Ten Lives Are Lost In Two Eastern Fires

BROOKLYN HOTEL FIRE FATAL FOR SEVEN OF TOTAL

THREE DIE IN HOUSE IN BALTIMORE; CORSICANA ESCAPES NARROW

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, May 31.—A mother and four of her seven children, a 65-year old man and an aged widow met death early today in a fire which destroyed the old Taft hotel in the Carnegie-Brownville section of Brooklyn.

The fire started in a paint shop at the rear of the hotel and spread to the 40-year old wooden structure. Trolley car crews, rushing to the aid of the hotel guests saw Thomas Hughes, in his night clothing, with one of his twin boys in his arms. He threw the child to the street, where, later, the other twin was found. After an unsuccessful attempt to reach his wife and other children, Hughes jumped from a second story window.

An hour after the fire was discovered flames were still throwing streams of water on the blazing building and no trace had been found of Mrs. Hughes and her four children, or of Joseph F. Nolan, 65, or a Mrs. Smith, aged widow of a policeman, all of whom had been in the building.

The Navarro hotel, modern brick structure of five stories, adjoining the burning building, had slight fire damage on the west side. Mrs. W. J. Green, wife of the owner of the flats, lost jewels valued at $300 and one hundred dollars in cash. Only a few guests were able to save any of their clothing. MUSKIEGON, Mich., May 31.—(AP)—Amos K. The confession just as the three beacons and the long funeral procession of the three bomb victims moved away from the Elks temple here on the 18-mile journey to Oakhurst cemetery at White Hall.

"I couldn't stand to have Kruback running the township," was all Bartlett coughed in explanation. Details of the confession have been withheld at Bartlett's request. He said he did not want to upset his parents and friends by the confession until after Memorial Day.

Officers intimated that "sensational developments" would follow revelation of the text of the Bartlett confession.

Monkey Business Case DAYTON TRIAL REHEARD Before Supreme Court

(By the Associated Press)
NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 31.—Claims that the Tennessee law under which John T. Scopes was convicted of teaching the theory of evolution is unconstitutional and is unconstitutional were made before the state supreme court here today, when Scopes' appeal came before the court.

Oral argument against the conviction was opened by John T. Neal, of counsel for the young teacher, who was convicted and fined $100 at Dayton, Tenn. He attacked the wording of the law on technical grounds and expressed the opinion that it violates the state constitution and the fourteenth amendment to the federal constitution.

Charles Strong of New York counsel for the Unitarian laymen's league, which intervened as amicus curiae, also argued against the law and was followed by Arthur Garfield Hays of New York, counsel for the American liberties union. A written argument for the law, prepared by William Jennings Bryan, Jr., whose father took a leading part in the prosecution, was filed with the court.

The Bryan argument declared the law is "the deliberate thoughtful enactment of a sovereign people, which was designed to protect their children in their own public schools in their belief in the divine origin of man."

Mr. Strong declared there are sincere Christians who do not believe that the teaching of the theory of evolution weakens faith in God and declared that the Unitarian laymen's league considers the law un-American and unconstitutional. Mr. Hays said the law abridges the right of citizens and declared that "the theory of our constitution is that in the competition of ideas the truth will prevail."

Shanklin Will Be Freed By Bandits Today, Is Thought

LAREDO, Tex., May 31.—(AP)—Word was awaited today of the expected release by Mexican bandits of John W. Shanklin of Canyon, held for ransom in the state of Vera Cruz. Two other Texans, Conrad Braden, of Laredo and Jules C. Gallagher, captured by outlaws in the state of Durango, were released by Mexican federal troops Saturday after a fight in which two bandits were killed, one wounded and others captured.

Latest reports from the superintendent of El Portero sugar plantation in Vera Cruz indicated Shanklin was unharmed, though still in the hands of bandits who were demanding 20,000 pesos for his release.

News of the release of Gallagher and Braden came in American consular advices, which stated troops surrounded the bandit camp Saturday. The outlaws offered stiff resistance, but were finally overcome. The two Americans had been held for 6,000 pesos ransom.

No Trace of Smith

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., May 31.—(AP)—No trace had been found this morning of Charles F. Smith, Corpus Christi traveling salesman, who is believed to have drowned Saturday night while attempting to swim the Rio Grande from Mexico to the American side. A search is being made along the river for the body.

Mexican officers this morning deny that any shots were fired at the man. Reports yesterday were that he had been fired on and probably killed.

Smith and two friends made the attempt to swim the river after an argument with a taxi driver over the amount of his bill. One of the party reached the American side safely and the third of the party was caught on the Mexican side of the stream and held until Sunday morning.

GOVERNOR TELLS STATE SHE WILL CALL ONE LATER

SEPTEMBER OR OCTOBER SOON ENOUGH, SAYS "MA" FERGUSON

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, May 31.—Governor Ferguson will not call a special session of the legislature to validate the district road bonds until September or October, she wrote J. A. Kemp, chairman of the state wide committee for bond validation, at Wichita Falls today.

"I believe you will quite agree after having received the facts that it would be impracticable at this time to convene the legislature in special session for the reason that the summer time primary elections are soon at hand and it would require more than 30 days and probably sixty days to pass the special acts presented you under even a suspension of the rules."

Governor Writes Opinion

"I have sought the advice of able attorneys upon the bills presented and I have been advised that it is not quite clear that these bills will meet the objections raised by the supreme court of the United States in the Archer county case. I am having the matter further considered with a view of doing everything that can be done to remove any embarrassment that may arise from the decision of the court."

"I believe you will agree with me that the importance of this legislation makes it imperative that it be considered at a time when the political atmosphere is not surcharged with partisan discussion."

May Call It Later

"Therefore, I have decided that it will not be best to convene the legislature in special session at this time, but I will defer the matter until some time in September or the first part of October, and in the meantime I will have such investigation made as to the sufficiency of the bills presented by you and if there seems to be no intervening legal objections I shall be glad to call the legislature in special session to consider this matter and some other special matters, including the apportionment for the common schools."

"I want to thank you and the members of the committee who have had this matter in hand for your patriotic interest in this important matter, and I assure you that it will be my purpose to cooperate in every way possible to maintain the financial honor of the state in all things."

The office probably will be running in regular routine by Tuesday morning except for the added congestion that has been caused by the building collapse. Assistant Postmaster Brown said Monday afternoon. Practically no damage was done to mail or fixtures, a check-up of the situation revealed.

Tennessee Preacher Opens Revival Here

Evangelist H. W. Wrye of Tennessee, opened a series of Gospel meetings at the Church of Christ Sunday with two services at which excellent congregations were in attendance. In addition to members of the church, there were many visitors from other churches in the city and county. The meeting is to continue two weeks with two services daily, one in the morning at 10 o'clock and the other at 8:15 o'clock in the evening. The evangelist is hoping to have another service at 12 o'clock each day, especially for the business men of the community, although definite plans have not been made for this service. There will be children's services in the afternoons during the meeting. Taking his text from Exodus, Reverend Wrye used the story of the Passover and the flight of the Egyptians as a type of Christ's life. In the afternoon he talked on the personal work of Christ and said that His healing of the blind and sick was of great value but that there is a greater work for His disciples in bringing people to Christ. His subject in the evening was "Is the Bible the Word of God?"

Eyes Are Filled With Reverence As Capital

BUSINESS HALTED IN WASHINGTON THROUGH DAY

Turns Today Toward Arlington's War Heroes

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, May 31.—Eyes filled with reverence turned toward Arlington national cemetery today in homage to those who died in the Civil war. Here was the center of the nation's Memorial day tribute at the flower strewn graves, with President Coolidge the chief spokesman for the living and many other high officials and members of congress playing similar roles at local ceremonies in various parts of the country. In addition to the president, the list of speakers at the Arlington ceremony, set to begin at 1:30 p. m., included Senator Willis of Ohio and Dr. Charles V. Pettes, commander of the department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic, sponsor of the exercises. The marine band was assigned to duty of providing the music and arrangements were made to broadcast the entire program. All absent the most urgent government business was ordered stopped for the occasion, and congress remained in recess. A number of members took part in decoration ceremonies and memorial services yesterday, in addition to their engagements to speak today. Many patriotic organizations arranged programs separate from the principal ceremony at Arlington, some centering at the tomb of the Unknown soldier and others in the various cemeteries in and near Washington. The women's relief corps, auxiliary of the Grand Army of the Republic, emphasized particularly its tribute to the unknown dead of the Civil war. The corps was joined by the Daughters of Veterans and the ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Sylph, yacht of the secretary of the navy, also was pined at the disposal of the Admiral Robert E. Peary post No. 47, Veterans of Foreign Wars for their annual pilgrimage down the Potomac to scatter flowers on the water in memory of the navy's dead. Spanish war veterans conducted a similar service yesterday from the decks of the U. S. S. Porpoise, which proceeded as far as Mount Vernon. Peculiarly fitting too, was the postponement until today of the visit of Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden and Princess Louise, to the tomb of the Unknown soldier, since their trip to Washington had as its principal state purpose the participation Saturday of the Swedish heir-apparent in the dedication of the memorial to John Ericsson, whose achievement in designing the Monitor bulked large in the history of the Civil war.

Hitting in Majors Gets Heavier As Sluggers Settle Into Stride; Team Hitting Is Slowly On Upgrade

CHICAGO, May 31. (AP)—The hitting is slowly but nevertheless evidently getting heavier as major league teams go into the latter half of the baseball season's second month.

While the number of players "way out in front with bat hitting averages is decreasing as the season grows older, the team hitting is on the upgrade and the clubs generally are slugging well beyond their rather discouraging efforts at the start of the pennant chase.

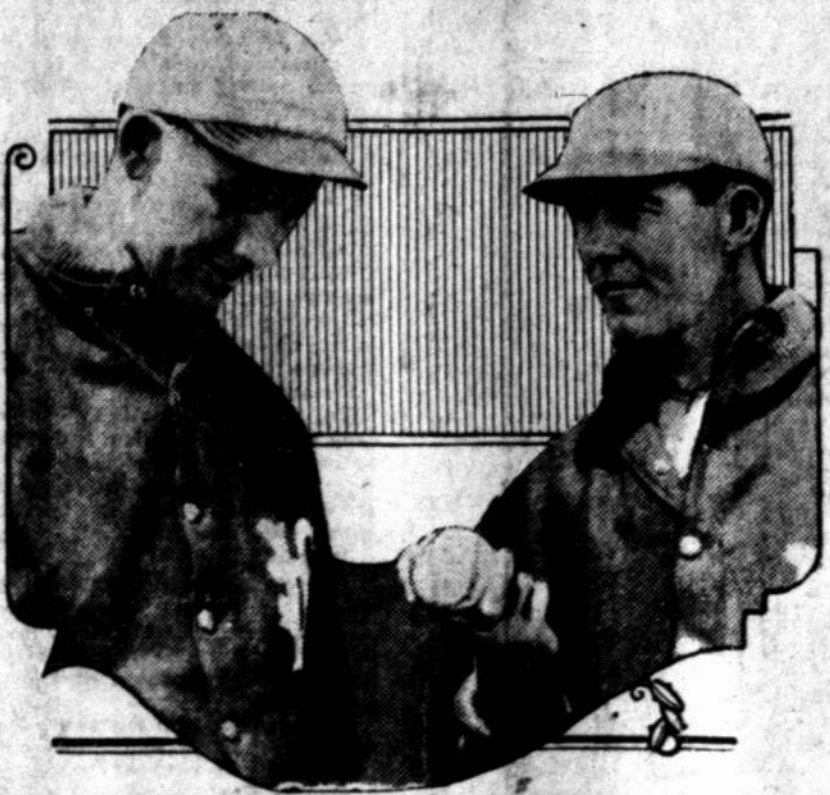

The Yankees, setting the slugging pace for both the American and National leagues, recently dropped slightly in batting averages but the Yankees' hitting a few points to 421. The White Sox have reached a 345 strike and Washington, which opened the American schedule with hitting of the 220 variety, has climbed to third place in the standing with a club average of 294.

In the National, the Chicago Cubs have slugged their way to the top of the team hitting averages with a rating of .291, three points above that of the Yankees. The Reds are hitting .287. New York has a percentage of .282 and the world champion Pirates, who finished the first week of the season with an average of only .287, have attained fourth place in the column by hitting .277.

Slugging during the past two weeks has indicated that the supposedly "slow" ball in use this year is good for distance if it is hit sharply enough. There have been an unusually large number of doubles and home runs, the most incredible total of twenty-one having been recorded by circuit drive sluggers last Tuesday.

Veterans are gradually displacing the comparatively unrecognized hitters who topped the batting lists at the start of the season. Although Wambach of Philadelphia has hit .417 in 17 games, the regular players in the American are led by Joe Dugan's .414, Muesel and Ruth adding to the Yankee representation with averages of .395 and .379 respectively. Bennett of the Browns has passed the Babe with an average of .390.

Waddell's Feet
Eighteen years ago, Rube Waddell struck out 16 batters in an American League game. That is the best modern day record for whiffing the opposition. It was sweet revenge for Waddell, who made the record against the Athletics, after being released by that club to the St. Louis Browns.

Hubber Line-up to Be Shifted for Oiler Game
The champion Lubbock Hubbers, yet undefeated this season, will be presented in almost an entirely new role this afternoon when they meet the Panhandle Oilers in the last game of a three game series at the Merrill park. Skipper Sted Allen said Monday morning:

"Sheet" Ratliff is slated to do mound duty, and although he worked last Saturday, he went only five innings, and was just beginning to "feel the pull" of the game when rain halted the affair. "Red" Hamilton, Tech College Matador diamond captain the past season, who recently signed a contract with the Chicago White Sox for 1927 delivery, will be on the receiving end, and the Skipper is expecting to go through the game on the bench. Hamilton works equally as well on the receiving end of the battery as he does on the infield, where he has been playing regularly.

Hamilton's move from the short field will shift Lassiter, the newcomer from Burleson College, who has played the last two games at third, to

PIRATES AND SENATORS START DRIVE TO GET LEADERSHIP AGAIN

(By the Associated Press)
Last year's champions are down as the main attractions in the big league baseball tent this week with the Pirates and Senators in an attempt to rock the Yankees from the American peak and the Pirates in an effort to unseat the Reds from the National pinnacle.

Washington went 11 innings yesterday to take a four to three decision from the lowly Rex Sox and advanced into third place in the standing. The winning run was forced in when Ruffing hit Stan Harris with the bases loaded.

Athletics Are Beaten
In anticipation of the opening of the series with the Senators today Colonel Ruppert's rifles rattled the Athletics in the final of their four game meeting to win by 9 to 2. Pennock was master in the box and turned in his eighth consecutive victory before more than 50,000 fans at the Yankee stadium. The Yankees knocked Quinn off the mound in the fifth inning when eight runs were scored.

Laque succumbed under the heavy clothing of the Pirates, who defeated the Reds, 4 to 3. Cuyler hung up a circuit smash and Wright uncorked a brace of triples. The Corsairs are now anchored half a game from the second place Cubs and four games from Cincinnati.

People Progress Only by Working Together

The future of any community depends upon the cooperation of its citizens in its development.

Agencies that work to build communities are the development of mutual interests and the recognition that they are mutual.

This is the case of the Municipal Light and Power plant. The need for this service in community building is recognized. The reciprocal relations between this service and the people it serves have been demonstrated in every community that has Light and Power service.

The necessary cooperation to build this community through having good Light and Power service has its foundation in understanding.

We want everybody in the community we serve to know about their own City Plant.

MR. CARROLL

Earl Carroll, "The Bathtub Boy," was found guilty of perjury in connection with his infamous party.

Thus far no sentence has been set but the judge has promised, legal proceedings not interfering, that the punishment will be meted out within a week's time. The Journal hopes it is a stiff one.

Mr. Carroll may have "lied like a gentleman" to the grand jurors, as his counsel contends, but the evidence has shown that he perjured himself and a punishment is necessary.

The Journal is not so much interested in seeing Mr. Carroll "pay through the nose" for his perjury as it is in seeing him reap the just rewards of his public display of immorality and for inducing a seventeen-year-old girl to make a disgusting display of her nudity for the benefit of his friends. Regardless of the charge upon which he was tried, which, of course, was bad enough, Mr. Carroll's greatest crime, as The Journal sees it, is his immorality and seeming total lack of character.

COMMON CLAY?

His name is Revello, and as far as anybody knows no royal blood is flowing through his veins. He's only an Italian and a fireman, here-to-fore little known outside the neighborhood of the fire station where he plays checkers when not answering the call of duty. But this man Revello is made of the right kind of stuff regardless of his humble parentage and his station of life, for several days ago he saved two lives—unimportant ones perhaps, to the world at large—yet just as valuable to their owners as anyone's.

Three stories above the pavement, clinging to a swaying ladder, Revello reached upward to take from a tenement mother's arms her baby—but he couldn't reach quite high enough, a foot and a half of yawning space intervened and the smoke and flames were beaming out from the window where the frantic mother and child were standing.

It was a long way down to the hard pavement, as Revello saw it from his precarious perch. Yet there were two lives hanging in the balance, so this humble Italian did what many a man in a higher station of life would have failed to do. He jumped across the space, clung to the window ledge with his finger-tips, then pulled himself up.

It was an easy matter then to drop the mother to another fireman on the ladder but in some way or other the child, unseen, toppled back into the burning building, and Revello dropped back through space, to the ladder and made his way to the street before he was aware of the child's position.

A moaning mother's jargon gave him the news and up the ladder he went again, to duplicate his daring feat in saving the life of a little Jewish child of the slums.

Thus Revello, fireman and product of New York's "Little Italy" is a hero, a man who offered to lay down his life, not for his friend or for his country, but for his duty and to a mother and child of just as humble station as his own.

Can we say there's such a thing as common clay?

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON—Some time ago I had occasion to remark that Ralph Beaver Strassburger of Norristown, Penn., looked to me like a coming man in politics. Now I'm sure of it.

Strassburger unquestionably meant to be a candidate for the nomination Bill Vare got. His issue would have been the same issue as Bill's—the prohibition issue. His program is the attainment of temperance by the light wine and beer route.

If Strassburger had run, Vare probably would have stayed out. But Strassburger was detained in France, where he has been visiting, by his only son's serious illness, and did not arrive home until too late to attend to the necessary preliminaries to launching his candidacy.

Lacking Strassburger, the wet republicans needed a champion, and Bill Vare offered himself—was glad of the chance, no doubt.

Strassburger did get home in time to support Bill, personally and through his newspaper, the Norristown Times-Herald. I'm prepared to believe he was a lot of help.

So Vare will come to the Senate—a republican nomination being equivalent to an election in Pennsylvania—under deep obligations to Strassburger.

They speak of Vare's victory as having given him the leadership of the Keystone State republicanism, but my guess is that Strassburger will have about as much to say as anybody.

At any rate, what he wants he'll get pretty apt to get, either by taking it for himself or asking Vare for it.

THE ECONOMICS OF BUYING AT HOME

John Smith is the purchasing agent for a corporation. He considers price, he considers the indirect effects on his company of his purchases. Heads of businesses in towns like Plainview are generally their own purchasing agents. Occasionally this duty is delegated to an employee of the firm.

Here's a message to purchasing agents that should go right to the quick. Through indifference to local industry a certain dry goods firm in Plainview buys its letterheads in Kansas City. The buyer pays the freight. He pays as much for them in Kansas City as they can be bought for in Plainview. He buys in lots of 5,000. There isn't a dime of that purchase price in Plainview. That job of letterheads would furnish a Plainview compositor a half hour's employment, a pressman four hours employment. If it's printed on a 16-pound, sixteen-cent paper the stock costs $6.40. That amount, plus the freight on forty pounds is all of the $16.75 that leaves Plainview. That compositor's boy wears clothes. He wants a straw hat and a pair of those long, flaring, light colored, flannel trousers. That pressman's baby needs shoes, and it's father buys them. Eighty per cent of the money expended for the letterheads was a Plainview printing firm stays in Plainview. It finds itself back in the channels of trade. It helps keep business good.

Now, this is but an example of what buying at home will do. The illustration is made as it applies to the printing industry, because this is the one with which we are most familiar. This industry has a payroll of $50,000 annually. That money is kept in circulation in Plainview. If half the printing which is sent out of Plainview were sent to one of the three Plainview printing plants that payroll would be increased by half during the next year.

When you sit down to write that order for anything you need, think before you write it. Think who in your home town can supply you with it. Think where the money you expend for it will ultimately go. Let's keep our dollars working for the home town. —Plainview Herald.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Largely because the advertising agency of GRAHAM AND MILBURN has just landed an important new contract, JOHN and FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, buy a new house. John Milburn, a romantic, impractical individual, is a partner in the agency and does all of its copy writing.

Previous chapters tell how John, while Fay was in the hospital, had accepted an invitation from PAT FORBES, a married man with three children, to attend a swimming party. There he met NELL CRME and was attracted by her beauty. Pat Forbes tells him Nell is having trouble with her husband and hints that he is somewhat dissatisfied with his own marriage.

To John, who has been married only two years, this is a little hard to understand. He refuses an invitation for a friend of his, PAUL DAVIDSON, a lawyer, amateur actor and libertine, to go on a wild party. Shortly after the Milburns are settled in their new home, they give a housewarming, and invite many of their friends. After several drinks have been served the conversation veers to marriage and Paul Davidson makes the surprising assertion that marriage is nothing but a relic of barbarism.

One of Fay's neighbors, a MRS. BLODGETT, calls, and Fay thinks she is "an old snoop." Later she calls again, just after CLARA and MARGARET WAYNE, two of Fay's friends, have left. She sees the remains of cigarettes and, as Fay tells John, she fairly sniffed. John hopes she won't be as bad as Mrs. Bixby, a gossip in their old neighborhood, and Fay says she certainly hopes Mrs. Blodgett won't get hold of the rum-r. Mrs. Bixby circulated. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY asked Fay. "Do you want to spoil her?" "Well, something's the matter with her. I think she's got a tummy ache." He walked the floor, holding Judith against his shoulder, and the baby quieted down and presently went to sleep.

"There you are," he said triumphantly to Fay, exhibiting the sleeping Judith. "The old man knows how to quiet 'em."

But at midnight that night Judith awakened them with a loud crying that would not stop. John after pacing the floor for half an hour, finally gave up.

"Here," he said to Fay, "handing her the baby, 'I'll call Dick Menefee,' and he grabbed for the telephone. Young Dr. Menefee was over in big time. "Well, what's the trouble?" he demanded cheerily. "Don't tell me this young lady is getting temperamental."

He leaned over Judith, pressing with his fingers on her stomach, listening to her heart. "She's got a little indigestion, that's all," he announced.

"Coffee?" John asked, and Dr. Menefee laughed. "Call it that if you want," he answered. "Truth of the matter is, she has gas on her stomach." He turned to Fay. "Do you put bicarbonate of soda in her orange juice?" Fay said she hadn't been. "Well, you might do it for a while," said the young doctor. "It will help a lot." He left in a few minutes, first issuing a few quiet instructions and asking a terse question or two.

Judith slept soundlessly the rest of the night.

A week later there was a telegram from Mrs. Turner, Fay's mother, announcing her plans for visiting them, and John met her at the train when she arrived in Dallas, a buxom woman with gray hair and a large fund of quiet good humor.

She went into raptures about Judith and spent most of her time hectoring about her precious grandchild—it was the only one—as if she feared some harm would come to her without her own protective presence.

forthright enough to bring with him. "A few more of these treatments," he told Fay and her mother. "and she'll be well before you know it."

Fay's mother was wonder-struck. Whooping cough inoculations were beyond her. "When I was a child," she told Dick Menefee, "we just had to let it run its course. They didn't have all these fancy remedies then."

This is really wonderful," the doctor told her, "if you catch the disease in time."

John spoke. "We'll get a nurse, Fay," and Mrs. Turner looked at him in astonishment. "Did you think for a minute," she demanded, "that I was going home and leaving a sick grandchild behind me? No indeed! I'll be her nurse; then you'll have a good one."

Fay and John both protested at her "going to all that trouble," but instant relief had lighted their faces when they heard her decision.

Three weeks later Judith was pronounced cured, although a slight cough remained that Dr. Dick Menefee said might stick with her for some time. Mrs. Turner left, tearful at parting with the baby and exacting a promise from Fay to come home for a visit as soon as you can.

"I don't know what we'd have done without her," Fay told John that evening. She had been sitting quietly in the living room, and John, knowing she was arriving at her mother's departure, had not spoken.

"She was a peach," he agreed. "I wish she could have stayed longer; but she really worked shamefully hard."

"Oh well, you know mother," said Fay. "Never happy unless she's helping."

"And didn't Dick handle the case just like a veteran?" asked John. "I think he already shows signs of being a wonderful physician, despite his youth and the short time he's been practicing."

He lit his pipe and lolled back in comfort. "I hope Dick makes a lot of money. I hope he makes barrels of it."

"I hope Dick makes a lot of money. I hope he makes barrels of it."

CHAPTER XIII

"Which one was that?" John asked. "Don't you remember?" said Fay. "You hinted one time that I had helped give you a start in business and she circulated the report that you had married me for my money."

"Lord, yes," he groaned. "Well, I suppose I was really to blame there. That comes of trusting any confidence at all to your neighbors. I should have known better. Fay, don't ever tell this Mrs. Blodgett a thing. Not a thing."

"I saw her husband today," remarked Fay as she started clearing away the dinner things. "I saw him come out of the house this morning. John, if anything, he's worse looking than she is. He looks like a polliwog."

"One of these lips-that-touch-lips-shall-never-touch-mine boys, eh? Well if he comes over here I'll give him a drink of his life by offering him a shoo."

Fay paused in her work and listened. "Was that Judith I heard?" John asked. "John coked his ears. 'Believe it was, 'Think I'll run up and see what's bothering her.'"

She took complete charge of Judith, even to wheeling her outdoors in her carriage, and Fay, relieved of such a large part of her work and cheered by her mother's presence, grew increasingly gay with each day's passing.

They entertained for Mrs. Turner. They had Dick and Margaret over on one occasion, and Pat and Marion Forbes on another. They also gave a party on Mrs. Turner's birthday and invited a large crowd, all of whom were captivated by Fay's mother's ready wit.

"Mother," said John, "you're spoiling us. I don't know what we'll do when you leave. How about staying?" "Fay's father is half-crazy now," she laughed. "He's ready to shoot me if I don't get back soon."

A week before Mrs. Turner had planned to return to her home the baby contracted whooping cough. How she ever caught it was a mystery, for neither Fay nor John knew of any contagion within miles of their neighborhood. But one night John stirred vaguely in his sleep and awoke to find Fay leaning over the baby's crib and to hear strange gagging sounds from Judith.

"I know what that is," John remarked grimly, flinging his bathrobe about him. His face had turned white. "What is it?" Fay asked anxiously. "Whooping cough," he answered, and put his arm about her at the look of fear that had leaped to her eyes. "I've had it myself," he added. "I know how it starts."

When Dr. Menefee came he was more cheerful than either John or Fay believed he had reason to be in the face of such a dire thing as whooping cough. Mrs. Turner hovered around judiciously, and Fay leaned on her.

Lord knows he needs it. These young M. D.'s just starting out sometimes don't make enough to keep a sparrow alive. I'm glad he's marrying a girl like Margaret Wayne—a girl that's reasonable and can help him save." He checked. "Good thing he's not marrying Clara."

"Margaret and Clara dropped in this afternoon," said Fay the next evening, "to see how Judith was and to invite us to a party the Waynes are giving next week for Clifton Lane. That's the man Clara is engaged to marry."

"Clifton Lane?" John repeated with a comic frown. "Sounds more like a street than a man. Oh, well, what's in a name, as Shakespeare says? I once knew a man named Beckars, and he never touched a drop in his life."

"He must have money, the way Clara talked," Fay went on. "It seems he has his own brokerage business in Tulsa and belongs to the Athletic Club and a couple of golf clubs. He's counting on having a wonderful time, I know."

"He comes pretty well presented, all right," was John's final comment as he turned his attention to dinner. "How's Judith been today? Gosh, the work sure is piling up on me down at the office. Have to get a copy typed to help me. If it keeps up."

"They went to the Waynes' party, and John was vaguely annoyed, when he met Clifton Lane, at the other's easy air, his faultless grooming and the sharp waxed points of his black mustache. There was bridge, and John drew Lane for an opponent. He was an expert player and John, who was only fair, was at his worst that night and was doubled three times by Lane and lost each time.

"I'm horrible tonight," said John apologetically to his partner after the third disaster, and Lane said, "Yes" (To Be Continued)

Murderers Are Highest Type Of All Criminals, Chaplain Says In Urging Means To Care For Released Prisoners

(By the Associated Press) HUNTSVILLE, Texas, May 31.—Murderers are the highest type of criminals, and the most important thing society can do is to provide means to care for the released prisoners from penitentiaries, A. R. Watson, chaplain at "The Walls" central unit of the Texas penitentiary system here, told the Associated Press.

A little timely help to a man who has been in servitude for his offense against society would put him on a constructive path of life and reduce the number of "repeaters" this 71 year-old minister, who has charge of the educational, recreation and religious activities of the penitentiary, said.

There are three primary classes of prisoners to be dealt with behind these walls, recited in the sixties as a result of an appropriation bill signed by President Abraham Lincoln. And incidentally as it may seem, these walls were built in the home town of Texas' greatest hero, General Sam Houston, and where his body lies today on a rain washed sandhill of Southeast Texas.

Chaplain Welcomed All condemned men welcome the chaplain and gladly listen to religious instruction, Chaplain Watson said. Explaining his statement that murderers are the highest type of criminals, Chaplain Watson said that they, except the professional gunmen, act through emotion and anger and act to uphold their honor and defend their homes and loved ones. "Repeaters" are few from that class, he said. However, he expected those criminals who should in pursuance to their other crimes.

Of the three classes of prisoners, Chaplain Watson's first includes those men who are practically driven into crime and who are heartily penitent, and anxious to get back into the work of rebuilding themselves. He said they go forth and if given the slightest chance, live irreproachable lives. His middle class of prisoners comprise those who are not especially bad, who have good impulses and like to do right, but who are so weak in character and will power, that when they get out of prison, they will fall into criminal life again unless their environment is favorable.

Third Class Is Men The third class of criminals is composed of men, Chaplain Watson said, who are as corrupt as men can get, vicious in character, vile in thought, and in conduct and who have no thought of being any different from what they are.

Chaplain Watson is unusually well equipped for his work in the penitentiary. Born in Hot Springs, Ark., in 1855, he attended rural schools in Arkansas and came to Mills county, Texas, in 1875 where he farmed and preached until he, with his wife, moved to Brownwood where he studied for the ministry in the old Coggin Academy, now known as Daniel Baker College. Ordained minister in the Baptist church, he preached in the rural communities in Brown county and helped to build and open Howard Payne College at Brownwood in 1899. He was there three terms. He taught and preached in that part of Texas for many years, served two terms in the state legislature and in 1925 was elected chaplain by the Texas Prison Commission. He understands men from all walks of life.

As chaplain he directs the educational activities and holds school nights a week in the cell building. Benches and tables are set out as in a regular school house, and the men who belong to the different classes are let out of their cell and attend one of the classes. The school, which has classes from the first grade to the senior high school studies. A part of the school is the prison orchestra of about 20 pieces.

Toilsome Journeys To Market In "Tar Bucket" Wagon Behind Oxen Are Recalled In Search For Early History

(By the Associated Press) HOUSTON, Texas, May 31.—Toilsome journeys to market in a "tar bucket" wagon, behind slow plodding oxen; farming with crude implements; manufacture of cloth on looms in log cabin homes and the changes which came with the march of progress are told by W. C. Nully of Trent in a letter to H. H. Schutz, government statistician here. Mr. Schutz is collecting first hand material on the history of Texas agriculture.

"Just before I can remember," Mr. Nully wrote, "the slaves were freed in the early sixties. Then the poor people in Texas, mostly along the streams in the timber, began to farm small patches of land with oxen or one or two horses hitched to home made implements, such as 'bull tongue' plows and 'diamond wings'.

"There was then about one home-built 'tar pole' wagon in each little community, and upon these farm products to Houston, some 150 miles, and to bring in such necessities as we could not make at home. We drove three to seven yoke of oxen to one wagon on these trips. The teams were hobbled and 'belled' at night to grass, and so fed themselves. Not much goods, comparatively speaking, were hauled in or out, for most of our needs were provided on the farm.

"Principal crops in Central and East Texas were corn, cotton, cane, potatoes, cow peas, pumpkins, a little tobacco, and such fruits and vegetables as were then known to be adapted to the climate conditions—peaches, plums, figs, grapes and berries, cabbage, tomatoes, onions, turnips, melons, squash, cucumbers and gourds. The latter played a conspicuous part in our kitchen equipment.

"From these raw materials we made most of the supplies for the larder and wardrobe by hand manufacture. Despite all this work, we found time for vacations, recreation and social intercourse. Contentment and confidence took the place of competition and suspicion of today.

"Houses were built of logs and fences of rails or horse staves. There were a few stores scattered about the country. Lands, other than the lowlands along the streams, or at least in the timber, were counted of little or no agricultural value and little or no attention was paid to conserving soil fertility, except to build small levees along the smaller streams to protect them from overflow.

"In the '70s the Houston & Texas Central Railroad was extended from Houston to Denison, followed in a year by the I. & G. N. Now we begin to make what we called pro-

GRAIN TRADING ACT IS AT STAKE IN APPEAL CASE

(TOPEKA, Kans., May 31.—The Kansas counterpart of the Federal Grain Futures Trading Act is at stake in an appeal pending before the state supreme court. Challenged by the Wichita Board of Trade as unconstitutional, the law was declared by a district judge to be a "social" act, and an injunction suit brought by the Farmers Cooperative Commission company to forestall its ouster from the Wichita board was thrown out of court on the ground that the company had sought relief in court with unclear hands.

The law, passed in 1925, declared all boards of trade in Kansas "contract markets," affected with a public interest, and like the federal act, provided that no contract market may hold cooperative associations to retain their members, on a patronage basis, money accumulating above the operating expenses of the association.

The Cooperative Commission company is a "patent" concern whose stockholders are 57 smaller cooperative associations in the Wichita and Hutchinson trade territory, heart of the country's richest wheat belt. The company was barred from the Wichita Board of Trade until it revised its by-

For Love of His Absent Son

A year ago 7-year-old Lloyd Hikel disappeared with his mother from the home of his father, S. Hikel of Omaha, Neb. Search proved futile, and Hikel resolved to observe each yearly anniversary of their disappearance by playing about to orphan children. This picture shows him at the first anniversary, when he gave a dinner to 200 homeless youngsters.

MANY NOTABLES TO ATTEND W. T. C. C. CONVENTION

AMARILLO, May 31.—Few gatherings in the Southwest have brought together so many leaders from so many different lines of life as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention here during June 21-23-25 is attracting, according to reports from general convention headquarters.

Among those who will be present are high officials of the State Government, with Mrs. Emma Meharg, secretary of State, bringing the greetings of the Governor; members of the State Legislature; officials of the National Air Transport, carrying the air mail from the United States government between Fort Worth, Dallas and Chicago and other points, and prominent among whom will be Colonel Paul Henderson, vice president and general manager of the company; military leaders of the Southwest, represented by such men as John W. Carpenter, president of the Texas Power and Light Company; lumber men, such as John H. Kirby, multimillionaire lumber king, of Houston; orators of note, including Eugene Blount, United States Senator Earl B. Mayfield, Dr. J. W. Hunt, president of McMurry College, Abilene; and Judge J. K. Richardson, of New Mexico and leaders in the world of oil and gas, perhaps the most prominent among these being W. S. Parish, president of the American Petroleum Institute, who will take a prominent place on the program. In addition such men as Thomas H. Ethridge, prominent real estate man and civic leader, of San Antonio will be heard, while members of the State Highway Commissions of three states will likely meet here in conference for the important purpose of co-ordinating the highway systems of Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

PILSUDSKY WILL NOT LEAD POLES

Revolutionary Leader Does Not Like Government, He Tells Supporters

(By the Associated Press) WARSAW, Poland, May 31.—Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, head of the successful military coup, today refused the presidency of Poland, to which he was elected by the senate and chamber of deputies, sitting as a national assembly.

Pilsudski received 252 votes, against 193 for M. Bemski, candidate of the right parties, the only other nominee. There were 61 abstentions.

Doesn't Like Constitution Pilsudski based his refusal upon the ground of conscious scruples against the existing constitution. He recommended the election of Professor Marjan Dabrowski of Vilna university, or Dr. Ignacy Moscicki, professor of chemistry of Lemberg university.

Pilsudski contends that the present constitution fails to protect the president against parliament and deprives him of the needed executive influence because it fails to give him authority to dissolve parliament in the case of urgent necessity.

Excitement Prevalent. Acting President Bata's announcement of the marshal's refusal caused a sensation in the national assembly and wild excitement among the populace.

Premier Bartels told Pilsudski he could not guarantee what the people would do in their disappointment, but the marshal replied: "Leave that to me, I'll manage all right."

M. Rakai, after reading the letter of refusal to the assembly, called a new election for ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

PROSPECTS LOOM FOR BIG CROP IN CROSBY

CROSBYTON, May 31.—An optimistic spirit prevails among the farmers and business men of this vicinity now as prospects loom up for a bumper crop. Many of the old settlers say that there never has been better prospects for all lines of farm industry to bring maximum returns than this year. Most of the wheat is well headed and greater part will be harvested during June. Corn is fine and other feed stuff mostly in the ground or up. Cotton is practically all planted and most of it up to good stand. In putting over the living at home and diversification program in this vicinity this year, it is found that about twenty to one heretofore have corn, large additional numbers of farmers are making their living expenses by marketing dairy and poultry products and a greatly increased number have gardens. The cotton acreage has been materially reduced and many of the farmers, instead of using the cotton crop to pay living expenses, will be able to claim the cotton money as their surplus this year.

Ennis Girl Wins State Honors In Essay Contest

ENNIS, Texas, May 31. (AP)—Miss Oma Gladys Clough of Ennis has received a certificate bearing the seal of the highway education board, Washington, D. C., and S. M. N. Marrs, Texas superintendent of public instruction, officially certifying the winning by Miss Clough of state honors in the 1925 Harvey S. Firestone national good roads essay contest.

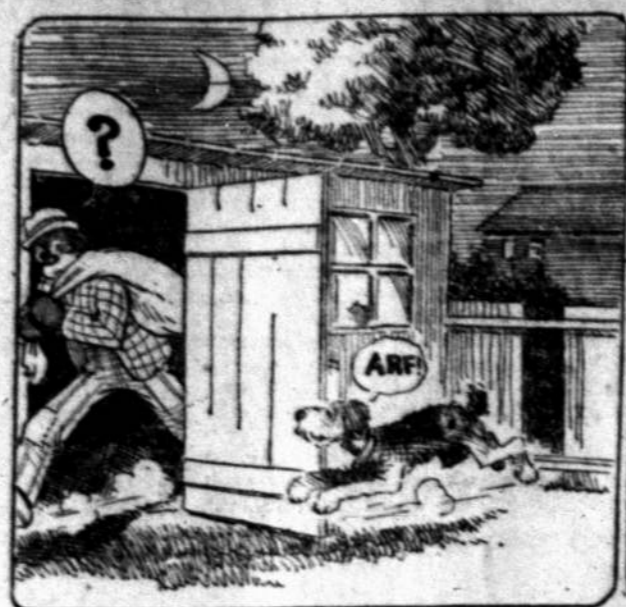

Having as its title "Economies Resulting from Highway Improvement," Miss Clough's essay set forth the economic benefits derived from good roads as well as social benefits accruing from improved highways. She estimated that the United States was losing $250,000,000 yearly from bad roads, using as a basis official figures showing the cost per ton mile on good roads in Europe at ten cents as against 25 cents in the United States. Dirt roads require 204 percent more ton-miles per mile than concrete, the essay states, and an improved road carrying 500 motor vehicles a day would save $3,000 annually per mile. "An economy of time as an added advantage of good roads may be seen by the following backward glance upon Texas history. In 1820 Moses Austin rode horseback more than 400 miles of unmarked Texas territory to interview the Spanish governor in San Antonio. Today the same trip, which took Austin 20 days, can be made by an automobile easily in two days," the winning essay stated.

Mrs. O'Bannon, Early Resident of County Dies Sunday Evening

Mrs. Magdalen O'Bannon, 77, who is said to have moved to Lubbock when there were only three other women in the county, died at 11:20 o'clock Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Ressett at the corner of 8th Street and Avenue S. She fell several days ago and the shock is thought to have contributed to her death. Funeral services are to be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Church of Christ with Evangelist H. W. Wry conducting the service. Mrs. O'Bannon, who was familiarly known as "Aunt Mag" and her husband, known as "Uncle Joe" O'Bannon, lived for many years about 10 miles south of the city of Lubbock, moving into the north part of town in recent years. Her husband died about 6 years ago and Mrs. O'Bannon recently sold their home place and moved to the Ressett home. Early residents of the county knew the old couple and their one daughter, who has not been located since her mother's death.

Wallace Rix Due Here Tuesday To Take Over Wholesale Business Of Rix Stores; Is Tireless Civic Worker

Wallace W. Rix, brother of Jed A. Rix of this city, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Rix, father and mother, and Miss Ruth, their daughter, all of Big Spring, are expected to arrive here Tuesday, where they will make their homes. The stores now being operated by the Rix company. One of the stores is at Big Spring, one at Lamesa and one at Lubbock. He has fitted up a home in the Elwood Place addition, and the daughter will join the family here as soon as her school is out. Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Rix will be at home at 1601 12th street. The removal of the wholesale headquarters of the Rix company to this point was announced here some time ago, and by this action the company not only has expressed its faith in the future of the city of Lubbock, but in the South Plains section, through which the Rix store here has grown to be one of the largest business institutions in West Texas. Real Addition To City. In the addition of two more Rix families to the business, civic and social circles of this city, Lubbock will undoubtedly profit very materially. The name Rix implies good business and civic pride, and Lubbock is indeed proud to welcome these newcomers. At a meeting of a luncheon club, of which Wallace Rix was a member, in Big Spring last week, Mr. Rix was the honor guest, and in the farewell meeting to him, he was pronounced as the most useful citizen in the city, and was commended very highly for his untiring efforts on behalf of Big Spring during his several years' residence there. Mr. Rix is not only one of the most useful, but the most useful citizen in Big Spring. W. H. Morrison, member of the luncheon club said, "He, more than any other citizen could be depended upon to answer every call to community service. He neglected his business in order that he could carry out the work he had undertaken for the promotion of the best interests of the city or county. He was a record of real service, unselfishly and ably rendered. Lubbock is indeed to be congratulated upon winning a citizen any city can well be proud of, and he will be found in the front ranks working and boosting for Lubbock as he has been working for Big Spring these many years." Other speakers paid highest tribute to the civic efforts of Mr. Rix, and Lubbock can now feel proud to honor him and his family among her citizens. D. B. Conroe, Snyder, Dies Suddenly Sunday D. B. Conroe, of Snyder, died here suddenly about 2 o'clock Sunday evening and was shipped to Snyder by the Rix undertakers last night for burial Monday afternoon. Mr. Conroe, a man of about 45 years, had been operated on here recently and was thought to be improving nicely. His family had been visiting him Sunday and had left for Snyder late in the afternoon. He died soon after that. Work Progressing On Crosby Co. Jail CROSBYTON, May 31.—Most of the steel work of the Crosby county jail has been completed this week and workmen will soon be ready to finish the second story. Brick work of the first story has been completed. The cells are being placed on the second floor and the first floor will be used for sheriff's quarters. The new structure will cost $25,000, when completed. WRITER IS DEAD LONDON, May 31. (AP)—Perceval Gibbon, 47, novelist and short story writer, died at Guernsey, Channel Islands, yesterday.

UGLY TANK CARS MADE ALMOST BEAUTIFUL BY SNOW WHITE PAINT

At least one manufacturer, operating tank cars for transportation of raw products, has sensed the psychology of cleanliness suggested by the use of snow white paint. Instead of the usual unsightly, begrimed, drab colored tank car, so familiar in most railroad yards, the cars containing cottonseed oil for the manufacture of Mrs. Tucker's Shortening are painted snowy white.
