By Rockport, Fulton city councils

40% exemption to be considered

By Pat Blair

A request that the general homestead property tax exemption be increased — to the full 40 percent maximum — will go before the city councils of Rockport and Fulton in their meetings this week.

Placed on the agenda at the request of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association (ACTA), the proposal will be presented to the Rockport council Monday night, in a meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m., and to the Fulton council at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The request is among several hot items that will occupy the councils of both cities in their respective sessions.

In Rockport, the council is scheduled to consider the matter of Home Rule for the city.

And in Fulton, a bill from the county for the city's share of the emergency management coordinator's salary has sparked protest from the council.

Under state law, through an amendment approved by voters in 1981, taxing entities were empowered to adopt a general homestead tax exemption for resident property owners. The amendment calls for a decreasing exemption with a maximum of 40 percent exempted in 1982 and '83 and a minimum of $5,000 exempted during those years.

The City of Rockport earlier adopted the $5,000 minimum. Fulton has not yet acted on the general exemption. ACTA is asking that both cities adopt the full 40 percent exemption allowable in 1982.

According to City Secretary Helen Braffett, the subject of Home Rule was placed on the Rockport council agenda at the request of a council member. Members of the council, polled earlier this year, were unanimous in their beliefs that Rockport should be a home rule city.

Braffett said the council Monday will consider the procedure for becoming a home rule city — which will require an election. This will be Rockport's second try at home rule. City voters approved the framing of a charter and elected a charter commission by a vote of 251-213 in January, 1979, but in 1980, voted down the proposed charter.

A letter from the Aransas Pass city council will be on the Rockport agenda again Monday night after being sent back to the city by the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District.

The letter requests a meeting between the city councils of Aransas Pass and Rockport to discuss service boundary lines between the two cities. First presented at the April 26 meeting, the letter was referred to the ACCRD. Following a meeting this past Monday, May 3, the ACCRD turned the letter back to Rockport saying the matter is between the two cities.

Also scheduled on the Rockport council agenda Monday is an ordinance formally adopting amendments to the city zoning laws and a request that Picton Lane be curbed and gutted.

In Fulton Tuesday night, an item expected to generate a lot of discussion is a request from Aransas County that Fulton pay $5 per month toward the salary of Mitch Ammons, appointed by the county and the city of Rockport to be the coordinator of the new emergency management program being conducted as a joint effort of the two cities and Aransas County.

Ammons was originally appointed by the county as its coordinator and on April 26, the Rockport council voted to appoint him coordinator for the city.

Fulton council members are protesting that they were never consulted in the matter. "The county went over our heads," said Alderwoman Pat Loflin, "and just sent us the bill."

Also on the agenda in Fulton will be the amendment of the city budget to provide funds for a new city secretary and to assist the Fulton Volunteer Fire Department in paying for the new fire truck.

As of Thursday, the city had received seven or eight applications for the secretary's position — vacant following the resignation of Cindy Tilden. Officials are considering a part-time city secretary who will work about 20 hours each week.

Consideration of a concession stand on Fulton pier will be on Tuesday's agenda. Fulton officials emphasized this will not be a bait stand — an earlier proposal that came under heavy fire from local bait stand owners — but will be concession stand only, dispensing soft drinks and food items. Council members say some type of money-making operation is necessary on or near the pier to help defray the costs to the city of the light bill.

Also scheduled on the agenda will be requests for assistance from the Fulton Cemetery Association and the Aransas County Little League Association.

Discipline workshops set May 11 and 12

By Becky Werhan

Two workshops on student discipline sponsored by the Aransas County School District, are scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday nights, May 11 and 12. Each workshop will focus on a specific approach to discipline — Tuesday night's session, beginning at 7 p.m. in the High School auditorium cover Assertive Discipline, and will feature John Clay as speaker. Clay is the assistant principal at Corpus Christi's Winn Seale Junior High and is recognized as a leading authority on Assertive Discipline.

Wednesday night, again beginning at 7 p.m., in the Junior High Cafeteria, Barbara Gardner will lead a workshop on Glasser's Reality Therapy, another popular approach to student discipline. Ms. Gardner, from Abilene, travels widely, lecturing on the Glasser Approach.

Both Gardner and Clay are recognized as outstanding speakers on their subjects.

The workshops were scheduled by the requesting school district following receipt of a petition from a parents' group consideration and implementation of some kind of discipline program in the schools.

The petition, signed by 158 parents, was presented to the Aransas County School Board of Trustees at their last meeting by school board member Jerry Brundrett. The petition had been prepared and circulated as a result of growing parent anxiety about student discipline problems and drug abuse in county schools, particularly in the junior high and high school.

The need for a discipline workshop involving parents and the community at large was repeatedly stressed by Brundrett at the board meeting on April 19 and School Superintendent Joe Randow agreed to contact Clay and Gardner.

Assertive Discipline and Glasser's Reality Therapy are the two most commonly used approaches to student discipline.

Memorial rites held for M. W. Cochran

Memorial services for Maurice William Cochran, 89, of Rockport were at 4 p.m. Friday, May 7, in St. Peter's Episcopal Church with the Rev. Walter Clark officiating.

Entombment services are set for 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Corpus Christi. Arrangements are under direction of Marshall Funeral Home, Rockport.

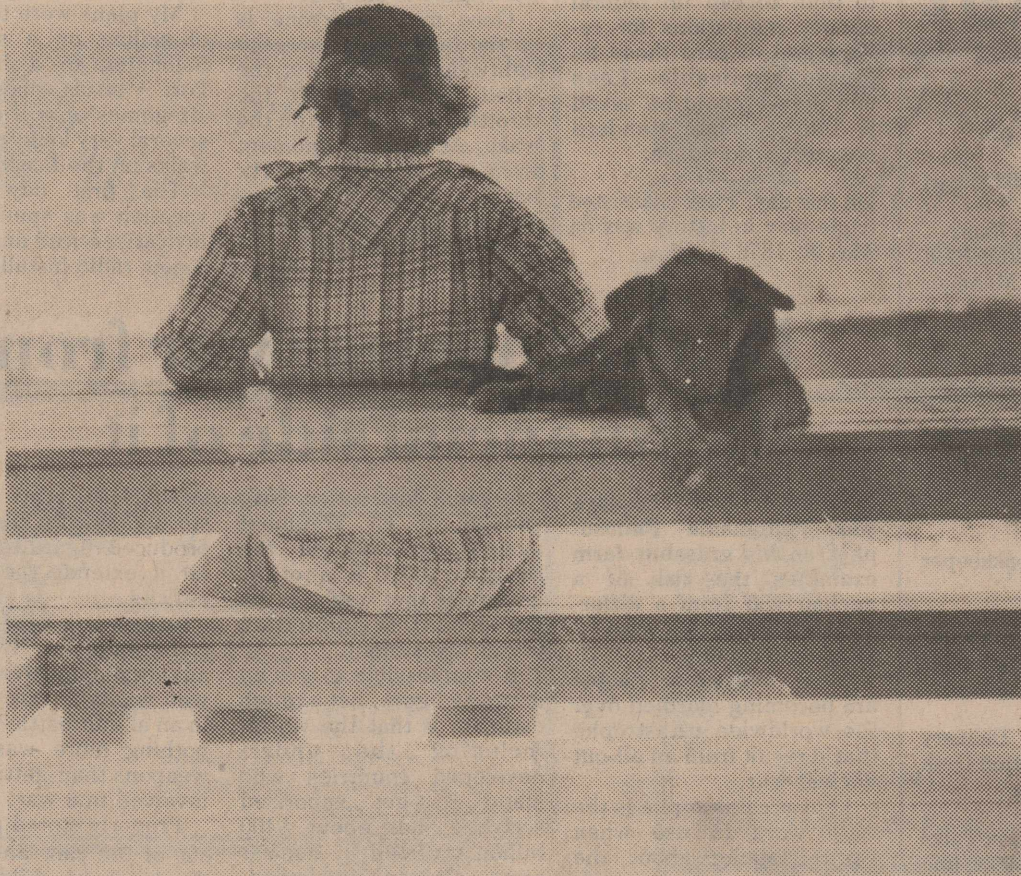

Mr. Cochran died Wednesday morning in a Corpus Christi hospital.

A native of Indiana, he had lived in Rockport since 1948. He was a member and he and his wife were lay readers in St. Peter's Episcopal Church. He was a life member of the VFW, a member of AARP and the National Association of Review Appraisers. An appraisal expert and civil engineer, he was reportedly considered an authority on Gulf tides and their effect on dunes and wetlands with special emphasis on hurricanes.

Mr. Cochran was a graduate of the University of Arkansas and was a member of the Honor Fraternity of Tau Beta Pi. He was a veteran of World War I having served with the Fifth Engineers and a U.S. Army veteran in World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Ellanna Cochran of Rockport; two sons, Maurice William Cochran Jr. of Sacramento, Calif., and the Rev. Paul Coleman Cochran of New York City; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

The family has asked that, in lieu of flowers, memorial donations be made to the St. Peter's Episcopal Church Building Fund or to the St. Frances Boys' Home Episcopal in Salina, Kansas 67401.

500-boat marina envisioned at Fulton

By Ted Norman

Saying he would like to see the Aransas County Navigation District (ACND), build a harbor at Fulton that would hold 400 or 500 boats, Commissioner Kirk Holman finished his presentation of the Fulton Harbor expansion program and then made a motion to spend some of the money paid to Goldstone Engineering in Corpus Christi to look into the possibility of such a harbor at Fulton in the future.

During his presentation to the commissioners and the audience Holman said he envisioned a large harbor out in the Aransas bay enclosing the existing harbor and holding perhaps 500 boats.

He said he realized it wasn't a project that could be built today but said he was proposing it for a future project by ACND.

But after admitting that it was something that was in the future Holman said, "I want to make a motion to start on it."

He said he envisioned a large eight or 10-foot high stone seawall in a large sweeping semi-circle beginning just north of the new pier and terminating just south of the existing harbor.

Holman said that after the stone wall was constructed dredge from the new harbor could be piled inside the existing seawall to build a road out to the new wall.

Commissioner Dave Maguglin expressed doubt about the possibilities of ever building a new harbor of that size saying the construction cost of the wall would be prohibitive.

Maguglin said, "If we get the rock wall out there then we can build finger piers like Corpus Christi did."

Commissioner Hillis Dominguez said he

Holiday Beach water system plans presented

HOLIDAY BEACH — Preliminary plans for a water system to serve residents of Holiday Beach were turned back to the engineers with instructions to cut the costs in a meeting of the Aransas County Water Control & Improvement District No. 1 this past week.

In other action during the meeting held at 10 a.m. Last Monday, May 3, in the district's office, the board called for directors' elections on Aug. 14. Two board members, Freddie Lingner and L.E. Pettus, are up for re-election this year.

Kyle, Johnson & Associates, an engineering firm retained by the district to study possible methods for providing water to the Holiday Beach community, reported on a preliminary plan that called for bringing water across the Bay and would cost an estimated $2 million.

The plan included a 100,000-gallon storage tank, a 150,000-gallon elevated storage tank and the laying of six-inch water lines with fire hydrants. The engineers told board members the system would require a bond issue to fund construction.

To pay for the project, the engineering firm suggested monthly water bills of $10 for the first 2,000 gallons and $2 for each additional 1,000 gallons and said the district would probably have to levy a property tax to cover the balance of the costs.

The preliminary plans were returned to the engineers for additional study with requests for a cost breakdown. The engineers were asked also to look at ways of reducing the proposed costs of the project.

No date was set for engineers to come back before the board with a revised plan, and no plan can be adopted for Holiday Beach without a vote by community residents.

The water control and improvement district was formed about three years ago to study — through the engineering firm — the existing water system in Holiday Beach, alternative water systems and ways to provide — in the words of Board President M. Joan Nish — "good water at reasonable prices" to meet those goals and become operational.

Holiday Beach residents are presently served by a privately-owned company, Baumgart Water Supply Corporation, over which the control and improvement district has no authority.

Editorial & opinion

April is free again

DRUUMM, DRUUMM, that is the song of April as she approaches Freeport in her third day out of Rockport. Sails have remained covered as we power almost directly into a northeasterly wind. Part of the almost unreal South Texas weather pattern of the past few weeks.

Presently the sky remains overcast with a hint, if not of promise, of rain to come. It has taken me a full 15 minutes to type these few lines. The old portable has been unlimbered for the first time since departure and, not surprising it is misbehaving. Well, it is nearly 40 years old, suffered as many years abuse.

"April," you should know, is a 30 foot sloop and we are a crew of four bound for Panama City, Fla. The skipper, a purist of sorts, has despaired of South Texas industrial growth and is looking for the end of the rainbow. I wish him luck. There is much to be said for the Florida Panhandle, clear water, less hard wind, but — where can you find finer people than in South Texas? Call the skipper the Panama City Gar.

Next Doc, a veteran of the Intracoastal and the Bahama Out Islands. His home is his 38 foot sailing yacht. Then Bob, a Chicago accountant, Chicago Bob? Finally myself. Gar and I have sailed often together in the past two years.

We are a lively, congenial crew, and so things had better be. A boat of this size is no place for the moody, the temperamental. At least there is presently every indication that we shall dine well, no matter how Spartan the fare. Three of us rather fancy ourselves as chefs. Bob has announced a preference for staying out of the department but readily volunteers to do the dishes. Last night Gar turned out some superb pork chops and fried potatoes and onions. First potatoes I ever really enjoyed in my life. Simple enough you may say.

But wait. Getting the chops from our small and crowded fridge was no little matter. Potatoes and onions another. They are stowed beneath the salon table which is lowered at night to make a sleeping berth. Beneath the berth are three sea bags, two cardboard boxes filled with supplies, a heavy tool box, my typewriter. These must be removed in order to gain access to a hatch in which the potatoes and onions are stored. Once moving all the gear about is accomplished the cook's job becomes simple as yours at home.

While on the subject of food, Doc demonstrated a new breakfast technique this morning, new at least to me. He cut from the center of bread-slices circles about two and a half inches in diameter which he toasted. Then he placed the slices in the frying pan and broke an egg into each hole. Eggs and toast, not eggs on toast.

INSTEAD OF RAIN THE skies begin to clear and the breeze becomes more easterly. Approaching the bridge at Freeport we raise the main and ease back on the throttle. Then clear of the bridge we unfurl the jib. "April" heels gently. We look at each other and smile.

A nod from the skipper and I, at the wheel, ease her all the way back. He cuts the ignition. A spontaneous cheer from all hands. "April" is free, her motion through the water, a soft whisper. "Astern" the dinghy sometimes slaps a wavelet as if to say, "Remember, I too am part of this show." We carry sail almost until we docked at a small store that caters to yachtsmen. All secure and it's time to splice the main brace.

Soon my No. 3 son and his family appear. We advised them earlier by marine telephone. They suggest that we move to a boat club dock on the other side of the bay for more privacy and quiet. In the spot where we are we are set to rolling every few minutes by water skiers who demonstrate their daringdo by seeing how close they can come to the docked boats. The sky is purple in the last light as we dock and go ashore for dinner. Afterwards, showers, beautiful showers at the club house.

ANOTHER DAYLIGHT start, but soon we are aground in Galveston Bay. Somehow the bay chart has been forgotten and the crossing is attempted from "memory" and we fall out of the channel. All hands muster on the bow hoping to lift the keel. The dinghy is used to set an anchor. No luck. All sail is hoisted and we get all our weight on the lee rail hoping to free the keel. Again no progress. A long tow approaches and the engine is started.

Once more everyone is on the bow except me, the lightweight. I stand at the wheel, one hand on the throttle. All eyes are on the wake. At the right moment from the skipper — "Hit her" — I gun the engine and the tug wake lifts us. "April" is free again. --ahab

Americans witnessed a good example of government by bureaucratic rules during the months and years following the 1954 Supreme Court school desegregation ruling. Regulations forcing school districts to carry out the will of the Health, Education and Welfare Department were enforced under threat of legal action. Such a concentration of power appropriated to itself by HEW was never intended nor permitted by congressional action.

It seems to the Rockport Pilot that it would be a good idea for Congress from time to time to call up federal agency regulations for review and discard those no longer applicable. Time and money could be saved if this became standard operating procedure.

Look at nuclear war from the financial side of it

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassbur farm examines the risk of a nuclear war from a different standpoint this week.

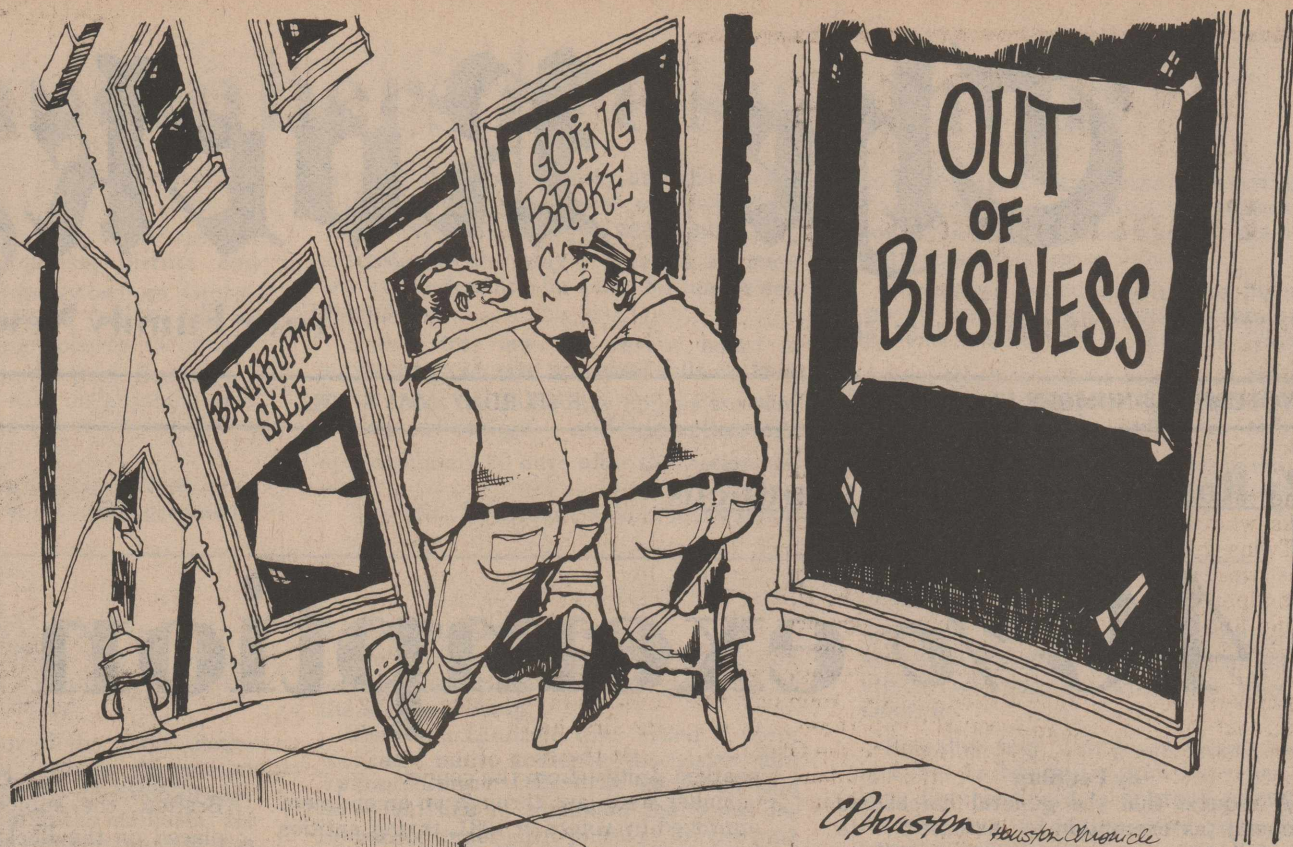

Dear editor: More and more people are becoming alarmed over the worldwide catastrophe that'd result from an all-out nuclear war.

I guess catastrophe is the right word to use when you're talking about the elimination of human life on earth, along with a lot of other creatures including cats whose nine lives won't be enough if it's true there are enough warheads on hand now to kill everybody ten times over.

If total destruction isn't enough of an argument against the use of the things, there's another argument that ought to be put forward; the protection of our investment.

It's impossible to get an accurate figure, but a rough estimate is that the world, including the underdeveloped countries who stand to get vaporized scot-free, has about $400 billion invested in nuclear arms already stockpiled, with more being produced regardless of how far it extends the world's deficits.

So look at it from a financial standpoint. We've got all that money invested

'Suppose the turnaround comes and there's nobody left to turn around'

It was so typical of him

By Pat Blair

It's the stuff of legend: an 89-year-old man sitting in an ambulance with a broken hip, refusing to let himself be taken to a hospital until he's had a chance to mark his ballot...

It's one of those stories they'll be telling about Maurice Cochran for a long time.

"It was so typical of him," says his widow, Ellanna. "So absolutely typical. He was a good citizen — he believed strongly in the two-party system for Texas."

The injury itself was indicative of Cochran's character: He was going up the steps of the county courthouse last Saturday to cast his ballot in the Republican primaries "and instead of going over to the railing," Mrs. Cochran said, "he was just going up the steps. He was 89 years old, and his legs weren't what they were when he was 30, but he didn't use the railing."

Cochran slipped on the steps, took a fall that resulted in a broken hip. The paramedics were called — but Cochran refused to let them take him anywhere until someone brought him a ballot and he had a chance to mark it.

(Mrs. Cochran — who regretfully said she wasn't there — said witnesses to the incident had nothing but praise for the paramedics, "the way they handled the situation. I think the community is very fortunate to have men like these.")

The Cochrans had been married 60 years. She was a native of Texas, he of Indiana. "He was an independent voter — we both were — but he had a Republican background and I was brought up as a Jeffersonian Democrat. We had some lively discussions!" Mrs. Cochran recalled with a laugh.

They came to Rockport — from Birmingham, Mich., via Corpus Christi — in 1948. "The cold climate drove us down," said Mrs. Cochran. "he came home (in Birmingham) one very cold day in March and said, 'I'm tired of fighting these Michigan winters. Let's move to Texas!' So we did."

Before coming to Texas, Cochran did a lot of work in airport planning. "He went to South America and around the U.S. doing airports for the government," Mrs. Cochran recalled. "When we came here," she added, "he was a consulting engineer and did appraisals."

He was also, for a while, the city manager of Corpus Christi, according to John Mitchell who knew him then. It was in Corpus Christi, during Cochran's approximately one-year tenure with the city, that Mitchell met him. "Then we renewed our acquaintance later in Rockport."

Later in Rockport, Cochran did some work for the county at the airport — in the field of appraisal. "The county purchased air space around the airport a few years ago," County Judge John Wendell recalled,

"and he (Cochran) did the appraisals for us."

Cochran was active too — as was and is his wife — in activities at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, of which they've been members since they came to Rockport. Cochran was a lay reader in the church "until a couple of years ago," according to the Rev. Walter Clark, pastor of the church. "His wife still is," Rev. Clark added.

Asked for his impressions of the man, Rev. Clark responded with: "Very warm, outgoing...interested in all sorts of activities...an inquiring mind...a quick sense of humor."

"He was always entering one cause or other on behalf of the poor and oppressed," Rev. Clark added.

Mitchell agrees to that: "He was quite a battler for what he believed to be correct, the best interests on the community."

He was still holding to that course last Saturday...

144 hours of watching it rain

By Ted Norman

Most men dream of spending their vacation on a romantic island with a beautiful girl but all I was hoping for during my nine days away from the paper was a few good golf games, a little sailing and some long walks on a nice beach.

As you might recall the weather last week was anything but the kind you would order for a nine day vacation. During that time there were six days of rain, one day of dense fog and one that set an all-time low for this time of year.

And I wasn't exactly prepared for this kind of weather. I took two swim suits, three pair of walking shorts and a half dozen short sleeve pull-over shirts with me.

The only long pants I had with me for the trip was the pair of threadbare jeans that I wore when I left the house in search of paradise and nine days of fun in the sun.

My plans were to do lots of sailing on a sail boat belonging to a friend in Port Aransas, play at least six games of golf and take several very long, reflective walks on the beach.

The first day of the vacation was spent having my car serviced and having a new radio installed in it.

I spent the second day watching it rain and then the third day of the vacation the weather was warm enough to try some sailing on my friend's boat. The bottom of the boat was covered with growth, the jib wouldn't go all the way up and one jib winch was frozen so after about an hour of struggling with the boat I returned to the slip and gave up on sailing.

After driving for an hour I arrived at the Padre Isle golf course, changed from street shoes to golf shoes, signed in at the starter's desk and as I stood on the number one tee box ready to begin my first game of golf during my vacation it began to rain.

After making a run for the protection of my car I removed the golf shoes, put the street shoes back on and after a brief stop at a convenience store for some chips and beverages I returned to my room and spend the afternoon watching it rain.

And I spent the next day and the next day and the day after that watching it rain. Finally the rain was replaced with fog.

So far my vacation consisted of about one hour of sailing, a half hour on the beach, no golf and 144 hours of watching it rain.

Saturday, the next to the last day of my vacation I returned to the golf course, only this time I decided to try the Riverside course in Victoria. There was a light mist falling but the weatherman said on the early morning forecast that it would clear. I made a quick run to a nearby department store and purchased a new windbreaker and returned to the course, signed up at the starter's desk and began the only game of golf of the vacation. For the next four hours I played golf in a downpour. I caught a cold and shot a 97. I'll get over the cold but not the score.

The next day I returned to Rockport, driving through an hour and a half of dense fog, changed into some work clothes and got the lawn mower out of the garage.

As I began the much needed yard work the sun burst through and the clouds disappeared for the first time in nine days.

Six more months and I can start planning another vacation of golf, sailing and long walks on the beach. Or maybe I'll just dream of spending a week on an island with a beautiful girl, nothing ever happens the way I plan it anyway.

Speaking Out

Mr. Dean:

May I please bring a matter to your attention about which I am deeply concerned, both as a citizen and as a candidate for membership on the state board of education.

The Texas Education code, section 11.22(B) states, in addition to other qualifications, that a person "engaged in organized educational activity" is ineligible to be a member of the state board of education.

In my opinion, Mrs. Mary Ann Leveridge, incumbent member of the state board of education, 14th congressional district, as President of the National P.T.A. 1981-83 and, in addition, currently scheduled to be in Europe to discuss education matters in Department of Defense Schools, is ineligible to hold this office.

Therefore, I request that you review these matters and remove her name from the ballot, since it would seem impossible for anyone in this position to represent the views of the constituents of this district, rather than furthering the goals of the National P.T.A. Sincerely, John Morkovsky

I'll say it again, the world's got too much money invested in nuclear bombs to risk losing all of it in a war. Be the dumbest financial move mankind could make.

From the press box

With Joey Sasso
Minnesota Twins reliever Ron Davis, an ace on the Yankees staff until he was traded last week, described his first appearance at Yankee Stadium as "sheer terror."

The year was 1978. The Yanks were down, 7-0, to the Twins, ironically, when Davis was called in from the bullpen to face feared slugger Rod Carew. "I was so scared I couldn't hold on to the ball," Davis recalled. "I stepped back and told myself that Rod Carew had gotten a lot of hits off good pitchers, but he wasn't going to get one off me." Carew didn't. He walked on four straight pitches. So did the next batter. So much of auspicious debuts.

Every time Bill Shoemaker turns around, there is a Kentucky Derby candidate at his doorstep. "It's nice to know we're still wanted," says Harry Silbert, the agent who has been booking Shoemaker's horses for 33 years, a record that belongs in Guinness if it's not there already.

At age 50, Shoemaker is nighting the trainers off. Shoe won the Derby with Swaps in 1955, Tomy Lee in 1959 and Lucky Debonair in 1965. None were favored. He's ridden six Derby favorites and lost with all of them.

Nearly 200 pilots were introduced last month at NATPE, but only four of five are definite "go aheads." Certainly one of the most successful is MCA TV's "The Road To Los Angeles." The series profiles America's finest athletes who will be competing to represent the U.S. at the Summer Olympics games in Los Angeles in 1984. Each hour focuses on young athletes in training, in actual competition at meets leading up to the Olympics, and the human interest aspect of their personal lives.

The programs highlight the dramatic differences between the preparation and style of leading foreign competitors and their U.S. counterparts. To this end, "The Road To Los Angeles" will be taped on location all over the United States. A foreign production crew will also be dispatched to international sites.

The entire Olympic series will be fresh production, without the use of any stock footage. "The Road To Los Angeles" will be distributed on an advertiser-supported basis, with 30 hours premiering in January, 1983.

Soccer League wraps up regular season

The Youth Soccer League wrapped up regular season play last Saturday at Memorial Park and headed into two weeks of Championship Tournament action. Final standings are determined by the tournament play so each team still has an opportunity to take home the championship for the Spring season.

Saturday's action started slowly with the Cosmos and the Hurricanes fighting to a 0-0 score at halftime. Excellent defensive plays by Cosmos goalkeeper Darrel Nunez and middle full-back Cling Carter kept the Cosmos in the game during the first half.

At the start of the second half, the Hurricanes came out storming and took charge of the game. Robert Schoen stole the ball from the Cosmos and made a beautiful pass to Charlie Lozano who jaunted the ball past Nunez for the first score.

A few minutes later, Schoen took a hard shot that Nunez blocked, but the bouncing ball was controlled by Lozano who fired a shot into the right side of the Cosmos goal. Jason Mills and Mario Hernandez provided lots of offensive punch for the first place Hurricanes and eventually worked Lozano loose for a long left-footed goal to put the Hurricanes in front 3-0.

Brian Cody and Brandon Drake finally got the Cosmos fired up with some excellent midfield play in the second half. Richard Martin intercepted a misguided Hurricane pass and made an excellent pass to teammate Bubba Kellough who fired a shot past goalkeeper John Karstedt for the Cosmos only goal.

In the second matchup of the morning, the Tornados and the Strikers came ready to play and battle each other from beginning to end in one of the most exciting games of the season. When the dust settled, the Strikers had seven goals and the Tornados only two, but the action on the field was a lot closer than the score.

Gene Robertson scored two goals for the Tornados in the first 15 minutes. The first was a hard shot just outside the penalty area following a goal kick by Troy Brown of the Strikers. His second goal was an excellent sliding shot inside the penalty area that rocketed past Brown.

Robertson received lots of help of offense from Josh McWhorter and John Valdez, but the Tornados just couldn't crack the Striker defense led by Russell Crawford and Dean Wix. Tracy Youngblood and Valdez made several outstanding defensive plays during the game but once the Strikers got started, they kept scoring.

The Strikers scored four goals in only nine minutes during the first half on a hard corner kick by Dean Wix, a fantastic long shot from midfield by Russell Crawford that bounced over the Tornados goalkeeper and fine penalty kicks by Wix and Ricky Romero.

In the second half, Brad Bechtol came off the bench to score three goals for the Strikers and knock the wind out of the Tornados.

In the Pee Wee Division, the Aztecs outscored the Rowdies 2-0 to power their way into the Championship Tournament.

James Griffith and Charles Nixon scored goals in the first half to put the Aztecs out in front. The Rowdies played fine defense throughout the game, but failed to mount much of an offensive threat.

Jon-Michael Kowall and "Gator" Dunn had several scoring opportunities for the Rowdies, but could not get the ball past the Aztecs' defense captained by Bobby Krogsgaard. David Wernitz made several outstanding defensive plays for the Rowdies to keep them in the game.

R-F Pirates lose to G-P

Take back two pitches and the game could have been a different story, but Gregory Portland catcher Billy Anderson connected twice off Pirate pitching and led his team to a 4-3 decision over the Rockport-Fulton Pirates Tuesday evening.

Anderson caught a good pitch with his bat in the first inning for a home run to stake the Wildcats to a 2-0 lead as he knocked in another runner in front of him.

Anderson came back in the third inning to hit another home run to give GP their third run.

Rockport finally got on the scoreboard in the third when Tim Redden let things off with a single, moved around on Adam Harden's hit, and eventually scored.

The Cats wasted little time in letting the Pirates know they were not going to let them get any closer as the Cats added an insurance run before Redden came in to relieve Bill Jennings.

The Pirates mounted a rally in the fifth, but fell short of tying the game as Pirate batters made two outs with runners in scoring position at second and third. Harden had reached safely on an error, and then moved on Rudy Zavala's single. Another error opened the door and then Jennings clouted a double to drive in two runs. Then the two outs ended the big threat.

Once again, the Pirates were close, but fell short.

fishing report

The summer fishing season is about upon us in the Rockport-Fulton area and even some good live bait is beginning to show up at the bait stands around the area.

The winds have been a bit high the past few days but a cold front predicted for Friday should clear everything out and reduce the humidity and add to some really good fishing over the weekend.

The fishing calendar shows that speckled trout should begin to be on the increase for the next 90 days are so while the reds will be a little harder to locate.

In another two to three weeks the floundering should really show some improvement as these bottom fish move into the area. The moon will be full during the weekend and this is supposed to enhance the fishing prospects.

Black drum will begin to leave the area this weekend or early next week and they will be rare until early to mid October.

Croaker should really be just about jumping in the boats the next few weeks but the pompano and sheephead will disappear from the scene until early fall.

In about two to three weeks the tarpon will move into the area and the big offshore boats will begin to see some action.

Collision injures one

One person was taken to Enterprise Medical Clinic in Rockport for treatment for what appeared to be minor injuries following a car-pickup collision on FM 881 near the entrance to Peninsula Oaks Thursday afternoon. The victim was transported by a unit of the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service. Officers with the Texas Highway Patrol and Aransas County Sheriff's Department were at the scene as well as members of the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department. No other information was available at the Pilot's press time.

Assumption can cause problems

About half of today's home sales incorporate some form of seller-provided plan.

Most often, these sales involve an assumption of the existing mortgage, with the seller providing a second mortgage to reduce the cash required of the buyer. Such financing can produce serious problems for both seller and buyer.

The buyer can fall behind in—or stop—making payments. Often the seller's only resource is to foreclose on the loan, an expensive and time-consuming process.

Buyers run into trouble because the loans generally are short term. The buyer hopes to refinance when interest rates decline, but if the loan comes due and interest rates remain high, many buyers can be placed in a difficult situation.

For specific information on seller-provided loans, call a real estate broker.

Have you recently thought about becoming a landlord? If so, ask yourself these questions before you move ahead.

How much money do I have to invest? Will I hold the property for a short period of time and hope to make a fast profit, or will I hold it as a long-term investment? What do I primarily want from the investment: cash flow for supplemental income, appreciation to build an estate for retirement or a tax shelter for current income?

What type of financing arrangements would I prefer: a smaller down-payment and higher monthly payments or vice versa? And finally, do I have the time and temperament required to successfully own rental property?

You should answer all these questions to your satisfaction before you buy rental property. A real estate professional can help you find the answers.

Three elements determine the amount of your property tax bill. These are property value, ratio of assessment and tax rate.

The 1979 Texas Legislature passed a property tax code which requires local taxing authorities to assess property at 100 percent of its value by 1982. Previously, many assessment ratios had been below 100 percent. Although increasing the ratios to 100 percent will increase property tax values, the amount of tax paid need not change.

A 100 percent assessment ratio will increase the total values, so taxing jurisdictions can lower tax rates and collect the same total revenue. For example, if the previous assessment ratio was 80 percent and if the taxing jurisdiction lowered the tax rate by slightly less than 20 percent, property tax bills would not change.

Questionnaires being mailed

Efforts are underway locally to combat breast cancer, the number one killer among all types of cancer.

Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass is spearheading a special program which relies heavily on public cooperation.

Over a four-week period, questionnaire cards are being mailed to women between the ages of 20 and 60-plus. The information returned on the cards will be held in the strictest confidence and will help the hospital conduct its program.

Women who receive one of the cards are asked to fill out the card and write their age in the upper left-hand corner.

Local doctors, using a new technique at the hospital, are working to detect, diagnose and treat breast cancer in its earliest stages. Mammography helps identify the presence of a physically detectable abnormality in the breast, and this technique, coupled with a personal or family medical history, is effective in the preventative program on breast cancer.

The major diagnostic effort today is directed toward detecting the primary breast lesion (abnormal change in structure) while it is small without regional lymph node involvement or widespread disbursement of the disease.

If breast cancer is at all suspected, it is no longer acceptable to perform breast biopsy without pre-operative mammography.

Although mammography is the more accurate diagnostic procedure, it is complementary to a physical exam, making it a good reason to have the xero-mammography procedure done at the time of the physical exam.

Tablet, exercise are good cure

Pet talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the college of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University.

Dear Dr. Lutz, I want to ask you a question about a subject I feel embarrassed to talk about. That is why I am writing you. Maybe you can help my cat. I have had a Siamese Cat for 5 years, and it is not allowed out of the house. I live alone, and there is no one there during the day.

My problem is that my cat has started to eat her stool. Can you give me some advice as to how to correct this terrible habit?

Signed,

Cindy

Dear Cindy,

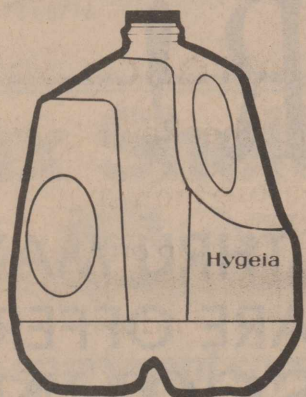

Medically, this is referred to as coprophagy. This condition is much more common in dogs than cats. It can be caused by several factors. The first and foremost reason is usually a mineral deficiency. Second - boredom. Third, lack of adequate exercise.

I treat this condition by giving the patient a mineral tablet which would correct any mineral deficiency. For the boredom, I recommend getting another kitten or puppy so your kitten would have a playmate and some companionship during the day. This would also give him sufficient exercise by chasing and playing while you are away.

Signed, Dr. Hap Lutz

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, mail them to the Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf St., Rockport, Tex. 78382. The vet with the warm heart for cold noses, Dr. Hap Lutz, will answer them in the weekend edition.

Annette Boney marries Bruce Veralli

Annette Reine Boney and Bruce Leonard Veralli were married in a double ring ceremony at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Dallas at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 10. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Boney of Rockport and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Veralli of Bergenfield, N.J.

The bride, wearing her mother's wedding gown, was escorted by her father. The gown had a bodice of ivory embroidered lace with long sleeves ending in a point at the wrist. The square neckline was bordered in lace. The skirt and train were of ivory crystal-line nylon sheer over satin with a lace border. The waist-length veil of ivory tulle fell from a satin bandeau trimmed with lace and pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, white roses and baby's breath tied with white streamers.

Cindy Reimers of Houston was maid-of-honor. Her floor-length gown was of peach chiffon over satin. She carried a spring bouquet with peach streamers.

Susan Lipps and Robin Harper, both of Corpus Christi, Kay Lobpries of Houston and Jane Crimmins, a cousin of the bride from St. Paul, Minn., were the bridesmaids. They wore chiffon gowns, each a different color of the rainbow and carried spring bouquets with streamers in the color of their dresses. They wore white daisies and baby's breath in their hair.

The groom wore a champagne-colored tuxedo with a white rose boutonniere. Glenn Veralli served as his brother's best man. Robert Veralli, brother of the groom, Jim David of Tulsa,

Okla., Morgan Kershner of Liberal, Kans., and Steve

Hale of Corpus Christi were the groomsmen. David Veralli, brother of the groom, and Dean Johnstone of Corpus Christi, were the ushers. The men all wore champagne-colored tuxedos with a peach rose in the lapel.

Following the wedding a reception and dance attended by 100 guests was held at the Stoneleigh Terrace Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice

Veralli entertained at a rehearsal dinner at Vick's Restaurant the evening preceding the wedding.

After their wedding trip to the Cayman Islands the couple now lives in Dallas, where the groom is employed by Mercantile Bank in the Energy Department.

The bride is a graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School, Del Mar Junior College and Corpus Christi State University. The groom graduated from Bergenfield High School in Bergenfield, N.J., and holds a Bachelor of Science degree in petroleum engineering from Tulsa University in Oklahoma.

Club women discuss postal substation for Lamar at meeting

The Lamar Woman's Club met Wednesday, April 21 at the Sea Gun with 35 members and two guests present.

During the meeting, club members were urged to write to Senator Lloyd Bentsen, Senator John Tower and Representative Bill Patman requesting their assistance in obtaining a post office substation in the Lamar-Holiday Beach area.

The original request and subsequent petition were made over a year ago, in light of the 20-30 mile round trip to the present post office from the area.

In other club matters, the nominating committee presented a slate of officers for the coming year. They are Clara Bell Garner, president; Jean McVay, vice president; Sandy Sloop, treasurer and Rosalyn Harding, historian.

Members were urged to write letters of protest against Madeline Murray O'Hare's request that all religious programs be removed from radio and television and all Christmas programs be taken out of schools. The addresses for the petition were obtained from Sail Printing.

Paola Doxaras, guest of Helen Andrew and Marie Kirkland, guest of Jesse

James attended the regular luncheon meeting hosted this week by Helen Andrew, Jewell Greeson and Helen Owens.

Life member Nan Pugh, recently returned to the Lamar community, was welcomed back into the club by members.

The club members gathered a donation of $164 for the Rockport-Fulton Choir's Vienna trip.

The club's next meeting, in May will include installation of new officers and a wine and cheese party.

Bon Appetit

By Ann Thomas

As promised last week we are going to have gumbo recipes today. By the way these are from Tony's Chachere's "Cajun Country Cookbook."

SHRIMP AND OKRA GUMBO

2 lb. fresh peeled shrimp
2 c. fresh diced okra
2 T. oil
1 stick oleo
4 T. flour
1 onion
1 bell pepper
2 sticks celery
1 T. Worcestershire sauce

1 T. chopped scallions
Fry fresh okra in 2 T. oil for 10 minutes, stirring constantly to avoid burning. Use an aluminum dutch oven, not a black iron pot. Remove okra and set aside. Add oleo and flour to make a roux. Chop all vegetables, add them and the okra and cook for 5 minutes until wilted. Add 3 quarts water and the Worcestershire sauce and cook 1-2 hours. Then add the shrimp and cook 1/2 hour or until tender. Serve with rice.

SEAFOOD GUMBO
Make a roux with the recipe at the end of this one. Set aside.

4 cleaned crab and claws, cut in 4
2 lb. fresh peeled shrimp
1/2 lb. fish filets, cut in bite-size pieces
1/2 pt. oysters
1 can whole tomatoes
1 stick oleo

1 c. chopped celery
S&P to taste
1/2 c. chopped green bell peppers
4 cloves garlic, minced
3 Qt. water
2 c. chopped & cooked okra
1 T. Worcestershire sauce
1/2 c. green onion tops and parsley, finely chopped

In a large pot (not black iron) saute, in melted oleo, onions, celery, green bell pepper, garlic, and okra for 10 minutes. Add to mixture roux, water, sauce, and seasoning. Cook for 1 hour. Add all other ingredients, except onion tops and parsley, and cook for another hour. Serve on rice and use onion tops and parsley to garnish.

BASIC ROUX
1 c. all-purpose flour
1 c. cooking oil

Heat oil in heavy pot or Dutch oven. When oil is hot, gradually add flour. Stir constantly until mixed. Lower flame and cook until chocolate brown and at this time remove from pot and set aside. Two things to remember — if you leave the roux in the pot after it's done, it will become too dark; and always use warm water to dissolve the roux.

Thanks for the request, Becky. I really had fun reading this cookbook, and making some of the dishes in it. Bon Appetit!

Lamar auxiliary meets, hears fundraising report

The Lamar Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary met at 7 p.m. on May 3 at the Fire Station, with president Polly Moss conducting the meeting. There were 20 members present.

It was reported that nearly 500 letters have been sent to property owners in Lamar asking for donations to the Fire Department. Doris Ruttiger was chairman of the project.

It was also reported the Fire Hall has been noticeably cleaner since a house committee, headed by Jennie Heldenfels, has been appointed. Two people are appointed each month to keep the building clean.

The group voted to have the Market Sale on November 12 and 13. Jan McGlas-son, chairman of the committee to have charge of the sale, brought a report to the Auxiliary of plans submitted by the committee.

Others on the committee are Sandy Sloop, Jennie Heldenfels, Polly Moss and Clara Belle Garner. Fire

Chief Robert L. Parke met with the committee.

Plans were made to have a covered dish supper for the firemen and families on May 14.

This was the last meeting to be held until September.

It is no accident that men, the world over, have built clocks into the steeples of their churches.

Reduce life to its simplest components and what have you? TIME and GOD.

Time marks the beginning of life. It measures the growth of our bodies. It provides opportunity for our work and play. It reveals to us our human limitations, and then, one day, Time leaves us behind.

But God is the origin of life. He measures the growth of our souls. He provides our strength and forgives our weakness. He reveals to us His limitless Love. And, never deigning to leave us behind, God beckons us on—even beyond the circle of time.

A parable then: the clock in the steeple!

Man finds material security and temporal happiness as he learns to respect Time.

Man finds spiritual security and eternal happiness as he learns to love God!

Actress Bette Davis says her favorite line from all her movies is, "I'd love to kiss ya, but I just washed my hair!"

The line reminds me of the fellow who refused to loan his neighbor $10 because "I have to go to town next Saturday."

When his bewildered would-be debtor inquired "What's that got to do with it?" he received the reply, "Nothing. When a fellow doesn't want to do something, one excuse is as good as another."

"I'd love to go to Sunday School, Lord, but..."

"I'd love to go to Wednesday night worship, Lord, but..."

"I'd love to tithe, Lord, but..."

"I'd love to help somebody, Lord, but..."

But what? Does it really matter? One excuse is as good as another when we don't want to do a thing.

Your telephone rings. The sophisticated baritone voice on the other end of the line belongs to an attorney you have never heard of. "I'm sorry to inform you of a death, but the deceased left you one million dollars. It may be picked up in my office tomorrow."

"I'd love to come and get it, but..."

Nursing home news

By Maxine Mayer

The Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center's social activities were very enjoyable as well as entertaining last week.

Monday morning, the family of Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson honored them with a party in observance of their 63rd wedding anniversary. They served cake and coffee to the residents.

Tuesday afternoon, Brother Bob DeWolfe was out to give Holy Communion and have Bible class for our residents.

Wednesday afternoon, the ladies of First Baptist Church of Aransas Pass were out to have their monthly birthday party for all having birthdays in the month.

Serving cupcakes and ice cream for all in attendance and giving gifts to the honorees, they then played games with "I who wished to play. Everyone had a good time."

Thursday afternoon, Patsy Crumrine came to deliver a lot of beautiful flowers which were sent by Peggy Yeager and Nancy Lee.

Our people were very thrilled to be remembered by these ladies.

Friday morning paint class was led by Frankie and Margaret and we do appreciate these ladies very much.

Also Lydia Trevino was out to do her one-to-one visiting and running errands for all who wished her to.

Our Aransas Pass LULACS 636 were out Wednesday evening to play games with a very good group in attendance.

Friday afternoon, Father James Hamilton and Dora Rodriguez were out for Mass which our Catholic residents look forward to each month.

Sunday morning worship service was led by Rev. Al Banker who used as his text, "Transfiguration," Matt. 17:1-13.

We had our reality orientation and exercise classes each morning followed by our morning coffee time.

Each afternoon, we had our coffee and social time.

Thanks to all for remembering us with clothing, books and other kindnesses too numerous to mention.

Texas Hospital Week to be observed May 9-15

AUSTIN — Governor William P. Clements has designated the week of May 9-15, 1982, as Texas Hospital Week in recognition of the efforts in effectively promoting the health and welfare of the citizens of Texas.

In his statements, Clements commended hospitals for delivering "the necessary and oftentimes critical care to hundreds of thousands of sick and injured Texans each year."

He continued by saying, "It is fitting to salute the health care system in Texas for its contributions to the public welfare, for high standards of care, and for educational and research programs that each year raise those standards to higher levels."

Additionally, Texas Hospital Week honors the dedicated health professionals responsible for the delivery of care as well as hospital governing boards, auxiliaries and volunteers who contribute thousands of hours in the service of their local citizenry.

"You've Got A Friend In The Hospital, 'Pardner,'" the theme for Texas Hospital Week reflects the role of hospitals and their staffs as friends in helping community residents stay healthy.

Today's complex hospital industry still has a simple, basic mission — to care, offer support and help, and be there when needed. As advocates of individual and community health, Texas hospitals are among the best friends people can have.

Throughout the year, hospitals also encourage Texans to be their own best friend by living healthier lifestyles and wisely using the health care delivery system in the locale.

The official memorandum was signed by the Governor during ceremonies held at the Capitol. Present were George M. Fleming, Ed. D., FACHA, Executive Director, San Jacinto Methodist Hospital, Baytown, and Chairman, Texas Hospital Association (THA), and O. Ray Hurst, CAE, THA President.

THA is the Austin-based trade association for hospitals in Texas, with over 750 institutional and 4,200 personal members.

Water board shares cost for Fulton tank

The Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District, meeting last week, voted to pay $40,000 of the cost of painting and maintenance work on the elevated storage tank in Fulton.

The City of Rockport will pay the $41,666 balance for work on the tank which is scheduled for completion by May 15.

In other action during its meeting at 5 p.m. Monday,

May 3, ACCRD members agreed they will protest a request by another water system to provide service to an area already covered by the ACCRD and the City of Rockport.

The board was presented with a copy of a request by H&S Water System to the Public Utilities Commission to provide service to an area that includes the Windswept Oaks vicinity. The ACCRD and the City of Rockport presently hold a certificate to serve the area in question.

The board considered a letter from the City of Aransas Pass to the City of Rockport requesting a meeting between the two cities to discuss service boundary lines.

The letter was presented to Rockport's city council in its April 26 meeting and city officials referred it to the ACCRD.

Monday, however, the ACCRD referred it back to the city council on the basis that they could not determine, from the letter, if the ACCRD was or should be involved.

It is expected that a member of the ACCRD will attend the meeting between officials of the two cities.

Small businesses are recognized May 9 - 15

"Small businesses are the backbone of Aransas County," says Carolyn Beebe, manager of the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce. The overwhelming majority of businesses here employ less than 20 persons — the standard definition of a "small business."

Small businesses — in Aransas County and throughout the state and nation — are being honored this week in a proclamation issued by President Reagan declaring May 9-15 National Small Business Week.

In proclaiming the observance, the President notes that, despite continuing economic uncertainties, the determination to start a new business remains strong. Nationwide, new small businesses have opened their doors at a higher than normal rate during the past 18 months, according to a report by the U.S. Small Business Administration.

In noting the contributions to the nation by small businesses, the SBA points out that small firms continue to be the main source of new jobs, with businesses fewer than 20 employees creating two of every three new jobs.

Small businesses account for about half of total U.S. employment, approximately 50 million jobs providing the livelihood for more than 100 million Americans.

The SBA further points out that most innovations in three major American industries — steel, aluminum and petroleum — originated with small companies or independent inventors.

Remembering Goliad

These students in Coach Alan Hildebrand's seventh grade fourth period Texas history class are "remembering Goliad" in a special way. They've constructed a scale model of the historic Presidio La Bahia. The presidio, first founded by Spain in April of 1721, is still standing in Goliad, after several reconstructions. The scale model of the mission has taken the class several weeks to complete and will now be on display in the school library. Class members working on the project were R. Dingenary, D. Ramirez, K. Anderson, L. Davenport, N. Gaitan, T. Gardenhire, Q. Garner, K. Gillis, B. Hamm, T. Hunter, R. Keen, M. Lara, R. Montemayor and R. Moses. Also, V. Parr, D. Robbins, E. Salazar, S. Sanchez, W. Sorenson, V. Souther, S. Strait, G. Tynes and D. White.

Healthful hints

Q. I have an allergy to wheat, so my doctor has advised me to substitute soy flour in my cooking. He claims that it is very nutritious. Exactly what does it contain?

A. Soy flour is often used in cases such as yours and is very nutritious. It's a rich source of protein, the B-complex vitamins, phosphorus, calcium, magnesium, potassium and iron.

Q. I have chronic bronchitis and decided to try mega-vitamin therapy. I'm told that vitamin A is good for bronchitis. Why? I thought vitamin A was the "eye" vitamin. I really am trying to learn about vitamins, and I'd appreciate your explaining this.

A. Vitamin A has been shown to be beneficial for many, many problems, but I suppose it is best known as the "eye" vitamin since one of the first symptoms of an "A" deficiency is night blindness.

Internally, vitamin A helps protect the mucous membranes of the mouth, nose, throat, and lungs, thereby reducing susceptibility to infection. Also this protection aids the mucous membranes in combating the effects of various air pollutants, which can cause (or further irritate) chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

Vitamin E has also been shown to be crucial for protection against air pollution. And, remember, with any illness or abnormality you need to see to your overall nutritional picture. (You are taking plenty of C, aren't you?)

Until next weeks, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

New fabrics to change fashions

COLLEGE STATION — Tomorrow's fabrics will weave some important changes into the fiber of consumer choices at the garment marketplace, Ann Vanderpoorten, a clothing specialist, predicts.

New fabrics in the mill today will mean lower prices for consumers tomorrow — sometimes along with lower quality, she says.

But don't be too quick to pin potential problems on the manufacturer only. Many problems with fabrics stem from consumer carelessness — or a combination of that and other pitfalls, says the specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

One advancement that will help keep fabric costs down without lowering quality is the much faster modern loom. Modern high-speed looms make fabrics more quickly and they use less energy. They need fewer production steps, and they create wider fabrics. All of this helps keep prices from soaring, the specialist says. Another development is the application of dyes, sizing and other finishes — they are foams instead of liquids.

One advantage here is more speed, which, in turn means that more fabric can be processed in a day. Foam dyes and finishes require less energy and less chemicals than liquids. All of these factors keep prices, down, too.

A third major development involves fibers — in the garment industry and others. Two big newsmakers are the extremely strong fibers and the hollow fibers. Some are made into strong woven and non-woven fabrics and cables. They are used for such things as airplane fuselages, tire cords and offshore oil-rig anchor cables.

These textile products save energy — they require less energy to make and less to transport since they weigh less than the products they replace.

Development of the hollow fibers is putting quilted products in the price range of many, the specialist adds. Some of the new hollow fibers now insulate more effectively than down, and they have the added benefits of weighing less and surviving laundering better, she says.

Along with all the benefits, there are some problems resulting from textile industry changes. Vanderpoorten says. "One major problem is the loss of color-fastness in dyes used for apparel. Many manufacturers are encouraging the use of dyes with poorer color-fastness because they believe that consumers don't really need as much fastness as they've been given in the past, especially if using poorer dyes will help hold prices down."

So, many fabrics may fade after just a few launderings, she says. A consumer's only recourse is to return the article to the retailer or manufacturer with a letter explaining that fading is the reason for return.

Consumer care will help tomorrow's fabrics do the most for the money, the specialist points out. Read labels and follow the instructions carefully, and learn about fabrics — what will hurt them and what won't, she advises.

Taking fading, for example. It isn't always due to poorer dyes. Rapid fading of fabrics in some cases is caused by a chemical called "benzoin peroxide," an ingredient in many acne preparations.

It will cause garments to fade, as well as drapes, upholstery, linens and even carpets. Before sending complaints, check your medicine cabinet.

Another problem occurs when consumers combine carelessness with "sweat-fighting" olefin products, such as some socks and underwear. Here, the label says "line dry." When consumers toss these items in a dryer — even on warm, the result will be smooth, shiny areas on garments because of olefin's low melting point.

Brush control a much-debated question

COLLEGE STATION — Brush control for the sake of brush control is a losing proposition.

"While there are many good reasons for controlling or managing brush, one of the main ones should be to grow more grass and other desirable forage," points out Dr. Jake Landers of San Angelo, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

If a rancher doesn't manage his land so that he'll have an abundance of good forage to replace undesirable brush, the land will soon return to its original state — with more brush than before.

"Once brush is controlled, a rancher needs to be ready to manage the land to encourage grass production," emphasizes Landers. "This means resting the land from grazing during the first growing season following treatment so that grasses can improve in vigor and produce seeds and seedlings can become established."

Desirable grasses are often found in the edge of a cluster of brush or a clump of pricklypear where they are protected from excessive grazing. If that protection is removed by tree dozing, chaining and root plowing, those grasses need time to recover, notes the range specialist.

"Increasing the stock rate immediately after controlling brush is the most destructive thing that can be done for range improvement," emphasizes Landers. "It almost guarantees the return of a brush, pricklypear or weed problem."

Landers recommends at least a 90-day deferment during the growing season following brush work. He also points out that deferment before brush work may increase vigor and seed production of desirable grasses to speed up range recovery.

If rangeland lacks desirable grasses to start with, then it's important to seed adapted species following brush control, adds the range specialist. He suggests consulting a range conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service for help in identifying grasses and in planning a seeding program.

As far as actual brush control is concerned, Landers emphasizes that a combination of treatments is often necessary and that treatment must be continuous. "If there is anything that we've learned about brush control in the past 100 years, it's that we have to keep at it," he says. "There is no effective 'single treatment' for long-term brush control."

The range specialist points out that some combinations of brush control may result in a greater brush problem after the treatment than before. An example is to mechanically control mesquite and mixed brush with pricklypear, lotebush, whitebrush, prickly ash or persimmon in the understory. Pricklypear is usually scattered by most mechanical treatments, and the other species resprout from roots left in the soil, often creating a thicker stand than before treatment.

"In this situation, a follow-up or preventative treatment is usually needed, such as prescribed burning, grazing, use of herbicides or additional mechanical treatments," notes Landers.

Brown & Root cited for sales volumes

HOUSTON — Brown & Root Inc., a Halliburton company, has been named the largest engineering-construction company in sales by Engineering News Record (ENR), a trade publication.

ENR reported that in a survey of the top 400 companies in the nation, Brown & Root had the Number 1 dollar volume of sales, at $10.7 billion. Three other firms posted over $10 billion in contracts signed during 1981.

Overall, the magazine said, domestic energy and mineral resource developments "helped the largest U.S. contractors distance themselves from the overall sluggish construction scene."

Brown & Root, however, posted a significant gain in overseas contracts landing $2.6 billion in New York, 172 percent above 1980's level.

ENR's ranking is based on a survey of 2500 contractors. The total volume of new domestic and foreign contracts determines a firm's ranking the the "Top 400" list.

Appraisal Review Board members are sworn in

The five members of Aransas County's Appraisal Review Board took their oaths of office, drew for length of their terms and elected a chairman and secretary of the board in a joint meeting with the Aransas County Appraisal District at 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 4.

Cam Leonard was elected chairman and Edwina Stranahan secretary during the brief session in the appraisal district office on Allen Street.

Leonard and review board member Ed Armstrong drew one-year terms, coming up for re-appointment in 1983. Mrs. Stranahan and review board members Mrs. A.S. (Tony) Lamonte and Gerald (Mick) Ladner drew two-year terms. After next year, all terms will be for two years; review board members are appointed by the appraisal district board of directors.

The county appraisal review board was created by the state law that created the countywide appraisal districts. The board replaces the boards of equalization that have been appointed in past years by the individual taxing entities — but the review board will have broader powers, emphasizes Jack Groseclose, chief appraiser for the appraisal district.

In addition to reviewing values set on property by the appraisal district and hearing appeals of property owners, Groseclose said the review board "will be able to do a number of things boards of equalization haven't done in the past. Basically," he said, "they can rule on anything that could have an adverse effect on someone's tax status."

The board's authority, Groseclose said, extends to ruling on any disagreements between the tax appraiser and the taxing entities. The board is also empowered to rule on what constitutes "good cause" for extension of the May 1 date set by state law as the deadline for filing for homestead exemptions.

Under state law, the review board is supposed to receive appraisal rolls on May 15 — about the same time notices are sent to property owners — and begins hearings approximately 20 days after the notices go out.

This year, Groseclose said, "we're going to be about a month behind in everything." The board of review may not receive tax rolls until June and hearings may not begin until about the first of July.

Groseclose added on May 20, board of review members will attend a seminar in Beeville conducted by Russell Graham, Austin attorney who is serving as attorney for the Aransas County Appraisal District. Groseclose said the seminar is only for those districts Graham represents and will be attended by review board members from Bee and San Patricio counties.

though it would cost $15,000 to $25,000 just to get an engineer study on the project.

Holman said he would like for the board to approve spending just enough money to find out what a harbor like that would cost.

Dominguez said, "I'll go along with finding out how much it will cost."

Then, Holman made his motion to use the engineering hours already purchased from Goldstone Engineering through the monthly retainer to pursue the cost estimate of such a project.

Chairman Bobby Landrum asked if there was any more discussion and commissioner Hal. B. McKnight asked, "We aren't obligating ourselves to any extra expenses, are we?"

He was assured that only a cost study would be done and then Dominguez made a second to the motion and it was carried in a vote.

After the discussion of the new Fulton Harbor the commissioners turned to opening bids on the strip of land at the Cove Harbor West Levee.

Only one bid was received and that was from Jimmy Little offering $2 per foot per year or $200 per year for the 40 foot by 100 foot parcel of land.

The ACND created the parcel of land by building a retaining wall east of the railroad tracks and putting fill dirt behind the wall.

Commissioner Holman said the bid might be all right to get it started on a yearly basis but he said the ACND shouldn't make a 20 year lease at that price.

Little then told the commissioners that the method they used to build the wall was not the proper method and he said he felt they would be lucky if the wall lasted five years. He said the tie backs were only wire and that it would rust through in a short time.

Little said, "You've got an area there that is basically a parking area; I can't see putting any permanent buildings on it."

Commissioner Dominguez said the district didn't have any money in the wall but McKnight said the district spent over $3,000 on the project to create the parcel of land.

Little said, "This was a pretty sloppy job just to be honest with you."

supplies to class", "no gum chewing", "raise your hand before speaking," etc. The rules may vary from classroom to classroom. They deal only with classroom behavior. "There are rules for the district, and for the whole school, but these are for this teacher's classroom," stresses Clay.

The rules are established and the students are made aware of them. The first time a child is disruptive in class, explains Clay, he gets a "warning" — his name goes on the board. The next time, a check is placed by the name, representing a punishment of 15 minutes detention after school or before school. The next time disruptive behavior occurs, another check, representing 15 more minutes, is put next to the student's name. With the third check and 45 minutes of punishment time, the parents are called by the teacher or the principal, says Clay.

The system works on a day to day basis and the children start each day with a clean slate, explains Clay. Severe breaches of rules —

Dominguez moved to table the bid for a workshop meeting. There was no second then Maguglin made a motion to accept the bid and the motion carried.

Mr. William Mann of the Key Allegro Property and Canal Owners Association requested that the ACND do some dredge work at the boat ramp in the ski basin. He said there isn't a boat ramp in the area that is usable.

Mann said the boat ramp at Key Allegro Marina has been blocked off and the one at Rockport Harbor is too steep.

The commissioners said they would look into getting a permit to do dredge work at the ski basin ramp.

Chairman Landrum then asked if there was any more audience discussion and Fulton shrimper Dale Prak stood and said he would like to commend the board for operating under such pressure for the past several months.

He then turned on Landrum and said he wanted a clarification on the ACND boat stall policy as far as having to own a boat to get a stall. "Everytime I ask a question I am set down by Mr. Landrum. I'm told in effect, we can do what we want by Landrum."

Prak then said, "Mr Jones doesn't have a boat but he has had a stall for years. It's okay for this board to approve something for this guy if you've lived here for a hundred years."

Prak said he would get on the agenda for the next meeting and be back to argue the point.

Secondary schools may choose to skip this step.

Step Eight: If the disruptive behavior continues in the time-out area of the classroom and the student refuses to plan a better way to behave, send him/her to a supervised in-school suspension place where he/she can think about and be helped to formulate an acceptable plan for returning to class to continue with regular classroom activities. Help the student. You are trying to convey to him/her that he/she has to follow reasonable rules or he/she is out. The student must realize that he/she has two choices: to be in class and behave or to be outside and sit. Class will soon begin to look better, but he/she will need some help with the plan.

Step Nine: If the student is totally out of control and cannot sit in the time-out room without disrupting others, call the parent(s) and have them take the student home. I possible arrange a "tolerance day schedule." That means that he/she should come to school each morning and stay until he/she reaches step nine, and then you will have to call the parent(s) again. You don't have to start each day at step one, but start as far back as you can. Remember, the student is very close to due process action for expulsion and you want to give him as much of a chance as possible to make it. But if he/she cannot be helped in school at all, then he/she will have to stay home which means either a home tutor or, if no parents are at home, going on to step 10.

Step 10: If school cannot contain the disruptive student, either he/she stays home or some other agency in the community will have to take him/her. Of course "due process" is required in these rare cases, but accurate records of past behaviors and your attempts to help the student should be readily available with this 10 step system. Even juvenile hall is a possibility as a last resort. Though it sounds harsh, you must remember that sometimes this action will finally jolt the student awake and then he/she will be ready to plan.

The order of these rules may sometimes vary from school to school.

Stress is common problem

Everyone experiences stress. No one can avoid it totally. Even while asleep, the body must continue to function and react to the stress imposed by dreaming.

Canadian physician Hans Selye, author of several books on the topic, says the only complete freedom from stress is death.

Stress is the mental or physical tension resulting from the body's reaction to emotional, physical or chemical changes. These stress-producing changes can be pleasant or unpleasant because although the mind can distinguish between the two, the body often cannot. It may react similarly under either circumstance.

Men and women seem equally susceptible. But people who are competitive, impatient, fast-paced, successful and look at achievement and possessions for a sense of worth are more likely to develop stress-related illnesses than individuals who are easy-going and tolerant.

Headaches, upset stomachs, asthma, allergies and ulcers are commonly associated with stress. Studies are now being conducted to determine possible links between stress and heart disease, high blood pressure and cancer. Still, it is often difficult to establish a direct connection between stress and disease.

Doctors offer several tips to deal with stress:

Learn to relax. This may involve napping, sitting quietly or reading a book at the end of the day.

Exercise adequately. Running, walking and playing tennis are ways to ease mental stress.

Share your worries with someone you trust and respect. Another person sometimes can offer a new view of a stressful situation and help find a solution.

Get enough sleep. Lack of sleep can lessen your ability to deal with stress by making you more irritable.

Learn to accept what you cannot change. If a problem is beyond your control at this time, try to accept it until you can change it.
