"BALD JACK" ROSE TELLS STORY OF MURDER PLOT

A GO-BETWEEN FOR BECKER

ON STAND MANY HOURS NAR-RATING PLOT ENDING IN DEATH OF ROSENTHAL

HIS DEATH ONLY

Would Satisfy Police Lieutenant, Who Called Gunmen to Efface The "Squealer"

By Associated Press.
New York, Oct. 12.—Long hours of cross-examination by supperless lawyers before a supperless court and jury, failed tonight to make "Bald Jack" Rose vary from his story of the part he says former Police Lieut.
Becker played in the murder of Herman Rosenthal.

"Becker told me," he said, "that he wanted Rosenthal murdered, shot, croaked or dynamited. At his bidding, I got the gun-men to kill Rosenthal. I hid after the murder. I saw Becker that morning, and later talked with him over the telephone.

"I paid the gun-men $1000 for Becker,
and told them he said not to worry but to lay low.

"I gave myself up and became a state witness because Becker deserted me like a dirty dog.

Justice Goff convened the afternoon session at 2:15. Shortly before nine o'clock he declared it adjourned until Monday morning, after John S. Mc-Intyre, Becker's lawyer, protested he was on the verge of collapse. Court, jury, counsel, witnesses and the accused had been without food since noon.

Justice Goff, white-haired and of venerable appearance, seemed the least fatigued of all in the court room.
"I warned you," he told Becker's lawyer, McIntyre, early in the evening, "that we would finish this cross examination if we had to sit until midnight and I meant it."

"I am on the verge of a collapse," pleaded McIntyre.

"Proceed with the case," replied
the judge. Not for three hours thereafter was court adjourned.

Becker, cool and stoical, leaned on the table near which he sat, his chin
in his hand, his elbows on the table,
during the long cross examination.

Twenty feet back in the first row
of seats usually reserved for speculators sat his wife. Her eyes were for her husband rather than for the court. Once and only once, he glanced back at her and smiled.

"Bald Jack" Rose, thick-lipped, wide-eared and without a hair on his glistening head, was untroubled by the ordeal. Once he faltered, when Becker's lawyer hurried question after question
at him each ending with "And when you said that, you lied, didn't you?"

Once, Rose leaned forward, buried
his face in his hands and tottered on the stand. He seemed about to faint, and the court quickly ordered a halt in the proceedings and windows were lowered to revive him. Within a few minutes, he was refreshed, and cross examination continued.

Rose admitted, time after time, he had lied, had perjured himself, had been a gambler and had been engaged for twenty years in illegitimate business. He admitted he was testifying to save his own life, but said he was telling the truth now.

He said he changed to a state witness, only when the electric chair was staring him in the face.

Without emotion, in a slow drawl, he said he had deliberately planned at Becker's behest, to put Rosenthal
where he never would worry anybody else. He knew, he said, that it was a terrible deed to plan.

"Where was your conscience?" thundered Becker's lawyer.

DEENEN PLACED ON CLUB LIST

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Governor Deneen of Illinois was accused by Col. Roosevelt today of "deliberate and wilful pervasion of the truth." Col. Roosevelt characterized the governor as "the friend and ally of Lorimer."

TWENTY CONVICTS DASH FOR LIBERTY

JIM DALTON LEADS BAND OF CON-VICTS FROM WYOMING PEN-ITENTIARY AT RAWLINGS

ELEVEN STILL AT LARGE

Prisoners Break Through Fence and Seize Horses and Ride into Canyon

Rawlins, Wyo., Oct. 12.—Twenty prisoners broke out of the state penitentiary this afternoon. Five were quickly recaptured and the remainder took to the hills, pursued by a posse headed by Warden Alston.

The break was led by the notorious Jim Dalton, member of the Whitney gang of bank robbers. They escaped
through a broken fence in the penitentiary yard. Eleven are still at large late tonight and the possibility of their recapture is remote.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon from the penitentiary there burst a bedlam of shouts of convicts and through the streets nineteen men in prison uniform ran in a body. Horses tethered in front of stores were seized by the leaders who broke them at break neck
speed through the town and away to the hills.

Four of the fugitives hiding in a canyon north of Rawlings were caught half an hour after the outbreak and a fifth was captured while making for the railroad track. Four were discovered in a barn within a block of the prison. Three were cornered in another canyon a mile west of town by mounted pursuers, but have not been taken.

The twentieth convict escaped in the excitement after the break.

Lewis on the sidewalk. We all went up into Bridge's and had drinks.

"Bridge said, 'Herman Rosenthal is at the Metropole.' Everybody got up and went."

"Who went out?"

"Lefky, Gyp, Whitey, Dago Frank
and Bridgie. I stayed behind and was waiting when the word came that Rosenthal had been shot." Rose said he then went to the Lafayette baths
and telephoned to Becker.

"Did you hear the news?" Rose said
he asked.

"Yes," Becker said, "I congratulate you."

"Are you coming down town?" I asked him.

"I will be right down," he replied.
Rose said that was about 2:30 a.
m. Becker came down about dawn and met Rose on the sidewalk with Bridgie Webber near Webber's gambling house.

"I am glad it is done," Becker said.
"Becker said he was late in coming down," Rose added, "because he had stopped at the police station to see Rosenthal's body."

"It was not for District Attorney
Whitman being there, I'd have reached around and cut out his tongue," Becker said, said Rose.

OIL MEN GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME

SANDS OF ORATORY FLOW AT Y.
M. P. L. BANQUET TO OIL
MEN

WAS COMPLETE SUCCESS

Words of Appreciation by Wichitans
Met With Pledges of Co-Operation

The sands of oratory and of good things to eat were tapped Friday night at the Westland and the result was a goodly store of each. There was an absence of "fishing," "crooked hole" and "duster" at the gathering
and if the success of the occasion
might be measured in terms of oil, $50,000 bonus would be cheap. All of which is intended to convey that the lunchmen and talk-fests tendered the oil men by the Young Men's Progressive League was all that could possibly have desired.

About seventy oil men and a nearly equal number of "laymen" were in attendance at the affair which was served in the Westland's best style.
The menu was simple but tasty, and
the speeches were all thoroughly entertaining. There was orchestral music, with vocal contributions that were mighty fine. The Young Men's Progressive League, as the author of the affair, was the subject of many hearty compliments, upon the complete success which attended it.

Just as the crowd got settled in the seats, a sure-enough messenger
boy entered with a telegram for Mr.
Gaston. This proved to be from John D. Rockefeller, saying he regretted his inability to be present. A few minutes later another telegram was received from John D. Archbold who was sorry his enforced attendance
at the sessions of the investigation
committee barred him from being present. Another telegram was from Bruce Kinney, saying he might be unable to be present on account of rival attractions at Iowa Park. This was much enjoyed, especially as Mr.
Kinney was present and blushed at
the mention of his weakness.

The feast began about 9 o'clock,
so that it was nearly ten before the entertainment had been started, and the cigars started going. In the meantime a negro orchestra had been making the night lively with popular airs, in which those present joined from time to time.

A. L. Huey, president of the League, presided as toastmaster and opened by voicing his desire to express to the oil men Wichita Falls' appreciation of the part the oil men had played in keeping up this city's prosperity
in times when other conditions were not altogether favorable. The discovery of oil at Electra and the resultant activity on the part of the oil
men, he said, had been very beneficial and Wichita Falls was thoroughly appreciative of it. Mr. Huey declared. He called upon A. H. Brittain to extend further welcome.

Mr. Brittain's remarks were inter-persed with amusing anecdotes, but carried a deal of serious expression
of Wichita Falls' appreciation of the oil men. The oil men and the League,
Mr. Brittain hoped, would go hand in hand to make Wichita Falls
the best city in Northwest Texas.
He quoted the Bible in spots, to show
the value of oil even in olden times
and said that he wanted to see the oil men make Wichita Falls their permanent home and bring their families here. There were a few bad
ones among the oil men, he continued,
but that was true with every class,
even the lawyers. He concluded by stressing the welcome which the occasion conveyed to the oil men.

R. E. Huff, as representative of the Chamber of Commerce, was next called upon, being introduced by Mr.
Huey as one who had lived in Wichita Falls longer and done more for the city's upbuilding than perhaps any other citizen. Mr. Huff said that Wichita Falls owed much to the oil
men for their part in maintaining the city's prosperity and he hoped to see them help make Wichita Falls not the best city in Northwest Texas, for it was already that before the oil was found, but the best city in all the State. He wanted to see the oil men become a part of the city's progressive organizations, he continued, and expressed the belief that one of the country's greatest fields would be opened here: Wichita Falls extended
a welcome to every desirable class, unlike some other cities. Mr. Huff closed by welcoming the oil men, as a factor in the upbuilding of Wichita Falls. "There is work for all of us,"
he said.

W. L. Russell was called upon to respond for the oil men. He said that the letter notifying him that he must speak had said for him to tell in what respects Wichita Falls was inferior to other oil cities; all that he could answer, he said, was that there

BAYLOR VOTES AGAINST RETURN OF SALOONS

By a Vote of Two to One Neighboring County Votes for Continuance of Prohibition

Special to the Times.
Seymour, Texas, Oct. 12.—Baylor
county citizens by an overwhelming vote today rejected a proposal to permit the return of the liquor traffic to this county. With thirteen out of the fifteen voting boxes in the county,
and the two missing boxes unimportant ones, the returns give the pros a lead of 308 votes. Only one of the boxes in the county gave its votes for the return of the saloons. The vote of thirteen boxes reported is,
Pro, 607; Anti, 299. Seymour box gave a strong pro vote it being 245
for prohibition against 132 anti.

Is absolutely nothing inferior about Wichita Falls.

W. G. Long expressed the same sentiment at greater length. He was a longhorn tonight, he said, and proud of it. He complimented Wichita Falls upon the spirit of progress
which was manifested and described himself as a progressive in every way; he had always been a booster
in every community where he had lived. Mr. Long said, and he found much company here. The idea of progress, said the speaker, was exemplified here and he said that while Wichita Falls had long since gotten away
from the ideas of the grand fathers,
the latter had set a pace that was a swift one. There were always those,
he continued, who said "you can't do it," such men had tried to discourage Marconi, and E. F. Drake and the Wrights, but the spirit of progress had overcome discouragement. He believed that bigger things in every way were in store for Wichita Falls,
and no city, he declared in closing,
deserved them more richly.

Numerous Oklahoma points where natural gas is available have already been visited, also Shreveport, Louisiana. Last night several local citizens met the visitors at the St. James and discussed the situation with them. The concern in question is the largest in the country and it would mean much
to this city for it to have a branch
here.

As to Wichita Falls' chances for landing the plant, there is little to be said, further than that this city has a chance as good as, if not better, than the other places visited, on account of the supply of natural gas and the fact that Wichita Falls is already considerable of a glass manufacturing point. No decision will be reached until the owners have returned home
and considered all the proposed locations at length.

Clint Woods briefly expressed his pleasure in being present and his appreciation of the hospitality provided.

Bruce Kinney said that he was sure he was voicing the sentiments of every local oil man in saying that all of them were glad to do their part toward making Wichita Falls a better city. They had met many pleasant people, he continued, and had been the recipients of many courtesies;
they were with Wichita Falls and
the Young Men's Progressive League in whatever was undertaken,
and many of them, he promised, would become members of the League.

When he had finished, he invited
all the oil men present to stand, and he and W. L. Russell led in the singing of a song, parodizing a popular song of the hour, the burden of which was "I want to stay, I want to stay,
I want to stay in Wichita Falls."

This effort brought down the house
and an encore was secured.

City Attorney Bonner recounted the many ways in which the oil men had brought benefits to Wichita Falls and outlined briefly this city's aims and desires. "We want you to stay among us and become part of us," he said.

Dr. Daniels responded to calls for a speech with two happy stories,
which space will not permit of reproduction here.

Claude Woods said, when called upon, that he had prepared a great speech, but that Bill Skelly had swiped it.

A. B. DeFreese expressed his gratitude by telling two anecdotes by way of appropriate illustration.

Secretary Forester of the Chamber of Commerce said that some Wichitans were not fully aware of the great value of the oil and gas industry to this city; had it not been for them, he said, this city would be without many of her present industrial establishments. He considered them pioneers, and said that their glory was that of accomplishment.
Although he was from the north, he continued, he realized that there was no longer any north or any south, and he had found that the reputed "shiftlessness" of the south was lively
enough to make northerners hustle.
He closed with a discussion of the benefits the oil men had brought.

A BIG CONCERN LOOKING THIS WAY

Names Withheld

The owners of one of the largest glass jar manufacturing concerns in the country are now in the city, looking over the ground with a view to moving one of their plants here from a Kansas town. The names of the gentlemen and of the concern which they represent, are withheld for obvious reasons.

If this is located here, it will be third glass concern to move to this city, making this still more the premier glass city of the Southwest. The plant which it is proposed to move,
employs 200 men.

The party has visited other places
in the country where natural gas is available for fuel and will visit all such places before arriving at any decision.

Yesterday afternoon, accompanied by J. W. Culbertson, J. A. Kemp and others, the visitors went to Perforla to view the gas and oil field. They were much impressed with what they saw. Today they will visit Lake Wichita and the glass factories now completed southwest of the city, leaving here at noon. They are accompanied by T. L. Peeler of Dallas, industrial commissioner of the Katy lines, who is making every effort to induce the gentlemen to establish the plant in Wichita Falls.

STEAM TURNED ON AT FURNITURE PLANT

Actual Operations Will Start at Frear-Brin Plant Monday Morning

Steam was turned on at the Frear-Brin furniture factory yesterday, and tomorrow morning the making of furniture in Wichita Falls will commence in earnest.

All of the machinery secured from the factory at San Marcos has been placed in position and geared ready for work and the factory will have a capacity for the employment of about thirty men. The first work will be the making of tablecloths, out of material left over at the San Marcos plant. While this is being done a carload of lumber is in the dry kiln
to be dried and as soon as this is seasoned the company will commence
to make kitchen cabinets, tables,
chairs, etc., and later, will make dresses, etc.—A half dozen men will be employed to start with and this number will be increased to the full capacity as the business justifies.
The factory will be under the direct charge of Mr. E. W. Chinn, an expert furniture man.

It is the intention of the Frear-Brin Company to make a line of special kitchen and bedroom furniture of a medium grade, for which there is a great demand in this section.

COTTON PICKERS CAN BE SUPPLIED IN WICHITA.

Six negroes were yesterday sent by the Young Men's Progressive League to the Thornberry community
to pick cotton.

The League announces that it would appreciate being put in communication with a farmer residing
from three to five miles from the city whose cotton needs picking. The League can arrange for twenty-five or thirty negroes to be placed in such a field for one day. Such a force will put at least one farmer on easy
street from a cotton picking standpoint. The pickers desire to pick for a local negro church.

NO PEACE RAYS FROM WAR CLOUD

CRACKLINGS ALONG TURKISH-

BALKAN CLASH AT HAND

Powers Helpless to Avert it and General European Clash Not Improbable

By Associated Press.
London, Oct. 12.—The war cloud has settled over Europe heavily and gloom-ily. No rays of peace strike through any quarter.

Montenegro continues to assail the Turkish forces, but the cracklings
along that border are merely firecracker compared with the general
explosion which is confidently expected within another week. The firecracker of Europe, in the Balkan clash, which it averted time after time in the past quarter of a century.

The final exhibition of the helplessness
of the great powers was given in the collective note to Turkey, published today. That note which was the best they could devise, after earnest
negotiations, merely states they will discuss reform with the sublime Porte
and gives no promise of any results
which might placate the Slav nations.

The Turkish cabinet has been engaged in framing a reply to the note,
but at the same time, the Sultan foreshadowed the nature of the reply by the issuance of a proclamation for a general mobilization, which is a formal notification of what Turkey has been doing for the last fortnight, and an exhortation to the army to fight worthily.

Greece is equally above board in her preparations. Crown Prince Constantine left Athens today to take command of the army.

Vienna advises say Turkey will mass
350,000 men against Bulgaria and leave
only two divisions to oppose Montenegro. Turkey apparently is willing to sacrifice her outposts on that border
for the time being.

Latest advices from Todoritz say
the Montenegrins have occupied the town of Tushli, and that many men have been killed on both sides.

Mobilization of the Greek army has been successful beyond expectation.
About 125,000 troops will be concentrated on the frontier by Monday and another 30,000 is being equipped. The mobilization centers of the government are overwhelmed with volunteers
and it has been decided to enroll no
more recruits at present.

The Austro-Hungarian press accuses Russia of secretly backing the combination against Turkey. Europe is amazed at Turkey's failure to accept the Italian peace terms at this critical moment, and is also worried because in Italy's participation in the war, there is danger of drawing in other powers.

Financial Market Demoralized at Berlin

By Associated Press.
Berlin, Oct. 12.—The financial market of Berlin was so thoroughly demoralized today—that official and financial circles were forced to interfere. The government sent repeated assurances that there was no danger
of complications outside the Balkans.
Officers of big banks helped to check the decline by buying orders.
Prices fell from one to four points in government's, two points in bank
stock, and from twenty to twenty-five points in industrial shares.

Montenegrins Attack Lenitz

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—Montenegrin forces have crossed the border
into Norpalzar and are now attacking Seinitza, according to official information received here today. Seinitza is a town close to the Serbia frontier.

Only Twenty-nine Men Face Giant's
Veteran But Two of Them
Score—Boston Looks Large

By Associated Press.
Boston, Mass., Oct. 12.—Overcoming the New York Nationals today
by a score of 6 to 3 the Boston pennant winners of the American League gave up but a single victory to attain the world's baseball championship of 1912.

The world series now stands: Boston, three games won; New York,
one; and one contest at tie.
More than 24,000 people—a record-
breaking baseball crowd for Boston—
saw a pitching duel in which Hugh Bedient, a youngster, sparked in a new baseball star. Three hits constituted the Giants' portion from Bedient's effective service. But for an error by Gardner, the young pitcher
would have turned back the New York club to defeat in nine scoreless innings.

Only a shade less brilliant than the box-work of Bedient was the skill of the old master, Christy Mathewson,
who, except for two long-delayed
drives in the third inning, held the Red Sox helpless by the magic of his curves.

Bedient pitched the best ball that has been shown so far in the five games. He had not been regarded as a likely choice for mound duty during the championship series, and it was not until several innings had passed that the thousands of spectators realized the Giants were facing a quality of pitching that was most baffling, when his meant runs.

The only New Yorkers to fathom Bedient's benders were Mathewson, Meyers and Merkle, while those who succeeded to strike-outs were Devore, Snodgrass, Merkle and Mathewson.

Hooper started the shenanigan batting that gave the Red Sox their two runs in the third inning. A false-alarm curved up to the plate and Hooper, meeting it fair and square, shot the ball past Herzog along the left-field foul line where the ball
ricocheted between the angles of the fence, to the confusion of Hooper.
On went the flying Hooper and before the ball was returned to the infield, the Red Sox outfielder was perched on third.

There was pandemonium in the stands when Yerkes drove the first ball pitched to left center where it rattled up, against the fence and bounced past Snodgrass. Hooper came over the plate and Yerkes made third, whence he tallied when Dayis
made a bobble on Speaker's grounder.

That ended the scoring for Boston.
Thereafter, Mathewson showed his skill in returning to the Boston bench every succeeding players who went to the plate. Seventeen men in order went out from the middle of the third to the last of the eighth inning, on grounders, to the infield, high
flies or as strike-out victims.

Those who fanned were Gardner and Wagner. Mathewson has been pitted against the Red Sox for nineteen innings in two games, one of which was an 11-inning contest and not one man was given a base on balls. Only twenty-nine men faced him, during today's contest.

The Giants garnered their only run
on a long two-base drive to the temporary stand, by Merkle in the seventh. He moved to third on Meyers'
outfield fly and scored when Gardner
failed to handle McOmick's puzzling grounder.

Bedient then held the Giants safe
until the end. When the groundkeeper was about to close the iron gates at Fenway Park at dusk there were still groups of excited fans
standing about the infield and pointing out the spots where this and that play had checked the Giants in their attempt to wrest a victory to bring on even terms with the Red Sox.

The early part of the game had all ere M. A. Brin's contribution to the evening's program.

J. C. Straus and A. G. Reid each spoke briefly in appreciation of the evening's pleasures.

C. E. Menzie said that Wichita Falls was not only entitled to the name of "busiest and best built city" but that she had the "busiest and best people" who had reared a city where once was the prairie. This was no place for the drone and the knocker, Mr. Menzie said, but a progressive city and one of which to be proud.

A. A. Little said that he had been in many oil towns, but that Wichita Falls compared favorably with any of them. She had proven equal to the occasion and the opportunity, he said, like few other cities had.

The meeting then broke up, the oil men remaining to perfect the organization of their association. Those present were: A. L. Huey, R. E. Huff, H. W. Gaston, J. C. Forester, D. M. Hardy, Lamar Fain, P. J. Duffy, H. B. Patterson, C. F. Blair, C. B. Felder, Fred Harrington, C. W. Hendricks, Dr. J. W. Duval, F. P. St. Clair, M. A. Marcus, Jesse J. Dolman, Dr. Everett Jones, F. F. BOY IN THE MIRROR WOULDN'T COME OUT.

"Won't you come out and play with me?"

It was a very little boy, barely able to toddle around who spoke. He was a very lonesome little boy, too, and when he caught sight of another boy just about his size and wearing identically the same kind of clothes, he sought companionship.

But the other little boy was behind one of the plate glass mirrors in the front of the Frear-Brin store and he couldn't come out. He smiled amiably back at the little boy who wanted him, and looked lonesome, too.

"Come right on out through there," said the little boy on the sidewalk, pointing to the side of the glass. The little boy in the glass smiled wistfully and pointed the same way. But though the lonesome little one stood and waited and pleaded long, the other little boy never came. And when at last one cried from loneliness and disappointment, the other cried, too.

Philosophers tell us that a child's troubles and sorrows and worries are but a shade less real than those of a man, after all. Maybe, when the little boy gets older and realizes that it was only a shadow of a boy behind the polished glass, he can smile at the memory of his disappointment; but yesterday he was only a lonesome little boy, and he cried.

BOSTON IS VICTORIOUS OVER NEW YORK AGAIN

the unpicturesque settings of a cricket match played in a London fog. Murky mists swept in from the sea and rain threatened momentarily. In the early innings, spectators could hardly follow the course of the ball, but the fog cleared later, so that the final innings found the clubs battling under summer conditions.

It was Columbus day and Boston turned out the largest number of people who ever witnessed a baseball game in this city. The total attendance was 34,683; while the receipts were $63,201. Of this sum, each club receives $28,440.45, while the National Commission's share was $6,320.10.

The world's championship profits here will be greater than ever before. The Red Sox, if they win, will receive $4024.68 each. The Giants, if they win, will get $3849.61 each. The difference between the amounts that each Boston and New York player might receive is explained by the fact that twenty-three Giants will divide the proceeds, whereas only twenty-two Red Sox are eligible to share in the award.

The same is true of the losing end which to the Red Sox will mean $2,383.12 each, and to the New York Giants $2566.46 each.

These figures are final for the series, as the players will share in no more games. Yesterday's game in New York, the fourth of the series, was the last in which they are entitled to participate in the proceeds. There was a little feeling among the Red Sox players today against some of the players and people of New York. It was claimed by the Boston men that Fletcher tried to hurt Cady by jumping on him at the plate in the sixth inning yesterday. Cady was not hurt, but his teammates said today that Fletcher's intention was plain.

They had another grievance on account of an assault with stones and dirt made upon the Boston players by people in the streets while on their way from the Polo Grounds in automobiles. Buck O'Brien was struck by a stone, but suffered only a slight abrasion of the skin.

Other players said they had narrow escapes. "Tris Speaker," Boston's crack outfielder, was still under treatment today for his ankle. He limped, but was able to play.

"We have got the edge on New York now," remarked Manager Jake Stahl of the Red Sox tonight, "but I do not propose to claim the world's championship until the last Giant player is out in the final inning."

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, while admitting that the Red Sox have a big advantage, believed he will be able to check the rush of the red-legged players in New York Monday and then go out to make the fight for the next two games. The Giants went back to New York tonight, while the Red Sox will rest in this city and journey down to New York tomorrow. The score:

THRONGS OF BUYERS CROWDED MILLER'S STORE

As an illustration of the value of newspaper advertising, the sale at The Miller Store, 607 Seventh street, which was advertised extensively in Thursday's Times, and opened yesterday morning, is one of the most forcible ever noted in Wichita Falls. Long before the store opened there was a crowd before the doors, and all day long the store was jammed with eager anxious buyers. The sale was promoted by Mr. Jack Binford, it being his first, since he entered into that line of work since leaving Pennington's and to his efforts is due much of the success of the sale. The good reputation Mr. Miller has made with the buying public in the eight months he has been in business, together with the fact that he is offering an entirely new stock at a season when the people must have the goods, were features that attracted all who read the advertisement.

On cross examination, Mr. McIntyre first question was:
"Rose, are you a murderer?"
"No."
"Were you ever convicted of any crime?"

An objection to this question was sustained.
"Did you procure the murder of Spanish Louie?"
"No," shouted Rose.
"Did you kill Kid Trist?"
"No."
"Did you ever see him?"
"No, I have heard of him."
"Did you procure his murder?"
"Was Sam Schepps with you when you signed the affidavit sent you by Becker at Pollock's home?"

"He was."
"You signed that paper under oath, didn't you?"
"Yes."
"And thereby committed perjury."
"Yes, I did," admitted Rose coolly.
"Why did you do this?"
"I did it for Becker; I would have done anything for him that night."
"What is your name?"
"For twenty years," the witness said, "I've been known as Jack Rose."
Rose said he came here from Poland when he was two and a half years old. He said he is now thirty seven. Rose refused to say whether he had lived in Connecticut with a woman not his wife.

The witness said about twenty years ago he ran two gambling houses in New York and that three or four years ago he had an interest in a gambling house called the Hester Club.
"Was Rosenthal interested in the Hester Club with you?"
"He was."
"Was that your first business connection with Rosenthal?"
"No, I was interested with Rosenthal in his gambling house on East Broadway twenty-one years ago. Rose added that he had been engaged in the theatrical business, and had variously been a gambling house proprietor, bookmaker and play producer.

here and walk the streets a free man when this trial is over, don't you?"
"Not these streets; I shall not be a free man in this community. Not if I value my life would I attempt to live here again."
"You are willing to swear Becker into the electric chair to save your own life, aren't you?"
"I am trying to save my life; of course. If I had not come here and testified, I would have lost it. I am merely testifying against Becker as he was preparing to throw us to the wolves. That was what he had fixed up for me."

Mr. McIntyre called for the prosecution by the district attorney of a letter written by Rose to Schepps when Schepps was in Arkansas. Mr. Whitman handed over such a letter which Mr. McIntyre read eagerly with his associates. The letter was shown to Rose, who acknowledged writing it, and it was placed in evidence. The letter read:

"Dear Sam—I don't know what you have heard or read, but it has gotten down to the stage where the electric chair stares us all in the face. The first man who tried to get from under was Becker. There were many people who saw everything that night and the next day they told the district attorney what part everybody played in the thing and nobody could have gotten away. I was described like a dog by Becker. When I saw what the situation was, I opened up negotiations with the district attorney, who offered me a sort of cover that cannot go into details about in writing. I insisted that the same protection be given to Vallon, Bridge, Webster and you and to this he finally agreed. We are all pleased with the arrangement. Our only worry is to get you to come in to get the same treatment we got before it is too late. My advice is to let me send a representative of the district attorney to bring you back here. That will prevent the police from getting you and putting you through the third degree. Don't say a word to anyone. You know, Sam, you have been too loyal and dear friend of mine for me to ask you to do this if I was not positive you would not have a chance otherwise. Immediately on the receipt of this letter wire me at Louie's house. Your friend."

"Didn't you get down on your knees in the Tombs prison," McIntyre asked, "and swear to Charles Platt on the grave of your dead mother that Becker had nothing to do with the murder?"
"I did not."

"Have you got a conscience," demanded the lawyer.
"I don't know," he said, measuring his words and facing the lawyer squarely, "I never saw it."

"Do you now intend to lead a respectable life?"
"Yes, but not in this community."
With words tumbling over each other in their haste, Rose declared he had been a true friend of Sam Schepps and Harry Vail and had interceded for them with the district attorney.

Rose throughout declared he had no motive for his own for killing Rosenthal, but acted solely at Becker's direction. Time and again, McIntyre quoted alleged conversations between Rose and men of the underworld, in an attempt to prove that Rose himself desired the gambler's death.

No such conversation ever occurred, was Rose's stock reply to these questions. Not once during the day were Rose's methods of collecting alleged graft for Becker the subject of questions, although Rose testified he was Becker's graft collector.

At the trial of Police Lieut. Becker today Bald Jack Rose, chief informer against Becker, was again on the witness stand. Before going on the stand Rose said: "I am going to make good. I know what I am up against, but I am going through with it. I don't care what happens. I have only one regret in going on the stand; I have met and known some decent people, and now through me they will be besmirched. I wish that nobody but myself need be dragged into this, but I suppose it is part of the penalty. I shall tell every detail of the most awful plot that was ever hatched."

The jurors are held in strict seclusion, even telephone connection with their rooms being cut off for fear some one would attempt to communicate with them.

Rose testified he had collected money for Becker.

"Becker," said Rose, "said that Rosenthal had made a proposition for them to go into partnership together in running a gambling house, and had asked Becker to invest $5000 in it. Becker took a $2500 chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's property and arranged for a dummy to hold the mortgage."

Becker once asked Rose what were the profits of this gambling house. Rose reported on one occasion the house had made several thousand dollars and added that Becker told him to tell Rosenthal to send him $500.

"I went to see Rosenthal," said Rose, "and Rosenthal said he would not do it, because he thought he had not had a square deal on the mortgage. I told Becker. Becker said that just as soon as his attention was called to the place, he would raid it."

"He told me to tell that to Rosenthal. I told Rosenthal, Rosenthal said, 'you tell Becker he can't raid this place unless he gets the proper evidence, and he cannot get it because I know all his men, and they cannot get in here.' Becker told me that Commissioner Waldo had called his attention to the place and Becker

Clean Hands or no Fight Is Wilson's Ultimatum

"Clean hands or no fight" is Woodrow Wilson's ultimatum to his supporters throughout the country. He proposes to win on the merits of his candidacy or not at all; he insists on plain old fashioned honesty in every detail of his campaign.

The Democratic National committee is heart and soul in accord with the candidate's views. And the corrupting influences, with no political faith, casting about to win a foothold in the new government with bribes of ill-gotten gains, have despaired of reaching Wilson or his campaigners. They have gone to the enemy, whoever that enemy may be. It is a matter of common knowledge and the "interests" are using all their political funds to defeat Wilson. This makes it your fight.

The bills of the Democratic National committee are to be paid not with the thousands of the "interests" but with the individual dollars of earnings.

should be repealed or wiped out. So let it be done. The people, as individuals, appealed repeatedly to the board for relief, but instead of getting what they asked for were given another raise in insurance rates. But just as soon as the Democratic party in convention took notice of the great injustice being done, the board got busy, and are now doing what it was asked to do before the matter was carried over the head of the board direct to the Democratic party.

Robatch's Mineral Water. Is highly recommended by physicians and patrons who have tested its merits for indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, kidney and bladder trouble. This water stimulates the secretion of the stomach, increases digestion and favors a more complete absorption of the food and prevents the action of germs that cause typhoid and other infectious diseases.

This water can be purchased at the wells or delivered in jugs or cases. This well is located one mile south of Alamo school building in Floral Heights, two deliveries daily, morning and afternoon. G. J. Robatch, Owner. Phone 1601—1 long—4 shorts.

The voters of the country have to be told about Wilson, what he has done and what he stands for, the important planks of his platform. This means the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

BULL MOOSERS

ARE ORGANIZED

Members of Progressive Party Met

Saturday and Perfected County

Organization

"Bull Moosers" of Wichita county gathered at the court house yesterday afternoon and perfected a county organization. The attendance was not large, less than a dozen being present, but this was considered due to the press of business on the farmers and business men who are members of the party. W. H. H. Thatcher was chosen temporary chairman and O. P. Maricle secretary.

County organization was perfected with the election of O. P. Maricle as county chairman, Guy Besaire secretary and T. C. Thatcher treasurer. The meeting heartily endorsed the national progressive ticket and platform. Several precinct chairmen were elected as follows: No. 1, J. H. Weidman, No. 2 H. M. Canble, No. 3, John Nitschke, No. 4, John Moore, No. 5, Allie Dodson, No. 6, J. J. Cobb, No. 12, W. H. H. Thatcher. Precincts 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 were not represented.

THEIR APPRECIATION

Adopt Resolutions in Connection with Banquet Given Them Friday Night

The Times has been asked to publish the following:
To The Young Men's Progressive League:

In taking this means of expressing our appreciation, on behalf of the oil men, for the luncheon and talk-fest at which we were your guests on Friday night, we realize that words are empty things, at best; and we want you to realize that while it is in words that we set forth our appreciation now it is by co-operation with you and by becoming factors in the work you are doing for Wichita Falls, that our appreciation can best be shown.

We came here, strangers in a strange land. Most of us are from distant states and our journeys into this Southern land have brought us far from home. And yet we have found welcome, and friends, and kindness, here in your midst. We have been made to feel that we were strangers but a little while and that you were happy in our coming, not alone because of the benefits which your orators said we brought, but in a larger and broader and happier sense.

The princely way in which we were entertained Friday evening served to emphasize this feeling, and bring it more forcibly into the hearts of all of us. We know that whatever obligations you may have incurred to us have been more than discharged; we thank you, and not only you, but all the people of Wichita Falls for the honors done us and you must feel that now and henceforth the oil men are part and parcel of your citizenship, ready to do all in our power to help you rear a still greater city here. In the words of the song we sang, "We want to stay, we want to stay in Wichita Falls." We are mavericks no longer now, but longhorns with your brand on our hides and nobody is going to "rustle" us away.

On behalf of the oil men, we thank you again for your kindness and courtesy and entertainment, and we will prove to you, not by words, but by deeds, the sincerity of our appreciation.

Says to Tell Your Friends
If You Have Been Helped

Does Not Ask for Letters of Recommendation

When you have been cured of your stomach trouble by them, tell your friends about Fowler's Stomach Wafers. Mr. Fowler appreciates the hundreds of testimonials, entirely unsolicited, that are sent to him, but doesn't like to publish them because of the great misuse of testimonials by unscrupulous traveling vendors of medicines. So tell your friends about Fowler's Stomach Wafers.

Fowler's Stomach Wafers are a sure correction or cure for stomach trouble. These little wafers are convenient to take and have no bad taste or medicine. They are chewed up and swallowed, quickly assimilating with the stomach juices and bringing instant relief. They cure indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, heartburn, cramps, from overeating, stomach poison and stomach catarrh. Every box is sold under an iron bound guarantee that if you are not satisfied, the full purchase price will be refunded by the druggist without question. They are on sale by all first class druggists. Trial size can be secured by writing Harry L. Fowler Co., San Antonio, Texas, and enclosing ten cents in stamps.

MRS. BELLE JOINER,
ProprietressYOUNG MAN BURNED
TO DEATH IN HOTEL

After Once Escaping he Returned for Purse and Lost Life—Lewisville Scene of Fire

By Associated Press
Denton, Texas, Oct. 12.—A dash into a burning building after his purse cost the life of a young man named Hines, aged 20 of Dallas, early today at Lewisville, eighteen miles north-east of here. The young man was a guest at the Commercial Hotel, which was swept by flames so suddenly during a conflagration that threatened the entire town that most of the hotel guests ran into the street, half-clad or in night-clothing.

Hines left his purse in his room. He is said to have reached his room again on the perilous dash, but he was never able to get out and burned or suffocated to death in the room. His body was found this morning. The property loss exceeded $20,000. The fire is said to have started in J. M. Hendricks' furniture store and Henry Baxter's grocery. The heaviest individual losses were: Hotel building, owned by J. W. Degam, $5000, furnishing; owned by E. K. Aly, $1000; J. M. Hendricks' furniture store, $11,000, with $6000 insurance; Henry Baxter, grocery, $300, with $1,500 insurance.

Hines was the son of Z. H. Hines, a restaurant proprietor in Dallas. The young man had gone to Lewisville to pick cotton. Our tenth year in Wichita Falls. Over thirty years in the picture business. TAX ASSESSOR IS COMPLIMENTED

Comptroller Lane Says Nice Things About the Work of Wichita County Official

County Tax Assessor John Robert, son is in receipt of a letter from W. P. Lane, State Comptroller, complimenting him upon his work in connection with the 1912 tax rolls sent to the comptroller's office some time ago.

In his letter Mr. Lane says: "Allow me to compliment you upon the neatness, form and accuracy of your work in making up the 1912 tax rolls. The more accurate the assessors work, the safer the taxpayers' land title."

AVIATORS FELL INTO THE SEA

Engine of Hydroplane Exploded, and Passengers Drop into Sea, But Lives are Saved

Philadelphia, Oct. 12.—Aviator M. E. Reid and Lieut. H. C. Mustin of the navy fell with their hydroplane last night into Delaware Bay, Reid told of the thrilling escape from death, saying:

"We left Cape May intending to sail over the Delaware Bay and river to Philadelphia, navy yards, eighty-five miles away. At 2:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon we were about twelve miles from Cape May flying 50 feet in the air and making forty miles an hour, the engine exploded. The four cylinders blew out together. The aeroplane caught fire and we dropped like a stone right down into the Delaware Bay, but the flames were extinguished by the waves.

"The pontoons kept us afloat and we drifted for fifteen hours and forty minutes. Then we bumped into a stake driven to the bottom of the bay to indicate the position of an oyster bed, and made fast to it and waited for daybreak.

"We were picked up by an oyster patrol boat. Both Mustin and I escaped without a scratch. The only explanation I can give for the accident was that the gasoline used was of too explosive quality. The pontoons saved our lives. If that accident had happened over the land, there is nothing in this world that could have saved us."

er would have to raid it.

"I told Rosenthal said 'tell Becker' I told Rosenthal and he said, 'tell Becker he can't bluff me; I don't believe Commissioner Waldo ever called his attention to my place.'"

Becker finally raided the place, after this Rosenthal continued to blesome.

"I will get a couple of gang men," Rose said he told Becker "and go around and tell Rosenthal that if he does not stop his attacks on us, something will happen to him."

"O, hell," Becker replied, "I don't want the fellow beaten up for resisting arrest. If I did I would beat him up myself, or have him beaten up for resisting arrest. But a beating up will not be good enough for him. He must be put where neither you nor I, nor anybody else will have to worry about him again."

"What do you want done with Rosenthal?" Rose asked Becker.

"I want him murdered," shot croaked, dynamited or anything," Becker replied, according to Rose, "want him put where we will never have to worry about him again."

The witness here told of Becker's alleged instructions to him to get Big Jack Zelig out on bail and have Zelig's men put Rosenthal out of the way. Zelig was then in the Tombs.

"Do you know sentiment at police headquarters is so strong they don't care if Rosenthal is put out of the way?" Becker asked. "I want you to go over to the Tombs and ask him to give orders to croak Rosenthal. Tomorrow I will see that Zelig is out of the State."

Rose said Becker gave him $100 to take to Zelig. "I will meet you tomorrow morning to see what Zelig says."

Zelig refused unless he should be liberated. Rose said he went to the homes of the four run-men, Gyp the Blood and his pals and explained the Rosenthal-Becker situation. He told them, he said, that Becker "would run them up" if they did not croak Rosenthal.

"They wanted to know what Zelig thought about it, and I told them Zelig thought it would be all right," Rose said.

"They agreed to do it that night. Rose said they had delayed 'doing the job' and Becker insisted that they hurry along. He told of a plan to kill the gambler at the Garden restaurant. It failed, he said, because of a suspicion that private detectives were present and guarding Rosenthal.

"HOG SPECIAL" OVER THE NORTHWESTERN

From Fifteen to Twenty Cars Shipped Each Week on Train Running From Woodward

From fifteen to twenty cars of hogs are shipped from points on the Northwestern to the Fort Worth market every week, since the "Hog Special" was inaugurated a short time ago. The train leaves Woodward at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning each week, the train south from Fort Worth making connection with it there. It reaches Wichita Falls at about 11 o'clock Tuesday night and the cars are promptly picked up by the Fort Worth & Denver, reaching Fort Worth in time for the Wednesday morning market.

In view of the prevailing high prices for hogs, farmers in the Northwestern country are finding them very profitable and the facility with which the shipments may be made is expected to result in the raising of a great many more next year. It will not be necessary to buy feed, on account of the good crops and there is every reason to believe that along the Northwestern will eventually be the big pork section of the Southwest.

LONE BANDIT HELD UP PRUE, OKLA. BANK

Robbed Bank in Broad Daylight but Was Pursued and Was Killed

By Associated Press. Oklahoma City, Oct. 12.—A lone bandit stepped into the Prue State Bank at Prue, Oklahoma, this morning at 9 o'clock and at the point of a pistol compelled Cashier J. H. Daner to hand over all the money outside of the safe.

The bandit then stole a horse and escaped. The owner of the horse, H. C. Burke, with a shot gun went in pursuit and shot and killed the robber. The body is unidentified. This is the third time this bank has been robbed within three years.

SCHOONER TO BE FISH BOAT

Ship of Adventure in Which the Poet- Novelist Sailed "In the South Seas" to Be Remodeled.

San Francisco.—Four lines of agate type, buried in the water-front news of the day, carry the announcement that the schooner Casco, immortal as the ship of adventure in which 24 years ago Robert Louis Stevenson sailed over the sky line of romance, never to return, soon will be remodeled "to enter the fishing business."

Stevenson sailed from San Francisco in 1888. Cruising through Oceania on the Casco, in search of health, he gathered the materials for "The Ebb Tide," for "The Wrecker" and "In the South Seas."

Many of the best letters in the collected editions were written squat-legged on the Casco's sun-bleached decks.

TRY DOUBLE DECK CARS

Officials of a New York Company Give the New Vehicle a Trial Trip.

New York.—The new double deck car of the New York Railways company was taken out of the barns for its trial trip up Broadway. If the new car is considered a success, a large number will be ordered immediately for use on Broadway and eventually on other streets where traffic has outgrown transportation facilities. The success of the experiment depends on whether it is possible to load and unload the upper deck safely and without loss of time.

The great value of the double deck car is that it seats eighty-eight passengers. The largest cars now in use seat sixty passengers in summer months and thirty-six in winter.

DREAMS; SEES MOTHER DEAD

Indiana Man Is Called to Parent's Funeral in Strange Way—Saw Hand in Sleeping Car.

Vincennes, Ind.—Acting in response to a supplication which he dreamed his mother made to him, James Dorris of Evansville arrived here just in time to attend her funeral. His whereabouts had been unknown to the family and the funeral had been delayed in the hope that he might see a notice of her death.

Dorris declares he dreamed while in a sleeping car in Cleveland that his mother had stretched out her hand to him. So impressed was he that he took the next train for Vincennes.

A wire frame, partly covered with canvas, the invention of a New York man, forms a back rest for a boat seat which can be snapped into place in an instant.

You Can Be a Better Cook

It isn't all in the "knack." The utensils you use go a long way toward making your food fine and appetizing or ill-cooked and indigestible.

It's impossible to make the best cookery in utensils that quickly scorch or crack and scale off, rust and corrode. And such utensils are dangerous. Authorities say that cancer comes of eating particles of glass chipped off from ordinary enamel ware when hot.

The heat expands the iron frame but the coating of glass—which is all enamel ware is—does not expand so fast, consequently it breaks and gets mixed with the food.

There is no such danger from food cooked in up-to-date

HAD PHONOGRAPHS IN EGYPT

Reports Are That Babylonian Tablet Also Shows That the Wireless Telegraph Was Known.

"We think we are a great people," said the retired army officer, taking off his glasses, "and we feel that we are progressing at a tremendous pace, but here's a newspaper account saying that the French government has unearthed in Babylon a 4,500 tablets, giving a history in full of the reign of the ancient kings. Here we find for the first time that Babylon, and not Rome, was the real 'Mother of Laws.' In those days there was a system of courts and of appeals that even suggested a recall. Sir, this report also states that in the days of Nebuchadnezzar they had a regular delivery of mail over every highway in the kingdom. And shades of Grover Cleveland!—it has also been proved beyond a doubt that the Egyptian government in 4,500 B. C., had a perfected system of civil service. There is a record that the first turbine engine was invented by the Egyptians, and that Archimedes devised this mechanical contrivance by which the fields could be watered when the Nile was low. This is the same principle that is used to drive the latest additions to the Cunarders."

What shocked the doughty old American most of all, says the National Magazine, was the information that four thousand years ago the phonograph was used in ancient Egypt, and was in reality only perfected by Edison in the nineteenth century. There is evidence also of the use of wireless telegraphy before the Christian era, while the Egyptian alphabet has proven to be a scientific key to organized human speech. It is a hard blow to our self-sufficiency to find that the banjo of the southern plantation with its fascinating "thrums" only echoes the musical instruments used by Egyptians in prehistoric times.

Is the Same Old World.

In reviewing Professor Frank Frost Abbott's new book, "The Common People of Ancient Rome," a critic says: "It should be something of a corrective to modern conceits to note how little we have advanced since paternalism first became dominant in Rome and since the Roman government prided itself on opening public baths and washhouses for the people. Los Angeles is doing that same thing now and lauds herself as a pioneer in civilization because of it. Dioctian denounced the rich and their luxuries, attributed to them the high prices of necessities, in language almost identical with a radical newspaper of today. Plutarch tells us of the trusts that were founded to control prices and the trust problem was as much a reality in ancient Rome as it is today."

Market for Sharks' Liver Oil.

It has been proposed to start in Malaysia a small export trade in shark's liver oil. This oil is refined in Europe and sold as cod liver oil. In October the ocean sharks come into the lagoon, between the barrier reef and the atolls, to pair. At this time they can be speared in large numbers by people skilled in catching them. There are several species of these sharks and they ordinarily run from seven to fifteen feet in length. The girth of an ordinary shark is the same as its length, and an eleven-foot shark would be eleven feet around the body. The liver of a shark of this size gives about five gallons of oil. The oil brings $73 a ton. The sharks are found in pairs and the harpooners try to kill the male first, in which case they are able to also spear the female, as it does not desert its mate.

WILSON ENDS ELEVEN
DAY CAMPAIGN TRIP

By Associated Press. Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 12.—As Gov. Wilson traveled to New York early today to close an eleven day campaign trip that took him through eleven states in the west, he expressed keen satisfaction over the receptions given him.

"It has been a course of great satisfaction to see and feel such emphatic evidences of approval of the democratic program, as I have stated it in my speeches," said Gov. Wilson. When the correspondents asked the governor how he felt about the chances of his election, he replied: "I have tried in this campaign not to permit myself to arrive at a conclusion on that subject. I know that the democratic party offers to the people the only opportunity by which they can regain control of their own government. I have not the slightest doubt that they will see it."

The governor's voice suffered seriously from the effect of the seventy-five speeches he made, but he thought a rest of a few days would not only restore it, but would bring back his physical vigor.

SUNDAY MORNING EDITION—WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 13th, 1912—PART TWO

NUMBER 131

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

There will be no attempt to organize a high school mothers' club at present, it is announced. So many of the mothers with children at the high school are members of the Austin school club that it was thought best not to weaken the latter by forming a separate organization.

Only two weeks to Halloween now and several parties are being planned for that autumn festival.

One lady has asked the society editor to say something about the way in which the men of the churches call on the "ladies aid" for help every time anything is needed, without undertaking any work themselves. The trouble is, that if the men tried to do those things themselves, they wouldn't be done at all.

Society folks were out in force for the performance of "Miss Nobody From Starland" Wednesday night.

If the proposed symphony orchestra takes form and Prof. Dunavski carries out his promise to bring the musical celebrities here this season, it will be a pleasant winter for local music-lovers, with a store of excellent entertainment ahead.

Mrs. Jonie was hostess to the Thursday Sewing Club this week.

Several parties of local young people are being organized to take in the Dallas Fair and this city will no doubt be well represented.

The city fathers are talking about removing the lights from the court house yard and installing them elsewhere; if any of the women's organizations want these lights kept there and maintained, prompt action may be necessary.

The next session of the local chapter of the D. A. R. will be held at the home of Mrs. Blair.

NEW BRIDGE CLUB MEETS AT HOME OF MRS. T. B. SMITH.

where five tables of players gathered for a session with cards. The club favor went to Mrs. E. P. Greenwood and the guest favor to Miss Dent, both receiving hand-embroidered towels.

The hostess served a salad and ice cream course after the games were finished. Those present were Mesdames E. P. Greenwood, Craven, Harrington, Ted Smith, E. L. Smith, Binford, Piner Avis, W. F. Weeks, C. P. Moore of Petrolia; Frank Cullinan, Wallace Little, Frank Griffin, D. J. White, Frith, R. P. Webb, Loebe and Misses Dent, Rose of Oklahoma; Avis and Trice.

MISS BELL, HOSTESS TO ART LITERATURE CLUB.

The Art Literature Club held its second meeting of the season Tuesday with Miss Lois Bell, the members holding a very entertaining session. This club is studying the Bayview course this year and the topic for last Tuesday's meeting was Panama. Following the discussion of the meeting's subject, there were brief talks by several of the members, after which the hostess served a dainty salad course.

PROGRAM FOR MEETING OF AUSTIN MOTHERS ANNOUNCED.

The Mothers and Teachers Club of the Stephen F. Austin Club will hold its regular meeting on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock sharp. Every mother in town is asked to be present and every mother who has children in either the high school or Austin school is urged to be present, as it is a duty as well as a privilege. There is no excuse, the officers of the club say, for any mother not having sufficient time to keep her home in a respectable condition, her children's wants properly supplied and still be able to devote an hour or two a week to some broadening and uplifting work which will not only serve its own purpose of racial betterment, but which will also tend to make a better and more interesting home-maker, a more attractive companion to her husband and best of all, a mother who won't be a back number by the time her children are in their teens. The following program will be carried out next Thursday: Subject, "The School Child." Invocation by Prof. Niles. Roll call; each member answering to her name with a sentence showing some one need of the school child; reading of minutes by secretary; song, "America," reading, "The Country School." Mrs. J. W. Lee. Discussion by club; paper, "Importance of Beginning Right," Mrs. Fountain; vocal solo, Mrs. G. H. Carpenter; business session. Motto, "The best preparation for the future is the present well spent."

MUSICIANS CLUB HOLDS REORGANIZATION SESSION.

The Musicians Club held a reorganization session Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. D. Anderson on Brook street. The officers for the year are: Mrs. J. L. McKee, president; Mrs. F. C. Barron, vice president; Mrs. A. B. Huff, secretary; Mrs. G. D. Anderson, treasurer. The program for the afternoon was one of unusual merit, being as follows: Roll call answered by current musical events; vocal solo by Mrs. Boone; Piano solo—Nocturne (Chopin) Mrs. M. D. Walker; paper "American composers," Mrs. Fred Barron; violin solo, Berceuse from Joslyn, Mrs. T. B. Greenwood; short sketch of Madame Nordica's musical career. Mrs. Newton Maer; vocal solo, "A Memory (Vannah) Mrs. J. L. McKee; "Forget-me-not," (Gavotte) Choral Club. Those present included Mesdames G. D. Anderson, T. B. Smith, I. A. Farris, J. L. McKee, Maer, Darnell, Langford, Wade Walker, A. B. Huff, Beavers, Carpenter, Whitney, Ashmore, Del McKee, Phillips, Boone, Barron, Mark Walker, J. T. Anderson, Thorburn, Brown, Sanders, J. T. Montgomery, Adams, Misses Carrie Kell, Vivian Mathis, Jewel Kemp, Laura Bell, Ritchie, Jimmie Brown, Della Stone, and Mabel Simpson.

Fashion Hints from Bischof

W. B. McClurkan & Co., Cor. 7th and Ohio

Of Course You'll Need a Tailored Suit

It is with renewed interest that every American woman looks forward to the tailor-mades each season. It is the one thing which you feel you simply cannot do without.

This season you will see many delightfully new and attractive departures in the tailor-mades which will, without doubt, instantly appeal to you.

"Finger-tip" Length Suit Coat

For several seasons past short coat suits have held full sway—but this Fall we enthusiastically welcome back the becoming "finger-tip" length—one which gives the coat graceful lines—the one which becomes any figure. The whole effect of the Fall tailor-mades are long, graceful lines.

Moderated cutaways and flowing collars emphasize the long lines on the fronts of these coats—shirred and belted backs, suggesting the Empire effect, carry out further the edict of fashion—long, slender lines.

The skirts, though plaits are used in many, retain these straight, narrow lines. These plaits are set in and are stitched down to the knees, then pressed flat to avoid any flare.

With all of these new features, however, marked simplicity is the keynote of every Bischof tailored model.

You no longer have to study for hours over the material for your tailor-made, then go time and again to the tailor for fittings, and worry about how it will look. You can come to our store and get a perfectly tailored Bischof model, in any of the fashionable materials—try it on and see at once that it is becoming. You are sure to find just what you want.

Emergencies And How To Meet Them

(Jean Williams, M. D. in Texas Board of Health Bulletin)

The need to act promptly in emergencies comes to all of us some time, and it is well to remember that a very little correct knowledge, with a generous amount of common sense, well directed, may save a life. Before applying "first aid" methods, communicate at once with a physician. If the patient is lying prone upon the ground, closely surrounded by a curious crowd, tell the bystanders to move back for the sake of the injured one. If an accident has occurred indoors, open the windows; if in a crowded theatre or other public building, carry the patient to an adjoining empty room or outdoors.

Fainting—If due to the effect of bad air in a close room or the shock of hearing bad news, loosen the clothing of the patient, sprinkle cold water on the face and chest, put a cloth wet in very cold water at the back of the neck, and lay the patient down with the head slightly lowered. If the victim happens to be sitting upon a chair, or has fallen back upon one in an insensible condition, grasp the back of the chair down near the seat and tip it back slowly, until the head is well lowered and the lower limbs elevated. This treatment, and sufficient fresh air, will, as a rule, restore consciousness quickly. It may be wise to administer a stimulant, such as aromatic spirits of ammonia, if obtainable; twenty drops in a tablespoonful of water is a dose which should be repeated in ten minutes if necessary.

Shock—Unconsciousness may attend a profound shock to the nervous system, instead of a simple attack of faintness. When an accident occurs in your presence, you may feel that the limp arm, or leg, or gaping wound, is of first importance. If, however, the patient is in a state of profound shock—a fact you may assume when insensibility, pallor, coldness of the surface and extremities, weak, irregular or absent pulse and irregular or feeble respiration are evident—this condition must, as a rule, claim your first attention.

Normal heat must first be restored. Wrap the patient up in blankets or whatever material may be available. Hot water bottles, bricks, if at hand, heated and wisely placed are valuable and flannels, wrung from hot water and applied to abdomen and extremities, will aid in re-establishing circulation. Stimulation, in the form of aromatic spirits of ammonia, strong coffee, brandy or whiskey, should be administered. Give one teaspoonful of brandy or whiskey in one tablespoonful of water, repeating the dose every five or ten minutes until results are evident. Even in the state of apparent unconsciousness, it is sometimes possible to get a patient to swallow by pouring the liquid gently over the back of the tongue. If the head is the injured part, or if you have a delirious or highly excitable patient, avoid stimulants and make every effort to keep your charge perfectly quiet and soothed. During active hemorrhage, do not stimulate the heart unless it is ordered by physician or nurse.

None But Merchandise of Merit and True Value Offered at This Store

The people who trade here come with perfect confidence and certainty that every piece of merchandise they buy will prove all that we say of it—If we were foolish enough to destroy that confidence even in a single case by selling any thing unworthy we would be striking a blow at the very foundation of the business, which has been built up on confidence and true values. We are constantly striving to give our customers the best merchandise and correct styles at the lowest possible prices. Of course, some times an unworthy article may creep into our store and be sold in good faith; in this case it will only be necessary for you to call our attention to it and we will adjust the matter to your entire satisfaction. It's not only a question of principle; but self interest and policy demands that we keep faith with every customer. Our store is covered with new fall merchandise which we invite you cordially to inspect.

A Sensational Style Showing of the Season's New Models Handsome Coats, Jaunty Suits, Elegant Evening Costumes.

The newest, the best, the most fashionable tailored suits, coats and evening costumes for fall are here. They're clothes of quality, elegance and practicality and you'll be impressed with the moderate price.

Fashionable Coats and Excellent Values

Style, fit and quality are the three things that characterize our ladies coats. Without these qualities a coat is worthless, with them it is complete and perfect. The extremely low prices will be very noticeable, from $5.00 all along up to $30.

They are characterized by "dash and style" and extremely moderate prices $10.00 to $35.

Display of Elegant Evening Costumes

Our showing of evening costumes embraces richness, elegance and refinement. The soft delicate shades and fineness of fabric combine to make them beautiful and becoming. The new train over the Katy between Dallas and the Northwestern is proving very popular, according to Northwestern officials, and is receiving a liberal share of patronage. At present the travel to the Dallas Fair makes its business unusually good, and it is believed there is sufficient travel in ordinary times to make the operation of the train possible. The train carries a tour sleeper between Dallas and Elk City. If it appears that business will be good, a Wichita Falls sleeper may be added.

MORE GLASS WORKERS REACH THE CITY

October Sixteenth Now Date Set For Opening Window Glass Plant
In This City

F. G. Thornberg, who is connected with the Wichita Falls Window Glass Company arrived yesterday from Coffeyville, Kansas, with a party of thirty-five glass workers and their families. A party of fifteen more are expected to arrive today.

Mr. Thornberg has been looking after the employment of hands for the factory here and has succeeded in getting together a fine bunch of workers. He is already a booster for Wichita Falls and has induced several families who are not connected with the glass industry to move from Kansas to this city. A friend of Mr. Thornberg's tells us that he was instrumental in getting nearly a thousand people to remove from Indiana and Pennsylvania to Montgomery county, Kansas, and many of these same people are now coming with him to Wichita Falls.

The opening of the window glass plant had been set for Tuesday, October 15th but when this date was set the circus had been forgotten and there was a prospect that the factory would be without a force to man it on the opening day so the opening was postponed until the following day. The bottle plant will also be opened within the next two weeks.

AUTO AND CARRIAGE IN COLLISION

Defective Steering Gear is Said To Have Been Responsible For Accident

An employee of a local garage while out testing an automobile which had something wrong with its steering apparatus ran into a carriage at the corner of Fifth and Lamar streets late Friday afternoon and it was only by the rarest good fortune that the occupants of the carriage, three women and four children, three of them babies in arms, escaped serious injury.

As it happened Mrs. G. W. Anderson, wife of a furniture dealer having a store on Indiana avenue opposite the Wichita Theatre, was the only occupant injured and her injuries are not serious. The others escaped practically uninjured although one of the babies was picked up after the collision almost from under the wheels of the automobile.

The carriage was going north on Lamar street and the automobile was turning into Lamar street from Fifth street. The driver of the automobile tried to avoid a collision but could not turn his machine out. There was not room enough for the carriage to turn out and the automobile ran into the carriage. The shafts were broken loose from the carriage but the horse did not run. The carriage was raised up on one side but did not turn over.

The occupants of the carriage were Mrs. G. W. Anderson and two months' old baby, Mrs. William Farrel and two children and Mrs. Oscar English and baby. The driver of the car was arrested immediately after the accident and complaints were filed against him by Sheriff Randolph charging aggravated assault and driving an automobile without a number. Bond was furnished by the man arrested in the sum of $500.

Since the English city of Birmingham bought out the local electric

Naturally, this gives us an advantage which we are quick to pass on to our patrons. Lots of men buy at this store, because as they tell us, "We can get something different here." They know they don't look over the same old patterns season after season, the same monotonous designs. Right now we have some especially pleasing models, shapely, full of snap and life. Some of the quiet color harmonies in the cool grays and browns are decidedly novel. We would like to have you see them and you needn't be afraid of any one coaxing you to buy.

A BLOODY COAT FOUND SATURDAY

COAT PICKED UP NEAR CEMETERY WAS COVERED WITH BLOOD DOWN FRONT

WAS THERE A TRAGEDY?

Chief of Police Believes Garment Was Worn By Man Whose Body Was Found Friday

Does a tragedy lie back of the bloody coat found on Fifth street near Holliday street in the vicinity of the cemetery early Saturday morning? The coat was first seen lying at the side of the street by a laborer who reported his find to the police department and officer Will Allen was sent out to investigate. There were no evidences anywhere in the vicinity of the coat of a struggle, but it was bloody enough to suggest almost any kind of a tragedy. It was clotted with blood down the front and one of the sleeves was also bloodstained and splashes of blood were scattered over the entire front and sleeves of the garment. The man who wore it was evidently wounded on the hand or his hand was covered with blood for in taking off the coat blood was smeared on the sleeve lining all the way up.

The coat was light in color with a wide dark stripe. Nothing was found in the pockets which could identify the owner and there was no label by which the firm that sold the coat could be told.

Chief of Police Gwinn believes the coat was the one worn by the man whose body was found in the railroad yards Friday morning with the head severed from the body. He is unable to identify the coat positively but is almost certain it is the one worn by the man when he came to the police station several nights ago and asked for shelter from imaginary enemies. It is the chief's theory that the man on the night he was killed by a train first attempted to end his life by cutting his throat and cutting his wrists. Marks on the body are said to indicate such attempts and the theory is further strengthened by the fact that a blood-covered knife was found in the clothing of the dead man. There was no coat on the body when found.

It is reported that at about one o'clock Friday morning the man whose body was later found was seen by a switching crew in the freight yards and when seen his neck and hands were covered with blood. One of the crew said to the man that he looked like he had met a wildcat and he replied he had met "something worse than that" but volunteered no further information.

Whether he meant a knife in his own hands or that he had been attacked or had fought with others is a matter that can only be conjectured. was nearly a half mile from the place where the body was found on the railroad tracks and if the man had inflicted wounds on himself and then wandered into the railroad yards surely some traces of blood would have been found along the way he walked. So far no one has reported the discovery of blood drops in that vicinity.

Justice Brothers conducted an inquest over the body found Friday morning and found that the man came to his death by being run over by a locomotive but whether the man planned suicide the verdict does not state.

The man is believed to have been W. C. Heman of McCloud, Okla. Undertaker Hill who has charge of the body wired the chief of police at McCloud Friday giving a description of the body. Saturday morning he received an answer saying that the description answered that of Charley Heman and that a relative would start on the first train out of McCloud for Wichita Falls.

A CORROBORATION.

Of Interest To Wichita Falls Readers.

For months Wichita Falls citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Doan's Kidney Pills by Wichita Falls residents. Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement? No stronger proof of merit can be had than cures that have stood the test of time. The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Wichita Falls reader: J. E. Sport, Wichita Falls, Texas, says: "We still use Doan's Kidney Pills in our family whenever occasion requires a kidney medicine and are always greatly benefited. We have previously endorsed this remedy and you may continue using the statement."

New Sleeveless Wraps Like Huge, Inflated Bags-Intricate Daaperies Beyond the Effort of the Home Dressmaker-Smart Three-Quarter Cloth Wraps for Afternoon Wear.

IF THERE is one thing lovelier than the modern evening gown, it is the modern wrap. And the average woman looks more charming in her evening wrap than in the gown—be it ever so handsome; for not every figure is perfect; not even skin satiny white and firm as marble, not every carriage graceful. The voluminous wrap covers up all defects in these lines and is in itself so graceful, so distinguished and so beautiful in coloring that it endues its wearer with a distinction and loveliness which frequently she does not possess at all.

Everybody who has stood outside the awning stretched across a pavement at some fashionable evening entertainment, knows how fascinatingly beautiful all the women look as they pass quickly over the carpet and up the steps into the house. First—a dainty little foot, clad in a captivating satin slipper, or perhaps a little boot, high heeled and with gleaming buttons emerging from the carriage, or limousine. Then comes the bent head of the stooping figure, the exquisitely dressed coiffure also gleaming with a scintillating ornament. Then a slender figure—it looks slender, wrapped in the rich, soft folds of the rich, fur-trimmed wrap—flashes past the opening in the awning and vanishes tantalizingly into the place of lights and flower perfumes and soft music. Not a doubt but that some of those silk and fur wrapped figures seen in the glare of the dressing room lights within will turn out to be over forty, with thickened waistlines, prominent collar bones and artificial tresses, though in their soft, gorgeous wraps—in the shadow of the awning, the beauty of hours seems to be theirs. Brocade Velvets and Satins High in Favor.

At least half of the winter evening wraps are of brocade material. Some of the velvets with raised brocade patterns are superb, and such a wrap bordered with sable, skunk or ermine is almost as expensive as one made entirely of fur. Quantities of material are used, also, in these new wraps—the straight, narrow garment is no more and a modern wrap, off the figure, resembles nothing so much as a huge, inflated bag with slashes cut at the sides for the arms. When the wrap is on, the yards and yards of rich fabric fall in lines of elegance and grace, but the cut of these wraps is hopelessly beyond the ken of the ordinary dressmaker for despite its largeness and its fitness the wrap must take on certain prescribed lines and these lines, in combination, with the voluminous folds, require a skillful hand in the cutting, if they are to be believed. No matter how full it is at the front, the back of the wrap must fall straight, as a plumb line from neck to heels and the folds must sweep forward and upward, giving a long, sloping, flowing effect from the bust to the back of the knees. Viewed from any angle, also, the wrap must appear narrow and tapering at the foot, so that the edge of the gown and the little booted foot is just visible.

Peg-Top Wraps the Paris Craze Now.

The peg-top wrap expresses this idea of voluminous folds and tapering lines in fetching style. One of these wraps is pictured in the white brocade-satin model with trimming of white fox. The wrap is exceedingly full across the shoulders and outstretched arms but tapers sharply inward below the knee. When the arms are dropped, the fullness falls in long graceful folds which do not, however, interfere in the least with the narrow effect at the foot. This wrap comes from Callot Soeurs, whose evening wraps are without rivals for beauty and charm. The Callot wrap is built of white satin brocade, lined with shirred lilac chiffon over pale pink satin. The band of black velvet, caught at the left hip with a pearl ornament, gives an emphatic and individual touch. Bands of snowy white fox fur border the bottom of the wrap and the sleeves. This beautiful white wrap accompanies a white gown, worn with buttoned bodice of white suede, and the white algrette, in the hair is worn in the present modish fashion, a pearl comb being thrust across the front of the coiffure in the effect of a bandeau. All evening hairdressings are high just now and rarely is the hair unadorned, alarrets, shell combs and pins, jeweled bands and silk flowers being the favorite ornaments.

Pannier Wraps Give the Fashionable Baggy Effect.

Another authoritative Paris evening wrap is pictured in the Francis model of brocade silk. This wrap, it will be observed, is put together with plinkings of the material over thick cable cord and the wrap is in pannier style, a draped upper portion falling over a closely drawn boucree which wraps around the knees and curves upward to form the front panel. The deep yoke of this wrap is interesting, for these yokes are now very smart, though one cannot say that they are as graceful as the more voluminous effects. The Francis wrap is built of changeable rose colored silk with raised velvet brocade figures in pale buff. The puffed sleeve is set on a low shoulder and the shirring over cords are novel and interesting details.

The Murillo wrap is another Paris fancy and one of these wraps, from Martini and Armand, forms part of a November trousseau. The Murillo wrap is enormously full over the shoulders and a long fold of the material is looped loosely to form a deep hood which hangs below the hips at the back. At the front the folds are drawn upward and forward and caught under a double chain of dull silver studded with coral. This wrap is of geranium colored velvet lined with white satin, the white satin showing in the deep loop at the back.

Flaming Wraps Now the Grand Chic.

There is a decided fancy for riding-hood evening wraps just at the moment and a good proportion of the Paris models are in geranium, flame or a new, deep-toned red called dahlia which is enormously fashionable. These brilliant wraps are of course exceedingly striking, but one of two of them in an assemblage of fainter tints are very pleasing. What the effect will be if flame and geranium wraps become the craze over here, one cannot say—and does not like to think; but the wise woman who may possess but one—or at most two evening wraps—had best refrain from putting a large sum of money into a brilliant red garment. Fur and Chiffon Popular Trimmings.

If one can afford it, fur is the trimming of a surety—selected for the evening wrap. Nothing is so alluringly becoming as a soft fur collar against the bare neck and shoulders, and fur lends a decided suggestion of elegance to a simple wrap. Chiffon is, however, a modish substitute and an illustration gives an idea of how effectively chiffon may be used. The wrap in question is a Doucet model of plum and rose pink velvet brocade, the chiffon being in shades of gray and mauve, shirred thickly to produce a rich, heavy effect. The wrap is lined also with pale mauve chiffon, tiny gold and silver roses in clusters being added here and there by way of trimming. The huge tassels are of dull gold and hang from tarnished gold cords.

The fur trimmed wrap is by Beer and is a new yoke model of gold and green brocade with green and gold cord and tassels. A skunk collar and cuffs tones down the brilliant coloring of the wrap. Another Beer wrap of green plush has a panel of gold lace down the back outlined with bands of skunk and an enormous collar of the skunk falls over the shoulders and forms a single rever caught

Mantle-Wraps For Bridge-Wear.

There are very smart three-quarter wraps designed for afternoon wear in taxi or limousine, these wraps being built of light-colored cloth or silken fabric with trimmings of braid, cord or shirred puffings. A cape of this kind, made of gold colored bengaline with bands of box pleated chiffon over cording was worn last week over a smart bridge costume of tobacco brown, draped over with a tunic of embroidered crepe de chine also in the brown tone. Brown satin boots accompanied the costume, which was made complete by a hat of brown bengaline trimmed with shaded plumes. The smart bridge gown is always accompanied by a handsome hat and in the hands is carried a reticule or gold purse for handkerchief, small pencil for score-keeping and perhaps one's winnings.

Is It Allowed McNamara $1000 Month To Buy Explosives. Are in Evidence

Anapolis, Ind. Oct. 14.—Checks he took the government charges the of the board of the International Workers and Structural Iron Workers for $1,000 to J. J. McNamara today to buy explosives were identified by Mrs. A. J. Hull at the "dyno-smoke conspiracy" trial today. Mrs. McNamara was a bookkeeper for McNamara and the Iron Workers headquarter. The Indianapolis when explosions occurred, testified these checks were designed by Frank M. Ryan and acquired as secretary-treasurer. All at he checks, she said were marked "dyno-smoke conspiracy."

Eyelet Embroidery and Fur a Novel Notion.

A debutante whose outfit is now being prepared for the important "coming out" in December has two adorable evening wraps, a view of which has been vouchsafed to the scribe. One of these wraps is of white crepe de chine, bordered all around with white marabout and lined with lace being looped up with pink and mauve silk roses. Buttoned pink satin boots have been ordered for this dancing costume and long gloves of pale pink silk with rosebud embroidery on the wrist, will meet the short lace sleeves.

The second wrap is an enchanting shirred pale pink chiffon. The wrap matches a sweet little dancing gown of pink chiffon and shadow lace, the little theatre affair and is made of the sheerest eyelet embroidery in a faint cream color mounted over the thinnest, pale blue silk. All around the edge goes a border of Australian chinchilla fur, the combination of fur and eyelet embroidery being particularly new and striking. Embroideries are very fashionable just now and the finer sorts are being introduced generously into winter costumes in the way of collars, gimpes, vests, flouncers and similar details.

The hats pictured are two new models, too interesting to pass by. One is a helmet affair with a tall, wired plume slanted across the back. The other shows the new knee length ostrich feather which falls over the brim of the hat and is worn twisted around the throat as the photograph shows, or hanging straight down the back.

Frolicsome Favors for HALLOWE'EN

NOT everybody who gaily ducks for apples on the last night of October, or roasts chestnuts on the ashes, or goes down cellar eating an apple and holding a handglass, is aware that he or she is perpetuating customs hundreds and hundreds of years old. On the first of November the ancient Druids, clad in white, built bonfires to propitiate Saman, an important god among the Celts, and later, torches from the common fire were carried to light the domestic fires on the hearths. As long as the fire was kept burning good luck was supposed to attend the house. As late as our own Revolutionary time the custom of carrying torches from a bonfire to the home-hearth prevailed among the rustics in the north of England.

In Wales a bonfire is kindled by each family on the eve of the first of November, and white bones, marked with individual initials are tossed into the embers. In the morning a search is made through the ashes for the marked stones and woe to the member of the family whose stone is not to be found. The rites connected with fires are Celtic in origin; those pertaining to nuts, apples or other fruits are Roman. The black cats and witches are borrowed from old Irish superstitions. As time went on the old religious and superstitious sentiments about the eve of the first of November, or Halloween lost their significance until today the festival is one of fun and frolic only.

The more ghost and ghastly decorations at the Halloween party the better. The ghost should be a terrifyingly spectral figure and may stand in the center of the supper table or peer out from a shadowy corner of the entrance hall. All lights but ghostly lights must be dimmed.

School Building Bought—Building Being Planned

The Wichita Falls College of Music and Art has taken an important step toward establishing its permanency in the purchase of a lot from W. E. Brothers on Eleventh street opposite the high school building as a site for its home.

Plans for the building are now being considered and it is announced that a handsome structure is to be erected at once.

The institution now has a faculty of seven under the able direction of Mrs. J. L. McKee, herself a graduate of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Each member of the faculty is an expert in their department. The faculty is said to be the equal of that in any institution in the Southwest.

The school is already demonstrating itself a valuable asset to the city and should help greatly in making this a center of intellectual development. A course of study similar to that of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music is being followed.

white or yellow crepe paper gathered over a wire frame. On the paper head, features, cut from untranslucent paper are pasted—huge slanting white paper eyes with black eyeballs, two round nostrils and a wide mouth turned up or down at the corners.

The Apple Paring Rite is a favorite Halloween diversion.

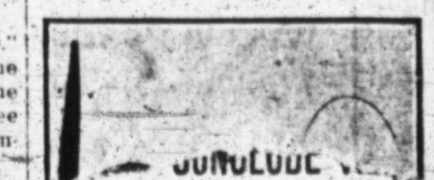

Each guest is given a large red apple and a sharp knife and the object is to pare around and around the apple so that the skin is removed in one piece. The long strip of paring is then tossed over the shoulder while this incantation is chanted: "Apple, apple tell me what my true love's name will be." It is always easy to guess some sort of initial from the position of the apple paring on the floor. Three throws will determine the three initials of the future beloved one.

Word received early this morning located Warden Austin at Point of Rocks, on his way to Rawlins. The prison authorities say they have no idea of how the convicts secured the guns they carried when they escaped. Seven of the convicts, were armed with knives which they had stolen from the dining table.

Neale, the cell house keeper, who was overpowered says his life was spared at the command of Tazo, the Mexican ringleader. Of the men who

her young guests dictate.

For the Halloween luncheon or bridge party there are multitudes of new favors. Each year the collection seems to grow more interesting and more ghastly and symbolic. One finds the familiar witch, black cat, pumpkin lantern, vegetable man and ghost-head and there are many new favors, a few of which are pictured today. The gourd figures seen particularly appropriate and seasonal. One photograph shows a gourd lantern with transparent eyes and teeth. With this lantern is a new black velvet

Indiana Manufacturers Leave for Home Sunday Afternoon After Looking Over Situation Here

The three owners of the glass jar factory which may be moved here, concluded their Wichita Falls visit yesterday at 1 o'clock and left over the Katy for their homes in Indiana. Yesterday morning they were shown by local citizens to the lake and the industrial addition, being much impressed with what has already been accomplished there.

It will probably be some time before there is any definite announcement as to the site selected. It is considered likely that before arriving at any final decision, the owners of the plant will submit a proposition to the town they consider most favorable.

The extent and pressure of the natural gas at Petrolia impressed the visitors very deeply, as did also the unlimited water supply which this city can afford.

ASSOCIATION OF OIL MEN FORMED

ORGANIZATION PERFECTED FRIDAY NIGHT WITH MEMBERSHIP ABOUT SIXTY

CLINT WOOD PRESIDENT

Another Meeting Friday Night When Constitution and By-Laws Will Be Adopted

About sixty of the oil men who make this city their headquarters met Friday night at the Westland, following the Progressive League's luncheon and perfected the organization of an Oil Men's Association. Another meeting will be held on Friday of next week, at which time a constitution and by-laws will be adopted.

Officers were elected Friday night as follows: President, G. Clint Woods; vice president, W. G. Skelley; secretary, W. B. Corlett; treasurer, C. E. Menzie; directors, G. C. Woods, W. B. Corlett, G. C. Starus, H. J. Robson, L. C. Hivick, W. W. Silk, C. E. Menzie, George Harrington and W. L. Russell.

A committee consisting of W. G. Long and A. A. Little was named to prepare a resolution of thanks to the Young Men's Progressive League for Friday night's entertainment.

A committee on resolutions and by-laws was named, including C. E. Menzie, Louis Campbell, W. L. Russell and G. C. Strauss. Ed Short and Martin Rowe were delegates to find a meeting place for the next meeting.

While the purpose of the organization is largely social, the movement has a far deeper significance. There are many matters that come up that concern the oil men in a business way and these will be handled by the association as a whole, for the benefit of all the members. The idea is one of co-operation and self-protection and of mutual benefit. The spirit of free-masonry which prevails among oil men will give the organization its social and fraternal side and the members say that many "stunts" are in prospect, as occasion arises.

There has been an organization of oil men here previously, in an informal way, but Friday night's gathering was to put in more definite form so that more might be accomplished.

Director of Chamber of Commerce Add Many Names to Membership Rost

Forty-seven new members have been added to the rolls of the Chamber of Commerce in the past few days as the result of the efforts of one of the directors, who has been spending an hour or two daily in soliciting new members. This director declined to permit the use of his name in connection with the work he has done.

Among the new members enrolled is Loo Tom, proprietor of a Chinese laundry here, who set a good example thereby, for some of his Caucasian neighbors.

The additional revenue to the Chamber of Commerce is $67 monthly, several of the new members giving more than the minimum of a dollar per month. Some of them had been members previously, but had withdrawn.

Although the modesty of the director prevents the mention of his name, it is unnecessary to state that his efforts are very much appreciated. He is a business man, who has given more of his time and money, in proportion to his interests here, than probably any other citizen and this is not the first time that Wichita Falls and the Chamber of Commerce have been his debtor. The new members secured were: N. P. Blakemore, I. H. Roberts, James B. Miller, M. McGinley, Model Clothing Co., J. F. Curtin, W. McAbee, C. C. Knight, E. P. Walsh, John Robertson, C. E. Circus Day Is Near And The Kids are Expectant

Peanuts and pink lemonade will soon be ripe. Also the odor of new mown sawdust will soon permeate the air. The giddiest, gladiest, gayest, grandest, gyrating, glamorous and glittering galaxy of the whole, wide, wonderful world is trekking this way. If the reader doesn't infer from this that reference is being made to the Barnum and Bailey greatest show on earth the publicity man regards the case as hopeless. Of course all this isn't news to the kiddies, for every blessed one of them has kept tabs upon the lurid billboards and already the leading topic of conversation in the average home is the coming of the circus with all its concomitants of youthful ecstasy.

Son—Pa, please kin I go t' th' circus?

Stern Father—No, I do not approve of the circus.

Fond Mother—There now, father, why not let Georgie see it? I'll go along to take care of him.

Indulgent Father—Well, if you both want to, so bad, all right. I'll go along myself to see that neither of you gets hurt.

The time-honored custom has always been to refer to each successive year's circus as "bigger and better" than ever but the phrase has become so hackneyed and used in so many instances where it did not fit that the circus publicity man with Barnum and Bailey has a horror against using it.

But despite that it adequately describes the entertainment flying the Barnum and Bailey pennant this year. More care are required to transfer the show, more tentage is used, more real estate required to accommodate the circus community than ever before. In fact, the circus has reached a point where it is the despair of many of the smaller railroads and taxes their facilities to the limit, for eighty-five cars are required to convey the gigantic affair from town to town.

It's a hopeless task to try and enumerate all the features of the circus promised to present, for there's material enough to make a half dozen circuses of the old school. When one says that the familiar acts in riding, aerial performances, etc., presented by the most skillful living exponents will be seen, he has little more than started on the list, for the determination of the management to produce a bigger and a greater show, with innumerable novelties, has been carried through.

The elephants have taken post-graduate courses at the winter quarters and do many new "stunts" including a ball game, introducing Koko, the only elephant spital pitcher in captivity. May Wirth, an 18-year-old Australian miss, is making her first appearances in America in an equestrian act which causes all eyes to pop wide open. She turns backward and forward somersaults upon the back of a running horse with a graceful abandon which stamps her as the greatest rider of the day. She is a marvel to her colleagues of the circus, who so thoroughly understand her artistry and the difficulty of her "tricks."

The Mikado's Royal Troupe of Athletes provide another new feature and are entirely new to America. In New York City they were one of the hits of the bill with their wrestling exhibitions and expositions of the Japanese art of jui jitsu.

The Berne Brothers, Switzerland's champion strong men, contribute an amazing performance entirely different from the ordinary run of such performances and vie in friendly rivalry with Kate Sandwina, the female Hercules. The whole program is punctuated with new and unusual features, which stamps this year's circus as the best ever given under the Barnum and Bailey trademark.

The show opens with a wordless play based upon the story of "Cleopatra," Egypt's ancient queen. A large ballet is introduced and more than 1,000 people take part. The circus has been enlarged and is more varied and comprehensive than ever before. Upon show day morning, Tuesday, Oct. 15th there will be a street party.
