LOTS OF FLAGS will be displayed in Snyder Monday as the country observes Flag Day, but this flag, which will be displayed at the Girl Scout House will have special interest to 15 Brownie, Junior, and Cadette Girl Scout Troops in Snyder which contributed toward its purchase. Members of Cadette Troop 325 pictured with the flag are Cheryl Wilkins, Pam Black, Gayle Beckham and Patty Smith. Congressman Omar Burleson arranged for the flag's purchase, and with it came a certification that the flag had flown over the United States Capitol in Washington.

Heavy Fighting Flares Again Near Dong Xoai

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Renewed fighting flared tonight outside Dong Xoai between 500 Viet Cong guerrillas and a Vietnamese airborne battalion, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The spokesman said a U. S. Air Force pilot was killed when enemy grounf fire in the area, 60 miles north of Saigon, downed his F100 Supersabre jet.

The source said the 7th Airborne Battalion — an estimated 450 men — was under heavy attack and apparently retreating toward Dong Xoai. It had been pressing the Viet Cong back after a bloody battle Thursday and Friday.

Three companies in the battalion went to the aid of a fourth that was reported heavily engaged with the Viet Cong about two miles north of Dong Xoai.

The downed American pilot was flying in support of the government troops. Witnesses said he ejected before the plane crash and his parachute apparently opened.

However, a U.S. Army helicopter sent to evacuate him reported he was dead. He was the 410th known U.S. casualty of the war, but the total may go higher where final results of the fighting at Dong Xoai are known.

Three Americans are known dead and 15 are missing.

In the air, U.S. warplanes reported they sank or damaged 15 boats in a strike about 120 miles inside North Viet Nam.

A U.S. military spokesman said the vessels opened fire on the four U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs just before they attacked. The planes dropped eight tons of bombs on the boats during the 30-minute strike.

In another raid over North Viet Nam, the spokesman said 25 F-105 Thunderchiefs hammered several targets about 130 miles southwest of Hanoi near the Laotian border. They destroyed three buildings at the Muong Sen communications site and seven military barracks.

The planes dropped 30 tons of bombs on the targets. Light automatic weapons fire was encountered, but all the planes returned safely, the spokesman said.

Two U.S. Navy A1 Skyraiders cratered both approaches to a three-span steel bridge in an attack along Route 7 about 150 miles southwest of the North Vietnamese capital. Both planes returned safely to the carrier Midway.

In air strikes inside South Viet Nam, the spokesman said U.S. Navy planes flew some 70 sorties Friday against Viet Cong positions in the southernmost Fourth Army Corps area.

In the 1st Army Corps area, 15 U. S. Air Force F100 jets splashed 45 tanks of napalm and poured 750 pound bombs into a reported Viet Cong concentration 14 miles west of the Quang Tri Province capital.

Government Is Returned To Generals

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Mounting public pressure and an internal feud were climaxed today by the resignation of South Viet Nam's four-month-old civilian government, which returned power to the generals.

It marked the eighth change of government in the war-torn country since strongman President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and assassinated less than 20 months ago.

Prime Minister Phan Huy Quat and Chief of State Phan Khac Suu, who had clashed over a Cabinet shakeup, agreed to stay on in caretaker roles with other members of the government.

But the National Charter and the Legislative Council were eliminated and a highly placed source said that "at this point we are starting absolutely from scratch."

Although the situation was still fluid, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu was serving as a spokesman for the military leaders, Thieu was deputy prime minister and defense minister in the Quat cabinet. Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, the flamboyant commander of the Vietnamese air force, also was viewed as having a strong voice.

But there were no clues as to what form the new government would take.

The step-down was announced in a joint communique by Quat, Suu, and the National Legislative Council after a night meeting between top Vietnamese military and political figures. It came after three weeks of mounting pressure for Quat's resignation from Roman Catholics and other dissident elements.

SYMBOLIC OF THE TRANSFER OF OWNERSHIP, the keys to the Humble Oil and Refining Company district office here were presented to Mayor M. L. Broman, center, by S. J. Bottler, Jr., Humble Area Production Manager from Midland. Mayor Broman, in turn, gave the keys to Harold Bennett, left, president of the Snyder school board. The building will be remodeled by the schools and used as a cottage-type classroom for trainable children.

Humble Gift Of Property To Aid Special Education Here

Humble Oil and Refining Company's gift of their district office building and property on Thirty - seventh Street and El Paso Avenue was described as "the answer to our prayers" by Mrs. Maurine Robinson, director of special education in Snyder schools.

The formal deeding of the property to the City of Snyder was done at a luncheon here Friday.

J. S. Bottler, Jr., of Midland, Area Production Manager for Humble, presented the keys to the building and deed to the property to M. L. Broman, mayor of Snyder. Mayor Broman in turn turned over the keys to Harold Bennett, president of the board of trustees of the Snyder Independent School District.

In his informal remarks during the presentation Bottler said that he felt it was particularly appropriate that the property be used as an educational facility. He said that Humble felt that they were in a small way helping to repay the debt the Humble employes and the company owed to the school system of Snyder for the fine educations that had been given to the children of Humble employes.

"Snyder has been a very popular town with our employes," Bottler said, and added that the school system was in large part responsible for this high regard that Humble employes have for Snyder. "Humble and its employes are keenly aware of the value of education," Bottler concluded.

Mayor Broman, in accepting the deed, said he spoke for all the citizens of Snyder, and expressed thanks on their behalf or Humble's making possible this forward step in the training of Snyder's exceptional children.

City Manager George Patterson added that the city was happy to make the property available to the schools since the schools would be able to use the property for its "highest and most noble use."

Pat Falls, representing the Snyder School District, accepted the responsibility on behalf of the school administration in doing their part in making the property as useful as possible for the training school.

Mrs. Robinson spoke briefly, describing to the Humble executives from Midland and Andrews the program and its aims. She said that the building itself was "almost too good to be true" and that it would be a model for other "cottage-type" facilities which will be built by other school systems in the future.

Mrs. Robinson said that very few similiar facilities have been provided by school districts in this country, and that she knew of no others in the state of Texas. She added that she expects numerous visits and inquiries regarding the program here in the months and years to come.

Board president Bennett said that he was proud of the Snyder schools and the way they had accepted the responsibility for the training and education of the exceptional children and the retarded youngsters of the community, and pledged to "continue to do all we can to carry on this program as a benefit to all humanity."

Death Toll Increases In Sanderson Flood

SANDERSON, Tex. (AP) — Three more bodies were found today raising the known death toll to 16 in the flash flood Friday which devastated this Southwest Texas town.

State police said the bodies were found in Sanderson Canyon. They were not at once identified.

The list of missing increased as relatives and friends reported to the disaster control center. The list during the early morning stood at 18, but officials said several other names later were added to the list.

Damage wrought by the flash flood was estimated at $2 million.

The flood was triggered by an 11-inch cloudburst over the watershed of normally dry Sanderson Canyon creek.

The damage estimate was made by Rep. Richard White, D-Tex., from El Paso, who arrived in the stricken town at 3 a.m.

The Red Cross reported 54 homes destroyed, 36 badly damaged and 133 others with minor damage. Twenty-one trailer homes were either destroyed or badly damaged. Eighteen businesses were either washed away or badly damaged.

Railroads and highways suffered heavily. Southern Pacific Railroad reported five miles of track washed out and three major bridges destroyed.

Scores of bulldozers moved into the stricken town to begin cleanup operations.

Meanwhile, Sanderson Canyon Creek — the source of the floodwaters — returned to a trickling stream today — six inches deep.

The Rio Grande, into which Sanderson Creek empties, was on a sharp rise above Del Rio today. The river was expected to crest at Del Rio, below Sanderson, at 18 or 19 feet. Floodstage at Del Rio is 15 feet. The Rio Grande floodwaters were expected to flatten out somewhat before reaching Laredo.

The Pecos River was at floodstage at Sheffield, west of here, last night, but was back in its banks early today.

An 11-inch cloudburst sent water gushing 15 feet deep through sluice-like Sanderson Canyon, demolished 75 houses and a dozen business places, and isolated this far West Texas town for hours Friday. Ironically, the rainfall in this arid spot averages only 16 inches a year.

As roads were slowly reopened, peace officers from 15 counties gathered to hunt on horseback for the missing.

The raging flood waters, although ebbing swiftly, confused efforts to count the dead by washing at least two bodies from graves in the Sanderson cemetery.

Three hundred homeless were fed and sheltered in a grade school. Up to 200 others were taken 65 miles north to Fort Stockton over the first route reopened.

Skies cleared and the sun reappeared to start drying soaked ruins as outside help began arriving in late afternoon.

Two and three feet of mud stood in ruined homes and stores. Debris was left in jumbled heaps 8 to 10 feet tall — clothing, household effects, mantled automobiles, railroad cars and all sorts of wreckage. Ripped up railroad tracks stuck up at crazy angles.

Toughest Mission Ahead

AP Aerospace Writer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — America's space twins prepared today for what fellow astronauts have called "the toughest part of the mission"—the inevitable round of receptions, parades and celebrations.

Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II relaxed at their homes near the Manned Space Center in Houston, resting for the busy week ahead.

It starts Monday with a ticker tape parade in Chicago. There's a homecoming celebration Tuesday at the University of Michigan and hometown welcomings Wednesday in Jackson, Mich., for McDivitt, and in San Antonio, Tex., for White.

McDivitt and White got a big surprise Friday — a "little something" from President Johnson in the way of promotions. They changed their gold major's leaves on their Air Force tunics to the silver of lieutenant colonels.

The President's first visit to the Manned Spacecraft Center resulted from a decision made by McDivitt and White. They had been given a choice of receiving the presidential congratulations at the center or the LBJ Ranch. They chose Houston so fellow employes at the center could share the congratulations.

Johnson's announcement of the on - the - spot promotions brought shocked expressions to the spacemen and their wives. The astronauts became majors only last December.

While speaking before 4,000 space center employes who sweltered under a hot Texas sun, Johnson also promoted Air Force Majs. L. Gordon Cooper and Virgil I. Grissom to lieutenant colonel.

Grissom was command pilot for the first manned Gemini mission. Cooper is scheduled to command a seven-day mission in late August.

Rains Ease Over State

By The Associated Press

Skies cleared over much of the state today after a week of violent weather, capped by a cloudburst and flood which killed at least 13 persons at Sanderson, near the Mexican border in far West Texas.

For the first time in days the Weather Bureau reported no rainfall overnight.

It was partly cloudy in a few areas and generally warm.

Scattered showers fell in Northeast Texas late Friday before the rains tapered off.

Forecasts called for scattered showers again tonight and Sunday in limited areas of West and Central Texas but contained little of severe storms.

It was due to stay warm over the weekend. Top marks Friday ranged from 99 degrees at Presidio down to 72 at Amarillo.

Most Powerful Rocket Going Up

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — At high noon Thursday, if there are no hitches, the strangest-looking, most powerful rocket ever fired will rumble away from Cape Kennedy.

Riding with the giant Titan 3C on its maiden test flight will be U.S. hopes of developing a military capability in space.

Sometime during the week, perhaps in connection with a successful launching, the Defense Department may announce the go-ahead for a series of manned orbiting laboratories which will be boosted by later Titan 3C rockets. The laboratories would orbit the earth for 30 days or more with two or more astronauts to determine how effectively man can perform military tasks in space.

When the Titan 3C takes off, alligators, bobcats, rattlesnakes and other swamp creatures of this missile base are certain to stir. Missile watchers should be treated to quite a sight — perhaps even better than the first after-dark firing of the Saturn 1 on May 25.

Unil now, Saturn 1 has been the most powerful rocket ever launched. It generates 1.5 million pounds of booster thrust, slightly higher than the 1.43 billion of the Soviet Union's biggest booster.

Titan 3C will generate 2.4 million pounds of takeoff thrust — produced by two large solid-fuel rockets attached to the sides of the core of the vehicle.

The core is a three-stage liquid-fuel Titan 3A which ignites after the solids have propelled it above the atmosphere. First stage of the upper section has 470,000 pounds thrust, the second 100,000 and the third 15,000.

The core reaches 127 feet tall and each of the solids is 75 feet high. Standing side-by-side on the launch pad, the three segments resemble a triple-barrel shotgun and have a breadth of more than 30 feet.

If everything works as planned, the rocket will drill into orbit a 21,000-pound dummy satellite. Because of the test nature of the flight, the satellite will be inert mental with no scientific value.

On a maiden test there always is a possibility of trouble. Of major concern will be whether the two solid fuel boosters will burn with precision. For success, they must burn evenly and cut off at exactly the same moment.

Engineers also will watch closely to determine if the tremendous forces generated by the two solid motors will shake up the liquid fuel cores or cause structural problems.

The Air Force, which has over-all supervision of Titan 3C, hopes for success on the first shot so that perhaps useful payloads can be flown starting with No. 2.

The rocket is capable of lofting 25,000 pound satellites into earth orbit. This is about 3,000 pounds more than the capability of Saturn 1. Early next year, the space agency will start launching the Saturn 1B, with a 32,000-pound payload capability, and will regain the "most powerful rocket" honor from the Air Force.

Because of its storable fuels, Titan 3C has a quicker reaction time than the liquid Saturn rockets with their complex plumbing. The fast launch capability is needed for military missions.

Several unmanned military satellite launchings are planned for Titan 3C, including tossing up bundles of eight communications satellites with a single launching. Other manned and unmanned military missions contemplated include reconnaissance, navigation, orbital bombs, inspection and possible destruction of enemy satellites and transfer of men and supplies between earth and space outposts.

Over-all systems integrator for Titan 3C is the Martin Co. Aerojet-General makes the core engines and United Technology Corp. the solids.

Beat Poets In Way Out Performance

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP) — Beat poets outpoured for the fat cats in rhymes that ranged from four-letter terms to flowers, and man it was like outworldly.

It was like profitable too. An audience of 5,000 shelled out an estimated $5,900 for Friday night's way-out performance at London's staid Albert Hall.

Whether the audience understood all they heard is problematical. They enjoyed it anyway. This was beat poetry and the listeners were not only switched on, they were fused.

No one was more happy with the success of the venture than dark-haired artist Jill Triebner. This 25-year-old English girl gambled her savings of $1,736 as the stake money.

That was what she paid to rent the hall so that her friend, New York beat poet Daniel Richter, could read some of his creations in public. She also invited a whole raft of beat poets currently making the London scene.

Not only will Jill get her money back, but she and her friends made a profit estimated at around $4,200. They plan to use the proceeds to provide a poets cooperative with a hall for further readings.

Some 16 beat poets and a disembodied voice played their part in what the organizers called a "spontaneous planet-chant carnival."

The revolving office chair was invented by Thomas Jefferson.

One Hurt In Ship Blaze

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A fire aboard a South American freighter, set off by an explosion in the engine room, burned for more than 12 hours before it was put out early today.

The only person injured among the 40 crewmen of the freighter, the Ciudad de Neiva of Colombia, was Ricardo S. Eraso, 36, Cartagena, Colombia, working in the engine room when the fire broke out.

Eraso was in serious condition in the U.S. Public health Service Hospital in Baltimore with first- and second-degree burns over 25 to 40 per cent of his body, mostly his face, arms and upper body.

Eraso, at his job at second oiler when the flash explosion happened near the auxiliary generator about 6:30 Friday night, said the fire burned hot and fast as it gnawed through steel bulkheads to the diesel fuel supply.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A currently successful woman author seems to be harping on the theory that in order for a woman to be "fulfilled," even though she is a wife and mother, she needs a profession or a job outside the home. You are a "pro," Abby. How do you feel about that?

STAY-AT-HOME MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I am one "pro" who is "con" on that theory. Motherhood (at least until the children are in school all day) is a fulltime job. And if it is done properly, it more than "fulfills" a woman. There is no greater responsibility than guiding a life. And no greater reward than the knowledge that you have done it well.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My skin crawled when I read that letter from "Heartbroken Mother," pleading with all mothers to keep electric extension cords "unplugged" when not in use because of the tragic accident her child had when she put a "live" cord in her mouth. I want you and that mother to know that that letter has helped at least one thoughtless mother. I used to keep an extension cord for my vacuum cleaner plugged into the wall behind my couch. That way I didn't have to pull out the couch each time I vacuumed. My ten-month-old daughter has just started to crawl, and when I think of how easy it would have been for her to get hold of that cord and put it in her mouth, my blood runs cold. I immediately disconnected that cord and it is now hanging in the broom closet. My thanks to you, Abby, for printing that letter. I lost one son to a congenital heart defect last year, and would hate to lose the only child I have left to electrocution because of my carelessness.

Sincerely, MRS. J.

—And because Sunday, June 13th is Children's Day:

A PARENT'S PRAYER

Oh, heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And when I am out of sorts, help me, Oh Lord, to hold my tongue.

May I ever be mindful that my children are children and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions.

Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, Oh Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen.

from the border with North Viet Nam, and senior corps officers were fearful that the Viet Cong were preparing a major follow-up to their successful meat-grinder operation in another part of the corps area two weeks ago.

Pilots claimed they set fire to an ammunition storage area, destroying 21 structures and damaging 13 others in the raid.

Six other F100s hammered a suspected Viet Cong area with napalm and bombs near the U. S. Marines' outer defense perimeter along the Chu Lai beachhead, 53 miles south of Da Nang.

In another attack, two F100's were sent to Nam Dong outpost west of Da Nang shortly after midnight when the government post was hit by a large Viet Cong force.

Using napalm, bombs and cannon, the planes blasted at enemy positions around the outpost and the attack was broken off with no government losses. Viet Cong casualties, if any, were unknown.

In other developments, a Vietnamese C47 with seven men aboard crashed today on a flare dropping mission 70 miles southwest of Saigon, the spokesman said. The plane was damaged but not serious injuries were reported to the crewmen who were rescued by U.S. Army helicopters.

Mariner 4 Works Well

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Mars-bound spacecraft Mariner 4 has only one technical hurdle to clear before its photographic fly-by July 14 is being guided on its 325-million-mile journey by the star Canopus. Monday at 8:50 a.m. PDT an electronic memory box aboard the 575-pound space vehicle will issue commands designed to give Mariner an improved fix on Canopus.

"All major systems are working fine so far," said a spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. "If all goes well Monday, there may be no more scheduled events until the television camera is turned on July 14."

The space vehicle was launched last Nov. 28 from Cape Kennedy, Fla., on a mission to obtain the best pictures yet of the mysterious red planet.

Beatles Get New Honors

LONDON (AP) — "Eh, that's great, isn't it?" said Beatle Paul McCartney today when told he and his three mop-top colleagues had been made members of the Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth.

McCartney had just stepped off an airliner from Portugal where he had been vacationing with actress Jane Asher.

The queen honored the Beatles Friday for important services to their country. They became the first group of pop singers to be elevated into one of the most staid of British institutions.

The other Beatles are John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr. They can now place the initials M.B.E. after their names, wear the small silver badge of the order and a small gray ribbon on the left breast of their tuxedos or tail suits.

Tempest Raging On Residual Fuel Oils

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—Do residual fuel oil imports threaten national security by depressing the health of the domestic petroleum industry?

This question about a product many domestic oil refiners consider economically unattractive is being studied by the Office of Emergency Planning.

The deadline for filing industry statements and rebuttal passed last week.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall tossed the problem to Buford Ellington, director of emergency planning, after White House lawyers challenged in late March his plan to drop fuel oil import controls in six states —Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Florida.

They contended such controls could not be lifted without a presidential proclamation based on national security findings as determined by the Office of Emergency Planning.

Udall then asked Ellington to make a "searching study."

Udall indicated earlier a March 10-12 hearing he held on all phases of the mandatory oil import controls program had convinced him gradual abandonment of restrictions on residuals would not harm the domestic industry.

Production of heavy fuel oils by domestic refiners has declined steadily the past 10 years. Total domestic demand now averages about 1.5 million barrels a day, with nearly two-thirds being consumed in East Coast states.

A number of New England congressmen have contended the import controls have prevented residual prices from dropping.

Several oil company executives testified in March that residual controls should be abandoned. Several trade groups filed briefs supporting continuation of controls.

"Heavy fuel oil imports for use as fuel do not displace or hurt domestic crude oil production," testified C. E. Resitle Jr., board chairman of the Humble Oil & Refining Co.

A Sun Oil Co. statement said residual controls "serve no national security purpose and can safely be eliminated."

The Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association contended foreign residual oil is supplanting domestic production. It suggested all residual quotas except those filled by Western Hemisphere nations be frozen at 1964 levels.

This plan also was submitted to Ellington last month.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America made no recommendation in March but submitted a statement on residuals last week.

The statement also contained no recommendation but suggested Ellington give careful consideration to several points, including:

1. Residual fuel oil production by domestic refiners accounted for only 8.3 per cent of total products output last year, compared to 14.7 per cent in 1956.

2. Continued decline can be expected in that residuals last year accounted for less than 4 per cent of total revenues received by domestic refiners.

3. Residual fuel oil prices have declined during the 1959-1965 period of controls and further reductions could be expected with decontrol.

The national trade group said the East Coast is now dependent on a single country, Venezuela, for three-fourths of its residual fuel requirements and is becoming increasingly dependent on foreign sources.

"There is an obvious natural security consideration involved in the extent of dependency on fuel sources subject to disruption by nationalization, sabotage or actions by foreign governments beyond the country, of the United States," the independents said.

Estate Of Actress Totals Only $244

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Court records show that actress Mae Murray, who earned millions as a star of the silent screen, left an estate of only $244.

That was the value of personal property listed in a petition for probate filed Friday by public administrator Baldo M. Kristovich.

Miss Murray, 75, died March 23 in the Motion Picture Country Home and Hospital at nearby Woodland Hills.

Says Knowledge Of People Is Vital To Businessman

By JAMES W. MANGAN

DALLAS (AP)—Why would a plant manager pay attention to the hairlines of his employes?

Why would a personnel director carefully note the voice pattern and facial expressions of a job applicant?

Why would a professional salesman wait until dessert is being served to bring up business with certain people?

The answer is the same in each case: Because they understand people and know how to "read" them.

"Knowledge of people probably is the most valuable tool a businessman can have," says Dallas industrial psychologist John Shirley, "yet this is precisely the area where we are weakest. We know all about our products, but we still don't take the time to learn to know the people who make them and buy them."

Shirley, an energetic, heavyset man of 40, is president of Group he organized five years ago to apply psychological principles to business. Holder of a master's degree from TCU, Shirley in the last 18 months has taught some 300 "students" how to categorize human beings and understand understand what makes them act the way they do.

His clients include IBM, Braniff, Kimberly-Clark, General Electric, Zale's Jewelry, National Distillers and numerous insurance companies.

In addition to his Group Dynamics instruction, Shirley runs a management consultant firm and a psychological testing service. He spent several years in national sales work before going into business for himself.

In five lectures, Shirley discusses the "psychodynamics of human behavior as related to sales and management." He analyzes people by their physical structure — endomorph, mesomorph or ectomorph — and by their psychological drives. Then he describes practical methods of quickly recognizing the vaious types.

"Once you understand the basic divisions of the human structure and personality, you can 'zero in' on anyone within five minutes and have a solid idea of what sort of an individual he is," Shirley says. "Then you know how to deal with him, how to appeal to his particular motivations."

He explains the philosophy behind the course this way:

"U.S. business has concentrated on advancing its technology and research, and it has been extremely successful in doing so. But not nearly enough time has been spent in gaining knowledge of people. We must teach people about people so we can modernize the human machinery on our payrolls, and get the right people in the right places. We take for granted the application of scientific principles in the factory; we now have to learn to apply psychological principles from the textbook to the market place."

The Group Dynamics course at present is taught only in Dallas. Shirley hopes to create a national franchise operation similar to that of the Dale Carnegie courses.

Some of Shirley's maxims:

"A manager's duty is to make his people successful. If he does so, then he is successful himself."

"Attitude determines success, because how we think is how we act. To change one's behavior, you must change one's thinking pattern. This can be done."

"A sale is nothing more than an agreement between two people."

A graduate of the Group Dynamics lectures knows, among other things:

—That a man who balds at the temples is usually an active, dominant individual who angers at direct criticism.

—That achievement - minded people tend to speak peacefully, with a change of facial expression.

—That an endormorph—one whose life centers around food and drink—is happy to talk business when a big dessert arrives because it covers up the fact that he is over-indulging in food again.

3 Solons In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Three U.S. congressmen arrived in South Viet Nam today as the nation was embroiled in a new political crisis.

They are U.S. Reps. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y.; Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., and Charles Chamberlain, R-Mich.—members of the House Armed Services Committee. They were met at the airport by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. armed forces commander in Viet Nam and other ranking U.S. military and political figures.

Pike refused to say what the delegation would do in Viet Nam but it was presumed they had come to familiarize themselves with the war effort here.

A fourth congressman, Rep. William G. Bray, R-Ind., was expected to arrive later today.

KNOW SOMEONE IN THE HOSPITAL? HERE'S PROPER WAY TO VISIT

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The following article on hospital visiting etiquette was provided by Cogdell Memorial Hospital. It is reprinted here in the hope that patients and visitors alike may receive some benefit from these reminders of things that are already known but are sometimes overlooked.)

* * *

Many people do not realize it, but in the role of a visitor to a friend or loved one in the hospital, you play a part in the patient's recovery. Every person who visits a patient may do something to promote or retard the patient's recovery.

Hospital rules and regulations may seem unnecessary and possibly too stringent, but they have been established over a long period of time in the best interests of the patient. Many times rules governing visits are the result of the doctor's wishes or perhaps those of the patient.

When calling upon a friend in the hospital, the first thing to remember is to limit your visit to 15 minutes. If the patient wishes to discuss his illness, be a good listener, but don't ask questions or add comments to prolong the discussion and try tactfully to switch the topic away from his sickness.

Invariably, when the patient is first admitted, visitors come in droves at a time when he is least able to cope with them. The time to visit is during convalescence when he is more himself and in better shape to receive you. During the period of initial hospitalization, a brief, cheery note or get well card shows you are concerned about your friend and that your thoughts are with him.

When the patient has several other visitors in his room, and after you make your presence known, if they do not indicate that they are leaving, it is desirable that you leave and return another time. Actually, only two visitors should be in the room at a time to avoid overcrowding which may hinder the activities of the nursing staff or physician.

If the physician or minister should call upon the patient while you are visiting him, you should immediately withdraw. Such consultations are privileged and should be conducted in private.

If you notice signs of weariness or discomfort, it is a good time to cut your visit short. It could be that the patient may have personal needs that he is not able to attend to until you leave.

It is always comforting to those in the hospital to know that members of the family are being looked after. You can perform a real service to the patient by relieving any anxiety he may have in this regard by offering assistance to his family while in the hospital.

In addition to things which you can do to make your visit worthwhile, there are those things which may have an adverse effect on the patient.

He certainly doesn't want to hear of a similar case that resulted in dire circumstance, a condemnation of the course of treatment or ridiculing those responsible for his recovery. If the patient does not bring up the nature of his illness, do not probe for information. His illness is a personal thing and he may find it embarrassing to discuss.

The patient looks forward to getting well and returning home. It is inconsiderate to discuss unpleasant situations or bad news that will have to be faced. Any added worry or anxiety will tend to hinder the patient's recovery. Besides, chances are he will not be able to resolve an unpleasant situation at home until he is back in familiar surroundings.

One of the most abused liberties taken by a visitor is to smoke during a visit. Even though the patient may be a smoker, an excess of cigar, cigarette or pipe smoke may make him feel nauseated or a little more sick.

Before you make a trip to the hospital, it is suggested that you first call to see if the patient's condition will permit him to have visitors and to check the hospital's visiting hours. If the patient has undergone surgery, it is best to wait until the third post - operative day after major surgery or the second after minor surgery.

When the patient is on the road to recovery, he wants to see his friends. When properly handled, a visit breaks the monotony and becomes a pleasant respite to which he looks forward. If children accompany you, and it becomes necessary to have them remain in the hospital's main lobby, it would be well to observe the principles of hospital etiquette by making sure they are attended.

Remember, visits should be enjoyed, not endured.

ECM Meet Is Proposed

BONN, Germany (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle of France and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard have agreed to propose a summit conference of the European Common Market by year's end to discuss a political organization, a West German spokesman said today.

The proposal will have to be accepted by the other members —Italy, Belgium, Holland Luxembourg — before the meeting can take place.

There is wide disagreement between De Gaulle and Erhard was announced at the end of two days of conferences.

Erhard has been pressing for a conference to start work on a political organization. De Gaulle agreed to go along on the conference idea, but France still holds strong reservations about a political union.

The spokesman, government press chief Karl-Guenther von Hase, said there also was a broad measure of agreement on the difficult question of financing the Common Market's farm subsidies. The present arrangement ends June 30.

Clint Stark worked seven innings to pick up his seventh pitching victory of the season.

Albuquerque at Amarillo was postponed because of wet grounds. It was the fourth straight postponement for Amarillo because of the weather.

World Champions Hold Ball Tryout

The World Champion Cardinals, always on the lookout for young talented players, will sponsor baseball tryouts in Lubbock, Texas on June 18 and 19, it was announced today by George Silvey, Director of Red Bird Scouting.

Starting at 10 a.m. each day things will be at a high pitch at Lowry Field when Fred McAlister, Cardinal scouting supervisor, and his assistant, "Dutch" Lorbeer, direct and hustle the players through a well - staged tryout program.

"We'll be looking for agressive, Cardinal - type players for our farm system," Silvey remarked. "And these tryouts will give the eager players a once-in - a - summer opportunity to prove that they have the stuff out of which major leaguers are made. . . baseball ability, desire, and definiteness of purpose. Our man personally picked this tryout spot, you know, and we're counting on a sizeable group to look over."

The tryouts are open to all players in the 16 to 22 year age bracket. Each player should bring his glove, shoes, and a uniform if he has one. The World Champions will supply the bats, balls, and catching gear.

"The search today for the Red Bird diamond greats of tomorrow goes on," Silvey continued, "And many skillful players have broken into baseball the tryout camp way. Our organization has a nationwide reputation for developing the ambitious, hustling player into a big leaguer. That kind of player can go places with the World Champion organization. Maybe we'll find one in this camp. You never know when and where he'll turn up."

A player signed to a contract will be reimbursed for the expenses he incurs incident to the tryouts. To take part an American Legion player must have a letter of approval from either his Legion coach or Post Commander.

Lane To Coach Texas' Finest

ORANGE, Tex. (AP) — Bobby Layne, who won fame at Texas and in pro football, may have a hard-to-solve, but enjoyable problem when he prepares the Texas Big 33 team for battle against Pennsylvania's finest schoolboys.

Layne will take the Texas squad to Hershey, Pa., for the second straight year Aug. 14, and this time he'll be looking for revenge. Pennsylvania beat Texas 12-6 in the game's inaugural in 1964.

But the big question right now is how Layne and his coaching staff of two other former pro football stars, Doak Walker, Southern Methodist, and Harley Sewell, Texas, will determine the starters.

From the headlines, reputations and yardage totals built up by the outstanding backs, it is apparent the Texas roster is well-stocked with 33 players who all fit the blue-ribbon category.

At the running back position, for example, Layne can call on such standouts as LaMarque's Norman Bulaich, Garland's Ronnie Scoggins and perhaps the fabulous Chris Gilbert of Spring Branch. This trio gained 3,735 yards rushing last season, and accounted for 52 touchdowns.

Bulaich is a 205-pounder with 9.9 speed, while the 200-pound Scoggins and Gilbert, 178, both run around 10 flat.

Such a problem, though, will surely be minor for Layne, who has a rich football background indeed and will adjust his personnel to his needs.

Bulaich, Scoggins and Gilbert are among the 31 players already signed up to take part in the game at Hershey. Two boys on the original roster, quarterback Rusty Clark of Houston Westbury and end Gilbert Ash of Galena Park, currently are participating in baseball.

SHUCKS TAIN'T NUTHIN TO IT!!! — The Canyon Gun Club will sponsor a shoot at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the club range six miles southwest of Snyder. The shoot will be a Raymond Busby Trophy Rimfire Shoot. 22 long rifle at bench rest with 10 shots at 50 yards using metallic sights. Club members and the public are urged to attend. Three trophies will be awarded.

Yankees Beginning To Surge After Very Miserable Start

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Yankees are higher today than at any time in the last four weeks.

The defending American League champions, who have been bogged down in the second division since April, continued their most sustained drive of the season Friday night as Al Downing staggered to a 13-hit, 6-4 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

The triumph was the sixth in the last seven games for the Yankees. It hopped them over Boston into seventh place for the first time since May 15 and left them only one-half game to the rear of the sixth-place Angels.

At the top of the league, meanwhile, the first-place Minnesota Twins and runner-up Chicago White Sox remained a 1½ lengths apart, each sweeping twi-night doubleheaders.

The Twins swept Detroit in a pair of extra inning games, winning both by 5-4 scores, the opener in 10 innings and the nightcap in 12 as Jimmie Hall produced the decisive run in each.

Reliever Eddie Fisher played the key role for the Whie Sox, saving Juan Pizarro's first victory of the season in a 5-2 opening game triumph over Washington, then turning up the winner in a 5-4, 10-inning second game triumph.

Elsewhere, Kansas City downed Cleveland 5-2 behind Rollie Sheldon's first victory and Jim Landis' first homer and Baltimore edged Boston 5-4 on John Orsino's two-run homer.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the New York Mets 2-1, Milwaukee crushed St. Louis 8-2, Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco 5-3, Cincinnati nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 and Philadelphia squeezed by Houston 6-5 in 10 innings.

The Yankees, outhit 13-10, got the job done with a pair of run-scoring doubles by Roger Maris, a run-producing double by Doc Edwards and singles by Bobby Richardson and Clete Boyer that drove in runs.

The Twins tied the opener in the ninth on two walks by Larry Sherry, a sacrifice and a wild pitch by Terry Fox that let Don Mincher score. Then, in the 10th, Hall brought in the winner with a sacrifice fly after singles by Sandy Valdespino and Frank Kostro plus a sacrifice by Tony Oliva.

Hall capped a three-run outburst in the 12th inning of the nightcap with a run-producing triple after Bob Allison's single and a sacrifice fly by Kostro had brought the first two runs across. Hall's triple proved decisive when Jim Northrup hit a two-run homer in the Tigers' half.

Harmon Killebrew drove in the first two Minnesota runs with his 10th homer and a single, but homers by George Thomas and Don Demeter pulled Detroit into a tie.

Fisher picked up his 13th save in the opener against the Senators, coming on for Pizarro in the sixth inning. The victory for Pizarro, a 19-game winner last season, squared his record at 1-1. Fisher got the victory in the nightcap for a 6-1 record when Don Buford led off the 10th with a homer.

Danny Cater hit a homer in each game for the White Sox, his fifth inning shot in the opener proving the decisive run.

Landis drove in three runs with a two-run single in the second inning and a solo homer in the seventh for the A's while Sheldon, making his fifth start since he was acquired from the Yankees, checked the Indians on seven hits.

Orsino's two-run homer in the fourth inning closed out the scoring in the Orioles-Red Sox game. Felix Mantilla and Lee Thomas homered for Boston before Baltimore relievers Harvey Haddix and Stu Miller pitched shutout ball over the last six innings.

Arizona State Meets Buckeyes For Title

OMAHA (AP) — Ohio State Coach Marty Karow says "We've got the old desire, confidence and momentum" going into tonight's College World series title game with potent Arizona State.

The title game of the 19th NCAA tourney starts at 9 p.m. EST. Arizona State takes a 53-8 record into the showdown, Ohio State 30-12.

The Buckeyes spoiled ASU's perfect Series record Friday night, halted their 16-game winning streak and got their first victory in five games with the Western Athletic Conference champions. The score was 6-2 with John Durant, a senior left-hander, firing a solid six-hitter.

Karow admits the big game finds his club short of pitching. Steve Arlin, sophomore right-hander, pitched a 15-inning, three-hit 1-0 victory Thursday over Washington State and struck out 20 men, a series record.

Ron Kitchton, a senior right-hander with a 4-2 record, will start for Ohio State. The Arizona State starter will be Jim Merrick, 12-2 lefty who beat the Buckeyes 9-4 Wednesday with help from fireman Doug Nurnberg.

A's Top Indians; Giants Drop Cubs

In the Little League, the Giants beat the Cubs 8-0 and the Athletics down the Indians 4-2 Friday night.

The Giants rallied for six runs in the fourth inning of play to take a victory away from the Cubs. The Cubs had a 4-0 lead until the Giants exploded in the fourth. The Giants winning pitcher, Bill Wilson, also collected two hits, one of them a double.

The A's took a 2-1 lead in the second inning and from there breezed to their victory. Shortstop James Wood hit a home run and a double for the Athletics and scored two runs in leading the A's to victory. The Indians' shortstop Carlos Cisnero also collected two safe hits in the contest.

Ralston And Graebner In British Finale

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Dennis Ralston and Clark Graebner meet today in the all-American final of the West of England lawn tennis championships.

There was a strong possibility of a singles sweep by the Yanks as Nancy Richey of Dallas faced Britain's Liz Starkie in the women's final of the rain-marred grass court tournament.

Ralston, the top-ranked American, downed Frew McMillan of South Africa 1-6, 9-7, 6-1. Graebner, the No. 9 from Beachwood, Ohio, overcame Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md. 1-6, 9-7, 6-1.

Miss Richey trounced Justina Bricka of St. Louis, 6-2, 6-0. Miss Starkie, a British Wightman Cupper, ousted Graebner's wife Carole, 6-1, 1-6, 6-4.

State Tournament Has Star Pitchers

By The Associated Press

Star pitchers stick out like bandaged ears in the Texas schoolboy baseball tournament coming up Tuesday at Austin.

Eight teams will be there, four to contest for the state title in Class AAAA and a like number in Class AAA.

Brownsville, with two of the finest lefthanded pitchers yet, will probably be favored in Class AAAA but if pitching is the main thing, don't sell El Paso Austin short.

Austin has Bob Arnold, who has won 16 games against one loss—and that was a one-hitter. He worked a one-hit shutout over Lubbock Monterey Wednesday, then pitched 15 innings to win 1-0 Thursday. He fanned 28 batters, to give him 46 for the two games.

During the season he struck out 233 in 17 games.

Brownsville's southpaw mound twins — Charley Vaughan and Tony Barbosa—pitched five no-hitters between them. Barbosa didn't lose a game.

South San Antonio returns to the tournament in Class AAA with the greatest winning record in the state. This team has taken the district championship 10 years in a row and won five of the last seven state championships.

It's ace pitcher is Johnny Gusman, who has a 19-0 record.

Dallas Samuell, Galena Park Brownsville and El Paso Austin make up the field in Class AAAA. Brownsville and Galena Park play the first game when they clash at 7 p.m. Tuesday. Samuell and Austin get together at 9 p.m.

In Class AAA Alvin, Snyder, Waxahachie and South San Antonio are the contenders. Alvin and Snyder open the tournament Tuesday at 1 p.m. South San Antonio and Waxahachie play at 3 p.m.

The third place game will be at 1 p.m. Wednesday in Class AAA and at 3 p.m. in Class AAAA.

The AAA championship will be decided at 7 p.m. Wednesday. The AAA final will be at 9 p.m.

A's, Giants In FL Wins

In the Farm League Friday night, it was the Athletics downing the Indians 14-11 while the Giants beat the Cubs 17-9.

The A's and the Indians fought for the lead in a wild two inning affair, but the A's finally managed to come out on top in the free scoring contest. Every man in both lineups managed to score a run in one of the two innings.

The Giants scored eight runs in the second and seven runs in the third inning in assuring their win over the Cubs. The Cubs at one time held a 3-1 lead in the top of the second, but the Giants exploded and were never caught.

NCAA Looks Like Wide Open Affair

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Wide open competition shapes up Thursday through Saturday for the national collegiate track and field title won last year by the University of Oregon.

Meets this spring have established no clear-cut favorite for this NCAA competition at the University of California's Edwards Stadium and many feel a score as low as 40 points might cop the crown.

Oregon, New Mexico, Maryland, Villanova, California, Stanford and San Jose State all are mentioned as title possibilities with 89 schools already entered and more to be added on the basis of the college division meet at Long Beach.

Twilight events are slated on Thursday and Friday. An afternoon session on Saturday winds up the competition.

Six defending champions are expected but none of them can be considered a strong favorite this time. Seeking to repeat are Tom Farrell of St. John's in the 880, Morgan Groth from Oregon State in the mile, Larry Kennedy from New Mexico in the discus, John Uelses of LaSalle in the pole vault and the California mile relay team.

Alex Schulten, the defending champion in the hammer throw had to qualify for the NCAA through the college division meet.

Just one athlete is considered a strong favorite if he competes — shot putter Randy Matson of Texas A&M who earlier this year shattered the world record with a throw of 70 feet 7 inches. He also has hurled the discus 199-7½ for a collegiate mark.

Matson has suffered a strained left knee and his participation remains problematical.

Legislative Move May Cause Alarm In Conn.

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — State Boxing Supervisor Dennis McMahon cancelled a scheduled boxing card Friday night, but said his action had nothing to do with the General Assembly's passage of a bill banning boxing.

The law passed Wednesday, will not go into effect until the governor signs it.

McMahon cancelled the card just as the five-fight card was scheduled to start. He said he acted because there were almost no fans in attendance.

The mile time of 1:54 3-5 by Adios Butler in 1960 at Lexington, Ky., still stands as the world record for a harness horse.

RAY KIZER reaches high for a ball that was just in time to retire a Kermit batter. The Tigers won a doubleheader to gain the regional championship. The Tigers will play Alvin Tuesday at 1 p.m. at Austin in the semi-final round of the State Tournament.

Drysdale Falls Off Mound And Hits Home Run To Boot

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Drysdale go boom. Twice.

The 6-foot-6 Los Angeles ace hit the dirt in the first inning, then came back to hit the jackpot in the eighth as the Dodgers' edged the New York Mets 2-1 Friday night.

Drysdale fell down in front of 55,023, largest crowd in the majors this season, while pitching to Jesse Gonder, the third batter in the first inning.

But he got up, took a few practice pitches and struck out Gonder.

The 28-year-old right-hander downed the Mets on four hits and became the first pitcher in the majors to win 11 games.

He gained the triumph by going boom again. This time, though, he did it with his bat and produced his third home run of the season.

The eighth-inning blow came on a 3-2 pitch off Warren Spahn.

Drysdale has won nine of his last 10 games and has lost only three times this season.

Elsewhere in the National League, Pittsburgh trimmed San Francisco 5-3, Milwaukee walloped St. Louis 8-2, Cincinnati edged Chicago 4-3 and Philadelphia nipped Houston 6-5 in 10 innings.

In the American League, Minnesota swept Detroit 5-4 in both games of a doubleheader, New York trimmed Los Angeles 6-4, Baltimore got by Boston 5-4 and Kansas City defeated Cleveland 5-2. The White Sox turned back Washington in a pair, 5-2 and 5-4.

The Pirates won their seventh straight game and 19th of 21, scoring three runs in the first inning on Willie Stargell's two-run triple and Donn Clendenon's sacrifice fly and two in the second on Jim Pagliaroni's homer. The Giants' Willie Mays clouted his 19th homer, a three-run blast, in the third.

Felipe Alou snapped a 2-2 tie with a three-run homer in the Milwaukee seventh, and the Braves went on to win their eighth game in the last 10. The Braves added two runs in the eighth with the help of Tracy Stallard's wildness. The Cardinal hurler hit one batter and tossed two wild pitches.

The Reds edged the Cubs on Gordy Coleman's two-run homer in the ninth inning. Coleman also doubled across a run in the first. The Cubs went ahead 3-2 in the sixth, Ernie Banks doubling in one run and scoring another.

Johnny Callison lashed an inside-the-park home run in the 10th inning for the Philadelphia victory. Callison's two-out blow bounced off the scoreboard in right-center field. Houston had tied the game 5-5 in the ninth on Lee Maye's triple and Walt Bond's sacrifice fly.

Aaron Has Two Stroke Lead In Golf Tourney

By HAL PARIS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tommy Aaron, the likeable Georgia pro, carried a two-stroke lead today into the third round of the $135,000 Cleveland Open golf tournament.

The 28-year-old Aaron had his sights set on the big $25,000 prize, a purse that could put him among the top five money makers on the tour.

He carded a four-under-par 67 Friday for a 36-hole total of 135.

Today's field was trimmed to 82 after a score of 146 or better was needed to stay in the competition's final 36 holes.

Among the casualties were U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi, who finished with 150, Tommy Bolt, Tommy Jacobs and Doug Sanders.

PGA king Bobby Nichols just squeezed in when he shot a 71 for a 146 total.

Still very much alive and only three strokes back at 138 were Dan Sikes and Bert Weaver. Randy Glover showed a 139 while Mason Rudolph, Larry Mowry, Julius Boros, Don Stickney and Billy Casper were bracketed at 140.

A dozen others, including Arnold Palmer and Bruce Crampton, the only triple winner on the tour, were six back at 141.

Four Olympians Ask Feuds Stop

NEW YORK (AP)—Three famed Olympians and the world's greatest shot putter urged Saturday that the Amateur Athletic Union take he first step in resolving the dispute over amateur sports with the National Collegiate Athletic Association and its Track and Field Federation.

Jesse Owens, Bob Richards and Bobby Morrow, Olympic gold medalists, and Randy Matson of Texas A&M proposed a "partnership pact of the two organizations.

"You have to have cooperation to accomplish anything," said Owens in a statement released by the NCAA. "There should be joint approval of competition in this country between the two groups. I would urge a joint committee of AAU and USTFF-NCAA people to supervise the competition, set the standards for conducting track meets and approve the plans for selection our international teams."

So far the AAU has refused to consider dual sanctioning — or approval — of its track meets.

"I concur enthusiastically with Jesse Owens' idea," said Richards, two-time Olympic pole vault champion.

"Why can't there be cooperative approval, certification, or sanction — or whatever else you want to call it — if several legitimate organizations have an interest in the meet?" said Morrow, an Olympic sprint champion.

Matson, the worlds first 70-foot shot putter, said in concurring with the truce recommendation that he would follow the collegiate rules that require meets to be approved by the NCAA and USTFF.

AMUSEMENT

Ponderosa Moves On Without Adam

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

Hollywood (AP) — All is serene at old Ponderosa as "Bonanza" plunges into its seventh year of filming, without the services of Pernell Roberts.

Long the dissident member of the Cartright clan, Roberts pulled out when his contract ended last season. That left Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon to mind the ranch. They're managing quite well, says Mike.

"It's a heavier work load for the three of us this season," said the actor, the handsome Little Joe of the series. "But it's worth it. There is harmony on the set now."

Mike, the youngster (age 28) of the Cartwrights, and his costars were awarded a raise for the new season — from $4,500 to $10,000 per show. Plus payments for replays.

The new contracts extend for another six years. If options extend "Bonanza" to a full dozen years, the surviving trio could well be millionaires.

"It's great for an actor to have that kind of security," Landon said. He had personal doubts that the series would go the full route, since NBC may one day become anxious to cash in on the lush syndication market. The economics of television are such that it sometimes pays to take a series off the network to profit from replays in the daytime or on local stations.

"But I think we're good for a little while more," Mike said. "This has been our biggest year in the ratings. Even if we lost 20 per cent of our audience, we'd still be No. 1."

What is being done to explain the absence of Roberts?

"We won't kill him off; that would be too hard on the kids in the audience," Mike said. "He'll just be off teaching school in the East somewhere. We'll manage."

THIS IS A SCENE from "Tickle Me," starring Elvis Presley, in color. It is coming to the Canyon Drive In Theater here Thursday, June 17.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — Well, we finally have a college professor speaking up and announcing that advertising psychology is outdated. And in polling the public opinion down here (the Lady from Puebla and her relatives, who make up about half the country's population) we find Mexicans agree.

This professor of psychology at Michigan State University says most advertising is based on the outmoded theory that man is an irrational creature who must be appealed to only on an emotional basis.

He says that contemporary psychologists have rebelled against the image of irrational man that behaviorism and classical psychoanalysis have helped build.

And he adds that Madison Avenue still clings to its theory of the irrational consumer. They have played heavily on guilt, anxiety, self-doubt and similar neurotic self - conceptions.

Apparently the doctor and his constituents have been reading up on ads and watching television commercials where we have some situations like this:

A fellow gets up in the morning feeling like it is a Great World and begins reading the newspaper at breakfast.

First thing he notices is a half page ad which says, "The Man of Distinction Drinks OLD ASBESTOS TEQUILA. Do you?" (With a long finger pointing right at you.)

Naturally he doesn't. He drinks Black Bear gin and used to be perfectly happy with his hangovers. But the moment he sees the ad he begins to develop guilt complexes, anxiety and self - doubt.

He feels sick and doesn't care to face the rest of the office force because maybe somebody found the bottle of Black Bear in his desk drawer. Furthermore, he decides not to even visit his aged mother that afternoon.

But after thinking about it for a while he gets infuriated at the way he feels so he goes to a pub and stays tanked for a week on peach juice and grain alcohol (just to be irrational and contrary) and of course loses his job.

There you have the result of outdated psychology in advertising.

Now let's take a family sitting in the living room during a TV session while the Sheriff of East Armpit slips through the woods to confront a gang of rustlers.

At the moment he outs with his hawgleg and says in perfect Spanish, "The first one of you owlhoots that moves is daid!" a rustler whirls and fires and a commercial cuts in.

Out walks a lady with a fifteen dollar hairdo holding a bottle of soda pop and says, "In my home we all drink Little Giant sodas because their delicious flavor comes from fresh fruit, NOT chemicals."

The man of the house is so enraged that he refuses to pay the next installment on the TV set.

We have Madison Avenue Personnel down here, too. They have set up branch office and are showing local companies books (which they wrote) to prove advertising psychology is out in front.

If they would just quit reading their own books and run good ads. Like a picture of a lady's unmentionable and below it say, "Folks, this is a Maidenform. You ought to look into it."

You know, simple things to arouse curiosity without making anybody develop neurotic self-conceptions.

Prisoners Have Wild Jail Party

HOUSTON, Miss. (AP) — Eight Chickasaw County prisoners had one wild party — in jail.

The prisoners got into contraband booze seized by Sheriff Arnold Simpson who had stored it in a cell. The prisoners used a broom to pry open the door just enough to pull out a case of gin Wednesday.

The result was a ball, and additional charges of petty larceny.

Victoria Carroll On Lecture Tour

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Victoria Carroll, all curves and red hair, has led such a sheltered life for an actress that, she says, "I've never even been out of town — except with Jimmy Durante."

Now suddenly, at 23, she's found herself booked on a cross-country tour to lecture on "The Art of Love."

"Actually, I'm going to try to avoid the subject," says Vicki.

"How can you teach people about men and love when you've spent most of your time saying, 'No' to most men?

"Just because I'm an actress, everyone thinks I'm an expert.

"Besides," she added, "I'm not even married."

A former art student turned dancer, Vicki was born and reared in Los Angeles.

"The only times I've left Los Angeles were to play in Jimmy's night club act in Lake Tahoe, Nev., and Sacramento, Calif.

"I guess I could have traveled more with him — once you're with him you're with him for life, if he likes you — but I wanted to study."

Her dancing got her an acting role — as a girl in Ethel Merman's chorus in "The Art of Love," and the studio suggested she tour, lecturing on the subject.

"It's a good way to see the country," says Vicki, "but I think I'm going to leave all the talking to the other girls — they're married."

Her companions will be Miiko Tako, who played Marlon Brando's love interest in "Sayonara," and Dawn Villere, a statuesque former "Miss Urban League." They're in the chorus, too.

The girls will lecture in St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Washington, D.C., Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

Wagon Trip Is Planned

CHATHAM, Ont. (AP) — A 53-year-old construction foreman from London, Ont., is planning to set out for the Yukon this summer in a homemade covered wagon.

Lawrence McIntyre, who has been spending spare weekends on a Chatham-area farm building the wagon, says the trip has no special significance — he is just looking for adventure, and plans to do a little prospecting.

The 12-foot-long wagon is built of wood and covered with a canvas top. It is pulled by two horses.

McIntyre, who has visited the Yukon before and says "you can enjoy the land," plans to leave in August.

New Fag Tax Goes Into Effect June 30

AUSTIN (AP) — The state comptroller must collect an extra 3-cents-a-pack tax after midnight June 30 on cigarettes stamped at the old rate, Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr said Friday.

The 59th Legislature voted the hike, which takes effect July 1.

Dealers will be required to tell the comptroller how many cigarette packs they have in stock June 30. If they have 10 or fewer cartons, they are exempted from paying the additional tax.

Carr's legal opinion also said the tax will be paid only once by the person making the "first sale" in the state.

Cooling Of Autos Now Big Business

By CHARLES C. CAIN
AP Business News Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The task of keeping U.S. motorists cool has moved into the big time with more than two million drivers having air conditioning units installed in their cars this year.

Motorists will spend an estimated $700 million in 1965 for air cooling units, and all indications point to further expansion of the market.

California, Florida and Texas remain leaders in demand for air-conditioned cars but the trend is becoming more nationwide.

About 1.6 million of the air-cooling units will be factory-installed this year. A good percentage of them will be the combination heating and air-conditioning units that the 1964 Cadillac and the 1965 Pontiac featured.

In addition to units installed at the factory, a very substantial demand has developed in what is described as the after-market — units installed after a customer has bought his car.

The Automotive Air Conditioning Association, composed of 12 independent air conditioning manufacturers and 24 of their suppliers, reports that all after-market companies sold a total of 322,160 air conditioners in 1964. It predicted this figure would pass 403,000 this year.

The after-market units, sometimes described as hang-on units because they are attached to the car rather than built into it during assembly, centered around $70 million in sales last year.

Lucy Starts Life Without Vivian

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lucille Ball was looking for a sturdy foundation upon which to build a new comedy series. The ideal building blocks turned up in a funny, semi-autobiographical book called "Life Without George" by Irene Kampen.

Mrs. Kampen described life in one of the New York City exurbs after her amicable divorce from her husband. To help out with the household expenses she joined forces with another divorcee with a child.

For television purposes, some changes were made: the heroine became Lucy Carmichael, a widow. She was given an extra child. Vivian Vance, Lucy's old comical sidekick from the "I Love Lucy days," was cast as her divorcee housemate.

As the successful seasons went by, other changes occurred. A bachelor neighbor — played by comedian Dick Martin — disappeared and banker Gale Gordon was added. "The Lucy Show" sailed along, almost always in Nielsen's top ten.

During the past season, Vivian appeared in fewer than the season's quota of programs and her absence was covered by an assortment of guest stars including Ann Sothern and Ethel Merman.

Next season, however, it will really be "Life Without Vivian" on "The Lucy Show." Plans have already been announced that the show's policy will shift to weekly guest stars.

This stems from Miss Vance's determination to stop trying to be, at the same time, a Connecticut housewife and a Hollywood television star. It resulted in tiring weekly commuting between the two coasts and a feeling of being unsettled and pressed at both ends of the country.

Vivian's husband, John Dodds, is a publisher whose work keeps him in New York most of the time. She has been a real Stamford housewife now since the last "Lucy Show" of the season was filmed several months ago. She has never been busier in her life.

"But it's been one of the happiest times of my life," she bubbled. "I've been working on these game shows which are the greatest thing in the world for performers. They tape them during the day, and I'm home when John gets home at night. The miracle is that you can work about 52 weeks out of the year if you want to — and they like you."

After all these profitable years in television, Vivian is as thrilled as a beginner that she's again getting "show offers."

"I'm essentially a stage actress," she says, "and I think sometimes producers forgot it wasn't always comedy. And, after those 'I Love Lucy' years, I think everybody had the impression I was that dowdy woman Ethel — not that I want to be known as a fashion plate."

RANGELAND SOILS—About 16 per cent of Scurry County is made up of the soils of the Mansker and Potter soil association. They are best suited to grazing purposes since most of the soil is too thin to support crop production.

Conservationist Describes Scurry Rangeland Soils

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of a series describing the soils of Scurry County.)

By MARVIN L. DIXON
Soil Conservation Service

The Mansker and Potter soil association in Scurry County occupies a large part of the rangeland in the central, western, and northern part of the county. It is about 92,288 acres in extent and makes up about 16 percent of the county. It is characterized by gently sloping to moderately sloping areas of Mansker soils and moderately sloping to steep areas of Potter soils.

Mansker soils comprise about 49 percent of this association. They are shallow to moderately deep and have loam surfaces and clay loam subsoils.

The Potter soils comprise about 34 percent of this association. They are very shallow soils developed on thick beds of caliche material.

Other soils included in this association are Loamy Alluvial Land, Spade, Spur, Wichita, Abilene and Berthoud soils.

About 80 percent of this association is in rangeland. The Potter soils are unsuitable for crop production because of their shallowness. Cotton, grain sorghums and small grains are grown on the areas of Mansker soils that are in cultivation.

Much of the better grasses on this soil association have been replaced by undesirable plants and annuals due to drouth and-or overstocking. Under good management, the native grasses will produce fair amounts of grazing.

Worm Damage Is Observed In Scurry Cotton Fields

Cotton producers in Scurry County are urged to be on the alert for damage from the careless worm or garden webworm that is being observed in many fields. Billy Roach, County Agent, says the worms have caused considerable damage in some areas by completely destroying stands of cotton.

The worms start by webbing the underside of the cotton leaf and as the small worms hatch begin eating the leaves inside the web. The worms usually begin their damage from fence rows, borrow ditches and other areas where vegetation is lush and green. Complete destruction of plants occurs as the insects progress across the field.

Early detection and control measures using insecticides recommended for bollworms will give satisfactory control. In many instances spot spraying of the infestation and marginal areas around the infestation can keep damage to a minimum.

The County Agriculture Agent also announced that an entomology survey team will make weekly inspections of four farms located in Scurry County. The Texas Agriculture Extension Service in cooperation with the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. is undertaking this survey program. One of the primary objectives of the team is to observe the boll weevil and its buildup in this area. However, as the teams make their inspection all insect infestations will be noted and this information will be made available to area producers through news releases and other methods available by the local agriculture agent.

Insect identification bulletins available at the County Extension Office that will help producers identify some of these insects are: B-933 "Cotton Insects," B-975 "Insects Attacking Forage Crops," and B-1019 "Insects Attacking Vegetable Crops."

Robber Asks Kiss, Takes Cash Instead

The cashier burst into tears at his command and the gunman instead took the wallet of an assistant manager, William Phillips, and fled.

Masked Men Flee With Gold Bars

LARDER LAKE, Ont. (AP) — Four armed, masked men overpowered a railroad station agent in this remote northern Ontario community Friday and made off with five gold bars worth $164,000, police reported.

The bandits were believed to have fled in a float-equipped plane that took off from Larder Lake, about three miles from the Ontario Northland Railway station.

The bars were awaiting shipment to the Canadian mint in Ottawa. S.C. Yule, manager of Kerr-Addison Mines Ltd. at Virginiatown, Ont., said gold bars are shipped every Friday from the mine at Virginiatown to Larder Lake, 11 miles away.

He said the station agent, Thomas Tomkin is left alone with the shipment for about four hours until it is put on a train.

Tomkin, 35, was the only person in the station when the bandits burst in. They tied him to a railway handcar.

He said the men wore masks and carried pistols, shotguns and rifles.

The bars were packed in two safes and weighed about 300 pounds.

The empty safes, a shotgun and a mask were found in the getaway car which was abandoned on the shore of the lake.

And 97 dry holes were plugged during the week, with the total of all kinds plugged reaching 159. Three gas wildcats were drilled. There were no oil wildcat.

Her brothers Fidel and Raul Castro are the prime minister and the chief of armed forces, respectively. Che is the nickname of Ernesto Guevara, the minister of industries.

Damage Suit Settled For Half A Million

HOUSTON (AP) — A $1 million damage suit has been settled for $500,000 by John Dunn Jr., 25, who suffered burns in a plane crash two years ago that required 57 plastic surgery operations.

The settlement, made by Butler Drilling Co., was approved in district court Friday, as jurors were being selected for trial of Dunn's suit.

Dunn, son of the president of an insurance agency, was one of seven passengers aboard a plane owned by the drilling firm which hit a tree while trying to land at a small airport here.

He was trapped in the flaming wreckage and suffered burns on his face, arms and back.

Demos, Farmers Union Are In Frequent Disagreement

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — It looks as though a long and warm relationship between Democrats and the National Farmers Union is cooling. They're disagreeing on future farm aid proposals.

The upshot of this mutual disenchantment might well bring some big changes in the makeup of national farm organizations and could hasten the day when the government's role in farm programs fades away.

For many years the Farmers Union has been the staunchest supporter among farm organizations of strong federal intervention into agriculture to stabilize prices and incomes through rapid production control and farm supply management programs.

The Farmers Union, through President James A. Patton, has closely linked itself with Democrats in presidential campaigns since the Roosevelt New Deal of the 1930s. Unlike its rival organizations, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange, the union made no effort to hide its partisanship.

But the warmth that existed in this relationship began to cool after President Johnson started laying out his domestic programs — particularly in the field of federal spending and farm legislation. The union leaders could hardly believe what they read when Johnson emphasized he was out to cut government spending, including that in farm programs.

The President's farm message urging what his aides regard as a moderate approach between those who want more farm aid and those who want less came as a shock to Patton and his associates. They called the presidential proposals inadequate to assure farmers the returns which they claimed the Democrats had promised during the campaign.

Patton and his aides have made it a point to advise the House Agriculture Committee at hearings on farm legislation of its disappointment. The union has gone further to express its feeling. It has lashed out at Democratic farm leaders in Congress.

In its Washington newsletter last week, it said:

"As the progressive 89th Congress continues to move toward an unparalleled record of advanced social legislation, farm programs and related measures bear the brunt of conservative and unimaginative congressional leadership."

It went on to assert that both the White House and the House Appropriations Committee are providing a skimpy budget for the Agriculture Department and farm programs.

Naturally, this criticism has not set well at the White House.

All this leaves the National Grange as the sole general farm organization offering the administration's farm proposals broad support. But it is weak in many major commercial agricultural areas, particularly in the Deep South and Corn Belt.

The American Farm Bureau Federation continues to stand firm for a position it has been advocating many years. That's for a gradual withdrawal of government from the control of prices, production and supplies of farm products with the so-called free market system taking over the guidance of the farm production, marketing and pricing pattern.

With events apparently swinging away from rigid government controls and toward fewer and larger commercial farms, some farm leaders foresee possible shakeups in the farm organization field.

President At Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson is spending a quiet weekend at his ranch, and one of the first spots he headed for after he arrived Friday was Lake Lyndon B. Johnson.

Formerly called Granite Shoals Lake, it is formed by a dam on the Colorado River. The President has two cottages there and several boats.

Johnson, wife Lady Bird and daughter Luci, 17, flew to the ranch from Washington, stopping on the way to salute astronauts Edward H. White II and James A. McDivitt at the Manned Space Flight Center in Houston.

At the lake, which is several miles from the LBJ Ranch, the President took a speed boat for a run, with a woman water skier in tow part of the time.

Johnson wore a plaid sports shirt and yellow cap, which soon went overboard in the breeze. A Secret Serviceman fished it out and the President gave it a good shake and put it back on. Later the boating party shifted to a cruiser.

The Johnsons are expected to return to the White House Sunday night or Monday.

Author Blazes A Trail

THE FLIGHT OF THE FALCON. By Daphne du Maurier.

The original Falcon was insane old Duke Claudio, who five centuries ago terrorized the Italian hill town of Ruffano, until he came to a violent death.

Now in the 1960s Ruffano is in a fine state of turmoil. For one thing, the local university is stirred by dissention among the various colleges, involving both students and faculties. For another, there are ominous happenings that seem to show there is a mad modern counterpart of the Falcon, operating mysteriously to cause trouble in the town and university.

So naturally, when it is announced that the town's annual festival will center around a great spectacle, recalling the Falcon's ancient antics, all sorts of wild possibilities arise.

But although most of the action of this novel occurs in Ruffano, it really starts with a murder in Rome.

The narrator, Armino, is a 32-year-old tour conductor for a bus company, who has been leading a drab life until one night when he sees a ragged old woman lying on the steps of a Roman church. She reminds him of Marta, who had been his nurse more than 20 years earlier, back in Ruffano. A few hours later he learns the old woman has been murdered.

Armino goes back to Ruffano for the first time since the war, determined to learn what happened to Marta. He is in for more surprises than you can count when he gets caught up in the hocus-pocus at the university.

This novel has more plot switches than a detective story, more hidden identities than an old - fashioned melodrama, and more fanciful episodes than an opera libretto. All you have to do is to let yourself go along with its bizarre twists and turns, and you'll find it's a real nail-biter.

A Jaundiced Southern Eye Views Life

EVERY THING THAT RISES MUST CONVERGE. By Flannery O'Connor.

Miss O'Connor's talent was focused on a comparatively narrow aspect of life, but its focus was microscopically sharp and clear. This book of nine stories was her last effort before she died in 1964.

She was a Southern writer, and once said that "it does seem evident that the Southern writer is particularly adept at recognizing the grotesque, and recognize the grotesque you have to have some notion of what is not grotesque and why.'

She wrote on regional themes, and although some of her characters were white and some were black, it was only part of the time that race was a factor in her stories. She was concerned with death, and particularly with the deaths of pitiable people. She valued humor, but it was a scalding type of sature that she used.

Perhaps more than anything else, she was concerned as an artist with the need of expressing ideas in stark, compressed narratives; inevitably, her stories fall open to all sorts of lacy, professional analyses and interpretations, and that scarcely endears them to the general reader.

In these nine stories she has several females of the battle-axe type, one of whom gets her deserts from a moronic hired hand, and another who is shattered by a neurotic girl.

But what of her males? Sometimes they are merely stupid and inarticulate, but in four of these stories they are weak - kneed, mother - ridden, or both, and utterly ridiculous creatures. If Miss O'Connor cast a jaundiced eye on her females, she displayed an even nastier attitude toward the other sex.

She could write vividly. But she turned her sharp focus too often into the biological world where the females devour the males.

Library Notes

Scurry County Library's summer reading program has gotten off to a good start with 127 school - age youth signing the first week of registration. The reading program, sponsored jointly by the local library and the Texas State Library, is designed to give school children a constructive summer activity.

With three summer months ahead of them, local youth may find it difficult to fill hours with interesting activities. The library, besides giving a vast amount of good reading, offers information on many things to do with leisure time. "How to make" books run a wide range of interests. A part of any youth's training is to be able to read instructions and understand them clearly enough to follow them through accurately. This form of reasoning flexes the young mind, develops dexterity of the hands, and gives the young doer a feeling of accomplishment. Books giving instructions on things to make can afford pleasurable pasttime for the energetic boy or girl who enjoys creative activities.

Among "how to make" books on the library's shelves to help fill idle hours is T. M. Schegger's "Make Your Own Mobiles." This book demonstates fun with composition and balance. It gives a list of materials necessary for construction and tells how to hang as well as how to make mobiles.

Slate sculpturing is an age-old art form that is both easy and inexpensive. Mickey Klar Marks' book, "Slate Sculpturing," give basic techniques, followed by step-by-step directions for using the simplest designs. The author also gives advanced techniques on how to use color and how to saw slate into various shapes. Fihally, practical and decorative methods are given for displaying the finished sculpture.

Author Marks has a second book, "Sand Sculpturing," to aid the artistic youth. Sand sculpturing can be fun and can be done at home. Equipped with a box, a bag of plaster and some sand, one can make sculptures of limitless design. One of the most primitive art forms, this is simply the process of making an impression in wet sand and then pouring plaster into it. The result is a plaque - like bas-relief which may be mounted or framed for display.

Making string figures is one of the oldest amusements in the world, and parents will remember entertaining themselves in their youth with Jacob's ladder, the cat's cradle and other amusing feats with a simple piece of string. Harry and Elizabeth Helfman, authors of the book, "Strings On Your Fingers," have gathered string figures from around the world. The book gives accurate, detailed illustrations which make step-by-step instructions easy to follow.

Making things of papier mache has been a creative hobby for 2,000 years. A new book, "Papier Mache and How to Use It," by Mildred Anderson, gives complete instructions for making useful and decorative articles of this material. The youthful experimenter can apply his or her ability to be both creative and artistic. The author gives basic raw materials for making papier mache and the art of working with the mash. Her book illustrates as well as instructs in the techniques of handling this pliable material.

A series of new books for the young cook has been added to the library's youth section. These books are designed for the young girl who likes to help in the kitchen, or for the young hostess who is perhaps planning her first party. The series is published by Better Homes and Gardens and includes a variety of easy-to-prepare dishes and appetizing menus. The eight books are "Lunches and Brunches," "So-Good Meals," "Barbecues and Picnics," "Best Buffets," "Meals in Minutes," "Meals with a Foreign Flair," "Birthdays and Family Celebrations," and "Snacks and Refreshments."

The younger set can find leisure time hard to fill entertainingly, and time lies heavy on the patience and hands of the idle. To fill the long summer months with constructive activities, the local library invites all Scurry County youth to comb book shelves for suggestions on things to do with spare time.

Now Dad Dresses Like Son

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

High school boys are influencing the clothes worn by their fathers. The whole pattern of emulation observed since puritan days is being reversed.

More than 50 per cent of one large firm's business, formerly conservative, is in high fashion men's clothes. Suits have squared, lifted shoulders, shaped with slight indentation at the waist, unpleated pants and such innovations as iridescent fabrics, says Michael Daroff, president of probably the largest manufacturer of brand label clothes in the world.

The firm is said to have made its name and fortune a half-century ago advertising a one-style suit model that would please any man whether he wanted it for a funeral or a wedding.

"It's the first time in history that boys have broken out of the mold of conformity, and in so doing have eased the path for their fathers. Older men are no longer afraid to express interest in how they look,' says Daroff, He feels "the acceleration in the men's market is due entirely to the young people who are spending the bulk of their money on clothes."

At the junior and senior high school level when the desire for individuality is at its peak, they dress for fun and to express their personality. When they reach college age, they will adopt their campus' fashion of the moment, he points out.

Far from being aghast at the changing fashion picture, manufacturers welcome it. In England young men are spending two - thirds of their salary on clothes. Men'swear shops are opening everywhere.

The whole argument about feminzation in men's clothes, just because they've changed from a static pattern, is ridiculous, says this manufacturer. There are extremists in everything. But students are showing incredibly good taste. They'll pay $35 for a good sweater and anything they can afford for the just - right kind of slacks.

This willingness to spend time and money seeking out clothes has had enormous effect on the men's market, even though it is mainly a sportswear market for teens.

New fashion developments for youths include French cuffs to accommodate jeweled cufflinks, fancy shirts and shoes with high heels. Whether or not adult men will adopt the 1½-inch high beatle boot now worn by many young men is a moot question. But, as one expert points out:

"What would be wrong with high heels for men? The most rugged men in the world have worn cowboy boots for generations."

MISS GINNY SIMS, bride-elect of Jimmy Bruce Melton, is pictured above with her mother, Mrs. Wraymond Sims. Miss Sims was honored at a coffee Saturday morning at Snyder Country Club. The refreshment board was in the bride's chosen colors in various shades of pink, the centerpiece being a large arrangement of pink caladiums. Hostesses for the occasion were: Mmes. Ed Bolger, L. D. Casey of Lubbock, J. N. Eicke, Virgil Mott, J. M. Newton, Mozell Roggenstein, Forrest Sears, Edward Schulz, Rupert Short, Dwayne Walton, E. E. Wallace and E. E. Weathersbee.

Rustic Ideas Are Expressed

ASSORTED PROSE. By John Updike.

There is an illuminating, and at times surprising, range of expression in this collection. It is an assortment (licorice in one corner, marzipan in another) containing all the bits of nonfictional prose that lie outside Updike's published poems, novels and short stories.

The collection is illuminating in the sense that it casts light upon his other works. Readers who know his novel "The Centaur" will find its autobiographical background in "The Dogwood Tree," which appeared first in a neglected collection of boyhood reminiscences by five authors.

There are two sections which reproduce the parodies and short, humorous pieces which the author wrote for the Talk of the Town and Notes and Comments sections of The New Yorker — as a staff member in 1955-57 and later as an occasional contributor.

These New Yorker items epitomize the magazine's recent years — echoing the days of Thurber, Benchley, et al — in both spirit and style.

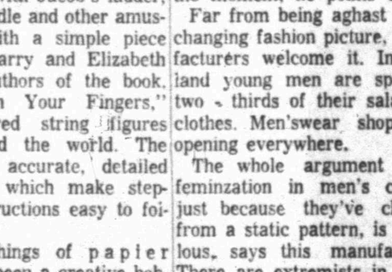

That is, they have the magically odd combination of a former farm boy's imagination and the glib pseudo - sophistication of Manhattan, distilled in twin coils into a potation that has primitive kick and civilized tank. Here is a Shillington, Pa., boy who goes beyond O'Hara's graphic realism into the bright realm of the proper Harvardite gab.

The final section contains book reviews. Most of them carry the campus - like curse of erudition, but in mitigation it must be said that in these pieces he was addressing a literate audience.

Updike is the brilliant country mind who makes his own independent way in the environs of town and gown. He is the literary equivalent of Andrew Wyeth, whose dry - brush paintings of Pennsylvania and New England have a ready, and greatly deserved, currency in the magnified Main Street of the big town on the Hudson.

Romping Up Nouveau Art Ladder

NICE TRY. By Thomas Baird.

If someone were to write a journalistic indictment of the looney fads that grip the world of contemporary art, together with the almost incredible lobbying in the realm of art politics, the general public wouldn't believe, and the author probably would be swamped with lawsuits.

But there is a safer, much more deadly and far more amusing way of arriving at the same point. The author simply writes a novel full of grotesque satire and farce on this subject. The effect, in stead of being controversial, is hilarious. Full of literary heightening, of course but all the more devastating. This is what Baird has done.

His story is about a crisis in the guiding committee of an all-powerful something that Baird calls "The Museum of Twentieth Century Art" in Manhattan. Because a pompous billionaire expects to depart for an ambassadorship his place on the committee has to be filled.

Baird carefully arranges a thoroughly nonsensical sequence of competition around two possible successors. One is a viciously cynical tycoon named Bessarion. The other is a newcomer from Sioux City, a feed merchant pushed into esoteric mumbo-jumbo, named Harry Pickens. Each is managed by a combination art - adviser, image - maker and propagandist, with money - grubbing connections in the art hierarchy.

The two rivals are caught up in the silly business of sponsoring nutty exhibitions, while they and their spouses go through the routines of catching gossip-column notice. Deft in his knowledge of cultural pretense, the author has given the full blast to the status gambit of the gallery circuit.

You may read this novel as fictional amusement, and find it full of acid comments on a whole host of fashionable fallibilities. Or you may enjoy it as a commentary on the absurdities in the frantic pursuit of contemporary art. Either way, it is a brightly venomous concotion.

There will probably be some meat leftover if you have served a veal shoulder roast. To use it, you may heat slices in gravy or dice the meat and add it to diced celery and apple for a hearty salad. If you prepare the salad, add French dressing (instead of mayonnaise) and serve on crisp greens.

Country's Aims Are Moderate

UNFINISHED REVOLUTION: America And The Third World. By C. L. Sulzberger.

Few reporters in the world have traveled more and studied world affairs with a more dispassionate and intellectual eye than C. L. Sulzberger of The New York Times.

His latest book summarizes his views of world affairs today and the United States' position in them.

He offers no pat solutions to the world's multiple problems or those of the United States, but with clarity and authority, which comes from long familiarity with not only current problems but also background, he makes plain the mistakes of the past and the dangers of the future to this country and the world.

Some of his suggestions or remedies will not meet with everyone's approval, but there can be no denying his clear presentation of the problems, since he speaks with the complete authority of a top reporter who has done his research thoroughly.

He writes:

"We must never forget, in facing the immense Third World (the underdeveloped countries), that our ability, even as the strongest, richest nation, to dictate the course of history is limited. We must try to discern and exploit history's tide. Our objectives must be moderate: to help bolster independence under almost any form it chooses, to prevent chaos, to do what is feasible — and no more. . .

"Nor should we be deflected from these reasonable aims by our prejudices, such as inherited distaste for all forms of Socialism or all forms of military rule, or by the prejudices of others, such as anti-Americanism in Asia and Africa and what we may call anti-gringoism in Latin America."

Doublering Vows In Houston Unite Miss Hubbard, Mr. George Holder In Marriage

The Park Place Baptist Church of Houston was the setting of the marriage of Sharon Rogene Hubbard of Houston and George Richard Holder of Snyder on June 12th at 8 p.m. Dr. Brooks H. Wester, minister, officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was decorated with two arrangements of white gladioli, stock, and magnolia blossoms, with a background of magnolia leaves and bells-of-Ireland. These were flanked with white wrought iron candelabra with cascading sprays of magnolia leaves and blossoms, with cathedral candles.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Q. Hubbard of Houston, and Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Holder of Snyder.

Mrs. Ray Kenneth MacIntosh of Pasadena was organist and rendered traditional music. Miss Sue Bankston of Houston, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Song of Ruth".

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory silk peau de soie fashioned in a princess silhouette. The fitted bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace featured an oval neckline and cap sleeves. The softly draped skirt fell from an empire waist and was accented by a wide border of the lace. A removable train fell gracefully from the back waist to chapel length. Her headpiece was a cluster of peau de soie roses with pearls and four tiers of silk illusion.

She carried a formal cascade bouquet of white gladioli blossoms, seed pearls with clustered white satin, and pearl studded leaves. The bouquet was enhanced by a white cattleya orchid nestled in babys-breath. All was lightly sprinkled with pearl dust.

Miss Edwina Walls of Baton Rouge, La. was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. David Cumming, Mrs. David Elliott, Miss Sandra Hubbard and Mrs. Jerald Hastick, all of Houston. They wore matching long, formal dresses of Pompon silk in a beautiful shade of rose, featuring a batteau neckline, and minuet sleeves complimented by short gloves. Miss Walls carried a colonial bouquet of pink gladioli blossoms framing a glamelia of dark silk. Bridesmaids carried Juliet bouquets of pink glamelias encircled with satin poufs.

For her wedding trip to Galveston, the bride changed to an aqua blue raw silk sheath with white raw silk piping. The sheath was complimented by a three - quarter coat with white piping around the neckline and down the front. The coat had side slits, which were accented by white bows, and matching accessories.

The couple will make their home at College Station, Texas.

A Native, Volatile, Bohemian

WHEN I WAS LAST ON CHERRY STREET. By Harry Roskolenko.

If Sinbad the Sailor had been a radical socialist and in his youth a revolutionary, he might have written his reminiscences as another Roskolenko.

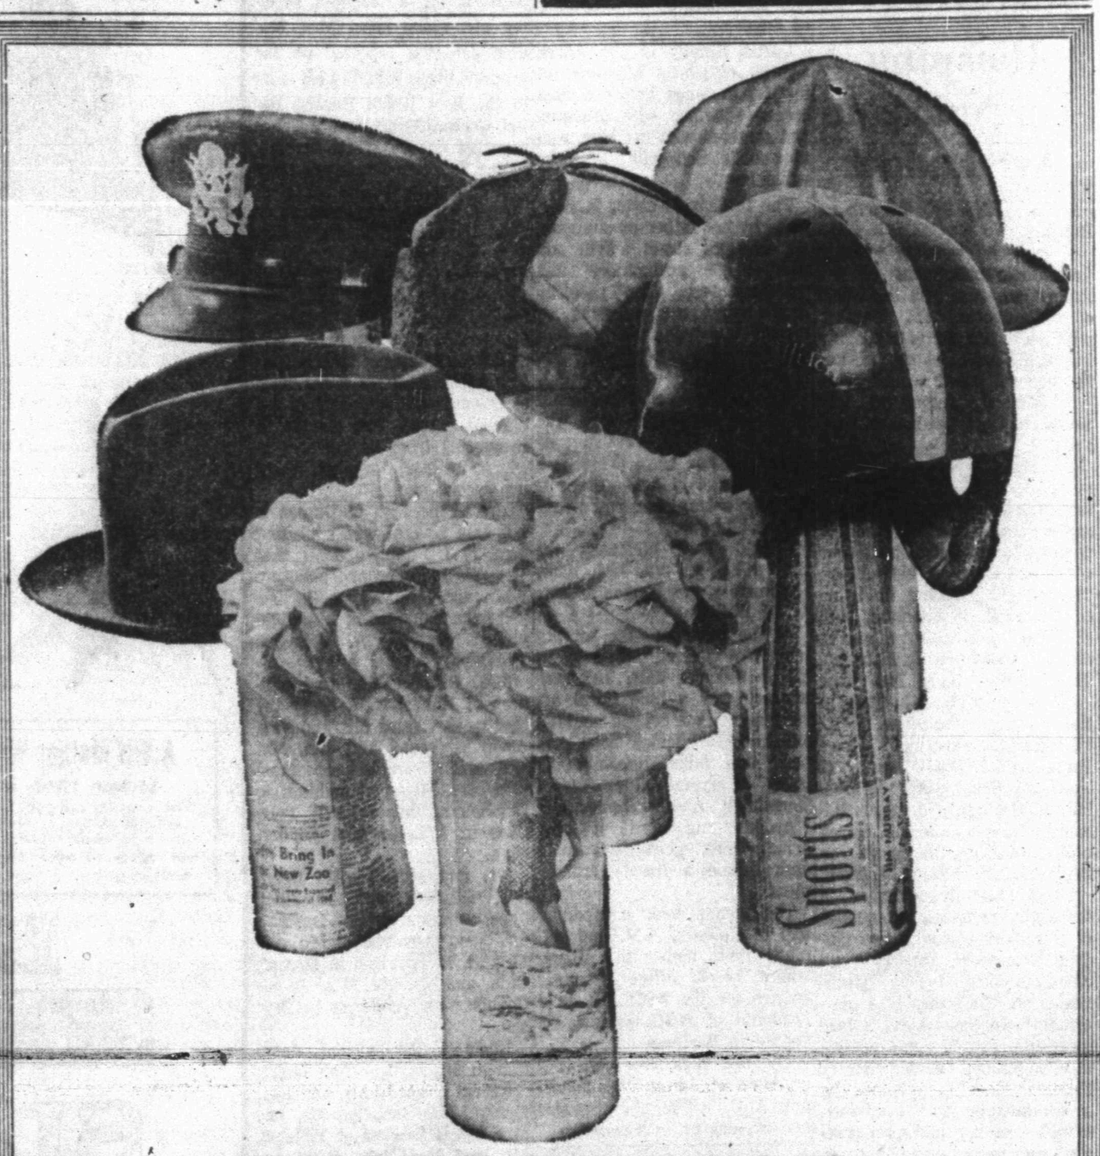

Until now, you and I might never have heard of this prodigious adventurer into endless wanderings, endless political arguments and the literary dead ends of the years between the big wars. But he is worth discovering as a visceral, one-man phenomenon, spawned by a nonconforming, nontypical fraction of American life, earlier in this century.

At least half of his life was filled with the tricks and devices of poverty, the desperate dodges of the agitator who scrounges scraps and naps where he finds them; he is the promoter of obscure vendettas in small, unread publications, the shadowy figure scuttling away from beer - hall riots; the restless rider of boats and freight cars into nowhere; the starving, conniving, word-spouter, a sexual bohemian, experiencing all the wild wounds of the ideological, narrow - minded prejudiced idealist.

His boyhood was in the polyglot stew of lower Manhattan. As a teen - age seaman he wandered through ports, people and books. He became a Trotskyist infiltrating the tiny, ignored world of American communism of the 1920s. In the days of the Writers' Project of the 1930s he drank and argued with people who later became famous. As a rebellious poet he anticipated the beatniks. After a wild episode of debauchery, malaria and near-death in the last war, he became disillusioned with Marxism, sex and double - talk, and settled down as a journalist.

Few men have gone through as many shattering physical, mental and philosophical contortions as this one. His story is that of a maverick, so far removed from traditional American affinities that his life seems exotic and aberrational. Yet he has a story to tell about a little known hothouse strain that blossomed in a certain American era that has become confused history. He tells it vividly.

A TOUGH COURSE

Foreign Affairs Course Of Many Presidents Unsavory

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — "In those terrible early hours, we did what we had to do."

It was President Johnson, explaining to the nation the rush of American troops into the Dominican Republic.

It could also have been an explanation for American involvement in Southeast Asia, including the bombing of North Viet Nam.

It could have been almost any other president from George Washington on up, explaining the latest twist or turn of American foreign policy over the decades.

In the light of history, many actions by presidents in the foreign field have been unsavory.

But, no matter how they look now, for all the presidents the main interests have always been the self-interest and security of the United States.

The $110 billion given in economic and military aid since the end of World War II is an example.

It was generous. It was full of human considerations. But always its chief purpose was to shore up non-Communist nations to prevent a Communist takeover, which the United States didn't want.

There have been two sturdy, persistent guides in American foreign policy: the Monroe Doctrine of isolation, up to the last World War; and, ever since, the Truman Doctrine of involvement. Johnson has leaned on both.

When it laid down the Monroe Doctrine the United States had more mouth than muscle, and continually got into trouble; it was a giant when it laid down the Truman Doctrine, and has been in trouble ever since.

Presidents Washington, Adams and Jefferson, all isolationists, warned against alliances. But now the United States is in alliances around the world.

"Cultivate peace," Washington said in his 1796 Farewell Address but the United States has been in at least 10 foreign wars, an average of one every 17 years.

Five of them were undeclared — with France in 1798-1800, with the Barbary pirates twice in the early 1800s, the Korean war and the war in Viet Nam — and three of the wars probably didn't have to be fought at all — with Britain in 1812, with Mexico in 1846-48, and with Spain in 1898.

In addition American land and naval forces have been used at least 155 times to keep order, protect American lives, and carry out U.S. policy.

Avoid favoritism among nations in trading with them, Washington said, but the year before his administration had worked out a "most-favored-nation" deal with Britain. This, among other things, so angered the French they began the two-year undeclared war.

Philosopher Jefferson, the antislavery man who kept slaves, had other built-in contradictions: he was an isolationist and an expansionist. You'd think from his first inaugural that America had all the land it needed. The United States, he said, had "room enough to the thousandth and thousandth generation."

But even as he said it he was hoping the United States could help itself to pieces of the crumbling Spanish empire in America. And two years after he said it he bought the Louisiana Territory from France to get more land and avoid having the French for next-door neighbors.

For the United States, while it preached isolation, was hungry for trade and more land, which meant expansion. And those apostles of expansion, the war hawks and later the Manifest Destiny protagonists, helped push the United States into three wars: 1812, Mexican, and Spanish-American.

By the mid 1820s the Latin Americans had almost completely rid themselves of their European masters, particularly Spain, but President Monroe was afraid the French were going to barge into South America. He thought it necessary to warn them to stay out. This was 1823.

So he stated his doctrine, which might never have been written, if he had only known that two months before the French had promised the British they wouldn't move in. One historian said the doctrine was aimed at an imaginary enemy.

The doctrine left the Latin Americans cool, the Europeans cold. The Russian czar, like Premier Khrushchev many years later, expressed contempt. Americans themselves almost forgot it for the next two decades. This was the American more-mouth-than-muscle period when the Navy was hardly fit for more than coast defense. No wonder the doctrine contained no threats.

It simply said the United States would stay out of European affairs and told the Europeans not to try to grab territory in Latin America. Suppose they tried? All the doctrine said was that the United States could not view such intrusion with "indifference." But intrusion went on for years.

President Johnson was operating strictly under the Truman Doctrine in putting the United States directly into the war in Viet Nam. He was operating under the combined Truman-Monroe Doctrine in sending Marines to the Dominican Republic, although for some reason of his own he chose not to mention either doctrine.

He gave two explanations for his Dominican action: First, he said it was to save American lives in the revolution; but then he said it was to prevent Communists from getting control of the Dominican Republic.

This didn't satisfy some of his critics whose natural question: What about the agreement not to intervene in another country under any circumstances? And what about the right of each country to settle its own differences and work out its own destiny?

The answer would have to be, if Johnson gave one, that any president would act first for the sake of what he thought was his own nation's safety. He could point to a long list of his predecessors who thought the same.

Texas Wheat Crop Estimate Raised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas' wheat crop promises a yield more than six million bushels above the May 1 forecast, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

Its May 1 estimate was made near the end of a severe dry spell in some of the state's most productive wheat areas. After that good rains came to the wheat counties, and then the big problem of getting it out of muddy fields before weather destroyed it.

Texas produced 61,848 bushels of wheat last year. This year's total, if borne out in harvest figures, will be 8 million bushels above the 1959-1963 average.

Junior Editors Quiz on RHODE ISLAND

QUESTION: Rhode Island isn't an island. Why is it called one?

• • •

ANSWER: Look at our map. It's true that Narragansett Bay, on the southeast, has a number of islands, but the Rhode Island as a whole is certainly not an island, since it runs without interruption into that of Connecticut and Massachusetts. Two explanations are usually given for the state's odd name.

The first is that the explorer Verrazano, in 1511, noticed an island in Narragansett Bay which remided him of the Island of Rhodes in the far off Mediterranean Sea. We illustrate the second theory. It is known that another explorer, Adriaen Block, visited this area in 1614, and spoke of a 'Roodt-Eylandt' or red island, also in Narragansett Bay, calling it red because red clay was visible. From one of these beginnings, the bay area became called Rhode Island. Then, in 1636, the famous Roger Williams, called the Father of Rhode Island, bought land from the Indians and founded Providence, now a prosperous city. Williams was seeking a spot to establish a colony dedicated to religious freedom. In an English charter of 1663, the province as a whole was called Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, and this still remains as the official name of the state, although shortened to Rhode Island for convenience.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Remember the following interesting bit of history about Rhode Island, which, although a small state, has a right to be proud of its past. The settlement of Providence gave every man an equal voice in the affairs of the state—said to be the first such government in the history of the world. 6-12

G. Dearman Becomes Bride Of T. Galyean In First Assembly Of God Church Services

Miss Glenda Faye Dearman, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. C. Dearman, 1809 Avenue S, became the bride of Thomas Wayne Galyean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Galyean, 503 Twenty-seventh Street, on June 4th, at 7:30 p.m. in the First Assembly of God Church.

Rev. Dearman, pastor of the church, and father of the bride, officiated at the double ring service.

Church decorations included a platform centered with white cathedral windows flanked on each side by white candelabra banked with greenery.

Donna Stephens of Snyder, soloist, sang "Because" before the ceremony and "Wedding Prayer" at the closing. She was accompanied by Mrs. Nancy Smith of Odessa, organist.

The bride entered the chapel on the arm of her brother-in-law, Clois D. Cotton, and as she approached the altar, she sang "I Love You Truly" to the groom, after which she was presented in marriage.

The bride wore a princess silhouette of antique ivory satin. The fitted bodice featured a sculptured neckline bordered by two bands of Battenburg lace separated by pleated tulle and long petal point sleeves. The full princess skirt swept into a chapel length train. She wore a forward cluster of satin petals centered by pearls, holding her bouffant veil of ivory illusion.

She carried a cascading bouquet of three ivory gardenias surrounded by pom pom mums and English ivy.

Mrs. Kathy Key of Ira was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sheila Cotton of Anton, sister of the bride, Nancy Hollis and Beverly Clarkson of Lubbock, cousin of the bride. Shirley Hessler was junior bridesmaid.

Attendants were attired in powder blue floor - length crepe dresses with round necklines and basque waists, to which was attached chantilly lace watteau trains. Each wore a matching pillbox hat with double bows and circular veils.

Their bouquets were crescent shape shaded blue pom pom mums and purple heather, entwined with English ivy.

The bride's mother wore a blue linen sheath dress with lace motif and blue flowered hat. Her corsage was of gladiolas. The groom's mother chose a beige lace dress with fern green accessories and a brown orchid corsage.

Mr. Larry Hayes was best man. Darrell Raines of Dallas and Stanley Baize of Snyder, and Joe Robert Galyean of Hobbs, N.M., brother of the groom were groomsmen. Ushers were Mack Galyean, Don McCowen and Roy Havens. Elton Hessler was junior groomsman.

The bride selected a Dior blue silk linen suit with white lizard accessories for her wedding trip to South Texas.

The bride is a 1965 graduate of Snyder High School. The bridegroom is stationed at Fort Campbell Kentucky until December when he receives discharge and returns to his job with Halliburton Well Servicing.

Toledo Man Wins Bet In Mobile Home

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — It started out as a bet, but since 1960 46-year-old Harold Lovett of Toledo and his rolling "home-away-from-home" have traveled 122,000 miles through 49 of the 50 states.

Lovett, a New York Central crane operator who lives alone, has converted his 1957 model station wagon into a mobile home. It is equipped with a bed and four of its windows have screens and blinds.

The front seat supports a shelf that has been fixed up as a writing table complete with a lamp.

Lovett started touring in his station wagon after someone made him a bet three years ago that he couldn't drive the vehicle through every state in the union. Since then he has been in every state except Hawaii and also has been in 10 provinces of Canada, the Yukon, and Northwest territories and into Mexico.

He recently returned to Toledo after a 28-day, 10,369-mile trip to Yellowknife, an old gold mining town in the Northwest Territory. On that trip Lovett spent only three nights out of his rolling home — that was when severe weather forced him to the shelter of motels.

Lovett says he never becomes lonesome on his lonely travels as long as the car radio keeps working. He estimates that the money he saves on accommodations just about covers the cost of gasoline used on the journeys.

Books About The West

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

THE WIRE THAT WON THE West, by Henry D. and Frances T. McCallum (University of Oklahoma Press).

Any boy who hasn't lost a little skin to bob wire or lost a large amount of temper trying to make a too-short piece stretch from one fence post to another isn't in the inside circle of westerner. It is sort of a blood ritual.

This reviewer was almost an adult before he discovered it wasn't bob wire but barbed wire, and even then it seemed an effete eastern corruption of the word.

Many things have laid claim to taming the West—the six-shooter, tick dip, railroads.

Henry D. and Frances T. McCallum of Tyler make a good case for barbed wire in their book recently off the University of Oklahoma Press.

A practical barbed wire came into general use after the Civil War. Up to that time, wooden and stone fences cost more than the land and fences were few.

After wire use became general, the farmer could defy the cattleman and his insistance on the open range tradition.

When cattlemen faced up to the fact that wire stopped them from running rough-shod over the settlers, they began their own fencing, enclosing not only their small holdings but land they wanted to buy or even dreamed of buying.

This, among other things, led to the famed range wars of Lincoln and Johnson Counties, fence cutting and murders beyond number.

But at last farmers in most sections were reasonably safe. And it led to an end to the Indian menace, for no longer could tribes roam at will.

A too-detailed discussion of the patent disputes slows the book. But it is interesting that the man credited with founding Port Arthur was Bet-A-Million Gates, a sharp operator in the wire industry, while Amarillo owes a great deal to H. B. Sanborn, another fence man who picked the Panhandle for demonstrations.

RAWHIDE TEXAS, by Wayne Gard (University of Oklahoma Press).

If there are romanticists who believe Texas was a Paradise in the early days, Wayne Gard sets them straight in his new book, "Rawhide Texas," published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

It is a collection of stories telling the difficulties of life before 1900.

The barest creature comforts were present only in a few towns and on the plantations of South and East Texas, and the Civil War ruined plantation life forever.

There were few doctors, ministers or schoolteachers, and the food was montonous and terrible. Most of the materials needed for an improved life just were not available.

An example is homes. Log cabins may have produced a few great men, but they became great because they fled such primitive conditions. Any dugout, in which this reviewer has spent a few nights, is equally miserable.

For a survey of how people lived then, we haven't seen a book to equal this.

Gard ranges far, discussing the weather, Indians, game, doctors, circuit riders, plantation days, cattle, sheep, farming, schools, lawmen and editors, among other subjects.
