q—How long after the words: 'Let's go to it' did those shots ring out?

A—Almost immediately. Dr. Norris was to my right and to my rear. I don't know how many shots, but as many as three.

Q—Rapidly?

A—Very rapid.

Q—"What did Chipps do?"

A—"He backed out to the anteroom, almost two or three feet beyond the outer door, and, facing almost south, he stooped over to pick something up. Then, he walked back to the study at the east end and fell over, facing the west."

Q—'Did you see what he was attempting to pick up?"

A—"I saw something. I don't know what it was. It looked something like a brown case. My recollection is it looked like a brown case."

Meanwhile, Dr. Norris had left the study and had gone to the main office. There Nutt followed him. Dr. Norris told Nutt to "get an ambulance." Nutt was excited. He fumbled with the telephone. Miss Jane Hartwell, secretary to the Rev. Norris, and a witness for the defense, called the ambulance. Cross-examination drew from Nutt the statement he had not returned to the fallen man. He did not then know whether Chipps were alive or dead. He had not administered to him. Neither, he said later, had he made any attemnt to go between the pastor and Chipps during the death debate.

Nutt did not see a woman at the ante-room door during the shooting incident. This was meant to refute testimony of Mrs. Roxie Parker, 70-year-old widow, who yesterday said she had witnessed the slaying.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop Twelve of Grace Methodist church is now preparing for the contests to be held at the jamboree at the First Baptist church, January 28. A troop record was set by Bonner Bartoy in fire-by-friction. Fire was made by this scout in 30 seconds. Nine other scouts made fire before the troop was dismissed. Knot tying and the other events in the contest to be staged at the jamboree are being studied intensely.

As this troop is the Indian troop a new idea was advanced by the senior patrol leader, Kenton Wharton, and the junior assistant scoutmaster, Joe Perry, carrying out idea of the name. The troop voted the idea that each patrol of the troop assume the name of a tribe of Indians who inhabited the forests and plains of this continent. The members of the patrols will take an Indian name who came from the tribe. The plan is now being worked out by the scoutmaster and his two assistants.

The troop was honored by the visit of one of the new officers of the scout council, Rev. Leslie Miller.

TROOP FIFTEEN

Troop Fifteen met at the Highland Heights Christian church Friday evening. The meeting opened at 7:30 with roll call.

Chief Creighton made a talk on more work and less play. He also talked of the jamboree to be held January 28 and stated that he expected to have 19 troops in running order in time to participate in the contest.

W. R. Hyer, commissioner of the Boy Scouts, was introduced and stated that he would be out for several meetings.

The scoutmaster's bulletin was read by Mike Donegan, senior patrol leader, and the program for parents' night was discussed. Various patrols were assigned their parts.

Paul Barnett, one of the troop committeemen, made a talk. He promised that the councilmen would do what they could to make Troop Fifteen the best in the city, but that the boys must do their part.

Games were played in which the Apaches won and the Mohicans and the Iroquois tied for second place.

The meeting was closed with the pledge of allegiance.

CHARLES CROCKER.

Girl Cagers Open Nine-Week Schedule Jan. 26

RECORD NEWS AWARDS TITLE CUP TO CHAMP

Four Teams Prepared For Gong With Week Yet To Practice

Organization of Wichita Falls' women's basketball league which, incidentally, is sponsored by The Record News, was perfected and schedule adopted in session of team managers and coaches the past week.

The league is a four-team loop, consisting of clubs representing the Continental Oil company, P. B. M. department store, the Willys-Knight-Whippet company and the Electric company. The Continental team has been named the Conocos and the automobile concern's sextet is to be called the Whippets.

The schedule is to cover a nine-week span, all four teams swinging into action on Wednesday of each week. The opening double-header is carded for January 26 on the Junior college court. The race is to close March 23. A reservation was made in the drawing of the schedule, however, to effect that at the fifth week if a majority of the teams at that time so desire, the season will be split and one more week of play be added.

One Rule Change

The team which wins the championship is to be awarded by The Record News a handsome loving cup on which are to be inscribed the team's name and names of its players.

The league is to play under Spalding girls' basketball rules, two-zone court, with one exception and that is the two centers of each club will be permitted to rove the court at will and be eligible at all times to sharpshoot for baskets.

The league intends to function with a minimum number of officials. Team managers and representatives from each team are chosen to an advisory board. Angus Parker, sports editor of the Daily Times, and L. O. (Doc) Landon, the sporting goods man, have been placed on the arbitration board. Leon Horn of the Electric company serves as secretary-treasurer and The Record News sports editor serves as league manager.

The Coaches

Charley Spragins is manager and coach of the Electrics. John Barnard is manager and coach of the P. B. M. Squad. Frank Ramsey handles the business and coaching end of the Conocos. Clarence (Chubby) Neal and John Clary coach the Whippets. C. T. (Dan) Boone of the Willys-Knight-Whippet company is Whippet manager.

The four teams have been practicing assiduously the past several weeks and several have indulged in a number of practice games. Each club is rounding into shape rapidly and all are confident of copping the laurels.

FAITH IN COBB

Newspaper Runs Ad Endorsing Player.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Advertising columns of metropolitan dailies served an unusual role today as the medium of an expression of confidence in baseball as "a clean and splendid sport" and in Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb as "good men who served it long and well."

Referring to the two great outfielders who recently withdrew from the game, Paul Block, publisher of the Newark Star Eagle of Newark, N. J., expressed the view in his advertisement that "no men who have done for baseball what these men have done can ever in justice be driven from the game, condemned and ruined, for any careless judg[illegible] or thoughtless indiscretion.

"Nobody who knows them believes they are dishonest men or that they ever 'threw' any ball games," reads the advertisement in referring to charges of Dutch Leonard that Cobb and Speaker conspired to "do in" a contest in 1919.

HORNSBY FIRST BATTING KING WITH GIANTS SINCE DOYLE

McGraw Was Supposed to Get Babe Ruth — Helped Hornsby in Last World Series

By ROY GROVE
(EFS Sports Editor)

"I WAITED a long time to get Rogers Hornsby and still it is a gamble whether he will be able to play the kind of ball his reputation is based on," says John McGraw.

McGraw has been the boss of the Giants for a great number of years, since 1902, to be exact, and in that time although he has developed some wonderful world champions, John has not had but one man who could lead the league in batting.

Hornsby is the first batting king to put on a Giant uniform since the days of Larry Doyle. Larry's best year, at bat, was in 1912, when he amassed a hitting average of .341, and that was the days before the lively ball, it must be remembered.

However, .341 was not good enough to lead the National league even then, for Old Honus Wagner was knocking them far and wide and Doyle had to be content with a runner-up position.

It was in 1915 that Larry Doyle won the batting crown of the National league, nosing out Fred Luderus, of the Phillies, which took the title with the lowest batting average in the history of that outfit.

McGraw is very happy over the trade which brought Hornsby to the Giants. He has been trying for years to produce a Babe Ruth for his outfit.

* * *

HE is now paying Hornsby $40,000 a year, which is the highest salary ever paid a ball player in the National league. It was McGraw who startled the baseball world many years ago when he paid the sensational sum of $11,000 for Rube Marquard of the Indianapolis club.

The sum McGraw pays today is $10,000 better than Rogers was receiving when he piloted the St. Louis Cardinals to a world's championship. Hornsby wanted $50,000 a year to stay with the Cardinals, which instigated the trade.

* * *

"I MUST admit it was a great trade for us when we took Hornsby," says John. "There was a time when I thought I could have gotten hold of Babe Ruth. It was an old understanding I had with Jack Dunn, that when he was to let Ruth out, he would come to me.

"Breadon made a good bid when he took Frankie Frisch. At first he wanted Bill Terry along with Frisch, then Jack Scott, but finally came to a compromise when he accepted Jimmy Ring."

Frisch is as wonderful a ball player as Hornsby and can play a great game when he wants to get into the swing. He should develop sensationaly with the Cardinals. You have all seen Frisch work in past world's series and know his stuff. Hornsby is a chance with the Giants. He worked in a brace during the last world's series. Whether his sprain will improve can only be decided during the coming season."

Hornsby and McGraw will make a real pennant winning combination. Rogers will captain the team.

McGraw was in the dugout with the Cardinal pilot during the last three games of the last 1926 world's series and advised him many times during the progress of the game.

DOUBLE THREE-WAY DEADLOCK FALLS IN CITY LOOP TUESDAY

Beck of Landon-Hill Leads Individual Point-Getters With Haney Second; Guards Best Team Total

Three teams remain tied for top honors and three stick in a deadlock for the cellar championship as Commercial league goalers turn to in their third week of competition Tuesday night at the Junior college. Panhandle, Landon-Hill and the Guardsmen each hold 1000 per cent with two games won and none lost.

Draughon, Continental and Hub Clothiers have not broken into the victory column yet but two of these teams stand in a fair way of coming through this week. Draughon scraps it out with Continental. This game eliminates further possibility of a tie. Hub has been training diligently and expects to upset Panhandle. Tyson's men, however, have been hitting the ball just as hard. The Guardsmen-Landon-Hill melee is expected to be a riotous affair.

Preston Beck, Landon-Hill forward, is league high point man with 21 tallies, 20 of which were tabulated from the field. Haney, Panhandle center, runs him second with 20 points, sinking ten field baskets. Allen of Landon-Hill has scored 13 points and Thurman of the Hubbers has come through for the same total.

The heavy scoring has been done by the Guardsmen with three of their stars hitting the hoop almost at will. The Guards' team total for the two games is 66. The sporting goods men are second with 55 and Panhandle tags along with a team total of 57. Hogg, Guardsman, who in reality is a guard, if you get what we mean, has scored 17 points. Hill of the same outfit has made 15 and Meadows 12.

Wolford of Panhandle has sunk five field goals and a couple of free throws for 12 points and Rawls of the same club has scored ten points. Jones of Draughon has come through for a quintet of tied hoopers.

Moriarty Writes Salve For Umphs

Tiger Leader Says Arbiters Have Sense of Humor

By GEORGE MORIARTY
Manager Detroit Tigers

Am making herewith, a denial, in justice to the umpiring fraternity of which I was a member until recently. I have been misquoted a few times by the alleged remark that I am already prepared with whom I may have a difference of opinion regarding close decisions. The following has been credited to me: "I know how rotten you fellows guess, because, I was one of you myself."

This is, initself, more than a slight inadvertence. The quotation herein mentioned was a bit of repartee published in connection with a cartoon which pictured yours truly in a baseball uniform while supposedly engaged in aheated debate with an umpire. Please do not get the impression that I am denouncing the cartoon; it was clever, indeed, and as a reader I enjoyed the accompanying quip.

However, I merely want to correct the impression that I am the author of the above quotation upon the umpires. As a class, umpires are as humorous and jovial as men of any other profession, and the the majority of them could doubtless get a good laugh out of the cartoon in question, but they also take their profession seriously. Ten years of umpiring has taught me much; too much to make offensive remarks about it.

* * *

I see Wilbert Robinson has intimated that he intends to rebuild the Dodgers with young blood. The passing of Zack Wheat, and Jasques Fournier from the Brooklyn line-up is a sign of his intention. However, in rebuilding a ball club, the main idea seems to be a judicious mixture of veterans and youngsters, rather than the absence of the old-timers, and Robinson realizes that necessity as well as any manager in the game.

The veterans of a ball club have a steadying influence on the rookies and it is by their deeds, and from their lips, that the youngsters learn the finer points of the game. Look at the rosters of a championship club and you will see that several veterans play their parts in steering the ship over the rough waters. It will ever be thus where the league limit permits 25 men.

WALTER MAY BEALLRIGHT UNDER DAN'S CARE

Howley "Remembers" And He's McCoy At Tutoring Youngsters

A baseball manager, to be a good manager, must have a bit of Indian in his makeup.

And never forget.

His memory must be as long as the list of players he has seen in action during his career.

Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, "remembered" when he went strading this winter, to build up his team for the coming squabble.

The Yankees were gunning for pitching and fielding strength. They wanted a young hurler. They wanted an outfielder, possibly to take Bob Meusel's place. At least to be available for utility purposes.

Howley offered them what they wanted in the shape of Joe Giard, young flinger, and Cedric Durst, outfielder and first baseman of parts. The Yankees had let Giard go to the Browns years ago, with Milton Gaston and Joe Bush for Urban Shocker. At that time Huggins was willing to part with anything but his real estate holdings in St. Petersburg and other parts of Florida for Shocker whom he believed could hurl the Yankees to a pennant. Shocker, incidentally, won but 13 games and lost the same number. Meanwhile Giard, under the tutoring of Geo. Sisler and Jimmy Austin, showed considerable promise and what is more to the point, won 10 games while losing but five.

Last year Shocker delivered for Huggins, winning 19 games losing but 11. Giard meanwhile, won but three and lost 10 games. This was due in a measure, to his work as relief pitcher. Huggins felt as though the young man had a future. He was glad to get him, with Durst, when the two bosses talked horses.

Howley looked over the Yankee roster and spotted Walter Beall's name but said nothing.

But it so happens that Beall was pitching for Rochester in the International league in 1924, while Howley was managing the Toronto team. Howley remembered not only that Beall hung up a nice string of wins that year but that he showed general ability that spoke well. Howley watched him closely and subconsciously perhaps noted what shortcomings the lad had.

Later Hug mentioned Beall's name and Howley permitted himself to be talked into taking Beall.

Huggins had great hopes for the young man when he joined the Yanks permanently two years ago. But the young man wasn't ready to deliver. Got credit for winning one lone game.

Last year, with his old timers wobbling at times, Huggins gave Beall his chance. The young man was schoved into a total of 20 games but the best he could do was to win two games and lose four. Not much there on which to hold one's hopes.

Howley has had remarkable success in developing young hurlers during his managerial career in the minors. Owen Carroll, Doyle and a couple of other lads with Toronto to last year bespeak his ability. The probabilities are that he feels he can turn Beall into a good pitcher. At least he remembers the latter's weaknesses—the few he had—while with Rochester and figures that if these are still with Beall they alone are responsible for his failure to come through.

Just what success Howley has may furnish another interesting item along about August 1.

Kenesaw Yurps For Showdown

"Anonymous" Official Excites Baseball's "Czar"

CHICAGO, Jan. 15. (AP)—A showdown involving the status of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker was demanded tonight by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, of President Ban Johnson of the American league and the American league club owners.

Landis requested President Johnson and the club owners to meet him at the Congress hotel here, January 24, "for the purpose of ascertaining what basis, if any, there is" for the publication of a story here last Thursday relative to the former leaders of the Tigers and Cleveland Indians.

Yes, Yes

The story, credited to an unnamed American league official, said that neither Speaker nor Cobb ever again would play ball or manage an American league club.

The commissioner's request to Johnson followed a conference Landis held here today with Judge J. O. Murfin of Detroit, counsel for Cobb in his fight for vindication of charges that he was involved with Speaker in a conspiracy to "fix" a Detroit-Cleveland series of games in 1919 to clean up a betting coup.

Landis invited Murfin and W. H. Boyd of Cleveland, an attorney representing Speaker, to attend the meeting.

Secret Session

The commissioner's communication to Johnson and the club owners revealed that a secret meeting of the board of directors of the American league had been held in Chicago on September 9, at which time all the evidence in regard to Cobb and Speaker had been turned over to Landis by President Ban Johnson.

Both Speaker and Cobb resigned their managerial berths shortly after the close of the 1926 season, and a few weeks later clouds of suspicion enveloped them as a result of the letters Dutch Leonard, former Tiger pitcher, turned over to the American league for a sum reported to be $20,000.

Just Who Started This Catalina Swim Thing Anyhow?

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 15. (AP)—To two men, Squire F. Duree, superintendent of recreation here, and Harold Williams, political writer for the Long Beach Press-Telegram, goes the credit for originating the idea of the Catalina channel swim. Williams evolved the idea in the summer of 1926 after Gertrude Ederle had made her unsuccessful attempt to swim the English channel. He suggested to Squire Duree that the strip of water between Long Beach and Catalina would make an ideal test for the prowess of all of the great swimmers of the world.

They decided that William Wrigley, Catalina island magnate, was the proper man to approach in this connection. Duree saw Wrigley and outlined the proposal. Wrigley immediately seized upon the idea and developed it in such a manner that today's world ocean marathon is the result.

CHRISTY PENALIZED

Notre Dame Football Star Under Suspension.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 15. (AP)—A trip home to see his folks at Port Arthur, Texas, instead of returning east from the Pacific coast with the rest of the Notre Dame team left Christy Flanagan, star halfback, under suspension from school today.

He is working in Gary, it is understood, but plans to return to school in February for the second semester. Next fall would be his last year of football at Notre Dame and unless he returns next month he automatically would be barred from football, the suspension order stated.

WHEN PAOLINO MET TARTAR.

"Basque Woodchopper" Jumps Wrong Man in One M. Conte.

Paolino, the "Basque Woodchopper," boxing in Havana, Cuba, was criticized by one Pepe Conte, a spectator. Paolino hopped over the ropes to sock his critic. Pepe produced a gun from under his coat tails, and Paolino hopped nimbly back again.

If the writer had been there he could have told Paolino that he was making a bad match. Knew Pepe years ago. When Pepe was 14 he was a mounted Insurgent fighting under Gomez, and in those days Pepe thought no more of potting a well armed Spanish soldier than of cutting a stalk of sugar cane to chew on. The "Tiger of the Pyrenees" would have been pie for Pepe.

NAVY TO TEST NEW SHELL.

The oarsmen at the U. S. navy academy will test out a new type of eight-oared shell next season. It is being built at the navy yards in Philadelphia of duraluminum, the same material used in the frame work of airships. The shell will weight 175 to 200 pounds as compared to the usual cedar craft of 300 pounds.

THE OLD SPIRIT

Tilden Won't Turn Pro Till American Cops World Amateur Title

Big Bill Tilden never was extremely popular as a tennis champion, although everybody marvelled at his skill. It is Bill Tilden, growing beyond the best age for competition, beaten for the singles championship he's held six years without a close rival, who has become something of a hero.

Bill Tilden was offered $100,000 by C. C. Pyle, to join the Lengien troupe and travel around the world. The hundred thousand was a guarantee—percentages to follow a successful tour.

He said he will not think of turning professional until the national title is again held by an American. Big is about to leave for Europe to engage La Coste, Borotra and the other French stars at the Riviera, and expects to get back into the invincible playing form he showed through his championship years. Perhaps Mr. Pyle can talk to William after Big Bill recovers the championship. But that's neither here nor there. Big Bill may be just as fond of his amateur standing next winter as he is now.

SWOFFORD TRIES OUT WITH PANTHERS THIS SUMMER.

Don Swofford, whose home is in Weatherford, Texas, captain of the 1927 University of Missouri baseball team, will be given a tryout with the Fort Worth club of the Texas league next summer. Swofford is an infielder, bats and throws right-handed. He was the leading batter of the Tigers last season.

RACE CAR WILL PASS BULLET

British Marvel Car Will Do 200 Miles Hour

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Jan. 15. (AP)—Treadless tires, tests here indicate, will be used on the great $100,000 automobile built by British manufacturers with the hope of doing 200 miles an hour and thus capturing the speed records now held in the United States.

Newspapermen and others stood with eyes glued to peep holes yesterday while tires were tested at various speeds in an experimental shed here. Tires of plain rubber without treads successfully withstood the required speed of 200 miles an hour without overheating. The treading of ordinary tires, however, was stripped off with a report like an explosion before reaching that speed and flung red hot through the door of the shed.

The car, at racing car which it is planned to send to the United States for a speed test on some Florida beach, is of an entirely new type. Shaped like a sea sled and fitted with tire enclosures to cut down wind pressure it is 22 feet long, six feet wide and weighs 7,056 pounds. Its two motors develop 1,000 horse power, consuming 4 1-2 gallons of fuel a minute.

It was manufactured by the Sunbeam Motor Car Company, Ltd., in collaboration with three other tire, gasoline and oil firms from designs by Louis A. Contalen.

HORSE HIS NAMESAKE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Colonel J. W. Zevely, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair and namesake of the race horse Zev, has been taken to Johns Hopkins hospital in a serious condition.

TEX AND JACK MAKE A DEAL

And Delaney Will Go Into "Heavy" Eliminations

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Tex Rickard and Jack Delaney virtually have come to an agreement under which the world's light heavyweight champion will take part in the promoters' heavyweight elimination tournament for selection of Gene Tunney's next opponent.

Pete Reilly, manager of the Bridgeport, Conn., star, admitted today that only a few minor details need to be ironed out before the final signing. After a three-hour conference betwen manager and promoter word came from Madison Square Garden that Rickard would announce an agreement with Delaney within a few days.

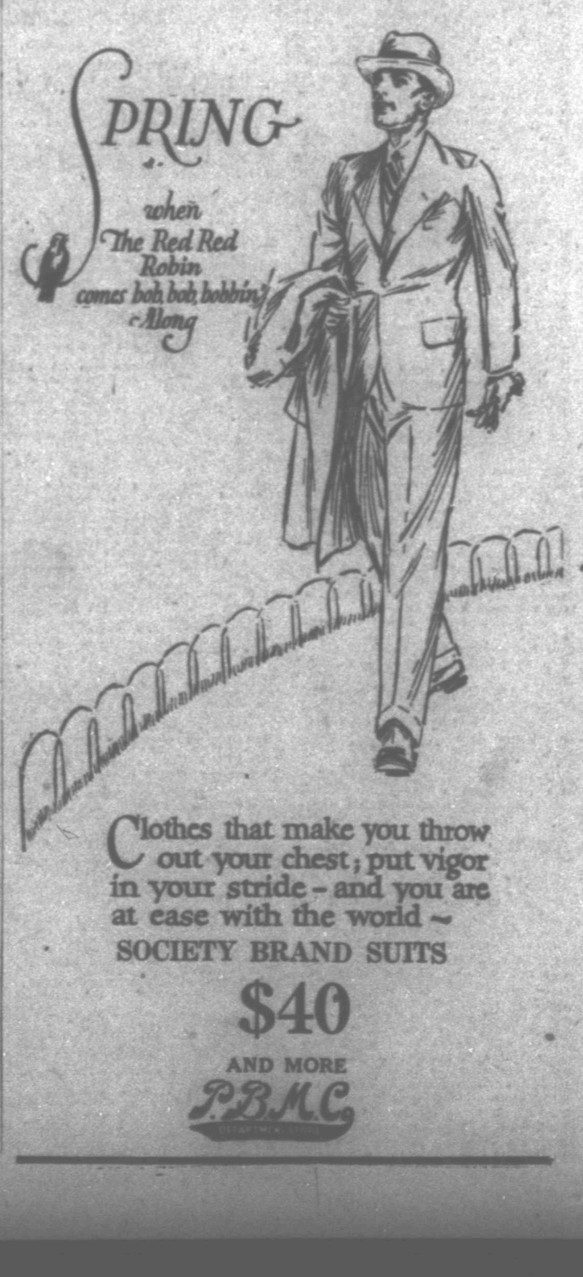

Present plans call for the light heavyweight champion to fight the winner of a match between Paolino Uscudun, Spanish entry, and Knute Hansen, on Feb. 7.

Speaking of razzing the razzers, The Fourth Estate, one of newsdom's journals, has quite a caustic few to aver anent Ken, the ballyhoo boy, and his ball "scandal." We've had our suspicions:

A press agent has fouled his nest. The vaudevillian judge seems to be the only citizen in America who doesn't know that when he became organized baseball's hired man, he was not hired for any judicial ability. It was his front page ability which earned him a salary under the new name for press agent—"High Commissioner"—which is just another alias for "Counsel of Public Relations."

He had plastered a fine on the Standard Oil company of $25,000,000 which he knew wouldn't stick, but it was good front page stuff. Then came the Black Sox scandal and baseball needed a press agent, not an arbiter, and the judge got the job. He could stand in front of the main tent without falling down and he had a deep voice. That was what baseball needed just then and that was what the judge had. He was already a baseball fan and why not? Federal judges got passes to both Chicago parks and on a federal judge's pay, free amusement is better than none. Now he selects that season of the year when an astute press agent knows that news slows up and that day of the week when news editors need news and throws his little bottle of vitrol.

At Christmas time when man's hearts are supposed to mellow and even the suspect is granted a greater compassion this high executioner celebrated the birthday season of the author of the Golden Rule by the parade of evidence that a township justice of the peace presented to office from a livery stable would have scorned to dignity by giving a hearing. Page one beckoned and who can say that Landis would fail to answer such a summons.

To make red fire for a holiday he took the hard earned reputations of veterans of baseball, idols of American youth and threw them into the flames of vanity.

MUST BE LEFT-HANDED

Doc Landon's sports emporium should realize a handsome revenue from the sale of shotgun shells, if there is any veracity to statement made by Banker Bob Mathis, the noon hunter who in season goes ducking, also. J. E. Hall earns the crocheted hip boots as a marksman, according to Bubbling Bob. Forty-three times is he charged with having fired away without so much as ruffling the down of feathered fowl. That's almost as ineffective as Hugh Cotner, the twilight loop magistrate, throwing rocks at rabbits. Hall is said finally to have decided the gun barrel was bent. Plenty business for Doc.

* * *

The new fedora Charley McCutchen gave me a couple weeks ago and for which McGuire worked so much hokum, is holding its shape a great deal better since being rained on during the last liquid spell.

* * *

THOSE FEET

But the percentage is against Charley's prize crown piece as long as we, in duty bound, continue to scribble reports of frothing femininity's pursuits in the women's basket league. For instance, a discussion of feet, or rather the size of shoes worn by these feet, carried in this col not long ago relative to Spragins' Kilowatts almost proved disastrous to the head adornment. It seems the coy cagers are rather touchy as regards comment on their pedal extremities. To allude to the situation of a young lady not being able to don smaller than a five and a half shoe apparently is not accepted as very good form or something of other, for hardly had we dropped in for a palaver with Spragins before we discovered we had invaded a veritable hornets' nest. One brown-eyed, freckled flap up and stepped on my toes, wagged a finger under my nose and erupted with a stream of frenzied denouncement of malicious male who would "talk so undecently about a girl's foot." As I began to retreat I dropped the hat, but pivoted and grabbed it up just in time to keep a pair of SIX and a HALF size feet from jumping on it. Many more narrow squeaks like that and Charley's hat is liable to succumb.

* * *

TOO MUCH REFEREE

Preston Beck, the Landon-Hill basketballer, wrote a new rule into the book of cage officiating the other night at Iowa Park. Pres was refereeing. I had run over to the Park to sign up a brace of ball players for Chubby Neal who that night was busy in Clark. Hub Clothiers were playing the Hawks. I'd asked Beck to hold up long enough to give me chance to copy box score results of a game played a few minutes earlier but he rushed matters on and left me checking one game while the other was in progress. I chirped at him hardly above a whisper: "Come on, give me a chance, Beck." Hawk player was shooting at a foul. Wham! "Shoot another," ordered Beck. "Hey!" I yelled. "Take another one," said Beck to the player. "What's the matter?" I yelped. "Shut up. Shoot another," monotoned the noble arbiter. And the son-of-a-gun gave the Hawks four free throws at the basket just because unassuming sports writer had talked while a game was in progress.

Beck afterward said he thought it was Fritz Taylor, one of the Hub players sitting on the sideline, giving him the raza. When told Frits hadn't done anything, he replied: "Well, he sat over there laughing."

* * *

And another quirk in the cage world. Frank Ramsey coaches the Conocos while Mrs. Frank is a player with the Electrics, arch rivals of the feminine ollers. More trouble for father.

Hub Clothiers To Play Byers Five

Hub Clothiers trek to Byers on Monday night for a practice battle with Joe Wright's gang on a concrete court. The Clothiers aren't expected to exert themselves any too much. Might get hurt on the pavement and that would handicap them in their Commercial league game Tuesday night against Panhandle. The Hubbers expect to turn back Tyson's gang.

The probable starters Monday as announced by Manager Mike Goldstucker are Robertson and Janeway, forwards; Hund, center; Goldstucker and Cohen, guards.

PACK GRIDDERS RALLY AROUND FESTIVE BOARD

Doc Urges Closer Athletic Relation Between City Schools

By TOM TRULY

Wichita Falls High school gridiron heroes, the Coyotes of 1926, were fittingly honored in a banquet at the Wichita club last night. The stalwart shoatskin battlers heard their record praised by leaders in the business and professional ranks of the city as well as by their coach and instructors.

Coach Bud McCallum came in for his part of the laurels also and was presented with a silver statuette of a football player executing a punt, by the squad. Dr. Allan P. Terrell was toastmaster at the festive ceremonies as he has been for years. Between introduction of speakers, "Doc," as the football players call him, had many potent statements to make.

Immediately following the dinner, the letter men of the team retired and elected Ray Mitchell, fleet halfback, as the 1927 captain, after which a dance climaxed the evening.

The first speaker introduced by Dr. Terrell was the winsome queen of Wichita Falls high school, Miss Cliffine Butler, who told how it feels to be a queen.

Cantwell Has Good Word

Dr. J. W. Cantwell in a brief talk expressed the appreciation of the faculty of the fine team of 1926 and stressed the clean sportsmanship displayed by the Coyotes throughout the season. "I enjoyed football more this year than I ever have before," Dr. Cantwell said. The team this year came more nearly to being a team of 11 men, each able and willing to play his part, than it has previously, the school superintendent declared.

A. K. Preseon, assistant principal, S. H. Rider, principal, and Judge W. B. Chauncey of the school board spoke. Horace Robbins brought greeting from the Rotary club and lauded the Coyote sportsmanship.

Doc Given Pencil

Dr. Terrell was presented with a gold pencil by Phillip Pink on behalf of the Coyote squad in appreciation of his faithful services to the boys during the season.

Coyal Frances, Ray Mitchell, B. D. Ewing, whom Dr. Terrell introduced as the red-headed firecracker; Capt. Wilkes Dobson and Marconi Hobbs of the 1926 team made short talks.

Coach McCallum, in a talk following the presentation of the statuette, thanked the various groups and individuals who lent their whole-hearted support to the squad during the season and especially thanked Dr. Terrell and sports editors of the Times and the Record News, Al Parker and Blondy Cross, respectively.

Among his remarks Dr. Terrell broached the subject, or question, "Why don't more members of the high school teams who graduate enter the junior college?" He gave as his opinion that if the two junior high schools, the high school and the junior college were brought closer together in athletic training it would practically assure championship teams in each institution.

Dan Says Whippets Fairest of Fair In Fem Basket Loop

By BLONDY CROSS.

"The Whippets may not be the best team in the league but I know they'll be the best coached team," confided C. T. Boone, otherwise known as Dan'l, in exclusive interview Saturday. Boone's sponsoring the Whippet's girls' basketball entry in the women's city league, through the Willys-Knight-Whippet company.

And then Dan'l ris up and chortled: "I think they'll be the best looking team, too. If I do admit it myself I'm some little picker when it comes down to recognising feminine pulchritude. And with the best-looking gang and the best coaches I'm willing to sit back and let the rest attend to itself."

Chubby Neal, Dummy Deems and John Clary are the Whippet mentors. Perhaps somebody can challenge Dan'l's assertion they're the best coaches. The writer has his doubts himself about the tutoring ability of Jawn, Chubby and Deems. But when it comes down to figuring how fair the Whippets may or may not be—well, this writer out of self defense comments neither way.

Neal announced last night that he had signed a couple of fair ones in Iowa Park to join the squad at next practice. The recruits are Misses Vivian (Shorty) Smith and Ruby Holcomb. Shorty's a demon guard and Ruby's a Dead-Eye Dick at forward. They're a couple of midgets, speedy and hard-workers.

Panhandle Noses Gulf Producers

Tyson's Panhandle crew took a nip-and-tuck melee from Gulf Producers of Holliday Saturday night on the Masket court, 24 to 21.

Rawls of the Panhandle led the attack with six field goals. Dray of Gulf sank five from the floor and one free pitch.

The gym was so cold the players couldn't stage the best of a game.

CARLIN AND GRIP ON DECK FOR RETURN GO WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Johnny Yaps For Revenge Chance, Charging Charles With Biting, Butting and Slugging In Last Week's Melee

THE CARD

Charley Grip, Buffalo, versus Johnny Carlin, Chicago. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, versus Billy Londos, Chicago. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Time: 8:15 Wednesday night.

Place: Palace theater.

Both the boisterous Mr. Grip and the careless Mr. Carlin who unautiously catapulted himself into a body-slam trap last week at the Palace in anxiety to put the quick-finishing touches on the Buffalo bullet-head were said yesterday to be on deck and rearing for action.

Carnivorous Charley, they chirp, endeavored to chew a chunk out of Johnny's leg in that hurricane wrangle when Johnny clamped on a heavy head scissors. And Chunk 'Em Charley is charged with slugging and butting to save his skin from a ruthless but comparatively clean-performing foe. So Carlin, cheated of victory by an inadvertant slip of the toe and lax refereeing, if any, has been re-matched for another shot at Grip with another arbiter in the ring.

Carlin ached and moaned after the battle about how he could have beat the Lithuanian if he just hadn't made that one mis-step or if the referee hadn't allowed Charley to foul him so flagrantly. Finally he cried himself into another bout with the explosive one. So there you are. John tackles Charles again next Wednesday. If you don't like it maybe you can get Don Wofford to put on a prize fight and go to that instead.

Yaqui Joe, the Indian favorite, has been matched with Billy Londos instead of Jack Gorman as previously announced, Matchmaker A. B. Ross coming along at the eleventh hour again with another substitution.

The Indian, Ross declared, did a little bit of crying on his own hook, pleading for a tilt with the Greek in place of Jack. Londos beat Joe last week in San Angelo and Matty Matsuda's protege has been yelping for a return match since.

O'DONOHOE TO HEAD GOLFERS

Mac and Ruehl Remain In Office at Club

John F. O'Donohoe, prominent oil man and ardent sportsman, was chosen president of the Country club Saturday night in board of directors' session. O'Donohoe succeeds Fred T. Couper, club executive through 1925 and 1926. C. E. McCutchen, vice-president in 1926, and H. L. Ruehl, secretary last year, also were re-elected to the same offices for 1927.

SOX EXCHANGE TWO FOR PECK

Senators Receive Thurston And Mangum

CHICAGO, Jan. 15. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox tonight completed a second major baseball deal within two days in an effort to bolster the club for the 1927 pennant race.

The Sox acquired Roger Peckinpaugh of the Washington club, trading Hollis Thurston and Leo Mangum, pitchers. Peckinpaugh, a veteran infielder, was out of the game much of last season, but was named as the most valuable player to his club in the league in 1925.

Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox, said Peckinpaugh would play shortstop.

Joe Dundee Signs To Tackle Walker

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Joe Dundee, Baltimore boxer, who staged a smashing comeback last night to outpoint Eddie Roberts, the "Tacoma terror," was signed today to fight Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, in a title bout at Madison Square garden some time in March.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.(AP)—His determination announced to go to Washington the first of next week to face the senate with a demand that it seat him before questioning his right to wear the toga, Frank L. ## DUNDEE FILES TITLE CLAIM

He Wants Chance to Cop Welter Crown

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore today renewed his challenge for the welterweight title in the afterglow of a smashing triumph over Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash.

Emerging from the eclipse of a one-round knockout defeat at the hands of Roberts six weeks ago, Dundee Friday night pounded out a 10-round decision over his erstwhile conqueror before a record Madison Square garden throng of more than 13,000. Eight of the 10 rounds were credited to the eastern fighter, but in the two which went to the account of the far west entry Roberts packed enough terrific hitting to convince New York critics that his initial victory over Dundee last December 4 was no "fluke."

With a pile driving "one-two—" to the chin Roberts floored Dundee in the fourth round for a count of eight and then hammered the Baltimore fighter all over the ring for the remainder of the round. But Dundee's pluck and stamina carried him through the storm which overlapped the fifth round.

In these two sessions Roberts fought himself out trying to duplicate his knockout triumph. During the remainder of the battle he was out boxed and out smarted by the Baltimorean who cut his rival about the nose and mouth and had him reeling near the end of the contest. The bell apparently saved the Tacoma fighter from a knockout in the eighth.

PONIES KICK BRUINS

WACO, Jan. 15. (AP)—The S. M. U. Mustangs climbed to the .500 per cent mark in the conference basketball race, by defeating Baylor, 28 to 27. Coach St. Clair brought a team to Waco which did everything that championship basketball team should do, and they did it exceptionally well at the expense of an outplayed, but ever-fighting Baylor crew, which also showed marked improvement over its work of a week ago. The Ponies showed remarkable basketball technique in passing, and in the prime requisite of every basketball team, that little matter of accuracy in tossing the ball into the basket, the Ponies measured up to championship specifications.

Pickel Beats Christians, 23-22, In Extra Period

FORT WORTH, Jan. 15. (AP)—By sinking a free throw in the extra period of play, Tom Pickel gave Arkansas university a 23 to 22 victory over Texas Christian university Saturday night in a close fought basketball game. The victory gave the scarjet Razorbacks a clean sweep of the two-game series and perched them on top of the Southwest conference standing with four victories and no defeats.

Captain Frank Cantelmi of the Purple Frogs tied the score at 22-all with a beautiful line-line toss one minute before the regular 40 minutes of play was up. In the extra period it was against him the foul was called that gave Pickel the free throw that won the game.

ATZ-CATS TO PLAY BIG ONES

Nine Games With Club Of Major Loops Signed

FORT WORTH, Jan. 15. (AP)—Nine games with major league clubs are included in the schedule of spring training games announced Saturday for the Fort Worth baseball club. Three American league clubs, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis, one National league club, Pittsburgh, will visit Panther park in March and April.

The Cats will report for training early in March and the first games will be played here March 12 and 13, with the Oklahoma City club of the Western league.

The Chicago White Sox, training in Shreveport, will invade Panther park for games on March 18, 19 and 20. St. Paul, the only American association team scheduled so far to meet the Panthers in the spring, will be here March 26 and 27.

April 1 sees the Detroit Tigers in Fort Worth to open a three-day stay. They are followed by the St. Louis Browns on April 4 and 5. Then come the Pirates on April 6.

The last of the exhibition games will be the annual pre-season two game series with Dallas on April 9 and 10. One of these games will be played in Fort Worth, the other in Dallas.

The Cats spring training card is not complete, Paul LaGrave, business manager said as he announced the schedule. Several other games probably will be added between now and March 1.

CHAPTER II

As for transportation in the desert there's nothing quite like the camel for dependability.

And as for transportation in Wichita Falls there's nothing quite like the automobile,

And as for the most satisfactory gasoline for your car there are none superior and few equal to MOTOR ESSENCE.

MOTOR ESSENCE is the product of a home institution, the phenominal growth of which is indicative of the fact that that we are producing a superior motor fuel. It is of standard, uniform quality, day in and day out, and is establishing a remarkable reputation upon its own merits rather than through high-powered, unfounded advertising assertions.

MOTOR ESSENCE is colorless and clear of artificial coloring so commonly used to camouflage disastrous impurities—in every sense of the word, Motor Essence is deserving of its slogan "THE PERFECT GASOLINE." Perfect because it gives you quick starting in cold weather, eliminates carbon knocks, gives your motor a remarkably noticeable increase of speed and power, added mileage and a general saving on repairs caused from impure gasoline. Let your next tank full of gasoline be "THE PERFECT GASOLINE." Ask the motorist who uses it.

RECORD NEWS AWARDS TITLE CUP TO CHAMP

Four Teams Prepared For Gong With Week Yet To Practice

Organization of Wichita Falls' women's basketball league which, incidentally, is sponsored by The Record News, was perfected and schedule adopted in session of team managers and coaches the past week.

The league is a four-team loop, consisting of clubs representing the Continental Oil company, P. B. M. department store, the Willys-Knight-Whippet company and the Electric company. The Continental team has been named the Conocos and the automobile concern's sextet is to be called the Whippets.

The schedule is to cover a nine-week span, all four teams swinging into action on Wednesday of each week. The opening double-header is carded for January 26 on the Junior college court. The race is to close March 23. A reservation was made in the drawing of the schedule, however, to effect that at the fifth week if a majority of the teams at that time so desire, the season will be split and one more week of play be added.

One Rule Change

The team which wins the championship is to be awarded by The Record News a handsome loving cup on which are to be inscribed the team's name and names of its players.

The league is to play under Spalding girls' basketball rules, two-zone court, with one exception and that is the two centers of each club will be permitted to rove the court at will and be eligible at all times to sharpshoot for baskets.

The league intends to function with a minimum number of officials. Team managers and representatives from each team are chosen to an advisory board. Angus Parker, sports editor of the Daily Times, and L. O. (Doc) Landon, the sporting goods man, have been placed on the arbitration board. Leon Horn of the Electric company serves as secretary-treasurer and The Record News sports editor serves as league manager.

The Coaches

Charley Sprague is manager and coach of the Electrics. John Barnard is manager and coach of the P. B. M. squad. Frank Ramsey handles the business and coaching end of the Conocos. Clarence (Chubby) Neal and John Clary coach the Whippets. C. T. (Dan) Boone of the Willys-Knight-Whippet company is Whippet manager.

The four teams have been practicing assiduously the past several weeks and several have indulged in a number of practice games. Each club is rounding into shape rapidly and all are confident of copping the laurels.

FAITH IN COBB

Newspaper Runs Ad Endorsing Player.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Advertising columns of metropolitan dailies served an unusual role today as the medium of an expression of confidence in baseball as "a clean and splendid sport" and in Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb as "good men who served it long and well."

Referring to the two great outfielders who recently withdrew from the game, Paul Block, publisher of the Newark Star Eagle of Newark, N. J., expressed the view in his advertisement that "no men who have done for baseball what these men have done can ever in justice be driven from the game, condemned and ruined, for any careless judgment or thoughtless indiscretion.

"Nobody who knows them believes they are dishonest men or that they ever 'threw' any ball games," reads the advertisement in referring to charges of Dutch Leonard that Cobb and Speaker conspired to "do in" a contest in 1919.

HORNSBY FIRST BATTING KING WITH GIANTS SINCE DOYLE

McGraw Was Supposed to Get Babe Ruth — Helped Hornsby in Last World Series

By ROY GROVE
(EFS Sports Editor)

"I WAITED a long time to get Rogers Hornsby and still it is a gamble whether he will be able to play the kind of ball his reputation is based on," says John McGraw.

McGraw has been the boss of the Giants for a great number of years, since 1902, to be exact, and in that time although he has developed some wonderful world champions, John has not had but one man who could lead the league in batting.

Hornsby is the first batting king to put on a Giant uniform since the days of Larry Doyle. Larry's best year, at bat, was in 1912, when he amassed a hitting average of .341, and that was the days before the lively ball, it must be remembered.

However, .341 was not good enough to lead the National league even then, for Old Honus Wagner was knocking them far and wide and Doyle had to be content with a runner-up position.

It was in 1915 that Larry Doyle won the batting crown of the National league, nosing out Fred Luderus, of the Phillies, which took the title with the lowest batting average in the history of that outfit.

McGraw is very happy over the trade which brought Hornsby to the Giants. He has been trying for years to produce a Babe Ruth for his outfit.

* * *

HE is now paying Hornsby $40,000 a year, which is the highest salary ever paid a ball player in the National league. It was McGraw who startled the baseball world many years ago when he paid the sensational sum of $11,000 for Rube Marquard of the Indianapolis club.

The sum McGraw pays today is $10,000 better than Rogers was receiving when he piloted the St. Louis Cardinals to a world's championship. Hornsby wanted $50,000 a year to stay with the Cardinals, which instigated the trade.

* * *

"I MUST admit it was a great trade for us when we took Hornsby," says John. "There was a time when I thought I could have gotten hold of Babe Ruth. It was an old understanding I had with Jack Dunn, that when he was to let Ruth out, he would come to me.

"Breadon made a good bid when he took Frankie Frisch. At first he wanted Bill Terry along with Frisch, then Jack Scott, but finally came to a compromise when he accepted Jimmy Ring."

Frisch is as wonderful a ball player as Hornsby and can play a great game when he wants to get into the swing. He should develop sensationally with the Cardinals. You have all seen Frisch work in past world's series and know his stuff. Hornsby is a chance with the Giants. He worked in a brace during the last world's series. Whether his sprain will improve can only be decided during the coming season."

Hornsby and McGraw will make a real pennant winning combination. Rogers will captain the team.

McGraw was in the dugout with the Cardinal pilot during the last three games of the last 1926 world's series and advised him many times during the progress of the game.

DOUBLE THREE-WAY DEADLOCK FALLS IN CITY LOOP TUESDAY

Beck of Landon-Hill Leads Individual Point-Getters With Haney Second; Guards Best Team Total

Three teams remain tied for top honors and three stick in a deadlock for the cellar championship as Commercial league goalers turn in their third week of competition Tuesday night at the Junior college, Panhandle, Landon-Hill and the Guardsmen each hold 1000 per cent with two games won and none lost.

Draughon, Continental and Hub Clothiers have not broken into the victory column yet but two of these teams stand in a fair way of coming through this week. Draughon scraps it out with Continental. This game eliminates further possibility of a tie. Hub has been training diligently and expects to upset Panhandle. Tyson's men, however, have been hitting the ball just as hard. The Guardsmen-Landon-Hill melee is expected to be a riotous affair.

Preston Beck, Landon-Hill forward, is league high point man with 21 tallies, 20 of which were tabulated from the field. Haney, Panhandle center, runs him second with 20 points, sinking ten field baskets. Allen of Landon-Hill has scored 13 points and Thurman of the Hubbers has come through for the same total.

The heavy scoring has been done by the Guardsmen with three of their stars hitting the hoop almost at will. The Guards' team total for the two games is 66. The sporting goods men are second with 55 and Panhandle tags along with a team total of 57. Hogg, Guardsman, who in reality is a guard, if you get what we mean, has scored 17 points. Hill of the same outfit has made 15 and Meadows 12.

Wolford of Panhandle has sunk five field goals and a couple of free throws for 12 points and Rawls of the same club has scored ten points. Jones of Draughon has come through for a quintet of fled hoopers.

TUESDAY'S SCHEDULE

Continental vs. Draughon.
Panhandle vs. Hub Clothiers.
Guardsmen vs. Landon-Hill.

STANDINGS

| | W. | L. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Landon-Hill | 2 | 0 | 1,000 |
| Panhandle | 2 | 0 | 1,000 |
| Guardsmen | 2 | 0 | 1,000 |
| Hub Clothiers | 0 | 2 | .000 |
| Draughon | 0 | 2 | .000 |

Moriarty Writes Salve For Umphs

Tiger Leader Says Arbiters Have Sense of Humor

By GEORGE MORIARTY
Manager Detroit Tigers

Am making herewith, a denial, in justice to the umpiring fraternity of which I was a member until recently. I have been misquoted a few times by the alleged remark that I am already prepared with whom I may have a difference of opinion regarding close decisions. The following has been credited to me: "I know how rotten you fellows guess, because I was one of you myself, myself."

This is, initself, more than a slight inadvertence. The quotation herein mentioned was a bit of repartee published in connection with a cartoon which pictured yours truly in a baseball uniform while supposedly engaged in aheated debate with an umpire. Please do not get the impression that I am denouncing the cartoon; it was clever, indeed, and as a reader I enjoyed the accompanying quip.

However, I merely want to correct the impression that I am the author of the above quotation upon the umpires. As a class, umpires are as humorous and jovial as men of any other profession, and the the majority of them could doubtless get a good laugh out of the cartoon in question, but they also take their profession seriously. Ten years of umpiring has taught me much; too much to make offensive remarks about it.

I see Wilbert Robinson has intimated that he intends to rebuild the Dodgers with young blood. The passing of Zack Wheat, and Jasques Fournier from the Brooklyn line-up is a sign of his intention. However, in rebuilding a ball club, the main idea seems to be a judicious mixture of veterans and youngsters, rather than the absence of the old-timers and Robinson realizes that necessity as well as any manager in the game.

The veterans of a ball club have a steadying influence on the rookies and it is by their deeds, and from their lips, that the youngsters learn the finer points of the game. Look at the rosters of a championship club and you will see that severdl veterans play their parts in steering the ship over the rough waters. It will ever be thus where the league limit permits 25 men.

Bible's Cagers Prepare For Busy Schedule

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 15. (AP)—Home from a visit to Houston where they met the Rice Owls the Texas A. and M. basketball squad will start Monday preparing for a crucial road trip, Coach Dana Bible said Saturday. On the coming excursion the Aggies will meet the Arkansas Razorbacks twice, and also encounter the S. M. U. Mustangs Wednesday at Dallas. The Arkansas dates are January 21 and 22, and Mustangs January 24.

WALTER MAY BEALLRIGHT UNDER DAN'S CARE

Howley "Remembers" And He's McCoy At Tutoring Youngsters

A baseball manager, to be a good manager, must have a bit of Indian in his makeup.

And never forget.

His memory must be as long as the list of players he has seen in action during his career.

Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, "remembered" when he went atrading this winter, to build up his team for the coming squabble.

The Yankees were gunning for pitching and fielding strength. They wanted a young hurler. They wanted an outfielder, possibly to take Bob Meusel's place. At least to be available for utility purpose.

Howley offered them what they wanted in the shape of Joe Giard, young flinger, and Cedric Durst, outfielder and first baseman of parts. The Yankees had let Giard go to the Browns years ago, with Milton Gaston and Joe Bush for Urban Shocker. At that time Huggins was willing to part with anything but his real estate holdings in St. Petersburg and other parts of Florida for Shocker whom he believed could hurl the Yankees to a pennant. Shocker, incidentally, won but 12 games and lost the same number. Meanwhile Giard, under the tutoring of Geo. Sisler and Jimmy Austin, showed considerable promise and what is more to the point, won 10 games while losing but five.

Last year Shocker delivered for Huggins, winning 19 games losing but 11. Giard meanwhile, won but three and lost 10 games. This was due in a measure, to his work as relief pitcher. Huggins felt as though the young man had a future. He was glad to get him, with Durst, when the two bosses talked horses.

Howley looked over the Yankee roster and spotted Walter Beall's name but said nothing.

But it so happens that Beall was pitching for Rochester in the International league in 1924, while Howley was managing the Toronto team. Howley remembered not only that Beall hung up a nice string of wins that year but that he showed general ability that spoke well. Howley watched him closely and subconsciously perhaps noted what shortcomings the lad had.

Later Hug mentioned Beall's name and Howley permitted himself to be talked into taking Beall.

Huggins had great hopes for the young man when he joined the Yanks permanently two years ago. But the young man wasn't ready to deliver. Got credit for winning one lone game.

Last year, with his old timers wobbling at times, Huggins gave Beall his chance. The young man was shoved into a total of 20 games but the best he could do was to win two games and lose four. Not much there on which to hold one's hopes.

Howley has had remarkable success in developing young hurlers during his managerial career in the minors. Owen Carroll, Doyle and a couple of other lads with Toronto to last year beapeak his ability. The probabilities are that he feels he can turn Beall into a good pitcher. At least he remembers the latter's weaknesses—the few he had—while with Rochester and figures that if these are still with Beall they alone are responsible for his failure to come through.

Just what success Howley has may furnish another interesting item along about August 1.

Kenesaw Yurps For Showdown

"Anonymous" Official Excites Baseball's "Czar"

CHICAGO, Jan. 15. (AP)—A showdown involving the status of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker was demanded tonight by Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, of President Ban Johnson of the American league and the American league club owners.

Landis requested President Johnson and the club owners to meet him at the Congress hotel here, January 24, "for the purpose of ascertaining what basis, if any, there is" for the publication of a story here last Thursday relative to the former leaders of the Tigers and Cleveland Indians.

Yes, Yes

The story, credited to an unnamed American league official, said that neither Speaker nor Cobb ever again would play ball or manage an American league club.

The commissioner's request to Johnson followed a conference Landis held here today with Judge J. O. Murfin of Detroit, counsel for Cobb in his fight for vindication of charges that he was involved with Speaker in a conspiracy to "fix" a Detroit-Cleveland series of games in 1919 to clean up a betting coup.

Landis invited Murfin and W. H. Boyd of Cleveland, an attorney representing Speaker, to attend the meeting.

Secret Session

The commissioner's communication to Johnson and the club owners revealed that a secret meeting of the board of directors of the American league had been held in Chicago on September 9, at which time all the evidence in regard to Cobb and Speaker had been turned over to Landis by President Ban Johnson.

Both Speaker and Cobb resigned their managerial berths shortly after the close of the 1926 season, and a few weeks later clouds of suspicion enveloped them as a result of the letters Dutch Leonard, former Tiger pitcher, turned over to the American league for a sum reported to be $20,000.

Just Who Started This Catalina Swim Thing Anyhow?

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 15. (AP)—To two men, Squire F. Duree, superintendent of recreation here, and Harold Williams, political writer for the Long Beach Press-Telegram, goes the credit for originating the idea of the Catalina channel swim. Williams evolved the idea in the summer of 1925 after Gertrude Ederle had made her unsuccessful attempt to swim the English channel. He suggested to Squire Duree that the strip of water between Long Beach and Catalina would make an ideal test for the prowess of all of the great swimmers of the world.

They decided that William Wrigley, Catalina island magnate, was the proper man to approach in this connection. Duree saw Wrigley and outlined the proposal. Wrigley immediately seized upon the idea and developed it in such a manner that today's world ocean marathon is the result.

CHRISTY PENALIZED

Notre Dame Football Star Under Suspension.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 15. (AP)—A trip home to see his folks at Port Arthur, Texas, instead of returning east from the Pacific coast with the rest of the Notre Dame team left Christy Flanagan, star halfback, under suspension from school today.

He is working in Gary, it is understood, but plans to return to school in February for the second semester. Next fall would be his last year of football at Notre Dame and unless he returns next month he automatically would be barred from football, the suspension order stated.

WHEN PAOLINO MET TARTAR.

"Basque Woodchopper" Jumps Wrong Man in One M. Conte.

Paolino, the "Basque Woodchopper," boxing in Havana, Cuba, was criticized by one Pepe Conte, a spectator. Paolino hopped over the ropes to sock his critic. Pepe produced a gun from under his coat tails, and Paolino hopped nimbly back again.

If the writer had been there he could have told Paolino that he was making a bad match. Knew Pepe years ago. When Pepe was 14 he was a mounted Insurgent fighting under Gomez, and in those days Pepe thought no more of potting a well armed Spanish soldier than of cutting a stalk of sugar cane to chew on. The "Tiger of the Pyrenees" would have been pie for Pepe.

NAVY TO TEST NEW SHELL.

The oarsmen at the U. S. navy academy will test out a new type of eight-oared shell next season. It is being built at the navy yards in Philadelphia of duraluminum, the same material used in the frame work of airships. The shell will weight 175 to 200 pounds as compared to the usual cedar craft of 300 pounds.

THE OLD SPIRIT

Tilden Won't Turn Pro Till American Cops World Amateur Title

Big Bill Tilden never was extremely popular as a tennis champion, although everybody marvelled at his skill. It is Bill Tilden, growing beyond the best age for competition, beaten for the singles championship he's held six years without a close rival, who has become something of a hero.

Bill Tilden was offered $100,000 by C. C. Pyle, to join the Lengien troupe and travel around the world. The hundred thousand was a guarantee—percentages to follow a successful tour.

He said he will not think of turning professional until the national title is again held by an American. He is about to leave for Europe to engage La Coste, Borotra and the other French stars at the Riviera, and expects to get back into the invincible playing form he showed through his championship years. Perhaps Mr. Pyle can talk to William after Big Bill recovers the championship. But that's neither here nor there. Big Bill may be just as fond of his amateur standing next winter as he is now.

SWOFFORD TRIES OUT WITH PANTHERS THIS SUMMER.

Don Swofford, whose home is in Weatherford, Texas, captain of the 1927 University of Missouri baseball team, will be given a try-out with the Fort Worth club of the Texas league next summer. Swofford is an infielder, bats and throws right-handed. He was the leading batter of the Tigers last season.

RACE CAR WILL PASS BULLET

British Marvel Car Will Do 200 Miles Hour

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Jan. 15. (AP)—Treadless tires, tests here indicate, will be used on the great $100,000 automobile built by British manufacturers with the hope of doing 200 miles an hour and thus capturing the speed records now held in the United States.

Newspapermen and others stood with eyes glued to peep holes yesterday while tires were tested at various speeds in an experimental shed here. Tires of plain rubber without treads successfully withstood the required speed of 200 miles an hour without overheating. The treading of ordinary tires, however, was stripped off with a report like an explosion before reaching that speed and flung red hot through the door of the shed.

The car, at racing car which it is planned to send to the United States for a speed test on some Florida beach, is of an entirely new type. Shaped like a sea sled and fitted with tire enclosures to cut down wind pressure it is 22 feet long, six feet wide and weighs 7,056 pounds. Its two motors develop 1,000 horse power, consuming 4 1-2 gallons of fuel a minute.

It was manufactured by the Sunbeam Motor Car Company, Ltd., in collaboration with three other tire, gasoline and oil firms from designs by Louis A. Contalen.

HORSE HIS NAMESAKE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15. (AP)—Colonel J. W. Zevely, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair and namesake of the race horse Zev, has been taken to Johns Hopkins hospital in a serious condition.

TEX AND JACK MAKE A DEAL

And Delaney Will Go Into "Heavy" Eliminations

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Tex Rickard and Jack Delaney virtually have come to an agreement under which the world's light heavyweight champion will take part in the promoters' heavyweight elimination tournament for selection of Gene Tunney's next opponent.

Pete Reilly, manager of the Bridgeport, Conn., star, admitted today that only a few minor details need to be ironed out before the final signing. After a three-hour conference betwen manager and promoter word came from Madison Square Garden that Rickard would announce an agreement with Delaney within a few days.

Present plans call for the light heavyweight champion to fight the winner of a match between Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish entry, and Knute Hansen, on Feb. 7.

"RIP" WILL COACH

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 15. (AP)—Warren Collins, pitcher for Detroit, who has coached pitchers for Texas A. and M. baseball teams for several seasons probably will do the same work again next month, Coach Claude Rothgeb said today.

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Cross.

HEH, HEH.

Speaking of ranzing the ranzers, The Fourth Estate, one of newsdom's journals, has quite a caustic few to aver anent Ken, the ballyhoo boy, and his ball "scandal." We've had our suspicions:

A press agent has fouled his nest. The vaudevillian judge seems to be the only citizen in America who doesn't know that when he became organized baseball's hired man, he was not hired for any judicial ability. It was his front page ability which earned him a salary under the new name for press agent—"High Commissioner"—which is just another alibi for "Counsel of Public Relations."

He had plastered a fine on the Standard Oil company of $3,000,000 which he knew wouldn't stick, but it was good front page stuff. Then came the Black Sox scandal and baseball needed a press agent, not an arbiter, and the judge got the job. He could stand in front of the main tent without falling down and he had a deep voice. That was what baseball needed just then and that was what the judge had. Is it any already a baseball fan and why not? Federal judges got passes to both Chicago parks and on a federal judge's pay, free amusement is better than none. Now be selects that season of the year when an astute press agent knows that news slows up and that day of the week when news editors need news and throws his little bottle of vitrol.

At Christmas time when men's hearts are supposed to mellow and even the suspect is granted a greater compassion this high executioner celebrated the birthday season of the author of the Golden Rule by the parade of evidence that a township justice of the peace promoted to office from a livery stable would have scorned to dignify by giving a hearing. Pairs one beckoned and who can say that Landis would fail to answer such a summons.

To make red fire for a holiday he took the hard earned reputations of veterans of baseball, idols of American youth and threw them into the flames of vanity.

MUST BE LEFT-HANDED

Doc Landon's sports emporium should realize a handsome revenue from the sale of shotgun shells, if there is any veracity to statement made by Banker Bob Mathis, the coon hunter who in season goes ducking, also. J. E. Hall earns the crocheted hip boots as a marksman, according to Bubbling Bob. Forty-three times is he charged with having fired away without so much as ruffling the down of feathered fowl. That's almost as ineffective as Hugh Cotner, the twilight loop magistrate, throwing rocks at rabbits. Hall is said finally to have decided the gun barrel was bent. Plenty business for Doc.

* * *

The new fedora Charley McCutchen gave me a couple weeks ago and for which McGuire worked so much hokum, is holding its shape a great deal better since being rained on during the last liquid spell.

* * *

THOSE FEET

But the percentage is against Charley's prize crown piece as long as we, in duty bound, continue to scribble reports of frothing femininity's pursuits in the women's basket league. For instance, a discussion of feet, or rather the size of shoes worn by these feet, carried in this col not long ago relative to Spragins' Kilowatts almost proved disastrous to the head adornment. It seems the coy cagers are rather touchy as regards comment on their pedal extremities. To allude to the situation of a young lady not being able to don a smaller than a five and a half shoe apparently is not accepted as very good form or something or other, for hardly had we dropped in for a palaver with Spragins before we discovered we had invaded a veritable hornets' nest. One brown-eyed, freckled flap up and stepped on my toes, wagged a finger under my nose and erupted with a stream of frenzied denouncement of malicious male who would "talk so undecently about a girl's foot." As I began to retreat I dropped the hat, but pivoted and grabbed it up just in time to keep a pair of SIX and a HALF size feet from jumping on it. Many more narrow squeaks like that and Charley's hat is liable to succumb.

* * *

TOO MUCH REFEREE

Preston Beck, the Landon-Hill basketballer, wrote a new rule into the book of cage officiating the other night at Iowa Park. Pres was refereeing. I had run over to the Park to sign up a brace of ball players for Chubby Neal who that night was busy in Clark. Hub Clothiers were playing the Hawks. I'd asked Beck to hold up long enough to give me chance to copy box score results of a game played a few minutes earlier but he rushed matters on and left me checking one game while the other was in progress. I chirped at him hardly above a whisper: "Come on, give me a chance, Beck." Hawk player was shooting at a foul. Wham! "Shoot another," ordered Beck. "Hey!" I yelled. "Take another one," said Beck to the player. "What's the matter?" I yelped. "Shut up. Shoot another," monotoned the noble arbiter. And the son-of-a-gun gave the Hawks four free throws at the basket just because unassuming sports writer had talked while a game was in progress.

Beck afterward said he thought it was Fritz Taylor, one of the Hub players sitting on the sideline, giving him the razz. When told Fritz hadn't done anything, he replied: "Well, he sat over there laughing."

* * *

PACK GRIDDERS RALLY AROUND FESTIVE BOARD

Doc Urges Closer Athletic Relation Between City Schools

By TOM TRULY

Wichita Falls High school gridiron heroes, the Coyotes of 1926, were fittingly honored in a banquet at the Wichita club last night. The stalwart shoatskin battlers heard their record praised by leaders in the business and professional ranks of the city as well as by their coach and instructors.

Coach Bud McCallum came in for his part of the laurels also and was presented with a silver statuette of a football player executing a punt, by the squad. Dr. Allan P. Terrell was toastmaster at the festive ceremonies as he has been for years. Between introduction of speakers, "Doc," as the football players call him, had many potent statements to make.

Immediately following the dinner, the letter men of the team retired and elected Ray Mitchell, fleet halfback, as the 1927 captain, after which a dance climaxed the evening.

The first speaker introduced by Dr. Terrell was the winsome queen of Wichita Falls high school, Miss Cliftine Butler, who told how it feels to be a queen.

Cantwell Has Good Word

Dr. J. W. Cantwell in a brief talk expressed the appreciation of the faculty of the fine team of 1926 and stressed the clean sportsmanship displayed by the Coyotes throughout the season. "I enjoyed football more this year than I ever have before," Dr. Cantwell said. The team this year came more nearly to being a team of 11 men, each able and willing to play his part, than it has previously, the school superintendent declared.

A. K. Presson, assistant principal, S. H. Rider, principal, and Judge W. B. Chauncey of the school board spoke. Horace Robbins brought greeting from the Rotary club and lauded the Coyote sportsmanship.

Doc Given Pencil

Dr. Terrell was presented with a gold pencil by Phillip Pink on behalf of the Coyote squad in appreciation of his faithful services to the boys during the season.

Coval Frances, Ray Mitchell, B. D. Ewing, whom Dr. Terrell introduced as the red-headed firecrackers; Capt. Wilkes Dobson and Marconi Hobbs of the 1926 team made short talks.

Coach McCallum, in a talk following the presentation of the statuette, thanked the various groups and individuals who lent their whole-hearted support to the squad during the season and especially thanked Dr. Terrell and sports editors of the Times and the Record News, Al Parker and Blondy Cross, respectively.

Among the remarks Dr. Terrell broached the subject, or question, "Why don't more members of the high school teams who graduate enter the junior college?" He gave as his opinion that if the two junior high schools, the high school and the junior college were brought closer together in athletic training it would practically assure championship teams in each institution.

Dan Says Whippets Fairest of Fair In Fem Basket Loop

By BLONDY CROSS.

"The Whippets may not be the best team in the league but I know they'll be the best coached team," confided C. T. Boone, otherwise known as Dan'l, in exclusive interview Saturday. Boone's sponsoring the Whippet's girls' basketball entry in the women's city league, through the Willys-Knight-Whippet company.

And then Dan'l riz up and chortled: "I think they'll be the best looking team, too. If I do admit it myself I'm some little picker when it comes down to recognizing feminine pulchritude. And with the best-looking gang and the best coaches I'm willing to sit back and let the rest attend to itself."

Chubby Neal, Dummy Deems and John Clary are the Whippet mentors. Perhaps somebody can challenge Dan'l's assertion they're the best coaches. The writer has his doubts himself about the tutoring ability of Jawn, Chubby and Deems. But when it comes down to figuring how fair the Whippets may or may not be—well, this writer out of self defense comments neither way.

Neal announced last night that he had signed a couple of fair ones in Iowa Park to join the squad at next practice. The recruits are Misses Vivian (Shorty) Smith and Ruby Holcomb. Shorty's a demon guard and Ruby's a Dead-Eye Dick at forward. They're a couple of midgets, speedy and hard-workers.

Panhandle Noses Gulf Producers

Tyson's Panhandle crew took a nip-and-tuck melee from Gulf Producers of Holliday Saturday night on the Maskat court, 24 to 21.

Rawls of the Panhandle led the attack with six field goals. Dray of Gulf sank five from the floor and one free pitch.

The gym was so cold the players couldn't stage the best of a game.

Hub Clothiers To Play Byers Five

Hub Clothiers trek to Byers on Monday night for a practice battle with Joe Wright's gang on a concrete court. The Clothiers aren't expected to exert themselves any too much. Might get hurt on the pavement and that would handicap them in their Commercial league game Tuesday night against Panhandle. The Hubbers expect to turn back Tyson's gang.

The probable starters Monday as announced by Manager Mike Goldstucker are Robertson and Janeway, forwards; Hund, center; Goldstucker and Cohen, guards.

CARLIN AND GRIP ON DECK FOR RETURN GO WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Johnny Yaps For Revenge Chance, Charging Charles With Biting, Butting and Slugging In Last Week's Melee

THE CARD

Charley Grip, Buffalo, versus Johnny Carlin, Chicago. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Yaqui Joe, Sonora, versus Billy Londos, Chicago. Welterweights, two falls to a finish.

Time: 8:15 Wednesday night.

Place: Palace theater.

Both the boisterous Mr. Grip and the careless Mr. Carlin who unautiously catapulted himself into a body-slam trap last week at the Palace in anxiety to put the quick-finishing touches on the Buffalo bullet-head were said yesterday to be on deck and rearing for action.

Carnivorous Charley, they chirp, endeavored to chew a chunk out of Johnny's leg in that hurricane wrangle when Johnny clamped on a heavy head scissors. And Chunk 'Em Charley is charged with slugging and butting to save his skin from a ruthless but comparatively clean-performing foe. So Carlin, cheated of victory by an inadvertant slip of the toe and lax refereeing, if any, has been re-matched for another shot at Grip with another arbiter in the ring.

Carlin ached and moaned after the battle about how he could have beat the Lithuanian if he just hadn't made that one mis-step or if the referee hadn't allowed Charley to foul him so flagrantly. Finally he cried himself into another bout with the explosive one. So there you are. John tackles Charles again next Wednesday. If you don't like it maybe you can get Don Wofford to put on a prize fight and go to that instead.

Yaqui Joe, the Indian favorite, has been matched with Billy Londos instead of Jack Gorman as previously announced, Matchmaker A. B. Ross coming along at the eleventh hour again with another substitution.

The Indian, Ross declared, did a little bit of crying on his own hook, pleading for a tilt with the Greek in place of Jack. Londos beat Joe last week in San Angelo and Matty Matsuda's protege has been yelping for a return match since.

DUNDEE FILES TITLE CLAIM

He Wants Chance to Cop Welter Crown

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. (AP)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore today renewed his challenge for the welterweight title in the afterglow of a smashing triumph over Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash.

Emerging from the eclipse of a one-round knockout defeat at the hands of Roberts six weeks ago, Dundee Friday night pounded out a 10-round decision over his erstwhile conqueror before a record Madison Square garden throng of more than 18,000. Eight of the 10 rounds were credited to the eastern fighter, but in the two which went to the account of the far west entry Roberts packed enough terrific hitting to convince New York critics that his initial victory over Dundee last December 4 was no "fluke."

With a pile driving "one-two—" to the chin Roberts floored Dundee in the fourth round for a count of eight and then hammered the Baltimore fighter all over the ring for the remainder of the round. But Dundee's pluck and stamina carried him through the storm which overlapped the fifth round.

In these two sessions Roberts fought himself out trying to duplicate his knockout triumph. During the remainder of the battle he was out boxed and out smarted by the Baltimorean who cut his rival about the nose and mouth and had him reeling near the end of the contest. The bell apparently saved the Tacoma fighter from a knockout in the eighth.

PONIES KICK BRUINS

WACO, Jan. 15. (AP)—The S. M. U. Mustangs climbed to the .500 per cent mark in the conference basketball race, by defeating Baylor, 28 to 27. Coach St. Clair brought a team to Waco which did everything that championship basketball team should do, and they did it exceptionally well at the expense of an outplayed, but ever-fighting Baylor crew, which also showed marked improvement over its work of a week ago. The Ponies showed remarkable basketball technique in passing, and in the prime requisite of every basketball team, that little matter of accuracy in tossing the ball into the basket, the Ponies measured up to championship specifications.

Captain Frank Cantelmi of the Purple Frogs tied the score at 22-all with a beautiful line-line toss one minute before the regular 40 minutes of play was up. In the extra period it was against him the foul was called that gave Pickel the free throw that won the game.

"THE ROMANCE OF TRANSPORTATION"

CHAPTER II

As for transportation in the desert there's nothing quite like the camel for dependability.

And as for transportation in Wichita Falls there's nothing quite like the automobile.

And as for the most satisfactory gasoline for your car there are none superior and few equal to MOTOR ESSENCE.

MOTOR ESSENCE is the product of a home institution, the phenominal growth of which is indicative of the fact that that we are producing a superior motor fuel. It is of standard, uniform quality, day in and day out, and is establishing a remarkable reputation upon its own merits rather than through high-powered, unfounded advertising assertions.

MOTOR ESSENCE is odorless and clear of artificial coloring so commonly used to camouflage disastrous impurities—in every sense of the word, Motor Essence is deserving of its slogan "THE PERFECT GASOLINE." Perfect because it gives you quick starting in cold weather, eliminates carbon knocks, gives your motor a remarkably noticeable increase of speed and power, added mileage and a general saving on repairs caused from impure gasoline. Let your next tank full of gasoline be "THE PERFECT GASOLINE." Ask the motorist who uses it.

TWO OIL WELLS OPEN NEW TERRITORY IN ARCHER AND WICHITA

COLD WEATHER CHECKS WORK

New Wells Completed In Turbeville Pool

By TOM TRULY.
Oil Editor, The Record News.

The blizzard which visited this section Thursday nipped the oil excitement which was plentiful in the first part of the week. The Kisk Oil company well in Archer county and the Bridwell and Mayfield discovery in Wichita county added fresh flavor to the proverbial rag which is chewed wherever oil operators congregate in numbers more than one. Added to this the week opened with the positive assurance that the Muenster townsite well is a "well."

The Kisk well which is being drilled jointly by the Kisk Oil company and P. F. Gwynne opens up a stretch of territory between the Waite Phillips and the S. E. Oldham pools in Archer county and virtually connect the two areas. It is on the D. L. Wolf land in the G. W. Miles survey and about three-fourths of a mile northeast of the Phillips pool. It will be completed early next week at which time it is practically certain that it will be a producer.

Bridwell-Mayfield Test.

The Bridwell and Mayfield No. 1, J. & J. Waggoner in block 12, Hezikiah George survey, proves up the territory west of the Mitchell land in the Patience Castleman survey as well as discovers an entirely new pay horizon for that region. The sand was topped at 1,402 feet and drilled seven feet. The well is pumping 100 barrels daily.

In the Turbeville sector of Archer county, L. T. Burns completed his No. D-1 in block 142, Carson survey, and the well swabbed 150 barrels in sand at 1,442-65 feet. In the same block Petroleum Producers company made a 25-barrel pumper of its No. 1 and in block 150 the American Refining company started pumping its No. 2 at the rate of 35 barrels daily.

Others Are Quiet.

The development of proven land was carried ahead in Wilbarger, Montague and Young counties and each county saw the completion of the usual number of good producers.

The Muenster townsite test of the Oil Operators Trust of Fort Worth was drilled in and is standing with the hole full of oil from the pay encountered at 1,276 and drilled to 1,281 feet. It is estimated to be a 50-barrel pumper. Town lot trading is active and the little town of Muenster is booming as the result of the strike.

Daily pipeline runs showed a loss of 576 barrels for the week. Cooke county registered a new high level in production, running 1,040 barrels daily. The total was 101,735 as compared with 102,310 barrels in the previous week.

OUTPUT JUMPS IN OKLAHOMA

58 New Wells Boost Production of Sooner State

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 15.—New production in Oklahoma-Kansas oil fields continues to pile up.

Sixty-nine oil wells in the two states had an initial production of 33,926 barrels. Fifty-three of three of these in Oklahoma totaled 32,894 barrels and 16 in Kansas did but 1,532 barrels.

Official completions in the two states totaled 130, Oklahoma having 93 and Kansas 37. Oklahoma had 10 gassers making 124,250,000 feet, and Kansas two. Forty-nine of these were failures, 39 being in the Sooner state and 19 in the Sunflower state.

Analysis of the above new production figures shows that the great Seminole field of central-western Seminole county, continues to hog first place. Seminole county had 15 completions for 23,618 barrels, and all were in this wonderful area.

Butler county with four new wells with an initial output of 810 barrels led Kansas counties, that are active, but with few wells equalling the wonderful Oklahoma producers in the Seminole district.

Many Sooner Wells.

First reports in Oklahoma oil fields took a sharp jump the past fiscal week, 169 new wells getting started in 21 counties.

Seminole county, as usual, led with 55 new wells, and all of them are in the great Seminole field. The 8-6 area of that sector had most of the new first reports.

Grady county, with the Knox pool as its premier area, was second with 24 new tests; Creek county, in the midst of a replay, was third with 17; Osage county had 15; Stephens 9; Pottawatomie, 6; Okfuskee and Okmulgee, 5 each; Tulsa, 4; Carter, 3; Muskogee, Pawnee, each had 2; Beckham, Caddo, Comanche, Jackson, Kay, Lincoln, Love, Payne and Wagoner, 1 each.

Kansas New Work.

There were 25 first reports the past week from the Kansas oil fields.

Greenwood and Sumner counties tied for first place, each having five new wells; Cowley was next with 4; Elk had 3; Barton, Butler and Lyon, each reported 2, and McPherson and Marion, 1 each.

MARKET JOLTED

Reductions Made in Middle West Kerosene Prices.

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 15.—The refined oil market got another jolt when the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, announced reductions of from four-tenths of one cent to one and one-half-cent in kerosene tankwagon prices over its territory. The 24 hours before it reduced gasoline prices one full cent in its territory, comprising 10 states and several counties of an eleventh state—Oklahoma.

In Oklahoma and Kansas the kerosene cut amounted to one and one-half cents. In Minnesota and North Dakota it totalled 1.2 cents, while in South Dakota the cut amounted to but seven-tenths of a cent. Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri decline was nine-tenth of a cent, and in Illinois it was four-tenths of a cent. In Chicago district the cut amounted to one-half cent.

OIL MEN TAKE ABILENE SPACE

West Texas City Crowded By Oil Operators

ABILENE, Jan. 15.—Entry by well-known members of every branch of the oil fraternity into Abilene has been so rapid during the past four months that the city is threatened with an office space shortage. The Alexander building, a seven-story structure, completed a year ago, has been completely filled as a result of more than a score of oil companies establishing district offices here. Now the operators have gone into the Fulwiler building and every office in that structure is leased.

Among the operators recently establishing offices in Abilene are: Greenwood and Johnson, Steggins Oil and Gas company, McLester Oil company, Oyster and Rife, geologists and petroleum engineers, the Osage Oil corporation and a number of others.

Transactions have recently been made which will very likely increase the office space available in this city and with the continued interest in the oil development of this section being shown now, there will be demands for all facilities provided.

FAT OIL CHECKS

University Royalty Fund Continues To Climb.

AUSTIN, Jan. 15.(AP)—Oil royalties accredited to Texas university Saturday totalled $5,196,622.68 when checks for $182,485.85 were received by the state land commissioners.

Monthly royalties paid were: Texon company $54,251.57; Big Lake company, $127,817.44; Humble Oil and Refining company, $416.87.

LOVES HER DOG

So Young Bride Travels in Baggage Car.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.(AP) The Examiner says Mrs. Joahanna Yunkers, bride of Richard Yunkers, a radio tube expert at Glendale, Calif., rode from New York to San Francisco in a baggage car in order to be with her dog, Wolfe, said to be a brother of Strongheart of movie fame.

MACINE PRODUCES SLEEP

KIEL, Germany.—Prof. Siemerling is experimenting in a hospital here with a "sleep machine" invented by Dr. Hans Solomon of Berlin. It is a small box worked by electricity or a strong screw, emitting a regular hum like a hive of bees. This continues 40 minutes, gradually becoming slower and slower and softer, until finally it stops, by which time it is said, the most rideawake become oblivious to worldly worries.

MRS. W. C. BRIDGMAN, Ft. Smith, Ark.

Was Weak, Pale, Nervous

"MY HEALTH began to fail," says Mrs. W. C. Bridgman, 1922 North Eleventh St., Fort Smith, Ark. "I grew weak and pale. My sides and back gave me considerable trouble. At times I was forced to go to bed and let my household duties go. I was very nervous. The least little thing upset me terribly. The cause of my trouble was female weakness, I knew, and I worried a lot over my condition. It seemed as if nothing would help me. For months I dragged around the house. Important things went undone, because I had not strength to do them.

"My mother told me to try Cardui. She had taken it herself and knew what a wonderful help it was for womanly troubles. I did as she told me. I soon found out what the real merits of Cardui are, for after a few months I was entirely well and able to enjoy life. I began to gain in weight until I had gone from 119 to 140 pounds. I slept fine at night and the old trouble of pains in my sides and back left me altogether. I felt like a different human being. I was no longer nervous. I could go as long and as much as anybody without giving down. All this difference in my feelings was due to Cardui."

RAIL SHARES GAIN IN PRICE

Railroad Stocks Popular In Saturday Market

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Railway shares continued in demand today and influenced short covering in the industrials. A demand continued for Lehigh Valley which lifted its price to a new high. Stocks of other roads in the same position as Lehigh were bought and resulted in new high prices for 1926 and 1927. Wheeling and Lake Erie, Wabash, Western Maryland and the northwest issues sought higher levels. What buying is going on is based on merger and dividend developments. Realizing developed in the Italian currency. Sterling was lower; French francs steadier.

Automobile and truck stock were quiet but firm. General Motors was fractionally lower at the close. The corporation's sale of cars in December totaled 52,729 as compared with 64,125 last year. The country's production of autos and trucks last year aggregated 4,480,000 vehicles. This is an increase of 143,000 cars over 1925. At wholesale, the 1926 output was valued at $1,857,000,000, which is believed to exceed the output of any other industry. A record of the automobile industry disclosed that increased production is the rule. From 1917 to 1926 there were only three years in which output fell below the preceding year. Declines occurred in 1918, 1921 and 1924.

Buying of Lehigh Valley was again reported for the account of New York Central interests. Stockholders of the Lehigh Valley meet next Tuesday and something definite may be learned as to the relative positions of the contestant's seeking control.

Interest identified with past markets in Chile Copper were reported as buyers of the stock today. The stock sold at a new high, a block of 4500 shares changing hands at 36. Copper men report a slightly better European demand for the metal which has resulted in higher prices. The stock is said to be in a satisfactory position with the convertible bonds out of the way.

Oil stocks were quiet. The heavy buying which made its appearance during the week was not in evidence. Wall Street believes, however, that preparations are under way for a move in this group. Consumption is holding at a high figure and production is not showing any appreciable increase.

Specialties were in fair demand. Buying continued in Julius Kayser. The stock is understood to be responding to its earnings to rthe six months ended December 31 last. Net after charges, taxes and preferred dividends were equivalent to approximately $6 a share on the common. In view of the fact that the $4 annual dividend was earned in six months directors may place the stock on a more attractive dividend level. Woolworth sold into new high ground and Remington Typewriter rose three points. Christie Brown was in demand at higher prices on rumors that directors may retire the preferred. Canadian interests are said to be the principle buyers. Earnings last year, it is estimated, were three times those for 1925. The preferred is convertible into the common on a three-for-one basis.

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.(AP)—Reiterated reports of increasing demand for cotton goods at home and abroad and firmer Liverpool cables were followed by a further advance in the cotton market today. After selling up to 13.41 at the start, March reacted to 13.32, but later advanced to 13.45, or 15 points above yesterday's closing figures and into new high ground for the movement, closing at 13.36. The general market closed barely steady, at net advances of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of four to 10 points.

Rains in the south were also a factor as they suggested a further delay in picking, but the initial advance met a good deal of realizing for over the week-end while there was also rather heavy selling for southern account. The bulk of this was attributed to profit taking on long contracts rather than hedging, however, and the trade was evidently impressed by the apparent ability of the market to absorb large offerings on reactions of some eight or ten points from the best.

Prices steadied around 13.27 for January and 12.82 for May, later selling up sharply on covering by recent sellers, for a reaction, combined with renewed trade and commission house demand. January sold at 13.34 and May 13.45, but the close was several points off from the best under realizing.

Private cables said early hedge selling in Liverpool had been absorbed by good trade calling, together with continental and Bombay buying and added there had been a fair tournover in yarns.

The amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 218,000 bales, against 218,000 last year.

The present ginning period ended with the close of business today, and expectations of comparatively light returns owing to unfavorable weather conditions, probably contributed to the advance.

Total stock sales 789,100 shares.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.(AP)—Widespread speculation in railroad shares, based on recent merger developments, overshadowed all other developments in today's brief session of the stock market. More than a dozen rails were bid up to near-five points with new record highs for all time being attained by Lehigh Valley, Rock Island and Frisco common, while Great Northern preferred, Northern Pacific and the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues sold at their highest prices in years.

Industrials, as a group, were sluggish although several pools, taking advantage of the public interest created by the rise in railroad stocks, started to bid up oils and specialties in which favorable merger or dividend developments are believed to be pending. Many of the popular industrials showed small net recessions at the close.

The only important overnight news development was the report that drilling permits had been refused in Mexico to American oil companies which failed to apply concessions before January 1 under the new land laws of that country. This had little effect marketwise, only fractional declines being shown in shares of companies operating south of the Rio Grande. A drop of 50 cents a ton in pig iron prices was reported from the Pittsburgh district, but steel shares held fairly steady.

A broadening demand was apparent for the oil shares. Net gains of a point or more were recorded by Amerada, Independent Oil and Gas, Mid-Continent Petroleum, Panhandle and Phillips. Woolworth (old stock) responded to the announcement of record breaking 1926 earnings by moving about 2½ points.

Foreign exchanges were slightly easier, demand sterling again falling below 4.85. French francs were firm around 3.97 cents but small recessions took place in most of the other continental rates. The Canadian dollar was still at a discount of 9⅜ of one cent.

SPINACH BLIGHTED.

HOUSTON, Jan. 15.(AP)—The Texas spinach crop generally has been blighted, due to December cloudy weather and foggy mornings, according to Charles Sperle, truck crop specialist. His report was released here Saturday through the office of R. H. Schutz, government statistician at Houston.

The per cent of damage, he says, varies according to age of the spinach, the older having been affected mostly.

In the Laredo district, yields previous to the blight were about 400 bushels per acre. Later yields show a cut.

Ninety cars were moved up to January 1, which is nine cars less than to the same date a year ago, whereas the acreage has decreased 1000 under last years estimated 2400.

Near Crystal City, in the winter garden section, old spinach was damaged from 20 to 25 per cent and young spinach about 15 per cent. Yields now vary from 200 to 250 bushels per acre. Car movements up to January 1, amounted to 240 compared with 120 to the same date a year ago.

In the Corpus Christi-Robstown district present average yields was placed at 200 bushels per acre which is a cut under normal.

In the Austin district, where one-third of the crop is early, damage ranges from 15 to 20 per cent but improved weather is expected to enable the crop to outgrow it.

Mr. Sperle attached a paragraph about the condition of the orion crop. The growing season, he recites, has been favorable and the crop is in as good shape as it was a year ago at this date. In the Laredo district, December plantings were approximately 10 per cent heavier than usual, 20 per cent heavier in the Asherton district and about normal in the Cotulla neighborhood. In the Crystal City section the bulk of the crop was out by December 20.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.(AP)—Helped by prospects of a reduction of the United States visible supply total on Monday, wheat showed an upward trend today, right from the outset. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ½ to ⅝c net higher, corn ⅛ to ⅛c up, oats at ⅛ to ⅜@⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to 25c down.

Unfavorable weather restricting the movement of corn to terminals gave firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions sympathized with a downward swing of the hog market.

WHEAT HOLDS HIGHER TREND

Grain Market Carries Tone Of Strength

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Wheat renewed its upward trend today. Pressure was off the market and prices responded readily to improved buying. General trade, however, was not large and the ranage was held within narrow limits. Reports that the Argentine government is taking steps to stabilize wheat prices by loaning money to farmers and thus regulate the flow of new crop grain from the thresher was an influence that attracted support in the local pit. Corn and other grains were up at the last.

May wheat opened at $1.38⅝@1.39, rallied to $1.39⅞, sagged to $1.39¼, firmed to $1.39¾ and closed at $1.39⅝@⅞. July opened at $1.30, firmed to $1.30⅝, reacted to $1.30¼ and closed at $1.30½@⅝. Heavy absorption of wheat around the low point of the previous day made itself felt in yesterday's trading.

The seaboard told of a moderate export trade, sales not exceeding 200,000 bushels. Clearances were fair. Liverpool closed unchanged and Buenos Aires 1c higher.

Locally wheat closed ⅝ to ⅝c higher, corn ⅛ to ⅜c higher, oats unchanged to ⅜c up and rye ⅜ to ⅝c advanced.

Local bulls rendered corn fair support today and prices firmed. General trade was small with commission houses operating on both sides of the market. The primary receipts of this grain have picked up a little the last few days, but the commercial demand is active and the basis has been well maintained.

Oats held within a narrow range. Resting orders to buy through commission houses were in the market early and kept prices stable. News developments were unchanged.

Rye was up with the leading grain.

MONDAY THRIFT DAY

IN HONOR of Benjamin Franklin, America's staunchest advocate of thrift, Monday, the first day of National Thrift Week is being observed as "Thrift Day."

The importance of thrift, as practiced and preached by so worthy a personage is being recognized to a gerater extent each year, not only by national and local governing bodies but by individuals. Success demands, as a prerequisite, that a man save a portion of his earning . . . . at least 10%.

Regular saving is essential to a well-ordered and happy life. A bank account creates a reserve fund for the future . . . . and ever increasing amount that will enable you to take advantage of opportunities or meet unexpected drains on your normal income.

A bank account puts your surplus money to work for you, by earning money in interest. It creates a good habit and encourages you to save more . . . it increases your confidence in yourself, and your credit and financial standing with others."

Start your children off on the Road to Success. Open an account for them too. Encourage them to save.

Remember the old saying . . . "a fool and his money are soon parted."

Spring Wedding Is Announced At Brilliant Affair

Wichita Falls friends of Jarrell Gose of this city and of Miss Kitty West Schreiner of San Antonio, will be interested in the lovely supper given at the home of Miss Schreiner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schreiner, in San Antonio when the announcement was made of their approaching nuptials, the report of which appeared in the San Antonio Light as follows:

"Quite the most interesting news of the season concerning any one of the debutante coterie was told Monday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schreiner announced the engagement of their daughter, Kitty West, to Jarrell E. Gose, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gose of Wichita Falls.

"The announcement took place at the buffet supper given by Mrs. Ike West, grandmother of the bride-to-be in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Schreiner in Bushnell place.

"The announcement was made in a charmingly clever manner by little Clay West Burns dressed in a conventional bridegroom's suit with butonnaire of white, and little Kitty West Burns in charming bridal array of white satin made with tight-fitting bodice, with bouffant skirt trimmed in pearls. A tulle veil that formed the train was caught to a coronet of rare lace held in place by orange blossoms.

"The diminutive bride carried an old-fashioned Colonial bouquet formed of innumerable boutonnaires. When separated and handed around they were found to have attached small hearts, upon which were written the names of the prospective bride and bridegroom.

"W. C. Rigsby at the piano played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin for the little people to descend the stair and enter the drawing room.

"Mrs. West was assisted in receiving by her two daughters, Mrs. Schreiner and Mrs. C. H. Burns, and Mrs. S. M. Gose, mother of the bridegroom-to-be.

"The spacious reception hall and dining room were abloom in spring flowers, pink roses, narcissi, and candy tuft. Calendulas filled baskets that were in evidence everywhere.

"The dining room was a study in Dresden. In the center of the long refectory table was a Dresden basket filled with Dresden flowers, tulips, narcissi, rosebuds and stevia, all surrounded by ferns. The table was laid in antique Venetian fillet lace, and Dresden candelabra held pink wax tapers while the bon bons and salted nuts were in Dresden compotes.

"Pouring coffee at intervals were Mesdames S. M. Gose of Wichita Falls; Hiram Partee, W. C. Rigsby and Wallace Newton of Austin. Alternating at serving the salad were Mrs. West's three daughters-in-law, Mesdames Sol West, Albert West and Buck West. Others assisting in here were Mesdames Robert Maverick, T. E. Hogg, P. J. McNeel and Harry Harrison, and Miss Ivy V. Larkin of Wichita Falls.

"Miss Schreiner was in a charming Lanvin gown of white velvet trimmed in a tracery of black velvet applique and rhinestones, gold slippers with rhinestone heels and with this was worn a corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley.

"Mrs. West was in peach colored chiffon trimmed in gold cloth, gold slippers and hose, corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Schreiner was in pale shell pink velvet trimmed in miniature mirrors. The skirt, draped to one side, was finished in a fringe of the mirrors, corsage of lilies of the valley and orchids. Mrs. Burns was in taffeta in three shades. The tight-fitting bodice was of the pale shade while the bouffant skirt was of the three shades put together with silver ribbon and silver slippers. A corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley was worn.

"The marriage, it was announced, will take place in the early part of March.

"The bride-elect is one of the most popular of the debutante coterie having spent her life in San Antonio, with the exception of the time she was at school in New York, traveling over the United States and in Europe.

"Like all Texas girls Miss Schreiner is most versatile, having been a frequent visitor to the ranches of her father and grandfather, Capt. Charles Schreiner of Kerrville."

West Texas Girl-Bride "First Lady"

AUSTIN, Jan. 15.—Facing the great day of her life Mrs. Dan Moody is characterized by the same unusual poise which has been her's through the stirring events which have surrounded her since it became known that she was to become the bride of Texas' young statesman and political idol, Dan Moody.

Unusual circumstances attended her coming to her new home a bride, and no bride has ever received more enthusiastic welcome or responded to it more graciously.

"It is going to be a great adventure," said Mrs. Moody, chatting intimately with a friend, of her removal to the Governor's mansion, and one sensed back of the words the serious purpose and the high conception of responsibility which possess the adventurer, the young first lady of Texas, no less than the governor to be himself.

Great Adventure.

It is a pleasing and hope inspiring trait which makes Mrs. Moody falter on the eve of her "great adventure" and scan a trifle anxiously the shadowy future, for it is quite in keeping with the demeanor which has won admiring judgment of her during these months in which she has been winning for herself a place in the hearts of the people of Texas which they are only too glad to be able to accord to the wife of the man whom they have chosen to lead them back to ideals somewhat tarnished from disuse and traditions lost sight of for a time.

It is this same "Tradition" which is spelled with a big T by Mrs. Moody as she stands on the threshold of the Texas White House, for back of the honor she feels deeply and sincerely the responsibility which somewhat awes while it allures her.

To quote her again "Back of me stretches a long line of lovely and gracious women who have made traditions which it is going to be mine to carry on, and while I am proud it is with a pride more than half humility as I realize that I lack many of the attributes which contributed to their success.

"Why, you know," in a burst of enthusiasm, "Dan and I will begin our housekeeping in the mansion as we've been boarding ever since we were married."

The governor-elect and Mrs. Moody have been married for almost a year but the intensive campaign for the governorship which followed immediately on their marriage and the ever-increasing cares and responsibilities which have accrued to the busy man of affairs, have interferred with the enjoyment of the period usually set apart for honeymooning and so with the inauguration out of the way, will come a sort of afterglow honeymoon when as every true woman looks forward to doing, she will assist in the "hanging of the crane" above the hearth of a new home, be it governor's mansion or humble cottage. Which ever it be matters little so long as it be the abode of love, confidence and oneness of purpose.

Mansion Matters Not.

One often hears it said "it is the age of youth" and when youth brings to the responsibilities which confront it the sane, practical outlook on life which is that of the young governor and his wife, the combination with its native enthusiasm its unjaded energies and its unspoiled ideals, forms a bulwark of strength past which it will be nigh impossible for anything inimical to the state, to force its way.

Mrs. Moody is conscious of her youth and inexperience and beyond a resolve to live up in so far as lies in her, the traditions which are her heritage from its former mistresses, she has made no plans for the social conduct of the mansion.

The misgivings along this line which are perfectly natural to her, are in no way shared by Austin folk who have watched her during the difficult process of assimilation into Austin society, for always there is the same cordial friendliness, the same gracious demeanor yet withal the same dignity and reserve commensurate with a realization of her position.

Not a Stranger.

She did not come to Austin a stranger, having spent the greater part of her college life here and to the somewhat limited circle of college day friends, she had added all who have been brought in touch with her during the past months when she has received at the hands of Austin folk such honors as have seldom fallen to any woman, and with the same imperturbable poise which appreciated yet refused to be affected by adulation.

And so the people of Austin and of Texas are well satisfied to turn over the conduct of the fine old mansion with its treasures of historic memories and its aura of sacred traditions, to the young woman whose natural pride in the honor which is hers is tempered by the responsibility which she realizes so fully.

If there are misgivings they are her's alone, as she gazes into a future obscured it is true by the veil which hangs between our todays and tomorrows yet rose tinged with the dreams of young wifehood and illumined by the confidence which the people of Texas have voiced in their governor and have been quick to extend to the woman of his choice when convinced that she is altogether worthy of it.

EXPERT GIVES BEAUTY DON'TS

Treatment Not Expensive, And Open to All, She Says

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Many women have the mistaken impression that if they go in for beauty culture at all, that it is going to involve a lot of expense. This is not so.

The fundamental three steps to beauty which should be adequate for the average skin under 40 can be maintained at the very nominal cost of about $3 a month for the intrinsic aids, and another dollar or two should cover the cost of your powder and rouge, and the latter should last considerable more than a month. For the limited sum of $4 or even less, and a little time and effort, you can keep yourself pretty well in hand.

And for those women who want the added luxury of salon treatment every week or two, add another $10 to $15 a month, which will assure them of a lovely, well-cared-for skin and a youthful contour.

Of course, I have many clients who go in for intensive beauty culture, especially after a strenuous social season, or a long voyage, and these treatments involve the use of rarest oils and unguents. So it is that many women are spending thousands on their beauty culture during the year, while others may spend only hundreds. In the same way the cost of some women's clothes runs into several thousand dollars in a year, while other women perhaps spend only a few hundred.

So it is wise for each woman to make a beauty appropriation or budget in proportion to her needs. You don't need to be extravagant. You can keep your beauty expenditures in proportion to your income. And just at this moment let me say a word on the advisability of not spending all of your allowance on your "back," but apportion a certain amount for your face and its care.

In fact, many women would do well to slice off a portion of their clothes allowance and spend it on the care of their skin. There is nothing that looks so badly as to see a woman aiming to be smart and fashionable, dressed in luxurious clothes with a face that clearly shows the marks of neglect.

I think this is a matter you women should thoughtfully consider. As I said before, it costs very little to give your skin the fundamental aids necessary to keep it in a healthful condition. I feel sure that if you will take a few minutes to think this over you will realize the value of the advice I am giving you. To put these suggestions into effect, if necessary, clip a little here and a little there; do without an extra pair of shoes or another hat, and spend that money on the improvement of your skin. You won't regret it.

School Nurse Modern Guardian Of Health of American Children

By MRS. T. B. SMITH.
Executive Secretary of Red Cross.

The boyhood of "Teddy" Roosebelt, twice president of the United States, might have been quite different if school nurses had been in vogue when he was mastering the intricacies of the multiplication table. Not until he was a boy of considerable age did his father accidentally discover that the world through "Teddy's" eyes was an entirely different world from what it was through the father's eyes. The discovery was made when they were hiking through the country one afternoon. The father made some allusion to a sign on a tree some distance away. Teddy looked. He couldn't see the sign, much less make out the lettering. Subsequent investigation by the father disclosed the fact that the boy was near-sighted, so much so that from that time to his death his heavy-lensed glasses were an essential part of his equipment.

Many Activities.

Thousands of American school children each year are saved the disadvantage of handicapped childhood such as Theodore Roosevelt suffered by the vigilance and interest of the school nurses. The nurse has become an essential part of the school organization. The American Red Cross, only one of many organizations carrying on public health nursing programs, has hundreds of public health nurses working in the United States, many of whom are centering their attention on the welfare of the American school child.

But what do the nurses do, many people will ask. Near-sighted children are comparatively few. Surely they can't occupy nine months of the year in singling out a few near-sighted boys and girls. What's it all about?

As a matter of fact, public health nurses are about the busiest people in the world. Seventy-five per cent of all school children in this country are suffering from physical defects, authorities tell us. About 25 per cent have defective vision. From 15 to 20 per cent are malnourished. Between 30 and 40 per cent have adenoids and diseased tonsils. Many of them suffer from a combination of many of these defects. A child who is thought "not bright," indolent, lazy, mischievous is perhaps as bright as any one else, and would apply himself as much if he were not held back by physical handicaps.

The school nurse detects symptoms of these physical defects by her periodic inspection of the children and is instrumental in having many of them corrected before they have resulted in serious harm. Many mothers do not readily see the necessity for correcting what appears to them to be unimportant defects in the child. They may not realize, for instance, that diseased tonsils have a very detrimental effect on health. The school nurse, after inspecting children, visits the parents of those having physical defects and discusses the child's problems with the parents, urging them to take the necessary remedial measures. These may be merely hygienic or they may involve immediate attention. This follow-up work, together with the educational activities of the school nurse, in which she teaches the children health practices and the principles of personal hygiene, are important phases of her work.

The spectacular things of life are those that catch people's attention. If there were a serious epidemic in town and the school nurse worked night and day caring for the sick, she would be heralded as a local hero. But her steady plodding, day in and day out, preventing epidemics goes almost unnoticed.

How Epidemics Occur.

Epidemics generally start in a perfectly natural way. Little Tommy Jones becomes infected somehow. He goes to school for a day or two complaining of a "bad cold," and later is put to bed with scarlet fever. In the meantime, he has probably spread the germs to a dozen other children while he was suffering from that alleged "bad cold." And they carry on the deadly work, until many other children are affected.

Today, with a school nurse ever on the alert, such epidemics are rare. When Tommy has that "bad cold" the nurse, or it may be the teacher who has been taught by the nurse to detect symptoms of communicable diseases, sends him home with instructions to see his doctor. The embryo epidemic is checked before it has taken its heavy toll of life and human suffering.

Not a very spectacular piece of work, sending a child home with a "bad cold," but nevertheless a very important one to every mother and father in the community.

The school nurse is the faithful guardian of the health of American school children. And after all, there is nothing in the world more important than that.

FAMILY DAY AT CHURCHES

Pastors Urge Attendance At Services Today

Today is "Families-Go-to-Church" Sunday to be observed in the churches of the city, and as a special feature of the services, families are asked to sit together. Recognition is to be given the largest family represented, the smallest and other recognition is to be given at various churches.

January has been designated as go-to-church month in Wichita Falls by the Ministerial Alliance. Increase has been shown in the Sunday school attendance and churches have been filled to capacity the first two Sundays of the year, pastors have reported, and a great attendance is anticipated today. # The World's Most Used and Most Abused Book

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

The Bible is at once the most used and the most abused book in the world.

It has been the "best seller," not for a brief season, but year after year from generation to generation. Translated into more languages than any other book, it has gone into every quarter of the earth, not only to be read, but to transform the lives and civilization of its readers.

No book is more profusely quoted in other books than is the Bible. Consequently, the knowledge of no other book is so essential to real culture or finished education as is the knowledge of the Bible, which explains why a leading educator has said, "A person may know all other literature, but if he does not know the Bible he can not be said to be learned."

But how this much used book is abused! Atheists and agnostics have ridiculed it in tote and assailed its every part. They have prophet's home converted into a Bible house for the dissemination of the Scriptures. In a former age its translators have been imprisoned and burned at the stake, and in this present age laws are passed prohibiting its being read in the public schools.

Not only by its enemies, as might have been expected, but also in the house of its friends this Book of books has met with abuse accorded no other book.

Whereas it may be read through in less than 20 minutes per day for a year, most of its friends regard the reading of the Bible as an insuperable task requiring little short of a lifetime, and an accomplishment requiring almost angelic piety and patience.

No book is read so unsystematically by is friends. The Bible was written book by book, and should be read book by book, reading a book at a sitting, and in the case of the shorter books, reading them several times, or until the reader grasps the gist of its message, its outline, its key expressions, and its relation to the others of the 66 books of this divine library.

Another form of Bible study is study by topics, and still another, study by periods, mastering the books written during or dealing with certain periods.

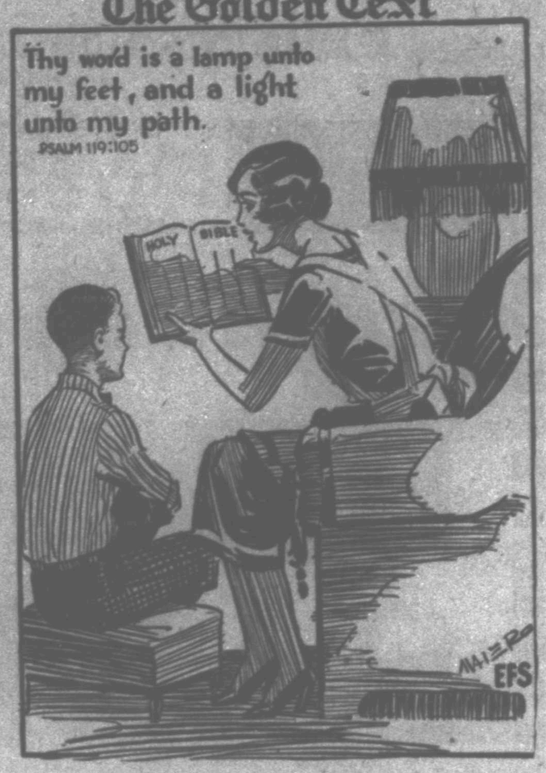

The Bible is best studied devotionally, looking for one's self and one's Saviour on every page. A personal acquaintance with the author adds interest to the reading of this Book just as in the case of any other book.

Certain portions of the Bible should be memorized, preferably in youth, and in the home rather than in the Sunday school as our lesson urges: "Thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and thou shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest in the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." Our lesson also attributes Timothy's power in the early church to this same early home training: "that from a child thou hast known the holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

Above all, the Bible should be distinguished from all other books as the inspired Word of God, as Paul also says in this lesson: "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness; that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work."

(The International Uniform Sunday school lesson for Jan. 16 is Duet. 6:4-9 and 2 Tim. 3:14-17, the subject being, "The Christian's Use of the Bible," and the Golden Text, Psalm 119:105, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.")

WHAT ... ing spring coats Miller-Ferguson is showing! A Hirschhorn sport coat in red and white plaid sponsors a close fitting neckline which recalls the leather strap fastening of the slicker (adapted last season to fur coats with much success). Here it is most effectively achieved by black monkey narrowly banded in the center with the material.

This "sleek" little sport coat does not stand alone, however, in its undoubted attraction — Miller-Ferguson has many others equally lovely all yet warm with the breath of Fifth Avenue but, from their reasonable tags with invitingly cooled prices.

EVERYONE is occupied this month with "starting the New Year out right" and a firmer step cannot be made upon the ladder of success than by beginning a savings account with the North Texas Building and Loan Association, 705 Ninth street.

Women will find the 6 per cent interest-bearing accounts especially convenient as they involve no fees, may be withdrawn at any time and pay more than the usual savings' interest. After making a payment of ten dollars monthly for six months you will find yourself the possessor of $63.00—how much more pleasant than to have merely a worn-out pair of extra slippers, a novelty bracelet, a few theater stubs, etc., to show for your money. If more women realized how rapidly a pice-sized principal will accumulate in a North Texas savings account, they would not postpone from one month to the next the beginning of periodic savings.

Let past experience be a lesson this year and don't delay the beginning of savings which will fill your purse for the opening of 1928 in place of the usual after-Christmas "flatness."

RIMLESS glasses are coming back! Octagon shape is best adapted to all occasions, and in white gold they are beautiful! Their inconspicuousness reflects good taste upon the wearer and as the knowledge that the essential details are correct adds more than anything else to your poise, this is a point of importance.

For precision and style combined with reasonable price, consult George W. L. Spencer, O. D., Optometrist, 703 Ohio avenue.

A FRIED chicken dinner and all that goes with it from entree to demi-tasse!

Doesn't that sound tempting? It is the menu being served today at the Angelina Tea Room, 1609 Monroe street, which you have doubtless heard a great deal of recently, for the wide circle of patrons attracted by its charming surroundings and excellent quality of food, have not been chary of their praise.

Bright flowers trailing from wall vases, hand decorated tables and chairs, music, a spacious living room which serves as a pleasant congregating place at the disposal of the guests—these are some of the things which make the Angelina so popular for bridge and dinner parties.

It is advisable (I might say imperative if you do not wish to risk disappointment) that reservations be made in advance. Call 5-1961 and Mrs. Sharpe will see that your plans are successfully realized, whether for party or simple "two-some" dinner.

FOR general utility and smartness, the spring suit heads the list of fashionable apparel for women, and, of course, the most chic exponents of the mode are being shown at the Orchid Shop.

A clever brown tweed model bound at cuffs, lapels and pockets, with brown and white check and with a tiny strip of the same running up the left side of the skirt, deserves especial mention.

A spring suit may be worn all season for street or sport, and throughout the summer for travel and on cool days, so you will be doing the economical as well as the smart thing in purchasing one.

STARTING the New Year in a delightful new shop with beautiful new spring bonnets—that is what Marshall's Millinery (now located at 920 Indiana) is doing and, like the bride who must have something old for luck, among the dazzling new things Marshall's finds the patrons of many years following to the present location and greatly pleased with its showing of vogueish spring millinery for every occasion.

THEATER CALENDAR FOR WEEK CROWDED WITH GOOD SHOWS

COMIC OPERA HERE MONDAY

Pictures and Vaudeville Also Look Promising

By RUTH MORRISON.
Record News Theater Critic.

Have you ever known a week to be so full of really good shows as this last one has been?

Everything from Coleen Moore's spirited romance "Twinkletoes," and "The Ace of Cads" during the first part of the week to blackface Jay C. Flippen's risque remarks in the Majestic vaudeville and "Stella Dallas," one of the screen's finest films.

Corinne Griffith's latest picture, "The Lady in Ermine" starts today at the Olympic with "The Romany Trio" as the vaudeville act. You will find Corinne at her best in this picture of the war between Italy and Austria in 1810 as a background. Built to a climax in which the heroine is faced with seeing her husband shot as a spy or of saving his life at the cost of her honor, the story teems with suspense and action. It opens on the eve of war and at the marriage of an Italian countess to one of the most popular officers in the Italian army. The plausibility of the film is due largely to Miss Griffith's absorbing acting in her difficult role.

* * *

Speaking of good shows—you will indeed miss one if you don't see "The Bohemian Girl" tomorrow night at the Palace. The cast is purely American, led by a most gifted and accomplished director, Miss Mae Valentine, who conducts her own special orchestra, company members and chorus. The story is simple and delightful, being built around the devotion of Count Arnheim and his young daughter, Arline, her mysterious abduction by a band of gypsies, where she later falls in love with a young Polish officer who has renounced his country for the life of Romany. Jealousy, plotting, accusation, love and finally unity are all portrayed in this comic opera.

* * *

The only disturbing thing about a week full of interesting amusements is that I am always spoiled for the following seven days! It is usually a case of "the more I get, the more I want"—"I" trouble, as Jay Flippen said last Thursday night! But all predictions are for the best, according to the theater calendar, with Dick Barthelmess at the Olympic on Thursday, another good Majestic bill to take care of the latter part of the week, and "The Lady in Ermine" and "Stella Dallas" for immediate entertainment.

As it is, comments are still circulating on last week's Interstate vaudeville. It was unusual in that every number was uproariously humorous. Wise cracks and cleverness in "putting it over" ran the gauntlet of stage production. We might say that it "ran over" just a trifle!

PRIVATE IZZY

Noted War Comedy Booked For Strand.

"Private Izzy Murphy," the Warner picture, coming to the Strand Tuesday for three days, stars George Jessel, the famous "Jazz Singer" who won such enviable acclaim in New York last year. Featured with Jessel are Patsy Ruth Miller and Vera Gordon. An excellent company is in support, and the filming was directed by Lloyd Bacon, son of Frank Bacon, star and author of "Lightnin'."

"Praivate Izzy Murphy" is the story of Izzy Goldberg, a young delicatessen keeper of New York, and of his dealings with the Irish. For business reasons he decides to change his name to "Murphy" and goes overseas with an Irish regiment under that name. The story does not burlesque racial traits, but is a play with that "touch of nature" which "makes the whole world kin."

Home, Sweet Home!

After a sensational debut in her native Italy, Anna Fiora is passing up contracts to appear in Australia, Holland and Germany, in order to visit her husband, Achille Fioramonti, music teacher in Southwestern college, Winfield, Kan. He trained her soprano voice, sent her to Italy to seek success. She is returning with European laurels and assurances of prima donna roles in Trieste, Rome and Padova.

They Play in "Stella Dallas" At Majestic

Ronald Coleman, Belle Bennet, and Lois Moran in "Stella Dallas," at the Majestic Through Wednesday.

Richard Dix and Esther Ralston are shown here in a scene from "The Quarterback," which plays Tuesday and Wednesday at the Mission.

RIN-TIN-TIN

Famous Dog Star to Open Today in Gem Picture.

"The Night Cry," Rin-Tin-Tin's latest Warner Bros. feature coming to the Gem Theater today is said to be one of the most colorful pictures in which this famous canine star has ever appeared.

It was filmed in its entirety right in the heart of the sheep raising country—wide plains, rolling hills, streams, everything just as one would find in these romantic and colorful surroundings.

The sheep country and its people form the background of the story, with Rinty playing the leading role and carrying it through to its thrilling climax.

Herman Raymaker, the director, who made Rin-Tin-Tin's last success "Tracked in the Snow Country," and "Below the Line," wielded the megaphone for "The Night Cry."

June Marlowe, the little heroine, is firmly established with the followers of Rinty's features, as she has played the feminine lead in a great many of them.

John Harron, brother of the late "Bobby" Harron, is said to do some great work in "The Night Cry."

Gayne Whitman, Don Alvarado, Heinie Conklin and Mary Louise Miller are included in the cast. Phil Klein and Edward Meagher wrote "The Night Cry."

LLOYD PLAYS AS JAILBIRD

Hughes On Strand Bill In "Pals First"

Lloyd Hughes, screen star, is thanking his lucky stars that he has no tattoo marks on his right arm.

For if he had, Lloyd might be languishing in a jailhouse today.

Not a real one, of course. Just a reel one. But even a reel jailhouse is unpleasant. No prison cells for Lloyd if he can help it.

It all came about during the filming of "Pals First," the new First National comedy-drama, which is now at the Strand. The handsome star is seen in the role of a tramp who masquerades as the owner of a fine southern mansion. He puts over the deception on two colored caretakers, and with the aid of a couple of his hobo and crook pals prepares to rifle the house.

But at the last moment the masquerading is seen through and the federal authorities are summoned. Hughes is suspected of being a notorious escaped convict. His arm is scanned for the tell-tale tattoo mark. Luckily for Lloyd, it doesn't exist.

"Pals First" has the best surprise ending of the movie season. It's almost too good to be true.

Featured with Hughes in this sparkling comedy-drama is Dolores Del Rio, beautiful Mexican heiress whose sensational screen climb is one of the modern wonders of Hollywood.

Others included in the cast are Alec Francis, George Cooper, Edward Earle, Hamilton Morse, George Reed, Alice Nichols and Alice Belcher. Edwin Carewe produced and directed "Pals First" for First National release.

RICHARD DIX IN GRID FILM

Paramount Star Appears Here Tuesday

The trickiest, funniest, fastest football game ever played. That's what you'll see in Paramount's latest Richard Dix comedy, "The Quarterback," which arrives at the Mission theatre Tuesday.

Richard and his pal, David Butler, are working their way through Colton by means of a milk delivery route. To speed matters up, they utilize their football knowledge and send their bottles whizzing through the air. Then—when they actually get in the game—action starts and never stops till the final whistle blows.

But there's much more to "The Quarterback" than just a football game! W. O. McGeehan and William Slavens McNutt have provided Director Fred Newmeyer with a real story. And in its transfer to the screen, nary a thing has been lost.

"The Quarterback" opens with an 1899 prologue. The star quarterback of Colton college, Harry Beresford, has proposed to Mona Palma. She accepts with the proviso that he remain at school until Colton beats her ancient rival, State. Some twenty-seven years later, he is still "one of the boys," Mona has died and his son now plays dad's old position.

Richard is infatuated with Esther Ralston, a state co-ed. Their romance flourishes until the day of the big game. Then—come a series of startling surprises. Things start to go wrong and—well, why try to describe it?

See "The Quarterback." Richard Dix has never had a better vehicle!

Corinne Griffith As 'Lady In Ermine' Stars in New Napoleonic War Story

They are talking in New York these days of another great war picture, hailed by Broadway film critics as destined to take its place in the ranks of the great epics of the screen.

The picture is "The Lady in Ermine," starring Corinne Griffith, now at the Olympic, and based on a dramatic episode of the Italian-Austrian war of 1810 when Napoleon was roving Europe with a far-reaching sword and a farther reaching eye.

Historians agree that perhaps no war gave birth to such colorful, fascinating intrigue and plot, and cinema critics are agreed that "The Lady in Ermine" has its full share of the dramatic atmosphere of that period.

Once again the beautiful star is seen in gorgeous robes of royalty; once again her intense acting carries a story that might be "just another picture" into the slim ranks of screen masterpieces.

The Picture Legend.

The plot is based on a legend of the picture which hangs in the dining hall of a huge castle, inhabited by the count and countess of Murillo, played by Einar Hanson and Corinne Griffith. The painting is of the count's grandmother and the tale is told that years before when the French had invaded the Italian town and taken possession of the castle, the grandmother had sacrificed her honor to save the life of her husband, by going to the rooms of the French commander clad only in a luxuriant ermine cloak.

This tale makes a deep impression on the countess and then, as the happy lovers are honeymooning in the castle, the war breaks out, with the Austrians this time descending on the little border town.

Bushman Cast.

The count leaves with his troops and the invaders take charge of the castle and make it the headquarters for their general, played by Francis X. Bushman.

Smitten with the stately beauty of the countess, the general is making advances to her just as the count is captured and condemned to death as a spy.

The Austrian general hears the legend of the picture and offers the same choice to the countess—a walk down the corridor to his room in an ermine cloak or a sight of her husband's execution.

The astonishing climax to this film is one of the most masterful bits of drama offered by First National this year.

CANINE FICTURE

"Call of the Wilderness" Film for Dog Lovers.

Everyone who loves dogs—and surely that means every real human being—has a treat in store at the Mission theatre today, where "Call of the Wilderness" is playing, with Sandow, the great dog actor in the leading role. Sandow is, without a doubt, the most natural actor on the screen and is possessed of an almost uncanny intelligence. He is fortunate in having a story in "Call of the Wilderness" which brings out every angle of his fine canine personality and provides him with every possible opportunity to show to what heights a dog can rise in pathos and in drama. The picture was directed by Jack Nelson and includes in its excellent cast such favorites as Lewis Sargent, Edna Marion, Sydney D. Gray, Al Smith and Max Asher.

PALACE BILLS COMIC OPERA

"The Bohemian Girl" To Be Presented Monday

When the greatest amusement syndicates in the wrold turn to the production of light opera, is it not convincing proof that the cleaner and higher order of things musically are being demanded by the theater-going public, for after all the success of any big enterprise is measured by the popular demand.

During the past season and particularly this season there is an evident activity in the opera and operetta field—an era that promises to restore to the American stage the operetta type of entertainment. During last season the Shuberts and Erlanger enterprises had running in New York "The Student Prince," "The Vagabond King" and "Princess Flavia" and several companies of "The Student Prince" on the road and their present activities with comic opera organizations established in New York and Chicago would indicate that they are thoroughly convinced that the public are tiring of the jazz revue and welcome the light opera, for all of their road offerings of the light opera or operetta type played to capacity week after week, repeating many times to capacity in the smaller cities. At this time in all the larger cities at least one theater is given over to the production of the higher art in music. In keeping with this popular trend our city is to be favored with a sumptuous revival of Balfe's inmortal musical masterpiece, "The Bohemian Girl," one of the oldest and yet one of the most popular ballad operas ever written—for who has not been charmed by the, plaintive and picturesque Gypsy melodies found in the beloved gems of "Then You'll Remember Me," "Heart Bowed Down" and "Here Comes the Gypsy Bride."

The May Valentine Comic Opera company with a special orchestra, which is personally conducted by Miss Valentine, and a wonderful singing cast and chorus will present "The Bohemian Girl" at the Palace theater tomorrow night and will prove the outstanding treat of the present season.

ANOTHER FARM RELIEF BILL

SENATOR CURTIS of Kansas and Representative Crisp of Georgia, the former a republican and the latter a democrat, are the co-authors of a farm relief measure.

It is said to contain all the good points of the McNary-Haugen bill which was killed two years ago and none of the bad points which aroused the opposition of President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon. It is a combination of the cotton, the corn and the wheat statesmen who believe that something should be done to stabilize markets by the government whenever the markets sag.

Mark Sullivan is of the opinion that if the bill becomes a law it will retire Farmer Frank O. Lowden to the tall sticks. Farmer Lowden has a fortune of millions. He is a plain man of the people. If all the voters in the sticks country rally to his standard, he may make it interesting in 1928.

COOLIDGE PLANS TO VISIT TEXAS

CALVIN COOLIDGE is president of the United States. His foot has never touched the soil of Texas. He is coming this year. This is how it happened. The president invited Representative Claude B. Hudspeth to one of his famous breakfasts of buckwheat, sausage and syrup.

Representative Hudspeth made the grade. He has chased many chuck wagons on the range in his early days and knows how to handle a flapjack with his fork.

Theodore Roosevelt was at home in Texas. Woodrow Wilson was at home in Texas. William Howard Taft was at home in Texas.

Why not the Vermont son of destiny who is seeking a renomination in 1928? Should he come he will be given a Texas welcome.

GIVEN THE ACID TEST

A NEBRASKA lawmaker introduced an anti-sheik bill, which makes alienation of the affections of husband or wife a felony punishable by either fine or imprisonment, or both. This bill passed the state senate two years ago by a vote of 23 to 10, but was killed after a third reading in the house.

Senator John W. Cooper of Omaha is its author. He is a bachelor.

His bill, he says, would protect the home. In the good old days the shotgun protected the home. Senator Cooper of Nebraska might tell it to his fellow members. Seekers for publicity are found everywhere. They know how to get it. Bachelor Cooper knows how to get it.

MOSLEMS AND HINDUS

MOSLEMS and Hindus are on the war path in India. Hindus look upon the Moslems as heretics. Moslems look upon the Hindus as unclean subjects of the devil.

For this provocation, the Moslems stoned Hindu paraders and it required all the police reserves in the city of Calcutta to quell the rioters.

And yet there are men who say that the Moslems and Hindus are not civilized. Fighting religious factions do the same under the protecting folds of Old Glory.

STARTING OFF THE NEW YEAR

A New York dispatch carries the news that demand for an increase of 15 to 20 per cent in the wages paid to railway enginemen and firemen are agitating the executives of the big railway lines. All this goes to show that there is a dark cloud to a silver lining or a silver lining to a dark cloud. Railway earnings in 1926 were the greatest in history. Railway wage workers are readers of the public prints. They feel that they are entitled to a small slice when the melon cutting season begins. This is human nature. Man is here to do the best he can.

MOVING OUT OF ITALY

A well-known Frenchman, publisher and editor of an important newspaper, points out that 1,000,000 Italians have recently moved into France and more than 100,000 into Tunis, which is French territory. Italy has a population of 39,000,000. There is a vast surplus. These descendants of the Romans must go somewhere. Begging is prohibited by Mussolini. There isn't work for all. An Italian must move or starve.

THIS HAPPENED IN IOWA

CARNEY is a mining community in Iowa. A negro was elected member of the school board. He appointed a negress to succeed a white school teacher of his district. This is the first time that the thing had ever happened. Now the negro school director is having his own troubles. Every night a fiery cross is burned in front of his home. Is this a hint for the school director to move? Is it a hint for him to quit his home in Iowa and trek away?

RESERVE OFFICERS MAY VOTE

REVERSING its former ruling to the contrary, the attorney-general's department has held that those holding commissions as officers in the United States officers' reserve corps are entitled to vote in Texas. It was first held that they were not qualified to vote, for the reason that the reserve officers in Texas are in the actual services of the United States. It was Section Boss Finnigan that sent a funny wire to Road Master Flannagan, "off agin, on agin, gone again." All is well that ends well.

SMITH OF ILLINOIS

SMITH of Illinois is having a rocky road to walk in and lot of troubles and worries to keep him gloomy. Democratic senators would not admit him at all. That is, they would refuse to accept his credentials of appointment and turn his face toward the good old state of Illinois. Republican senators would seat him and after he had been seated they would kick him out. That man must be as popular in senatorial circles as a polecat at a Sunday school picnic in a shady grove in the country.

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

By BEATRICE BURTON
AUTHOR OF "LOVE BOUND," "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a demure and pretty little school teacher, is anything but a flip sort of girl you would expect to be "movie struck." But she is. For years she has dreamed of going to Hollywood to break into pictures.

The only drawback to her ambition is lack of money, for everything she makes has a way of slipping through her extravagant fingers. Her father, a widower, and her AUNT GERTRUDE, who brought her up, both refuse to lend her money to go on "such a wild goose chase." So does ANDREW JERROLD, who wants her to stay at home and marry him. Finally Bobbie borrows $500 from the WIDOW PARKINS, who is going to be her father's second wife, and starts off to Hollywood with a fat purse and a high heart.

At MRS. MANGAN'S boarding house in the movie city, she meets STELLA DELROY, an extra girl in pictures. Through her Bobbie finds work at the Magnifica Studios, where ROY SCHULTZ, a famous director, becomes interested in her. So does GUS MACCLOUD, an assistant director, and she gets a small part in a big picture. MacCloud makes love to Bobbie, and one night they go to his house and spend several hours there. Next morning, MONICA MONT, who's worked at Magnifica for years, tells her that she's not the only girl who's been entertained at MacCloud's house, and hints that she's been there herself. Monica is a gold-digger, and she never pays her own way. When she runs short of money she moves into Bobbie's room with her although Bobbie doesn't want to share it with anyone.

One afternoon when Bobbie is going to a party at MacCloud's house, she gets a wire from home telling her that her aunt is ill. MacCloud is furious because she leaves town for home at once. He wanted her to stay over for his party, and while Bobbie knows he's spoiled and sulky, she goes right on being in love with him.

Andy Jerrold meets her at the station with the news that her aunt was dead at the time the wire was sent, and Bobbie contrasts the way he looks after her with MacCloud's selfishness. One morning, just after her father has announced that he is going to sell the house and marry the widow, Andy comes—and Bobbie knows he's going to propose to her again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXI.

Andy had probably said that same thing to her a dozen times before, in different ways:

"I'll always be hanging around like a swing when you get ready to change your mind about me, Bobbie."

Or: "You can't get rid of me, honey. I'm going to stick around like glue—and I'm going to keep on sticking around."

"I Feel Just Like a Sister Towards You, Andy."

But no matter how he said the thing, Bobbie had always felt that it was true. She had felt something in him that was dependable and firm as a rock. She knew that she had only to reach out her hand for him when she needed him.

And that sunny October morning, she felt that she did need him. She needed him for comfort in the sudden loneliness that had come over her. She held on to him with both hands as if she would never let him go.

"Dad's going to sell the house, I suppose," she told him in a shaking voice. "I didn't know I'd care if he did—I didn't know how much I liked this ramshackle old dump, but I do like it. I don't even mind taking care of it now that I have to."

She drew him down beside her on the old horse-hair sofa that stood against the wall, and put her head down on his shoulder. She never would have dared to do that sort of thing with any other man—not with a man like Gus MacCloud for instance—if she hadn't wanted him to make love to her. But Andy was so different. Old friend that he was, he was as comfortable as an old shoe.

"Of course, you like taking care of the house," he said to her now in a voice as passionless as the voice of a professor. "That's why I've been trying to tell you for years. You were cut out for this sort of thing—" With a wave of his arm he took in the sunny room with its clean curtains, its shining silver on the sideboard, the spotless table, even the rack of cold toast.

"If you'd only settle down with me in a house of your own, you'd see that you'd be as happy as a queen—"

"Queens aren't happy. Not all queens," Bobbie broke in.

"Well, you'd be as happy as I could make you then," Andy corrected himself impatiently. "You weren't made to go batting around movie-town the way you've been doing for the last month. You were made for me." He moved away from her on the couch and stuck his hands in his pockets, glowering at the opposite wall.

Bobbie looked at it, too, but her gaze was dreamy. "Andy, what's your idea or what a woman should get out of married life?"

She spoke slowly and softly, and Andy did not guess the pitfall she had laid for him.

"Oh, I don't know exactly. Let me think for a minute," he said, and then added thoughtfully.

"Oh, I suppose her love for her husband would come first. Then her love for her children and her home—and then some outside interest."

"What, for instance?" Bobbie asked. If Andy admitted that a woman could have some work that would interest her outside of her home, that was something! He couldn't have such old-fashioned ideas about women, and still admit that! She waited eagerly for his reply. It came.

"Oh—card playing or church work or china painting," answered poor Andy.

That finished him with Bobbie, for that day at least! Her brown eyes seemed to blaze as she turned them on him, and hot color flared up into her cheeks. Card playing and china painting, indeed! And for her, who had had a taste of what life could be like, in Hollywood! What kind of a tame pussycat did Andy think she was anyway? One of these mushy silly women who cut out cake recipes from the back of magazines, and make their husbands' shirts from a bolt of percales? Namby-pamby women who let their families use them for door-mats and scrubbing brushes.

And yet, of course, Andy wouldn't treat his wife as if she were a door-mat. He was too much of a man for that, Bobbie knew. What Andy would do would be to completely spoil his woman—roll her in cotton, wool and feed her with a gold spoon. Andy would practically kill his wife with kindness.

"Andy, how can you say such a thing to me?" Bobbie asked him, and the look she gave him was blighting. "How can you talk to me about such fool things as church bazaars and china painting when I have a real career mapped out for myself?"

"You mean the movies?" He gave her a sidewise look from his eyes that seemed to measure her.

She nodded her corn-colored head.

"That's not a career to be compared with being married," said Andy in that quiet sure way of his. "Suppose you do go ahead and make a big success of it. You say you have a good start."

"I have a wonderful start. Everybody says so," Bobbie told him excitedly. "I haven't been in Hollywood more than three weeks, and Roy Schultz has given me a little bit of my own in a picture. He had a screen test made of me, too!"

Naturally Andy had heard of Roy Schultz. Bobbie had been dragging him to the movies for years, and pointing out the names of big directors and players. Oh, yes, Andy knew in a minute who Roy Schultz was, and his eyes narrowed with jealousy.

"Is he a married man, or a bachelor?" he asked abruptly, and Bobby laughed.

"Married to a woman he's wild about, you silly gob!" she cried. "But—he has an assistant director, a bachelor, who thinks pretty well of your little Bobbie, if you must know." She made eyes at Andy as she said it, but he was too busy glowering at the sunlit wall to see her.

"His name's Angus McCloud. Isn't that a nice name?" She repeated MacCloud's name. It gave her a certain mournful joy to say it.

Then all at once she leaned close to Andy, and her fingers tightened on his. "Oh, I want to go back to Hollywood—I'm just plain terrible-awful homesick for it—but I hate to go away from home, too."

She did, too. Home seemed so peaceful, so quiet, so heavenly now that her father was going to break up housekeeping. And yet when she closed her eyes and thought of the white walls of the Magnifica Studios rising against the sunny blue sky, she felt that she must go back to them again.

"Oh, I don't know what I want to do!" she wailed, as many another woman has wailed before her. We are an uncertain fickle lot, we women—changeable as the wind.

"I do know then!" Andy said, and pulled her up close to him with a quick violent movement of his arms. "I do know! You're a normal natural woman, old enough to be married—and that's what you want to do. You'll never be happy or satisfied until you do do it. Until you sweep all these wild ideas out of your head!"

She pushed him away from her. "I never could marry you, Andy. I feel just like a sister toward you," she told him, struggling to keep him at arm's length. "I found that out, in Hollywood."

"That's interesting," Andy remarked in an I-should-worry sort of way.

"You see, I met a man that I—didn't feel sisterly toward," she explained to him, and though her words were all twisted, her meaning was as clear as glass to Andy. "I found out that there is a man in the world—well, I think perhaps I could give up my career for him."

"Marry him?" Andy asked, cool and business-like. "You can talk to me about him if you want to. I won't annoy you any more."

Bobbie put her head to one side. "I don't know whether he's the marrying kind or not. He strikes me as being too selfish to marry anyone. He's selfish and spoiled and crazy about himself. He's not a bit like any man I ever saw before. You'd probably hate him."

"I would. He sounds just like one of those Hollywood parlor pinks that we read about in the newspapers. I'll bet a hat that he wears a wrist watch and runs around bare-headed and in a colored shirt and knickers. I know the kind."

Bobbie bit her lips. Angus MacCloud did wear a wrist watch, and he did wear knickers and run around without a hat. She wondered how on earth Andy had guessed all that. He certainly had struck the nail on the head.

"Bam!" she said aloud, and got up to clear off the breakfast things. Both she and Andy forgot the cup of coffee that he had come for, in the beginning.

* * *

By the first of November Bobbie was back at Mrs. Mangan's.

She got there on a gray windy afternoon, let herself in with her front door key, and went straight up the stairs to her room.

And what a room it was! It had been neatness and order when Bobbie left compared to what it was now.

"I don't believe Monica has touched it since I left!" Bobbie wailed inwardly as she stood inside the door and looked at it.

It looked as if someone had beaten it up with a giant-size egg beater. Clothes were tossed everywhere. There was even a pink silk shirt hanging to the head of the bed.

Among the powder, the rouge, the bottles of perfume, the brushes and the combs on the dresser was a dried loaf of the brown reducing bread that Monica nibbled when her hunger pangs became too severe. Monica fought a constant fight against chins.

There was a bag of ripe oranges on the table in the center of the room. Some of them had begun to rot inside the bag, and the paper was wet with their juice. Beside it lay a small half-emptied perfume flask. The perfume had trickled from the flask, and made a large white stain on the varnished tabletop.

Under the bed were pinkish lavender boxes—hat boxes, suit boxes, a long narrow box with the end of a white fox scarf hanging from one end and trailing out across the carpet.

Bobbie dragged out the boxes, one after another. In one of them was a dinner dress, heavily beaded in peacock blue. In another was a pale blue negligee crusted with silver embroidery. The fox scarf was long and smooth and fine—an expensive thing. There were six tiny felt hats in the two hat boxes—smart little things with jeweled pins stuck through them.

"For cat's sake; Monica's been gold-digging deep this time!" she said to herself with a kind of respect. "She sure is a high-stepper!"

Monica was a high-stepper, and no mistake. At least where clothes and restaurants and things like that were concerned. She stepped very high indeed, when it came to things that she wanted for herself.

"Where in the dickens do you suppose she got all this loot?" Bobbie asked herself, holding one of the little French felt hats in her hands. It hadn't cost a penny less than thirty dollars—not in the store where the pinky-lavender boxes came from! And she knew it.

As if in answer to her unspoken question, the door behind her flew open and a gay voice called to her from the threshhold: "Well, Bobbins—you old sweet good-for-nothing! Coming without even sending me a wire! Weren't you snooty to me!"

Monica! Nobody else used such heavy perfume! No one else had such a voice! And certainly no other girl of Bobbie's acquaintance used a word like "snooty" the way most girls would use the word "horrid."

And then she turned and saw Monica, and her eyes grew wide and round and full of puzzlement.

"And He Goeth"

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

SEVERAL years ago when I had just been promoted to my first real job, I called on a business friend of mine. He is a wise and experienced handler of men; I asked him what suggestions he could make about executive responsibility.

"You are about to make the great discovery," he said. "Within a week or two you will know why it is that executives grow gray and die before their time. You will have learned the bitter truth that there are no efficient people in the world."

I am still very far from admitting that he was right, but I know well enough what he meant. Every man knows who has ever been responsible for a piece of work, or had to meet a pay-roll.

Recently another friend of mine built a house. The money to build it represented a difficult period of saving on the part of himself and his wife; it meant overtime work and self-denial, and extra effort in behalf of a long-cherished dream.

One day when the work was well along, he visited it, and saw a workman climbing a ladded to the roof with a little bunch of shingles in his hands.

"Look here," the foreman cried, "can't you carry a whole bunch of shingles?"

The workman regarded him sullenly.

"I suppose I could," he answered, "if I wanted to bull the job."

By "bull the job" he meant "do an honest day's work."

At ten o'clock one morning I met still another man in his office in New York. He was munching a sandwich and gulping a cup of coffee which his secretary had brought in to him.

"I had to work late last night," he said, "and meet a very early appointment this morning. My wife asked our maid to have breakfast a half-hour early so that I might have a bite and still be here in time.

"When I came down to breakfast, the maid was still in bed."

She lives in his home, and eats, and is clothed by means of money which his brain provides; but she has no interest in his success, no care whatever except to do the minimum of work.

"The real trouble with the world to-day is a moral trouble," said a thoughtful man recently. "A large proportion of its people have lost all conception of what it means to render an adequate service in return for the wages they are paid."

He is a generous man. On almost any sort of question his sympathies are likely to be with labor, and so are mine. I am glad that men work shorter hours than they used to, and in certain instances I think the hours should be even shorter. I am glad they are paid higher wages, and hope they may earn still more.

But there are times when my sympathy goes out to those in whose behalf no voice is ever raised—to the executives of the world, whose hours are limited only by the limit of their physical and mental endurance, who carry not merely the load of their own work, but the heartbreaking load of carelessness and stolid indifference in so many of the folks whom they employ.

Perhaps the most successful executive in history was that centurion of the Bible.

"For I am a man under authority, having soldiers under me," he said. "And I say to the man go, and he goeth; and to another, come and he cometh; and to my servant, do this, and he doeth it."

Marvelous man!

The modern executive also says "Go," and too often the man who should have gone will appear a day or two later and explain, "I didn't understand what you meant." He says "Come," and at the appointed time his telephone rings and a voice speaks saying: "I overslept and will be there in about three-quarters of an hour."

FILM VERSION TRUE TO BOOK

"Stella Dallas" At Majestic Shows as Written

"Stella Dallas", on the screen is an exact pictorial translation of the novel, according to the producer. It is showing now at the Majestic, through Wednesday. It unfolds a story of a typical American girl, in whose heart tumult rages and seeks romantic expression. Stella's love-life, her rise to the heights and her fall to the depths, is a dramatic X-ray, full of emotional climaxes and colored with vivid realistic revelations.

Plenty of laughter intersperses the action, while youth and beauty conspire to make of "Stella Dallas," a production which not only plumbs the feelings and lifts the spirit high, but in its thrilling progress, a brand of entertainment is unfolded that for sheer unalloyed pleasure has seldom been equalled on the screen.

A suprb cast, that admirably fits the author's conception, was selected with rare care and discrimination to interpret the characters that are known to the millions who have either read the novel or seen the play.

Belle Bennett, chosn as the seventy-third candidate for the role, plays Stella, to the life. Ronald Colman, romantic and manly, plays Stephen Dallas. Alice Joyce, gracious and refined, plays Mrs. Morrison. Jean Herscholt, the great character actor, plays Ed Munn, the wise-cracking, show-off riding master. Lois Moran, the child wonder, is the strange and beautiful Laurel, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., as a child of the block, plays the care-free collegian, Richard Grosvenor.

"Stella Dallas" is the first production of Samuel Goldwyn's to appear on United Artists Corporation schedule, and considered to be the most ambitious entertainment of his career.

Ring Lardner Has Rough Interview With Noted 'Prof.' and Starts Fight

By RING LARDNER

To the editor:

My assignment this week was to interview Prof. Offal, the man who has made a life-long study of the binomial theory, namely that a man and wife who live together over a period of years grow to look more like one another in direct proportion to the duration of coexistence, and in the same way a man or woman who is in any way connected with horses finally attains to the features and gait of a horse, in many cases achieving such an appetite for horse food that bare mention of a word like "oats" or "Otis" or "oasis" will cause he or she to drop their book or give up their euchre game and run off on a mad forage for the horses favorite viand, the oat.

"So Do I, You Big Bum," Replied Mrs. Offal, Throwing At Him And Missing Him, With a Bottle of Home-Made Chili Sauce.

The Professor Threw Both the Offal Girls Out Onto the Lawn Through the Screen.

A Chili Scene

I found Prof. and Mrs. Offal and the two Offal girls in their recently purchased home at Great Neck, in the guessing-room so called because each member of the family is asked every now and then to tell which room he is in and it is quite confusing inasmuch as the house consists of 56 rooms.

They were all lying on their stomachs, it being the professor's hobby that that mode of conveyance gives more play to the feet. At my entrance, the professor arose and threw both the Offal girls out onto the lawn through the screen.

(Editor's note: It was another of the professor's hobbies that the screens be kept up the year around so that the girls might be thrown out through the screens when au fait.)

(Author's note: No such a thing).

"Professor," was my opening remark, "I want to ask you two questions: The first is, do husbands and wives begin to look like each other when they have lived together long enough?"

"And what do you judge," he rejoined, "is long enough?

"Well," he said, "take my wife and I; we have lived twelve years, I consider that long enough."

"So do I, you big bum," replied Mrs. Offal, throwing at him, but missing him, with a bottle of home-made chili sance which neither should have missed.

How to Quit Betting

"And do you think Mrs. Offal looks like you?" was my next question.

"I certainly do," replied the professor.

"Hark! Trumpets far-off sounding!" was Mrs. Offal's next speech, and she jumped through the holes in the screens left by the girls.

Left alone with the professor, I asked:

"Well, what about horses?"

"Well, listen," he said: "I once bet on a jockey named Kummer who had ridden a horse so many times that they were almost twins. The horse's name was Exterminator. He had never lost a race. So one day, I went down to the books and pointed out that fellow and said I wanted to bet on him.

"I give six to five odds on what I thought was the horse. I was betting on the jockey. Exterminator win by a neck, but my horse loss by a head. And my jockey was behind their jockey by a haunch. So I am off the system of betting on horses that look just like jockeys."

"With that I was off the whole system in particular and Prof. Offal in general and tossed him through the screen after his wife and the Offal girls.

DON'T worry about that carbon in your motor. Put it to work! As a matter of fact, it's of real benefit when you use Conoco Ethyl Gasoline.

But with Conoco Ethyl Gasoline you can enjoy Conoco's extra miles—no matter how carbon-choked the cylinders may be. Yes—and these extra miles will be absolutely knockless.

Conoco Ethyl Gasoline is a combination of Conoco, the extra-miles gasoline, and Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound—a revolutionizing chemical product developed after years of research in the great laboratories of the General Motors Corporation. Don't confuse it with any other "anti-knock" fuel. It has no substitute. It is incomparable. It is the one fuel which takes you up higher hills on high without a knock.

SAFETY RULES AID MOTORIST

Pedestrians Most Flagrant Violators of Law

Willingness to co-operate with any reasonable form of traffic regulation is becoming increasingly manifest on the part of motorists and is reacting favorably in the interest of highway safety, according to James Boyle, executive secretary of Wichita Valley Auto Club with headquarters at the Holt hotel.

Simple Regulation.

In voicing this opinion Mr. Boyle declares that 1926 after having seen traffic control reach a scale that amounted to over regulation in some parts of the country, now is recording a trend toward simplification of the rules that govern the motor vehicle flow over American highways.

Automatic control devices have given a most adequate answer to those who maintain that the only way to keep traffic in order is to place motorcycle policemen where they can check the unruly driver. On the whole, the increasing adoption of the automatic traffic control system has reacted very favorably toward the motorist.

Surveys conducted in every city in the country where this system is in operation show virtually 100 per cent co-operation on the part of the motorist as against relatively small co-operation by the pedestrian. Figures gathered by the American Automobile Association, with which this club is affiliated, reveal that, in one large center where but one or two motorists had the temerity to run counter to the lights, literally thousands of pedestrians paid no attention to them.

Campaign Effective.

Safety sermons are having their effect. This is noticeable in the definite trend toward creating higher speed limits in a great many of the large centers of the country. Motor club officials everywhere have paid particular attention to the effect of this change.

Their observations reveal drivers do not regard the establishment of higher limits as giving them a right to drive at the more rapid rate regardless of the street conditions. This is obvious to anyone who notices the situation. In eastern cities where the speed limit is thirty miles an hour, not one driver in one hundred will attempt to make legal speed when the streets are wet and slippery. Reasonable regulation, greater co-operation is the reason.

Chevrolet Passes Three Million Mark In Production; Popularity Shown

Marking the latest spectacular achievement in its history as the world's largest builder of three-speed transmission cars, the Chevrolet Motor company today announces the production of its 3,000,000th car. The epoch-marking model, which happened to be a coach, was driven off the production line at the Flint plant by W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company. The first passenger was C. F. Barth, vice-president in charge of production.

President Drives It

Finished in St. James gray duco and fashionably striped in Pistache green, the milestone car flashed off the production line with scarcely more formality than attended the debut of number 3,000-001, which followed nine seconds later.

Immediately after the final inspection, Mr. Knudsen stepped on the starter and the princely 3,000,000th car purred away to give room to the long line of sedans, coaches, roadsters, etc., that were moving up with clock-like precision to the final inspection post.

Equipped with balloon tires, steel disc wheels, one-piece full crown fenders, bullet-type head lamps, streamline beaded Fisher body and other improvements incorporated this year, the coach displayed a distinct advance over its most illustrious predecessor, the 2,000,000th Chevrolet.

Rapid Growth

The 2,000,000th model was built after 14 years of production and the 2,000,000 only 14 months later, an indication of the rapid growth of the company, which now has production facilities prepared to build 1,000,000 units a year. Commenting on the achievement, Mr. Knudsen declared that the Chevrolet Motor company was grateful for the ever increasing public confidence in the company and its product, which made the feat possible.

"We are entering on what promises to be again our greatest year," he said, "and with a greatly improved product. I am sure that the motoring public will demand the 4,000,000th Chevrolet before 1928 is many weeks old."

NEW CHRYSLER WINS FAVOR

Quality and Performance In Model "80" Car

One of the sensations of the New York Automobile show was the first public display by Chrysler of a new Imperial "80" model—an entirely new, roomy, five passenger standard sedan, at the lowest price at which all the famous quality and performance of the Imperial "80" ever has been available.

The new car incorporates those easy riding features which have made this model one of the outstanding cars in the luxurious car group. The chassis is identical in detail of design and construction with that which in one short year since its introduction has earned an enormous public appreciation for being "As fine as money can build."

New Features

Foremost amongst the features which have made a first-year record for public patronage in its class are these:

The new standard sedan has an attractive finish in Haig green with black upper structure. Italian green striping adds to the color harmony. An unusually high grade of mohair upholstery harmonizes in color with the car ensemble. Broadcloth upholstery is available in a similar shade at slight additional cost.

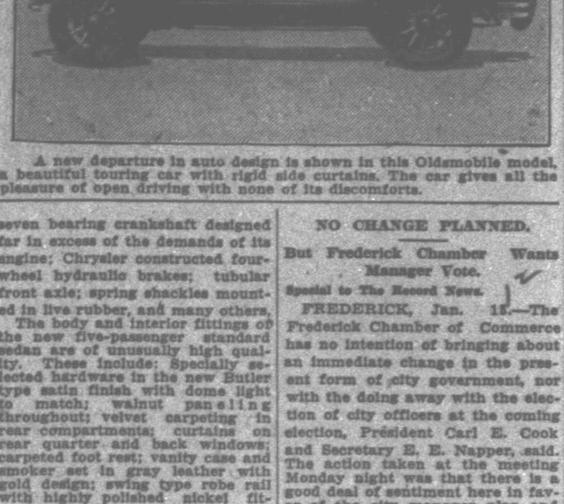

This new sedan incorporates all the outstanding quality features of the Imperial "80" model, of which these are a few:

Quality Car

Unusually sturdy and finely made chassis; firmly supported frame with seven cross mountings; seven bearing crankshaft designed far in excess of the demands of its engine; Chrysler constructed four-wheel hydraulic brakes; tubular front axle; spring shackles mounted in live rubber, and many others.

The body and interior fittings of the new five-passenger standard sedan are of unusually high quality. These include: Specially selected hardware in the new Butler type satin finish with dome light to match; walnut panelling throughout; velvet carpeting in rear compartments; curtains on rear quarter and back windows; carpeted foot rest; vanity case and smoker set in gray leather with gold design; swing type robe rail with highly polished nickel fittings; draught plates with felt padding around foot pedals and hand control lever—these and many other fine quality features are included in the unusual equipment in this fine car.

New Oldsmobile Model

A new departure in auto design is shown in this Oldsmobile model, a beautiful touring car with rigid side curtains. The car gives all the pleasure of open driving with none of its discomforts.

NO CHANGE PLANNED.

But Frederick Chamber Wants Manager Vote.

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Jan. 15.—The Frederick Chamber of Commerce has no intention of bringing about an immediate change in the present form of city government, nor with the doing away with the election of city officers at the coming election, President Carl E. Cook and Secretary E. E. Napper, said. The action taken at the meeting Monday night was that there is a good deal of sentiment here in favor of the city manager plan and the chamber deemed it a public service to petition an election on the issue.

BONUS POLICY

Banks Divided on Loans on U. S. Certificates.

A divided policy has been adopted by Wichita Falls banks with reference to making loans with soldier bonus certificates as collateral. Two banks are making loans in limited numbers to their regular customers, while two others have adopted a broader program and are not confining loans on a customer basis.

Neither the City National or the Wichita State are accepting bonuses as security on loans except to regular customers whose financial responsibility is known. Each bank, however, has made several loans of this nature, officers reported yesterday.

At the First National and Security National, however, some loans are being made to non-customers with the bonus certificates as collateral. The borrower, however, is being required to establish his financial responsibility and identity.

"We feel it is matter we owe the men," an official of the Security National said yesterday, "and at our last directors meeting we were authorized to make the loans. Right now we are out of the government blanks and must wait until we get another supply before more loans can be made, but we will have these in a short time."

TWO FACE CHARGES.

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Jan. 15.—Charges of assault with intent to kill were filed against Lee Roberts and his son, D. Roberts, in Justice C. S. Rosson's court in connection with the shooting of John Henry, negro, on Nov. 12. Bond was set for each at $1,000 and was immediately perfected. John Henry was wounded by a shot alleged to have been discharged by the elder Roberts after the negro had attacked his son.

EUROPE TURNS TO LIGHT SIX

American Models Win Favor In Foreign Field

Europe, with its great mass preference in the past for cars of the four-cylinder type, has shown a change of front this fall, the popular trend now turning in force to cars of light six-cylinder design. This complete reversal of former standards in the old world was the outstanding feature of the recent Paris salon and the Olympia automobile show at London.

Competition Keen

Great interest was centered at these shows on the new light sixes and it was generally admitted that European manufacturers were forced to produce cars of this type due to the invasion of American-manufactured sixes which have made deep inroads in sales in the European field.

The position established in Europe by the American-built Whippet, in the four-cylinder field, and the inroads of the light sixes as represented by the Overland six and others, in the next upward size class, was being keenly felt.

This fact was very apparent at the Paris salon as an indication that European manufacturers determined to add to the position of their time-honored, four-cylinder cars, a six-cylinder type built along American lines in an effort to stall off the Yankee invasion. Observers at the Paris salons declared that it is doubtful if any light six would have been produced this year by French makers had there not been offered the strong American competition. The ready acceptance of the light six disclosed that the European manufacturers had really made a popular move.

The Paris salon in the past has been made up almost entirely of Continental products, with only a few American and British cars on view. However, the 1926 show indicated not only the trend of Europe toward the light six car, but the American representation gave a clear cause for the alarm of the French car manufacturers in the sales field. To meet the European conditions and be enabled to offer competition to domestic products, it has been necessary for the American car to adopt a style of design along the European principles which include the small dimension motor of high power development, low hung body, and four-wheel brakes.

Standard Designs

This trend of Europe for the light six has come about in a short time. The Olympic show, as well as the Paris salon was remarkable for the large proportion of light six-cylinder cars among the new models. Nearly 70 per cent were sixes ranging from 100 cubic inches up, the majority of them being under 120 inches. At the 1925 show there was introduced but one new six, a decided contrast to the 1926 show where the sixes held full sway.

The Americanization of the European car and the adoption of the best ideas of European construction in the American car, is bringing about a design in both continents tending toward an internationalization of motor car standards, it is said. Europeans, however, point out that a complete internationalization of cars never will be possible until every American car builder incorporates the four-wheel brakes as standard equipment. To strengthen this they cite that not a passenger car manufactured on the continent, whatever its price, is built without brakes on the four wheels and no car is considered standard unless it is so equipped.

This European move toward the light six type, although it was sudden rather than gradual, has been met in America. In fact, Willys-Overland engineers immediately after the acceptance of the Whippet four which embraced the leading features and standards of European engineering, sensed the coming demand for a light six car of the Whippet type and immediately began plans which have resulted in the production of the six-cylinder Whippet, entirely different from any other light six ever offered the American motor buyers.

In the construction of the Whippet six the engineers have followed the general type of design laid down in the Whippet. Together with the European advantages in Whippet construction, the designers have incorporated in the Whippet six the highest American standards to meet the stern tests in this country to which cars are not subjected in Europe.

New Development

The Whippet six body also conforms to the same low hung, smart style of the Whippet with its low center of gravity to provide easy riding qualities and road stability. The four-wheel brakes, one of the individual features of the Whippet cars, also are standard equipment on the Whippet six.

In the development and production of the Whippet six, the Willys-Overland engineers not only set a standard in America but the Whippet advent into the foreign field, with its accepted high standard engineering ideas and features of both continents, promises strong competition for the new line of light sixes just introduced by the foreign manufacturers.

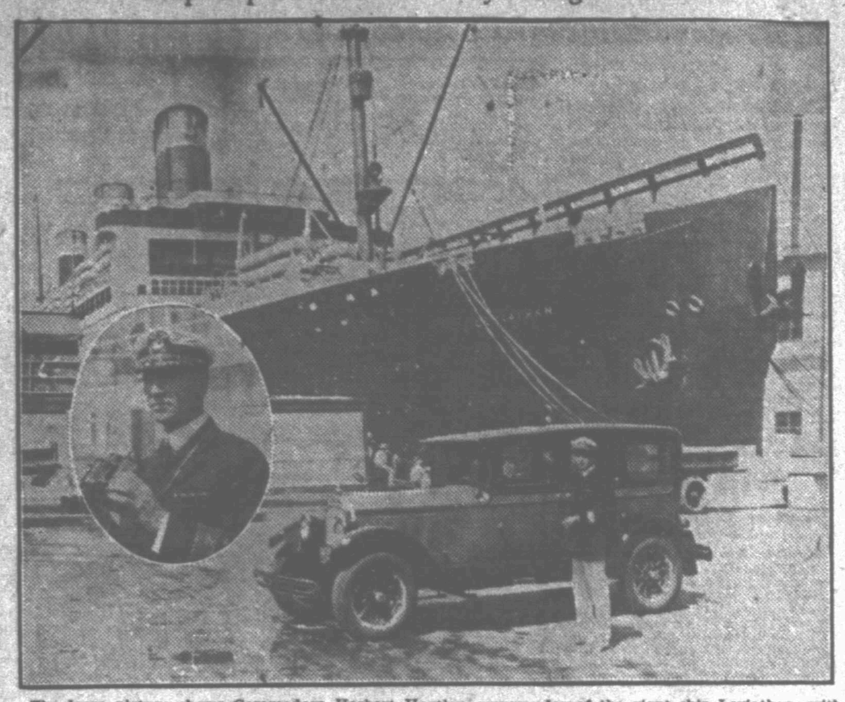

Observers who have witnessed the performance of the new Whippet six declare that it points to as radical a development in the light six-cylinder field in America as did the four-cylinder Whippet in its class.

Dodge Brothers Building Huge New Addition to Manufacturing Plant

Another important building program is in progress at Dodge Brothers. On November 1, ground was broken for another immense addition to the present manufacturing facilities. The concrete foundation are now in and steel work is being erected for a new brick and steel building 255 feet wide and 2200 feet long, affording under a single roof a floor space of more than 560,000 square feet.

Although built during the winter months, this immense new structure is going up with a rapidity equal to that with which Dodge Brothers during the war erected and equipped the 600 by 800-foot building to produce recoil mechanisms for 155 millimeter guns for the ordinance department. And the speed with which they completed that building, now occupied by Graham Brothers, the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc., was heralded as a remarkable achievement in modern building construction.

As the new building must be completed and in service March 15 the schedule which Dodge Brothers construction department has laid out provides that the various stages of the work shall progress with utmost dispatch.

Six steam shovels and a fleet of trucks have made the excavations for the foundations. Other trucks are bringing in the gravel and cement—21,000 yards of gravel and 27,000 barrels of cement are being used in the building. The concrete work must, of course, age for a certain number of days before supporting the weight of the steel frame-work. During this time it must be protected from frost.

The fabrication and erection of 4000 tons of structural steel, according to the schedule, must be completed within 30 days. Due to its exceptional length the building presents an expansion problem which has been solved by designing special expansion joints. The terrific strain which would otherwise be thrown on the structure is apparent when it is known that a 2200-foot length of steel, when the temperature rises from zero to 100 degrees, elongates over 13 1-4 inches.

The roofs are also scheduled to be completed within 30 days. The roofing and glazing, however, follow the steel work as fast as the individual sections are completed and painted.

The roof, and in fact the entire building, is of fireproof construction. The type of roof, referred to among builders as "pyro-fill," is applied like plaster over mesh of electrically welded heavy galvanized wire. Above the gypsum plaster is laid a four-ply covering of asphalt felt, bringing the total thickness up to three inches. This construction was decided upon to keep the building cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

NASH SETS RECORD

Sales For 1926 Show Increase of 41 Per Cent

The biggest year in the history of the Nash Motor company was 1926.

The Nash Advanced Six, Special Six and Light Six series, equipped with seven-bearing crankshaft motors and endowed with a wealth of features and appointments, literally took the automobile buying public by storm during the year just closed and swept sales 41 per cent ahead of sales for the previous year, 1925. In this connection, it is pointed out, another record was established from September 1 to December 31, last, when Nash sales exceeded by 13.8 per cent sales for the same period last year. Officials of the Nash Motors company are of the opinion that still another sales record will be established by Nash in 1927. New models, just introduced by the company and shown for the first time at the New York Automobile Show, they believe, will result in decided sales impetus and that the popularity of the Nash line this year will reach greater heights than ever before.

This is believed to constitute a world record in the merchandising of motor cars.

Dealers under the Van Alstyne Motor corporation gathered at its building on Broadway shortly before the New York Automobile show opened to be given a pre-viewing of the 1927 Hupmobile line of cars and to listen to a discussion of general policies, and the sales and merchandising plans under which the Hupp Motor Car corporation will operate in 1927.

That's Year's Review in Auto Industry

BY RAY PRIEST
(Universal Service Automobile Editor.)

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—The battle is on.

Forty-five manufacturers posted their first skirmish lines this week at the Twenty-Seventh Annual Automobile show in New York City.

The passenger car makers showed approximately 100 new models in the display of 300 cars at Grand Central Palace.

Casualties this year are expected to number about 15 companies. The 1926 casualties were 12 companies. Lines of three manufacturers who were building two or more lines were also eliminated. Trade authorities substantiate their prediction of the demise of 15 makers in 1927 with "cycle statistics" from over a period of seven or eight years past.

Annual Forecast

"The larger companies will be stronger and smaller companies weaker," announces a leading trade paper this week in a forecast for the year based on a comparison of the new models.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the General Motors corporation, in an address before the Oakland-Pontiac dealers in New York, predicted that 1927 would be fully as big a year as 1926. This indicates that Sloan, after seeing the new models was a little more "bullish" on the motor car business than in his new year predictions January 1.

"Personally I cannot see why the coming year will not be fully as prosperous as 1926," Sloan said in the course of his address. "Some experts seem to think differently, based chiefly on the argument that 1926 was so good that another year could hardly hope to be better. Good management and good cars will be the successful factors this year. Whether the 4,500,000 record of 1926 is reached again I am quite certain that Oakland-Pontiac business will be better."

General Motors Co. is now in the midst of an expansion program for this subsidiary which involves expenditures close to $17,000,000 in new factories and equipment at Pontiac.

Orgy of Lawmaking

Merle Thorpe, editor of "Nation's Business," speaking before the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce last week took occasion to rap what he termed "an orgy of lawmaking" that the United States is now going through.

He said 90 per cent of the problems involved could be solved by industries more efficiently than could the federal government with all of its regulatory methods.

The motor car industry was referred to by the speaker as "a young business which had shown many older ones the way in mass production, national advertising and establishment of mass credit."

Edsel Ford, J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce; Charles M. Schwab; C. S. Dewey, assistant secretary of the treasury; Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts; the presidents of virtually every passenger car and truck company and several hundred newspaper men attended.

The trend in the bigger cars is following a natural line toward greater luxury of finish and more convenience. Mechanical changes are overshadowed by the body work.

Individuality Sought

In the medium class field the new cars mark the beginning of an effort on part of makers to give greater individuality for a comparatively reasonable price. This is accomplished by a wider range of colors and greater employment of two and even three-tone color combinations, by making the driver's job more easy through employment of vibration eliminators, concentrated control guages and levers and easier braking control, by giving greater roadability through greater vision, spring and chassis design as only before offered in the most expensive cars, and deeper upholstery and by giving a bigger dollar and cents value.

OLDS TOURING CAR NEW TYPE

Added Conveniences Assured In 1927 Model

A new type touring car that brings the joy of the open without its disadvantages is the latest addition to the Oldsmobile line. The car has European-type rigid and removable side curtains which can be used with the top both up and down. It was shown for the first time during the week of the New York automobile show.

One of the outstanding advantages of the new design is the ability of motorists t oride in the open air, with top down, and yet be protected from wind and draughts by the rigid side curtains. Full version, of larger area than is usual in open cars, is another achievement of Oldsmobile designers in this new touring type.

Each of the four side curtains is composed of two metal frames welded at the corners. The large sheets of heavy pyralin, which form the windows, and the heavy waterproof fabric forming the edges, are placed between the two frames which are fastened together with 24 machine screws. This type construction gives great rigidity.

The curtains are installed by inserting two bronze rods attached to each frame in metal cups counterbunk in the top of the car doors. The front curtains fasten to and hinge on the inside of the windshield sidearm. The four curtains can be attached or removed without leaving the interior of the car.

When not in use the curtains are stored in a compartment behind the rear seat cushion back. The cushion is hinged at the bottom and swings forward from the top, making the compartment accessible without disturbing passengers in the rear seat. The storage space is so arranged that the curtains will not rub.

A new one-piece windshield also has bee nadded to both the standard and deluxe touring types. This opens from the bottom and swings forward and upward, being pivoted on a shaft running the full top width of the windshield. It is held in any desired position by two thumb screws located at the top of the windshield in easy reach of the driver. The shield has straight side supports and, when closed, i sealed against the weather.

The top is of greay waterproof fabric matching th ematerial used one the side curtains. It has exposed natural wood bows and black enameled slat irons instead of the conventional bow construction. It is equipped with a side weather strip the entire length on both sides, forming a seal against which the tops of the side curtain rest.

The top folds to a thickness of 8 1-4 inches and lays level with the top of the car body. A top boo tis furnished. A strap holds the rear window in a flat position both to eliminate any posibility of breakage and to keep it from bulging the folded top.

A new type and inconspicuous bracket holds the top in its folded position. The top is fastened to the bracket by a metal arm instead of the regulation leather strap. In addition to the utility of this feature it adds greatly to he rigidity of the folded top.

Wellington Man Proves Hog Raising Profitable Business On Small Farm

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Jan. 15.—T. M. Dukeminier, Wellington drayman, has proved to himself and to others that pure bred hogs can be successfully and profitably raised in West Texas.

Five years ago Dukeminier began raising hogs as a side line to his dray business, but it has grown into such proportion that he now states that the hogs pay better dividends than his dray line. In 1926 Dukeminier derived approximately $150 from the sale of pigs, and slaughtered $250 worth of pork for home consumption. He has six pupe bred Poland China brood sows left from which he will raise and market pigs this year. The hogs graise the year around on four acres of alfalfa, which keeps them in prime condition and are also fattened up on swill, which is secured at a local resturant and carted to the farm. This keeps the cost of production to a minimum. Besides the breeding of pure bred hogs Dukeminier keeps a fine flock of chicken which supply his table with eggs and fryers the year around.

At the Collingsworth County fair which was held in Wellington last September, Dukeminier exhibited several fine specimens from his Poland China herd, and besides winning the majority of blue ribbons, he also was awarded a silver loving cup for the champion male and female, all breeds competing.

CLARENDON, Jan. 15.—Forty of the 42 guest rooms of the new Hotel Antro in this city were occupied here last night. This is a record for the new management inasmuch as the hotel has been opened only 14 days. Receipts of the Clarendon and the Denver hotels were not affected by the new hotel here as the records for the same date for 1926 were compared and showed that these places had an increase over the same date for 1926. The Antro coffee shop and banquet room have not been finished yet but will be ready for an opening soon.

The grim reaper was cheated considerably in the county as the record of births was 213 as against only 49 deaths.

NATURE had endowed Marion Peters with two slits of green jade for eyes. They were seldom fully opened eyes, so that, with the white lids low and languid most of the time, she was as sensuous, as alluring a combination as jade and ivory, richly enhanced by masses of soot-black hair, which, in an age of bobbed women, she wore in two lustrous mats against her ears. Jade and ivory and ebony. When she was fifteen she changed her name to Sari and went into vaudeville. Almost from the start Sari, her exotic beauty, her slim, tall figure, her siren's manner of singing, her low-lidded eyes, her low-cut gowns, flaming Spanish shawls, red roses between redder lips, won her success.

At twenty, Sari was an established headliner. Men courted her favor. There were mash-notes in her pigeon hole in the letter case beside the stage entrances in whatever city she happened to be playing. Local artists here, there, and everywhere, craved the favor of painting her. Sari had a black Angora cat. The great supercilious creature traveled everywhere with her, in a hamper especially designed for its comfort. It had green slits for eyes, too.

The players on the bill with Sari used to refer to them as the Two Cats.

Jim Tully, who did a monologue act that had been a good stable success for years, had played circuit after circuit on the same bill with Sari.

He used to come on after her act with a rose between his lips and delight his audience with good-natured burlesque.

Secretly, his admiration for the sinuous Sari was one that was six or seven years old. Incredible as it may seem to those who visualize the vaudevilian's life as one of irresponsible vagabondage, these two, who had played the same bill time after time, knew one another by scarcely more than a "Hello", a "Well, here we are again," or "Well, what do you know about that!"

Jim could have recited to you precisely every one of the scant words these two had interchanged during the years their paths had crossed. He treasured them like so many flowers pressed between pages.

For seven years Jim entertained this rather hopeless unprogressive passion for Sari. The theatre, in its good-natured chaffing way, knew that Tully never failed to watch Sari act from the wings. Knew that Tully never failed to try to arrange his bookings to coincide with hers.

Probably everybody but Sari knew.

She went her way in a rather high-handed manner she had. There were men.

The two cats were none too well liked. Probably because of their mutual kind of aloofness. Neither were they actively disliked.

They belonged to a world apparently as exotic as their personalities. Jim realized this. Never, as he regarded Sari as she swept into a motor, or glided on for her act, was there anything except the meek adoration of a humble subject for his queen in his eyes.

But privately his love of her raged. It was to change his whole life. It was to swerve his destiny.

In the eighteen years Jim had done excellent monologues in his profession, he had amassed his nest egg. And every penny of it with a purpose. Jim was what he described as a blown-in-the-glass, dyed-in-the-wool farmer. With his first ten thousand dollars he had purchased some acres and a small white colonial farm house in Vermont which he called Dunwanderin. Every break in his schedule Jim spent there. Every Christmas. Every summer holiday. Every penny he amassed was banked with an eye to his ultimate retirement to Dunwanderin.

The day that Jim Tully arrived at his fortieth year, there were forty thousand dollars laid snugly by and the hour of his retirement had arrived.

A ten-thousand-dollar farm paid for to the penny and forty thousand additional for the security of old age.

Twenty years of knocking about, here, there, everywhere. One-night stands. Three-a-day shows. Bad hotels. Worse beds. Early trains. Late trains. Draughty theatres. And now retirement, in the full hey-dey of his physical well being, to the life of a gentleman farmer. The life that he loved. The life that he had dreamed of all of his years of grind.

But because there was a white-skinned, green-eyed woman named Sari, a woman so of another world that he had never in all the years dared to more than exchange a few words in passing; because there lived an exotic Sari, Jim Tully, plainest of fellows, was to have the entire course of his life changed.

The thought of a life that did not include these bookings on the same bill with Sari was intolerable. Even though she never gave him more than the most fleeting smile or glance, life without those prospects was not to be endured.

With his dream practically come true, Jim, poor Jim, could not make the break. With every pore of his body yearning, aching, sighing "Sari," what was there to do but continue to beg the scant crumbs that fell from her table?

It was intolerable to retire to a simple farm world that did not contain her.

Around Christmas of the winter Jim had planned to take permanent possession he sold his farm. To a firm of brokers who bought it from him at a nice profit. Jim sold his farm and at the same time sold his future to the open road. The making of trains at strange hours. The draughty corridors and wings. The bad hotels and the worse beds. A world made endurable because it contained Sari.

And then one day, the week before Christmas, the absolutely incredible happened. Sari stopped him as they were passing in the draughty wings of the theater they were both playing in Boston.

"Oh, Mr. Tully," said Sari, and in the gloom of the wings her eyes were greener than ever—"I'm wondering—Christmas week—you're not playing, are you?"

Slits of green jade for eyes.

Hair of jet.

"N-no."

"Mother and I—would you spend it with us—at—er—my little place in Vermont—dream of my life come true—just bought it through my brokers—darEngest little place in the world—called Dunwanderin—will you spend it with us, Mr. Tully?"

Fantastic Human Sacrifice of Three Austrian Boys at the Tomb of the Tragic Baroness Vetsera, Heroine of the Meyerling Mystery, Whom They Adored in Vivid "Waking Dreams."

Old Newspaper Headlines About the Meyerling Tragedy, Advancing the Double Suicide Theory as Its Cause. Even Today the Mystery Remains Unsolved.

By NELSON JUNIUS SPRINGER.

VIENNA.

SUICIDE is not an unusual occurrence in these dark after-the-war days in the Austrian capital, yet the police were frankly puzzled by the strange self-inflicted deaths of three good-looking Viennese lads recently. These young men shot themselves in a triple pact to honor Baroness Maria Vetsera, beautiful noblewoman, who killed herself for love twelve years before the oldest of the three boys was born.

The suicides are admittedly the most astonishing in the annals of the city. None of the boys was related to the celebrated Vetsera; none of them was of noble birth.

They were clerks, the sons of middle-class families. The oldest was 24, the youngest 22.

George Doliner, 22, was employed as a substitute worker on half-time at a branch postoffice. Both Ewald Laumann, 24, and Heinrich Bur, 22, held clerical positions in banks.

The boys, who were inseparable and went everywhere together, took Maria Vetsera, the lovely mistress of Crown Prince Rudolph, as their heroine. They shot themselves at different times in the cemetery close to her grave, leaving word that they wanted to be buried near her.

It was on the morning of January 30, 1890, that Maria Vetsera and her royal lover, Crown Prince Rudolph, were found dead in the Hapsburg castle at Meyerling.

The whole affair was hushed up as much as possible because of the scandal and the details of the tragedy have never been made plain. Unfortunately, this had a different effect than that which the old Emperor, Franz Josef, hoped for.

"The Meyerling Mystery," as it came to be called, has piqued the interest of the world for thirty-seven years. Every few years it would be "solved" all over again by some enterprising journalist, or some secret explanation purporting to come from official sources would be unearthed.

The truth is the Meyerling mystery is as much a mystery as it was thirty-seven years ago. Everyone believes that the romantic lovers killed themselves, but there has always existed a dark hint that they were murdered.

The Crown Prince Rudolph, a dreamy-eyed, handsome, wayward young man, was married to the Princess Stephanie of Belgium, but he was madly in love with the Baroness Vetsera, one of the beauties of Viennese society. Maria, in turn, adored him.

The young Prince did not love Stephanie and he tried desperately to have the marriage annulled. He told the Pope he had been forced into wedlock with the Belgian Princess by Emperor Franz Josef.

The Emperor was furious at Rudolph's defiant manner. He took the attitude that if Rudolph wished to keep the Baroness Vetsera in the background as his secret sweetheart, such a state of affairs might be winked at. But to come out openly and try to upset the marriage of state! The cynical old man decided discipline was needed in his son's case. He ordered Rudolph to give up Vetsera entirely and "never see her again." Rudolph refused point blank.

On January 30 the presence of the Crown Prince was required at a court ball in the Hofburg, but he did not appear. Franz Josef was enraged when he learned that Rudolph was at Meyerling, for he guessed that his son was with Maria. He dispatched a royal equipage with the stern command that Rudolph come to the ball. Perhaps the arrival of the Emperor's messenger brought home to Rudolph and Maria the futility and essential tragedy of their love, thus leading them to join their names to the immortal company of Romeo and Juliet.

At any rate, another messenger tore back to the Emperor a few hours later with news of the death of the pair. It was officially called suicide. They apparently had shot themselves simultaneously and died in each other's arms.

Rudolph was popular with the people, and his love for Maria Vetsera was regarded as romantic and ideal. Their tragic end completed the process of their endearment in the hearts of the Austrian people, and the legends that grew up around their names perpetuated their memories. In these later days, when all Austrians are sore of heart, the recollection of their beloved Prince and his sorrowful mistress has been a source of curious and special comfort, as if, through their tears, the lovers had made common cause with their people.

So we come back to the three unfortunate Viennese boys, Ewald Laumann, Heinrich Bur and George Doliner. They were good lads, as the police investigation disclosed, and apparently healthy in mind and body.

Doliner, for instance, was one of a family of several children; he earned $17 a month on his half-time job in a branch post office. It is quite an achievement in present-day Austria for anyone to earn as much as $17 a month at part-time clerical work. Also, he was in line for advancement and slated for a full-time position soon.

The three boys went to the theatre and the movies together and for long walks. But their parents saw nothing unusual in their friendship. Not until after their death was a clue to their secret mutual passion found in the large number of books and pictures on Rudolph and Maria Vetsera which each one possessed and kept in his room. They had created a "cult of worship" of the beautiful Vetsera.

Within the past year or so in Vienna there has been a strong revival of public interest in the principals of the Meyerling mystery. A short while ago, Borghese, an Italian dramatist, wrote a play on the love of Rudolph and Maria. It was produced by Max Reinhardt and achieved a huge success in Vienna, where Doliner, Laumann and Bur saw it. The play made a deep impression on them.

Shortly afterward came a moving picture dealing with the same theme. The three friends saw it, not once, but again and again. Through it the figure of Vetsera became crystallized into actuality for them. Psychologists believe that their emotionally-starved minds saw in the make-believe death of the screen actress who impersonated Vetsera, something real and of today. This actress, Maria Corda, is said to resemble Vetsera to a considerable extent. And, of course, she heightened his resemblance with the deft assistance of make-up. Likewise, the actor who impersonated Crown Prince Rudolph achieved a triumph in realism.

The three young votaries to the memory of Maria Vetsera, who lived with this lovely revived image of her and dwelt on her death constantly, were moving toward the moment when they would make a supreme sacrifice on the fantastic altar they had erected in their minds to her service.

But they were still afraid to talk openly of their suicide plan to one another.

Shortly after, Laumann and Bur made a pilgrimage to the little cemetery at Heiligenkreuz, where Vetsera lies buried. While there Laumann wrote on her tomb:

"It would be beautiful to lie here but not alone."

After he had inscribed this line, the two friends departed in devotional silence.

Laumann, having thus taken the initiative, continued to lead the way. The following Saturday he bought a beautiful red rose, which he told his sister had cost him 15,000 kronen (almost 25 cents). He then returned with Doliner to Maria's grave at Heiligenkreuz.

Just what happened next has never been learned. Laumann was found lying dead across the Baroness' grave, the rose in his hand, a bullet through his brain.

Doliner was arrested. He said at first that he had shot Laumann. He made every effort to conceal the real motive for the death, although the police could not understand why, since it was an act in Vetsera's honor.

The police thought at first that Doliner had shot Laumann, intending to turn the gun on himself, but had lost his nerve. Later they decided that, although Doliner lost his nerve, Laumann shot himself. At any rate, they decided that Doliner was innocent of murder and they released him.

Meanwhile they turned their attention to Bur. They went to the Zentralbank, where he was employed, arrested him and took him away for examination. It was the day of Laumann's funeral and the arrest prevented his attending it. He was much distressed by this.

The next day he was released. He returned home and told his landlady he was going to visit his friend's grave. He then rode out to Heiligenkreuz, but instead of going toward Laumann's grave he made for the tomb of Maria Vetsera. He ran along the little road lined with chestnut trees that leads to it, and the moment he reached the grave turned his revolver on himself. He was lifted from the grave dying.

No sooner had cemetery attaches and the police carried off Bur and obtained a statement from him that partially cleared up the mystery than Doliner reached the deserted cemetery.

This time his nerve did not fail him. He shot himself beside Vetsera's tomb, his body falling on about the same spot where Bur's had lain. When found he was dead. In his hand was a sheet of paper with the single scribbled line, "Bury us by the side of Vetsera."

It may be difficult for anyone living on the Western Continent to understand how the three boys could go to death for such a phantom ideal. But psychologists say that in post-war Vienna, a gloomy city of frustrated lives, anything can happen. They believe the long brooding of the three chums led them to think of Maria Vetsera as someone they had known. Their minds broke under the strain. The tragedy followed.

To perform this trick you attach a small disc of flesh-colored cardboard to a piece of elastic which runs up your left sleeve and is securely fastened in place with a safety pin. Answer to Last Week's Cross-Word Puzzle

How One Drop of Ink Destroyed the "Second Darwin"

Tragedy of Dr. Paul Kammerer, Young Viennese, Who Thought He Had Revolutionized Modern Science.

Dr. G. Kingsley Noble, Youthful American Scientist, Who Exploded Prof. Kammerer's Theory of the Inheritance of Acquired Characteristics.

Speckled Toad Similar to Those Used in Prof. Kammerer's Experiments. Arrow Points to Thumb at Which Point, According to Dr. Noble's Findings, the Drop of Ink Had Been Injected to Simulate the Nuptial Pads Common Only to Water Frogs.

Prof. Paul Kammerer, Noted Austrian Biologist and Widely Known as the "Second Darwin," Who Ended His Life Following Dr. Noble's Expose of His Experiments.

ONE drop of India ink cost the life of Dr. Paul Kammerer, eminent Austrian biologist. A small, almost microscopic, bit of coloring matter, yet bulking sufficiently large to blast the work of a lifetime for the scientist hailed by certain elements in Europe and America as a second Darwin.

Injected under the skin of the specimen frog upon which he depended to prove his theory of the inheritance of acquired characteristics, it branded Kammerer an apparent faker and stamped him as the Barnum of the scientific world.

Stunned and bewildered, Kammerer could not explain away the pin-point of ink. He could only protest, insisting that his experiments had been conducted in good faith. So he indited a farewell letter to his friends and colleagues and sent a bullet crashing through his brain. "I feel it is impossible," he wrote, "to survive my life work's destruction."

The expose that ended in tragedy was brought about by an inquisitive young American scientist, one out of Harvard only a few years, but who already has won distinction as an authority on reptiles and amphibia. He is Dr. G. K. Noble, biologist on the staff of the American Museum of Natural History. Visiting Vienna last Summer for the purpose of checking on Kammerer's claims, Noble asked for, and received, permission to examine the midwife toad upon whose thumbs the Viennese claimed to have developed the nuptial pads common only to water frogs.

Here, in substance, are Noble's findings as published in the British scientific weekly, Nature:

"The question that I wished to settle by personal examination was whether or not this toad possessed on its thumbs the so-called nuptial pads common to water frogs. These are small, blackish, pads with rough surfaces, used for courting the female. If this toad actually had such pads it would appear to support Kammerer's claims; if it did not possess them, his claims had nothing to support them save his own word and some photographic evidence of questionable value."

Noble noticed almost immediately, he said, that the thumb pads lacked certain of the characteristics of such pads. These were smooth and bore no traces of the tiny, epidermal spines which should have been apparent. He was amazed to see that the color appeared under the microscope to be below the outer skin, rather than in it.

"The left wrist had been lacerated," Noble continued. "A slight pushing aside of the muscles revealed that the ventral wrist and part of the palmar muscles were surrounded by coloring matter. This was in such abundance that it readily washed out in the water of the dissecting dish. It was immediately clear that these blackened areas were not nuptial pads; that is, patches of pigmented asperites, for the epidermis was not thrown up into spines. Further, the coloring matter was not epidermal, but was distributed in great masses under the skin between the muscles, and even in many of the capillaries on both dorsal and ventral surfaces of the left manus."

A series of laboratory tests revealed the black substance taken from the frog's muscles to be ink. Noble's article in Nature followed.

The American's findings were a bombshell that rocked two camps—that of Kammerer and his disciples and that in which dwelt the scientists of the classic school. The biologist hurriedly re-examined his priceless specimen, but was forced to admit the truth of Noble's charges. He found, he said, a trace of foreign coloring matter beneath the frog's skin, but denied passionately any knowledge as to how it got there. He could account for it only as the work of a jealous or well-bribed subordinate. Then he retired to his laboratory to die amid the ruins of his life work.

D'Annunzio has been described, and rightfully so, as the stormy petrel of literature and the drama, and by the same token, Kammerer probably will go down in history as his counterpart in the field of science.

For the whilom associate of Dr. Eugene Steinach, famous as the discoverer of the Steinach method of rejuvenating aged bodies, and later associated with Dr. Harry Benjamin, to whose fashionable offices in West Seventy-fifth street in New York come the elite of Eastern America, appears deliberately to have chosen the thorny path throughout his career.

He ever has been in the thick of the controversial, the sensational, giving back the lusty blows of his antagonists with interest thereon. And sometimes usurious interest.

Kammerer's first serious claim to fame was the publication of his book called "The Law of Series." In this he presented material purporting to show that what we regard merely as curious coincidences are but the working of a law which causes events of a particular character to occur in series. He claimed to have obtained numerous results proving that acquired characteristics may be inherited.

And in the last named experiments he took direct issue with the formidable Weissman theory, which is as important to biology as Newton's law of gravitation is to physics. Weissman made experiments which proved to his satisfaction that acquired characteristics could not be inherited. That is to say, a father would not pass on to his children the good or bad habits that he acquired during his lifetime. He cut off the tails of twenty generations of white mice, he said, but each baby rodent born of these animals was fully equipped as regards to a tail.

The Vienna biologist came to visit New York at the instance of many distinguished scientists, and, upon the urging of his American publishers, later undertook a course of lectures when it was made evident that the country at large was interested in his claims.

Here are a few of the startling things he told his American auditors:

That the child of a Paderewski should have remarkable use of its hands.

That negroes might become wholly white after generations of unfamiliarity with the tropic sun.

That women of fifty might turn back the hand of time and become once again thirty-five.

That future generations shall arrive with ease at knotty conclusions which even the wisest men of the present must struggle to attain.

Eventually, Kammerer insisted, man will be able to manipulate his own destiny, just as he (Kammerer) had manipulated the destiny of toads.

These experiments with the midwife toad were at once the foundation stone of Kammerer's fame and the cause of his downfall.

They brought the biologist praise, criticism and finally, after publication of Noble's findings, the nepenthe of death.

Hatched in the water, the midwife toad spends most of its life on land. When the female lays her eggs the male obligingly takes charge of them, going into the water with them glued to his hind legs. There they hatch tadpoles, which, after they have developed legs, take also to the land. Kammerer claimed he had successfully divided this species into two families; he said he had caused some to lose their instinctive tendency to take to the water for hatching; others to lose their desire for the land and become thoroughly aquatic in their habits. He explained that he accomplished this by keeping some of the toads in enclosures in which there was no water. These were forced to hatch their eggs in the air. Others the scientist kept in tanks in which the only land available consisted of small islands, the temperature of which was so warm as to cause the creatures to seek the water after a while to cool off.

Kammerer contended that the male midwife toads which he compelled to live altogether on land eventually lost the egg-carrying habit common to their kind, whereas the males forced to exist in the water developed—after a few generations—the nuptial pads common only to water frogs.

His sensational claims created quite a stir in the world of science, particularly as they contradicted the Weissman theory that acquired characteristics could not be inherited, which had been generally accepted. It was probably this clash of theories which first prompted Dr. Noble's interest and resultant expose.

Kammerer's experiments, painstakingly conducted over a period of years, have been voided; the whole structure of his fame has toppled, due to the discovery of the one drop of India ink. But before he died the Vienna scientist had heard himself described by Dr. G. F. H. Nuttall, professor of biology at Cambridge University, as "the man who has made perhaps the greatest biological discovery of the century."

Dr. Nuttall continued: "'Here was evolution produced to order; proved in a laboratory, before one's eyes. Here was a man changing the planes of nature; not merely altering one creature, but forcing upon creatures characteristics which they would hand down to future generations."

He was acclaimed, too, by members of the British Natural History Society, who said of him that he "began where Darwin left off."

And, all too late to save his life, colleagues of the "second Darwin" are seeking to salvage his reputation. They are loath to believe that Kammerer would stoop to a faker's trick to gain ephemeral fame, pointing to the dead man's willingness at all times to allow other scientists to examine his specimens. He is credited, too, with accepting voluntarily a secondary role in his association with Steinach in the latter's rejuvenation work. It was Kammerer, these friends declare, who supplied the biological data upon which Steinach founded his entire theory. He was interested in rejuvenation, but he was bound up in what he considered his more important mission. So these friends have asked of the Austrian Government that a commission be appointed to investigate the theory put forward in the suicide letter—the belief that some subordinate, either envious or paid, had tampered with the specimen by injecting the drop of ink, the microscopic drop of coloring matter that undid a lifetime of work and caused an eminent scientist to take his own life.
