Making a statement

For the second time this week, the Lady Rebels pulled out a tight district game and now must be considered a factor in the district race. Lee scored 14 straight points in the 3rd quarter and went on to defeat Abilene High 63-57./1B

Strong job market

WASHINGTON — A hiring surge at construction sites, department stores and restaurants cut the nation's unemployment rate to 4.3 percent in December and helped make last year's job market the strongest during peacetime in 41 years.

Damage to Iraq

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon doubled its damage estimate from the airstrikes on Iraq, saying Friday the attack set back Saddam Hussein's weapons program two years and killed 600 to 2,000 Republican Guard members, including key leaders. "The effectiveness was even greater than we first thought," Marine Gen. Anthony Zinni, head of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf, said at a Pentagon news conference.

Odd couple unites Senate on a plan for proceedings

■ Phil Gramm, Ted Kennedy help bring parties together to establish ground rules for Clinton impeachment trial.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Conservative Republican Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas and liberal Democrat Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, a political odd couple, brought the U.S. Senate together Friday in the impeachment trial of President Clinton.

"We have reached a bipartisan agreement on a procedure that follows the ancient rules of the Senate, follows the constitutional process, and follows the rules of impeachment," Gramm said Friday afternoon on a CNN telecast.

AP photo
Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, right, greets Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., on Capitol Hill Friday shortly after senators unanimously approved a blueprint for President Clinton's impeachment trial.

The traditionally partisan U.S. senators seemed bipartisan as senator-jurors who agreed to rules of procedure in handling the trial.

Gramm said that the agreement does "not overturn the rules of impeachment as they have stood in the process of building for 210 years. We have agreed to move forward."

Earlier in the day, Gramm spokesman Larry Neal told the Reporter-Telegram that Gramm is "concerned that the Senate proceed with dignity and decorum ... a kind of calm dignity.

"Sen. Gramm is intent on not contributing to any degradation of the solemnity of this procedure," Neal said.

Gramm, too, is rejecting censure as a means of punishing the president, who has been impeached by the House of Representatives on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice arising out of a White House sex scandal.

■ Trial ground rules set/7A
■ '89 Gore impeachment vote/7A
■ History weighs on senators/8A

On the telecast, Gramm said that the two contending parties, "those who represent the president and the House of Representatives, the accuser representing the American people, each will have 24 hours to present their arguments "based on the record that was built in the House of Representatives."

In turn, the senators would have 16 hours to pose questions through Chief Justice William Rehnquist, who is presiding over the trial.

Before "any motion is voted on" by the Senate, the House or the president may make requests for witnesses and additional evidence.

As the process winds down, the Senate will conduct a vote of guilty or not guilty of the impeachment charges.

A day earlier, Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison of Texas said that she is "committed to ensuring that the process we establish is fair to the president, House of Representatives, and set the precedent in accordance with the Constitution for future Congresses.

"In the end, the way we will be judged will be whether we gave the opportunity for both sides to fully develop their case," Mrs. Hutchison said.

The Republicans and the Democrats, represented by Gramm and Kennedy, apparently seek to do that through the procedures set forth by Gramm.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott said that Gramm, in a bipartisan conference, "touched the point that turned the whole thing around" and, in essence, said, "'There's really no difference here'" between the Democratic and the Republican resolutions on the trial's procedures.

The president or his representatives would be allowed to present the president's case for introducing new evidence or witnesses in the trial and would petition the Senate to do so.

Lott noted that Gramm and Republican Sen. Slade Gorton worked with Democrats Kennedy and Sen. Joe Lieberman in reaching the agreement.

Dixie Dispatch and The First Amendment

Lee High School junior Adam Martinez wrote an editorial about the school's Rebel flag spirit symbol, but Principal George Cooper decided against running it in the Dixie Dispatch.

Student disappointed when flag editorial cut

Adam Martinez thought he had written an editorial worth printing in his school newspaper. His editor and faculty advisor agreed. His principal did not.

Martinez, a junior at Lee High School, said he got the idea for his editorial topic — the Confederate flag — from watching it wave in the stands at his team's football games.

The spotlight was growing on the LHS Rebels as they made their march toward an eventual state championship. Also on the rise, said Martinez, was fans' use of the flag.

"It kind of irritated me," said Martinez of the flag's prevalence. "The purpose of this article wasn't to stir up any revolt or controversy, but I think it is an issue that needs to be dealt with."

Martinez wrote his editorial for his journalism class. Both his editor, senior Emily Baker, and his teacher, John Briggs, gave it the green light.

"I thought that it was reasoned and obviously thought out and made a strong point," said Briggs. "Perhaps in retrospect I should have thought that it might stir up more than an ordinate level of response."

Briggs sent the editorial off with the rest of that month's eight-page newspaper to the principal, George Cooper. Approval was usually routine, so Briggs gave no thought to the article being cut.

But when the Dec. 11 issue of the monthly, LHS-sponsored Dixie Dispatch ran, Martinez's article did not run

MISD cites ruling on student publications

Were Adam Martinez's First Amendment rights violated when his editorial was cut from the school newspaper? Maybe not, if you study the U.S. Supreme Court's last words on the subject.

Three Midland stores burglarized overnight

By Richard Acosta
Staff Writer

Employees of three Midland stores came to work Friday and found that their establishments had been visited in the dead of night.

One of the stores is McKay's at 36 Village Circle. It had been announced previously that the furniture store is going out of business.

"It is bad enough the employees have to deal with the fact that the store is closing, but now they have to come to work to find their desks have been gone through," store manager Robert Putt said Friday afternoon.

Putt said that when employees came to work Friday morning they found that the delivery door in the rear of the building had been smashed.

"It looks like they ran into the back door with a truck, bent the door in and got in through the hole," Putt said. "I guess they were unable to get anything out through the hole they made so they cut the lock bolt, knocked the door off its hinges and opened the door up all the way."

Putt said that of all the things in the store, he was surprised at what the burglars took.

"They did not take a single sofa, table or chair from the store," Putt said. "None of our computers, fax machines, the safe or anything like that were taken or messed with, either. All they took was a television and VCR from one of the offices, some boxes of lamps we had by the door and a microwave.

"They went through all the drawers in the store and left them open. They went through the employees' desks, took all our candy and ate all of Joyce's (Arnold) cookies."

Ike's Rent to Own at 1100 N. Lamesa Road also found itself a few items lighter than the day before.

Manager Curtis Duggan said he knew right away that his store had been hit.

"I left early yesterday," Duggan said. "I walked in (Fri-

Rebel commander rejects cease-fire proposal

By Ian Stewart
Associated Press

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone — The top field commander of a ruthless rebel army roaming the streets of Sierra Leone's capital rejected a proposed cease-fire Friday, saying his fighters would battle on.

Gen. Sam Bockarie of the Revolutionary United Front announced that within 24 hours, his forces would attack the western parts of Freetown still under government control and then move against the international airport at nearby Lungi, an important military base.

Already, parts of this West African capital have been set ablaze.

"There is no cease-fire," Bockarie told The Associated Press in a telephone interview. "We will take the rest of the city and save our country."

Bockarie has been demanding the release of the rebel's patriarch, Foday Sankoh, who has been jailed by the government and sentenced to death on charges of high treason. He dismissed the seven-day cease-fire announced Thursday by Sankoh and elected President Ahmed Tejan Kabbah.

"We do not recognize Kabbah, we will not talk to Kabbah, he is ousted," Bockarie declared.

With eastern and central parts of Freetown in rebel hands, U.N. efforts to mediate peace in this nation of 4.5 million people have fallen on deaf ears.

Sierra Leone's defense forces have failed to dislodge the insurgents, who have successfully employed such tactics as hiding among civilians and using them as human shields. The latest fighting erupted a month ago.

The United Nations, which pulled out of Sierra Leone earlier in the week, returned for a few hours Friday to evacuate their last remaining representative and aid workers from other relief agencies.

"What is important is that there is a cease-fire," said the U.N.'s special envoy to Sierra Leone, Francis Okelo, who returned for brief consultations with government leaders before heading back to neighboring Guinea.

The West African defense force that is defending Kabbah's government has been scrambling to reinforce its positions with supplies and arms.

Aboard a military transport helicopter, gunmen at the ready peeked through portholes Friday as the chopper moved ashore and skimmed a small hill, banked hard to the left and settled to the ground in a roaring blast of dust and sand.

For the return trip across the water to Lungi airport, a dozen civilians and government functionaries crammed into the Russian-made Mi-8 to flee Sierra Leone's shattered capital.

Hundreds of rebels, who advocate a vague mixture of agrarian democracy and revolutionary socialism, battled their way into Freetown earlier this week.

The result is a city in flames. Homes, schools, a hospital and even police headquarters have been burned. Terrified residents have been dragged from their homes.

Civilians who managed to escape are worried about their uncertain future.

"If they take over, they will kill us all," said Saidu Koroma, who escaped the city to Lungi aboard a military evacuation flight Friday. "I'd rather be dead, I'd rather they kill everyone in the country before we see them in power."

Although outgunned, outfinanced and outlawed, the rebels have baffled government troops as well as the Nigerian-led West African peacekeeping force known as ECOMOG.

"Kabbah has called us thieves and bandits and refused to talk to us," Bockarie said. "Now we are in control and it's too late to talk."

The rebels, hidden among civilians, are using the very people they purport to liberate as shields to fend off a counterstrike.

That rebel ploy has stymied a full-scale military response and forced the government to consider releasing Sankoh.

Internet suicide sites worry Japanese

By Joji Sakurai
Associated Press

TOKYO — He called himself Dr. Kiriko after a dark-cloaked figure in Japanese comics, and welcomed his troubled supplicants with promises of fast relief.

But the 27-year-old science teacher was dispensing more than just friendly advice on the Internet. Nawaki Hashimoto was peddling cyanide pills to suicidal Japanese.

Police said this week that Hashimoto used his credentials as a pharmacist to buy potassium cyanide and had stocked up more than 500 grams — enough to kill 3,000 people. Eight people ordered the capsules through his website. A Tokyo woman who swallowed a dose died Dec. 15, the same day Hashimoto was found dead from cyanide poisoning.

The Internet cyanide case has alarmed Japanese and sparked a debate over whether potentially harmful information in cyberspace, such as the proliferating sites on how to commit suicide, should be kept in check.

"One musn't forget that there's the danger of a 'pitfall of death' lurking in the information age," the mass-circulation Mainichi newspaper said in an editorial Friday.

Days after the cyanide poisonings, Japan's top-selling newspaper, the Yomiuri, called for stricter supervision of harmful information on the Internet in a front-page editorial about suicide Web sites.

The government already is alarmed about the availability of child pornography in cyberspace, and the suicide case only fuels its concern about whether officials should get involved in closely monitoring the Internet. So far, discussions are preliminary and a strategy has not yet emerged.

A search for "suicide" on a typical Japanese Internet engine turns up more than 20,000 hits. Many sites offer counseling to help prevent desperate people from killing themselves, but scores of others offer guidance on how to end one's life.

Many experts say the cyber-suicides have generated unfair criticism of the Internet in Japan.

"I believe it's wrong to blame the Internet," said Atsushi Aiba, professor of sociology at Shizuoka University. "The same crimes can be committed by telephone, and few people would dream of imposing stricter controls in that field."

Hashimoto's home page maintenance company closed down his Internet "consultation room" shortly after news of the cyanide deaths emerged, on the grounds that it encouraged people to harm themselves.

But days later, several mirror sites appeared, apparently posted by aficionados of Hashimoto's service. Some reportedly carried messages thanking "Dr. Kiriko" and offering prayers for the repose of his soul.

Dr. Kiriko, Hashimoto's cybername, referred to a practitioner of euthanasia in a popular comic strip. Hashimoto was a science teacher in Sapporo, on Japan's northernmost main island of Hokkaido.

The unemployed woman who died from Hashimoto's cyanide allegedly had the capsules ordered for her by another Tokyo woman whom she met during a hospital stay. Her helper had been hospitalized after attempting to kill herself with poison requested from the Dr. Kiriko Web site.

Viewpoint: Flag out of place

The following is the editorial cut by the Lee principal from the school newspaper:

By Adam Martinez

Only at Robert E. Lee High (a school named for a general whose defeat set off the collapse of his nation) would slavery and oppression be an acceptable symbol of representation.

Where else in the nation (besides Alabama or Tennessee) could one find such a heated debate over the Confederate flag?

Not only does the idea of having a flag that symbolizes a nation that has long been deceased represent me seem absurd, but a little hypocritical as well.

Being that I have zero African blood in me, I cannot take personal offense to this vibrant issue. I personally believe that the majority of the people who support the Confederate flag have no intention of reinstating slavery. I do, however, feel that the same people offer no legitimate reasoning for their beliefs.

The most predominant reason is: "Why deny something that is a part of history?" Okay, the persecution of Christians by the early Romans was a part of history; the genocide of massive amounts of European Jews by Nazi Germany is also a part of history; the blood bath between the Catholics and the Protestants in Ireland is currently making history. This does not mean, however, that we should celebrate these tragedies by opening the Adolf Hitler Preschool, or dedicating the new Ted Kaczynski neighborhood park while hundreds of children wave their Nazi flags to simply recognize history. Should we hold pep rallies to commemorate the Black Plague or have Princess Di's automobile wreck day? Simple logic and common sense will tell you what is appropriate and what is not.

If these people truly want to recognize history, then they have to consider the humiliation that black people had to endure under that "rebel" flag. Back then, the big debate was not whether black and white people were equal, but rather if blacks belonged to the human race at all.

Now, I do realize where I currently am. I have never been around such a culture before. I know that this area has a long rich history of pride in the Confederacy. I also realize that I write for a newspaper titled the Dixie Dispatch, which features a recurrent article about southwestern living. I do, however, feel that no one should feel inferior, and if the "rebel" flag causes feelings of oppression, it should not even be an issue.

EDITORIAL: Principal says topic, not viewpoint, objectionable with it. In its place ran a graphic of a punch bowl and the innocuous message, "Happy Holidays from the Dixie Dispatch staff."

The day before publication, Cooper had given the paper back to Briggs, with a post-it note attached to Martinez's article: "Don't need this Viewpoint. Delete."

Cooper said he did this to protect the students.

"Any of the decisions that I make are related to the potential for disruption to the educational process," he said. "I felt like the article that was written had that potential."

Cooper also said the issue has been resolved. In October 1990, a debate was sparked in Midland when an Associated Press story cited LHS as a school where Confederate spirit symbols were drawing complaints.

In 1991, under pressure from the growing controversy, the board of trustees of Midland Independent School District voted to roll up the Rebel flag as an official school spirit symbol.

Since then, it has been the policy of LHS not to allow the flag to be displayed in school halls or school-sponsored publications, and Cooper said he has and will continue to enforce that policy.

"The controversy over the flag was resolved in '91. And it was not a positive issue for our school or our community at that time," said Cooper. "There was not any real reason to resurrect that."

Martinez said that although he does not question Cooper's authority to make the decision, he does question his rationale.

"For the principal to turn a blind eye by saying it's a dead issue is incorrect, I think," he said. "His reason that he offered to me was not enough.

"I asked him, 'What viewpoint should I have, then?'

Cooper claims it was the topic of the article, not the viewpoint, that led him to cut it. He cited the policy in the student and parent handbook toward distribution of publications on campus, which allows for censorship "where there is evidence that reasonably supports a forecast that disruption will likely result directly from the distribution."

When asked what kind of disruption he forecast specifically, Cooper said, "Go back and look at the decision in '91 that resulted in disruption and you'll see."

"I think Mr. Cooper should have pulled the story," said Jarrod Cooley, a senior and co-editor along with Emily Baker.

Cooley did not have a chance to read the article until after it was cut. He thought it "crossed the lines of journalistic ethics."

"There's a degree of exaggeration that moves to just ridiculous," he said, noting that Martinez compares a school named after Robert E. Lee to one named after Hitler.

"I think if it had been written with more couth it should have been printed."

Miss Baker disagrees, both with Cooley and Martinez's article.

"I still think that he (Martinez) has a right to voice his opinion," she said. "I felt it was a very well-written editorial, and I felt it had a place in our paper."

At the same time, Miss Baker said, she understood why Cooper made the decision he did.

"I can see how it could cause an uprising," she said. "I really think they're afraid of opposition and uprising. I think they feel like they're protecting themselves and everyone ... If I were in his (Cooper's) position, I probably would have done the same thing."

Briggs said he did not question Cooper when he learned the article was to be cut.

"I said, 'Yes, sir. Whatever you want,'" said Briggs. "He is my immediate supervisor and I try to do what he says."

When asked whether he personally agreed with Cooper's decision, Briggs said, "If Mr. Cooper and I agreed on everything, then I would have cut that (editorial) from the start, and he never would have seen it.

"I do know that Mr. Cooper and I see the concept of journalism somewhat differently," he said.

Cooper said he is merely doing his job.

"The school board charges me with protecting the educational concerns of the students," he said. "We're providing our students the best possible education without disruptions."

He said he did not feel he was violating Martinez's First Amendment rights. "Not when you weigh the educational opportunities of the entire group," said Cooper. "This is not a constitutional issue."

Legal questions aside, some students feel that allowing dialogue about the Rebel flag would be healthier.

"I think a lot of people would actually feel better if they could say what they felt about it and maybe get something changed because of it," said Miss Baker.

"Every time it surfaces it's just pushed back," said Martinez. "I think they (administrators) should certainly send out a message — one way or the other. Nobody knows where they stand on it."

RULING: In 5-3 decision, Supreme Court upheld principal's right to censor articles

(From 1A)

"It was definitely considered to be a significant change in the law," said David Greene, program director of the National Campaign for Freedom of Expression in Washington, D.C.

The case involved a package of articles about teen pregnancy and the effects of divorce on children that were to run in a high school newspaper near St. Louis. The principal pulled the articles, citing various privacy considerations and concerns about mature subject matter.

In a 5-3 decision, the Supreme Court upheld the principal's right to censor the articles.

"We hold that educators do not offend the First Amendment by exercising editorial control over the style and content of student speech in school-sponsored expressive activities, so long as their actions are reasonably related to legitimate pedagogical concerns," wrote Justice Byron White, delivering the majority opinion.

The decision, though not revisited to this day, has drawn its share of controversy.

"Hazelwood was and is a horrible decision for the rights of students," said Greene.

Among those who vehemently disagreed with the Hazelwood decision were the dissenting members of the Supreme Court.

Justice William Brennan wrote a fiercely critical dissent.

"The case before us aptly illustrates how readily school officials (and courts) can camouflage viewpoint discrimination as the 'mere' protection of students from sensitive topics," Brennan wrote. "[W]ithout so much as acknowledging the less oppressive alternatives, the Court approves brutal censorship."

But what counts in Hazelwood, of course, is the majority opinion, and it may support Lee High School Principal George Cooper's decision to cut Martinez's editorial, though it would be far from an open-and-shut case.

"(School officials) have a lot of leeway, but they don't have unlimited authority," said Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center in Arlington, Va.

Cooper claims his concern in cutting Martinez's editorial — opposing the use of the Confederate flag as a school spirit symbol — was the "potential for disruption" within the school.

He refused to elaborate on what that disruption might entail, but he said he did not rule out violent confrontations between students as a possibility.

Goodman said school officials have to demonstrate that their decisions meet an "educationally reasonable standard."

"Loud disagreement and strong feelings is not disruption," said Goodman. "I question whether a judge would believe that that was educationally reasonable."

He said, however, that a legitimate concern — backed up by strong evidence — about "physical disruption of the school or school-related activities" would likely be enough of a defense.

MISD policy reads, "'Bare allegations' of disruption or unsubstantiated speculation as to what 'might' happen or 'could result' are not sufficient to support a reasonable forecast of disruption of the normal operations of the school."

District officials claim Cooper's decision is substantiated by history, namely the outcry that erupted over the flag eight years ago. An October 1990 Associated Press article about schools with Confederate logos sparked a movement in Midland to remove the flag as the official symbol of LHS.

The effort finally succeeded in March 1991, and the flag was retained only as an official "historical symbol" of the school.

"It's not like we're guessing. We've been through this before," said Ricardo Torres, executive director of secondary education. "I can assure you, if we bring it up, it'll come back and kick us in the tail again."

If officials could demonstrate "educationally reasonable" concerns, they would still have one more constitutional hurdle: viewpoint neutrality.

"They can't stop one particular voice because they don't like it," said Lubbock attorney Don Richards, who specializes in freedom of information cases. "But they do have the right to eliminate an entire issue."

Cooper claims it was the issue, not the viewpoint, that he was interested in eliminating.

"If you allow a pro-article or con-article, then you should also allow for any form of rebuttal," said Cooper. "It opens up an avenue for discussing an issue that's already been resolved (at LHS)."

Goodman said with an editorial on such a topic, the issue and viewpoint were difficult to separate, and viewpoint neutrality would be difficult to show.

Perhaps the debate is all academic in this case, though.

Martinez said he has no interest in going to court.

day) morning and I noticed some holes (places where televisions and VCRs had been). At first I thought we might have rented out a bunch of stuff. Then I saw the big television moved, the back door forced opened and went to call the police."

Duggan said he thought it was odd that none of the radios or his office equipment were missing.

"They took four VCRs and two televisions," Duggan said. "They started to take one of the radios but I think the alarm went off and may have scared them away.

"I think they were looking for money or something too, 'cause they went through all the drawers. They were open when I got here (Friday) morning."

The last of the t' ree overnight robberies took place at Xpress Check Cashing at 4310 W. Illinois Ave.

Employees Monica Melendez and Marisa Suenz said they think the person who broke into the store was after only the safe.

"The safe was the only thing moved in the office," Ms. Melendez said. "I think they knew the combination. The safe was open with the combination on the last number. ..." She said a large sum of money was missing.

Ms. Suenz discovered the crime scene when she got to work Friday morning.

"They broke the glass over there," Ms. Suenz said, pointing to a small window close to the ground. "There was glass all over the place. When I came to work this morning I had a lot of stuff in my hand. When I was trying to open the door the people next door said, 'look', and I was like, 'what?' and they were like, 'look', and I saw the broken glass and I was like, 'oh my God.'"

An employee of another Xpress Check Cashing on Lamesa Road, right across the street from Ike's Rent to Own, said someone tried to get into the business Thursday night.

The front door window was smashed but not broken, according to the employee.

Police are unsure if any of the burglaries are related. The investigations continue.

3 arrested in Fiesta Foods robbery

From Staff Reports

The Midland Police Department has made three new arrests in connection with the Fiesta Foods aggravated robbery that took place on Oct. 24.

Juan David Tovar, 21, Luis V. Berlanga, 17, and Cristian Atayde, 18, have been arrested in connection with the aggravated robbery, according to reports.

Public Information Officer Tina Sanders-Jauz said the cooperation of the men arrested on Dec. 6 led police to Friday's arrests.

Midland police are still looking for one man they believe was involved with the aggravated robbery.

As of Friday night all three men were in the Midland County Detention Center. Bond amounts were not available.

UNITE: Odd couple senators join forces

(From 1A)

"I'm very proud of it," Lott said. "I think it will be fair to the Senate on both sides of the aisles, to the House, and to the White House."

The Senate "acted in the very best tradition of the Senate ... (in) an appropriate approach to this historic, very solemn event."

Gramm noted that on Thursday, the 100 senators pledged to "do impartial justice under the Constitution, so help us God.

"And we are very proud today to say on a bipartisan basis that we are going to begin momentarily to fulfill that oath."

OBITUARIES

Anne Anson

Anne K. Anson was born August 10, 1924, in Lausaunne, Switzerland, to A. Walter Kramer and Rosalie von Rehling Kramer, native-born Americans then on sabbatical in Europe. She attended the Dalton School in New York, Ashley Hall in Charleston, South Carolina, and received her BA from Smith College in 1946. After earning an MA from Columbia Teachers College in 1947, she moved to Tulsa, Oklahoma, as a professional nursery school teacher and director. There she married Robert D. Anson in 1953, and they moved to Midland in 1973. With her husband she maintained a strong interest in musical and artistic activities in Midland and beyond. She was the current president of the Green Thumb Garden Club in Midland.

She is survived by her husband, Robert; her two sons, Thomas K. Anson of Austin, Texas, and David Alan Anson of Salt Lake City; and one granddaughter.

Friends may, in lieu of flowers, make contributions in her memory to The Midland Recording Library for the Blind, The Midland Symphony & Chorale, or to Temple Israel, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

A brief memorial service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, January 10, at the Chapel of Ellis Funeral Home.

Job market strongest during peacetime in 41 years

By Dave Skidmore
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A hiring surge at construction sites, department stores and restaurants cut the nation's unemployment rate to 4.3 percent in December and helped make last year's job market the strongest during peacetime in 41 years.

The seasonally adjusted rate, down from 4.4 percent in November, returned to the level reached in April and before that in 1970, the Labor Department said Friday.

For the year, unemployment averaged 4.5 percent, the lowest since 3.5 percent in 1969 during the Vietnam War. Last year's mark was the lowest peacetime rate since 1957, when it averaged 4.3 percent.

"It's a striking testimonial to the strength and resilience of the U.S. economy," said economist Allen Sinai of Primark Decision Economics in Boston. "These are really good times for American workers."

The stock market rallied to a new record on the news, which implied corporate profits might not weaken as much as anticipated. The Dow Jones industrial average shot up 106 points to 9,643.

And President Clinton celebrated the report during a luncheon speech to the Detroit Economic Club, even as the Senate prepared to proceed with his impeachment trial. Clinton noted that the 1998 rates for blacks, 8.9 percent, and Hispanics, 7.2 percent, were the lowest since the government began tracking them in 1972.

"This is a rising tide that is lifting all boats," the president said.

Many economists predict the labor market will weaken somewhat this year, with the unemployment rate rising toward 5 percent — still quite healthy by historical standards.

In December, employers added 378,000 jobs to their payrolls — the most in 15 months and nearly double what analysts had anticipated.

Some of the gain reflected abnormally warm weather, which produced a huge seasonally adjusted 104,000-job increase in construction, the largest in almost 15 years.

But much of it reflected the resistance of the service side of the U.S. economy to the global slump that began in Asia a year and a half ago.

For the year, employers added 2.9 million jobs, compared with 3.4 million in 1997. That growth was achieved despite 234,000 job losses in manufacturing and 35,000 in mining, principally oil-drilling.

Manufacturers of products used in construction, such as glass and plumbing fixtures, are still hiring. And the overall loss at factories in December, 13,000 jobs, wasn't as bad as the 63,000 in November and 59,000 from October.

"We may have seen the worst in manufacturing," said economist William Dunkelberg of the National Association for Independent Businesses.

In addition to favorable weather, construction also has been propelled by low interest rates. And payrolls in related businesses have grown strongly. Real estate firms added 5,000 jobs in December and 57,000 jobs in 1998, double the gain of 1997, and mortgage brokerages added 4,000 in December and 52,000 for the year.

Pentagon doubles damage estimate from attacks on Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon doubled its damage estimate from the airstrikes on Iraq, saying Friday the attack set back Saddam Hussein's weapons program two years and killed 600 to 2,000 Republican Guard members, including key leaders.

"The effectiveness was even greater than we first thought," Marine Gen. Anthony Zinni, head of U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf, said at a Pentagon news conference.

Gen. Henry H. Shelton, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said at a separate forum with defense writers that "several key individuals" from Republican Guard leadership that Saddam relied upon to control the Iraqi military were killed in the Dec. 16-19 attacks.

They're "no longer available to him to advise or to lead," said Shelton. "He lost a lot."

Shelton estimated 600 to 1,600 Republican Guards were killed. Zinni put the number as high as 2,000, but both said figures were based on unconfirmed reports and couldn't be verified. Those security forces protect both Saddam and his weapons program.

During Operation Desert Fox, Zinni said that U.S. and British forces hit 85 percent of the 100 targets selected, a success rate that prompted Defense Secretary William Cohen to proclaim the attack had set back Saddam's weapons program by one year.

A new Pentagon assessment estimates it would take Iraq two years to repair the damage because about half the buildings bombed were filled with hard-to-replace equipment and materials for making chemical, biological and nuclear weapons and missiles, Zinni said. Some buildings, however, had been nearly cleared out, he said.

Missile test stands, special presses and equipment and even wind tunnels were among targets hit, along with barracks for Republican Guards, many of whom are now operating out of tents and without working tanks and gear, according to Zinni.

There was "structural damage beyond repair to some of the critical facilities," the general said, adding that communications and command centers remain down.

President Clinton ordered airstrikes after Saddam refused to cooperate with U.N. weapons inspections, required after the 1991 Gulf War to ensure Iraq's disarmament.

With Saddam's security forces now weakened, Zinni said, the Iraqi president appears to be having difficulties retaining iron-clad control over regular Army forces and has executed military leaders, including a commander in southern Iraq, who apparently balked at orders from his "ruthless" Republican Guard leaders.

Saddam's efforts to maintain a tight military grip, his attacks on Arab leaders for not supporting him against the United States and his recent challenges to "no-fly" zones patrolled by Western warplanes over Iraq suggest he's struggling, Zinni said.

Both Zinni and Shelton said the Pentagon has prepared various plans to bomb Iraqi airfields or respond to fresh Iraqi provocations — including a military move toward Kuwait or launching a SCUD missile — if the order is given by Clinton.

Childbirth Classes for Expectant Teens
Expectant teens tend to have different concerns than older mothers. Many are not comfortable in a class with older couples. Also, the healthcare needs for younger women are different than those of older expectant mothers. That's why its very important that pregnant teenagers get comprehensive prenatal care and instruction.
At the Birthplace our goal is to obtain better outcomes for babies and their mothers. This includes shorter, more comfortable labors with fewer complications, and greater satisfaction.
Mary Ellen will assist a laboring young woman throughout the entire labor, providing emotional support, practical comfort measures, and help to make the birth experience a positive memory with rich rewards and feelings of accomplishment.

Senate votes unanimously on trial ground rules

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Mindful of history's judgment, the Senate sealed an elusive bipartisan accord Friday on ground rules for President Clinton's impeachment trial, with opening arguments set for next week and the possibility of witnesses still open.

After an unprecedented closed-door meeting in the ornate Old Senate Chamber — where great debaters in American history once served — lawmakers formally ratified the rules on a vote of 100-0 and ordered a summons dispatched to the White House. Chief Justice William Rehnquist presided over the brief session, as commanded by the Constitution.

"The idea that the Senate would degenerate into a pit bull ring ... was something we thought would reflect incredibly badly on this institution," said Sen. Joseph Biden. D-Del., after the agreement was struck. Biden and other senators in both parties stressed a determination to shatter the precedent set in the House during last year's pitched impeachment battles.

Said Majority Leader Trent Lott: "I think today we have acted in the very best tradition of the Senate."

Clinton stands accused of two articles of impeachment, perjury and obstruction of justice, in connection with his effort to conceal a sexual relationship with Monica Lewinsky. He is only the second president in history to be subjected to a trial, after Andrew Johnson in 1868.

For the second straight day, Clinton maintained a business-as-usual demeanor, traveling to Detroit for an auto show and touting the current economic expansion, at 93 months the longest in peacetime in the nation's history.

"America is working again. It's working — not just the economy. The crime rate's the lowest in 25 years. A lot of our social problems are receding. It's working again," Clinton said.

The Senate was working, too, but on a subject Clinton would just as soon have disappear.

Under the timetable approved, it will likely be the last week in January before presentations are concluded and the Senate takes its first substantive votes on Clinton's fate — deciding whether to adjourn the trial or proceed further with witnesses. It takes a two-thirds vote to convict a president and remove him from office, but a simple majority is sufficient to adjourn the trial without a vote, or to call witnesses.

Lawmakers began their day in an extraordinary bipartisan caucus, a closed-door session of the Senate in everything but name. There, they thrashed out their differences, capping several days of behind-the-scenes struggle in which Republicans had sought room for witnesses in the schedule and Democrats objected.

The compromise left it up to the Senate to decide after hearing opening arguments and the presentation of evidence over the next few weeks. Either the House or the White House, may then seek to have witnesses called, and the full Senate will make the decision on a case-by-case basis.

Before that, though, the president's allies will have a chance to gain a vote to adjourn the trial.

In the end, according to lawmakers in both parties, senators peered into the abyss of ceaseless partisan struggle — in the first presidential impeachment trial in 131 years — and opted for dignity instead.

One senator, Democrat Chris Dodd of Connecticut, said afterward he had told his colleagues they had a chance to emulate the giants in Senate history, men like Daniel Webster, John Calhoun and Henry Clay, known as the Great Compromiser. Alternatively, Dodd said, they could wind up in a brawl reminiscent of 1856 when one congressman caned a senator.

Pretrial preparations went on in the expectation that opening arguments would be called for next week.

House Republican officials said consideration was being given to trying to have Kathleen Willey summoned as a witness. She is a former White House volunteer who alleges Clinton made an unwanted sexual pass at her in the White House.

Other potential witnesses include Ms. Lewinsky, presidential friend Vernon Jordan, White House Secretary Betty Currie and a clutch of present and former presidential aides and advisers, chief of staff John Podesta among them.

Congressional sources also said that Abbe D. Lowell, the lead lawyer for Democrats in the House impeachment inquiry, had consulted informally with Daschle in recent days.

As drafted, the agreement gives the White House until Monday to file an answer to the summons, and the House will have until Wednesday to file required papers and deliver evidence to the Senate, some of it presumably the voluminous material that Independent Counel Kenneth Starr turned over in September.

Gore, 48 current senators voted to convict impeached judge over lies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is lying to a grand jury an impeachable offense? Vice President Al Gore thought so in 1989. So did Defense Secretary William Cohen, as well as Trent Lott and Tom Daschle, now the Senate's Republican and Democratic leaders.

They were all senators when Walter Nixon, then a federal judge, was removed from the bench after being convicted and imprisoned for giving false testimony to a grand jury investigating his dealings with a business associate.

Gore, Cohen and 48 senators still in office — including Lott, R-Miss., and Daschle, D-S.D. — voted for at least one of the three impeachment articles lodged against Nixon. Two of the articles were approved, on votes of 89-8 and 78-19.

"Every case is different," said Sen. Chris Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat who voted to convict Nixon but opposes removing President Clinton from office. "You've got a different case, a different set of facts, a different standard," agreed Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., another of the 27 Democrats now in the Senate who voted to convict Nixon.

One of the two impeachment articles the House passed Dec. 19 alleges Clinton lied to the federal grand jury investigating his relationship with Monica Lewinsky. The second article accuses him of obstructing justice in the Paula Jones lawsuit.

The judge's case "is quite analogous" to Clinton's, said Jonathan Turley, a George Washington University law professor who is writing a law journal article on the history of the impeachment process.

Other legal experts disagree, saying presidents and judges are held to different standards under the Constitution.

Amid ghosts of Senate past, sides seal deal in rare private session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Venerable, silver-haired Sen. Robert C. Byrd stood before Democrats and Republicans, urging them to take stock of their place in history and reminding them that great statesmen of the past did not cling stubbornly to partisan positions.

"He set the tenor for what we have achieved," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

After more than two hours, two senators of widely disparate philosophy — conservative Gramm and Democrat Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts — suggested a way to resolve the knotty problem of how to run the impeachment trial of President Clinton. Cries of "hear, hear!" greeted the compromise plan fashioned in secret in the Old Senate Chamber.

"It was an extraordinary event that we just took part in," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

Shorn of microphones, sitting on folding chairs and with no television cameras watching, the 100 senators and a few senior staffers met Friday morning in a last-ditch effort to avoid highly partisan votes on competing trial plans.

"Not having the modern conveniences reminded us of where we were," said Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn.

The intimate room, rarely used by the Senate since 1859, is where American giants like Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and John C. Calhoun conducted titanic debates over slavery and states' rights in an attempt to avert the Civil War. A large portrait of George Washington gazes down from the wall; a gilt eagle and a shield adorn the Senate president's desk.

"There was a palpable sense in that room of the magnitude of these events and their importance to the nation," said Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D. "You had the feeling there of the weight of history."

Following a prayer focused on "love of country, love of the institution" by Democratic Sen. Daniel Akaka of Hawaii that moistened a few eyes, Byrd spent about 20 minutes reminding senators of the dignity of their jobs, discussed the meaning of the Federalist papers that serve as a bedrock of American democracy and recounted events of the 1868 impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson, participants said.

Byrd told colleagues the White House had "sullied itself" and that the House had fallen into "the black pit of partisan self-indulgence," according to a transcript issued later by Byrd's staff.

"I ask everyone here who might harbor such feelings to abandon any thought of mean-spirited, destructive, vengeful, partisan warfare," Byrd said. "I implore us all to lift our eyes to higher things. We can perform some much-needed healing on the body politic."

"Senator Byrd laid a foundation ... to approach this issue with an open and temperate mind," said Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Byrd's speech was followed by descriptions of the competing plans. Participants said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., told a famous parable to illustrate the damage partisan politics can do.

In the story, a scorpion asks a frog for a ride across a river. The frog refuses. "You'll just sting me," the frog says. "No, I won't," the scorpion responds.

So the frog agrees. But halfway across, the scorpion does sting the frog, and they both begin to sink. "Why did you sting me?" the frog cries. "It's in my nature," says the scorpion.

"The point was, it's in our nature to be partisan, but we have to rise above that," said Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., conveyed a similar message by telling colleagues they could take one of two paths: the high road marked by great pre-Civil War compromises or the low road illustrated by the vicious 1856 caning of Sen. Charles Sumner of Massachusetts by South Carolina Rep. Preston Brooks.

Flames burn Stars

CALGARY, Alberta — Fred Brathwaite, making his first NHL start in three years, made 21 saves for his first shutout as the injury-riddled Calgary Flames stunned Dallas 1-0 Friday night, ending the Stars' 15-game unbeaten streak.
The Stars' streak (12-0-3) was the longest in the league this season.
Jeff Shantz scored the lone goal as the Flames halted an eight-game losing streak and a franchise-record six-game home losing skid.
With Calgary missing four goaltenders because of injuries, Brathwaite was signed to a contract Thursday from the Canadian national team.
Brathwaite became the eighth goalie to wear a Flames jersey this season and the sixth to get a start, including four in the last 12 days. He spent the last two seasons with the Manitoba Moose of the International Hockey League.
Brathwaite stopped Dallas star Brett Hull from close-in three times in the first 40 minutes.
Shantz's goal came at 9:11 of the second period on a scramble in front of the Dallas net.

Mike Holmgren answers questions Friday after being named the new coach and executive vice-president of the Seattle Seahawks. Holmgren led the Green Bay Packers to two consecutive Super Bowls.

Seahawks lure Holmgren away from Green Bay with big bucks

By Jim Cour
AP Sports Writer

KIRKLAND, Wash. — Mike Holmgren wanted total control. The Seattle Seahawks gave it to him, not to mention $4 million a year, to become their coach and general manager on Friday.

Holmgren got an eight-year contract that reportedly will pay him $4 million a season, making him the highest-paid coach in the NFL. George Seifert received $2.5 million in his contract to become coach of the Carolina Panthers.

Neither Bob LaMonte, Holmgren's agent, nor the Seahawks would confirm the amount of Holmgren's contract.

The Seahawks, a franchise that has missed the playoffs for 10 straight seasons, got their man and they paid a high price for him.

"With the NBA lockout, I wasn't in midseason form with these agents," said Bob Whitsitt, who also is president of owner Paul Allen's Portland Trail Blazers. "I should have been in better form at this time of the year."

Holmgren, who took the Packers to the last two Super Bowls, told team president Bob Whitsitt on Friday morning that he was accepting the job and canceled trips to Baltimore and Philadelphia for job interviews.

He called the Packers to tell them they'd have to find a new coach to work with Green Bay GM Ron Wolf.

Holmgren was accompanied to Seattle by his wife, Kathy, and the youngest of four daughters, Gretchen, a high school student. He said he reached a decision to accept the Seattle job Thursday night after having dinner with Allen.

"Obviously the commitment is here," Holmgren

Rodrigue keeps 'D' playing strongly

■ Defenseman serves as Jackalopes' lone representative in WPHL All-Star Game.

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

ODESSA — Jackalope defenseman Jacque Rodrigue isn't exactly satisfied with just being in the run for a playoff spot. As a member of the NCAA champion team at the University of Maine in 1993, he has been through better.

Rodrigue

At the same time, he has been through worse. As a member of the now-defunct Dayton franchise of the Colonial League, losing eight or nine games in a row was commonplace. So, he has been through worse, no doubt about it.

Actually, there probably isn't much that Rodrigue has seen along the way. At age 28, he is experienced, and as his selection to play in today's Western Professional League All-Star Game would indicate, he's talented. He's also a leader on one of the WPHL's top defenses, which makes him a perfect choice to wear the "C" as the Jacks' captain.

"He has been on great teams and been on one of the worst teams of all time," Odessa Jackalope head coach Joe Clark said of Rodrigue. "All the teams respect him, and know what he brings to the table. He is considered one of the three premier defensemen in the league. If he was a free agent, there would be high bidding for him."

Clark, however, has no plans to let Rodrigue go. He has played a big part in keeping the Jacks alive in the WPHL race. This season, an injury-plagued Odessa offense has been anemic, ranking third-to-last in the league in goals scored. However, the team is tied for fourth in terms of fewest goals allowed.

"Defense is the ticket with this hockey club," Clark said.

That is where Rodrigue comes in. Along with Chris Morque, he heads up a defensive line which is asked every night to go against the opposition's No. 1 scoring line.

It has been a strain at times. Rodrigue, who is considered one of the best scoring defensemen in the league, has been forced to change his game.

"I have backed off that and tried to round out my game," said Rodrigue, who

Top Salt Lake officials quit

By Kristen Moulton
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The top two executives of Salt Lake's Olympic committee quit Friday, the first victims of a bribery scandal involving scholarships, gifts and cash payments ranging up to $70,000 to win the 2002 Winter Games.

Utah's governor called the wrongdoing "revolting," and one of those who resigned, Salt Lake Organizing Committee president Frank Joklik, said the actions "break my heart."

Both they and the head of the International Olympic Committee, which is investigating who among its members might have accepted the improper gifts

With one game remaining before the first half of its District 4-5A schedule is over, the Midland Lee girls basketball team picked the right week to start making a statement.

For the second time this week, the Lady Rebels pulled out a tight district game and now have to be officially considered a factor in the district race. With plenty of help from its bench, Lee scored 14 straight points in the third quarter to jump out to a sizable lead and withstood a cold spell in the fourth quarter to defeat Abilene High 63-57 Friday night at Chaparral Center.

The Lady Rebels improved to 11-8 overall and 3-2 in district with the victory, and handed Abilene High (14-5 overall, 3-1 in district) its first district loss of the season. This most definitely falls under the category of "quality win" for the Lady Rebels, who beat Odessa Permian 45-38 Tuesday night.

Lee coach Elise Kail, whose team suffered its two district losses to frontrunners Midland High and Odessa High, felt that a win over Abilene High would put her team in the mix for a playoff spot.

Abilene High buries Rebels

By Terry Williamson

The Midland Lee basketball Rebels found out this week that they can climb out of a hole, but they can't survive an avalanche.

On Tuesday in Odessa, Lee pulled out a dramatic come-from-behind win over Odessa Permian, but at Chaparral Center Friday night, the Rebels were buried by Abilene High, 71-54, trailing by as many as 29 points, 63-34, in the fourth quarter.

Lee even outscored the Eagles 20-8 in the fourth quarter, but there was no shovel big enough to break through this mound of dirt.

"They kicked us every way you can be kicked," said Lee head coach Jon House. "If you can't score from two-feet out, you can't beat anybody and we were 10 of 25 in the paint.

"You can't beat anybody doing that, and especially against a good team like Abilene High. They are a playoff team from last year and have four back from that team."

Abilene High hit 48 percent (23 of 48) from the field while Lee was stone cold, hitting 25 of 63 (39 percent) from the floor. Lee, normally a good shooting 3-point team, was zero-for-13 from long range.

In short, Lee didn't stay in the game long. The Rebels jumped to a 8-2, six-point lead early, but when Abilene High's Terrance Crisp hit a basket with 3:07 left in the first period to give the Eagles a 13-11 lead, AHS never trailed again.

In fact, Lee was down by 20 points with 4:18 left to play in the second period, 36-16, on another Crisp basket.

It was a case where Lee just didn't perform well on the court and the Eagles were ready to make amends for a opening district loss to cross-town rival Abilene Cooper a week ago.

The Eagles had an open date from 4-5A play Tuesday and had to wait until Friday to get back on the court. That was

Georgetown coach shocks basketball world by resigning

By Joseph White
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON — John Thompson always told his players that if basketball gets in the way of more important things, it's time to put basketball aside.

On Friday, he tearfully took his own advice.

Thompson's startling resignation as Georgetown basketball coach came in a way no one would have predicted. He isn't leaving for the NBA. It isn't because his team appears headed for a losing season. It isn't because he's fed up with NCAA academic rules — or with a '90s generation of players whose behavior has tarnished his program's reputation.

Instead, Thompson quit to deal with marriage problems, bringing a sudden and sad end to a storied college coaching career that helped set a standard for academic and athletic excellence.

"I am going through a problem with marriage right now," Thompson said. "And I owe it to my family to address that, not just to myself and to my wife.

"I can't deal with that as a distraction."

Thompson and his wife, Gwen, who have been married for 32 years, separated after a fire damaged their home three years ago. Thompson filed for divorce in October 1997, and the hurt was evident.

"I want to win," Thompson said. "I can't give all the attention right now to my job that I need to give, and that burns the hell out of me. I don't mind losing, that goes with the territory, but I want to make sure I give my best effort if I lose. I can't do things halfheartedly."

Asked about his statements, Thompson's wife said she was "saddened that John felt it necessary to resign."

"I am also saddened to hear that this process is taking such a toll on him," she said in a statement released by her lawyer. "But John filed for the divorce, not me."

Dawgs pass Cooper test; Girls win

Staff Report

ABILENE — In what figured to be the first major District 4-5A test of the season, the Midland High boys basketball team aced it.

The Bulldogs were in control most of the way against Abilene Cooper Friday night, leading by as much as 20 in cruising to a 75-66 win to further confirm their 4-5A supremacy dating back over the last three seasons.

Midland High (17-3 overall, 3-0 in district) got its usual balanced scoring as both Charles Tatum and Blake Johnston scored 22 points and Jay Christian added 16. Meanwhile, Cooper's Felton Freeman, who is regarded as one of the district's top players, was effectvely muzzled by the Bulldogs, scoring only six points.

"We're playing very, very well," said Midland High coach Jack Stephenson. "It was just another game for us."

The Bulldogs were dominant throughout, taking a 22-10 lead at the end of the first quarter and holding on to a comfortable margin the rest of the way. Only a 29-point outburst by the Cougars (13-5, 2-1) made the score look more respectable.

Robbie Eales led Cooper with 16 points while Clay Jowers added 14.

The Cougars looked as if they could provide the Bulldogs with a sufficient challenge playing on their own homecourt. However, defending state champion MHS has yet to find a real challenge from around the area, so maybe the Bulldogs have to find it from within.

"We're just trying to get better every game," said Stephenson. "We're trying to commit fewer turnovers and do a good job on the glass and I think we're doing that.

"Cooper has a nice team, we just came out and played really well. It doesn't bother us playing on the road."

The Bulldogs won't have to worry about that next Tuesday, when they return home for a District 4-5A game against San Angelo Central at 7:30 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

MHS girls win, take over 1st

ABILENE — The Midland High girls basketball team looks to be hitting its stride at the right time.

The Lady Dawgs stayed unbeaten in district Friday night by routing Abilene Cooper 66-42, placing four players in double figures along the way. Not only did MHS (17-3 overall) stay perfect with a 4-0 district mark, but the Lady Dawgs also assumed first place atop the district alone thanks to crosstown rival Midland Lee, which spoiled Abilene High's perfect district mark with a 63-57 victory.

But the Lady Dawgs certainly took care of their own business, jumping out to a 37-19 lead and never looking back. It was the most decisive district win so far for Midland High.

"This was certainly better than we've played since the Christmas break," said Midland High coach Jim Raughton. "We took care of the ball and hit the glass and did all the little things well."

Morgan Kelley and Edrea Rogers led a balanced scoring attack with 12 points apiece while Heidi Lange added 11 and Michelle Acosta had 10. Nina McAlister barely missed becoming the fifth player in double digits with nine points.

It was of the bigger games of the season for Kelley, who finished off several inside scoring opportunities.

"She ran the floor well and we found her over the top," said Raughton of Kelley. "That takes a lot of pressure off our perimeter people."

The Lady Dawgs will return home Tuesday for a district game against San Angelo Central at 6 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

4-5A roundup

ODESSA — In the District 4-5A boys and girls battles between Odessa High and San Angelo Central Friday night, it was a split.

The Central boys picked up their first district win by defeating Odessa High 55-53 while the Odessa High girls took second place alone in 4-5A with a 59-49 win.

Brian Young led the Central boys (17-4 overall, 1-1 in district) with 13 points while Robert Rohlfs added 12. Casey Maxwell led Odessa High with 16 points while Austin Mathis had 13 and Taylor Casey added 12, as the Bronchos fell to 8-11 overall and stayed in the district basement at 0-3.

Stephanie Hudgins led three Odessa High players in double figures with 16 points. Brittany Bushman had 15 points and Shelby Fitzgerald added 14 as the Lady Bronchos improved to 17-5 overall and 4-1 in district.

Erin Hernandez led Central (9-11, 0-4) with 15 points.

a long time to stew in the juices of a loss in the cross-town rivalry.

"We had a tough loss to Cooper last Saturday," said Eagle sparkplug Brad Massey, who led all scorers with 19 points. "When you lose to your cross-town rival, you want to get back on the court as quick as possible. You want to redeem yourself, so a week is a long time to wait.

"We were ready to play this game because we know this is a tough district and you've got to take them one at a time. We didn't need another loss on top of the Cooper loss."

Abilene High also got 15 points from Marcus Eckert and 12 from Crisp. Lee also had three in double figures. Jeramy Conaway had 16 points and 12 rebounds while Orlando Castillo had 12 points. Matt Winston, held scoreless in the first half, got 10 points.

Lee fell to 1-2 in 4-5A play while AHS is now 1-1. It was a week where the Rebels just seemed to get things backwards, winning a tough game on the road and losing badly at home.

House said, "We got our two leading scorers (Castillo and Winston) in foul trouble early and we had to play some kids (football players) who are trying to get ready. That hurt us."

Lee now takes a break Tuesday from 4-5A play, traveling to Hobbs, N.M., to face some more Eagles, these of the undefeated variety.

"We didn't handle the pressure well from Abilene High and we're going to see some more of that Tuesday in Hobbs," House said. "Then we travel to Abilene Cooper on Friday. It's a tough road right now."

The Lee JV boys baskteball team beat Abilene High's JV, 87-56. Lee's Cory Simmons had 16, Wendell Smith 15, Calvin White 11 and David Salgado 10 points. Lee is 13-2, 3-0.

The Midland Lee sophomore boys basketball team defeated Abilene High 55-53. Ben Webb led Lee with 14 points while Aaron Elizardo added 10. The Rebels are now 8-5 overall and 2-1 in District 4-5A play.

GIRLS: Lady Rebs nip AHS

(From 1B)

High or Midland High yet," Kail said. "They were undefeated so the win was still big for us."

At times, the game looked as if it could be another tough district loss for the Lady Rebels, who took an eight-point lead in the second quarter only to see the Lady Eagles wipe it away. Eventually, Abilene High took a 27-25 halftime lead.

After Tara Hood hit a long jumper and Dee Harris made a pair of free throws, the Lady Eagles led 31-25 early in the third quarter, and the Lady Rebels needed a boost. Only three players really stepped forward to provide any scoring punch, but the good news for Lee was that they combined to score 22 points.

"We had an outstanding team game tonight," Kail said. "Everybody came in and had great contributions at both the offensive and defensive ends. What the kids did off the bench can't be underestimated."

The scoring came from three sources in the third quarter. Leading scorer and starter KeKe Strambler started the 14-0 run by hitting a pair of free throws and scored eight points in the period.

Heather Wells, who didn't even play in the first half, came off the bench to score eight points, ending the 14-point run with a layup then hitting a 3-point shot (one of two she hailed in the quarter) to give Lee a 10-point lead. Then Danielle Dickey came off the bench to score six points in the quarter, including a 3-point shot, which was followed by a pair of Strambler free throws to give the Lady Rebels their biggest lead at 49-36.

Strambler, a three-year letter winner, had her biggest district game of the season with 24 points.

"I think she had a little bit of a revenge factor," said Kail of Strambler. "Number 11 (Abilene High's Misty Mays) kind of took her game away from her last year."

If revenge was what motivated Strambler, she certainly had to enjoy the final result against AHS. Mays not only was held to six points, but fouled out in the fourth quarter when the Lady Eagles needed to foul Lee down the stretch.

"I know (Mays) is a good player and I knew I had to come out, step it up and play to the ability I was given," said Strambler, who made 10 of 14 free throws and four of her last five to help seal the victory.

Both teams applied heavy defensive pressure in the opposing backcourts as each team committed 26 turnovers. Abilene High gradually cut down the lead to 52-50 when Sara Laster made a pair of free throws midway through the fourth quarter.

However, the Lady Rebels didn't panic, gathering themselves together as Strambler made one of two free throws and Rochelle Warren scored on an offensive rebound to make it 55-50. Abilene High was never closer than four points after that.

"Our whole game plan was just to try to get the ball up against (Abilene High's) press because they're really effective at that," Kail said. "(The Lady Rebels) all did what I asked them against the press and it worked."

Warren added 10 points for the Rebels, who have a bye Tuesday before returning to district action against Abilene Cooper next Friday.

"We're finally getting things back on track," Strambler said. "We've learned over the past year that we can't give up until the end. Coach Kail has told us that we can't ever quit. She won't let us."

Bulldogs welcome new coach with win

Staff Report

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland High Bulldogs started the Tony Pierce coaching era with a 1-0 victory over Converse Judson in the first round of the Alamo Heights Tournament.

■ Prep Soccer

Greg Hunter scored the lone goal of the game thanks to an assist from Ross Bruner. Defensively, keeper J.P. Thompson stopped 12 Judson shots. MHS outshot Judson 16-14 for the game.

"The team played very well," Pierce said. "The field was small, so ball possession was very important, and they (Bulldogs) kept the ball under control. The main thing was that I was able to play everybody and they worked extremely hard."

MHS will play in today's semifinal at 9 a.m. The Bulldogs follow that with a game at either 5 p.m. (third place game) or 7 p.m. (championship game).

MHS and Lee split

THE WOODLANDS — The Midland High and Lee girls split during the first day of the Woodlands Tournament.

Midland High defeated Houston Cypress Creek 1-0 but fell to the host team The Woodlands 2-0 in the night cap. Lee's games were not reported.

Against Cy Creek, Kim Elger scored a first-half goal, which stood up as Tori Watson registered the shutout, stopping three shots. MHS outshot Cy Creek, 8-3.

The second game was a physical game which caught the Lady Bulldogs a little off guard. The Woodlands outshot MHS, 5-4.

"A lot of good came out of today," MHS coach Scott Hodkinson said. "I'm still looking for right mix. I haven't found it yet, but in this morning's game, the defense looked solid.

"In second game, we learned there are teams that play a very aggressive style that frustrated us. Players were rushed and didn't look that comfortable. That is why we came here to play this type of competition. "

MHS plays either San Antonio MacArthur or Round Rock today at 8:30 a.m.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Jan. 9, 1999:
You could cause yourself a lot of trouble if you don't slow down. Sometimes you push so hard to achieve your goals that you neglect your needs. Work on the quality of your personal life. To be successful, you will need balance. You might tend to make your office your home. Don't! If you are single, romance comes into your life, though you might not be sure what to do with it. If attached, you might question what you want from your relationship. If someone behaves oddly, it may be his reaction to you. Be open to this possibility. LIBRA triggers your emotions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Pressure builds. Review demands and sort through what you need to do. Responding to a partner takes a lot of time. Tempers flare. Someone sees issues differently from you. You still need to deal with this hot-tempered tamale! Tonight: Out and about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ You have pushed hard and made a difference where it counts. Don't allow someone to intimidate you. Remain steady and direct. Don't take on more than your share of activity. Listen to your higher mind; it can pull you through a difficult time. Tonight: For yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ A child wants one thing, a loved one wants another and you want something else. In the tumult of the moment, you question a personal choice. Worry less about other people's demands. Humor and lightness merge. Tonight: Fun happens.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ You are in the mood to turn a situation around. Change gears. Whatever you do will be with gusto, though a partner could be challenged by your attitude. Understand that not everyone will agree with you. Discussions, therefore, are animated. Tonight: Say yes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Pressure could be high with a loved one. How you handle it depends on your energy levels. Try a more nurturing approach, or opt to test your sparring skills. One way or another, your diplomatic way will bring about reconciliation. Tonight: Wherever you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★ Spending could be out of whack. Pull back and think before using credit cards. A risk proves unusually unstable. Use caution. Creativity is high, though you could get yourself in trouble with a loved one. Communicate clearly. Don't play someone's games. Tonight: Go for inexpensive fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You are high-voltage material. When you set your sights on a particular object, it is as good as done. Your personality draws others; you're unstoppable. A family member could be challenged by your high energy and lets you know! Give them space. Tonight: It is your call!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ Think before saying what you feel. You could be sublimating your anger and causing yourself trouble. Heed your instincts. Communications are out of kilter. Refuse to be defensive or controlling; just be true to yourself. It all works out. Tonight: A little mystery goes a long way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Aim for what you want, but don't go overboard spending. Be direct and goal-oriented, yet establish limits. A friend might push you hard in a certain direction he thinks you should take. Follow what you feel is right. Tonight: On the computer making new friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ You could be causing problems where there aren't any. A boss or someone key to your well-being is difficult. However, how you handle him could make all the difference in the outcome. Join in; approach the problem from his perspective. Tonight: Make a must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Take off for a day trip or meet a friend halfway between your place and his. Good times occur away from home. Your instincts could be causing a problem right now. Release it, and opt for a new environment. Your opinions change rapidly. Tonight: Try a new restaurant.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Someone clearly has his opinions. You want to influence him or reveal a new perspective. But now you are hitting your head against a brick wall. Let this person learn from experience; he isn't going to listen to you. Worry less about what friends think. Tonight: Let your partner decide.

Rat Pack vintage cars to be auctioned

LOS ANGELES — Rat Pack fans can get in the driver's seat.

Vintage cars once owned by Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dean Martin will go up for bid during the 1999 Barrett-Jackson Classic Car Auction Jan. 20-24 in Scottsdale, Ariz. They are among 800 vehicles on the auction block.

Cars once owned by Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Dean Martin will go up for bid in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"We are sure this will add an element of fun to this year's event, taking many of us back to a time of martinis, nightclubs, fancy cars and swingin' tunes," auction President Craig Jackson said Friday.

The 1956 Ford Thunderbird convertible once owned by Sinatra, Davis' 1964 Rolls-Royce Silver Cloud III Mulliner Drophead coupe, one of only 23 left-side drive models, and Dean Martin's 1962 Italian Ghia L6.4 will all be available. The value of the vehicles wasn't disclosed.

NEW YORK — Joaquin Phoenix can feel good about making it on his own.

While initially overshadowed by his older brother, River, who died of a drug overdose in 1993 while partying at the Viper Room in Los Angeles, Joaquin Phoenix endured the glare of media attention and broke through to stardom with his role in 1995's "To Die For" with Nicole Kidman.

In an interview in Cosmopolitan magazine's February issue, the 24-year-old actor says he's not offended by the media labeling him his brother's heir apparent in acting.

"I'm proud of my brother," he says. "I would never NOT want to be associated with him."

He's just finished four back-to-back films which began last fall with "Clay Pigeons" with Vince Vaughn. His upcoming film is "8MM," with Nicolas Cage.

DETROIT — That Motown Sound will be coming from ... the Three Tenors.

Opera superstars Luciano Pavarotti, Placido Domingo and Jose Carreras will perform July 17 in Detroit at a concert sponsored by Ford Motor Co.

Other details — including the site and ticket prices — were unavailable, said Kathi Kammerdiener, assistant to the vice president of operations for the trio's production company, the Rudas Organization.

LOS ANGELES — "Baywatch" actress Carmen Electra says she and Dennis Rodman are still married and have no plans on getting an annulment.

"Everyone thinks we got the annulment," she said Thursday.

The couple had considered dissolving their marriage after they exchanged vows at a quick ceremony in Las Vegas on Nov. 14 but then decided to stick together.

"We love each other," she said.

The Chicago Bulls star known for his outrageous outfits, tattoos and dyed hair "really does have a good heart," she said.

"And that's what I love about him. His kind generous heart and his way of trying to make everyone around him feel comfortable and happy and have a good time," she said.

Carmen Electra says she and Dennis Rodman are still married.

Electra, 26, said she doesn't mind living in separate homes. She lives in a house in Beverly Hills while he lives in Newport Beach.

"It gives us time to miss each other," she said. "I think if we were together every day we would get on each other's nerves."

At a public appearance in New York last month, Rodman insisted that he and Electra were still married despite the annulment papers he filed nine days after their ceremony.

"She's a very classy woman," Rodman said.

SYDNEY, Australia — At 22, Jennifer Capriati takes a philosophic view of the troubles that brought her down and tarnished one of tennis world's brightest young stars.

Now she's on her comeback tour and and a key stop is at next week's Sydney International tournament, where Capriati — once ranked No. 6 in the world — must play in qualification rounds.

"I believe what doesn't kill you, makes you a stronger person," she said Thursday.

Capriati seemed destined for greatness when she joined the women's tour in 1990 at 13. She became the youngest Grand Slam semifinalist and beat five top-10 players in her first year. At the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, she beat Steffi Graf to capture the gold medal.

Then it all fell apart: Capriati was arrested on drug charges in 1994 and went into rehabilitation.

Dirty Birds hope to spoil 49ers' emotional high

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — It's time to forget about the Cheeseheads.

After vanquishing a familiar nemesis, the San Francisco 49ers face a team they're not used to seeing at this time of year. All conditions are ripe for a letdown, which isn't a good state of mind when you're two victories from the Super Bowl.

"As big as the game was last week, this game becomes even bigger," said coach Steve Mariucci, whose 49ers meet the Atlanta Falcons in a divisional playoff Saturday at the Georgia Dome.

San Francisco, which finished two games behind the Falcons in the NFC West, earned another trip to Atlanta by surviving a wild-card match against Green Bay last Sunday.

Terrell Owens caught a 25-yard touchdown pass from Steve Young with three seconds remaining for a 30-27 victory, ending a streak of three straight postseason losses to the Packers.

"That was one of the hurdles this organization needed to get over," Mariucci said. "It was a physical drain and an emotional drain and I think we were all spent when that thing was over.

"But that's how it is in the playoffs. Every game is big and emotional. You empty the tank, then refill it as the week goes on."

While the 49ers have won more Super Bowls (five) than Atlanta has won playoff games (two), the Falcons are hungry for respect and revved up after winning their first division title since 1980.

The Dirty Birds moved into first place with a 31-19 victory over San Francisco in mid-November and wouldn't let go, finishing the regular season with a nine-game winning streak.

"We chased them for two months and they didn't blink," Young said.

Now, only six days after their most emotional victory of the season, the 49ers face the rested, healthy Falcons for the third time in 3 1/2 months.

"If you asked any coach if he had his druthers, he'd rather have a bye week and freshen up, rather than play a physical and emotional game, then have a short week and travel," Mariucci said. "That's a no-brainer.

"But while the bye week can freshen you up physically, it's not bad playing a game, either, especially with all the things that came from that (Green Bay) game."

Confidence is the main thing. Now that an albatross has been lifted from their backs, the 49ers feel like this could be their year to return to the Super Bowl for the first time since 1995.

"As a wild card, you've got to get on a roll," Young said.

The Falcons hope their 14-2 season is the first step toward escaping a pitiful history. This is only the eighth winning season and sixth playoff appearance since the team joined the NFL in 1966.

Coach of the year Dan Reeves, who plans to be back on the sideline less than a month after heart bypass surgery, has assembled his roster with low-round draft picks, brilliant trades and older players who weren't wanted elsewhere.

"We have some steals on our team," running back Jamal Anderson said. "Think about some of the guys who start. Go across the board."

Pro Bowl quarterback Chris Chandler was acquired for two low-round draft picks. Anderson, also a Pro Bowler, was a seventh-round pick. Pro Bowl safety Eugene Robinson was signed as a free agent after Green Bay decided he was too old at age 35.

"When you look at the Falcons, you're looking at a bunch of guys who were low-round picks for the most part," Anderson said. "We love to play the game, but for one reason or another someone else didn't want us. Now, they all want us."

Atlanta will try to set the tempo and keep San Francisco's high-powered offense off the field by handing off to Anderson, who set a Falcons record with 1,846 yards rushing and an NFL mark with 410 carries.

Anderson ran for 123 yards in a 31-20 loss at San Francisco in Week 4, then had 100 yards in the return match at Atlanta.

"We'd like to keep him under 100 yards," linebacker Ken Norton said. "If we keep the big plays down from him and make someone else beat us, I think it makes our chances better."

Young, the NFL's third-rated passer, is surrounded by strong offensive weapons. Owens, Jerry Rice and J.J. Stokes all caught at least 63 passes, while Garrison Hearst finished second to Anderson in the NFC with 1,570 yards rushing.

But the 49ers defensive line is so battered that Charles Haley was coaxed out of retirement for the playoffs.

Broncos wonder why they're such huge favorites

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

DENVER — Mike Shanahan can't figure why the Denver Broncos are so heavily favored over the Miami Dolphins Saturday, but he's not worrying about it. The Broncos say they ignore point spreads.

Jimmy Johnson knows the reasons the Broncos are two-touchdown favorites over his Dolphins even though Miami beat the Broncos 31-21 only 19 days ago at Miami.

"Everything that would concern a team from Miami is there," Johnson said.

"I don't think the Dolphins have won a road playoff game since 1972. We don't play well in cold weather. This year we haven't played well on the road. We're physically not in good shape. We're playing in a place that is a tremendous home field advantage and that is Mile High Stadium. so anything you can think of doesn't make for a positive towards us."

The Dolphins (11-6) will show up at Mile High Stadium Saturday, banged up from their 24-17 win over Buffalo in the wild-card round but happy to still be alive for the AFC berth in the Super Bowl, to be played Jan. 31 at Miami.

For the Broncos, who finished the regular season 14-2, this is their first playoff game, and they're wary because two years ago they lost at this stage as a huge favorite over Jacksonville.

They then won the NFL title the hard way last season, winning at home as a wild-card team, winning two more games on the road, then beating Green Bay 31-24 in the Super Bowl.

They were two-touchdown underdogs to the Packers in that game, which is why Shanahan disregards this week's odds.

"The Dolphins can use that as incentive," he said. "We don't pay any attention to it."

The sideshow to this one is the second meeting in three weeks between John Elway and Dan Marino, who had met only once previously in 16 seasons since being the stars of the quarterback class of 1983. If the Broncos lose, it could be Elway's final game — he almost retired after last season.

"It's not something that concerns me now," said Elway, who won't lack for money — a mile-long strip two miles from the Broncos' training facility is lined with a collection of car dealerships bearing his name that he sold last year to Wayne Huizenga, the Dolphins' owner.

What does concern the Broncos is what happened at Miami Dec. 21, when Elway had his worst game of the season, Marino had his best, and Terrell Davis, the Broncos' 2,000-yard rusher, was limited to 29 yards in 16 carries.

But since then, the Dolphins have lost two starting defensive linemen — Jason Taylor and Tim Bowens.

Several others, including leading receiver O.J. McDuffie and tight end Troy Drayton, were hurt against Buffalo last week. McDuffie probably will play, Drayton probably won't.

"I think it was a question of us coming out flat and them coming out at their best," Denver fullback Howard Griffith said of that game, which took place a week after the Broncos' quest for an unbeaten season was ended by the New York Giants.

"They stopped the run and they had success covering our receivers one-on-one."

HOLMGREN: Coach takes control in Seattle said, referring to Allen, who has spent lavishly on free agents the past two seasons.

After meeting with Whitsitt at team headquarters for five hours Thursday, he spent Thursday night at Allen's house for a private dinner.

"My first impression was awesome," Holmgren said of Allen, who is listed as the third-richest American behind Bill Gates and Warren Buffett with a total worth of $22 billion.

"We had a wonderful time last night. He's a very interesting man, interested in a lot of things. I knew right away that I had all the support I could ever need or ask for right away."

Most important for Holmgren, 50, was becoming general manager as well as coach.

"I'll be in charge of the football operations," he said during a news conference. "Decision-making, personnel, all football decisions. Now, I'll have both (GM and coach) those responsiblities."

He will be in charge of Randy Mueller, vice president of football operations for the Seahawks for four seasons. In effect, Mueller has been Seattle's de facto general manager.

Holmgren compiled a 75-37 record as coach of the Packers, leading them to a victory over New England in the Super Bowl after the 1996 season. In 1997, Green Bay lost in the Super Bowl to Denver.

Holmgren's decision came less than a week after the Packers were eliminated by the 49ers 30-27 in a first-round playoff game in San Francisco last Sunday. Green Bay lost with three seconds to go when Terrell Owens caught a 25-yard touchdown pass.

In Green Bay, Holmgren coached his teams into the playoffs six years in a row. In order, the Packers went 9-7, 9-7, 9-7, 11-5, 13-3, 13-3 and 11-5.

The Packers felt all season they probably would lose Holmgren. It turned out they were right, although Holmgren said it still was a difficult decision.

"The fans in Green Bay are wonderful," he said. "Our time there was wonderful. Our kids grew up there. It was a time period in our lives as a family professionally that I will always look back at a wonderful time."

THOMPSON: Coach resigns for personal reasons

(From 1B)

The case remains open as negotiations to resolve it continue, said her lawyer, Deborah Luxenberg.

Craig Esherick, an assistant under Thompson since 1982, will debut as Georgetown's new coach Saturday at home against Providence. Georgetown president Leo J. O'Donovan said Esherick will shortly be signed to a new, long-term contract.

As for Thompson, he will stay at Georgetown, doing "whatever Father O'Donovan wants me to do." O'Donovan called Thompson the school's "coach emeritus."

Thompson broke the news to his players Friday morning. He cried when he walked out of the room. Some of the players were already in tears.

"It was a shock," senior guard Joe Touomou said. "Some guys were crying and stuff. He's like a father, so the reaction was obvious."

Many of Thompson's former stars, including Patrick Ewing, Alonzo Mourning and Dikembe Mutombo, also attended the news conference at McDonough Gymnasium, a small facility almost overwhelmed by all the banners the team has earned over Thompson's 27 years.

Esherick also was tearful, saying he tried to talk Thompson out of resigning. The 42-year-old former Georgetown player said he would have been content to remain an assistant for another 15 years.

"Today is not happy," Esherick said. "I'm not happy for myself, but I'm looking forward to the challenge. I consider it an honor, and I also consider myself a complete fool to follow in his footsteps."

and payments, said they were certain Utah's capital can still be a successful Olympic host.

Later, Gov. Mike Leavitt's spokeswoman, Vickie Varela, acknowledged that an SLOC ethics panel also is looking into possible use of bid committee credit cards to pay for female escorts for IOC members.

Joklik said he knew nothing of gifts and payments to IOC members while he was volunteer chairman of the bid panel but was stepping down because "changes must be made for the games to proceed."

The 70-year-old retired copper-company executive will stay on the job until a replacement is found. SLOC said it planned an international search for its next leader.

Gone immediately was David Johnson, 40, senior vice president and a bid committee official who was the point man in wooing the votes of IOC members. He resigned from the No. 2 job in SLOC at Joklik's request.

✔ Ty Morris

Crestview Baptist Church is celebrating Ty Morris Jr.'s 25 years of service as minister of music Sunday. Morris will be recognized in both Sunday morning services for his dedication over the years. At 7:15 p.m., following the evening worship service, a reception will be held in the Crestview Activities Center to honor Morris and his family.

✔ Anniversary

The members of Holy Trinity Church of God in Christ invite the public to attend their 21st church anniversary set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the church, 1301 Cowden St. Area choirs including those from San Angelo will be present. Guest speaker will be Elder A.J. Ramsey of Holy Light Church of God in Christ, Monahans. The host pastor is Superintendent A.L. Jackson.

✔ Workshop

Charles Frost of "Nurturing the Life Process," will hold one of his workshops at Discovery of Life Church, 2311 Elizabeth St., from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday. As a certified NLP practitioner with degrees in secondary education and American history, Frost designs his workshops to be interactive. He uses humor. His principle of life is, "Life works. God loves us." Frost will be the guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service Sunday. His topic will be "destiny's calling." The workshop is on a love offering basis. For more information call 684-4230.

✔ Volunteers Needed

Volunteers to help with expansion efforts at True Lite Christian Fellowship, 1201 Tejas, are welcomed. Anyone who can help in sheet rock, taping & bedding or duct work is asked if they can lend a hand. Relief effort in Philippines set for March

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Mother Teresa once said, "We can do no great things, only small things with great love."

In their own way, a group of 13 Midlanders, about half of whom are members of Grace Presbyterian Church, will bring to life her words when in March they travel to the Philippines as part of the Jimmy Carter Work Project '99, an international relief effort of Habitat for Humanity.

Between March 21-28, Habitat International plans to build 250 houses in five Philippine cities — Manila, Bacolod City, Tagbiliran, Dumaguete and General Santos City.

Kay Morse, a member at Grace, will make the trip in March.

"It's a way to give something back," Morse said. "I have a nice, warm, secure house and now with this I can help provide that same sort of security for other people. It's also a way to serve my church and its mission work and the church universal."

Alynda Best, executive director of Habitat for Humanity in Midland, said the 13 Midlanders will serve a vital role with the building of one of the 250 houses during the relief week. Ten percent of monies donated to the local Habitat go to Habitat Inter-

'Coaches' borrow from modern marketing to fill church pews

By Rachel Zoll
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Tenn. — A lost soul seeking spiritual guidance wanders into church. No one greets him. The sermon makes him sleepy. When he looks up from his Bible, he sees cracked paint on the sanctuary walls.

In just 11 minutes, he decides never to return.

"Some churches have signs that are unspoken: We don't want you here," says Daniel Allen, a church "coach" who advises congregations on ways to attract new members. "In our consumer-driven society, churches need signs that say, 'We are a warm and loving place.'"

Allen, 39, and his wife, Lainie, 38, encourage ministers to use modern marketing to bring more people to God. Guided by studies of American views on religion and the customer service emphasis of successful businesses, the Cleveland, Tenn., couple travel the country inspecting everything from the condition of church bathrooms to the "spiritual energy" in the churches that hire them.

"Business thinking says you've got to reach your target group," says Mrs. Allen, who has a master's degree in education. "The little signs on the church that say, 'Y'all come to our church,' aren't going to work."

Discussion on end of world a popular topic as 2000 nears

Editor's Note: This is the first of a multi-part series that will run throughout 1999, focusing on the Millennium, The Book of Revelation and other discussion of End Time events.

A CNN poll shows 7 percent of Americans believe the world will end with the coming of the Third Millennium.

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Whether we believe that the end of the world will come tomorrow, next week, at the end of the current millennium or 30 generations from now, most of us are fascinated with end-time discussions.

Questions of when and how the world will end, how Christ will come — and at what point He will return during other end time events — are all topics of discussion as the millennium draws rapidly to a close.

Religious scholars have noted that end of the world discussions and concerns happen with greater frequency in years that end in "0." So obviously, when a year ends in three zeroes, talk of Armageddon, Tribulation, the Rapture and other events are likely to dominate much conversation in the next year.

A CNN poll released this week said that while 80 percent don't think Christ will return at the turn of the millennium, there are 7 percent who strongly believe events will occur to herald the end of civilization.

According to a 1997 Associated Press poll, nearly one out of four Christian adults — an estimated 26.5 million people — expect Christ to arrive in their lifetimes. Almost as many — 21.1 million — are so sure of it they feel an urgent need to convert their friends and neighbors. The same sampling found that 40 percent of Christians expect Jesus to arrive in the 21st century — if not sooner.

All the talk — this time at least — is spurred on by the millennium, although scholars and Bible commentaries agree to disagree on exactly what year the third millennium will begin. First, there's the discussion of whether it begins in 2000 or 2001. But according to a Knight-Ridder report published earlier this year, Dionysius Exiguus, a 6th century scholar, miscalculated when composing what is the calen-

Gaining insights from one of Israel's longest-running archaeological digs

By Richard Ostling
AP Religion Writer

No nation has been as painstakingly explored by archaeologists as has modern-day Israel, mainly because it's the land of the Bible.

The longest continuing archaeological dig, and one of the most fruitful, is located at Dan, the fabled shrine city where the ancient Israelites worshipped a golden calf nearly 3,000 years ago.

The site of Dan was identified in 1838 and confirmed during the present excavation project begun in 1966 by Avraham Biran, now the director of the Hebrew Union College's school of biblical archaeology in Jerusalem. Biran recently described the findings at Dan in Biblical Archaeology Review, a magazine for non-specialists that is both readable and scholarly.

Theology prof finds deeper meaning in 'Star Trek'

By Andrew Brownstein
N.Y. Times News Service

COLONIE, N.Y. — With a doctorate in theology and a collection of 137 Star Trek action figures, Lois Daly was probably destined to teach a course called "Star Trek and Religion."

An unusual combination, perhaps. But not illogical, as Spock would say.

This semester, students at Siena College learned what fans of the show have known for years — that underneath the tight uniforms and campy dialogue lies a serious examination of major themes, including religion.

"What I wanted to do was teach students to take religion seriously," says Daly, 41, the college's dean of arts. "Pop culture is one way of doing that."

From her most un-deanlike of dean's offices, Daly glances at her collection of figures and explains that metaphysics plays a natural role in a show that explores "the final frontier."

"The class is about opening up what religion means in the late 20th century," she says.

Daly's class, which alternates video sessions with readings in theology, is one of several around the nation exploring the deeper implications of the popular TV show.

An Indiana University course examined the show's links to religion, and the University of California in Harrisburg, Pa., recently provided the unusual offering "Star Trek and Modern Man." With the release of the hit movie "Insurrection," "Star Trek" is more popular than ever. Books probe the biology, physics, even management techniques of the series.

"'Star Trek' does things that 'E.R.,' 'N.Y.P.D. Blue' and 'Law & Order' couldn't possibly deal with," says student Harry Chauss, a recent Siena graduate from Round Lake who majored in religious studies. "In a kind of heartfelt way, it discusses how people should behave."

Skeptics should tune in to "Rightful Heir," an episode from "Star Trek: the Next Generation" that poses an interesting question for Christians: What would happen if the prophesized Second Coming of Christ actually occurred?

As the episode begins, Worf, the Enterprise's hawkish security chief, is beginning to doubt the ancient stories about Kahless, the warrior hero at the center of Klingon myth. Worf finds he can no longer tell the old tales and seeks solitude in a place where legend says Kahless will one day return.

All Christians should walk the talk

While attending a Christian men's conference in Medford, Oregon, I heard a gentleman give a testimony about his friend who wanted to kill himself. One morning, after taking drugs, each went to his room. After a few minutes, he heard his friend screaming and shouting, "Jesus loves you."

Kituku

Those are the words he could remember hearing way back as he literally ran away from someone who wanted to give him Christian tracts. When the tract-giver saw that he was not going to hand a tract to this man, he just opted to shout, "Jesus loves you." These precious words came back to this "run-away" as he put a pistol to his head to end his life. They were so powerful that he could not pull the trigger.

A Christian's life should be an open Bible for others to read. It should be a picture that's worth a thousand words. His actions should speak louder than words. However, in some circumstances, there is no time for the "picture" to display itself. In those situations, it is talking the walk, a personal note on one's experience with Christ, that makes others know about Him.

In today's social climate, leaders, spiritual or otherwise are challenged to talk the walk. People used to give testimonies of what God had done in their lives. Talking the walk is sharing the glory of God. It is a way of defeating the enemy, Satan, who would want Christians to be silent about their relationship with God. The Bible says, "And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony..." (Revelation 12: 11).

Romans 10: 14 also gives another reason for talking about God's salvation plan. "How then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed and how shall they believe on who they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher."

When I was growing up in a village in Kenya, there was a place where young boys from four to seven years old brought their family cattle for grazing and watering. Every Sunday, a group of high school boys came and read Bible verses for us. We didn't know where they came from or whether they practiced what they preached. However, the message they brought to us lead us to know about God.

Talk the walk remembering, "So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." (Isaiah 55: 11).

Vincent Kituku is an author, motivational speaker and seminar leader. He can be reached at vmkmusoo@aol.com.

The Good Book: Ecclesiastes

(Parts 21 -- of 52)

Editor's Note: Part 21, Eccleiastes, was inadvertently excluded from last week's Religion section. It is included today)

Ecclesiastes

Overview:

Traditionally, King Solomon is considered to be the author of Ecclesiastes, although others doubt Solomon's authorship and believe the book was written around 300 BC.This book represents the reflections of a royal philosopher who is pondering the meaning and purpose of life. The teacher speaks often of the futility of life but also instructs people to enjoy the pleasures of life that come as gifts from God.

Theme Passages:

1:2 — "Vanity of vanities, says the Teacher, vanity of vanities! All is vanity. What do people gain from all the toil at which they toil under the sun?

3:1 — "For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven ..."

3:12 — "I know that there is nothing better for them than to be happy and enjoy themselves as long as they live; moreover, it is God's gift that all should eat and drink and take pleasure in all their toil."

— Source: Oxford Annotated Bible; Rev. Bill Clark, Grace Presbyterian Church.

DIGS: Identification of site confirmed partly through discovery of cult objects in two. The southern kingdom was called Judah, while the northern kingdom of Israel was set up by the rebel monarch Jeroboam.

According to 1 Kings 12, Jeroboam feared that the northerners would revolt and shift their loyalty to the southern king if they continued to offer sacrifices at the temple in Jerusalem, the southern capital. So he established shrines for his kingdom at Bethel and at Dan, located in the far north near the foothills of Mount Hermon.

At each of the shrines, Jeroboam set up a golden calf for worship and then declared fateful words of idolatry: "Behold your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt."

Worship was still practiced there in the eighth century B.C., when the prophet Amos denounced idolatry and predicted the permanent downfall of those who were swearing by the false god of Dan (Amos 8: 14).

Dan's diggers have yet to unearth the golden calf, but Biran says they have located the place where the sacrifices to the idol were made. The ruins feature a platform, about 60 feet wide, constructed of large blocks of stone. Biran believes this was an open-air shrine of the type often referred to in the Bible as a "bamah" or "high place." The entire complex was probably what 1 Kings 12 and other passages call a "beit-bamat," meaning "house of high places."

Identification of the site was confirmed in part through the discovery of cult objects associated with shrines: oil lamps with seven wicks, a stand for burning sacred incense, a bowl containing animal bones, figurines and large containers decorated with snakes, a symbol associated with pagan worship of the nature god Baal.

The archaeological team also discovered several smaller worship sites at Dan that featured sacred pillars called "massebot." Because these are clustered around the gates to the city, Biran speculates that they served merchants and other visitors to Dan, not its residents, who frequented the "high place."

Why did Jeroboam build the main shrine on the northern side of town? Biran thinks that a nearby spring, a source of the Jordan River, might also have been a handy source of water for ceremonial washings. But it's equally possible that Jeroboam simply replaced a pre-existing holy site, since the archaeologists also found cult objects used earlier by Egyptians.

One startling find at Dan, announced years ago, overshadows all the others. An inscription includes the phrase "house of David." Though there's debate, most experts consider this the first ancient writing outside the Bible that refers to King David or the Davidic line of kings, which has corroborated the basic history of the Hebrew Scriptures.

In this and many other instances, the Bible continues to come alive through objects left behind long ago.

MILLENNIUM: Focus on end-times can be both interesting and dangerous

(From 1C)

dar we use today and, most scholars feel that Christ was in fact born just before 4 B.C. If that is true, that would make today January 9, 2004. Or 2005 — there was no year "0" and Dionysius' calendar went straight from 1 B.C. to 1 A.D.

Needless to say, it can all be quite complicated for both laypersons and career theologians.

Steve Stutz, pastor of Big Spring's St. Paul Lutheran Church since last August, doesn't for a minute pretend to have all the answers. What he did do for his congregation, though, was to try to put in simpler terms the three common millennial views — post-millennialism, pre-millennialism and amillennialism. Stutz, a 34-year-old first-year pastor who left the Army for Concordia College Seminary, included his explanation in a recent letter to church members.

The schools of thought revolve around the interpretation of Revelation 20: 1-3, 7-8, which reads, "Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain. And he seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the pit, and shut it and sealed it over him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years were ended. After that he must be loosed for a little while ... And when the thousand years are ended, Satan will be loosed from his prison and will come out to deceive the nations which are at the four corners of the earth."

According to Stutz, "the period of 1,000 years is the reign of Christ, and the 1,000-year period is popularly called the millennium. The millennium is a harbinger of the end of the world and Revelation 20 is interpreted three ways by conservative Protestants.

■ First, there's post-millennialism, considered to be an all-but-dead school of thought, included simply because it was prevalent among believers as recently as the early 1900s.

'Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain. And he seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the pit, and shut it and sealed it over him, that he should deceive the nations no more, till the thousand years were ended. After that he must be loosed for a little while ... And when the thousand years are ended, Satan will be loosed from his prison and will come out to deceive the nations which are at the four corners of the earth.'

— Revelation 20: 1-3; 7-8, a passage around which much discussion concerning the meaning of the term "one thousand years" is based.

Post-millennialism, according to theologian Loraine Boettner, in her book, "The Millennium," is, "that view of last things which holds that the kingdom of God is now being extended in the world through the preaching of the Gospel and the saving work of the Holy Spirit, that the world eventually is to be Christianized and that the return of Christ will occur at the close of a long period of righteousness and peace, commonly called the millennium."

The devastating effects of World Wars I and II pretty much eliminated any further post-millennialism, Stutz said.

"Post-millennialism said that things were going to get better and better, but then the horror of the world wars woke everyone up and said, 'No, it ain't.' previous to the wars, it was believed that mankind, through technology and government would make this such a wonderful place to live and that all our problems will be solved and we'll have heaven on earth, and then at that time, Christ comes."

■ Pre-millennialism, Stutz wrote, is currently the most popular belief among fundamentalists and evangelical denominations. Hal Lindsey books, for instance, are written from the Pre-millennialist viewpoint.

"Pre-millennialists, like Post-millennialists, believe that the 1,000 years is an earthly golden age during which the world will be thoroughly Christianized. The Rapture is coming and all Christians will leave and then Armageddon will hit. After that, the 1,000 year literal reign of Christ will begin. Pre-millennialists believe this could happen at any time."

The problem, Stutz said, is that, "Scripture does not view there being a 1,000 year span between the Second Coming and the Final Judgment."

Pre-millennialists, Stutz noted, often use events in the Middle East and the restoration of Israel in 1948 as indicators that the time for the end of the world is drawing near.

■ Amillennialists interpret Revelation 20 symbolically and see the millennium not as an earthly golden age — in which the world will be totally Christianized — but as the present period of Christ's rule through His church on earth.

"Amillennialists," Stutz said, "don't believe in an earthly golden age, but in the coexistence of good and evil on earth until the end. The state of tension between the righteous and the wicked will be resolved only by Christ's return at the end of time."

Amillennialism views the 1,000 years mentioned in Revelation 20 not as literally 1,000 years, but as a number used to symbolize a long period of time.

Stutz said that generally, Lutherans, Catholics and Episcopalians fall under the Amillennialist school of thinking.

Such discussion of end times, Stutz said, is an interesting — but potentially dangerous — pastime.

"Many Christians in the past have become very distressed and confused, believing that they were living right at the end of the world," Stutz said.

Next month: A view from a pre-millennialist, and a look at a frightening anti-Christ scenario one Dallas Christian newspaper has suggested could occur.

TREK: Professor is fascinated with show's 'cultural refraction' of events appears. This is the distant future, so Worf doesn't have to rely on faith; he performs a DNA test. The result: It's Kahless, in the flesh.

(From 1C)

Predictably, the Klingon powers-that-be dismiss the being. Worf's belief is nonetheless restored, even after he learns, in a bizarre twist, that the would-be Kahless is a clone. The episode is about faith and whether physical evidence is necessary to sustain that faith.

"It doesn't really matter that he's a clone," Daly tells the class one night in early December. "It's the message that matters."

Daly came to "Star Trek" late in life. Scared off at age nine by an episode involving a giant monster, Daly didn't grow up repeating catch phrases like, "Beam me up, Scotty," or, "Set phasers on stun." She got hooked when she went to college in rural Indiana, where television picked up stations from several nearby cities and she could watch up to three episodes a day.

She became fascinated with what she calls the show's "cultural refraction" — the way it mirrors present-day conflicts and prejudices. Her collection of action figures from the show's four television versions and nine movies became a natural adjunct to that fascination. She believes one figure — Tasha Yar of the "Next Generation," cut from the show early — is rare and worth a lot of money, but she isn't sure.

"I just like the way they look," she says.

Academically, the class is no walk on the Holodeck. Daly's students are required to read dense theological tracts, including the works of prominent skeptics like Freud and Marx. Though a handful criticized its nontraditional approach (one student, in a class evaluation, wished for "more respect for established religion") most seemed to welcome the fresh look at familiar material. One student said the course gave her a new appreciation for religion.

HABITAT: Local tithing will go toward same house 13 Midlanders will build national. The result of those tithes, Best said, work toward efforts such as this one.

"When we give here," Best said, "we're also helping build houses around the world. We are now able to say that we want (donations) directed to a specific house in the Philippines where we'll have Midland volunteers on the spot to work on that work project."

Although local tithes have always gone to the international arm of habitat, it's the first time the tithes and the volunteers will work together in the same effort.

Eight of the 13 people making the trip are members at Grace Presbyterians. Some of the others answered a call for volunteers after reading about the need in the Reporter-Telegram. All will serve a specific need, be it skilled or unskilled labor, during the week.

Grace members were tipped off when a former member, Dan Smith, who now serves as a Habitat regional director in the South Pacific, told them of the Philippine "building blitz," as Morse calls it.

Naturally, funding is a concern, as is any major relief work or volunteer effort. The group making the trip with Habitat needs about $5,000 to handle all remaining expenses for the trip. Any individual donations for the effort should be made in the form of a check made to Grace Presbyterian, with "Habitat" written in the memo area for tax reasons. Donations can be mailed to Grace Presbyterian, 2801 N. Garfield, Midland, Tex., 79705.

Ban on Hula, other 'sacred gestures' at Hawaiian Masses reversed

By Michael Tighe
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU — After months of negotiating with the Vatican, Bishop Francis X. DiLorenzo is allowing hula and other Native Hawaiian "sacred gestures" to be performed during Roman Catholic services.

Rome banned these central elements of the Hawaiian culture from local churches earlier this year after a parishioner complained they were being used for entertainment, not worship.

DiLorenzo went to Rome last summer to appeal Hawaii's case. Now, with the Vatican's approval, the Honolulu bishop has issued new guidelines for allowing sacred gestures during Mass. They took effect Jan. 3.

Psalm 149 offers Scriptural support, saying, "Let them praise his name in the dance."

"Sacred gesture is a way for Pacific Islanders, Asians and those who have embraced the culture to worship as baptized Catholics," DiLorenzo said in directives mailed to all 66 parishes in the islands. "For many, their cultural and religious experience are interwoven."

DiLorenzo specifically avoided the word "hula" because other cultures here — Asian, Filipino, Samoan and Tongan, for example — use native expressions during Mass, diocese spokesman Patrick Downes said. Of the 1.2 million residents of Hawaii, about 730,000 are Pacific Islanders or Asian. About 215,000 residents are Catholic, Downes said.

At least 200,000 people in Hawaii claim some Hawaiian ancestry. And it was the use of hula, a Native Hawaiian dance, at a Maui church that hatched the controversy.

Hula uses the hands, body and feet to tell a story. Ancient Hawaiians danced for their kings in both religious and secular settings.

The dance now has been performed during all types of church services, including First Communion, weddings and funerals, by both men and women. It even was performed at DiLorenzo's installation as bishop in 1994.

The dance can be accompanied by religious chanting and the playing of native instruments such as the ipu, a drum made from a gourd, and the nose flute.

The hula performed during liturgies is not the same hula danced by women wearing coconuts, leis and grass skirts at the famous Kodak Hula Show.

Church hula is performed in the "strictest, most beautiful, spiritual sense," said John K. Lake, a hula teacher for more than four decades.

"Some movements are done in church only and wouldn't be done outside the church," Lake said. "The dance changes according to the knowledge that's presented in the context."

Last year, a Maui woman was offended by a hula performance during Mass and complained to the diocese. She then took her complaint to Rome. The church won't release her name.

In June, Sister Mary Lange of the diocese's Office of Worship told parish priests the Vatican said "there should be no dance of any kind in the churches of the Diocese of Honolulu."

That touched a nerve among Hawaiians, whose language and cultural practices were banned by New England missionaries in the 1820s. Hula was banned from public and private performances because it was considered "enchanting," Lake said.

"With the missionaries, anything Hawaiian was debasing Christianity," he said. Hawaiian traditions "were considered valueless."

Hawaii newspapers also criticized the Vatican's ban.

"Clearly, if the church is to continue to be relevant in an increasingly cynical age, it cannot keep itself at a distance from the people it serves by sending down orders that deny an important part of their culture," The Honolulu Advertiser said Dec. 8.

DiLorenzo said the church's ban on dance within the liturgy remains in effect "as entertainment has no place within the sacred liturgy."

What is allowed is sacred gesture — defined as movement that expresses praise, thanksgiving, adoration, petition and penitence. It is permitted during designated Masses, at certain times in the ceremony and with appropriate attire that respects the liturgy, the congregation and the culture.

"This form of gesture is considered as a form of praying with one's whole being," DiLorenzo said.

The Advertiser on Dec. 29 praised the ruling, saying "the church is promoting openness and inclusiveness in the best tradition of the Islands. Accommodation rather than fiat has thankfully carried the day."

Native expression and dance during Catholic services is used by churches in Africa and Oceania, and sometimes is performed for the pope.

Just this past November, barefoot, shirtless tribal people performed for Pope John Paul II during a Vatican synod for bishops from Oceania.

John Paul told worshippers then that the church is "searching for new impulses ... in the drive to announce the kingdom of Christ in the diversity of culture and of human tradition, social and religious, and in the marvelous multiplicity of their people."

Ancient hymn causes modern political controversy; religion in schools now at issue in India

Associated Press

LUCKNOW, India (AP) — Every morning, the blue-skirted, pigtailed students at Niral Nagar Senior Secondary School line up on the dusty playground to send a childishly tuneless request to Saraswati, the Hindu goddess of learning.

"Show us the way, guide us on the right path, light up our souls," they sing in Hindi.

Teachers at the girls school say their students have been opening the day with the hymn for years, more out of respect for tradition than religious fervor.

But the hymn familiar to many Indians became a controversy this fall. The Bharatiya Janata Party, the Hindu nationalist movement that controls the state government in Uttar Pradesh, ordered that the hymn be sung every morning in all public schools.

Primary Education Minister Ravindra Kuma Shukla's announcement in late October set off an angry debate. Muslim leaders told parents to withdraw their children from public schools. The Bharatiya Janata youth wing responded by burning Muslim scholars in effigy.

Shukla, who accused political rivals of encouraging the protests, said Muslim students could remain silent while their classmates sang the Saraswati hymn.

But the order was quietly withdraw in early December. A statement from the Education Ministry said only that it had been improperly issued.

The furor over a hymn came while many Indian public schools lack blackboards, libraries and teachers — let alone the traditional instruments that Shukla said should accompany the Saraswati hymn.

Shortly before the order was rescinded, the head teacher at Chandganj Primary School, G.D., Singh watched his 6- to 11-year-olds trickle into a classroom equipped with little more than the blankets they sit on. Singh said the two other teachers had been assigned to help with the municipal census, leaving him with all of the school's 125 students.

"We have received the order to recite the Saraswati hymn, but ... there's no one to teach the children the hymn," he said.

Major grant to computerize church data

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The "Yearbook of American and Canadian Churches," a standard reference work on Christian organizations, will use a $635,000 grant from the Lilly Endowment to computerize its 67 years of data on church memberships and finances.

The grant was announced by the National Council of Churches, which produces the annual. The 1999 yearbook, edited by the Rev. Eileen Lindner, who works for the council in New York, will be published Feb. 1 by Abingdon Press.

The council plans to improve the print edition and supplement it with a CD-ROM containing data from yearbooks dating to 1916.

U.S. has third largest Catholic population

HUNTINGTON, Ind. — The United States has the world's third largest Catholic population, behind Brazil and Mexico, according to the 1999 Catholic Almanac. As No. 3, it edges out two large and traditionally Catholic nations, the Philippines and Italy.

The almanac, published by Our Sunday Visitor Inc., puts U.S. Catholic membership at just over 61.5 million, or 22.7 percent of the national population. The states with the biggest Catholic populations are California, New York, Texas, Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Besides statistics, the annual almanac provides summaries of church teachings and practices, biographies, historical data, religious information by country and a rundown on all Catholic organizations and religious orders in the United States.

U.S. Jews asked to help defeat Israel religion bills

NEW YORK — Leaders of the Reform and Conservative branches of North American Judaism have asked members to mobilize against proposed legislation in Israel that would restore Orthodox rabbis' exclusive right to perform religious conversions.

The bill would overturn a late December ruling by the Jerusalem District Court that validated conversions by non-Orthodox groups within Israel. The government's Interior Ministry plans to appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court. Previous court rulings had recognized non-Orthodox conversions performed in other nations.

A related bill in the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, also targeted by the North Americans, would nullify court decisions and bar Conservative and Reform members from municipal councils that administer religious programs.

Rabbi Jerome Epstein, executive vice president of the Conservative synagogue organization, said North American Jews "must use the power of our dollars" in the forthcoming campaign to elect a new Knesset. Rabbi Eric Yoffie, president of the Reform synagogue union, said, "Israeli politicians need to look beyond short-term electoral interests to the welfare of the Jewish people as a whole."

In a New York Times advertisement, ARZA/World Union, an organization of Zionists in the Reform branch, said the proposed legislation would "cause irreparable harm to the unity of the Jewish people."

Russian Orthodoxy limits role in World Council of Churches

MOSCOW — The Russian Orthodox Church is taking a passive role in the World Council of Churches while it attempts to deal with complaints about the ecumenical body.

Orthodox leaders in various nations contend that liberal Protestants have too much influence in the WCC. Orthodox churches in Bulgaria and the Georgian republic have ended WCC membership.

MARKETING: Polls indicate people avoid church because of pressure to give money

(From 1C)

gregation in California while Daniel earned his Ph.D. at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, decided to move to the Bible Belt after learning the region had few church consultants. They have worked with about 500 clients from several denominations since 1990. They charge about $1,000 for a one-day review and between $6,000 and $10,000 for yearlong contracts.

Polls show people avoid church because they feel pressured to give money, or find services boring and sermons irrelevant. Newcomers decide in the first 11 minutes whether to return, so details such as cleanliness and good music count, the Allens say.

Churches, they say, need to recognize their competition: television and the Internet, the relative ease of New Age worship, even the lure of a Sunday morning at a coffee shop.

Church consultants aren't new. Since the 1920s, denominations have appointed administrators to advise congregations on how to grow, says Dave Travis of Leadership Network, a Dallas-based group that supports church innovation. Independent fee-for-service consulting emerged in the 1970s and has grown, he says.

Some church leaders fear that taking cues from the business world dilutes the Bible's message, but the Allens say not to worry.

"My personal philosophy is you need to know God loves you," Daniel Allen says. "If I am putting obstacles in the way, I'm going to need to figure out how to remove those obstacles."

When Daniel Allen arrives at a church, he takes an inventory.

Is the parking lot paved? Are the bathrooms well marked and clean? Is the church bulletin appealing? Are there designated greeters? Are the sermons relevant?

"It needs to be biblical, but you need to deal with where people live," he says. "People in the pews are asking, 'So what? How does this help me in my daily life?'"

At one congregation that hired the Allens, the Valley Spring Church of God in Peoria, Ariz., the pastor's habit of praying in his car inspired them. They suggested he start a commuters' prayer club.

Pastor Gary Hawkins now distributes cards that hang from the dashboard to about 30 people who recite the prayers while driving.

"It's easier to ask for people to pray in their cars than to come to a one-hour prayer meeting," he says.

The Allens also suggested Hawkins ask first-time visitors not to donate when the collection plate is passed.

"It blows people away when we say don't give," Hawkins says. "They say, 'What do you mean you don't want our money?' We're more interested in their spirit."

The church has grown from 20 to about 150 members in four years, and Hawkins credits the Allens for helping.

Pastor Ron Hill arrived eight years ago at the Church of God in rural Rocky Mount, Va., a congregation he described as "dying." He tried to revive the church for three years, with little luck.

"The mindset of people was do it like we've always done it," he recalls.

At the Allens' urging, he replaced hymns with contemporary music and started a Bible study on local cable television. About 180 people now attend Sunday services, up from 30 in 1990.

The Allens, he says, "helped me to have the confidence to challenge tradition and institutional barriers that kept the church inwardly focused."

Upcoming

✔ New church

Tall City Community Church of God will hold its first service at 10:30 a.m. Jan. 24 at Scharbauer Elementary School, 2115 Hereford Boulevard. The church is affiliated with Anderson, Ind. For more information call 580-9041.

✔ CLER Ministry

CLER MINISTRIES, a non-profit sexuality education ministry is presenting their thirteenth annual 12-session Biblically human sexuality course for high school youth beginning January 24 and concluding April 11. These classes consisting of 20 students per class, will be held weekly in local churches and are sponsored by The Midland Association of Churches. Two classes will be held on Sunday afternoons from 3-5 p.m. and one class on Sunday evenings from 6-8 p.m. at a cost of $75 per student. A Parent Orientation will be presented by Linda Goddard, founder and president of CLER Ministries, on Wednesday evening, January 20, at 7 p.m., at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave. For scholarship information or to register for one of the classes, contact Donna Nichols at 684-8600.

✔ Alpha Course

Exploring the meaning of life, what happens with death, dealing with guilt and looking at the relevance of Jesus Christ will be explored in a 10-week Alpha course starting Jan. 24 at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave. Each session will begin at 6 p.m. in the Parish Hall with a catered dinner and will end at 9 p.m. "This course is open to anyone interested in finding out more about the Christian faith,' said Bob Bledsoe, administrator for the program. "Adults of all ages and backgrounds are welcome." For more information about Alpha or to register, call the church office, 694-8856.

✔ Spiritual Empowerment

Shekinah Glory Church, 712 Scharbauer Drive, is hosting the Spiritual Empowerment for the 21st century Conference Jan. 27-30. The theme is "the Return of the Spirit of Holiness." All services begin at 7 p.m. Speakers include the Rev. Ken Redmon, Jan. 27; A.C. Taylor, Jan. 28; the Rev. Donnie Brackens, Jan. 29; and the Rev. Jessie Morris and Brackens, Jan. 30. A special anointing service will be held at 8 a.m. Jan. 30. Registration for the conference is $10.

✔ Ecumenical Prayer Service

An ecumenical prayer service to honor Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. will be conducted at 3 p.m., Jan. 17 at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, 1401 E. Garden Lane. The service will be presided over by Bishop Michael Pfeifer, OMI, of the Diocese of San Angelo. The prayer service is being held to honor Dr. King, whose birthday wil be commemorated on Jan. 18, which is also the day that many churches begin the traditional week of Prayer for Christian Unity, which runs through Jan. 25.

BRIEFS: Biblical Archeology Review finds additional proof of King David

(From 3C)

Leaders of the Russian Orthodox Church, by far the largest member body in the WCC, discussed the situation at a meeting of the Holy Synod, two weeks after a WCC assembly ended in Harare, Zimbabwe.

A statement from the Moscow Patriarchate said the Russians will "suspend participation in the work of the (WCC) Central Committee and will attend its sessions only as observers." It indicated that a decision on continued membership depends on results from a special commission set up in Harare to consider changes in the WCC.

In a separate action, the Moscow Patriarchate announced the formation of an Interreligious Council of Russia to address national problems with representatives from Islam, Judaism and Buddhism.

More proof that King David was real?

WASHINGTON — An inscription found in Egypt could be the third rediscovered ancient text that points to the existence of the biblical King David, according to Biblical Archeology Review, published here.

Professor Kenneth Kitchen, an Egyptologist now retired from England's University of Liverpool, believes the phrase "Heights of David" appears in a list of place names from southern Judah found at the Temple of Amun in Karnak, Upper Egypt. The list dates from the 10th century B.C., just after the time of King David.

Kitchen's reading cannot be certain, however, due to the ambiguity of one letter in the inscription.

Some modern scholars have speculated that the great biblical king was a mythological character. But most experts believe a text found in Israel in 1993 by archeologist Avraham Biran clearly refers to the royal "house of David."

French paleographer Andre Lemaire contends that the most probable reconstruction of a damaged inscription from ancient Moab also names King David.

First United Methodist Choir aloft with joy after scholarships, renovations

The First United Methodist Church Chancel Choir, in its new choir loft rehearsing for Sunday worship services.

First United Methodist Church's Chancel Choir will receive up to four new voices thanks to scholarships sponsored by two prominent Midland families.

The James B. Zimmerman Choir Scholarship Fund will provide funding for up to four Midland College students, while the Roy Campbell Choir Scholarship fund will benefit students from MC and other area colleges.

The students will receive $600 toward their tuition and college costs plus a spot in one of the chancel choir's four sections -- soprano, alto, tenor or bass, according to Suzanne Cate, Minister of Music at First United Methodist.

"The stipulation to the scholarship is that the recipients sing in our choir for a rehearsal and a Sunday service," Cate said. "Our goal is to have one student in each section. We think having a college-age voice in our choir will be wonderful. The experience of singing with an experienced church choir and as part of special performances with an orchestra will help further their music education. Plus it will help get some younger kids into church maybe."

Cate said the Zimmermans and Campbells wanted to assist not only students at Midland College and other higher education students, but also the Methodist church, a denomination that has always had an interest in higher education.

Cate said the student's scholarship can be renewed if they attend practice, performances and worship services. Eventually, they will leave school and the scholarship would be awarded to someone else.

"We think we're the first church in Midland to offer this," Cate said. "Churches in other cities that are situated with colleges have done it for years and years."

Cate herself was a choir scholarship recipient while attending Texas Tech. Her daughter, Robin, is currently benefiting from such a fund while attending Louisiana State and St. Albens Episcopal Church in Baton Rouge, La.

Applications are available through the church. Call 682-3701 and applications can be faxed. Qualifications include a passing grade point average and the ability to sing in a choir.

In addition to the announcement of the scholarships, the choir has recently enjoyed renovations to the choir loft area.

"Now, our choir faces the congregation rather than being on each side of the congregation," Cate said. "We've taken out the carpet in the chancel area and it is now hard wood flooring, which enhances the acoustics. We've also put down a different kind of carpeting in the sanctuary aisles and both of those changes have greatly enhanced the acoustics.

A new sound system is in place and a new organ console — which was expected this week but is currently in Holland after being incorrectly shipped — should be in place by the first of February.

The word "chancel," often used as an adjective to describe church choirs, means "in front of" the church, and includes other aspects of the worship experience such as the pulpit, lectern choir loft and altar, according to Cate.

Department Of Transportation and AAA release consumer guide

Safety-concious shoppers who want complete and detailed information about their new car purchase may want to browse through a new brochure produced by the Department of Transportation and AAA called "New Car Safety Features - Valuable Information to Help You Buy a Safer Car".

The guide allows consumers to compare descriptions of safety features on different makes and models for the 1999 model year and lists the availability of features such as four-wheel anti-lock brakes, traction control, seat belt pretensioners and side air bags.

A copy of the brochure can be obtained by calling the Auto Safety Hotline at 1-888-DASH-TO-DOT.

Mustang Cobra sports new Traction Control System

Mustang lovers will be interested to know that Ford has designed an all-speed Traction Control System for the Mustang Cobra.

The system utilizes brake and engine management to control wheelspin and maintain vehicle stability and steering response during rapid acceleration. If one of the system's sensors detects that a wheelspin has occurred, power to the tire is reduced to maintain control. The system includes a selectable on/off switch and the Power Start feature, which detects when the driver is accelerating hard and goes into a performance programming mode which deactivates the Traction Control System.

Clarion unveils car PC

Clarion has unveiled a new hands-free system made to fit in the dash of a car called the AutoPC, which integrates car audio, computing functions, navigation and wireless communications through a voice activated system.

The system recognizes simple voice commands, allowing the user to select music or retrieve information without taking his or her eyes off of the road. The AutoPC provides turn-by-turn directions and also includes an address book and voice memo feature.

The AutoPC is available at authorized Clarion dealers nationwide. The basic unit is priced at $1299.

Gentle Giant: '99 Ford F-350 4x4 DRW SuperCab

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Taking over where the regular F-Series pickup truck leaves off, Ford has developed a line of trucks aimed at commercial and small business customers.

Built on a chassis different from the under-8,500 pound Gross Vehicle Weight (GVW) "light" duty F-150 and F-250 full-size pickups, the Super Duty frame is a ladder type with up to nine cross members, using 36,000-psi (pounds per square inch) low-carbon steel for strength. A front stabilizer bar with monobeam front suspension coupled with new power steering gears and pumps result in significant improvements in the Super Duty's quality, handling, responsiveness and maneuverability.

Plenty of choices

Manufactured exclusively at Ford's Louisville, Ky. plant, the F-350 Super Duty is available in the following configurations: Regular, SuperCab or Crew Cab; single/dual rear wheel drive (DRW) or all wheel drive; and XL, XLT or Lariat trim levels.

Add to this vast selection of configurations powerplant options which include: 5.4L Triton V-8 (the base engine), optional 6.8L V-10 (standard Crew Cab) and a 7.3L V-8 Power Stroke turbodiesel. Power is transferred to the pavement through either the standard M5HD five-speed manual or ($995) optional 4R100 four-speed automatic transmission. The Power Stroke turbodiesel comes standard with a M60D six-speed manual transmission.

Here are the engine performance numbers: 5.4L V-8 - 235 horsepower @ 4,250 rpm and 335 lb/ft of torque @ 3,000 rpm; 6.8L V-10 - 275 horsepower @ 4,250 rpm and 410 lb/ft of torque @ 2,750 rpm; and the 7.3L V-8 turbodiesel - 235 horsepower @2,700 rpm and 500 lb/ft or torque @ 1,600 rpm.

Properly equipped, the F-350 has a maximum payload of 5,970 pounds and can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 12,500 pounds.

On the road

With a distinctive grill that sets it apart from the other members of the Ford truck family, the F-350 Super Duty DRW makes no apologies for being what it is: a strong truck for hard work. On the road, the V-10 engine/four-speed automatic equipped with the optional trailer towing package ($210) and 4x4 running gear did not hamper the ride. In fact, this large truck was very easy to drive down long expanses of midwestern interstate.

Getting used to the dual rear wheels did not take as long as I had first thought. Quiet, comfortable and fast, one could almost forget that the F-350 Super Duty is designed to be a truck for commercial applications.

In the cabin, Ford extended the chassis by four inches in order to build a very roomy cab. Displays and control are straightforward and functional — there are several "power points" to plug in additional electrical equipment, such as cellular phones and laptop computers.

The driver's view of the road is good, enhanced by a novel "cut away" side window design. The leather 40/20/40 bench seat in the Lariat model is very comfortable. The standard four door configuration of the SuperCab makes access to the rear bench very convenient.

One gripe that I have is that the leather seats are not heated, making them very cold in the winter until the cab warms up.

Underhood fluids are not consistently marked and hard to reach due to the height of the 4x4 chassis. Closing the aluminum hood will prove to be a unique challenge for short drivers.

By the Numbers

Standard safety equipment for the F-350 Super Duty pickup includes driver's side airbag, four-wheel disc brakes and rear anti-lock brakes. A passenger front airbag with deactivation switch is a $300 option (standard on Lariat). Four-wheel anti-lock brakes are a $500 option, (standard on dual rear drive models) and limited slip rear axle is $260 additional.

Retail sticker prices range from $19,710 for an XL regular cab to $30,440 for a Lariat Crew Cab 4x4 DRW model. Supplies are very tight and there are no rebates.
