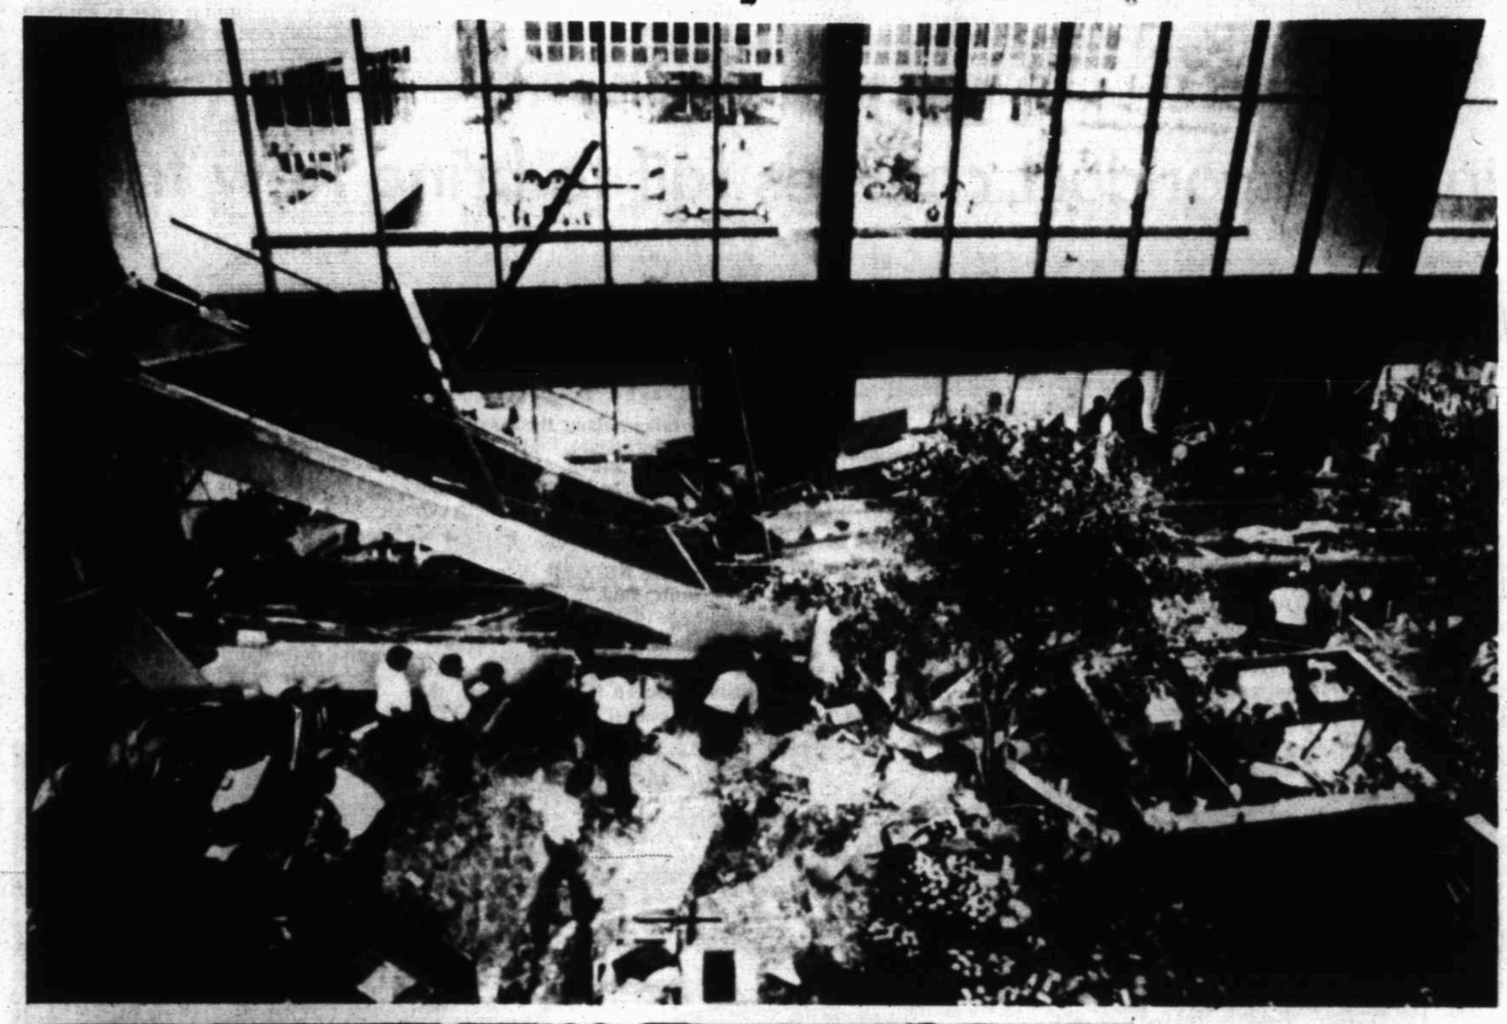
Hotel walkways collapse, killing at least 43



100 injured; Officials fear death toll will climb

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Three "sky bridges" inside an enclosed courtyard at the Hyatt Regency Hotel collapsed onto a lobby floor full of dancers Friday night, leaving at least 43 dead and 100 injured, officials said.

As bodies were pulled from a tangle of twisted girders and broken glass where the concrete walkways fell to the floor, one room of the posh mid-town hotel was designated as a temporary morgue.

One police officer said he could see "arms and legs sticking out all over" from under the debris as rescuers brought bodies out.

"You couldn't believe it, it just started rashing, caving in," said Dorothy Johnson, a nurse who was having dinner at a restaurant overlooking the lobby. "We just sat there and watched it cave in."

"There was a rumbling sound, exactly like a rolling clap of thunder outside and everything got real quiet for a moment, then there was mass confusion," said Randy Dunford, whose wife was just about to walk onto a crosswalk when it fell.

Police Chief Norman Caron said injured who could walk were being placed on a city bus for transportation to a hospital. Others were being treated where they lay in the rubble.

As rescuers moved through the area, injured awaiting evacuation were comforted by friends. Uninjured people waited outside the building for word of the missing.

Officials said rescue efforts were hampered by natural gas leaks, and were working to shut off the leaks to eliminate the chance of explosion in the 40-story building.

Harold Knabe, a spokesman for the Kansas City Fire Department, said part of the lobby in the west side of the building also had collapsed. He said equipment, including cranes, was brought in to help people who were trapped by the collapsing walkways.

The walkways are stacked one over another at different levels inside the lobby of the hotel, which is several stories high. Police said that one of the walkways fell and knocked down the others, which crossed underneath it. The highest walkway to fall was three stories high.

The ballroom beneath the walkways was crowded with people dancing to Big Band music at a "Tea Dance," which has become a Friday night fixture at the latest luxury hotel to open in Kansas City.

Walkways collapse

Rescue workers, top, begin searching through the debris of a collapsed walkway in the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri, Friday night. At left, medical treatment is given to a person who was trapped under the debris. At least 43 persons were killed and 100 injured. Officials fear the death toll will increase. The accident happened as a weekly dance contest was under way.

Israelis attack Palestinian posts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S.-made Israeli jets attacked Yasser Arafat's Palestinian command posts in Beirut and southern Lebanon Friday in the most punishing strikes against guerrilla strongholds since Israel's 1978 invasion of Lebanon.

Palestinian spokesmen said at least 123 people were killed and 469 wounded in Beirut. Police and Beirut radio stations reported 36 people killed and 90 wounded by air and sea attacks in southern Lebanon.

At a U.N. Security Council meeting in New York, convened Friday night at the urgent request of Lebanon, Lebanese Charge d'Affaires Fakhri Saghiyyah said the Israeli raid killed 300 people and wounded 800. He said the final toll "can be much higher" and appealed to the council "to stop the carnage."

Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum told the 15-member council that his country regretted the loss of civilian lives, but he insisted Israel was acting in self-defense against the "scourge" of Palestinian "terror."

The council, after a two-hour debate, issued a statement calling the attacks "deplorable" and urging their immediate halt.

The raids were in reprisal for Palestinian rocket attacks in northern Israel that killed three Israelis and wounded 18 this week. More rockets slammed into Israel Friday night.

A communique by the Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said several Katyusha rockets fired from southern Lebanon exploded in the Galilee panhandle of northern Israel, inflicting no casualties but damaging a water pipeline and an electric power cable. Israel Radio said residents of the border town of Metulla were spending the night in bomb shelters.

A Palestinian spokesman said the raids on Beirut were "a barbaric bloodbath, but we shall avenge it." He said the casualty figures were expected to climb as rescue operations continued from the morning and afternoon raids.

"Come see the people killed," a boy yelled to reporters at one bombed-out site. "There's more, there's more," rescue workers screamed as they dug through broken concrete and smashed furniture.

The Israeli raid on Beirut was the first against the capital in three years and its fifth air raid in Lebanon in seven days. Israeli gunboats, in the last attack on the Lebanese capital, shelled a Moslem area of Beirut on Oct. 5, 1978.

Arafat appealed for arms, saying in telegrams to Arab heads of state, "I need your swords, not your blessing." He also met with Soviet Ambassador Alexandre Soldatov and gave him a message for Soviet leaders, but declined to discuss the contents.

The hardest hit guerrilla faction, the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, blamed the Reagan administration for the Israeli attack and called for an Arab economic and oil embargo against the United States.

"If this is not done, we shall take it upon ourelves to hit U.S. interests in the (Middle East) especially oil interests," the front said.

In Washington, the Reagan administration postponed a decision on whether to lift its five-week suspension of F-16 jet fighter deliveries to Israel.

"The United States deplores this intensified violence and deeply regrets the civilian casualties and the loss of innocent lives," the State Department said. The Egyptian government also condemned the Israeli strike.

Haitian refugees being moved to Big Spring

BIG SPRING (AP) — About 100 Haitian refugees being housed in a Florida processing center will be moved to the minimum security Big Spring Federal Camp, prison superintendent John Allman said Friday.

"These men are not prisoners," Allman said during a Friday press conference. "They are not fugitives. "I went to allay the fears of the public."

The superintendent said the refugees are "not dangerous people" or "known or their violence." He said the refugees, all men, had fled Haiti to escape poverty and starvation.

The refugees are scheduled to leave Miami by plane about 3 p.m. Saturday. Allman said he did not know when they would arrive at the Big Spring facility.

He said when the Haitians arrived at the camp, which is located in the city limits, they "will be marched to the gym," showered and administered tests.

Immigration officials will check the refugees for communicable disease and administer other medical tests, he said.

Allman said he was notified of the transfer about 11 a.m. Friday by the Bureau of Federal Prisons.

Assistant Warden Jerome Edwards said five additional guards from federal facilities in Texas and Oklahoma will be brought in to help supervise the refugees, which will be housed in a prison dormitory.

Edwards said about 244 inmates are currently in the facility and that the addition of the refugees will place the camp at capacity.

"It will fill us up, and when you are going on at a daily basis at 250 (persons), we of course will have to do additional planning," he said.

Edwards said because of the prison's location, medical facilities in the city are available to inmates.

He said Immigration and Naturalization Service officials told prison officials the Haitians "are not sentenced prisoners."

Jury misconduct charges fail to bring new trial

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Charges that jury misconduct may have denied a 26-year-old habitual criminal a fair trial were allayed Friday, when 142nd State District Court Judge Pat Baskin denied defense attorney Bill Smith's motion for a new trial.

Smith, who indicated he would appeal the court's ruling, had alleged that three jurors in the trial of Joe Dolores Duran had investigated an aspect of the case and shared their findings, which suggested flaws in the defense, with others on the jury. Smith contended the out-of-court investigation was detrimental to his client's case and had an adverse influence on the jurors.

The judge in the three-hour hearing ruled otherwise.

"Obviously it (the jurors' 'outside' findings) had a bearing," Smith had argued.

However, three jurors called to the witness stand Friday testified that the outside information didn't affect their verdict.

THE JURORS convicted Duran, a house man at The Midland Hilton, of indecency with a 7-year-old girl last Feb. 6 in the man's eastside Midland house. Coupled with Duran's earlier convictions for robbery, aggravated assault and sexual abuse, the most recent guilty verdict qualified him for a life sentence as an habitual criminal.

Smith held that three jurors on the late afternoon of June 8 personally visited "the area and the scene" of the alleged offense and supposedly uncovered discrepancies in the defense's description of the street and building locations in the area.

The jurors, Smith said, "reached conclusions that were different from the evidence produced in court."

Jurors are forewarned only to consider court-produced evidence and testimony in their deliberations.

Jury foreman Marshall C. Gulledge Jr. testified that the incidental information, which Smith suggested attacked the credibility of his defense ploy, had no bearing on the outcome of the case.

"It had no effects on anyone's thinking on the merits of the case," Gulledge testified, and did not "affect my decision in the slightest. It had no bearing on my decision, and I could detect none on any of the others."

AFTER THE TRIAL, Smith had hired private investigator Bill Barber to poll each of the jurors by telephone on June 16 to ascertain how the jurors arrived at a verdict.

In turn, Barber used information gleaned in talking with Gulledge to prepare an affidavit alleging that the jurors considered non-court-allowed information in their deliberations.

But the jury foreman charged that any information Barber gleaned from him was taken "under false pretense, the way it turned out." Gulledge said Barber told him that Smith had asked him to poll the jurors on the case to help "improve his (Smith's) courtroom performance" and that anything Gulledge might say would not affect the case.

Gulledge said that "more than one" juror had visited the scene in question. Smith supposed the number was three.

"Do you recall if they were men or women?" Smith asked.

"Yes they were," Gulledge replied tersely, and later allowed: "It was probably both." The upshot of the jurors' visit to the scene was that some of the defense's exhibits were incorrect, "and that's all."

Moments later, Smith asked Gulledge if he recalled talking to the private investigator, Barber.

"Yes," said Gulledge, "and I object to that." That's when he said Barber obtained information and an impression under false pretense.

The defense attorney produced a typewritten portion of the tape-recorded Barber-Gulledge convervation. Gulledge apparently was unaware that the conversation was being taped.

"So, I mean there is a whole bunch of damn flaws in the testimony," the jury foreman had told the private investigator, Smith said.

Air controllers' pact may not fly

By The Associated Press

Air traffic controllers are overwhelmingly rejecting a proposed contract that averted a strike last month, according to an Associated Press spot check of union locals on Friday.

Ballots were mailed to the 15,000 members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Association a little over a week ago and are due at union headquarters in Washington on July 28. The union's executive board has recommended defeat of the contract.

Across the country, preliminary counts showed a lopsided balance against the agreement. At Miramar Naval Air Station in California, the vote was 34 to 1 for rejection; at Baltimore-Washington International Airport it was 45 to 5; at Indianapolis it was 354 to 3; at Austin, Texas, it was 41 to 1; at National Airport in Washington it was 65 to 1.

"It's no better than what we have," said Abe Lehman, president of the local at Miramar. Lehman said he did not want to predict what would happen next.

The proposed contract calls for a 6.6 percent increase in wages and benefits on top of a 4.8 percent wage hike that is expected to be given to all government empoyees. PATCO President Robert E. Poli has said if the contract is rejected, he will immediately seek new negotiations with the government. A new strike vote would be needed before a walkout could be called.

Poli said Thursday he thought the proposed contract where would turned down "by at least 9 or 10 to 1." Poli was at a union meeting in Longmont, Colo., where a preliminary tally of the vote showed a 265-to-3 margain against approval.

The tentative agreement, worth $40 million, was reached after all-night negotiations June 22. Announcement of the pact headed off a strike that threatened to disrupt travel plans for millions of people.

David Evans, head of PATCO at Palmdale, Calif., which is the control center for seven western states, said 75 percent of the votes in his area have been counted. Ninety-seven percent of those voting have rejected the contract, Evans said.

"We're back at square one," he added. "(Transportation Secretary) Drew Lewis has three options. He can return to the bargaining table realizing that the agreement was overwhelmingly rejected and completely reopen the negotiations. He can return to the table, insist that $40 million is all there is and say, 'Here, cut it up however you want,' or he can refuse to return to the table at all."

Bill Taylor, president of Local 572 in Tucson, Ariz., said his members voted 16 to 0 against the contract. He called the pact "cynical, authoritative and dictatorial."

Fred G. Burkins, president of Local 246 in Philadelphia, said his members voted 66 to 4 in favor of rejection. There were similar votes in Wilmington, Del., and in Trenton and Atlantic City, N.J., he said, adding, "I think that kind of shows the trend across the country."

"Obviously, your honor," Smith said to Baskin, "this witness is hostile to the defense."

"The court does not agree," said Baskin, who sensed that the hostility seemed to be "against the agent of the defendant."

In his testimony before the court, Barber said that he had told the jury foreman he was polling the jurors to determine how they arrived at the verdict. He claimed he didn't mislead Gulledge or the other jurors, although they may have made some assumptions.

"He (Gulledge) was fluent" in the telephone conversation, Barber said outside the courtroom.

"He never indicated to me that he thought the conversation was to improve Mr. Smith's courtroom performance."

The conversation was "casual," and "Mr. Gulledge was quite outspoken," the investigator said.

TWO OTHER JURORS who drove by Duran's neighborhood essentially concurred with the foreman.

Frank A. Piccolo said the "defense plat (map of the area) was inaccurate." He said that he had driven to the eastside neighborhood to view the "housing conditions, the type of neighborhood."

Under questioning by Assistant District Attorney Jim Rex, Piccolo said the information the jurors had gleaned in their visits did not alter or influence the jury's verdict. He said that the defense attorney's description of the scene and of happenings on the date of the alleged offense were more of the issues that the discrepancies.

Juror Linda Camp O'Donnell, who drove by the neighborhood, also said that she had called the U.S. Weather Bureau to find out if the day of the offense was overcast or clear.

"We talked about the weather (in jury deliberations)," Ms. O'Donnell said. "We talked about a lot of things." But she said the jurors' independent investigation had no effect on the trial's outcome.

FOR THE RECORD, defense attorney Smith said that his map "was accurate (during the trial) and is accurate today.

"That plat is correct. I went out and double-checked it. This lawyer, this defense counsel, did not mislead (the jury)."

Earlier in the hearing, Baskin expressed doubt about the credibility of an affidavit submitted by Duran, who indicated that he heard the jurors deliberating and laughter through the courtroom walls and was personally aware of jury misconduct.

"The court has a great deal of difficulty believing that the defendant knew what the jurors did," Baskin said.

"I must express some distress at the obvious looseness with which the defense has made oath before this court.

"I'll be more blunt," he said. "The court does not place credence in the defendant's affidavit. However...there is before the court a suggestion that the jury deliberations may have been tainted."

Weather likely to stay hot over weekend in Midland

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport noted a Friday high of 103 degrees at 4:55 p.m., tying the alltime high for the date set in 1978.

Friday marked the second straight day the mercury eclipsed the 100 degree mark, while the low reached only 70, considerably above the 62-degree record set in 1955.

Midlanders can expect additional warm temperatures over the weekend, with afternoon highs in the upper 90s, according to the weather service.

Although clouds began to build late Friday evening, weekend skies should be fair. Winds are expected to be southerly at 10-15 mph today, decreasing tonight to 5-10 mph.

The rainfall total for 1981 remains at 6.94 inches.

Southern Florida endured its seventh day of record temperatures Friday, and the relentless heat spawned thunderstorms that set a rash of lightning fires.

Thunderstorms dominated much of the weather elsewhere as well.

It was 103 degrees at Jacksonville International Airport, marking the seventh straight day of 100-plus temperatures there. New records were set with 98 in Daytona Beach, 97 in West Palm Beach and 94 in Miami.

Heavy, windy thunderstorms hit the Florida Peninsula. Some wind damage was reported near Williston, and lightning caused fires "all the way from Kissimmee to near Jacksonville," said Division of Forestry spokesman Paul Wills.

In Volusia County alone, 37 fires were ignited, he said.

There were also thunderstorms in the upper Mississippi Valley, through Minnesota and Wisconsin, from the central plains to the middle and southern Atlantic Coast and over the Gulf Coast.

Bolger predicts postal agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General William F. Bolger expressed confidence Friday that agreement can be reached by Monday to avert a nationwide mail strike.

He said citizens should "follow their usual mailing patterns" despite the expiration at midnight Monday of labor contracts covering 600,000 workers.

Bolger's optimism contrasts with the comments of leaders of the two largest postal unions who say no progress has been made in the talks supervised by federal mediators.

Leaders of the American Postal Workers Union and National Association of Letter Carriers have repeatedly accused the Postal Service of refusing to bargain. There has been no agreement announced on any part of a new contract and the Postal Service has not made any pay proposal, they say.

Separate negotiations with two smaller unions have reached agreement on much of the new contract, Bolger said, adding that this proves the Postal Service is willing to bargain. "We are within reach of an agreement" with the National Association of Rural Letter Carriers and the mail handlers' division of Laborers International Union, he said.

This assessment differs from the gloomy one given by the two larger unions of their talks. Postal representatives at the bargaining table "have a canned response from which there is no deviation," said Dan Driscoll, spokesman for the APWU.

"Whatever we say, their response is, 'We are satisfied with the language in the existing agreement.' We can't get them to move off the dime," Driscoll said.

He also complained that Postal Service representatives seem to have no authority. "They cannot deviate from the script. This is not collective bargaining," he said.

Moe Biller, president of the APWU, said, "We will not flinch from our task. We want a contract that is satisfactory to the workers and to the American people."

The letter to Bolger from Biller and Vincent Sombrotto, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said, "We stand ready to negotiate round the clock." They said the Postal Service has been willing to meet only for short sessions and has not been willing to make any compromises.

Senate OKs medical practices bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators approved a bill Friday that would guarantee licensing of all Texas doctors and prohibit professional discrimination between medical and osteopathic physicians.

The measure, approved 27-0, goes to the House where Speaker Bill Clayton is expected to try to add a provision that would let optometrists use diagnostic drugs.

"This is a bill we can all agree on," said Sen. John Wilson, D-LaGrange. "We have solved the problem of discrimination in hospitals between medical doctors and osteopaths ... As far as we are concerned, optometrists were never an issue. Only one witness for optometrists appeared before our committee. We had no request from the state optometrists association."

Basically the bill reconstitutes the State Board of Medical Examiners, which licenses all doctors in Texas, both medical and osteopathic. The licensing power will expire Sept. 1, under the state's Sunset provisions, unless the Legislatures renews the examiners board.

Efforts to pass the bill failed in the regular session mostly because of House-Senate differences over discrimination against osteophaths on hospital staffs and allowing optometrists to give prescription drops to test eyes.

The Senate-approved bill sets up a Board of Medical Examiners that includes nine medical doctors, three osteopathic doctors and three public members to regulate the approximately 35,000 physicians in Texas. The old board had 12 medical doctors.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, distributed copies of a letter signed by officials of the Texas Medical Association, the Texas Osteopathic Medical Association and the Texas Hospital Association urging passage of the Senate bill.

Judge chides city commissioner for videotape comment

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal district judge Friday angrily chided a McAllen city commissioner for reportedly saying he would give anyone a "bottle of champagne" to burn videotapes showing McAllen police officers abusing prisoners.

"I don't think a city official, specifically a commissioner, ever ought to publicly make a remark like this,' U.S. District Judge James DeAnda told McAllen Commissioner Paul Sullivan.

"McAllen has been castigated all over the country. This is not a matter to joke about," the judge said.

DeAnda spoke at a hearing in which lawyers for plaintiffs in several police brutality cases filed against the city of McAllen had asked that 55 videotapes made at the police station be kept at the federal courthouse in Brownsville to protect them from possible damage or destruction.

Jim Harrington, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney in San Juan, said his clients have had problems getting city officials to admit the tapes existed and feared that Sullivan's remark could further endanger them.

Sullivan reportedly made the statement to about 15 wives of McAllen police officers at a June 13 meeting in McAllen.

DeAnda siad he wanted Sullivan to have enough time to defend himself against the charge of making the statement.

"I'm tired of this 'mickey-mousing' around. I'm not going to put up with it any more and I'm specifically not going to put up with it from the city of McAllen, its mayor or commissioners or city manager," DeAnda said.

He set the hearing for next Thursday on a request to keep the case permanently in Brownsville.

The controversial videotapes have been aired on national television and show police officers kicking, beating and verbally abusing prisoners at the McAllen police station booking desk.

After seeing the tapes, DeAnda ordered the department to improve its training and adminsitrative procedures, including establishment of a citizen review panel.

The judge has ordered the tapes kept in Brownsville, but has allowed McAllen city officials to obtain several of them, with the promise that they be returned.

Lobster research

Rex Infanger holds up a tray of lobsters in a freezer at a Brigham Young University lab. Infanger has spent the past seven years breeding, hatching and coddling lobsters in an effort to build a solar-heated lobster ranch in Utah.

Lobsters to have a home on the range

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Rex Infanger and Roger Mickelsen dream of a small parcel of sunny Utah Valley farm land — the perfect place, they say, to graze their herd of lobsters, 800 miles from the nearest ocean.

The two Brigham Young University researchers already have an option on some land in nearby Springville. They say that with the right financial breaks over the next two years, they could be raising thousands of pounds of the tasty crustaceans a year on the edge of the Great Basin desert.

Infanger, 30, and Mickelsen, 29, have spent the last seven years breeding, hatching, studying and coddling lobsters at the BYU aquatic ecology laboratory, working toward master's degrees in zoology. Now they want to apply their knowledge to building a commercial, solar-heated lobster ranch.

The ranch would consist of a warehouse-like building containing large tanks of salt water. Within the tanks would be a patented system of cages, each cage holding one lobster. The isolation is necessary, Mickelsen said, because a lobster's favorite food is a smaller lobster.

The lobsters will be fed a specially prepared ration of dry food, much the same way feedlot cattle are fattened for market. They'd live in artificial salt water, mixed from raw materials at the ranch.

Other demonstration projects to raise lobsters commercially are under way in California, New England and Canada, but the BYU researchers say their plan is unique because it uses artificial sea water and doesn't depend on an ocean being nearby.

"Our system, which is new technology, has some real advantages," Mickelsen said. "We can build a plant where the demand is."

Infanger said the idea for the lobster ranch stemmed from their graduate research work in the aquatic ecology lab on projects using cooling water from power plants to create artificial environments for raising fish and shellfish.

"Roger had the idea that you could grow lobsters in the Great Salt Lake," he said.

Mickelsen turned out to be right but only after the lake water — up to nine times saltier than the ocean — was diluted and its chemistry altered, processes that made the operation too expensive.

"They just grew too slow in the Great Salt Lake — they grew at half the rate," Infanger said. "They already grow slow enough."

Off the coast of Maine or Nova Scotia, it takes seven to 10 years for a lobster to reach a pound in weight — large enough to market. Mickelsen and Infanger have successfully raised one-pound lobsters in 21 to 30 months by using the specially developed diet, carefully controlling the salt water mix and keeping water temperatures around 70 degrees, much warmer than the usual ocean temperature.

Their proposed plant will use solar power to warm the water, or cool it to 70 degrees in Utah's searing summers. Even by using solar energy to cut heating and cooling costs, the plant won't be cheap. Infanger and Mickelsen say lobsters raised at their ranch will probably cost more than their Down East cousins.

But Mickelsen also noted that the Utah lobsters will save some custoimers money because they'll avoid the high cost of air freighting live lobsters from the East. The farm will also provide a steady supply and a reliable product, two qualities many restaurants value more than price, he said.

Mickelsen said lab-raised lobsters taste just as good as their ocean versions and could taste better through selective breeding. Eventually, he said, the farms could breed a "domestic" lobster with large meaty claws and tail.

Mickelsen and Infanger have been working 4½ years under a grant from Arizona Fuels Corp. of Salt Lake City. They say the company was interested in helping sponsor a $700,000 pilot plant, but withdrew from the project to apply the money elsewhere. They are now looking for new financial backing.

Utah's a good place to start a farm, Mickelsen said, because of ready markets in Salt Lake City and Las Vegas, Nev., a good climate and no natural diseases affecting shellfish. Also, he said, "Utah doesn't have any laws covering lobsters."

Initial aerial assault on medfly half-finished

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The initial aerial assault on a destructive fruit fly was pronounced half-completed Friday, while two major supermarket chains announced they were shunning crops most likely to be infested.

Safeway Stores, the nation's largest grocery chain, and Lucky Stores, which has 1,530 stores in 33 states, said they would not buy "host" crops grown in the federally quarantined counties of Santa Clara, Alameda and San Mateo. Host crops for the Mediterrean fruit fly include apples, tomatoes, peaches, oranges and grapes, but the amount of produce affected by the ban was not known.

After three nights of problems, officials said aerial spraying with the pesticide malathion went smoothly Friday, with five helicopters spreading a sticky poisonous bait over 10 communities.

The effort was scheduled to move to San Jose, the 17th most populous city in the nation, on Saturday, and all of a 175-square-mile infested core area was expected to be sprayed by Sunday.

After the core area is sprayed once, the process will begin again. Six applications are planned in the next two months.

Despite new optisrnism from Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who said on national television, "We believe we're going to control this pest," others gave the eradication effort less than a 50-50 chance of success.

Terrance M. Allen, a state entomologist who headed the medfly eradication effort last year, predicted the effort would not keep the fly out of the fertile farmlands of the San Joaquin Valley, 40 air miles and a coastal mountain range away from the infested Santa Clara Valley.

"The fight's lost. It is gone," Allen said. "The fly has established itself. It's so far gone that even if they throw everything at it they're not going to eradicate it."

Allen was demoted in January, and says his demotion came because he warned state officials they were doing too little.

Jerry Scribner, current director of the medfly project, doesn't share Allen's gloomy assessment. He says the project is "on track."

Uncle Sam bites snake traffikers

By PEGGY ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — People who traffic illegally in endangered snakes, lizards and birds may have survived the bite, but they were felled by the sting — of Uncle Sam.

Among those netted: zoo keepers, law officers, bankers and morticians.

Described as the "largest and most successful" investigation ever conducted by the Fish and Wildlife Service, the 18-month undercover probe of poachers and purchasers of protected wildlife identified 175 suspects in 35 states, officials said Thursday.

"The huge amount of illegal trade ... came as a surprise even to the agents involved," said G. Ray Arnett, assistant Interior secretary for fish, wildlife and parks. "We now believe that hundreds of thousands of these animals are taken each year,"

THE PROBE DISCLOSED that thousands of reptiles, including poisonous snakes, are sent through the mail. Masking tape is sometimes used to muffle the rattles on rattlesnakes, officials said.

The illegal markets not only threaten the survivl of someof the animals but also jeopardize public safety because some of the reptiles are poisonous, Arnett said. Among the reptiles are water moccasins, rattlesnakes or cottonmouths and gila monsters.

But Clark Bavin of the Fish and Wildlife Service said "there is no big conspiracy." The black market, he added, consists mostly of individuals and small groups.

The sting began 18 months ago when agents set up a dummy front, the Atlanta Wildlife Exchange, in suburban Doraville, Ga.

Over the next year and a half, the agents bought and sold more than 10,000 snakes, lizards, turtles and migratory birds — live and stuffed — which are protected by federal or local laws because they are listed as endangered or threatened, Bavin said.

THE AGENTS ALSO handled about 100,000 animals in which trafficking is legal, Bavin said, noting, "We couldn't just ask for the illegal ones."

"This was a wholesale operation, not a pet store where people come in and buy things," he added.

At first, the agents put small advertisements in two national magazines and distributed a price list for legal wildlife. Attached to the list was a note indicating that the "Atlanta Wildlife Exchange" wanted to buy native American species.

In time, Bavin said, "word spread and we had more business than we could handle" — much of it caught on videotape.

Private collectors fuel the black market, Bavin said, and some of the animals apparently were purchased by people who wanted to resell them in Japan or Europe for considerable profit.

Twenty-seven arrest warrants were issued Thursday in 11 states and more are expected, said Kevin Berlin of the Justice Department, which assisted in the investigation. In addition, 45 search warrants were issued in 16 states.

BERLIN REFUSED TO name the people involved, but he said warrants were issued in California, Texas, Indiana, Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Wisconsin.

'Indexation' may be cure for 'tax bracket creep'

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Your boss gives you a raise. You go out and celebrate. You get your next paycheck and the celebration turns sour. The raise has shrunk.

Congratulations: You've just learned about "tax bracket creep." Your higher income boosted you into a higher bracket — even if that raise does nothing more than match the increase in the cost of living. It's a disease that strikes millions of Americans and the Senate wants to cure it with a medicine called "indexation."

The tax bill just passed by the Senate includes a provison that would eliminate "bracket creep" starting in 1985. The percentage of your earnings you pay in federal income tax would NOT increase unless your salary went up faster than inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The idea of indexation of income taxes is not new. It has been implemented by several states and foreign countries. A longtime supporter is Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

President Reagan also supports the concept, but he did not want indexation included in the current tax bill. He urged Congress to work out a basic tax cut first, then turn to a long-term solution to the problem of "bracket creep." The Senate overruled him.

The Senate plan would directly link tax brackets, the personal exemption and the standard deduction to the Consumer Price Index. If the index went up 10 percent, for example, the personal exemption — now at $1,000 — also would go up 10 percent.

It doesn't work that way right now. Suppose you earn $15,000 and get a 10 percent raise to $16,500. Your tax bill goes up. For a family of four it goes from $1,242 to $1,530 — a rise of 23 percent. Federal income tax takes 9.3 percent of earnings instead of 8.3 percent. You lose purchasing power.

The fate of indexation in the House is unknown. But one of the strongest opponents of the idea in the past was Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., who used his position as chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee to block the plan when it was proposed. Ullman was defeated for re-election last year.

How could anyone be against a plan that seems like such a good idea?

Ullman and other opponents say there are drawbacks.

Indexation costs the government money. A 1980 report from the Congressional Budget Office estimated that the Treasury would collect an extra $22 billion in taxes in 1981 because of inflation that pushed people into higher tax brackets.

Foes of indexation argue that it insulates people from inflation. If you aren't hurt by inflation, you are less likely to fight it.

The anti-indexation people say it is better to adjust taxes on a year-to-year basis, taking specific economic conditions into account, than it is to make a single, sweeping adjustment.

The pro-indexation forces say taxation without indexation is worse. Fabian Linden, director of consumer economics at the Conference Board, a research group sponsored by business, calls taxation without indexation "taxation without authorization."

Judge dismisses charges

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A judge dismissed charges Friday against the parents of severely deformed Siamese twins and their family doctor, who had been accused of trying to starve the infants to death.

State's Attorney Ed Litak of Vermilion County said Circuit Court Judge Richard Scott held there was no probable cause for trying the defendants on charges of attempted murder and lesser counts.

Litak indicated, however, that he probably will seek to reinstate the charges through grand jury indictments against the father, Dr. Robert Mueller, the mother, Pamela Schopp, and Dr. Petra Warren, the physician cared for the twins after their birth.

Dr. Warren; Dr. Mueller, a physician at Lakeview Medical Center, where the twins were born May 5; and Ms. Schopp, a registered nurse, could have been sentenced to 30 years in prison if convicted of attempted murder. They were also charged with conspiracy to murder and endangering the life and health of the children. The parents, additionally, were charged with solicitation of murder and cruelty to children.

Prosecutors said the twins were denied food, water and medical treatment at Lakeview at the request of their parents.

Litak said nurses violated orders and fed twins Scott and Jeff several times during the eight days they were at Lakeview.

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services charged that the boys, who are joined at the waist, were neglected at Lakeview, and a judge placed them in state custody.

They were taken to Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, where doctors have decided that they could not survive an operation to separate them.

"We can proceed with the grand jury," Litak said. "I'm not through with this case."

Litak said he believes he has the evidence to prove the defendants guilty.

The judge, who was out of town, handed down his ruling in a telephone conversation with Litak and defense attorneys.

Litak said the judge, in dismissing the charges, refused to admit as evidence in the preliminary hearing Thursday testimony taken during an earlier grand jury proceeding.

Litak said he was surprised that a key state witness testified during the preliminary hearing that she did not remember a crucial telephone call she received while working as a nurse at Lakeview.

Nurse Margery Stuart told the court she did not recall receiving a telephone order from Ms. Warren on the day after the twins' birth. She did, however, identify a medical chart entry in her handwriting that day which said: "Do not feed in accordance with parents' wishes."

The prosecution had not been able in court to identify the doctor who issued the order, or to link it to the parents.

Reagan announces energy policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration unveiled its national energy plan Friday, describing it as an affirmtion of the policy that the free market and not government should allocate the nation's energy resources.

Benard C. Rusche, special assistant to Energy Secretary James Edwards, said the administration wanted to "put the government in the position where the people through their aggregate choices in the market can set the direction."

He said at a news conference that the government's main thrust will be "removing federal barriers ... reducing regulation" to allow the marketplace to set the course, even in times of energy emergencies.

The plan says national energy policy should break "cleanly and candidly" with what was an "overwhelming" emphasis on regulation in previous energy policy. It also calls for market forces to replace government subsidies in the development of alternate fuel sources.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, meanwhile, announced a coal export policy committing the nation to promoting coal sales abroad, providing a stable supply of the fuel and cutting regulatory roadblocks to mining and to the creation of deep-water ports needed to increase exports.

Baldrige said, however, that the administration believed virtually the entire cost of harbor dredging necessary to accommodate new large coal ships should be recovered through user fees. The National Coal Association has argued that the federal government should pay 75 percent of dredging costs.

The law requires that a national energy plan be submitted to Congress every two years. J. Hunter Chiles, director of the Energy Department's Office of Policy, Planning and Analysis, noted that its title is now the National Energy Policy Plan instead of simply the National Energy Plan.

"This document does represent a policy, not a rigid plan," he emphasized. "The policy is basically to allow the free market to allocate energy resources."

The plan does not answer the question of when and how the administration will decontrol natural gas prices, but Rusche said a decision would be announced soon.

"It's not easy to predict whether it's a week or a month, but it's not a long time," he said.

While the plan virtually reverses the policies of former President Carter, its most significant change was in de-emphasizing a cut in oil imports as the major goal of U.S. energy policy.

"Achieving a low level of U.S. oil imports at any cost is not a major criterion for the nation's energy security and economic health," the plan said.

Stressing "an international dimension" to oil vulnerability and the U.S. position as a "reliable trade partner," the plan says:

"Damage to other free world economies inevitably affects the United States as well, so it is important that we cooperate with our partners.

"We cannot entirely protect ourselves from disruptions in the world energy market by reducing our own dependence on imports and trying to isolate ourselves."

That alters the major U.S. energy goal first set by President Nixon in his "Project Independence" following the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

However, Rusche stressed that the administration still wanted to cut imports, noting it was merely saying such a cut should not be the sole basis for energy policy.

The plan itself made a "mid-range" projection — and stressed it was not a prediction — that oil equivalent to 10 quadrillion British thermal units will be imported in 1990. That compares to 13.3 quadrillion Btu imported in 1980.

Overall, the plan is a restatement of policies President Reagan and other administration officials have stated piecemeal over the past six months.

Edwards was not present as the plan was introduced but he issued a statement saying: "The president's action last January to end oil price controls and to dismantle the burdensome regulatory apparatus associated with those controls was a major step in an energy policy focused on market realities."

The plan continues to put stress on filling the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, but Rusche said that even in energy emergencies such as a cutoff of Arab oil, the administration believes the marketplace should dictate allocation of energy resources.

"We see no need for gasoline rationing," he said.

Deborah Bleviss, speaking for the Federation of American Scientists, a group of 5,000 scientists organized in 1946 in response to the dropping of the atomic bomb on Japan, said the national energy plan "is such a superficial collection of unsupported and ideologically motivated statements that it rarely rises even to the level of being wrong."

She said the "plan's obsession with production to the virtual exclusion of conservation is a serious national error."

Democrats fight for SS benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just when the budget battle seemed all but ended, a new skirmish broke Friday over a Democratic move to preserve the minimum Social Security benefit that Congress already voted to eliminate.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said he was trying to respond to a "public backlash" that legislators "would like to escape."

Wright's Republican counterpart, Robert H. Michel of Illinois, accused Wright of conducting a "political sideshow" that amounted to a "breach of faith between the minority and majority."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., and Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, each conceded the issue will have to be faced, but they tried publicly to smooth the flap.

Budget-cutting measures passed by the House and Senate would eliminate the $122 monthly benefit, with the Senate bill making the change immediately and the House bill delaying it until next April.

A study by the House Ways and Means Committee, which oversees Social Security, said about 1.5 million current recipients would have their benefits reduced if the minimum benefit is halted in April 1982.

Wright introduced a resolution Thursday on behalf of Democratic leaders aimed at retaining the minimum benefit.

Wright said the resolution was in response to a "growing public outcry" to restore the benefit.

He said Friday that he wants to provide "an escape hatch for those who acted in such unseemly haste and insensitivity to our nation's elderly and who now want to repair the damage of their deeds."

"A number of members who blindly supported" the budget-cutting measure "have pleaded with me to devise some means by which they may reverse the effects of their faulty judgement in this matter."

House-Senate negotiators are working out the differences between the two bills, but under earlier agreements between leaders of both houses the conferees may not drop provisions contained in both bills.

The "leadership understandings" state that negotiators "will not reopen provisions which are the same in both bills and are urged to agree on substantially identical provisions."

In a letter to House Sepaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., Michel blasted Wright's action as going beyond "the bounds of fair play and comity between the minority and the majority."

He also took the House floor to call Wright's move "a case of sabotage."

Hoping to cool the furor that might threaten to scuttle the delicate work of 72 senators and 183 House members who have started fashioning a compromise version of the Senate's package of $38.1 billion in cuts and the House's $37.3 billion package, Baker and Jones went before reporters.

"I think Jim Wright's doing what we all do from time to time," Baker said, "and that is take an issue that is highly visible and highly important, and highlighting it for the purpose of making sure you get a debate on it. I've done that a few times and I suspect Jim is doing the same thing."

Jones said, "I think the House made a very bad mistake in denying the minimum benefits under Social Security to exisiting recipients. But I think that we should not start deviating from the scope of the conference."

Asked directly about the minimum benefit, Baker acknowledged, "Perhaps it should be restored. As to whether it should be done in the context of the conference is a matter that I have not yet fully concluded."

Rep. Leon E. Panetta, D-Calif., a key member of the Budget Committee, noted that there have been "a lot of rumors floating around that in response to polls ... the White House was rethinking their position" in support of ending the minimum benefit.

"The administration has given me no indication of second thoughts or changed position," Baker said.

But a Democratic congressional aide, who asked not to be identified, said Wright's move was a "preemptive strike" that was launched in the face of reports that the administration was considering pushing for restoration of the minimum benefit.

Summit likely to skirt rich-poor issues

OTTAWA (AP) — President Reagan and the other top leaders gathering here Sunday for the annual Western economic summit will probably give a "positive signal" to the Third World but skirt the concrete issues of relations between rich and poor nations, Canadian officials say.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has worked for months, traveling to 13 countries, to try to make the rich-poor dialogue — known as the "North-South dialogue" — a central theme of the Ottawa summit. But, as with major international economic questions, sharp differences have emerged between Reagan and some of the other seven summit participants.

As a result, Trudeau has sought to dampen expectations that new ground will be broken in any area in the 2½ days of talks, the seventh such yearly conference.

He told reporters this week the leaders are meeting "to try to understand where the devil the world is going."

A basic cleavage exists on economic affairs — Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher are pursuing austere budget-cutting programs for restoring economic health, and the others, led by France, generally favor more stimulative policies to fight unemployment.

The Canadian leader and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt got an early start on the summit Friday, meeting to discuss both bilateral matters and the seven-nation conference. Schmidt flew in Thursday night.

The other summit participants are Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki of Japan, French President Francois Mitterrand, Italian Premier Giovanni Spadolini and Gaston Thorn, president of the European Common Market.

The eight will meet at the Chateau Montebello, a huge log-built resort hotel in the Quebec woods 40 miles east of here.

Only three — Trudeau, Schmidt and Thatcher — were present at last July's summit in Venice, Italy, where the leaders agreed that the next conference would focus in part on the North-South dialogue, the issues of aid and economic cooperation between the rich northern countries and the poorer lands of the south.

Over the past year, government officials of the seven nations have prepared a consensus paper outlining the problems and offering suggestions for action by the industrialized democracies. The French and Japanese governments especially have pressed for "global negotiations," a new international forum of some kind for dealing with Third World calls for greater aid and changes in the world economic system.

But Reagan thus far has not accepted the idea of global negotiations. His administration says it favors bilateral aid programs over such multilateral institutions as the World Bank, and it believes private business development, not government aid or policy changes, is the best way to attack poverty in the Third World.

"There's no country, including Canada, that wouldn't say the private sector is terribly important," said Lawrence Smith, a Canadian Foreign Ministry official involved in drafting the post-Venice paper. "But in what areas is the private sector capable of doing this? You've got some poor countries that are just not capable of borrowing, that don't get anything if they don't receive aid."

But even if the summit leaders reach no decisions on specific issues, Smith said in an interview, the Canadians are "convinced the leaders will want to give a pretty positive message in the North-South area."

The Reagan administration apparently prefers putting off a major discussion of the issues until October, when the U.S. chief executive and the leaders of 21 other nations meet in a North-South summit in Cancun, Mexico.

Besides the question of money grants and better loan terms from the wealthy nations, the rich-poor debate involves other issues:

— Third World demands for more stable currency-exchange rates and world commodity prices, to make their earnings from raw material exports more predictable.

Kania, allies elected to committee

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Communist Party congress, using the secret ballot Friday for the first time, elected party chief Stanislaw Kania and his top moderate allies to the 200-member Central Committee and ousted leading hardliners.

The party congress, the only one in the Soviet bloc ever to choose leaders by secret vote, knocked seven of the 11 ruling Politburo members off the Central Committee, making their re-elections to the governing body impossible.

The emergency congress was called to set the party's position on liberal reforms that grew out of last summer's strikes, and is expected to affirm them.

Kania got the second largest number of votes, behind his ally Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski, and the way was clear for his re-election as party chief in balloting scheduled for Saturday.

Only 16 of the outgoing Central Committee's 143 members won re-election. Membership was increased to 200 for the new committee.

The vote on the fourth day of the congress ousted Politburo member Tadeusz Grabski, who told a Central Committee meeting last month Kania was incapable of leading Poland out of economic crisis, and attempted to force the party leader out.

Friday's vote also defeated Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar, a Politburo member and former secret police chief. He was said to have provided material for a report that led to the ouster from the party of Kania's predecessor, Edward Gierek.

Moczar, former interior minister and once Kania's arch-rival, was among the best-known people in Poland's political hierarchy.

The swing away from hardliners was bound to disturb the Soviet Union, which was thought to be behind the attempt in June to the oust Kania moderates. Soviet media coverage of the congress has been restrained and has made no mention of the unprecedented secret balloting.

Kania received 1,355 votes, officials said, led only by Jaruzelski's 1,615. Politburo member Stefan Olszowski, widely considered as Kania's most serious challenger, got 1,090. According to Congress sources, Olszowski was said to have moved from a hardline position toward the center in recent weeks.

Albin Siwak, a hardliner accused of misuse of workers by Poland's independent labor union got 1,200 votes.

Other reported winners were Politburo member and Kania ally Kazimierz Barcikowski and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, the vice premier, who attacked party conservatives in a firey speech to the Central Committee Wednesday night.

Other Politburo members who failed to win re-election to the Central Committee were hardliner Andrzej Zabinski, President Henryk Jablonski whose post is largely ceremonial, and Mieczyslaw Jagielski, a top government economic specialist and deputy premier who negotiated Gdansk agreements settling last summer's strikes.

Politburo members Gerard Gabrys and Zygmunt Wronski, both working class party members placed on the Politburo in April, did not win election to the party congress.

A defeated hardline figure was Warsaw Party boss Stanislaw Kociolek, whose role during suppression of 1970 riots in Gdansk was questioned at the congress.

Tadeusz Fiszbach, the liberal Gdansk party leader, was defeated as was former Central Committee press chief Jozef Klasa. It was not immediately clear what led to their defeat.

A beaming Kania was shown by Polish television in the balconied hall of Warsaw's Palace of Culture where delegates broke into loud applause at official announcement of his victory.

The party congress was called to deal with Poland's economic and political crises and was expected to affirm economic and political reforms that followed last year's nationwide strikes. The strikes led to widespread changes in the party and government leadership and to formation of Solidarity, the first independent trade union in the Soviet bloc.

Continuing labor unrest and extended Soviet bloc military maneuvers at Poland's borders last spring aroused Western fears of Soviet military intervention — fears never entirely subdued because of the East bloc's evident impatience with the Polish leadership.

The voting was begun Thursday night for the new Central Committee that will elect the party leader.

Congress officials said a new Politburo would be elected by secret ballots from members of the new Central Committee, but did not know when.

Floods in China leave 3,000 dead

PEKING (AP) — Floods from a three-day downpour roared through China's most populous province, leaving 3,000 people dead, 50,000 injured and 400,000 homeless, officials said Friday.

Houses crumbled, bridges collapsed and survivors were chased to high ground by the province's worst floods in 76 years, Sichuan provincial authorities said.

By Friday, rescuers had saved all of the 300,000 stranded people, flooding abated, power was restored and most of the 650 affected enterprises resumed production, but river boat traffic was still suspended, authorities said.

Water began receding as runoff poured into the mighty Yangtze River after more than 18 inches of rain fell in the southwest Chinese province between Sunday and Tuesday.

"The major concern of the government is the 400,000 homeless masses who need the overnmentto provide them with food and clothing and to help rehabilitate their production," said one provincial official.

Sichuan's floods are the world's deadliest since October 1960, when 6,000 people died in one flood in Bangladesh and 4,000 in another.

Losses have not been calculated, but more than 1 million acres of farmland were reported flooded and two-thirds of the crops ruined in the province, which has one-tenth of China's 1 billion people.

The official Xinhua news agency said water breached dikes on some sections of the Min, Tuo, Jialing and Pei rivers, reaching a depth of 16.5 feet in some places.

As the Yangtze raced passed China's wartime capital of Chungking Thursday it measured 633.2 feet above sea level, compared with the previous flood high of 632.2 feet in 1905, but Xinhua reported no major damage to the city.

In Hubei province downstream, workers took precautions to protect the Gezhouba dam, China's biggest hydro-engineering project, from the flood peak, Xinhua said.

Two newly opened shipping locks at the dam, which still is under construction, were closed Thursday, the news agency said. The dam is China's first project to harness the 3,900-mile river for electric power.

China has the worst floods on record, including deluges with death tolls of 3.7 million in 1931, 900,000 in 1887 and 200,000 in 1939.

The Yellow River, which runs several hundred miles north of the Yangtze, is traditionally known as "China's Sorrow" because it floods and changes course unpredictably, carrying millions of tons of precious soil out to sea.

Commission reprimands judge for 'doctor' rule

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Houston judge who required laywers in his court to address one another as "doctor" has been reprimanded by the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

The commission also suspended Justice of the Peace Hector Gonzales of Dimmit County, who was indicted July 9 on felony charges of misapplying fines and court costs.

State District Judge Jerry McAfee of Houston was formally reprimanded for conduct that "cast public discredit upon the judiciary."

"As early as March 16, 1981, you were advised that the commission looked with disfavor upon your order of Jan. 2, 1981, which required attorneys to address each other and to be addressed by the title, 'Doctor,' " the commission told McAfee.

Texas law schools award their graduates degrees designating them as "doctors of jurisprudence," and lawyers sometimes call each other "doctor," usually in jest.

The public reprimand said McAfee persisted in the requirement despite two visits from the commission's general counsel, who asked him to cancel the order.

"Despite this history you have persisted in continuing the order in effect and insisted on appearing before the commission to convince the members of the correctness of your position. Your appearance produced the opposite effect," the reprimand said.

The commission noted that McAfee finally stopped requiring attorneys to call each other "doctor."

It went on to say that court rules should be uniform, particularly in counties such as Harris that have many district judges.

"Rules prescribing standards of conduct and decorum should be submitted to, and approved by, your fellow judges and the presiding judge of the administrative judicial district," the commission told McAfee.

The commission expressed the hope "that this experience and the attendant bad publicity will serve to inspire you to be a better judge in the future."

In the Dimmit County case, Gonzales was suspended pending further orders by the commission, which apparently will await a court verdict on the charges against him.

The commission order said the indictment alleges that between March 31, 1979, and Jan. 27, 1981, Gonzales took and misapplied money that came into his custody as fines and court costs.

The offense, if proven, carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Harrelson appears before jury

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, who has resisted appearing before the federal grand jury for two months, spent more than two hours closeted with the jurors Friday afternoon in the investigation of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.'s assassination.

However, her attorney refused to divulge whether the 41-year-old blonde wife of convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson answered any of the jury's questions.

Attorney Gerald Goldstein was asked whether the fact that Mrs. Harrelson had not been jailed for contempt of court indicated that she had answered grand jury questions.

"I wouldn't say it indicates anything," Goldstein said as his somber client strode from the federal courthouse without commenting on her appearance.

Mrs. Harrelson had told reporters earlier this week that she would refuse to answer questions on grounds of marital privilege and the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self-incrimination.

Earlier, Chief U.S. District Judge William Sessions rejected Goldstein's motion to dissolve a grant of immunity to Mrs. Harrelson that Sessions signed on May 20. The government had sought the immunity status as a first step toward compelling her to testify and jailing her for civil contempt if she refused.

Sessions also ruled on Goldstein's motions to reveal any electronic surveillance of Mrs. Harrelson and for an unexplained "protective order", but it was not revealed how he ruled.

Although Sessions conducted a purported public hearing with news media representatives in the room, the entire hearing took place with attorneys huddled around Sessions at the bench and whispering.

Sessions has sealed every aspect of the investigation from public view and has warned attorneys about discussing the case publically. In recent months, nearly all hearings have been side-bar to prevent reporters from hearing what was said.

"Rule 6 requires us to maintain some modicum of secrecy," Goldstein, a renowned First Amendment lawyer, said in refusing to comment on other aspects of Mrs. Harrelson's appearance Friday. Goldstein met with Justice Department attorneys after his client left the building.

Attorney Robert Price, a Goldstein associate, said Mrs. Harrelson would not return at least for the weekend. Neither government nor the witness' attorneys would indicate when the next grand jury session would take place.

Price earlier indicated that Mrs. Harrelson was leaving the grand jury room and consulting with Goldstein after each question.

"It sure was weird," one young man said. "I'll have to read the paper to find out," he replied when asked if the grand jury would return Monday.

"Weird," an older man said, shaking his head.

"Boy, that was weird," another juror remarked. "You can say that again, weird," his walking companion asserted.

Mrs. Harrelson and her husband both have been listed as "targets" of the 26-month investigation.

Attorneys for the Harrelsons have said the government suspects that high-stakes gambler Jimmy Chagra hired Harrelson to shoot Wood.

The judge, who was scheduled to preside in Chagra's narcotics trafficking trial, was killed with a single .243-caliber bullet outside his San Antonio apartment on May 29, 1979.

Chagra subsequently was convicted and sentenced to 30 years in prison. Harrelson was arrested on three unrelated state charges and is held without bond in Houston.

Redistricting vote postponed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Democratic majority banded together Friday to stall passage of a congressional redistricting proposal that one Texas congressman feels could double the number of Republicans in the Texas delegation.

A three-hour midday recess gave four Democratic senators who were absent in the morning a chance to get to the Capitol, and they joined with 13 of their colleagues in postponing a vote on the redistricting plan until Monday afternoon.

The delay gives Democrats an opportunity to switch votes against the proposal over the weekend.

Asked who might switch, Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, replied, "I wouldn't want to say who it might be. We had some surprises come up this week, so maybe we can surprise the other side."

McKnight said with the return of Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, who made his first appearance in the five-day-old special legislative session, he needs one more vote to block the Wilson proposal.

The surprises came Wednesday when Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, a Democrat, and Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, voted for a proposal that would create a black district in Dallas County at the apparent expense of Democratic incumbents Martin Frost and Jim Mattox.

The bill by Sen. John Wilson, D-La Grange, also would give Mexican-Americans a fifth district in South Texas.

The vote to postpone was 17-14.

The delay motion was made by McKnight, who sponsored another redistricting proposal that would have given all Texas incumbents in Congress — Democrats and Republicans alike — a good chance of re-election.

Wilson acknowledged that his proposal would leave Mattox "just about prone." Republican Gov. Bill Clements said he was delighted with the measure, but predicted the final bill would be written by a House-Senate conference committee.

U.S. Rep. Charlie Wilson, D-Lufkin, predicted the bill would give the GOP five more seats in Congress. The Texas delegation now has 19 Democrats and five Republicans, but Texas gets three more seats because of population growth shown by the 1980 census.

If Congressman Wilson's forecast came true, the delegation would be divided 17-10, with the Democrats still in the majority.

The redistricting bill would shape Texas congressional districts for the next decade.

McKnight, considered a possible candidate against Clements, referred to Wilson's proposal as "the governor's plan," and said he was "going to work on everybody who has a vote in the Senate to get them to see the light."

Wilson, an avid fisherman, said he would take off over the weekend for a coastal trip and "try to relax and get over this week."

He said he doubted opponents would have any luck switching votes because "the votes I have are votes of heart and conscience."

He said blacks in Dallas County are united behind his plan as "best for Dallas and the minorities."

Wilson said House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth had contacted everybody in the Senate but him, trying to hold onto as many Democratic seats as he can to get elected speaker when U.S. Rep. Tip O'Neill steps down.

"He's not going to become speaker. It's not possible that Congress is going to let us have Sam Rayburn as speaker and Lyndon Johnson as Senate majority leader and George Bush as vice president and then Jim Wright as speaker," said Wilson. "I think Texans have had about their fair share of high and lofty position in the Congress."

Misconduct suit aimed at ex-chief

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former La Joya police chief has been named in a civil police misconduct suit — a week after he won a new trial for his federal conviction stemming from the same incident.

Eleuterio Morales was sued by a Sullivan City woman on behalf of her two sons, whom he arrested in January 1980. The City of La Joya was named a co-defendant in the $21,000 suit.

Morales, 34, was convicted on a federal civil rights charge last month on criminal charges of police brutality and perjury. He was accused of beating and kicking a La Joya teen-ager and then lying about it to a grand jury.

But last week, U.S. District Judge James DeAnda threw out the brutality conviction, saying he wasn't convinced the government's witnesses proved the case beyond a reasonable doubt.

Soviet naval expansion dangerous, report says

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — America has "a one-and-a-half ocean navy striving to carry out a three-ocean job" while the quickly growing fleet of Soviet warships places the U.S. Navy in an era of emergency, the new edition of "Jane's Fighting Ships" warns.

The 84th annual survey of world warships, published Thursday, said Western navies are plagued by low budgets, bureaucracy and political indecision "at a time when there are grave dangers inherent in the naval situation."

The authoritative survey said the Soviet Union is quickly building dozens of mighty warships as the United States and Western allies struggle to replace aging fleets.

"This present era is an emergency for the U.S. Navy, described clearly (by American naval leaders) as a one-and-a-half ocean navy striving to carry out a three-ocean job," wrote Jane's editor Royal Navy Capt. John Moore.

Jane's, which has close links with Britain's navy, has often warned of a Soviet naval threat and called for increased defense spending.

IN THE LAST two years the Soviets completed 40 naval vessels while the U.S. Navy got 18 and the British navy ordered one, the survey reported.

Moore said the U.S. Navy suffered under President Carter but that Americans are growing more aware they need a strong naval defense. The Reagan administration has pledged to increase the U.S. fleet from 400 to 600 vessels.

Unofficial estimates indicate Soviet defense spending runs between 12 percent and 14 percent of the nation's gross national product, compared with 5.5 percent for the United States, 5.2 percent for Britain, 4 percent for France and 3.3 percent in West Germany, Jane's said.

The survey said new Russian warships include the first nuclear aircraft carrier to be built outside the United States; 30,000-ton "Typhoon" submarines, the world's largest, with 20 intercontinental nuclear missiles, and subs with torpedo-proof titanium hulls.

WESTERN NAVIES are sapped by delays in planning and building, Jane's said, and ships often take 10 years to pass from design to completion, outdated before they are ready.

While NATO navies often spend half their budgets on pay and benefits, Russia pours most defense money into ships and weapons. Jane's said the Soviet navy drafts sailors, spends 53 percent of its budget on new ships, 40 percent on operations and the rest on pay and benefits.

Meanwhile, a fleet of Soviet, Polish and East German cruisers, destroyers and supply ships began returning through the Danish straits Thursday from week-long maneuvers in the North Sea, Danish naval authorities said.

The joint maneuvers were seen by Danish military sources as another indication that the Warsaw Pact's naval forces in the Baltic Sea are moving their forward defense line — so far believed to be the northern mouths of the Danish straits — into North Sea waters between Denmark, Norway and the British Isles.

IN MOSCOW, a senior Soviet defense official said Thursday that the Soviet Union is strengthening its strategic nuclear arsenal to counter increased U.S. military spending.

Marshal Nikolai Ogarkov, armed forces chief of staff and deputy defense minister, said in the Communist Party theoretical journal Kommunist that the Kremlin ordered the build-up because the Reagan administration was pursuing what he called an unfettered arms race.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The great French impressionist painter Degas was born on this date, as was famous American surgeon Charles Mayo, one of the brothers who helped found the clinic bearing his name. Be prepared for a year of challenges and new responsibilities. If you handle them well, financial worries will be a thing of the past! Personal relationships require greater compromise. Try not to be too protective of your loved ones, offspring. Although you are reserved, your quiet charm wins you many friends and well-wishers. Even strangers sense your strength and loyalty and make you the repository of their innermost thoughts. Save more time for romance!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Circulate more and you will attract new people. Those who have shunned the public eye because of a personal tragedy need to get moving again. Check with mate before issuing or accepting invitations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A delightful day for social and romantic outings. Diplomacy, patience will help you patch things up with a loved one. Business becomes more attractive to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A former partner may reappear. You and mate should be able to achieve a meeting of the minds. Business considerations could influence your social plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Encourage others to share expenses when taking trips. Creative work is more likely to provide extra income now. Make certain your loved ones receive enough time, attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slacken your pace today. A short break from your responsibilities will give you new inspiration and vitality. Contact with influential people could lead to disappointment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do your best to foster new relationships. Telephone calls will prove more effective than letters or other indirect approaches. Loved ones see things your way when you include them in your activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your happy-go-lucky ways will win you new admirers if you attend a social event. Keep an eye on spending to remain within your budget. Evening hours are best for romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Improvements on the domestic front should make you feel happier. Change of scenery will provide a welcome break. A chance meeting can have a profound effect on your future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance continues to be mystifying. A change of environment may be just around the corner. Some surprising events could make a family gathering quite lively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A difficult situation can be resolved now if you are willing to face reality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A verbal misunderstanding could stall your plans in the morning. Loved ones can be one acts as a buffer and everything ends up on a happy note.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be in the mood for a picnic today. Expect to have lots of fun if you make it an old-fashioned family affair.

Rebels kill members of government

By JAMES W. HATTON
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Twenty-seven senior members of President Babrak Karmal's National Fatherland Front have been killed by Afghan rebels since the front was founded last month, according to a source from Kabul.

The group, composed of representatives from tribes and provinces, serves as the pro-Soviet president's national council. It was proposed by Karmal several months ago and held an organizational congress June 15.

Before that first meeting was held, several rebel groups warned they would kill anyone from the provinces who participates in the front, said the Kabul source.

The front reportedly was intended to legitimize and broaden support of Karmal's Moscow-backed government, which stays in power with support of about 85,000 Soviet troops.

The report of 27 front leaders killed could not be independently confirmed. But Western diplomatic sources in New Delhi said Thursday that at least three people were slain by anti-Marxist rebels attempting to disrupt the front.

Among the three reported killed was retired Afghan Lt. Gen. Fateh Mohammad. A prominent rebel group claimed its men shot and killed Mohammad last Sunday outside his Kabul home.

Diplomatic sources said other slain front members included Malawi Amid, a religious leader from the western city of Ghazni killed June 24, and an unidentified man from Nangahar who was buried June 23.

More police, military patrols and armored vehicles have been seen in Kabul because of the slayings and other insurgent activity, several sources said.

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass accused the United States of supplying Afghan rebels with poison gas weapons and said they have been used against civilians.

"Having unleashed an undeclared war against the Afghan people, the Pentagon again resorted to the tried and tested means and supplied its charges, the Afghan bandit rabble, with chemical weapons," Tass said Thursday.

Texas couple arrested in blackmarket snake bust

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A husband and wife here were among 175 people for whom warrants were issued Thursday in a federal crackdown on blackmarket snake dealing, U.S. Fish and Wildlife agents said.

Fence company owner John W. Cherry, 30, and his wife, Cindy, 28, were arrested at their home and charged with transporting wildlife taken in violation of federal law in a package which was not plainly marked. They are also charged with causing non-mailable material to be delivered by mail.

The Cherrys waived a hearing for removal to Pittsburgh, where they are charged, and were released on personal recognizance by U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley.

Agents seized 33 snakes on the protected species list from the Cherrys' house, including a longnose viper from Africa, four whitewater rosy boas from California and three canebrake rattlers from Alabama, Special Agent Thomas M. Riley said.

The federal sting operation began 18 months ago with the establishment of a phony wholesale reptile business in Atlanta and a front operation in Pennsylvania, both staffed by undercover wildlife agents, according to an agency affidavit.

The affidavit said the Cherrys were first contacted Oct. 4, 1980, and bought a number of snakes illegally in the months that followed.

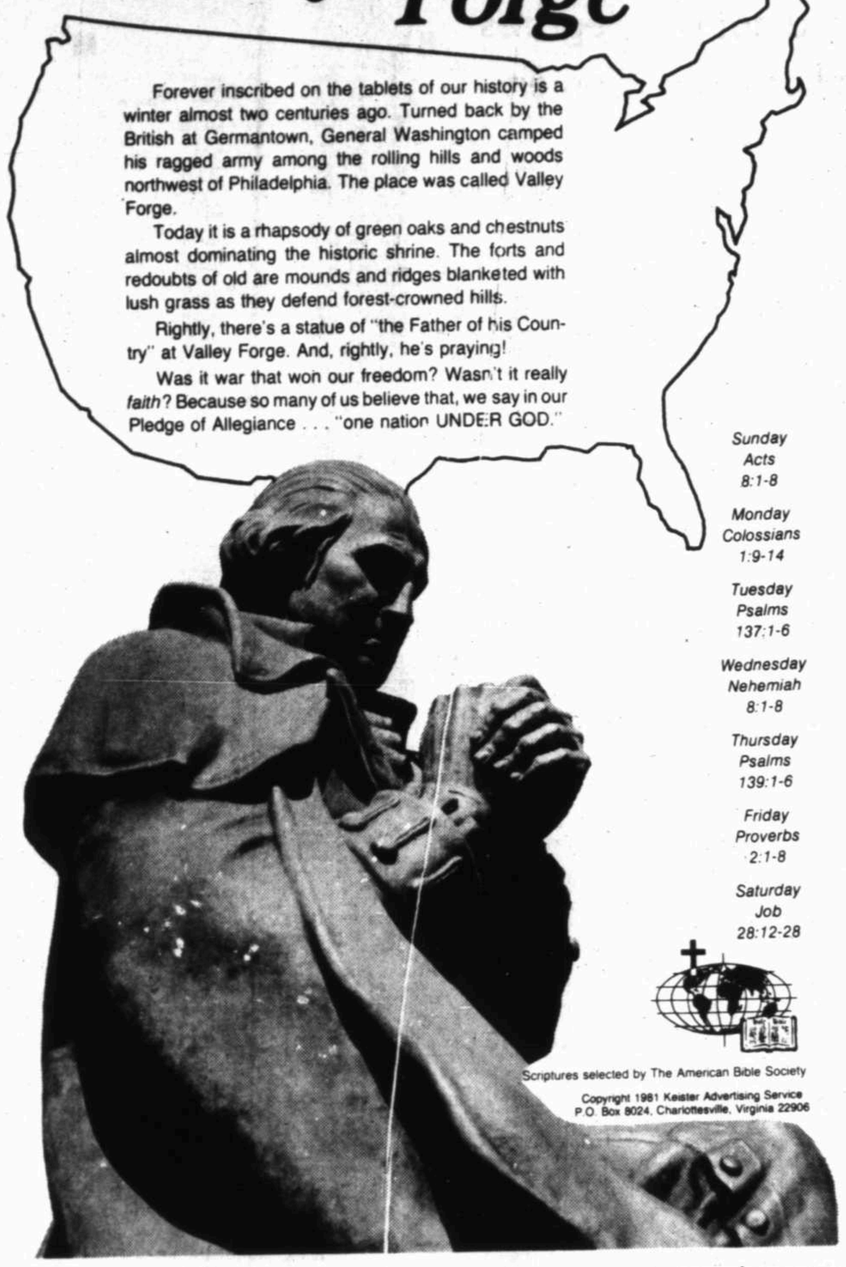
Valley Forge



Forever inscribed on the tablets of our history is a winter almost two centuries ago. Turned back by the British at Germantown, General Washington camped his ragged army among the rolling hills and woods northwest of Philadelphia. The place was called Valley Forge.

Today it is a rhapsody of green oaks and chestnuts almost dominating the historic shrine. The forts and redoubts of old are mounds and ridges blanketed with lush grass as they defend forest-crowned hills.

Rightly, there's a statue of "the Father of his Country" at Valley Forge. And, rightly, he's praying!

Was it war that won our freedom? Wasn't it really faith? Because so many of us believe that, we say in our Pledge of Allegiance . . . "one nation UNDER GOD."

Midland woman among delegates to meeting of Lutheran women

Mrs. Clifford Miller, a member of Midland Lutheran Church, is a delegate representing the West Texas conference at the 7th triennial National Convention of The American Lutheran Church Women Sunday through Thursday in San Antonio.

Others from the area who will attend include Mrs. James Perry, Mrs. Mike McBrayer and Mrs. Don Meek.

The theme, "People of God for a New Day," will be developed in Bible study by Dr. Hugh George Anderson, president of Luther Theological Southern Seminary at Columbia, S.C. Major addresses will be given by Dr. Una Kroll, medical doctor and member of Christian Medical Commission in England, the Rev. Gloria Weber, family life educator from St. Louis, Mo., Dr. Fred W. Meuser, president of Trinity Lutheran Seminary at columbus, Ohio, and others.

The convention offering will be given to the ALC Weekly Bible Studies Program. scholarships for scholarships for Advanced Theological Education for Women and Hispanic Ministries.

ALC Women is an auxiliary of the 2.5 million member American Lutheran Church with general offices in Minneapolis, Minn. Membership of the ALC Women local units is estimated at about 500,000.

St. Luke's to celebrate anniversary

This month marks the 29th anniversary of the founding of St. Luke's United Methodist church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave. A special celebration service will be held Sunday at 7 p.m.

Guest speaker for the 11 a.m. Sunday service will be the Rev. Dick Clemmer, pastor of the First UMC in Hobbs, N.M. Clemmer is the son of Dale and Helen Clemmer, members of St. Luke's.

The chancel choir will present a melody of old time hymns and classical guitarist David Watkins will play music by Bach.

The Sunday 7 p.m. service will be "Remember When...," a reminiscing about past times at St. Luke's. Jim Wingert and Company will entertain with "The Singing Strings."

The evening message will be given by Howell Watkins. Watkins, a former UMC minister, is currently a professor of the humanities at Midland College.

Invitations have been mailed to former members and pastors. The public also is invited to attend.

Local congregation's bulletin named

DALLAS — A Dallas-based religious publishing company, Restoration Foundation, has named the Golf Course Road Church of Christ as one of five congregations among the more than 14,000 congregations of Churches of Christ nationally as having a bulletin of outstanding journalistic quality.

The appearance, layout, graphics, originality and articles were all taken into consideration in the evaluations.

The Restoration Foundation is a non-profit organization that underwrites the cost of publishing material of interest to members of the Church of Christ.

Other Churches of Christ receiving recognition are Southside in Fort Worth, Memorial in Houston, Johnson Street in San Angelo and Overland Park in Overland Park, Kan.

Old Testament course scheduled

The Rev. James Aldridge, pastor of Northwestern Baptist Church, will begin teaching a survey of the Old Testament at 7 p.m. Sunday in the cafeteria of Goddard Junior High, 2800 Haynes St.

Aldridge has taught this course for college credit at Navarro College at Corsicana, through the Baptist Student Union Bible Chair. He also has taught the course for the Seminary Extension Center at Gatesville.

The public is invited to attend. A free nursery will be provided.

Northwestern Baptist is a Southern Baptist Mission of Crestview Baptist Church. The group is temporarily meeting at Goddard.

Area singles invited to get-together

A celebration with Christian entertainment and fellowship is scheduled for 6 p.m. today at Haley Park, adjacent to the Planetarium at Indiana and Avenue L.

The non-denominational get-together is open to all area singles.

Craft sale to benefit camp fund

The women of Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., are holding a craft sale following morning worship Sunday.

Proceeds of the craft sale go to the church's camp scholarship for its youth.

Some schools now 'off limits'

DALLAS (AP) — For students studying for the United Methodist ministry, some theological schools of other denominations have been declared off limits, says the weekly, United Methodist Reporter.

It says he number of such schools was not disclosed immediately, pending notification of them by United Methodist accrediting agency.

So far, it has ruled on the acceptability of about 60 of the 186 non-United Methodist seminaries that historically have been approved as places for study by United Methodist ministerial candidates.

However, a review of them was ordered by the denomination's 1980 governing conference, breaking with a former policy of putting any nationally accredited seminary on the denomination's approved list.

Honeybees attack Baptist group

KYELA, Tanzania (AP) — Swarming African honeybees attacked a group of Baptists riding in an open Land-Rover to a church meeting, forcing them to seek cover for three hours.

Southern Baptist missionaries Doug and Evelyn Knaff report the group fled to a nearby hut, the bees pursuing them inside. Smoked out by leaves piled on the hut's cooking fire, the vicious swarm still attacked anyone trying to leave.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HEADED FOR HOME...TO FIND MORE TROUBLE!

After parting from the Ephesians elders, we sailed straight to Cos. The next day we reached Rhodes and then went to Patara. There we boarded a ship sailing for the Syrian province of Phoenicia.

We sighted the island of Cyprus, passed it on our left and landed at the harbor of Tyre, in Syria, where the ship unloaded. We went ashore, found the local believers and stayed with them a week. These disciples warned Paul -- the Holy Spirit prophesying through them -- not to go on to Jerusalem.

At the end of the week when we returned to the ship, the entire congregation including wives and children walked down to the beach with us where we prayed and said our farewells. Then we went aboard and they returned home.

The next stop after leaving Tyre was Ptolemais where we greeted the believers, but stayed only one day.

Then we went on to Caesarea and stayed at the home of Philip the Evangelist, one of the first seven deacons. He had four unmarried daughters who had the gift of prophecy.

This is an aerial view of the Oral Roberts University campus in Tulsa, Okla., The university's new law school is seeking accreditation from the American Bar Association, but has discovered that accreditation is not easy to come by.

ORU launches accreditation fight

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oral Roberts University and the American Bar Association, each claiming the U.S. Constitution in its corner, are headed for federal court in a fight over accreditation of ORU's new law school.

The ABA contends the university — which attracts most of its students from the charismatic Christian constituency of television evangelist Oral Roberts, the school's founder — practices religious discrimination.

ORU counters that the ABA has no right to wield a "spiritual thermometer" in judging the quality of a law school.

The law school's first class of 47 students is scheduled to graduate next May. But without at least provisional approval from the ABA, the graduates cannot practice law in this country.

Seven states, not including Oklahoma, do not require ABA accreditation for their law schools but do require candidates for the bar to have law degrees from schools within those states, which would bar Oral Roberts graduates.

A hearing is scheduled Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Chicago, where the ABA is headquartered, on ORU's lawsuit challenging the right of the ABA to withhold accreditation on religious grounds.

At issue is the Tulsa school's "Code of Honor." Upon admission all students pledge, in part, "to seek the will of God for my life and to exemplify Christlike behavior."

The ABA's "Standard 211" prohibits accreditation of any school that discriminates on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or sex.

The university was informed six weeks ago, in a letter signed by ABA legal education consultant James White, that the Accreditation Committee had denied the school's application. White said ORU requirements "impose an admission qualification that is intended to prevent the admission of applicants on the ground of religion."

The Accreditation Committee met this past weekend to reconsider the ORU application before preparing a final recommendation to the ABA's House of Delegates, which makes the actual decision in August.

But ORU, stunned by the early indication from the Accreditation Committee, didn't wait around to hear from the House of Delegates. It filed suit. It also put its law school out on a sort of limb by challenging the right of the ABA to grant accreditation when it is that ABA accreditation the school must have.

The August agenda for the House of Delegates includes a proposal to amend Standard 211 so ORU's law school could be accredited. Details of the proposed amendment have not been disclosed, but changes in 211 have been rejected earlier.

"There shouldn't be a 211 period — amended or otherwise," said Robert Skolrood, ORU general counsel. "The ABA has no business running around with a spiritual thermometer.

"They should keep to the task at hand, which is, 'Is it a quality legal education program that's going on at the school?'" Skolrood said. "In the findings of the site team, there's absolutely no question about it. They speak in superlatives."

An ABA inspection team visited the modern campus late last year and gave the facilities, faculty, students, coursework and financial base high marks in a report to the Accreditation Committee.

The report said the facilities were "uniformly excellent" and noted that the 76 students in the first two classes were "one of the strongest assets" of the law school.

"They are highly unusual in their freshly scrubbed, conservatively attired appearance and their distinctive courtesy toward their peers and elders," the inspectors wrote.

"...Although Oral Roberts University professes to have a unique approach to the law as derived from and dependent upon Christian values, those values rarely seem to intrude upon the classroom except in the form of a brief opening prayer before class or occasional biblical references," said the report.

"...The typical Oral Roberts class is interchangeable with any other law school class in any other law school in this country, save for the prayer and the dress and attitude of the students," the report said.

In its lawsuit, ORU contends the ABA's exclusive right to accredit law schools, an arrangement approved by the Department of Education, is a violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

H. Eugene Heine Jr., ABA's house counsel, called the contention "bizarre." Heine said the ABA is a "voluntary association."

"We undertake to inspect law schools and tell the world what we think of them," Heine said. "No way ... can that convert us to a government agency."

Heine said he did not know of any law school that had applied for accreditation in which there had not been a "mutually acceptable resolution." But Skolrood said the university was not interested in compromising its standards. "We will not change our Code of Honor. That's what a lot of other schools have done."

"I'm hopeful that the ABA — the guardians of the Constitution — would follow the Constitution," Skolrood continued.

"All the other (ORU) schools are accredited: The medical, the dental, nursing, theological, the other graduate. Nobody has ever presented this (religious challenge) before. The one body that shouldn't even be involved in this is lawyers, of all things."

Missionaries facing dangers

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

WAXHAW, N.C. (AP) — Missionaries and pilots training in this tiny Piedmont village to spread the gospel around the globe are accustomed to the risks of jungle life and the hazards of remote dirt airstrips.

But they are facing a new danger that seems to be surfacing with increasing regularity — terrorism.

"We always tell our people to relay the message that we will not be blackmailed," says Martin Huyett, executive director of the Jungle Aviation and Radio Service, the branch of Wycliffe Bible Translators that transports linguists to dozens of nations around the world.

"That is, we will not pay if one of our missionaries is taken hostage."

JAARS, located in the piney forests on the outskirts of Waxhaw, seems isolated from the dangers facing missionaries who fan out across the globe. About 275 missionaries live in JAARs housing at its training center and in homes around Waxhaw.

JAARS provides a training ground for flights by linguists, and it stays in radio contact with missionaries and pilots through an international network of ham-radio operators.

Terrorism was not a major problem for the linguists of Wycliffe, which has about 4,500 workers worldwide — including about 2,000 in Third World areas — until recently.

But the gravity of the problem was demonstrated in March when Chester Bitterman, 28, a linguist and graduate of Columbia Bible College in South Carolina, was shot to death by terrorists in Bogota, Colombia.

Bitterman, who had moved to Colombia with his wife and two daughters about 18 months earlier, was taken captive when guerrillas burst into a dormitory where he was staying, abducted him and said they would kill him unless Wycliffe linguists left Colombia. He was killed after being held for six weeks.

Since that time, Ecuador has ordered linguists out of that nation, saying their work has become too controversial.

JAARS and Wycliffe officials are reluctant to talk about terrorism, but they staunchly maintain that it has not affected their efforts to translate the Bible into every language.

"We will continue to do what we have been doing, and that is help people everywhere get the word of God," Huyett said in an interview. "We always clear our work with a country's government and go through the proper channels. When we've done all we can, we're in God's hands after that."

Translating the Bible into another language is a lengthy process that sometimes requires linguists to live in a native country for 10 to 12 years in order to produce grammar books, write the language and translate the Bible.

JAARs pilots, trained to make short takeoffs and landings in rugged terrain, are responsible for taking missionaries to and from the mission fields and providing their only link to their homes and the rest of the world.

Williams indicted on 2 murder charges

ATLANTA (AP) — Wayne B. Williams, a 23-year-old free-lance cameraman, was indicted Friday on charges of murdering Jimmy Ray Payne and Nathaniel Cater, two of the 28 young blacks whose slayings terrorized the city for nearly two years.

"The next step is assignment to a court and then arraignment," Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton said in announcing the indictment.

The indictment charges that Williams caused the death of the 21-year-old Payne on April 22, 1981, and of the 27-year-old Cater on May 22, inboth cases "by strangling and asphyxiating him with objects and by means which are to the grand jurors unknown." Both bodies were found in the Chattahoochee River west of Atlanta.

Williams, who is black, had been arrested June 21 on a charge of murdering Cater. The Payne indictment, however, was a surprise because there had been no indication earlier that the grand jury would even discuss that slaying.

Police had said they considered the plump, light-complexioned Williams a suspect in several of the other slayings, but had not said which ones.

Cater and Payne had been among the most recent — and the oldest — victims of the string of slayings which dated from July 1979 — a series of crimes that brought fear and heightened concern for the safety of children in many sections of the city,.

Until this year, all the victims had been children. No young blacks have disappeared or been slain since Williams was put under police surveillance in late May.

Williams' attorney, Mary Welcome, called the indictments part of a continuing "charade" by law enforcement officials to convict her client of crimes he did not commit. She said she was at first surprised by the second idictment, but then said:

"I think about the fact that there has been a serious effort on the part of the government ... to present to the country, even the world, that Wayne is implicated in all of the murders. So on reflection, I shouldn't be too surprised that they would try to tie at least one more in to continue with the charade and the implication of guilt."

Asked how two murder counts would change the defense, she said, "The defense has and will be the same — he is not guilty of one; he is not guilty of two."

In a preliminary hearing last month, in which Williams was bound over for grand jury action, a State Crime Lab technician said there was "no significant microscopic difference" between fibers found in Cater's hair and fibers found in a green carpet in Williams' bedroom.

Microscopic similarities also were noted between violet fibers found on Cater's body and a violet and green bedspread taken from Williams' bedroom, the technician, Larry Peterson, said.

Police have said they also found some fibers on Payne's body, but there has been no public testimony about that finding.

According to the bill of indictment, prosecutors brought 10 witnesses before the grand jury, including five Atlanta police investigators, one FBI agent, a technical specialist from the State Crime Lab, two investigators from the medical examiner's office and one Georgia Bureau of Investigation agent.

Payne's body was found April 27 in the river. Cater's body was found May 24 in the river, less than 500 feet from where Payne's body was found.

Slaton said assignment to a court would take "about three days" and any timetable after that would have "something to do with the attorneys."

Slaton refused to comment when asked if Williams was a suspect in any other cases.

"The other cases are being investigated under the direction of (Public Safety) Commissioner Lee Brown, and I would refer any other questions to Commissioner Brown," Slaton said.

He also refused to comment when asked whether the grand jury now in session through August has completed its work on Williams.

Slaton would not say when his own investigators began looking at the Payne case, but he did say the grand jury had heard "several witnesses" in the Williams case.

The Payne indictment "may have been totally unexpected to outside people, but it was not totally unexpected to my people," Slaton said.

He added that he did not know the vote count on the grand jury's decision or the number of times the grand jury voted, since he was not present when it voted.

Payne was last seen April 22 when he left his family's apartment to sell coinsat the Omni, an entertainment complex frequented by several victims in the string of slayings.

His sister, Evelyn Knox, reported him missing when he failed to return home the next morning.

Payne had been paroled from state prison at Christmas 1980 because of overcrowded conditions in the prisons. He had been serving a five-year sentence for two burglary convictions.

A pathologist for the Fulton County Medical Examiner's office ruled that Payne's death probably was by asphyxiation and that there were no bruises, marks or indication of sexual molestation.

Cater lived in the Falcon Hotel, a gray, aging hotel near the city's business district. He was last seen by the hotel's day manager on May 21. He was scheduled to pay his rent the next day but failed to appear.

Medical examiners said Cater had been strangled by some type of ligature, meaning that some means other than bare hands was used — possibly a forearm in a chokehold. As in Payne's case, there were no marks or indications of sexual molestation.

Williams was first brought to the attention of police when they stopped him near the Chattahoochee in the early morning hours of May 22.

Officers testified they had heard a splash in the river and they stopped Williams after he was seen driving slowly across a bridge.

Cater was the latest victim in the string of 28 slayings. Payne's was the 26th body found.

In addition to the 28 murder victims, one young black, 10-year-old Darron Glass, has been missing since September 1980.

Jerry Rohrs of the Archbold, Ohio, Lions Club, sponsors of the town's "Carptown Festival," checks out one of the honored guests. The city was nicknamed Carptown years ago by neighboring communities after floods left carp on the city streets.

Town celebrates the lowly carp

ARCHBOLD, Ohio (AP) — When they come hook-to-mouth with a carp, many fishermen throw it back in disgust. In Archbold, they throw a party.

For three days, townspeople don carp T-shirts and adopt "Cornelius the Carp" as a mascot. They serve up a Friday night fish fry for 1,000 people, and play music in the park. Live carp are on display in an aquarium.

"We think it's fantastic," says Cal Short, chairman of this weekend's Carptown Festival and a one-man carp chamber of commerce in this town 45 miles west of Toledo.

The carp, generally more popular in the United States as fertilizer than food, wasn't always so beloved here.

When floodwaters from Brush Creek receded to leave carp on the streets — in 1918, several were found flopping on a livery stable loor, and in 1937, one was landed in front of the post office —Archbold got a new name.

"They started calling us carp anthe city Carptown. People were laughing at us," Short said of the years when townspeople cast about for a suitable response.

"Last year, we decided we'd really do it — we'd really have a carp festival. The Lions Club got behind it and everybody loved it," Short recalled. "They said, 'You're going to do it again next year, aren't you?'"

Short, a real estate agent by trade, has trolled for carp information and says the fish's bad reputation is unfair.

"The Chinese and the Japanese think it's a very good fish," he said. In some parts of the Orient, he said, the carp is "almost sacred."

Short blames the fish's life style for some of its image problems. It's a bottom feeder, and thus spends most of its time in the muck.

"If you could raise carp in a pond with plastic on the bottom, so they didn't get down into the mud, they would convert fish feed into food for people better than almost anything."

And he hopes the carp will fight the adverse currents.

"We're talking about starting a national carp club. We could award a prize each year to the person who catches the biggest carp in the United States," he said, dropping some bait. "The biggest one caught weighed 80 pounds.

Officers having trouble finding troublemaker's killer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kenneth Rex McElroy was considered a troublemaker, authorities say — a man who bragged about being released after shooting an elderly grocer.

On the morning of July 10, as a silent crowd gathered around his pickup truck, someone put a bullet in his head. And officers in Skidmore, a town of 440, say they're having trouble finding out who pulled the trigger.

"We're finding out that people in this area had no love for McElroy," said Hal Riddle, a member of the Northwest Missouri Major Investigation Squad. "We can't go on just say-so, and no one seems to be cooperating with us."

His wife, Trina McElroy, who has fled the tiny northwest Missouri community, said Friday that women in the crowd told her McElroy had to be killed.

The FBI confirmed Friday it was entering the case to conduct a preliminary investigation into whether McElroy's civil rights had been violated.

Authorities said McElroy had several scrapes with the law. He had been convicted June 26 in the wounding of the town's 70-year-old grocer a year ago and was out on bond awaiting appeal in that case.

He had been acquitted previously of shooting a farmer in the stomach and had been charged with assault involving a weapon at least four times, according to Highway Patrol Trooper Jim Rhodes.

"The Bible says that there should be an eye for an eye," said Mrs. Ernest Bowencamp, wife of the grocer. "Those who live by the sword die by the sword. Ken McElroy lived by the gun and that's the same way he died."

"He was right back in town, free as can be, telling everyone he was back and bragging about it," said a farmer who would not give his name. "That's what got everybody so mad, the way the police would just keep arresting him and the courts just kept letting him go."

On the morning of July 10, Nodaway County Sheriff Danny Estes said he attended a meeting of 60 townspeople in the Skidmore American Legion hall. He said they discussed forming a sheriff's patrol and problems some people were having with the 47-year-old McElroy.

The McElroys went into town that morning and were met with an eerie quiet, the widow said.

"It seemed so strange. There were vehicles lining the street, but no people anywhere. We walked into the tavern and it was empty. Then all of the sudden it just filled with people. They were giving everybody beers but nobody paid for them."

The couple went out to their pickup truck, parked on Skidmore's main street.

Mrs. McElroy said 70 to 80 people were gathered around the truck when a man crossed the street, got a gun from his truck, and fired four shots, hitting her husband in the back of the head and the neck.

"A man in the crowd told me to stay in the truck, that they wanted to shoot me, too," a sobbing Mrs. McElroy said Friday at a news conference here. "Someone else pulled me out. I went to the ground and begged 'em to stop shooting."

Mrs. McElroy said a man took her arm and led her to a nearby bank, saying there were women to "take care of her, too."

She said the women told her that her husband had to be killed.

The 24-year-old widow has identified the alleged killer to law officers but no charges had been filed and no arrests made by early Friday afternoon.

Mrs. McElroy has alleged the townspeople conspired to kill her husband and are refusing to cooperate with law officers. The NMIS had checked out 77 leads Friday without finding the break they needed.

McElroy's attorney, Gene McFadin, said he had advised his client to stay out of Skidmore because of sentiment of the townspeople.

Mrs. McElroy said her husband ignored the advice "because he felt he had a perfect right" to go there. But she said she would not return to their rural home because she feared for her life and the lives of her six children.

"If they had the nerve to do it behind his back in broad daylight, I don't want my kids around them," she said. "I don't want to go back to Nodaway County. I don't believe I would be safe there because they wanted to shoot me, too."

GenTel head plans to retire

The announcement came during a regularly scheduled meeting of the company's board in Dallas. The board then elected E.L. "Buddy" Langley, currently president of General Telephone Co. of the Southeast in Durham, N.C., to fill the vacancy.

The 59-year-old San Angelo resident said late Friday that he has no immediate plans, only to be "taking it easy."

MOPEDS FROM $399*

For a limited time, you can take off on a Vespa moped and we'll take one-third off the price!

And the savings don't stop there. The Vespa "Ciao" Special can deliver up to 160 miles per gallon (based on C.U.N.A. standards) and it's just one of the many models from which to choose!

The time has never been better to save big on the same Vespas that have had Europe buzzing for over 30 years! See us today!

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price. Dealer prep, taxes, licensing and transportation not included.

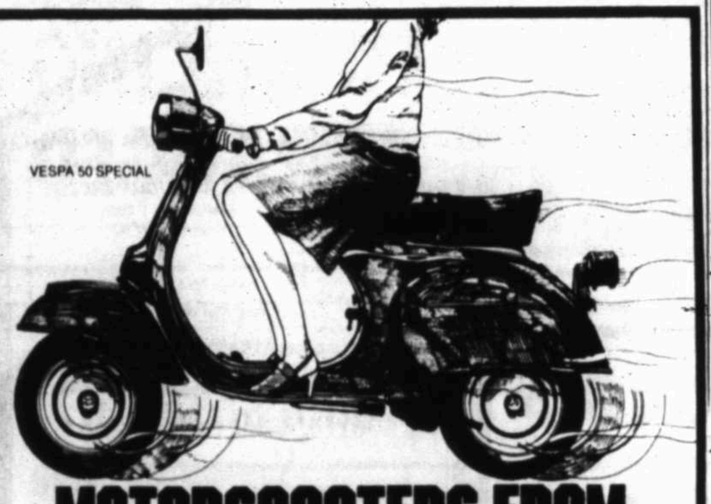
Open 9-9 Weekdays, 9-5 Saturdays through July.



MOTORSCOOTERS FROM $699*

For a limited time, Vespa motorscooters are available at savings of UP TO 1/3 OFF!

Now you can combine outrageous economy (up to 156 mpg, based on C.U.N.A. standards) with fun, simple, and reliable transportation at savings never before possible!

The time has never been better to discover what 6 million Europeans already know—nothing combines Fun with Economy like Vespa!

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price. Dealer prep, taxes, licensing, and transportation not included.

Open 9-9 Weekdays, 9-5 Saturdays through July.

KNOW WHY VESPA'S OUR MOPED?

IT'S SIMPLE.

Riding a Vespa moped is almost as easy as saying "giddy-up". Even the first time you get on one. The controls are very simple. And so is the whole design. For instance, Vespa has a belt drive, which is one part. Other mopeds use chains, which have hundreds of pieces.

A Vespa is cheap to feed—gets up to 160 mpg. Or push a button and pedal for free. Test ride a Ciao* Bravo or Grande. We think you'll agree Vespa's the logical choice—pure and simple.

*Say "chow," Italian for "hi."

Strike negotiations may move to Washington

Donovan feels talks should be out of news media

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said Friday that both sides in the baseball strike have agreed "in principle" to move the stalled negotiations to the nation's capital in a continuing quest for a settlement.

Emerging from lengthy meetings with Marvin Miiller, head of the Players Association, and Ray Grebey, chief bargainer for the owners, Donovan said the two "are convinced, as I am, that the collective bargaining system will eventually work."

Donovan said he has asked federal mediator Kenneth E. Moffett to invite representatives of labor and management to resume negotiations here Monday under the auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, of which Moffett is acting head.

ASLED WHETHER Miller and Grebey indicated a willingness to move the talks from New York to Washington, Donovan replied, "in principle, yes."

Donovan did not indicate whether a news blackout would be imposed on the talks, although the labor secretary did say earlier in the day he felt negotiations should be taken out of the news media.

The labor secretary delivered his assessment after both Miller and Grebey had departed for their flights back to New York. It was believed both planned to consult with their negotiating teams Friday night.

"I read in both gentlemen the seriousness of the task before them," Donovan said. He said his aim is to use his office "as a vehicle to get the voice of the American people," into the talks.

Asked whether President Reagan has been expressing concern about the strike, Dononvan said, "No, he has not," but added that the White House has been informed of each development.

Miller arrrived nearly an hour ahead of Grebey and eluded reporters as he left. Grebey also refused to talk to newsmen. Donovan said, however, that he met with both negotiators together for a brief period, and said that he also met with each separately.

THE LABOR secretary refused to say what specific strike issues may have been discussed but reiterated that it was up to the two parties to arrive at an accord.

He said, "I will be available during the new series of negotiations here," but added he would not be participating directly.

Earlier in the day, Donovan issued a statement in which he called the meetings "a last effort" to settle the strike, now in its 36th day.

"The American people want baseball and they want a World Series," Donovan said in a statement issued by top aide Earl Cox.

"If this strike is to be settled, it will have to be settled by the parties involved, and unless there is a change in attitude on both the players and owners' part, then I don't think we'll see any more baseball this year.

"And then the players and owners are going to have something a lot more important to worry about — millions of very angry fans."

Donovan and Kenneth Moffett, acting director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, asked Miller and Grebey to come to Washington Thursday following another breakdown in negotiations in New York.

The strike, which began June 12, has forced cancellation of 419 games, about one-fifth of the season, and postponed the annual All-Star Game last Tuesday night at Cleveland.

The Players Association said it would accept arbitration to end the five-week-old strike, but the Player Relations Committee rejected the idea.

Arriving at the labor department at mid-afternoon, Miller was asked what he thought would happen in the meetings with Donovan.

"You're going to have to ask the secretary," he said. "He's the one who invited me."

MILLER SAID, "I think the secretary is trying to do something. Frankly, I hope he's successful."

Asked about assertions by Grebey that the players' willingness to accept arbitration was a public relations move aimed at winning the support of the people, Miller said, 'If he thinks it's just a ploy, then he's going to have to take me up on it."

Miller said cancellation of the rest of the season is a possibility, but added, "I hope it's not true."

Grebey, arriving a short time after Miller, was asked if he would go along with any demand the talks be moved to Washington.

"It's all premature," Grebey said. "I won't talk about it because I haven't talked to the secretary yet."

Cox said "the agenda (for Friday's meeting) is open as to what they're going to discuss."

He said the labor secretary's prime goal was to get the talks moving again so that the remainder of the season could be salvaged.

The administration first entered the negotiations when Donovan appealed to both sides in New York Wednesday to settle their differences.

It was uncertain whether Donovan would seek to have the negotiations moved to Washington, although he has held open the possibility of such an action.

In a telephone interview early Friday, Donovan called the walkout "a strike against the American people, from one point of view," and said he would "try to be the voice of the American people at that (bargaining) table."

Asked whether Miller and Grebey had been summoned to Washington, Donovan replied, "I wouldn't use that word. Use 'request.'"

Donovan said the government could not impose a settlement because the strike doesn't affect the nation's health and welfare. But he did say he could use "the power of persuasion."

MILLER VOICED doubt that the meeti, "I have some question about what this is all about."

Cubs' rally falls short

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The Arkansas Travelers ended the Midland Cubs' four game winning streak Friday night at Cubs Stadium, but even in a losing effort the Bruins are not the same team that the Tall City saw in the first half of the Texas League race.

The Travelers notched a 12-11 decision, but after an early 9-0 lead after just four innings of play, it looked like it was one of those no contest affairs.

HOWEVER, THE Cubs gave the 1,793 beer night fans something to hang around for besides the suds. The Cubs erupted for six runs in the seventh and scored five more in the bottom of the ninth to leave the Travelers hanging over a cliff by the fingernails. The fingernails held, however, and the Cubs fell one run short.

Arkansas actually won the game in the ninth inning when they finally got to reliever Norm Churchill for three runs. Churchill had almost been untouchable since replacing starter and loser Jon Perlman in the fourth. Churchill inherited a 9-0 Arkansas lead and held them at bay until the ninth when the Travelers got four consecutive singles off Churchill. That made it a 12-6 game, but the Cubs wouldn't take it laying down.

nine games, then hit his 13th homer of the season for two more runs and J.W. Mitchell followed with a solo blast to narrow the margin to 12-11.

SHORT RELIEF ace Rafael Pimentel then came on to pick up his eighth save by striking out Mike Diaz to end the game. Pimentel has 74 strikeouts in 54 innings of work and has KOed the last seven batters he has faced over the last three appearances. With the big lead by Arkansas, it is a wonder that the Travelers ever needed Pimentel's work on this night.

The Travs jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first frame on a run scoring triple to deep left center by Jeff Doyle and a grounder by Dave Kable. Then they got seven more in the fourth on a double, five singles, a walk and two Cub errors. It was one inning the Cubs would like to forget. Perlman got the first man out in the frame, but the Cubs couldn't get any of the next eight batters out as the runs seemed to come across in droves.

The Cubs finally got to Italian starter Ralph Citarella in the seventh. Citarella had given up only three hits in the first six innings, but Martinez doubled, Mitchell singled and Diaz laced his second double of the night for two runs. Later in the frame, Hall, who was just named as the only Cub on the Texas League All-Star team, singled in a run and Upton, who also kept a nine game hitting streak alive, doubled in two more before Dave Jorn came in to cut the rally short.

IT WAS a 9-6 Trav lead heading into the ninth, but Doyle and Kable had run scoring singles and Fred Tisdale produced a sacrifice fly for a 12-6 margin. And in the ninth inning, that looked like a big obstacle for the Cubs.

The Cubs couldn't pull it out, but they made it darn close. The two teams are now tied in the current series at 1-1.

CUB PAWS: The two teams meet again today at 7:30 p.m. in another two-bit beer night for the fans...Javier Fierro had an eight game hitting streak go by the wayside Friday with an 0-for-3 night, but he walked twice and scored two runs...Diaz was flawless behind the plate for the Cubs. He threw out three Arkansas runners with some dead aim rockets, one of which almost took the head off one of the umpires on a close play at second base. Diaz also had two doubles on the night...Mitchell had a three hit night to go with his ninth inning homer, his third of the year...Jorge Aranzamendi led Arkansas with a three hit night, but the Travs only had two extra base hits on the night...

Rogers leads; Watson close

Nicklaus has outside shot at British Open

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Bill Rogers had the lead, Tom Watson was in contending position and, almost incredibly, Jack Nicklaus still had an outside shot at the title Friday after two rounds of the 110th British Open Golf Championship.

"After what I did yesterday (Thursday), I figured I'd better go out and play a good round of golf if I wanted to play again tomorrow (Saturday)," Nicklaus said.

AND THE man who has won a record 17 major professional titles and stamped himself as the finest performer this ancient game has seen, did just that.

He played a round of 66, four under par and matching the course record on the Royal St. George's Golf Club course, stretching 6,829 yards through knee-deep hay and rolling dunes beside the English Channel.

That was 17 shots better — just one away from a stroke-a-hole improvement — over that shattering, career-worst 83 he had in the first round.

And, at 149, he was 11 strokes off the halfway pace set by the skinny Rogers. Watson, the Masters champion and defending titleholder here, said Nicklaus still had a chance of winning.

"He can win from there," Watson said. "It isn't probable, but it's possible. It can be done."

Rogers also tied the course record with a 66, for a 138 total. But he held a share of the mark only for a couple of hours before an obscure British club pro, G.J. Brand, broke the mark with a late-afternoon 65 that included a hole-in-one on the 165-yard 16th hole. He was at 143.

ROGERS PLAYED consistently, a trait that has become a trademark of the man who was, almost inevitably, dubbed "Buck" by his fellow American tourists.

He did not have a bogey. He missed only three greens. And, in two rounds, he has yet to venture into the deep rough.

"I love this course," Rogers said after going two strokes under par for the tourney. "It seems to be built for my game, in that the premium is keeping the ball in the fairwa.

" feel pretty good about my game and I think I should be right there in the thick of things at the end."

His good friend, Ben Crenshaw, with whom he is sharing living accomodations at a nearby club and with whom he will play in Saturday's third round, and English pro Nick Job were tied for second place at 139.

Crenshaw, seeking the one major title he needs to confirm his stature in the game, had a 67 despite bogeys on two of the last three holes. Job shot a 69.

Three knotted for lead at LPGA tournament

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Vivian Brownlee, who never has been the leader at the halfway mark in a Ladies Professional Golfers Association tournament since joining the tour in 1975, found herself sharing that position with Julie Stanger and Donna Caponi Friday. She shot a par 72 for a 36-hole total of 140 in the $125,000 Western Union International Classic.

The 24-year-old Stanger, former three-time Arizona amateur champion who who has yet to win a title since turning pro four years ago, shot a second straight 2-under-par 70 for her share of the top spot.

CAPONI, WHO already has won three titles this year, including the LGA Championship, shot a 3-under-par 69. A birdie on the par 5 17th hole created the three-way deadlock as she was the last of the trio to finish the round.

Sally Little of South Africa, the defender in the four-day event at the 6,347-yard Meadow Brook Club and who shared the opening-day lead with Brownlee at 68, shot a 3-over 75 to fall into a four-way tie for fourth place at 143.

Brownlee, who has only one victory to her credit since turning pro at 28, had two birdies to offset a pair of bogeys.

"It was a tough day in the park," explained the 5-foot-9½ golfer, who started playing seriously until transferring to Penn State as a junior from Ithaca College.

"I HAD 35 putts today as opposed to only 29 yesterday (Thursday) and that gives you an idea of the kind of round I played. Nothing would end, but in a four-day tournament, you expect that to happen once.

"I am quite happy with the 72 considering everything. I just hope the putts fall the rest of the way," she said.

Brownlee, too busy with basketball and field hockey as a standout athlete in high school in her native Atlantic City, N.J., to play golf, hasn't finished higher than 24th in her last 18 tournaments. Five times she has failed to make the cut.

"I had been hitting the ball everywhere — high and low, up and down," explained Brownlee.

Sullivan against Raider move

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New England Patriots owner William Sullivan would have opposed Al Davis' plans to move the Oakland Raiders no matter where he planned to go, Sullivan testified Friday.

"I would not have cared if the the Raiders wanted to move to Timbuktu or to the Holy City of Rome," Sullivan said.

The 65-year-old Bostonian was against the plan of Davis, managing general partner of the Raiders, to move to Los Angeles because, he said, professional football owed a debt to the fans of Oakland.

"If you don't have the customer, you don't have the show," Sullivan said.

After a one-day break, the Raiders vs. NFL antitrust trial resumed but lasted less than two hours.

Lawyers for the Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum protested evidence involving football team finances that the defense wanted to introduce.

The attorneys argued for more than an hour in U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson's chambers. The judge and lawyers will study the issue over the weekend before bringing it up again when the trial resumes Monday.

Despite the short session, Pregerson said he believes testimony will conclude next Friday and the case will be turned over to the jury by the middle of the following week.

Sullivan, a founding member of the old American Football League who said he bought the Patriots for $25,000 in 1959, insisted it was fan loyalty and not any personal animosity that prompted him to oppose the Raiders' move in a Palm Springs league meeting vote in March, 1980.

"It was not a vote against Al Davis, it was a vote for Oakland," he testified.

His son, Charles, introduced the motion to block the Raiders' move at the meeting. Charles Sullivan, who was severely critical of the Raiders attempted move during his testimony earlier in the trial, was in the audience.

The elder Sullivan's daughter, Kathleen, who is married to Joseph Alioto, attorney for the Raiders, was also in court.

"Anyone in this room who knows me and my family would testify that hatred and animosity is not part of the fabric of the Sullivan family," the elder Sullivan said.

Illinois' recruiting style draws critics

An AP Sports Analysis
By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — The University of Illinois has been stocking its football program with junior college transfers, saying that's the only way to be competitive with the big recruiting powers in the Big Ten Conference.

Critics, the Big Ten foremost among them, maintain the school is seeking a quick-fix solution to a long-standing problem.

THE SUDDEN appearance of a pool of talented athletes at Illinois — led last season by junior college transfer Dave Wilson from California — was bound to raise some eyebrows.

It did, first in the Big Ten offices. And then, as the number of junior college transfers blossomed from a handful in 1980 to as many as 20 with the 1981 season approaching, high school coaches across Illinois grew angry as their charges were passed over.

The Big Ten claimed that Wilson, who had been in junior college for three years before playing with Illinois last year, was not eligible to play this year. Wilson moved his quest for eligibility into the courts (unsuccessfully, as it turned out).

Illinois backed Wilson, in defiance of the conference. The Big Ten responded with sanctions severe enough to darken the horizon of Illinois athletics for years to come. Whether they will go into effect won't be decided until Sept.1.

"THERE IS a whole set of reasons for doing what we did," says Coach Mike White, "but the thing I think is important is that we certainly did not and will not base this program on junior college recruiting. There's no question that the optimum way to do it would be to bring in top high school players and have the luxury of waiting for them to develop. But we can't.

"When we can compete for the outstanding high school recruit — whether it's local or national — we will. But it's ridiculous to try and beat the top teams (such powers as Michigan and Ohio State) with talent they don't want. That's the complexity of rebuilding; you'll never please everyone," says White, who took over at Illinois last season after two years as an assistant coach of the National Football League's San Francisco 49ers and, before that, a successful college coaching career on the West Coast.

When it comes to athletics, the West is regarded by much of the rest of the country as a nearly bottomless source of talent. Universities sometimes institute special, "creative" courses to keep that talent eligible and playing close to home.

On the other hand, the junior college system in that part of the country is unique, and even the cleanest schools take part in a long-standing tradition of using transfer students to nurture and sustain successful athletic programs.

"It may be more a question of style than substance," said Wiles Hallock, commissioner of the Pacific-10, the conference which most closely resembles the Big Ten in its blend of athletics and academics.

"There are more junior colleges in California than any other state in the country. There used to be as many JCs here as the rest of the country combined. But it's not nearly as much of a feeder system as was the case 10 years ago. Our own experience with academic problems the last couple of years have made us aware of the need to screen JC players more carefully," he said.

"BY THE same token, Mike's situation has probably been exaggerated. He had a great deal of experience coaching on the West Coast and it's a bad rap to generalize about JCs," continued Hallock. "The important thing is the integrity of the institution and I assume if Illinois is admitting these young men, they are academically sound."

The inevitable rumors that White played fast and loose with the eligibility rules followed his firing at California after a 7-4 season in 1977. And the fact that he brought with him to Illinois a pair of assistants from Arizona State and Oregon — both penalized by the Pac-10 for questionable practices — simply hardened the resistance of some coaches.

On top of that, White told a gathering of them point-blank last April that the talent he needed for the 1981 season was not to be had in Illinois.

Interestingly, 13 of the 54 newcomers on Big Ten football rosters this fall are from junior colleges, according to a survey of their coaches. And JC transfers are likely to be quarterbacking Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota when the season opens.

"I'm not absolutely dead-set against JC transfers," said Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, "but I could count on one hand the number of JC players recruited here in the last 13 years ...

"I'M NOT citing Illinois when I say this, but in order to build a program it takes time, and to build a sound program, you have to do it from the bottom up. That means bringing in good freshman classes for a couple of years. Unfortunately," concluded Schembechler, "that takes a lot of time and most administrations don't want to wait that long."

"For all its adverse effects, the Wilson case had one big positive effect in the off-season, and that was in the area of recruiting," says Athletic Director Neale Stoner, who came to Illinois from California State-Fullerton. "Mike (White) set off to get a handful of kids to fill the skill positions and he went through the network he knew the most about. When word got out, Mike was finding that more people were interested than he figured on.

"Some of that was a direct fallout from our handling of Wilson," he continued. "Kids saw what happened and interpreted that to mean we were standing behind Dave, and they liked that. They thought they'd find a program where they'd be accepted and feel comfortable.

"And once Mike realized what kind of talent he could get his hands on," concluded Stoner, "he couldn't just let it fall by the wayside."

Many Americans feel strike has tarnished baseball image

NEW YORK (AP) — Support for players and owners is divided, but many Americans say the five-week-old baseball strike has tarnished the image of major league baseball, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

The poll of 1,599 American adults, contacted by telephone Monday and Tuesday, said 31 percent supported the owners, 30 percent the players, 29 percent were not sure which side to support.

Ten percent said they had not heard or read of the strike.

Nearly half the respondents who had heard of the strike said it had not changed their opinion of baseball. But 46 percent said the strike had lowered their "opinion of major league baseball and the people involved in it."

ONLY THREE percent said they had a higher opinion of baseball because of the strike.

The poll said that Republicans are more likely to support the owners while Democrats are more likely to support the players. Women, students, lower-income workers and minority group members are more likely to support the players, while men, higher-wage earners and professionals were more likely to support the owners.

UNION MEMBERS, which make up about one in every five respondents, were only slightly more likely to support the players than the owners.

Republicans, men, the better-educated, higher-income earners and whites were more likely to say the strike had lowered their opinion of baseball.

The poll said that the more ardent fans were most likely to say the strike had tarnished baseball's image.

Penske feels Michigan 500 is start of something big

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Track owner Roger Penske readily admits there is no event that is going to challenge the Indianapolis 500 as the crown jewel of auto racing in the foreseeable future.

But Penske feels strongly that Sunday's $500,000 Norton Michigan 500 at Michigan International Speedway is going to be the start of something big.

PENSKE, A New Jersey businessman, who operates the Penske Racing Team and the Michigan track as part of a comglomerate that did more than $200 million in business in 1980, bought MIS in May of 1973.

"I bought the track as an investment," Penske explained. "It was probably equally important because I love racing and was interested in the sport, but it gave me the opportunity of tying it in with my businesses and using it as a test facility.

"But, when I bought it, the track had a contract for two NASCAR (stock car) races a year and the Indy cars that were run here were never as successful as the stock car races from the standpoint of attendance.

"And we've had had some great Indy car races here. The one last September was probably the best I've ever seen. There were four or five cars wheel-to-wheel at 190 mph for 150 miles.

"But, the moment we announced we were going to have a 500-mile Indy car race here, it was like I had invented a new formula," the dapper, white-haired 44-year-old explained. "The ticket sales jumped almost 100 percent over last year.

"NOW LAST year wasn't our best year. We know that the economy in the Michigan are, because of he automotive industry's problems, isn't up to where it could be, and will be, hopefully, shortly.

"It was obvious that the 500-mile race had some real promise," Penske added. "The sponsors (of his team cars) liked it and we were fortunate enough to talk to a television network, NBC. They said if we ran a 500-mile race, they would televise it live.

"When I looked at the economics, looked at putting up $250,000 for the purse, we had the television to offset some of that. And, with the ticket sales going up, I said we've really got to get behind that."

The purse wound up at a half million dollars, with the winner to get $100,000. That doesn't compare to the $1.5 million purse at Indy and the payoff of more than $200,000 to the winner there.

Indianapolis, which ran its 65th edition in May, draws more than 300,000 spectators, while Micigan, which has only about 38,000 seats, will bring in about 70,000 persons Sunday.

Penske could probably be excused if he had bitter feelings about Indianapolis. He has been involved in several legal battles with the Speedway and with the U.S. Auto Club, which sanctions the race.

And, this year, Bobby Unser, who drives for Penske, was stripped of his third Indy 500 victory after being penalized a lap the morning after the race for passing illegally under a caution flag.

PENSKE STILL is contesting that ruling, but he says that he still feels the Indianapolis 500 is the world's greatest sporting event.

"We're not trying to compete with Indianapolis," Penske said. "That's not my goal. What I want to do is take all the good things that Indianapolis does and try to be sure we do those, and the things that I see they're maybe a little behind on, that we do a better job.

"I've always said I don't mind copying someone that's doing well."

"I think if we do a good job, we're only going to complement what they're doing at Indianapolis. And what we've got to do is get those people to understand that.

"We can go a heckuva lot farther together than we can separated. I'm not talking about any sanctioning body, I'm just talking about the tracks working together.

"Fortunately or unfortunately for them, I'm involved in this racetrack."

All TV revenues to be shared equally by NFL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle says all television revenues of NFL games will be divided equally, including future packages which might include cable and pay-TV.

The issue has been a major one during the current federal antitrust trial of the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum against the NFL.

ROZELLE, IN an interview with The Associated Press, said he does not foresee cable and pay-TV entering the picture in the near future, but said, "Our rule on telvision division of 'all sources' means just that. "It is intended to include modern and future technology."

He said the league has "no immediate plans" for cable or pay-TV and pointed out negotiations with the networks for televising of NFL games will begin as soon as the current trial ends.

The present contracts end after the 1981 season.

It has been reported that one of the reasons that Al Davis, managing general partner of the Oakland Raiders, wants to move to Los Angeles is the potential of pay television in a population area much greater than the one in which he now operates.

Rozelle said any closed-circuit revenue must be shared by the 28 teams in the league.

HE EMPHATICALLY denied reports that the current trial is Davis vs. Rozelle, saying, "It is Davis against his 27 partners" in the NFL.

Rozelle termed the suit an "inside challenge" which could damage the structure of a league which has prospered. He denied once again the contention of the Raiders and Davis that there was an oral agreement which would have permitted the club to move as it saw fit.

The commissioner also said that Davis never asked his help in obtaining a better agreement from the Oakland Coliseum.

"I think the Raiders' argument has been effectively refuted by our witnesses," Rozelle said.

Davis has claimed that when he changed his vote from "no" to "abstain" at a Chicago meeting in October, 1978, he did so because of an oral agreement giving him permission to move his club as he saw fit.

The voting, on the rule which had demanded a unanimous vote of clubs to permit another to move, was changed to 75 percent. It took a unanimous vote to change the rule; the court has ruled a 27-0 vote with one abstention was equivalent to unanimous.

Buggs stars for Oilers

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Danny Buggs, a former Washington Redskin who played in the Canadian Football League, was the star of the 40-yard dash session at the first workout of the Houston Oilers training camp Friday.

Buggs ran a 4.48, best among the rookies and free agents who reported to camp Thursday. Draft choices Michael Holston, Larry Jones and Willie Tullis all ran 4.5 and Bill Kay turned in a 4.53.

None of the rookies and free agents reported noticeably overweight. Second-year lineman Angelo Fields, reporting to camp a week before the rest of the veterans, was down 16 pounds (to 324) from two weeks ago.

Coaching philosophy maybe altered by talent

DALLAS — With Midland High's Herbert Johnson and Fort Worth Southwest's John Brownlee in hand, North all-star basketball coach Mike Bridges of Plano admits he might have to alter his coaching philosophy for the 37th annual Texas High School Coaches Association all-star basketball tilt in the Dallas Convention Center Friday.

BRIDGES' PLANO teams, which have ventured to the state playoffs two of the three years he has been coach and went as far as the Class 5A finals in 1980, traditionally feature a slow, patterned offensive attack.

"Our philosophy, offensively, has been to work for a good percentage shot," Bridges said. "We're a control basketball team. Our teams, every year, shoot over 50 percent because of the percentage shots we take."

But Bridges does not feel like he will be able to teach his complicated offense to the all-stars in the few days of practice, so his squad might pick up the pace a bit against the South, coached by Longview's Leroy Romines.

"I think we won't play like we do in Plano," Bridges said. "We'll be a little more wide-open on offense."

With Johnson and Brownlee on his squad, Bridges may be a lot more wide open. Johnson was the MVP of District 5-5A and led MHS to a 32-5 season mark before losing in the playoffs to Fort Worth Dunbar. Johnson, at 6-9, was highly recruited across the United States before the All-American decided on NIT champion Tulsa.

BROWNLEE, 6-11, is considered by many as the state's top cage prospect and averaged 28 points per game at Southwest. He has signed with NCAA finalist North Carolina. Lufkin's Larry Davis, 6-8, adds to the North's inside game.

The North is also armed for a scoring duel with the likes of Spring guard Jack Worthington (27.1 points per game) and forward Reggie Childress of Coleman (26.9).

A running game wouldn't bother Romines in the least since that is what he used at Longview. "I think we have a shot at winning," Romines said. "We're at a little disadvantage, height-wise, so we'll have to be a lot quicker getting down the floor."

Talented Eric Dickens of Houston Madison head Romines' ball-handling corps, which also includes two high scorers in Huffman Gargrave's Kerry Zastoupil (26.8) and Bill Bahnsen of Wharton (19.4). Tuloso-Midway's Chris Bentley, a forward, has a 25.1 average.

To combat the North size, Romines will use 6-8 Stefon Johnson of Longview. Johnson replaced S.F. Austin's Kelly Blaine, who failed to meet eligibility requirements for the game. He is headed for LSU after averaging 18 points and 15 rebounds per game at Longview.

The South will be trying to close the North series lead to one game this year. The North, which won a 89-87 decision last year in Houston's Hofheinz Pavilion, holds a 1917 edge in the classic. The game is set for 7 p.m.

The all-star games, basketball and football, are highlights of the annual THSCA coaching school. It is the one time of year when all the Texas high school coaches gather. Midland Lee football coach Spike Dykes will be one of the featured speakers at the week long event.

Golfers accomplish wide scoring feats

By REX WORRELL
Hogan Park Golf Pro

Area golfers accomplished a variety of scoring feats this past week at Hogan Park Golf Course. Included in these golfing wonders were a hole-in-one, eagle, age shooters and par shooters.

Robert Burton turned in the hole-in-one with an ace on hole No. 26 while using a low five-iron shot on the 165-yard hole. We heard rumors that Ken Burgess has a hole-in-one at Green Tree Country Club also.

Dan Robbins scored an eagle 2 on the 380-yard, par 4, hole No. 27 at Hogan, using a driver and nine-iron. His playing partners were Graham Day, Tim Hanley, Tom Standley and Marcia Griffin.

Clint Benefield, turning from bowler to golfer for the summer, scored an eagle 2 on the 365-yard, par 4, No. 7 hole. Clint hit a back up nine-iron shot into the hole for his eagle. He was playing with R.L. Wheeler, Paige Seth and yours truly.

Shooting or bettering one's age has got to be a major goal for senior golfers. Max Milam has stated he thinks he can accomplish that goal this year at either Ranchland Hills Country Club or Hogan Park. Max served notice of his intentions this past week at RHCC, scoring even par 36-35—71, just three strokes short of his goal. Paying for the even par round were playing partners Jimm Gaines, Harold Clarke, Holly Byrd, Charlie Gaines and Val Collier. Keep up the good work Max.

Ben Bland, playing at Hogan Park this past Wednesday, scored four strokes under his age with a 32-35—67. This was also four strokes under par for course No. 1, which is the course Bland played. Ben had five birdies and one bogey during his round. He was playing with Geroge Vannaman, another age shooter, and J.M. Cox. Course No. 1 consists of holes one through 18.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram's Men's City Championships entry forms are available at the Hogan golf shop. The tournament is scheduled for Aug. 1-2.

Duran working on comeback trail

ORWELL, Ohio (AP) — Roberto Duran wipes his brow after a workout in the barn at Don King's Boxing Camp these days. After all, every bead of perspiration means he's closer to his target.

Set to fight Nino Gonzalez in Cleveland on Aug. 9, Duran still remembers his stomach cramps eight months ago in New Orleans during a title bout with Sugar Ray Leonard. Gonzalez, he figures, is just a step toward a comeback.

"ESTOY BIEN (I'm all right)," Duran said as he stepped down from King's barnhouse ring. He had fought two sparring partners for six rounds, but for long seconds at a time didn't throw a punch.

Duran arrived here Monday and went to work getting down to the 155-pound junior middleweight limit for his fight against Gonzalez, a 21-year-old Bayonne, New Jersey, fighter with 24 wins and one loss in a brief professional career.

DURAN, WITH 72 wins and two losses in a 14-year career, didn't hesitate to talk about the controversial Leonard fight. Illness, he said, forced him to retire in the eighth round of the multimillion-dollar welterweight title bout.

"If a jockey falls off his horse and breaks his arm, he's out for several months. Then he's back in the saddle," the Panamanian told a reporter in Spanish. "That's the same with Duran."

Duran says he weighs about 160 pounds. But Luis admits that the fighter weighs about five pounds more.

"I'll have to fight hard," Duran said of the Gonzalez match, scheduled for Cleveland's Public Hall. "But I'll win."

DURAN DEFEATED Leonard in Montreal 13 months ago to retain his WBC welterweight title. Five months later, he lost it in the New Orleans match with Leonard, and some analysts doubted he would fight again.

Duran says, however, that he'll fight Leonard. His backers agree.

Carl King, head of the boxing management firm Monarch Fighting and son of fight promoter Don King, said criticism of Duran's decision to quit in New Orleans is "unjustified."

Rod Curl maintains lead in Quad Cities Open

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Rod Curl matched the lowest 36-hole total on the PGA Tour this season, shooting a second straight 5-under-par 65 Friday for the second-round lead in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open.

CURL, THE first-round leader and a winner just once in 13 seasons, has a midway total of 130, 10 under par at the Oakwood Country Club. He held a 3-shot lead over Victor Regalado, the 1978 Quad Cities Open champion, and David Barr, a non-winner from Canada.

It was also only 1 shot off the midway tournament record of 129 Scott Hoch established in winning the 1980 Quad Cities title.

STILL, CURL was not completely satisfied with such a blistering start on this cozy, short 6,514-yard layout.

"That 130 is just about the nicest figure you can have here," said Curl, the winner of the 1974 Colonial. "But I was thinking 129. It's a magic number. Anything I do, I want to shoot 1 shot better."

Curl fought his errant driver successfully much of the partly sunny, pleasant day. He pieced together four birdies in one 5-hole stretch on the back side.

FOR THE second straight day, Curl came up with one nine of 4-under-par 31 to protect his lead against this mediocre field. Practically all of the sport's big names are either vacationing or playing in the British Open this week.

Regalado, 33, playing in the same threesome with Curl, posted a 6-under-par 64. So did Barr, 29, the winner of only $8,500 this year.

In third, all at 6-under 134, were Curtis Strange, the sport's current 10th leading money-winner; Mark McCumber, former tennis pro Frank Conner, Clarence Rose and David Eger. McCumber also shot 64, Strange 65 while Conner, Rose and Eger took 67s.

REGALADO, IN the midst of revamping his game, started with a bogey, but then ripped off birdies on four of the next six holes to sweep into contention.

Barr, whose best 1981 finish was a 31st place tie at Milwaukee last week, opened with a flourish. He birdied his first two holes and then wound up with four birds in the last five holes.

HOCK'S HOPES of matching PGA Commissioner Deane Beman as the only back-to-back winners of to Quad Cities Open dimed when he shot 69 and fell 7 shots back at 137.

Defending champion in finals

HOUSTON (AP) — Defending champion Jodie Mudd, Louisville, Ky., fought off fatigue brought on by muggy Texas heat to defeat David Anthony and Danny Elkins Friday to gain the finals of the 56th U.S. Amateur Public Links Championships.

Mudd, bidding to become the first back to back tournament winner since R.H. Sikes in 1961-62, defeated Anthony, Nashville, Tenn. 3 and 1 in a quarterfinal match and then beat Elkins 5 and 3 in the semifinals.

Mudd's opponent in Saturday's 36-hole finals will be University of Houston golfer Billy Tuten, who defeated Mark Seki, Kahului, Hawaii 6 and 4 and Andy soley, Clearlake, Ind. 2 up.

Mudd was playing six under par golf when the match ended on the 15th hole. Mudd ended the match with an eagle, hitting the green two feet from the hole.

Tuten, 19, had Soley down by three strokes after eight holes but also struggled on the hot and humid Bear Creak Golf World Masters course. Tuten finally took the match on the final hole when Soley's tee shot went into a water hazard and he conceded.

In other quarterfinals matches Soley defeated Mike Miles, Cypress, Calif 1-up and Elkins defeated Carl Poche, Metairie, La. 2 and 1.

Mudd, who had to charge from behind to win his two mtches on Thursday, took a 5-shot lead after 10 holes in his quarterfinals match against Anthony.

Anthony, 26, who defeated 1979 champion Dennis Walsh on Friday, rallied with birdies on Nos. 14 and 16 to cut Mudd's margin to 2 shots but the Nashville city champion squandered chances with two more bogies.

Mudd won it on the 185-yard No. 17 hole, hitting an iron within two feet of the hole and sinking it for a birdie.

Miles, who earlier eliminated medalist Roy Biancalana, and Soley both were one under par going into the final hole of the match. Miles' tee shot was off to the right and his second shot went into a water hazard in front of the green before he conceded to Soley.

Sixteen teams vie for state berths

Sixteen teams from Midland and Odessa will gather at Hogan Park today for the beginning of the ASA District 26 Qualifying Men's Slow Pitch tournament.

The top four teams will qualify for the Class A State Tournament in Midland Aug. 7-9 while the other 12 teams will qualify for the Class B State Tournament in Abilene Aug. 21-23.

The host for the State Tournament in Midland will be Coors and Alcor.

Going direct to the Men's Open State Slow Pitch tournament in Waco Aug. 7-9 are the Midland teams of Bill Williams Tire Co. and Golden Life Spa. The Odessa team of Mitchell Enterprise will also be in that tournament.

Midland teams entered in this weekend's District 26 tournament are Gardendale A-1, Blakely, Stanley Exxon, HNG Oil, Mida Crude, Lupe's Day Care, Stadium Sports, Midland Electric Motor, Cowboys, Dominquez, Davis and Hicks and the Misfits.

Odessa teams include Chickaree, Country Burger, Cowan Equipment and the Gladiators.

Coe takes easy win

GATESHEAD, England (AP) — It was practically a stroll for Sebastian Coe.

"I was going fairly easily," said the British runner after winning the 800 meters Friday in the opening day of competition of a two-day international track and field meet between Britain and the Soviet Union.

Running despite discomfort caused by a large foot blister, Coe breezed to victory in 1 minute, 47.47 seconds, nearly six seconds off his own world record of 1:41.72.

Coe took the lead at the start and paced himself liesurely until the final 100 meters. Then he finally decided to extend himself with a big finishing kick that easily took him away from teammate Gary Cook, who was second in 1:48.07.

Alexander Litvinov of the Soviet Union was third in 1:48.94 and teammate Vladimor Malozemlin fourth in 1:49.12.

Steve Scutt won the 400 meters in 46.69, but it was Britain's women who had the best results. Yvette Wray won the women's 400-meter hurdles in 57.83, while Bev Goddard and Wendy Hoyte clinched a one-two in the women's 100 meters. Goddard clocked 11.34 while Hoyte clocked 11.44.

The victories, plus Meg Ritchie's surprise triumph in the discus, gave Britain's women a 45-39 lead going into today's events. Britain's men trailed 56-48.

SNAPPER MOWERS CAN REMOVE AND BAG THE THATCH THAT STRANGLES YOUR LAWN... IN ONE EASY OPERATION.
The optional Thatcherizer quickly attaches to SNAPPER riding mowers and self-propelled walk mowers. The spring-loaded tines loosen the tightly interwoven dead plant material which prevents your lawn from getting the air, food and water necessary for healthy growth. When used with a rear-mounted grass catcher or Bag-N-Wagon, thatch is bagged as it is removed and tedious raking is eliminated. It's another exclusive from SNAPPER.
SNAPPER mowers are worth more because they do more and their price is competitive with other quality mowers.
Shown with optional 6 bu. catcher.

Prize money rears its ugly head

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A hearing will be held Aug. 22 at Rosemont, Ill., by officials of The Athletics Congress on charges that 11 amateur athletes, including four-time Boston Marathon winner Bill Rodgers, competed for prize money in an unsanctioned professional race last month at Portland, Ore.

The National Athletics Board of Review, composed of officials of the Indianapolis-based TAC, will conduct the hearing. The 11 athletes have been asked to attend and have been given until Aug.12 to respond.

Spokesman Pete Cava said Friday that Rodgers, the fourth-place finisher in the Cascade Run-Off June 28, did not accept prize money. Rodgers is from Stoneham, Mass.

Two others, Michael Layman of Seattle and Jan Oehm of Walnut Creek, Calif., also did not accept prize money, Cava said.

The 11 athletes, who were among the top finishers, are charged with violating the bylaws of the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

The race was the first of a professional road-running circuit arranged by the Association of Road Racing Athletes, with $10,000 going to the top finishers in the men's and women's divisions, according to TA-Coffi-cials.

Other athletes charged with rules violations are Patti Catalano of West Roxbury, Mass; Cindy Dalrymple of Honolulu; Benji Durden of Stone Mountain, Ga.; John Glidewell of Hanover, Pa.; Herb Lindsay of Boulder, Colo.; Greg Meyer of Hollis-ton, Mass.; Ric Rojas of Boulder, and Charley Vigil of Torreon, N.M.

The possible penalties include censure, suspension and probation.

"We don't have a complete list of the entrants for the Cascade Run-Off," said TAC Executive Director Ollan Cassell. "From the results we've been able to obtain, these are the only athletes among the top 15 men and top 10 women who are U.S. citizens and TAC members."

The IAAF has directed TAC officials to inform overseas federations so they can take similar action, Cava said.

Affordability problem facing surface effect ship

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Prospects for a near-term revival of the Navy's San Diego-based surface effect ship program do not appear bright, top U.S. naval leaders now make plain.

During separate interviews in their Pentagon offices, Navy Secretary John F. Lehman, Jr., and Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations, said it was "an affordability" problem and more.

The Navy did not request any funds for the SES in the fiscal 1982 budget now working its way through Congress. But with a strong push from Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Coronado, the House Armed Services Committee voted to authorize $46 million to complete development of a 3,000-ton prototype SES.

Prime contractor for the 3,000-ton program was Rhor Marine, Inc., of Chula Vista, Calif. Bbefore President Carter canceled it last year, RMI, Inc., a National City, Calif. firm, purchased the SES assets of Rohr and earlier this year was told by the Navy it could use about $2 million of funds left over from the Rohr program to design a new, less-expensive 1,000 to 1,500-ton SES.

Lehman and Hayward are not as sanguine about the 3,000-ton project as the House committee and Hunter apparently are.

"We want to keep pursuing the technology, but we do not think it is ready for building a 3,000-ton transport," the secretary said. "I am not sure yet that the technology is mature enough to support an operational requirement.

"The extra speed you get is nice to have in certain applications, but it's awfully expensive and it's a case of affordability."

The SES is a revolutionary craft that flies over the water on a cushion of air at speeds up to 100 miles per hour.

The Navy purchased the Bell-Halter 110-foot catamaran-type SES a couple months ago for about $4 million and turned it over to the Coast Guard for evaluation. Currently, the craft is based in Galveston, where it is being used for patrol and search and rescue duties in the Gulf of Mexico.

Hayward said that when the Coast Guard finishes with it later this year, the Navy intends to "stretch" the craft by 50 feet by installation of a new mid-section.

"We are going to get it out in the open ocean where we really see what it can do," he said. "If we find that the technology will endure in open ocean sea conditions, then we want to upscale it to about 1,000 tons and then run a test on that."

Zimbabwe paper calls for boycott

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Zimbabwe's leading daily newspaper, the Herald, is urging African countries to boycott the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles if New Zealand is allowed to take part.

An editorial in today's editions of the pro-government newspaper said the boycott would be held because New Zealand has allowed a South African rugby team tour.

The Springboks, South Africa's national rugby team, departed for New Zealand on Wednesday night for a 16-match tour opening July 22. African states have mounted an intensive campaign against sports links with South Africa to protest the white-minority government's race segregation policies.

"These decisions need to be taken now rather than later to show both New Zealand and the United States that they are not dealing with a bunch of lily-livered nations," the editorial said.

South African Prime minister Robert Mugabe wrote to New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon last month warning that the Springbok tour would harm New Zealand. Muldoon replied that his government would reluctantly comply with a trade embargo against South Africa but could not interfere with the rugby tour.

"Now there is an added element of alarm: the Springboks will tour the United States after their games in New Zealand," the Herald said of three matches planned in the United States in September.

"There is no stopping the tour now. So those who fervently believe that New Zealand should be punished for allowing it to go ahead need have no more qualms about taking immediate action."

Lasser returns to TV

By GUS STEVENS
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Louise Lasser is "so" New York.

She's Jewish, she has the accent, she has that deliberate putting-up-with-the-pitfalls-of-life way about her and she says she still loves the city where she was born.

Lasser, a comedic and dramatic actress, has had her share of life's problems, even though her career has been a success -- a success in that she has worked regularly, rewardingly and she has become famous.

She hasn't always been able to handle her career and the pressures of her world well, but she's getting another opportunity.

Lasser, an appealing and toothy blonde, has been inserted into the cast of "Living It Up." That's the ABC situation comedy about the covey of restaurant waitresses and their struggles to cope with life.

LASSER WILL BECOME the show's star. It had been a show with no star and too many characters, so they dropped two people.

"Basically, we thought the characters overlapped," producer Tony Thomas said. "The show is going to move out of the restaurant more, into the personal lives of the girls. Louise will add to the show. She's a fine comedienne."

The pilot was aired here for critics and Lasser is good. She remains the vulnerable, winsome thing she was in "Mary Hartman, Hary Hartman."

That was the after-dark soap that made Lasser a star within days of its debut in 1975. It also was the show that undid her.

"Louise Lasser is Mary Hartman," someone observed here, and it seems to be true. The much-heralded show was a hit from the beginning and immediately it seized Lasser's heart and soul. She became a slave to the show.

"I did 365 episodes of 'Mary Hartman' in a year and a half," she said. "I starred in every one of them. There never was a day off.

"THERE'S NO QUESTION I was emotionally involved. I was hurt too much. I was frail.

"I wasn't well and I thought I had anorexia, so I would take a few days off and go down to Scripps. But when I got back I'd have to work extra to make up for the missed time. I didn'thave the time to get better with that schedule."

In 1966 Lasser married Woody Allen and she later appeared in several of his films, including "What's New Pussycat?" "Take the Money and Run," "Bananas," "Everything You Wanted to Know About Sex" and "Stardust Memories."

Lasser says she still likes Allen and she doesn't mind talking about him.

"What's he really like? He seemed to me like a regular person. I'll tell you a little story to show you what I mean. One night I couldn't sleep and I looked at him sleeping beside me. I thought, 'He's a famous humorist, and I'm bored.' So I woke him up.

"I shook him and said, 'Hey, Wood, I can't sleep and I'm bored. You're famous for being funny, so say something funny.' He just groaned at me and went back to sleep. See? A regular person."

World hunger fund will be started in Chapin's memory

NEW YORK (AP) — A fund to fight world hunger will be established in memory of Harry Chapin, the popular balladeer who died in a fiery car crash, his managers said Friday.

Meanwhile, officials said Chapin was driving illegally when he was killed Thursday. Police said Chapin had a long record of traffic violations, and Lars Allanson of the state Department of Motor Vehicles in Albany said his license had been revoked for six months last March.

Bob Hinkle, vice president of the Kragen & Co. management firm, asked Chapin's friends and fans "to hold on to the money they would spend on flowers and later donate it to the fund, which we promise will work toward solving the problems that Harry cared so deeply about."

Chapin, who won fame as the singer and songwriter of such hits as "Taxi" and "Cat's in the Cradle," raised millions of dollars for charity in benefit concerts. He served on President Carter's Commission on Hunger and was a founder of the World Hunger Year project.

"That's one dream that won't die with Harry," Hinkl said.

Chapin was driving from his Huntington, N.Y., home to Manhattan when the crash occurred near Jericho. Witnesses said Chapin changed lanes twice and pulled in front of a tractor-trailer truck on the Long Island Expressway. The truck, unable to slow down, crashed into the rear of Chapin's 1975 Volkswagen, which erupted into flames.

An autopsy showed Chapin died when his backbone fractured and severed his aorta, the main artery carrying blood from from the heart.

The driver of the truck, who cut Chapin from his seatbelt and pulled him from the burning car, was not charged.

Chapin had been convicted 15 times for traffic violations since 1973, police said. They said his license had been revoked once before and suspended four times.

Museum featuring Texas artists

SNYDER — Contemporary works by 10 West Texas artists will be the featured event at the Diamond M Museum, 909 E. 25th St., through July 23. Two of the artists, Sara Gilstrap and Warren Taylor, are from Midland.

The works of artists from Abilene, Anson, Snyder, Odessa and Lubbock also are being featured. Works range from representational to non-objective painting; fibers to ceramic and resin sculpture; and jewelry and enamels to mixed-media drawings.

Exhibiting artists include Brent Green, Ted Rose and Art Williams, Abilene; John Crump of Anson; Mike Thornton of Snyder; Steve Stephen of Lubbock; and Pam Price and Del Hickmott, both of Odessa.

The museum is open free of charge from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

'Nutcracker' auditions to be held

ODESSA — Auditions for Odessa's Permian Ballet Theatre's Christmas ballet, "The Nutcracker," will be held Aug. 7 through 9 at the Odessa Dance Academy.

Those interested in auditioning may contact Odessa Dance Academy, Maurene Parker School of Dance or Barbara Craig's School of Dance. All are in Odessa.

Oil landscape workshop offered

RUIDOSO, N.M. — Charles Movalli will conduct a 10-day oil landscape workshop beginning Monday at Carrizo Lodge, Ruidoso, N.M.

An artist and writer, this is Movalli's first trip to the Southwest. His workshop will include on-location demonstrations, discussing composition, simplification, values and color. Students will be encouraged to choose their own themes and palettes and to develop their own style.

Movalli has contributed over 25 articles to American Artist Magazine, is listed in "Who's Who in American Art," and has edited many books on art, including "The Art of Landscape Painting" with Paul Strisik, "Color in Outdoor Painting" and "How to Paint Successful Seascapes" with Roger Curtis, and "Gruppe on Painting and Brushwork" with Emile Gruppe.

Movalli has a doctorate from the University of Connecticut and belongs to the North Shore Arts Association, Hudson Valley Art Association, Rockport Art Association, Academic Artists and the Guild of Boston Artists.

Portrait painter Jan De Ruth will conduct a workshop on portrait painting and painting nudes Aug. 17 through 27, which includes live models and De Ruth demonstrating the Old Masters' techniques of underpainting, glazing and scrubling.

A pastel painting workshop will be als be conducted Aug. 17-27. This one will be presented by Albert Handell, the author of "Oil Painting Workshop." His new book, "Pastel Painting Workshop," is scheduled for a November release.

Santa Fe performing 'Daphne'

SANTA FE, N.M. — Richard Strauss' rarely-performed one-act opera "Daphne," sung in German, will open in a new production Saturday at The Santa Fe Opera. Subsequent performances are scheduled for Wednesday, July 31 and Aug. 8, 12 and 21.

"Daphne" received its North American stage premiere in 1964 at Santa Fe.

The Santa Fe's general director, John Crosby, is the conductor and Colin Graham the director. Sets and costumes were designed by John Conklin, with Craig Miller providing the lighting design.

Tickets for "Daphne" may be purchased through the opera's box office, the Hilton Inn in Santa Fe or the Broadway Department Store in Albuquerque. All box offices are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Phone orders are accepted using VISTA or MASTERCARD only. The number is 1-505-982-3855.

For further information on this or any of the season's operas, write The Santa Fe Opera, P.O. Box 2408, Santa Fe, N.M., 87501.

Wambaugh's latest book spun by rage

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Six years have passed since Joseph Wambaugh pulled the pin, which is the cop's way of saying that after 14 years he resigned from the Los Angeles Police Department. But a part of him remains on the force.

"I still dream that I'm still a cop," Joe Wambaugh was saying, this former police detective whose best-selling books about policemen have sold in the millions. "Literally, in my dreams, I see myself as a cop. I can't seem to get over it."

An ex-Marine who once worked in the steel mills, Joseph A. Wambaugh Jr., himself the son of a policeman, joined the force originally, he says, simply because he needed a job. In his off-hours, over a 12-year span, he earned a bachelor's and then a master's degree at Los Angeles City College in English lit -- "a tribute only to my endurance," he likes to say.

And, beginning in 1969, he wrote.

"I'd come back from a case with my hands sweating," Joe says. "I figured if I wrote it right, I could make other people's hands sweat, too."

A YEAR LATER, he hit it big with "The New Centurions," his first novel, which brought him money and fame, and some of the prisoners he put behind bars even asked for his autograph.

He wrote more books, all resounding best-sellers and critically acclaimed as well, and he went into television with "Police Story" and "The Blue Knight," and his novels were spun into movies. Now he has a new book in the stalls -- it's a novel called "The Glitter Dome," a tough, raw, wondrously intricate, robustly funny tale of Los Angeles cops and what Wambaugh terms, with the grim distaste of a self-styled Victorian, "the amoral world of Hollywood."

It is vintage Wambaugh -- no, it is more than that, it is Wambaugh grown, his command more absolute, his resonance deeper, his vision more intense, his insights more profound, his wild yawps of humor more bizarre. It is one damned fine book.

Now Wambaugh sipped his white wine and dipped into the steak tartare at a hotel and talked of "The Glitter Dome" and its strange genesis. The book came directly out of his miserable experience with "The Black Marble," the movie he wrote from his novel.

THE FILM HAD virtually no distribution. Joe and his fellow investors, many of them cop friends, lost a bundle. Joe is suing the studio for $10 million.

"I thought I was a tough guy," says Wambaugh with a rueful shake of the head, "but with these Hollywood people I was a guppy in a tank of sharks."

Wambaugh poured his anger into the book, writing at white heat.

"I started out with one thought -- 'The head of a major Hollywood studio is murdered,' because that is exactly what I wanted to do. I exorcized that demon by writing about it. I didn't know myself who murdered the guy until the last 20 pages -- I let the characters take over the action.

"I was a crazy, loony madman when I was writing the book," Joe admits. "I may have gone bonkers. I was on the edge. My eyes were two buckets of blood. My wife went off on a vacation. The kids were at school. And I'm at home beating the hell out of the typewriter. I was going whacko banging the hell out of an electric typewriter, which is an odd thing to do to an electric. I literally wore that Smith-Corona out and gave it to the Goodwill, an electric typewriter that had been pounded to death.

"I wrote the book -- the first draft -- in six weeks, the fastest, most urgent writing of my life.

"MY WIFE CAME back and said, 'What's your book about?' I said, 'I don't know.' And I didn't. It was all a blur of emotion. And at the end, I was ready for the canvas blazer with the wrap-around arms.

"I started writing full of grief, humiliation and guilt over the 'Black Marble' movie experience -- guilt because the policemen who invested in the project with me were hurt by the creative bookkeeping I'm suing about.

"I was writing in savage, darkly comedic terms, with satire and caricature, which are sometimes the only way to deal with horror and with hurtful ideas. A suicide, for example. I was raised a Catholic, an altar boy, the whole thing. I was taught the only unforgiveable sin is suicide. This I don't take lightly but in the book I can deal with the theme of suicide only if the colors are bizarre and comedic."

With the writing of "The Glitter Dome" long completed and the homicidal impulses exorcized, Wambaugh is in great shape. He is down to 150 pounds stretched tight across his 5-foot-10-inch frame. Every day, he runs two miles in under 15 minutes and that, he says with pride, "isn't bad for a 44-year-old writer."

"WHY DO YOU run?" Joe is asked.

"Why run? It's better than boozing."

When Joe was boozing, a few years ago, he thought about opening up a restaurant-bar in nearby Pasadena. He figured he might call it Joseph Wambaugh's Best Cellar.

"What happened to that idea?"

"I outgrew it," Wambaugh said, grinning.

Compensation not real issue in strike

By MIKE WALDNER
Copley News Service

The true essence of the baseball strike was captured in the dugout the other night by a perceptive gentleman who has strong ties with each side.

This baseball man has demonstrated over the years the ability to sit and think his way through issues. He rubbed his chin and said, "One side wants a victory. The other side has to have a victory."

Translation: The owners want a victory. The players have to have a victory.

THIS, NOT compensation, is the real issue of the strike.

The owners have decided enough is too much. They resent strides made in recent years by the athletes. They resent free agency. They resent the money players earn, and, perhaps most of all, they resent the strength security gives the players.

But rather than zero in on the real issue, each side has shown a preference for dealing in personalities.

The owners claim Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players' Association, who is about to retire, has an overriding need to go out with a big victory.

The players attack Ray Grebey, the chief negotiator for the owners. They say he has misled the owners. They say he thinks he is commissioner of baseball.

All this is just part of a little charade. Each side wants to be mad at something. At the same time, each side is not mad at individuals on the other side.

Look at it this way. Peter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, isn't mad at Jerry Reuss, his fine pitcher who happens to be the player representative from the Dodgers. And Don Baylor, the player rep of the Angels, isn't mad at Gene Autry, the generous owner of the Angels who happens to be one of the hawks among the owners.

SO IT is that Miller and Grebey, the agents of the players and owners, have become the arch villains.

The owners are confident of support from the fans. This confidence comes from the ability to get the public to look at this as a strike of $800,000-per-year prima donnas.

But what is the average salary in baseball today? Some say $160,000. This means that for every $800,000 player, for every $400,000 player, there are many under $100,000 to balance the books.

Actually, when you hear the front office people grumble, it is not so much about the salaries going to the stars, to Fred Lynn, Rod Carew and Dusty Baker, as much as it is about what other players earn.

Veteran baseball people remember when a utility infielder earned perhaps $8,500 a season — top players then were paid $85,000 to $100,000. If a utility player now draws $85,000, which seems a crime to some people, the ratio is about the same.

BASEBALL TRADITION has it that owners have complete control of the players. Because of some unique laws of the land, which only recently have the courts seen fit to enforce in regard to baseball, owners of today do not have the control enjoyed by owners of old.

In a bold move to shift the scale of justice, the owners forced this strike.

Some observers have identified the move as blatant, because first the owners spent from $1.5 million for $50 million in strike insurance. They also diverted 2 percent of their earnings into a special fund to be saved for a sunny day when there was no baseball.

Only then did they create an issue, in this case free-agent compensation, over which they knew the player had to strike.

What the owners say they want is compensation in the form of a proven professional rather than an unproven amateur (a high school or college player) for a player who becomes a free agent and moves to another team.

The players cannot back down. The players understand the real issue is the strength of their union. The players understand that intimidation is like blackmail. The victim doesn't get off paying once. If the owners can intimidate the players this year, the same owners will be right back at the throats of the same players next year.

BUT MOST of all, the players understand a defeat now would only be the first step by the owners toward breaking their association.

Muhammad puts light heavyweight title on line

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, who defends his World Boxing Association light heavyweight title against Michael Spinks tonight, says he is considering campaigning in the heavyweight division and the bout may be his last in the 175-pound class.

DESPITE TALK about a possible fight to unify the title with World Boxing Council light heavyweight champion Matthew Saad Muhammad, the 29-year-old WBA champion said a move to the heavyweights was possible. He last fought as a heavyweight and lost a 10-round decision to Renaldo Snips at Atlantic City, N.J. in May.

"This may be my last defense," Mustafa Muhammad said. "It all depends on how I feel ... Maybe I'll just give (the title) up."

While admitting there was "always a chance" of a fight to unify the title or a move to the heavier division, Muhammad said he also was "looking ahead to bigger and better things outside boxing" and might retire from the ring.

"BOXING'S BEEN good to me, but there's other things to do besides knock guys out," said Muhammad, adding that he had a production company and was involved in filmmaking.

Muhammad, with a 37-5-1 record with 32 knockouts, won the title March 31, 1980 with an 11th-round knockout over Marvin Johnson at Knoxville, Tenn. He knocked out Jerry Martin in the 10th round at McAfee, N.J. four months later in his first defense and easily won his second defense when Rudi Koopmans failed to answer the bell for the fourth round at Los Angeles last November.

The fight, first to be staged by the Imperial Palace on the Strip, will be televised by ABC.

SPINKS, THE top-ranked contender by both the WBA and WBC, has a 16-0 record with 11 knockouts and is the favorite.

Nevertheless, "I'm predicting a knockout," Muhammad said.
