Three German Tank Attacks Are Repulsed

(By The Associated Press)

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced today that the British 1st and 8th armies beat off three violent German counterattacks on the rim of the Tunis-Bizerte defense zone, destroying 27 Nazi tanks and capturing 500 prisoners in a single sector.

Frontline dispatches said 8th army troops had driven three miles through hills once studded with Nazi defenses, while the 1st army inflicted havoc on big Nazi tanks, including 60-ton March VI Tigers, which attacked on an eight-mile front along the western barrier.

Approximately 3,000 Germans, among them elite grenadiers, engaged in the unsuccessful and costly attack against 1st army positions.

"On the 1st army front, during the night of April 20-21, the enemy attacked our positions in the Medjez-el-Bab sector," the Allied war bulletin said.

"There was heavy fighting in the moonlight with enemy tanks and infantry, but by first light the enemy were withdrawing, having suffered considerable casualties."

The communique said the Germans threw 60 to 80 tanks and at least five battalions of infantry into the assault in the sector of Medjez-al-Bab, 35 miles southwest of Tunis, but failed to crack the British lines.

"On the 8th army front, two major counterattacks against our new positions were repulsed by massed artillery fire with very heavy loss to the enemy," the communique said.

"Our positions were generally improved and all gains firmly held."

Other major developments in the global war:

AIR WAR—German night raiders bomb Aberdeen, casualties feared heavy; RAF renews assault on Naples; Soviet long-range bombers set fires visible 100 miles in attack on rail center at Tilsit, east Prussia.

House Recesses Until May 3

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The house voted today for an Easter recess until May 3, and Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) announced the body would have a final showdown on that date on pay-as-you-go taxation, with another vote on a modified Ruml plan to skip an income tax year.

Members promptly began leaving for their home districts to spend the Easter season. Senate concurrence in the recess resolution was required and, according to house leaders, would be forthcoming.

Regardles of which party wins the duel, if any bill at all is passed, two things appeared reasonably certain: That at least $5,000,000,000, or an overal of 50 per cent of the 1942 personal taxes would be cancelled, or a 20 per cent withholding levy would be imposed against the taxable parts of all pay envelopes and salary checks.

"Lower 13" Jury Still Deadlocked

ALBANY, Ore., April 22 (AP)—The fate of Robert E. Lee Folkes was locked up today with the eight women and four men considering a charge against him of murdering Mrs. Martha Virginia James, 21, Norfolk, Va., in her berth lower 13 of a crowded railroad sleeping car.

The jury deliberated a few minutes more than 13 hours yesterday, then retired for the night on beds set up in the locked jury room. Deliberations were scheduled to resume around 11 a. m. (CWT).

Citizens Here Are Incensed at Jap Atrocities

The Pampa News today asked a number of men and women for a statement of their opinions on the atrocious execution of some American aviators who bombed Tokyo.

The general consensus seems to be that the bestial act of the Japanese will only serve to stir the people of the United States to greater efforts to bring about an end of the war through unconditional surrender of the Japs and their Axis partners and then punishment for the crime.

Everywhere on the street today expressions of indignation and outright anger were heard. Here are a few of the opinions:

DeLEA VICARS — This should make every American rise up and do that much more than he has been doing. Civilians can help avenge the atrocity by buying War Bonds.

JIM COLLINS — The execution of our American flyers brings home the horrors of war with savages and what America is up against.

REV. ROBERT BOSHEN — The action of the Japanese shows a total disregard of civilized treatment to their prisoners. Our only answer right now is to buy more bonds.

MAYOR FRED THOMPSON — This act of barbarism is another example of the type of world we would have should we lose the war, another reminder we should do more to speed victory.

FLOYD E. IMEL — What I'd really like to say you can't print. The Japs are going to have to pay in full and with interest when the time comes. Their barbarous treatment amounts to suicide for them. When our boys finally get at them there will be no punches pulled.

CECIL MYATT — The execution of our flyers was a terrible thing. There must be and will be reprisals. It is so atrocious that we should all redouble our efforts to buy more War Bonds so that we can speed the day when the crime can be avenged.

MRS. C. O. DREW — No matter how generously we have loaned money to our government up to now, we will always remember those American fliers captured after the bombing of Tokyo, that the Japs put to death. And we will remember that yesterday's bonds are not enough to win all of tomorrow's battles. Our regular and consistent bond buying must go on until the war has ben won and we can find a way to even the score with those Japs!

MRS. RAYMOND HARRAH—We have been enthusiastic about selling War Bonds ever since Pearl Harbor, and now we are avenging two-fold, since this barbaric act was committed against our men. I hope that in April we can buy enough bonds to equip the soldiers, sailors and marines, so that such atrocities may be stamped out forever.

DAVID F. EATON, JR., — It's just another stab in the back and an example of more stabs that will follow if we lose this war.

CHARLIE THUT — "We need to make them pay plenty for this."

Gen. Arnold Appeals For Revenge

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—A new and burning challenge for revenge rode with America's air fighters in the Pacific tday.

They were called on by their chief, Gen. Henry H. Arnold, to destroy the Japanese warlords who "have executed several of your brave comrades" in violation of what Arnold termed "every rule of military procedure and every concept of human decency."

President Roosevelt's announcement late yesterday that some of the American fliers who helped bomb military targets in Japan last year had been put to death electrified and shocked the capital.

Mingled with Mr. Roosevelt's assertion that these "diabolical crimes" would make America more determined than ever to "blot out the shameless militarism of Japan" were such comments as these:

Chairman Sabath (D-Ill) of the house rules committee:

"Contemptible, damnable, outrageous. I hope that when the time comes we will show no mercy."

Speaker Rayburn: "Gruesome."

An American note to Japan, transmitted through Swiss diplomatic channels and made public at the White House yesterday, said the United States eventually will bring those responsible for the executions to justice.

Japan did not say how many fliers it had put to death, but informed this government through Swiss channels that it had tried those captured and sentenced them to death. The sentence was commuted for the "larger number" of them, the note added, but was carried out on the others.

Of the 80 officers and men who flew to Japan with Maj. Gen. James Doolittle last April, the war department listed eight as prisoners or presumed prisoners of the Japanese and two as missing.

The White House released the news of the executions in the form of a statement by the president, received from a stop on his war camp inspection journey at Corpus Christi, Texas, and a 1,000-word note of protest from the state department.

The state department declared:

"The government of the United States brands as false the charges that American aviators intentionally have attacked non-combatants anywhere."

African Casualties Termed "Terrific"

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, said today that American forces have suffered "terrific casualties" in North Africa and that many more may be expected before the enemy is driven out.

Talking with reporters about his recent tour of the North African battle front, Waring said the casualties have been "many more" than have been announced by General Dwight D. Eisenhower, whose figures, he added, cover those for the Tunisian campaign alone.

He said the Eisenhower list of something over 5,000 casualties did not include those suffered in landing operations and other fighting.

Japs Kill Yank Airmen After Tokyo Raid, President Reveals

Angered at news of the Jap execution of American fliers who raided Tokyo, graduating cadets of the Pampa Army Air field today vowed to avenge their comrades in a reply to General H. H. Arnold's plea.

The cadets, now second lieutenants, drew up this resolution following this morning's third graduation exercises as the twin-engine advanced flying school:

"We, the members of Class 43-D, upon receiving our pilots' wings and commissions at graduation from the Army Air Forces Advanced Flying School at Pampa, Texas, today, do solemnly swear to avenge the deaths of all American flyers at the hands of the Japanese and all of our enemies."

After the ceremonies, Col. Daniel S. Campbell, commander of Pampa Field, declared: "You may rest assured that any graduate pilot who leaves Pampa Field does so with the avowed purpose of striking back and striking hard—to avenge the deaths of American boys at the hands of any of our enemies—whether they be Japanese, German, Italian or otherwise."

There was a more intense fighting look in the eyes of the cadets as they received their wings and diplomas in the graduation held at 10 a. m. at the post theater.

High point of the graduation ceremony was the presentation of wings and diplomas by Colonel Campbell to Jack Ninna, Omaha, Neb., wing commander, and to Thomas D. Sellers, Norfolk, Va., honor ground school student.

Principal speaker was Capt. Frank W. Zatzke of the famous 19th bombardment group.

The program opened with the invocation by Lieut. Maurice P. Garner, post chaplain, followed with the administration of the oath to

A threat to execute every United States flier captured during a bombing of Japan was implied in propaganda broadcasts from Tokyo today and it was said that Japan would "leave nothing undone to prevent a repetition of the Allied air attack" upon the island empire last April.

"And by the way, don't forget, American," said an English-language broadcast recorded by the federal communications commission, "make sure that every flier that comes this way has a special pass to hell and rest assured it's strictly a one-way ticket."

Russia Fears Use Of Poison Gas By Nazis

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—Asserting it had received reports that "Hitler is making preparations for using poison gas against the Russian front," the British government vowed today that any use of gas by either Germany or her satelites would bring immediate reprisals in kind against military objectives "throughout the whole expanse of Germany."

The government's statement was issued by Prime Minister Churchill from 10 Downing street and newspapermen were called into an extraordinary session early today to hear it.

The British Broadcasting company also quickly beamed shortwave broadcasts to Germany, directly informing the German people what they could expect if their leader orders the use of gas.

The Berlin radio, replying to the British statement, quoted German foreign office circles as saying that Germany would stand by a pledge given last year that she would use poison gas only if her enemies used it first. The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said Berlin political circles termed Churchill's declaration "provocative."

Churchill's statement said the reports of Germany's intentions had come from "several sources." A Soviet official, meanwhile, declared that "we have passed on to the British foreign office information that supplies of gas recently have been reaching the German armies on the Russian front."

Rural Pupils Exempt From Work Program

AUSTIN, April 22 (AP)—Students in rural high schools serving agricultural production areas were specifically exempted today in an invitation to Texas youth to prepare for war work while attending school.

Dr. L. A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction, said yesterday after a conference with U. S. employment service representatives that many Texas boys of 16 and girls of 18 are being prepared to step from classes into war jobs under the war industry school shop plan.

Out of 4,185,388 children trained in the 30 months of operation of the program, Dr. Woods pointed out, about 156,000 have been Texans. Per capita cost, financed by federal funds, is approximately $40 per trainee in Texas.

Bond Quota $200,000 Short Here; Show Rally Nets $14,000

With an unofficial total of $436,764.25 reached in the Victory bond campaign in Gray county from the time the drive started on April 12 up to last night, the count was still $200,000 short of the $630,000 goal to be reached by April 30.

Bond sales in Gray yesterday were officially reported as $19,340, which added to the previous total of $407,424.25 makes the official up-to-date total of $426,764.25.

Due to yesterday being San Jacinto Day and the banks closed for that reason, bond sales were probably less than usual from the same cause.

The Associated Press today reported that bond sales in the treasury's $13,000,000,000 second war loan amounted to $11,322,000,000 up to last night, according to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau.

In Gray county, the official up-to-date total of $426,424.25 does not include the $14,000 obtained in the Victory bond rally program last night at the LaNora theater. Out of the $14,000 it is known that two $5000 bonds were sold or $10,000. No exact figures were obtainable, hence only $10,000 was added to the unofficial total.

Continuing the series of radio programs in the interest of the campaign, Radio Station KPDN, Pampa, will present another in the series from 7 to 7:15 tonight, featuring the singing of a boys quartet from Pampa High school. A forum on the drive was conducted in the program heard from the station last night.

U. S.-Mexican Relations Held Solidly Cemented

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 22 (AP)—Relations between the United States and its close neighbor across the unfortified border to the south seemed more solidly cemented than ever today in the wake of historic meetings between President Roosevelt and Mexico's President Avila Camacho.

Stressing continental neighborliness and military solidarity, the conferences were held in both lands—amidst fiesta friendliness in Monterrey on Tuesday and accompanied by the constant roar of war-planes here yesterday as the naval air cadets of several American nations carried on their grim training during the unprecedented parleys.

"From the point of view of continental defense and unity of purpose," President Roosevelt told the cadets as he and the Mexican chief executive lunched with them during an inspection of the naval air training center, "this kind of military training means a wide and long step forward in the relations of this hemisphere. Let the good work continue."

He said he was happy to greet Avila Camacho at the training center because a large number of Mexican cadets are among the youths receiving flying instruction there, and termed that greeting on United States soil "one of the great American historical meetings."

It was President Avila Camacho's prompt repayment of Mr. Roosevelt's visit to the industrial city deep within Mexico the previous day, and closed the conferences during which the two spoke of how differences between their nations had been solved, of a joint solidarity in war and peace, and projected the Pan American good neighbor policy as a possible basis for world postwar unity.

And, up to the time they said their farewells here, no more specific reasons than those were cited for their wartime meetings.

MEXICO CITY, April 22 (AP)—The government press bureau announced last night that President Avila Camacho had informed the Mexican congress permanent commission from which he obtained permission to leave the country for three days, that he was back on Mexican soil after a 16-hour absence.

British Invasion Would "Leak Out"

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—Amid loud laughter, Prime Minister Churchil ventured the opinion in the house of commons today that news of "anything like a serious invasion would be bound to leak out" in Britain although the ringing of church bells has been abandoned as an invasion warning.

Churchill announced yesterday that beginning with Good Friday church bells would be permitted to ring for the first time since 1940 for Sunday services and and religious holidays.

Lack Of Protein Feed Is Fought

COLLEGE STATION, April 22 (AP)—To combat an alarming shortage of protein concentrates, a committee from the staff of Texas A. and M. has prepared suggestions for the most efficient use of such feeds.

Specialists from the agricultural and animal husbandry departments, the experiment station and the extension service drafted separate recommendations for beef cattle, sheep, angora goats, dairy cattle, swine, poultry and work stock. These recommendations will be made available for individual producers.

The report points out that there are two kinds of protein concentrates, vegetable and animal. The former are used for all livestock and poultry and consist of the meal or cake of cottonseed, peanuts, soybeans and linseed. Animal protein is known as tankage, or meat scraps.

The committee agreed that the most effective conservation of the limited protein supplies must be left with the individual livestock producer. All feeders, the committee added, must hold their usage to minimum standards recommended for each class or kind of livestock.

Slaying Of Two Texans Admitted

HOUSTON, April 22 (AP)—Houston police early today filed a charge of murder against Bruce Jordan, 24, arrested at Knoxville, Tenn, Tuesday in connection with the death of Clarence Harrison, 43, whose body was found floating in Buffalo Bayou here on December 18, 1942.

Police Chief Percy F. Heard said Jordan signed a written statement in which, the chief said, Jordan admitted hitting Harrison on the head with a rock the night of December 15, taking $56 out of Harrison's pocket, then rolling the unconscious man into the bayou.

Jordan was arrested in connection with the fatal shooting of his employer, Tom Dype, 40-year-old Houston poultryman. Dype disappeared after he and Jordan started for San Antonio Saturday night to buy some chickens. Dype had had $900 to buy the chickens with. His truck, the seat blood-stained, was found parked in Houston Sunday.

Tuesday morning Jordan was arrested in Knoxville. That afternoon, Dype's body was found in a clump of trees, 40 feet from the highway near Columbus. Four bullets had been fired into Dype's body and head.

Police Chief Joe Kimsey of Knoxville, who arrived here late last night with Jordan, said Jordan had signed a statement telling how he had shot Dype four times and dragged his body off the highway into some woods. Chief Kimsey said Jordan had $617.23 when arrested.

Show-Down Vote On Father Draft Sought

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) announced he would call for a "show-down" vote in the senate today on his proposal to exempt all pre-Pearl Harbor fathers from induction into the armed forces for the rest of this year.

Despairing, he said, of early consideration of the House-approved Kilday bill to put the drafting of fathers behind that of bachelors and childless husbands, Wheeler asserted he would attempt to "force action now to halt the breaking up of American homes."

"A move will be made to bring up a bill amending the selective service act top rovide unemployment compensation benefits for conscientious objectors," Wheeler said. "If it is taken up, I'm going to offer my amendment to stop drafting of fathers until January 1, 1944."

Americans Paste Japanese Bases

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—A large force of army bombers, winging far north of Guadalcanal island in the South Pacific, heavily damaged Japanese installations on Nauru in the Gilbert islands Wednesday, the navy said today, and destroyed at least five Zero fighters.

All American planes returned despite stiff enemy resistance from both anti-aircraft and fighter planes.

In the North Pacific army planes bombed and strafed Jap installations on iKska 10 times Tuesday, damaging the runway and camp area of that Aleutian island. The Aleutians air force has now hit Kiska 113 times this month.

Concerning the Nauru raid a communique said that on April 21st a large force of army bombers carried out a daylight bombing attack on Nauru island, in the Gilbert island group.

In spite of heavy anti-aircraft fire and defending fighter planes much damage was done to Japanese installations. United States pilots shot down five and possibly seven Zero fighters. All United States planes returned.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP)—A slow rise in the stock market was capped in the final hour today by a brisk advance in rails and utilities.

Other substantial gainers included rubber shares and industrial specialties. Closing advance ranged from fractions to two points and volume was well above yesterday's.

Brokers attributed the expansion of buying to removal of speculative worries concerning what President Roosevelt would say in his Tuesday night addresses and to the generally favorable tinge of war reports.

Transactions expanded on the upturn, running to around a million shares.

Favored issues included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Western Union, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, American Can, General Electric, Texas Co., Southern Pacific, and Southern Railway.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Advertising By Government Is Sharply Opposed

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—Walter M. Dear, president of the American Newspaper Publishers association and co-publisher of the Jersey City (NJ) Jersey Journal, declared Wednesday the ANPA believes government-financed advertising "smacks of subsidy" and would be "disastrous" to newspapers.

In his annual address before the convention, Dear said:

"Some newspaper groups have publicly acclaimed approval of the idea and through over-enthusiasm or because of economic pressure have expressed advocacy on the ground that such expenditure, particularly in the case of the small newspapers, would serve as a stop-gap for the economic depression which endangers the continuation of such publications.

"While we have the deepest sympathy for any of our fellow publishers who may find the going difficult, and realize the value and importance of the weekly press, we cannot subscribe to the wisdom of accepting a subsidy. Such a program would prove disastrous.

"Under such circumstances, no longer could the American newspaper maintain its claim of a free and independent press."

Referring to a bill to be introduced in congress which would authorize the appropriation of $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 for advertising of treasury bonds sales, the appropriation to be divided equally between daily and weekly newspapers, Dear said:

"This provision smacks of subsidy."

The ANPA, he said, admits that the basic principle of advertising "is just as applicable and will be equally as effective" for the government as for private enterprise, but added:

"Government advertising must be safeguarded from political influence and directed by independent advertising experts."

Dear declared there may be a demand for a further cut in newsprint, adding, "I warn you that it will be followed shortly by a demand for a further increase in price. Neither will be quiescently accepted in the absence of impressive factual data.

"With government on one hand imposing restrictive measures in the use of paper," he said, "because of scarcity and prior demands of war necessities, and with our acquiescence in increased price, it strains the limits of patience to note that the government itself is the principal offender in wasteful practices in the use of paper."

He referred to the department of justice suit against the Associated Press, saying, "we wish to emphasize that your officers were duly appreciative of the implications involved in the spit and the danger to the principles for which this association has always stood.

"We tendered our services to the Associated Press in opposition to what we felt was a direct attack upon the integrity of a free press and an adroit attempt to regiment under government control all sources of news."

Fortress Skims Tree Tops During Attack on Japs

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, April 14 (Delayed) (AP)—First Lieut. Hal C. Winfrey of Harlan, Ky., took a Flying Fortress so low over a 6000-ton Japanesee cargo ship in Hansa bay on the north coast of New Guinea today that he had to rise quickly to miss the ship's radio antenna, but he put his 500-pound bombs in the right place and probably sank the vessel.

"The weather was terrible," Winfrey said. "It was raining hard in the first run from a medium altitude we missed badly with two bombs. The bombardier, Second Lieutenant Francis Peattie of Beacon, N. Y., couldn't see the ship. The peninsula there was full of anti-aircraft guns, but I decided to take a crack at the ship.

"We circled back behind the cocoanut trees and went fast toward the ship. We skimmed over the grass and stampeded a herd of cattle, pulling up for trees and jumping the fences. We got over the cocoanut trees and the ball turret man said he thought he was going to have cocoanuts for lunch.

"We cleared the trees, dropped again and let the bombs go. Then we pulled up a little and cleared the ship's radio antenna."

Bombardier Peattie said he got three direct hits.

"We were lucky we didn't get hit by ack-ack," Winfrey said. "We were only 15 or 20 feet above the water as we left the ship."

As he climbed and turned out to sea Winfrey said he saw the ship listing and losing oil. More than an hour later another Fortress pilot saw the vessel burning.

Members of Winfrey's gun crew included Pace P. Payne, Corsicana, Texas, gunner.

"Leave these here. It is to raise the 13 billion dollars."

Tokyo Raiders Hold Banquet In Africa

SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA, April 18 (Delayed) (AP)—Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle and 13 fliers who accompanied him on the flight over Tokyo and now are serving under him in this theater celebrated the first anniversary of the famous raid today with dinner at a farmhouse near advanced headquarters.

The general spent the day working before leaving for the party. Two of the group, Capt. William R. Pound, Jr., of Kents Store, Va., and Capt. Howard A. Sessl of Arlington, Mass., went on missions earlier in the day.

All said they were glad they still were serving under Doolittle and hoped to strike again at Japan under his command — when the present campaign is finished.

Other veterans of the Tokyo flight present included Maj. Rodney R. Wilder of Taylor, Texas, and Capt. James R. Parker of Livingstone, Texas.

McNutt Explains Manpower Law

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—A worker fired by an essential employer anywhere in the country can take a job with another employer—essential or non-essential—provided he gets no higher pay, war manpower commissioner Paul V. McNutt said today, and under certain circumstances the discharged worker might take a job with higher pay, if that were offered to him.

Thus, McNutt said, if the man were fired while working in an area covered by a war manpower commission-approved employment stabilization program, the firing employer would be compelled to give him a relief that would enable another employer to take him on at higher pay.

If the employer wouldn't do so—subjecting himself to severe penalties, including a $1000 fine and a year in prison—the local U. S. employment service or WMC officials would have to make out a release for the discharged man, under the new job-wage control order.

If the man were fired while working outside an area with a stabilization program, McNutt said, he still might get a higher-paying job with another employer by going to an area where there is such a program. WMC officials there could, in their discretion, provide the necessary release.

McNutt acknewledged at a press conference that tonight's "job freeze" order might be evaded in some ways, such as by getting one's self fired, but he said he expects few people to resort to evasions.

If unforseen hardship cases arise, he said, appeals can be taken to WMC area or regional offices.

Senators Fuss Over Flying Trip To Africa

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The high command was reported to have executed a neat flanking maneuver divesting itself of responsibility for deciding which, if any, senate committee will visit the African battlefront on an inspection trip.

Those in a position to know predicted that no committee would fly the Atlantic in army bombers for a first hand look at equipment and supplies.

This result seemed certain despite the fact that four members of the Truman war investigating committee—Senators Hatch (D-Nm.) Mead (D-Ny), Brewster (R-Me), and Burton (R-Ohio) already have taken the vaccine shots required of those who venture to foreign climes, and Senator Chandler (D-Ky) still publicly pines for an opportunity for his military subcommittee to make such a trip.

The high command, informed sources said, recently called upon the White House to relieve it of the embarrassment of deciding which committee should make the trip. The White House in turn was reported to have passed this hot potato along to majority leader Barkley of Kentucky and minority leader McNary of Oregon.

While neither would comment, few expected them to crawl out on the limb to make such a decision.

Inquiries by various senate committees cost about $400,000 a year, records in the office of the financial clerk disclosed, with $102,383 having been paid out for this purpose in the first three months of this year.

Farm Worker Shortage Big Worry In West

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22 (AP)—Farmers all over the far west need more workers. They need more machinery. And they need more supplis right down to baling wire.

They need all these to come anywhere near producing as much food as the government has asked them to grow this year.

A survey of the 11 western states shows shortages general now—with virtual certainty they will become critical.

Farmers in most areas west of the continental hump say they can get by the planting season somehow. The pinch will come at harvest time. They have hopes the battalions of federal, state and local agencies will throw them a towline by harvest season.

They seem to have stopped talking much about deferment of their workers. One remarked, "it's like closing the corral gate after the cayuse got away." At any rate, in a few score interviews, few brought up the subject, even though Governor Vivian of Colorado brought it to focus with his statewide farmer deferment order.

School boards are being asked to postpone opening of the fall term until the crops are in.

Oregon expects to make fully as great use of women and children in proportion to population as Britain has in her land army.

Labor groups have been brought westward into various states from the southern midwest. They have been trained in the methods farmers use in these areas, and may become key men. A number of western states east of the west coast defense area have taken contingents of Japanese workers for farm labor from the relocation centers. More use is expected to be made of this supply of avacuees during the summer.

California, Arizona and other Western states are counting on having many thousands of Mexican workers for "stoop" labor and harvest work.

Farmers show no inclination to depend on any labor help from the army.

Machinery supplies are critically short in some western areas. Reports from the state of Washington say the shortage of machinery has been so severe that a considerable black market has developed. Farmers appear willing to pay most any price—old machines sometimes sell for more than when new.

Californians have shot sparks at times over storage of Japanese farm machinery, after evacuation of the owners to relocation centers. There's still some occasional sharp comment on it. Farmers want to see the equipment put to use.

Mama, What Is Love Expected To Be Hit

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 22 (AP)—Well, the annual benefit at the Naval Academy closed a three-night stand Saturday night, and if it hadn't been for a quiet, family-loving Philadelphia dentist, it must have been just another one of those things.

But it wasn't, and the chances are good that you'll soon be hearing a ditty from the show, "Sea Legs," that goes like this:

"Gable gets 'em with his lips,
"Betty Grable with her hips,
"Gypsy Rose just strips and strips,
"Mama, what is love?"

Boys, it was a show stopper. Five encores.

And it's already been settled that "Mama, what is love?" will be published along with two others from the show—"Annapolis Memories," and "Not So Deep as a Well."

Lieut. Comdr. Clay Boland, the Philadelphian for whom song-writing is a hobby, came to the Naval Academy December 7, 1942 with the ink still wet on his commission. He is no stranger to song hits.

"Stop—It's Wonderful," and "Too Good To Be True," "Stop Beating 'Round the Mulberry Bush," "Ya Got Me," came from the piano and pen of the navy officer.

French Troops Get U. S. Equipment

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, April 22 (AP)—Thousands of tons of military supplies, ranging from mess kits to mobile tank destroyers, have begun arriving to equip the new French army in North Africa, fulfilling a promise made by President Roosevelt at the Casalanch conference.

Modern fighting equipment is being unloaded, uncrated and assembled by French, American and British troops. French assembly lines trained by United States ordnance experts are capable of turning out fighting material at a rate of several hundred units a day. With the new equipment, French troops are training with Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's fifth American army.

The equipment includes medium and light tanks, reconnaissance and armored cars, mobile artillery, uniforms of distinctive design, vehicles of all kinds and additional small supplies to make up complete, organic equipment of fighting units for a field campaign.

Guns Useless If Soldiers Unfit

FORT WORTH, April 22 (AP)—Guns, tanks and planes are useless unless American men are physically equipped to operate them and therefore it is the duty of each person to keep himself in good health, James Robinson of Chicago told the Texas State Dental convention last night.

Maj. Kenneth R. Vofield of Washington, D. C., declared that 8000 dentists would be called into the armed forces during 1943, adding that one-third of the nation's dentists would be in service by 1944.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Moderated by FRED G. CLARK General Chairman American Economic Foundation

Has Progressive Education Earned a Permanent Place in Our Schools?

As debated by

Dr. William Heard Kilpatrick
Professor Emeritus, Teachers College, Columbia University.

Mr. Merwin K. Hart
President, New York State Economic Council.

DR. KILPATRICK OPENS: The answer is a clear yes!

"Progressive education" is the consistent effort to apply in education three deepest rooted characteristics of modern democratic civilization: (1) a humane regard for personality (the essence of modern democracy); (2) a belief in honest open-minded inquiry as against an imposed indoctrination; (3) an acceptance of man's inherent social nature that each must accept responsibility for the common good (the basis of social morality). To these three the modern study of human learning adds (4) that each learns best what means most to him.

Careful studies by Wrightstone, by the "Eight Year Experiment," by New York State Department—corroborated by many others and denied by no equally careful study—show (1) recommendation to New York City to adopt progressive education; (2) (Wrightstone) "progressive" elementary school substantially equal to others in 20 measured respects, superior in 22, inferior in 1; similarly "progressive" secondary schools equal in 12 respects, superior in 22, inferior in 3; (3) the "Thirty schools" (eight year plan) graduates from college "have done a somewhat better job than the comparison group," and "the more experimental the school, the greater the degree of success in college."

And our schools increasingly accept this judgment!

MR. HART CHALLENGES: Nobody opposes a humane regard for personality, or the other vague generalizations of Dr. Kilpatrick. But Progressive Education attempts too much, spreads out too far, has entwined itself too readily with collectivistic propaganda. In so doing it neglects fundamentals—like teaching the pupil to read. In New York City three or four years ago it was found that many pupils were such poor readers they couldn't read textbooks in first year High School. WPA workers had to be brought in, taught to teach reading, and then made to teach these pupils to read—this in the costliest school system in America!

DR. KILPATRICK REPLIES: Mr. Hart's statements show his educational ignorance. The New York City trial of progressive education began with the first grade in 1935. "Three or four years ago" these pupils were in the third or fourth grade. Mr. Hart's poor high school readers then were taught according to his own plan. After six years' trial of progressive education in seventy city schools, 50,000 pupils, the State Department of Education evaluated it; found it better; recommended its permanent adoption throughout the system. This the city has approved. Trials elsewhere show like superiority. The trend toward progressive education is both widespread and strong.

MR. HART REPLIES: Like many philosophies, Progressive Education has a kernel of truth—namely, that it is important for the student to be interested in his work and to enjoy it. But this is no new discovery. And Progressive Education, as a system, has not earned a permanent place in our schools.

Already some former friends have lost confidence in it. Thus, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, whose Teachers College has long been the chief exponent of Progressive Education, recently described Progressive Education as "the turning loose of youth in the world . . . to form such habits and tastes as they from time to time may choose. . . ." And he added that ". . . nothing could be more reactionary or more damaging to youth," than the "extreme forms" of Progressive Education

Sound education shows youth how to live and how to make a living. We have little to go by except the experience of the past. That experience teaches that life is not easy; that to meet it one must develop all one's mental, moral, physical and spiritual powers; that such development comes only by self-discipline.

Progressive Education, as a system runs counter to these inescapable facts. That is why it has failed.

DR. KILPATRICK CHALLENGES. President Butler was never friendly to progressive education (Mr. Hart made that up). He knows little about it. For forty years his gaze has been on politics and international affairs.

Mr. Hart properly wishes "sound education" and "self-discipline." Progressive education best provides both. Wrightstone found, scientifically, that the progressive school teaches the subjects better and "provides more and better opportunities for developing desirable social qualities." Further "the experimental school pupils were found to be significantly more honest," "the conventional school pupils" "to be more deceitful." Self-discipline progressive education stresses; that is its chief aim.

MR. HART REPLIES: Laymen are not alone in thinking progressive education spreads out too far.

In 1933 the Principal of Haaren High School, New York, complained of having to offer 100 subjects under a highly complex elective system. As a result, he said, "* * * We have a bewildered student body and a confused and harassed teaching force. We have graduating groups * * * who are masters of nothing and not even jacks of all they have attempted to study. We have a letdown in student morale and stamina * * *."

Space prevents further comment. As a system and a philosophy Progressive Education just doesn't work.

Food Picture Becomes More Cheerful Today

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A more cheerful tone marks the latest views of farm officials on 1943 crop prospects. Ovid A. Martin tells about them in this concluding article on a six-part Associated Press survey of the farm situation for readers of The Pampa News.)

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Cheerful crop planting surveys and favorable livestock production reports have done much in recent days to dispense gloom in Washington over the wartime food supply situation.

Food authorities who only a few weeks ago were warning of a possible sharp reduction in production this year and of hunger among civilians now have a brighter outlook. They now say that production in 1943 may equal or surpass the record output of 7942, provided weather conditions are favorable and farmers are able to get sufficient help at harvest time.

The capital went through the winter suffering from a severe case of jitters over the ability of farmers to meet unprecedented demands for meat, milk and poultry products, food fats, vegetables and other items.

This pessimism came from a combination of factors, including mounting military and lend-lease requirements, shortages of skilled agricultural labor, machinery, fertilizer and other supplies and equipment, and reports of farmer dissatisfaction with the government's farm price policies.

Inability of many consumers to get meat, butter, eggs and other foods—a situation which aroused bitter complaints—contributed to the concern felt in official quarters. Food rationing programs, designed to distribute available supplies equitably, added to the general apprehension. Criticism of the government's food program led finally to creation of a new war food administration under direction of Chester C. Davis, St. Louis banker and agricultural leader.

This official concern brought other changes in governmental policies affecting agriculture. They included more positive steps to meet the farm labor shortage, increases in farm machinery supplies, and upward revision in guaranteed prices of some of the more vital war food crops.

Food officials now express belief that military deferment of farm workers, plus efforts being made to recruit labor from Mexico and other nearby countries, as well as recruitment of men, women and children from American towns and cities, will provide an adequate supply of labor to plant, cultivate and harvest crops.

They warn, however, that a worsening in the Allied military situation might cause a change in the farm manpower outlook. If men now being deferred for farm work have to be called to the service, they say, food production would suffer.

Reports from the field, gathered far-flung crop reporting service, indicate that farmers are making valiant efforts to increase production notwithstanding difficulties.

Latest surveys show that nearly 10,000,000 acres (or 3.5 per cent) more land will be planted to food and livestock feed crops than in 1942 and that the total acreage harvested may be the largest since the big planting season of 1932, when there was a surplus of farm manpower.

Governor Gets Welfare Bill

AUSTIN, Apr. 22 (AP)—Further action was up to the governor today on a bill whose effect will be the appointment of a new board and director of public welfare.

Different house and senate versions were reconciled in conference committee and its report was adopted yesterday.

The house had wanted the board to appoint a new director; the senate wanted to appoint the director itself. The compromise provides for appointment by the governor of a new board which in turn will name a director.

A special house investigating committee has recommended impeachment action against J. S. Murchison, present director.

The house yesterday finally passed a rural school aid bill appropriating $22,081,981 for the next two years beginning September 1, $5,000,000 more than authorized for the current biennium.

Adoption of an amendment to raise the pay of rural teachers accounted for the $5,000,000 increase. Base pay for instructors in unaccredited schools would be raised from $88 to $95 per month; in accredited schools from $93 to $100.

Chairman Beauford H. Jester said the 120,000 barrel daily increase was distributed equitably among all fields.

The schedule lopped 68,591 barrels a day from purchaser nominations. The April order called for net daily production of 1,500,342 barrels of all oils. Average daily crude allowable for the week ended April 17 totaled 1,460,034 barrels.

Brethren To Observe Fellowship Day

The Church of the Brethren will observe its monthly "day of fellowship" on Easter Sunday with a varied program. Beginning at 10 o'clock with Sunday school the following program has been arranged. At eleven o'clock the morning worship service will open with an altar candle lighting in memory of the men in service, pictured above. The fourteen candles which the church keeps burning at each worship service will be lighted by two of the mothers whose sons are away in service, Mrs. Clyde Gray, and Mrs. F. V. Tarr. The pastor, Rev. Russell G. West, will preach a sermon in keeping with the times, entitled, "Our Crosses in the Light of Easter."

A basket fellowship dinner will be served at noon. Immediately after dinner there will be an egg hunt for the children. Mrs. Amos Harris will have charge of this feature. One outstanding feature of the day will come at 2 o'clock in the afternoon when members of the Pampa High school Dramatic class and Glee club will give an Easter play by Dortha Clark Wilson, entitled, "A Light in the Window." The people of the community are especially invited to see this play, as the time will not conflict with other church programs of the city.

The activities of the day will close in the early evening with a Love Feast and Communion Service based upon the thirteenth chapter of St. John's Gospel.

The women and girls of the church have been responsible for planning for this day of fellowship, and will have charge of all programs.

"Big Spring," by Shine Phillips, was given in review by Mrs. H. H. Hahn, who was introduced by Mrs. Joe Gordon.

The tea table was decorated with a large basket centerpiece filled with colored Easter eggs and bunnies.

Refreshments were served to the following guests: Mmes. Douglas Carver, Clyde Brownlee, Hugh Anderson, Robert Boshen, Perry Gant, Don Egerton, Clifford F. Jones, Marvin Harris, Russell McConnell, Aubrey L. Steele, H. H. Hahn, Joe Gordon, R. H. Newsteel, N. B. Wilkerson, Carlton Nance, John K. Taylor, Charles Ashby, Frank Smith, F. L. Stallings.

Many Communities Double Bond Quotas

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—Treasury officials reported today that many communities have reset their sights in the record-breaking campaign and are now trying to double their original quotas.

This development was reported as sales passed the $10,000,000,000 mark and signs pointed to achievement of the goal well in advance of the three-week schedule.

Despite the record outpouring of funds, treasury officials, including Secretary Morgenthau expressed disappointment at the sales of bonds to individuals and made plans to concentrate more heavily on this group during the next two weeks.

Up to last Saturday these bonds—Series E, F and G—accounted for only $403,000,000 of the total collected in the first week.

Timely Comedy Of Family Life Is Theme For Jr. Play

The junior class of Pampa High school will present the three-act play "I'm in the Army Now" at 8 o'clock in the junior high school auditorium.

The leading roles consist of Letty Ashbrooke played by Katherine Robinson, Deanna Robertson played by Jean Chisholm, Bronson Robertson played by Ernest Miller, and Granny Robertson played by Dorothy Wilgus. Other members of the cast are Pa Robertson, Jim Wanner; Mrs. Robertson, Lillian Snow; Toby Robertson, Charles Maisel; Dale Morison, Marceline Drake; Corinna Duffin, Jean Gregory; Prentiss Roper, Larry Fuller; Audrey Nayland, Helen Crowley; Essie Knapp, Kathryn Homer; Ramon Valdez, Frank Friauf.

This is not a war play but a timely comedy of family life. There is nothing warlike or depressing about this play—on the contrary it portrays a screamingly funny picture of modern family life and one that will cause you to howl with laughter throughout its innumerable comedy situations. The Robertson household consists of Ma and Pa Robertson, their three children and Pa's mother, who is affectionately known as Granny. Although she is devoted to all of her children, Bronson is Ma's favorite and she fusses over him, never loses an opportunity to dose him with medicine whether he needs it or not, and literally spoils him to death.

Since Bronson is in his early twenties, he has to register for the draft and Ma is horrified at the thought that her dear boy might have to spend a year away from her. So she devotes all of her time and energy to thinking of ways and means whereby Bronson won't have to leave her. Nevertheless Bronson goes off to camp for his year of training.

While their oldest son is away at camp things go from bad to worse with Ma and Pa. The latter is forced to give up his business by unsympathetic creditors. When Bronson comes home on leave unexpectedly, he is astonished to discover the conditions under which the Robertsons are living. After hearing the individual complaints of the family, Bronson decides that something drastic must be done in a hurry. It is then that he determines to conscript the family, form a private army of his own and make each one of them join up! The results of Bronson's efforts are truly hilarious and furnish an evening of solid entertainment.

Admission to the play is twenty-five cents for students, and thirty-five cents for adults.

Special Episcopal Service This Week

Two special services will be held this week in St. Matthew's Episcopal church. The first of these will be a Communion Service at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, which is Maundy Thursday, the day on which Jesus was betrayed, also on the evening of which he instituted the Eucharistic Feast.

The second service will be at 7:30 on Good Friday night. This hour and a half service will take the place of the customary three hour service which is usually observed. The reason for the change this year is that a great number of people, who wish a Good Friday observance, are working during the day time and would be deprived of a service. The time of the service will be given over largely to a meditation upon the Seven Sayings from the Cross.

On Easter Sunday there will be Communion services at 7 o'clock and at eleven o'clock in the morning. A cordial invitation is extended to the general public and to all Episcopalians to attend these services, and to make their Communion on Easter Day.

Bacteria Dangerous In Canning Food

After making plans for canning, it might be well to remember that safe canning requires careful attention to every step in the process.

One way of avoiding loss in canning is to select good materials. Use only the best quality foods obtainable. Be sure they are in prime condition and be certain the containers in which they are hanged are clean. Any unnecessary infection of the raw food increases the difficulty of processing and the liability of the canned products to spoilage.

NEED EXPERIENCE FOR MEAT

The most dangerous bacteria and the most difficult to kill are in the soil. A wire basket is a help in washing, but should not be loaded too heavily. Always lift the fruit and vegetables out of the water rather than pour the water off. With fruits and vegetables, grade for size and the same degree of ripeness if a uniform product is desired.

Beef, veal, mutton, lamb, pork and chicken may be canned successfully in the home by the homemaker who has advanced skill and experience. However, meats must be processed under steam pressure. The temperature required for effective sterilization (240 degrees to 250 degrees F., corresponding to 10 and 15 pounds steam pressure) cannot be obtained inside the can or jar except by the use of the steam pressure canner. The water bath, the oven and the steamer without pressure are inadequate for canning meats and cannot be used safely.

Insufficiently processed meat may keep if stored at a low temperature but even when no visible signs of spoilage are observed there is no certainty that the bacteria which cause food poisoning have not been active. If a pressure canner is not available, some other form of preservation should be used for meats.

CAN MEAT ALONE

While a variety of meat and poultry products may be canned, it is more economical of can or jar space to put up the meat alone and combine it with the other foods at the time of serving.

All meats and poultry for canning should be slaughtered and handled in a strictly sanitary manner. Unless the meat is to be canned at once, chilling the carcass after slaughtering is necessary; otherwise decomposition will start within a few hours.

City folk, unless thoroughly experienced in meat canning, will find it wise to plan less difficult canning. More time could be spent on canning vegetables raised at home or bought in season.

Sergeant and Mrs. Randolph are the parents of a son born February 13, three months ago. The sergeant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Randolph of Pampa.

There's a reason for the bundled up appearance of Carpenter's Mate 2/c Robert W. Randolph, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Randolph, 1703 S. Pierce, Amarillo. He's stationed "somewhere" in Alaska. Carpenter's Mate Randolph is a former Pampa High school and West Texas State college student. He enlisted in May, 1942. His wife resides in Amarillo. He and Sergeant Mack Randolph are cousins.

GARNET REEVES — What happened in Tokyo to those American fliers may be repeated a thousand times. Will you let Americans be murdered and do nothing about it? This murder is a challenge to every American to do something about it and it makes the meaning of total war quite clear.

DAN E. WILLIAMS — I've always had my doubts about the treatment our men have been receiving from the Japs. The murder of our men was absolutely against all international rules.

RAMON C. WILSON — This is an indication of the type of competition we are up against.

IVEY E. DUNCAN — I think this atrocious crime committed by the Japs on our boys brings us face to face with the grim realization that our own flesh and blood suffered and died because it was they the Japs captured rather than us here at home. Every American should gravely determine to avenge their deaths. We can do this in a way by buying bonds to give them equipment with which to defend themselves and destroy this evil.

MRS. R. E. McKERNAN — I think we will remember those brutal and bestial methods which the Japs resorted to for as long as we live, and we are proud of these men and in order to rightly deserve to be proud of them we must step up our bond buying, and send our dollars to the fighting men in the form of guns, tanks and tools to back those brave men.

REV. EDGAR W. HENSHAW — I feel that this act of the Japanese should arouse every American man and woman not only to buy bonds and give as they have been doing, but to get right down now to the point of making every possible sacrifice.

R. B. SAXE — I think the Japs ordered the executions in the hope they would frighten off future raids on Tokyo. If the Jap mind is that simple it's high-time they learned that that sort of thing only prods Americans into a hotter fighting mood. We'll buy more bonds and fight harder than ever now.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC — Gen. MacArthur's airmen hit 10 Japanese bases above Australia.

On the Tunisian front, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's furious counterattacks appeared to have slowed the two-way Allied squeeze after the 8th army's initial break into the Enfidaville zone, 50 miles below Tunis.

Italian headquarters said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th army veterans launched "violent attacks with overwhelming artillery," but asserted they were checked "by the dogged resistance and proved valor of our troops."

Dispatches from Allied headquarters emphasized that the combined Axis armies of Marshal Rommel and Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim were holding powerful mountain positions bristling with machine-gun nests.

On the Russian front, Soviet headquarters declared today that the Red armies had killed 1,700 Germans in 48 hours in a single sector of the flaming Caucasus battle region as the Nazis threw masses of troops, tanks and planes into the assault.

12 Millions Tons Of Shipping Lost

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The Truman committee called today for "a scientific determination of the number of men who can usefully be employed in the armed services" after disclosing that the Allies lost 12,000,000 tons of shipping last year, or "somewhat more" than was built.

Senator Brewster (R-Me), an active member of the senate group which is investigating the war program, estimated that sinkings overbalanced United Nations construction by 2,000,000,000 tons in 1942.

The committee's report on shipbuilding and shipping, released last night, said the United States produced 8,090,800 dead-weight tons of ships last year but added that sinkings averaged aproximately 1,000,000 tons a month. It described the British shipbuilding program as "smaller but sizeable." Brewster estimated that Great Britain and other Allied countries produced a 1942 total of about 2,000,000 tons.

Grandma Hoskins knows a lot about history—but when we asked her where the first brewery was built in America, she wouldn't take sides.

"You see," says Grandma, "wherever the colonists settled, one of the first things they thought about was food and beer . . . In fact, one reason why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock was because the Mayflower was runnin' short of beer."

Well, that was a new one on us, but Grandma showed it to us—just as it was written in the Mayflower's log.

And it seems that all through our early American history beer sort of tempered the hardships and helped to make us a tolerant, moderate people.

From where I sit, beer is the American drink of moderation and friendliness—kind of a symbol of our personal liberty.

CAPTAIN YANK

FOUR OPENING GAMES ARE SHUT-OUTS IN BOTH LOOPS

Vander Meer Whips Cooper In 11 Frames

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

If the opening day in the major leagues was any criterion, this may be the greatest pitchers' year in baseball history.

Four games, four shutouts, two of them 1-0, one of them 11 innings!

Weather conditions permitted only half of the eight scheduled inaugural games to be played yesterday, and held down attendance at these contest to 55,021 fans, but classic pitching made the day worth remembering.

Looking at the day's business in composite there was a total of only 11 runs, 42 hits of which just nine were for more than one base, and up till the seventh inning there had been but three runs scored.

The most magnificent mound show was given the largest crowd, 27,709 at Crosley field in Cincinnati, where Lefty Johnny Vander Meer and Mort Cooper dueled for 11 innings before the Reds finally squeezed in front of the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

A struggle almost as spectacular was staged for 13,847 fans in Cleveland's big municipal stadium as the Indians nosed out the Detroit Tigers, 1-0, with a run in the ninth. Jim Bagby, who had tamed the Tigers in last year's opener, again was the star. He held Detroit to three hits, and drove in the winning run with a long fly.

The Pittsburgh Pirates handcuffed the Chicago Cubs, 6-0, with Truett (Rip) Sewell scattering three hits. Paul Derringer, making his debut in a Cub uniform before 9,044 fans at Wrigley field, Chicago, restrained Pittsburgh to two runs till the eighth, when the Pirates plastered across four tallies and Manager Jimmy Wilson had to use three other hurlers to finish the game, Pittsburgh made ten hits.

At St. Louis, Lefty Al Hollingsworth pleased a small turnout of 4,421 by pitching the Browns to a 3-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox on four hits.

The same teams were matched again today, with opening ceremonies planned at the four eastern parks which were closed yesterday. Tomorrow, Good Friday, is an open date in both leagues.

Ted Lyons' No. 16 Retired By Chicago

CHICAGO, April 22 (AP)—There will be no more "16's" won by Chicago White Sox baseball players for the duration.

The number belonged to Ted Lyons, Sox pitcher for 20 years and now a lieutenant in the marines.

It will be retired in much the same manner as the famous "77" worn by Red Grange in his football days at Illinois and the "98" Tom Harmon recently carried on the gridiron for Michigan.

Sox officials said No. 16 along with the shirt worn by Lyons last season would adorn the wall of the Comiskey Park clubhouse.

Old Cy Young Won 511 Major Games And Retired Only When He Grew Too Fat To Field Bunts

No one pitched as long or won as many major league games as Denton Tecumseh Young. His arm remained good after 22 years.

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

Denton Tecumseh Young won 511 major league games in 22 years, and retired only when he became too fat to field bunts. Only a few men have pitched that many games.

When Cy Young decided to call it a career in 1911 at the age of 44, his arm was as good as ever.

"But the boys are taking unfair advantage of the old man," remarked Old Tuscarawas. "They know this big stomach of mine makes it difficult for me to field bunts, so instead of swinging at my stuff, they are laying the ball down. When the third baseman has to start doing my work, it's time for me to quit."

Denton T. Young never asked for any favors.

Young was an Ohio farm boy standing six feet two and weighing 210 pounds. He had the smooth motion of Tiny Bonham. In his heyday he would have reminded you of the Yankee righthander, but he was faster and had more on the ball. He could really pour the pellet through there. Toward the fag end of his brilliant run, he resorted more and more to curves and finally to the spitball.

PERFECT AGAINST WADDELL

No one pitched as long or won as many games, and his time was almost evenly divided between the two big leagues. He bagged from 20 to 36 games for the Cleveland and St. Louis Nationals and the Boston Red Sox for 14 consecutive seasons. No other pitcher participated in as many games, 874.

Young is the only man who hurled no-hit performances in both big wheels. He recorded three of them, shut out Rube Waddell and the Philadelphia Athletics for the Red Sox, 3—0, in a perfect no-man-to-reach-first base game, May 5, 1904. He is one of just five men to perform this feat.

Young wrapped 23 consecutive hitless innings around his masterpiece.

It was a no-hit game in which he struck out 18 McKeesport batters for Canton, Ohio, of the Tri-State league, July 25, 1890, that attracted the Cleveland club's attention.

Cy Young was right off the mowing machine when Davis Hawley, then secretary-treasurer of the Spiders, first saw him. He had outgrown his clothes, his sleeves failed to cover his wrists, his trousers appeared sawed-off at the ankles. He wore a low-crowned derby hat. Hawley bought him a complete new outfit so his prospect would not be ridiculed.

Cap Anson offered $1,000 for "the big rube" following Young's big league bow, in which he twice struck out the White Stockings' manager, Aug. 6, 1890, in holding the Chicago club to three puny hits.

Cleveland saw a tall, well-put-together young man who seemed to have made a study of sharp angles. The ball got to the batter before he realized it. His curves were unsolvable. He was as cool as Greenland's icy mountains.

WON FIRST WORLD SERIES

On Oct. 4 of that year, Young won both ends of a double-header from Philadelphia. Denton Tecumseh was one of baseball's iron men as well as one of its great pitchers.

When he switched to Boston with the birth of the American league, Young and Lou Criger formed the most talked of battery of the period.

Against 511 victories, Young had 315 losses for a lifetime average of .619. He struck out 2832, walked 1194.

Young thrice beat the Baltimore Orioles for Cleveland in the Temple Cup series of 1895, lost the only game he pitched in the same show the following autumn.

He was charged with a defeat in the first game, relieved in the third and won the fifth and seventh to give the new American league prestige in the bitter and first World Series in 1903—between the Red Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cy Young, pitching for the Boston Nationals, was beaten in his final game, 1—0, by a Philadelphia recruit named Grover Cleveland Alexander.

He didn't do badly, either.

Number 13 Plays Havoc At Game Between Chicago, Cincinnati

By ARNOLD DERLITZI

CHICAGO, April 22 (AP)—There's little wonder that Wrigley field was the scene of the season's first baseball casualty in yesterday's National League opener—little wonder, that is, if one looks askance at certain numbers, say 13, or regards that "third time" as a "charm."

In the very first inning, Eddie Stanky, Chicago sub rookie second baseman, was hit in the head by a pitched ball. He went down, but came up.

Then Pittsburgh shortstop Huck Geary, bothered by a pair of blistered ankles, lost his balance in completing a double play as Stanky sailed into the bag. Geary, too, went down; also came up.

But when Cub Catcher Clyde McCulough went sliding into second base in the third inning, he stayed down. He suffered a broken left ankle and will be out of the lineup some six weeks, thus becoming the major league's first casualty.

Quite a coincidence, of course, was the fact that:

Pittsburgh pitcher Truett Sewell went on to win his 13th victory in all time competition against the cubs;

The game marked the start of the 13th national league season for umpire George Barr and Cub Pitcher Paul Derringer, who was knocked from the box in the eighth.

Henry Wyse, rookie from Tulsa, reported, increasing the cub pitching staff to 13;

Glaud Passeau was the Cubs orignial pitching choice for yesterday but he developed a cold. His number is 13;

Oh yes, total hits in the ball game were 13, but the Cubs got only three. So maybe, that's why they lost, 6-0.

Hope And Hogan Win At Dallas

FORT WORTH, April 22 (AP)—Comedian Bob Hope moved into Fort Worth today for the next stop on his golfing schedule in furtherance of the war effort after helping the Dallas Country club obtain bond subscriptions totaling more than $300,000.

Hope will team with Ed Dudley, president of the PGA, against professional star Ben Hogan from Tarrant field and Col. O. E. Henderson of the Flying Training command. Proceeds will go to the Red Cross Motor Corps.

The corps benefitted from yesterday's exhibition at Dallas when some 5,000 golf fans turned out to see Hope and Hogan win over Dudley and Jack Munger, Dallas amateur, in a match cut to 10 holes because of a late start.

Hope will play in a golf match at Shreveport April 28 and at Birmingham May 2, Dudley announced.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, April 22 (AP)—The opening-day major league scores lead us to wonder whether the 1943 model baseball really is dead, or just the hitters . . . And what became of the idea that managers wouldn't let their prize pitchers risk their arms for more than four or five innings in the early games? Johnny Vander Meer and Mort Cooper probably will tell you they couldn't learn a thing now from Bill Cox' Commando training.

BIG TIME STUFF

New York City, which always has been a bush league town when it came to providing sports for kids, finally is coming up with a first-class competitive program this spring . . . One reason for the delay was that there wasn't any dough to buy prizes—and no prizes, no turnout . . . Now with $10,000 that it took all winter to dig up, the department of parks reports an entry of more than 20,000 boys and girls from 12 to 18 years old in 13 events, ranging from basketball and softball to shuffleboard and (no kidding) horseshoe pitching.

Absenteeism

The National Industrial Conference board estimates that absenteeism last year cost American industry the equivalent of 1,350,000 employes working full time. That is almost one-third of the manpower shortage the nation is said to face.

It is exclusive of an even greater loss through industrial accidents. It takes no account of non-industrial accidents, which exceed those in the plant. It does not include time lost on approved leaves of absence. Neither does it count time lost through strikes, sitdowns, slowdowns, "holidays," and "vacations"—which are euphemisms for the now unpopular word "strike"—or through other effects of labor disputes.

Absenteeism—the act of staying away from work without permission or prior notice—increased about 20 per cent last year and shows no signs of declining, which probably means that in spite of the urgent need for workers, the percentage is staying just about constant.

A large proportion of these absences are excusable. Many of them are inescapable. But also there are millions of man days lost for trivial personal reasons. It is not fair to workers to treat absenteeism as though it were entirely their fault—to lay the blame on laziness, disinterest, selfishness. Yet if the conference board's estimate is correct, and 45 per cent of such absences are unnecessary, then the equivalent of more than 500,000 full time workers were lost in 1942 because the men and women weren't interested enough to stay on the job.

Governmental agencies are aware of the damage which this situation is doing to war production. They are seeking to ascertain the fundamental causes.

Some sort of sanctions will have to be provided, by which workers who are not interested enough in American victory to stay on the job can be forced to do what they should be happy to do.

But first, it is necessary to study and, so far as possible, to eliminate the causes of justifiable absenteeism, in order that no major injustices shall be worked.

This is a job in which individual industries can and must help, but one which the government must sponsor, co-ordinate and assist. When the findings are complete, they will require cooperation—voluntary or otherwise—from many agencies not directly involved: from stores now closed at hours when workers must shop, from housing and transportation and amusement and medical and child care and a multitude of other services.

Reorganization Indicated

State and local governments are being driven by a war into making long-needed administrative reforms. A survey by the Civil Service Assembly shows a turnover of close to 50 per cent in key administrative and technical personnel. About half of those who leave are taken into the armed forces. The rest enter federal service, war industry, etc.

To meet such situations alert communities are revamping old setups. Louisville, for example, has reorganized the police department to offset the loss of 25 per cent of its experienced men. Wichita has completely revamped administrative machinery, consolidating 15 major departments into five.

Even the war cloud has a silver lining.

The Nation's Press

A SLIGHT CASE OF INSANITY

(The Chicago Tribune)

The department of agriculture has announced that, beginning April 30, the Surplus Commodities corporation will discontinue allocations of so-called surplus foods for school lunches, altho it is explained that schools now getting supplies will be carried thru the school year. As of June 30, handouts of food by the agency for direct relief also will be stopped.

The department of agriculture's announcement indicates that the Surplus Commodities corporation has no intention of folding up, tho there are no troublesome farm surpluses today and unemployment is almost unknown. It will continue its handouts into the summer and even then will not go out of business, but expects to shift its function as a government purchasing agent to lend-lease buying. Thus the New Deal rule that no pay roll may ever cease to exist will be faithfully observed.

The Surplus Commodities corporation program has just been brought to the attention of congress in the full flower of its insanity by the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers. The federation made an investigation disclosing that, as of March 1, the federal agency had more than 6,600,000 pounds of food with a value of almost 27,100,000 pounds piled up in warehouses in 22 cities thruout the state.

In this hoard were 2,473,757 cans of evaporated milk, 555,000 pounds of beans, 113,000 pounds of peanut butter, 176,000 pounds of cheese, 71,000 cans of applesauce, 78,000 pounds of grapefruit juice, more than a ton of lard, 1,038,000 pounds of pork and beans, 700,000 pounds of tomatoes, etc., etc. Altogether there was enough food to supply a full month's ration of 48 points for 563,000 people.

When the Federation of Taxpayers formally requested that Secretary of Agriculture Wickard release these mountainous stocks into the regular channels of trade or turn them over to military authorities, the only response was a pronunciamento from Washington that the stocks in Massachusetts were to be removed to some other place of concealment. As Norman MacDonald, executive director of the federation, remarked, "Thus the department, which has been fostering an intolerable situation, shows no interest in righting a wrong; it merely wants to punish Massachusetts because some one has had courage enough to bring to light the strange and unhappy shenanigans in which a major federal agency has been engaged."

The federation goes on to provide the crowning touch to this case history of burocratic insanity. It relates that last year, when the government was busy buying up surplus apples from Massachusetts farmers to be given to school lunch projects, the specifications were that the minimum size of the apples was to be 2¼ inches. The summer of 1942 was unusually good for apples, and they grew much larger than usual. The farmers packed their crates with these large apples at the same price and sent them to a freight depot for shipment.

At that point an interpretation of the specifications was received to the effect that at least one of the apples in each crate had to be exactly 2¼ inches in diameter; the rest could be larger. Three freight cars had already been loaded with 540 cases each when this interpretation was received. The farmers had to scurry around with a tape measure getting some 1600 odd apples exactly 2¼ inches in diameter, break into each of the 1600 odd cases already loaded in the cars, to say nothing of the cases they had already packed on their farms, and insert one of these 2¼ inch apples in each case.

Perhaps the Surplus Commodities corporation believes that an apple a day will keep the alienist away—if it's 2¼ inches in diameter. Certainly the agency is out to prove something that nobody in his right mind believes possible, i. e., that surplus and scarcity can exist in the same place at the same time. That's the only way it is possible to interpret a situation where 27,100,000 points' worth of foods that are scarce or unobtainable on the open market are available as a "surplus" free of charge. The only thing the SCC won't admit is that it represents a complete surplusage itself.

UNION LABOR'S NEW TACTICS

Walter Lippman says that union labor's new move as announced by Philip Murray and William Green after a conference at the White House April 1, is most promising. They have decided, he reports, "to restore and stabilize food prices" instead of trying to increase wages.

Of course this would be fine for union labor. After they have forced their wages up so that they get two or three times as much for their labor as the farmer gets for his, they now propose to "stabilize", that is, to freeze farm prices at their present levels.

This is nothing more than an attempt to hold the unfair advantage union labor at present has over the farmer.

But what Lippman, or Roosevelt or the union leaders fail to see or fail to explain is how we will be able to keep the farm workers on the farm at the present prices for farm crops without using some form of coercion, like drafting them, to keep them there.

This, of course, is not the American or practical way of dividing labor. It will only lead to civil war. We will not get full production if we go back to making men serfs to the land. It is not a promising step as Mr. Lippman seems to think. It is simply going back to a form of slavery.

It is the end result of trying to raise wage levels and improve the lot of the workers by collective bargaining. It can only be done for part of the workers by putting down the real wages of other workers as would be the case if the unions with the assistance of the government are able to hold farm prices at what the unions claim is parity or a stabilized level.

The end result will be simply a greater famine of food than we have at present.

PUBLIC VICES, PUBLIC BENEFITS?

During the middle ages, most people believed that private vices were public benefits. This belief was expressed by Mandeville in his small book, "Private Vices, Public Benefits". At that time, people believed that the rich man who was wasteful and extravagant was beneficial to the workers; that this was necessary so that poor people could have work to do. This belief existed for several centuries.

Then Adam Smith came along and in 1776 wrote the "Wealth of Nations", which discredited this theory that the rich had to waste and practice vices in order to be beneficial to the working class. Smith taught, as all economists since that time have taught, that it was not the wasting of the rich but the savings of the rich which were beneficial to the working class; that this furnished better tools and enabled the workers to produce more and, thus, get more.

But now for the last ten years, we have had a new philosophy. We have had the philosophy that public vices, public wastes, were beneficial to the poor.

But history will prove that neither rich people wasting, nor government wasting, is beneficial to the poor in the long run. We are finding that public waste and public mismanagement is making it more and more difficult to get even food, let alone comforts and luxuries of life.

If we shall judge people by the results they accomplish instead of by what they claim is their objective, we certainly have a right to conclude that the present Administration believes that public vices—the government's extravagance and waste—are public benefits.

Waste by private citizens did not help the poor during the middle ages and in the short span of ten years, we are finding that it is not helping anyone but the bureaucrats during this ten years of public vices.

In Tunisia

Reading between the lines of war dispatches from North Africa does nothing to inflate the American ego. Our soldiers, relatively green, are courageous and ambitious. They are in there slugging all the time. But when the big breaks come, it always is the British—and usually the Eighth Army—who open the door for them.

When we get full details it may prove that Rommel has thrown disproportionate power against General Patton's Yankees in order to protect his flanks on retreat. Right now, all we know is that our men have not been able to close the neck of the bottle, and whenever Montgomery's veterans press too hard the Old Fox slides northward out of the trap.

There is no royal road to experience in mechanized war.

LET'S PLAN FOR DECONTROL

(The Wall Street Journal)

In the middle of some lucid speculation on probable post-war economic conditions, the annual report of the National Bureau of Economic Research contains this paragraph:

However firmly people approve authoritative control during war as a dire necessity, they find its interferences with their own plans decidedly irksome. Business and labor, civilians and soldiers will be eager to rid themselves of hampering regulations it has been their duty to obey for trying months. The prospect of subjecting them to a new set of controls will be especially unwelcome when they are just freeing themselves from an old set.

Old set or new, Government controls would be worse than irksome in the transition from a war economy to a peace economy. They would heavily shackle the efforts of industrial units and business men of every sort to provide maximum employment and goods production, which are concededly the only reliable defenses against a painful post-war slump.

There is one variety of governmental planning we should all like to see, and have not—planning for the tapering-off of governmental controls, not alone the war-necessitated regulations, but some pre-war controls which have outlived any usefulness they ever possessed.

News Behind The News

BY RAY TUCKER

MISTAKE: President Roosevelt's insistence on secrecy regarding the proceedings of the Bermuda refugee conference and the Hot Springs food parley is interpreted by congress as an utter defiance of its prerogatives. That feeling lies behind Capitol Hill's demand that both the legislators and the press be represented at these extremely important assemblages.

It is generally forgotten but last fall F. D. R. rushed a measure to the Hill that would permit him to revise tariff and immigration laws at his discretion. It never got out of committee owing to the resentment it aroused among Democrats and Republicans alike. The farm bloc opposed it for fear the administration, in accordance with its free trade philosophy, would flood the country with competing edibles from abroad. Urban members flared up because they were worried that factory workers from stricken nations might be brought here to swell the labor supply.

What the solons suspect now is that the chief executive will try to accomplish the same purpose by indirection at the scheduled discussions with representatives of foreign powers. They expect him to rely on various war authority grants as warrant for negotiating agreements which will not have to be submitted to the senate for ratification.

The inside fact is that Mr. Roosevelt's own advisers are upset by his congress-be-damned attitude. They think he is making the same mistake as Woodrow Wilson made when he refused to send topnotch Republicans like the late Henry Cabot Lodge and William Howard Taft to Versailles. The League of Nations might have been approved had the First World War President not antagonized and flaunted the men at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue.

PROD: The stalemate regarding a sorely needed revenue bill was spotlighted the seniority schedule by which men unfit for key positions automatically become chairmen of the most influential committees in congress. In this instance the central figure happens to be Representative Bob Doughton of the Tar Hell state, but his case is typical of many others.

"Muley" Doughton, as his friends call him, came from a town of only a few hundred people, Laurel Springs, North Carolina. It is estimated that a tenth of the constituents in his entire district, or thirty thousand at the most, work in factories and depend on a pay roll for their livelihood. Yet he heads the body which fixes—or tries to—the terms under which millions of people must part with their incomes.

He can afford to defy the White House, the Treasury and the majority of his colleagues because his folks are just not sufficiently interested to make him get a move on. Most of the other Democratic members of Ways and Means also hail from small communities which pay scant attention to the problems this group is supposed to solve.

The identity of the chairmen of both the House and Senate Labor committees explains why legislation designed to correct abuses in their field has been smothered. Representative Mary Norton of the lower chamber unit is the political creation of Jersey City's Mayor Frank Hague, who, although he has never shone as a liberal, needs the votes of workingmen. On the other side, ex-Professor Elbert D. Thomas of Salt Lake City sits on the lid because his agricultural constituents do not prod him into action.

PROFITS: A popular conception is that, when our expeditionary forces have opened a couple of continents and our aircraft plants have shifted from bombers to cargo planes, we shall enjoy tremendously lucrative world trade. Experts in this field are holding conferences in New York this month regarding future commerce. They expect to make money again but not on the day after the guns grow cold.

For example, shrewd capitalists do not overemphasize the position of China in the coming economic pattern. They say that before the Japanese onset the entire foreign trade of our Oriental partner's four hundred million people was only two-thirds that of little Denmark. Today our ivestment in Chile is greater than that in the entire Far East.

The destruction of Germany's industrial machine would permit us to do more business with South America, for Berlin previously had a virtual monopoly on sales below the isthmus.

Manufacturers are now inclined to favor the building of factories in so-called backward states. We fought the Revolutionary War because King George III wanted us to remain an agricultural nation dependent on England for goods. It is illogical to deny to other lands the right which we sought and won.

A cotton mill in India, for instance, would compete with New England textiles, but it would raise the standard of living of the natives in the vicinity. These better-paid workers would then buy other American products. Multiply the units by hundreds or thousands and Hindu purchasing power would yield profits to United States firms.

SLUMP: Most economists think Uncle Sam should stop the manufacture of weapons immediately after the fighting ends. Tapering off would not only waste money but also consume raw materials needed to replenish starved private enterprise. But a shutdown would throw thousands out of work and create pools of regional unemployment. Some of these idle persons would have war bonds and savings. Victory plant cities with real-estate crashes on their hands would not want to be saddled with new welfare loads.

Hence business experts are advocating "stake money" or "transfer bonuses"—small cash advances to discharged workers to pay their train fares home (or to sections where independent factories would be calling for men). The funds could provide small nestegg also. Unless temporary aid is distributed to keep the jobless from want, all the old snake-oil doctors and demagogues of the depression era will be putting the squeeze on congress for unsound socialistic relief measures.

Another plan for cushioning the first postwar business slump is one under which, after the European phase of the struggle, many munitions companies could commence to retool and even start fabricating civilian goods on a small scale. They could increase output as manpower is released from strictly war trades. Already many firms have discovered that with a few relatively minor adjustments they can quickly turn out peacetime articles—often in different lines from their former wares. Other establishments too have learned short cuts — a fact which will create stiff competition.

Oil's Well---But Could Be Better

BY PETER EDSON
Pampa News Washington Correspondent

Experts in the office of Petroleum Co-ordinator for War Harold L. Ickes are having another gander at the situation with regard to the fuel oil and gasoline supply. The results may be ready in another couple weeks, but the inside indications now are that there can't possibly be any easing up on summer driving restrictions, nor any hope that there will be more fuel oil next winter.

All this bad news can be announced with certainty in spite of the fact that the petroleum supply line situation has improved considerably in the last few weeks.

Delivery of petroleum products to the east by tank car increased to over 948,000 barrels a day during the second week in April. Railroad men say it will go to a full million barrels a day before long. Normal delivery by tanker used to be 1.5 million barrels a day to the eastern seaboard, so deliveries will be two-thirds of pre-war average.

This increase in deliveries by tank car is directly attributable to the opening of the 24-inch pipeline from Texas to Norris City, Ill., several weeks ago. That meant the tank cars didn't have to go all the way back to Texas oil fields to be refilled. The time for a round trip for each tank car was thus reduced from an average of 17 days to an average of 10 days, meaning that they could haul just that much more stuff.

PIPELINE NEAR COMPLETION

By July, this big inch pipeline will be completed all the way to Philadelphia and New York, permitting delivery of as much as 300,000 barrels a day to the east by this means.

Furthermore, by the end of 1943 it is hoped to have a second, 20-inch pipeline completed, paralleling and running over the same right of way as the 24-inch, permitting delivery of another 100,000 barrels a day.

Add to that the delivery of approximately 200,000 barrels a day by barge, and it may begin to appear that by Jan. 1, 1944, deliveries of petroleum products to the east might even be above the 1.5 million barrels a day which was normal back in 1941 when all the oil used to come into the east by tanker through the Gulf and up the Atlantic coast.

But there are a couple of catches in that, and here's where the bad news comes in.

BAD WITH THE GOOD

First, when the 24 and 20-inch pipelines are completed the 71,000 or more tank cars now hauling petroleum products to the east over the rails will have to go back in service over the long haul, all the way from Texas and back. That will again increase the time required for one round trip to 17 days and will cut down the amount that can be delivered to the east by tank car from a million or more barrels a day to 800,000 barrels a day.

Second, petroleum reserve stocks on the eastern seaboard are now lower than they have ever been. The American Petroleum Institute figures just released show that eastern oil stocks as of April 10 were only 28.8 per cent of the average stock on hand at this time of year in 1940 and '41.

Third, nobody knows what the army and navy requirements are except the army and navy, and they can't tell. Also, they don't know what their unexpected requirements may be a month, two months or six months ahead. That the services will continue to draw upon these eastern deliveries is fairly obvious. A sudden demand for an extra supply for some convoy may mean that any previous calculation may have to be wastebasketed on 15 minutes' notice.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Writer

Japan's barbaric atrocity in executing American airmen who were prisoners of war gives point with a vengeance to the current Allied reiteration that the Axis powers and Nipon must surrender unconditionally.

As President Roosevelt has said, all those who participated in this frightfulness will be brought to justice.

We could expect nothing better from a nation which for years has been pouring deliberate murder from the skies upon defenseless women and childrn in China. The bombing atrocitis at Nanking still horrify civilized countries. Who can forget the mass rapings and murders of European women in Hongkong? Or the treachery at Pearl Harbor?

Announcement of this fresh crime came after Washington and London reaffirmed that nothing but unconditional surrender will be accepted from the enemy. Presidnt Roosevelt and Avila Camacho emphasized it at their meeting at Monterrey, Mexico and British Foreign Secretary Eden evoked cheers from the house of commons by a similar statement.

There came to my desk today a little Associated Press feature pointing out that this day, 25 years ago, Baron Von Richtofen, Germany's greatest air ace, was shot down behind the British lines in France and was buried with military honors. This item struck me as giving a perfect illustration of the difference between this war and the last.

President Avila Camacho gave us the key to this differnce when he said of the present conflict that "we must above all destroy the machinery of barbarism constructed by the dictators."

The Allies repsected Richtofen because he was a clean fighter. He always would dip his wings in salute and sail away if an enemy pilot's mechanism jammed and left him helpless.

Today we are fighting pure barbarism. The Japs have demonstrated this anew in the crime they perpetratd on our men. Recently the inter-allied information committee of the United Nations in London stated that 3,400,000 people had been executed or had died in prison in Nazi-occupied countries by the end of 1942. We don't have to accept this staggering figure to prive the point, for the Boche themselves have announced numerous mass executions of civilians and boasted of them as reprisals.

That's why we are going to force unconditional surrender and smash barbarism.

MONTADORES

CHAPTER XVI

HIS fever had once more miraculously disappeared during the night. Barry woke to the golden fragrance of a tropic morning feeling weak but clear-headed. He lay listening to the loud chatter of macaws, parrots and the thousand and one varieties of birds that flashed their bright hues about the estancia.

"Good morning, lazy bones!"

Allison was in his doorway. There was a bright light of eagerness in her as she carried in his tray, laughter in her voice. She spread his napkin for him and touched her small hand lightly to his forehead.

"You're fine," she said with malicious joy. "No excuse for not coming out and helping initiate my zoot caps."

"What are you talking about?" Barry frowned as he drank his pineapple juice. She stood beside him laughing, her golden hair a ragged auriole about her heart-shaped face whose whiteness had now disappeared under a honey tan.

"Meet me out in the clearing and you'll see," she taunted.

Barry drank his coffee and ate the two eggs with relish this morning. He felt stronger than he had for a long time and a surge of fresh hope went through him. Maybe he had thrown the fever for a real loss this time. He got up and put on the clothes laid out for him and went out of the estancia.

It was a large thatched house on stilts with a broad veranda, from which could be seen the half dozen smaller shacks of the chicleros and the wide clearing that surrounded the massed estancias. On every side crouched the vibrant green lush jungle waiting to devour the puny resistance of man's efforts against it.

Barry made his way unsteadily down the broad steps of the estancia and crossed the sun-washed, muddy clearing toward the boiling kettles. Allison sauntered to meet him.

"The montadores came in this morning," she reported breathlessly.

"Montadores?" Barry puzzled.

* * *

HER eyes twinkled with mischief. "Montadores are our chicle scouts, tenderfoot."

"Yes, my calloused chiclero," Barry retorted meekly.

"You see" she explained, "It's very naughty of them, but zapote trees don't grow all in one place. They go just where they please to live their lives."

"Like you," jeered Barry.

"Like me," she laughed. "... we have to send out montadores to cut trails to the new gro... Rough boys, aren't they?"

She and Barry joined the t... montadores who stood in the s... near the boiling kettles giving the... report to Renaldo. They we... powerful, ugly-looking native... looking more like exhauste... filthy animals than men after thei... long, grueling tussle with th... jungle.

Renaldo turned to greet Barry with a smile. "Sounds like we've got a fair-sized grove from what they say," he said, his voice ringing with satisfaction.

"Isn't it thrilling?" Allison cried. "To just go out and discover your orchard?"

"Thrilling maybe, but tough," mused Barry as the two montadores, now dismissed, moved heavily off toward their estancias. His gaze returned to the girl beside him. Her violet eyes were wide and shining.

"That's it," she was whispering. "That's the jungle. Thrilling—and tough. You can scream your head off, but you can't faze it. You have to fight every minute for your life."

Barry's mouth dropped open in amazement. "Why, you scrappy little varmint," he said.

Renaldo laughed, but the look he turned on Allison was pure devotion. "She understands the jungle," he said.

Allison caught Barry's arm with sudden change of mood. "Come on," she cried jubilantly. "You're going to see my zoot caps." She walked quickly down the wide trail striped with yellow sunlight and deep shadow that led to the closest group of zapote trees. But, though she chattered gaily, Barry noted her hand rested lightly on the small gun in the holster slung about her slender hips, and her eyes kept alertly on the path ahead.

* * *

SHE broke off to answer his unspoken question., "Bushmasters," she said shortly. "Renaldo says they're the meanest snakes in the jungle. They'll find a path that's used often and lie in wait all day for a victim."

"I know," Barry agreed. "But you mean you've learned to shoot that gun already?"

"You can learn fast when you have to," she laughed.

They had come to the group of ...apote trees and stopped to watch ...e native chiclero slashing a zig... gash down the length of the ...pote trunk. Barry found he ...as seething with sudden anger ...er the girl's statements.

"Look here," he protested, as ... waited for the chiclero to de... nd, "you don't have to stay out ...re in the jungle."

She didn't answer, and he prod... d, "Do you?"

She shrugged then and looked ... at him, confusion and laughter ...th in her eyes. "You don't have ... do anything," she murmured, ...ncluding live. But you find ...ourself in the midst of something ...ou want to go on with for a while. I never know why. But ...t doesn't matter, does it? It keeps ...t all pretty fascinating." She broke off to point with excitement. "Now you can see the zoot cap."

The chiclero was almost at the foot of the tree. He wore sharp leg irons to dig in and hold himself upright against a rope looped around himself and the tree. He was naked except for loin cloth and a white hood with visor which tied under his chin. Barry suppressed a laugh at the startling combination.

"Is that bonnet supposed to be a thing of beauty?" he asked.

"Certainly not," snapped Allison. She called the native to lower his head, and pointed triumphantly at stains on the visor. "Poison drippings from the compadre tree," she said. "Some of those drops might have gone in his eyes. Later on, I'm going to see if I can send for some goggles. Meanwhile," she added proudly, "the sides of the cap protect his ears from that nasty insect that lives in the top of the zapote tree."

The chiclero had reached the ground. Another Indian was hanging a canvas bag to a peg driven at the bottom of the zigzag gash, and the chicle was already flowing along the jagged cuts.

"Lady," said Barry, "you come right after the grand canyon. Now if you'd use a little of your ingenuity to make a little sense out of your own plans."

She brushed a bright tumble of hair back with the back of her hand and gave him an impish smile. "Don't worry about my plans, my fine-feathered friend," she murmured. "Just be on your guard." She turned sharply and started back through the muddy path toward the estancia, leaving Barry grinning helplessly after her.

Tank Destroyer School In Texas To Be Expanded

CMP HOOD, Tex., Apr. 22 (AP)—These spring-clad Texas hills, lair of lurking tank destroyers, will burgeon more bad news for the Axis next week.

Already the army's largest tank destroyer center in point of area, Camp Hood will become one of the nation's largest training camps with occupation of north Camp Hood.

Four miles south of Gatesville and occupying the northern end of Camp Hood's 170,000 warrior - breeding acres, North Camp Hood will house approximately 35,000 troops for basic training as tank destroyer forces.

Its complement will bring the reservation's manpower total to more than 80,000, camp officials said today.

The new cantonment will ease pressure on the main camp's crowded facilities.

Col. Charles M. Thirkeld, Camp Hood post commander, already has set up headquarters at the North Camp as a preclude to April 26 movement of the tank destroyer replacement training center from the main camp to the new.

With announcement of the date of movement, Camp Hood officials revealed today that the replacement training center within the past week began shipment of men for battle replacement by train after 13 weeks specialized instruction.

The tank destroyer replacement training center will occupy the new camp's southern half.

Occupant of the north half will be the basic unit training center, organizer of tank destroyer battalions and now at Camp Bowie, Tex. It will move in as soon as the replacement training center's transfer is complete.

Col. Harry Thompson commands the basic unit training center.

Remaining at the original camp are these major units:

The tank destroyer school:

The advanced unit training center, which completes the training of battalions:

The tank destroyer training brigade, which provides school troops —including tanks and mechanized cavalry—for staging demonstrations and problems: and

One of the largest ordnance maintenance setups in the army, with maintenance battalions under training in extensive shops.

The combined camps will be under the same training and service commands. Creator and organizer of the tank destroyer center is Maj. Gen. A. D. Bruce.

The north camp will have its own tank hunting course of hills and valleys. It is only one of several on the reservation. Captain Richard E. East, former North Carolina State college athlete and a small arms expert, will have charge of the new course.

Principal innovation at the north camp will be a huge hillside amphitheater accommodating 8,000 men. Mass instruction and recreation projects will be handled there.

Increased Rail Rates Fought By Texans

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP)—The Texas traffic league has petitioned the interstate commerce commission to vacate its order of December 18, 1942, granting increased railway rates on intrastate traffic in Texas.

The increase was the same granted railroads in an order for interstate traffic, effectiveness of which the commission postponed on April 6 from May 15, 1943, to January 4, 1944. The increased ranged from three to six per cent.

The Texas traffic organization told the ICC that unless the December 18 order applying to Texas was set aside as of May 15, 1943, Texas intrastate rates will be subject to the postponed interstate increase, thus resulting in discrimination.

Joining in the petition were the chambers of commerce of Beaumont, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, San Antonio, and Waco; various city traffic agencies and farm and livestock organizations.

Congress To Get Details On U. S. Food Proposals

His statement was issued Tuesday after the house agriculture and foreign affairs committee conferred at length behind closed doors with assistant secretary of state Dean G. Acheson. It follows:

"The proposed conference will deal with post-war food problems, relating to production, distribution and consumption.

"It is a fact-finding conference. Before meeting in conference our delegates appointed by the president of the United States will meet with the agricultural committees of the senate and house and submit their program for the purpose of discussing same with these committees, giving their views thereon, as well as receiving the views of the members of these committees."

Simultaneously, Fulmer said that Acheson had told the committee that a "definite program" was being worked out to admit the press "at the proper times" to some of the conference sessions at Hot Springs, Va. Previous plans called for coverage of only the opening and closing sessions.

INPISPENSABLE

BUHLER, Kas.—Carl G. Heidebrecht was set to enter the navy.

A delegation called on him, promising a $50-a-month raise if he'd stay home and continue as marshal, Waterworks superintendent, acting mayor, Fire chief, street sutaker.

In his liesure time Heidebrecht is OCD chaiman.

Reluctantly, he gave up the naval career.

NO FOWL PLAY, NOW!

COFFEYVILLE, Kas.—She hasn't heard about meat rationing!

"Quack, quack," a wild duck domesticated by Robert Chapman two years ago, became a household pet. Last November her wings re-spouted and she returned to the gypsy life of wild fowl.

She's back now, occupying her old corner in the hen house.

OUT OF REACH

BUTLER, Pa. — A thief who sneaked into St. Paul's Catholic church and attempted to rob the poor box left empty-handed.

The pastor, the Rev. P. K. Collins, told police a chute now carried the contributions into the basement.

TOO CLOSE

WASHINGTON — A group of Charles county, Md., residents want the state's members of congress to persuade the navy to place a proposed bombing range somewhere other than in their district.

The group told Senators Tydings and Radcliffe and Rep. Sascer that there now are "three o rfour" naval projects in the area and that the addition of a bombing range would be "too much."

EMBARRASSER

HOUSTON — The young man asked the draft board staff how soon he might be inducted.

He blushed when he saw all the clerks staring at the baby in his arms.

"I'm not trying to arouse sympathy," he protested.

"My wife is working and I couldn't find anyone to stay with the boy."

SALVAGE DRIVE

PORTLAND, Ore. — Despite it all, the rooster was tasty and tender, reported Harold M. Flick, who ate it.

He'd found, in the bird's craw, 27 brass rifle cartridges.

FROST-BITE MEDICINE

DENVER — To the people who scrape putty off new windows:

The OPA has heard about your troubles with frost-bitten fingers, at the army ski-trooper camp at Pando in 40-below-zero weather; and it has authorized a fee of eight cents a window pane instead of four and a half.

Black Markets Deprive Army Of Medical Aid

WASHINGTON, Apr. 22 (AP)—Another reason why you shouldn't buy black market meat—

The office of war information reported today that illegal butchering deprives American soldiers of potential surgical and medical aids.

By-products of slaughtering are lost by the black market butchers who works "secretly and in haste" and keeps only the readily salable cuts, throwing the rest away, OWI said.

Lost by such practices are gut-thread for surgical sutures; adrenalin, used to check hemorrhage and as a heart stimulant, and insulin.

Also destroyed are gelatin needed for military photographic film, hides for leather, and rendering fats from which glycerine—basic in the production of nitro-glycerine—is obtained.

Consumers themselves can make the biggest contribution toward defeating "the new saboteurs, who place profits above patriotism and personal gain over the lives of our fighting youth," OWI said, by simply refusing to pay more than ceiling prices for meats.

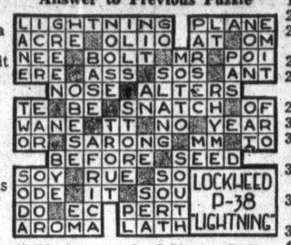

By-products foodstuffs and fertilizer vital to this country's effort to fed the Allies also are destroyed by the clandestine slaughterers, OWI said, and many edible parts—kidneys, hearts, tongues, liver and sweetbreads—which "would go a long way in stretching America's meat stocks," are being thrown away.

President Lauds U. S. Marines

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C., April 14 (Delayed) — President Roosevelt, starting a second wartime inspection tour—this time of military centers—saw today how the United States marines toughen awkward recruits and convert them into some of the world's most feared and famous fighting units.

Seated in an open car, the chief executive drove through the Parris island marine corps training station while the commanding officer, Maj. Gen. E. P. Moses, told him how it had been turning out 1000 men a week since Pearl Harbor.

Thousands of boot camp recruits were drawn up in long, straight lines on a parade ground, and their commander-in-chief spoke to them briefly and with obvious pride after roaming over the entire post.

"Men," he said, "I congratulate you on being marines. I have followed the marine corps many, many years. It was justt hirty years ago that I was here at Port Royal.

"I have seen you in Haiti, Santo Domingo, and in France and on the Rhine. Some ow you younger men may not appreciate it, but I was not in the halls of Montezuma or on the shores of Tripoli.

"I congratulate you all on being here. You are a credit to the marine corps, and I can't say more than that."

Another audience might have yelled itself hoarse, but not a muscle budged in the disciplined ranks.

River Authority Curbs Suggested In Legislature

AUSTIN, April 22 (AP)—A special house committee which has developde a 1000-page record of testimony in an investigation of two river authorities today had recommended passage of laws considerably clipping the power of these and other five authorities.

The committee report was signed by four members, Rep. Jo Humphrey of Abilene declining to sign.

Chairman Jo Ed Winfree of Houston announced the committee's findings were not complete but the group had heard sufficient testimony regarding the lower Colorado and Guadalupe-Blanco authorities to ask that the legislature:

Make it unlawful for authorities to pay fees and commissions for the acquisition of utility properties.

Require the attorney general to supervise all legal work and approve all agreements for the employment of any other counsel needed by authorites.

Prevent authorities from fixing a resale price for power. (The committee asserted fixing resale rates was contrary to public policy.)

Prohibit or control the use of authorities' money for advertising and propaganda.

Prevent an authority from entering into any incorporated city unless authorized to do so by an ordinance adopted by that city.

Prohibit Texas authorities from entering into any contract with any agency not subject to the jurisdiction of Texas courts.

Compel authorties to devote part of their revenue to construction of flood control structures on the lower reaches of the river upon which an authority operates.

Require auhorities to compensate public school funds—state, county, and local—for losses in taxes resulting from their acquisition of properties.

While the group made no ecommendation on the subject, it questioned he authority of conservation districts operating seam power plants for generating electicity. It also stated it believed the legislature conemplated that one river district should not invde the territory of another.

The committee concluded its report with this observaion:

"Under the guise of flood control and reclamation projects these river authorities if they follow the policies set out by the present management may eventually present a greater problem than the holding company evils with which we have had to contend in the past."

'Latchkey Children' Cause Most Trouble

AUSTIN, April 22 (AP)—"Latchkey children"—who can enter and leave their homes at will—have caused juvenile delinquency to double in many Texas communities, a special committee has reported to the legislature.

Mothers employed in war industries are one of the chief causes of rising juveline delinquency, the report submitted yesterday declares.

The committee, headed by Sen. Vernon Lemens of Waxahachie, and made up of representatives of parents, teachers and serviceo rganizations was created by the 47th legislature.

The family and community were urged to assume greater responsibility for children care. The report pointed out that war casualties already have created so many orphans that state homes have a waiting list of 500.

Stimson Inspects Texas Army Camp

CAMP HOOD, Texas, Apr. 22 (AP)—The tanned and toughened personnel of the tank destroyer center have shown secretary of war Henry L. Stimson what the enemy can expect in the not distant future.

The hardy young soldiers went through their paces before the secretary of war, Major General Alexander D. Surles, director of the war department bureau of public relations, and Lt. Col. W. H. S. Wright, aide to the secretary of war, during a visit to the camp last Monday, authorities disclosed last night.

The war department officials were shown over the 160,000-acre camp by Major General A. D. Bruce, commanding general of the center.

Lord Beaverbrook Is 'Satisfied'

LONDON, Apr. 22 (AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, one of the most outspoken British advocates for early opening of a second front, indicated Tuesday he was satisfied with government policy on that question.

He surprised the house of lords by announcing he did not propose to press a motion calling attention of the government to the "opportunity offered by the successful progress of the campaign in Tunisia for compelling the enemy forthwith to fight on a second front in Europe."

German 'Chute Troops Active In Tunisia War

By EDWARD KENNEDY

AN ADVANCVED NORTH AFRICAN AIR BASE, April 22 (AP)—The enemy is waging an unceasing parachute troop campaign in North frica.

Parachute troop operations in Holland and Crete were among the war's most spectacular performances. The operations here have been so dull and unfruitful they pass almost unnoticed.

But they have been pursued for months and in the aggregate hundreds of parachute troops have come down—and almost every one has been rounded up.

The North African parachute troop operations, other than those of the Allies in last November's landings, have been carried on almost entirely by the Italians and in piecemeal fashion.

Every few nights a plane-load of them, usually from 12 to 25, is dropped; sometimes just behind the front and sometimes more than a hundred miles on this side of the line. They carry explosives.

Their assignment, apparently, is to achieve what demolitions they can, then get captured. Their main achievement has been the blowing up of a few unimportant bridges which have been restored rapidly.

Some of them have landed adjacent to airfields and other important installations, but as far as can be determined they have not succeeded in damaging anything as these places are too well-guarded by quick-trigger sentinels.

The captures have been made mainly by the French on the basis of information obtained from Arabs. The French have a sliding scale of payments. They also pay Arabs for capturing parachute troops—3000 francs for delivering a dead parachute trooper and 5000 for a live one. For exceptional services the Arabs also give the Arabs enough cloth for a native costume. This is more prized than money in a country where textiles are short.
