Mrs. R. F. Curry, County Pioneer, Passes Monday

Mrs. R. F. Curry, wife of Wellington's postmaster, and one of the few whose life in Collingsworth County had covered its entire settled span, died Monday afternoon, October 13, in St. Joseph's Hospital. She had been ill since February, and her condition had grown critical on Saturday.

Mrs. Curry was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Stall, who came to Collingsworth County in 1888—before there was a Collingsworth or a Wellington. She knew the childhood of a pioneer, the childhood of a growing and expanding community, and womanhood in a county and community that has developed its richness of resources. Although in her modesty she never spoke of this, her family and close friends knew that this was a heritage in which her pride was deep and strong.

She was born Lawrence Alice Stall in Denton County January 15, 1888 and was only 8 months old when the family came here. They first lived south of Wellington, where Mr. Stall raised livestock and farmed. He did much toward the growth of the town, too, and gave the land for the first hospital on the site of what is now St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mrs. Curry attended the early schools of Wellington, and later Polytechnic high school in Fort Worth where she graduated. She then continued her studies at Clarendon College.

She was afterward married to R. F. Curry, then associated with the Wellington schools. They made Wellington their home through the years, with the exception of one year which they spent at White Deer.

She became a member of the Methodist Church in childhood and had been one of its active and devoted members. She was particularly interested in the work of the Sunday School and in her class, now taught by Mrs. John Henard. She was for many years active in the Women's Society of Christian Service and at the time she became ill was serving as its treasurer.

Aside from her family, Mrs. Curry's church meant most to her, and one of the last major pieces of work she did for it was, with another member, to plan the landscaping of the large church lawn, and carry out these plans, planting flowers and shrubbery that would add beauty to the church property. Until last year she was in charge of the floral arrangements for the church at the regular Sunday services.

For a number of years, Mrs. Curry worked in Wellington department stores, and in this capacity she had made friends in every walk of life. She was always interested in people and especially in those who were strangers here. (Continued on Page Eight)

Annual Mill Iron Bull Sale Draws Buyers From 22 States

The annual Mill Iron Bull sale will be held Monday through Tuesday, October 19 to 21, when buyers come from 22 states ranging from the Atlantic to the Pacific to select calves from the famous Mill Iron herd.

The sale will be held at the corals at Estelline.

Seven hundred and eighty calves are being offered in the 1952 sale. Bill Hughes, ranch manager, said this week. That is approximately 100 more than were sold last year. There will be 136 buyers, nearly half of them new buyers. These purchasers have been on the Mill Iron list at least three years, so far as the demand for these bull calves exceeded the number the ranch can offer.

As in other recent years, the largest single purchaser will be the Sears Roebuck Company, which will take 304 Mill Iron calves to be used in its FFA calf program among boys throughout 11 southern states. Approximately 25 representatives of the company will attend the sale.

The sale will be conducted along the traditional lines with which the buyers are familiar. The drawing for numbers, by which selection is made, will be held at the Childress Hotel Sunday, October 19, beginning at 11:00 a.m. The dinner for buyers will be held Sunday night.

Selection of the animals will start at 6:30 a.m. Monday morning at Estelline and will continue until all buyers have selected their calf or calves. This may be completed on Monday or it may extend into Tuesday, Mr. Hughes indicated.

The barbecue dinner at noon Monday will be prepared and served by John Snider of Amarillo, widely and popularly known as the barbecue king of America.

The Mill Iron Bull Sales, begun only a few years ago, came as something new in the registered Hereford world. They were a part of the plan of LaFayette M. Hughes, Denver, Colorado, executor of the Hughes Estate, to make available to commercial cattlemen—and especially the little cattlemen—quality breeding bulls at low price. A blanket price of $200 per head was put on every calf offered at these sales.

Each calf offered the buyers is sired by a bull of outstanding quality. The calves themselves are carefully selected, and only those which pass the most rigid requirements are allowed to go into the sale as breeding bulls.

Buyers this year will come from Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, South Dakota, Arizona and California.

Rockets to Meet Dumas Demons At Powell Field Friday Night

By JAMES GLASSCOCK
Friday night, October 17, the Wellington Skyrocks play host to the Dumas Demons on Powell Field.

The Rockets have a three-win, two loss record going into the game, while Dumas has won five games and lost none.

The Demons are rated as No. 1 in this region, as are the Phillips Blackhawks by many who have watched them play. While the Hawks were beating the Rockets 45 to 25 last week, Dumas beat Littlefield 33 to 20.

The visitors will go into the game with a decided weight advantage. Their line weighs from end to end 189 pounds per man, while Wellington's average is about 160 pounds. The Demon backfield weighs about the same as the Rockets—around 150 pounds on an average.

"The Demons are just about the same as the Phillips team," Coach Maxey McKnight said. "They employ about the same tactics as Phillips. They have a powerful running and passing game."

"They run off the T formation as well as pass from it."

The Dumas backfield is considered about fair and not too speedy. Wellington is expected to rely on a good defense to stop Dumas.

Injuries have bobbed up on the Wellington team in the game with Phillips. Jimmy Leggett received a broken nose and Jack Eads has a possible broken nose. Floyd Hood got a bruised shoulder. Charlie Johnson has an arm infection, and Clyde Ingram a leg injury. All the boys are expected to be in shape to play Friday night.

Hard workouts, both on offense and defense, are the menu for this week, according to Coaches McKnight and Donald Briggs.

Game time is 8:00 p. m. The probable Dumas starting lineup includes: Danny Barbee, end; Charles Lacy, tackle; John Doshier, guard; Albert Petty, center; Home Groom, guard; Mack Travis, tackle; Keith Wiseman, end; Joel Lummus, quarterback; C. Randolph, halfback; Geith Maxwell, halfback; and Pat Mowery, fullback.

Mrs. Luther Gribble Area Music Leader, Dies Here Friday

Mrs. Luther Gribble, whose musical talent had been given so generously to Wellington for 33 years, died Friday afternoon, October 10, in St. Joseph's Hospital. She had been aware of the illness that took her life for only a few weeks.

Mrs. Gribble was a leader in many phases of the town's life, religious, civic and social, as well as in all things pertaining to the promotion of better music, since she came here as a young woman in 1918.

She had been organist of the First Methodist Church since 1929, when the organ was installed, and she also served as choir director of the church.

Mrs. Gribble was born Esther Olivia Lehmburg at Industry on March 22, 1897, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Lehmburg. Her father was a Methodist preacher, and she grew up in towns in that section of Texas where he served as pastor.

She attended Cherokee College at Cherokee, where her father was then president, and it was here she met Judge Gribble, then a teacher in the college. Later she continued her music studies from 1915 to 1917 at Kidd Key College, which later merged with Southern Methodist University.

She was married to Judge Gribble August 16, 1917, at Cherokee, and they came to Clarendon to make their first home, for her husband was by that time an instructor in Clarendon College.

A year and a half later, in January 1918, they moved to Wellington, and this has been her home continually since then.

Mrs. Gribble had been a member of the Methodist Church since childhood. She was a life member of the Women's Society of Christian Service, with which she had worked for many years, and she was a member of the Eastern Star.

She was also a longtime member of the Domestic Science Club and a member of the Wellington Music Club. She had held membership in other organizations here during the years, those of both civic and social nature.

Outside of her family and her friends, her music meant most to Mrs. Gribble, and few women who have lived in Wellington have approached her in the generosity with which she shared this gift. Besides her regular work in the church, she gave an untold amount of time and work to playing for other occasions when through her music she brought pleasure or happiness or comfort, as the occasion might be. Mrs. Gribble understood the problems of boys and (Continued on Page Eight)

County FM Road Program For Coming Year Mapped

The county's next farm-to-market road program was mapped Wednesday, October 8, when members of the Commissioners Court met with Palmer Massey, district highway engineer.

The county's program will cover 5.6 miles of surfaced roads and possibly 6.6 miles, county judge R. L. Templeton announced following the meeting.

The mileage will be in three sections. Approval was given 1.1 miles of surfaced FM highway east of Dodson, beginning at the point where the present pavement ends and extending to the Oklahoma state line, where it connects with the graveled road from the state line to the paved highway running north of Hollis.

The second stretch approved is 1.5 miles extending from Dodson, south by the school to the Childress county line. Both these roads already have more than 200 cars passing over them each day, Judge Templeton explained.

The third road approved extends from the end of the FM pavement east of Lutie eastward for three miles and possibly four miles. This is part of the road included in the county's four-year FM road program after the end of World War II, but the small number of cars passing over the east end of the road at that time prevented its being surfaced at the time the stretch east of Lutie was put down.

Judge Templeton said that the county has no money for buying right of way, and that the commissioners of Precinct 1 and 2, in which these designated roads are located, will work out with the landowners some method of getting the right of way.

Survey work on these three roads will not begin until after July 1953, Judge Templeton said, but it is most likely they will be built soon after that time.

The county's road program also includes 9.6 miles of FM roads already approved, but on which construction has not started. These are 4.6 miles known as the Buck Creek road, from a point on FM highway 338 three miles west of town, extending west into the Buck Creek community; and the stretch from Quail cemetery five miles north.

The contract on these two roads, designated as No. 1056 and No. 1442, will be let by the State Highway Department Wednesday, October 22.

She was chosen by a panel of three judges from West Texas State College, Canyon, from a group of 40 contestants. Plains Poll to Determine Presidential Preference

How do you stand on the election? Will you check the ballot for Adlai or Ike?

With the national election now just around the corner, almost everyone is speculating on the outcome. Frankly, the Wellington Leader would like to get a fair sampling of how the sentiment is running here.

In cooperation with other weeklies and daily newspapers throughout the Plains, The Wellington Leader begins the first of a four weeks poll into political preferences of our own territory.

The Amarillo Daily News is to serve as clearing house for information secured by this newspaper and others participating in the poll.

The survey will continue through October, thus presenting an up-to-the-minute sampling of sentiment for Stevenson and Eisenhower. The poll is to be cumulative, with the totals secured each week being added to the tallies made previously.

Thus, by election time, we should have a fair idea as to how the election will go—not only in our own neighborhood but in the entire Plains area.

Readers are asked to fill out the accompanying "ballot" and mail it to the offices of this newspaper. The totals received here will be forwarded to Amarillo where our figures will be included in the area-wide canvass.

Beginning next week, we'll have not only a story on sentiment in Collingsworth County, but we'll have an area-wide report as well.

Vote only once in the poll. But if you should change your mind between now and election time, vote again and mark your ballot as "change" from an earlier report.

Rockets Lose Traditional Game to Hawks 45 to 25

By JAMES GLASSCOCK

The hard-charging, never-die Wellington Skyrockets met their defeat at the hands of the Phillips Blackhawks. The Rockets had nearly all the breaks in the first half, but in the second half, the game went against them, and they lost 45 to 25.

Time and again, Wellington clawed and fought to the Hawks goal line, only to have a penalty called — most of them for 15 yards.

The Rockets in the first half dominated all playing. Phillips fumbled and Charlie Johnson, followed by a host of other Rockets, would pile up for the ball.

In the second half, Phillips roared back for 39 points, but the Wellington boys never did give up.

The Rockets were tired as the second half began, for they had already played a whale of a ball game. The team was probably caught at one of its weaker moments of the whole season. Most of the 24 boys on the squad have had colds the entire week. Also, Phillips had ample reserves on which to draw, while the Rockets had only a few who could fill the key positions.

Outstanding line work by Charlie Johnson, Phil Handley, Vesta Orr, Jack Eads, Jerry Drummond, Frank Jones, Jim Leggett, Doolen Starkey, Gene Baird, and a host of other Rockets kept the Hawks from scoring at will.

Johnson, Handley and Orr played spotless ball. Johnson's pass for 60 yards nearly resulted in a touchdown. Clyde Ingram caught the ball and was knocked out on the one yard line. A penalty upfield annulled the play.

Handley recovered two or three on-side kicks for the Rockets, while Orr recovered several important Phillips fumbles.

Eads, Drummond, Jones, Leggett, Starkey and Baird played like a pack of wildcats, somehow getting through the line to stop the Blackhawk passing attack.

The Rocket backfield was by far the better of the two clubs. Long gains by Doug Duncan, Clyde Ingram, Lonnie Wood and Harold Moore accounted for the four Wellington touchdowns. Defensively the backfield was rough. They did find out they could stop the Blackhawks and take the advantage they needed.

SCORING

With just two minutes and 40 seconds left in the first quarter, Harold Moore raced about ten yards for a touchdown. Doolen Starkey kicked the extra point to give the Rockets a 7-0 lead.

Phillips roared back just after the second quarter opened, as Dale Wiley went around end for two yards and a touchdown. Don Meek's try for the extra point was no good, and the Hawks still lagged 7-6.

Wellington, not to be out-done, scored when Doug Duncan ran off-tackle for 40 yards and pay dirt. Starkey's conversion attempt was no good, but the Rocket score was pushed ahead 13 to 6.

The score at the half still stood Wellington 13, Phillips 6.

In the third quarter, after Wellington had fumbled the kickoff, Dale Wiley ran approximately 50 yards for the second Phillips score. Again, Meek's conversion attempt was no good, and the Hawks trailed 13-12.

Wellington received the kick-off and on the first play from scrimmage, Doug Duncan ran around left end for 57 yards and the third Rocket touchdown. Starkey's kick was no good, but Wellington led scoring 19 to 12.

In this same third quarter, Dale Wiley scored around right end. The play covered 24 yards, then Ted Reddick plunged over center for the extra point, tying up the game 19 to 19.

With 15 seconds left, Dale Wiley scored for Phillips on a plunge from the four yard line. Meek tried to kick the extra point but failed, and the score stood 26 to 19 for the Hawks.

Early in the fourth quarter a Ted Reddick pass to Billy McDonald brought another Phillips score. The pass covered 25 yards. Meek's conversion attempt was good and Phillips went ahead 33 to 19.

With just five and a half minutes left, Doug Duncan of the Rockets plunged over center for two yards and the final Wellington touchdown. Doolen Starkey's pass to halfback Harold Moore bounced incomplete, and the score was 33 to 25. Some beautiful runs by Duncan, Ingram, Moore and Woods accounted for this touchdown.

Phillips scored again when Chuck Bennett scouted right end for 6 yards and a touchdown. Reddick's try for extra point was no good, and the score was 30 to 25.

With just one minute of play left, Bennett ran 75 yards around end for the final Hawk touchdown. Meek's try for the extra point was no good, and the game ended 45 to 25.

By Bill Hughes

What is darkness? It is nothing but the absence of light.

In the same way the answer to what is bad is nothing more than the absence of good. Good and God are synonymous. They are one and the same.

Now this world that we inhabit is God created and we who inhabit it are God's creatures. However, by the will of God, life here is the work of man. This work will reflect the majority of men's ability to choose to seek the inspiration of God or it will reflect the majority of men's ability to choose to deny the inspiration of God.

It is the individual who chooses to seek inspiration of God multiplied by the number of individuals like him balanced against the individual who chooses to deny God multiplied by the number like him that determines the net result of all men's work.

Today all over the world without exception there is turmoil and strife. It is the net total of man's work. I leave it to you to answer whether the majority of men seek God or deny him.

There are 168 hours in a week. The average adult spends 56 hours sleeping, 48 hours struggling for dollars, 62 hours spending them and 2 hours seeking inspiration of God — if at all.

Their children spend 63 hours sleeping, 30 hours drilling on the imperfect knowledge of man, 74 hours dissipating tremendous energy and 1 hour on the wisdom of God.

At the end of a year's time this is the score for grown ups: 9296 hours spent on self and only 112 hours on God (many not at all); for our children: 9352 hours on self (only 840 hours of this in school) and only 56 hours on God.

Carrying this step farther, if we make an average life 80 years, the total time spent on seeking inspiration from God is 6 weeks, 4 days, and 20 hours less than one year out of the 80.

Yet, the very things that every individual wants, stability, security, peace, happiness, all depend upon the individual achievement of good, knowledge of God — love, faith, truth, integrity, justice, and freedom.

These require individual effort, sacrifice, patience, and courage. With so little time and thought devoted to God, is it any wonder that so many choose men instead who promise Utopia without any crosses to bear.

To heel with the mounting strife and turmoil all over the world; it is not touching you here. To heel with your own flesh and blood whose bloody sacrifices are keeping it over there. It is good over here. To heel with Communism. It is a red herring. Stalin is a good Joe. Didn't Harry say so?

To heel with the graft, corruption and favoritism in high places, you are getting your share. To heel with the generals who led you to victory in World War II. That is water under the bridge, and so are they.

This is a new age, the atom age, the age of deals where there is no place for any who cannot place blind trust in and blind loyalty to the New Deal, the Fair Deal and King Harry. He is real. You can see him, touch him. He answered your prayers with 50 cent dollars in your pockets right here — if you are lucky to escape the draft for Korea or have any left after taxes.

But I am just an old dog, old fashioned, too, I guess, because I still love God best and choose to cast my lot with Ike, even though he, as a hero then, refused to run for office with Harry, so making him, now, a rascally traitor, they say.

Korea

Dear Sirs:

I will drop you a few lines to let you know that I have been getting the Wellington Leader quite a bit since I have been in Korea.

My mother sends it to me every week that she gets up to town and I want you to know that I enjoy the paper. So far I have read every line that was in them. That is just about all I have to do over here.

There isn't anything to do but read or go over to the club, and I don't drink so about all I have to do is read and the paper sure is welcome every time it comes.

I am stationed in the rear with the 8th Army. I haven't been up to the line yet for am doing mechanical work now, but we do have a lot of trucks go up there and we are only 32 miles the way a bird flies. There is one thing I like better than reading the paper and that is home where I would like to be now.

Well, I guess I had better close for now and go to work, but I just got a paper so I want to let you know that I enjoy your paper a lot and hope that I will get every issue that comes out. The paper I have is the 25 September, and my mother and dad are Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bryant.

Yours truly,
Cpl. Johnny R. Bryant

Pvt. Billy B. Chandler is here on leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Chandler. He will remain until October 28, when he leaves for Camp Stoneman, Calif., and from there he expects to be sent to Korea.

In service 13 months, the 21 year old soldier had his basic training at Aberdeen, Md., and since then has been stationed as a guard at Ft. Huachuca Military Prison in Arizona.

Mis brother, Pvt. Malcolm Seale, stationed at Edgewood, Md., with an anti-aircraft artillery group, is expected by the family to arrive while Pvt. Chandler is still here.

Pfc. Jimmy Graves was here recently on 13-day leave from the Marine Corps Base at San Diego, to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Graves. He left Thursday to report for duty at Oceanside, California, where he will train for six weeks before leaving for overseas duty.

A/3c J. R. Godbey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Godbey, Sr., of Clarendon, formerly of the Rolla community, was shipped from the United States August 26 with the 49th Fighter Bomber Wing.

He was shipped to Japan and then to Korea.

A/3c Godbey, who is a mechanic for the Thunderjets, entered the Army Air Force June 14, 1951.

Pontiacs are double-checked. Hundreds of inspections on specific parts and assemblies precede delivery to owners. In addition to these inspections, every Pontiac leaving the final assembly line at Pontiac, Michigan, is driven on this special quarter-mile track. Body, chassis and engine quietness as well as performance are checked in actual operation. Top photo shows a Pontiac Catalina on a rough stretch of track. Below is an aerial photo of the test track that ensures high quality standards.

News Letter

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

BACK TO TEXAS: This letter is being written while Mrs. Rogers and I are en route to Texas. We were able to secure the services of a lady to stay with the children so that Jean and I might get home for a few weeks. We discovered that the University of Texas was playing the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. This is not out of the way coming to Texas, so we arranged to attend the game. You could all be justly proud of Texas. The boys played a wonderful game. The Panhandle was well represented in the person of T. Jones, who hails from Childress and plays quarterback. He did an outstanding job and received high praise from all of the spectators and the opposing players. The people of North Carolina certainly proved that their reputation for good sportsmanship is no idle rumor. They certainly displayed to the nth degree the courteous hospitality for which the South is famous. Many Texans were on hand for the game. I'm sure all of them left with a warm spot in their hearts for the fine State of North Carolina. This state has a fine delegation in Congress that has provided much of the strength in the battle against socialist programs, and in protecting the rights of the South.

We left Durham which is 12 miles from Chapel Hill, and drove across the state to Asheville, thence to Chattanooga, thence to Memphis, Little Rock, Tulsa, on to Sherman, Texas, to visit my mother, then to the District where we will be for several weeks unless we get a hurry-up call to return to Washington. During this entire trip I have been especially interested in noting the attitude of the people on the matter of voting. Many of them are hesitant to discuss party politics, but they are all wide awake about the coming election and are pretty well advised on the important issues facing the country. They are definitely doing their own thinking. Many of the smaller towns have headquarters set up for the presidential and vice-presidential candidates. The people as a whole appear to be interested in facts and truth. They are reading and listening carefully and weighing the facts. They don't hesitate to ask questions and to seek all information possible. This is so in the rural areas as well as the large cities. There seems to be increasing interest in a presidential preferential primary. Some feel that party nominations should be by such a primary, with the retention of the electoral college system for election. Others feel that the president and vice-president should be elected by popular vote; that the electoral college system should be abolished. There are still others who feel that a proper solution would be an amendment providing that each candidate should receive only the percentage of electoral votes that he receives popular vote in each state. This is definitely a problem on which much will be done and said before the 1956 elections. Generally speaking, we found that the folks in all sections are primarily interested in the United States and what it stands for. They realize the responsibility that we hold in the world today and are willing to meet all requirements, but they are not willing to exhaust our resources trying to keep up the whole world. Opinions are varied on how far this country should go in foreign aid, but almost unanimous that such aid should be on the basis of the helped helping themselves as much as humanly possible.

The crops across the southeastern section seemed to be in fairly good shape, but you can sure tell where the drought disaster belt begins. The small business men report decreases in sales and profits, but many of them think that this is the usual pre-election slump, and that business will level off again after the election. One fellow told me that this slump in business was a healthy thing in the smaller communities, because things had just gone too high. He seemed to think that the slump would become more noticeable in the larger cities, especially as to profits, and that the election had nothing to do with it. It is interesting to read the national polls and estimates that are made on a nationwide scale, and then go out into the different communities and talk to the people. The nation-wide picture is a great deal different from the single community pictures, but the two together make a wonderful view of the entire American scene.

If you ever get to feeling that the country is going to the dogs and can't be saved, just start out across the country and stop every chance you get and visit with the folks. America will never go to the dogs as long as we have the kind of Americans that I have been talking to for the past several days, and most of them look pretty healthy and good for many years to come.

Here's the Answer

BEE LINES

By JOHN THOMAS

John Thomas, member of the Texas State Beekeepers Association, will spark the local campaign to promote interest in bees and honey.

"Bees are very important to our national welfare because they are the major agent in the pollination of about 50 farm crops," Thomas explained.

"Our government has recognized that we must keep our bee population at the present high level if we are to produce enough food to feed our increasing population," Thomas said.

"To do this, beekeepers have to find a market for all their honey," he emphasized, pointing out that this is the reason why the honey industry, food handlers, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture's have launched special promotion of honey during October.

Thomas said that many national advertisers are trying honey in with their advertising of their products during October.

For example, honey will be featured with hot biscuits, meats, citrus fruits throughout the country," Thomas said.

The most intensive promotional campaign ever conducted on a local or national scale for honey starts here today.

The honey industry and food handlers have the support of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration in this campaign due to the importance of bees in the national economy.

"About 50 farm crops depend on bees for pollination," Thomas explained. "To keep the bees, we have to sell the honey they produce."

The honey campaign will run throughout October, reaching a climax during National Honey Week beginning October 26.

"It is timed to coincide with the peak movement of the new crop of honey to market," Thomas said.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kromer and children, Jimmy and Carolyn of Vinson spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Clay.

Leo Smith arrived recently from California to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smith.

Mrs. Blanche Rodgers of Panhandle visited during the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Epps and Miss Catherine Turner.

NOT SKIDDING AROUND—Joseph LaRocca of Cleveland demonstrates his special skid-eliminating tire clip which may soon outsell ordinary tire chains. After eight years of no sale LaRocca has succeeded in getting a manufacturer to produce the clips which are designed to snap on when a tire passes over it. He says they'll provide almost certain traction in ice, snow or mud.

4-H BOYS AND GIRLS SEE SIGHTS OF THE STATE FAIR OF TEXAS

By SHARLENE SAUNDERS

The latest 4-H event was when each 4-H Club in the county sent two representatives to the State Fair of Texas at Dallas October 3. The group left Wellington about 1:00 p.m. and arrived in Dallas at 8:15 p.m. After finding their rooms where they would spend the night, they attended a movie.

On Saturday morning, the group got up at 6 o'clock and went to station WFAA to attend the Early Birds Radio and TV program. When they got there, there was such a crowd that not even standing room was left.

As they entered the Fair Grounds, they were greeted by a Texas Cowboy, "Tex," who stands 55 feet high, and wears levis, a plaid shirt, and a 70 gallon hat. That was something everyone should have seen.

When the exhibits opened, the group went through the agriculture building first. In this building were all the FFA, college and other agriculture exhibits. After that came the poultry building, which had a huge exhibit of turkeys and chickens. Then they went through the Museum, where all the historical things were. The largest building was the General Exhibits building, which had everything in it. There were other exhibits, such as the Electric building, where every electric appliance was on display, the automobile building, where cars of every model, as well as dream cars, were on display.

By this time dinner was near, so they went to the place where Sears-Roebuck fed all 4-H members. The sack lunch consisted of a steak sandwich, potato chips, a cold drink and desert. About 20,000 were given these free lunches that day.

After lunch, the group separated and the girls went to the Midway while the boys went to the General Exhibits building and watched the World Series on television. The sponsors rested.

The group met again at 4:30 and had a chicken supper. After this, the boys went to the Midway, the sponsors went to a puppet show and the girls went to the Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis Show. When this was over, the group went home.

On Sunday morning, they got up, packed and loaded the pick-up, and said good-bye to the people they stayed with. On the way home, they stopped at Sunset and attended the Church of Christ. After church they drove to Wichita Falls and ate dinner. They arrived home around 6:30, glad to get home even though they had had a good time over the week end.

Making the trip were Johnnie Lou Baird and Raymond Daugherty of Dodson; Joyce Amerson and Ernest Daugherty of Samnorwood; Sharlene Saunders and Lloyd Langford of Quail, Mary Beth Kelso, James Colson and Ada Carole Thomas of Wellington, and Mrs. J. W. Thomas, who served as sponsor for the boys, and Miss Mary Trammel, who sponsored the girls.

The R. J. Dunsons Move to Littlefield

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Dunson moved Wednesday to Littlefield, where they will make their future home.

Mr. Dunson, who was employed by the Mill Iron Ranch here, will be cashier of the Furr Food Store at Littlefield, while Mrs. Dunson will begin work October 20 as teller of the First National Bank in that town. She was employed by the Wellington State Bank during the time they lived here.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Dunson of Wellington, while Mrs. Dunson, before their recent marriage, was Miss Faygene Turnbow.

They will make their home at 808 West Second, Littlefield.

Wellington FFA Makes Annual Trip to Fair

Future Farmers from Wellington attended Youth Day, Saturday, October 4, at the State Fair of Texas.

The Future Farmers left for Dallas following the football game and arrived in the early hours Saturday, checked in at a tourist lodge near the Fair Grounds.

The group enjoyed displays, entertainment, exhibits and carnival attractions. Part of the group attended the SMU-Georgia Tech football game Saturday night, while others went to the Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis Show, and others saw the sights of Dallas.

Also making the trip were the FFA Sweetheart, Effie Spear, and the other candidates for that office, Beatrice Hutchins, Shirley Pritchard and Sue Harvey. Mrs. Faye Harvey accompanied the girls.

Future Farmers going were Lester Montgomery, Leroy Belew, Phillip Cobb, Calvin Aaron, Billy Crosby, Troy Thomason, Tommy Tollett, Don Wheeler, Auburn Boykin, Levere Jolliff, Wayne Maxwell, Donald Rummel, Eddie Slay, Bill Wheeler, Horace Holliman, Jesse D. Burkhalter, Jim Wilson, Jesse Davis, and the advisor, M. L. Burks.

Mrs. Bert Weaver and daughter, Miss Barbara Weaver, of Quail and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Pierce of Marella were in Lubbock from Thursday until Saturday at the bedside of their brother-in-law, Walter Pierson, who underwent surgery in a Lubbock hospital. Mr. Pierson lived in this county for a number of years before moving to the Plains.

Mrs. Frank Turley underwent minor surgery in St. Joseph's Hospital Friday, and was returned to her home Monday.

Former Resident To Hold Service at Assembly of God

The Rev. J. A. Thomas, district superintendent of the West Texas District of the Assemblies of God, will be at the Assembly of God, 500 8th Street, for a special service Wednesday night, October 22.

Rev. Thomas will show motion pictures taken during his trip to Palestine and other points in the Near East during July. He will lecture as the film is shown.

A former Wellington resident here, Rev. Thomas was a funeral director here for a number of years.

"A welcome is extended to all to attend, and especially to Rev. Thomas friends throughout this area," the Rev. Austin Jolliff, pastor, said.

Another special service will be conducted by the Christ's Ambassadors, youth organization of the Assembly of God, Sunday, October 19, at 7:00 p. m., Mrs. Jolliff, who is president of the group, said.

This service will be in recognition of the Assemblies of God National Youth Day.

"The public is invited, and regular evangelistic services will follow immediately," Mrs. Jolliff said.

Jack Boverie, who has been working at Plains, spent the week end here with his mother, Mrs. A. C. Boverie, and his aunt, Miss Katherine Boverie. A geologist, he had completed his work at Plains and went from here to Midland for additional work.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Woods and granddaughter of Dalhart were guests in the Tom Dobs home awhile Saturday morning.

Donald Joe Terry, junior student in Texas Technological College, spent the week end here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Terry. Terry is majoring in physical education.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Derryberry of Wellington are the parents of a son, Ellis Keith, born September 30, in Shattuck, Okla. He weighed seven pounds and seven ounces.

Miss Lavanna Boykin Hostess to YWA

The YWA met in the home of Miss Lavanna Boykin Tuesday, October 7. Miss Vada Cook was in charge of the program and Miss Bettye Price gave the devotional.

Refreshments of sandwiches, chips, and punch were served.

Mrs. B. J. Peggram, who was formerly YWA sponsor before moving away, and daughter, Linda Karen, were visitors.

Members present were: Misses Vada Cook, Cliffla Jean Langford, Bettye Price, Nelda Nipper, Mary Beth Lamkin, Alice Faye Lowrie, Mrs. Dottie Sue Bettis, sponsor, and the hostess, Miss Boykin.

Occupants Injured As Cars Collide

Passengers in two cars, traveling in opposite directions, escaped death Friday evening, October 10, when the two vehicles collided at the west edge of the pavement on Highway 88, just south of the Earl Harrison service station.

Deputy Sheriff R. N. Barnett, who investigated the accident, said that James R. Walker of Pampa, traveling north in a Chevrolet two-door sedan, pulled out of his traffic lane to pass a truck driven by Tom Cunningham of the Samnorwood community. As he did so, he met the 1952 Buick sedan, driven by Ebb Farmer, Wheeler filling station operator.

Fire Department Names Officers For New Year

Both drivers attempted to turn into the bar ditch on the west side of the highway, and Walker's vehicle struck the Farmer car broadside as both were almost off the slab, Mr. Barnett reported.

With Mr. Farmer were his wife, a sister-in-law and one other passenger.

Mr. Walker's home is at Powell, Wyoming, but he has been staying in Pampa. He is a nephew of Will Ward. His mother was a passenger in the car at the time of the accident.

The injured were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where their injuries were reported to be painful but not critical.

Both vehicles were badly damaged, Mr. Barnett said.

Just because he's a human dynamo doesn't mean that everything he has on is charged.

Anti-Christ Revealed

To All Who May Be Interested

If you saw men working on our building site at 1511 Amarillo St., Saturday, October 11, they were doing so against my wishes, and against my expressed request that they not work on that day.

You may ask, (and you have a right to) why such a request?

The Creator of the world, my Heavenly Father, says, "The seventh day is the sabbath of the Lord God: in it thou shalt not do any work." Exodus 20:10, and verse 8 — "Remember the sabbath day to keep it Holy." Jesus Christ said (Mark 2:27) that He made the sabbath for man. See also John 1:1-3, 10, 14.

God re-emphasized the keeping of the sabbath and claimed it to be a perpetual (never ceasing, endless) covenant. He also said it is a sign between me and you that 'men' may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Exodus 31:13-17.

You may not be interested in searching the scriptures as Jesus commanded us to do — John 5:39; you may be of the group Jesus spoke of in verse 40. But my Bible tells me, without holiness (consecration) no man shall see God. Heb. 12:14. Then we, personally, are willing to accept the sign—keeping of the sabbath—that God does sanctify us. See also Ezekiel 20:12, 19, 20.

We are not so concerned about the things of this world, but we would like to accept Jesus' offer of eternal life on the exact terms that He offered it. John 3:16; Heb. 5:9; Mat. 7:21. God forbid that we should be found trying to climb up some other way. John 10:1.

The Lord tells us, through His Holy Word (Dan. 7:25) that there would be an evil power who would think (try) "to change the times and laws." "Then Peter and the other apostles answered and said, we ought to obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29.

"Now therefore fear the Lord, and serve Him in sincerity and in truth—and if it seem evil unto you to serve the Lord, choose you this day whom you will serve." "But as for me"—I "will serve the Lord." Joshua 24:14, 15.

"With malice toward none" and brotherly love for all men.

Sincerely,

Ben Wilhelm

Draft Age Can Be Lowered to 19 Years, 11 Months

AUSTIN — State draft boards, under an order issued Monday at State Selective Service headquarters, can reduce the age limit of men to be physically examined from 20 years to 19 years and 11 months.

The order, effective with the November physical examination call, was revealed when state draft headquarters placed in the mail quotas to local boards calling for examination of 7,655 men in November.

"This does not mean that every young man 19 years and 11 months old will be examined," Lt. Col. Morris S. Schwartz, deputy state director said. "Local boards are required to send all those 21 and over first, then dip into the 20-year-old group, then below 20 if necessary."

"We are lowering the minimum age level," he continued, "just as a safety measure. If a local board can't fill its quota with older men, this authorizes the board to call on the men who have reached 19 years and 11 months."

"The manpower situation is getting tight enough that we are afraid some local boards might not have enough men if we held to the 20-year minimum," Colonel Schwartz concluded.

State draft headquarters Monday also mailed November quotas for induction to all state local boards, involving orders to report for induction for 2,802 men.

A state quota calling for the re-examination of 942 4-Fs was mailed to local boards having such 4-F registrants. Altogether, a total of 11,399 Texas men are scheduled to be transported for examination, re-examination, and induction during November.

Both examinations and inductions will be held in Abilene, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, San Antonio, and Shreveport.

Absentee Voting Opens In County Wednesday

Absentee voting for the general election begins Wednesday, September 15, and will continue through October 31, County Clerk David Robinson reminded voters this week.

A heavier absentee vote is anticipated this year than for any election in recent years, county officials believe, due to the keen interest in the presidential election.

Official ballots for this election were printed during the week end by The Wellington Leader for the county.

Six parties are listed on the ballot, with one space left for independent candidates and in the other for write-in candidates. Only the Democratic and Republican parties offer a slate of state candidates, and in accordance with the decision of the state Republican committee, the Democratic nominees for state office, with one exception, were adopted as candidates for the Republican Party. The one exception is John C. White of Wichita Falls, who asked that his name be removed from the Republican ticket.

This year, for the first time also, names of the president and vice presidential nominees appear on the ballot, rather than the names of the electors for the party.

Ranking Methodist Layman to Speak Here Sunday

Ray Nichols of Vron, one of world Methodism's leading laymen, will be the guest speaker at the Layman's Day Program at the Methodist Church Sunday, October 19, at the 11 o'clock hour, the Rev. J. F. Michael, pastor, has announced.

The topic throughout the church on this day will be "Methodist Men: Builders of the Kingdom," and the theme, "Rise Up, O Men of God."

Walter Franks, charge lay leader, is in charge of the program. Mr. Nichols is president of the General Board of Lay Activities for the Methodist Church, a post to which he was recently re-elected.

He also serves as chairman of the conference board of lay activities of the Northwest Texas Conference.

In the past he has spoken in Wellington several times, but this will be his first address here in recent years.

"Seldom does our church have an opportunity to hear such a distinguished church man. The public is cordially invited, and we know you will like what Ray Nichols has to say," Rev. Michael said.

Farm Bureau Membership Drive Pushes Ahead

The annual membership drive of the Farm Bureau will remain in full swing until the closing date, Monday, October 20, and by that time a majority of the farmers and business men of the county will have been contacted, W. R. Breeding of Abra, president of the Collingsworth County unit, declared this week.

Benefits which the Farm Bureau have brought to Collingsworth County, as well as plans and the program for the coming year are being stressed in the 1952 drive.

Approximately 100 farmers and business men had renewed their memberships in the Farm Bureau before the drive officially opened, Riley Dunson, who is in charge of the local office, said.

First of the communities to report was Abra, in which workers secured 100 per cent membership. Workers over the county this year include:

Wellington and the surrounding area: Wilson Porter, Bess Owen, Everett Anglin and Fred Cox Jr. Dodson: Fred Boyd and Ruel Alexander.

Samnorwood: Tom Cunningham, Herbert Knoll, Willie Knoll and Guy Lindley.

Rolla: Wallace O'Rear. Buck Creek: Palo Cummings. Cross Roads: Gus Barton.

Marella: Mrs. Ernest Pierce and Mrs. Grover Pattitt. Abra: Mr. Breeding, Gus Gooch,

In addition to the presidential candidates listed by the Democratic and Republican parties, Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman, and Dwight Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon, the following are carried as candidates for those offices:

Prohibition Party: Stewart Hamblen and E. A. Holtwick. Progressive Party: Vincent Hallinan and Charlotte Bass.

Christian Nationalist Party: Douglas MacArthur and Jack B. Tenney.

Constitution Party: Douglas MacArthur and Vivien Kellens.

Revival Planned By the First Christian Church

The Rev. A. G. Abbott of Fort Worth, State Evangelist for the Texas Christian Missionary Society, will conduct an evangelistic meeting for the First Christian Church of Wellington beginning on October 23 and continuing through November 2nd.

All services will be held in the building of the First Christian Church, beginning at 7:30 o'clock each evening, except Saturday. "Evangelist Abbott has always directed a most enthusiastic evangelistic program in the churches he has served. He is a faithful proclaimer of the Gospel, cordial and cooperative. All people of the community are invited to attend the services, with the assurance that they will be challenged and strengthened spiritually through the influence of these meetings," the Rev. Jack Garrett, pastor of the church, said.

A special program of visitation and special prayer services will be held in preparation for the revival.

Norwood School Reopens Oct. 27

The Samnorwood school will reopen following the cotton picking vacation on Monday, October 27, Supt. Orville Cunningham announced this week.

"If there is no bad weather during which we must dismiss classes, we will close school at the usual time in the spring by teaching on only one Saturday," Mr. Cunningham said.

"We want to encourage every parent to send his children from the time school re-opens. It is important to the child that he be present every day, and it is important to the school, since the number of teachers we have is determined by the attendance of the students."

During the cotton picking vacation, a number of repairs have been made to the building, and extensive repair work is being completed on the gymnasium.

Seniors Give 3-Act Comedy on October 28

Wellington seniors are sponsoring the three-act comedy "Don't Take My Penny," Tuesday night, October 28, at 8:00 p.m., in the high school auditorium.

This is a repeat performance of the play that the same cast gave as their junior class play last year — the night a circus came to town and ruined their audience. The play is being given again by request from many who didn't get to see it the first time, Mrs. Taylor Lowrie, director, said.

Proceeds will be used by the seniors in sponsoring their candidate for Carnival Queen, Jocelyn Wells.

The story concerns Penny, played by Jan Crawford, who hopes to be selected for the star role in the movie version of a popular novel when the talent scout comes to town. What she doesn't know is that Sally, the new maid, played by Ruthie McCaskill, is a former child star, whom a clever publicity agent has planted there to be "discovered" by the author.

Around this plot revolves a group of others who contribute laugh after laugh — through three acts. These characters include Norman Porter, a publicity man, played by Harold W. Moore; Caleb, Penny's father, James LeDerer; Mark, her farm-minded brother, Jesse Davis; Mavis, her attractive sister, Sue Harvey; Lydia, a mother that is so busy lecturing on child rearing that she can't raise her own, Mary Jane Johnson; Joanne, Penny's loyal friend, Betty Wood; Kerry, her boy friend, Jim Thompson; Greg, his pal, Freddie Alexander; Gram, just herself, Jean Stingle; Red, a delivery boy, Calvin Lacy; Monsieur Henri, a French designer, James Glascock; three models, Jocelyn Wells, Eugene Black and Glennafred Yarbrough; and Harrison Day, a young author, Jimmy Leggett.

In addition to her church work, Mrs. Curry was at one time a member of the 1924 Study Club.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon, with the Rev. J. F. Michael officiating.

Pall bearers were nephews or cousins, Dr. Dale Watkins, Lowell Wells, Jim Lorente, Harold Watkins, Tommy Stall, Henry Stall, Mooney Stall and Lloyd Holway.

Flower bearers were members of her Sunday school class. Burial was in the Wellington cemetery, with arrangements directed by the Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Curry is survived by her husband and four children, Fletcher Curry, Donald Curry, Miss Loraine Curry and Mrs. Sam Gholson, all of Wellington. There are six granddaughters, Mrs. Darrel Tompkins, Mrs. Eddie McCaskey, Donna and Joyce Curry, and Ann and Nell Gholson; and three great grandsons.

Other survivors are these brothers and sisters: Mrs. George Greenhaw of Memphis; Mrs. George Richards of Spring Lake, Calif.; and Gus Stall of Fort Stockton; and a half sister, Mrs. Clyde Miller of Clovis, N. M.

until 1925, when they moved to Wheeler county, near Mobetie. They lived there until about 18 months ago, when they moved to California. Until his retirement at that time, Mr. Owens had engaged in farming throughout his adult life.

His death followed a long illness. Mr. Owens was a member of the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Singley and Mrs. W. W. Sugg are visiting this week in Sulphur, Oklahoma with Mrs. Sugg's daughter, Mrs. Frank Crawford.

Mrs. Walter Smith has returned home after a month's visit with relatives at Lubbock and other South Plains points.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cook and Linda Gail of Oklahoma City have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Vaughan.

BACK TO SCHOOL IN DENIM

Play-Hard, Wash-Easy Cottons

BY EDNA MILES

DENIMS have taken on a new look. Some of them sparkle. Some of them look like tweed and others appear to be shantung.

For school-going children, the tweedy cottons are ideal. Given a touch of rayon, the cotton suitings look and feel much like wool. are washable, mercerized, sanforized, vat-dyed and wrinkle-resistant. Thus, they are ideal for fall wear, before really cold weather sets in and wool becomes indispensable.

Glaze Finish Denims Can Be Laundered

A denim that has a glazed finish is completely washable, is spot and wrinkle-resistant. Embossed for a handsome, tweedy effect, it comes in fall shades of charcoal or brown and has been cut into smart fashions for children.

Budget-priced, these miniature fashions will have special appeal for mother since they take to the tub with great ease. The new finishes aid in maintaining the original appearance through many washings and much of the hard wear that children invariably give their clothes.

FACTS ABOUT COYOTE CONTROL IN AREA REVIEWED BY AGENT

E. G. Pope, assistant district agent in Texas for the Fish and Wildlife Service, was in Collingsworth County this week checking the coyote control program in this area.

Mr. Pope has given out the following statement concerning the problems of coyote trapping here. The work is now being done by Roland Smith, county trapper, who is sponsored by the Collingsworth County Coyote Trappers Association, an organization of land owners.

"Under the supervision of U. S. Department of the Interior, Fish & Wildlife Service, there is some kind of predator program carried on in every state west of the Mississippi River. In Texas, the program has been in operation for the past 37 years for the economical benefit of landowners and for the protection of livestock, poultry, game birds and animals. All work is done under supervisors of the Fish & Wildlife Service. Only approved methods of control are employed by operators.

"More than a year ago a number of landowners in Collingsworth County got together and entered into the usual contract with the State of Texas and the Fish and Wildlife Service for the control of coyotes on their land and they are paying for this service on the usual basis of operation. This contract is the same as one whereby any individual would contract for any kind of work or services, consequently, the trapper is employed to do a job of work just the same as any other workman who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow.

"Trappers have required rules and approved methods of operation and are expected to get results as in any other vocation. There seems to have developed an idea from a few individuals or a minority group that the trapper is obligated to keep them advised of where he is working, which is not the case any more than any other individual workman is required to report his daily work to the public. He does not have the time to spare in the first place. He may have to change his location of work on short notice. On the other hand, the Service would like to cooperate with the public as far as possible to do so in order to avoid any interference or misunderstanding.

"The trapper will only be operating on property where he has written permission to do so. His equipment will be handled beyond any reasonable doubt safely and harmlessly to the general public. He will put out warning signs in the vicinity of his work or at main entrances to private property. Vandals may destroy these signs which we go to a lot of expense and trouble to use to advise the public of our operations. Last year we had a lot of vandalism of our equipment and dead coyotes which caused a lot of trouble and expense.

"We believe it would be well for hunters to familiarize themselves with the new version of Texas Trespass Law, also the Federal Code, Sec. 47.

"In some counties in Texas where trappers were employed to control coyotes, a survey was made by civic groups or other disinterested agencies and they have reported that the predator control projects have, in some counties, increased the revenue of the county as much as one hundred thousand dollars in a year. It has been further found that the minority group which opposed the trapping work usually owned or controlled less than one per cent of the farm and ranch land of the county.

TV FOR DEAF TUNERS—Hearing aid giving deaf persons easy access to television programs is demonstrated by a pretty London model. Exhibited at a British radio show, the video-assister has tone control with two knobs on a specially constructed switch box. The outfit, still only in the demonstration stage, can be plugged into any radio or TV set.

"In conclusion, I would like to say we go to a lot of trouble and expense to avoid killing dogs. That is not our business, although we have the misfortune of killing a dog occasionally, which is generally carelessness on the part of the owner. Investigation of the loss of one worthless dog has often revealed that the loss has grown into fantastic figures and tales. On the other hand, if dog owners would go to as much trouble to take care of their dogs as we do to avoid killing them, there would be very few dogs killed and less ill will. Furthermore, when a dog is killed or disappears, there is a tendency for the owner to blame the trapper. Many dogs are allowed to roam and sooner or later disappear by methods other than the trapper's operation. Stockmen are privileged to protect stock from depredation. There was a time when people were privileged to roam the ranges at will, but times have changed and that is no longer regarded as a privilege. Now it would have the same meaning or effect as for some individual to drive up in your front yard and pitch camp and start the usual camp activities. We just live in a different atmosphere and conditions than in the past, and it may be hard to adjust ourselves to the ever changing conditions.

"The Fish and Wildlife Service is not unmindful of the public's rights and privileges, and will appreciate criticism and comments. It is always ready to cooperate on any problems."

You may like your present car... but this Aero Willys you're going to LOVE!

Come in and take a low-and-lovely Aero-Wing or Aero-Ace out on the road.

Take it easy at first. That's no ordinary engine under that down-swept hood—it's the power-crammed F-head Hurricane 6—and it will sprint from 20 to 60 in a matter of seconds.

Head into a hairpin curve and feel the roadsteadiness you get with a 23-inch center of gravity. Idle it down, then stomp on it.

See how Willys' exclusive rubber-cushioned drive system swallows up tremor and vibration.

Drive at normal speed over rough, bumpy road and you'll say we're modest in calling it an "air-borne" ride.

Check all else you get in an Aero Willys: Visibility that lets you see all four fenders. Seating width, front and rear, 61 inches. And mileage with the Hurricane Engine and overdrive* that, speed for speed, under the same conditions, surpasses every other six-passenger American car!

Operation Mainbrace is coming to a close — perhaps not as brilliant a conclusion as the high brass of the various nations had planned and hoped for but a significant and impressive operation nevertheless. It was and is the greatest naval show ever held by a group of nations. Undoubtedly, such a display of force brought some measure of renewed confidence to the smaller countries such as Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, etc., as they saw over 200 ships and 80,000 men engage in these operations. And perhaps the best proof of the success of the joint military effort of the eight NATO nations participating was that Russia did not like any part of the maneuvers.

Sunday, September 20, was a great day for the pilots. They have been champing at the bit or whatever it is that flyers do when they are sharp and eager ever since they were prevented from flying at Bodo by the Arctic storm. But Sunday was a good day and they made strikes on the enemy on land and planes from other carriers attacked the Wasp and the FDR and the Midway which are near us. It was impressive to see one formation of high flying planes peel off on a dive to drop their imaginary bombs while another group came in slightly above water level to loose their mythical torpedoes. The Wasp has manned torpedo stations at irregular intervals for the past two days and nights. Even the editors have not been getting too much sleep; but the one from Texas has been getting by O.K. by taking naps in the daytime.

The unpredictable weather of the North Atlantic has been the factor that has caused many plans to be changed. Actually none of the weather the fleet has experienced in Main Brace would have halted flying if the war had been real instead of mimic. The decision to ground the pilots on the bad days meets with the unqualified approval of this writer. After all this type of flying is hazardous under any conditions, and it might be remembered that five pilots, one English and four Americans have been lost in these maneuvers. There is nothing imaginary, simulated or mimic about the sorrow in the homes of those men who so suddenly left the bright light of the living day to disappear forever in the cold green waters of these turbulent seas.

But it is part of the price that must be paid by any branch of the armed services if that military arm of our nation is to be kept in fighting trim.

The other night we saw a spectacle that we had not witnessed before. In the past the ships had been steaming at night with darkened ships; but a small fishing vessel was observed by radar to be approaching the screen of our part of the fleet. At a given signal all of the lights of all the warships flashed on in order that the fishing vessel could find its way through the fleet. Wonder what on earth the skipper of that small craft thought as the lights of all those warships flashed on for miles and miles around. There were some 36 warships that could be seen around the Wasp as the small craft steamed westward as we moved eastward. (Don't question this writer's sense of direction on the high seas — he was looking at the compass on the Admiral's bridge at the time. As far as his sense of direction can be trusted both the FDR and the Wasp have been steaming constantly southward since Norfolk. According to his native sense of direction, we ought to be somewhere about the tip of South America by this time instead of off the coast of Denmark.)

We should have been refueling destroyers today; but the seas were too high. Refueling is one of the touchy times for a destroyer. As they use their fuel they pump in sea water to maintain the proper ballast and with the proper amount of either fuel or sea water they can go through the heaviest seas without much danger. But when it comes time to refuel the destroyer must pump out the sea water to make way for the fuel she is going to take on board. This makes the ship too light and in heavy seas she bobs around like a cork. Two men have suffered broken legs and three broken arms and one an injured back while attempting to refuel in the stormy weather of the last few days.

All your life you have heard about how quickly people die of shock and exposure in the North Atlantic. Learned something about this the other day while inspecting the suits the pilots wear. They have an inner lining to keep out the cold; but the important thing is the outer garment which is air tight and which will keep him dry. It is the business of keeping dry that is important. Nothing will conduct heat away from a warm object like water. Consider the blacksmith as he plunges a red hot plow point into the water. In seconds he can touch it with his hands. It would take many long minutes for the same object to cool that much in the air. It is estimated that a man could live twenty minutes in these waters with ordinary clothes and a life jacket; but with one of these modern flying suits a pilot can live for hours provided he gets out of his plane. When sea water is as low as twenty-eight degrees a man can live in it only three minutes—his body heat drains away just that fast.

With Main Brace completed the Wasp is heading for Portsmouth, England, where all of the correspondents and about 20 per cent of the crew will have three days ashore. That is the best part of riding on a warship — getting ashore.

But your correspondents have learned a lot about Naval operations especially that part connected with Naval Aviation and we have gained a new respect for the men and the ships that play such a vital role in the defense of our freedom. In the midst of the cold war which it looks like Russia will keep perpetuating it is heartening to see the efficiency and the earnestness and the overall esprit de corps of the men who man the ships and fly the planes.

Construction Men Here for Work

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kaufman and daughter, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Kaufman, of the Kaufman Construction Company, Fort Worth, moved to Wellington recently where the two men will be in charge of construction of the new home of Mr. and Mrs. John Sherman, at the south end of East Avenue. They are living in the home of Mrs. J. L. Hays, near to the construction project. Also here is Howard Johns, Fort Worth interior decorator, who will work on the same job. The group plans to be in Wellington about four months.

Public Warned Untaxed Cigarettes Bring Heavy Fines

An out-of-state corporation has "flooded the state" with literature advertising cigarettes at $1.70 per carton, Robert S. Calvert, Comptroller of Public Accounts, announced today.

The price quoted does not include the State tax stamps of $40 per carton. Stamps must be purchased and placed on each package and the purchase reported to the Comptroller or the user will be subject to heavy penalties Calvert warned.

The more possession of cigarettes not bearing the state tax stamp is punishable by $25.00 to $200.00 fine. Failure to report the purchase of unstamped cigarettes is punishable by maximum fine of $5,000 or two years in prison or both.

Unless this falsely glittering offer is refused by citizens of this state the State Available School Fund, Old Age Pension Fund and the fund for state hospitals and special schools taking care of unfortunate state wards will suffer a substantial loss as will local legitimate dealers, Calvert said.

The literature promises "absolute privacy" but Calvert explained federal law requires any company shipping cigarettes to report where and to whom they were shipped, and the Texas law requires reports on all out-of-state purchases.

Any person receiving literature as described should contact the Comptroller in Austin or any one of his branch offices.

For the convenience of the people of the Panhandle offices are located in Amarillo and Lubbock.

Joe Schaded Dies Of Heart Attack

Joe Schaded, 56, Paducah merchant and civic leader, died of a heart attack Tuesday night, Oct. 7, while holding to the edge of a capsized boat in norther-swept Lake Texoma, 10 miles north of Whitesboro.

He was the brother of Enis Schaded and was known here.

His body was found floating in a life preserver on the lake about 4 a.m. Wednesday, 100 feet from the Texas shore.

Schaded and his nephew, Eblen Malouf, clothing manufacturer of Dallas and Whitesboro, were fishing on the lake Tuesday afternoon, offshore from the Cedar Bayou resort.

Their boat overturned about 5 p.m. After an hour in the water, Malouf decided to swim to shore, 75 yards away, to get help. He was unsuccessful in his effort to get help and wandered about on the lake shore in wet clothing for two hours, lost his bearings and finally buried himself in the sand to avoid further exposure. Meanwhile, Ray Falk, resort owner, began a search for the two fishermen.

A physician at Whitesboro said Schaded died about 9:30 p.m.

Schaded was born in Kafracab, Lebanon, the son of Schaded Malouf, and came to the United States when he was 16 years old. When he immigrated he assumed his father's first name as his surname.

He served in the United States Army as an infantry corporal in World War II.

He had lived in Paducah 30 years. He was a member of the American Legion, the Lions Club and the Knights of Pythias and Masonic lodges there and of Khiva Shrine Temple at Amarillo.

Survivors are his wife, the former Olivia Kafury of Hamana, Lebanon, whom he married there in 1929; two sons, Maurice of Paducah and Don, a student at North Texas State College; two brothers, Hallowe'en is supposed to be a night when witches and goblins come out of their hiding places. It is a rare autumn evening when sophisticated adults and older children smile at tricks played on wary householders. They think the jokes are done by boys and girls. But if you look quickly enough at a dark shadow flitting by, or suddenly disappearing over the edge of a kitchen table, you will see what this little girl sees. Her mother and older sister don't believe in such things. They are working very hard on a grinning jack-o'-lantern. But the littlest lass believes in the small people... so she sees them and joins in the secret fun of an evening set aside for all little people.

Ennis Schaded of Wellington and Fudallah Malouf of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and a sister, Melia, in Lebanon.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Friday at the First Baptist Church in Paducah with Rev. H. S. Morris officiating.

Going from Wellington to the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Mack Saied, Mrs. E. M. Hix and Dick Sweat, Mr. and Mrs. Enis Schaded and their daughters, Miss Yvette Schaded and Miss Diane Schaded, who are now at Tyler, were in Wellington during the past week end.

It's Okay to Win Tool

It was a coincidence we think, worth mentioning. Last week The Oxford Press carried a quote attributed to Paul Brown, manager of the Cleveland Browns professional football team and previously successful coach at Massillon high school and Ohio State University. "There is no evil in winning," is said to be one of Brown's favorite expressions. Just a day before the Press appeared with that statement, a Cincinnati daily carried the headline, "School Sports Aim Not To Win, Educator Says."

The newspaper headline was written over an account of a talk made by Delbert Oberteuffer, Ohio State University professor of physical education, before the Midwest Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation in Cincinnati.

"School sports are not commercial and we in education are not running an amusement park. It makes no difference who wins the championship unless the participants see more than the championship. Unless they see their sports experience directed toward democratic values," Oberteuffer said.

We will not argue with Mr. Oberteuffer, and perhaps in the final analysis he and Mr. Brown agree, but we are inclined to go along with the latter's emphasis on winning. Since when is that not the primary objective of competitive sports or competition in any phase of life? "Winning fairly is an admirable accomplishment, no matter what the field of endeavor," says Brown.

Too often, today's thinking is directed along the lines that a winner must have won by taking unfair advantage; that success in business — to make a profit — is something to be ashamed of and to be penalized by progressively higher taxes.

Take away the glory of "winning" and you kill the thing which has made America great, the thing which has made the living standards in America the highest in the world.

For Vocation and Avocation

The teaching of Golf to school students as a side issue is a rather novel idea. Yet it is to be inaugurated at the high school here next week.

It admittedly is novel in our community, but doesn't it make sense? One wouldn't want it to take the place of the more elementary subjects, of course, but as an addition to the recreational program it looks like a good idea.

Recreation and relaxation are as necessary to the welfare of people of all ages as work and study. Golf is a wholesome sport. It takes people out into the air and sunshine. It requires them to walk, sometimes over hilly terrain. It offers great possibilities for the development of skill. It offers possibilities also for development of self-control, both mentally and physically.

It is a sport that is common to countries the world over. People in all walks of life are susceptible to the golf "bug." It is wholesome sport — provided the follower of it does not spend too much of his time emptying bottles at the "19th hole."

Viewing the sport of golfing as a recreation that takes one out into the air and sunshine and away from the dark places where crime breeds, it looks like a move worthy of public commendation. We hope that Mr. William Fox of Hickory Hills Golf course, who is offering free the instruction and use of equipment in connection with it, may receive cooperation.

Our Future Community Depends on the Future Farmers of America

Nothing that concerns an industry which is so important a factor in the economic life of our community as in agriculture can fail to be a concern of all of us.

It is for this reason that Monday night's F.F.A. Parent-Son banquet was something more than a social event in the calendar of a group of high school boys. Whatever else it may also have been, it was the opportunity for the members of the Winter chapter of the Future Farmers of America to demonstrate for their parents and guests that they were a part of a very big, serious and purposeful undertaking.

That undertaking is nothing more or less than the recognition of the fact that farming is big business, and that nothing less than sound, business-like methods and practices will do if the farmer is to be successful.

It is not for us to tell these farmers of the future (or their parents) what methods and practices they should adopt. That is the job of the vocational agriculture department, of which the F.F.A. is only a part. We should all recognize, though, that when that job is being well done, the entire community — which we like to think of as extending beyond the city limits — is being served.

Successful farmers are prosperous farmers, and their prosperity contributes directly to that of the towns and cities where they trade.

Iowa's Young Drivers Prove Youth Can Be Guided Right

Iowa's Teen-age drivers have reduced their involvement in fatal accidents 20 per cent since 1948, the year the state set up definite requirements for driver education teachers and courses.

Frank B. Ulish, state safety education director, said the 20 per cent reduction is the difference between the 130 teen-age drivers involved in fatal accidents in 1948 compared to 104 last year.

During the same period, the total number of drivers involved in fatal accidents rose from 682 in 1948 to 751 in 1951.

"It is apparent that the teen-age driver is more than holding his own during a period of steadily increasing fatal accidents," Ulish said. "Much of the credit for the teen-age record must be given to driver education courses in high schools throughout the state."

Ulish said that a recent survey by the department of public instruction showed that 8,268 Iowa high school students were enrolled in behind-the-wheel driver education classes in the 194 Iowa schools offering the course this year.

"There should be no complacency concerning the teen-age record, however," Ulish said.

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note: The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek seems to be in an advisory mood this week, his letter reveals. It's his advice, not ours.

Dear editor:

While hasn't any Presidential or even Vice Presidential candidates made any whistle stops out here at Buck Creek so far in the campaign, interest in running pretty high in the race and while it hasn't caused any standstill in my farm operations, they came to a standstill long before the campaign started and will be that way long after it's over, people are doing a lot of discussion of the campaign issues, on the grounds I guess that somebody should, if the candidates don't the people ought to, and after listen for several days I don't mind sayin I have no idea which candidate is gonna win.

In this particular case I think it's a fairly happy situation because I don't care what the candidates say I don't believe either one is as bad as the other one says he is, in fact, I think both parties could have gone a short ways and done a lot worse in the matter of selectin candidates. The way it looks out here, the country ain't gonna be in bad shape for a President, regardless of which one wins, but after he gets elected the fight ain't over, the big battle will be whether or not he can win out over Congress, and I have been thinkin.

Just in case he wins, I would like to give some free advice to Gen. Eisenhower, although this ain't sayin he's gonna win. I could n't any more tell you which one is gonna win than I could tell you which way the dish water is gonna go the next time my wife opens the back door.

But just say he's elected. I would like to tip him off that Congress is a little different from the army. They just ain't familiar with military courtesy in that outfit. They don't recognize much rank. You can issue an order to em, but you don't see any salutin or hear any heels snappin together, about all you hear is some Congressman's suspenders snappin as he sits there blowin smoke rings and makin up his own mind, and when you consider there is a whole hall full of Congressmen and each one claims he has a mind of his own, don't make any difference how many different people contributed to his Christmas card fund, you can see you got a different outfit on your hands from a military establishment.

There are a lot of other pointers I could give but I will wait and see how the election comes out. In case Stevenson wins, I will be glad to give him advice too. How're you fixed for advice yourself?

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

It's kinda tough going nowadays when we have to do without so many things that our parents never had.

It's probably true that all things come to him who waits; but we're inclined to believe that they are likely to come too late to do any good.

Deep Faith Makes Creative Power

As we face these troubled times and peer into the future trying to decipher trends of world events, the ancient message found in the Book of Hebrews can offer hope.

Defining faith as the "substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," our author offers us a tangible rock on which to anchor ourselves.

Because, what the world needs, is the faith to go on in spite of peril and difficulty.

As the substance of things "hoped for," faith becomes the essence of all religion. We see evidence of faith as the motive power of all creative activity, even life itself.

The artist sees his design. His vision, solid and firm in his mind, gives him faith.

The poet hears his ringing rhyme before the words are scrawled across his page. The composer knows every note in his melody before it is played and the actor "gets the feel" of his character, recreates in gestures the vision he carries in his mind.

But without faith, this vision would never be accomplished.

It is these things the author of Hebrews discusses. He stresses the strong faith necessary to go off to a far-away land and trust promises still far from their point of fulfillment.

He offers a faith which will sustain us even in the face of pain, persecution, suffering and death.

And man will face these things in the atomic age just as he has always had to face them in the past.

And so Hebrews is an inspiring story for us today. The faith he tells about must be more than the faith of the explorer or scientist.

It must be subject to a still higher faith which will bring the

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

MINORS LEGALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR NEGLIGENCE ACTS

When a person suffers injury due to some negligent act on the part of a minor, his usual reaction is to seek out the minor's parents to press a claim for damages, leaving them to deal with their offspring in their own way.

It may therefore come as a surprise to many to learn that the minor himself may be held legally accountable. It is a well settled principle of law in the State of Texas that a minor, who by his negligent acts injures another, is liable in damages to the injured party.

Upon proper proof being presented to the court, a judgment for the damages inflicted by the minor may be secured in behalf of the injured party. In cases where a minor is thus sued for his negligent acts, it is necessary that the judge appoint a special guardian for the minor, known as a Guardian Ad Litem. The duty of this person is to see that the minor's rights are properly protected, and that he is adequately represented on the trial of the case.

A judgment secured in such cases against the minor is a valid and binding judgment which may be satisfied by levying execution upon any property which the minor human race the power to give and save lives rather than destroy them.

And this is the role played by religion. This higher faith can only come when deeper meanings of things are probed and brought to light. Without this faith, man cannot work out his own salvation.

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

WHO'S WELL OFF?

None of the political candidates now bidding for votes has, to my knowledge, used the most powerful appeal — the promise of a living standard for everyone twice as high as today's. It isn't something government can do for us, but definitely is something the private enterprise system can achieve in a nation having the right kind of governmental leadership — wise and courageous management of government under sound governmental policies. People have a normal longing for prosperity and plenty. It is basic — fundamental — in human nature. Thus the promise of a better life is powerful.

In the American system the key to prosperity is production. There are two kinds of production — production for war and production for normal peaceful use. Beginning in 1938, when Hitler's Germany made its first warring moves, our nation began to build up a war production prosperity. Most of us can remember that in 1938 the depression that had begun in 1930 had been only slightly relieved in spite of extreme measures taken by government. In fact, in 1938 we still had 10,000,000 people unemployed.

WAR SPENDING

In 1938, even with its huge expenditures on depression projects, the Federal government spent only $6.9 billion. But late that year Hitler's aims became clearly evident. Our military spending leaped upwards. In 1939 the government spent $8.9 billion; in 1940, $9.2 billion. Then, with Hitler on the rampage in Europe, we went all out. War production and spending rose to the greatest height in history. The government spent $13 billion in 1941, $34 billion in 1942, $79 billion in 1943, $95 billion in 1944, $98 billion in 1945, and $60 billion in 1946.

Everybody got more dollars. We had a war prosperity. But our nation was paying a ghastly price in human lives and resources. Our battle casualties reached the awful total of 948,574 — which means an average of 20,000 casualties from each of our 48 states. And the far swiftly stripped us of a tremendous amount of our natural resources. Nowhere was this force strikingly demonstrated than in Arkansas where a 25-35 year supply of aluminum ore was clawed out of the earth in a period of months.

ANOTHER WAR

The World War II spending had hardly subsided when American soldiers found themselves fighting another frightful war — this one in Korea. And to the amazement of most American citizens, our government disclosed that our great stores of World War II armaments had been wasted away. Our men fought for months in Korea before renewed war production could supply them with sufficient weapons. Now we're back up to an $80 billion Federal budget with most of the billions going for war material.

We have great volumes of dollars in circulation and most people have more of them than before Korea, but the dollar's purchasing power is constantly dropping and the latest casualty report from Korea shows that 120,000 Ameri-may own which is legally subject to execution.

Should the minor have no property upon which execution can be levied, and satisfaction made, then steps should be taken to keep the judgment alive. There are means of keeping such judgments alive for many years. By doing this, and by keeping track of the minor, it is possible to make the judgment follow him until he eventually does acquire property subject to execution.

Of course, there are practical considerations in a lawsuit against a minor. The most frequent stumbling block is naturally the situation of a minor having absolutely no property to satisfy any judgment which may be secured.

However, this lack of property in no way affects the right of the injured party to his judgment, which, as mentioned above, may eventually pay off after the minor reaches majority and accumulates enough property to satisfy the judgment.

Now, however uncertain this means of gaining redress for injuries may seem, in many cases it may prove to be the only method of collecting damages. For, when the chips are down, your chances of forcing repayment from the parents are usually very slim. From a legal standpoint, there is nothing in the parent-child relationship which automatically renders parents liable for the negligent acts of their children.

In order to be personally liable, the parent must himself be implicated in some way. The rules which apply here are similar to those regulating the liability of an employer for the negligent acts of his employee.

Thus, although the law takes an extremely protective attitude toward minors and their contractual liabilities, allowing them many privileges not accorded mature persons, no substantial distinction is made with regard to liability for negligence.

Science has perfected an X-Ray especially designed for woman's jaws. It takes moving pictures.

November Draft Call Lower

AUSTIN — The state draft call for November dropped below the October quota, although the national call for the two months is identical, Brig. Gen. Paul L. Wakefield, state Selective Service director, pointed out Thursday.

State Selective Service headquarters Wednesday received a November quota of 2,336 men. The October quota for the state, previously announced, is 2,733. The national call for both months is 47,000.

The Texas share of the November national quota is 4.97 per cent while the state share of the October quota for the nation is 5.81 per cent.

"Such factors as enlistments credited to the state and the number of men in various age and classification groups have an effect on the way we share in the national quota," General Wakefield said.

A comparison with November 1951 shows how draft calls have risen this fall. The state call for induction in November 1951 was only 665 men. In November 1950, shortly after the beginning of the Korean conflict, the state quota was 3,400.

General Wakefield said state draft headquarters expected to issue local board quotas for November about October 6. Only men 20 years old and up will be inducted, with exception of volunteers and delinquents, who can be younger.

"Right now it looks as if we will be able to fill a fourth of our November call with men 21 years old and older," General Wakefield commented.

Present plans at state Selective Service headquarters call for pre-induction physical examination of around 8,000 men in November. These also will be men 20 years old and older.

OCT-12-18 THIS IS OIL PROGRESS WEEK

Progress 1952

Texans have a natural interest in the oil industry, which is so important in our State, and in the progress made since Oil Progress Week was last observed. Here are a few quick facts:

New Wells—During the twelve months ending August 31, 1952, the Texas oil industry drilled 17,000 new wells, at a cost of over $700 million. Most of the heavy expense of drilling these new wells was paid from earnings plowed back into the development of the State's oil resources.

Transportation—The total mileage of Texas' trunk pipe lines for oil and finished products is over 29,000. This low-cost transportation system is a major factor in the maintenance of the low prices you pay for petroleum products.

Production—Production has reached a record level. Texas currently is producing about 46 per cent of all the crude oil produced in the U. S. In the year ending August 31, Texas production totaled about 1,015 million barrels. There are now 133,800 producing oil wells in Texas.

Reserves—Proved oil reserves in Texas of 18 billion barrels represented 57 per cent of the U. S. total at the beginning of 1952. During 1951, the last year for which figures are available, proved reserves increased two billion barrels. These are developed oil reserves and the figure is important: developed reserves supply our needs currently and provide reserve capacity that is immediately available when we need it.

Refining—The Texas refineries will have a big year. They now employ, in round numbers, 46,000 Texans, and process about 28% of all the oil refined in the U. S. The daily refining capacity of all Texas refineries exceeds 2,000,000 barrels. A program to expand and improve these facilities has been general throughout the industry.

Taxes—The Texas oil industry continues to be the largest tax-payer in the State. Through the year ending August 31, gross production taxes alone on Texas oil and natural gas amounted to more than $137 million; in addition, the industry pays large amounts in other taxes.

In brief, the Texas oil industry during the past year continued to do its part in meeting the demand for oil. It has expanded pipelines to provide low-cost transportation. It has improved facilities for making more and better petroleum products for your use. Today, two gallons of gasoline do work that required three gallons in 1925; and the gasoline costs no more than it did then.
