City Residents Joining Worldwide Rush For Gold

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Gold, in spite of its skyrocketing price on world markets, is becoming an increasingly popular investment among Lubbockites; and demand for gold jewelry around the city has diminished little if any during the past year, say local brokers and jewelers.

Since the beginning of civilization, the precious yellow metal has held an allure for man based on its beauty, rarity and practicality. But seldom — if ever — has there been a worldwide "gold rush" to match the present situation.

Heading the list of reasons to buy it here and now, however, is its rising value against the U.S. dollar, according to Lubbock commodity and coin brokers.

"When people become wary about the dollar, they begin to transfer their assets to gold," said Jobe Moss of Conti-Commodity Services, Inc.

By all indications, Lubbockites are doing just that.

"There has been no drop at all in our (gold trading) business, in fact it's been extremely good," said Moss. "People want their money in basic commodities," he commented.

"Business has increased remarkably," echoed Charlie McQueen, who trades gold futures contracts on the International Monetary Market for E.F. Hutton. "People are using gold as a hedge against inflation."

McQueen blamed inflation, the interest rate and lack of confidence in the Carter administration — in that order — for the current high price of gold.

Gold's attraction for investors, say those who sell and trade it, is its ability to increase in value in the face of the declining dollar.

While the price of the dollar on world markets has fallen as a result of President Carter's economic and energy policies — or lack thereof — gold has become stronger in value as investors convert their assets by buying it, Lubbock brokers agree.

"People here tend to lack confidence in the Carter administration," commented Moss.

He characterized the attitude of his clientele as one of "go ahead and buy the gold now, it's only going to get higher."

Moss indicated while that outlook helps fuel inflation by further sapping the dollar's strength, it could be profitable.

"Right now the potential to make money is good," he said. "I think we'll see gold at $320 and $340 in the next six months." It has been around $307 a troy ounce recently.

When and if the price of gold will ever take a significant downward turn "is what everybody wants to know, of course," commented IMM spokesman Warren Moulds.

Moulds noted "gold has come down somewhat from its high, that's natural. It's like any commodity — people are trying to take their profits."

Though Moss foresees the price of gold continuing to escalate, he predicts "there's going to be a point where it gets extremely high and people start getting wary."

He did not, however, name that point, but cautioned, "remember, the futures market goes down faster than it goes up!"

McQueen sees Lubbock's current flurry of futures trading in gold as part of an ongoing trend.

"Ever since 1975 when it became le-

WAITING IT OUT — Families evacuated because of floodwaters wait at a Houston school for a chance to return to their homes. Thousands of persons along the upper Gulf Coast, from Port Arthur To Galveston, have had to flee because of torrential rains up to 25 inches in places. More Rain, Floods Hit Coastal Region

A-J News Services

Radio appeals for boats were issued again today in the Houston and Galveston areas as more rain fell over the Texas coastal plains, where flooding from remnants of tropical storm Claudette has left thousands homeless and caused millions of dollars in damage.

Meanwhile, the leading edge of a storm system spawned by Claudette battered Indiana, forcing evacuation of hundreds of persons and closing more than a dozen roads in the southern part of the state, authorities said.

In contrast, West Texas remained hot and dry and weathermen said no significant change is expected before next week.

Some officials said property damage from the flood in Texas already has surpassed that caused by Hurricane Carla in 1961, which caused $400 million in damage and killed 46 persons.

"It was the worst thing I've ever seen," said Harris County Civil Defense spokesman John Caswell. "Hundreds of homes were under water. We saw hundreds of automobiles with water in them."

At least two persons have died in Texas in the recent flooding.

Renewed evacuations were under way today south of Houston in Alvin, where an overnight 3-inch rain was dumped on the nearly 2 feet recorded by midafternoon Thursday.

State troopers were called in to help guard against looting in Houston, but authorities said today there had been no reports of such incidents.

Civil Defense authorities in Galveston called for additional flat-bottom boats to rescue people in the stricken Dickinson-League City area, where overflowing bayous and creeks continued to swell. Major roads, including Interstate 45, were blocked by flood waters, hampering evacuation operations.

John Caswell, assistant director of the Harris County Civil Defense, said today water appeared to be receding somewhat in southeast Houston and subdivisions along Interstate 45.

"While we expect more rain today, we hope it will not be anything enough that will create real problems," he said.

High water from more than 20 inches of rain Wednesday and Thursday closed the Johnson Space Center in Houston, blocked traffic and knocked out telephone and electrical service in many areas.

Flooded sewage treatment plants in southeast Houston, Clear Lake and Scarsdale were "dumping raw sewage over everything," a Civil Defense official said.

Miller Opposes Tax Slash Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. William Miller, President Carter's choice as the next treasury secretary, said today the United States is now in a recession. It was the first time a top government official has acknowledged that the long-expected economic downturn has begun.

"We now have been triggered into a recession," Miller told the Senate Finance Committee during confirmation hearings on his nomination to succeed W. Michael Blumenthal at the Treasury.

Miller voiced strong opposition to proposals for a tax cut to soften the effects of the recession.

The nominee also said he thought unemployment would rise to 7.5 percent next year, compared with the administration's prediction of 6.9 percent. The jobless rate has hovered near 6 percent in recent months.

Miller, still officially chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said the administration should continue its present economic policies which are aimed at controlling inflation.

He said it would be a mistake to try to pump up the economy with new spending, but said the government should try to help segments of the population that are in special difficulty because of the recession.

"We have to have a humane view, but if we don't protect the whole nation from inflation, we will go into a disastrous downward spiral," Miller said.

He cautioned Congress against voting any tax reduction at this time. "An across-the-board tax cut ... would be unwise because it would unleash a new round of inflationary pressures," he said.

Eventually, he said, once the federal share of total spending is reduced a large dividend can be returned to Americans in the form of tax cuts. "But I don't think today is the right time for any tax cut," he said.

Any such tax cuts at the appropriate time would include business tax relief to promote increased investment and productivity, he said. But for the moment, the nation must stick to President Carter's course of holding down federal spending to fight inflation, he said.

On another matter, Miller said he did not know about or participate in questionable payments totaling as much as $1.7 million made by Textron Inc. while he was the conglomerate's board chairman, before he joined the Federal Reserve last year.

Textron said in a report Thursday that questionable payments were made in a number of foreign countries by employees of Textron and its subsidiary, Bell Helicopter.

"I have been disturbed to find there have been some questionable payments by my former company," Miller told the committee. But he said he could state "u-nequivocally I didn't know of or participate in them."

Miller earlier had denied knowing there were questionable aspects about the most controversial of the payments, $2.95 million paid to a sales agent in Iran. The Textron report supported this assertion, and said there was no indication any senior company executives knew details that would raise questions about the propriety of that payment.

Carter Picks HUD Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced today he is nominating Moon Landrieu, former mayor of New Orleans, to be secretary of housing and urban development.

At the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Landrieu would succeed Patricia Roberts Harris, who is moving to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as secretary to replace Joseph A. Califano Jr.

In his announcement, made through press secretary Jody Powell, Carter said:

"Moon Landrieu enjoys a national reputation as a progressive mayor and a strong administrator, as well as a respected and effective spokesman for local government. He enjoys my full confidence and support."

Landrieu, a 49-year-old Democrat, served as mayor of New Orleans from 1970 to 1978 and is a past president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. He was an unannounced overnight guest at the White House Thursday.

Mrs. Harris, who already has met with her prospective successor, issued a statement saying she was delighted at Carter's choice and adding: "I can think of no person better qualified."

Powell said Mrs. Harris and Landrieu would work to ensure a smooth and orderly transition at HUD.

The White House spokesman declined to comment on reports that the president later in the day might announce Mayor Neil Goldschmidt of Portland, Ore., as his choice to succeed the ousted Brock Adams as secretary of transportation.

A knowledgable source said Goldschmidt was to meet with Carter this afternoon to discuss the transportation job. This source, who asked not to be named, said Goldschmidt was inclined to take the Cabinet post if it were offered.

Another source said Vice President Walter Mondale had called Goldschmidt Wednesday morning to ask if he was interested in the HUD job. Goldschmidt said he'd like to discuss it further. Mondale added that Goldschmidt was on a list of Transportation Department candidates prepared by Carter's senior staff.

Mondale's press secretary, Albert Eisele, confirmed that "Neil Goldschmidt is still in contention. And I expect an announcement ... later this week."

On Tuesday, the White House senior staff had sent Carter three names for HUD, with Landrieu's name at the top of the list, sources said. Goldschmidt was on that list, as was Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, who was said by some sources to have indicated he was not interested in the job.

Landrieu, now employed by a large commercial development firm in New Orleans, told Mondale Wednesday he was very interested in the HUD job.

Church Bus Toll Rising

A-J News Services

CENTERVILLE — At least two persons were killed and three others were missing early this afternoon after a small bus carrying church members to a youth conference in New Mexico was knocked into a flooded creek, officersreported.

Department of Public Safety troopers said the bus, from the First Baptist Church at Cleveland, Texas, had stopped on Texas 7 a mile west of this town, located about halfway between Dallas and Houston, when a truck hauling chickens struck it from behind, knocking it into the water.

The driver apparently stopped because floodwaters from Beaver Creek covered the highway.

Petition Signers Jolted By Suit

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
and NANCY DORN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Citizens named in the lawsuit filed Thursday by the City of Lubbock against the Lubbock Property Owners Association expressed surprise today that they were being brought to court.

The City Council voted to file a class action suit against 10 random signers of an LPOA petition that would require a charter amendment election.

The LPOA amendments would restrict the city tax rate to the current $1.12 per $100 valuation, limit the assessment ratio to the current 60 percent of market value and require voter approval for any increase in the tax rate or assessment ratio.

Two of the 10 citizens named in the suit said they had never been members of the LPOA and only had signed a tax relief petition several months ago.

"I evidently signed some petition weeks and weeks ago," said William E. Spain. "I think I remember it."

He said he was ignorant of the court action until papers were served to him early this morning. He said he was "very, very much surprised" and was unaware of the pending court proceedings.

W.D. Miller, an employee of the Texas State Highway Department, said he had never attended an LPOA meeting and "didn't know what to do" when he found out about the civil suit.

D.L. Young said that he was a member of the LPOA, but had not been active in three or four months. "I was never real active in the association," he said. "It's been three months since I've even talked to any of the members."

Young said he had "rather mixed reactions" about being named as one of the LPOA defendants. He said that although he did support tax relief and had signed one of the petitions, he did not think he was not a active representative of the LPOA.

"I think our city growth should be taken care of by the businesses," he said. "New businesses should pay the new taxes."

At least one of the citizens contacted is an active LPOA member and has been a member of the board of directors. Carroll Garner said he was surprised that

Panel Approves Energy Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Interior Committee voted overwhelmingly today in favor of legislation to set up a powerful energy mobilization board, a key ingredient in President Carter's energy program.

The committee voted 40-1 in favor of a five-member board along the lines the president suggested in his speech less than two weeks ago.

The only dissenting vote came from Rep. James Weaver, D-Ore., who said a crash energy program will only make inflation worse.

"We are headed for economic oblivion and a depression," Weaver said. "We must curb our excesses."

The panel would have broad authority to cut through red tape and speed construction of as many as 24 specially designated high-priority energy projects at one time. The board could designate only 12 projects as high priority in any one year.

Carter asked Congress earlier this month to set up such a board, saying it is needed to give added momentum to non-nuclear energy projects designed to lessen the nation's dependence on imported oil.

Shortly after the committee acted Thursday, House Democratic Whip John B. Brademas, D-Ind., said he is seeing the "buildup of a fight" over the extent of the board's powers.

Brademas said some House members believe the board should have the power to speed up only the decision-making process that precedes construction of major energy projects such as pipelines and gasification plants.

Others favor giving the board authority to cut through substantive laws to speed actual construction of the projects, he said.

Bradernas, No. 3 Democrat in the House, also said conflict is emerging between congressmen who favor a major synthetic fuels program and those concerned with scarce water in the western states and environmental problems that might result from such a program. Large amounts of water are used in many techniques for processing synthetic fuel.

Democratic leaders had hoped to have a final vote on the proposed energy mobilization board in the House before Congress begins a month-long recess Aug. 3.

New Mexico Fights Anthrax Outbreak

SPRINGER, N.M. (UPI) — A northeastern New Mexico ranch has been placed under quarantine and officials plan to inoculate cattle to prevent the spread of anthrax, a deadly disease in livestock.

Dr. James Davidson, a federal veterinarian in Albuquerque, said the disease was confirmed Thursday in cattle on the Jaritas Ranch by a laboratory in Amarillo.

The owner of the ranch, Don Floersheim, said at least 21 head have died, although he said six of them may have been killed by lightning in a recent storm.

"This has been quite a blow to us," Floersheim said. "I've seen two cows die this afternoon. They just wander off by themselves, reel around a little bit and fall over dead."

He said ranch workers are being examined by medical officials because humans can contract the disease. Penicillin has been prescribed for those working near the cattle.

Officials plan to inoculate some 2,500 head of Hereford cattle on the ranch, and G.M. Jones of the state Cattle Sanitary Board said neighboring cattlemen may be asked to vaccinate their herds.

Battle Lines Drawn In Foreign Investment War

BY PETER ARNETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The battle lines have been drawn for the foreign investment wars of the future. Warning shots have already been fired in some states and in Congress.

On one side has gathered the U.S. government, federal agencies, American industrialists and financiers. They have been joined by aggressive sunbelt state officials riding an economic boom who insist that foreign access to U.S. markets should remain as open as possible.

On the other side, along with Midwestern farmers who fear their land might be stolen from under their feet, are concerned big-city real estate agents who are watching with awe as multimillion dollar deals are quietly arranged. Worried, also, are congressmen and some economists who are heeding warnings that the financial and political stability of the United States might be threatened by the sudden infusion of billions of dollars worth of investments from industrial Europe and the Middle East.

The battlefield is America's vast wealth in raw materials, its flourishing industry, and opulent domestic markets. Foreign money is being attracted to these shores in an unprecedented buying binge.

Economists estimate $40 billion has been spent by Arabs, Germans, Japanese, Britishers, Frenchmen and two score other nationalities in acquiring at least 10 percent of hundreds of American enterprises. The forecast is that the flow wiill continue unabated as long as the U.S. dollar remains weak overseas, and the petrodollars flow. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries expect to reap an extra $30 billion in profits this year from recently increased oil prices, and much of that is expected to come to the United States in one form or another.

Last In A Series

These major skirmishes are shaping up:

—OPEC secrecy. The continued reluctance of federal agencies to release more detailed information on the specifics is infuriating some congressmen. The Treasury Department has refused to reveal how much each individual OPEC nation has invested in U.S. government securities and in U.S. banks.

Assistant Treasury Secretary C. Fred Bergsten told a House subcommittee that he could not release individual data because both Saudi Arabia and Kuwait have asked that their investments be kept confidential. The Carter administration believes that release of such secret information might cause the oil-rich nations to withdraw their billions of dollars worth of investments, putting more pressure on the already beleagured dollar, and on U.S. financial institutions.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., warned the Treasury Department that his subcommittee will subpoena the documents, "and if you don't provide them we'll hold you in contempt of Congress."

—Banking. Similar confrontations are predicted in upcoming Senate hearings on the banking system which has been rocked in recent months by a multitude of foreign acquisitions. Takeovers of large New York banks by giant foreign institutions are making competition more difficult for smaller and medium sized banks. Proposed legislation now in the Senate would impose a six-month moratorium on foreign bank takeovers.

—Farmland. In addition to Iowa's attempt to stop foreign buying of land for farming, legislators in California, Texas and Main are considering similar steps even though only about 1 percent of American farmland is known to be owned by foreigners.

Many economists are appalled by the stampeding opposition to foreign investment.

"There is presently no real cause for concern," a congressional committee was told by Prof. Jeffrey S. Arpan of Georgia State University. "Existing laws and regulations are sufficient to safeguard U.S. interests."

The chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Harold M. Williams, spoke for most of the financial community recently when he said, "I can readily understand the attraction of U.S. markets and our economy, despite our inflation and lack of a sensible and disciplined energy policy. The United States is still a country that believes in free enterprise, capitalism and private wealth."

The developing concern over who is buying America shows that many Americans agree with the financial wizards only up to a point.

Jet Fighters Miss Targets

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Two air force jets swooped low in a demonstration of a strafing attack with live ammunition Wednesday and nearly shot up a reviewing stand containing Portugal's top generals.

The two Fiat G-91 jet fighters missed their targets by several hundred yards and peppered the ground only 30 feet from the reviewing stand, wounding two military cadets.

Standing on the platform were Defense Minister Lt. Col. Jose Loureiro dos Santos, Armed Forces Vice Chief of Staff Gen. Altino Magalhaes, Arms chief Gen. Pedro Cardoso and three members of the Revolutionary Council, Capt. Antonio Marques Junior, Col. Jorge Ribeiro Cardoso and Commander Manuel Martins Guerreiro.

The errant marksmanship came just after a Fiat G-9 jet fighter swept low over the Santa Margarida airbase and hit its white ground target several hundred yards from the stand.

But the two planes that followed missed the target, with their bullets kicking up the ground near the reviewing stand.

The military men stood their ground but civilian guests dove for cover.

Several guests said the pilots of the two planes may have mistaken military maps spread on the ground in front of the reviewing stand for their target.

Gen. Altino Magalhaes ordered a halt to the exercises at Santa Margarida, Portugal's NATO brigade headquarters 95 miles northwest of Lisbon.

Hip Replacement Results Encouraging

By JOE KAY

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Most healthy youngsters never give a thought to their hectic daily pace.

But to adolescents with hips stricken by Juvenile Rheumatoid Arthritis, even the floor can pose an insurmountable barrier to a normal life.

"The floor is my enemy, that's a feeling the children have," said Dr. Joseph Levinson, a member of a team of specialists at the Special Treatment Center for Juvenile Arthritis at the University of Cincinnati.

"If they are on the floor, they can't get up. If they are standing, they can't get down on the floor with the other kids. So the floor is their enemy, in a sense."

Working with children and teen-agers whose hip joints are destroyed by the disease, the team of specialists has tried replacing some of the severely damaged joints with artificial ones. Fifteen adolescents have had total hip replacements in Cincinnati since 1974 — with "encouraging" results.

"They're not running marathons," said Dr. William Crowe, "but we didn't expect that they would. Many are now able to climb stairs or walk with the aid of crutches.

"One who had been confined to a wheelchair no longer needs it. Most are very active in school, career and social activities, and some have even married and had children."

Although doctors are still learning about Juvenile Rheumatoid Arthritis, they know it's a whole collection of diseases that can result in inflamed joint linings, rashes, high fevers, enlarged spleens or livers, and severe anemia. The disease differs from adult arthritis forms, and is estimated to afflict between 100,000 and 250,000 youngsters in the United States.

Most, but not all, eventually recover with few lasting effects.

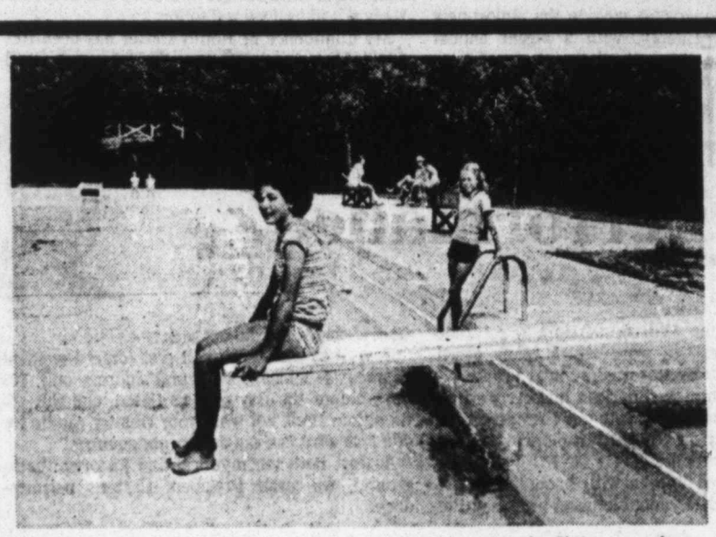

"Most people who deal with the rheumatic diseases of childhood feel that about two-thirds to three-fourths of the kids are going to come out at the far end of the tunnel after a period of years smelling like a rose," said Levinson. "They really are going to come out without significant residual disability of any kind.

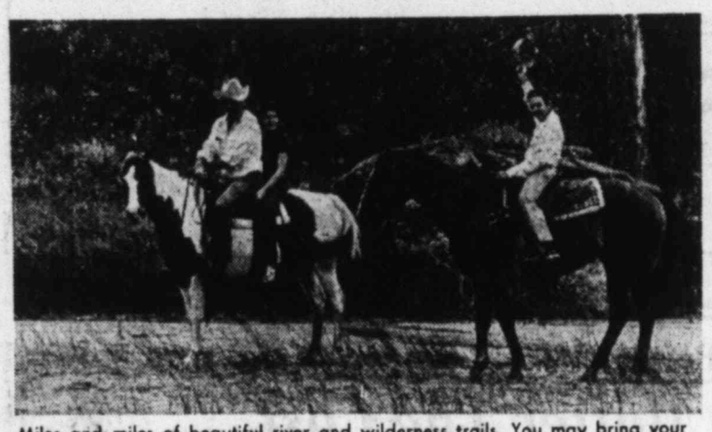

"It's that remaining group of about one-third that one has to pay special attention to. And it's from that group that those who have had total hip replacements are drawn."

Ages of the 15 patients so far at UC ranged from 14 to 26.

Before hip replacement operations, only five could climb stairs without a rail; afterwards, 10 could. Only one could descend to the floor and get back up before surgery; six could afterwards.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Fix Future--Not Blame

ALTHOUGH SHORT SUPPLIES of gasoline and lines at service stations are relatively recent developments, the die was cast long ago.

The current dilemma dates back to 1977, when the oil companies at Big Brother's behest engaged in a massive inventory buildup as a hedge against two events predicted for early 1978—a nationwide coal strike and an OPEC price increase.

The coal strike materialized but the OPEC price hike did not. Uneasy about retaining oversized inventories, the oil companies in a justifiable business decision drastically drew down their stocks.

BY LATE SUMMER, both fuel oil and gasoline stocks had dwindled to their lowest levels in four years—even though additional crude oil and refining capacity had been available during the year.

Those truly precarious inventories were "extremely vulnerable to any dislocation of weather, supply and demand," concludes an analysis prepared by Energy Action, a Washington-based public-interest group traditionally critical of the oil industry.

The following months produced the interruption of Iranian crude oil exports and a winter that was slightly colder than average. Neither was as severe as anticipated, but both, thanks to government meddling, had a predictable impact on supplies that already were dangerously low.

Heating oil stocks, further depleted by the chilly winter weather, stand far below the level of any recent year. Refineries now must begin a massive rebuilding effort if a severe shortage is to be averted next winter.

INDUSTRY OFFICIALS acknowledge that the level of "drawdown" was an imprudent, strategic miscalculation, but adamantly deny accusations by Alfred Dougherty Jr., director of the FTC bureau of competition, that the current gasoline situation may be, in his word, "contrived."

Nevertheless, both Dougherty's agency and the Justice Department's antitrust division are conducting major investigations into the relationship between imported crude oil and domestic petroleum production.

Energy Action admits it has no evidence of an antitrust conspiracy available, but notes that the next two or three years may be the last chance for unscrupulous dealers "to rachet gasoline prices up sharply...since people fearful of not getting gasoline will pay almost any price for it."

Our task now, as John F. Kennedy said, is not to fix the blame for the past, but to fix the course for the future.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

Cup Of Confidence

HMPH! I MUST SAY the President owes me an apology.

He caused me to waste more than a week waiting for his call.

Back when he was up at Camp David for an agonizing reappraisal of the energy crisis, the economic chaos, the political polls and his left big toe, Mr. Carter said he was calling in for consultation "a broad cross-section of America."

Well, like the Republican Congressional leaders and Sen. Ted Kennedy, I naturally quit everything I was doing and prepared to answer The Call.

It never came. A few nights later, the President went on national TV to say he had solved all of the nation's problems without us.

Or, at least, that he had a plan for solving all the problems if we'd just support him.

CARTER SAID THE nation was suffering from "a crisis of confidence" like you'd never believe. Said the people have lost faith in their leaders in Washington.

By golly, I thought, where has he been the last couple of years?

In the next day or so, the President called for wholesale resignations from his Cabinet. Said that would restore confidence in his administration.

Some Congressman from Dallas said Carter was cutting down the trees and leaving the monkeys, but some of us now were more confident than ever that our telephones would ring.

It'd be the President calling to plead that we take over at HUD or HEW or Justice or Energy or Treasury, or at least to be a Special Advisor to the President for Andy Young Affairs.

Instead, he said that he was putting the country into the hands of Hamilton Jordan and Jody Powell.

Now, you talk about a Crisis of Confidence...

BUT THE PRESIDENT quickly showed that he knew what's gone wrong with the country.

He blamed it on OPEC.

He boldly counter-attacked. God did not mean for man (or woman) to labor in cool comfort, he decreed; He had set the Garden of Eden thermostat at 78 degrees in summer and that was where it would stay.

At least, though, the President talked about increasing the production of energy. Even said that "all the legislation in the world can't fix what's wrong with America."

He followed through on that statement by calling for legislation to tax—and thus discourage—production.

Give the fed'rul guv'ment another $140 billion to play with, he said, and it'll create two new bureaucracies—an Energy Security Corporation and an Energy Mobilization Board with its own red tape for cutting through the red tape of existing bureaucracies.

Existing bureaucracies include the almost-new Department of Energy, with a bigger annual budget than the value of all the crude oil produced in America.

HE'D HAVE ENOUGH left over from that $140 billion windfall profits tax, Carter promised, to add another $24 billion assistance program for low-income folks.

There'd be $16.5 billion for improving public transportation efficiency (he plans, for example, to cut Amtrak passenger train service in half and cutting service is, of course, expensive).

And there'd be plenty left over to develop solar energy, shale oil and other energy supplies, Carter said—a program that the big energy companies could effect faster and at a fraction of the cost if allowed to retain their profits instead of having them taxed away.

BY THIS TIME, the President had inspired such a renewal of confidence that the stock market plunged, the dollar nose-dived, the price of gold shot up to daily world records and the Russkies showed military muscle in Cuba for the first time since 1963.

"I am well pleased," Carter announced, borrowing a phrase from the Bible.

By this time, I was rushing back from East Texas to see if my Old Job were still here. Finding gasoline in Tyler and Greenville was a problem, but it bothered me not.

He understands. He knows our needs. He will relieve our burdens. He will solve our problems. He will lead us if we will follow.

My Confidence in Jimmy Carter has been Restored. My cup runneth over. Unfortunately, it filleth not the gas tank.

Holmes Alexander:

Proof Is In The Performance

WASHINGTON—It will be denied, but the true reason for Jimmy Carter's 10-day Camp David hideout is to be found in Arnold Toynbee's masterpiece "A Study In History," Chapter XI, and the sub-chapter "Withdrawal and Return: Individuals."

Toynbee writes of the creative person's psychic experience "...we call it withdrawal and return," this historian says and goes on:

"The withdrawal makes it possible for the personality to realize powers within himself which might have remained dormant if he had not been released for the time being from his social toils and trammels.

"Such a withdrawal may be a voluntary action or it may be forced upon him by circumstances beyond his control.

"The withdrawal can have no purpose and perhaps no meaning except as the prelude to the return of a transfigured personality into the milieu out of which he originally came."

THE QUESTION WE must ask is whether Jimmy Carter was "transfigured" in his July 15th speech from the Oval Room after returning from the Catoctins.

By common consent he made his best speech as President, and we have next to see if he gave us anything by way of inspiration and performance.

Many were moved by his earnestness, modesty and information, but if these persons were like myself, they experienced a morning-after letdown. Carter had invoked God, love, peace, the American spirit and people.

He had drawn a line against increased oil imports, praised native American Energy sources, promised or proposed synthetic fuels, a Roosevelt-ian energy production board, called for sacrifice and faith and declared "working together...we cannot fail."

BUT LET US see the sort of competition Carter puts himself up against if he is to make the words into deeds. Toynbee cites "the Syriac myth of Moses' solitary ascent of Mount Sinai."

"God's whole purpose," declares the historian, "in calling Moses up is to send him down again as the bearer of a new Law which Moses is to communicate to the rest of the people because they are incapable of coming up and receiving the communication themselves."

Is that the case with Jimmy Carter? We await with some apprehension, if I understand the skepticism of the American public, to see if the President knows more than we do, and can communicate it in the next few speeches, and execute it within the next few months.

Other withdrawers-and-returners are numerous. We have only to recall that the Son of Man was 40 days in the wilderness before he returned to his "disciples" (a word which many heard Carter use) and to his transfiguration as a Deity.

But if we return to American history, we find that a convenient way to rate our President is to place what they say in their rhetorical ecstacy with what they later do.

Nixon promised "peace with honor," but left office in disgrace. Lyndon Johnson promised the Great Society, but did not seek re-election.

Few of us who heard will ever forget President Kennedy's bellicose inaugural address only 100 days before the Bay of Pigs fiasco, and this admonition: "Ask not what your country can do for you: ask what you can do for your country."

Against both the mythical and historical background, we await President Carter's performance.

Sylvia Porter:

No Matter The Cost, Support Our Dollar!

WASHINGTON—"The U.S. dollar has hit bottom in the currency markets of the world if the Carter White House now has the guts to keep up the fight against inflation as the No. 1 evil of our times...

"Every move the U.S. is making on the economic front is being scrutinized with extraordinary care by the finance leaders of the industrialized nations—and Carter must not waver in imposing discipline. He must accept the risk of recession in 1979 as preferable to a disastrous return to double-digit inflation...

"Carter will have a much better chance in the 1980 elections if he is running against a background of modest recession rather than double-digit inflation...

"THE NEXT SIX to eight months are critical in U.S. economic policymaking—and if the dollar can maintain stability in this span, it will be heading for an indefinite phase of strength...

"The whole position of the dollar has been dramatically switched from devastating weakness to reviving confidence since Nov. 1, when the Federal Reserve Board took the unprecedented step of raising the discount rate a full 1 percent in one fell swoop—and thereby signaled to the world that the U.S. finally had recognized it must support the dollar, no matter what the cost..."

If these quotes (approximate) were merely the appraisals of a "cockeyed optimist" on the U.S., I (and understandably, you too) could shrug them off.

But the above comments—and many more—were made in New York City by Thierry Barbey, the shrewd, suave senior partner of Lombard, Odier & Cie., largest private bank in Switzerland, with billions of dollars of assets under its management.

WHAT'S MORE, to put it in the inelegant but colorful language Barbey would never use, the Geneva banker is putting his money where his mouth is. For instance, since Nov. 1 alone:

Lombard, Odier has doubled the total of its clients' holdings of dollar securities—from 15 to 30 percent.

It has slashed its portfolio in gold to 10 percent (as against 20 percent at the start of 1978) and while Barbey foresees a further rise in the price of gold this year, he believes it will be a minor 10 percent or so.

The Swiss firm has backed up its own conviction of a bright future for U.S. dollar securities by buying a seat on the New York Stock Exchange for $90,000 ("a very reasonable price" says the Lombard, Odier partner) in the name of its Montreal subsidiary, Transatlantic Securities Co.

BARBEY WAS IN New York to mark the entry of the subsidiary into NYSE membership—and incidentally, he also emphasized his confidence in the future of what he called the "very Big Apple." (That's New York.)

It was with undisguised delight that I listened to Barbey's judgments—for I have been exposed for so long to nothing but contemptuous remarks from the Swiss and other hard-currency nations about the U.S. dollar and Carter's handling of our problems.

The Swiss banker made it clear that his "conversion" is recent—dating back only to Nov. 1. But now he believes that the industrialized world will achieve a much healthier balance as the U.S. rate of growth in output (gross national product) slows down and falls more into line with rates of growth elsewhere.

It is more than possible that the U.S. dollar will, in th future, be protected from the wild gyrations of the huge totals of dollars floating around in the Eurodollar market.

The Federal Reserve could achieve this by imposing restrictions on use of Eurodollars by U.S. banks (and don't kid yourself; this has crossed the minds of Federal Reserve policymakers).

As for the future of the now battered, bruised, blotched international monetary system, Barbey predicts that what will emerge in three to five years will be a new system geared to regional reserve currencies—instead of just the U.S. dollar alone.

AMONG THE REGIONAL units might be the European currency unit (ECU), Special Drawing Rights, a Far Eastern unit based on the Japanese yen, etc.

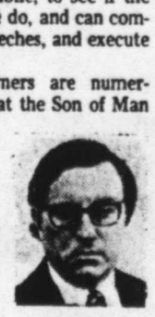

Of course, this implies that the U.S. dollar would play a reduced role as the pivotal reserve currency. So be it. For far too many years, we have been carrying all alone the burden of financing expanding world trade.

We shouldn't—and we can't—bear this load for many more years.

Do you hear Barbey's appraisal, President Carter? Is anyone around you transmitting his message to you about backbone? Have you really learned how much is at stake?

John D. Lofton:

Lazy People Need Rest, Too

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—It was James Thurber who said that whenever he felt the urge to exercise, he would always lie down until it passed. I am one of those who believes devoutly that if God had meant us to jog, we all would have been born wearing sneakers.

But it was the same James Thurber who also said that one should never go anywhere without one's wife, because:

"The American woman is indispensable in getting tickets and reservations, packing and unpacking, mixing Bromo-Seltzers, fending off beautiful ladies traveling alone, and making herself useful generally.

"Hers is the only sex that can successfully close a wardrobe trunk. If a man closes a wardrobe trunk, there is always a sharp snagging sound, caused by the breaking of something that will not bend, such as the handle of a mirror, or the stem of a Dunhill pipe, or the stopper of a perfume bottle."

IF IT IS the latter item that is broken, he says, the wife "will become irritable, and there is nothing more exasperating on a cruise, or anywhere else, than an irritable female companion."

Now, considering both of these gems of wisdom together, each very good separately, the question naturally arises: Should one always travel with one's wife, especially on vacation, if one's wife adamantly insists that one of the important purposes of a vacation is "to get some exercise"?

Unfortunately, Thurber never addressed himself to this question. I wish he had, because it is a problem.

Since the moment we arrived here, during virtually every minute of daylight, my wife and three children have been either swimming vigorously in the motel pool or cavorting strenuously in the ocean.

For hours at a time, their charred remains covered with a slimy substance called "Beach Buff Eternal Summer Aloe Lotion," they have lain directly in the path of the sun's rays, moving only occasionally when it became necessary, for some inexplicable reason, to incinerate a new, previously unscorched area of their naked flesh.

BEING A CONSERVATIVE-libertarian type, my attitude has been that while I may not fully comprehend this pagan ritual my family is indulging in, this mass hysteria which has seized them, in the final analysis their slow self-immolation is a victimless crime. Who am I to tell them how to vacate?

Too bad they do not look at things the same way. Too bad for me.

Try as I might, I cannot make them understand why, to me, a good vacation at the beach is one during which I stay, sleeping and reading, in an air-conditioned room with the curtains drawn, with a small fan strapped to my face. All logic fails.

I explain that, as I grow older, I simply do not like to sweat. I generally praise the role of the sun, endorsing fully the importance of photosynthesis.

BUT, I POINT out, there are also dangers: cosmic rays, low-level radiation.

Then there are the hazards of not having someone in our room all the time: The phone might ring (this excuse is admittedly weak, since our room has no phone); a burglar might rob us; and you never know when someone important might stop by, so I should be there to meet them.

It would be very easy for my family to buy any or all of these arguments as a compelling reason or reasons to allow me to stay in our room and vacate in my own way. But, noooooooooo.

They insist that one comes to the beach to swim vigorously in the pool or cavort strenuously in the ocean or, at the very least, to—on purpose—sustain third-degree burns over a minimum of 90 percent of one's body.

I attempt a compromise, a compromise which I tell the family they should be willing to accept if my getting "some exercise" is what they are really interested in.

I PROMISE THEM that while on my bed, for 15 minutes out of every hour, I will simulate various swimming strokes. My good-faith proposal is greeted with howls of derisive laughter. There's no such thing as compromise to a mob. It's all or nothing.

The editor of a small-town Missouri paper once sent a note to a man named Bill Jenkins informing him that his subscription had expired. The note came back with the laconic scrawl: "So's Bill."

Well, we all expire sooner or later. And, when I go, I want it to be in air-conditioned comfort, with a good book and surrounded by my usual pile of newspapers and magazines, watching a news special on TV, not while I'm burned to a crisp, swimming in a pool or cavorting in an ocean.

Texaco Reveals Huge Jump In Quarterly Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. was the last of the nation's big oil companies to announce its second quarter profits, but its earnings weren't the least.

The company, based in White Plains, N.Y., said Thursday its second-quarter profit was 132 percent ahead of last year. And first-half earnings for the nation's third-largest oil company were up 105 percent.

Meanwhile, Sun Co. Inc., the nation's 10th largest oil company, said its second-quarter profits were up 57 percent.

Texaco's big second-quarter earnings jump was the largest among the major oil companies. Earlier this week, Exxon Corp., the nation's largest, announced a 20 percent rise in second-quarter profits. Mobil Oil Corp., ranked No. 2, said its earnings had risen 38 percent.

The oil companies attribute the big profits to increased earnings from foreign operations in the second quarter, when oil prices were rising considerably. Foreign operations come under fewer price controls than American operations, so the effects of higher oil prices are more pronounced.

According to Texaco Chairman Maurice F. Granville, the earnings increase was deceptive because 1978 earnings were "abnormally low." Granville called the second quarter of 1978 "one of the lowest earnings quarters of the past decade."

The 1978 figures were low "because of generally weak prices for petroleum products worldwide, inflationary rises in costs and expenses and large losses in foreign currency translation," Granville said.

For this year's second quarter, Texaco reported profits of $365.4 million, or $1.35 a share, up from $157.4 million, or 58 cents a share. Sales rose to $8.5 billion from $6.8 billion a year ago.

Texaco's first-half earnings were $672.8 million, or $2.48 a share, up from $327.1 million, or $1.21 per share, a year earlier. Sales in the first half were $16.9 billion, up from $13.8 billion in the first half of 1978.

Sun, based in Radnor, Pa., said its second-quarter profits were $158.5 million, or $2.93 a share, up from $101.2 million, or $1.90 per share, a year ago. Revenues rose to $2.5 billion from $1.9 billion.

In the first half, Sun said income was $278.8 million, or $5.17 a share, up from $185.4 million, or $3.47 a share, last year. Sales rose to $4.9 billion from $3.6 billion.

Auto Industry Layoffs Top 30,000 Figure

DETROIT (UPI) — Auto industry layoffs have topped the 30,000 mark — more than at any time since the 1974-75 recession — with car and truck production lagging behind last year.

The layoffs already have become a factor in contract talks under way between the Big Three car makers and the United Auto Workers union, representing 750,000 auto industry employees.

Slumping sales of trucks and big cars account for most of the indefinite layoffs scattered at plants around the country. By far the largest percentage are at Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an authoritative industry statistical journal, said Thursday U.S. automakers will build 120,023 cars this week, down 9.2 percent from last week and off 7.3 percent from the same period in 1978.

Truck production showed an even greater decline. The 44,676 truck units scheduled for production was down 9.7 percent from last week and off 37.5 percent from last year.

Car production thus far this year was pegged at 5,482,845, less than 1 percent lower than last year at this time. Ward's said the gap will widen as further shutdowns for model changeover depress production.

The publication said 18 car plants and six truck plants were shut down this week for model changeover or to reduce vehicle stocks.

Ford's announcement this week that it is idling 2,025 blue collar workers at assembly plants in New Jersey and Georgia brought its total number of indefinitely laid off workers to more than 13,000.

Chrysler has approximately 20,000 workers on indefinite furlough and American Motors Corp. has 1,200 in that category.

General Motors Corp., which has fared better than Ford or Chrysler in the industry's long sales slump, has a negligible number of workers on indefinite layoff.

The total of idled workers hasn't begun to resemble the massive layoffs of five years ago, when as many as 40 percent of the industry's work force was sent home.

Industry sources say they do not expect the current slump to reach anything like those proportions. They point to signs that the downturn hit bottom in June and is now moderating.

Chrysler's layoffs are causing concern for the company's main Supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund, which the UAW says will be depleted by the end of September at current rates.

The UAW has said it will bargain this summer for additional company contributions to beef up Chrysler's SUB Fund.

The SUB payments supplement state employment benefits for auto workers.

Clements Backs Plan To Produce Gasohol

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements told some Central Texas farmers Thursday he supported their plans to build a gasohol plant but asked about its economic feasibliity.

The farmers want to build a $30 million plant to produce 200 proof ethyl alcohol from processed milo. The alcohol, when blended with gasoline, yields a type of gasohol that any combustion engine can burn without modification.

"You'll stabilize the grain market, you'll have to," Clements told the farmers of their venture.

"We believe in gasohol," the governor said. "This is not to say at all that I believe gasohol is the way to solve our energy problem."

Clayton Litchfield, a North Dakota farmer helping the Texans build their plant, said it will cost 78 cents to produce a gallon of alcohol.

"But what about methanol that costs only 51 cents or 52 cents?" Clements asked. "It's being produced now. Can you compete with that?"

Litchfield, chairman of the Grain Producers International Inc. (GPI), said the 200 proof ethanol was a premium additive that would replace more expensive gasoline ingredients.

GPI is a cooperative that helps farmers market their products. The Central Texas GPI Cooperative Inc. has commissioned a feasibility study of their proposed plant.

Ken Johnson, chairman of the Central Texas group, thanked the governor for signing legislation allowing production of grain alcohol in Texas.

Litchfield said Clements had done as much as he could to help them, but asked the governor to help farmers keep up with research into gasohol technology.

"We can finance the plant ourselves but as far as research is concerned, we need to stay on top of it," he said.

Oil Well Drilling Drop Blamed On Confusion

HOUSTON (UPI) — An oil industry publication blames confusion about the future of price decontrols and the windfall profits tax, among other factors, for a slight decline in well drilling.

World Oil magazine Thursday predicted 25,932 oil and gas wells would be drilled during the second half of this year. Combined with a slack first-half drilling total of 22,692 wells, that would make 48,624 for 1979, a 2.6 percent decline from last year's total.

More than half of the wells, 29,143, are expected to produce gas or oil, the magazine said. And despite the decline from 1978 drillings, this will still be the second best year in the past two decades.

World Oil said the slow first half could be attributed to "lack of early word from President Carter whether he would decontrol crude oil prices," "monumental confusion bred by an incredibly complicated Natural Gas Act" and temporary gas glut.

The magazine also blamed concern about Carter's proposed windfall profits tax on the oil industry, a shorter supply of investment capital and Environmental Protection Agency rules limiting enhanced recovery methods.

Carter Cracking Whip To Project New Image

By HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — From now on, it's no longer "Mr. Nice Gut" for President Carter.

He has decided to project an image of leadership by cracking the whip. He has told the Cabinet, his White House staff and federal appointees that if they are not loyal, they should — and will — get off the team.

Loyalty became the scare word in the 50s because it became a question of whether one was more loyal to the country or some subversive element.

At the beginning of 1972, Richard Nixon attempted to reorganize the White House to put his own lieutenants into a "supra Cabinet" which he thought would give him total control of the federal bureaucracy. It failed to get off the ground because of the Watergate scandal.

After giving his Cabinet a more or less free hand, Carter has now moved to assert his authority over the operations of the Executive Departments. In doing so, he created consternation and, to some extent, demoralized the upper strata of government.

The price has been high in terms of dollar stability abroad.

And during a pep talk to some 300 White House staffers, Carter admitted that the ouster of five Cabinet officials — including Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal — has been interpreted abroad as a collapse of the U.S. government.

But mainly the White House chose to view what it calls the "semi-hysteria" as a Washington establishment phenomenon and not a matter of concern in the hinterlands.

Like all presidents, Carter has a lot of power and he is asserting it, hoping to pull together his administration into a more effective operation.

For too long, he has been hearing that the White House is inept. Under those circumstances, along with popularity polls that fell to a stark new low, Carter decided to act.

Washington Window

Rosalynn Carter was very much involved in the decision-making to produce a forceful president who speaks loudly, pounds a clenched fist on the lectern and tells hundreds of top government appointees to shape up or ship out.

The first lady's image which is being projected now is one of a tough woman who wants her husband to succeed, and who urged him to throw out the rascals she thought were disloyal to his policies.

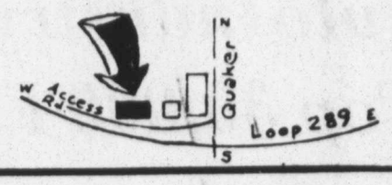

Mrs. Carter's influence has been a matter of speculation for many months. But now she has moved into the forefront, proclaiming her own powerful role as a presidential adviser.

It's late in the game for a shakedown cruise, but the president and his wife believe they still have time to restore his standing in the nation and to set the stage for his re-election attempt next year.

In terms of the president's political future, it's a make or break proposition.

He plans to run and says he does not intend to lose.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Letters Hold Interesting Passages

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Literary critics sometimes complain that Americans have lost the art of letter writing — the kind of letters that get collected in books and are graceful, witty and fun to read.

The spate of resignation letters sent to President Carter by erstwhile Cabinet partners, and his handwritten responses, are unlikely to alter this lamentable state of affairs. But they do have their interesting passages.

For example, consider the fate of outgoing Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal. He may have planned to resign at some point, but his associates don't even pretend he had a July departure in mind before Carter launched his Cabinet facelift.

You couldn't discern that from his exchange with Carter, however.

"As we discussed," Blumenthal wrote the president, "I feel strongly that the time has come for me to return to private life and that someone else should carry on as secretary of the Treasury. I appreciate your agreeing with this assessment. ..."

Bitter Note

Carter's parting with Transportation Secretary Brock Adams was abrupt and unplanned, having been precipitated by Adams' own questions about the president's modus operandi.

Fired for presuming to tell Carter how to conduct the presidency, Adams submitted a resignation letter that ended on what seemed a bitter note:

"I hope you find happiness in your job. ..."

Adams relieved the curse a mite by adding: "... and I join with the hole nation in hoping that the remainder of your administration will be successful."

Carter responded by accepting the resignation "with friendship, respect and appreciation for the accomplishments of our nation during your service as secretary. ..."

High Praise

Carter's notes to the departing, if you except the letter to Adams, might make one wonder why the Cabinet resignations had been accepted.

To Joseph A. Califano, Jr., fired as secretary of health, education and welfare, Carter wrote about Califano's "notable accomplishments" and lauded him for "competence and compassion."

To Blumenthal, the president wrote about "the excellent service you have rendered," and much more of the same.

To resigning Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Carter expressed regret, coupled with high praise that "you have performed your many duties superbly."

Burgers Served

When Carter invited some 30 reporters to join him for an hour and a half of no-direct-quotation conversation on Saturday, some reporters were a bit startled to be served hamburger sandwiches on ultra-thin White House china.

For the record, the burgers served in the State Dining Room were neither rare nor well done and were accompanied by ketchup, mustard, onions, tomatoes and pickles.

The abstemious president also offered beer.

Art Collection

Hamilton Jordan, the new White House chief of staff who is overcoming early celebrity as the administration's Peck's bad boy, actually is a cultured fellow with a keen interest in contemporary art.

Over a period of years, Jordan built himself a modest art collection that he moved here from Georgia.

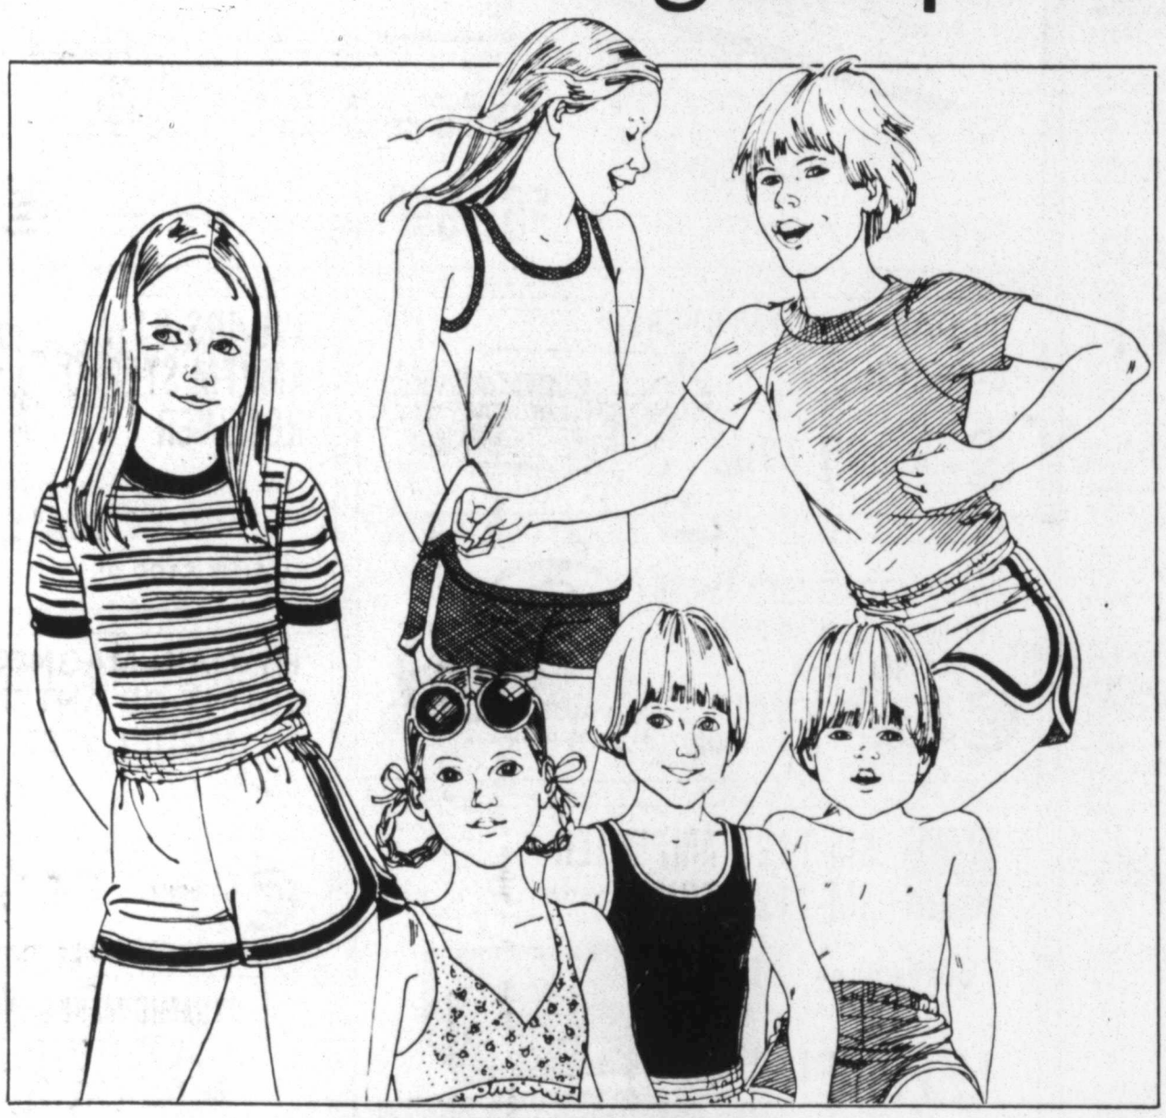

Alas, his former wife inherited the art works at the time of their divorce.

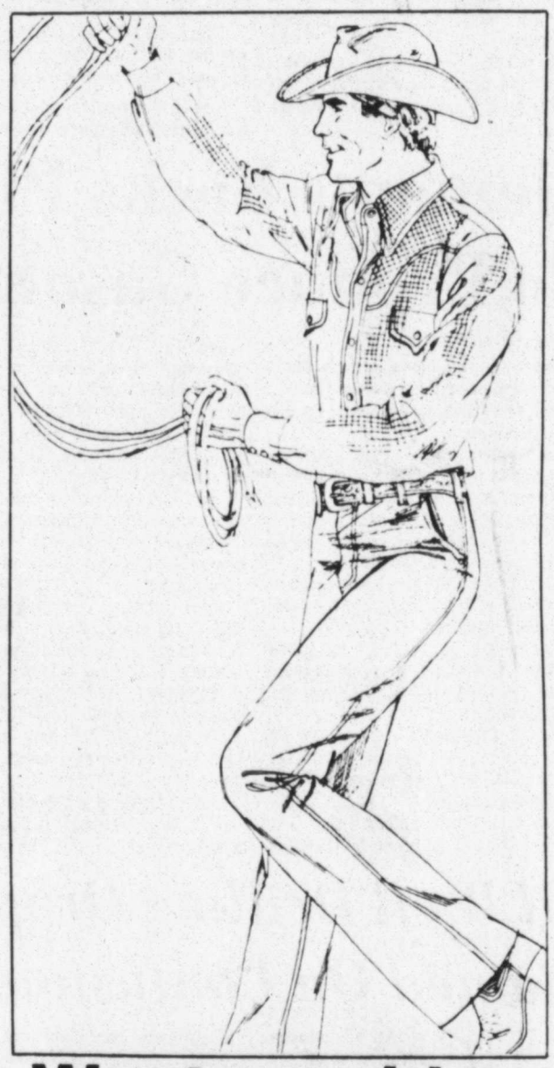

Alleged Murderers Plead Innocent

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Two men charged with four Bedford Hills slayings pleaded innocent at a formal arraignment as their lawyers criticized Westchester County authorities handling the case.

"They're trying to get a guy and they don't care who they get," Hyman Dechter, attorney for Junius Gray, 41, of Brooklyn, N.Y., said Tuesday. Gray and Jimmie Lee Allen, 40, of Plainfield, N.J., are charged with the May 10 deaths of Charles Frankel, former U.S. assistant secretary of state; Frankel's wife, Helen; Christopher Sperry, the 21-year-old son of a Wall Street stock broker; and Nellie McCormick, who formerly was the Sperry's governess.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Mother Country Still Standing

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Well, I hadn't been back in the Mother Country for a while, but the Empire still stood, steadfast in its ability to muddle through and tolerant as ever of occasional eccentricity among the citizenry.

Mulligan's Stew

When last I called at the House of Lords, an opposition peer thundered that "Britain was going down the drain with a loud, sucking sound that is the prime minister drawing vacuously on his pipe."

That was two prime ministers ago, and it hadn't happened. Now there is a prime ministress, who doesn't smoke a pipe, although I know for a fact that the lady director of Dunhills, the tobacconists, does. The Lords this time were debating, according to the notice board in the strangers' gallery, "conservation of wild creatures and wild plants."

Across the hall in the Commons, Frank Maguire, the Irish public house keeper, had shown up to take his seat as the independent member for Fermanagh and South Tyrone. His Catholic constituency in Northern Ireland had rewarded with re-election this man of commendably few words who had gone through the entire previous session of Parliament without making a single speech, asking a question or, except on the rarest of occasions, turning up at all.

Whilst I was nibbling on my alloted portion of plaice (a tourist must know his plaice in England) at my favorite fish and chips parlor off Piccadilly the former officers of Skinner's Horse, the Duke of York's Own Cavalry, were having their annual luncheon at the Cavalry and Guards Club across the way.

Aside from a rather ribald limerick, I know nothing of this chap named Skinner, but I do know that the Cavalry Club has an enormous painting of "The Charge of the Heavy Brigade," who probably knew the reason why and were snubbed by Tennyson.

The queen had issued a new honors list during the night, and I had failed to make it again. Titled Mulligans are few on the ground here.

You'd think a chap named Burke could slip one or two into his peerage listings.

Prince Charles, if anyone cares, was off presiding over the dedication of a new multimillion pound long-range weather forecasting facility. It rained on the ceremony, of course. But no matter, the weathermen were going out on strike anyhow. Britain, they announced before walking off the job, was having its wettest summer in 27 years. When last I called at this sceptered isle, it was having its wettest summer in 26 years.

In Ipswich, the Rev. Henry Lunney, Rector of Westerfield and Tuddenham, was consecrating the grounds for a new pet cemetery. Percy Edwards, identified as a "longtime animal voice impersonator for the BBC," turned up in person for the ceremony. Burial plots will go for about $80.50 regardless of the size of the deceased. Coffins extra.

Everyone was feeling the pinch of double-digit inflation, apparently even the Royal Family. Sotheby's, the antiques auctioneers, were having a sale of Princess Margaret's "surplus jewelry." Patrick Gould, an iron monger, plunked down $2,900 for an art deco brooch set with lapis lazuli and diamonds.

"My wife is going to love it," he told the disappointed bidders. "She'll be able to show it to all her friends."

On the first sunny Sunday in weeks, more people showed up to hear the band of the Coldstream Guards in St. James's Park than turned out to heckle the anarchists at Hyde Park Speakers Corner. The price of idleness is getting out of hand. It now costs 30 cents to sit in a canvas chair in Kensington Park and watch the children fly their kites and the old men sail their model boats on the round pond in front of Princess Margaret's digs.

London holds other shock-horrors, to use the headline language of the national tabloids. After 700 years of bombastic, odoriferous existence, the Billingsgate Fish Market, which gave its name to creative cursing, is closing down to make way for a "dual carriageway."

This is Queen's English for a superhighway. Only Billingsgate's vituperative fishwives would come up with a blasphemy equal to that assault on a historic landmark.

But some things never change. Three Nom 49 doubledeck buses went along Gloucester Road in a row, just like always in the petrol-plentiful days of yore and the No. 9 to Knightsbridge was still listed among the endangered species. "The Archers," the world's oldest soap opera, were still going sudsy-strong down at Ambridge. Shula hadn't married Nick yet, in a courtship approaching its silver jubilee, but a new constable on the beat was regarded as a possible rival for her hand. Or was it his? Tune in next decade for the latest developments in this torrid romance.

Oh yes, the new arts minister, Norman St. John-Stevas, concluded his speech at a luncheon for "Museum of the Year" with some riveting rhetoric:

"But I mustn't go on singling out names. One must not be a name-dropper, as Her Majesty remarked to me only yesterday."

Pennsylvania Court Bars 'Wrongful Birth' Suit

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pennsylvania Superior Court has ruled that a couple and their 4-year-old handicapped daughter cannot sue for the girl's "wrongful birth," but the parents alone may sue two doctors who were supposed to have performed a vasectomy and an abortion.

The court ruled this week that there was no legal precedent that holds a "child has a fundamental right to be born as a whole, functional human being."

"Whether it is better to have never been born at all rather than to have been born with serious mental defects is a mystery more properly left to the philosophers and theologians," the court ruled.

The medical malpractice suit was filed in 1976 by Frank Speck Jr., a baker, and his wife, Dorothy, of suburban Homestead, against Drs. Richkard A. Finegold and Henry J.H. Schwartz.

The suit, filed on behalf of the parents and their daughter, Francine, charged that the girl was born despite a vasectomy to prevent conception and an abortion once it was clear the vasectomy had failed.

The court told the Specks they could seek an unspecified payment for bringing up the child, but may not sue for emotional disturbance and mental stress.

Speck suffers from a disease known as neurofibromatosis, a crippling illness of the fibrous structures of the nerves. Two of his children, Valerie and Lee Ann, are also victims of the illness.

According to the suit, Speck had a vasectomy on April 28, 1974, because hedid not want to father another child afflicted with the disease.

Finegold, a urologist who performed the operation, allegedly said it was a success and told him he needed no other contraceptive measures. A few months later, however, Mrs. Speck became pregnant.

Mrs. Speck, concerned that the family would be financially unable care for three disease-stricken children, had an abortion Dec. 27, 1974, by Dr. Schwartz, an obstetrician-gynecologist.

The suit said Mrs. Speck was assured by the doctor about the success of the abortion. However, Francine was born four months later, afflicted with neurofibromatosis. She still cannot talk or walk and spends five days a week in an institution, according to the suit.

The Specks sued the doctors for negligence "in the performance of their services," misrepresentation and breach of contract.

The ruling, written by President Judge William Cercone, noted that the child would not have been conceived or born had the operations been successful.

"Although we deny Francine's claim, we hold recovery is allowed in the parents' claim in this case," he said. "The alleged negligence and misrepresentation of both doctors and by the alleged breach of contract by Dr. Finegold has also been adequately pleaded."

Coors Murderer Seeks Parole

DENVER (AP) — Joseph Corbett, the convicted murderer of Adolph Coors III, will appear before Colorado's Parole Board Aug. 13 to find out whether his parole will be revoked.

Corbett spent 18 years in the Colorado State Penitentiary, never admitting guilt and always regarded as a model prisoner.

The 50-year-old Corbett was paroled July 10, but officials say he apparently violated parole less than 24 hours later by leaving California.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tomorrow could be a very fortunate day for you romantically, as well as materially. You're lucky for those you love. They, in turn, are lucky for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your financial aspects are extremely encouraging tomorrow regarding something you've been hoping would happen. The pieces are beginning to fall into place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Projects rather grand in scope are the ones that you are best suited to handle tomorrow. If you have something big going, set lesser things aside.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The ease with which you attain important goals tomorrow could amaze others as well as yourself. Challenges awaken your fullest potential.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Deal directly with big shots instead of underlings tomorrow if there is something important you need from them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A willingness to make compromises in business situations could be enormously beneficial to you tomorrow. You'll get the best of the bargain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An ally who will be of great value to you later can be won over tomorrow because of your willingness to go out of your way to be helpful to him now.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There could be a profitable outlet for a talent you currently use only for noncommercial purposes. Don't overlook this source of additional income.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things will come very easy for you tomorrow once you show a willingness to be cooperative. You'll get more in return than you give.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tomorrow should be a very rewarding day because of your industriousness and the joy you derive from your work. In addition, coworkers find your attitude inspirational.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Lady Luck is apt to single you out tomorrow, both materially and through the dealings you have with a friend. Keep alert for opportunities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have the knack tomorrow to make good things better, especially if it could mean something to you financially. Set your sights high.

Your Birthday

July 28, 1979

Short trips which you will be taking this coming year will prove to be both fun and fruitful for you. There's a strong chance you'll meet a person who will open up avenues of opportunities.

Your new Astro-Graph Letter tells you what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday. Get yours by mailing $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth time.

Military Manpower Increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The strength of the all-volunteer U.S. armed forces rose slightly last month after sliding to the smallest size in 29 years, according to a Pentagon report.

An increase of 5,385 men and women in uniform in June probably marks the beginning of a seasonal upturn in recruiting after the end of the high school year.

Traditionally, the services enjoy their best recruiting crop in the June-August period. But Pentagon manpower officials are wondering whether the crop this summer will be big enough.

Looking back, they can see that the armed services grew by more than 11,000 in June 1978 — better than twice this year's increase in the comparable month.

The total strength of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines stood at 2,018,299 as of the end of May this year. That was the smallest U.S. force in uniform since the eve of the Korean war in June 1950.

The new Pentagon report, just issued, shows the total moved up to 2,023,684 as of June 30.

That report highlighted the continuing difficulties experienced by the Army and Marines in meeting their personnel goals. The Air Force and Navy appear to be holding their own so far.

Despite problems in maintaining an all-volunteer force, the Carter administration has taken a firm stand against any move toward restoring the peacetime draft.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said in late June that "we don't propose to go to registration, let alone the draft, until we are convinced that other methods won't do the job." The White House followed this month with a statement backing up Brown's position.

But the registration issue is due to come to a test vote in the House, probably next week, when it takes up a $40 billion defense weapons bill. Written into that legislation was a provision to renew draft registration for 18-year-lds. It i uncertain whether the registration proposal can get through Congress.

The Pentagon has counted on a number of enhanced incentives, including bonuses, to encourage more enlistments and re-enlistments.

The Army earlier this month reversed direction and announced it would again accept 17-year-old male volunteers who have not finished high school. It also has acted to lower minimum mental standards for women volunteers, bringing them in line with those required of men.

Officials say the Army plans no personnel cutbacks to fit the size of the force it can hope to raise. At 752,468 as of June 30, the Army was about 21,500 short of its goal for the end of this fiscal year on Oct. 1.

The Marines, with 184,269 men and women, were nearly 5,000 below their projected strength. Their leaders are considering a proposal to reduce the Corps' authorized total by 10,000 next year, apparently in recognition of the realities.

Treaty Opponent Briefly Stalls Panama Canal Bill Actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leading House opponent briefly stalled congressional action today on legislation backed by President Carter to carry out treaties turning the Panama Canal over to Panama.

Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., accused Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of "selling out the position of the House" and objected to creating a House-Senate conference to resolve differences betwen House nd Senate versions of the bill.

But O'Neill immediately won approval from the House Rules Committee to have the full House vote later in the day on overriding Bauman and creating the conference.

Bauman accused O'Neill of selecting House conferees who agree with Carter and the Senate that House restrictions against Panama should be taken out of the bill.

Bauman said he and other House opponents will fight to kill the entire bill if the House restrictions are removed. "We have a lot more information to sink this thing," he said.

Congressional leaders hope that the compromise version can be approved by both houses and sent to Carter next week.

Both bills would carry out the treaties turning the Panama Canal Zone over to Panama Oct. 1 and the canal itself over at noon Dec. 31, 1999.

The Senate approved its bill 64 to 30 Thursday after rejecting House-passed restrictions that would:

— Cut off Panama's annual estimated $75 million payments under the treaties if President Carter or Congress formally determines that Panama aided revolutionaries who overthrew Nicaragua's government.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., contended arguments against that condition "amount to a concession that we are going to turn Latin America over to the Marxists."

But Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the United States cannot dictate policies of Panama or Latin America. He said U.S. attempts to do so "will only undermine ourselves and make us objects of their contempt."

— Assert that Congress has the constitutional power to yet refuse to turn the canal and canal property over to Panama.

— Virtually knock a $10 million increment off Panama's $75 million annual payments by prohibiting it so long as U.S. taxpayer funds are spent for U.S. operations in Panama.

— Grant U.S. presidents the power to "take any steps" to keep the canal open and neutral.

The bill's floor manager, Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., called the restrictions "obvious violations of the treaties" that would break America's word by rewriting treaties already approved.

Solons Again Refuse To Kill Reactor Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defying a veto threat, the House has for the third time refused to go along with President Carter's decision to kill the Clinch River Breeder Reactor Project.

Despite claims the project was dead in any event, the House voted 237-182 Thursday against an amendment to strike funds for the Tennessee project.

Key Democrats moved to strike $183.8 million earmarked for the breeder reactor in a pending bill authorizing $6.6 billion for research and development programs of the Energy Department. 8

The Clinch River projectis intended to demonstrate that a liquid sodium-cooled breeder reactor can produce more nuclear fuel than it consumes.

The president wants to kill the project on the grounds its technology is already obsolete and it might lead to the further spread of nuclear weapons.

An amendment to kill the project was offered by Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla., one of the floor managers of the bill and a former backer of the project.

"The Clinch River project is dead — it's dead," Fuqua said. "The president is not going to sign this bill if it's in there."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., agreed with Fuqua that the project is dead, and said: "I think we'd all be wise if we gave this project a decent funeral and comforted the widows."

Udall proposed halting the entire breeder reactor program for the time being.

Rep. John Wydler, R-N.Y., who led a Republican defense of the project, opposed both amendments and said either would end development of breeder technology.

Supporters of the Clinch River project suggested reports of its death were premature.

"Its opponents are shouting, 'It's dead! It's dead!'" said Rep. Robert Roe, D-N.J., Shortly before the vote. "Well, I don't think it's dead."

Clinch River's backers argued the project was needed to keep the United States ahead in breeder technology and to make sure the country would not run out of nuclear fuel.

They also disputed Carter's contention that its continuation might lead to nuclear proliferation because it would produce weapons-grade plutonium.

Killing Clinch River would have no effect on nuclear proliferation, its supporters said, because other countries plan to proceed with breeder technology even if the United States does not.

No final action was taken on the bill, and it was laid aside for further consideration later — probably nex week.

Just before adjourning, the House rejected a proposal by Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., for the construction of a $350 million nuclear waste disposal storage facility by 1985.

Area Officials Probe Murder Of Beautician

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The murder of a 35-year-old beautician here remained unsolved this morning, Plainview Police Chief Alan Stewart said.

Authorities were continuing to look for the killer of Lela Cook Bradic, whose ex-husband found her stabbed and bullet-riddled body about 7:15 a.m. Thursday at the dead woman's beauty shop, Lela's Touch.

Mrs. Bradic, who was pronounced dead at the scene, suffered bullet wounds in the chest, arms and back. She also was stabbed four times in the back.

"We haven't got anything new...we're still in the dark," Stewart said this morning. The chief said his department was continuing to check out leads, but that robbery did not appear to be a motive.

Robert Bradic, her ex-husband, found her lying on the floor of her beauty shop, Lela's Touch at 1028 Broadway, about 7:15 a.m. Thursday. The 35-year-old beautician suffered bullet wounds to the chest, arms and back. She also was stabbed four times in the back.

Justice of the Peace Glenn Stone ruled the death a homicide and ordered an autopsy, which was to be performed Thursday at St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock. The gunshot wounds apparently were from a .22-or .25-caliber weapon, Stone said.

"It doesn't appear that robbery was a motive because Mrs. Bradic had some small change in the cash register and about $50 in her purse," said Capt. William Mull of the Plainview Police Department.

Mull said police found a tray of beauty supplies that apparently had been dumped on the floor across the room from the woman's body. However, Mull indicated that the spilled supplies may not have been related to the woman's death. Reports also show that the victim had spilled a cup of coffee on herself.

Police did not recover a weapon at the scene.

Mrs. Bradic was seen eating breakfast at a local restaurant before going to her shop for a 7 a.m. appointment, police said.

Funeral services for Mrs. Bradic are pending with Wood-Dunning Funeral Home in Plainview.

Energy Department Lists More Radioactive Dumps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report the Energy Department has filed with Congress provides a glimpse at the extent to which federal properties throughout the country have become a dumping ground for radioactive wastes.

In compliance with the 1978 Uranium Mill Tailings Radiation Control Act, the department Thursday identified 48 more radioactive dumps in addition to the 27 it listed earlier.

Colorado heads the new list with 27 dumps, followed by Wyoming with five, Utah four and California three. One site each was identified in Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York and South Dakota.

Under the 1978 law, the agency will assess and correct dump-related problems in cooperation with states and Indian tribes.

The report, which also gave information on nearby structures that may be contaminated, said only nine of the radioactive sites are considered stable, but none "appear to pose any long-term health risk to the public."

Jan Cool, an Energy Department official, said huge piles of debris from uranium processing were left exposed to the elements before they were regarded as hazardous.

Motorist Kills 26 Stray Goats

A motorist traveling just southwest of the city Thursday night reportedly ran into a herd of goats, killing 26 of the animals, a Department of Public Safety spokesman said.

Reports were sketchy about the 10:40 p.m. mishap, but the DPS spokesman said the goats apparently escaped fences and were on FM 1585 about a half mile east of Slide Road when a car rammed into them.

No person was injured in the accident.

Infant's Death Ruled Homicide

Justice of the Peace L.J. Blalack said he has ruled homicide in connection with a 7-month-old Plainview infant who died in Health Sciences Center Hospital.

Jose R. Hernandez died at 4:45 p.m. Saturday after being transferred from Central Plains Regional Hospital of Plainview.

Blalack said an oral autopsy report on the baby revealed he died of hypoxia, an oxygen deficiency in body tissues.

Lubbock and Plainview authorities are investigating the death.

Managers For Family Businesses Hard To Find

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not so many decades back if a man with a successful business didn't have a promising son to leave it to he looked to marry one of his daughters to a good manager.

Nowadays, the girl is likely to say, "Sell the business and give me the money, Pop, or let me run it."

Which is one reason why executive recruiters often have trouble getting good managers to take jobs with family-owned companies.

"Top notch executives are prone to think family-owned businesses are trouble spots," says Rene Plessner, a New York executive recruiter.

Plessner at one time was deeply involved in finding executives for the cosmetics field, an industry in which family-owned companies abound. This led him to investigate the status of family-owned firms in America.

"I found there are at least 3,000 family-owned businesses in the country with annual sales of $5 million or more," he said. "Some have sales exceeding $100 million."

Generally speaking, these family-owned businesses pay better executive salaries and bonuses than public companies of the same size, Plessner said.

Despite that, when Plessner conducted a survey among 360 marketing executives, 31 percent responded that they would be reluctant to take a job with a family-owned firm and another 43 percent said they would take a job in such a firm only if the salary was high and the fringe benefits very good.

The other 26 percent answered cautiously that it would all depend on the business and what kind of impression they gained as to the family's attitude toward outsiders.

The reluctance, Plessner said, mainly reflected the feeling that in a family-owned company, things aren't run on straight business principles — that the interests of the family come ahead of those of the business, and objectives may be unduly limited.

The family-owned company also may be a veritable jungle of sensitivity problems — one or more eccentric and pushy but incapable members of the family who own big blocks of stock must be catered to.

Plessner said this reluctance of good executives to join them is a serious problem for family-owned firms.

"It means they must pay bigger salaries for good people and sign rather long contracts with them somewhat more binding than the public company gives good executives."

On the other hand, the family-owned company can be a great opportunity for an astute outside executive who has both the determination and the flexibility to do a good job and get along with the family.

"He may know that the path to the chairmanship is blocked by heredity, but he can be a powerful force and make a lot of money in salary and bonuses if he does well," Plessner said. "It's quite a challenge and most good executives are looking for a challenge as well as for money."

It appears that most family-controlled companies ultimately pass out of the family's rule, Plessner said. Either they are sold for tax reasons, or the family interest becomes so diluted that professional management and directors take over.

"Sometimes the founder takes the initiative to turn the business over to professional management as Charles Revson did when he brought in Michel Bergerac to run Revlon," Plessner said.

Often, there is a struggle among the family heirs for control. This usually leads to sale of the business or at least to a truce that puts the company in the hands of professionals.

Participants Of Government Study Sought

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The federal government has more than $250,000 that belongs to 17 black men who were unsuspecting guinea pigs during a 40-year study of the effects of untreated syphilis.

But no trace has been found of the 17 poor, uneducated Alabama natives or their families. And unless the men or their heirs are located by Sept. 18, the government gets to keep the money.

The 17 were part of a group of some 600 Alabama blacks who were persuaded in 1932 to take part in the now-infamous Tuskegee syphilis study conducted by the U.S. Public Health Service.

The participants were promised free meals, transportation and medical treatment for ailments other than syphilis. But the 400 or so who actually had the disease were never told of it nor was their disease ever treated.

Instead, the study sought to determine the effects of untreated syphilis on the human body through autopsies when the men died.

Most of the 600 or their heirs already have received their share of the $9 million settlement that resulted in 1974 from a $1.8 billion damage suit filed on their behalf by Tuskegee attorney Fred Gray.

Sam Green Fitzpatrick got his check for $32,951 last month at his home in Millstone Township, N.J. It came as a surprise to Fitzpatrick, who didn't even know the suit had been filed until the check arrived.

Fitzpatrick wasn't the only one confused. In the original suit, he was listed as one of the deceased participants. And, according to court records, seven persons filed claims for his money before he was discovered alive in New Jersey last year.

"They never told me," Fitzpatrick said in a recent interview. "I found out I had the 'syph' though. I went to a colored doctor and he told me."

Another syphilitic participant who got his share of the settlement last month was Willie Moffett Jones of Cleveland. Jones found out about the lawsuit last year from a relative who had heard about it while visiting in Alabama.

Jones' nephew, Everett Telfair, said his "Uncle Buddy" plans to use part of the money to visit Alabama, the state in which he worked as a farmer as a young man but hasn't seen in 25 to 30 years.

"He really doesn't have any evil feelings about this thing because it happened such a long time ago," Telfair said of his uncle. "He just says there ain't no use being mad at people who are dead."

Like all the other living participants in the study, Jones carries a card issued by the government that entitles him to free medical care for the rest of his life and free burial.

The card came in a letter the Atlanta office of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare sent Jones last year after his participation in the study had been verified.

But Telfair said the letter made no mention of why Jones was entitled to the free care. Nevertheless, he said his uncle "has never had any problem" using the card to pay medical bills.

Jones, who recently suffered a stroke, could not be interviewed about any health problems he may have had over the years, and members of his family said they did not know whether he was ever treated for syphilis or what effects the disease may have had on him.

The decision by the government to provide free medical care for the participants was made shortly after the existence of the study was disclosed in 1972.

A public outcry greeted the disclosure, and the government agreed that same year to end the experiment. The following year, the suit was filed, and since the settlement in December 1974, Gray has been searching for the missing participants or their families.

"We're going to make one final push now," Gray said. "There's nothing I would like better than to clear this up. I would hate to see that money returned to the government."

At the beginning of the year, Gray said he had been unable to find any trace of 35 participants. Since then, two of the 35 have been found alive and the heirs of another 16 have been located.

But 17 still remain to be found, and Gray said he has turned up nothing on them despite interviews with other participants and families of participants, searches of courthouse records, and several articles in national publications listing their names.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. has set a Sept. 18 deadline for locating the remaining participants. And Gray said he doesn't think the deadline will be extended, as previous ones have been.

"If we had some good leads, it would be different," the attorney said. "But we're running out of them."

Sixteen of the 17 are listed in court records as having had syphilis. If found alive, each would get $37,500 minus attorneys fees. Heirs of any of the 16 who are deceased would divide $15,000 minus attorneys fees.

The other one was a member of the control group in the experiment. If found alive, he would get $15,000 less attorneys fees; if deceased, his heirs would split $5,000 minus attorneys fees.

The 17 and their last know city of residence in Alabama are: George Anderson, Birmingham; Alfred Campbell, Montgomery; John Collins, Bessemer; Henry Epps, Auburn; Benny Lee Huffman, Fort Davis; Sheperd L. Jones, Milstead; I.S. Myrick, Notasulga; and George T. Anderson, Will Blackburn, John Cheeks, Tom Robbins, Lige Robertson, R.L. Ruff, Vance Taylor, Sam Weatherspoon, Tom Wyatt, and Jack Young, all of Tuskegee.

Man Sells Used Parking Meters

ATLANTA (AP) — Charles Campbell knew he'd found a bargain when he saw those 500 surplus parking meters heaped outside a municipal building in the south Georgia city of Waycross.

Now Playboy sports editor Anson Mount can say he has a real parking-meter collection of three, a woman has installed one in her son's bedroom which is decorated to look like a car, and others are using them for coin banks.

"I told them I was going to keep them all for souvenirs," said Campbell, who made a successful — undisclosed but low — bid on the aluminum and brass devices.

"Most people are using them for banks. They'll hold between $90 and $100 in dimes," he said, admitting that he's never really checked.

But banks aren't the only use for the meters. Campbell got one query from a New Jersey mayor interested in installing a few on his town's streets.

Magistrate Criticized For Jailing Elderly Woman

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A young city magistrate, criticized in the past for being too lenient, is now the focus of a controversy over her refusal to release a destitute 91-year-old widow, who spent a night in jail after stealing $15 worth of food.

Mattie Schultz, who said she lost her $5,000 savings to con artists in 1973 and now lives on only $233 per month, says desperation and hunger drove her to steal $15.04 worth of sausages, ham and butter Tuesday morning from a local supermarket.

She was charged with theft. In the arraignment Tuesday night, Night Magistrate Mary Elizabeth Ladd, 28, refused to free Mrs. Schultz on a personal recognizance bond even though the woman qualified for it and ordered her held in lieu of $400 bond.

Mrs. Schultz was released Wednesday morning when Bexar County Justice of the Peace Rudy Esquivel arrived for work and found the woman was still in jail.

Miss Ladd, a magistrate for 13 months, was sharply criticized Thursday by Esquivel, First Assistant District Attorney Charles Conaway and The San Antonio Express.

In an editorial, The Express called on Miss Ladd to explain "her uneven treatment of persons and, especially, her suspicions about the 91-year-old woman..."

Meanwhile, the case has attracted national publicity and prompted concerned persons all across the United States to offer food, money and legal aid for Mrs. Schultz.

The woman's case is being referred to a counseling program and the charges will then eventually be dismissed, said Ted Arevalo of the Bexar County District Attorney's office.

Miss Ladd explained Thursday that Mrs. Schultz had given authorities what the city directory showed was an incorrect address and repeatedly refused to admit the address was wrong. She also did not give the names of anyone who could be contacted for reference.

"I felt very bad about having to make her stay in jail. But I was not about to release her in the middle of the night when we didn't know for sure where she lived," said Miss Ladd. "Jail matrons were pleading with her to give them a correct address so they could take her home.

"I wanted to let her out of jail, but it would have been worse if I'd let her go not knowing for sure where she lived. I thought it was best for her to stay there, where she would be taken care of, until the next morning," continued Miss Ladd.

Conaway, however, snapped Thursday, "I think Judge Ladd exercised very poor judicial discretion in the handling of this case. The district judges have complained repeatedly about her being too soft and letting people out of jail (on personal recognizance bonds) who should have been retained.

"This is the first time I think she has been criticized for being too severe — and look at who she sticks in jail, a 91-year-old woman," he added.

"I just couldn't believe it when I got there Wednesday," said Esquivel. "I can't see any 91-year-old going to jail. This was a very definite mistake in judgement."

Meanwhile, the publicity prompted Texas Department of Human Resources officials to review Mrs. Schultz' application for food stamps. Administrative Assistant Duane Shaw said he has "no doubt" of her eligiblity.

Poison Experts To Study Oil

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Poison experts with the Environmental Protection Agency planned to collect samples of oil today to determine if the oil slick creeping toward the United States will harm fish and marine life.

The EPA scientists said they would travel to the slick on a U.S. Coast Guard cutter to collect four gallons of oil for biological and chemical testing.

The samples will be sent to a Gulf Coast area laboratory when testing is completed Saturday. Preliminary results are expected in five days, and final results in 10 days.

Thursday, the scientists traveled to the northernmost part of the spill, oozing from an offshore well that blew out June 3 at Campeche Bay in Mexico. Scientists have predicted the oil, which has been leaking into the Gulf of Mexico at the rate of about 30,000 barrels a day, could reach within 35 miles of Brownsville by next Friday.

The toxicity tests were requested by Coast Guard Commander Joel D. Sipes, coordinator of the state-federal tracking team.

"The situation is one of great concern because of the potential effect on the environment and marine life," said Joseph P. Lafornara, an EPA scientist. "However, we are hoping to find through the intricate analyses that the toxics will be depleted by the time the oil patches reach U.S. waters. We'll be looking for the worst — heavy metals and aromatics. We'll release the results as soon as we have them."

DR. LAMB

Muscles Matter

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you explain if there is something wrong with my metabolism? Whether I eat a great deal or not, my weight stays about the same — 140 pounds for 5 feet 11 inches. I can account for no periodic changes in my living pattern which should be a factor. My wife who eats sparingly of nonfattening foods has difficulty controlling her weight. My health appears to be normal for my age of 74. My weight stayed the same during my adult years.

DEAR READER — No, it sounds to me like your metabolism must be pretty good and a lot of other people would like to do as well, including your wife.

You may be more active than you think. Constant little movements by people who are action-oriented use quite a few calories during the day. This includes such little things as jiggling the feet or constant small movements that a person may not think much of.

In addition to that, the amount of muscles on your body has a lot to do with how many calories your body uses even if you're sitting still. Put plainly, fat tissue doesn't use hardly any calories while you're sitting but muscles do. It could be that you are muscular and your wife is not. I think this is a significant factor in causing obesity for many people.

Our modern life style may keep us busy but it often doesn't involve doing the kind of physical activity that grows and maintains the size of our muscles. There are very few people who chop wood or carry wood or do the kind of chores that a more rural America once did.

You may be interested in The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training For Energy and Weight Control. It will give you some basic information on why your muscle size affects how many calories your body uses. I'm sending it to you and other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Even if a person walks a lot, they may not develop or maintain large muscles. The leg muscles will be just large enough and strong enough to support the body. The kinds of exercise you need to do to maintain the size of your muscles involve strength exercises.

You may be surprised to know that different parts of your body have different rates of metabolism. Your liver which usually constitutes only about two per cent of your body weight uses a large portion of the calories that your body burns at rest.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several months ago I developed a hernia. I think I read in one of your columns that a hernia could be repaired with a needle without surgery. I am 83. Please let me know.

DEAR READER — You certainly didn't read that in my column. A hernia represents a tear or stretching of normal tissue. Those that occur in the groin are called inguinal hernias. The only way that the tear or stretched structures can be repaired is through surgery.

A hernia through the diaphragm that's caused by overstretching of the normal hole in the diaphragm may be helped by eliminating body fat. The accumulated fat inside the abdominal cavity tends to push the stomach up through the enlarged hole, but it doesn't change the size of the hole that's already developed.

Hope To Host Abilene Fund-Raiser

ABILENE (UPI) — Comedian Bob Hope's commitment to appear at a fund-raising gala Aug. 3 just absolutely made the day, week, month and year for Shelley Smith and his associates at West Texas Rehabilitation Center.

"We touched ground two weeks later," the executive director said with a laugh.

It all has to do with the power Hope generates for a fund-raising effort.

In accepting the invitation, the 76-year-old entertainer jokingly said: "I love west Texas for a lot of reasons." Hope long ago invested in the Snyder oilfields northwest of Abilene.

With that, the English-born comedian agreed in May to perform during the center's touted "Joint Venture for Crippled Children."

The event is staged annually to raise funds for the center and to honor members of the petroleum industry, the military and the broadcast media.

A day after organizers placed Hope's name atop the bill, 450 of 1,300 tickets available were snatched for $100 each. It wasn't long before all the tickets were sold.

The trip won't be Hope's first to Abilene. He visited the city in June 1970 and urged residents to attend a patriotic, "Honor America Day" rally a week later in the nation's capital, and about 130 Abilenians made the trip.

"This is very much an 'America first' community down here," Smith explained.

But credit for luring the globetrotting comedian to Abilene this time, said Smith, belongs to Jim Batson, a promoter and Hope's Texas road manager. When the decision was made to seek Hope's help in raising an estimated $2.2 million in operating funds, the center's directors turned to Batson.

During a conference telephone call in May between Hope, Batson and the directors, the entertainer accepted an invitation to attend the Civic Center gala and to support the rehabilitation center.

The privately funded, 26-year-old center actually includes three West Texas campuses at San Angelo, Abilene and Snyder. The center's 139 staffers served more than 7,000 handicapped persons last year.

Of the funds necessary for continued operation, Smith said proudly, only a $55,000 grant to the center's brace shop will be underwritten with federal money.

The rest, he said, will be solicited with the help of Hope and a group of West Texas oil industry leaders.

The money will pay for a variety of needs at the center, including physical, speech and occupational therapy and psychological and social services.

In addition to Hope, a contingent of military guests including four-star Gen. Curtis LeMay and government officials from the state are expected to attend.

School Districts Seek Ways To Cut Energy Use

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International Writer

The easy part of coming to terms with the energy crisis on the schoolfront:

Unscrewing every other light bulb.

The hard part: almost everything else.

That appraisal emerged during talks with school superintendents from 50 states attending the 38th annual Superintendents Work Conference at Teachers College, Columbia University.

The most unique problem belongs to James L. Rohrabaugh, superintendent, Northbrook School District 27, in Illinois.

All the district's schools — total of five — went up within the last 10 years. None contains a window. Each is air-conditioned.

How to cut the energy bill, obey the President's edict to keep the temperature at 78 degrees and keep all the kids from feeling like they're in a sweatbox. That, in essence, is Rohrabaugh's headache.

He said ventilating engineers of all types are going over the buildings like so many inchworms. They hope to retrofit the schools to everyone's satisfaction by September.

Many school districts have one or two windowless schools. They came into vogue as architects decided schools with no windows would eliminate the "broken window" problem.

The edict to keep thermostats set at 78 degrees on hot days, meanwhile, gives the superintendents fidgets about books in school libraries. The same short circuits to the nervous system strike keepers of books in public and college libraries.

The reason: books are best preserved at 65 to 68 degrees. The acid content of paper starts acting up as temperature gets beyond that. Seventy-eight degrees positively heats the book paper and deterioration sets in.

What's more, collections tend to develop mold when the library temperatures are kept where President Carter wants them — 78 in summer and 67 in winter. This was proved by librarians at Winthrop College in South Carolina.

They tried the President's guidelines. The mold developed in winter. The heat damaged paper in summer.

The American Library Association, which documents all this about temperatures and books, pushed for an exemption for libraries. But the Department of Energy said "no" to the request for a blanket exemption.

If a school library wants an exemption, the superintendent must fill out forms and beg the federal government for permission to save the school district's library books.

"Who needs more paperwork?" was the superintendents' reactions.

Eileen Cooke, Washington representative of the association, said recycled paper is the most likely to turn brittle in the higher heat. Paper with rag content, the least.

"If you put a Congressional Record on a windowsill, you will see what I mean," Cooke said, talking about the library problem.

"It will turn brittle before long."

As for the need to file for an exemption from the Department of Energy, Cooke said:

"Talk about a waste of energy!"

For a really practical way to cut energy consumption the superintendents recommended energy audits. During an audit, energy leaks are spotted.

Some school districts mandate the checks. Any district wanting help is advised to ask the local utility company.

Margaret Berry, superintendent of Port Townsend School District in Washington state said an energy check showed:

—A building with a swimming pool used 95 percent more energy than other buildings.

—The least amount of energy was used by a building put up in 1892. "One thing I know about this winter," Berry said. "Schools aren't going to be overheated and the kids will wear sweaters."

Other energy savings being considered by schools:

—Picking children up at central bus stops instead of at their front doors.

—Making it a rule all children must walk 1 mile to 1 1/2 miles to the school bus stop.

What about changing the school hours and calendar — for example, put in a four-day school week or close school during the winter months to eliminate high heating costs and use of scarce fuel.

Far fetched?

Not necessarily.

The four-day school day is being put ino effect by some community colleges in California to make more efficient use of gasoline. 3

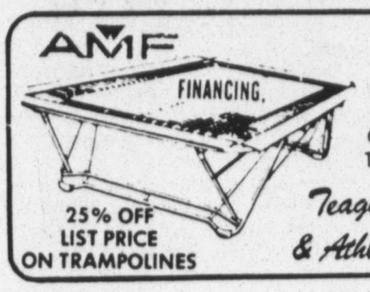

But that's not all.

Some conferences are conducted by phone, evening classes are being trimmed and classes are being compacted into continuous units — for example, three-hour lectures instead of three one-hour lectures on separate days.

The energy crisis, school officials are saying, will re-shape a lot on the schoolfronts before the year is out.

Some even talk about cutting out parking privileges for students in high school lots — unless driving to school is an absolute necessity!

Officials Seek 'Phantom' Bird

SODDY-DAISY, Tenn. (UPI) — A mysterious voice on the public address system at the Sequoyah nuclear plant has officials scratching their heads and searching for tte "Phantom Chicken."

Sometimes the voice makes clucking or pecking sounds. But the "chicken" can talk, too.

The chicken — dubbed "PC" for short — has been ruffling his colleagues' feathers by squawking over the plant's public address system about how inept he thinks they are.

Jere Ballentine, superintendent of the Tennessee Valley Authority plant 18 miles northeast of Chattanooga, said Tuesday the clandestine cackler could be any one of more than 4,000 workers there.

All of the plant's telephones are hooked into the public address system, and anyone can be heard over the system by dialing a special number, Ballentine said.

"Obviously some people have the number figured out," he said. "We can't dismantle the whole paging system, though, just to quell this guy."

Plant officials recently thought they had nabbed the chicken, but ended up with egg on their faces. They were questioning a worker when the PA came on, a few squawks were heard, and then "PC" bellowed: "You've got the wrong man!"

Another time, "PC" chided fellow workers who had heaved and shoved a section of pipe for several hours only to discover they were moving it the wrong way.

"If those in authority see the humor in Phantom Chicken, they aren't showing it," said one worker.

"But it makes our working days bearable. He has become an unsung hero around the plant," he said.

Ballentine laughed when asked about the culprit. He said there hasn't been any fired-up effort to catch "PC" — yet.

"It's really not that big a deal with us, but it can get pretty embarrassing when we're touring visitors around and all of a sudden this character comes on and starts clucking at us," he explained.

Ceylon's government announced in 1970 that it would break away from the Commonwealth. It now is known as Sri Lanka.

Judge Raps Boston Housing Authority

BOSTON (AP) — A judge says the Boston Housing Authority runs low-income apartments so poorly that if it were a private landlord "it surely would have been driven out of business long ago or its board jailed or, most likely, both."

In a graphically worded 154-page opinion filed Wednesday, Suffolk Superior Court Judge Paul G Garrity laced the authority in receivership, and said he will turn over its operation to an appointed administrator.

Garrity accused the authority's five-member board of "gross mismanagement, nonfeasance, incompetence and irresponsibility."

The decision came in a case brought on behalf of nine of the 50,000 people who live in Boston's low-income housing projects. The rundown brick buildings scattered around the city house about 10 percent of the city's residents.

A housing authority spokesman, Gerald Hickey, said the panel will appeal the decision, but declined to comment on the judge's specific criticisms.

Mayor Kevin H. White, who appointed some of the board members, said he was "relieved to hear of ... action by the court that will break the administrative logjam at the BHA and improve conditions for tenants of public housing in Boston."

The mayor said he will review the court's decision before he makes further comment.

Garrity said each of the tenants who testified during court hearings "recounted a horror story."

"Their testimony of leaky ceilings, of frequent cessation of such basic services as heat, hot water and electricity, of windows which do not open in hot weather and which cannot be closed in cold weather, of infestations of rodents and insects, of mounds of trash, of packs of wild dogs and of much more, remind one of casualty lists in wartime," the judge wrote.

The developments, some nearly 40 years old, "vary from areas which resemble photographs of the South Bronx — the stock example of an urban disaster — to neighborhoods consisting of very well-maintained single-and two-family homes."

Garrity said conditions inside the apartments "are indecent, unsafe and unsanitary and are in violation of almost every provision of the state sanitary code."

He said the authority's board failed to fulfill an earlier order requiring it to upgrade the housing.

"Throughout the four-year history of this case," he wrote, "the board has shown itself to be capable of nothing more than gross mismanagement."

Garrity ordered Robert B. Whittlesey, a court-appointed master, to search for a receiver to run the authority. Meanwhile, he said, the board cannot make any major decisions without checking with Whittlesey first.

Researchers Rap Quality Of Studies

BOSTON (AP) — The quality of practical medical research has slipped over the past 30 years, apparently because experimenters are more interested in churning out frequent studies than in making sure their work is accurate, a new survey concludes.

The result, the researchers say, is that working doctors must rely on weak, sometimes questionable conclusions when they decide how to treat their patients.

The critics, Drs. Robert and Suzanne Fletcher, blame the shabby work largely on the "publish or perish" syndrome — the pressure on medical school researchers to conduct many studies that are printed in medical journals.

"It may be that researchers believe that they receive more professional recognition for the quantity of publications than for the quality of their research," the husband-and-wife team wrote.

They looked at the design of research projects published in three major medical journals between 1946 and 1976. They found that quicker, easier-to-conduct studies have steadily replaced more difficult, but dependable, kinds of work.

Their review, conducted while they were at McGill University in Montreal, was published Thursday in the New England Journal of Medicine. They are now at the University of North Carolina Medical School in Chapel Hill.

Fletcher said they focused on "research on intact human beings," including work such as testing the value of new drugs and diagnostic methods on human patients. He added that they were not finding fault with basic scientific studies on laboratory animals and test-tube cultures.

The couple looked at the design of 612 articles published in Lancet, the Journal of the American Medical Association and the New England Journal.

They found an increase in the number of what scientists call cross-sectional studies, or articles reporting on medical observations made at a single point in the patients' illnesses.

At the same time, there has been a drop in the proportion of longitudinal studies. These reports either look for earlier events that might have contributed to the patient's disease or follow the subject over time so they can find out what happens to him.

Compared with these, they said, the cross-sectional studies are "more prone to problems of chance, bias and confounding factors that can threaten the validity of conclusions based on the research."

In 1946, about 25 percent of the studies were cross-sectional. In 1976, they made up 44 percent of the published work.

In an interview, Fletcher said: "It's not so much that things are getting worse. It's just that we could have been doing much better in this kind of clinical research. It means that physicians are not able to base their decisions on as good data as this society is capable of."

Feds Seek Number Of Sterilizations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government wants to know how many sterilizations of young people, in violation of rules that bar such practices, for which it has helped pay.

The Health Care Financing Administration said in a special report Wednesday the government spent $49.9 million for 142,742 sterilizations between Jan. 1, 1977, and March 31, 1979, under the Medicaid program. About 2 percent of those were performend on persons under 21. Since 1974, federal rules have barred reimbursements for sterilizations performed on mentally incompetent persons or those under 21. Administration official Leonard D. Schaeffer ordered regional units of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to find out how many sterilizations the government helped finance.

Teamsters Want Recall Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is being urged by a dissident Teamsters group to order a recall election of the union's national president, Frank Fitzsimmons.

The Professional Drivers Council sent a petition Wednesday to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall asking for the recall. In seeking the action, the council renewed its charges of corruption within the 2 million-member union. Department Walter W. Comer said the request would be reviewed, but chances of ordering a recall are "very dim."

Arabs Vow Support Of Attacks By PLO

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An angry Arab world pledged support today for Palestinian attacks on Israel to avenge the assassination of guerrilla leader Zuhair Mohsen. One guerrilla group said Egypt had a hand in the slaying and it would try to assassinate President Anwar Sadat.

Syria blamed the "Camp David Alliance" of Israel, Egypt and the United States for the attack on Mohsen, who died Thursday in a hospital in France. Damascus Radio said Syria would redouble its support for the guerrilla movement.

Other Arab nations condemned the slaying and said it made an escalation of violence in the Middle East inevitable.

"Such assassination will not halt the march of the Palestinian revolution," said Abdul Azis Hussein, Kuwait's minister of state for foreign affairs.

The PLO high command in Beirut claimed the hit team was directly attached to Prime Minister Menachem Begin's office and vowed to step up attacks on Israel.

The military security chief of Mohsen's Syrian-controlled Saiqa — Thunderbolt — guerrilla group was quoted as saying Egypt's secret service and agents of Mossad, the Israeli intelligence agency, acted jointly to assassinate Mohsen.

"We have documents proving this," the guerrilla planner, identified by the code name Abu Thayer, was quoted as telling the official Kuwaiti news agency in an interview in that oil-rich Persian Gulf state.

"Saiqa will strike back," he said. "Egyptian officials, including President Sadat, are within our fighters' reach."

Saiqa gunmen, their automatic rifles blazing, burned tires in the streets of Moslem West Beirut today, forcing businesses to shut down in tribute to Mohsen, 43, the Palestine Liberation Organization's war minister.

Mohsen died at Pasteur Hospital in Nice, France. He had been in a coma for 36 hours, since he was hit in the head by a .32 caliber bullet fired just before midnight Tuesday as he was entering his rented apartment on the French Riviera resort city of Cannes. The hospital said he never regained consciouness.

French police reported no leads to the two assassins. A watchman at Mohsen's apartment house said the two men were a sportily dressed European about 20 years old and a small, mustachioed man who appeared to be an Arab.

The Egyptian government and Western diplomats in Paris suggested Mohsen was the victim of a power struggle among Palestinian leaders.

Israel has not commented on the assassination.

Egypt, now almost as big an enemy to the PLO as Israel because of their peace treaty, called for an end to "internal differences and bloodshed" among the Palestinian factions.

There also was speculation that the assassination was the work of Egypt as a warning against repetition of the takeover of the Egyptian Embassy in Ankara, Turkey, two weeks ago. The four terrorists who made that attack were members of the Red Eagles of the Revolution, which is believed to be a wing of Saiqa.

The PLO is a coalition of eight Palestinian guerrilla factions representing a wide political spectrum and united solely by their opposition to the Jewish state.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat sent Mohsen's brother Majed and three other PLO representatives to the Riviera to investigate the shooting. A squad of PLO bodyguards accompanied them.

Ibrahim Souss, chief of the PLO office in Paris, said a special plane would fly Mohsen's body to Damascus, Syria, on Saturday for funeral services and burial.

Mohsen arrived in Cannes a week ago after leading the PLO delegation at the Organization of African Unity summit meeting in Monrovia, Liberia. Sources close to the investigation said he told his wife he thought he was being followed.

While in Liberia he reportedly had been trying to drum up support for a proposal to bar Egypt from the fall conference of non-aligned nationsin Havana because of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

South Carolina Police Charge Psychiatrist As 'Cat Burglar'

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — A psychiatrist and law instructor described by police as a "modern-day Jekyll and Hyde," practiced a third vocation, authorities say. He's accused of burglary.

Dr. Ian S. Gale was charged with eight counts of burglary, police said. Investigators on Thursday found goods valued at $500,000 in a sealed room at the suspect's home, authorities said.

Gold, silver and rare coins, jewelry, antiques and an arsenal of rifles, shotguns, pistols, hand grenades and gunpowder were discovered in the 9-by-12-foot room that only Gale had been allowed to enter, said Richland County Solicitor James C. Anders.

More weapons were found buried in the backyard, authorities said.

Anders said guns, jewelry, coins and a leopard skin had been identified by owners as stolen property, and the sheriff's department was going through other unsolved burglary cases looking for victims who could identify items.

Gale was placed in the South Carolina State Hospital, a mental facility, under a court order.

Authorities said the arrest and discovery may hold the key to scores of thefts that have plagued a fashionable Columbia suburb for the past four years. An informant aided the investigation, they said.

Richland County Sheriff Frank Powell described the psychiatrist-lawyer as "a modern-day Jekyll and Hyde." He said Gale, 41, was a reserved man who practiced medicine by day and allegedly was the "cat burglar" who ransacked homes at night.

Gale, a native of Philadelphia, was arrested Wednesday afternoon as he was returning home from his medical office.

Anders, whose office is prosecuting the case, said police officers surrounded Gale's car with half a dozen cruisers. He said Gale was carrying a pistol in his briefcase.

"We knew he had a weapon with him at the time of the arrest. Prior conversations indicated that he would defend himself if taken into custody. He practiced almost weekly with weapons," Anders said.

Gale's wife, Vita, is a nurse at Providence Hospital. The couple has a 9-year-old son, Sean. Mrs. Gale apparently did not know of the sealed room's contents or her husband's activities, he said.

Powell said the court order committing Gale to the state mental institution was obtained because "with a man of his intelligence and his background, we felt like obviously something would be wrong."

Gale will remain under observation for two weeks and will "not be allowed to talk to anyone but doctors" in that time, Powell said.

Authorities said the sealed room contained a $10,000 U.S. gold certificate, various Nazi paraphernalia and $75,000 in gold and silver coins.

Downpours Hit Coastal Region

there was a 40 percent chance of more rain today in the Gulf Coast area. Heavy thunderstorms roamed the Hill Country of Central Texas this morning.

Flood Control Director Gordon Smith estimated damage in Harris County at more than $200 million. Claudette also hit Galveston, Jefferson, Orange and Brazoria counties.

Some 2,500 persons were evacuated in Harris County alone. Hundreds more were seeking refuge in schools and other emergency shelters elsewhere in the storm area, authorities said

Gov. Bill Clements said he would ask President Carter to declare the counties a federal disaster area.

Forty-four state troopers were sent to the Houston area to patrol against looting, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Jim Robinson. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department dispatched two airboats to help in rescue operations.

Odd-even gasoline sales were suspended to facilitate evacuations.

One death was reported Thursday when Patrick Gray, 27, was found floating face down in water outside his home in Dickinson. Another drowning had been reported Wednesday in Beaumont.

Claudette began weakening late Thursday, but its vast storm system soaked the Mississippi and Ohio valleys, causing floods in Indiana that left three towns near the Kentucky border under 10 feet of water.

State police, the Indiana National Guard and local police evacuated more than 1,000 persons Thursday and early today, officials said.

Robert Harms, 38, of Mt. Carmel, Ill., was electrocuted Thursday night while working on an outdoor fuse box during heavy rain near Princeton, Ind.

Two tornadoes touched down Thursday night in western Marion County, damaging some property, police said.

Heavy rains also caused some flooding in central Indiana, and a flash flood watch was in effect today for the southern part of the state.

At least 10 inches of rain within 24 hours sent the Big Blue and Little Blue rivers and surrounding creeks and streams over their banks into English and Marengo, towns of about 700 each in the southwestern part of the state.

In English, floodwaters broke store windows, and police were patrolling against looters. Six persons were arrested for looting Thursday afternoon — one as he emerged from a storm window in a power boat loaded with merchandise.

Police Chief Michael Hurt estimated damage in the downtown area at $4 million.

More than 8 inches of rain had fallen since midnight Wednesday on the Gibson County community of Princeton, where officials evacuated a 10-block area.

Electricity and telephone service were cut off in Crawford County, and some power outages were reported in Marion County.

Parole Approved For Sub Hijacker

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Parole Commission has approved parole next June for Edward John Mendenhall, convicted of fraud by promoting a bizarre scheme to hijack a Navy nuclear submarine.

Mendenhall, 24, was sentenced March 15 to five years in prison and is confined at the federal penitentiary in Terre Haute, Ind. The commission agreed to release him June 3, 1980, when he becomes eligible for parole.

City Residents Purchase Gold As Hedge Against Inflation

gal for Americans to own gold, Lubbockites have played an active part in the market. People are becoming very knowledgeable," he said.

Lubbockites trading gold on the futures market are, in market terminology, "speculators," McQueen said. They buy contracts hoping the price will rise and sell them hoping it will drop, he explained.

Unlike "hedgers," speculators never intend to take on the commodity.

"We get calls all the time from people who used to play the stock market," McQueen commented. "Now they're trading commodities."

Lubbock gold coin dealers also have experienced a surge in business which they say in undiminished by the price of gold.

"Business is up tremendously," commented John A. Roberts, a local dealer in rare coins. "I've had more calls on gold since the price went over $300 than ever before."

Roberts, who sells U.S. gold pieces and silver coins from a vaulted stock, also attributes the increase in demand for gold to "the decline in the purchasing power of the dollar."

He says he sees "wealthier people and businessmen" buying gold coins in large quantities, while buyers with smaller assets buy the smaller gold coins and "junk" silver — U.S. coins minted before 1964.

Jerry Coleman of Mako Gold, a local brokerage house for "low premium bullion coins," enthusiastically agreed, "so far this has been one of our best months."

The most popular form of gold on the Lubbock market is the South African Krugerrand, Coleman said, which currently sells at about $322 each, based on a lot of 10. The Krugerrand contains one troy ounce of gold.

"Gold is seen as a stable store of value," he reasoned. "More Americans than ever before are getting into the gold market. Buyers are all types of people — wealthy, average income and even below average income."

Howard Yandell, president of First National Bank, which does low volume buying of gold coins as a service to bank customers, disagreed, however.

Acknowledging "we probably are dealing with a different clientele; people with higher incomes who buy gold as an investment," Yandell said he has seen a 50 percent decline in demand for Krugerrands in the past year.

Yandell termed the current gold buying spree "panicky. It's not so much investment as fear of the dollar," he commented.

He pegged the turning point for First National gold buyers at $275. "People get very cautious when the price goes up so fast," Yandell said.

The jewelry-buying segment of Lubbock's population is anything but cautious when it comes to purchasing gold, according to some Lubbock jewelers.

"I honestly have seen an increase in demand for gold jewelry," said Charles Cockrell of Payne's Jewelers somewhat incredulously. "People don't seem to be worried about the price at all."

Though the cost of a 14-carat gold ring has gone from $200 to $285 since January 1, and other forms of gold jewelry have increased comparably, Cockrell says few customers, especially ones in the 30 to 50 year age group — have changed their buying habits.

"Generally speaking, the ones who are set back by prices now are older customers who haven't bought a substantial piece of jewelry in four or five years."

Dorman Igo, president of Anderson Brothers Jewelers, commented "business is exceptionally good. All the publicity adds to the excitement."

Igo believes there will always be a demand for gold jewelry, no matter what the price is.

"I don't think the price will have that much of an effect on jewelry. People will always be interested in buying gold, even if the price goes to $400 an ounce."

His customers, Igo says, also have been undeterred by the cost of gold jewelry, though they don't suffer the price in silence.

"We get a lot of comment on the price and how it's gone up, but people tend to think it's good to own gold."

Leon Payne echoed Igo's thoughts, saying, "Gold has never been priced out of the market. I think the demand will fluctuate, but not significantly."

Cockrell predicts however that more and more people will turn to gold-filled jewelry as the price continues to climb.

"I've already seen the first of the trend," he remarked. "When someone picks up a heavy gold chain that might cost $700, and compares it to an almost identical gold-filled chain for $70, they usually buy the $70 chain."

Nugget-style rings will begin to "fade away" as their cost becomes prohibitive, Cockrell believes. "Bracelets will get thinner, and we'll start seeing 'ring around the finger'," he laughed, referring to the discoloration some people experience when they wear less valuable gold jewelry.

Nancy Jacko of Earcetera in South Plains Mall, says she already has noted a trend away from carat gold jewelery.

"Gold hasn't been selling well since the first of the year," she commented. "Costume jewelry sales are down, too."

LPOA Petition Signers Surprised By City Suit

the city brought suit against the LPOA because the proposed legislation will not go into effect until 1980, and "we weren't going to file suit until we had to."

Garner said that he felt the City Council pushed the lawsuit through quickly so that LPOA members could not organize. The suit, he said, "wasn't put out so that the people would know" before the action was filed.

He said that he felt the city was wasting tax dollars by bringing the LPOA to court. "It's just another indication of they way they are spending our tax dollars," he said.

He said the LPOA had not met to determine a course of action.

Sheri Porter, another of the defendants, has moved to Houston and will not be subpoenaed, city officials said.

Occupations of the other defendants range from retired citizen to special education teacher. One citizen named in the suit is a railroad employee and another is employed in a woodwork shop.

LPOA attorney Warren Goss said he plans to recommend to the association that he represent the 10 persons named as defendants both individually and collectively as a class.

If that plan is approved, the LPOA would pay for the cost of the defense, he said.

Goss said he was disappointed in the council's decision to seek a declaratory judgment because it appears to be a tactic to delay any charter amendment election until after a possible November election date.

"The petition is calculated to tie up the petitions so the November date passes," he said. "They're using the court as a tool not to submit the amendments" to the voters, he claimed..

Goss said the petition for a declaratory judgment, filed in 140th District Court Thursday, seems to contain an admission, "that all the petitions are in order and comply with the law."

He noted the petition was filed "before the council even adjourned so it looks like a decision was made prior to any council meeting."

Immediately after council members decided to seek a declaratory judgment Thursday, the petition was filed.

The council's decision "was not in the best interest of everybody here," Goss said.

"To me the petition does not say anthing but the council does not want to give up its right to set the tax rate," he said.

The state laws and constitutional provisions mentioned in the petition "set minimal guidelines" for the city to follow in setting the tax rate and adopting a budget, he said. .

The three charter amendments proposed by the LPOA would place "more stringent guidelines on the city," Goss said.

"There are restrictions (the city) has to comply with, but they are minimal type restrictions," he said.

"It appears the city council is no willing to relinquish certain responsibilities."

Goss noted Lubbock taxpayers will be "paying for a lawsuit against themselves" because of the application for a declaratory judgment. "We're in the position of having to spend another tremendous amount on legal expenses" not unlike the cost of the city's defense in a suit challenging the at-large election of city council members and a class action suit to validate some general obligation bonds, Goss said.

"Where does it stop?" he asked.

First action in the case will come when District Judge William Shaver sets a hearing to determine whether the LPOA petitions signers are a class with joint interests and to determine whether those selected as representatives of the class are representative.

Woman Wins Slander Suit

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A Superior Court jury has ordered an airline pilot to pay a stewardess $36,000 in slander damages for spreading rumors she was a lesbian.

Capt. Douglas Smidt of San Diego-based Pacific Southwest Airlines was ordered to pay the money to stewardess Cathleen Schomer.

Miss Schomer and another stewardess said they and other airline employees were staying overnight in Long Beach in 1976 when Smidt entered their hotel room and demanded they go to the bar with him.

They refused, even after Smidt threatened to spread rumors they were homosexuals, they said.

Testimony showed that several days after the incident, Smidt told others the two were lesbians and were "engaged in sex" when he had entered the room.

The other stewardess also file suit but settled out of court.

The jury deliberated for nearly a day before awarding Miss Schomer $20,000 in general damages and $16,000 in punitive damages Wednesday.

Ergonomics Aiding Corporations, Individuals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fitting the person to the job is the customary way of conducting business in the corporate world, but some companies are fitting the job to the person to benefit company and employee.

The process is relatively new. Some call it Human Factors; others know it by the fancier title of Ergonomics. The objective is the same — to make the workplace more pleasant for the worker, thereby increasing his efficiency and making him more productive.

"Imagine yourself seven feet tall working in a factory where the levers or buttons are at a level suitable for a man five-foot-eight," said Harry Davis, who operates the "human factors" laboratory at Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y. "You'd soon come up with a physical problem, probably somewhere in the region of your back."

Kodak is regarded as a corporation which has more than ordinary concern for its employees and Davis joined it about 20 years ago as an industrial engineer out of Columbia University.

A problem soon arose among the employees assigned to one of his projects, a small assembly line where they heat-sealed film cartridges. A timestudy expert figured the employees should produce so many cartridges an hour, a decision that made them groan, claiming they were overworked. Davis thought there might be some justification for their complaints and took his concern to Dr. Charles I. Miller of the company's industrial medicine department.

They decided a study of people at work was necessary to determine the kind of environment, work pace and other physical and psychological factors mutually beneficial to the worker and the company.

With a go-ahead from Kodak, they set up a "human factors" section, the first of its kind in American industry. Similar work, of course, has been done within the U.S. military and in civilian industry in Europe and Japan.

The Miller-Davis laboratory initially studied the physiological reaction of workers to determine how much energy was expended while working. This meant bringing the workers into the lab and making them exercise with electrodes attached to their chest to check their pulses and heartbeats. Back on their regular jobs measurements were taken again.

Any great difference between the lab and work environment data meant change was needed — either giving the worker a different job or making the job easier.

In time, of course, Davis and his associates discovered a worker's physical reaction was not the only method of determining a comfortable fit of job and employee. They began studying the psychological and mental makeup of workers as well as the atmosphere and "feel" of the workplace area to get the complete overview of man at work. Even such a thing as the color of the paint on a wall was calculated and considered.

One of the Davis group's stellar accomplishments had to do with Kodak's Ektaprint copier-duplicator. Lab personnel were consulted even before the design department went to work, with the idea that anyone would be able to use the Ektaprint instead of experienced operators only.

The technicians helped develop a simplified design with a foolproof system of clearing paper jams and also suggested a housing for the copier capable of supporting a 225-pound adult.

It seems a lab worker had the bright idea that during the Yuletide season someone in a company might hop up on the copier to hang the star on top of the Christmas tree.

U.S. spending for Medicare and Medicaid has risen steadily since 1965, according to a Conference Board analysis. In fiscal 1979, it is expected to reach $41.4 billion.

Pirates Spotted In Oklahoma

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (UPI) — Canoeists using the Illinois River in the Cherokee County area are being warned to watch out for pirates.

Local businessmen and Oklahoma rangers are concerned about the bandits, who are pirating the inland waterway. There were similar incidents three years ago.

Archie Peyton, operator of the largest of several canoe rental businesses along the Illinois River, says he is warning his patrons to beware of men lurking along the river's edge.

He says the pirates scurry along the river bank, scuttle a canoe and then dive for belongings lost in the river's depths.

"They put a log out over the river, then wait for canoes to hit it and tip over," Pyton said. "Then they dive for what fell out of the canoes."

He said the pirates are selective in choosing a location to waylay tourists in canoes floating down the generally slow-moving river.

Peyton said the pirates' favorite spots appear to be deeper, swifter moving sections of the river where inexperienced paddlists are hesitant to dive for their belongings.

Checking Interest Decision Nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is nearing a showdown about a proposal which would permit a nationwide system of interest-bearing checking accounts.

Rep. Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I., is pushing a measure that would allow banks nationwide to offer the so-called NOW accounts, which are permitted only in New England and New York. But Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., wants a proposal that simply would permit automatic savings-to-checking transfer accounts and credit union shared draft accounts. A federal appeals court has barred those accounts effective Jan. 1.

Meals Still Come From Capital

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale is living in Kansas City while the governor's mansion is being renovated, but his meals are still coming from the official residence 150 miles away in Jefferson City.

TEASDALE

Gloria Overfelt, the governor's secretary, said the food was being sent to Kansas City "in cars that are already going" there.

The governor recently rented a house in Kansas City for $1,700 a month while extensive repairs are being made on the mansion.

The move allowed his wife, Theresa, to be near her physician while awaiting the birth of their newest son, Kevin Joseph. He was born Sunday night.

Pope Would Be Welcome Guest

LONDON (AP) — Pope John Paul II will be a very welcome guest in Northern Ireland if he wants to visit the troubled British province, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says.

MRS. THATCHER

Mrs. Thatcher's remarks Thursday came in the face of mounting Protestant opposition to a papal visit during the pontiff's scheduled Sept. 29-Oct. 1 stay in Ireland.

Protestants in Northern Ireland have been battling for a decade with minority Roman Catholics over whether the province should remain British or leave the United Kingdom to merge with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Kalb Eyes Senate Seat

BALTIMORE (AP) — CBS diplomatic correspondent Marvin Kalb reportedly is toying with the idea of running for the U.S. Senate.

Television station WBAL reported Thursday that Kalb has talked to prominent Democrats in Maryland to see if he has a shot at winning the seat now held by Sen. Charles Mathias, a Republican.

But Kalb told the station he hasn't made up his mind about running for office.

Asked why Kalb wanted to change his press card for a Senate seat, Baltimore County Executive Donald Hutchinson, who has met with the newsman, said Kalb told him he wanted to effect a change — something he felt he couldn't do as a reporter.

Uncle Sam Wants Her

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Uncle Sam wants Agatha K. McGhee.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Several dozen brochures have been sent by the Army, Navy and the Marines urging her to sign up. Last week, the Air Force joined the chase by sending her two enlistment forms.

But Mrs. McGhee doesn't feel she's quite what the military has in mind — she's a 64-year-old grandmother.

"I could be a cook all right, but I don't know about the infantry," she said.

Each of the introductory letters has begun with "Dear Graduate," "as if I just stepped out of high school," said Mrs. McGhee.

Sgt. Mark Sharpe, an Air Force recruiter in Raleigh, said the woman is either the victim of a computer foul-up or a practical joke.

Jackie Remains Aloof; Trend-Setter Turns 50

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, who still turns heads when she enters a room, was chatting recently with two reporters in their twenties at a Manhattan reception.

"You girls look so young. How long have you been in journalism?" she asked.

And when one of the women later made reference to her husband, the former first lady stopped in mid-sentence and gasped: "You have a husband? You look too young to have a husband."

Age was apparently on the mind of the wide-eyed, whispery-voiced celebrity. And no wonder.

The woman known for her youthful appearance and trend-setting style turns 50 Saturday.

Only now, though, is the widow of two of the world's most powerful men establishing an identity apart from her historic role. A novice in the publishing world, she has been carving a life of her own in New York as a Doubleday and Co. editor. Some say she has never been more content.

The public never seems to forget her dignity in leading the stunned nation in mourning the assassinated John F. Kennedy or the criticism she drew five years later when she married Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis.

Her popularity fluctuates, yet people strain to get a glimpse of her and paparazzi swarm around her. Yet, as always, she stands aloof and calm amid the clamor, flirting with the spotlight, yet forbidding it to trespass the boundaries of her private life.

These days, though, Mrs. Onassis has been focusing on her life as a working woman. Tuesdays through Thursdays she's at her desk in her Park Avenue publishing office, often with her door wide open.

She draws on her 1950s journalism experience as an inquiring photographer for the now-defunct Washington Times-Herald and her work as a consultant-editor for Viking Press. She quit Viking about its publication of a fictional account of the assassination of Ted Kennedy after his election as president.

Her Doubleday co-workers have been impressed with what they describe as her down-to-earth attitude and "knack for publishing."

Woman Seeking Ad Royalties

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — An Idaho woman claims a barebottom photograph of her taken on a San Diego, Calif., beach in 1941 was used without her permission and has earned Coppertone Corp. "a fortune" as its trademark.

"You know, it's a funny feeling to be driving down the highway and see a Coppertone billboard and think 'That's me,'" says Jacquie Callaway, 40, who suddenly has decided to seek royalties.

Mrs. Callaway said her father, Clark Wills, took a photograph of her when she was two years old and entered it in an amateur photography contest sponsored by Popular Photography magazine.

The photograph, captioned "Hold Everything," took second place and bears a striking resemblance to "Little Miss Coppertone," trademark of the Coppertone Corp. since 1954.

Mrs. Callaway said she is uncertain how Coppertone acquired the photograph.

A spokesman for Plough, Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., manufacturer of Coppertone products, said they do not believe Mrs. Callaway is Little Miss Coppertone.

PILOT ESCAPES CRASH — Navy accident investigators look over the wreckage of an A-4 jet trainer that slid into a fence after losing power during takeoff at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station Thursday morning. The pilot of the jet walked away from the heavily damaged craft. Unofficial cause of the crash is believed to be the intake of a bird into the jet's engine. (AP Laserphoto)

Taxing Bodies To Meet

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock's city and school officials will meet with their counterparts from cities, school districts and special districts in Lubbock County next week to decide how best to create single appraisal district in the county as required by law.

City Council members decided Thursday to co-sponsor the meeting, scheduled for 8:30 a.m. Thursday in the Civic Center Banquet Hall, after learning that implementation of the state tax reform legislation must begin this fall.

By Nov. 15 all taxing authorities in Lubbock County must have elected a five-member board of directors for the appraisal district, City Manager Larry Cunningham told the council.

All taxing authorities are covered by the so-called Peveto bill with the exception of county governments which must decide by Sept. 15 whether they will participate in the single appraisal districts.

"The thing we feel we need to do is get the taxing authorities together in some sort of meeting," Cunningham said, "so we all have an understanding of what the effects (of the law) will be)."

School Superintendent Ed Irons, who was present for the council discussion, said the meeting should be held as soon as possible because of deadlines set for implementing the law.

The taxing authorities in the appraisal district will share in the cost of running the district based on their share of the total tax levy, Cunningham said, but the special districts like water and hospital districts won't have a say in who is on the district's board.

Votes for members of the board of directors are based on a taxing authority's share of the total district tax levy.

However, there is a loophole in the law which would permit three-fourths of the taxing entities to decide they wanted a different voting method and could allow small communities with a small tax levy to control the district, Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan said.

"If we don't work cooperatively, that's a possibility," she said.

Council members scheduled another meeting for Aug. 21 to discuss the sale of tax-exempt mortgage bonds with local lenders, realtors and builders.

The Texas Legislature has authorized cities to establish non-profit corporations which would sell the bonds to make more money available for home loans for low and moderate income persons.

Mrs. Jordan said she thought the plan has some "exciting features" and is attractive because it would provide another source of funds for mortgage loans.

"It's got a lot of good possibilities and I don't want to drop it," she said.

However, Mayor Dirk West said he still has concerns about the bond program because Congress is expected to place restrictions on the sale of such bonds nationwide.

The council heard only positive comments during a public hearing on a proposed annexation of 740 acres of land south of the city.

The Lubbock Property Owners Association expressed opposition to this and other annexations at the last council meeting, but no member of the group was present at the hearing.

Many of the proponents of the annexation addressed LPOA claims that there should be no annexations because there is undeveloped land inside the city limits and because of the cost of providing city services to newly annexed areas.

Norton Baker, who along with Leroy Elmore requested the annexation more than a year ago, admitted there is vacant land inside the city.

But, he said it is not being developed because the demand for residential property is to the south, not to the north where most of the vacant property is located.

As for the cost of this annexation, Baker said the city staff unfairly ascribed the entire cost of building a new fire station at 106th Street and Avenue U to his annexation request.

"If it is built, not only will it serve this area, but a much larger area," he said.

Also, he said the city staff had overestimated the city cost for paving in the Council Seeks Judgment In Amendment Dispute

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council will seek an answer in court on whether charter amendments proposed by the Lubbock Property Owners Association legally can be submitted to city voters.

On the advice of City Attorney John Ross, the council voted to file a class action suit against signers of LPOA petitions calling for a charter amendment election. The suit asks for a definition of the council's responsibilities regarding the election.

"It is clear you are being asked to take an action in clear conflict with the state constitution and state law," Ross told the council.

He recommended, and the council unanimously approved, not calling an election "at this time" and authorizing the filing of a petition for a declaratory judgment.

The class action "is the only way to receive a final determination and have the issues laid to rest" as to whether the three proposed charter amendments are in conflict with state law and are not subject to the initiative process, Ross said.

Because of those conflicts, Ross said the council had few options.

If the amendments were submitted to voters and approved and the council implemented their provisions, it would be performing illegal assessments which would produce an illegal tax roll, he said. Any citizen could challenge such procedures and tie up the entire city tax roll, Ross said.

If the council did not follow the amendments after they were approved by voters, that also would be subject to legal action, he said, and if the council did not follow established procedures on setting the tax rate, council members would be subject to a suit by the state Attorney General.

State law states that no city charter "shall contain any provision inconsistent with the constitution or general laws of this state," Ross said.

"I doubt if the council would have the power" to submit these three amendments to the voters, he said.

The proposed amendments would restrict the city tax rate to the current $1.12 per $100 valuation, limit the assessment ratio to the current 60 percent of market value and require voter approval for any increase in the tax rate or assessment ratio.

The LPOA submitted three petitions containing more than 3,700 valid signatures each calling for an election on the amendments. City Secretary Evelyn Gaffga determined 3,113 signatures on each petition were needed to require an election.

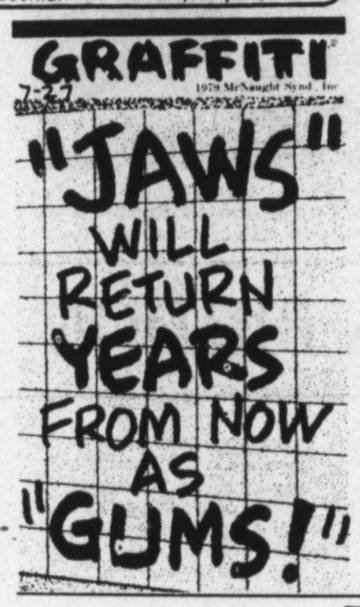

However, Ross claims state law has removed setting of the tax rate from initiatory action and that the amendments are in conflict with state law and the constitution.

In the declaratory judgment petition, Ross cites the Tax Relief Amendment approved by voters last November, Truth in Taxation legislation which became effective on Jan. 1, state tax reform legislation approved earlier this year and state statutes establishing city budget procedures as removing the amendments from the initiatory process.

Those laws require public hearings before a tax rate is adopted by the City Council.

"If the three proposed charter amendments were passed, it would negate the rights of those taxpayers who

Ex-Amarillo Woman Named In Charges

AMARILLO (AP) — Charges of cruelty to animals have been filed against a former Amarillo woman after several dead and dying animals were found amid piles of trash and excrement — some up to seven feet high — in a house she owns.

Mary Elizabeth (Beth) Miesse, a former Amarillo College professor who now lives in the Panhandle community of Channing, was named Thursday in the charges.

Potter County deputies said Thursday night they didn't know if a warrant had been issued for her arrest. If a warrant was issued, they said, it may have been mailed directly to the Hartley County Sheriff in Channing for enforcement there.

Authorities were alerted to the grisly scene last week when neighbors complained of a horrible odor at the one-story, white brick house.

Investigators entered the South Amarillo home Saturday when a search warrant was issued. They found 15 to 20 animals — five of them alive. Parts of the house were collapsed and windows were papered over, officials said.

A dead cat was found in a refrigerator and animal flesh was reported in another refrigerator.

Pat Chase, a veterinarian for the humane society, said she could not tell if one animal was a cat or a dog. Heads were reported cut off several animals and dry blood was found through the house.

The animals that were alive were described as "wild" from hunger and fear. Some were diseased. Three puppies who were about eight months old resembled animals only eight weeks old, Dr. Chase said.

Hospital Management Confident

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Brookwood Medical Services representatives are confident they can pull Health Sciences Center Hospital out of its financial tailspin — but they warn against expecting any quick solutions.

The director of hospital development for the Birmingham, Ala., management firm, Robert Berryman, spoke optimistically of the hospital's future Thursday. He had just been told by officials from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare that his firm has 90 days to draft a prediction of hospital finances for the department to study.

The study will be used in determining whether HEW will grant the Lubbock County Hospital District a delay in making its substantial twice-yearly loan payments.

"Everybody is looking for a quick fix," Berryman said. "It just won't happen."

He said his firm would not be able to save the hospital during the 90-day trial period, but would be able to work up a plan of action for overhauling the facility.

Brookwood has a track record of taking financially strapped hospitals and turning them around, Berryman claimed. He admitted during Thursday's meeting with HEW that the firm has not previously contracted with teaching hospitals, but added that individuals within the firm (including himself) do have that type of experience.

He said he did not know why Lifemark, the Houston-based firm considered the top contender for the management job, withdrew its bid at the last minute. The firm reportedly did not think it was capable of helping Health Sciences.

Neither would he comment on the management contract held by Hyatt Medical Management Services Inc. which was hired to get the hospital open by February 1978. He did say, however, that the hospital had been "overcapitalized", which has created a lackadaisical attitude toward finances.

He said his firm intends to run Health Sciences like a "regular hospital," making allowances for a few "certain peculiar factors" which are related to the teaching program. Berryman mentioned earlier that the management firm intends to beef up public relations between the hospital and the community.

"People ought to rally behind this thing," Berryman advised, saying that a negative attitude could only hurt the work they plan to do.

But staff members have expressed concern over hospital morale when Brookwood starts to make staff cuts — which Berryman indicates will happen.

"General Motors does it every day," he said of personnel layoffs. "People have to face reality." The hospital is

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

With bullish beef prices, Americans are turning to the bird. Turkeyburger — ground raw turkey — is turning up in more and more supermarkets. That's good news for today's nutrition-conscious waistline-watchers. Not only is turkeyburger cheaper than hamburger, it's more healthful and less fattening, too. Turkeyburger has as much or more protein as ground beef, yet it costs you less in calories and fat.

At the start of the cookout season, many supermarkets were plugging ground turkey as a hamburger substitute: fresh in the meat case or in frozen one-pound packages in the frosted food section. Many shoppers took it home and tried to treat it like hamburger: simply broiling or frying it as plain unseasoned patties. We think that's a mistake: To expect turkey to taste like beef is like asking tea to be coffee. The advantage of turkeyburger is subtle taste, tender texture and easy adaptability to a variety of seasonings. Turkeyburger tastes better than beef in many seasoned meat mixtures, like meatballs, meatloaf and meat sauce. Here are some simple (and slim) ideas to try:

PARMESAN TURKEYBURGERS
1 lb. ground raw turkey, fresh or defrosted
2 tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese
1 beaten egg (or equivalent no-cholesterol substitute)
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. finely minced onion (or 2 tsps. dried onion) optional: 1 minced clove garlic (or pinch of instant garlic)
optional: 1 tbsp. minced parsley

Combine ingredients and toss lightly. Shape by the quarter-cupful into 7 patties. Broil or barbecue 2 inches from heat source until cooked through, about 4 or 5 minutes each side. Makes seven patties, about 140 calories each. (Good on Italian bread!)

EASY CHEESEY TURKEY MEATLOAF — Double the ingredients in the previous recipe. Shape into a loaf by hand, or pack into a loaf pan; then invert the loaf pan on a shallow baking pan and lift off the loaf pan. (Don't bake the loaf in the loaf pan.) Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven 1 hour. (Serve with heated tomato sauce, if desired.) Also delicious cold, in sandwiches. Makes six servings, about 330 calories each.

TURKEY CHEDDARBURGERS OR MEATLOAF — Substitute shredded sharp cheddar or American cheese for the Parmesan. Substitute 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce for the lemon juice. Add a dash of tabasco sauce or a pinch of hot pepper or chili powder, if desired. Three or four tablespoons of minced green pepper would be a nice addition, too. Makes six servings, about 330 calories each.

SPEEDY SPAGHETTI SAUCE WITH GROUND TURKEY
1 lb. ground raw turkey, fresh or frozen
6-oz. can tomato paste
10-oz. can fat-skimmed chicken broth
1 small onion, finely minced (or 3 tbsps. onion flakes)
½ tsp. dried oregano, basil or mixed pizza herbs (or more, to taste)

Spray a large nonstick skillet or electric frypan with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Spread the ground raw turkey in the skillet. Cook, uncovered, over moderate flame until the underside is brown. Break into chunks; turn the chunks to brown meat evenly.

Stir in remaining ingredients; cover and simmer 10 minutes. Uncover and simmer, stirring often, until sauce is very thick, about 5 minutes. (Meanwhile, cook spaghetti or other pasta to tender stage in boiling salted water.) Sauce makes four servings, 270 calories each (tender-cooked spaghetti adds 155 calories per cupful).

SOME VARIATIONS:

With turkey sausage — Substitute raw turkey breakfast sausage for a low-calorie sausage-flavored spaghetti sauce. 280 calories each serving.

With added seasonings — Add 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley, 1 clove minced garlic (or pinch of instant garlic), a pinch of red pepper flakes, quarter-teaspoon poultry seasoning or 1 teaspoon fennel or anise seeds. (These seasonings won't increase the calorie count.)

With wine — Substitute quarter-cup dry white (or red wine) for the water. 285 calories each serving.

With mushrooms — Add a 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms (or stems and pieces) including the liquid in the can. Omit water. 280 calories per serving.

With cheese — Add 2 tablespoons grated sharp Romano or mild Parmesan cheese. 285 calories per serving.

Blindly following the many cliches of bridge is the mark of a lazy player. When a moment's thought makes it clear that only one line of defense stands a chance, forget about quoting sage advice and follow through.

Despite the fact that he was short in spades, East's hand was too strong for any action other than a takeout double. He was rather surprised to find the auction at four spades when it got back to him, and there was nothing left to do but double. We don't blame West for passing, even though a five-heart sacrifice would not have been expensive.

West led his fourth-best heart, dummy played low and East won the jack. It should have been obvious to East that the only quick tricks available to the defenders were one heart and two clubs—to hope for a trump trick in the light of the auction was wishful thinking. Therefore, to defeat the contract the defenders would have to score a diamond trick.

"Lead through strength and up to weakness," goes the old saying. So East continued hearts and sat back to wait for a diamond trick. It never materialized.

Declarer ruffed the heart, drew trumps and led a club. Eventually he set up the club suit for two diamond discards, and made his doubled contract with ease.

The threat of the club suit was there in dummy for all to see. East should have realized that he could not defeat the contract unless declarer held three diamonds. But he must not waste precious time, for West's deuce of hearts lead indicated that there were no more tricks coming from the heart suit. After winning the jack of hearts, East should immediately lead a diamond into the ace-queen! When he gets in with the king of clubs, he can continue with another diamond honor, this time forcing out dummy's last stopper in the suit. When East regains the lead with the ace of clubs, he can cash a diamond trick for down one.

The alternative defense was for East to cash the king of clubs at trick two in the hope of giving partner a ruff. But it wasn't likely that West had a doubleton club. Since the auction marked him for, at most, two spades, if he also had a doubleton, he would be 5-4 in the red suits and might well have bid over East's second double.

GOURMET BAKED EGGS
4 slices toast, cubed
1 can (4½ oz.) deviled ham
¼ cup ketchup
8 eggs
Salt
Pepper
½ cup (2 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Corn Flakes, optional
Hollandaise Sauce, optional

Butter four 9½ oz. custard cups or individual baking dishes. Divide toast cubes among cups. Combined deviled ham and ketchup. Spoon about 3 tablespoons mixture over toast cubes in cups. Carefully slip 2 eggs into each cup. Season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with cheese. If desired, garnish with corn flakes. Place custard cups on baking sheet in preheated 325 degree F. oven until eggs are desired degree of doneness, about 20 to 25 minutes. Serve with hollandaise sauce, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Financial Resources Needed To Combat Inflation

By BETTY YARMON

NEW YORK (WNS) — With alarming talks of recession and worse beginning to swirl about our heads, it is not too soon to ask this question: In the event of financial crisis, will our family be able to find within itself a variety of resources that it can call upon to help solve our problems?

Normally, of course, "financial resources" suggests the earnings of various family members, along with such reserve funds and capital assets as the family home, any other real estate, investments in stocks and bonds, the cash value of life insurance, the family car, such capital goods as furniture, and savings.

If funds suddenly are sorely needed, many of these assets can be converted into cash or used as security for a loan. The family home can readily serve as collateral for a mortgage, or for a second mortgage if a first mortgage already is on it. A car and life insurance, among other assets, can be used in getting a loan.

But if all these resources still don't add up to a solution of the family's troubles, other resources must be found, many of them of a far more subtle nature.

Does your family have the adaptability, for example, to life on a reduced budget? Such a reduction may be demanded for any of several reasons.

First — and we certainly see this all about us — the income of many families remains fixed while costs keep going up. Then, a reduction in income can come about because of illness or the loss of a job. Or the family may find itself with additional unexpected financial burdens — an indigent parent or other relative coming to live with you, for example.

Such an adjustment calls for a number of qualities that probably have not been put to too much use in the immediate past — qualities such as planning or imagination or the ability to understand others.

A teen-age daughter, for instance, may face a sudden upsurge of resentment against her father who is unable for the first time in her life to provide the money needed for a new dress. Will she not only be able to curb such understandable resentment, but also be able to acquire ample skill to make a dress to replace the one her family can no longer afford for her?

Will father and son have the will to learn to build needed articles of furniture — even if this means taking some courses at night or pouring over complex manuals of instruction?

Does the family have the imagination to set aside a portion of its garden for the growing of vegetables, both for current use and for canning? Many families are doing just this.

The community often has many free facilities that are ignored when money is relatively free. Will the family be prepared to make use of the public library, the municipal swimming pool, playgrounds, the free concert?

Most public schools provide free instruction in such useful pursuits as sewing, carpentry, plumbing, television repair. Such classes can serve several purposes: practical money-saving skill, free recreation, possibly even a new occupation that could prove to be more profitable and satisfying than what you are doing now.

Are some members of the family willing to work beyond the normal work week to add needed dollars to the family income? Many skills, despite persistent unemployment, are in short supply, and employers often are happy to get offers for overtime; such work often is paid for at bonus rates.

But even if your own employer has nothing for you after the 5 o'clock whistle blows, what is to stop you from part-time work elsewhere? Moonlighting has come to be a great American pastime, with millions holding down more than one job.

No one wants a financial crisis. We all have our fingers crossed that things will turn upwards as a result of moves by the Carter administration. But many a family emerges from a financial crisis stronger than when it went in, simply because it found within itself hidden resources it never knew existed.

New Appliances Save Energy

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Famly Editor

Only a smattering of new energy-saving products were among the thousands of articles displayed at the 71st semiannual housewares trade show in Chicago's giant McCormick Place exhibit center.

But more are in the wings.

Some energy efficiencies turned up where least expected. For example, the West Bend Co. of West Bend, Wis., said its new line of 12-and 14-gauge aluminum bakeware gives best results at temperature settings 25 degrees lower than required for lighter weight utensils. The manufacturer said the 7-item line is also more resistant to warping because of the thickness.

An energy-saving electronic light bulb developed by General Electric is more than a year away from retail stores. But when it comes, the manufacturer says it will use about a third as much energy as a highwattage incandescent bulb that provides the same amount of light.

GE's Electronic Halarc is a piggyback — one built atop another, with a single base that fits standard household sockets. It has high and low settings and an average life of 5,000 hours, or about four times as long as a 3-way incandescent at its top setting of 150 watts. The projected retail price, about $10.

Among other energy savers displayed for store and catalog buyers at the National Housewares Manufacturers Association event were:

— More portable convection ovens that use forced air systems to bake and roast food 25-30 percent faster than conventional ovens.

— A rechargeable battery system for home, office and recreational products that will sell for about $4, compared with other chargers that sell for $15-$30.

— A computerized microwave oven that works manually or with special menu cards that program the oven to change temperatures and cooking times automatically.

— Two more medium-sized toaster-broiler-ovens that represent good value for small households because they cook like conventional range ovens but use less energy because their interiors are smaller.

Conventional ovens may soon give microwaves a run for their money. The forced air technique has been used for years in institutional range ovens. A built-in electric fan recirculates hot air constantly so foods cook faster and more evenly.

Farberware, which introduced the first such portable six years ago, showed a new model with a temperature probe.

Toastmaster's new unit bakes and broils like a conventional oven, cooks by convention and has a slow cook function.

The Moulinex model includes a rotisserie and is big enough for a 14-pound turkey.

Rival Manufacturing Co., of Kansas City, Mo., also plans to introduce a countertop convention oven late this year. It demonstrated the appliance at a preview for the media in New York City in late June and has scheduled a formal introduction to store buyers at NHMA's 72nd semi-annual show in January 1980.

GE's newest toaster-ovenbroiler is the first with removable, dishwasher proof interior walls and door. It holds six slices of toast at once or a 9-by-13-inch standrd sheet cake pan or a 2½-quart casserole or a 3-to 4-pound roast.

New products in the luxury class included Cuisinart's $600 food processor and Krups-Gaggia's $450 espresso-cappuccino maker.

The 40-pound Triomlhe has 70 percent greater capacity than standard processors. It is big enough to handle 4 pounds of bread dough or chop 2 pounds of meat at one time. Its standard equipment includes a removable maple cutting board, 3 slicing discs, 2 shredding discs, 1 french fry and 1 ripple cutter and 1 metal chopping blade. It stands 19 inches high when in use but only 15 inches when the cover is inverted for under-cabinet storage.

The beverage maker has a 20-cup water capacity but must be reloaded with ground coffee every two cups. It can also be used to make other hot beverages such as mulled wine, hot buttered rum and hot chocolate.

Continental Gourmet Corp., Gedison, N.J., showed a somewhat more affordable device, the Pronto Caffe for about $90.

Krups also introduced a $150 electric pasta machine to knead and cut dough. The batery recharger, also a GE product, plugs into standard 110-120 volt outlets and recharges batteries fully.

The preprogrammed microwave oven, from Sunbeam, comes with 20 preprinted cards and 10 blanks that can be reused repeatedly, much like recording tape, to put a user's favorite recipes on automatic.

The latest entry in the food processor field is Cousances de France, whose processor and four other small kitchen electrics are being made to its specifications by a leading American manufacturer. Cousances is an iron foundry in business since 1553. The company's consumer export products include cast-iron cookware.

Noteworthy do-it-yourself items introduced at the show included:

— Dandy Duz-It, a metal tool for cleaning tracks of sliding doors and windows of all types and sizes;

— K-Pel, a water repellent to apply to rainwear during the wash cycle in home washing machines;

— Mason-Eze, a replacement for mortar in brickwork and cement block building. It is a double-faced, corrugated, waterproofed element that resembles cardboard. The precut strips that fit cinderblocks are perforated so they can be cut easily to fit bricks.

— Clopay Zip n' Fit Shelf Liner, a lightweight plastic, scored with half-inch crosshatching so it tears evenly and easily two ways for customfitting cabinet and closet shelves.

New products for small households include the eminently practical Spice Cube from Janus Two, Philadelphia. A two-tiered plastic storage unit about 10¼high by 10½ inches wide, it rotates on a lazy susan base and holds 24 standard spice cans.

If a prize were given for gimmicks, a 60-second wine cooler and a thermal egg are good candidates.

The plastic egg, by Corinne McGrady Designs, Northport, N.Y., works on the vacuum bottle principle to keep an unshelled hard-or soft-cooked egg hot or cold, as desired.

The Chill Factor was the brain-child of a toy designer friend of Peter Koehler, a Chicago manufacturer of automotive fog lights. It is the first — but probably not the last — housewares product from Koehler's company, Blazer International.

The plastic and steel device is shaped like a wine basket and operates on the heat exchange principle. With the push of a valve, it sends as little or as much wine as desired through a chamber beneath a stainless steel tray containing a few ice cubes. Presto! White wine at the preferred 48-52 degrees F. in seconds, Koehler said in a telephone interview. He also said he uses the device to bring red wine to European cellar temperature (about 60 degrees F.) by running it through the chamber.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS
2 cups dried navy beans
½ lb. salt pork
2 tbsps. chopped onion
1 tbsp. unsulpured molasses
1 tsp. mustard
salt to taste

Wash and check beans. Soak beans overnight in water to cover. Add more water to cover if necessary and cook until almost tender. Score salt pork rind, put half the port with onion in bottom of a bean pot and add beans. Mix molasses, mustard and salt with a little hot water and pour over beans. Add just enough water to cover. Place remaining pork on top, cover and bake very slowly 6 to 7 hours. Add hot water occasionally if necessary. During last hour, uncover to brown. Serves 6 to 8.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: How is this for a proposal of marriage?

"Daring, how would you like to be buried in my family plot?"

This actually happened to me, Abby. He's a widower, 69, and I'm a widow, 66.

In Stitches In Richmond

Dear In: He obviously digs you. But don't make light of such a grave matter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged businessman who works 10 to 12 hours a day in graphic arts. I made an appointment with a physician two months ago for 3 p.m. last Monday. It was difficult for me to take time off, but I considered it necessary.

I arrived at the doctor's office at 2:45 p.m. and was told that it would be another "20 minutes." At 4 p.m. I was told it would be another 20 minutes. At 5 p.m. I was told the same thing — that the doctor had been overbooked and would see me as soon as possible. I left.

My question: My time is worth, conservatively, $50 an hour. By giving me an appointment I had an implied contract with the doctor. Therefore, don't you think it would be appropriate to bill the doctor for the $100 I lost by cooling my heels in outer office?

What are your views on this very common occurance?

Steamed In Stockton

Dear Steamed: You may think it "appropriate" to bill the doctor for your time, but I think it's impractical. A doctor can't block out X number of minutes for each patient, like a music teacher who gives one-hour lessons. Some patients require more time than others. And don't forget the unpredictable telephone interruptions and emergencies a doctor gets daily. I doubt if any doctor intentionally keeps a patient waiting.

DEAR ABBY: Although I'm not quite 16, I am very mature for my age. I am in love with a 25-year-old guy, but I have to see him behind my parents' back because they hate him without even knowing him.

You see, he was married to a no-good tramp and had two children with her. His divorce isn't final yet, and my folks don't want me going with a guy with that kind of background. Abby, you've got to believe me. He is really a wonderful guy. That messed-up marriage was HER fault, not his.

How can I get my parents to just meet him and judge him for what he is?

In Love

Dear In Love: Assuming the man is blameless, I wonder what kind of "wonderful" 25-year-old guy, not yet divorced, would knowingly see a "not quite 16-year-old girl" behind her parents' back. I would have to say that he must be something less than wonderful. Listen to your parents.

• • •

Confidential To "I'll Wait Forever In Duluth": You may have to. I'll give you the same advice I give to every woman who's in love with a married man and is waiting in the wings for his wife to drop dead. Lose him! It could be the longest wait in the world.

Pot-Holder Method Used For Waterfall

There is no need to invest in a loom to turn out beautiful handwoven projects. If you ever made a pot-holder as a child, you have the basic skills of weaving already. Or if you've made a placemat by guiding strands of paper or cloth in and out of strands running the opposite direction, you know what weaving is all about.

The Waterfall, pictured here, uses the pot-holder technique. It's simple to do but the finished project looks as if it took months. After some simple preparation of the big metal hoop, which acts as the frame for the wall hanging and as the loom, you'll guide a series of threads in and out of the threads running lengthwise. Follow the pattern guide, and you'll soon see the hanging come to life as a serene forest scene.

The Waterfall kit comes complete with everything the beginner will need to weave these rich hues and splashes of white. The metal hoop is included. The kit includes acrylic and specialty weaving yarns, 23" weaving hoop, needle and complete instructions.

Order Waterfall kit No. 15969 for $19.99 plus $1.95 postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to collect state and local sales tax in Texas.

Shades Give Windows New Look

Here's interior decorating news! The humble roller-style window shade is making a strong comback. In days gone by, shades served two purposes: They insured privacy and blocked out the bright sun. Today however, homemakers have learned that a striking window treatment performs decorating miracles. It can transform drab windows into the strong focal point of a room. Colorful and glamorous murals add brightness and depth to dull areas.

By using our pattern designs, you can create one or all of the murals. Just trace the full-size patterns onto the shade surface, then paint over the tracing (by number). The instructions tell how to match the mural colors with the decor of your room. You can use inexpensive, washable paints available at all paint dealers. Of course, the mural designs also are ideal for use on walls or sliding glass doors.

To obtain Paint-It-Yourself Window Shade Patterns, number 11 (shades not included) send $2.25 (includes first class postage & handling) by check or money order to: P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, California 91409.

All new! The 1979-80 edition of Patterns For Better Living. One hundred and twelve pages containing more than 600 ideas for woodworking and handicraft projects. $1.75 (includes postage).

Crewmen Sought For August Reunion

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — David Looney is trying to track down the men who served aboard the heavy cruiser USS Los Angeles from 1945 to 1963.

Looney, who served on the ship from 1952 to 1956, wants to reunite all of the enlisted men and officers who sailed on the ship from the end of World War II until it was scrapped in 1963.

So far he and his colleagues have contacted nearly 300 of the ship's alumni, and they hope to double that number before a reunion planned for the weekend of Aug. 10-12 at the Marriott Hotel near Lambert Field.

It isn't easy finding all the sailors who manned the vessel which saw heavy action during the Korean War. The Navy cannot help because of legislation passed in 1975 which prevents the release of military records.

Looney said the Navy won't even confirm which men are still alive, although he guessed about 30 percent of the estimated 10,000 sailors have died.

Photos Become Key Part Of Life

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

This column is in collaboration with my son, Donald M. Desfor, who recently earned his doctorate in human behavior after a comprehensive survey on how people react to photographs.

He re-emphasizes that photography is a particularly significant and vital visual force in the world today.

"Pictures are everywhere," he says. "They are framed and displayed at home and at work. They hang on walls, lockers and auto visors. Pictures are taped and pinned on bulletin boards, doors, closets, posts and windows. They are crammed into cartons, dumped into drawers, enclosed in envelopes, shoved into shoe boxes and wadded into wallets.

"Similarly, cameras have become a common artifact of American life and our society. They appear everywhere and are used by everyone. Guests and bystanders with cameras rub shoulders with professionals at weddings, graduations, opening nights and public events. We're all aware that our travel and vacation experiences must be documented with photographic evidence. In most cases, the trip is deemed a success or failure depending on how the pictures turn out.

"Out of the deluge of billions of pictures from millions of cameras, what is the impact that photographs have on us. What do they mean to us?"

To get some answers, Don conducted a research study in 1978. His subjects were men and women between the ages of 17 and 50 who lived in southern California and in the greater New York City area but who represented many areas of the country. They were a cross section of varied ethnic, social, occupational and educational backgrounds.

The subjects were asked to look at four photographs and freely give their response to each one without any prompting. Then Don probed their responses to find what motivated their thoughts. All the interviews were tape recorded, studied and evaluated.

All the freely given responses were classified into one of six categories; Deductive, Evaluative, Subjective, Photographic, Objective and Reflective.

A Deductive response is a factual statement that can be deduced from one or more visual cues in the photograph. The statement could be substantiated as to whether it was true or false. An example: "This is a mother and her son and daughter."

An Evaluative statement expresses a value, opinion or judgment stimulated by one or more visual clues in the photo but which cannot be substantiated as fact.

Example:

"The girl looks happy and the boy looks hostile."

A Subjective response also expresses a value, opinion or judgment but it isn't based on visual clues or substantiated as a fact. An example: "The picture was taken at Easter." In this case, there was no basket, flowers or special attire that would indicate the picture was taken at Easter time.

Human Hair Keeps Deer From Shrubs

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Years ago, when spring came, Indians would cut their hair, grown long through the cold winter, and spread it on their vegetable patches to discourage animals from browsing there.

Today, scientists — and farmers — are collecting human hair from beauty parlors and barber shops and putting it in net bags they hang from trees and shrubs to deter deer from feeding on them.

It works quite well, says Jay McAninch, wildlife biologist at the Cary Arboretum of the New York Botanical Garden at Millbrook. Testing has been under way there since 1977.

The method, says McAninch, is inexpensive, the material readily available, non-toxic and completely bio-degradable.

What he wants to know is how long the hair will remain effective under various climatic conditions, and the best packaging techniques for best results. Rain washes away the hair oil, which is the key ingredient, and sunlight causes bleaching. The hair is not effective for more than one season.

McAninch says human hair will repel deer up to about a meter (approximately a yard) away; that unwashed hair is better than washed; that short hair works better than long hair because it is cut closer to the head and thus has more of the oily sebum secreted onto the hair by the scalp's sebaceous glands. The sebum is what keeps the deer away.

Checking his test results, McAninch said the hair balls repelled as follows: empty bag, 60 to 90 centimeters (because deer are timid of objects) washed hair 100 centimeters; unwashed hair 120 centimeters.

Egyptians Express Enthusiasm For Americans

By CATHERINE ZELLER

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — "You American?" the taxi driver asked.

It seemed an innocent question. In all my wandering in the Middle East I have never encountered such genuine enthusiasm for Americans as in Egypt.

Yet after four weeks of handshaking, cheek-kissing and head-patting, anonymity seemed appealing.

"No, no, I'm Yemeni," I told the cab driver in Texas-accented Arabic.

"Where from? New York, California, Las Vegas?"

Finally I owned up, figuring my taxi fare had suddenly quadrupled.

"Ah, Texas." His eyes lit up.

"You know Jimmy Carter?" he asked, his brown eyes suddenly serious.

"Jimmy Carter very good man. Egypt and America friends, like this," he said, bringing his middle and index fingers tightly together. "You tell Jimmy Carter I love him."

It seems all Egypt loves Jimmy (occasionally pronounced "Gimmee") Carter. His smiling face is on placards, billboards, and T-shirts throughout Cairo. Photographs of Carter and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat plaster walls and buildings all over the city. On at least one wall, Carter's grin partially covers a fading color photograph of the ex-shah of Iran.

If Egypt's 40 million could vote in the 1980 U.S. election, Carter could defeat an opposition ticket pairing George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Egyptians' admiration for Carter is exceeded only by their affinity for blondes. Small girls sneak up from behind, pull out a hair or two and retreat, waving their prize. I'm left rubbing my head.

Young men are much bolder.

"Please, mademoiselle, come into my shop," a young man invited. He tempted me with bottles of musk, amber, sandlewood and lotus essence, then a small jar of the black antimony Eastern women use to enhance their eyes.

"Your eyes would be even more beautiful with kohl," he said smoothly. With my consent he began applying it. "Please close your eye," he said and drew a thin black ring around it. "Now the other." Another ring.

"Now shut both eyes," he said. I complied, thinking he was going to add a final touch.

Instead he lightly pressed his lips against mine. Rock Hudson never used such finesse to steal a kiss, even from Doris Day.

By any upstart American definition, Cairo is ancient. But this is the land of the Pharaohs, so a section of town 1,000 years old is simply "old Cairo."

The moment I stepped out of the car I felt caught by a time warp and wafted back to the 8th century.

Men in flowing galabiyas huddle around brass pipes, smoking. Women enveloped in black veils and balancing earthern jars on their heads hurry past. High mud walls snake around, enclosing cool green courtyards. Above the dusy maze of narrow alleys rise minarets and crescents, domes and crosses of 29 mosques, 27 churches and one synagogue.

Inside these Byzantine and Fatimid monuments are second through 10th century paintings, manuscripts, carvings and intricate inlay works of ivory and mother-of-pearl.

In the shadow of the pyramids is the brightly-lit nightclub strip known as Sahara City. Sahara means desert, but Sahara City is no desert.

The action begins about midnight when the alcohol (an Arabic word) flows and the best belly dancers in the world wiggle ample hips and kick the chandeliers. Audience participation is part of the act.

By 3 a.m. the whole club is bumping and grinding alongside the dancers and singers. The foot stomping stops by 5 o'clock, just in time to watch the sun light up the pyramids and hear the melodic voice of the muezzin calling the faithful to prayer.

The best way to recuperate from Sahara City and to practice Arabic is to sit in one of the hundreds of street restaurants drinking Arabic coffee — a strong, muddy drink, guaranteed to open eyes.

Egyptian breakfast, lunch and dinner are basically the same food — "fool." Fool is mashed black beans. It can be served in as many different disguises as hamburger. Its only redeeming value is the cost — 15 cents will buy what appears to be a ton of fool.

Koshery, a starchy combination of rice and pasta topped with vinegar, oil and hot sauce, costs 12 cents a bowl. Tamiya, a spicy fried fool ball, is another starchy delight.

A sandwich of fool or tamiya must contain 1000 calories, but it is impossible for an American to gain weight. Here they call the reason "King Tut's revenge."

Chemical Plant Workers Tested To Determine Cancer Cause

JACKSONVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Kenneth Inman has a sore on his leg that won't heal. H.P. Fisher has cancer spots on his face. And Brenda Loveland is perfectly healthy, she thinks.

All three are among the 150 present and former workers at the Vertac chemical company who have been exposed to dioxin, a toxic chemical Fisher says he and his co-workers were unaware was harmful.

Human Guinea pigs in a field doctors know little about, the three are undergoing tests this week to find out if the exposure has had adverse effects.

Dr. Irving Selikoff of Mount Sinai School of Medicine in New York said the results could have international significance in determining human reaction to dioxin.

The sore on Inman's leg has been with him a year and a half.

"The doctor told me I could lose the leg," Inman said. "I don't want to walk around with just half a leg."

"I have cancers on my face," Fisher said. "I just wanted to see if they thought maybe it (dioxin) might have caused it."

"I think I'm perfectly healthy," Mrs. Loveland said. But she underwent the three hours of testing nonetheless.

Dioxin is a byproduct of herbicide 2,-4,5-T, manufactured for decades at the Vertac site, which has also been used by other chemical companies. Dioxin was found leaking from 600 storage drums earlier this year, and state pollution agents Wednesday found traces of dioxin in the sediment and fish in nearby bodies of water — the first tests to come up positive.

The results have caused officials to extend a quarantine on Bayou Meto near Jacksonville to the bayou's confluence with the Arkansas River.

Fisher said workers at the chemical plant never knew dioxin could hurt them. "We never were told how dangerous it was," he said. "I never would have started if I'd have known then what I know now."

Airlift To Resettle Vietnamese

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — The United States is carrying out one of its biggest airlifts of Vietnamese refugees since the end of the Indochina conflict in 1975, refugee officials said today.

The U.S. Embassy press officer, Michael D. Brown, said more than 4,082 refugees are being flown from Kuala Lumpur for permanent settlement in the United States this week.

Seven hundred left today, and 2,000 more are expected to leave before the end of the month, he said.

Brown also said the 30,000th refugee to leave Malaysia for the United States since 1975 embarked Thursday night. Ambassador Robert Miller and his wife were at the airport to wish him and his family a safe trip.

The refugee was Chau Vinh, who with his wife Khuu Hue, four sons, six daughters and a 45-year-old cousin of his wife, will settle in New York, Brown said.

There are an estimated 400,000 refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in camps and on beaches in Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore, the Philippines, Thailand and Hong Kong. Nations attending a United Nations conference about refugees in Geneva last week pledged to give homes to 260,000 of the refugees.

A Navy spokesman in the Philippines reported that the U.S. 7th Fleet rescue operation ordered by President Carter saved 65 refugees at sea this week. He said the guided missile cruiser England, cruising in the Gulf of Thailand with the carrier Kitty Hawk and other Navy ships, rescued 45 Vietnamese from a sinking 24-foot boat.

Desai Steps Down After Singh's Victory

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Eighty-three-year-old Morarji Desai, loser to Charan Singh in a two-week power struggle for the leadership of India, announced today he has resigned as head of Parliament's Janata Party.

Meanwhile, the Congress Party, which has been in opposition for two years, decided it will join Prime Minister-designate Singh's party to form a coalition government, rather than simply support a Singh government from outside.

This meant former Foreign Minister Y.B. Chavan and other Congress leaders will be getting Cabinet posts under the new prime minister.

The new government is expected to be an unstable one, however.

Singh's biggest bloc in the 538-member lower house of Parliament will be his own Janata Secular Party, which consists of 92 defectors from Desai's Janata Party. He also will have the support of the Congress Party's 75 votes, the pro-Soviet Communist Party's seven votes, and the 72 votes of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's breakaway Congress Party.

The Gandhi party has announced it will not join the government, but will only support it in Parliament.

The slim, 280-seat majority Singh claims in the lower house is made up of foes and partisans of Mrs. Gandhi that probably will be as incompatible as the cobra and the mongoose.

Singh, a 76-year-old farm leader, was designated Thursday to form a new government, succeeding Desai, who resigned two weeks ago.

After Desai resigned today as Janata Party parliamentary chief, former Defense Minister Jagjivan Ram, 71, unofficial leader of India's 100 million Untouchables, was unanimously elected by the party to replace him.

Desai also indicated he would retire from active politics

Singh said he expects to name his cabinet and take the oath of office Saturday as the fifth prime minister of this nation of 635 million.

He asserted that any suggestion of a deal to halt the prosecution of Mrs. Gandhi and her son Sanjay for their actions during her 1975-77 period of emergency rule was "an unmitigated lie." She herself said last week that she did not expect any release of pressure. But it seemed likely that unless the new government stalled the drive to put her on trial, the 72 members of her Indira Congress Party would withdraw their support and bring the government down.

The mass defection of Singh followers from the Janata Party forced Desai out of office and prevented him from returning to power.

Although Singh's revolt ended Desai's majority by reducing his faction of the Janata Party to 209 members, it is still the largest single group in Parliament.

Nicaraguans, Castro Celebrate Revolution

By United Press International

Two members of Nicaragua's new junta today celebrated the anniversary of the Cuban revolution with Fidel Castro, who stressed that Nicaragua will not become another Cuba and offered aid to the post-Somoza regime.

Junta members Alfonso Robelo and Moises Hassan, with newly-appointed Culture Minister Ernesto Cardenal and Sandinista commander Humberto Ortega attended ceremonies Thursday marking the 26th anniversary of the symbolic beginning of the Cuban Revolution at Plaza of the Revolution in Holquin, Cuba.

A delegation of 23 Sandinista guerrillas presented Castro with a Galil Israeli-made rifle captured from National Guard troops, the Cuban News Agency Prensa Latina said.

Castro, in a speech monitored in Miami and Mexico City, called the Nicaraguan delegation "Heroic, brave and intelligent," praising it for flying to Cuba Wednesday night on its own initiative.

"To those who have said that Nicaragua will become a new Cuba, we respond to them in the way the Nicaraguans have responded: that Nicaragua will become a new Nicaragua — that is something very distinct," Castro told the crowd of 20,000 gathered in the square.

In Managua, Interior Minister Tomas Borge defended the delegation's visit to Cuba, saying, "The United States has relations with the Soviet Union, why not us? Mexico has relations with Cuba, why not us?"

Robelo, the only millionaire member of the five-member junta, said, "Cuba and Nicaragua will always be, as they have always been, brother nations. Cuba and Nicaragua united will win."

The crowd roared its approval, shouting, "Cuba and Nicaragua united will win!"

Castro offered to help the Nicaraguans by sending teachers and physicians, and said a contingent of 60 people, including 40 doctors, already has been sent to Nicaragua.

Castro said the visit by the 6-day-old government was proof of "revolutionary honesty" because "they don't deny they are friends of Cuba, that they respect Cuba, that they are in solidarity with Cuba and they do not harbor fear for it."

"They will carry out (their revolution) their own way as we did ours."

The Cuban president also bitterly attacked the United States and Israel for aiding deposed Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza.

"These are the fruits of intervention, of the imperialist politics in our hemisphere; the politics of the United States created that kind of regime (Somoza's) all over the world," Castro said.

"We see the genocidal acts against the Palestinians in the Middle East, in Lebanon, bombed almost every day by the Israeli Air Force ... Israeli imperialist bombs also fell on Nicaraguans."

The 26th of July festivities in Holguin, Cuba's third largest city in the eastern province of Holguin, commemorated the day Castro led an unsuccessful raid on the Moncada garrison in 1953.

Zambia Takes Measures To Protect Monarch

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — The Zambian government posted sharpshooters on rooftops and police roadblocks on Lusaka's main roads for the arrival of Queen Elizabeth II today despite promises from guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government of no attacks into and out of Zambia during her nine-day visit for the Commonwealth Conference.

British officials were confident that the 53-year-old monarch; her husband, Prince Philip; and her 19-year-old son, Prince Andrew, would be safe, as well as the other delegates to the 41-nation conference. But President Kenneth Kaunda's Zambian government put police and arm units on special alert and arranged extra security precautions.

Nkomo pledged that none of his guerrillas would leave their Zambian bases for attacks in neighboring Zimbabwe Rhodesia during the conference although he said there would be no leash put on guerrillas already across the border. And Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa said Zimbabwe Rhodesian forces would not attack Nkomo's bases in Zambia unless the guerrillas provoked a raid.

Nkomo's men, with Patrick Mugabe's guerrillas based in Mozambique, have been waging war to end white dominance of their homeland for seven years and have been the target of repeated reprisals.

Puppet Does More Than Just Walk

By SHARI LEWIS

Here's a puppet that's a walkie but not a talkie. Oh, don't turn your nose up at it — this puppet does more than just walk. It can hop, skip and jump. And as for skating, you can make it glide gracefully over an ice cube, if you wish.

Next time anyone in your family loses one glove, you squirrel away the other one. Then, on the back of the glove create your little character. Sew buttons for eyes, if you wish. Bits of wool or a strip of fuzzy stuff or fur for hair. A ribbon or cord to look like a belt or bow to form a waistline. Tiny felt hands on the sides, if you wish. Bits of string at what will be the ankles.

When you put the glove on, bend your thumb, your pinky and ring finger in toward the palm and cover the tops of the pinky and ring finger with the thumb. Stand your puppet (as in the picture) on your pointer and middle finger, and there's your "walkie" puppet. All you have to do is stage the show.

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: LNES: These four letters make a fairly common 13-letter word. The letter "l" appears once, "n" appears twice, "e" appears four times and "s" appears six times. What is the word?

ANSWER: Senselessness.

(Mail to Shari should be addressed to Kids-Only Club, c/o of this paper, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.)

Paper Prints Record Edition

PARIS (UPI) — The International Herald Tribune, a link with home that brings baseball scores and comics to Americans in Europe and elsewhere in the world, today published its 30,000th edition since first appearing 92 years ago.

The paper, established in 1887 by flamboyant New York Herald publisher James Gordon Bennett — the man who sent Stanley to Africa to find Livingston — printed a normal 14-page edition, noting the milestone in a small box on Page 1.

Originally distributed to English-speaking foreigners in France by stagecoach, the paper is now printed at three locations in Europe and goes to 143 countries around the world each day.

Since 1966 it has been owned jointly by John Hay Whitney — last owner of the now defunct New York Herald Tribune — and the New York Times and Washington Post.

Worldwide circulation is listed at 125,000, but about 165,000 copies are printed each day because of the unusual distribution problems to insure that enough copies reach newsstands around the world.

The newspaper was the only paper to publish contiuously in Paris during World War I after French newspapers fled the capital, and was the last to suspend publication when the Nazis occupied Paris in World War II.

Carter Signs Bill To Fund Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a $13.6 billion supplemental appropriation for the current fiscal year.

Included in the measure is $1.47 billion to support the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty. That works out to $800 million for building air bases in Israel, $300 million in economic assistance to Egypt and $370 million to finance weapons purchases by both Middle Eastern countries. The measure also provides $1.35 billion to buy four guided missile destroyers, ordered by the ousted Shah of Iran but canceled by the new Khomeini government.

Debate Arises Over Communion

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International Writer

The Lutheran Church in America, like other denominations struggling with the problems of liturgical change, has found itself deep in a debate about the properness of allowing infants and young children to take Holy Communion.

The debate has led to the suspension from presiding at communion of one pastor, seminary professor Eric Gritsch, warnings from LCA President Dr. James Crumley and a heated debate in a number of church publications.

At issue is a policy statement adopted by both the 3.1 million member LCA and its sister denomination, the 2.3 million member American Lutheran Church, covering a broad range of matters involving communion and specifically banning infant communion.

Holy Communion, or the Eucharist, is one of two sacraments recognized by Lutherans. Church members believe it is a means of grace through which "the crucified Christ is present and active to forgive, to save, to unite, to give life, to comfort, and to strengthen for the work to which he calls his people in the world."

In the past, Lutherans generally have not allowed young people to take communion until after they have been confirmed. In recent years, however, the practice of so-called First Communion before confirmation has become increasingly frequent.

The guidelines cite church findings that indicate "readiness to participate normally occurs at age 10 or the level of the fifth grade, but it may occur earlier or later."

"The responsibility for deciding when to admit a child is shared by the pastor, the child, the family or sponsoring persons, and the congregation," the guidelines say, adding: "Thus infant communion is precluded."

Gritsch, professor of church history and director of the Institute for Luther Studies at Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., strongly disputes the guidelines on both historical and theolorical grounds.

Noting that Augustine and other early church leaders argued that Communion was ncessary for salvation, Gritsch, writing in the Lutheran Forum, said, "An historical survey of the practice of first Communion reveals that infants were communed for almost a millenium."

When Gritsch refused to stop allowing infants with their parents to come to the communion rail, seminary president Dr. Herman Stuempfle withdrew his permission for Gritsch to preside at communion celebrations. Earlier, a second Gettysburg professor had voluntarily refused to preside at the Eucharist because of the ban on infant communion.

Gritsch says the "heart of the matter" is the Lutheran idea of justification by faith and a theology of the sacraments flowing from that position.

"At the heart of the matter of first communion," he argues, "is the question of how we can proclaim the unconditionality of God's promise of salvation in the Jesus of Israel ."

Should there be, he asks, norms for "readiness"? Such norms, he implies, undercut the notion that justification from God is unconditional.

For Crumley, president of the denomination and facing the first crisis of his new administration, the issue is less theological than a matter of church order.

"It may be that the church might alter its policy in the future, but until that happens those who have placed themselves under the discipline of the church should be guided by its decisions."

John Paul May Visit Ireland

DUBLIN (UPI) — Roman Catholic officials refuse to rule out the possibility Pope John Paul II will visit strife-torn Northern Ireland next month, despite strong opposition from militant Protestants.

Cardinal Tomas O Fiaich, primate of all Ireland, held a news conference Wednesday to discuss the pope's historic three-day visit to the Irish Republic beginning Sept. 29.

Asked if he would be receiving the pope in his primatial see in Armagh, in Northern Ireland, O Fiaich would only say, "I don't know."

But, he added such a visit was "not ruled out."

In Belfast, militant Protestant leader the Rev. Ian Paisley threatened "massive protests" if the pope crossed the border into Northern Ireland. Paisley said "action groups" had been formed to organize protest demonstrations.

The Protestant leader said a committee of nine Irish bishops have been established to draw a proposed itinerary that would be submitted to the Vatican for approval.

"I do not expect a final decision (on the itinerary) for several weeks," he said.

Catholic sources said the final decision on whether the pontiff would go north would be made by the Vatican and the British government, which would be responsible for the massive security needed for such a visit.

O Fiaich, however, hinted that the pope's visit might be limited to the Irish Republic when he was asked if he would be disappointed if he were unable to greet the pope at Armagh.

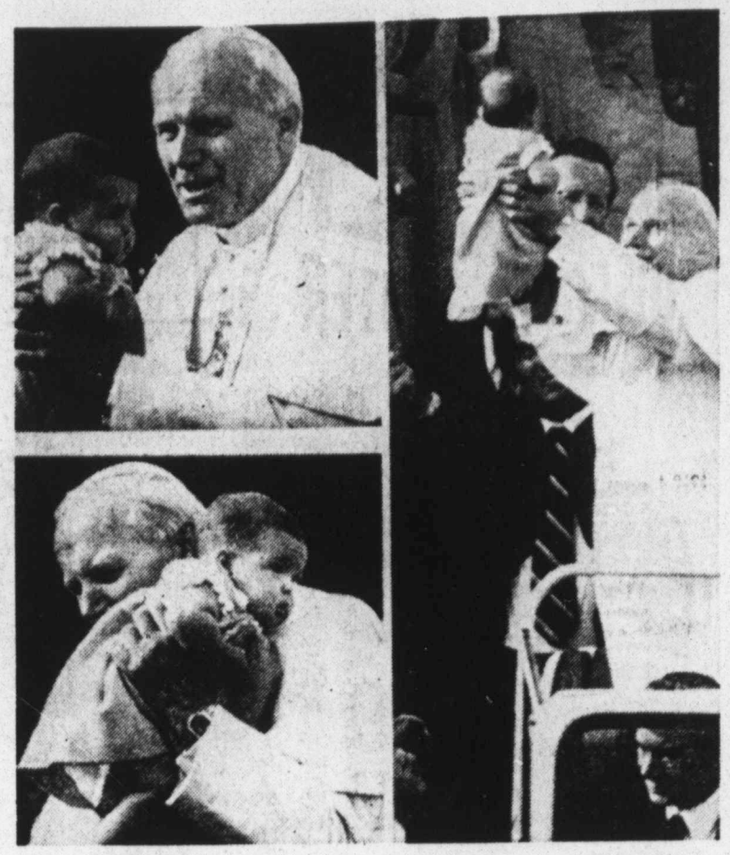

"I am overjoyed at the visit and the Irish people are elated," he said. "Whatever preferences one might have personally must be submerged."

O Fiaich said the pope had been invited by the Irish bishops specifically to visit the tiny western village of Knock, Ireland's most hallowed shrine, to celebrate the 100th anniversary of a reported apparition of the Virgin Mary to 15 villagers.

"The Holy Father wishes to meet as many Irish people as possible," he said. "Therefore, no place has been excluded."

The only confirmation O Fiaich gave about the trip was that Pope John Paul II would visit Knock Sept. 30 to celebrate a pontifical high mass expected to attract as many as 500,000 people.

Knock, which boasts the largest church in Ireland, has a population of 500. But the population swells to thousands each weekend with the visit of national pilgrimages to the site where 15 villagers claim they saw an apparition of the Virgin Mary.

Associate Chaplains Appointed To Methodist Hospital Staff

Methodist Hospital has announced the appointment of two associate chaplains to its department of Chaplaincy Services, according to department Director Tom Daugherty.

The Rev. Marvin Roark and the Rev. Raymond Wolfe were appointed to the staff by the religious emphasis committee of the hospital's board of trustees.

Roark, who has pastored churches in Wildorado, Dimmitt, Big Spring and Atlanta, Ga., has been in the Clinical Pastoral Education program in Amarillo for the past year. He has also served as chaplain at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Big Spring.

Roark is a graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon and the Chandler School of Theology at Emory University in Atlanta.

Wolfe, who has studied CPE at Methodist Hospital and in Amarillo, has pastored churches in Bartlesville and Tulsa, Okla., Fort Smith, Ark., Harlingen and Ft. Worth. He also was a minister in the Christian Missionary Alliance Church.

Wolfe holds a bachelor of theology degree from Nyack College in New York.

Kerrville Gospel Jubilee Scheduled

A weekend of nondenominational Christian entertainment is planned for the third annual Kerrville Gospel Jubilee, which will be held today through Sunday at the outdoor theatre of the Quiet Valley Ranch south of Kerrville in the Texas Hill Country.

Fourteen national and regional gospel groups will be providing the music during two five-hour concerts at 7 p.m. today and Saturday.

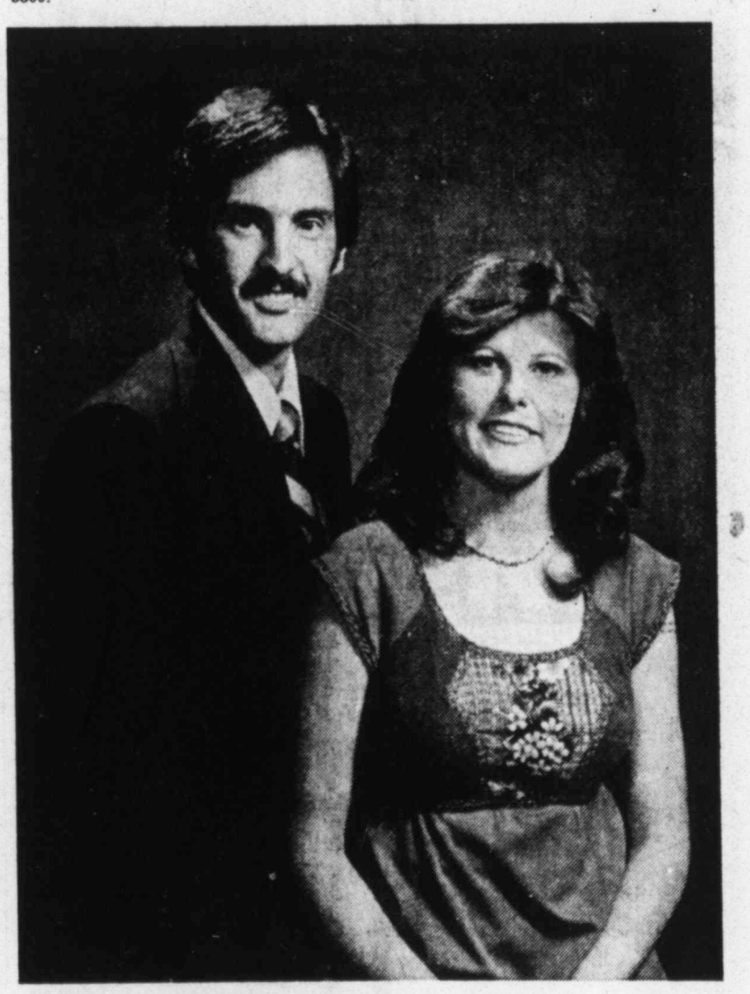

A three-and-a-half hour free concert will be given at 1:30 p.m. Saturday on the courthouse square in downtown Kerrville. There also will be a 9 a.m. sunrise service Saturday in an old-fashioned brush arbor on Chapel Hill at the ranch.

Advance tickets are $5 for Friday, $6 for Saturday and $10 for the entire weekend for adults. Children under 12 are free. Tickets are $1 higher at the gate.

Performing tonight will be the Travelers Quartet, Eternal Hope Singers, The Wills Family, The Mid-South Boys and the award-winning Galileans.

Appearing Saturday will be the Masters Four, Buck White and the Down-home Folks, Wendy Bagwell and the Sunliters and The Mercy River Boys (The Singing Christians).

For more information call (512) 896-3800.

OUTREACH PASTORS — Howard and Marilyn Cameron have been selected as outreach pastors for the Faith Christian Fellowship Church, 7300 Brownfield Highway. The Camerons, both 1979 graduates of the Rhema Bible Training Center in Tulsa, Okla., will be ministering at the 10:30 a.m. Sunday services.

Children's Home Adds Coronado Unit

In an effort to save the Coronado Children's Home of Lubbock, the Children's Home of Lubbock assumed ownership recently of the one-cottage facility in North Lubbock.

Originally a project of the elders of the Pioneer Park Church of Christ,started in 1966, the Directors of the Children's Home decided to accept full responsibility for the Coronado Home after an exhaustive study.

The home, which has the capacity to care for 12 children, has been operated as a home for black children during its 13-year history. The home's name will be changed to the Pioneer Park Group Home.

The Pioneer Park congregation will continue to support the home and Harry Runions, of the Children's Home of Lubbock staff, will supervise and coordinate the unit's operation.

The home currently houses six children, most of whom have been there for several years. One resident, Mike Brassfield, entered Abilene Christian University at the beginning of the summer.

Seminar Slated At City Church

Monterey Church of Christ's Prayer Enrichment Seminar will begin at 7 p.m. tonight and continue through Sunday in the church located at 3616 58th St.

The three-day study will be conducted by noted lecturer and preacher Dr. Albert Lemmons.

Saturday sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Dr. Lemmons will speak at the 9 and 10 a.m. Sunday services.

CHURCH BRIEFS

"God Made Me" will be the theme of this year's Vacation Bible School at the Covenant Presbyterian Church, which will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday. Classes will be available for 2-and 3-year-olds, 4-and 5-year-olds and for first through sixth graders. The Brethren Press of Elgin. Ill. will provide the materials.

• • •

The 24-hour telephone help and crisis center Contact will be offering a 13-week training course beginning Sept. 13. Classes for learning telephone counseling will be at 7 p.m. each Thursday at the First Baptist Church. For more information call 765-7272 between 9 a.m. and noon Monday through Friday.

Reverend Says Churches Face Major Crises

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (Special) — United Methodist Churches in America are facing five major crises, the secretary of the General Conference told 175 missionaries and Board of Global Ministries World Division directors and staff here earlier this month.

The Rev. J.B. Holt, dean of admissions at the church's Perkins School of Theology in Dallas and a former missionary to the Philippines, said the five crises were scriptural interpretation, leadership, pluralism, inclusiveness and finances.

He said the 1,000 delegates to the General Conference in April, 1980 will be faced with a "choice."

"Will we withdraw in panic, become paralyzed and cover inaction with apathy?" Holt said, "or seize the courage necessary to preserve a sense of responsibility in the face of radical change and participate in forging a new society?"

Seminary President To Speak

Bill Counts, president of the Christian Associates Seminary, will be the guest speaker during Sunday services at Trinity Church, 7002 Canton.

Author of "Once A Carpenter" and co-author of "Guilt and Freedom," Counts is a regular conference speaker and a regular instructor in theology, Bible and philosophy of Christian life at Christian Associates Seminary.

Counts, a graduate of Princeton University, Southern Methodist University and Dallas Theological Seminary, has 13 years experience in counseling and youth ministries.

New Deal Church Observing Day

NEW DEAL (Special) — Men's Day will be observed Sunday at the First Baptist Church in New Deal.

Layman will conduct the services and a men's choir directed by George Grimes will highlight the services.

Ronnie Tyson will present a children's message and the main sermon will be delivered by Joey Sherman and Verlin Anglin.

Evening services Sunday will begin with singing and testimonials.

Oakwood Names Youth Minister

Ron Vollmar will assume duties as minister of youth and activities Sunday at Oakwood Baptist Church, Avenue U and 60th St.

Vollmar has served in the same capacity at the First Baptist Church in Sulphur Springs and Rosen Heights Baptist Church in Fort Worth.

Priest Thinks Ruling Silly

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — The comptroller of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Spokane thinks it's "silly," that he and other priests have to pay for maternity coverage.

Because of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the 66 priests of the sprawling eastern Washington diocese are now required to pay 30 cents a month for maternity coverage as part of their group health plan.

"It is silly to be paying for benefits that we will never collect," said the Rev. Theodoric DeJong. "We are paying something for nothing."

The ruling mandates that all employers holding a group policy with 15 or more employees must pay for maternity coverage, as for any other illness.

Until April 1977, the priests of the diocese were covered under their own plan, which excluded maternity coverage, but Blue Cross of Washington and Alaska Inc. combined their policy with about 1,600 other groups in a community rating package.

Bill Baker, a spokesman for Blue Cross, said the priests of the Spokane Diocese are not the only ones caught in this ironic situation.

"As a matter of fact, a group of nuns in Seattle is having the same problem," Baker said.

Students Serve As Missionaries

Six students from Texas Tech University are spending 10 weeks this summer as Southern Baptist Home Missions Board summer missionaries.

They are Marilyn Beckner, serving in Florida; Jan Law, serving in California; Terry Miller, serving in Iowa; Bonnie Snider, Georgia; Melvin Sorrells, Florida; and Joel Tardy, Florida.

The six Texas Tech students are part of the 1,491 students appointed through the Home Mission Board and Baptist Student unions who will work in all phases of home missions, supplementing the efforts of missionaries and churches.

Retarded Demand Equal Treatment From Society

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — She was lonely and shy. He was eager to make friends. While others danced inside, they met outside in the moonlight and fell in love.

Later this year, Kathy, 28, and Victor, 30, will marry. Both are retarded. It would have been unthinkable a few decades ago, when most states banned marriages between "imbeciles," "morons," "retardates" or "idiots," and many of those judged "mentally deficient" were sterilized.

Planning to marry next year are Bob and Shirley. He's 44 and she's 50. Bob has spent 25 years in an institution for the mentally retarded.

"I've been waiting 25 years to get married," said Shirley, who is mildly retarded. "Good grief. We love each other." She was never institutionalized but spent her childhood and most of her adult life caring for a sick aunt.

Both couples asked that their full names not be used.

Today, a growing number of physically and mentally handicapped people are marrying, having children and beginning to share in mainstream American life.

Now more aware of their rights and needs and moving away from institutionalization toward integration in the larger community, the retarded are demanding equal treatment from society.

But they must still contend with the popular belief that two mentally handicapped people will produce a mentally retarded child. They also are subject to certain state laws prohibiting or restricting their marriages. According to the Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia, there are 30 states prohibiting "lunatics," "idiots," "imbeciles" or the retarded from marrying.

In many of the states which permit such unions, there is little, sometimes no housing for those married retarded couples who live in institutions. A class action suit has been filed on behalf of four residents of the Southbury Training School in Southbury, Conn., in an attempt to have that state create special facilities for married couples.

"Mentally retarded adults have the same right to marry as anyone else," said Ronald Soskin, an attorney with the National Center for Law and the Handicapped in South Bend, Ind. "Marriage is a fundamental right. To pass a law that says because of function, ability or mental IQ a person has no legitimate right to marry is unconstitutional."

Such restrictive laws were based on "an implied assumption among the American populace that retarded people weren't entirely human," said Dr. Philip Roos, executive director of the Arlington-based National Association for Retarded Citizens.

"There's only been a recent recognition that retarded people are human, are citizens and are covered by the Constitution," he said. "Certain class action suits, involving the right to education and the right to humane treatment in state institutions, were major forces that led to a re-examination of laws and civil rights."

Victor and Kathy beamed and nudged one another — already like an old married couple — as they discussed their courtship and wedding plans.

"It seems like it's 'Romeo and Juliet,'" Kathy said with a giggle. "I went to a dance and didn't know anybody. I'm very shy and very lonely. So I went outside and sat by the beautiful moon and I started to talk to the moon."

Victor came out from the dance, saw Kathy and said, "What's a beautiful girl like you doing out here talking to the moon?"

"He wanted somebody like me for company," Kathy said. "I live with my mother. She's retiring and moving to Florida and doesn't want me to be alone. My family wants us to live our own lives."

But her mother also wants Victor to have a vasectomy. She doesn't think they will have enough money to support both themselves and a family, Kathy said. Victor works as a janitor in Philadelphia. Kathy, who has speech and hearing problems, works at a child development center.

"I would have a normal child," she said. "But we think it's best that Victor have a vasectomy."

Victor, who in glasses and a trendy haircut resembles the college kid down the block, nodded in agreement. "Being on this borderline level, it's best," he said. "We can adopt children if we ever decide we want some. But it will be hard enough getting our thing together."

They were silent for a moment. Then Kathy spoke about how much trouble her older sister has with her children, especially when they're sick or when she needs a baby sitter.

Kathy and Victor are making a voluntary choice for sterilization. For many other mentally handicapped people, the choice was made for them — sometimes without their knowledge or consent.

In an Indiana case, for example, the parents of a 15-year-old retarded girl had her sterilized. She discovered she could not conceive when she married in 1975. Her suit against the judge who permitted the operation resulted in a 1978 U.S. Supreme Court ruling which said judges in such cases cannot be sued for damages.

"There long was the fear that the retarded would reproduce retarded children," said Linda Carelli, program coordinator for developmental disabilities at the Rutgers University Graduate School of Social Work in New Jersey. "But to get a retarded person sterilized today using public money is very difficult. You must go to court now. It's a tough thing to get done today, but it's still being done.

"I sat on a panel with a physician who had a retarded son. He had him get a vasectomy at the age of 11. He didn't even wait to see what his potential was. Obviously, the fear is still there."

About 200 syndromes are associated with retardation, according to Dr. Theodore Tjossem, chief of the mental retardation branch of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. Most result from environmental factors, not heredity.

About 3 percent of the American population is mentally retarded, Tjossem said, breaking down to 2.6 percent mildly retarded, 0.3 percent moderately retarded and 0.1 percent severely and profoundly retarded.

Most of those marrying are in the category of mildly retarded, people who function quite independently. Many receive counseling in budgeting, shopping and sexual response before marrying.

The possibility of two retarded persons producing a retarded child at birth is remote, Tjossem said. "It would call for a person who is a carrier marrying a carrier."

One hereditary disorder cusing retrdation is Phenylketonuria, or PKU. It affects one in 18,000 births, compared to Down's syndrome or Mongolism, which is not hereditary and occurs once every 750 births.

PKU youngsters, formerly institutionalized, now can be treated by dietary management, Tjossem said, which means more individuals with PKU genes are functioning in society.

"Increasingly we are moving toward an idea that it is the quality and quantity of life experiences that is most potent in the determination of later cognitive development," Tjossem said.

"If we rear children at home in positive, rewarding and nurturing environments, then we expect them to do better than if reared in a deprived environment."

Roos said retarded people face the same problems in marriage as anyone else. "For some, it's a good thing," he said. "For others, it's utter disaster. A retarded couple may find it difficult to cope with the complexities of child rearing and may be at a disadvantage to provide intellectual stimulus."

In 1975, the marital statuses of mentally retarded individuals who had lived at the Elwyn Institute in Philadelphia were examined. The study, which involved 54 couples, found only one case in which a child was removed because of neglect.

"While the care of some of the chilren would be questionable by middle class standards, there are others who appear to be receiving proper medical attention and affection from both parents," the report said.

The survey found that in 31 percent of the marriages, the partnership was maintained satisfactorily. Twenty percent were satisfactory but showed signs of stress; 6 percent were unsatisfactory; 15 percent were divorced or separated; and the status was unknown in 28 percent of the marriages.

No one knows for certain how many marriages there are of mentally handicapped persons, since most mildly retarded individuals do not live in institutions. They live in group settings — a shared apartment or house with other retarded people — or in their own private homes.

Bob and Shirley, who met two years ago, have been living together for two months in a tiny one-bedroom apartment in Bucks County, Pa. Bob does most of the cooking and Shirley cleans.

"One time I cooked lasagna," Bob said, a huge grin splitting his red beard. "I had a bet with another man. And we had a race to see who could cook it the fastest. I won."

Bob, who limps and has a shriveled right arm, proudly described his work — counting employee tips. Shirley, ever the supportive wife-to-be, reached into her purse and pulled out a bag to show how Bob seals it.

They said they have a lot of friends coming to their wedding. But not Shirley's sister.

"I told my sister I had found a boyfriend and was getting married," Shirley said rapidly, as she relived the conversation.

"She said I'm not picking the right one, and I shouldn't get married. She cursed me out. I don't care. She don't call me. I don't call her."

There was silence. Shirley kept her head lowered. Bob furled his brow.

"I don't care," she said. "It just feels good to be alive."

30 States Prohibit Retarded Marriages

By the Associated Press

Thirty states still prohibit or otherwise restrict the retarded and mentally ill from marrying, according to figures compiled by the Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia.

Here is a list:

California, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Nation Facing Worst Inflation Rate Since 1946

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Lettuce: 12 cents a head. Hamburger: 34 cents a pound. Bread: a dime a loaf.

It sounds like a daydream; it was more like a nightmare.

The prices are 1946 averages — averages for a year when the inflation rate was 18.2 percent. The removal of wartime controls sent prices soaring; not since has inflation been so bad as it was in 1946.

Today, you see lettuce for 50 cents a head, hamburger for up to $2 a pound and bread for 40 cents a loaf and more.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported on Thursday that the Consumer Price Index went up 1.1 percent during June; the annual rate of increase during the second quarter of 1979 was 13.4 percent.

If things keep going the way they have been — and the government says they won't — this year's inflation could be the worst since 1946. Only once since then, in 1974, have prices risen more than 10 percent in a single year.

It is hard to compare 1979 with 1946. In many cases, yellowed newspaper clippings are the only thing we have to remind us of a time when a half-a-cent a gallon increase in the price of heating oil made headlines, when the National Consumers League called for an increase in the minimum wage to 65 cents an hour.

The Labor Department has changed the way it collects information about prices.

But a look at some of the facts and figures that are available may help put the old bargains in perspective.

Here are some average prices for 1946:

— White bread, 10.4 cents for a one-pound loaf.

— Flour, 35.4 cents for a five-pound sack.

— Hamburger, 34.1 cents a pound.

— Milk, 16.7 cents a quart.

— Iceberg lettuce, 11.6 cents a head.

— Apples, 13.4 cents a pound.

— Sugar, 7.7 cents a pound.

— Coffee, 34.4 cents a pound.

In 1946, however, the average production worker in manufacturing earned a little less than $1.08 an hour. It took him or her — and in those days it was probably him — almost 20 minutes to earn enough to buy a pound of hamburger, almost 10 minutes for a quart of milk.

Today, the average production worker earns almost six times as much as his 1946 counterpart; the average for 1978 was $6.16. Even at $2 a pound, hamburger still "costs" only 20 minutes. A 55-cent quart of milk "costs" about five minutes.

Paychecks and prices aren't the only things that count, of course. You have to take taxes into account. And taxes have been rising faster than income. According to the Tax Foundation Inc., a nonprofit research group based in Washington, D.C., taxes grew 50 percent faster than earnings in the 20 years from 1939 to 1959 and 25 percent faster than earnings in the 20 years since 1959.

The Labor Department said Thursday that a typical worker's real spendable earnings — after taking taxes and inflation into account — dropped 3.5 percent in the 12 months that ended on June 30.

Today's bargains, like yesterday's, depend largely on how much you have to spend.

McGovern Wants Kennedy To Enter Race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another Democratic Party voice, Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, is calling on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to challenge President Carter for the 1980 presidential nomination.

In a speech to congressional interns Thursday, McGovern coupled extraordinarily harsh criticism of Carter with an appeal to Kennedy to enter the race.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Democrat said Kennedy's position "is unchanged." Despite growing pressure to enter the 1980 race, Kennedy maintains he expects Carter to be renominated and re-elected.

Aides for both Kennedy and McGovern said McGovern did not consult with Kennedy before the speech.

McGovern told the interns:

"The weakness of the Carter administration is not the Cabinet, or the national press corps or the Washington establishment. It is the Carter White House. The perspectives, the policies and the priorities of the administration have been mistaken from the beginning. ... We are being misgoverned by the substitution of poor public relations for sound public policy."

A few hours after McGovern's speech, pollster Louis Harris told the National Conference of State Legislatures in San Francisco that a poll completed Saturday showed that 71 percent of those surveyed "feel that this president may well not have the basic competence to do the job."

McGovern was the Democratic presidential nominee in 1972, carrying only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia in his race against Richard M. Nixon.

The South Dakota senator retains a base of support on the left wing of the Democratic Party, particularly in Americans for Democratic Action.

As president of ADA, McGovern gave several speeches critical of Carter policies not long after the president took office.

Asked at the time about McGovern's criticism, Carter replied that the senator was "just one lonely voice."

McGovern's speech Thursday came just two days after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he thought the president was in serious political trouble and predicted Kennedy would end up as the Democratic nominee in 1980.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Isn't that great Miami Dolphins coach, Don Shula, a gentle man when his mind is off football? — Bart McC., Baltimore.

A: That's a tough question to answer since Shula's mind is almost always on football! The horsey La Gorce Country Club in Miami recently staged what was heralded as a kind of Dean Martin roast, toasting the Quiet Man to a burned crisp. As it turned out, many of the shots aimed from the dais missed their mark because of affection and admiration, and became part of a love-feast.

About the only "derogatory" allusions to the honored guest was that he was an all-pro disciplinarian. Miami Herald sports editor Ed Pope, seated only a few mouthfuls away from Shula, described him as being so tough "he's the only coach who played his own mother hurt!"

Ed went on to explain that a few years ago, Don and his family — including his mother, were vacationing in Europe. One day, his mother fell and broke her arm. After getting it doctored up, Shula insisted that mom continue with the trip, broken arm and all!

A surprising kick to us was the way in which past and present football stars such as Jim Kiick, Jim Mandich, Earl Morrall, Larry Csonka and other stalwarts handled the English language. They were superb. When toastmaster Arthur Nardin (a sportswriter in his youth who reformed and became a millionaire trotting horse owner) introduced Csonka, he immediately got into the spirit of the bash.

The Dolphin running back recalled that '72 Season which he helped to make perfect. "I'm working in the back yard and suddenly I hear my then 3-year-old son, Paul, seeing me light up a big cigar, say 'I'm going to tell "John" Shula'".

Shula, finally on his feet, referred to Zonk as "The Incredible Hulk" and said he was glad to see him back in the fold. Csonka thanked his boss and said "I owe him for that. I'm going to try to thank him the way it counts most. With a football!"

Morrall, a quarterback adviser to Shula today, chimed in and gave Don a backhanded compliment: "Don does whatever it takes. Your pains don't hurt him a bit!"

Shula, acknowledging the "tributes" paid to him while accepting La Gorce's annual award for Outstanding Achievement to sports and the community, promised his audience that, as Pope captioned his piece, "The Dolphins will walk out of the '70s proudly."

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That", care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill., 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can in their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible.

DC-10 Woes Not Related To Design

By The Associated Press

Six DC-10s have made emergency landings since July 18, but the engine problems that forced them to land were not related to the structural troubles that kept the wide-body planes on the ground for 37 days, a federal aviation official says.

"These incidents are not related in any way to the engine pylon mounting problem," said Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Dennis Feldman.

"These are all related to the engine itself and some are precautionary moves. Statistically speaking, we expect to have engine shutdowns of this type on any aircraft. They are of no concern," he added.

Investigators have blamed faulty engine mountings for a DC-10 crash in Chicago on May 25 that claimed 273 lives. The plane's left engine fell off on takeoff.

All 138 domestic DC-10s were grounded on June 6 until the FAA ruled the planes safe to fly. The ban was lifted two weeks ago.

Both the FAA and United mechanics are inspecting the right-wing engine responsible for the recent Cleveland landing at United's maintenance base in San Francisco.

"We know for sure that the problem was an engine failure," said Jim Guyette, operations manager for United in Cleveland. "That sort of problem probably happens to some airplane somewhere every day. This time it just happened to a DC-10."

Lillian Resting In Hospital

AMERICUS, Ga. (UPI) — Lillian Carter, the president's mother, was resting comfortably today in an Americus hospital today she was being treated for possible bursitis.

Mrs. Carter, who will be 81 on Aug. 15, was admitted to the Americus-Sumter County hospital Thursday after complaining of severe shoulder pains.

Her physician, Dr. John Robinson, said Thursday she was in "good spirits" but would probaby remain hospitalized for several more days.

"Miss Lillian is in good condition and has nothing serious," said Robinson. "The results of a cardiogram taken and laboratory studies have all been normal. We really don't know what the exact trouble is, but it could be bursitis," he said.

Hospital administrator Jim Griffith said Mrs. Carter was transported by ambulance from her house in nearby Plains to the hospital shortly after 11 a.m. Thursday.

"She had severe pain in her left shoulder and arm and for several hours the pain was getting increasingly severe, so we admitted her to the hospital," said Robinson.

Haig Uncomfortable With SALT II Conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Alexander Haig, until recently the supreme allied commander in Europe, says the Senate should set the SALT II treaty aside and seek a new strategy to counter the growing nuclear might of the Soviet Union.

"As of today I could not go along with SALT II," Haig told reporters during a break in testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"I'm not at all comfortable with this treaty and I'm not at all sure it guarantees the safety and security of the United States," Haig told the committee later. "As of today I think it is not in the interest of NATO."

Haig recently resigned his NATO post. Before his assignment to Europe he was White House chief of staff under former presidents Nixon and Ford.

Haig said the treaty is shot through with flaws. He said they range from the problem of verifying Soviet compliance to a fear that temporary restrictions on the U.S. cruise missile will be allowed to become permanent.

But he said these flaws are secondary to a more basic and underlying concern that the United States is drifting away from a position of nuclear and conventional superiority and lacks the commitment and the will to redress the balance.

He said he fears the United States may be forced to a policy of "minimum deterance" in which it would have enough weapons to inflict unacceptable damage on Soviet cities and their civilian populations but not enough to knock out the opposing missiles in hardened silos.

He called that "strategically and morally unacceptable."

And he said that until a national commitment is made to a new nuclear strategy 'and the means to implement it 'you cannot assess the SALT II treaty as to whether the flaws in it are acceptable or inacceptable."

But several senators, including Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., said the Senate is obligated to ratify, reject or seek improvements in SALT II as it now stands.

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, noted testimony by the military joint chiefs of staff as the world with SALT II is preferable to a world without the "modest but useful" restraints of the treaty.

Culver pressed Haig in vain for specific suggestions on how to deal with treaty flaws.

He said that in the "limbo" that would be created by setting the treaty aside the Soviets would not be bound by any of the restraints spelled out in SALT II and would be freed to deploy as many missiles as they pleased and to improve old weapons and develop new ones while hiding their activities from U.S. surveilance.

Firms Not Protecting Employee Privacy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many of the nation's leading businesses still voluntarily yield too much personal information about their employees, according to a survey on privacy released today by the University of Illinois.

Two years after a commission urged voluntary compliance with privacy guidelines, the survey said, "a large number of the nation's largest corporations apparently still do not have adequate policies to protect sensitive, confidential employee data from possible abuse."

The survey was made by David Linowes, professor of political economy and public policy at Illinois. He was on the U.S. Privacy Protection Study Commission that two years ago recommended safeguards for personal, privte data.

"The president endorsed the recommendations of voluntary action on the part of industry," Linowes said. "It might now be argued ... that business has had an opportunity for voluntary action — and new incentives for action may be warranted."

Linowes said the report suggested two years as a reasonable amount of time for voluntary compliance — and it has not happened.

The sample encompassed 145 firms from the Fortune 500 list of corporations. Linowes said slightly more than half — representing more than 2.5 million employees — responded.

More than 75 percent had taken steps to correct the single worst abuse — errors in records made without the individual's knowledge, he said.

But only one-fourth of the firms had a policy of forwarding the corrections to those organizations that previously had received bad information from the files.

"With information being transmitted across the country with the speed of light," Linowes said, "an error in one record can be propagated a hundredfold very quickly.

"If no effort is made to forward a correction, many decisions can be made based on incorrect information to the detriment of both the recipient organization and the individual.

"Apparently most employees still are not being told much about their own records. More than two-thirds of the companies responding do not inform their personnel of the types of records being maintained on them, how they are used, which records the employees have access to, and what the company's routine disclosure practices are."

He said 77 percent of the companies use medical data in making employment-related decisions, and 83 percent refuse employees access to their own medical records.

And 40 percent, Linowes said, have no policy on disclosing records to government agencies.

Hughes Attorney Denies Writing Memo

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — An attorney who served as a corporate and personal counsel for Howard Hughes has testified in the federal obstruction of justice trial of John Meier that he did not write a memo attributed to him.

Chester Davis of New York said Thursday the first time he saw two documents Meier is accused of forging was in November 1976. Meier, a former Hughes aide, is charged with submitting fraudulent documents in a civil lawsuit filed against him by Hughes Tool Co., now Summa Corp.

Davis told the jury consisting of six men and six women that Robert Wy-Shak, Meier's lawyer in the civil case, brought two of the documents to him.

"I told him the June 24, 1974, document did not appear to be genuine but I knew the one purported to be from me was fraudulent, a fabrication and I wanted to know where it came from," Davis said.

The memo with Davis' name on it said "Meier must be destroyed" and that Hughes Tool Co. had Utah Federal Judge Aldon Anderson in its "pocket."

Davis told the court there was no reason for someone to write a memo containing such information.

In the civil suit, Judge Anderson earlier this year ordered Meier to pay Summa Corp. almost $8 million for selling the firm fraudulent Nevada mining claims.

The prosecution Thursday called its last witness in the case — Lyndal L. Shaneyfelt of Alexandria, Va., a private document examiner who served in the same capacity with the FBI for 20 years.

Town Seeks Ruling For Local Utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The town of Massena, N.Y., and the giant power company that serves it are poised for an Aug. 1 showdown which could leave the community dark unless a federal judge intervenes.

The community is asking U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene today to permit its new municipal power department to distribute electricity.

The catch is that the transmission lines are owned by the Niagara Mohawk Power Co., which now serves Massena, and much of the rest of upstate New York.

If Massena wins, the lights will stay on. If it loses, and neither the town nor Niagara Mohawk backs down, here's the likely scenerio:

— At 12:01 a.m., the town will inform Niagara Mohawk that it will purchase electricity from New York state's power authority rather than the utility. The town's new electric department would take over distribution of the power to its residential and commercial customers.

— Niagara Mohawk will refuse to transmit power authority electricity across its other upstate lines to the new municipal system made up of Niagara Mohawk's old lines. The town has no other way to get the electricity.

— Massena residents still awake at that hour will curse their darkened television sets and stumble through the blackness toward their bedrooms.

"I wouldn't think any utility would assume the responsibility of pulling the switch on the supply of power," said Floyd Richey, supervisor for the town of 16,000. "It's something like Russian roulette."

But Maceo Felton, a spokesman for the Syracuse-based power company, said: "They've been put on notice that we would not transmit power to them."

The utility claims it is within its legal rights to refuse use of its lines and notes there remain active legal proceedings about the town's seizure of Niagara Mohawk facilities.

Richey said Massena is the first town in memory to take advantage of a state law allowing condemnation and seizure of power company distribution facilities.

Technically, Greene is hearing Massena's suit against the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Massena wants the commission to rule that Niagara Mohawk must permit use of its lines. The town seeks a court injunction to force such a ruling by the commission.

Judge Refuses To Postpone Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A judge refused today to postpone a preliminary hearing scheduled for Wednesday for Roger Dale Stafford on six murder charges.

"If one were entitled to a continuance every time he hired a new lawyer, he could avoid a trial," Oklahoma County District Judge William Myers said in turning down the motion by Stafford attorney J. Malone Brewer. Brewer had sought a 30-day delay in the preliminary hearing.

Brewer, who became Stafford's fourth attorney Monday, argued he has "totally insufficient time" to prepare for Wednesday's hearing.

Brewer had said before today's hearing he would ask the state Ccurt of Criminal Appeals to delay Stafford's preliminary if he lost his bid for a postponement in District Court. He refused to comment today, however, about his future intentions.

Stafford, a 27-year-old Alabama drifter, is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the deaths of six employees in a Sirloin Stockade restaurant here July 16, 1978, during a $1,500 robbery. The mass murder was the worst in Oklahoma history.

"We think this matter has been laying around the courthouse too long," District Attorney Andrew Coats said in his arguments against another delay in the preliminary, which has been postponed repeatedly since it was first scheduled for April 30.

Brewer said he will attempt to find out as much as possible about the prosecution case during the preliminary, and expects a lengthy hearing.

"I'll subpoena every damn person that shows up in the (newspaper) articles," about the Stafford case, Brewer said. He said he expects to subpoena about 35 to 40 witnesses, mostly law enforcement officers.

Brewer's request for a delay in the preliminary has already been rejected once in District Court, by Special Judge Leonard Geb.

In addition to the steakhouse murder case, authorities have linked Stafford to the June 22, 1978, murders of the Melvin Lorenz family of San Antonio, nearPurcell.

Crime Prevention Grants Awarded To County

AUSTIN (Special) — Four grants for Lubbock County and a grant for Texas Tech University are among those recently approved by the Criminal Justice Division of the governor's office for crime prevention in the West Texas area.

The criminal district attorney's office in Lubbock will receive $53,152 for a full-time chief investigator and six full-time investigators. The office recently was reorganized into three branches — legal, administrative and investigative.

Lubbock County Juvenile Center has been granted $40,000 for four full-time juvenile probation officers to operate the 24-hour center. They will screen and divert status offenders from detention.

Lubbock County also will receive $28,000 for a full-time probation officer to operate Project Intercept, a joint venture by the juvenile probation department and the Lubbock Independent School District. The project provides an alternative school for juveniles.

Another $50,000 grant was approved to fund Project Intercept.

Texas Tech University has been granted $13,650 to provide the University Security Police at the Texas Tech School of Medicine with adequate communication between patrolmen and the communication base station.

Tech will receive 11 portable radios and a voting system, which is an electronic method of selecting the strongest radio signal and reproducing it either by radio or telephone lines to a receiver.

Motley County has been granted $5,482 in supplemental funding to provide legal counseling for two indigent defendants who were tried for the slaying of the Motley County sheriff.

According to the grant application, the original grant was awarded in June 1977 for the amount of $51,500. The project's goal was to provide adequate defense for the two defendants.

One defendant pleaded guilty and received a 40-year prison sentence in return for his testimony against the second defendant, who pleaded guilty to murder and received a life sentence.

Additional costs not included in the original grant were for medical treatment, boarding of defendants and extra court costs.

Motley County has a population of 1,800, 65 percent of which are age 60 or older, with 40 percent living below the poverty level. No surplus tax funds exist to pay the additional defense costs and taxes would have to be doubled to meet this obligation.

The Plainview Police Department will receive $7,192 to continue to microfilm records and fingerprint cards and bring the records system up to date.

Plainview also will receive $17,496 for continued employment of a juvenile delinquency prevention officer to investigate and make disposition of all juvenile offenses. A part-time secretary also will be funded with the grant.

The Hale County district attorney's office will receive $15,094 for an assistant prosecutor for the 64th and 242nd Judicial Districts. This is the second year of funding for the district attorney's only assistant.

Lamb County will receive $24,371 to establish a juvenile probation service to reduce juvenile delinquency and involvement in the juvenile justice system.

The South Plains Association of Governments has been granted $45,722 to continue its Law Enforcement Academy. Basic certification courses and advanced training courses are taught at the academy.

The second grant application approved for 1980 involves $5,819 for a Records Development Systems clerk to microfilm, code, file, develop photos and update records.

The Brownfield Police Department has been granted $22,070 for an identification officer and records secretary. The identification officer will assist in crime scene searches and investigations and the secretary will process offense and incident reports, prepare arrest file jackets and crime reports.

The Slaton Police Department will receive $13,253 for a 10-channel logging records system for instant recall capability when hysterical or garbled calls are suddenly cut off.

The Plainview Police Department has been granted $14,988 to continue employing a juvenile officer, and a part-time secretary to counsel, screen and divert to social agencies in the community status offenders and younger first offenders.

The Bailey County District Attorney's Office has been granted $8,288 for an investigator to assist in the 154th Judicial District composed of Bailey, Parmer and Lamb Counties.

The Hale County District Attorney's Office will receive $12,554 for an assistant district attorney to handle cases on the 242 District Court and 64th District Court.

The district attorney is responsible for felony cases in Hale and Swisher Counties.

Hale County also has been granted $15,347 for a full-time assistant prosecutor in the County Attorney's Office, and $5,874 for a court administrator to manage court dockets, set court calendars and handle administrative functions for the 64th and 242nd District Courts.

Deaf Smith County will receive $15,835 for an office manager and an investigator for the Criminal District Attorney's Office. This office has felony and misdemeanor jurisdiction in the county and assists Oldham County Attorney in felony and misdemeanor cases.

Lamb County Juvenile Probation Department will receive $23,608 to continue employment of a probation officer, who will supervise youths placed on probation, those on informal adjustment, and divert to alternate agencies status offenders.

Swisher County will receive $15,000 for renovation to bring their jail into compliance with the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. The work will provide a private room for attorney and inmate, a maximum security visiting room, a booking and ID room, two new stairways, life equipment and an audible communication system.

The Coahoma Police Department will receive $5,775 to buy a base station, two portable radios, two tape recorders, a transcribing machine and an evidence cabinet.

Bullock Proposes State Workers' Union

AUSTIN (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock invited Texas AFL-CIO unions Thursday to organize the 169,000 state employees, saying "their cart is stuck in the ditch and they need you."

Bullock's surprise request prompted the 1,500 delegates from Texas union locals to cheer, whistle and clap.

"I guarantee you we will follow through on your challenge," AFL-CIO president Harry Hubbard told Bullock.

Republican Gov. Bill Clements objected to Bullock's statements when told later about the comptroller's proposal.

"I'm absolutely opposed to it," Clements told reporters. "I think it would be wrong. I'm surprised at Bob's statement."

The governor said he expected to talk with Bullock today and was sure the subject would be discussed.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, meanwhile, had problems with black union members who wanted him removed as Friday night banquet speaker because of a racial slur.

Winston Johnson, vice president of a Houston letter carriers local, said 300 to 500 black delegates would walk out of the banquet if Brown spoke.

Brown reportedly told a small group of American Agriculture Movement members, in a moment of anger, that he didn't need the farm vote because there are "more niggers on a Houston street than there are farmers in Texas."

Johnson said Brown's two apologies didn't wash the racial epithet away.

"I can only say he was talking about my bloc. That's the way a black from Houston feels. ... We worked hard to elect him."

Lubbock Taxing Bodies Plan Appraisal District Meeting

proposed subdivision, adding the developers will pay most of the paving costs to the tune of $3.2 million for the proposed 320-acre development.

Developer Cecil Jennings told the council he is the "proud owner of land in Northeast Lubbock" and has no buyer for the property.

Sam Reyes, president of the West Texas Home Builders Association, said builders would "be virtually out of business" if the city adopts a no-growth or no-annexation policy.

"The economic impact to the city as a whole would be devastating," he said.

Council members took no action on the annexation request but set a hearing for 1:45 p.m. on Aug. 9 on a request to annex 1,500 acres north of Lubbock.

During a noon meeting with the Transit Advisory Board, council members were told the small 21-passenger Citibuses in current use should be replaced soon with 37-passenger diesel buses.

Board member Milton Smith said the larger buses cost more initially, but are more economical to operate because of lower maintenance costs.

Replacement of the small buses with larger capacity buses would almost double the number of passengers the transit system could carry.

Smith said ridership on Citibuses is increasing gradually because of the fuel shortage, but said the city's bus system would be unable to accommodate even one-fourth the city's population if that many people switched from cars to taking a bus.

Board member Bill Dean questioned whether the city ever can have a "completely adequate transit system" because the city lacks a central core.

The council decided to submit a draft of a fair housing ordinance to U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development officials for comment, but not without chafing at the government request for such an ordinance.

Councilman Bill McAlister said the council was being blackmailed into enacting such an ordinance with the threat of losing the city's annual share of Community Development funds.

Although the council agreed to submit the orginance to HUD, it also decided to pen a letter of protest to Congressman Kent Hance and to Texas' two U.S. Senators.

LPOA Dispute

would appear before the City Council at its budget hearing requesting increased city services, for the City Council would be unable to respond to such requests if same required an increase in city taxes," Ross says in the document.

"This would make the taxpayers' right to appear and participate in the city budget process a hollow right at best. It seems clear that the Legislature expected the public hearing to be meaningful and a right secured to all taxpayers to be expercised before a tax levy is made by the council," he says.

In addition, Ross says the state has "occupied and preempted the field in which the three proposed charter amendments...would be operative" and limited the initiatory process.

Ross says the three proposed charter amendments are in conflict with the state tax reform bill, the Tax Relief Amendment and the Truth in Taxation law.

Named as defendants in the suit are petition signers W.D. Miller, D.L. Young, Stephen M. Swint, William E. Apain, Sheri Porter, Catherine Overstreet, Janice Kimbley, Robert D. Green, Carroll F. Garner and Daniel J. Faulkner.

Ross said the 10 people were selected as representatives of the entire group who signed the LPOA petitions.

Hospital Woes

staffed for in excess of 170 beds, Berryman said, while the actual census reveals only about 120 to 125 beds are being filled.

Health Sciences currently has about seven or eight staff members for each patient. Berryman said that the hospitals he has worked with have an average of between four and 4.2 staff members per patient bed.

He agreed that a drastic cut in the staff-to-patient ratio could mean the loss of several hundred jobs.

The county commissioners, who must approve the selection of Brookwood, were negotiating a date for the next commissioners' meeting late Thursday, with plans to call it for early next week.

HRC Probes Police-Public Problems

A committee established to improve relations between minority residents and police, Thursday drew up a list of four problem areas contributing to the lack of understanding between the two groups.

The committee, an off-shoot of the Human Relations Commission, met with two officials from the Lubbock Police Department to discuss suggestions on how to lessen the hostility and heighten the credibility between citizens and police officers.

HRC member Bill Crouch, chairman of the committee, and fellow committee members Oscar Jones, Bidal Aguerro and the Rev. John Decker met for an hour Thursday night with Col. C.G. Bartley and Maj. K.O. Stuart of the Lubbock Police Department.

Crouch stressed that the committee is "not a forum to attack the police department." For the committee to achieve results, he added, it must receive the full cooperation of both the police department and the city manager.

Committee members agreed to report at next week's meeting on the following issues:

— Whether a citizens' commission should be established to act as an interface between the police and the community;

— The police department's policy about the use of deadly force by officers;

— Ways of increasing minority hiring and placing these officers in visible positions, and — More in-depth human relations training for police officers.

Bartley and Stuart said they would discuss these issues at next Thursday's meeting, as well as hear further suggestions from committee members.

Stuart agreed the department is deficient in programs that bring officers and citizens together in non-adversary roles and said he would like to see the committee suggest ways to rememdy this.

Members also discussed the ways in which some arrests are handled which involve minority residents, and the ways investigations are carried out when an officer is involved in a shooting incident.

BASED ON PROJECTED 1979 CORPORATE AVERAGE FUEL ECONOMY RATINGS.
MILEAGE UPDATE: Chrysler Corporation is No. 1 in gas mileage of the Big Three for cars and trucks

LOOK AT THE ESTIMATED DRIVING RANGE OF THESE GREAT CARS

483 MILES Cordoba

483 MILES Chrysler New Yorker

Chrysler Newport 483 MILES

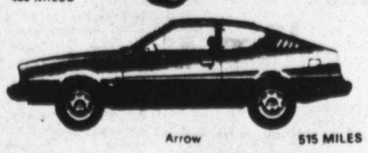

LeBaron 4-Door Sedan 448 MILES

Volare 4-Door Sedan 488 MILES

416 MILES Horizon

487 MILES Sapporo

460 MILES Champ

Arrow 515 MILES

416 to 515 safe, comfortable Highway miles on a tank of gas!

EPA ratings show you can drive from 416 to 515 miles away from Lubbock in one of our many models of Chryslers and Plymouths.

A 4-door Horizon with TorqueFlite transmission will get you to Bryan ... and a 2-door Arrow with standard transmission will get you to the suburbs of Houston or to Laredo ... or to Shreveport, Louisiana.

Cruise leisurely to Texarkana, Tyler, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Wichita, Kansas, Gallup, New Mexico or Colorado Springs, Colorado in either of these cars: Cordoba, New Yorker, Newport and Volare, each equipped with TorqueFlite transmission. The EPA rating for the LeBaron is 448 miles.

You can get good gas mileage from Chrysler/Plymouth without sacrificing selection as the chart below explains. We welcome your early visit.

Auto Theft Suspects Arrested

Two juvenile car burglary suspects were taken into custody about 2 a.m. today when Lubbock police surprised the duo at the multi-level parking building of the College Inn, 1001 University Ave.

After being dispatched on a burglary in progress call, patrolman John Blythe walked into the lot and saw one of the suspects, a 16-year-old boy, running toward him, reports indicate.

The officer said he apprehended the youth and took him to the second floor of the parking lot, where another officer had a 15-year-old boy in custody. Both juveniles were held on suspicion of car burglary.

Investigation revealed that three vehicles had been broken into on the lot before police arrived.

In other activity, police went to Methodist Hospital's emergency room about 10:30 p.m. Thursday and met a weeping 24-year-old man who reportedly had been beaten at an East 64th Street club.

Police said they learned from the man's grandmother that the victim had been playing pool when a man, about 20 years old, assaulted him.

Reports indicate the victim, who was treated and released, had been beaten and that the suspect was armed with a gun.

A 23-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 2 a.m. today on suspicion of possession of marijuana, driving while intoxicated and using loud and profane language.

Reports state that police, after a brief but high-speed chase, stopped the suspect in the 100-block of Fourth Street.

Arresting officers said the man appeared intoxicated, and that three bags of what is thought to be marijuana, and a half-full bottle of gin were found in the suspect's car.

John Harvey Igo, owner of the Silver Dollar Restaurant at the South Plains Mall, 6002 Slide Road, said at least $500 in payroll checks were stolen from his business between 2:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Thursday.

Clothes, jewelry, silverware and household appliances, totaling about $4,895, was the apparent loot for burglars who entered Patty Lorele Worthington's residence at 2418 28th St., rear apartment, between Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning.

Vandals went on an apparent tire-slashing spree early Thursday, destroying tires on 11 cars parked in the same neighborhood and causing about $2,125 in damage.

Police reports show that all 11 vehicles were parked within the 3400 and 3800 blocks of an area between 54th and 59th streets. All the incidents occurred late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning.

Police also were called to a home at 2418 28th St. which had been ransacked and burglarized. Patty Lorele Wothington, 21, lost about $4,895 in property as a result of the break-in.

The apparent burglary happened between 5:30 p.m. Wednesday and 11 a.m. Thursday, according to reports. Police found the front screen door of the home ripped off its hinges, and the front door had been broken and taken off its hinges.

"The whole house was a mess," police reports stated. Clothes, toys and other items were scattered all about the residence.

Police Thursday had the name of a possible suspect.

Diary Presented During Wilburn Trial

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Prosecutors here are trying to convince jurors that S.J. Wilburn was the hit man who compiled a detailed diary of a gunman's persistent death plot.

"I will go there with no time limit and wait him out to get a perfect shot," said the diary that was offered as evidence Thursday at Wilburn's attempted murder trial. "His luck can't go on forever."

Wilburn, 56, of Pasadena is accused of being the triggerman in a plot to kill John Hensley on South Padre Island. Hensley, 40, was blinded by a shot apparently fired at him from a car trunk on Feb. 15.

Hensley is a prospective witness in a kidnapping case against Dr. Archie Herman Burkhalter. The Pasadena physician is charged with abducting his ex-wife last year. He is also accused of hiring Wilburn and another man to kill Hensley — who is married to the doctor's former wife.

State District Judge Darrell Hester Thursday allowed the prosecution to offer the diary. Hester's ruling came despite objections by defense lawyer Robert Heath of Houston. Heath claimed that if Wilburn had written the diary, its admission as evidence would be similar to forcing the defendant to testify against himself.

The handwritten and typewritten documents were found in a Houston newsman's car after an anonymous phone caller told him to leave his car at a specified location. Witnesses here have said that the typing and writing appears to be Wilburn's.

The diary offers a chronology of an assailant's stalking of his victim.

Of the weapon to be used in the killing the author of the diary wrote: "It is perfect...It blasts a target to pieces...But it will not shoot through a window...I'll have to catch him with the windows down."

Concerning an apparently missed opportunity the diary states: "so I blew the whole damn thing...all my best laid plans went up in frustration. But I have no intention of giving up...just keep at it...until I accomplish what I began."

The documents also talk about buying a "cheap car" and equipping it with a "box in the rear." Prosecutors charge that Wilburn shot Hensley from the trunk of a specially equipped 1968 Cadillac. The back seat had been taken out and the trunk was padded and equipped with gun ports.

Former Laredo Mayor Makes Restitution

LAREDO (AP) — J.C. Martin Jr. may have written the last chapter in his history of legal problems with a $300,000 check to the city he led for 24 years.

Martin, mayor of Laredo from 1954 through 1978, made the restitution and pleaded guilty to a count of official misconduct after a plea bargaining agreement was worked out by his attorney and city and court officials.

"It has now become evident that a number of improprieties were committed by various members of my administration," Martin read from a prepared statement Thursday. "I was the top man responsible to the people and I therefore have agreed to make a voluntary settlement ... and together with the payment, express deep regret over such occurences."

The plea bargaining came after Houston federal District Judge John V. Singleton restrained a Laredo grand jury and state District Judge Ruben Garcia from considering criminal action against Martin.

Singleton had planned to preside over a hearing on the matter today at 9 a.m. in Laredo. Garcia had called Singleton's action a "political favor" and said there was no basis for the order.

Martin had filed suit to stop the jury's probe, claiming the panel was anti-Anglo, anti-women and anti-youth, and that it did not represent a cross-section of the community.

While the agreement brought criticism from grand jurors — and the resignation of one — City Attorney Eustorgio Perez said city officials were satisfied.

Jury Fines Bicyclist

A 23-year-old Lubbock man may have thought he was saving money by taking his bicycle instead of his car.

He wasn't.

A June afternoon ride down University Avenue cost him $95 Thursday.

A Municipal Court jury Thursday found the man guilty of running a University Avenue red light.

Police officer Bobby Westmoreland told the jury he saw the man riding at a "high rate of speed" through the 58th and University Avenue intersection in front of a turning truck.

Deputy city attorney Jack Chappell, who had asked for the maximum $200 fine, said it was the first time a bicyclist had been fined in Lubbock to his knowledge. He said he prosecuted the incident because the man was "totally unconcerned."

Burglar Eats Tomato, Cake

Whoever broke into Ken Hale's residence Thursday hasn't been caught yet, but he still may be paying for his misdeed in the form of a bad case of heartburn.

Hale said he was rather puzzled when he arrived at his 4812 37th St. home about 8:30 p.m. and discovered he had become the victim of a burglar. No a great loss resulted in the break-in, however.

The intruder apparently was nibbling on a tomato when he decided to move on to a cake. Hale also thinks the person wanted music with his dinner because the stereo had been turned on.

Nothing else was disturbed, Hale told police.

The burglary occurred between 5:45 p.m. Thursday and the time Hale returned home. The intruder apparently got in by breaking out a window in the back of the residence.

Group Honors 'Non-Parents'

Mr. and Mrs. D'Alton Myers have been named "non-parents of the year" by the National Alliance for Optional Parenthood in Washington, D.C.

The couple, of John Knox Village, will accept the award at the national meeting in the capital Wednesday, which has been designated as "national non-parents day" in recognition of "those who have chosen a child-free lifestyle," according to the alliance.

The Myerses are being honored for their work in a book titled "None's Been Fun," which relates their own happiness in a childless marriage.

The couple dedicated the book to the National Alliance for Optional Parenthood after receiving much encouragement and support from the group in writing the book.

The alliance, formerly called the National Organization for Non-Parents, is not an anti-family or anti-child group, says Mrs. Myers. Rather, it is an organization to promote freedom of choice in having children without outside pressures from society, she said.

Congratulations to:

Mr. and Mrs. Chip Kallher of 5730 2nd St. on the birth of a son weighing 7 pounds 10 ounces at 6:31 p.m. Thursday in Methodist Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Gutierrez of 4826 11th St. on the birth of a son weighing 7 pounds 15¼ ounces at 3:25 a.m. Friday in Methodist Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay White of Lamesa on the birth of a daughter weighing 6 pounds 7¾ ounces at 4 a.m. Friday in Methodist Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Greg Reynolds of 4409 21st St., No. 17, on the birth of a daughter weighing 7 pounds 3½ ounces at 9:11 p.m. Thursday in Methodist Hospital.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Stock Mart Retreats Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated a bit today, faced with lingering inflation and interest rate worries.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.16 at 836.60.

Losers took a slight lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Several large banks raised their prime lending rates this morning from 11½ to 11¾ percent.

The increase had been initiated by the First National Bank of Chicago on Monday after the Federal Reserve raised its discount rate — the charge it sets on loans to its member commercial banks — to a record 10 percent late last week.

Another source of caution was the government's report Thursday that consumer prices climbed 1 percent in June, putting inflation at a 13 percent-plus annual rate for the first half of the year.

Braniff International led the active list, unchanged at 11½. A 259,000-share block changed hands at 11⅜.

Aluminum stocks lost ground on reports that orders for the metal were slumping more sharply than had been expected. Alcoa was off 1⅛ at 51; Alcan Aluminium dropped ¾ to 33, and Kaiser Aluminum eased ⅜ to 18⅜.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index lost .14 to 58.52. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .16 to 198.66.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 12.51 million shares at noontime, against 14.02 million at the same point Thursday.

Gold Drops; Dollar Gains

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar edged up against foreign currencies today while gold prices slipped back.

Foreign exchange dealers said the dollar's recovery in part was because of a pledge by Anthony Solomon, U.S. undersecretary for monetary affairs, to support the dollar.

Zurich—1.6473 Swiss francs, up from 1.644.

Paris—4.24625 French francs, up from 4.23875.

Milan—818.30 Italian lire, up from 816.75.

Amsterdam—2.004 Dutch guilders, up from 1.9995.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar rebounded Friday, closing relatively light trading at 215.50 yen, up from its finish the previous day of 214.35 yen.

The dollar went down to a low of 214.85 yen soon after the market opened, but it soon began recovering and maintained a firm tone the rest of the day.

Estacado End Gets Grid Nod

FORT WORTH — Life's been good to Dewey Turner this year, but that's not to say she hasn't slipped him a couple of whoopee cusions along the way.

For Turner, things started turning sweet when he helped lead the Estacado Matadors to a regional football title. Then a couple of months later, the 6-4, 240-pounder played a vital role as the Mats captured their first-ever district basketball crown.

But the icing on the cake, he says, came in January when he signed a letter-of-intent to play football at Texas, a team pegged by most to vie for the national championship.

If that weren't enough, Thursday, Turner was named as an all-star's all-star by landing a starting berth for Saturday night's coaching school all-star game at TCU's Amon Carter Stadium.

"I guess I've been doing something right," commented Turner.

Yes, indeedee.

In making the starting offensive unit, Turner had to beat out Oklahoma-bound Mike Weddington, who Turner says is now "the second best tight end in the state." Weddington also happens to be Turner's roomate at the all-star camp, so the jab was all meant in good fun.

Despite the rosy picture being painted, Turner says he does have one big problem: Namely his weight, which has blossomed from 225 pounds to around 240 now. And Turner feels that's 10 pounds too much.

"I've got to lose at least 10 pounds," says Turner, "before I report to Texas (next month for two-a-days). I just feel a little sluggish right now and I'm not firing off the line the way I should because I weigh too much."

Turner said that he came to the all-star camp with the Big D — diet — on his mind, but, "it's hard to lose weight because after workout I come in here (the dining room) and eat too much. We work out hard, then come straight here after we're finished.

"I'll take off five pounds then put it right back on an hour later."

After practice and chow, Turner then heads back to the dorm to catch a few z's.

"It gets sort of frustrating," he noted.

Besides the double helpings of potatoes and enchiladas, ice cream and cake, Turner says the hardest thing to contend with at the all-star camp has been the workouts. Unlike most of the gridders present, Turner feels the practice sessions are too lax.

"I really thought they'd try to kill us or something," said Turner. "But shoot, about every 15 minutes they give us a break. Coach (Louis) Kelly never treated us like that."

Along with playing tight end, Turner also hopes to see some action as a linebacker Saturday night. But North coach Frank Bevers hasn't quite made up his mind on that subject.

"Dewey has really been impressive this week," said Bevers. "I can tell why everyone is so high on him. But we'll just have to wait and see (about defensive duty)."

Turner, who is almost overly confident that the North will defeat the South by "14 points," says the fact that the South has the state's top runners in Eric Dickerson of Sealy and Craig James of Houston Stratford doesn't mean all that much. "They're just a couple of more all-Americans is all," Turner said. "I think we can stop them because we've got a some of them (all-Americans) too.

"I really think we can beat them," continued Turner, "because we (the North) work together as a team. All we hear about is how good they can run, but there are just two of them. We're a team."

Considered more of a blocker than a pass reciever, Turner hopes the ball comes his way at least a couple of times when quarterback Rick McIvor (Fort Stockton) decides to put the ball in the air. But Turner says that might be wishful thinking.

"When you've got someone like (9.3 sprinter) Mitchell Bennett on the same team, at split end," explained Turner, "you can't expect to get the ball that much."

Four Join Grid Hall

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Four of the big names of the past will be enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday, serving as an emotional prelude to a preseason-opening clash between the Dallas Cowboys and Oakland Raiders.

Quarterback Johnny Unitas, middle linebacker Dick Butkus, offensive tackle Ron Mix and defensive back Yale Lary will join 98 other pro football greats already welcomed into pro football's shrine.

Following the induction on the steps of the Hall of Fame, the National Conference champion Cowboys and Raiders will open the 1979 National Football League preseason schedule at Fawcett Stadium.

The Cowboys and Raiders are the winningest teams in pro football over the past 16 years.

Coach Tom Landry's Cowboys, led by 37-year-old quarterback Roger Staubach, are looking to regain the NFL championship they lost to the Pittsburgh Steelers in last January's Super Bowl game.

However, this will be the first try as a head coach for Oakland's Tom Flores, who replaced John Madden after Madden's resignation for reasons of health after last season. The 1978 Raiders failed

Southern Cagers Favored

By JIM FERGUSON

FORT WORTH — Who's Who vs. Who's That.

That's the way most people are viewing tonight Texas High School Coaches Association all-star basketball game. Not as the North vs. the South.

Loaded to the top of the rim with the state's top basketball stars, the talent-ladened South troops will take on the North all-stars tonight at the Tarrant County Convention Center, starting at 7:30 p.m.

"I know we're the heavy underdog," said North coach James Boynton of Abilene High. "But we'll be right there at the end."

WINSTON GIPSON

Five good reasons the South is expected to dominate the game are John Grammer (6-2) of Rice (Altair), George Turner (6-1) of Hitchcock, Claude Riley (6-8) of Crockett, Curtis Wallace (6-5) of Huntsville and Kenneth Perkins (6-7) of Beaumont Charlton-Pollard. That happens to be the South's starting lineup, incidently.

"This team is starting to play together real well," said South coach Dave Middleton. "Everyone's healthy and soom to be ready to run (tonight). The team spirit is just outstanding.

"The five starters plus (Bill) Wendlandt (Austin Westlake) and (Robert) Shaw will probably see the most action, but I have no hesitation about substituting any of the players."

With 6-11 Greg Kite of Houston Madison sitting on the bench, who would?

Middleton continued: "We feel like we're deep enough and talented enough that if we get in foul trouble inside we can move Riley in there and have Wendlandt at forward and it won't hurt a thing."

Boynton will counter with postman Brad Olson (6-8) of Cypress-Fairbanks, forwards Travis Salem (6-6) of El Paso Coronado and David Reynolds (6-6) of Perryton and guards Darrell Browder (6-0) of Fort Worth Dunbar and Kevin Carlile (6-3) of Whitehouse.

Reynolds, a Texas Tech signee, is the only member of the team attending a major college on a basketball scholarship.

Estacado's Winston Gipson, the city's first all-star cager since Estacado's Ronnie Phenix back in 1976, has been listed as a backup to Salem at forward. The same goes for Andrews' Lance McCain, who'll be backing up Carlile at guard.

LA Heating Up—At Houston's Expense

By United Press International

The Los Angeles Dodgers have been on a rampage that has produced seven victories in eight games since the All-Star game, including a 6-5 triumph Thursday night over the NL West Division-leading Houston Astros.

The Dodgers still trail the Astros by 14 games, but there has been a surge of renewed optimism on the club and with two months to go there is a growing feeling that although it seems almost impossible, Los Angeles may still make a run for the division title.

"I don't think there's any way in the world you can count the Dodgers out," said Derrel Thomas, who sparked Thursday night's victory with three runs batted in.

Even pitcher Joe Beckwith, a Dodger for only seven days, senses a change.

"I think the Astros are scared of us," said Beckwith, who notched his first major league victory with 2 2-3 innings of relief. "I felt good about this game before the game."

Thursday night the Astros acted as if they were trailing the Dodgers, committing errors which cost them three runs.

Tigers 5, Brewers 2

In Detroit, guarded optimism is the rule when it comes to rookie Dan Petry. Too many promising young pitchers — Including Mark "The Bird" Fidrych, Dave Rozema and Kip Young — have burst upon the scene for the Tigers — only to be felled by arm injuries.

Petry tossed a seven-hitter Thursday night, registering his second complete game and third victory in four decisons since beginning his brief major-league career earlier in the month. Jason Thompson's three-run homer was enough for the 20-year-old right-hander.

"He's got great poise," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson of Petry, who now has a 2.16 ERA. "Anything you tell him he does."

Petry, who struck out three and walked one, lost his shutout in the ninth when Ben Oglivie cracked a two-run homer.

"The kid did a super job," said Milwaukee manager George Bamberger of Petry. "It looks like the kid is gonna to be a good one."

Cardinals 6, Braves 2

Ted Simmons and George Hendrick drove in two runs each to back the five-hit pitching of Silvio Martinez and give the Cardinals a victory over the Braves.

Giants 6, Padres 2

Jack Clark's two-run single with two out in the fifth enabled the Giants to defeat the Padres and snap a four-game losing streak.

Cubs 9, Mets 2

Rookie Scot Thompson had three hits, including his first major-league home run, and Steve Ontiveros cracked a three-run homer to lift the Cubs to victory over the Mets.

Reds 9, Pirates 7

Johnny Bench drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single in leading the Reds to a sweep of their three-game series with the Pirates.

Yankees 2, Angels 0

Ron Guidry fired a three-hitter and Jerry Narron and Bucky Dent delivered RBI singles in the second inning to lift New York over California.

A's 8, Red Sox 6

Blue Jays 8, Rangers 4

Otto Velez belted two homers and drove in four runs and Danny Ainge knocked in a pair of runs to lead Toronto.

Orioles 12, Mariners 1

Lee May belted a grand slam and Ken Singleton drove in five runs with a homer and a single, powering Baltimore to its rout of Seattle.

Royals 6, White Sox 1

Fred Patek hit his first homer of the season, a three-run shot, and Larry Gura pitched a five-hitter to lead Kansas City.

Indians 7, Twins 2

Ted Cox rapped two run-scoring doubles to spark Cleveland to a sweep of their three-game series with Minnesota.

Area Softball Contests On Tap

August is shaping up to be a busy month for softballers.

Starting with Aug. 4-5, there are four tournaments conducted by the USSSA that local teams might be interested in.

That first weekend there's the men's Class D State Tournament in Pecos, the Church State Championship in Odessa and the Pecos Community Recreation Department's Women's Class B State Tournament.

The Class D tourney is open to the first 32 teams that submit the $75 entry fee. The top four teams will qualify for the Class C tourney later in the month.

The Church tourney will advance the top two teams to the Church World Championship in Dearborn, Mich. on the 24-26. There is a $65 entry fee for that and the deadline is Aug. 1. The first 32 teams that enter will be taken.

The ladies tourney, also in Pecos, will qualify the winner (along with the best team in New Mexico or Colorado) to the Women's Class B World Championship (also in Dearborn) on August 31-September 3. The first 24 teams to put up the $65 by August 1 will be accepted.

The Men's Class C Championship will be in Odessa on August 17-19. The top two teams out of that will qualify for the Central Division Championship in Cincinnati. Entry fee is $80 and must be submitted by August 10.

For more information on any of these tournaments, contact Jim Edwards at (915) 445-4624 or 447-2282 or Billy Feeler at (915) 367-9480.

PONY LEAGUERS WIN

EL PASO (Special)— The Southwest Lubbock Pony League All-Stars beat El Paso Eastwood 7-4 Thursday night to remain the only undefeated team in the four-berth El Paso District tournament. The All-Stars will play in the finals at 10 Saturday morning.

Wright Faces Stumbaugh

Defending champion Doris Wright steadily advanced towards another crown Thursday in the Hillcrest Country Club women's championship as she defeated Billie Kinney 7-6.

Mrs. Wright will meet Betty Stumbaugh today to decide the winner of the championship of the match-play tournament. Mrs. Stumbaugh advanced to the final by defeating Karen Downing 5-4 Thursday.

City Golfers Keep Busy

The Lubbock golf schedule is a little bit more active than usual this weekend — in fact, it's downright hectic.

Three tournaments are on tap this weekend with the biggie being the Men's City Championships on Saturday and Sunday at the Meadowbrook Municipal course.

Meadowbrook officials reported that 210 golfers had signed up for the tournament by Thursday when they began the job of flighting the golfers.

And at Treasure Island, the Midnight Partnership is already underway. The golfers began play Thursday night and will wind up the tournament late tonight.

But just because the Midnight Partnership will end tonight, don't expect the activity at TI to slow down the least bit on Saturday.

Because that's when the Rainbow Classic benefit tournament gets underway at Treasure Island. The entry fee for the tournament to benefit the Arthritis Foundation is $15 — and it's tax deductible. The tournament is being sponsored by the Avalanche-Journal and is open to the first 288 golfers that sign up.

Golfers may choose one of four tee times open in the Rainbow Classic — 9 a.m., noon, 3 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Contacted late Thursday, Treasure Island officials reported that 120 golfers had signed up so far for the charity event, and more than half of those (68) elected to play at 9 a.m. Sixteen golfers had registered for the noon tee off, while only five had elected to play at 3 p.m., and and 31 had registered for the late tee off.

KMCC television will tape the action on the 18th hole where the first golfer to sink a hole-in-one will win a gold nugget.

The competition is a little more serious in the men's city championships which boasts the strongest field in the history of the tourney, according to Meadowbrook pro Jay McClure.

Mark Jarrett, one of the favorites at Meadowbrook, explained the general feeling about the city championships.

"If a golfer can win this tournament," said Jarrett, "he can say he's one of the best in the city."

Defending champ Ben Wallace will be competing again but might not be the dominant force he was last year. Wallace has just completed law school at Texas Tech and says he hasn't had many opportunities to work on his game this year.

The Midnight Partnership at TI that winds up tonight was originally scheduled last weekend but was delayed by rain.

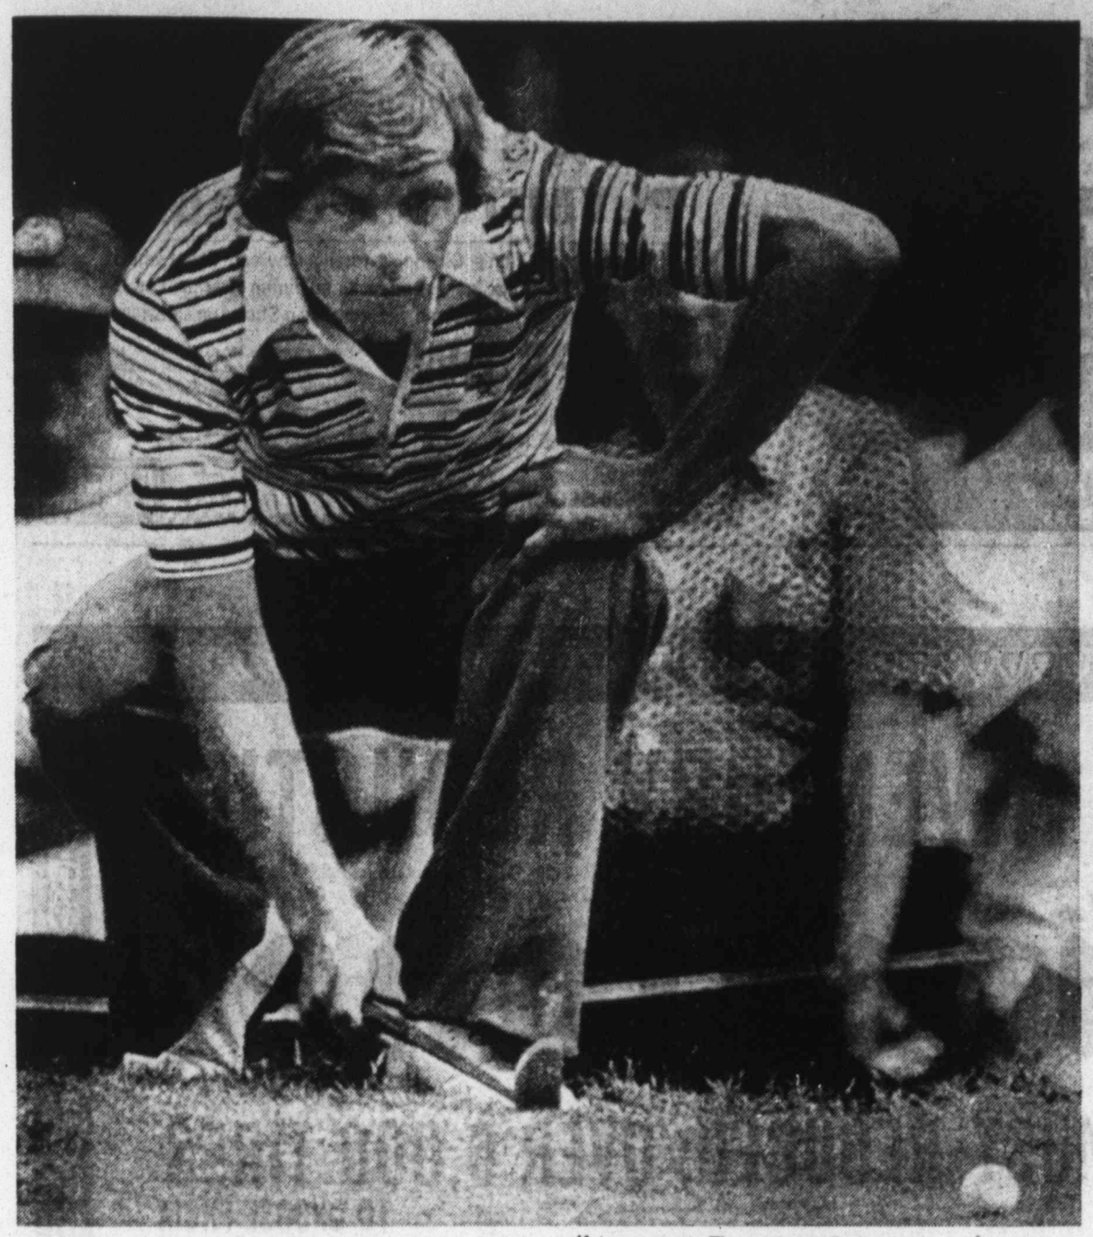

The first teams will take the Meadowbrook layout at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Meadowbrook pro Jay McClure plans to send the upper flights off in the morning play Saturday, then reverse the playing times for Sunday's final round.

Ruthers Win

GRAHAM (Special) — The Lubbock Babe Ruth all-stars defeated Plainview 13-0 here Thursday night to advance to the semifinals of the West Texas State Babe Ruth Baseball Tournament against Vernon.

Bernard Conner was the winning pitcher for Lubbock, giving up only one hit and striking out 10. It was Conner's second victory in the tournament and both have come against Plainview.

Ceremony Preceedes NFL Game

to make the playoffs for the first time since 1971.

With unhappy star quarterback Ken Stabler a late arrival in training camp and still demanding to be traded, David Humm and Jim Plunkett are expected to share the quarterbacking duties Saturday.

Also missing from the Oakland lineup will be All-Pro tight end Dave Casper, who is attempting to renegotiate his contract.

The Cowboys' defensive line will sport a different look, too, with longtime star left tackle Jethroe Pugh retired by age and left end Ed "Too Tall" Jones apparently retired by a dream of becoming a heavyweight boxer.

Staubach will start, but Danny White and Glenn Carano both will play in the game.

Both teams are expected to play their veterans early, then take a long look at the youngsters, including running back Ron Springs of Ohio State and tight end Doug Cosbie of Santa Clara for Dallas, and defensive end Willie Jones of Florida State for Oakland.

A sellout crowd of 19,000 for the game is expected to lend glitter to the enshrinement of some of the best-known names in pro football history.

Unitas spent an illustrious 18 years in the NFL, 17 of them with the Baltimore Colts. He finished up his career at San Diego in 1973, but not before setting numerous passing records that still stand.

The Louisville graduate and former sandlot player was all-NFL five times and led the Colts to two Super Bowls. Perhaps his most impressive record is a string of 47 straight games, from 1956 through 1960, in which he threw at least one touchdown pass.

Butkus, a destroyer of offenses, led the Chicago Bears to the honorary title of "Monsters of the Midway."

Mats Picked In District

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

FORT WORTH — According to the sportswriters gathered for the Texas High School Coaches Association's annual clinic, defending Class AAAA state champion Houston Stratford will retain the crown this year.

Stratford, which reportedly will have more than 300 students out for football when two-a-days begin, has been projected to defend that title by defeating Plano in the championship game.

In Class AAA, the writers believe Bay City will defeat Lubbock Estacado, a semifinalist in '79. Meanwhile, Pittsburg is picked capture the AA title, China Springs the A crown and Union Hill the B laurels.

Plainview, pegged to win the District 4-AAAA title for the second consecutive year, will — if the predictions hold up — advance as far as the quarter-final round before falling to Abilene Cooper, the 5-AAAA favorite.

After winning the District 1-AAA crown, Estacado gets the preseason nod to defeat Mineral Wells and McKinney before bowing to Bay City, the writers feel. On the bidistrict level, the Matadors are expected to knock off Fort Stockton again.

The South Plains' AA teams aren't expected to advance past the regional round. According to the poll, Muleshoe (3-AA), Abernathy (4-AA), Seminole (5-AA) and Colorado City (6-AA) will all win their respective districts.

However Childress and Kermit will halt any of the four from advancing any further.

New Deal of 4-A, considered the strongest Class A team on the South Plains, will knock off Kress (3-A) and Stratford before losing to Haskell after defeating Rankin in the opening round.

Klondike and Amherst may win districts 3-B and 4-B respectively. But that's it. Klondike will then lose to Imperial and Amherst to perennial champion, Wheeler. Union Hill and Wheeler are expected to meet in the finals.

ANNOUNCING AN IBM SEMINAR ON SMALL COMPUTERS

If you're in charge of any kind of business, you've probably thought about how a computer could help with your expanding information needs.

Well, now there's a free IBM seminar designed for businessmen just like you. It features a discussion of the applications and benefits of IBM's small computers.

Small computers can handle a wide range of important jobs, including order entry, invoicing, receivables, payroll, sales analysis, and inventory management to name just a few.

There are small, easy-to-use, lowcost IBM computers for the first-time user, available with programming already written for over twenty different industries. And there are small IBM computers that can be programmed specifically for your use.

But whatever your data processing requirements, the IBM seminar on small computers can help you with the kind of basic information you need to make an informed decision about the role of a computer in your business.

If you'd like to attend this free IBM seminar, call your Lubbock — IBM General Systems Division Office...Ask for Ronna Davis to Reserve a seat. (Because of a limited number of seats, reservations are required. Walk-ins can no longer be accomodated.)

U.S. AAU Stars Pass On Festival

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Robert Kane's soft sell to make the National Sports Festival a truly big American meet fails to reach Renaldo Nehemiah, Franklin Jacobs and Phil Boggs.

Those three heavyweights of the United States amateur scene announced Thursday, on the eve of the six-day, 31-sport, 2,300-athlete competition, they are skipping Festival II.

Their withdrawals came almost simultaneously with Kane's declaration that the governing U.S. Olympic Committee wanted to convert the Festival into a "truer national meet with regional trials."

The loss of the three stars stunned the USOC and left the meet's fans grumbling. They had doled out $125,000 in advance, more than $20,000 more than the entire 1978 Festival reaped, just to see such heroes.

Their pullouts overshadowed the opening ceremonies Thursday night, presided over by Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm and Kane, the USOC president.

Nehemiah has lost 10 pounds since he won the Pan American Games 110-meter high hurdles two days after he was running a 103-degree fever.

"He's not in shape. He hasn't worked out since the Pan Games. He has tried to work out, but he has just been unable," said a University of Maryland spokesman for the world record holder.

Jacobs, the American record holder in the high jump, is staying home to concentrate on training for his personal Triple Crown — the National AAU, the Pan Am Games and the World Cup. He already has won the first two and the World Cup comes up Aug. 24-26 in Montreal.

The 29-year-old Boggs, the 1976 Olympic springboard diving gold medalist and a University of Michigan law student, was scheduled to take his bar examination, forcing him to withdraw.

Earlier in the week, the Festival also lost superstars Marcia Frederick in gymnastics and Linda Fratianne in figure skating — both because of injuries.

Still, Kane's optimism does not dim for his brainchild, spawned from his days as a touring Cornell University athlete in Europe.

"I am so delighted with its progress," Kane said of the Festival and the USOC summer training center. "I just can't believe what's happened in 12 months."

Despite the pullouts of the big names, the Festival has leaped from an opening year of 1,900 athletes and 26 sports, has drawn live television coverage Saturday and Sunday from NBC-TV and already is in the black in 1979.

In fact, the USOC is toying with the idea of establishing a winter national training center, likely in Lake Placid, N.Y., if financial backing can be lined up.

"However, it will not come in the next few months. The issue is not sufficiently clearcut," said Kane.

Executive Director F. Don Miller of the USOC said National Sports Festival III likely will be awarded to Orlando, Fla., Syracuse, N.Y., or Indianpolis, Ind., in 1981, the next time it is held.

Miller, however, did not rule out Colorado Springs for the next meet in two years. No Festival will be staged in 1980 because of the Moscow Olympics.

Mets Botched Big Chances

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Dave Kingman, the man with the Babe Ruth home run stroke, checked into Shea Stadium with the Chicago Cubs last night — a bitter reminder to New York Mets fans of "another big one who got away."

Such reminders are popping up too often for comfort these days. The game's best fastball pitcher, California's Nolan Ryan, has just departed town — his bid for an unprecedented fifth no-hit game delayed by an elbow injury.

In Cincinnati, Tom Seaver is on a rampage after a hesitant start, winner of his last eight decisions. Tom Terrific's old mound mate, Jerry Koosman, is having a fine year (11-9, first seven in a row) with the Minnesota Twins. Ex-Mets, such as Ken Singleton of the Orioles and Amos Otis of the Royals, are helping fan pennant fever in their environs.

Meanwhile, the Mets are gulping water in the cellar of the National League East, 13½ games back of front-running Montreal through Wednesday, and facing a grim economic ledger — the smallest home turnout in their history.

Attendance is below the half-million mark and, barring a miracle, will fail to reach the record low of 922,530 set in the Polo Grounds in 1962. There are recurring rumors, stoutly denied, that the franchise may be put up for sale.

It may appear to be a maudlin exercise — kicking a guy when he's down — but it's interesting to ponder what kind of a lineup the Mets could field with talent that once wore the Manhattan skyline insignia but changed to another crest.

Try this one on for size:
Tim Foli, ss, Pirates.
Bud Harrelson, 2b, Phillies.
Rusty Staub, 1b, Expos.
Dave Kingman, lf, Cubs.
Amos Otis, cf, Royals.
Ken Singleton, rf, Orioles.
Mike Phillips, 3b, Cards.
Duffy Dyer, c, Expos.
Pitchers: Nolan Ryan, Angels; Tom Seaver, Reds; Nino Espinosa, Phillies; Jerry Koosman, Twins; John Matlack, Rangers; reliever Tug ("You Gotta Believe") McGraw, Phillies.

It's certainly a lineup that could demand attention and the lowly Mets, given a repechage (second chance) heat, undoubtedly could turn themselves into a contender with some selected plucking from the list of departed heroes.

Granted, it's a moderate infield. But the outfield is solid, and who would have a better pitching corps?

Kingman has proved his boast — that he is a natural home run hitter and can be an asset to any club. He has pushed his year's home run production to 30 and, like the Phillies' Mike Schmidt, has been put on the Babe Ruth and Roger Maris timetable. Also he has learned to swing less wildly, batting .294.

Both Singleton and Otis are batting close to .300 with good run production — the former with 70 RBI, the latter with 57, through Wednesday's games.

Mets fans must break into the tears when they look at what might have been the pitching staff — Ryan 12-7 with a blazing fastball; Seaver 10-5, eight decisions in a row; Espinosa 10-5; Koosman 11-9; Matlack 15-13, a good right-handed, left-handed balance.

"We can't brood over such things," said Joe McDonald, Mets general manager whose baseball background dates back to the Ebbets Field days. "Some deals have backfired on us, others have been very profitable. You can't just look at the negative side of it.

"The free agent draft has brought about changes affecting all clubs, not just us — like Pete Rose going to the Phillies, Tommy John to the Yankees. Seaver was unhappy over his salary. Kingman was lost in the free agent draft. Koosman was intent on going to Minnesota where he had business interests. He would have quit otherwise. Sure, it's an emotional thing when you lose a guy like Kooz, but you must keep everything in balance."

Lubbock Teams Earn Victories

KERRVILLE (Special) — The Lubbock Hubbers and Brewers both advancedat the NBC state semi-pro baseball tournament Thursday night here.

The Hubbers took a 13-5 win over Belton while the Brewers defeated Austin Family Life 11-10. The Hubbers play the Kerrville Kats tonight at 10 while the Brewers have an interesting matchup with Houston Lone Star at 8.

The Hubbers scored 11 runs in the last two innings in Thursday night's win.

Moscow Meet 'Food Revolt' Labelled Immature

MOSCOW (AP) — Western competitors at the pre-Olympic Spartacade finally have solved the secret behind all their problems in Moscow this week. It has dawned on them that the Soviet Union is different.

The first week of the games has been filled with complaints from many teams about food and water in the Soviet capital. Members of the American team have been going regularly to their embassy's snack bar for a hamburger and a cold beer.

"It is mostly a matter of immaturity," said pole vaulter Dave Roberts of Gainesville, Fla., the world record holder in the event. "This is my third time in Moscow. I have traveled a lot in the East, and I must say you get to understand their lifestyle and like their food.

"Unfortunately, many competitors have never been out of their countries, or never in Eastern Europe. They complain and get team officials excited."

The complaints have been centered on scarcity of fruit and vegetables, of fruit juice and cold drinks, and on the lack of variety in menus.

"We'd like a varied menu. Some rice occasionally instead of potatoes all the time. We miss vegetables," said U.S. women's track coach Ernie Cunliffe of Colorado Springs. "We'd like some good old green peas or beans, and some canned juices we can't get."

There have been several "incidents" between athletes trying to get more food at the huge Rossiya Hotel in downtown Moscow and waiters who tried to stop them.

Athletes and officials who have been here before tend to agree there has been a great improvement over the past years in the quality of food and the speed of the service.

Meals at tourist hotels normally consist of soup, a steak or chicken with potatoes, tomatoes or crisp cucumbers, and ice cream.

"This is what the country offers," said a waiter in a tourist hotel in downtown Moscow. "This is what we Russians eat regularly, and we are quite happy with it."

Athletes from many Western countries said they had been changing their minds on life in Moscow and they were glad they had come to the games this year so they would know what was ahead for the Olympics.

"It takes a little getting used to the food, and that's just what we are doing now," said U.S. judoist Shawn Gibbons of St. Petersburg, Fla. "It's getting better, but the first couple of days we had a hard time.

"We haven't had any vegetables. That's what the big difference is. Small portions of meat, a little bit of rice. Guess we should have brought over our own portions of speciality food and canned juice, and I hope that's what they do in 1980."

Not all competitors supported the complaints. U.S. wrestler Don Schuler of Santa Ana, Calif., was surprised that other Americans had complained about the food.

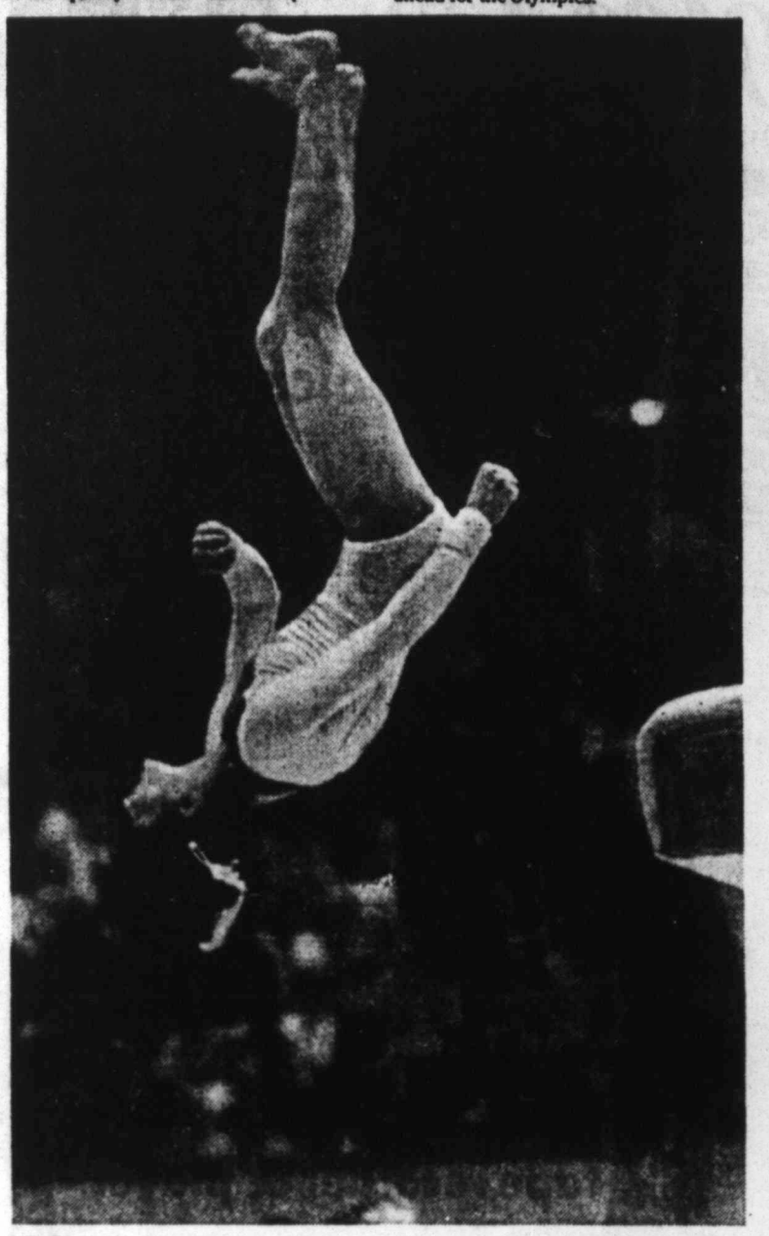

"Oh, really? Most people who complain haven't been to Eastern European countries a whole lot. I've done enough international competition to know that this is some of the best food they have that they are dishing out," he said.

There have been problems, however, and the language barrier has not helped solve them.

Athletes and officials at the Rossiya are allowed three meals a day, but sometimes teams reached their allotted quotas before some of the athletes had eaten, and hotel officials refused to feed them.

On various occasions, some journalists, mostly from the local Soviet press, joined the athletes for interviews and sat with them in the hotel restaurant eating a meal.

"Team officials had no objections, but later the hotel people told us those meals counted against us, so come athletes went hungry," Cunliffe said. "This has now been solved."

Ryan Elbow Passes Exam

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels are breathing a sigh of relief after an examination found no damage to the thowing arm of pitcher Nolan Ryan, who left the mound Wednesday night during a game against the Yankees when he felt a "pop' in his elbow.

Angels spokesman Steve Grinley said Ryan planned to throw some today, "as he always does between starts. He'll be under observation and we'll just see what happens."

Ryan may be able to pitch in his next scheduled start in the Angels' rotation, Sunday against Minnesota.

Orthopedic surgeon Dr. Robert Kerlan examined Ryan's valuable right arm Thursday and discovered no damage, Grinley said.

"In all probability, Ryan popped some scar tissue in the right elbow," said Kerlan.

Ryan, who started the All-Star Game last week for the American League, underwent surgery in 1975 for removal of bone chips in the elbow.

The Angel's ace, who has four no-hitters to his credit, left in the second inning of California's 9-5 victory Wednsday night over New York at Yankee Stadium and was flown home immediately.

The right-hander is 12-7 with a one-hitter, a pair of two-hitters, two three-hitters and three four-hitters this season.

Study Shows More Left-Handed People Smoke

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — More left-handed people smoke than right-handers, and it might be related to the stress caused by living in a world not designed for southpaws, researchers say.

The University of Michigan scientists also said Wednesday they found the number of left-handers in their study had increased in the last generation.

Dr. Ernest Harburg, a research scientist with the U-M Program for Urban Health, said he and two colleagues conducting the study are not ready to suggest any theories about why more left-handers smoke, but said some scientists have suggested it could have something to do with the stress lefties feel by being a minority.

The findings were discovered by chance while the researchers were conducting tests in Detroit on blood pressure and heredity.

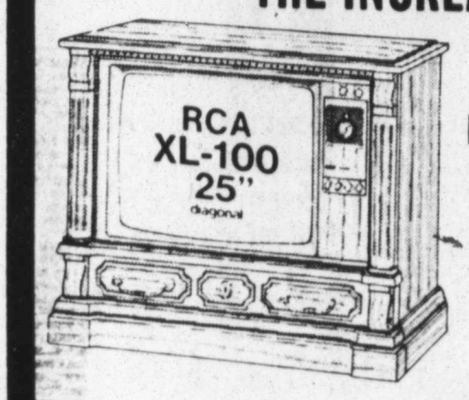

They then verified their results during a survey on alcoholism and heredity done in Tecumseh, and were still analyzing the data they gathered.

14-Year-Old Actress Kim Richards Started Career At Early Age

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Kim Richards, who co-stars as Ruthie in the "Hello, Larry," series, is only 14 years old, but she's been acting for more than 13 years.

Kim began her career at five months in a TV commercial and has been acting more or less steadily ever since. Her credits include 10 Disney films, among them "No Deposit, No Return" and "Escape to Witch Mountain."

Her younger sister, Kyle, 10, is a regular on the "Carter Country" series. Older sister Kathy, 20, is an actress, too.

All three Richards girls live with their mother in a beautiful Bel Air home which justifiably qualifies as a mansion.

The five-bedroom dwelling includes a swimming pool and tennis court with broad lawns and neatly tended gardens. Her parents separated six years ago. Kim's father, a businessman, makes his home at the beach.

Kim and Kyle spend every weekend with him, flaking out on the sand and swimming.

Kim is driven to work during the week alternately by her mother and grandmother, who lives with the family. Mother and grandmother trade off, driving Kim one week and Kyle the next to their respective studios. As guardians they must remain on the set with the girls as prescribed by California law.

The day begins at 6 a.m. for Kim who rarely gets home before 8 p.m., taking out three hours for studies under the watchful eye of a studio tutor. Kim begrudges her studies, prefering to roller skate around Paramount Studios during her free hours.

She manages only about one day a year in a public school but receives high scholastic marks from her tutors on the set.

Kim and Kyle aren't bothered by sibling rivalry. Each has her own career, her own room and her own pets.

Unlike many teen-agers, Kim has no posters of rock stars on her walls. She's furnished her bedroom with a high antique bed and armoire and lacy chairs. There is, of course, the requisite stereo rig and TV set.

She dotes on disco music with a preference for Donna Summer and Diana Ross. Her weakness is junk food — pizza, hamburgers, spaghetti, candy and gum. The recent addition of braces to her teeth has cut down on her gum chewing.

Kim has five parakeets and a Mutt named Thumper at home. She also has a dog, another mutt who answers to Trouble, at her father's house, along with 14 cats.

Mrs. Richards doesn't allow Kim to date, but the youngster does go roller skating and to movies with a group of friends. She has a boyfriend, despite the restrictions, 17-year-old actor Lance Sloane.

In addition to junk food, Kim is addicted to clothes, especially gabardine pants, blue jeans, T-shirts and terrycloth beach dresses. She's happiest lying on the beach and around her pool in fancy bikinis.

Kim's not much of a cook, but she's learning. Almost every day she bakes a batch of brownies or a cake, although a family cook prepares most of the meals.

CHURCH VOWS TO SAVE ENERGY

BOSTON (AP) — Parishioners from St. Leonard's Church, just down the street from the famous spire that sent Paul Revere off on his midnight ride 204 years ago, will be sending President Carter a contemporary beacon shortly. It is a scarlet and gold gasoline can, stuffed with pledges from this congregation in Boston's historic North End, to cut their energy consumption during the national crisis.

Network's '20-20' Finds Ratings Success

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It seems, at first, like a scene from a movie. A gritty, shabbily constructed movie.

Then you realize it is some kind of news report from Southeast Asia. The reporter tells us in grave tones that he is about to embark on a dark and dangerous mission. With a thick mustache and wearing a cute kerchief aound his neck, our correspondent looks spiffy, and ready for the jungle.

He takes us on an "operation" with a small group of Laotian rebels, reminding us now and then how dangerous it all is. These are real heroes, he tells us. They are carrying on a war with weapons discarded from earlier wars. They will never give up.

There is much walking and running through the jungle, more reminders of the dangers that lurk therein, and a return trip. We never find out exactly what all of this is about, where the "mission" was headed or what were its aims.

No matter though. It looked just swell.

Welcome to Eyewitness Newsmagazine, also known as "20-20." Your reporter this evening — Geraldo Rivera, natty dresser and fancy turner of the snappy phrase. On this particular night, Geraldo ends his segment in the studio, polishing it off with a neat little summation of the whole history of Indochina.

"20-20" is the working man's "60 Minutes." You might have thought that "60 Minutes" was the working man's "60 Minutes." But this is the newsmagazine format brought to the people — flashy, preferably visually exciting bits aimed beyond the heads of no one.

And it is working. Earlier this month, "20-20" was ABC's top-rated show of the week, finishing third, ahead of CBS' "60 Minutes," the prototype of current TV newsmagazines.

It wasn't always so. The first "20-20," last summer, was a fizzle, a kind of mish-mash of entertainment and news, but mostly neither. Then came a period in which it was considered a "special" of sorts, showing up occasionally, getting low ratings, then quietly going away.

Still sold on the idea of a "60 Minutes"-type show, ABC brought in its news fixer, Al Ittleson, to make "20-20" work. Ittleson, you may not be surprised to learn, had earned high marks with the network by spreading the Eyewitness News philosophy among ABC's local stations across the country.

"20-20" lacks the polish and restraint of "60 Minutes," but that may just be a matter of getting its legs. Since the show went weekly in May, "20-20" has had some very interesting segments, including an informative piece on Skylab and an interview (though rather sloppily presented) with businessman William Niehous shortly after his escape from Venezuelan kidnappers.

And while "20-20" may not have the class of "60-Minutes," or even NBC's "Prime Time Sunday," it does have the best-dressed jungle adventurer on TV, and some really nifty pictures.

Silverman Says Networks Not Threatened

MONTERREY, Calif. (UPI) — NBC President Fred Silverman said this week the major networks are not threatened by growing competition from cable television, pay television, "superstations" and video cassette recorders.

"The networks and their affiliated stations will remain the strongest force in television entertainment, and in providing a national news service," Silverman told the California Broadcasters Association. "Some of the new services can grow on their own without having any negative impact on our audience."

"We are betting on the future of our business," he said. "Whatever our competitors may do, we have no intention of diverting our resources into the production of theatrical motion pictures ... we are not going to dissipate our creative energies by producing software for other media or other technologies.

"We are broadcasters and we are going to remain broadcasters," Silverman said.

About 65 million tons of cereal grains — including rice and maize on which more than half the world's population depends for daily sustenance — are lost each year to pests and spoilage, according to the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Training Puts Emphasis On Water Efficiency

On-Farm Irrigation Tests Conducted

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Putting more emphasis on water efficiency for private farms is the purpose of joint training sessions this summer for Soil Conservation Service and High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 personnel, according to Myron Namken of Lubbock, area SCS engineer.

"A series of on-farm irrigation efficiency tests are being conducted on the South Plains to teach water management to the staffs so they will be able to work with irrigators," Namken said.

"When trained, the SCS and HPUWCD employees will be able to point out inefficiencies in both sprinkler and surface irrigation systems and offer alternatives for improvement," he explained. The evaluations will be conducted at no cost to the farmer.

Last April, a team of irrigation specialists evaluated the center pivot sprinkler system on the Texas Boys Ranch east of Lubbock.

In a 26-page booklet, complete with the analysis, recommendations, charts, tables and plates, the HPUWCD and SCS explained the situation of the acreage's current water supply and outlook for the future if present rate of use continues. A similar description and summary will be prepared for farmers who request water efficiency tests from the agencies in the future, Namken said.

Leaks at the pivot, obstructed nozzles and irregular application were noted in the Boys' Ranch study, as well as a pump operating considerably below a normal average.

A 10-member training team returned during June to determine if the implemented recommendations were achieving better water efficiency.

"In the return evaluation, we replaced one of the sprinkler nozzles with a device to measure the velocity in the pipe in feet per second," Bob Arhelger of Lubbock, district SCS conservationist, said. "The number obtained was converted to gallons to determine how much is being applied to the field."

Catch cans were numbered and placed every 30 feet. Water collected in the cans was measured to calculate uniformity of application, Arhelger explained.

"The cost of purchasing the pivot sprinklers and the cost of pumping water," he noted, "make efficient use of such systems vital."

The recheck of the system, Arhelger said, found water output had dropped since April, indicating a problem with the pump or well, and those nozzles not replaced after the first check had since worn and were putting out an excess of water for the system.

"The problem with the pump or well and the nozzles would have gone without correction," he said, "had the training team not checked the system which was causing an improper pattern and irregular application on the field."

Namken said about 50 SCS employees in the 11 counties surrounding Lubbock should be fully trained by the end of the season to assist farmers in irrigation evaluations. Water district personnel who participate in the sessions should be able to talk to irrigators and find where possible inefficiencies may be occurring in their systems and refer the farmer to the SCS for further testing, if necessary.

"The SCS staff should be able to conduct about 100 to 200 irrigation tests a year," the engineer said. "And refresher courses will be conducted every season for new employees."

In training sessions conducted by Y. E. McAdams, retired regional specialist engineer for the SCS, trainees will learn how to identify soil types, measure the water holding capacity of a soil, determine the quantity of water in the soil and calculate the quantity of water that needs to be applied by irrigation to bring the soil to field capacity in the root zone.

Other phases of training will include transportation and distribution of water on the farm, moisture extraction patterns of various crops, efficiency of irrigation application, evaporation of various sprinkler types and measuring well efficiency.

"The water district is supplying most of the equipment for the sessions," Namken pointed out, "and there are plans to purchase more.

"The equipment will be used both to perform evaluations on private farms and to demonstrate equipment use to the farmer who may be interested in purchasing the items for his own testing," he said.

The workshops, which were started about two months ago, have had good response from both the irrigators on whose farm the evaluation-training has been done and from the staff being trained, according to SCS and HPUWCD organizers.

"We hope to expand these training programs in the future to include the northern regions of the Panhandle," Namken concluded.

CATCH CANS — Staff members from the Soil Conservation Service of Lubbock and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 strategically place numbered cans in a field being evaluated for irrigation efficiency. Water gathered in the cans from a center pivot irrigation system at the Texas Boys' Ranch east of Lubbock was measured to determine uniformity of application. CUTTING HORSE OFFICIALS — Zack T. Wood, executive secretary of the National Cutting Horse Association, is shown inspecting the Livestock Pavilion at the Panhandle South Plains Fairgrounds here with three persons from Lubbock. From left are Wood; Judy Rogers, acting executive director of the Lubbock Visitors and Convention Bureau; A. L. Wilson Jr., a member of the association's board of directors; and Steve Lewis, the fair's general manager. The fair will host the association's Area Champions Work-Off here March 27-29. The event will have the largest added purse ($20,000) of any cutting horse contest in the nation, officials said. An estimated 125 to 150 of the country's top cutting horses will be here, with an attendance of more than 700 persons anticipated. (Staff Photo by Jim Watkins)

Meat Prices Trimmed By Middlemen

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department official said Thursday middlemen recently have been passing along to consumers some of the declines in the farm prices of meat animals, which helped soften the June increase in overall food prices.

But Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist, said retail prices of beef and pork still are too high, considering the lower prices farmers get for cattle and hogs.

"At least some of the decrease in farm prices for meat and pork...are finally being passed through to consumers," Hjort told a news conference.

However, he said, the price spreads between the wholesale carcass value of beef and pork and what consumers pay at stores "are still wider than can be justified by cost increases at the retail level."

Hjort said in May, according to his figures, retail beef prices were about 15 cents a pound higher than could be justified and pork 10 cents higher.

The preliminary figures for June and early July show those margins were trimmed but still averaged about 10 cents a pound higher for beef and five cents higher for pork than need be.

A report showing the latest developments in middleman price margins is being sent to the Council on Wage and Price Stability for review. The council has been contacting supermarket chains and others about the meat price margins in what Hjort described as "very friendly conversations" aimed at relieving some of the pressure on food costs.

Hjort said that for all of 1979 he expects retail food prices to average "close to 11 percent" above what they were last year.

The department had been projecting food prices at "around 10 percent" higher than last year but officials for some weeks have cautioned that those could be moderately above 10 percent, depending on the middleman margins for meat and other factors.

Hjort said middleman food margins still are among the uncertainties about the final outcome of food prices this year, along with what happens to the farm production of broilers, hogs and cattle.

Rising coffee prices and the demand by the Soviet Union and other countries for U.S. grain also will have an effect on consumer food bills in coming months, he said.

Hjort said retail food price increases in the second quarter "moderated significantly" and averaged an annual rate of 7.5 percent, compared to the first quarter's annual rate of 17.7 percent as shown by the Consumer Price Index.

Further, he said, the increase in April-June was "fundamentally different" from the sharp boost in the first three months, with marketing costs being the main cause rather than rising farm commodity prices.

RAIL RATE BOOST ASKED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission Thursday to approve selective freight rate increases averaging 8 percent nationwide. The petition said the increases would result in a modest improvement in earnings. If they are denied, it said, "earnings will decline well below the present inadequate levels." The railroads said that without additional revenue, net operating income for the industry will drop $586 million to a national deficit of $52 million.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

THE CARTER ADMINISTRATION is said to be about ready, barring last-minute changes, to announce a 1980 wheat program with no set-aside and a $2.50 per bushel loan level.

Without a set-aside, the 1980 target price by law will drop to about $3.01 per bushel from the $3.40 level of 1979. This is because the target price must be calculated from a specific formula if a set-aside is not in effect.

Since the administration approved a set-aside in the 1979 program, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland was able to increase the target price to $3.40, well above what the formula would have dictated. The 1979-crop loan rate is $2.35 per bushel.

Sources say the administration appears to be willing to ask Congress to legislate a 1980-crop wheat target price above that dictated by the formula.

IT IS BELIEVED THE ADMINISTRATION would support a $3.40 target price. Some sources suggest the White House might go as high as $3.50, although several agencies could be expected to oppose this level.

The administration now is talking with congressional leaders about how and when the target price proposals should be raised.

Wheat and feed grain target price increases could be proposed jointly in a separate piece of legislation or could be tacked on as an amendment to an existing bill. Introducing separate legislation on target price increases could involve lengthy hearings and markup in committee, some sources said.

Some farm-oriented members of the House favor adding 1980 target price increase measures to the English bill. This bill, which would boost 1979 target prices for wheat and feed grains 7 percent from 1978 levels, probably won't be debated by the full house until after the August recess.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., author of the bill, is said to favor another 7 percent boost in 1980 target price levels. This would put the wheat target at $3.63 per bushel in 1979 and about $3.88 in 1980. It also would put the corn target at $2.35 in 1979 and $2.51 in 1980.

MEANWHILE, ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS said this week it is possible a decision will be made well before October on whether to raise the limit for Soviet grain purchases in the fourth year of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. grain supply agreement, beginning Oct. 1.

While they said it is possible the timing will be pushed forward, officials emphasized that no decision has been made on an early announcement or on how much the level should be raised.

The pact allows the Soviets to buy a minimum of 3 million metric tons and a maximum of 8 million metric tons of U. S. grain per year. Purchases above 8 million tons require talks between the two nations.

If an early announcement is not made, a decision would have to be made by mid-October, when the next round of talks between the United States and the Soviets are scheduled.

But several farm groups and some farm-state congressmen have urged that the United States immediately raise the limit on the amount of wheat the Soviets can buy in the fourth year.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF WHEAT Growers, in meetings last week with top White House, Agriculture Department and State Department officials, recommended that the Soviet purchase limit be raised for wheat, especially in light of the ample U. S. supplies this year.

Winston Wilson of Quanah, NAWG president, said it is unlikely the limit would be raised for Soviet corn purchases until after the August U. S. crop report.

On wheat, the United States should seize the opportunity to sell more to the Soviets because Argentina has little exportable wheat left, he said, while Canada as well as Australia are experiencing transportation problems.

Failure of the administration to increase the U. S. sales limits, in effect, would deny American producers market acess, Wilson said.

One administration official said problems could arise from the schedule for program decisions — such as the Aug. 15 deadline for the 1980 wheat program and the October deadline on increasing Soviet grain purchases — and the need of farmers for information that influences their planting or marketing plans.

COTTON FUTURES STRUCK A NEW HIGH in the closing minutes of dealings Thursday on aggressive new speculative demand precipitated by strong gains in precious metals futures following Radio Hanoi's report that Chinese troops were massing on the Vietnamese border.

Futures held gains exceeding 70 points on the hefty volume of 8,550 contracts. During the morning, prices edged slightly higher on sympathetic buying from Midwest grain futures.

Traders were alert to forecasts for rain in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where the harvest is gaining speed. Rain could lower the quality and possibly reduce yield to some extent, sources said.

After the close, the USDA reported cotton sales for delivery in the current season amounted to 13,400 running bales during the week ended July 15. Sales for delivery in the 1979-80 season, which begins Aug. 1, increased by 120,000 running bales.

China bought 43,000 running bales for the 1979-80 marketing year and 3,200 for 1978-79.

Exports for the week amounted to 92,200 bales, still on the low side, with European countries taking 18 percent and Asia taking 81 percent.

Agribusiness Firms Seminar To Be Held Here Next Month

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will offer a three-day Financial Management Seminar for Agribusiness Firms here Aug. 14-16 at the South Park Inn.

The opening session will begin at 9 a.m. and the other two at 8:30 a.m.

Discussions will center around such areas as financial statements, merchandising credit, analyzing business opportunities, time management, capital budgeting, forms of businesses and planning for growth.

General chairman is Dr. Wayne A. Hayenga, extension economist.

Dr. John Hopkin, Stiles professor of agricultural finance and head of Texas A &M's Department of Agricultural Economics, will open the seminar with a discussion on "What's Important for Financial Managers." He will point out how loan needs can best be met and how to manage credit once it is established.

Hayenga will then discuss "Reviewing and Analyzing Fiancial Statements." This will include a look at different types of financial statements as well as methods of analysis by both borrowers and lenders in interpreting financial controls.

Marin Sartin, area extension economist, will discuss "Developing Financial Statements for Management Information."

The second day's program will begin with a discussion on "Making the Best Use of Capital" by Hayenga.

Dr. Bill Vastine, extension food distribution economist, will talk on "Evaluting New Business Opportunities." He will discuss pertinent financial points in analyzing new market potentials and in doing a financial analysis for starting new enterprises or expanding existing enterpirses. Topics covered will include cash flow analysis, working capital management, and estimating costs and returns for a break-even analysis.

Since different businnesses need different forms of organization, Judon Fambrough, an attorney and instructor in A&M's Department of Agricultural Economics, will talk about "Structuring Your Business Organization." He will discuss the two types of corporations — general partnerships and limited partnerships — and explain how each can be used to a businessman's advantage from both a tax and a financial point of view.

A discussion by Hayenga on "Planning for Growth" will conclude the seminar.

Longshoreman Sues Soviet Union

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A Mobile longshoreman has sued the Soviet Union for $1 million in damages, claiming negligence in a fire which burned him when he was working aboard a Russian vessel last year.

Attorney Lionel Layden said A.C. Gamble suffered severe burns in the fire in the hold of the Soviet vessel Dolinsk on July 29, 1978, and can no longer handle longshoreman's work. He said the injuries "were caused solely by the negligence of the defendants."

The suit, filed Wednesday, names the Soviet Union as defendant.

Livestock Futures Contracts Fall After Inventory Report

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 142 to 150 points lower with all contracts except December at the limit decline Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

The market tumbled after gaining 57 points on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's cattle inventory report, released after the close Wednesday.

Early buyers quickly turned sellers as follow-through buying was lacking. Traders continued to note weakness in beef and cash cattle along with concern over the economy.

Various cash cattle connected commission houses were aggressive sellers after the leading one bought at the start.

Wholesale beef was off one-fourth cent to one cent at 93 1/4 to 94 cents, f.o.b. river. The six markets expect 2,950 head today.

Cash cattle were steady to off 50 cents, with the best top at $64. Slaughter totaled 98,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures closed off 10 points to the 150-point limit. Sales totaled 6,472 cars.

The market fell after climbing 110 points on the cattle inventory report.

A cash connected commission house bought early and then led later selling. Weakness in beef and fears of sharply lower cash feeder cattle touched off aggressive liquidation. Prices fell to one-month lows, off eight cents from recent highs.

The six markets expect 1,200 head today. Cash feeders were steady to firm, with the best top at $121 at Louisville.

Hog futures closed 27 to 97 points lower, led by October. That contract through April posted new season's lows. Sales totaled 6,689 cars.

The market skidded in late trade on spillover selling from limit losses in other meat pits. An early gain of 32 points was quickly erased. Heavier hog runs and continued weak pork trade pressured futures even though they were under cash.

Deliveries total 65 thus far. Wholesale hams were up two cents at 70 to 70 1/2 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

The six markets expect 23,000 head today. Cash hogs were off 50 cents to up 50 cents, with the best top at $40.35 at Joliet, the lowest since November 1977. Slaughter totaled 309,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 125 to 200 points lower, with August at the limit decline to a new season's low and the lowest since June 1978. Sales totaled 9,276 cars.

Prices were down more than 15 cents in recent days.

Consumers Buy Cheaper Meat, Sometimes None

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas consumers may be reacting to higher beef prices by purchasing cheaper cuts of meat, or no meat at all, but a marketing specialist warns livestock producers that this likely is the mildest form of protest.

Ed Uvacek of Texas A&M University warns livestock producers that, while they may regard the consumers' reluctance to purchase choice cuts of beef with distaste, "it may be preferable to some other alternatives suggested by some advocates."

Uvacek goes on in his weekly column to quote consumer advocate Ralph Nader as calling for a one-day nationwide consumer strike this fall against rising food, housing, energy and health care costs. "Guess what will get the blunt of their concern?" Uvacek writes.

He also points out that Sen. George McGovern has introduced the only mandatory wage and price controls legislation of the 96th Congress. Many livestock producers are just now recovering from former President Nixon's mandatory price freeze on beef.

So Uvacek suggests producers just take the criticism in stride.

"Consumers have had relatively low beef prices and very cheap hamburger for the last four years. Now, all of a sudden, retail prices have moved up quite quickly and ground beef prices all skyrocketing," he writes.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and soybean futures were mostly higher Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat futures rose partly in response to a lack of country cash wheat sales by farmers, despite the fact that the winter wheat harvest in the United States is nearing completion. Speculative buying aided the gains, some of it inspired by talk that the Soviet Union may buy more U.S. wheat.

Soybean futures were mostly higher on local buying. Rumors circulated that a strike by grain handlers at the port of Chicago was near settlement, although spokesmen for the striking workers reportedly denied that significant progress has been made.
