WATERGATE TASK FORCE IS ABOLISHED

Nixon Fires Cox, Richardson Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox Saturday night, abolished Cox's Watergate task force and accepted the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Nixon fired Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Ruckelshaus when he refused to carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced shortly before 8:30 p.m. EDT that Nixon had fired Cox because of his announced intention to defy a presidential order that he cease a court battle to obtain the Watergate tapes.

Ziegler reported Richardson "felt obliged to resign" because he felt Nixon's order to Cox violated an understanding with Congress that Cox would be given a free hand in his Watergate investigations.

Ruckelshaus was fired, said Ziegler, because he refused to carry out a presidential order to discharge Cox.

Nixon then designated Solicitor General Robert H. Bork to be acting attorney general. Ziegler said Bork carried out Nixon's directive that Cox be discharged.

The press secretary reported that, as of about 8 p.m., Nixon ordered the abolition of the office of the special Watergate prosecution force and directed the transfer of all its activities to the Justice Department.

Ziegler said the government's Watergate investigations would continue "with thoroughness and vigor."

In accepting Richardson's resignation Nixon wrote a one-sentence response addressed to "Dear Elliot." It read: "It is with the deepest regret and with an understanding of the circumstances which brought you to your decision that I accept your resignation."

In a five-paragraph letter of resignation, Richardson wrote Nixon:

"At the time you appointed me, you gave me the authority to name a special prosecutor if I should consider it appropriate. A few days before my confirmation hearing began, I announced that I would, if confirmed, 'appoint a special prosecutor and give him all the independence, authority and staff support needed to carry out the tasks entrusted to him.' I added, 'although he will be in the Department of Justice and report to me — and only to me — he will be aware that his ultimate accountability is to the American people."

Richardson recalled that while it was agreed the special prosecutor might be removed from office "for extraordinary improprieties," the resigning attorney general also pledged he would "not countermand or interfere with the special prosecutor's decisions or actions."

"While I fully respect the reasons that have led you to conclude that the special prosecutor must be discharged," Richardson wrote, "I trust that you understand that I could not in the light of these firm and repeated commitments carry out your direction that this be done. In the circumstances, therefore, I felt that I have no choice but to resign."

In a letter to Bork, Nixon said he had accepted the resignations of Richardson and Ruckelshaus, until recently the acting director of the FBI, and that Bork now was acting attorney general. Nixon continued:

"In his press conference today...Cox made it apparent that he will not comply with the instruction I issued to him, through Atty. Gen. Richardson, yesterday. Clearly the government of the United States cannot function if employes of the executive branch are free to ignore in this fashion the instructions of the President. Accordingly, in your capacity of acting attorney general, I direct you to discharge Mr. Cox immediately and to take all steps necessary to return to the Department of Justice the functions now being performed by the Watergate special prosecution force."

Nixon concluded his letter to Bork in this fashion:

"It is my expectation that the Department of Justice will continue with full vigor the investigations and prosecutions that had been entrusted to the Watergate special prosecution force."

Bork then wrote a two-paragraph letter to Cox, the first one dealing with the statutes that led to his becoming acting attorney general, the second saying:

"In that capacity I am, as instructed by the President, discharging you, effective at once, from your position as special prosecutor, Watergate special prosecution force.' "

Israelis 'Broaden Gateway' To Cairo

By The Associated Press

Israeli officers said their invading tanks "broadened their gateway into Egypt" Saturday and fought to within 50 miles of Cairo by knocking back Egyptian defenders in bitter armored and air battles.

"The battle is heavy and getting heavier," and Israeli major told newsmen at the front. "But we feel we are on the way to destroying the Egyptian army."

Egypt said the Israelis were taking heavy losses and said its Soviet-supplied defenses were knocking down Israeli jets in the skies over the Suez battleground.

As the fighting raged, diplomatic efforts to end the 15-day-old war intensified and U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Moscow for peacemaking consultations with Soviet leaders.

CLAIM REFUTED

Meanwhile, Syria said its warplanes streaked into the Israeli heartland for the first time and bombed an oil refinery near Haifa. Israeli military officials denied the report and an Associated Press newsman in Haifa, about 50 miles north of Tel Aviv, said he saw no damage to the refinery.

Reports from the Mediterranean resort of Nahariya, near the refinery about four miles north of Haifa, said a Syrian MIG fighter was blasted out of the sky there and plummeted into a house, injuring a woman.

Spokesmen in Damascus gave no assessment of results of the reported raid, nor did they say how many planes took part. They said it was launched in retaliation for Israeli strikes on Syrian economic targets.

Marauding Israeli jets have totally destroyed oil storage and refining installations in Syria during the two weeks of Middle East warfare, Syrian Deputy Premier Mohammed Haidar told newsmen in Damascus.

The Cairo command said Egyptian tanks, artillery and missile batteries defending against the cross-canal Israeli advance have inflicted "heavy losses in lives and equipment."

It made no mention of the Israeli tank column that Tel Aviv said has moved to about 19 miles inside Egypt west of the Suez Canal, the cease-fire line since 1967.

COUNTER CLAIMS

Egypt said earlier the Israeli incursion was being met with heavy fighting. It said Saturday that in two days of fierce armored clashes the Israelis have lost 85 tanks and 56 halftracks.

Big Spring Week

Hats off to that gritty bunch of Big Spring Steers who led Odessa Permian Friday evening for 3½ quarters before finally getting beat by physical exhaustion as much as anything. That gallant but thin phalanx had less than 30 squadmen to draw on, but they played flawless ball except for a couple of interceptions. On defense they bent but seldom broke, pursuing with vengence. If players didn't get bunged up too much, the team may have turned the corner. That kind of courage and effort puts us squarely in their corner.

Bank deposits hit $74,389,000 on Oct. 17, the combined statements showed Friday in response to a call of condition. This was up 11 per cent over the comparable date a year ago, but probably the real gain was nearer 3 to 5 per cent, because the call date hit when a big oil payment check had been deposited but not disbursed. Everyone is looking for a big fourth quarter.

Some Agencies Shut Down Again Monday

Monday, Oct. 22 is officially designated as Veterans Day by the United States Government. Although it is not even particularly close to the oldArmistice Day of Nov. 11, the fourth Monday in October is selected as one of five three-day weeks by the government.

There was one just two weeks ago for Columbus Day, although not on Columbus Day.

Among the services closed Monday again will be the Post Office, all banks, all federal offices, offices at Webb Air Force Base, social security, ASCS, FHA and others. The only special event planned is open house during the day at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Argentine Jet Is Commandeered

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Three armed hijackers commandeered an Aerolineas Argentinas jet with 48 persons aboard today and forced it to fly to Yacuiba, Bolivia, airport sources in the northern Argentine city of Salta reported.

The Boeing 737 was hijacked during a domestic flight from Buenos Aires to Salta, 1,000 miles north of the capital. It made a 50-minute stop at Tucuman where airport authorities were reported to have refused demands for fuel on instructions from the government in Buenos Aires.

Girls Spike Punch; Ruling Sobers Board

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — The U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals at St. louis says members of the Mena School Board must pay court costs and attorney fees in the case of three high school girls who spiked a bowl of punch at a mother-daughter school party.

The court says the board members must pay $975.50 in court costs as well as $500 to Ben Core, a Fort Smith attorney who represented Virginia Grain and Peggy Stickland in the litigation against the School Board.

The third girl, Jo Wahl, was not a plaintiff in the suit.

Nation Faces Mean Inflation Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a brief letup in September, Americans will face a long, hard inflationary road in the months ahead, the government says.

There are indications the administration may resign itself to a rate of inflation of around 6 per cent next year, which is not much better than the inflation rate of 6.7 per cent s far this year.

Government economists are by no means unanimous that inflation will be that bad in 1974 but they do agree inflation will continue to plague the economy.

"Inflation is awful and will remain a serious problem for the foreseeable future," said Sidney L. Jones, assistant Commerce secretary for economic affairs.

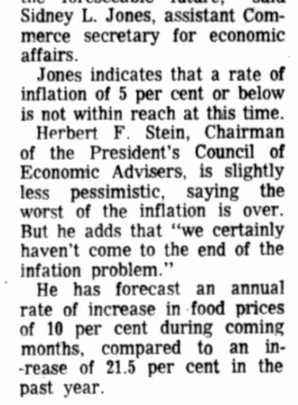

Jones indicates that a rate of inflation of 5 per cent or below is not within reach at this time.

Herbert F. Stein, Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is slightly less pessimistic, saying the worst of the inflation is over. But he adds that "we certainly haven't come to the end of the infation problem."

He has forecast an annual rate of increase in food prices of 10 per cent during coming months, compared to an in-rease of 21.5 per cent in the past year.

IT'LL BE OPEN TO ALL RACES

Dream City For Blacks Is About To Become Reality

SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) — Floyd B. McKissick's dream of creating an economic center for blacks in the red clay hills of Warren County is beginning to come true.

After five years of planning and promises of massive federal help, McKissick has scheduled a ceremony for Nov. 9 to mark the actual start of construction of the new community which he calls Soul City. If his dreams come true, it will be a city of 50,000 by the turn of the century.

McKissick, an attorney who was once national head of the Congress of Racial Equality, sees Soul City as a venture in black capitalism aimed at developing the economic power of Negroes.

"I'm saying the blacks need economic power," he said. "The right to eat at the Hilton doesn't enable me to eat at the Hilton."

McKissick insists Soul City will be open to all races, but he recognizes it's likely to be more black than white. He says it will be a place where the poor can come, learn a trade and find a job.

McKissick, who switched from Democrat to Republican and backed President Nixon in his bid for re-election, has been accused of being an opportunist in his politics. Shortly after the President's re-election, the Department of Housing and Urban Development tentatively agreed to guarantee $14 million in Soul City bonds.

The first building at Soul City will be known as Soultech One. It is described as an "industrial incubator" where a number of small industries can begin operations without having to erect buildings of their own, providing jobs for a total of about 350 workers.

McKissick said Soultech One will cost about $1 million, paid for by private funds and a federal grant of $502,875.

McKissick says Nov. 9 is the kickoff for a three-year plan that calls for the erection of eight other industrial buildings, about 500 housing units, a shopping center, community center, health building and recreation area.

The health building, to be built next under a $1.1 million federal grant, will operate a regional health plan for Warren and Vance counties. McKissick said industries locating in Soul City will provide jobs for 1,000 persons during the first three-year phase.

The 5,180-acre tract on which the new community will be located currently contains only some mobile buildings and a red cinderblock barn which are used as offices. In the five years of planning, a staff of 56 permanent employes and 12 consultants were assembled.

The $14 million government bond guarantee is the development's main financial resource right now. HUD's guarantee will cost the government money only if the enterprise is unable to pay them off.

McKissick said the final approval of the bond guarantee is expected within a few days.

Saudi Arabia To Deny U.S. Its Petroleum

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Saudi Arabia has decided to cut off all oil shipments to the United States because of U.S. arms supplies to Israel, Riyadh radio said Saturday.

Saudi Arabia is third among America's foreign oil suppliers, trailing Canada and Venezuela. It supplies 19,740,000 barrels of oil a month out of the nearly 400 million the United States currently processes.

The Saudi announcement followed a report by the official Algerian news service that Algers will cut its oil production by 10 per cent as pressure against supporters of Israel in the Middle East war.

The United States imports 5,036,000 barrels of Algerian oil a month.

The Saudi cutoff and the Algerian reduction are expected to hurt Western Europe and Japan more than the United States. But Arab nations apparently feel the pinch among U.S. allies will lead them to exert their influence on the United States for a reduction in support of the Israelis.

Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amuzeger said in Tehran that the Arab oil producers' gradual boycott decided last week in Kuwait already has reduced oil exports to the West by two million barrels a day.

Amuzegar was referring to a decision Wednesday by Arab oil countries to reduce their production by at least 5 per cent a month as long as Israel remains in the Arab lands it occupied in 1967.

Number Of Banks Trim Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A number of major banks, including three of the nation's five largest, have lowered their prime interest rates for the first time in nearly two years.

The quarter-point decreases, announced Friday, appeared to signal the end of a prolonged period in which the key lending rate rose to a record 10 per cent from 4¾ per cent in the 20 months from January 1972 to September 1973. The previous record, 8½ per cent, had been reached in mid-1969.

The banks lowering their rates to 9¾ per cent Friday included Bank of America in San Francisco, the nation's largest; First National City Bank of New York, the second largest; and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, fifth largest.

There's Talk Around That The Energy Shortage Is Contrived. It's Not. It's Real. And So Are The Causes. We Would Like You To Know What They Are.

The Guts of the Problem

In the U.S., essentially all of our energy (including electricity) comes from oil, natural gas, coal, nuclear energy, or hydropower. The growth of all five of these primary sources has been slowed down. In the past, when one source of energy became limited, there was enough spare capacity in the others to make up the difference. That's not true any more. That's why we have an energy shortage.

How did this happen? Let's look at the energy sources one at a time.

Natural Gas

There's a big demand for natural gas. It causes little pollution. And since the mid-1950's, natural gas prices have been held too low by the Federal Power Commission. The low price has done two things:

1) Artificially stimulated demand for gas.
2) Discouraged people from spending money to find more. Investment slows down where there's less chance to make a fair profit.

So this country's production of natural gas is peaking out.

Coal

Coal is the country's most abundant fossil fuel resource. But much of it is high in sulfur. Many industries that use this high-sulfur coal have not been able to meet the standards set by the Clean Air Act of 1970. So we haven't been using as much coal as everybody hoped. Other fuels have had to fill this gap.

Nuclear Power

The growth in nuclear power has been slow. Nuclear reactors are running into delays in design and construction. And it's hard to find places to build nuclear plants. Fifty of the fifty-six plants that were expected to start up between 1972 and 1975 are substantially behind schedule. So nuclear power is supplying less energy than was expected a few years ago.

Hydropower

Hydropower is very important in some areas, but it has supplied only a small part of the country's total energy needs for a long time. Most of the places where dams could be built have already been used. Environmental factors are delaying the few that are left.

Oil Has Had To Take Up The Slack

Oil has been called upon to make up for the lagging growth in other energy sources — natural gas, coal, nuclear energy — and carry its own share to boot.

But oil has growth problems, too. The search for new fields offshore has been slowed down. Lease sales for drilling in these high-potential areas have been delayed. Oil already found in Alaska and the Santa Barbara Channel of California isn't being produced because of environmental objections. Virtually all existing fields are producing at full efficient capacity. Production is declining and there is not enough to meet the demand.

The result?

The U.S. must import oil from other countries. This year about one-third of the country's requirements will have to be met by imports. If domestic supplies are not developed more rapidly, we'll have to import 65% of our oil by 1985 to meet U.S. demand.

We Need More Refineries

Bringing in more crude oil will help, but it won't solve the problem right away. This is because the existing refining capacity in the U.S. is simply not enough to meet product requirements. In the the past, U.S. Government policies had the effect of discouraging the construction of refineries in this country. Although recent policy changes have stimulated plans for expansion of U.S. refining capacity, building new facilities will take several years.

Until new refineries are bult, the U.S. will have to import more and more finished products (gasoline, heating oil, and heavy fuel oil) as well as more crude oil.

The High Cost of Imports

Because energy demands in other countries are increasing, too, the U.S. will have to compete in the world market for these products. But the world supply of crude oil and finished products is tight and uncertain. So prices are going up. They are already well above U.S. prices, which are controlled by the Government.

These are some of the causes and results of the energy shortage.

They're all quite real, not contrived.

What Can Be Done About It?

For the time being, the United States will have to import more high-cost foreign crude oil and finished products, if they're available.

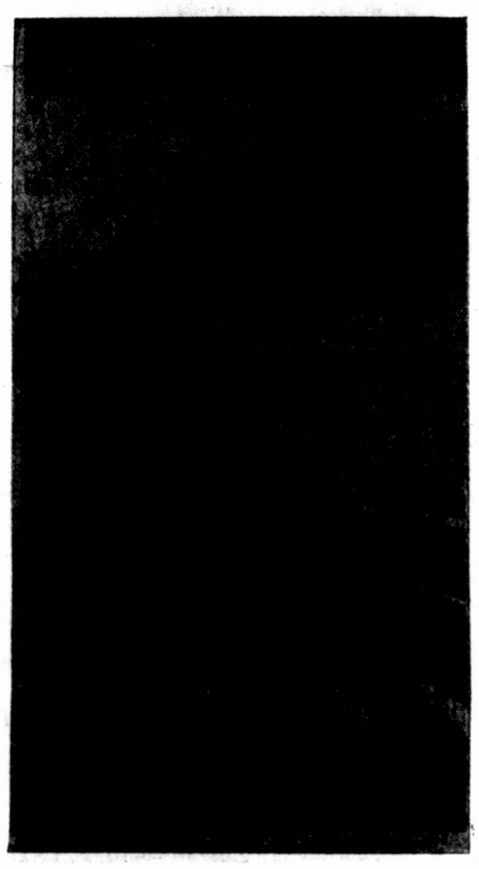

U.S. refineries will have to continue to operate as close to capacity as possible.

You can help! Drive slower, join car pools; go easy on the air conditioner; turn down thermostats a degree or two in winter; and take a thousand and one other small steps that add up to cash savings for each consumer and major energy savings for the country.

But we have to do something else, too.

We have to recognize that the energy problem is real — not contrived. And that it's time to take action to implement solutions. We need to get on with the job of developing all of the country's energy sources — coal, nuclear power, oil and gas. We've run out of time for debate and delay.

Don't you agree?

Nixon Fires Cox, Richardson Quits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox Saturday night, abolished Cox's Watergate task force and accepted the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson.

Nixon fired Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Ruckelshaus when he refused to carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced shortly before 8:30 p.m. EDT that Nixon had fired Cox because of his announced intention to defy a presidential order that he cease a court battle to obtain the Watergate tapes.

Ziegler reported Richardson "felt obliged to resign" because he felt Nixon's order to Cox violated an understanding with Congress that Cox would be given a free hand in his Watergate investigations.

Ruckelshaus was fired, said Ziegler, because he refused to carry out a presidential order to discharge Cox.

Nixon then designated Solicitor General Robert H. Bork to be acting attorney general. Ziegler said Bork carried out Nixon's directive that Cox be discharged.

The press secretary reported that, as of about 8 p.m., Nixon ordered the abolition of the office of the special Watergate prosecution force and directed the transfer of all its activities to the Justice Department.

Ziegler said the government's Watergate investigations would continue "with thoroughness and vigor."

In accepting Richardson's resignation Nixon wrote a one-sentence response addressed to "Dear Elliot." It read: "It is with the deepest regret and with an understanding of the circumstances which brought you to your decision that I accept your resignation."

In a five-paragraph letter of resignation, Richardson wrote Nixon:

Richardson recalled that while it was agreed the special prosecutor might be removed from office "for extraordinary improprieties," the resigning attorney general also pledged he would "not countermand or interfere with the special prosecutor's decisions or actions."

Nixon concluded his letter to Bork in this fashion:

"It is my expectation that the Department of Justice will continue with full vigor the investigations and prosecutions that had been entrusted to the Watergate special prosecution force."

Bork then wrote a two-paragraph letter to Cox, the first one dealing with the statutes that led to his becoming acting attorney general, the second saying:

Jones indicates that a rate of inflation of 5 per cent or below is not within reach at this time.

Herbert F. Stein, Chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, is slightly less pessimistic, saying the worst of the inflation is over. But he adds that "we certainly haven't come to the end of the infation problem."

He has forecast an annual rate of increase in food prices of 10 per cent during coming months, compared to an in-rease of 21.5 per cent in the past year.

Dream City For Blacks Is About To Become Reality

SOUL CITY, N.C. (AP) — Floyd B. McKissick's dream of creating an economic center for blacks in the red clay hills of Warren County is beginning to come true.

After five years of planning and promises of massive federal help, McKissick has scheduled a ceremony for Nov. 9 to mark the actual start of construction of the new community which he calls Soul City. If his dreams come true, it will be a city of 50,000 by the turn of the century.

McKissick, an attorney who was once national head of the Congress of Racial Equality, sees Soul City as a venture in black capitalism aimed at developing the economic power of Negroes.

"I'm saying the blacks need economic power," he said. "The right to eat at the Hilton doesn't enable me to eat at the Hilton."

McKissick insists Soul City will be open to all races, but he recognizes it's likely to be more black than white. He says it will be a place where the poor can come, learn a trade and find a job.

McKissick, who switched from Democrat to Republican and backed President Nixon in his bid for re-election, has been accused of being an opportunist in his politics. Shortly after the President's re-election, the Department of Housing and Urban Development tentatively agreed to guarantee $14 million in Soul City bonds.

The first building at Soul City will be known as Soultech One. It is described as an "industrial incubator" where a number of small industries can begin operations without having to erect buildings of their own, providing jobs for a total of about 350 workers.

McKissick said Soultech One will cost about $1 million, paid for by private funds and a federal grant of $502,875.

McKissick says Nov. 9 is the kickoff for a three-year plan that calls for the erection of eight other industrial buildings, about 500 housing units, a shopping center, community center, health building and recreation area.

The health building, to be built next under a $1.1 million federal grant, will operate a regional health plan for Warren and Vance counties. McKissick said industries locating in Soul City will provide jobs for 1,000 persons during the first three-year phase.

The 5,180-acre tract on which the new community will be located currently contains only some mobile buildings and a red cinderblock barn which are used as offices. In the five years of planning, a staff of 56 permanent employes and 12 consultants were assembled.

The $14 million government bond guarantee is the development's main financial resource right now. HUD's guarantee will cost the government money only if the enterprise is unable to pay them off.

McKissick said the final approval of the bond guarantee is expected within a few days.

Saudi Arabia To Deny U.S. Its Petroleum

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Saudi Arabia has decided to cut off all oil shipments to the United States because of U.S. arms supplies to Israel, Riyadh radio said Saturday.

Saudi Arabia is third among America's foreign oil suppliers, trailing Canada and Venezuela. It supplies 19,740,000 barrels of oil a month out of the nearly 400 million the United States currently processes.

The Saudi announcement followed a report by the official Algerian news service that Algers will cut its oil production by 10 per cent as pressure against supporters of Israel in the Middle East war.

The United States imports 5,036,000 barrels of Algerian oil a month.

The Saudi cutoff and the Algerian reduction are expected to hurt Western Europe and Japan more than the United States. But Arab nations apparently feel the pinch among U.S. allies will lead them to exert their influence on the United States for a reduction in support of the Israelis.

Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amuzeger said in Tehran that the Arab oil producers' gradual boycott decided last week in Kuwait already has reduced oil exports to the West by two million barrels a day.

Amuzegar was referring to a decision Wednesday by Arab oil countries to reduce their production by at least 5 per cent a month as long as Israel remains in the Arab lands it occupied in 1967.

Number Of Banks Trim Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — A number of major banks, including three of the nation's five largest, have lowered their prime interest rates for the first time in nearly two years.

The quarter-point decreases, announced Friday, appeared to signal the end of a prolonged period in which the key lending rate rose to a record 10 per cent from 4¾ per cent in the 20 months from January 1972 to September 1973. The previous record, 8½ per cent, had been reached in mid-1969.

The banks lowering their rates to 9¾ per cent Friday included Bank of America in San Francisco, the nation's largest; First National City Bank of New York, the second largest; and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, fifth largest.

Agnew Ignored Facts In Copping A Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government prosecutors buttressed their case against Spiro T. Agnew with an array of corroborating evidence Agnew continues to ignore while claiming he did no wrong.

Agnew implies that the four key government witnesses lied to buy leniency, but he said nothing about the supporting testimony of scores of other witnesses and the volumes of documents backing the prosecution claims.

Among the most important is a diary kept by one of the key witnesses who listed day by day the illegal payments reaped in the kickback scheme Agnew was accused of promoting.

SLOW TO ELABORATE

Justice Department sources are reluctant to elaborate on the documentary evidence discussed in the 40-page summary made public as part of the agreement that led to Agnew's resignation as vice president Oct. 10.

But they say the case rested on much more than the unsupported word of four men, as Agnew claimed.

The prosecutors say Agnew took thousands of dollars in illegal kickbacks from contracting firms during his years as Baltimore county executive, as governor of Maryland and as vice president.

Agnew pleaded no contest to a single tax evasion charge, and the government agreed to bring no further criminal charges against him. He remains liable for civil suits to collect back taxes on thousands of dollars.

Questioned about the evidence, government sources say that Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson would not have allowed the investigation to run its full course if he had doubted the strength of the accusations.

Agnew, however, said last Monday that the government case "rested entirely on the testimony of individuals who had already confessed to criminal acts and who had been granted total or partial immunity in exchange for their testimony against me."

NO TOTAL IMMUNITY

The Justice Department says no witness has been granted total immunity from prosecution. Two of the key witnesses have been promised partial immunity, and the other two have agreed to plead guilty to a single tax charge carrying a maximum three-year prison sentence.

Richardson asked the court to spare Agnew a prison sentence and the judge agreed on the strength of Richardson's request alone.

But in the case of the two witnesses, the prosecutors will make no sentencing recommendations, leaving the men risking prison.

Agnew claimed that testimony of the four men was "not independently corroborated or tested by cross-examination."

Prosecutors say to the contrary. The witnesses were questioned repeatedly and finally were put to the test of a sworn statement subjecting them to perjury charges if they were found to be lying.

Agnew said nothing about the documentary evidence gathered to support the government accusations.

Prosecutors say their account of an intricate kickback scheme is corroborated by written records.

Among the documents is a diary kept by Jerome Wolff, one of the four key witnesses and the state roads commission chairman during Agnew's term as governor.

According to the prosecutors, "Wolff kept detailed contemporaneous documents on which he recorded the dates, amounts and engineering firm sources of the monies that he received from (I.H.) Hammerman as his share of the proceeds to the scheme."

Hammerman is the Agnew friend who solicited and received illegal kickbacks from seven Maryland contracting firms, the prosecutors said.

Acting on Agnew's orders, he gave half the money to Agnew, kept one-fourth for himself and gave one-fourth to Wolff, the government says.

Wolff's diary is "among a large volume of corroborative documents that Wolff has turned over to the United States attorney's office," the government said.

In addition, prosecutors examined Agnew's tax returns, bank books and other personal financial records for at least the past five years.

They sifted through 130 boxes of records from Agnew's two years as governor and some 15 filing cabinets jammed with Federal Highway Administration records on Maryland highway projects from 1967 through this year.

Richardson and the prosecutors say they will talk no more about the substance of the evidence against Agnew for they hope the turmoil will subside. There has been no indication that Agnew intends to answer the details of the accusations.

Texas International announced a change in schedule effective Oct. 28 — the two flights to Dallas leaving at 1:11 p.m. and 5:25 a.m.; from Dallas at 2:30 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. That wipes us of a morning connection, which should further depress boardings, which is probably what TIA wants to substantiate its pullout.

A numbing tragedy took the life of Cathy Thomason, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curits Thomason, when she fell Friday morning from a moving car in the Silver Heels area. As for reports, Howard County Junior College trustees got the annual audit, which reflected a net value of $3,612,000 and the prospect that the school could be debt free within less than a decade. Yet, the auditors sounded a warning: Last year's use of reserves to close a gap between $126,000 more expenses and only $34,000 more revenue can't go on indefinitely. Some additional sources of revenue may have to be found to sustain the program.

After Howard County Junior College trustees decided on bids for exclusive broadcast rights as a means of getting a guarantee of all Jayhawk basketball games, station managers said they had little stomach for the bidding route. Nevertheless KBYG's bid was judged best and the broadcast rights were awarded. It's a fair bet that next year an assurance to carry all games will be sufficient. That's speculation, however; better speculation is that the Hawks will have a great team this season.

Briscoe Says Big Brother Giveth, And Taketh Away

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Revenue sharing has been longer on promise than performance, Gov. Dolph Briscoe says.

Cutbacks in other federal spending in Texas have diluted the impact of shared revenue on the state's financial condition, the governor said.

Briscoe responded to questions submitted by The Associated Press.

The state budget for the two years that began Sept. 1 contains $316 million in shared federal revenue.

Briscoe was asked if he felt Texas has a better state government because of revenue sharing.

CAN HELP

"I feel the promise is there, but not necessarily the performance. Revenue sharing can strengthen state government through the continued development and refinement of the federal, state and local government partnership," he said.

Revenue sharing money is scattered throughout the new budget, paying for items ranging from judge's salaries to the full cost of the Texas Amusement Machine Commission to the $20.7 million building program of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"Although revenue sharing contributed to maintaining our state taxes at the current level, the effect has been diluted by the reduction and elimination of funding for other federal programs," Briscoe said.

He mentioned reduced federal money for such programs as social services, park development, libraries, mental health and mental retardation.

"Generally state government is better off because of revenue sharing, but not to the total degree of the dollar amount we received," Briscoe said.

Informed estimates of the federal cutbacks are in the neighborhood of $75 million to $100 million, although the situation is so fluid that nobody has come up with a firm figure.

What do you to believe to be the major problems with revenue sharing? the governor was asked.

UNCERTAIN

"In addition to the problems mentioned, the major problem of revenue sharing is the uncertainty that it will continue after the first five years and the fear that unreasonable restrictions will be placed on the states concerning the use of these funds," Briscoe said.

He said the federal government should continue revenue sharing after the five-year testing period so the states "may properly plan their affairs and meet their fiscal responsibilities."

Briscoe also said "reasonable rules and regulations governing the use of these funds should be continued."

Some backers of revenue sharing viewed it as a mechanism for improvement and enrichment of state and local programs or creation of new ones.

But it didn't work out that way in state government.

SOLONS WARY

Instead the legislature used shared revenue to meet Briscoe's "no new taxes" mandate. Legislative leaders also were wary of initiating new or expanded programs for fear they either would conflict with federal regulations or commit the state to new tax requirements in the future.

"The Legislative Budget Board was very suspicious of it. They thought it would be cut off and we could be left holding the bag," said Jim Oliver, former director of the governor's budget office under Preston Smith and now an assistant director of the budget board.

The board, consisting of the lieutenant governor, House speaker and legislative fiscal committee chairmen, submitted budget proposals that served as the nucleus of the general appropriation bill.

One problem, Olivers said, was that federal rules forbade the use of shared revenue as matching money to obtain other federal grants. So the money was used either for non-recurring construction items or to fund "agencies that have been financed out of 'clean' (non-matched) general revenue money."

Because the current budget includes retroactive revenue sharing funds while future ones will not, the legislature will be looking for more money to take up the slack.

"The major concern is we'll get committed to the tune of $300 million per biennium ... and in 1976-77 that will drop, according to the schedule, to $148 million ... We are leaning on it, we're counting on it. Next time we are going to have to make it up or reduce programs, and you and I know we don't cut programs," Oliver said.

Kissinger, Brezhnev Open Talks About Mid-East War

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew into Moscow Saturday night and was scheduled to begin immediate discussions on the Middle East war with Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Brezhnev requested that Kissinger and his aides meet with him in the Kremlin immediately after arriving. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who met Kissinger on his arrival, will join Brezhnev for the meeting, the spokesman said.

U.S. officials in Washington said Kissinger's trip was not expected to result in an immediate plan for settling the war. They said the urgent Russian invitation was a sign of important progress, but emphasized that nothing has been put on paper and that Kissinger was not given a specific Soviet proposal for consideration.

The White House said that President Nixon sent a private message to Brezhnev while Kissinger was enroute to Moscow.

U.S. sources gave no clue to the content of the Nixon message but said Kissinger's mission was to discuss "means to end the hostilities."

Brezhnev aked Nixon to send Kissinger here after four days of secret meetings in Cairo between Premier Alexei Kosygin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

According to unconfirmed reports, Kosygin presented Sadat with a Kremlin proposal for a cease-fire and returned home with at least Arab approval to begin intensive talks with the Americans.

The Russians gave no indication what the plan was.

According to the Yugoslav news agency, Tanjug, the Russians have come up with a four-point cease-fire proposal that includes an Israeli withdrawal to the pre-1967 battle lines, with Arab-Israeli borders to be guaranteed by the United States, the Soviet Union and other members of the U.N. Security Council.

As reported by Tanjug, the plan makes no reference to an Egyptian withdrawal from lands gained in the war now in its third week.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in Tel Aviv on Saturday that Israel plans no "proposals or initiatives" for a cease-fire.

Sheep Flocks Dwindling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher prices for meat this year are biting deeper into the nation's dwindling flock of sheep and lambs, adding fuel to a downward trend which has persisted in the industry for many years, according to Agriculture Department experts.

"Sheepmen shipped an unusually large number of ewes to slaughter during the first eight months of 1973, with most of the increase coming in late spring and summer," the department said in a new Livestock and Meat Situation report.

Normally, about 93 per cent of the slaughter is comprised of lambs and yearlings with the remaining seven per cent coming from the ewe flock. But that proportion has not prevailed this year, due partly to higher market prices which have attracted sale of sheep — the mature animals —which might have been kept for breeding.

"Sheep accounted for 14 per cent of total federally inspected slaughter in July, representing the largest proportion since October 1952," the report said. "Drought conditions in the Northwest contributed to the selloff."

Prices of fed slaughter lambs on the San Angelo, Tex., market were about $33.50 per 100 pounds last January and rose to nearly $46 by early March before settling to the $35 to $40 range during May-August, the report said.

Constitution Convention Is Creating Problems

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas senators and representatives will be getting two different requests from two different sources this weekend asking how long they think the 1974 Constitution Convention should last.

The results will indicate whether the legislators, who are the 181 delegates to the convention, think they should take time out for political campaigns in the midst of writing a new constitution.

Speaker Price Daniel Jr., who hopes to be elected chairman of the historic convention, wrote all 181 delegates uring them to take a stand for a session no longer than 90 days.

Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, chairman of a convention planning subcommittee on structure and organization, sent all 181 delegates a questionnaire. The query asks if they want to schedule a five-month session, if they want to meet for three months, recess 60 days for the primary elections and return for a 60-day meeting, or if they want to plan for only a 90-day session.

"There are two compelling reasons for making a dedicated and diligent effort to do the job within a 90-day period," said Daniel's letter. "First of all the taxpayers of this state will be saved between $1 million and $2 million . . . Secondly, our convention will be the best prepared of any that has ever met in this nation."

Daniel also urged legislators to agree ahead of time to use the research and recommendations of the Texas Constitutional Revision Commission as a starting point for the convention.

The speaker said that "a predetermined and planned recess and postponement, without a sincerely and diligent effort to complete the convention's work prior to the political campaigns would undoubtedly be construed by those critics as confirming their worst fears and reasons for opposing the amendment."

Meier pointed out in his letter that 166 members of the convention (150 House members and 16 senators) will be involved in re-election campaigns for the first primary May 4 and possibly the runoff elections on June 1.

"Because an extension must be approved by two-thirds vote, it would appear that if a schedule of this type is to be utilized, early approval of the 60-day extension would be prudent in order that the delegates could make firm plans for their non-convention activities," Meier said.

The next meeting of the Senate-House joint planning committee is Oct. 27. However, Glenn Provost, executive director, said he doubted if all the replies could be returned by that time.

Anderson Says He's Innocent

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dale Anderson, successor to Spiro T. Agnew as Baltimore County executive, says he is innocent of charges brought as the result of a federal investigation which also has led to Agnew's resignation as vice president.

Appearing before U.S. District Judge Joseph H. Young Friday, Anderson pleaded innocent to charges of bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax evasion.

The charges, contained in a 43-count, superceding indictment which was returned on Oct. 4, center around allegations that engineers and contractors gave kickbacks to obtain government business. Similar allegations were made against Agnew.

In a related development, three local prosecutors met Friday to discuss possible state action against Agnew and agreed to hold off any investigation of the former vice president for the time being.

Anderson, 56, the only man indicted so far by the federal panel, was released on his own recognizance. He is to stand trial Jan. 7.

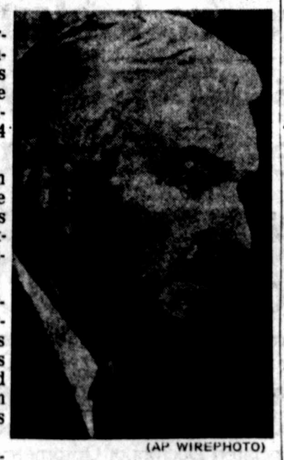

The bribery, conspiracy and extortion charges answered by Anderson are identical to those contained in an indictment returned against him Aug. 23. Anderson pleaded innocent to the original indictment Sept. 14. The new, superceding indictment adds four counts of tax evasion.

Anderson took over the county executive's post when Agnew was elected Maryland governor in 1966. Despite the indictment, Anderson has announced his intention to run for re-election next year.

Chandler was a third-generation publisher of the family-owned Times. He retired as publisher in 1960 in favor of his son Otis, then 33, but continued to preside over the expansion and diversification of the Times Mirror Co. into various fields.

Chandler and his wife, Dorothy Buffum "Buff" Chandler, were influential in Southern California's economic, political and cultural life.

He was born in Los Angeles Sept. 14, 1899. His grandfather, Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, was publisher from 1881 to 1917, and his father, Harry Chandler, was publisher from 1917 to 1944.

Chandler ran the Times — the biggest newspaper in the West — in much the same mold as his grandfather and father. Among other things, the newspaper generaly favored Republicans and opposed unions.

Recalling the 1940s and the 1950s, Chandler said in an interview, "We were kind of lopsided in those days. If we gave the Republicans a big story, we'd give the Democrats a small one. And we only gave management's side in labor disputes."

With son Otis directing the Times, the elder Chandler supervised the growth of the Times Mirror corporation.

Through acquisitions it became a publisher of encyclopedias, paperbacks, Bibles, dictionaries, medical books and periodicals, legal treatises, charts and maps.

The Times Mirror Co. also acquired the Dallas Times Herald, the Long Island, N.Y., Newsday and the Orange Coast Pilot in Costa Mesa, Calif.

Chandler described the company's operations as the "knowledge industry."

He once said: "In the world today, we are witnessing education and publishing rivaling the population explosion in dramatic growth. The necessities of life have always challenged man's ingenuity — now the distribution of knowedge has become the challenge of the sixties."

Chandler served on the board of directors of The Associated Press for nine years beginning in 1947. He was elected to one-year terms as second vice president in 1944 and 1945, and was elected first vice president in 1946 and 1955.

He was a trustee of the California Institute of Technology Pfaffinger Foundation, and a member of the California Club of Los Angeles and the Bohemian Club of San Francisco.

In addition to his widow and son, Chandler is survived by a daughter, Camilla C. Spear.

Private services were scheduled for Tuesday at the Harry Chandler Auditorium in Times Mirror Square.

Veterans Day Will Honor 29 Million

Veterans Day this year will honor more than 29 million Americans, the most in the nation's history, according to Jack Coker, director of the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Waco. Texas' veteran population has risen to a record 1,430,000.

More than half of the 43.5 million who served from the American Revolution through Vietnam are alive today, the VA says. The oldest in this group are the less than 2,000 veterans of the Spanish-American War with an average age of 93. Veterans of World War II represent the largest group, about 14 million. The current Vietnam Era has produced 6.6 million veterans.

Once known as Armistice Day, the event commemorated the end of World War I on Nov. 11, 1918. Following World War II, sentiment grew for the day to be a tribute to veterans of all wars. A Congressional resolution by Rep. Edwin K. Rees of Kansas was passed and signed into law in 1954.

National observance of Veterans Day was changed by Congress in 1968 to the fourth Monday in October. Many states, however, by legislation or proclamation, hold to the traditional Nov. 11 date.

Veterans Day will be observed locally as a holiday for government employes. Banks, federal offices and the Chamber of Commerce will be closed.

The Veterans Administration Hospital will hold open house 2-4 p.m. with tours led by American Legion and Ladies Auxiliary members. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited.

The 255-bed general medical-surgical hospital was opened in 950 and had admitted 62,901 patients as of Sept. 30 this year. It serves veterans from 57 counties in Texas and two counties in New Mexico.

Tech Pupil Dies In Road Mishap

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — A.C. Atkins, 19, a Texas Tech sophomore, was killed Friday night in a one-car accident between Odessa and Fort Stockton on FM 1053.

Investigators said Atkins apparently fell asleep while driving and the car hit a bridge abutment.

Want To Give Something To Someone? Try Town

CANTWELL, Alaska (AP) — Can't find the right gift for that person who has everything? Herman Cotter Jr. will sell you most of Cantwell.

The town comes complete with restaurant, motel, airstrip, two service stations, rentals, a generator and compressor for lights and wells and a ready-made 200-plus population.

Asking price: $750,000.

Cotter, who owns everything but the railroad station, post office and a few private lots, says he's tired of owning and running Cantwell and will be moving to Anchorage.

The other principal owner of the town, Robert Smith, lives in Minnesota.

Cantwell lies on the Anchorage-Fairbanks Highway 205 miles north of Anchorage in the shadow of Mt. McKinley National Park. It has been in the movies — if you remember "The Cheeckako," and "The Lure of the Yukon," both filmed during the 1920s.

Cantwell began in 1919 when John Carlson, a homesteader, built the first roadhouse in the area. Cotter says the early town was "a jumping-off place for the mines out of the Denali Highway."

On the 242 acres included in the sale, residents rent their homes from the owner and also work for him.

An Anchorage broker handling the sale said "the town has no taxes at all. It's beautiful, there's no town government — the owner runs things."

But for someone not used to relative isolation, Cantwell may be a problem. There's only one telephone and the snowfall averages 18 feet each year.

Less Wrecks, But More Are Dying

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas has had fewer fatal traffic accidents this year, but more people are dying, the Department of Public Safety reported Saturday.

The department said 2,858 persons have died in traffic accidents, 61 more than at this time a year ago although the total number of fatal accidents—2,345—is one less than last year.

Pedestrian Killed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A pedestrian, Lucio Garcia, 27, of San Antonio, was struck and killed early today by a hit-and-run vehicle on the city's south side, police said.

BS Exploration In Cash Position

For the first time in its history, Big Spring Exploration Inc. is on a cash basis.

This was part of the news at the annual stockholders meeting held Thursday at company headquarters, 611 Gregg. The switch in positions of the corporation was brought about by sale of all the drilling equipment of Roden Drilling Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of Big Spring Exploration.

Earnings per share (on 802,621 shares) was .041 cents, which compared with .003 the previous year, according to the year-end statement May 31. operating revenue had been pegged at $1,667,593, operating expenses at $1,439,158. Net earnings were $34,309.

However, on June 1 of this year, Roden sold all its rigs and allied equipment for $525,000, and this was used to pay off debts. The balance sheet showed Big Spring Exploration with assets of $826,556, liabilities of $565,955 on June 1. With consummation of the sale of drilling apparatus and liquidation of obligations, value of the stock approached 50 cents, it was indicated, about double the previous year's value.

The company now is taking deals and interests, among them one-tenth of a lease on 37,000 acres in Mississippi where majors have surrounding acreage. The company also brought in a new gas well at Rocky Point, Wyo., which flowed 1,400,000 cubic feet per day under 850 pounds pressure. It also is in process of renegotiating several other gas sale contracts.

Stockholders re-elected Dr. P. W. Malone, Ted O. Groebl, Dr. Jack Margolis and Dr. J. M. Woodall of Big Spring, and John B. Roden, Casper, Wyo., as directors. In turn Dr. Malone was re-elected chairman of the board, Roden as president, and Groebl, executive vice president who directs the operations.

Class Needs Help With Project

The performance of High Plains "discount" cottons in open-end spinning tests drew high interest from a majority of 25 cotton textile mill representatives visiting Lubbock Oct. 14-15 from Europe and the Far East as guests of the Lubbock Cotton Exchange and Plains Cotton Growers, Inc.

The Lubbock stop was part of the group's orientation tour of the U.S. cotton belt sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's foreign agriculture service, the National Cotton Council and Cotton Council International.

Albert H. Y. Chang, managing director of Nam Hwa Textiles Ltd. of Hong Kong, said "if these test results are confirmed it will call for new study by open-end mills to see if cheaper cottons can successfully replace the raw materials now in use."

Nazarene Church To Hold Revival

Former Big Spring pastor W. M. (Bill) Dorough will be the leader of a six-night revival next week at the Church of the Nazarene.

Sessions will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday with the Rev. Dorough also set to speak at the Sunday morning service.

The Rev. Dorough pastored in Big Spring 1958-1965. He now is pastor of First Church of the Nazarene in Lubbock, the largest Nazarene church in the West Texas district.

For 10 years he was district president of the Nazarene Young People's Society. He now serves on the district advisory board and is trustee of Bethany Nazarene College in Bethany, Okla.

Harvest Schedules In Texas Suffer

COLLEGE STATION, (AP) — Harvest schedules on Texas farms and ranches have suffered severely in the past few weeks because of poor weather, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service says.

Crops that have been damaged the most are cotton in South and Southeast Texas and rice and soybeans in the Coastal Plains, he said. Rains also have delayed the peanut harvest in Central Texas.

Fall vegetable plantings in South Texas and in the Central Plains also have been affected by the prolonged wet weather, Hutchison said.

Field work was at a standstill last week except in Far West Texas where the cotton harvest was in full swing and in the plains where the grain sorghum and soybean harvests made good progress.

GROWTH BOOSTED

Abundant soil moisture is boosting forage growth on pastures and ranges so that grazing conditions are the best in years, he said. Wheat and oats also are making good growth but many fields remain to be planted.

Some wheat fields in the plains are providing limited grazing, and stockers are beginning to move into the area.

Some fall vegetables are being harvested in the San Antonio-Winter Garden area, Hutchison said.

Hutchison said this year's pecan crop will be light although some counties in Far West Texas expect a good harvest.

District agriculture agents gave these reports:

Panhandle: Scattered rains left soil moisture at adequate levels in most counties. Wheat planting is about 85 per cent complete. Early fields are making good growth. Grain sorghum harvesting has been active in the southwest. Range and cattle conditions are good.

South Plains: Cotton defoliation is active in southern counties. Some stripping operations are undar way. Hail damaged some open bolls. Scattered rains have delayed some corn and grain sorghum harvesting. Wheat is making good growth. Cattle are grazing grain sorghum stubble.

Rolling Plains: Scattered rains delayed cotton and grain sorghum harvesting. Only a few bales of cotton have been harvested. Most farmers will wait for a killing frost before beginning harvest operations. The diapause boll weevil control program is underway in a few counties. Early wheat fields are providing limited grazing. Peanut harvesting has started.

North Central: Wet weather is causng some cotton crop deteriation. Only 20 per cent of the crop is harvested. The peanut harvest is at the halfway point. About 10 per cent of the pecan crop has been harvested. Cattle have an abundance of grazing.

Northeast: Weather has delayed the cotton and corn harvests. Corn yields have been about average. Some sweetpotatoes are being harvested. Planting of winter pastures is 50 to 90 per cent complete. Pasture and range conditions are above average.

Far West: Early cotton yields are good. The pecan harvest has started. Alfalfa cutting is about complete. Small grains are making good growth. Ranges and livestock are in good condition.

HARVEST STARTED

West Central: The cotton harvest has just started in some counties. A few fields of grain sorghum remain to be harvested. Small grains are making good growth. Some greenbug damage is appearing. Heavy rains caused some flooding in Kimble and San Saba counties.

Council Will Consider Resolution This Week

The City Council will consider a resolution denying the monthly cost-of-gas adjustment request of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. at its regular meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Pioneer is seeking a monthly rate adjustment clause in approximately 56 cities in its West Texas distribution system to reflect changes in the cost of gas in the field.

The resolution prepared by the city staff denying the request claims there are no emergency conditions to justify the requested adjustment and agrees that Big Spring will participate with the other cities in the Pioneer system in a study of future requests.

The council will also be asked for permission to submit a grant application for federal funding of a softball field complex at property licensed to the city at the Big Spring State Hospital.

Concerning equipment purchases, the council will award bids on a half-ton van for the warehouse, a riding greens mower for the golf course and new police uniforms. Staff members will seek permission to advertise for bids on a Cushman scooter, a three-fourths ton pickup, a motor grader, a compact front loader and a ditching machine.

Permission will be sought to advertise for bids for paving around the new city service center and for bids for the sale of surplus property.

Council members will be asked to approve on second reading a zone change on a 27.94 acre tract from south Section 32 and a 16.15 acreage tract from Section 32 from single family to light commercial. Ted Ferrell is requesting the change.

The council will rule on Mrs. Claudio Lopez's claim for damages in a Sept. 7 accident and on a request by John Tucker for sewer service at Sixth and Lancaster.

Plan Shaping Up To Clean Water System

COLORADO CITY — The city has developed a plan to make water system improvements in an effort to rid city residents of rust colored water that occurs from time to time.

The advice of consultants has been sought in recent months and efforts are being made to clean the lines with water softeners. The work has been partially successful as the number of complaints received about rusty water has decreased since the effort was begun.

The plan to replace old pipe where rust has accumulated and is dislodged by changes in water pressure was requested by Councilmen Rick Perkin and Eddie Piland.

City Manager J. A. Sadler Jr., drew up the plan, based on taking care of the areas first that have the worst problems.

The plan, which does not cover all of the city's water system, will give a priority to the city's water department work schedule and will cost a total of $54,700.25 which will be paid for out of the existing funds and the possibility of an increase in water and sewer rates.

Members of the council appear to favor increasing these rates in order to proceed with improving the water system as soon as possible.

Seeking Advisory Panel For Course

The possibility of setting up an advisory committee to work with an adult television program organized by SMU and Channel 13 will be explored here Friday noon.

Mayor Wade Choate, a graduate of SMU, is hosting a meeting of civic leaders to get their reaction to a program which might be supplemental to Howard County Junior College and graduate programs here.

The SMU-Channel 13 plan is for those who cannot afford to be uprooted for formal on-campus training. Students would make use of television instruction, study independently, then come together in summary to discuss with a representative of SMU what had been gained from the study. A representative from SMU will be here Friday for the luncheon at the Blue Room of the Big Spring Country Club.

Legion Planning Children's Party

The American Legion post and the auxiliary are combining for a Halloween party for children of Legionnaires, said Troy Melton, commander.

The party will begin 7 p.m. Oct. 31 in the Legion Hall, which will be gaily decorated for the occasion, including pumpkin jack-o-lanterns. A special program of entertainment has been planned to keep children constructively occupied for the evening, said Melton.

Flight Cutback May Save 500,000 Gallons Daily

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's three largest domestic airlines, in an effort to raise profits and lower fuel consumption, agreed Friday to cut 82 daily flights on 15 routes.

They also agreed to use smaller aircraft on five other routes.

The agreements, if approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board, could mean less congestion at some of the nation's busiest airports. But it also could mean air passengers will have trouble getting a seat on the flight they want — especially during holiday seasons.

United Air Lines, Trans World Airlines and American Airlines reached the agreements after two days of negotiations. Similar talks are scheduled to start between other carriers Oct. 31.

The biggest cutback will come on the New York City-Chicago run, where the three carriers agreed to eliminate 15 of the 70 daily round trips — or 30 one-way flights per day.

The carriers also agreed to cut three round trips between Philadelphia and Los Angeles, and two round trips on the Boston-San Francisco and Philadelphia-San Francisco routes.

Two round trips each day also would be cut from the following routes: New York-Denver; Washington-Denver; Chicago-Las Vegas, Detroit-Los Angeles; New York-Cincinnati and Boston-Los Angeles. New York-Dayton and Philadelphia-Chicago would lose one round trip and one one-way flight each day. Washington-San Diego and Hartford, Conn.-Los Angeles each would lose one round trip daily.

New York-Las Vegas flights would be reduced on weekdays by two round trips but the number of weekend flights would not be changed.

The three carriers also agreed to substitute smaller airplanes for some of the flights on the Washington-San Francisco, Cleveland-Los Angeles, Chicago-San Diego, Chicago-Phoenix, New York-Phoenix routes.

City's Fire Department Has Two Fem Members

COAHOMA — The Coahoma Fire Department is liberated, with two women members, Mrs. Robert Garten and Mrs. Richard Gilmore.

The group also elected new officers for the year including Robert Helm, president, Richard Gilmore, fire marshal and James Cotten, secretary. Mrs. Garten was named reporter.

The group elected a Mr. and Mrs. Volunteer Fire Department and a fire department sweetheart at a chili supper held recently in honor of the new department members.

Mr. V.F.D. is Richard Gilmore of Coahoma. He has served with the department for over 10 years and has served as chief. He is presently marshal. He also attended A & M's fire-fighting school.

Mrs. V.F.D. will be Mrs. Garten of Coahoma, who is serving as reporter. She is a member of the Young Homemakers of America.

The V.F.D. sweetheart is Miss Barbara Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ward. A sophomore at Coahoma, she served two years as cheerleader and is a member of the Coahoma Bulldogettes basketball team.

The three who received these honors represented the department in the Homecoming parade.

In a meeting this week, the group heard a lecture on pulminary care by the instructor from the intensive care unit of the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Science Hopeful It Can Eradicate Imported Ant

By The Associated Press

The imported fire ant, a multimillion dollar headache in nine southeastern states, has come under the close scrutiny of scientists who hope to eradicate the pest.

Believed carried to the southeastern United States from South America aboard a freighter in 1918, the fire ant has spread from the Carolinas to Texas.

Agriculture officials in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana, North and South Carolina, Florida, Arkansas and Texas bemoan the $20 million annual loss wrought by the smallish creatures.

SHARP BITE

Thousands of persons feel the pain of the ant's sharp bite each year, and some develop allergic reactions. Some scientists contend the ant's bite leaves a blister which invites secondary infection.

Environmentalists contend, however, that control of the ants through the use of chemical Mirex can be more harmful than the ants themselves.

They have called for more study as a prelude to further use of insecticides on lands already laden with chemical agents.

As a result, hearings on the use of Mirex have been scheduled by the Environmental Protection Agency, beginning in December.

Similar hearings led to the banning of DDT.

"Right now, Mirex is all we have," said Dr. Michael Glancey, whose staff at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Service in Gulfport is attempting to isolate scents carried by the ants, for possible use as biological weapons.

Glancey said it could take "three or more years of research" to develop an adequate substitute for Mirex, which was developed specifically to combat the fire ant.

The USDA, in cooperation with the fire ant-infested states, planned a massive Mirex poisoning campaign in the late 1960s. But the plan was blocked by charges the chemical was harmful to other forms of life and that it retained its potency for lengthy periods.

New federal guidelines allow aerial application of Mirex only to prevent further spreading of the ants or to relieve emergency situations.

Glancey's staff, and USDA scientists in Florida, now have turned to the search for a Mirex substitute, or for some means of interrupting the ant's life cycle.

In their studies, scientists have "screened close to 3,000 chemicals," Glancey said. "But so far we haven't found anything on the order of Mirex."

The Gulf Coast USAD laboratory has met with success in efforts to isolate scents carried by the ants, believed the key in efforts to break the fire ant life cycle.

Isolating the scents "is difficult and time consuming," said Glancey "We must develop techniques to show that what we actually have is a phermone (scent) and then find out what we can do with it."

COULD BE USED

Once isolated, he said, the scents could be used to disrupt the ant's suicidal mating flight, cause worker ants to ignore the queen ant and her brood, or trick the ants into bringing a lethal material into their nest.

The scientsts have reproduced a scent which is given off by queen ants and recognized by other ants in the colony.

This scent "has given us a delivery system," Glancey said, and could be used to coat a poison, virus or other material, with the worker ants handling its transportation to the queen's chamber.

The researchers also are attempting to isolate a scent which attracts winged males out of the colony for their suicidal mating flight.

Glancey said that if the males could be tricked into leaving earlier or later than in normal mating patterns, there would be no virgin queen ants to participate in the mating flight.

During the fire ant research, Glancey and his staff have uncovered a complicating element—multiple-queen colonies.

Normally a fire ant colony has one queen," he said. "She is the weak link and if you can elimniate her you have killed the colony" because there would be no reproduction.

MORE THAN ONE

However, during studies in the Jackson area and in Southeast Mississippi, the researchers found colonies with more than one queen.

The colonies near Jackson have three or four queens, he said, and "a colony near the Alabama line was found with well over 10,000 queens."

Glancey said worker ants normally kill queens unlucky enough to fall near the next after mating, but in the multi-queen colony "the ants will accept any other queen.

"We are going to have to find out how big an area these multiple-queen colonies cover and why this change has taken place," he said. "We don't know whether the change was evolutionary or environmental, but this could change our attitude in control measures."

Despite questions raised about Mirex, agriculture officials say the chemical is needed to control the fire ant.

A recent spot check in Mississippi, Georgia and Louisiana, showed the ants to be a continuing problem.

One official said the ants "take over a pasture, and livestock are unable to feed, and a field heavily infested with ants makes it almost impossible to bale hay."

A spokesman for the Georgia Department of Agriculture said he has received letters asking for assistance in treating areas "where children and adults are being stung. We are also receiving letters about problems with gathering hay."

A Louisiana agriculture department spokesman said farmers have reported losses of young pigs and calves because of the ants. He said one farmer has reported "his horse died as result of fire ant bites."

In Mississippi, officials said they had received report of young calves being killed.

Gambling Profits Used For Israeli Hospitals

TEL AVIV (AP) — Every year, thousands of Israelis are treated in hospitals built with gambling profits.

And about 600,000 students, or almost three out of four Israeli youngsters, attend schools built with easy loans from a gambling organization.

In a country where private betting is illegal, gambling is big business for the overnment, says Moshe Talmon, the manager of Israel's state-run lottery, Mifal Hapayis.

While some U.S. states debate whether to allow government-controlled gaming, Israel has discovered that playing the age-old numbers racket is too profitable to pass up.

"We averae nearly $400,000 each week in profits, which go to building hospitals and schools," said Talmon, who estimated that 600,000 Israelis, or nearly a fifth of the population, buy lottery tickets each week. They are sold at brightly colored booths dotting street corners throughout the country.

A few buyers — as many as 200 a year — get almost wealthy overnight. Two top prizes of $36,000 are awarded weekly. That's enough to start a small business or to buy a small apartment in Tel Aviv's inflated market, which Talmon says is what most big winners do with their winnings.

The idea of the lottery came up in 1949, a year after Israel won its independence. The country was absorbing thousands of refugees from Hitler's death camps and impoverished Jews from the Arab world.

When Israel Rokach, then Tel Afiv's mayor, proposed a municipal lottery to raise money for medical facilities for the new immigrants, the finance-starved government turned the idea into a national institution. Mifal Hapayis began operations in 1951.

Since then, Mifal Hapayis money has built more than one-third of the country's 159 hospitals.

Talmon says the lottery system has succeeded because "we are able to sell our tickets at a reasonable price." Each ticket costs 95 cents and about one out of three tickets wins a prize at least equalling the initial investment.

Talmon says 60 per cent of the $400,000 weekly intake is returned in prize money and 30 per cent is used in public building. The other 10 per cent is spent in running costs.

He says the government-regulated lottery has contributed to keeping organized crime out of Israel.

Life Of Stock Broker One Of Peaks, Valleys

By ANN STEVENS

"It's better to have bad news behind you than staring you in the face," reflected local broker Dan Wilkins, explaining the rapid rise in the stock market the day after the resignation of Vice President Agnew.

::The day the vice president resigned, the Dow Jones Average dropped over 13 points. The next day, it rose over 15 points," recalled Wilkins. "The market took a day to evaluate the news about Agnew and then took its own course."

Wilkins noted that the bulk of securities orders placed that day by his local clients were sell orders. "There was an apparent selling sentiment here the day Agnew resigned, but I can't say that the resignation was the reason."

DAN WILKINS

ANTICIPATES

The key to the trend in the stock market is this, he said, "The market anticipates future events and then reflects the public's immediate reaction to them." He claimed the effect on the market caused by Agnew's resignation was not nearly as serious as that which would have occurred if the President himself had resigned.

Wilkins is the registered representative or "customer's man," both other names for broker, at the local office of Edward D. Jones & Co., a registered firm of the New York Stock Exchange.

Since opening an office, the first for Jones & Co. in Texas, here in 1967, Wilkins said he has done business with 1,200-1,500 different people locally including bankers, lawyers, doctors, businessmen, farmers and ordinary working people.

The company deals in bonds, listed stocks, over the counter stocks, tax shelters, commodities, mutual funds, insurance and the complete gamut of financial offerings.

"One day recently I handled a half a million dollars," he noted. "That was a good day."

Outlining his start in the brokerage business, Wilkins recalled working his way through law school in a hamburger stand in his home state, Missouri, after getting out of the Air Force.

GOT IDEA FROM AD

"One day my wife read in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that Demsey Tegeler, a now defunct exchange firm, was looking for registered representatives. I thought I was intelligent enough, so I looked into it," he remembered.

Interviewing with different companies, Wilkins said he chose Edward Jones because of its "unique philosophy of going into the smaller towns, setting up one-man offices and giving young fellows a chance."

After finishing six months of stock exchange training and passing the New York Stock Exchange Examination and National Association of Security Dealers Examination, he said he was allowed by Jones & Co. to start his own office in any town of his choice.

"I had never heard of Big Spring, Texas., until one of the trainees in the class ahead of me said he would open an office either in Las Cruces, N.M., or Big Spring. He picked Las Cruces, and after doing a little research, I decided to come look over Big Spring," Wilkins said.

MET BANKERS

Wilkins recalled coming here and having lunch with bankers John Currie and Jimmy Taylor. "After talking with them, I got the opinion that Big Spring would support a one-man office."

He opened his office in the Permian Building some three months later, and although business was slow at first, it began picking up every month. Local lawyers gave him a boost in getting started, he said.

Purpose of a broker is to facilitate the bringing together of buyer and seller, to render financial advice and to help people arrive at a method of meeting their financial objectives, he said.

"But a broker is like a doctor," he commented. "He can't diagnose your problems or recommend a cure until he knows all about your financial health."

Analyzing the current market situation, Wilkins pointed to the general upward trend during the past month and a half after the first eight months of the year when the market was "tough."

PREDICTS DROP

"Obviously this (upward trend) can't last forever. The temptation to sell will increase. I believe the market will soon undergo a period of consolidation and maybe even go down some and correct about a third of the recent rise," he said.

While acknowledging that current events affect the market, he said the basic thing affecting stock prices over the long term is corporation profits.

One current event which he said is having a tremendous affect on the market is the Middle East War. International oil companies are being hurt, he said, while national oil companies are not.

He pointed to the example of Texaco stock, which has dropped rather sharply contrasted with that of Phillips Petroleum which gets its oil outside of the Middle East area and which has risen sharply.

Besides operating as a broker, Wilkins serves on the School Board and is a deacon at First Christian Church.

Consumer Can Help Agency Do Its Job

There are many Texas consumers who purchase a new or used automobile based on false representations about its performance or as to warranty coverage.

Of they may pay for repairs that were not actually required on an automobile, television, or other household appliance. Some invest hard-earned cash on a salesman's promise that he can become rich in a few months simply by recruiting other consumers to invest similarly. Others buy a set of encyclopedias or fire alarms from a door-to-door salesman without being informed that he may cancel any contract executed on a sale made in one's home within three days, or enter into any number of other consumer-related transactions without ever knowing that there are new state laws existing in the consumer's favor in these situations.

Attorney General John Hill's Lubbock Regional Office, which was the first established to better enforce consumer protection laws and handle consumer complaints, has recorded over 425 such cases from the Panhandle-South Plains region since its opening, according to John H. Richards, the assistant in charge.

Richards explained that eliminating fraudulent schemes and consumer vices from the marketplace could be more effectively achieved if the consumer would complain immediately to his office and not wait.

The worst thing that happens is when a person loses his money or property by unlawful means and forgets about his loss, chalking it up to experience. This does not help the next unsuspecting consumer who falls victim to the same unlawful act or practice.

"Although there are some who do not recognize a deceptive or unlawful practice in a consumer transaction, the important thing is that a suspecting consumer contact our office, inform us of a questionable business practice, and then we will look into the matter and determine if the practice is unlawful under our state laws," Richards said.

"We, of course, cannot guarantee any desired results. What we can guaranee is that we will do whatever we can within the framework of the law, to help resolve consumer problems to the satisfaction of both consumer and merchant on an informal basis if possible.

However, official action will be taken if the law and facts so warrant," he said. The Attorney General is empowered to stop deceptive practices by injunction in addition to seeking civil penalties for volating the law. The Lubbock office has obtained injunctions against business operations in Abilene, Lubbock, Amarillo and Midland-Odessa thus far.

Consumers are also encouraged to contact their own attorneys now that the new Texas Consumer Protection Act allows for the recover of three times the amount of actual damages, plus court costs, and attorneys fees where monies or property are taken from him in violation of the Act.

Complaints may be mailed to: Attoney General's Office, County Office Building, 806 Broadway, Room 312, Lubbock, Texas, and the telephone number is (806) 747-5238.

Experts Differ As To How Old West Looks In 2000

By TOM SIEBERT
Associated Press Writer

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — What will the West be like in the year 2000?

Here are some conflicting possibilities that seven experts outlined in a seminar on "Alternative Futures in the West" recently at Colorado State University:

—The 17 states west of the Missouri River will kick off their cowboy boots, throw the buffalo hides in the corner and save most of their magnificent landscape.

—Solar cells, geothermal and nuclear power and the hydrogen engine will make energy one of the earth's most plentiful commodities, but a new environmental ethic will see it used conservatively.

—Three hundred mile per hour Amtrak trains will connect the refurbished cities and new towns that sprung up across the West to replace obsolete suburbia and shoddy mountain developments abandoned as ghost towns.

—Population in the United States will stabilize at 220 million that of the West will level off slightly above present totals.

PROJECTS FOLLOW

—The Glen Canyon Dam in Arizona will be torn down as a symbol of old unthinking technology, and other massive restoration projects will follow.

—Nearly 100 per cent of the region's water and other resources will be recycled.

Or, the participants said, the future might be much less utopian:

—100 million new people in the United States, with many fleeing the overcrowded East for the plains, mountain and Pacific northwest states.

—Redirection of some of the vast irrigation projects supporting western agriculture to support the new population.

—10 fold increases in major metropolitan areas, with young people continuing to seek out cities like Denver, San Francisco, Dallas and Houston.

—Compromise between spiraling economic growth and environmental pressures, but improvement in big city pollution still limited by available tax money.

—An overburdened East looking on the West more and more as a dumping place for the dissident poor of the ghettos.

—A food crisis even greater than the energy shortage of the 70's and a revitalized western agriculture striving to produce the one American commodity cheap enough to compete in world markets.

—An introverted, isolationist West banding together to halt growth in the face of popuation pressures.

—All out political warfare between overburdened eastern states and a West reluctant to help.

The discussions didn't lead to any definitive conclusions on what possibilities are most likely to occur, said Victor Koelzer, the seminar's host.

"One of the things we agreed on was that the future is awfully difficult to predict," said Koelzer, a civil engineering professor at Colorado State and former chairman of the National Water Commission.

The presentations made here recently were not meant to be predictions as such, said Koelzer, but scenarios based on different points of view. Additional seminars may be expanded to include planners from eastern states as well, he added.

Other participants in the three-day session included Roger P. Hansen, director of the Rocky Mountain Center on Environment, Larry Moss of the Sierra Club of Southern California and Eugene K. Peterson of the Pacific Northwest River Basins Commission. Also, Victor R. Champlin, a Denver realtor, former Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., and Lynton K. Caldwell, an Indiana University political scientist.

MOST OPTIMISTIC

Hansen and Moss had the most optimistic viewpoints, saying advances in technology could produce an environmentally responsible outlook in the 17 western states.

Total planning for the environment is imperative, said Hansen, and in the long run will also prove the most workable and economical means of achieving a high quality of life. A new "land ethic" will have to replace the idea that the universe exists for man's sole use.

Concentrating on demographic projections and resource availability, especially water Peterson and Koelzer said that with planning a much greater population could be accommodated in the region.

The frontier ethic of rugged individualism must suffer but the amount of land needed to support millions more people in the West is tiny compared to the vast areas for parks and recreation that will still be available, said Koelzer.

Beneficaries Responsible For More Of Hospital Bill

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger recently announced that a Medicare beneficiary will be responsible in 1974 for the first $84 of his hospital bill, an increase of $12 over the present amount.

The law does not give the Secretary any discretion in setting the Medicare hospital deductible but requires him to determine it for each year on the basis of the average daily cost of hospital care under the program. The base year is the calendar year thus, the current increase is based on 1972 data and reflects increased hospital costs in that year preceding the Secretary's announcement.

When the hospital deductible amount changes, the law requires the Secretary to make comparable changes in the dollar amounts a Medicare beneficiary pays toward a hospital stay of more than 60 days, or a posthospital extended care stay of more than 20 days.

In 1974, when a Medicare beneficiary has a hospital stay of more than 60 days, he will pay $21 a day for the 61st through the 90th day, up from the present $18 per day. If he has a posthospital stay of over 20 days in an extended care facility, he will pay $10.50 per day toward the cost of the 21st day through the 100th day, up from the present $9 per day.

If a Medicare beneficiary ever needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period, he can draw on his "lifetime reserve" of 60 days, and will pay $42 for each day used instead of the present $36 per day. Secretary Weinberger also explained that the increase is consistent with the Cost of Living Council's policy governing price adjustments in the health industry.

Oil As A Weapon

As fighting continues in the new Israel-Arab confontation, the stickier it becomes for superpowers to apply the brakes and calm the stormy episode. The longer fighting persists, the more is the temptation to engage in acrimonious pressures or to rush in with assistance that may complicate matters.

A case in point is the Arab resort to using oil as a weapon. The first indication was announcement that prices would be raised 17 per cent. Then came word that some countries would slow down production (and export) by five per cent, and Saudi Arabia, the country which furnishes the major portion of U.S. imports from the Mid-East, announced a 10 per cent slowdown. One tiny shiekdom came out with an outright ban on shipments to the United States — all manifestly in response to U.S. shipment of arms to Israel (which the U.S. claimed was on the same basis as Soviet shipments to Syria — replacements of arms lost in combat).

It may well be that the Arab nations will continue to use their oil, not as vise, but as a blackjack. What seems wise to them seems folly to us, for if we are to face this threat in the future, it is better to face up to it now when we are dependent upon the Mid-East for only some five or six per cent of our total oil supply. We would feel the pinch, but it would not cripple.

One American energy market expert speculated that these developments "might well be in our long run best interest" in that it would stimulate our efforts to find other energy supplies, or to balance our energy demands with energy supplies. Were that to happen, the Arabs ultimately would lose out on their best and most promising market at their own price — the United States.

The most hopeful solution is that the United States and Russia may somehow soon persuade the Arabs and the Israeli to stop their shooting and get down seriously to the business of trying to heal this ancient enmity and this territorial sore that has festered for the past decade. Perhaps then, the Arabs would be in a position to retreat from a short-sighted policy born of anger but which could in the long run hurt them more than us.

Still A Good Report

Bank deposits and total resources established new records here on the call for condition as of Oct. 17.

Deposits were up better than 10 per cent, but a sober analysis of them give cause for restraint. The total is inflated by several million dolars oil payment money which had been deposited but not withdrawn on the day of the call. Had the call been the day before or the day after, that much difference might have been reflected in the totals.

Still, after removing this factor, the gain must be 3 per cent or more, a healthy increase.

This sets the stage for what promises to be a great fourth quarter, if the weather gives us a continued break for the next month. We might come to the end of the year with the third-quarter distortion wiped out and replaced with solid gain.

Still Timely

Around The Rim

Walt Finley

The bumper sticker "Will Rogers never met Spiro T. Agnew" will probably be a best-seller before this year ends.

AS FOR THE origin of the quotation on which the sticker was based, Rogers attended the Tremont Temple Baptist Church in Boston in June, 1930, and after the sermon the pastor, Dr. James W. Brougher, asked Will to say a few words.

He said:

"When I die, my epitaph, or whatever you call those signs on gravestones, is going to read: 'I joked about every prominent man of my time, but I never met a man I didn't like.'

"I am so proud that I can hardly wait to die so it can be carved, and when you come to my grave, you will find me sitting there, proudly reading it."

THE BOSTON Globe printed the remarks and other papers spread the word. The Okie humorist said it on many other occasions.

Unfortunately we do not know what he would have specifically said about Richard Nixon or George McGovern or John Connally, Sargent Shriver or Agnew. But it would have been both insulting and true.

I spent much of last week browsing through "The Will Rogers Book," by Paula McSpadden Love, his niece, to see what he had to say about politicians. I found everything he said pertinent today. Here some of them are, without quotation marks:

EVERYBODY sure was jumpy during the late uprising (the Roosevelt-Hoover campaign of 1932). They had a vote in their pocket and a chip on their shoulder, and any insinuation made against their hero was just too bad for you.

If they would just stop to think, I have written on nothing but politics for years . . . I read politics, talk politics, know personally almost every prominent politician, like'em and they are my friends, but I can't help it if I have seen enough of it to know there is some boloney in it.

A politician is not as narrow-minded as he forces himself to be.

A man's thoughts are naturally on his next term more than his country.

IF SOME efficiency expert would work out a scheme where each would be paid according to his ability, I think we would save a lot of money. Once a man holds a public office, he is absolutely no good for honest work.

Nothing is as short-sighted as a politician, unless it's a delegation of them. They can ruin you quicker than unseasonable weather.

It's awful hard to get people interested in corruption unless they get some of it. Promise something in return for something whether it is a post office or an oil well.

COMMON SENSE is not an issue in politics; it's an affliction.

Everybody figures politics according to what they have accumulated during the last couple of years. Every guy looks in his pocket and then votes.

If you ever injected truth into politics, you would have no politics.

You can't believe a thing you read in regard to official's statements. The minute anything happens . . . it's just like a cold night, everybody is trying to cover up.

We've got the most thorough training in every line of business but statesmanship, and for that you just decide overnight "I'm a statesman."

A LOBBYIST is a person that is supposed to help a politician make up his mind, not only to help him, but pay him.

It ain't much relief just to transfer your debts from one party to another adding a little more in the bargain.

. . . This country runs in spite of parties; in fact parties are the biggest handicaps we have to contend with.

If the Democrats never split, there would be no such thing as a Republican.

A Democrat never adjourns. He is born, becomes of voting age and starts right in arguing over something, and his political adjournment is his date with the undertaker.

Republicans take care of the big money, for big money takes care of them.

THERE AIN'T no finer folks living than a Republican who votes the Democratic tkcket.

Nothing, not even bad food, can ruin a Democratic dinner like some Republican sneaking in.

My Answer

BILLY GRAHAM

Recently I heard a minister say from the pulpit: "As far as I'm concerned, the blood of a chicken would have been as effective as the blood of Christ." I was shocked by this, for I have always been taught that the blood of Christ is what saves us. What is your view? O.H.H.

Whatever basis the clergyman had for that statement, it wasn't the Bible.

Early in the Old Testament, we are told that life was in the blood, (Leviticus 17:11). Accordingly, blood was used in the consecration of tabernacle, temple vessels, altars and priests. Blood was later required in offerings made to atone for sin.

Perhaps the reason for all this is not easy to see, but it stems from the idea that in the life principle of the blood, God's own life was present. The blood of sacrifices then was the returning to God of the life of the man for whom the beasts stood.

Over against the "blood unity" was sin — the radical breach in the relationship. God needed to provide a permanent sacrifice of atonement, and Christ became that sacrifice (see the "suffering servant" of Isaiah's prophecy in chapter 49).

The epistle of the Hebrews finds in Jesus the fulfillment and extension of all the sacrificial systems of Judaism, and holds that the shedding of blood is essential to the very idea of remission (7:26-28; 9:22-26).

Paul says unequivocally that Jesus Christ is the one mediator between God and man; that by the blood of His cross (Colossians 1:20), the sin barrier was removed.

My view is that what you were taught is correct.

Energy Crises Rises Again

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A rapid-fire series of events in the Middle East and Washington turned a harsh spotlight on the United States' energy worries this past week.

On Tuesday, six Persian Gulf nations unilaterally announced price and tax changes which sharply increased the cost to Western oil companies and other buyers of standard light Arabian crude oil.

The next day, 10 Arab countries declared a 5 per cent reduction in oil production effective immediately, with further 5 per cent monthly cuts to come each month until and unless Israel were to evacuate the territories it occupied in the 1967 war.

SAUDI ARABIA CUT

And on Thursday, Saudi Arabia, by far the Middle East's biggest oil producing country, announced its own oil production cutback — by 10 per cent immediately, with further 5 per cent monthly reductions to start in December "unless the United States modifies its current position in the Middle East War."

The announcement added that if it weren't successful soon in getting the United States to change its position, "the Saudi Arabian kingdom will stop the flow of oil to America."

Government and oil industry experts were still studying the complex situation at the weekend. But it was generally agreed that, while American businesses and consumers wouldn't feel many dramatic effects immediately, the series of developments still contained plenty of cause for concern.

SMALL PER CENT

Figures released by the Nixon administration last Monday listed Arab oil production as accounting for only 6 per cent of the 17 million barrels of oil consumed each day in the United States.

William Simon, chairman of the President's Oil Policy Committee, said the nation could get along on as little as 14 million barrels daily if its businesses and people were willing to make an all-out conservation effort.

Thus the early impact was expected to be much less painful in this country than in some of the nations of Europe and Asia. In Great Britain, for example, where the bulk of the oil consumed comes from the Middle East, there were immediate expectations of sharp increases in the price of gasoline, and rationing.

GROWING DEPENDENCE

The main U.S. worries centered on the longer term outlook. Forecasts in Washington see a rapidly growing American dependence on oil from the Middle East through the rest of this decade.

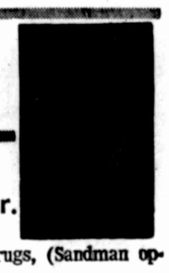

Simultaneously with all this, the House was passing by an overwhelming margin a bill to require the President to take a major role in deterining how the nation's oil and petroleum product supplies should be distributed.

The Senate has already passed a similar measure, as Americans contemplate the possibility of heating oil shortages in the approaching winter.

The Week's Business

- Arab countries unilaterally begin squeeze on production
- Five per cent per month until Israel quits, they say
- Saudi Arabia makes it 10 per cent and threatens total halt
- U.S. could get by with all-out conservation program
- But long-term outlook causes the greatest concern here

And In New Jersey

William F. Buckley Jr.

There aren't many conspicuous political contests this year. In New York City the odds heavily favor Abraham Beame, a moderate, over the opposition, outstanding among whom is John Marchi, a gentleman legislator of such unsurpassable integrity as to make him something of a political phenomenon.

IN CALIFORNIA the big question is whether the people will vote to put a limitation on the tax. It is a moment of breath-catching political opportunity, and if California says yes, surely the next step is to introduce similar legislation in Congress.

And then there is New Jersey. New Jersey is a funny state. It is full of terribly nice people who seem to have a genius for misgovernment. Everybody is always going to jail in New Jersey, or failing that, just barely staying out of jail. Perhaps it is the climate. Or perhaps, as in Boston, a distinguished tradition of corruption.

This year there are two gentlemen running against corruption. The Democrats have a Harvard lawyer, Brendan Byrne, who as lawyer and prosecutor and judge has been in and out of New Jersey politics for many years. The Republicans have a big tough lawyer, elected to Congress six or seven years ago, who did the rather unusual thing of upsetting an incumbent governor in a primary fight this spring. He is Charles Sandman, a tough-talking, fluent, hard-working reformer of some wit, prodigiously used at the expense of his Democratic adversary.

THE ISSUE in New Jersey is corruption only in the sense that everyone is always concerned about corruption, and though Watergate is said to have elevated corruption to special status as a campaign issue, it is more likely that, in New Jersey, Watergate has simply made the state feel at home.

Sandman has elected to fight on much the same issue that, at the other end of the continent, Ronald Reagan has proposed Californians fight over: taxation. The issue in New Jersey is whether to have a state income tax, and whether to have a statewide property tax. After that comes busing (Sandman opposes), parochial aid (Sandman is for it), and crime and drugs, (Sandman opposes).

IT HAS BEEN difficult, apparently, for Democratic candidate Byrne to decide just how he should come down on the issues, and this of course is a problem Democrats have all over the country. Last January, for instance, Byrne was in favor of a state income tax. A few weeks ago he was saying "I have said loud and clear that I do not think we need an income tax in the foreseeable future." The trouble is that the foreseeable future, for Mr. Byrne, is about 10 days, or two weeks. Between Sept. 18 when he recommended a statewide property tax and Oct. 3 when his press secretary said he had not recommended it, was two whole weeks, something of a record.

Anyone who wants to know what Mr. Byrne's view on capital punishment is can take one of three choices with absolute confidence of finding an authority in the collected work of Candidate Byrne: 1) unqualifiedly opposed; 2) qualifiedly opposed; 3) qualifiedly in favor. By the end of the campaign, one will probably have authority for saying that Byrne is 4) unqualifiedly in favor. At least on the matter of a constitutional amendment to prohibit abortion on demand, Mr. Byrne is absolutely clear; he is neither for nor against it.

ONE WOULD think that Charles Sandman would have an easy time under the circumstances, but not so: there are the usual problems, including shortage of money, a hostile press, divisions within the party. But he may make it, and this would be very good news.

Call For Diplomacy

WASHINGTON — One fateful consequence of the war in the Middle East is the way the Nixon-Kissinger initiative with the Soviet Union has become a target. This centerpiece of the Administration's foreign policy is being shot at from every side.

THE INTENSE feeling of the Israelis and their partisans in this country is understandable. They feel the Soviet supply of advanced weapons gave Egypt and Syria an initial break and they believe, probably mistakenly, that Moscow encouraged the attack. The issue of free emigration for Jews from the Soviet Union is another reason for deep emotion.

In another class are the cold war warriors who are happy to say they never believed in the Nixon-Brezhnev detente anyway, and now you can see what these bloody Russians are up to in the Middle East. They are also the big weaponeers who want who believes in competitive coexno truck with arms limitation. Anyone istence, the essence of the Nixon detente, is a naive idealist or just a plain fool.

IN A THIRD category are the politicians eager to exploit the present turmoil, foremost among them Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson. Attacking Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for failing, in the Jackson view, to move swiftly enough to resupply Israel with war material, he is being hailed by his admirers as the likely choice for the Democratic nomination for President in 1976. Conveniently, Jackson wraps up big weapons with Israel and such domestic issues as pollution for an across-the-board sweep.

Coming at the start of taking over his new office and stepping into full public view, the Middle East war has been for Kissinger a severe blow. He is doing his very best to hold the line against a breakdown of the developing relationship with the Soviet Union. In this he has had the skilled support of Robert J. McCloskey as spokesman, one of the ablest public servants drafted temporarily for the assignment from his post as Ambassador to Cyprus.

AT HIS BRIEFINGS McCloskey has had to stand off the persistant questioners zeroing in on the question of American forces joining the battle on Israel's side. This fearsome prospect serves only the sensationalists. The President was certainly of no help the other day when he talked about American intervention in Lebanon in 1958 and the threat of intervention in Jordan in 1970. Today's war offers no parallel with those other incidents which stopped short of American bloodshed.

It is a disservice to Israel to suggest that American troops must come to the rescue or to say that another Vietnam is in the making. As a dedicated fighting force the Israelis have seldom in history been equalled. They embody the heroism, the sacrifice, of centuries of Jewish history.

THE HEAVY losses both sides are taking — the Israeli drain out of proportion, given a population of three million — as the war continues leaves the looming question of the ultimate outcome. On a broadcast here Sen. Jacob Javits, who cannot be faulted as a partisan of Israel, stated that neither side in the war should expect a military victory.

For reasons of morale and inspiration Prime Minister Golda Meir is calling for victory. But that victory could prove far too costly in casualties. The announced dead thus far — 656, which does not include missing in action — is equivalent to a loss of 200,000 for a nation such as the UnitedStateswithapopulation as the United States with a population of more than 200 million.

SO THIS IS the moment for intensive diplomacy and for all possible restraint.

Help For Epileptics

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who has epileptic seizures which just started in the last two years, and she is in her 60s.

It seems I am the one who usually is with her when she has one, and I am awfully interested in knowing more about epilepsy.

Is it at all possible for you to suggest a book I might purchase and read to learn more about it, for frankly the seizures scare me to death, too. — L.E.L.

Yes, epileptic seizures are frightening to see until you understand more about the disease and about the seizures, and you are very much on the right track when you want to learn more about it. Knowing the facts puts an end to the fear.

I note that although you read the San Francisco Chronicle you live in a place in Nevada that, I confess, I'd never heard of. If you were in San Francisco, or Detroit or Houston or any sizeable city, I would tell you to look in the phone book and call the Epilepsy Center, which would provide you with information.

For those who aren't close enough to a center, here are some suggestions that will work:

Write to the Epilepsy Foundation of America, 1828 L. St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. The Foundation has pamphlets it can send to you.

One very good book and very recent one is "The Child with Convulsions," but don't let the title mislead you into thinking it applies only to children.

It will give you a clear understanding of epilepsy, and one reviewer remarked that it was just as good for adult needs as for children's needs.

It was published in 1972, written by Henry Baird, M.D., and is written in language that lay people can easily follow. (Someone has called Baird "the Dr. Spock of epilepsy.")

Not every book store will have the book, but any dealer can order it for you. Published by Grune & Stratton, priced at $8.50.

I understand that a paperback book on epilepsy is pending, but I have no information as to how long it will be before it is available, so I recommend Dr. Baird's book.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes me to see wide rings of color around the moon on a clear night, or around the lights of an approaching car? Others with supposedly normal eyes do not see these colors when I do. I had my eyes tested for glaucoma with negative results six months ago. — S.L.O.

These halos around lights can be a sign of glaucoma, so you were wise to have the test. But other conditions, such as cataracts beginning to form, also can cause the same phenomenon. When you had the glaucoma test, was any mention made of any other eye problem?

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Holiday Inn that was the granddaddy of them all has been sold, according to an announcement from the giant Memphis corporation.

The inn, which opened on the city's east side in 1952, was the first in the Holiday Inn chain, now the world's largest.

A spokesman said it was sold for $750,000 to another motel operator under a Holiday Inn policy of selling property more than 20 years old.

A Devotion For Today . .

I am convinced that there is nothing . . . in all creation that can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord. (Romans 8:38-39)

PRAYER: O God, so steady my faith today that I may live in the sunshine of life, fully persuaded that You are able to do that which You have promised through Your Son Jesus Christ. Amen.

STORY WITH A HAPPY ENDING

Cholera Hits: 'Why Me?'

MAGNOLIA BEACH, Tex. (AP) — Cholera had the impertinence to reappear this year in the United States for the first time in six decades, stealing into this sleeping bayfront community like a cloaked commando.

It struck its single victim and retreated to its anonymous origins.

The mood of some residents of Calhoun County appears to be "Why did it have to happen here instead of somewhere else?" Researchers don't have an answer to still another question: "Why now, instead of 10 years ago or 10 years from now?"

The attitude of the now-recovered patient, a 51-year-old construction worker named Charles Garrison, is "Why me?"

For all their microscopes, their textbooks, their statistics, their reporting systems, their investigations and their constant attention to contingencies and minutia, medical men don't know how the organism found its way into Garrison's stomach.

EVERY HOPE

"We may never find out, conceivably. But we are going to leave no stone unturned. We have every hope of finding out," says Jack Weissman, an epidemiologist for the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Cholera is something Garrison had only "heard the old-timers speak of . . ."

He put down his tools Friday, Aug. 24, at quitting time and went to the shore to catch bait for a predawn fishing expedition the next day.

When he reached his trailer house next to Magnolia Beach's small Burns Motel, "I felt good and went and ate supper, watched television for a little while and went to bed."

Others who soon would be brought into Garrison's case were having routine Fridays also. Laboratory technician Sam Ramirez was finishing up a light day's duties and looking forward to watching a pro football exhibition that night.

Dr. James Thompson, who tentatively would identify the cholera the next day, was at his regular post Friday at the Naval station in Corpus Christi, a bit melancholy about leaving his wife and small child to be on weekend call at Port Lavaca's Champ Traylor Hospital where he and some colleagues moonlight on weekends.

Weissman was studying an outbreak of dysentery in Minneapolis.

Garrison's sleep was uninterrupted Friday night, but "when I woke up, I just didn't feel right," he says.

"I was on my way to plug up the coffee pot. I got about halfway between the kitchen and the bedroom and all of a sudden I got sick and I broke and ran to the bathroom and I started vomiting and using the pot and I mean it was continuous. It was something you got to experience to know how bad it really was. It was like pouring water out of a bucket . . ."

Cramps set in, making the muscles of his extremities "hard as a rock."

NO FEVER

In bed, he tossed about. His whole body "was a flame of fire," yet he had no fever.

When he did not improve, his worried wife called the family physician, who told her to bring Garrison to the hospital.

Dr. Thompson arrived routinely at Champ Traylor from Corpus Christi not knowing what awaited him. Garrison already had been admitted.

Thompson never had treated cholera before and five years had passed since he studied the disease.

"When I first saw the patient, he was laying there breathing very shallowly. He was blue. I couldn't get a blood pressure. I couldn't get a pulse," recalls Thompson.

Although there was no evident pulse, Garrison's heart was beating rapidly. He was in shock. And, due to loss of body fluids, he was in danger of dying of dehydration.

At roughly 3 p.m. Garrison stopped breathing, requiring resuscitation.

"One of the things that galvanized me was that this man was so very ill," says Thompson.

Thompson went to the hospital's library to key all Garrison's symptoms with diseases listed in reference books. Cholera "was the one thing that fit everything he had."

When Thompson told Garrison's physician about his tentative diagnosis, the other physician "was, as I was, skeptical," says Thompson.

The attending physician agreed that the treatment for cholera could not hurt. Thompson prescribed an antibiotic for cholera—tetracycline—and ordered Garrison's fluid replacement accelerated.

Garrison was taken off the critical list 12 hours after he arrived since, as one official says, cholera "is a highly treatable disease" once it is detected. By late Sunday, he was walking.

During the next week, Garrison's recovery continued uneventfully, says his local doctor. However, another drama began unfolding—that of determining if the organisms in his stomach actually were those of the disease which had not been reported in the United States since 1911.

"I didn't know anything was going on, really," says Sam Ramirez, who heard about the possibility of cholera from a nurse when he returned to his hospital laboratory for the first time since the patient was admitted.

Using a bacteriology textbook he had saved since college, Ramirez found the rice water appearance of excretions was "picture perfect" in fitting the book's description of a cholera symptom.

He waited 24 hours for a culture to grow in an incubator and, on Tuesday morning, observed in the culture a small, slightly concave, colorless colony of organisms—"strange and something I had never seen before."

Then, the culture began a weeklong odyssey through laboratories halfway across the United States.

First, it went by auto courier to Victoria to a lab with which the Champ Traylor lab is affiliated, then by mail to the State Health Department in Austin, Tex., and finally by plane to the round-the-clock operation of the Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta. A CDC official carried the culture by hand on the Atlanta flight.

At each interim stop, researchers concluded that exotic culture seemed to be cholera. It was up to the CDC in Atlanta, which has epidemiologists with experience overseas, to make a definitive judgment.

PLANNING TRIP

The CDC issued a release about a "suspected" case of cholera—the first such public notification—and called an employe, Jack Weissman, at home on Saturday. Weissman was cutting the grass at his bachelor residence and planning a Labor Day camping trip in the Georgia Hills.

Within a couple of hours, Weissman was on his way to Texas.

"There was a major public health question involved," said Weissman. "There was a risk to a specific community and a risk to the country."

No one else in the Port Lavaca area exhibited cholera symptoms. Indeed, no other such illness would appear in subsequent weeks and local health officials would soon be calling Garrison's case "a fluke."

"Part of our plan was to see if we could isolate cholera on our own in Port Lavaca," says Weissman. The CDC recognized the remote possibility the Garrison culture could have become contaminated in the State Health Department lab by reference cultures of cholera which the lab has on file.

Organisms taken from the septic tank connected to Garrison's trailer house in Magnolia Beach were identified as cholera.

In Corpus Christi, young Dr. Thompson, who by now had been ribbed by his colleagues at the Naval station about his outlandish cholera diagnosis, was to hear by phone from Weissman that he had been correct.

"It was an exciting moment," says Thompson.

"Medicine, like anything else, can be humdrum and routine sometimes and it's nice to have an exciting thing once and awhile," he says.

During the four days the CDC men were in Calhoun County, they and local authorities gathered shrimp from the bay, tested Indian sailors aboard an English freighter and checked water supplies. But the sleuthing to determine how the organisms sneaked into Garrison's stomach and then the septic tank proved negative.

The CDC recommended the Burns Motel be closed when authorities discovered dye poured into a motel toilet reappeared in the water supply of the motel, a 320-foot well which Garrison also used. The dye also emerged on the beach.

Although he left Texas, Weissman's work was unfinished. He and other CDC investigators had to test each of the 52 families which had stayed at the motel in the past month. An individual could have been a carrier.

All tests were negative. Despite Weissman's continuing optimism about locating the cholera source, that's where the matter stands now.

Weissman says he is almost encouraged by the case "since we have long believed that cholera would be introduced in this country from time to time" and "even if cholera were introduced into the United States, it would not propagate."

Clayton Toalson, Calhoun County sanitarian, says he confidently expects no more cholera and says the single case may not have been recorded if the patient's condition had not made him more susceptible than persons with ordinary stomachs.

Two thirds of his stomach had been removed earlier by surgeons.

Others have not been so pleased.

Motel operators in Port Lavaca, a town of 12,000, ask that a distinction be made between Port Lavaca and Magnolia Beach, location of the Burns Motel.

AMRA Parley Begins Today

Charlene Ragan, registered record administrator, is attending the annual meeting of the American Medical Record Association, Oct. 21-26, at the Sheraton-Boston in Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Ragan is a delegate from the Texas Medical Record Association and will participate at the House of Delegates meeting Monday.

AMRA's ad hoc committee on continuing education will present a proposal to the House of Delegates recommending that to remain registered or accredited in the medical record field, evidence of continuing education activities must be submitted, being a designated number of approved clock hours.

This year marks the 45th annual meeting with AMRA advances in many areas. Many professional contacts and programs were initiated or accomplished. New and innovative activities have moved the association towards a greater professional image, according to Mary J. Waterstraat, RRA, executive director.

Membership in the AMRA on June 30 was a total of 11,945, including 3,572 registered record administrators and 3,932 accredited record technicians.

A highlight for the Texas delegates during the Boston stay is the Texas Breakfast on Tuesday honoring the current president of TMRA, Mildred Ford, RRA, Dallas, Tex.

Mrs. Ragan will be accompanied on the trip by her husband, Robert.

Sentences Like Agnew's Given Many Tax Evaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department prosecuted 1,342 persons for income tax evasion during fiscal 1973 and more than a third got sentences similar to that given former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, according to statistics released today.

Of the total prosecuted, 821 pleaded guilty, 330 pleaded no contest, 123 were convicted after pleading innocent and 68 were acquitted.

Among those who were guilty, the most common sentence — given to 496 persons — was a fine plus a period of either probation or suspended sentence.

Twenty out of the 496 were found guilty and sentenced after a trial, and 476 were sentenced after entering a plea. The Justice Department figures did not break down how many of these were guilty pleas and how many were no contest pleas.

Agnew resigned as vice president last week and pleaded no contest to one count of income tax evasion. That count charged that Agnew willfully evaded $13,551 in federal income taxes in 1967.

Agnew was fined $10,000 and given three years unsupervised probation.

A Justice Department spokesman said all others who received sentences similar to Agnew's were not necessarily convicted in cases similar to Agnew's.

"Just because somebody got a fine and probation doesn't mean that he evaded something around $13,000 in taxes and pleaded no contest," the spokesman said. "How much tax was evaded and what the plea was isn't what influences most sentences. Sentences can be influenced by an infinite number of circumstances in the case."

Other statistics on sentencing for tax evasion broke down this way:

Imprisonment only: 157; 30 after a trial, 127 after a plea.

Fine only: 112; 10 after a trial, 102 after a plea.

Imprisonment and fine: 101; 19 after a trial, 82 after a plea.

Imprisonment and probation: 130; 13 after a trial, 117 after a plea.

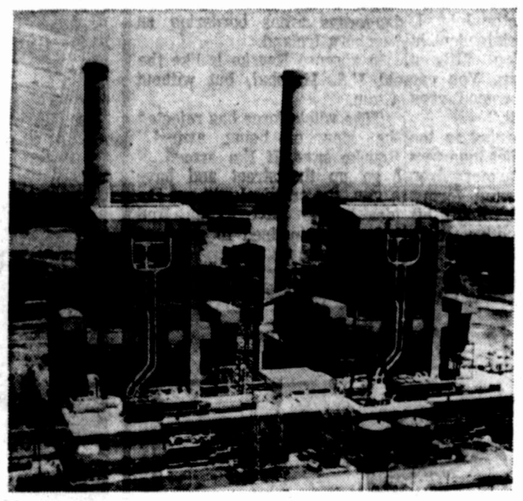

Imprisonment, fine, probation and-or suspended sentence: 76; 17 after a trial, 59 after a plea.

Probation only: 202; 14 after a trial; 188 after a plea.

How long do you think it takes to plan and build a power plant like this?

☐ 2 years ☐ 4 years ☐ 8 years

Give yourself an A if you said eight years.

The planning and construction of a lignite-fueled power plant like the one pictured here takes just about that long.

That's at least eight years to locate and purchase the right site, order equipment, plan and build the plant, obtain approvals from all regulatory agencies, and then test the plant's operation carefully.

The point is, we can't wait until the day you and your neighbors need more electricity. If we did, you simply wouldn't have it.

That's why we're always looking ahead. We have to. For instance, we've known for some time that the primary fuels we use to generate electricity — natural gas and oil — would be in short supply and thus more expensive.

Anticipating this, we and two other electric utility companies now have in operation a power plant near Fairfield which uses lignite coal for fuel. And two other lignite plants are currently under construction.

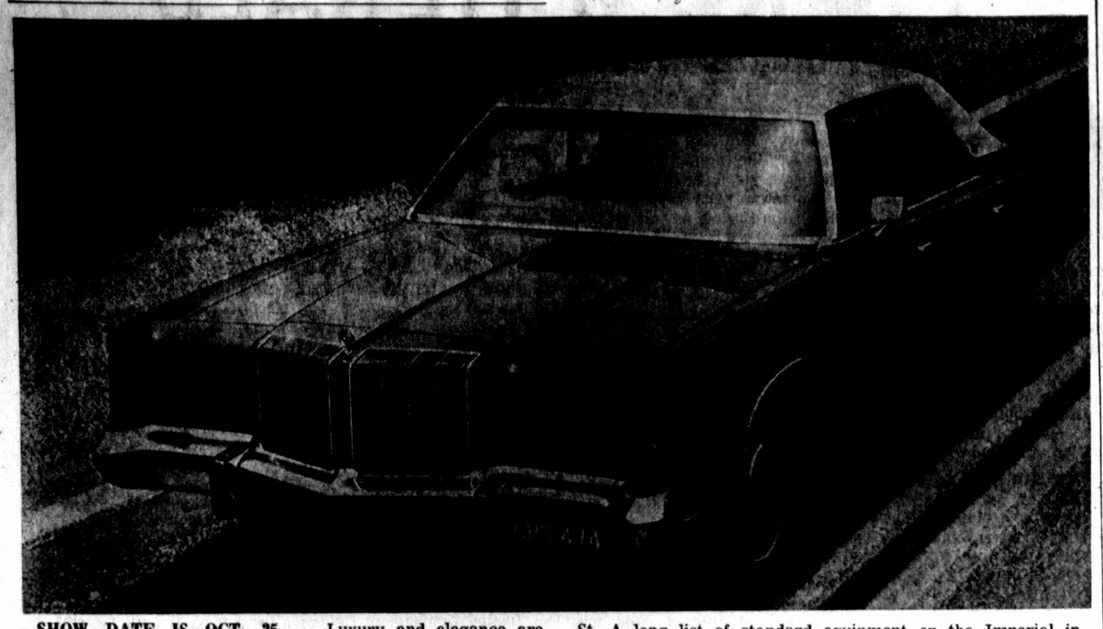

We know that by the early 1980's, we will need still another dependable fuel source — nuclear energy. Plans are under way to have a nuclear-fueled power plant near Glen Rose operational by 1980.

Diversifying to these new fuel sources will help decrease our dependence on natural gas and oil.

Unfortunately, plants designed to use lignite cost about two times as much as gas-fired plants. Nuclear plants cost more than three times as much. But we must make commitments now to be ready for the future.

We're working to supply the electricity you need, but it's costing more to make it all the time.

Preventive Law Maintenance Is Practiced By Irish Policeman

WESTPORT, Ireland (AP) — Patrick J. Rourke is a typical Irish cop. Except for one thing: he didn't leave Ireland.

So — instead of muggings, narcotics raids, Mafia entrepreneurs, gangland slayings, perversion and pornography, Rourke investigates cattle rustling, drownings, helps local residents fill out government forms, offers neighbors friendly advice and organizes area athletic competitions.

But this is County Mayo, not Boston, not New York.

And this is not Popeye Doyle of the French Connection. This is Pat Rourke of Westport, Ireland. And he sums it up this way, "I'm just an ordinary policeman on ordinary duties.'

And so — Pat Rourke neither carries a weapon nor worries about being attacked on duty. a man who likes to think of himself as having a ready ear and sound suggestions. If in America they practice preventive medicine to stop disease before it happens. Rourke practices preventive law enforcement.

TALL AND FIT

Tall and fit, a champion cross-country runner, thinning black hair, the 30-year-old Rourke is a nine year veteran of the "Garda" — short for Garda Siochana, which is Gaelic for "Guardians of Peace." "People come to the police with their own personal problems. They come for advice and we give it," he says. "I always feel I'm doing a service to the community and I'm glad to give whatever I can."

Westport, with a population just over 3,000, is a "reasonable size," Rourke says, a seaside industrial community. It has half-a-dozen hotels, nearly twice as many factories, and a swelling summer population of foreign tourists, students, hitchhikers and Irishmen visiting the seashore.

Most major crime in recent times? Cattle rustling. A man was caught with a few stolen cattle. Murders? None.

Occasionally, a car is stolen or a house is broken into. Signs of the conflict in Northern Ireland, approximately 75 miles from here at the closest, are rarely found.

Officials declined to give statistics for crimes in 1972, saying they were prohibited from releasing them.

CRIME IS MINOR

"Crime here is very, very small," says Inspector John J. Kerins, acting superintendent in the Westport station. "It's a quiet industrial town. You can get work and make a good, very contented living in it."

So, a typical morning in the two-story police headquarters here is when two farmers drop off their unemployemnt forms, one man applies to renew his gun permit and another seeks a passport application.

"The job itself presently is considered to be a good job in Ireland," says Inspector Kerkins.

"In a town like Westport or anywhere in Western Ireland, you're accepted in the community and you can live an ordinary life. I've been in several towns and I can go back to any. There are no grudges."

Pay begins at the equivalent of $6,250 a year and reaches about $10,000. Full pension comes at age 57.

Rourke, who lives with his wife and 15-month-old son in a rented garden apartment, is planning to buy a plot of land in Westport and build his own home.

Rourke, like policemen everywhere, finds the night work a drawback to his job. The night shifts, from 4 p.m. to midnight and from midnight to 8 a.m., are rotated.

The Westport station, which is responsible for an area of approximately 100,000 acres, is manned by a superintendent, two sergeants and 13 Garda.

Because the Garda is a national police force, Rourke could be transferred anywhere in the country, including the more dangerous areas bordering on Northern Ireland.

In a sense Rourke is like the old U.S. Marshal, but without a gun.

"The whole force has rejected the idea of being armed" Rourke says. If I'm armed, if I go up the street and have a gun, the criminal will get the idea he can have a gun. And he's more inclined to shoot at me if I have a gun."

26-Year Effort Invested In Raising TCU Donation

HOUSTON (AP) — For 26 years, members of the Houston Texas Christian University Women's Club have worked to earn and save money for a donation to their alma mater in Fort Worth.

Finally a check for $10,000 was presented to Chancellor James Moudy.

Mrs. Leslie A. Chambers, club president, made the presentation in commemoration of TCU's 100th anniversary.

A small monthly luncheon club of 36 active and 20 associate members tediously amassed the $10,000 from garage sales, old-fashioned rummage sales, card parties, book reviews, candy sales, tasting luncheons, theater parties and style shows. Some interest on savings and surplus dues helped also.

"It was hard work, but it's been fun, too," former presidents and project chairmen agree.

While slowly accumulating the $10,000, the club also provided scholarships at TCU for 13 different girls from the Houston area for from one to three years each; and, for the sixth time this year, made an annual $500 gift to the TCU Mary Couts Burnett Library. An emergency scholarship also still is available to a needy sophomore student from Harris or an adjoining county who might lack funds to stay at TCU.

Mrs. Jewell Wallace, now dean of admissions at TCU, founded the club May 17, 1947, and was its first president, while her husband was serving as first coach at the University of Houston.

Work Under Way On Club Addition

Work is under way at 214 E. 3rd on an addition to the Boys' Club building.

The addition, some 2,500 square feet, will be used for a senior boys game room, an exercise room, restrooms, showers and a dresing room, according to Bert Andries, manager.

Construction is being handled by J. W. Little Construction Co. with some manual labor being done by the boys themselves. No completion date has been set.

Andries said the addition is needed because of overcrowdedness in the present 5,000 square foot facility. "Often, we have over 100 boys a day and the building can comfortably accommodate only 50 or 60," he said.

Missionary Now Guest Professor

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. John Watson Shepard Jr., missionary to Japan, has returned to the United States as a guest professor in the religion department at Baylor University.

Shepard is on furlough from Fukuoka, Japan, where he is a Southern Baptist missionary teacher at Seinan Gakuin University, the largest Baptist university outside the United States.

Distraught Mother Kills Three In Family, Self

WHEATON, Md. (AP) — A welfare mother, apparently overwhelmed by her family's problems, shot herself to death on her 36th birthday after killing her husband and two of their children, police said.

A third child was critically wounded and two others escaped the shootings.

Police in this Washington suburb said Nancy Lee Hall sent her 10-year-old son, whom neighbors said was her favorite child, to mail some letters before the shootings. The boy's sister, 14, said she woke up during the shootings, pleaded with her mother not to kill her, and then fled from the apartment.

Police said Mrs. Hall left more than a dozen letters, some containing instructions for disposing of her family's belongings, others expressing concerns about court hearings for two of her sons.

Montgomery County police said the family also had received an eviction ordering them to leave their low-income apartment by Dec. 1.

One of Mrs. Hall's letters asked the state Department of Social Services to bury her children in the clothing she had gathered into three plastic bags and placed in the living room.

The bodies of Mrs. Hall; her husband, Jack Samuel Hall, 47, her son by a previous marriage, Walter Marshall, 16, and her daughter, Antoinette Hall, 2, were found in the apartment. Mrs. Hall's body was lying across the little girl's body.

Another son, George Marshall, 12, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Oakland Knots Series At 3-3; Finale Today

OAKLAND (AP) — Reggie Jackson smashed a pair of doubles Saturday, driving in two Oakland runs and the A's kept their World Series hopes alive with a 3-1 victory over the New York Mets in the sixth game of baseball's championship showdown.

The A's triumph tied the best-of-seven Series at three victories apiece and sent it into a decisive seventh game today at 3:30 p.m. CST. Left-handers Jon Matlack of the Mets and Ken Holtzman of the A's, who have split two decisions so far, will clash in that one.

Jackson ripped Tom Seaver for RBI doubles in the first and third innings and Oakland pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter made the slim two-run lead stand up until the eighth.

The ace of Oakland's pitching staff, a 21-game winner in each of the last three seasons, simply overpowered the Mets, limiting them to three hits until the eighth.

Then, with one out, Ken Boswell batted for Seaver and lashed a single to right. Oakland Manager Dick Williams, thinking Hunter might be tiring, hustled to the mound and decided to go to his bullpen. Williams called for left-hander Darold Knowles and Wayne Garrett greeted him with a single to center that sent Boswell to third. Felix Millan poked Knowles' next pitch for a single to right, scoring Boswell and sending Garrett to third.

The Mets' hottest batter, Rusty Staub, was next. The red-haired slugger, with nine hits in 21 World Series at-bats, got three swings at Knowles and missed on each of them for the Mets' second out.

Williams went to his bullpen again for Rollie Fingers, the reliever with the handlebar mustache.

Fingers threw just one pitch and was out of the inning when Cleon Jones flied to center.

The A's quickly got that run back in their half of the eighth against Tug McGraw, the Mets' top reliever. Jackson opened the inning with his third hit of the game, a single to center. Don Hahn let the ball get past him and it rolled all the way to the wall as Jackson steamed into third on the two-base error.

After Gene Tenace walked, Jesus Alou batted for Vic Davalillo and flied to left. Jackson tagged up and scored on the catch, restoring the A's two-run lead.

It was Jackson who provided Oakland with the two-run edge in the first place.

The outspoken A's slugger had four straight hits in the second game of the Series but had been held in check in the next three. He broke loose against Seaver, the ace of the New York staff.

Hunter had weaved his way out of a jam in the top of the first when the Mets had runners at first and second with one out.

Then, in the bottom of the first, the A's went to work on Seaver.

With one out, Joe Rudi lined a single to right over the leap of second baseman Millan. Seaver struck out Sal Bando but Jackson stepped into the first pitch he saw and walloped it up the left-center field alley.

Rudi circled the bases and Jackson stumbled as he rounded second and had to settle for a double.

The sellout crowd of 49,333, When he faltered in the louder than usual, roared its approval at Oakland's early lead.

Two innings later, Jackson gave them more to cheer about. With two out in the third, Bando singled up the middle on a 2-2 pitch. Again Jackson jumpd on Seaver's delivery and slammed it to right field.

Staub, playing with a sore shoulder, fielded the ball and the A's took advantage of his ailing arm with Bando dashing all the way home for another run and a 2-0 lead as Jackson arrived at second with another double.

That would be all the runs Hunter got to work with, but the way Catfish was throwing, they were more than enough.

Hunter mowed down 11 Mets in order from the first inning until the fifth, when Jerry Grote opened with a single.

Hunter left him stranded and retired seven more in a row before allowing another New York hit.

eighth, surrendering the pinch single to Boswell, Williams lifted Hunter in a hurry, keeping intact the Oakland pitching staff record of never having completed a World Series game.

Jackson Finally Delivers For A's

OAKLAND (AP) — Reggie Jackson has a reputation for a big bat and a big mouth. He owns up to both.

Jackson is the Oakland A's best hitter. But, until Saturday, he had been less than sensational in both the American League playoffs and the World Series. He rapped three hits, drove in two runs and scored a third as the A's beat the New York Mets 3-1 and sent the Series into a seventh and deciding game Sunday.

What was the difference between the Jackson who wasn't hitting and one who was?

In effect, Jackson said, he decided to shut his mouth and concentrate on swinging his bat.

"I took batting practice today instead of talking with the writers," said the slugger who slammed 32 home runs, drove in 11 and hit .293 this past season.

Jackson admitted being split down the middle mentally during this 70th World Series. He said he has been thinking of the A's off-field controversies half the time, and the Mets' Tom Seaver the other half.

"When you went out on the field you were asked about the controversy," Jackson said. "It was a pain. I couldn't wait for the World Series to get over. I just want to slide, get dirty, make throws and catch the ball. This off-the-field stuff has taken the little boy out of the game. I lost my edge."

Jackson was only five-for-25 before Saturday's game, and he got four of those in the second game Oakland loss. He was roundly criticized in the media.

"I really wasn't thinking of the criticism," said the onetime bonus kid from Arizona State. "So I hadn't hit in the playoffs or the series. Reggie Jackson just hadn't hit. Give the Mets pitching some credit. If I had been 0-for-4 today they would have been right to say I was having a bad Series."

Sneed, Schlee Lead Kaiser

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Rangy Ed Sneed rallied from a shaky start, caught front-running John Schlee with a three-under-par 69 and pulled into a tie for the third-round lead Saturday in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

Sneed, a non-winner in the United States in five years on the pro tour, and the veteran Schlee had 54 hole totals of 203, 13 under par on the 6,819-yard north course at the Silverado Country Club. Schlee, the Hawaiian Open champion and the second round leader, had a 70.

Hale Irwin, who held the lead alone until he hit into the water and took double bogey on the 11th hole, was alone in third just one stroke back at 204. He had a third round 69.

It was another three strokes back to U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller at 207,. Miller had a 69 in the cool, cloudy weather.

MUSTANGS TRIUMPH, 27-16

Morris-Led SMU Tops Rice

HOUSTON, Tex., (AP) — Sophomore running back Wayne Morris fueled Southern Methodist's rushing ataack with touchdown runs of 3, 7 and 5 yards Saturday night to lead the Mustangs to a 27-16 Southwest Conference football victory over Rice.

Morris, who entered the game as the fourth leading rusher in the SWC picked up 166 yards on 25 carries to lead the Mustangs, now 4-1, to victory in the opening conference game for both teams.

Morris started his touchdown parade in the third quarter after Rice had taken a 9-7 lead on field goals of 32, 28 and 45 yards by Rice's Alan Pringle.

The Mustangs, playing the last three quarters without starting quarterback Keith Bobo, took a 7-6 halftime lead when tight end Rory Best recovered a fumble by second string quarterback Ricky Wesson in the end zone after an 18-yard gain.

Rice, which dropped to 1-4 record, led for the final time late in the third quarter when freshman quarterback Tommy Kramer hit Carl Swierc on a 35-yard pass - run touchdown play.

Morris' seven yard TD run early in the fourth quarter put the Ponies ahead for good and his final five-yard score capped a 9:14 drive that ended with two minutes left to play.

Rice tried desperately to rally but SMU cornerback Mickey Early intercepted a Cramer pass with 1:17 left in the game to end Rice's final threat.

USC Romps By Oregon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pat Haden threw for two touchdowns and ran for another, guiding the sixth-ranked and unbeaten Southern California Trojans over Oregon 31-10 Saturday in a Pacific-8 Conference football game.

Haden combined with split end Jake McKay on a 35-yard touchdown pass play for the game's first score, then hit flanker Lynn Swann with a screen pass that carried 55 yards for the game-icing points in the fourth quarter.

The Trojans, favored by three touchdowns, extended their unbeaten string to 23 games and threatened to break the game open early with two touchdowns 18 seconds apart in the first period.

Southern Cal, now 5-0-1 and 30 in the Pac-8, compared to Oregon's 1-5 and 1-1 marks, got an easy score just after McKay's touchdown when cornerback Danny Reece intercepted Herb Singleton's pass and romped 30 yards for a touchdown.

A Chris Limahelu field goal of 28 yards made it 17-0 before Oregon, stymied in earlier drives that got as far as the Trojan 16, beat the half time clock. Singleton scored on a three-yard keeper with two seconds left.

The Trojans took the second half kickoff, which Anthony Davis returned 36 yards, and marched 64 yards in 14 plays with Haden diving over from inches out for a 24-7 edge at only 5:02 into the third period.

Ali Captures Decision Win

JAKARTA (AP) — Muhammad Ali battered and bloodied Dutch heavyweight Rudi Lubbers Saturday night in scoring a unanimous 12-round decision over the former discotheque bouncer.

Ali had predicted Lubbers wouldn't last more than five rounds, but Lubbers wouldn't go down, although blood flowed from his nose and his right eye was almost closed.

Judge Lim Ti Chang of Singapore scored the fight 60-45, judge Loen Johannes of Indonesia scored it 59-52 and judge C. Schneider of West Germany made it 60-42, all for Ali. Referee Enrique Jimenez of The Philippines did not score the bout.

"Lubbers is a good fighter," said Ali. "I hit him with everything I could.

Asked why he did not throw many right-hand punches, Ali made a fist with the hand and said, "I have to save this for Joe Frazier."

Ali's next scheduled fight will be a 12-rounder against Frazier in New York Jan. 28. Frazier, then champion, scored a unanimous 15-round decision over Ali at New York March 8, 1971.

North Texas Dumps Drake

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback Phil Shotland fired two touchdown passes to David Kervin Saturday to pace North Texas State to a 19-7 victory over Drake and a share of the Missouri Valley Conference lead.

The Eagles exploded for 16 points in the last two minutes of the first half to pave the way for the victory, which gave NTSU a 3-0 MVC record, the same as Tulsa.

Both North Texas and Drake were sluggish in the first quarter, but early in the second period, the Bulldogs' Ken Ferguson bolted 80 yards for a touchdown to give Drake a 7-0 lead.

After the kickoff, North Texas went 65 yards in five plays with Shotland completing the march with an eight-yard pass to Kervin with 2:21 left in the half.

Drake then failed to move and an attempted punt by Walt Bauer was blocked by North Texas' Melvin Davis, but Bauer was able to recover the ball in the end zone for a North Texas safety.

Drake's free kick was returned to the Bulldog 44, and on the first play Shotland again hit Kervin for a touchdown.

The only points in the second half was a 32-yard field goal by the Eagles' Lee Harrington.

Big Spring Fades Before Permian's Barrage, 21-10

By JACK COWAN

Big Spring's Steers, "the Almost Kids," had another sniff of victory Friday night in Memorial Stadium.

But that's all they got, as the Odessa Permian Panthers put on an awesome show of football strength in the second half and rolled to a 21-10 Dist. 5-AAAA decision over the winless Longhorns.

BS	GAME AT A GLANCE	Permian
17	First Downs	21
33	Yards, Rushing	326
158	Yards Passing	66
10 of 24	Passes Completed	5 of 9
0	Passes Interc. By	2
3 for 40	Penalties, Yds.	5 for 47
0	Fumbles Lost	1
2 for 32.0	Punts, Ave.	4 for 40.2

Trailing 10-0 at the half, the Panthers scored the go-ahead touchdown with less than four minutes remaining in the game, and then tacked on another score for good measure with 51 seconds left.

The final score throws the real story of the game out of perspective a bit, as the Steers threatened to knock the defending state champions out of the district title race into the final two minutes of the tilt. And even then it took a convtroversial offensive pass intereference call to help sink the Stubborn Horns.

With the victory the Panthers move to 5-1 on the year and 2-1 in loop play, while the Steers' count sagged to 0-6 and 0-3 as the excitement of close calls continued.

"These kids certainly don't have anything to be ashamed of," Steer head man Bob Burris reflected Saturday. "It's hard to tell yourself this week after week, but it's true. They played as well as they could.

"Now, we just have to get ready for the Rebels (Midland Lee.) This bunch of kids has done a good job of getting themselves 'up' each week," he added.

The Panthers piled up an impressive 392 yards total offense against the Steers as sturdy Mike Belew rushed 30 times for 133 yards and reserve quarterback Rusy Breazeale added 111 yards on six carries — including the 80-yard gallop in the final minute.

For Big Spring, Tom Sorley hit 10 of 24 passes for 158 yards, with five of the tosses going to John Thomas Smith worth 76 steps. Danny Ferrell had 53 yards to lead the improved Steer rushing game, and Sorley added 52.

The Steers opened the game in impressive fashion, driving to Permian's 17-yard line. But after Sorley lost 10 yards trying to pass a 46-yard field goal try by Doug Smith into the wind fell dead at the Panther five yard line.

It was early in the second quarter that the hosts began to move for points. The Steers drove from their own 14 to Permian's 26, and from there Smith was successful on a 42-yard boot that gave Big Spring a 3-0 lead with 7:14 remaining in the half.

Permian couldn't move on its next possession, and Marc Fielden punted the Steers back to their own 40. But on first down Sorley hit John Smith with a 36-yard strike, and then Lonnell Banks ran 13 yards on a draw to the Panther 11.

Sorley finished off the blitz by tossing 11 yards for a TD to tight end Vicky Woodruff, who had spent most of the first half harrassing Panther ball carriers. The score mounted to 10-0, Big Spring, as Doug Smith toed the conversion point with 4:37 left in the half.

Permian, limited to less than 100-yards total offense in the first 24 minutes, wasn't going to hear any more of that in the final two stanzas.

After each team held the ball briefly early in the half, the Mojos took over again at their own 20 and didn't give it back until 2:05 remained in the third period as Steve Looney passed to Travis for an 11-yard touchdown play. The drive took 13 plays, the longest a 15-yard carry by Howard, the fullback.

Jerry Burger kicked the PAT that cut Big Spring's lead to 10-7.

The Steers then returned the favor with a march of their own, moving from the 36 to Permian's 15 before Beazeale intercepted Sorley's pass inside the five and returned it to the 13.

Then the visitors were moving again, going the 87-yards in 17 plays with Belew getting the score from six yards on a big fourth down play that saw the Panthers line up with seven players to the left side of the line of scrimmage. Belew put the overload to good use, scooting in untouched, and Burger kicked the Black Beasts to a 14-10 advantage with just 3:36 left in the contest.

It was a desperation situation for the Steers, and they found themselves in a worse mess after the kickoff. A personal foul penalty gave them the ball with a first-and-20 situation 90 yards away from Permian's goal line.

Sorley hit Woodruff with a 26-yard shot to get out of that jam, and with a first and 10 at the 38 Ferrell darted 22 yards to Permian's 40.

But after Banks picked up two, Sorley went to John Smith on a sideline route and an official charged the Steer flanker with offensive pass interference, a call that brought vocal disapproval from Steer backers.

That cost the Steers a down and moved them back to their own 47, where they couldn't make up the long yardage on third down. On fourth down, Sorley heaved a desperation shot to John Smith, and Fielden intercepted at the 10 with 1:48 remaining.

Belew ran for 11 yards on first down and then Beazeale, who replaced the injured Looney early in the fourth period, lost a yard. But he caught the Steer defense asleep on second down, and broke 80 yards for the score on an option to the right which resembled the game-winning TD Midland's Steve Reddell had sprung on the Steers a week earlier.

Burger again was successful on the extra point kick with 51 seconds left.

Big Spring suffered one key player loss in the game, as guard-linebacker Kyle Neighbors, a junor who has started both ways most of the year, broke his leg and will be out the rest of the season. Woodruff received bruised ribs, but will be ready for action again Friday against Lee

Nobles Passes Cougars To 30-7 Win Over Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Fourteenth-ranked Houston couldn't run in the first half against the University of Miami Friday night, so Coach Bill Yeoman unleashed quarterback D.C. Nobles' passing game and claimed a 30-7 football romp.

Houston, now 6-0, had only a 7-0 halftime lead over the 15th-ranked Hurricanes as Miami held the Cougars to 68 yards rushing.

"We don't really figure we can do anything until we get into the game," explained Yeoman. "After they show what their thinking is, we hope to have something that will work."

Te answer was Nobles, who finished the game with 13 completions for 223 yards.

In other football games Friday night Martin Vaughn threw a seven-yard pass to Don Clune with 40 seconds left to give the University of Pennsylvania a 27-20 victory over Lehigh.

In another Friday night game, Fresno State edged Long Beach State 15-14.

For What It's Worth

Jack Cowan

These days I find myself searching for a line out of some poem, or maybe an epitaph on a grave marker or something which can do justice to the football season the Big Spring Steers are currently traveling through in a semi-daze. I keep thinking Alexander Pope or Will Rogers might have said something really appropriate while munching Fig Newtons alone on a creek bank.

That's strange, in itself, because 10 months ago I probably would have promised I could never get involved in Big Spring High School football. Now, I'm so biased I can't even accurately describe their downfall.

* * * * * *

I could write "The Big Spring Steers dropped another close one Friday night, falling 21-10 to the defending state champion Odessa Permian Panthers before 9,000 excited onlookers." But that's really dumb.

They didn't fall. They were pushed — given a terrific shove by Blitz, the god of football who has placed the Steers on probation for something they did several years ago. You can tell this is almost the end, though, because it's the most painful time.

And all the fans weren't excited — just the 4,000 from Odessa who are used to seeing their "Mojos" courageously battle back from extreme adversity to glorious victory. The rest of the people were saying things like "Uuuuuuhhhhh," and "Why us?"

* * * * * *

It's not so bad, really, being 0-6. It's being "the best 0-6 team in the state" — which the Steers definitely are, for whatever it's worth — that's so degrading.

In District 5-AAAA, the unchallenged oasis of high school football, the addled Steers are playing the best teams in the state to nerve-frazzling finishes. They thump victory on the nose, kick it in the butt and then fall prey to the powers-that-be — the stars, family ancestry, personal hygiene habits or whatever — and they lose.

Six games the Steers have played, six games they could just as easily have won as not, and six games the Steers have lost. The Horns could finish out their slate in the same fashion without surprising anyone, and their games would be very entertaining — because they scare people, who then thank their lucky stars and promptly forget about their close call.

* * * * * *

That's what's really bad about this 1973 Steer season. The team is playing well enough to be among the top teams in the state, and could probably beat the best of them on a given night.

But . . . 0-6. That's the sad part — and the tough part — for Coach Bob Burris, who must now convince his team that 4-6 would be infinitely better than 0-10 in a month or so. Even if the Steers could be "the best 0-10 team in the state."

Jones, 'Dogs Dump Forsan

FORSAN — Michael Jones meant trouble for the Forsan Buffaloes Friday night.

Jones, a speedster who won state in the 100 and 220-yard dashes last year, scored six touchdowns Friday to spark the Loraine Bulldogs to a 41-18 Dist. 3-B victory over the Buffs.

Forsan	GAME AT A GLANCE	Loraine

4	Fumbles Lost	1
4 for 25	Penalties, Yds.	10 for 80
4 for 35.0	Punts, Ave.	3 for 26

With the loss the Buffs sink to 2-5 in the year and 1-2 in league play, while Loraine now stands 3-3 and 1-1.

Jones opened opened scoring on Loraine's first possession as he rambled 70 yards through the center of the Buff defense, and later in the first period he took a 15-yard pass from quarterback Eddie Merket and went for the TD as the score mounted to 12-0.

Forsan cut it to 12-6 as David Crooks intercepted a Merket pass and returned it 45 yards for a score, than Jones took the kick-off and raced 85-yards for a TD. Merket passed to Don Crawford for two bonus points and a 20-6 lead.

The see-saw action continued in the second period as Wesley Thixton scored on a seven-yard run, making it 20-12, but Loraine got one more tally before the half — a 22-yard romp by Jones. Merket and Crawford combined for the two extra points against as the 'Dogs held a 28-12 halftime edge.

In the third stanza, on a third and long situation, Jones broke loose for 50-yards and a touchdown on a draw play to put the game out of reach, Crawford kicked the PAT as the score went to 35-12. Jones got his final TD of the night from the defensive side of the line, intercepting a Forsan pass and returning it 30 yards for a score.

Forsan came back with one more tally in the fourth stanza as quarterback Ralph Miranda scooted over from a yard out to end a 70-yard drive.

Texas Crushes Arkansas 34-6 In 'Little Shootout'

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks, known more for his grinding three-yard runs than long distance dashes, thundered 43 and 59 yards for touchdowns in the third quarter Saturday to give the Longhorns a 34-6 victory over Arkansas and command of the Southwest Conference football race.

It was a three touchdown day for the 5-foot-11, 218-pound Leaks, who made Arkansas' defensive secondary look like it was running in sand.

	Texas	Arkansas
First Downs	20	15
Rushes-yards	57-415	48-194
Passing yards	47	110
Return yards	112	47
Passes	4-12-0	10-24-1
Punts	5-34	6-42
Fumbles-lost	2-1	1-1
Penalties-yards	3-35	5-35

Leaks carried 24 times for 209 yards against the scrappy Razorbacks who collapsed in the third quarter after Leaks had bulled his way two yards for a touchdown to give Texas a 6-0 half time lead.

Texas, rebounding after the worst loss in Coach Darrell Royal's career, 52-13 to Oklahoma last week, struck twice for touchdowns in a span of 2:05 in the third quarter.

Leaks broke over right tackle and sped 43 yards for a touchdown at 12:08 of the quarter.

Just over two minutes later, Jim Moore zoomed 73 yards for a touchdown with a punt behind a crisp wall of downfield blocking. Leaks, only a junior, followed that act with a 59-yard touchdown gallop over left tackle--the longest run in his career--to put the game away.

Texas freshman Raymond Clayborn bolted 85 yards for a touchdown in the final quarter, the second longest TD run in Longhorn history.

Texas now is 2-0 in the SWC race and 3-2 over all. Arkansas is 3-3 and 2-1 in SWC play.

Arkansas tailback Dickey Morton became the second leading rusher in SWC history by surpassing Texas Christian's Jim Swink in the record books.

Morton rushed for 68 yards in 19 carries, giving him an all time total of 2,664.

Arkansas' only touchdown came with 13 seconds to play when Rollen Smith picked up a blocked punt and ran three yards for a touchdown.

The day began on a bright note of hope for the crowd of 45,348 — largest in Razorback Stadium history.

Arkansas linebacker Hal McAfee pounced on a fumble by Texas quarterback Marty Akins at the Longhorn 43. However, on fourth and one at the Texas five, Longhorn linebacker Glen Gaspard stopped Morton for no gain.

After a scoreless first quarter, Texas flexed its muscles on a 94-yard drive that took 18 plays and consumed 8:33 on the clock. Leaks carried 10 times on the drive, which he climaxed on a two-yard plunge.

Texas reserves beat back one Arkansas threat in the fourth quarter which carried to the Longhorn 13 yard line before safety Tommy Keel intercepted a pass.

Moore's run was the second longest for a Texas team snice 1960.

Texas, the pre-season to run away with the SWC title, is seeking a record six consecutive crown.

Aggies Pound TCU By 35-16

FORT WORTH,Tex (AP)—The unrelated Walker boys, Skip and David, and a frisky young Texas A&M defense shot down Texas Christian 35-16 Saturday in a Southwest Conference football slugfest.

Dave, a freshman quarterback, and Skip, a sophomore halfback, contributed a touchdown apiece and the lion's share of the yardage as the Aggies battled successfully to keep their SWC title hopes alive.

Fumbles-lost	1-4	3-6

The lopsided verdict squared A&M's season mark at 3-3 and its conference slate at 1-1, while the crippled Horned Frogs, now 0-2, disappeared from the title picture.

The youthful Aggies never trailed in the 69th meeting between two old rivals, methodically shoving across touchdowns in each quarter.

Workhorse fullback Alvin Bowers dove a yard for the first TD, David Walker tiptoed five for the second, Skip Walker got the next from the two, nd Bucky Sams danced in from the five for No. 4 and David winged a six-yard strike to Mike Floyd for the finale. Respectively, the drives covered 45, 75, 46, 85 and 45 yards.

TCU's touchdowns came in the first and fourth periods. Quarterback Kent Marshall rifled a seven-yard pass to Ronnie Littleton for the first score and Steve Patterson cracked across from the two for the second. Sandwiched in between was a 46-yard field goal by Berl Simmons.

New Mexico Routs UTEP

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Reserve quarterback Troy Williams passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as New Mexico rolled over Texas-El Paso 49-0 in a Western Athletic Conference football game Saturday.

Sophomore Williams took over in the third period when starting quarterback Don Woods was sidelined by an ankle injury after a slow 7 0 first half marked by Woods' 11-yard touchdown run and a lot of punts.

On his third play, Williams tossed a 44-yard touchdown pass to Paul Laberrere. In the fourth quarter he connected with Steve Bauer on a 28-yard strike. Later in the fourth period, he carried the ball over from the 14.

Rich Diller carried in from seven yards out, Ed Blake from the nine, and Gary McAlister from the two for the other Lobo touchdowns.

The Lobo offense was sluggish until Williams took over in the second half. El Paso had the same trouble for the whole game.

Most of the early action was limited to the punters as each team was forced to kick the ball away six times in the first half.

'Kats Bow To Dawson

GARDEN CITY — The Dawson Dragons surprised Garden City's Bearkats with a big offensive outburst here Friday and posted a 56-8 Dist. 1-B Eight Man triumph.

Dawson roared to a 20-0 first quarter edge, and led 34-0 at the half. The host Bearkats didn't mark until the final quarter. The visitors racked up 20 first downs and 420 yards total offense, compared to 260 yards offense for the Bearkats.

Garden City now stands 3-3, while Dawson is 3-4.

Alabama Explodes Past Tennessee

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Robin Cary's 63-yard punt return and Wilbur Jackson's 80-yard scamper ignited a furious fourth-period finish Saturday that lifted second-ranked Alabama to a 42-21 Southeastern Conference football victory over Tennessee.

The unbeaten Crimson Tide, 6-0, had seen a two-touchdown advantage erased by Vol quarterback Condredge Holloway before the late rally that produced three touchdowns within a span of 5:07 of the fourth quarter.

The defeat snapped Tennessee's winning streak at 11, longest in the nation among major colleges, and left the Vols with a 5-1 record this year.

Cary, a 5-foot-8, 186-pound senior, eased the fears of a huge crowd of 72,226 when he picked his way through a ma ss of Vol defenders to score on his punt return with 11:53 remaining in the game, which was televised regionally to about 75 per cent of the country.

Then, Jackson applied the icing three minutes later when he swept left end for 80 yards for his second touchdown, the other coming on a seven-yard run in the opening quarter.

JAYTON BLASTS SANDS; PONIES HAVE NEW COACH

ACKERLY — The Jayton Jaybirds ran their Dist. 3-B record to 2-0 here Friday with a 49-0 spanking of the Sands Mustangs.

Sands fell to 1-5 in season play and 0-3 in district with the loss.

The Mustangs underwent a coaching change last week, when head coach Phil Allen was relieved of his duties and Supt. M. B. Maxwell took over as head coach.

Maxwell will continue to serve as head coach the remainder of the season, while Phil Mowrey will remain the assistant. The Mustangs have three games remaining.

CAPTAIN CRUNCH — Stanton quarterback Bill Howard finds himself sandwiched in between two Coahoma defenders Friday during the Bulldogs-Buffaloes Dist. 7-AA clash in Coahoma. Robbie Tindol (77) and Eddie Padron (30) converge on the Buff QB in this meeting, and the Bulldogs went on to gain a 26-7 decison.

Coahoma Thumps Buffaloes By 26-7

By MARJ CARPENTER

COAHOMA — Coahoma's Bulldogs enjoyed their Homecoming Friday night by slapping the Stanton Buffaloes with a 26-7 defeat in a District 7-AA contest.

At the same time, the Bulldog status was further helped by Ozona's defeat of Reagan County, one of the district contenders for the crown.

Stanton played with determination from the starting whistle, but could not contain the powerful running of Coahoma's fullback, Putt Choate.

Choate scored two of the Coahoma touchdowns with one in the opening stanza when he plunged over from the one following a 40-yard drive in which he had picked up the biggest percentage of the ground gains.

The powerful fullback also went over from the three in the final period culminating a drive that began back on the Coahoma 38. Choate and Ricky Patterson picked up the lion's share of the yardage in this drive.

On other Bulldog TD's Eddie Padron, speedy halfback, ran in from the six during the second quarter and Gary Roberts scooted in from the 14 in the final period.

Dean Wood kicked the two extra points earned by the Dogs.

Coahoma played good solid football with every score coming at the end of a lengthy, steady drive, with no flashy, sudden TDs. Their weakest chore of the evening was in the punting department.

Stanton played hard, but could not contain Choate. They put together an effective pass defense but could not contain the Bulldog's ground running.

Their only score came when the junior quarterback Bill Howard scampered across from the five in the third quarter.

As he scored, Howard received a hard blow that addled the quarterback. He held the ball for Gordon Eiland to boot the extra point and then took himself out of the game, not knowing for sure whether or not Stanton had scored a tally.

Stanton was already without the services of the leading running back and one of their top defensive men, Mitchell Irvin, who had his leg broken on the fourth play of the ballgame. Irvin is in a Midland hospital awaiting surgery Monday.

Elvin Brown took over running duties for Irvin and Eiland took over quarterback duties for Howard. Then David Standefer, tight end, went out with a shoulder injury and Lee Cook took over.

The excitement of the traditional game was augmented with homecoming activities that extended into Saturday and included a parade and luncheon on Saturday.

Crowned queen at the game was Susie Smolko, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Smolko, scorted by Alan Roman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Roman. The coming home queen was Norma Turner Grant and the coming home king was Hezzie Read.

A'S OWNER REPLIES TO CHARGES

Finley: It's My Ball Club

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley insists he was right in trying to replace Mike Andrews on the Oakland Athletics baseball team.

"It is my ballclub, my money and I don't appreciate anyone telling me how to spend my money to run my business," Finley declared. "As long as I own this ballclub, I will operate it my way."

Finley confirmed that Dick Williams had told the A's players that he would not be back after this season and the owner said, in two meetings with his manager in the last two days, he had assured Williams he would not stand in his way to another opportunity. Williams is reportedly headed for the New York Yankees.

The controversial owner of the American League champions staunchly defended his widely criticized actions and motives in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press upon returning to his home base Friday for the sixth game of the World Series against the New York Mets.

He said instead of his embarrassing Andrews, the reserve infielder whose two errors cost the A's the second game of the series, it was he who was embarrassed by baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"I don't think the baseball commissioner treated us fairly in turning down this request," he said. "He's talking about embarrassing Andrews. We're not out to embarrass Andrews. But I sure as hell was embarrassed by what he did.

"He released his letter (a formal letter denying the A's request to put Andrews on the disabled list) before I ever received it."

After Andrews' two errors, which allowed three runs to score in the Mets' 10-7 second-game victory, Finley had the infielder examined by the team physician and got the player to sign a doctor's statement that he was injured. Andrews accused Finley of encouraging him to falsify his medical condition for the good of the team.

Finley contended that he did not fire Andrews, but merely made a legal request to have him placed on the disabled list, which was denied by the commissioner.

The A's owner indicated he held no bitterness toward Andrews and was not disturbed when Andrews came to bat as a pinch-hitter in the fourth game and drew a resounding ovation from the sellout crowd at Shea Stadium.

"I was hoping Andrews would put the ball out of the park," he said, "and had he put it out of the park, I would have had to eat crow—and I would have enjoyed eating that crow."

Finley covered a broad range of subjects as he lounged in his shirtsleeves in his Oakland motel suite, a stone's throw from the Coliseum, site of the Series. He talked of his own business practices, motivations and goals.

He will not sell the Oakland A's franchise, he insisted, despite a recent mild heart attack and intense pressures from his Chicago insurance business and sports operations, but probably will dispose of the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association and the California Golden Seals in the National Hockey League.

"Any person who owns (teams) in two sports, the second sport is needed just about as much as a hole in the head."

Finley said he will continue as the A's general manager as well as owner.

Q: When you got into baseball, there were owners who openly criticized you. Now that you are on top, do you find that this situation has changed?

A: I've never stated the owners were critical. I've read that in the papers a few times. There is no question about it, when I first entered baseball, I made a few suggestions and some of them were laughed at in the beginning and I'm happy to say a number of them have been adopted since. And I'm hopeful and I might say optimistic that some of the others will be adopted soon.

Q: In view of the frequent shake-ups in your front office, with managers (before Dick Williams) and players, do you regard your standards of excellence as unusually strict?

A: I worked 10 years in industry and I've been in business for another 25 years and I was brought up to do a job quickly, correctly and conscientiously. I expect anyone that's associated with me in any of my ventures to operate in the same manner.

Navy Pounds Falcons, 42-6

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Underdog Navy, propelled by the passing of Al Gtenny, the catching of Larry Van Loan and the running of Cleveland Cooper, routed Air Force 42-6 Saturday in the first service academy football battle of 1973.

Glenny teamed with Van Loan for scoring tosses of 41 and 28 yards and threw a 1 3 yarder to Bert Calland. Sandwiched between the TD passes were scoring runs by Cooper of 39, 5 and 2 yards.

The game was the first in Annapolis between service schools since Navy beat Army 14-0 in 1942. The Falcons, 2-3, did not score until Navy, 3-3, inserted its subs in the final quarter.

Before a crowd of 30,076, Navy rolled up its largest victory margin in a decade and handed Air Force its worst defeat in the six-game series with the Falcons that is now all even.

Air Force opened the game with a sustained ground drive, beginning on its own 24 and moving to the Navy 31 before quarterback Bob Haynie fumbled the ball away.

Lamesa Flies Past Dunbar

LUBBOCK — Running backs Kent McCurley and Melvin Robinson sparked the Lamesa Golden Tors to a 34-3 Dist. 3-AAA victory over the Lubbock Dunbar Panthers here Friday.

McCurley, who led all rushers with 157 yards on 22 carries, scored four times as the fourth-ranked Tors upped their season record to 6-0 and lifted their loop mark to 2-0. Dunbar slipped to 3-4 and 2-1.

A 31-yard scoring run by Lamesa's Jerry Calhoun and a record 50-yard field goal by Dunbar's Tommy Collins gave the Tors a 7-3 first quarter advantage, and then McCurley took over. He scored twice in the second quarter on runs of one and five yards to put Lamesa in front 21-3 at the half.

In the fourth stanza McCurley broke loose on TD runs of 12 and 15 yards. Jerry Williams kicked four conversion points during the night.

Lamesa had 404 yards rushing and another 26 passing, while Dunbar was held to 106 total yards.

Oklahoma Smacks Colorado's Buffs

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Fullback Waymon Clark hammered for 172 yards and scored one touchdown Saturday as third-ranked Oklahoma smashed Colorado 34-7 in a crucial Big Eight football game.

The Sooners held only a 14-7 lead at halftime against the 16th-ranked Buffaloes. The turning point in the game came late in the third period, when the Buffaloes had the ball on the Oklahoma two with only one yard needed for a first down, but the Sooner defense wouldn't budge.

Oklahoma's touchdowns came on a tricky 37-yard pass hauled in by tight end Wayne Hoffman and a dazzling 96-yard run with an interception by safety Randy Hughes.

Quarterback Steve Davis scored on a one-yard plunge in the third period, then the game turned into a rout in the final quarter as Clark danced in on a nine-yard run and reserve halfback Clyde Russell scored on a 12-yard scamper.

Colorado took a 7-0 lead in the first period on Bo Matthews' three-yard dive.

Oklahoma moved the ball effectively but lost three scoring opportunities in the first half on two fumbles and a pass intreception.

Missouri Nips OSU

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — John Cherry threw a 35-yard scoring pass and Greg Hill kicked two fild goals in sparking seventh-ranked Missouri to a 13-9 victory over Oklahoma State in a Big Eight Conference football game Saturday.

Cherry, who attempted only eight passes all day, tossed his scoring bomb to split end Jim Sharp over the head of defender Darryl Stewart with 9:18 gone in the opening period.

Oklahoma State freshman Abby Daigle came back with a 50-yard field goal 4½ minutes later, but the Cowboys—the nation's sixth-ranking rushing team—were thwarted thereafter until the final minutes.

Capitalizing on six Cowboy fumbles, the undefeated Tigers boosted their lead to 103 at halftime on Hill's first field goal, a 27-yarder set up by one of the OSU bobbles.

Linebacker Lynn Evans recoverd another fumble early in the fourth quarter that led to Hill's second three-pointer, a 37-yard boot to make it 13-3.

Ohio State Gets Easy Victory Over Indiana

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Cornelius Greene rambled for touchdowns from six and 11 yards out and Bruce Elia scored on three and one-yard runs, propelling No. 1 Ohio State to a 37-7 rout of Indiana in Big Ten football Saturday.

Greene, who attempted only one pass and completed it for 12 yards, directed a fierce Buckeye offense that rolled up 419 yards, 365 of them on the ground.

Elia, a 6-foot-1, 212-pound fullback who started the year as a linebacker, churned out 109 yards on the ground, while runningmate Archie Griffin added 127 yards.

Ohio State, 5-0 overall and 3-0 in the Big Ten, opened the game with a methodical, crunching 85-yard drive that set the tone for the bright fall afternoon.

The awesome Buckeye offensive line, led by tackle John Hicks, cleared gaping holes in the Hoosier defense and Griffin and Elia gained consistent yardage.

Greene capped the first drive with a six-yard sweep around the right end. After a 37-yard Blair Conway field goal, Greene again scored for the Bucks, this time circling left end for 11 yards on a four-thand-one situation.

Neal Colzie, who intercepted two passes and scored once on a 55-yard return, put the Buckeyes in position for another score before the second half expired. Elia smashed over from the three on another fourth down play with 36 seconds remaining.

Indiana's only touchdown came midway through the fourth quarter when flanker Rodney Harris took a handoff, then passed to tight end Trent Smock for 51 yards.

Elia closed out the scoring with a one-yard plunge late in the fourth quarter.

Penn State Rolls, 49-6

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Bahr tied a school record with three field goals as fifth-ranked Penn State took advantage of numerous Syracuse miscues for a 49-6 college football victory Saturday.

Penn State, 6-0, wasted no time getting on the scoreboard. Bahr booted a 50-yard field goal with the game only five minutes old.

Syracuse mistakes led to Penn State's first two touchdowns. Randy Crowder recovered a Jim Donoghue fumble at the Syracuse 23 and quarterback Tom Shuman plunged over from one yard out six plays later. Fullback Bob Nagle scored from one yard out two minutes later after Doug Allen intercepted a Bob Mitch pass at the Syracuse 28 and ran it back to the 10.

Bahr added field goals of 21 and 33 yards in the second quarter to tie a school record for most field goals in one game.

Syracuse, 0-6, didn't get inside the Penn State 30-yard line in the first half. The Orangemen's lone score came early in the third quarter on a 16-yard pass from Mitch to Joe Brennan.

The Nittany Lions came back three plays later with the first of three third-quarter touchdowns.

Abilene Christian Tops Sul Ross

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Junior quarterback Clint Longley scored twice and passed for a third touchdown here Saturday as Abilene Christian College defeated Sul Ross 29-0 in a Lone Star Conference game.

The victory was the fifth in a row for ACC and kept it in first place in the conference.

Longley, a 6-1, 190 pounder from Littleton, Colo., completed 20 of 36 passes for 224 yards. He is the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) total offense leader with 113 pass completions in 203 attempts and 1,973 yards, including 191 on the ground.

Longley's touchdown pass went 14 yards to David Henson. He scored on runs of four and one yard.

Michigan Rips Badgers, 35-6

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Quarterback Dennis Franklin fired a 46-yard touchdown pass to Paul Seal and also scored on a one-yard run, guiding fourth-ranked Michigan to a 35-6 Big Ten football victory Saturday over Wisconsin.

Tight end Seal was all alone at the 5-yard line as Franklin fired the TD bomb up the middle 10 minutes into the first quarter.

Michigan, 6-0, scored two more touchdowns in the second quarter, one on a three-yard run by Gil Chapman and again on a sweep by Franklin.

The Franklin score came five plays after the ensuing kickoff when Michigan's Tim Davis recovered a fumble by Selvie Washington at the Wisconsin 19.

The Wolverines were bidding for their fourth consecutive shutout in Coach Bo Schembechler's 50th game at Michigan. But a freak Wisconsin scoring play in the final period thwarted that aim.

The Badgers got a 65-yard touchdown pass from Gregg Bohlig to tailback Bill Marek.

Tulsa Smothers New Mexico St.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Long returns by Raymond Rhodes and Danny Cobert sparked Tulsa to a 52-14 route of New Mexico State Saturday in a Missouri Valley Conference football game.

Rhodes returned a punt 91 yards to set up the Hurricane's go ahead score. A minute later Colbert took a blocked field goal attempt at his five and dashed 95 yards for a touchdown.

The victory, in a regionally televised game, kept Tulsa atop the conference with three wins and no losses. New Mexico State, which had been tied for the lead going into the game, ih 2-1.

Rhodes' punt return went to the New Mexico State six. Two plays later Joe McCulley hit Freddie Carolina with a touchdown pass.

Byron Franklin, Tulsa sophomore linebacker, intercepted Joe Pisarcik's pass at the Aggies' 39 and dashed 34 yards. Eldrich Johnson made the last five yards around left end.

Leonard Isabel scored on a 28-yard pass from McCulley to make it 31-7, Tulsa.

Joe McCully threw a 29-yard pass to his brother Jim, Tulsa fullback, for the Hurricane's sixth touchdown. Jeb Blount, second string quarterback, passed 34 yards to end T. C. Blair and a few minutes later Rhodes scampered 21 yards for a touchdown.

Notre Dame Routs Army

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Eighth-ranked Notre Dame, stymied for most of the first quarter, poured across four touchdowns in the second period and rolled to 62-3 victory Saturday that saddled Army with one of its worst defeats in its football history.

Dave Casper caught two touchdown passes in the second quarter, one each from Tom Clements and Cliff Brown, as the Fighting Irish wore down Army with three long scoring drives and one quick strike through the air.

It was the fifth consecutive triumph for unbeaten Notre Dame, Army, crippled and outmanned, has dropped its first five games for the first time ever, with three of the setbacks against Top Ten teams.

Army, a lopsided underdog, took a 3-0 lead on Jim Barclay's 22-vard field goal late in the first period after Bob Johnson intercepted a Clements pass.

Career Sales Opportunity

Would you like to earn $10,000 to $25,000 a year (and more) as a salesman? You can do it right here in Big Spring. No over night travel is required. We offer a comprehensive two year training program. You also receive excellent fringe benefits.

Many of our salesmen throughout the company earn in excess of $25,000 a year. In recent years our top salesmen have qualified for meetings at Lake of Ozarks, Mexico City, Nassau in the Bahamas, and the Virgin Islands. The results in 1973 will see many of our men at Mountain Shadows, Arizona and the Islands of Hawaii.

We are willing to pay you to learn our business. A bonus plan makes it possible to increase your earnings. After the initial two year training period, our men are essentially self-employed, independent, with no ceiling on earnings.

A sales background and a college degree are desirable but certainly not essential. We have successful men under 25 years of age and many much older. We are looking for honest, hard working men who meet people well, with a desire to succeed, and will follow our proven sales system exactly.

Take a few minutes to investigate this challenging, satisfying, and rewarding career. Call 263-7621 on Monday between 4:00 P.M. and 9:00 P.M. or Tuesday 9:00 A.M. to 12:00 Noon and ask for Lathon G. Mackey.

THE PATIO at Holiday Inn provides a pretty setting for L. R. Saunders Jr., president of the Men's Garden Club of Big Spring. The local group hosted this weekend's convention of the Southwest Region, Men's Garden Clubs of America, which was held at the Inn.

The Good Earth

By JO BRIGHT

The Southwest Region of Men's Garden Clubs of America climaxed its annual convention here Saturday evening with a banquet in the Patio Room of Holiday Inn.

The Inn served as headquarters for the two-day affair which began with registration and a board meeting Friday. The highlight that evening was a visit to the home of Roy Peet to see his Oriental Gardens, accented with night lighting, and afterward, a tour atop Scenic Mountain for a night view of the city.

The Southwest Region, which encompasses all of Texas and part of Oklahoma, includes 21 men's garden clubs in such diverse areas as Amarillo and Houston.

Local club members and their wives were hosts and hostesses for all events. The Men's Garden Club of Big Spring is headed by L. R. Saunders Jr., president; Edward Cruz, vice president; and Bill Sneed, secretary-treasurer.

Satuday's sessions began with a business meeting in the Patio Room at the Inn, followed by a workshop on "Drip Irrigation" featuring a talk by Leon New, irrigation specialist, Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Lubbock. During the men's meetings, the women guests were entertained with a style show by Zack's and a musical program presented by Woody McDonell.

Workshops resumed after a buffet luncheon, with Dr. Roland Roberts, Lubbock, discussing vegetable gardening and Joe Woodward of Dallas, national rose judge, speaking on rose culture.

In a separate meeting, the women heard a program on flower arranging by Mrs. J. A. VanAuken of Midland.

The convention concluded with the banquet, where the presiding officer was F. Martin Brown, president of the Southwest Region. The invocation was by the Rev. Robert Ford, and the banquet speaker was C. C. 'Mitch' Michel of the Men's Garden Club of Odessa.

The Men's Garden Club of America had its beginning when a leading newspaper awarded $1,000, the top prize in a gardening contest, to Leo Nack of Chicago in 1927. By entering the contest, Nack discovered that a number of other men were interested in gardening. On March 15, 1928, the first men's garden club was established. The expansion saw the founding of Men's Garden Clubs of America, July 9, 1933.

Since that time, over 300 clubs have been chartered, with about 12,000 members. Community services are many and varied, centering around plantings, beautification of homes and communities and help with the development of parks, public plots and institutional grounds.

The clubs undertake plant studies and testing, training and accrediting of judges, and educational projects which include conservation of natural resources, flora and fauna. Youth gardening is encouraged by the clubs through their sponsorship of "Big Pumpkin-Giant Sunflower" contests, and all club members contribute to scholarships and annual awards.

The Men's Garden Club of Big Spring received its charter March 4, 1968, with Sneed serving as its first president. There are currently 14 members listed on its rolls.

Miss Vicky Diane Cobb became the bride of James Dean Householder during a candlelight ceremony at 8 p.m., Saturday in the Grace Baptist Church.

MRS. JAMES HOUSEHOLDER

The Rev. Roy E. Honea performed the rites, and a prelude of nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Homer Hess, organist. Miss Brenda Rudicil was vocalist.

The altar setting was enhanced with a heart-shaped archway centered with a candelabrum. Spiral candelabra and baskets of assorted fall flowers flanked the archway.

PARENTS

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Cobb, 3906 Hamilton, and Householder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houseolder, 2513 Lynn.

The bride's Spanish style gown was fashioned in layered Chantilly lace over silk organza. The fitted bodice featured long tapered sleeves, accented with finger-tip ruffles, and a contoured neckline. The formal-length skirt extended to form a train which was highlighted at the waistline with a bow. A matching headband held her floor-length illusion veil which was edged with Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid and two red roses.

Miss Anita Hobbs served as maid of honor, and matrons of honor were Mrs. John Gieselman, sister of the bride; and Mrs. Darrow Cobb, sister-in-law of the bride.

Miss Hobbs wore a pastel green, street-length dress styled with short puffed and lace-accented empire sleeves, scooped neckline bodice. Mrs. Gieselman and Mrs. Cobb wore identically-styled gowns in pastel blue and yellow, respectively.

Alan Householder served his brother as best man, and the bride's brother, Ricky Cobb, was groomsman along with Roddy Robertson. Ushers and candle lighters were John Gieselman, brother-in-law of the bride, and Tommy Cobb, brother of the bride.

NEW MEXICO

Prior to leaving for a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the newlyweds were honored at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. White lace covered the refreshment table which was accented with pastel ribbons and miniature wedding bells. The bride's bouquet served as the centerpiece.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Blain Larson, Mrs. Johnnie Hobbs, Mrs. Steve Ames and Mrs. Lonnie Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Householder will reside on San Angelo Highway. She attended Forsan High School. Householder is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is now assistant produce manager at Furr's Supermarket.

Relatives attending from out of town were Mrs. Cleo Burt, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burt and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burt, all of Anton; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Burt, Muleshoe; Mr. and Mrs. Virgel Burt, Levelland; Miss Beatrice Cobb, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Tex Cobb, Boerne; Mrs. Odessa Kennedy, Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy, San Antonio; Mr. and Mrs. Garland Potts and Mr. and Mrs. Bonnie Potts, all of Amarillo.

Bride-Elect Honored At Shower

Miss Lisa White, future bride of Eddie Brooks of Van Horn, was the honoree Thursday at a wedding shower in the home of Mrs. Willis LeVier, 2208 Morrison Drive.

Joining Miss White in the receiving line were her mother, Mrs. Troy White, and her grandmother, Mrs. Thular White. The honoree was attired in a pink, floor-length dress trimmed with pink and white lace. The women were presented corsages of purple carnations.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with an arrangment of purple and orchid flowers accented with white candles. The white cloth featured a pink, purple and white design, and the cake was trimmed with purple and white flowers.

Hostesses were Mrs. Lou Thompson, Mrs. Eugene Clanton, Mrs. Charlie Green, Mrs. Willis LeVier, Mrs. Dean Christian, Mrs. Gus Tatum and Miss Shirley Lee.

Miss White and Brooks will be married Nov. 3 in Van Horn. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Troy White, 2303 Morrison, and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Brooks, Van Horn.

Credit Club Members Take Exam

An annual examination covering materials in a program book was administered Thursday evening to members of Big Spring Credit Women at the home of Mrs. J. B. Apple, 419 Westover.

Invocation for the dinner meeting was by Mrs. George Weeks. During business, plans mere made for an installation dinner at 7 p.m., Nov. 3 at Coker's Restaurant. Mrs. Helen Draper is in charge of the program, and the state president, Mrs. Maxine Guittar, El Paso, will perform the installation.

Guests for the meeting were Mrs. A. G. Eitzen, Mrs. W. E. Moren and Mrs. R. W. Baker, all former members. Dining tables were covered with white and black check cloths, holding floral and candle centerpieces.

A club Christmas party is scheduled at 7 p.m., Dec. 7 in the home of Mrs. W. D. Draper.

Women Return To Dress-Up

"For the first time in three or four years, I think women feel the urge to wear dresses. Skirts, shirts and sweaters will be for evenings at home. The dress-up mood is covered and casual, but wildly sexy." . . . Donald Brooks

Women Warned Of Cancer Signs

Cancer's warning signs were listed Tuesday by Mrs. Raymond Phillips for members of Airport Home Demonstration Club at the home of Mrs. Garland Irons, 1109 Lloyd.

Some of the symptoms Mrs. Phillips said to watch for include a sore that doesn't heal, unusual bleeding or discharge, indigestion or difficulty in swallowing, change in the size of a wart of mole, nagging cough or hoarseness, change in bowel and bladder habits and a thickening or lump in the breast.

In conjunction with the program, Mrs. Phillips showed a film demonstrating how to check for lumps in the breast. She said women should check themselves monthly following their menstrual cycle.

Devotion was by Mrs. Irons, and guests were Mrs. Leon Kinney and Mrs. Phillips. Secret-pal gifts were exchanged. Mrs. Vern Vigar won the attendance prize.

The club will meet again at 1:30 p.m., Nov. 6 in the home of Mrs. Fred Jones, 810 Andree.

Ceremony Performed Saturday Afternoon

Miss Prudie Adaline Franklin and James Mason McFarland exchanged nuptial vows during an afternoon ceremony Saturday at Phillips Memorial Baptist Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer L. Franklin, Gail Rte., Box 1362, Big Spring, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McFarland, 183-A Fairchild.

An archway entwined with greenery accented the altar area, and twin branched candelabra flanked the arch. The ceremoney was performed by the Rev. J. B. Chick of Bangs. Traditional wedding music was performed by Miss Shirley Adams, pianist.

The bride's flowers were a cascade of yellow and white roses, lily of the valley and white streamers. Her formal-length, A-line gown was fashioned in white satin, with a lace panel extending down the front. The molded bodice featured long sleeves, ruffled at the wrist, and the skirt extended to form a chapel-length train. A shoulder-length tulle veil fell from her headpiece of camellias, lily of the valley and white satin leaves.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Sandra McFarland, was maid of honor. She was attired in a floor-length gown of yellow taffeta with an A-line skirt, long, ruffed sleeves and a high stand-up collar.

Kenneth Wayne Franklin, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. McFarland will reside at 511 Bell. She will graduate in January from Big Spring High School and is employed as a nurses' aide at Big Spring Nursing Inn. McFarland graduated from high school in Lakenheath, England and attended Howard County Junior College. He is currently employed by the U.S. Civil Service at Webb Air Force Base.

Keep Illusion

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a mother should cover up for Father so the children won't know what a louse he is?

I've made excuses for my husband ever since I can remember. It's "Daddy is sick." (Daddy was hung over.) Or, "Daddy didn't come home for supper because he had to work late." (Daddy didn't call to say he wouldn't be home. I don't know where he was, or what he was doing.)

I've said: "We can't afford a new car — or a vacation this year because Daddy needs the money to put back into his business." when the truth was, "Daddy likes to gamble."

I ask myself, why should I protect Daddy? When the kids get older they'll learn the truth anyway.

So, Dear Abby, you're supposed to have all the answers. Can you answer this one?

PROTECTING DADDY

DEAR PROTECTING: At an age where children believe that Daddy is the greatest, what's to be gained by being brutally factual? I don't recommend crowning him with a halo — neither do I support your suggestion that he deserves a noose. Like the Santa Claus myth, childrens' illusions about Daddy (and Mama) vanish soon enough. Don't shove.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: How would you feel if you found your 16-year-old daughter and her 17-year-old boy friend asleep on her bed with the door closed?

ROCKPORT, MASS

DEAR ROCK: Nervous.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: As a minister's wife, I get some really dumb questions, but when someone hands me the money for church rental (for nonmembers) and then asks: "Is there supposed to be a gift for the minister, too?" — well, that's too much.

Where the church is concerned, some people are unbelievably cheap. A minister must pay for his education just as any other professionally trained person must. He drives his car to and from the church for counseling sessions, again for rehearsal, and finally for the wedding ceremony. The minister is not part of the rented property.

Would anyone expect the services of a doctor or dentist for a total of 5 or 6 hours, and then ask: "Is $5 enough?"

Please urge ministers to set up a scale of fees for members and nonmembers. (The latter seem to think they are entitled to more than members.) And don't be afraid to say: "My fee is —!" And then collect the fee, or send a bill as everyone else does.

MINISTER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: And to your letter, may I add an appropriate, "AMEN!"

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My brother is being married soon. His financee asked me to be one of her bridesmaids, and I accepted.

Today I was informed that all the bridesmaids dresses were ORDERED, and mine will cost me $49.95, and I will have to buy shoes to match! The bride didn't discuss the style or color or price with me, she just went ahead and ordered what she wanted. I don't know any of the other bridesmaids as they are her friends, so I don't know if they had anything to say about the choice.

Abby, I don't like paying for a dress I may not like or wear again. I have already purchased a shower gift which cost me $10, and later on there will be a wedding gift. I think this whole thing is getting out of hand.

How can I bow out of this wedding party without making a big stink?

GROOM'S SISTER

DEAR SISTER: You may not be able to. Why not wait until your gown arrives? (You may like it.) If you don't, simply state your objections. They are legitimate.

MRS. JOHNNIE MORRISON HONORED BY COUNTRY CLUB
Ends service as club manager

Country Club Honors Mrs. J. Morrison

Tribute was paid to Mrs. H. J. (Johnnie) Morrison Thursday evening by approximately 100 members of Big Spring Country Club who attended a dinner at the club in her honor.

Mrs. Morrison, who accepted a temporary position with the club in 1966 and became manager in 1969, has resigned her job "to rest for awhile."

Marvin Miller, who has served twice as president of the club, was master of ceremonies. In expressing appreciation to Mrs. Morrison, he noted that under her management, the club "went from red to black, paid off the mortgage and increased its membership." Other speakers who cited Mrs. Morrison for her service were Walter Wheat, current president, and George McAlister, past president.

Attired in a black and white two-piece dress, and wearing a corsage of pink carnations and roses, the honoree was presented gifts which included a dozen red roses and a lifetime membership in the club. A separate gift was presented by employes. Adding a humorous touch to the evening, Paul Meek, John Taylor and McAlister donned aprons to serve the employes' table.

Mrs. Morrison, who has been responsible for arranging many festive functions at the club, recalled that its entertainments have honored such diverse personalities as former Texas governor, Preston Smith; Sen. John Tower, Roger Staubach and Walt Garrison of the Dallas Cowboys, numerous foreign dignitaries connected with Cosden Oil and Chemical Company and Ken Carter, the 'Festus' of 'Gunsmoke' — who autographed her fishing tackle box.

Born and reared at Tenaha, Mrs. Morrison was a home economics major at Stephen F. Austin State Teachers College in Nacogdoches. Granted a teacher's certificate, she taught at Ackerly for three years and, in 1932, met Sunbeam Morrison in the Settles Drug Store. They were married in 1937.

Mrs. Morrison "tried housekeeping" for a couple of years but got bored and accepted a job as a bookkeeper at Joe Glickman's store, "Margo's." During the World War II years, while her husband served in the Army, Mrs. Morrison worked for the Albert M. Fisher Department Store, leaving in 1945 to work for Elmo Wasson. She remained with that job until joining the Big Spring Country Club staff in 1966.

Widowed in 1968, Mrs. Morrison resides at 714 Hillside. She is a member of the First United Methodist Church, Big Spring Credit Women and the American Legion Auxiliary. Making his home with Mrs. Morrison is her brother, Parker White, and they have two other brothers, Leon White of Clifton and Leo White of Austin.

Known as a fisherman, Mrs. Morrison has had little time to spend at her Lake Champion cabin the past few years, but she also bowls and, occasionally, golfs. As for the future, she intends to do some traveling and "relax" — but after working for 44 years, she's too energetic to stay idle for long.

Garden Club Hears Of Medicinal Herbs

"Almost 50 per cent of all medicines are derived from plants," said Mrs. Clyde Angel as she discussed the "History of Herbs" Tuesday for After Five Garden Club at the home of Mrs. Huey Rogers, 429 Dallas.

Mrs. Angel said herbs are used for seasonings, fragrances and medicinal purposes. Present-day American Indians use herbs and plants as fish preservatives and to wrap around small cuts. Herbs have also been used to relieve indigestion, depressed spirits, blackouts and effects of excessive drinking.

"In the past, people used herbs to cast spells, kill monsters, ward off witches, demons and vampires," said Mrs. Angel. "They have also been used for love potions to promote faithfulness, to induce forgetfulness, to aid memory and as beauty aids."

The speaker said a 3,500-year-old scroll was found in Egypt which is considered the oldest medical manuscript. It lists 877 plants used in the art of healing. She said many of today's medicines are derived from ancient herbs. A cure for lunacy, dating back 500 years, used the root of serpentina, and Mrs. Angel said a medicine called reserpine was developed in 1952 which provides treatment for mental illness and high blood pressure.

"All parts of plants are used," said Mrs. Angel. "Seeds, flowers, roots and leaves contain an abundance of healing properties." Other herbs used in medicine include sage, for mental exhaustion and as a gargle for sore throats; onions, for stings and asthma; rosemary for memory; and bay leaf for over-all good health.

Mrs. Ed Shive, vice president, presided during a business discussion.

Wedding Rites Held In Baptist Church

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Jeanie Marlene Averitt and Airman 1.C. Robert Paul Mabry at 7:30 p.m., Friday in Trinity Baptist Church. The Rev. Collyns Moore and the Rev. Randy Cotton performed the rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Averitt, 3301 Eleventh Place. A graduate of Big Spring High School, she attended Howard County Junior College and is employed by Hemphill-Wells.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mabry, Clover, S.C. He is a graduate of Clover High School and is currently assigned with the Air Force at Webb AFB.

A prelude of traditional wedding music was performed by Miss Lyla Williams, organist, and Miss Melonie Hayworth, soloist. The bridal couple stood at an altar enhanced with a heart-shaped arch flanked by arched candelabra holding votive cups. Baskets of blue and white gladioli completed the setting.

For her gown, the bride chose a formal-length style of white satin with an overlay of chiffon. The molded bodice featured heavy lace marked at the waistline with a narrow satin ribbon and bow. Matching ribbons highlighted a ruffled lace neckline and full, lace sleeves. The softly-gathered skirt extended to form a chapel-length satin train. Her illusion veil, also chapel-length, fell from a bandeau of lace, pearls and satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of blue roses and lilly of the valley, tied with satin streamers.

What's New In Arts, Crafts Demonstrated

"What's New in Arts and Crafts?," was the program given Tuesday morning by Mrs. Charles Mussman for College Park HD Club in the home of Mrs. Gerald Miller, 606 Baylor.

The speaker showed a new technique called "shrink art," in which a plastic sheet is placed over a picture; the picture is outlined and colored. Then, the picture is cut out and placed in a 400-degree oven for about one minute. The heating shrinks the picture to about one-seventh of its original size, and the decoration may then be mounted on jewelry, purses, or used as Christmas tree ornaments and package decorations.

Mrs. Mussman also showed styling arrangements for straw flowers, using boards or shadow boxes.

Mrs. J. C. Williams presided, and guests were Mrs. Ronald McDonald and Mrs. Bill Brooks. Members agreed to inquire about "adopting" a resident at Big Spring State Hospital, and Mrs. Williams was named to check into the procedure.

The next meeting will be Nov. 6 at the home of Mrs. McDonald, 800 W. 18th.

Sparks Interest In Equal Rights

"I'm afraid many women here don't really realize what this means. Maybe we haven't done enough to stir up their interest." Clara Boscaglia, a 41-year-old teacher who led her countrywomen in a 15-year campaign for equal rights in San Marino, an island in the Adriatic Sea.

Dance Theatre Will Be Season Opener

The Community Concert Association series gets off to a rousing start with the Heritage Dance Theatre's appearance Monday evening at Municipal Auditorium. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m., and the program promises to be a delight to see and hear.

The Agnes De Mille company includes about 50 dancers, singers and actors in the show, and several noted choreographers, composers and designers have combined their talents to make it an outstanding production.

"Today, there is a growing belief in the importance of guarding our traditions, and this includes our living heritage, the American folk rhythm, the American folk songs and dance," says Miss De Mille. "We need a theatre to preserve the treasure of our past in such a form that it can still communicate and influence.

"Our songs and dances are unique. Out of the Appalachian and New England squares, the cowboy sets, the Negro buck, the Negro blues and jazz, will grow our new lyric theatre. Even now, our contemporary popular forms are more cherished throughout the world than any others.

"This Heritage Company is designed to fill a gap in our cultural scene. It must never reproduce what has already been done elsewhere."

New Spray Rids Fabric Of Stains

Today's fashions are designed for people on the go, but unfortunately there's a natural problem that stays with those on the move. It's perspiration.

Compounding the problem is the constant threat of stains and plain old soiling. But there is help.

A handy new household product has come to the rescue. Its dual protection aerosol spray prevents perspiration stains from forming on clothing and prevents clothing from developing and absorbing perspiration odors.

The spray can be used on all types of clothing for men, women and children.

Its stain repelling powers are almost magical as it refuses to let the enemies of neatness do their dirty work.

News In Print For Fall Styles

In this day of fast-moving fronts in tastes and choices, only the speed, versatility and flexibility of prints can meet the challenge of spontaneous change in the demand for new colors and fresh pattern ideas.

Fabric printing is the modern way to interpret pattern and color on fabric. Prints adapt to all kinds of leisure, casual and play wear. Start with the plaid, plaid world of fashion for Fall. You'll see plaid printed corduroys, cottons, blends, knits, spotting them in jackets, skirts, slacks, ties and even in casual suits.

Whether classic or casual the clothes we wear are a reflection of the way we live. Pattern and color add a dash of desirability and that desirability is called fashion.

'Gray Panthers' Open Protests To Elderly

"Our culture seems to have freed the elderly from their traditional perils, but it has simultaneously removed the traditional rewards," said Mrs. Tom Salter, speaker Thursday for 1905 Hyperion Club.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Ted Hatfield, 1510 Douglas, Mrs. Salter's topic was "Respect for the Aged." "The elderly are no longer given automatic respect, and their usefulness is often questioned," continued Mrs. Salter. "During the best of times, our society conferred a special status and the honor of a unique perspective upon the aged."

According to the speaker, there are 21 million people in the United States who are 65 years of age or older. More than half of these are aged 73 or older. Mrs. Salter said the percentage is continually growing. Social Security benefits are paid to more than 6,500 centenarians.

The elderly have waited for an uninterested society to notice them," she continued, "but since society did not notice, and the problems did not go away, the elderly have turned to protest and organization to help themselves.

"Senior Power" is a force to be reckoned with. The elderly are winning battles ranging from discounted bus fares to property tax relief, and few politicians will ignore what someone has dubbed the 'crutch and Cadillac' vote."

Mrs. Salter said about six million people belong to senior organizations on local or national levels, and that many more are in social clubs for the elderly. She said they have learned that protest is no longer the prerogative of the young. During the fall of 1972, a "Gray Panther" demonstration in Philadelphia by about 200 militant elderly people protested the government's cuts in the social services budget.

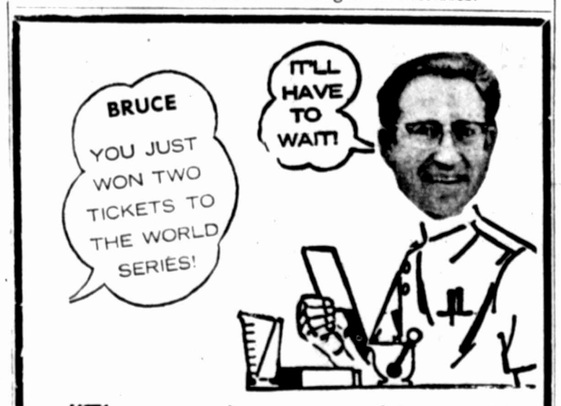

Even if the economic and health problems of the elderly were resolved, there would still remain a multitude of social and psychological adjustments for them, according to Mrs. Salter.

"It seems that the elderly who are unadjusted, were also generally unhappy, passive or uninvolved when they were younger," she said. "People don't undergo radical personality changes the day they turn 65.

"Respect is a feeling that is generated for specific reasons," she concluded. "Age alone is not enough to demand respect and esteem. The elderly must continue to pursue the ends that give their existence a meaning. Respect will then follow."

Mrs. O. T. Brewster was cohostss for the meeting, and Mrs. Miller Harris presided during business. Members agreed to enter the name of the late Mrs. J. Gordon Bristow in the "Golden Book" at Texas Federation of Women's Clubs headquarters in Austin, in honor of her work as member and past president of the club.

The next meeting will be Nov. 15, with Mrs. Clyde Angel and Mrs. Horace B. Reagan as hostesses.

Try, Try Again, Students' Motto

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Students of Western College have accepted a mild setback in their determination to raise $5 million and prevent a merger with Miami (Ohio) University.

Students of the 121-year-old private school had hoped to strike it rich when they purchased $380 worth of tickets in the New York lottery. But Thursday's drawing produced only $150 in winnings and 30 "future" tickets.

"I guess it means we regroup and plan some other things," said Susan McBride, a senior from Pittsburgh.

She is among the 320 students of the school determined to raise funds to keep the school alive and pay off its debts.

The students have raised more than $1,000 since the drive began two weeks ago, with $380 going toward the lottery tickets.

Dr. Kissinger Orchestrates Symphony For Red China

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Symphony conductor Eugene Ormandy says that when he takes the Philadelphia Orchestra to China this summer he will perform a concerto written by a Communist committee.

The 72-year-old Ormandy, in Los Angeles for a series of performances with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, said Wednesday he received a copy of "The Yellow River Concerto" about a month ago from mainland China.

"In today's China, at least in this case, such a piece of music is written by a group rather than one person," said Ormandy. "The composer is listed as 'the committee of the composer's union.'"

Ormandy's tour starting Sept. 10 was arranged by presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger. All 105 members of the Philadelphia Orchestra will make the trip.

Ormandy called the Chinese concerto very effective. He said "it sounds like a 19th Century Russian work.

"From a popular point of view, it's really for the public at large. It has a lot of melodious passages and it is — if I can use the word — 'schmaltzy.'"

The tour will consist of seven concerts in Peking and Shanghai, and Ormandy said he will perform a number of American works by such composers as Samuel Barber and Aaron Copeland — "nothing too far out, something they would enjoy.

Indians As Indians

Times have changed, and the American Indian has finally become a voice in the cinema combine.

All the Indians in Cinema Center Films' "Little Big Man" are authentic, not out of Hollywood Central Casting.

"For years," explains Stuart Millar, the producer of the motion picture starring Dustin Hoffman, "the original Americans have been complaining that Hollywood has been using white men and brown in Indian parts. And they've been right."

"Little Big Man, which opens Wednesday at the Ritz Theater, now evens the score. "Hollywood's own Indian actors are kept out of Indian roles most of the time," Millar emphasizes, "and the reason given is that they can't act. Well, if they can't, Hollywood must accept the responsibility for that, too. It has stifled Indian talent by giving the red men the sterotyved, one-dimensional, and completely phony role of the Indian who folds his arms and says 'Ugh', and nothing else.

To prove his peace pipe was in the right place producer Millar filled five of the principal roles in "Little Big Man," directed by Arthur Penn, with real Indians, including the second lead.

In addition he signed 400 McCoys living on the Crow reservation near Hardin, Montana, to portray Sitting Bull's warriors in the re-staging of the famous Custer's Last Stand, filmed on location at the actual site. Millar also assigned 300 Stony and Sarcee Indians to play Black Kettle's people in a sequence recounting Custer's massacre of the Washita tribe in 1868.

Assigned one of the major roles was Chief Dan George, real Indian chief who belongs to British Columbia's Squamish tribe. He was "discovered," at the age of 70, in Vancouver where he began acting on television three years ago. Four other major roles were filled actors from Jay Silverheels' Hollywood Actors' Workshop, which Silverheels organized to aid other Indian actors after his days as Tonto — the Lone Ranger's friend — expired.

"Furthermore," Millar adds about the unusual casting procedure, this time we're telling the story of how the West was 'won' from the Indians' viewpoint. It's time pictures told the truth about it."

Custer must be doing somersaults in his grave.

ON ANY SUNDAY (G) is the story of men who love motorcycles and motorcycle racing. You join Bruce Brown as he follows talented sportsman, Malcolm Smith, and the number one professional competitor, Mert Lawwill, across 100,000 miles of motorcycle country.
Starting Wednesday
LITTLE BIG MAN (PG) brings together the talents of Dustin Hoffman and Faye Dunaway. Hoffman said, "I play the sole survivor of Custer's Last Stand, but that's only part of the story. In the course of the motion picture, I portray an adopted Indian complete with braids and war paint, a trapper with a foot-long beard, a town drunk, a greasy Custer scout, a medicine-show drifter, a gun fighter, and, finally, myself at 121 years old."
Also showing will be A MAN CALLED HORSE (PG).

When the inevitable showdown comes between the bad man and good judge (Paul Newman), the results are different from the traditional "High Noon" shootout.
Also being screened is THE GETAWAY (PG). Sally Struthers makes a momentary getaway from her Emmy Award winning role in TV's "All in the Family," to play opposite Ali MacGraw and Steve McQueen.

BANG THE DRUMS SLOWLY (PG). Based on the classic American novel by Mark Harris, this movie explores human friendships using professional baseball as a backdrop. Michael Moriarty, Robert De Niro and Vincent Gardenia star. Director John Hancock has an Academy Award nomination.

Ex-Little Leaguer Returns To Diamond

If Michael Moriarty, the blond, boyish looking actor who co-stars as Henry in Paramount Pictures' "Bang the Drum Slowly," seems naturally at home in the baseball sequences of his new film, chalk it up to his talent as an actor, a certain athletic ability and possibly a tribute to his own family background.

"Bang" starts Wednesday at the Cinema.

Moriarty may have been a Little Leaguer in his pre-adolescent days, but his granddad, the late George Moriarty was a professional ballplayer, spending 65 of his 82 years in the sport, as a player, an umpire, a manager and a scout.

The youthful actor, working closely with the film's baseball advisor, Dell Bethel, toiled several hours a day to perfect the pitching form that looks so easy in the film. The producers wanted actors who not only could honestly portray the emotions demanded in the script, but could also persuasively play baseball. Moriarty fit the bill nicely in both departments.

Meeting Moriarty, he seems as quiet and as serious as he does in the film. He is quite analytical about his acting career; indeed, he is analytical about everything, a throwback he says, to his Jesuit school days. "People say that most actors are children at heart and I can't deny that," he says. "Somehow," he adds, "the childlike quality is something they cannot rid themselves of. It's impossible, no matter how hard they try, no matter how many analysts they go through."

Moriarty, who was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts upon his graduation from Dartmouth, believes that in America most actors' neuroses are encouraged. "Unfortunately," he says, "they're fed by a lot of people who want to see those neuroses, they're fed by the acting teachers themselves." Without naming names, he adds, "There are certain actors whose mannerisms were neurotic ones and these mannerisms were mistaken for talent."

The actor has spent four seasons with the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minneapolis appearing in O'Neill, Deurrenmatt and Ibsen, and he played the title role in "Merton of the Movies."

Ex-Students Living Here Asked To Fill Out Forms

Most Big Spring High School exes living out of town have been invited via letter to attend the Nov. 9-10-11 Homecoming but others still residing here have not indicated they will be in attendance.

For that reason, The Herald is cooperating with the Homecoming committee in printing a registration form for the benefit of all ex-students who plan to attend the festivities.

Those who do register are being asked to contribute $1 to help defray expenses of the organization.

The completed forms should be returned to Exes Association, care of Big Spring High School, 11th Place.

Texas Farms Can Produce Much More, Says Briscoe

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe looks upon rural Texas as one big agricultural factory that is producing at only 50 to 60 per cent of capacity.

He feels one of his biggest jobs as the most rural-oriented governor in many years is to "call attention to the potential" Texas has for becoming the nation's leading agricultural state.

Texas ranks third behind California and Iowa, but it is increasing its productivity at twice the rate those states are.

DISCUSSES PROGRAMS

The Governor's Conference on Rural Development meets Tuesday in Austin. Briscoe agreed to a preconference interview with The Associated Press to discuss his program for making Texas No. 1.

"I'm convinced we're entering an era worldwide of trade between countries to an extent that we've never had before," Briscoe said.

"I think from the point of view of the federal government, if we're going to in years ahead offset the deficit balance of payments caused by our increased imports of crude oil . . . that we're boing to have to export from this country (what we produce) the most efficiently and most economically of any country in the world, and that basically is our agricultural products," he said.

Briscoe concedes he has little power in a non-cabinet form of government to influence agricultural programs directly, but he said all state agencies have given him excellent cooperation when the programs are good for all of the people.

And he knows the federal government has much more to say than the state about the economics of agriculture, and also that farmers and ranchers must be convinced they will not be left with surpluses if they increase their production.

He has no legislative program to help make Texas No. 1. "My position is one of calling attention to the potential," he said.

Asked how people might expect him to do a better job of this than another governor, Briscoe said: "I wouldn't want to claim to be the only person who could do it. We face a very fortunate set of circumstances right now, that agriculture, that the demand for the products produced in Texas are extremely strong worldwide."

Cotton, wheat, milo, corn and soybean production can be increased tremendously, he said.

Texas already is first among the states in cotton, grain sorghums, rice, all cattle, beef cattle, sheep, wool, goats, mohair, native "seedling" pecans, cabbage, watermelons and spinach. It is second or third on many other products.

CAN BE NO. 1

If Texas continues to increase its productivity at its 1972 rate, and if California and Iowa continue at their 1972 rates, Texas will be No. 1 in 1980, with $9.1 billion worth of agricultural products.

Austin, Briscoe-agriculture Sun adv, take 2: 1980. 200

The future for cotton, wool and mohair "looks very good, very strong," Brisce said, citing the treatment of cotton as a luxury fabric by the Japanese.

But he does not expect a great increase in mohair and wool production because of labor costs—especially shearing—and because of what he called the predator problem.

Briscoe is aware that environmentalists and some wildlife biologists with the U.S. Department of the Interior contend coyotes are not predators. He laughed hard when asked if he is convinced coyotes are predators.

"Yes, I sure am. I understand it is (being debated). I understand it is," he said, continuing to laugh. "Oh, yes, you bet. I most certainly am (convinced)."

Encouraging Texas farmers and ranchers to increase yields is a joint effort of the governor, the Texas Department of Agriculture, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at College Station, regional agricultural development agencies across the state and Texas' congressional delegation, Briscoe said.

Director Again Gets CD Award

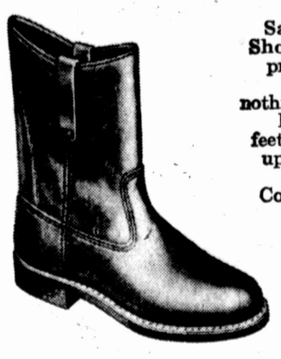

W. D. Berry, director of civil defense for Howard County, received the Presidential citation from the United States Civil Defense Council for his outstanding efforts in the cause of Civil Defense.

This is the second time he has earned the award, the first being in 1964. He is the only civil defense director in Texas to have twice-received this honor.

The award was presented Oct. 9 in Minneapolis. Berry was unable to attend because he was on a special state assignment in the Houston area.

Berry is a member of the U.S.C.D. Council in Regional 5.
