U.S., Soviets reach arms agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union have reached an "agreement in principle" to ban medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles and have agreed that President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev will hold a summit before the end of the year, Reagan announced today.

The treaty — Reagan's first arms accord with the Soviet Union — would be the first to ever ban an entire class of nuclear weapons.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze called the agreement "a common success for all mankind, for all civilization."

The president said Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who settled major differences in a 9½-hour negotiating session Thursday, will meet in Moscow next month to work out the rest of the details and set the date and agenda for a summit in the United States, presumably in Washington.

In a nationally televised announcement at the White House, Reagan said that the three days of U.S.-Soviet talks in Washington showed the two sides "have serious differences in many areas, (but) the tone of the talks was frank and constructive and notable progress was made.

"I'm pleased to note that an agreement in principle was reached to conclude an INF treaty" and to work out details for a summit with Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev "later this fall."

Shevardnadze, at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy minutes after Reagan's nationally televised announcement, noted that he and Shultz had met hours beyond their original plan and said, "The road to an agreeement ... turned out to be more difficult than anyone had thought."

He said that "over the last few days we have experienced a series of emotions, from anxiety to uplift. The day before yesterday, I said to Secretary Shultz that it is time to bring in the harvest. And he agreed."

Events added to fair

Silent auction, Critter Parade

The Scurry County Fair, set to open a three-day run next Thursday, will have at least two new special features this year--a silent auction for adults and a "Critter Parade" for youngsters.

The silent auction has been devised as both a fund raiser for the Scurry County Fair Association and as a means of clearing away fair entries in the baked goods and ag produce competition divisions.

On the final day of the fair, Saturday, Sept. 26, persons who entered both divisions will be asked to donate their entries for the auction.

Bidding on the items--which will range from cakes and pies to watermelons--will begin at 1 p.m. and will continue through 6 p.m. that day. The highest bidder will receive the product.

Money from the silent auction will be used to defray costs of the fair. Superintendents and associates for the two divisions include: baked goods, Trissa Green, Fredda Cook, Peggy Remington and Terry Webb; and ag products, Wayne Eubank, Deanna Myers and Brenda Lee.

The "Critter Parade" will allow county youngsters to display "all types" of small pets in competition, a contest which will consider both the pet and the pet owner.

Categories will include barnyard pets, dogs and cats, birds and "others," a division which could range from turtles to gold fish.

Contest sponsors note, however, that large animal pets such as horses or cattle will not be accepted and all pets entered must be "contained" by their owner.

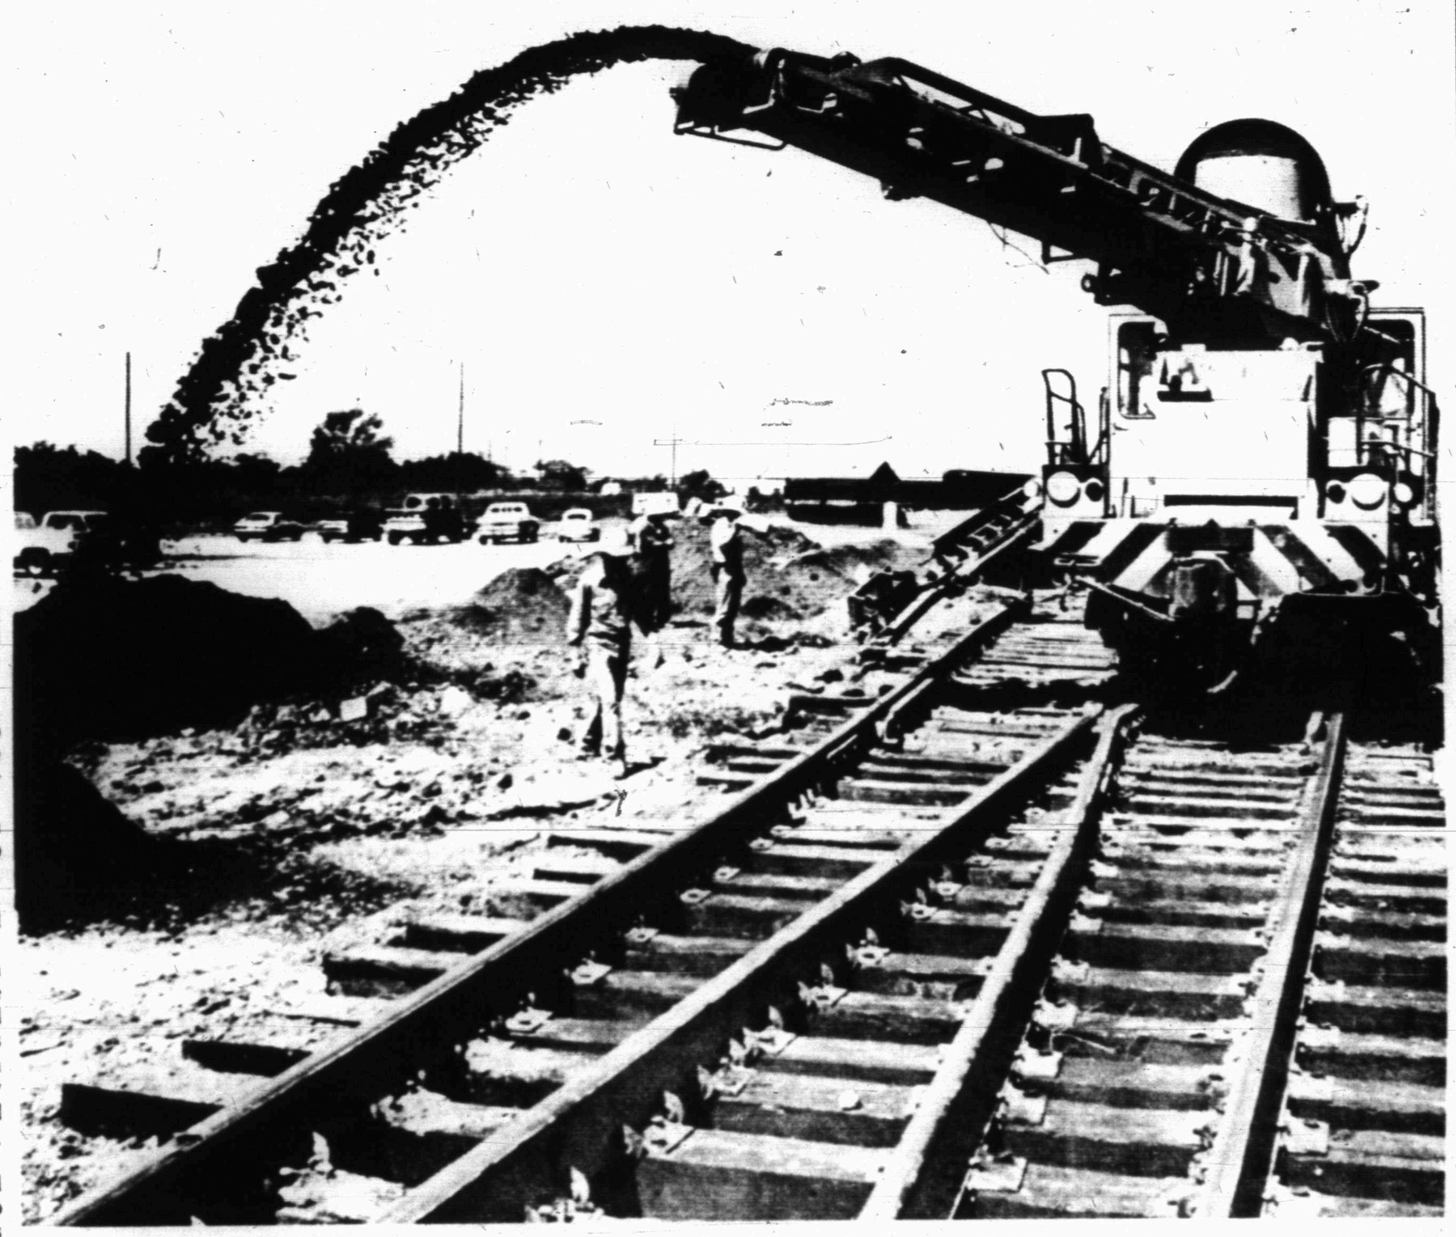

Also, costumes on both pets and pet owners will be allowed. The "Critter Parade" itself will begin at 7 p.m. next Friday, Sept. 25, at the ag annex.

No entry fee is required and pets may be signed up at 6:30 p.m. that day.

The age group divisions will include pre-school, kindergarten and first grade; and second and third grade. Three classes of ribbons will be given and all those participating will receive a participation ribbon.

Fair officials in charge of the Critter Parade inlcude Carolyn Barbee, who may be contacted at 573-6733; and Mike Herring, 573-

WORKING ON THE RAILROAD — Santa Fe workmen operate the $1.3 million Plasser "undercutter" which has been repairing the railway roadbed through Snyder since Wednesday. Vaquero exhibit due Saturday at museum

A new exhibit, "El Vaquero: Genesis del Cowboy Texano," will open at the Scurry County Museum Saturday as part of the local observance of Mexican Independence Day.

A collection of more than 100 photographs will profile the world of the vaquero.

Also this weekend, the annual Diez y Seis event, which celebrates Mexico's independence from Spain, is planned at the Latin American Center here.

On loan from the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, "El Vaquero" features an accompanying text in English and Spanish "with an intimate view of Mexican vaqueros and their everyday work on a large ranch in northern Mexico."

The photographs were taken by Austin writer-publisher William Wittliff.

Many of the ranching skills and techniques developed by vaqueros--adapting to terrain which included thorny mesquite bushes and vast areas with sparse vegetation--are still practiced today.

The Diamond M Museum of Fine Art also will have an exhibit in observance of the event.

The county museum and art museum will be open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. The county museum, on the south side of the WTC campus, is open weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Diamond M Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

Today marks deadline for 'abuse' workshop

Friday afternoon and night marks the final opportunity for locals to register for the Substance Abuse Workshop to be sponsored by the Scurry County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Cliff Smith, chairman of the council, said limited space is available and that preregistration is required. He encouraged those as yet unsigned to contact either him or Nancy Smith by Friday night.

To register, persons may contact Cliff Smith at 573-9963 or Nancy Smith at 573-0109.

The three-day workshop will be Oct. 9-11. Tutition is $100 per person which covers the cost of tuition, workshop materials and refreshments.

The purpose of the workshop is to expand the knowledge, recognition, identification, intervention, prevention and understanding of adolescent chemical abuse.

Topics scheduled include chemical use among adolescents, pharmacology, suicidal behavior prevention, family dynamics, intervention, assessment and recovery, insight training, school programming and community networking.

SHL funding solicited here

Funds have been established at Snyder's three banks for donations toward the Silver Haired Legislature (SHL), the nonprofit, non-partisan organization which serves as an advocacy agent in Austin for the state's senior citizens.

Donations, which are tax deductible, will go toward such items as mailing expenses. The legislators elected to serve in the SHL, a group which includes Snyder's Delbert Downing, serve without pay.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Folks who aim for service usually wind up with an extra bonus--success."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, says it's a tossup between coffee shops and beauty shops for the latest and most juicy tidbits.

Crabtree said a woman recently entered the shop and exclaimed, "Dah-ling! Have I got some steamy gossip for your ears."

Then she quickly adds, "But you'll have to pay close attention. Don't miss a word. When I heard it, I was told to never, but never repeat it. And I never repeat gossip."

Marshall Day, in the Seminole Sentinel, said recent thunderstorms yielded the following:

The mother was just about to finish tucking her young son into bed and turn off the light when he asked with a tremor in his voice, "Will you sleep with me tonight?"

The mother smiled and gave him a reassuring hug. "I can't do that, dear," she explained. "I have to sleep in Daddy's room."

A long silence was broken at last by a shaken little voice saying, "The big sissy."

Walter Buckel, in the Lamesa Press-Reporter, said a local citizen came into his office recently and was adamant that he didn't want his name in the newspaper--not for any reason.

Buckel had this advice, "If you don't want anyone to know, don't do it."

Business files theft charges

A 24-year-old Snyder woman was arrested for felony theft Thursday in connection with the disappearance of $979 from Taylor Petroleum and its local Taylor Food Mart, 3400 College Ave., where she had been employed.

Johnnie L. Preston of 207 Ave. N was released from Scurry County Jail after posting a $2,000 bond on the charge, law enforcement officers said.

She was arrested at 1:06 p.m. Thursday after a Taylor Petroleum executive notified police of the theft at 11:21 a.m.

Constitution party continues

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Constitution, fresh from its red, white and blue 200th birthday party across America, enters its third century today with a ceremony commemorating its first public reading and a look to the future.

"What we want to do now is focus on the ratification process," said former Chief Justice Warren Burger, who joined President Reagan in ceremonies Thursday near Independence Hall, where the Constitution was signed Sept. 17, 1787.

Philadelphia's $6 million bash was the centerpiece of hundreds across the nation as "We, the people ..." rang bells, paraded, saluted the flag, became citizens, and launched fireworks in tribute to the Constitution.

The commemoration in the birthplace of the Constitution began with a graveside ceremony and a parade, included a speech from President Reagan and hit a high note with a bell-ringing ceremony heard 'round the world.

Fireworks from seven barges painted the sky with rockets' red glare during a half-hour show over the Delaware River, and 1,600 guests at a star-studded black-tie affair paid tribute with songs, skits and speeches.

"In the Soviet Union under glasnost you have freedom of speech," said Soviet emigre comedian Yakov Smirnoff. "Here, you have freedom after you speak, also."

The Constitution became law when New Hampshire ratified it nine months after 39 of its framers signed it. The Bill of Rights, the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, was ratified Dec. 15, 1791.

"Four years from now, the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights will be an even bigger celebration," said Democratic presidential candidate Jesse Jackson. "It has given this Constitution soul and vitality."

Jackson, while noting the Constitution excluded women and blacks, called it "the envy of governments around the world because it has endured."

Today is the 200th anniversary of the first public reading of the Constitution, which was drafted in secret. The Pennsylvania Legislature, which heard that reading, planned to meet in ceremonial session today in Philadelphia.

At a town meeting tonight, Jackson, former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark and feminists Gloria Steinem and Eleanor Smeal were scheduled to address the state of civil rights today.

Elsewhere, every baby born Thursday in North Dakota was given a copy of the Constitution, courtesy of the state Bar Association.

Rhode Island — which was called Rogue Island because it boycotted the Constitution Convention and was the last of 13 states to ratify — paid homage to the document Thursday in the Supreme Court chambers with readings of the Constitution's preamble and Bill of Rights.

On the New York-New Jersey border, the largest free-flying flag in the country, 5,400 square feet, was unfurled on the George Washington Bridge.

In Philadelphia, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Gov. Robert P. Casey placed a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary War Hero. Then more than 20,000 marchers stepped off on a route lined by about 200,000 in a steady rain. Organizers had expected 750,000 spectators.

Speaking later near Independence Hall, Reagan called the world's first constitution "the triumph of human freedom."

Mineta recalls 1942 internment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Norman Mineta tried to keep his voice steady as he read aloud a letter his father had written to friends in 1942, shortly after the family was herded onto a train bound for a World War II internment camp.

"I looked at Santa Clara Street from the train over the subway. I thought this might be the last look at my loved home city. My heart almost broke and suddenly hot tears just came pouring out, and the whole family cried out, and could not stop until we were out of our loved county," Mineta told his House colleagues Thursday.

Mineta, D-Calif., wiped his eyes as he finished reading. He had been 10 years old and wearing his Cub Scout uniform when the train left the station in San Jose. He was 12 when his family was allowed to return home.

And he was 55 when at last the House, on the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, approved apologies and compensation for Japanese-Americans deprived of their civil liberties during the wartime internment program.

In what supporters repeatedly termed an act of penance or atonement, the House passed the Civil Liberties Act of 1987 by a margin of 243-141. Senate passage of a similar bill is expected next week.

The measure includes a national apology to the 120,000 citizens and residents of Japanese ancestry who were relocated, confined, held in custody or otherwise deprived of liberty or property under the internment program.

It also authorizes $50 million for a public education fund on the program and, in a section that generated considerable controversy, $1.2 billion for $20,000 restitution payments to some 60,000 internees who are still alive.

And it directs federal agencies to review criminal convictions related to violations of the internment law as well as applications for restitution of positions, status or other losses attributable to discriminatory federal actions.

Marijauna is found on plane

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A twin-engine airplane that crashed-landed in Lubbock was carrying 600 pounds of marijuana and two men, including a former employee of state Sen. Tati Santiesteban.

Robert T. Jenkins, 54, of El Paso, was in critical condition at Lubbock General Hospital. Jenkins maintains an office in Santiesteban's law firm.

The other man, identified as James Bentley, 42, was in serious condition and is believed to be from Abilene.

Federal agents tracked the Cessna 340A from the U.S.-Mexican border across two states until it crash-landed in a cotton field near the Lubbock airport Thursday.

"We followed it to Clovis, N.M., where it landed," U.S. Customs Service spokesman Charles Conroy said. "They probably became aware they were being tracked there and immediately took off."

The pilot made a pass at Lubbock International Airport and went around in a second attempt at landing, but he came up short of the runway and had to make a crash landing, he said.

Organ Donations Enable Life to Come From Death

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last month I lost a member of my family. He was involved in an accident and pronounced brain dead several days later. I had never given much thought to organ donations until that day. I was very much surprised that considering the amount of time the doctors and staff had spent with our family, they never once mentioned organ donations. I was the one who approached them and made the offer.

The next week, I received a letter from the hospital informing me that both kidneys were successfully transplanted — one into a 4-year-old girl.

Ironically, last week the newspaper featured a special story about how badly organs were needed. I had no idea that some people had been on a waiting list for years!

My point: I almost decided not to approach the doctors because I assumed that if they thought my loved one could be a possible donor, they would approach me. I was wrong.

In our loss, there is such a comfort knowing that others have benefited, and may have a second chance at life. If you print this, please, no name and no city.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your letter could not have come at a more appropriate time. Just 10 years ago, the following appeared in my column for the first time:

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

"When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'bed of life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

"Give my sight to a man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

"Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain.

"Give my blood to the teenager who has been pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

"Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week.

"Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

"Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her windows.

"Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

"If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses, and all prejudice against my fellowman.

"Give my soul to God.

"If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or word to someone who needs you. If you do all I have asked, I will live forever."

Hutchinson Co. pitches prison plastics proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal for an inmate plastics-manufacturing operation that would be run with the cooperation of Phillips Petroleum Co. could help net Hutchinson County a regional prison, area officials say.

"Nobody else has come up with that very innovative idea," said Andy Hicks, president of Frank Phillips College in Borger. "We think that's a real plus."

Hicks and other representatives of the Hutchinson County Prison Task Force pitched their proposal for the 2,250-inmate regional prison to Director Jim Lynaugh of the Texas Department of Corrections at a Thursday meeting that included Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon.

Phillips Petroleum runs the nation's largest inland petrochemical complex in the Panhandle area.

Phillips spokesman D.V. Tadiello said in a letter to Lynaugh as part of a proposal packet that "the idea of a plastics process within the confines of a regional penal institution certainly is feasible and merits further evaluation."

Because the state buys large quantities of items such as plastic trash bags, trash cans, trays and cups, the plastics operation would be "a big asset to the state as a means of saving the state some money, as well as providing some training (to inmates)," Sarpalius said.

He said he was unable to immediately obtain a figure on how much the state spends on plastics, but he said, "I can tell you it's in the millions of dollars."

In a meeting with Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby, the senator said he asked Kirby about utensils and food containers purchased by school districts.

"(Kirby) indicated that he felt very strongly that if the prison system made those available, a lot of schools would purchase them," Sarpalius said.

Prison officials have considered starting a plastics operation since the institution switched from metal to plastic utensils two years ago, Lynaugh said.

"Obviously, when you start buying plastic for 38,000 people, I don't care how cheap (each utensil) is, it costs a lot of money," he said. Plastic trays cost $8 each, Lynaugh added, compared to $24 for each stainless steel tray.

Avoiding an endplay

By James Jacoby

Today's deal is an exciting bridge duel taken from "Play It Again, Sam," the fine 1986 book by Terence Reese and Martin Hoffman (Devyn Press, 151 Thierman Lane, Louisville, KY 40207).

Against South's four-spade contract, West led the ace of clubs. Declarer deduced from dummy's J-9-8-6 of clubs that the vulnerable overcall by West had to be on a six-card suit. If declarer played low, West would play a second club to give East a ruff, and eventually the defenders would take two or three heart tricks. So South nonchalantly followed to trick one with the club king. That stopped the club continuation, West switching to the diamond queen. Declarer won, drew trumps ending in his hand, and then cashed his other high diamond.

Only then did he play his deuce of clubs. West took the queen, mentally congratulating South on a clever play, but now West was endplayed. A club would let declarer insert dummy's nine for two tricks, a heart would be into South's king, and another diamond would provide declarer with a sluff and a ruff. The complex solution for the defense is for West to duck the deuce of clubs played by South. The best chance now for declarer is to play a low heart from dummy, hoping to duck the trick into West, but an alert East will put up the queen to keep West from being endplayed.

Wait begins on Biden campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — A storm is swirling once again around a presidential candidate. And, once again, the wait is on to see whether the campaign, in this case that of Sen. Joseph Biden, can survive questions about his character.

The political furor this time involves plagiarism at law school 23 years in the past and Biden's failures in speeches to give credit to politicians whose words he used.

AP analysis

Biden says it won't stop his campaign.

"I'm in this race to stay," the Delaware Democrat declared Thursday. "I'm in this race to win. And here I come."

But in the 1988 campaign, the rules are different since Gary Hart was forced from the race in May amid a firestorm of criticism over his relationship with a Miami model.

"Anything can be fatal," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, the Colorado Democrat who is thinking of getting into the 1988 race herself. "Anything is relevant."

What is relevant this week for Biden was revealed Thursday at his extraordinary news conference: he admitted he had committed plagiarism, inadvertently, he says, in his first year in law school. And he said he occasionally failed to attribute rhetoric in his speeches to the other politicians from whom he borrowed.

"Little did I know I would be standing before the whole world acknowledging the fact I did not know how to write a legal memorandum and the mistake is costing me as much as it is costing me," Biden said.

The allegations about Biden's rhetoric are particularly harmful, for they strike at the heart of his campaign. Biden's soaring speeches were a major reason he was considered a contender for the Democratic nomination, for he can electrify a crowd as few of his opponents can.

Now, some may be listening to his rhetoric more to detect the echoes of politicians past than to heed his clarion calls for the future.

And just as Hart did in the final days of his campaign in May, Biden faced some embarrassing questions and revelations on Thursday.

Given that he made several mistakes in speeches, can he be relied upon to speak accurately as president?

"I feel very capable of using my mouth in sync with my mind," he said.

Not only did Biden have to confirm his plagiarism, he also released his law school records. They showed him failing three courses in law school and finishing near the bottom of his class at Syracuse University.

Politically, Biden must find a way to restart his campaign, reassure contributors and convince potential primary voters that he is worthy of their vote.

But time is short for the Delaware Democrat, who is one of the least-known in his party's field.

And time is something Biden just doesn't have right now; he is chairing the Senate Judiciary Committee hearings on Robert H. Bork's nomination to the Supreme Court. Later, he'll lead the floor battle against President Reagan's choice.

The Bork hearings could help Biden, of course, if his performance is so sparkling as to demonstrate his leadership abilities and brush aside the doubts generated by the plagiarism charges.

Perhaps the best advice for Biden came from Republican Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming: "Hang on tight."

Simpson is right. Biden faces a tough ride ahead.

Dallas said job-loss capital

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas area lost 39,600 jobs in the last year to lead the nation in loss of employment base, while Los Angeles gained more jobs than any other city, a survey by a marketing research company found.

Dallas lost more of its employment base than any other major U.S. metropolitan area, including Houston, ending its reputation as one of the nation's fastest-growing cities, M-PF Research Inc. said Thursday.

Dallas and its suburbs lost 39,600 jobs during the past 12 months ending June 30, which is almost a 3 percent decline in the city's total employment base, the research firm reported.

During the 12-month period ending in June, Houston lost 37,500 jobs, or about 2.7 percent of its employment base, the second-highest rate in the M-PF survey. New Orleans was third with 12,500 jobs lost, Oklahoma City was fourth at 7,800 and Flint, Mich., was fifth with 5,800.

Parents have a right to know

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What right does a parent have to accompany a child during tests? One hears stories about children being subjected to unnecessary tests while hospitalized, or to excessive X-rays. I know doctors don't want hysterical parents complicating their work, but I would think a calm parent could help soothe a frightened child, while making sure everything being done to the child was needed.

DEAR READER — I agree. I think that the practice of parents accompanying their children for testing is appropriate, and many doctors are encouraging this. Naturally, in certain circumstances — such as during surgery — parents may be prohibited from being present, but they certainly can be nearby.

Parental presence is, as far as I know, not a right. However, physicians are obligated to explain procedures to parents. In my opinion, a child should not be subjected to testing or surgery until the parents have been given a detailed and understandable explanation of what is to be done, its benefits and potential complications, and why.

In hospitals, rules often limit when and how long parents can stay with their children. I've found that these rules are flexible and can be bent to suit individual cases. Pediatricians usually welcome dialogue with parents on this issue.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What difference, if any, is there between inflammation of the hip-area muscles resulting from arthritis and tendinitis of the buttocks? Is the treatment similar?

DEAR READER — The hip muscles attach to the bones of the hip, not to the joint itself. However, these areas are close together, so doctors often have difficulty differentiating between the pain of arthritis (joint inflammation) and the pain of tendinitis (inflammation of the muscle tendons where they attach to bone).

Arthritis pain usually is severe when the hip is moved either actively or by manual, passive rotation. This makes sense, because the inflamed joint will cause symptoms during any kind of motion. However, inflamed tendons will be painful only when the patient contracts them, not during passive movement.

In addition, an X-ray examination may show the bony changes of arthritis or deposits of calcium in tendons (and a normal hip-joint).

When arthritis is the cause of symptoms, anti-inflammatory medicine often gives relief. Motrin, Indocin, Naprosyn and other anti-arthritis drugs are helpful. Hip surgery may be necessary if disability and discomfort cannot be controlled with medicine.

Anti-inflammatory drugs are also useful for tendinitis. Furthermore, cortisone injections into the calcium deposits can be curative. Often, physical therapy with special exercises, ultrasound treatments and hot packs can relieve the pain of tendon inflammation.

In short, both conditions are given the same basic treatment. In my experience, tendinitis usually responds more quickly than does hip arthritis to medicine, and rarely requires surgery.

To give you more information about arthritis in general, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on OSTEOARTHRITIS. Dispute over takeover bid goes to court

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Newmont Mining Corp. will ask a federal judge to block the hostile effort of an investors group headed by Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens to take over the company in a $2.94 million stock offer.

Newmont was to be back in court today after claiming in a suit filed Sept. 10 that Pickens' group, Ivanhoe Partners, violated securities laws in a "secret program of acquiring shares of Newmont common stock" since mid-June.

Ivanhoe Partners countersued in U.S. District Court Wednesday, accusing Newmont of committing violations of its own and asking the judge to order Newmont to submit more complete company reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission and its stockholders.

The Newmont suit sought a preliminary injunction that would block any further efforts by Pickens to acquire a majority interest in the company and would order it to divest itself of all shares it has purchased so far.

Judge Bruce R. Thompson scheduled today's hearing to give the Pickens group a chance to argue why the injunction should not be issued.

Snyder challenges Panthers...

2-4A gridders go at it tonight

Week One of District 2-4A play gets underway tonight and the Tigers open against the loop's most powerful team - at least according to the statistics.

Fort Stockton, Snyder's 8 p.m. opponent, is averaging 416.5 yards offensively while giving up only 68. Both figures lead the district. Statistics can be misleading, though, and Snyder hopes to prove it at Panther Stadium tonight.

In other 2-4A games going on, Lake View takes its high-octane offense on the road to Big Spring, Andrews plays the surprising Golden Tornadoes in Lamesa and Monahans' strong rushing game tries a defense-minded Eagle team in Pecos.

- Lake View is an example of statistical inconsistency. The Chiefs are averaging 371.5 yards and 31 points a game offensively. Defense has been the "Chief" problem, however. The San Angelo based squad is giving up 482 yards a game and 33.5 points.

Both Lake View and Big Spring are 1-1 on the season. Big Spring, the 2-4A preseason favorite, upended Lubbock Estacado a week ago, 18-13.

- Andrews is one of several teams still looking for a victory. The Mustangs try to find it against a Lamesa team that has broken tradition somewhat by winning its first two ballgames. Speedy Gerry Woodberry has carried the load for 258 yards in wins over Levelland and Brownfield. Teammate Tim Demerson is perhaps the Tors' biggest threat, though. He has 141 yards rushing and another 54 passing. Demerson also accounts for 26 of the team's 44 points this season.

Andrews has had it tough in losses to state-ranked Hereford and Class 5A's Midland High. The Mustangs are galloping at a slow pace of only 111.5 yards and 3.5 points a game.

- Monahans rolled over Hobbs, N.M. in its only game of the season, 34-7. Speedy Charles Thompson got off to a good start in the rushing race with 128 yards on 14 carries.

Trying to stop the Loboes will be a Pecos team that has shown strong defense but hasn't produced offensively. The Eagles are giving up only 175.5 yards and 7 points, but are 0-2 on the season. A sputtering offense has only a 181.5 yard average and has yet to score any points.

- The task for Snyder is to try and shake off back-to-back losses, including last week's shocking 41-6 setback to Levelland.

The Ragin' Tigers could be without middle linebacker Chris Casas who has a shoulder injury. Filling his role will be highly-touted Trey Tippens. Called by some as the top linebacker prospect in the state this year, Tippens will be making his first start after recovering from knee surgery. The 6-5, 210 senior played a limited role last week.

Tonight's meeting will be the eighth between the two teams. Fort Stockton has won six of them. The last three meetings have been close ballgames. Fort Stockton won 16-13 in 1984 and 7-3 last year and Snyder won 10-5 in 1985.

Tiger game captains will be Vyron Clay, Roland Romo, Stacy Kellams and Tippens.

Weather thwarts comeback effort of junior varsity, 21-7

Jason Presley's 85-yard kickoff return provided Snyder junior varsity with its only touchdown in a lightning-shortened 21-7 loss to Abilene Christian High School here Thursday evening.

Nearby lightning prompted school officials to call the game with 8:05 left in the third period. Snyder was at the ACHS 44-yard line.

Fumbles kept both teams from scoring in the first quarter of the ballgame, played at Tiger Stadium. Each team experienced two fumbles in the first few minutes. Carl McClurg fell on one Abilene fumble for Snyder.

Later in the quarter, Snyder fumbled at the Abilene Christian 23-yard line. The visitors returned the favor at the Snyder 2 just minutes later. Charles Guynes recovered for the host team.

Abilene Christian scored following Snyder's second fumble of the night. Derrick Saunders recovered the ball at the Tiger 37-yard line and Chris Anderson scored on a 4-yard run eight plays later. Shawn Dalbert's kick-after try was wide left with 9:28 to play.

Abilene's Carl Dickson intercepted a Toby Goodwin pass at the Tiger 33-yard line to set up another touchdown by the visitors. The four-play drive ended on a 2-yard run by Dickson. He also ran over the PAT.

Snyder was able to retaliate when Presley took a handoff from Goodwin on the ensuing kickoff and raced the distance to score. Bert Merritt kicked the point-after with 7:22 left, making the score 14-7 in favor of Abilene.

The visitors went 78 yards for their next score with 50 of it coming on a run from Michael Halla. Nathan Headrick scored from 4 yards out with 3:51 left. Dalbert kicked the PAT.

Following the kickoff, Snyder drove from its 36 to the Abilene 26. Goodwin was sacked on an eight-yard loss from there, however, and Presley was held to five yards on the next play. The ball went over to ACHS.

Unofficially, Abilene compiled 176 yards rushing and 54 yards passing on a three-for-seven effort.

Snyder managed 92 yards total offense, with 29 of it coming through the air.

Next action for Snyder will be Thursday, Sept. 24, when the Tigers play Coronado in Lubbock.

SWC grid roundup...

Aggies get a shot at No. 10

by The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference gets another shot at a Top Ten team Saturday, when the Texas A&M Aggies can stop the league's image-bleeding with a victory over the 10th-ranked Washington Huskies of the Pac-Ten Conference.

The national television cameras (ESPN at 3 p.m. CDT) will be on the A&M-Washington clash at Kyle Field.

A&M has had two weeks to get over a 17-3 loss to Louisiana State on national television Sept. 5 that snapped the nation's longest home winning streak at 14.

Besides A&M's loss to LSU, Texas was blown away by Auburn and Texas Tech lost to Florida State in other losses to Top Ten clubs.

The Aggies are a field goal underdog to the Washington, although they won the only game of the series between the two schools 28-15 in Seattle in 1974.

The game was expected to mark the collegiate debut of the heralded Randy Simmons of McKinney, the top running back in Texas in 1986. Simmons suffered a knee injury in the July All-Star game and didn't play against LSU.

In other games this weekend, 12th-ranked Arkansas, the SWC's only unblemished team, is a four-touchdown choice over Tulsa in a noon (Raycom TV) game. LSU is a 31-point pick over Rice in a 7 p.m. game in Baton Rouge. Texas Tech is a 17-point favorite over Lamar in a 7 p.m. clash in Jones Stadium. Brigham Young has a 6-point nod over Texas Christian in a 7:30 p.m. game in Amon Carter Stadium, and Baylor is a touchdown favorite over Nevada-Las Vegas in a 9 p.m. game in Nevada.

The SWC is 4-9 against outside foes, its worst start since 1972.

Aggie Coach Jackie Sherrill has met Washington Coach Don James on two previous occasions.

James defeated Sherrill's Washington State team 51-32 in 1976, but three years later, Sherrill's Pittsburgh team downed the Huskies 26-14.

"Washington may be the biggest team, physically, that we play all year," Sherrill said. "They may be every bit as good as LSU. We couldn't schedule two stronger opponents to start the season.

"I think it will be better for us in the long run because it will prepare our young team for the conference race."

TCU, one of the preseason favorites, is 0-2 and Coach Jim Wacker says "we really need a victory. Potential only gets you beat in this world; it's performance that counts. We have to some how, some way, discover how to play with a great deal more intensity than we did in either of our first two games."

BYU lost to Pittsburgh but defeated Texas 22-17, while TCU and BYU have never met.

Rice Coach Jerry Berndt, who saw his Owls lose 35-13 to Indiana last week, had the best quote of the week.

8th graders cop victories

Snyder's eighth grade A team won 22-0 and its B team won 6-0 in football games with Levelland here Thursday.

The teams will host Lamesa on Thursday, Sept. 24, for their next outings.

WTC hosts golf tourney

Western Texas College will host the first Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournament of the 1987-88 season here Saturday at the college course.

Practice rounds were to be held today. Saturday's tee time is 8:30 a.m.

The WTC team will include sophomore Clint Adams and freshmen Darrell Cofer, Mark Burgen, Gary Schoen and Jeff Beal. Playing off today for the final spot on the six-man squad will be sophomores J.D. McLelland, Jack Poe, Mark Gonzales and Kevin Glaspie.

"I hope the weather holds because we'd obviously like good weather for the tournament, but if it doesn't, I feel like we can play in it. It will come down to whoever is mentally tougher," said WTC Coach Dave Foster. "We're playing well. We'll just to have to go out and see what happens. We should have the advantage because it's at our course, but this is a tough course to play, especially in bad weather. One missed swing can cost you quite a bit."

National League roundup...

Reuschel, Dravecky find top

By The Associated Press

The ride from the basement to the penthouse has been very smooth for Rick Reuschel and Dave Dravecky.

In July, Reuschel and Dravecky were pitching for last-place teams. In less than three weeks, they will most likely start the first two games of the National League playoffs.

Reuschel pitched a two-hitter as the San Francisco Giants won their sixth straight game by beating Houston 4-0 Thursday.

The Giants lead second-place Cincinnati by eight games and Houston, the defending division champs, by 9½ in the NL West. Both the Giants and Reds have 15 games left.

Giants Manager Roger Craig said after the game that Reuschel, who was acquired from Pittsburgh in late August, will start the NL playoff opener on Oct. 6.

Reuschel, 13-7, now has the league's best earned run average, 2.64, and is 5-1 with a 2.18 ERA since joining the Giants.

The 38-year-old right-hander also leads the league in shutouts, with four, and is tied with Fernando Valenzuela in complete games, with 12. Reuschel walked one, struck out five and did not allow an Astro past first base.

Dravecky was acquired in a six-player deal with San Diego on July 4. He beat the Astros 7-1 on Wednesday with a four-hitter and is 7-3 since joining the Giants.

Elsewhere, Montreal beat New York 4-1, Pittsburgh blanked St. Louis 1-0, San Diego defeated Atlanta 7-1, Philadelphia edged Chicago 4-3 and Los Angeles and Cincinnati split a doubleheader. The Reds won the first game 3-2 in 10 innings and the Dodgers took the nightcap 6-3.

Pirates 1, Cardinals 0

Mike Dunne, traded away by St. Louis in April, pitched three-hit ball over six innings to beat his former club for the second time this season as Pittsburgh took the visiting Cardinals in a game delayed a total of two hours, 39 minutes by rain.

Despite the loss, the Cardinals retained their 1½-game lead in the NL East over second-place New York.

Bobby Bonilla drove in the only run with a first-inning double as Dunne, 12-5, won for the ninth time in his last 10 decisions.

Expos 4, Mets 1

Pascual Perez, 4-0, pitched a four-hitter and Hubie Brooks broke a sixth-inning tie with a two-run homer as Montreal defeated New York at Olympic Stadium.

David Cone's record dropped to 5-4.

Phillies 4, Cubs 3

Steve Jeltz's two-run double capped a three-run second inning and Philadelphia used four relievers to defeat Chicago at Veterans Stadium.

Don Carman, 11-10, got the win, with Steve Bedrosian earning his 38th save, tops in the majors.

Jamie Moyer, 11-14, was the loser.

Padres 7, Braves 1

WTC players greet public at meeting

Members of the 1987-88 Westerners and Lady Dusters basketball teams were introduced at the WTC Booster Club 'Meet the Athletes' program Thursday evening.

Carl Williams, booster club president, outlined club plans for the coming season. The club will hold weekly meetings if there is sufficient interest, he said, with the first set for noon on Sept. 28 at The Shack. The meal will be Dutch treat. All sports fans are invited.

A hospitality room for booster club members is to be set up in the coliseum on basketball game nights. Refreshments will be furnished by Rick Nesmith, manager of the WTC cafeteria, and American Food Management.

A banquet honoring WTC athletes is being planned in the spring.

Dr. Harry Krenek, college president, introduced David Foster, golf coach, Kelly Chadwick, Lady Dusters coach, and Tony Mauldin, Westerner coach. Scrimmage games for both basketball teams followed.

The Westerners will start an 'Adopt An Athlete' project this year, Mauldin said. Local residents interested in participating are invited to contact him or Fran Bowden, athletic department secretary. The adoptive families would be encouraged to have their athlete visit in their home and accompany them on outings.

The project is designed to provide a positive atmosphere for players as they adjust to college life, Mauldin pointed out.

Area teams ready for another week

Hermleigh's Cardinals have a tie and a loss. They'd like to add a win tonight when Loop comes calling at 7:30 p.m.

A full slate of action marks the third week of area six-man football action. Only Trent is idle.

While Hermleigh entertains Loop, Ira will take a 1-1 record to Klondike. Jayton looks for its third straight win at Dawson. Blackwell does the same by hosting Sands. Highland, 1-1, is at Grady.

Tonight's contests are the final tuneup games for most of the teams in the 4-1A East Zone. Zone action begins next weekend as Hermleigh is at Highland, Trent tries to spoil Ira's homecoming and Jayton is at Blackwell.

Frosh sputter, fall to Big Spring team

Big Spring's Steers took advantage of a sputtering Snyder freshmen offense and left Tiger Stadium with a 14-0 victory here Thursday night.

Next action for the young Ragin' Tigers will be Thursday, Sept. 24 in Lamesa.

"Defensively, we are not as aggressive as we would like to be," said Snyder Coach Larry Scott. "Offensively, they blitzed a lot and we had a hard time picking that up. And, we had a lot of trouble making connections between quarterback and center. Even when we did we were a second behind."

Snyder fumbled the ball numerous times but lost it only twice. Two interceptions served to total four turnovers, however.

Snyder managed just 28 yards on 25 rushes. The passing game accounted for 51 more steps on a three-of-10 effort.

Shelby Bufkin led the ground game with 31 yards on seven carries. Edward Rios ran once for 26 steps.

Big Spring picked up 156 yards on 37 rushes and was one-of-four for 8 yards and one interception passing.

The Steers scored on a 1-yard run with 13 seconds before halftime, and again with 6:13 to go in the game on a 25-yard run.

Defensively, Terry Stephens and Jeff Black recovered fumbles for the Tigers. Terry Snyder intercepted a pass.

Income tax may be more popular proposal after all

AUSTIN (AP) — The end of the federal income tax deduction for state sales tax makes a Texas income tax more palatable for some Texans, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee says.

The 1986 federal tax law changes maintained the deduction for state income tax, but killed the sales tax deduction.

"I don't think anybody would be seriously talking about an income tax in Texas had not the federal government made its change in tax policy," Grant Jones, D-Temple, said Thursday.

"I have seen some figures indicating the taxpayers of Texas are having a significantly higher total tax burden than they should have because of the change in the deductibility of state taxes," he said.

"I don't know that it becomes inevitable, but it certainly becomes less unattractive," Jones said of a state income tax. He added, however, that it is not likely to happen in 1989.

Jones is a member of the Select Committee on Tax Equity, which met Thursday to continue its review of the state tax system. A Washington tax expert told the committee there is "little likelihood" that the sales tax deduction would be restored by Congress.

"That would be expensive, over $4 billion a year. That's difficult to offset through other changes in the federal tax system," said Jack E. "Buck" Chapoton, a former U.S. Treasury Department official and current managing partner for the Washington office of the law firm of Vinson & Elkins.

Chapoton said the sales tax deduction will not be restored, although "there are many good arguments" for putting it back in place.

"Particularly, the inequity among the states by having ... one type of tax deductible and other types of state taxes nondeductible," he said.

Weighing in favor of not allowing deductions for sales tax is "the strongly held view that the sales tax deduction is not really a deduction for taxes actually paid. It's a deduction that the taxpayer looks up on an IRS table for his state.

Carnegie Hero Fund honors 21 heroes

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Parker K. Wiemers was a part-time worker at the Marfa Municipal Airport when he saved a man from being hit by his runaway airplane.

Weimers, 21, a Sul Ross State University student, said Fred Dumas was trying to jump-start the airplane when it started and ran out of control.

"We walked outside and saw the plane was out of control. He (Dumas) was dodging the plane, trying to get away or maybe trying to get inside to stop it," said Weimers who saw the man knocked to the ground by the small plane's wing. "He was on the ground getting up and the propeller was coming toward him. I ran in there and got him out."

Weimers' quick action and the bravery demonstrated by 21 Americans and one Canadian was recognized by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission here Thursday. Two other Texans also were honored.

Each hero or their survivors receives $2,500 and a medal. Three of the heroes died.

Joseph C. Pavlik, 42, of Coupland, Texas, earned the honor because he helped save two women from drowning in Mustang Creek at Taylor, Texas, on May 29. Pavlik was injured.

Pavlik, an antique refinisher, said he was in his van driving on a bridge when he discovered the drowning women and freed them before their car was swept away. Pavlik said he had a premonition the previous week that he would be involved in a life-threatning rescue.

"So when it happened, I wasn't really surprised, and I knew what to do," he said.

After Pavlik freed the women from the car, the current carried the trio downstream about 1,800 feet into deeper water. They clung to partially submerged trees for more than an hour until they were rescued by firefighters.

James R. Barkley, 26, of Texarkana, Texas, was recognized for saving a woman from an assault on Jan. 21. Barkley was injured.

Barkley, a cook, rescued a woman abducted at gunpoint by a man in the motor inn restaurant where she worked. Barkley pursued the assailant and wrestled with him allowing the woman to flee, according to police and witness records.

Others honored are:

— Clifford Chaffee, 72, Long Beach, Calif., who rescued a 5-year-old boy from his burning home.

— Gerald K. Yanaba, 34, of Berkeley, Calif., who died trying to save a woman from drowning while fishing in the Pacific Ocean on Nov. 22, 1986. She also died.

— B. Michael Thompson, 18, of Sydney, Nova Scotia, who died trying to save three men from drowning in the Atlantic Ocean at Kennington Cove on Aug. 21, 1986. The three men were saved by others.

— Robert E. Dean, 30, of Forestville, N.Y., who died saving a 9-year-old boy from drowning in the Pacific Ocean at Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif., on March 11.

— Mark E. Jones, 27, and his brother, Martin, 22, both of Bel Air, Md., who saved a 15-year-old boy from a burning car after a traffic accident in Bradshaw, Md., on Dec. 10, 1986. Both men were injured.

— Teresa Rossiter, 26, of Massillon, Ohio, who saved a 96-year-old woman from a burning house on April 21.

— Ronald L. Sancho, 20, of Avondale, La., who saved a truck driver from suffocating from hydrochloric acid fumes following a traffic accident in Baton Rouge, La., on April 11, 1986. Sancho was injured.

— Lewis E. Kerst III, 31, of Imperial Beach, Calif., who saved two children from a burning house in Livermore, Calif., on Oct. 25, 1986.

— Thomas D. Finn, 30, of Birmingham, Ala., who saved a 16-year-old boy from drowning in the Caney Fork River at Rock Island, Tenn., on May 3. Finn was injured.

— Michael Bell, 39, of Salem, Ore., who saved a 3-year-old girl from a burning house in Portland, Ore., on Feb. 3. Bell was injured.

— Lloyd Adams, 74, of Elmira, N.Y., who saved a 38-year-old man from a burning house on Aug. 29, 1986. Adams was injured.

— Gregory L. Gadsby, 49, of Foster City, Calif., who saved a woman from an assault in San Francisco on June 6. Gadsby was injured.

— Phillip E. Bass, 26, of Chattahoochee, Fla., who saved a 2-year-old from a runaway automobile on March 23. Bass was injured.

— William Collins Jr., 35, of El Cajon, Calif, who saved a woman from a burning condominium in San Diego on May 2, 1986. Collins was injured.

— Columbus White Jr., 53, of Santa Clara, Calif., who saved a man from his burning truck after a traffic accident on Sept. 10, 1986.

— Albert B. Williams, 77, of Mount Prospect, Ill., who saved a woman from an assault in Rolling Meadows, Ill., on Dec. 17. Williams was injured.

— Mary Crowley, 14, of Flagler Beach, Fla., who saved three women from drowning on Sept. 15, 1986.

Soviets conduct nuclear test

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union conducted an underground nuclear test today at the Semipalatinsk test site in Soviet Central Asia, Tass said.

Tass said the blast had a yield of up to 20 kilotons and was "carried out with a view to upgrading military technology."

It was the 16th underground nuclear blast since the Soviet Union abandoned unilateral moratorium Feb. 28.

The test came while Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze was in Washington negotiating a treaty to ban the superpowers' intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

Agents snatch Lebanese man overseas

WASHINGTON (AP) — American agents working overseas lured a suspected Lebanese Shiite hijacker into a boat, arrested him and brought him back to the United States in what U.S. officials described as a new phase in the battle against terrorism.

"It's our intention to find terrorists and go after them wherever they are," a senior Justice Department official said Thursday in announcing the arrest of Fawaz Younis of Beirut. He is accused of masterminding the 1985 hijacking of a Jordanian jetliner with four Americans aboard.

In an investigation code-named Operation Goldenrod, Younis was spotted several weeks ago by U.S. intelligence agencies, placed under surveillance and finally, at an unspecified port on the Mediterranean Sea, lured aboard a small boat piloted by FBI agents. "Let's say we rented it (the boat) for awhile," one senior Justice Department official told reporters.

After the boat motored into international waters, Younis was arrested and transferred to the U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga in the Mediterranean near the island of Corsica.

He was flown to Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington on Thursday.

Responding to a question at the briefing, the official said "you bet" when asked whether U.S. authorities are actively trying to track other terrorists suspected of harming Americans overseas with the intention of arresting them and bringing them back to the United States.

When asked whether Younis might become part of a swap involving U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, emphasized that the U.S. government's intention is to put Younis on trial in U.S. courts.

"Any terrorist attack on American nationals or American property will be investigated and prosecuted whenever there is a basis to do so under U.S. law, provided that they are not effectively prosecuted and punished elsewhere," Attorney General Edwin Meese III told the press briefing.

But unlike many other terrorist incidents, the one in which Younis is charged wasn't directed at the United States or Israel.

Amid extremely tight security, Younis appeared before a U.S. magistrate in Washington on charges of hostage-taking, conspiracy and destruction of an aircraft, which could result in a term of life imprisonment if he is convicted.

Younis pleaded innocent to the June 11, 1985, hijacking of the jetliner at Beirut, on which two U.S. citizens and two U.S. resident foreigners were traveling. Younis was ordered held without bail and was taken to an undisclosed location.

Younis, is a "full-time employee of the Amal militia and works for Nabih Berri," another senior Justice Department official told the press briefing.

Berri is Lebanon's justice minister and also is leader of the Amal militia, a group of Shiite Moslems allied with Syria.

The Amal militia is considered to be more moderate than the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, an organization which is believed to hold some of the U.S. hostages being held in Lebanon.

Union receives Ford-UAW pact

DETROIT (AP) — An official of the United Auto Workers union says the tentative contract with Ford Motor Co., which goes to a union council today, breaks a lot of new ground on job security.

"We have a good agreement," says Stephen Yokich, the UAW vice president who announced the settlement Thursday.

Concerning job security, Harley Shaiken, a labor relations expert at the University of California at San Diego, agrees with Yokich.

"The agreement goes farther in the direction of job security than any recent major agreement," he said. "Its most innovative aspect is in fact providing some measure of predictability in job security for the work force that's currently employed."

However, he added, "What it does not do is guarantee a fixed number of jobs.

"Ford retains essentially the ability to downsize its work force over the life of the contract."

The UAW's 200-worker Ford bargaining council, made up of local union presidents, bargaining chairmen and elected delegates, must approve the three-year contract before Ford's 104,000 autoworkers vote on it.

Yokich announced the settlement in the absence of UAW President Owen Bieber, who was released from the hospital Thurday after treatment for a stomach ailment.

Under the agreement, UAW leaders will push local unions to accept plant-level contracts that reduce the number of job classifications and loosen work rules, which Ford says would increase efficiency and improve quality.

Ford could still lay off workers if competition, such as from Japanese imports, hurt its sales. And it would only have to fill half of the jobs left vacant by workers who resigned, retired or died.

Retirement benefits for new retirees increase from $1,205 a month to $1,500 a month. "Ford has an older work force to start with. By improving retirement benefits, even more workers are likely to retire," Shaiken said.

The contract could complicate talks resuming as early as next week at General Motors Corp., where workers got no profit-sharing checks for 1986 and the company plans to close more than a dozen operations by 1990, analysts said.

"There's no way in the world GM can accept this contract. GM can't guarantee the current level of employment" of 335,000 workers because it needs to cut costs and to buy more parts from outside sources, said Michael Luckey, analyst with Shearson Lehman Bros. in New York City.

GM's contract, like Ford's, expired Sept. 14 and was extended when the UAW chose Ford on Aug. 31 as the company it would strike or settle with first.

"Our goal is to reach a contract settlement which recognizes GM's specific needs and competitive challenges, and enhances the job security of our employees," said Alfred S. Warren, GM's chief negotiator.

Warplanes attack Iranian oil targets

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes today blasted Iran's Kharg island oil loading terminal and two other oil installations along Iran's western coast on the third straight day of attacks in Persian Gulf war.

The official Iraqi News Agency said two formations of warplanes struck the oil fields of Ardashir and Bahrakan simultaneously, setting them on fire. The report, monitored in Cyprus, said the warplanes staged another raid two hours later "demolishing what had survived on Kharg island in previous attacks."

There was no official confirmation of the attacks from Iran.

On Thursday, Iran said it bombarded Iraqi cities, and Iraq claimed it repulsed an Iranian attack in an 18-hour battle, as fighting took place mostly along the nation's border areas.

Iran also began amphibious military maneuvers Thursday off its southern coast in the Gulf of Oman to counter a growing international presence in the waters outside the Persian Gulf, Iranian news media reported.

Witnesses said, meanwhile, that the 46,723-ton Gas Prince docked in Kuwait at the northern end of the Persian Gulf under cover of darkness.

The tanker is one of 11 Kuwaiti vessels flying the Stars and Stripes and being escorted through the gulf by U.S. warships as protection against attacks by Iran, which accuses Kuwait of supporting Iraq.

In New York, sources at the United Nations told The Associated Press on Thursday that Iran had told Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar it would consider a cease-fire if an aggressor in the war was identified shortly after.

It was the first time in the 7-year-old war that Iran indicated it would be willing to stop the hostilities before Iraq is named the aggressor.

The fact that Iran did not explicitly require that Iraq be blamed pointed to a new moderate attitude, said the diplomatic and administrative sources.

Clint Eastwood meets the pope

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — T-shirts to the contrary, Pope John Paul II didn't make Clint Eastwood's day.

When they shook hands at the Monterey airport, Eastwood admitted later to reporters, the pontiff knew he was being introduced to the mayor of Carmel but didn't recognize Dirty Harry of celluloid fame — not even "the man with no name" from the spaghetti Westerns.

Besides greeting the pope at the airport, Eastwood attended the pontiff's prayer service at the grave of Father Junipero Serra at Mission San Carlos Borromeo.

There, several parochial school children wore T-shirts bearing the pictures of John Paul and Dirty Harry and the inscription, "Thou Hath Made My Day."

Economic growth reported today

By The Associated Press

The economy, bolstered by a reviving manufacturing sector, grew at an annual rate of 2.5 percent in the spring, slightly faster than previously thought, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the strength in the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, came from a big turn-around in business investment and the best showing for U.S. exports in seven years.

Exports climbed 17.9 percent, the biggest quarterly improvement since the first quarter of 1980.

Businesses, spurred by higher export sales, boosted their spending to expand and modernize production facilities substantially. Business investment spending was rising at an annual rate of 11.7 percent in the second quarter, the biggest burst of investment spending in two years.

The 2.5 percent GNP growth rate for the April-June quarter was up from an estimate a month ago that showed the GNP growing at a 2.3 percent rate in the spring.

For the first six months of the year, the GNP grew at a rate of 3.5 percent, even faster than the Reagan administration's forecast for the entire year.

In 1986, the GNP grew 2.9 percent, and the administration is predicting that the economy will strengthen to a 3.2 percent growth rate for all of 1987. To meet that goal, economic growth will have to average 3.0 percent in the last two quarters of the year, a figure that is in line with most private forecasts.

While growth is up for the year, inflation also is rising more rapidly. An inflation index tied to the GNP grew at an annual rate of 4.1 percent in the spring, following a growth rate of 4.5 percent from January through March.

Both quarters showed inflation rates well above the 2.7 percent rate for all of 1986, when falling energy prices helped dampen inflation.

The 2.5 percent GNP growth rate in the spring was down from a 4.4 percent rate in the January-March quarter. However, economists said the overall balance of growth was much healthier in the spring.

In the first three months of the year almost all of the strength came from a huge buildup in business inventories, which was occurring at the same time consumer spending was posting a rare decline.

In the spring, consumer spending rebounded, increasing by $11.9 billion at an annual rate, and most other sectors of the economy showed improved strength as well.

The big growth in exports was offset somewhat by an 11.1 percent jump in imports, spurred upward by a higher foreign oil bill.

Still, the overall trade deficit, after removing the effects of inflation, fell by $2.5 billion in the second quarter, the third consecutive quarterly improvement.

The trade deficit measured by the GNP has been steadily improving since the third quarter of last year because it measures only the volume of trade, factoring out higher import prices caused by the steep decline in the value of the dollar.

Last week, the government reported that the monthly merchandise trade deficit, which does not remove the impact of inflation, soared to a record $16.5 billion in July. The administration is concerned that even though the trade deficit has improved substantially in inflation-adjusted terms, the adverse publicity from continued high current-dollar deficits will spur protectionist sentiment in Congress.

In a second report, the government said corporate profits after taxes rose 4.3 percent in the second quarter after falling 3.7 percent in the first three months of the year. It was the best showing for after-tax profits since a 6.5 percent increase in the third quarter of last year.

The GNP report said spending for residential housing posted a 2.8 percent decline in the second quarter after a 7.7 percent fall in the first quarter. Analysts said the adverse effects of the new tax law on apartment construction as well as rising home mortgage rates probably would dampen this sector for the whole year.

The various changes left GNP at $3.80 trillion, after adjusting for inflation, in the second quarter.

Many analysts are forecasting GNP growth of around 3 percent in the second half of this year, a rate which will meet the administration's goal of 3.2 percent growth for all of 1987.

But there are concerns. Financial markets have been battered in recent weeks by renewed pressure on the value of the dollar. The decline in the dollar has sent U.S. interest rates higher because of investor fears that a weaker dollar will drive up the cost of imports and thus make inflation even worse.

Another report indicted that higher mortgage rates are holding down housing construction.

E. German shooting resembled ambush

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet patrol had created "sort of an ambush situation" before a member of an American military liaison team in East Germany was shot by a Soviet soldier, and the Pentagon is demanding an explanation, a U.S. official says.

The U.S. soldier, whose rank and identity were not immediately released, was slightly wounded in Thursday's incident, the Pentagon said.

A similar statement read by U.S. Army Major Dennis Pinkham at European Command Headquarters in West Germany said the two-man U.S. liaison team, in a four-wheel-drive vehicle, "encountered a group of Soviet soldiers and were fired at by at least one of these soldiers."

"The tour vehicle was hit seven times, shattering window glass. One member of the team was wounded by a bullet fragment," Pinkham said.

U.S. officials were quick to bring up the March 1985 killing of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson by a Soviet sentry in East Germany.

"We wish to emphasize as we did when (Maj.) Nicholson was killed, their action is inexcusable," a Pentagon statement said. The soldier in Thursday's incident, like Nicholson, was attached to the U.S. Military Liaison Mission Team in Potsdam, East Germany.

The military liaison missions were created in 1947 by the four occupying powers in Germany after World War II to foster cooperation: Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States. The Soviet Union has a team in West Germany.

"We need to find out much more about this," said a Pentagon official who insisted on anonymity. "Our men were not in a restricted area. There was no excuse for the use of deadly force.

"They were traveling. They were intercepted. It was like an ambush. They wanted to continue on after the shooting, but they were detained and prevented from doing so."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger has already called for "strong, immediate" protests to the Soviet embassy in Washington and to military liaison officials in Europe, Pentagon sources said.

A Pentagon source reached Thursday night said the United States might take unspecified actions "to restrict the Soviet liaison mission activities in West Germany until we find out what's going on."

The Pentagon said the unidentified soldier in Thursday's incident was treated at a West Berlin hospital for a wound in the arm and was released shortly afterward.

According to Lt. Alice Prucha, a Pentagon spokeswoman, the two U.S. soldiers were detained for about 20 minutes before being allowed to leave. The American soldier was wounded by a bullet fragment after a Soviet soldier, one of a group of five, fired a rifle burst at the Americans' vehicle, the Pentagon said. Seven rounds struck the vehicle, the Pentagon said.

Brakes hot, but no fire

Firemen were called to a smoking tractor-trailer rig Thursday afternoon in the 400 Block of East Highway and found that the driver had stopped because his brakes were overheated.

A spokesman said the Odessa pipe supply company rig had been smoking heavily and that a city policeman called the fire department at 4:55 p.m. to monitor it.

Firemen stood by while the truck's brakes cooled for about 15 minutes. The driver told them he had accidentally locked the brakes and had driven about 20 miles.

Colorful housing replaces buildings

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Colorful low-income housing, parks and a new building code that encourages lower structures are starting to give Mexico City a new look as it rises from the rubble of the September 1985 earthquakes.

Near the main Zocalo plaza, new vecindades — one- to three-story, multifamily buildings around a courtyard — in a rainbow of hues have replaced graying ones, many built decades ago of plastered-over mud brick that crumbled in the quakes.

Saplings, roses and sod are taking hold in parks on the sites of some destroyed buildings. One was put in recently at the busy intersection of Reforma and Insurgentes, where the Hotel Continental, once a Hilton, stood.

There is more work ahead.

On skeletons of structures scattered among undamaged or repaired buildings, workmen swinging sledgehammers break up concrete until they reach the ground or ready them for reconstruction.

And thousands of people remain homeless, living in camps, damaged buildings or with relatives.

The Sept. 19 earthquake measuring 8.1 on the Richter scale of magnitude rippled through the watery, clay lakebed under the densely populated central part of the city. An aftershock registering 7.5 followed the next day.

About 6,000 people died and 150,000 were left homeless in the city of 18 million, according to the government. Some other sources estimated as many as 30,000 died.

The quake destroyed more than 500 buildings and damaged more than 3,300.

The new construction code, which took effect in July, was written so that in an earthquake as strong as the one Sept. 19, no buildings would collapse or suffer irreparable damage and public buildings would continue functioning, said Alejandro Rivas, technical coordinator of the Mexico City public works office.

"People are going to see much bigger columns, more concrete walls, less glass," said Roberto Meli of the National University's Engineering Institute, who worked on the seismic provisions of the code.

It tightens requirements for supervision, construction specialists and the licensing of experts who approve building plans, steps Rivas said should help with enforcement.

In the past, some in charge of checking building plans simply charged for their signatures, Rivas said. Columns of some damaged buildings lacked sufficient steel reinforcing.

Meli said the new seismic standards are slightly stronger than California's, somewhat less than codes in Japan and Chile.

Neither the construction code nor zoning revisions restrict building height outright, except for a four-story limit in the historic downtown area, or prohibit glass-walled, irregular-shaped towers.

They do require more open space. The additional building resistance required, Meli said, will make middle-sized buildings more economical.

Buildings being repaired must comply with the new code.

Schools, hospitals, theaters, churches and other buildings needed after a disaster have a year to meet the standards, even if they were not damaged.

Rivas said he's concerned about checking existing buildings.

"I believe that is the touchiest question — how to keep the city from sleeping and thinking that it's over and also thinking that now that there is a new code nobody's at risk," he said.

The more robust construction is visible at the Benito Juarez building, one of 32 being reconstructed in the Nonoalco-Tlatelolco housing project, where 472 people died when another 14-story building collapsed.

Its new columns are three times thicker than before, its walls more than twice as thick, engineers said. The foundation was enlarged. Separations between the three sections were widened so they wouldn't knock against each other.

If it falls, said Miguel Martinez, a supervisor on the project, "clearly, we should think of something else, like living in space, because the earth won't hold us any longer."

In Tlatelolco and other parts of the city some damaged buildings are being shortened.

Mexican pilot charged after 'pot' is seized

HARGILL, Texas (AP) — A Mexican pilot is jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond after a raid on a South Texas airstrip where federal agents seized more than a ton of marijuana and five airplanes.

The drug was found in a cement-lined cellar at the airstrip, along with ammunition for military-style AR-15 and M-16 rifles, officials said Thursday.

Federal agents obtained a search warrant for the Filigonia Airport near the farming town of Hargill in the Lower Rio Grande Valley after Border Patrol agents spotted "airplanes touching and going in and out of there," said Oran Neck, agent in charge of the U.S. Customs office in Brownsville.

"The airport, we believe, was used to bring in shipments from Mexico," said James Castillo, resident agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration's Brownsville office.

A pilot, Jose Domingo Hernandez Orona, 26, of Tepic, Nayarit, Mexico, was charged with importing and possessing with intent to distribute marijuana. He appeared before a federal magistrate in Brownsville, Thursday, where bond was set at $500,000.

Assisted by the Willacy County Sheriff's Department, agents found 2,611 pounds of marijuana in an underground room inside the hangar, Neck said.

"They had a cellar," he said. "It was a concrete basement, well lit, fluorescent lighting, scales and packaging material."

Castillo said Drug Enforcement Administration agents are attempting to seize the entire airport under a federal law that allows the government to seize property found to be used in illegal drug enterprises.

The single-engine planes were taken to a storage facility in McAllen, the Customs agent said, and added that more arrests are possible.

Rigsby earns several honors

Malcolm Lee Rigsby has recently completed his first year at the Thomas M. Cooley Law School in Lansing, Mich.

He was recognized as a member of the Dean's List and Honor Roll and was given the American Jurisprudence Prize Award for his accomplishments in a research and writing course.

He is presently continuing his study of the law at St. Mary's University in San Antonio.

Brothers earn Eagle awards

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Two brothers who have fought the ravages of Downs Syndrome all their lives will see their hard work rewarded when they receive the most coveted of Boy Scout awards.

Tony Campbell, 20, and his 18-year-old brother Bobby earned more than the 21 merit badges needed to become Eagle Scouts and will be awarded that title Saturday night.

The San Antonio council of the Boy Scouts of America said Tony and Bobby, who were born with the chromosome disorder, have accomplished something only about 2 percent of all Scouts ever achieve.

To become Eagle Scouts, they had to do the same things other Eagles did. But because they were handicapped, the age limit for passing the Eagle Scout requirements was extended to 21 rather than the normal 18. They had to earn a minimum of 21 merit badges. Tony earned 24; his brother earned 23.

"It was kind of a shock to me," their father, Mike Campbell, said, adding that it is emotional for him to think about his sons beating the odds and achieving the most their potentials will allow.

Tony joined Scout Troop 378 in 1981, and Bobby joined a year later. They became involved in the program through the Mackey Developmental Center for handicapped children.

Tony said his camping badge was the most difficult to earn because it required mustering up courage to sleep outside in a tent. But Bobby thought that was fun and offered his brother strength to get through the night.

"I like swimming," Tony said, explaining his favorite badge was the one he earned for his swimming skills.

The boys' father said the discipline scouting provides has been good for his sons.

While the Campbell brothers have worked hard for their merit badges, they still found time for other activities.
