Thieves Get $500 Merchandise From Quail Mercantile

Shotguns And Rifles Taken In Raid Along With Other Items

Entered In Rear

Thieves Enter Through Rear Of Store After Smashing Door Glass

Thieves entered the Quail Mercantile Friday night, November 30, and took between $400 and $500 in merchandise, according to Tom Crabtree, owner.

The thieves broke the glass from the rear door of the building and then turned the night-latch entering from the rear door. The stolen merchandise was also carried out through the rear door and it is presumed loaded into two automobiles in which the thieves made their escape.

Included in the list of stolen items was neck ties, underwear, shirts, two ladies coats, shoes, toilet articles, one automatic shotgun, two automatic rifles, cigarettes, and men's jackets. The total loss was estimated to be around $500.

This is the second robbery in Quail this year, thieves having earlier in the fall entered the Grimes store and taken a small amount of merchandise, including pocket knives and similar items.

No trace has been reported on the Grimes robbery, but local officers are working on both cases.

Members of the American Legion will sell tickets for the two day performance and will receive a portion of the ticket sales from the picture, which is to be presented at the Ritz Theatre without advances in price, despite the fact that it is considered one of the unusual productions of the year, Mr. Bonner said.

Boy To See Mother After 9 Years; Grand Jury Good-Hearted Guys

The grand jury was a bunch of good-hearted guys.

Sometimes they can be tough—and then, like most other people, they have their moments.

"Whitey" McNeese, former prisoner, will attest to that, because Whitey should now be kissing an old white-haired mother, who he this week laid eyes upon for the first time in nine years.

Whitey was imprisoned some five months ago in connection with a hi-jacking charge at the

Gibson Service Station. In jail, he made many friends, and gained the confidence of Bob Jolly, county jailor. Then, there was Rev. W. C. Hankins who visited the jail on frequent occasions, and preached straightforward sermons to the boys. To some, his remarks went unheeded, but Whitey's ears always gave appreciative audience. Whitey got to sort of liking the preacher-feller, and among other things Whitey made vows, that once

Mr. Arnold if he had continued to January 1, 1935, would have served for 13 years continuously. In addition, he also served for two years as postmaster under the administration of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Mr. Curry, since assuming the new role, has been working in the various divisions of the office and promises to continue prompt and courteous service in the Wellington office.

Bargain Rate With Free Broom Offer Attracts N Many Subscribers

Subscriptions to The Leader showed an increase during the past week as more loyal subscribers took advantage of the liberal bargain rate offer, which includes a subscription for one year and a free broom for one dollar.

With plenty of brooms on hand to answer the present needs, publishers urged all who plan to subscribe to The Leader to do so as soon as possible; persons who renew their subscriptions now will lose no time since the date of their paper is extended from the time on which their old subscriptions expire.

More nice words also came with the subscriptions this week: W. V. Huffman said, "Do you get a broom, too? I saw those signs and thought they must be last year's signs. I don't see how you sell such a good paper and give out the brooms free."

Mrs. J. J. Cook: "We can't do without The Leader—if we had to I reckon I would just have to leave home."

Mrs. A. C. Whittington, who recently moved to Wichita Falls, said: "I get homesick without my

Unclaimed Cotton Certificates Go Into State Files

Notice was received from Washington, D. C., this week that all Tax-Exemption certificates not called for are to be returned to the State office at a given date and will be held there until the producer makes claim for them, according to John O. Stovall, county agent, and O. J. Walker, assistant.

All producers who have not called for their certificates are being notified daily, and are expected to call upon receipt of the notice for their certificates. If they do not, the agent and assistant will be required to send the certificates to the proper authorities and will mean a great deal of time and correspondence to get them back for the producer. The exact date has not been set for the return of the certificates as yet, but the agent and assistant expect it to be set soon, and then it will be their authority to deliver all uncalled for certificates.

Most of the producers have been notified as many as three times and the office has had no answer from them. It is presumed that Resignations of B. G. Glenn, J. R. Henard and B. W. Boorman from the Collingsworth County Cotton Committee, came as a shock to committeemen of the County Cotton Association at their meeting Saturday, December 1.

The three men served on the board for the past year and also through the 1933 plowup campaign. The meeting, which was attended by 20 local and 3 county committeemen, resulted in confusion from the unexpected resignations. The committeemen voted unanimously to retain the three board members, listing the three as faithful to their trust in their work, but without favorable response.

A Letter For Santa Claus Or A Fable Of Sorrow Vs. Happiness

Once upon a time there were two little boys, both of whom dwelled in a thriving little city known as Wellington. Now these two small lads both attended the Wellington Schools and were in the same classes and had the same teachers. One was named Johnnie and the other was named Billy.

Johnnie lived in the big house on the corner and little Billy always went home to a small hut which faced on a narrow side street. Little Johnnie was always dressed in warm clothes and Billy often ran home shivering to nestle by a small kerosene fire. Truly theirs were vastly different between the home life of the two little boys, but both worked hard in school and both were always on the honor rolls.

As Christmas approached time for writing Santa Claus letters rolled around. Both little boys became enthused; both knew of Santa Claus—although the magic words held an entirely different meaning for the two small children.

His heart filled with happiness, little Johnnie sat down and wrote "I have been a good little boy." The words were as true as any ever spoken by the Great Master. Little Johnnie had been a good boy and he deserved everything that Old Santa was to bring him upon that glorious Christmas Eve of 1934; he was certainly entitled to his rewards.

In the little unpainted hut, however, we find a different picture. Little Billy with a small pencil and a sheet of old paper also wrote, "I have been a good little boy." And this little urchin had also been a good little boy. His little heart beat alternately with misgiving and with hope.

He knew that he had been a good little boy and he knew that there was a Santa Claus, but last Christmas St. Nick had somehow overlooked him. His few years somehow had begun to accumulate that intangible something, which might in later years embitter him against society, but he still knew that little spark of hope that Old Santa might come around this year—so he wrote on. Little Billy didn't ask for much and how his little troubled brain sought to impress old Santa in that letter, a masterpiece which told a story of childish desire.

Friends, The Leader is this year giving you a chance to make little Billy happy, to do your bit toward making him a good citizen in the years to come. If you have some old toys, just any kind of old broken toys, around the house, bring them to The Leader office. The people on relief rolls are going to repair them—and on Christmas Eve that little urchin, often cold and hungry, will know the meaning of true happiness.

OUR FIRST SPEAKER

An article in the National Republic gives some interesting information concerning the first speaker of the national House of Representatives, an able man whose name few of this generation ever heard.

He was Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg, born in Pennsylvania in 1750, the son of a German pioneer, a Lutheran preacher. The son followed in his father's footsteps and also became a Lutheran preacher at the early age of 20, six years before the Declaration of Independence.

Young Muhlenberg was a staunch supporter of the Revolution, and because of his patriotic expressions was chased from place to place by the British. Nothing daunted, he continued to preach liberty as well as the gospel, and was elected to the Continental Congress.

After liberty had been won and the new constitution had been adopted, Muhlenberg was sent to the First Congress and was elected its first speaker, and was subsequently speaker of the Third Congress. Before going to the national Congress he had served two terms as speaker of the Pennsylvania Legislature.

His brilliant career as preacher and legislator came to an untimely end in 1801, when he died at the age of 51.

COMRADESHIP OF FOES

If, as it is said, politics make strange bedfellows, it is no less true that war makes strange friendships. This was again illustrated by two opposing naval commanders of the Spanish-American War.

In the naval battle of Santiago on July 3, 1898, in which Cervera's fleet was destroyed, Captain Antonio Eulate of the Spanish armored cruiser Viscaya surrendered to Captain Robley D. Evans of the U. S. battleship Iowa. Captain Eulate, who was wounded, tendered his sword to Captain Evans, but the American commander generously refused to accept it, and his chivalrous treatment of the enemy prisoners gained the warm admiration of his erstwhile foes.

When "Fighting Bob" Evans, then an admiral, died in 1912, a message of condolence was sent to his family by Eulate, then also an admiral and governor of the Canary Islands. Recently Admiral Eulate died, and his daughter notified Taylor Evans of New York, son of the American commander, of the fact, receiving a letter of condolence in return.

Eulate was probably the last survivor among the important commanders who took part in the Spanish-American War. For more than a third of a century he had cherished the memory of a magnanimous action on the part of a victorious foe.

The Finishing Touch

The Story Of The Bible Told In Pictures

ELIJAH IS TAKEN INTO HEAVEN BY A FIERY CHARIOT.—After Ahab's death his son, Ahaziah, reigned, and led the children of Israel into idolatry. But Jehoshaphat, who ruled the tribe of Judah, served the Lord. Ahaziah fell through his chamber lattice and was injured. He sent to Baalzebub to inquire if he would recover, and for this idolatry Elijah prophesied that he would die. Ahaziah sent men to take Elijah, but twice the prophet brought fire from heaven upon them. And the time came for Elijah to leave his prophetic duties to Elisha. The latter, refusing to leave the older prophet, accompanied him to the river Jordan. "And Elijah took his mantle, and wrapped it together, and smote the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, so that they two went over on dry ground. And it came to pass, when they were gone over there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven.—II Kings 2:8-14. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

Many people wonder often what the Panhandle of Texas has from a historical standpoint to be interested in a 1936 Texas Centennial Celebration. We have many points of interest, in this section and some of the men that took part in the early days events of the Panhandle are known Nationally.

Very few people in this section of the State know that Kit Carson fought the largest Indian battle west of the Mississippi River in what is now known as the Panhandle of Texas.

Prior to the year of 1840, Bent's Fort was established in what is now Hutchinson County some distance southeast of the county seat town of Stinnett. Some historians think that this was built as a mission school to the Indians.

In fact this Fort was established as a trading post for the Prairie Apache, the Comanche and the Kiowa Indian tribes, due to the fact that these tribes were at war with other Indians and they were unable to reach other trading posts.

This old fort was the original Adobe Walls and is located about one mile from where the Adobe Walls were located that the famous Indian battle of the Buffalo Hunters and Quanah Parker fought on the 27th of June, 1874.

The writer at one time in a previous article stated that these two locations were the same but on investigation is led to believe that they are not, while one man fought in the last battle states that they are the same.

Some few years after the establishment of Fort Bent and several Indian tribes settled their differences and the fort was no longer needed and therefore abandoned between 1840 and 1850.

During the War Between the States, Kit Carson was a colonel of Volunteers in New Mexico. The Kiowas, the Prairie Apaches and the Comanches during the summer and fall of 1864 had been devastating extensively in portions of Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico, and especially on travelers over the Santa Fe Trail.

United States Army authorities had information which led to the belief that these Indians were making the region of the old adobe walls their headquarters.

Carson was ordered to fit up an expedition to proceed from Fort Bascom, N. M., located on the headwaters of the Canadian River, and to proceed down that stream, punishing these Indians and put a stop to their depredations on the travel over the Santa Fe Trail.

Near the old adobe walls he took an Indian village of about 200 lodges by surprise, whipped the Indians and captured their lodges.

To his surprise, looking further down the stream, he discovered a much larger force of Indians than he had attacked, coming rapidly to counterattack him.

They drove Carson back, and it was only by reason of the protection afforded by the old walls and the fact that he had a cannon or two which saved him and his force

The Christian As Learner

Text: Matt. 7:24-29; Acts 18:24-29.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 9.

In the founding of Christianity, and in its progress, witnessing and teaching have played important parts, bearing a close relation to each other. The true teacher is a witness, just as a true witness is a teacher.

Here, in two passages—one from the Gospels and one from the Book of the Acts—we have insistence on the power of teaching. Perhaps it should be said that we have insistence on the power of learning.

Jesus, in the passage from Matthew's Gospel, is speaking of the difference that there is among hearers. Even a great teacher cannot do much for those unwilling to learn.

The man in contact with a great teacher, who is eager to know and to put in practice the things that the master has to teach, is like a wise man who builds his house upon a rock—that is, upon a sure foundation.

Whereas a man who hears the teacher, but who pays little heed, and who has no purpose to put the teachings into practice, is like a foolish man who builds his house upon the sands, where the winds and floods make havoc of it.

Is not this the plain expression of what we see again and again manifested in life?

One boy goes to college, possibly to the finest university—in the country. He has every opportunity of learning and improving his mind and fitting himself for life, but he either makes a failure of the thing or he "gets by," deriving little real benefit, even if he does succeed in passing his examinations.

Another student accepts his opportunity with eagerness. Education for him is not a matter merely of fulfilling certain requirements, but he comes to have his mind filled and his soul stirred so that he may go out into life well equipped, not having learned everything, but having found the way of learning and the way of highest improvement and service.

Undoubtedly we have these two sorts even in the school of Christ. There are those whose professed allegiance to Him is formal and lifeless. His teachings have never enriched and glorified their lives.

There are others to whom He is the supreme teacher; to sit at His feet and to learn of Him or to follow in His footsteps in ways of service is the highest quest of life.

Fortunately, we may speak of these things not as matters of theory, but as matters of practice. There are men who so learned of Christ that their lives become an inspiration to others.

It happens here in our lesson that there is reference to one of these who was named Apollos. We do not know a great deal about him. We do know that he was a man of eloquence with whom Paul was sometimes unfavorably compared, because Paul was, apparently, not so eloquent and attractive in his personality.

The power of this man Apollos was that he was well equipped and prepared. He was "mighty in the Scriptures."

How can a man teach unless he has learned well. Possibly we are inclined today to see Paul and Apollos as rivals. In reality in the early church they were men laboring for the common goal of bringing men and women to the way of Christ, and the power of each was the power of what he had learned and what he was enabled to teach others by receipt and by example. The teacher will find it helpful in connection with the lesson to look up all the New Testament passages in which Apollos is mentioned.

Some Clock

More than 50 years ago—on February 1, 1882, to be exact—Clyde Allred's parents bought a clock in Fort Worth. The clock is still running.

It is not only a clock, but also an automatic calendar, and the calendar mechanism works, too.

This week Mr. Allred is having the clock cleaned. It was last repaired on May 9, 1903, by Phil Seewald, pioneer Amarillo jeweler.

It is a wall clock with the full side glass door, the kind that sits on a shelf. The calendar mechanism has a dial as large as that of the time piece. It shows the date, day of the week and month. "It needs a little attention now and then," Allred observed. "We'll have it cleaned up again about 1970."—Hereford Brand.

Disrespect

Disrespect and disregard generally start in the home and if not corrected by the parents leads to disrespect for the law, the government, honesty, truth, virtue, and eventually to disrespect for religion and the Bible and then you have disrespect developed to the nth power, and it generally terminates in a tragedy. Sometimes man inflicts the penalty for disrespect, sometimes nature inflicts the penalty, but the penalty of all penalties to be avoided is inflicted after we have enjoyed the pleasures of life for a season.—McLean News.

"Okehs" Cold Snap

Contrary to the understanding of many people, the cold spell which has visited us is something for which to be thankful. It means the opening of the bollies and the farmers are ready for that. J. F. Everybody has a world of trouble all of their own. Laugh it off, laugh it off, and let it go at that.—Dalhart Texan.

Wow On Stray Dogs

Quannah's stray dogs are being killed by the City Marshal, Bill Wheat. Too many of the anim's have been turned loose in town and stray about the streets and alleys of the down town district. The unpleasant experience that other Texas towns have had with rabies has made the local city government eager to thwart an epidemic. A number of dogs were killed Tuesday and more will be shot this week.—Quannah Tribune Chief.

Domestic Problems

Domestic problems cannot be solved without due regard for world conditions. We see no way to maintain a high price system in this country if the world price level is low. High prices will result in abbreviated markets; unemployment, labor unrest, and a danger to established government unless an equilibrium with export markets is maintained. Rather, prices need to be adjusted to wages to give the laborer his due, to let the farmer live better on his income, to open a wider export market, and to spread employment among all the people. The longer we drift with an unbalanced fiscal and export basis, the more oppressive will be debts if we do decide to take note of our world neighbors.—Olin Hinkle in Pampa News.

Babylonians Had Taxes And Bills In Ancient Times

Research Discloses That Tax System Not Entirely New

AUSTIN, Tex.—Even the ancient Babylonians had to contend with taxes and bills, according to evidence in a collection of early tablets displayed in the anthropology museum at the University of Texas.

To the average observer, the small tablets on display in the anthropology department appear nothing more than small stones with curious markings, but to the anthropologist, they are the dark equivalent to bills and tax receipts received today. A translation of one of these tablets reveals that it is a list of taxes payable in sheep and goats, dated the twenty-fifth of the month. It was found at Drehem, a suburb of Nippur, where there was a receiving station for the temple of Bel. The date is about 2300 B. C. A butcher's bill, found near the same place, dated about the same time, lists one fat sheep, three sheep and one lamb killed for market and delivered.

In the same collection there are receipts in payment for goods and contracts, all written on clay or stone tablets. One tablet dated about 2300 B. C., bears an inscription ordering one fat sheep and one kid goat to be sacrificed to the Goddess Nana. Another tablet, found at Jakkha and dated about 2350 B. C., represents a long contract containing lists of merchandise, apparently the cargo of a canal boat.

VEGA — Jack Cotton, Oldham county 4-H club boy, showed the Grand Champion barrow and the Grand Champion litter at the fair in Amarillo recently, and in the open class the Grand Champion barrow combined with two litter mates places reserve champion trio, according to J. F. Ford, farm demonstration agent. More than 200 barrows, including the winners of the 4-H club division, were eligible at the open barrow show, and young Cotton's accomplishment in placing his best pig as open class champion against some of the outstanding show herds of the United States has seldom been equaled in the show ring, according to Mr. Ford. This is the second consecutive year that the Pig Club champion ship has been awarded an Oldham county exhibitor.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Selecting the best seed, preparing a good seed bed and good cultivation enabled A. M. Moseley, farming in the eastern part of Marion county, to defeat the drouth. He harvested 23 bushels of corn to the acre on eight acres and made 17 bales of cotton on 38 acres.

The Burleson county farm demonstration agent, G. C. King, has brought it right home to the farmers in his county that terracing means money in the pockets. A questionnaire sent to three hundred farmers for whom he has run lines for terracing asked: "Did the terraced acres of your farm produce more than the unterraced acres?" The reply was 100 per cent yes. Coming down to brass tacks, Mr. King asked: "How much?" Replies for the cotton acreage showed an average increase of 96 pounds of seed cotton per acre. Those for corn showed a six bushel increase per acre. Mrs. N. F. Lewis, pantry demonstrator for the Birdville home demonstration club in Tarrant county, has put up 5,419 containers of 80 different varieties of food this year. Much of this canning has been done for friends and neighbors, but more than 1,000 containers are on the Lewis pantry shelves.

Clearing the way for county wide activity on the improved bedroom demonstration club women of Calloun county have designated for an imaginary bonfire many useless objects once prized but now deteriorated and classed as "dust catchers." Among these are old paper flowers, certain types of pillows, door stops, old calendars, and disabled plaster of paris animals.

Self-feeder-fed pigs owned and shown by a 4-H club boy of Carson county won third place in the litter class in Amarillo recently. The pigs average 241 pounds apiece and had been fed on a ration in which skim milk largely supplied the protein. His net profit was $40.51 on this demonstration which was his first.

Ore 4-H club boy in Shackelford county reports gains of $60 pounds on his baby beef calf after four months feeding at a cost of $12-000. The calf weighed 330 when it went on feed.

Mrs. Hope Porter of the May-pearl home demonstration club in Ellis county did not find it hard to persuade her husband to put up pantry shelves to contain 1000 cans and jars of home-grown food after she had put up the products.

Mark December 31st On Your Calendar

Young man, young woman, let the 31st of December indicate the starting point of your preparation for a successful future, the turning point of your life.

This appeal is intended for every boy and girl who is not already in school and who has not yet had his business training. This, regardless of whether you intend to follow a profession, a trade, enter business, or be a farmer, a business training will enable you to make a greater success of either. Business is a profession nowadays and the highest paid profession there is, and it really offers greater opportunities than any other.

By making the start with us on December 31st, you will have the advantage of a large number of enthusiastic workers right along with you. The work is largely individual and so arranged that no student is held back or pushed forward by class work; each student goes his full speed ahead.

Do not confuse Byrne business training with other educational work, for it requires four years for college or university and four more years for medicine or law. Yet these four year graduates cannot command as much salary or get a position as quickly as a three, four or five month graduate of our school. When you have finished a course with us, we will assist you in securing a position from which you can enjoy never-ending promotion. You, yourself, can climb with Byrne College training to a big position as others no more intelligent than you are doing. The way of the untrained leads to small jobs and failure, while the way of the business trained leads direct to positions and financial success.

Write today for our free literature, or, better still, use our phone service—it is quicker and more satisfactory—just tell long distance operator to get you 7-6475, Dallas, Station to Station, collect. It will help open the way for you. Byrne Commercial College, Dallas. H. E. Byrne, President. adv.

Cotton Production Program For 1935 Being Mapped Out

WASHINGTON.—A cotton crop forecast of 9,443,000 bales Monday sent AAA officials into conference to draft a program for next year which probably will have as its aim a yield of between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000 bales.

This would approach a normal crop and would mean a loosening of the restrictions which resulted in an acreage of around 27,000,000 this year, although some reduction in planting below the normal of 40,000,000 acres is looked for in 1935.

The Government forecast Monday was an increase of 191,000 bales above the September estimate, but it had been discounted in advance apparently by both the AAA and the private trade.

Despite the upward revision, the anticipated yield is still the lowest since 1899, with the exception of the abnormally low harvest of 7,954,000 bales in 1921. Drouth and acreage curtailment combined this year is causing a production drop of approximately 3,604,000 below 1933 and 5,233,000 under the average harvest in the 1928-1932 period.

Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, H. R. Tolley, director of program planning, Victor Christgau, Davis' assistant, and officials from the cotton section participated in a discussion Monday which followed the crop report.

The conference lasted over two hours and at its conclusion the cotton section was given the task of preparing the details of the tentative 1935 program.

New Basis Reported
There have been reports that the program next year would be shifted to a domestic allotment basis. The present plans provide for rental payments on acres taken out of production.

Concerned over the increasing competition from foreign cotton, some officials have talked about waiving all restrictions to allow the growers to plant their maximum acreage. This scheme embraces a virtual guarantee to the farmer of parity price on his domestic allotment, or the average number of bales he produces which are consumed in this country.

Farmers who joined in the voluntary program this year, however are under contract for 1935 and apparently most officials take the view that this situation necessitates a continuation of the rental payment.

GALVESTON—The feed cost on a herd of 40 cows has been reduced by T. C. Scruggs of Galveston county by the use of fifteen acres of permanent pasture, according to J. C. Yeary, farm demonstration agent. The pasture is now in its fourth year and Mr. Scruggs says that the saving due to its use is practically 30 per cent or an average of about $30 per month.

In a most impressive ceremony Miss Helen Powell became the bride of Mr. A. J. Hill at twilight Saturday. The ring ceremony was read by Rev. T. M. Johnston at the First Methodist Church at 7 o'clock, before an altar of ferns lighted by candle light. Miss Glennis Wiseman lighted the candles and Miss Helen Houston of Wheeler played the wedding march as the bride and groom approached the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. J. C. Powell of Wellington. The Powell family came to Wellington three years ago and since that time Mrs. Hill has been employed in the bookkeeping department of the West Texas Gin which her father operates. She came here from Cleburne where she finished high school. She attended college at C. I. A. before moving to Wellington. Mrs. Hill has been a very active worker in the Methodist Church and had charge of a Sunday School class in the intermediate department of the Sunday School.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hill of Wellington who have resided here for many years. He received his education in the Wellington Schools finishing in the class of 1929. After finishing high school he attended Brantley-Draughon Business College in Fort Worth. He is now employed in Fort Worth in the bookkeeping department of a construction company.

The bride was unusually attractive in a gown of rust crepe trimmed in silver with black accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of rose buds.

Relatives and immediate friends of the couple were present for the ceremony. After the ceremony the couple left for Fort Worth where they will make their home.

PORT LAVACA—Archie McDonald of Calhoun county decided that trench silos provided the best method of saving his grain sorghum, and so he has just finished his second trench silo this year, according to B. J. Herndon, farm demonstration agent. His first one was 130 by 10 by 7 feet and the second is about half this size. Both silos were built and filled at a total cost of $100.

Ford Orders Five And Half Million For Improvements

DETROIT, Mich.—Henry Ford last week signed an order which will expend $5,500,000 in capital improvements during the next 10 months and double the power capacity of the Ford Motor Company's Dearborn plant.

The five and a half million dollars will purchase one 110,000-kilowatt generator, one high pressure boiler and the necessary auxiliary equipment. In addition one 15,000 kilowatt turbine generator unit has been ordered.

With the units installed during 1929-30, this will bring the capacity of the River Rouge plant up to 2,200,000 pounds per hour of high pressure steam for power generation.

The new installation is described as a duplication with improvements. The generator installed in 1929-30 was designed for a steam temperature of 725 degrees Fahr., but the new one is for 900 degrees. The high pressure boilers of 1929-30 were designed for a steam temperature of 750 degrees Fahr., and for a steam generating capacity of 700,000 pounds per hour.

This is believed to be the largest expenditure for capital improvements made by industry in several years and indicates that Mr. Ford's outlook toward the future is one of confidence.

The present expenditure has been made necessary by the enlargement of the steel plant at the Rouge. Some time ago Mr. Ford announced that he would increase the variety of the operations at his steel mill. This entailed extension of the mine operations and a greater consumption of coal. It is estimated that when all collateral requirements are fulfilled for this additional improvement, Mr. Ford will have expended $10,000,000 with other concerns throughout the country in machinery and services of various sorts.

In regard to the coming election on the Bankhead Act, all producers who signed 1934-1935 cotton acreage reduction contracts and all who sold their cotton through the 12 cent loan plan know that they are obligated through the year 1935 to reduce their acreage according to the rules and regulations governing the cotton program as designated by the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States.

However, the outcome of the election on the Bankhead Act, it will not effect or release any one obligated to reduce their cotton acres as stated above. The passage of the Bankhead Act will only curb the production of the non-contract signer or the parties who intend to start growing cotton the next year.

The producers who have signed contracts for 1934 and 1935, will recall that their contract stipulated that a reduction of 25 per cent would be required by the Secretary, or the contract signer agreed to conform to the regulations prescribed or those to be prescribed in the future. The producers who sold their cotton through the 12 cent government loan plan obligated and agreed themselves to comply with any regulation that the Secretary might require of the 1934-35 cotton contract signer.

Farmers Place Over Seven Million Pounds Cotton In Government Pool

Sale Expected On Most Certificates From This County

Other Farmers Hold Extra Exemption Taxes For Cotton Next Season

Closed Monday

Collingsworth County Received Total Exemption Of 14,302,960 Pounds

The close of the National Surplus-Tax Exemption showed that Collingsworth County had pooled a total of 7,211,105 pounds. This total of pounds were issued in 2350 certificates which the producer turned back to the National pool. These were pooled by producers who failed to make their allotments in cotton, which the government is permitting producers who have raised over their allotments to purchase through the National Pool, in preference of paying the tax on cotton over their allotments. The agent has no notice of the amount of certificates which have been sold to date or pooled, but it is thought by all authorities that a large per cent of these certificates will be sold.

Received 14 Million Pounds

The agent's office records show that there were issued to this county by the State Allotment Board a total of 5,113 certificates. This includes the 10 per cent reserve allotment, the regular base—1933 base, and 1934 base—applications. These certificates amounted to 14,332,960 pounds allotment. The above figures show that the producers of this county pooled a total of over 46 per cent of their certificates, and over 50 per cent of the actual poundage issued them.

The Bankhead Cotton Act has meant to Collingsworth producers that they will receive 4 cents a pound for over 50 per cent of the cotton that they did not produce, in event all certificates are sold. In event that the county produces 10,000 bales of cotton and counting the number of bales pooled, still leaves around 4300 bales of certificates in the hands of producers, who intend to keep them through the year and in event the Bankhead Act is still in effect, use them next year as extra certificates above his 1935 allotment, and will enable most of them to harvest a normal crop without having to pay the tax on surplus cotton over his allotment.

The agent's office expects in the near future to give more information as to the number of certificates the National Pool will be able to handle for this county.

In the picture, the young mother is shown in bed with little Ellen Marie, while the 33-year-old grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Noah, rejoices because it is a girl. Inset is the youthful father, who is looking for work. Condition of both mother and child is reported excellent, the baby weighing but a pound less than average.

Insect Poison Is Used For Baking Powder; Three Die

GREENVILLE, Texas.—Three persons died Monday after eating biscuits that contained insect poison and three others were critically ill. Attending physicians said some of the others might die.

The dead were R. J. Phillips, 72; Marcus Teague, 33, and Bobbie Joe Teague, 3, grandson of Phillips.

Critically ill are Otha Phillips, 19, son of the elder Phillips; Mrs. Marcus Teague, 26, daughter of Phillips, and Clara Bell Teague, 7, daughter of the Teagues.

Monday morning Mrs. Teague made biscuits and by mistake used insect poison instead of baking powder. The insect powder, which had been used to kill bugs on tomato plants, had been kept in a baking powder can.

The tragic mistake occurred at the Phillips home in Cash, ten miles south of Greenville. The Teagues moved there three weeks ago.

Mrs. Teague used two teaspoons of the poison in her biscuits. The six persons became ill at the table and at night none of the survivors was conscious.

Student Holds Unusual Record

AUSTIN, Tex.—Before he was 15 years of age, Joe Cook of Devine, freshman pre-medical student in the University of Texas, had lived in eight foreign countries. Five years ago he returned to his native Texas to obtain his high school and University education. He has resided in Mexico, Bolivia, Peru, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela, and Panama. Joe was born at Laredo twenty years ago, but his parents moved to Peru when he was only three weeks old. His father was a physician for a copper company and later for an oil company, being employed as camp medico by these concerns. As Peru is a Spanish speaking nation, Joe learned that language first, and did not begin to learn English until after his fifth birthday.

Dr. Cook's position necessitated his moving around a good deal as he was often transferred from one camp to another in a different country. In each of the South American republics in which Joe has lived there are many Americans, and Joe received his early education in American schools there. Joe now speaks Spanish and English with equal ease.

Joe estimates that it will require about eight years for him to complete work on his medical degree, and to serve his internship. As soon as he finishes his education, he will go back to South America, possibly to Venezuela, where he will follow in his father's footsteps as a camp physician for some large American company.

Output Of 100,000 Turkey Eggs Sought In Gonzales County

GONZALES, Texas.—Turkey growers of Gonzales County are considering a project for the sale of 100,000 turkey eggs to Northern buyers next season, at prices of 10c to 18c per egg. E. N. Holmgren, Texas A. & M. College poultry specialist, is in contact with prospective buyers and farmers will meet soon to decide upon the plan.

Turkey growers in West and South Texas have built up an increasing trade in early-hatched turkey eggs during recent years, selling most of them to growers in other States, where weather conditions delay hatching of the birds.

Mrs. Paul Hardy's Brother Is Buried

Bert Tuggle, brother of Mrs. Paul Hardy, died last week in Dallas and was buried in Duncan, Oklahoma.

Mr. Tuggle is survived by his wife, and two children, Alberta and Lloyd Tuggle, who lived here several years ago when Mrs. Tuggle operated a beauty shop. The family now resides at Duncan.

Those attending the funeral from here were: Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hardy, Mrs. Jack Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hardy and Harold Hardy.

GAIL — "It pays to work your cotton land whether it rains or not," A. N. Surratt, Borden county farmer, told Ralph Howe, farm demonstration agent. Mr. Surratt has produced 1540 pounds of net lint from 12 acres of cotton and will get about one-half bale more from the same acreage. He summer fallowed the land and worked it four times before planting his certified Acala seed. He made the large yield in spite of the fact that less than 1-4 inch of rain was received on this crop from the time it was planted until it was harvested.

"CROCHET CONSCIOUS"

DENTON—When a girl decides to start the long-desired hope chest, not even the inconveniences of modern transportation or the leer of friends can stop her.

Regardless of squenching looks and significant sneers of the strictly "moderns" at such sissy nonsense, two students at Texas State College for Women (CIA), firmly declare that those "crocheted bedspreads will be finished." In the face of uncomplimentary remarks concerning "old fashioned ways and old-maidish tendencies" together with the problem of crocheting on a bus, the spreads were started, and with 12 blocks already complete, only 97 more must be made.

Despite the fact that some think them queer, the artists are not without their followers — already three other students have secretly enrolled for instruction and the college is fast becoming "crochet conscious."

Texas Boy Grows Record Yield Of Corn To Win Trip

Almost $600 Netted On Project Winning National 4-H Honors

The amazing combination which a 4-H boy and Texas land makes for producing high and profitable yields of corn is brought to light in the records of Henry Hajovsky, age 18, of La Grange in Fayette county. The boy was named state 4-H champion in a national corn achievement contest conducted by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work in cooperation with extension leaders. The state championship gives him a prize educational trip provided by the Nelson-Rockford Sock Company to the National Club Congress to be held in Chicago, December 1-6, in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition.

Starting five years ago with an acre corn project the boy has yearly increased the size and yield of his projects. His certified report shows he harvested from his first acre, 97 bushels. The second year his acre yielded 103 bushels. Four acres the following year averaged 91 bushels. From five acres, his next project, he harvested an average of 116 bushels, and from this year's five-acre project 128 bushels.

Describing his 1934 project he states, "This corn is good and heavy and selling for $1.00 a bushel at my barn door. My total expenses not including rent were $30.05 and my profit $611.65. I have followed my county agent's directions the past four years and each season have managed to do a little better. Our plan to grow 100 bushels of corn per acre is to select good, deep, well drained land prepared before Christmas by a flat breaking. Bed after Christmas and plant good seed. I cultivate frequently and side dress with nitrate of soda when corn is about knee high. From then on cultivate shallow and lay it by above the level. We plant below the level."

"I find that field selected seed corn from certified corn produces just a little more than the certified does the first year."

Henry lives with his mother on a 460 acre farm and in spite of being much occupied with his personal affairs has served his club president each year of the last four, and assisted the county agent for several years in organizing another club and in helping club boys with their projects. The gross return of Henry's projects is certified at $1,325.04.

Prevent Pellagra Says Health Board

AUSTIN, Tex.—Now is the time for the prevention of pellagra, says Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer. This disease is generally noted in increasing frequency following the winter months. In Texas it is the cause of more than 700 deaths each year.

Pellagra is not a germ disease and it is not contagious. It is caused by deficiency of certain important elements in the dietary, as has been proved by years of research by the authorities of the United States Public Health Service. It is generally believed that restricting the diet too largely to refined cereals, fat meat, and molasses, etc., is contributory to causation of pellagra. These foods are lacking in the so-called Vitamin G (the Pellagra Preventive Vitamin) and people whose diet is primarily made up of these foods are the easiest victims of Pellagra.

It seems to be demonstrated that the inclusion in the diet of food rich in Vitamin G serves to prevent the development of pellagra. Diet is also the chief factor in the cure. Pellagra ("rough skin") shows itself by a peculiar redness and breaking out or peeling of the skin, particularly the exposed surface. This is accompanied by weakness, nervousness, indigestion, headaches and a burned feeling of the mouth or tongue.

Pellagra may be prevented by eating a balanced diet consisting of lean meat, eggs, vegetables, and fruits. Whenever a person develops the disease, however, treatment should be under the direction of a doctor.

Home Demonstration Club News Of Collingsworth County

By MISS ANNIE MAE DONAGHEY
County H. D. Agent

Spring Cover for 15 Cents

Mrs. John Jones, bedroom demonstrator of the North Wellington Club, is making the lower part of her spring cover from closely woven gunny sacks that came wrapped around furniture.

Mrs. Jones dyed the sacks and added a little starch. She stated that her spring cover will be attractive and serviceable even though she spent only 15 cents for dye. An old quilt will be used for the top and sides of the cover so that the mattress will be well protected from the springs.

Improve Your Bedroom Closet

Mrs. E. H. Shanks, bedroom demonstrator of the Fresno Home Demonstration Club, has a long closet that is built all of the way to the ceiling but it fails to have any accessories and the entrance is at one end which causes a big part of her storage space to be lost.

Mrs. Shanks plans to put the door on the side of the closet opening so that the light will shine in on the row of shelves that will be built. These shelves will provide for the family's shoes and undergarments.

Mrs. Shanks plans to have two rods in this closet. One built high and the other low, so that she may teach her three children to take the responsibility in caring for their own clothes. The walls of this closet will be lined with paste board boxes then covered with building paper in order to protect the clothes from dust.

Unexpected Bull Fight Is Won With Pocket Knife By Armstrong Citizen

CLAUDE.—An exciting event in Armstrong County recently was a bull fight staged by J. L. Pafford, county commissioner-elect with a neighbor's 2-year-old 800-pound bull.

While strolling through his pasture last Friday morning, Mr. Pafford noticed the stray animal among his herd and decided to try to separate it from the herd by driving his cattle into another pasture. But the bull objected and proceeded instead to drive Mr. Pafford out of the pasture.

The nearest protection was a barb-wire fence, under which Mr. Pafford rolled as the bull plunged through it. His next and only refuge was a bois d'arr fence post which he reached in time to get his pocket knife open for the next round. The last charge broke the post off at the ground knocked

Mr. Pafford to one side and let the bull pass. It was then the county commissioner has his inning. He jumped to his feet, grabbed the enraged brute by the horn (the other horn had been broken off) and with a bulldog grip pinned the animal to the ground with one hand while he sank his knife into its throat with the other, finally puncturing the jugular vein. And there the two wrestled until the bull died.

A Philadelphia grocer, charged with cashing a county relief board food order and taking a 25-cent profit, was fined $104.

New Disease Has Scientist Baffled

WASHINGTON.—A mysterious new disease, unlike anything known before, ironically has struck as its first victim one of the ace microbe-hunters of the public health service.

He is Dr. Charles Armstrong, a veteran experimenter on all kinds of diseases for almost twenty years. Nature has picked him for an experiment of her own with a strange malady that still has the best doctors of the public health service baffled after three weeks of intensive study.

He has a skin eruption that appears only on the sides of his body and is not typical of any known disease. He runs a mild temperature and at times is irrational. He is under constant observation at the naval hospital.

Many public health service physicians and scientists in the past have contracted diseases with which they were experimenting. This has happened twice to Dr. Armstrong, who had parrot fever, or psittacosis, and dengue fever.

Since the outbreak of sleeping sickness in St. Louis last year, however, Dr. Armstrong has been working on that disease. His present illness has no apparent connection with it. Recently he discovered a new virus that seems to cause the variety of encephalitis, different from the initial virus discovered in St. Louis.

Dr. Armstrong was one of the first to contract psittacosis in the early days of experimentation with this disease, and came near losing his life. He also was seriously ill of dengue fever during experiments with it.

Makes Bedspread For Only $1.61

SAN ANGELO, Tex.—A tufted bedspread costing $1.61 has been made by Mrs. John Yancy of Tom Green county as a part of her bedroom improvement work, according to Miss Nette Schultz, home demonstration agent. Mrs. Yancy bought three yards of ten quarter bleached sheeting and dyed it rose. She then bought a large ball of cord which she dyed a brighter rose and used for tufting.

The wrapping cord when damp fluffs and looks like candlewick tufting yarn and is much less expensive. Mrs. Yancy washed the spread as soon as it was finished to make the tufting fluff still more.

While visiting the family plot at a Middletown, Conn., Abbott D. Canfield suffered a heart attack and fell dead across a grave.

In a plane now under construction, Clyde Pangborn, noted American aviator, plans to fly around the world in 104 hours. Pangborn is shown above just after he and Roscoe Turner landed in Australia, recently, finishing third in the London-to-Melbourne air race.

New Tariff Aids U. S. Lard Sales

WASHINGTON.—Cuba, spearhead of the Roosevelt administration's efforts to regain foreign markets for American products through mutual tariff adjustments, is buying more lard from this country.

United States lard exports to Cuba in the first nine months of 1934 were 18,710,000 pounds, nearly three times as great as the 8,488,000 pounds exported during the same 1933 period, according to Foreign Crops and Markets. From July to September shipments were six times as large as a year ago, with 4,850,000 pounds moving in September alone, the first month since the tariff treaty became effective. Much of the previous movement was stored pending reduction of the duty.

Prior to September 3 American lard paid an aggregate charge of 10.88c per pound in Cuba, while charges now are reduced to 3.55c and further reductions will be made periodically.

Peanuts Provide Hay For Growers In Sunset Area

SUNSET, Tex.—J. K. Willett, a thresherman of this vicinity, recently estimated the peanut crop of this farming section at 1,000 acres this season, and estimated an average production of six bushels an acre. This is the shortest average yield per acre of any crop since the farmers of this country have been raising peanuts.

But the peanut vines did much better in production than the nuts, and yielded a fair crop of hay. Most of the producers succeeded in getting their crops threshed and stored without rain damage, and now have a fine grade of hay for their stock. The thousands of bales of hay will be of great help to the producers in getting their livestock through the winter, but the crop is far below the amount needed in this area, due to a shortage of all other kinds of feed crops.

It is reported that the peanut crop of the Park Springs area, southwest of Sunset made a better average yield this season than the crop here. The farmers in that vicinity have been cultivating peanuts for several years. Some of them plant a large per cent of their crops to peanuts every year and usually make good with them. Most of the years they ship many carloads of nuts from Park Springs but this year the shipments will be lighter than in previous years.

Producers are getting about 45 to 70 cents a bushel for peanuts on the local market, according to the grade. But very little hay has been offered for sale, but 50 cents a bale is the minimum price.

When a Chelsea, Mass., jury failed to report on his guilt or innocence after four hours' deliberation, the impatient defendant, Benjamin Gansaraga, pleaded guilty, paid a $10 fine and departed.

matter and after the County Committee refused to withdraw their resignations, the local committeemen, through the rules and regulations governing the holding elections, voted to accept the resignations, and then voted to divide the county into three divisions and select a man from each division to act as their county committeemen. The county divides as follows: Precincts Nos. 2 and 4 was one and precincts 3 and 1 the others. They then voted for men to take these places as committeemen to represent the county board. For precinct 2 and 4 they selected Floyd Thompson; for precinct 3, they selected Palo C. Cummings, and then they re-elected B. G. Glenn to represent precinct 1 on condition that Mr. Glenn would consent to serve with the new board. It was thought a good idea by the local committeemen that they have on the County Board an old member that would be familiar with the workings and duties of the County Board.

The election was held according to all rules and regulations that the government prescribes and no one man was responsible for the action of the local committeemen, and all concerned think that the men acted wisely in making their selections of the high type gentlemen that they selected to act as the County Committeemen.

The local committeemen and all connected with the work in the Government cotton programs want to express their gratitude to the old county committee, who have worked faithfully and honestly to execute the trust that was placed in their hands the past two years. Many are the days and nights that these men have worked for the county's interests and many of these days and nights work were done without any remuneration whatsoever, and the pay they did receive has not and never will repay them for the time they spent on this work.

The old county committee feels that the local committeemen have selected able and capable men for the job as County Committeemen.

outside of the bars, he was going home; these things he told Rev. Hankins, the boys and Mr. Jolly.

Then, along came the grand jury—these twelve men found Whitey not subject to indictment; they went down to the jail and secured his release.

"Write my mother," Whitey told Mr. Jolly, "and tell her I am coming home. Tell mother I should be there by Tuesday."

Mr. Jolly wrote the letter—and White started the long trip back to Vernon, Alabama—but not before the men on the grand jury had personally dug into their pockets and made up $5.00 which they gave to Whitey for new clothes to greet his old mother.

Yes sir, the grand jury was a bunch of good-hearted guys.
