Vance, Brown Declare SALT II Treaty 'Fair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance testified today that the SALT II treaty is fair, balanced and verifiable and told the Senate it cannot now expect to wrest a better bargain from the Soviet Union.

Vance and Defense Secretary Harold Brown opened the Carter administration's defense of the embattled treaty before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee amid suggestions from the Senate's majority leader that some "clarifications" might be acceptable to Moscow.

"We cannot expect to shift the bargain more in our favor now through a process of amendment and reservation," Vance said.

"Even if it were possible to reopen the negotiations, certainly they would be reopened to both sides," he said. "This could lead to the reopening of points that now are resolved in a manner favorable to our interests."

Vance and Brown said the treaty will slow the arms race, while permitting the United States to modernize its arsenal by including such weapons as the new MX missile.

Making the arguments they hope will win the 67 votes needed for ratification, the two Cabinet officers said that without the pact the world would be less stable, the risk of nuclear war would be greater and arms costs would skyrocket by billions of dollars.

"We should build on the progress we have made," Vance said. "The alternative is to return to an unrestrained arms competition — with the suspicions and fears of an earlier time — but with the ever-more-devastating arms of today and tomorrow."

"It clearly limits the Soviet threat with which we will have to contend, while not substantially constraining what we would otherwise plan to develop and deploy," Brown said.

He called the treaty "a clear and valuable, though limited, step" toward curtailing the numbers and types of weapons that each country can add to its nuclear arsenal.

"My judgment is that this treaty will make the people of the United States more secure militarily than we would be without it," he said.

Vance said SALT II will force the Soviet Union to dismantle some 250 of its strategic missiles and bombers, and he assailed critics who question the usefulness of this achievement on grounds some of the weapons are "old."

"Undoubtedly some of the older systems will be discarded, but with nuclear weapons 'old' should never be mistaken for 'frail,' he said.

Vance said most of the systems that will be discarded have been built since 1965 and many of them have the same destructive power as the U.S. Minuteman II and Polaris missiles.

"Each could destroy an American city," he said.

Vance noted that the Soviet Union and the United States have more than 14,000 nuclear weapons in their aesenals.

"If a fraction of those weapons were ever fired, tens of millions of our people and tens of millions of the Soviet people would perish," he said.

"This, in the end, is what the debate is all about — not pieces on a chess board or chips on a table, but instruments of mass destruction — even as they are instruments of deterrence," Vance said.

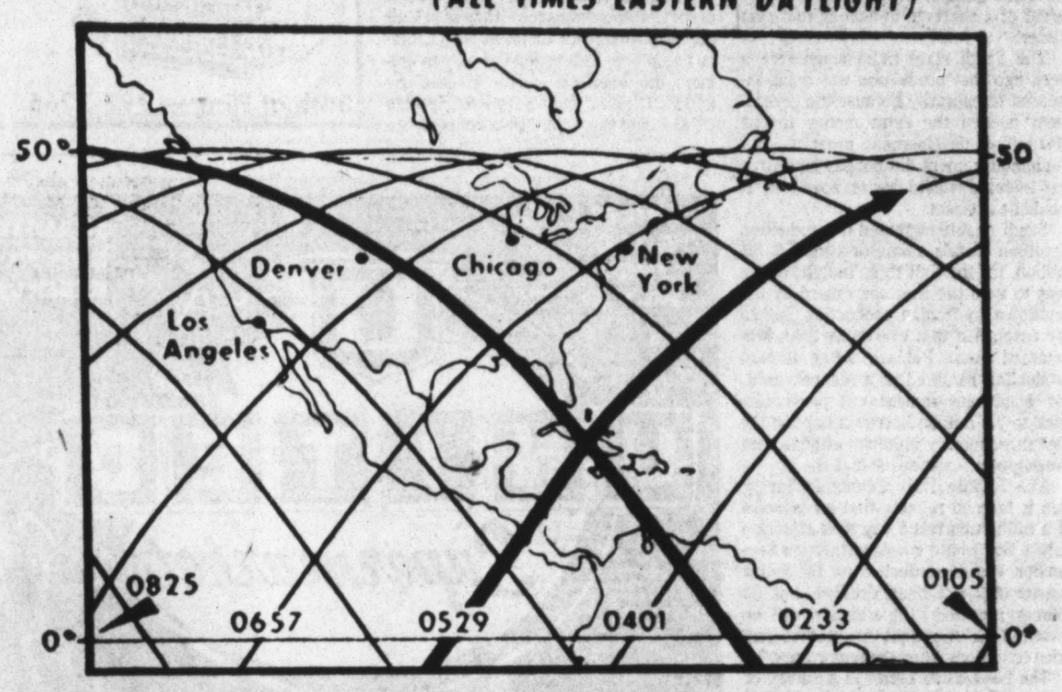

Returning from his mission to Moscow, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd suggested Sunday — without flatly saying so — that Soviet leaders might accept some reservations or understandings that relieve senators' concerns without radically revising the treaty text.

And he suggested the Soviets might be willing to resume the strategic arms limitation talks if such major revisions are made.

But he said it is clear that in any further talks the Russians would make new demands for American concessions.

County Given Budget Pleas

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A preliminary 1980 budget request of $960,432 from Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford — nearly double his 1979 appropriation — was among preliminary budget requests presented to Lubbock County commissioners today.

County Judge Rodrick Shaw said Montford had told him the request was only preliminary and probably would be revised.

The criminal district attorney's office budget for this year totals $568,372.

Budget requests from all departments of Lubbock County government presented by County Auditor Dale Gallimore totaled $10,451,678 or $602,121 in excess of projected revenues for next year.

Budget hearings are to begin soon for the final budget to be approved in September.

In other business, Shaw reported that a financial advisory committee for the Lubbock County Hospital District and Health Sciences Center Hospital probably will be appointed sometime this week.

"We think we nearly have a chairman," Shaw said.

The committee selection has been in progress for the past several weeks and has been on the agendas of several commissioners meetings.

County Engineer Arnold Maeker reported that construction of the new Lubbock County Jail has been progressing satisfactorily.

"At this point, I have no problems over there," Maeker said.

He reported several weeks ago on the possibility of Furr's Inc. having filed a form of bankruptcy affecting the work of its subsidiary, Furr's Construction Co., as general contractor for the jail project.

The commissioners approved contracts to be offered area counties for sending their juvenile delinquents to the new Lubbock County Youth Center reform school beginning next year.

Lubbock County will have 18 of the 36 rooms at the center, juvenile probation director Lloyd Watts said before the 10 a.m. meeting today, and the other 18 will cost $5,100 each per year.

The commissioners approved a joint resolution with the City of Lubbock to ask the governor for designation of the transportation steering committee of the Lubbock Urban Transportation Study Group as a "Metropolitan Planning Organization."

They accepted a bid of $3,114 from Law Enforcement Equipment Co. of Kansas City, Mo., the sole bidder, for three patrol car bar lights, six sirens and six magnetic reflectors for the sheriff's department.

Area Man's Body Still Missing

AUSTIN (Special) — The search continued today for the body of David Stephens, 20, of Slaton, who is believed to have drowned Saturday in an Austin lake.

Stephens reportedly drowned in Lake Austin when he became tangled in underwater vegetation.

He was skiing with two Austin companions, Greg Stark and Jim Gunter, who said he had slipped into the water to clear duckwee which had fouled the boat's jet intake.

Stark and Gunter said Stephens went below the water's surface to remove the vegetation and was not seen again.

The search for Stephens' body has been slowed by the duckweed believed responsible for his death. Fire department employees have been searching the lake since Sunday afternoon without success.

"Dragging is almost impossible," Austin assistant Fire Chief Brady Pool said. "We are using pike poles, trying to roll up the moss."

Scuba divers went into the area Sunday, Pool said, but gave up the search because of the density of the duckweed, finding it too dangerous to continue. Pool said the divers would probably try the underwater search again Tuesday if the water level was down.

Stephens had been vacationing in Austin and was due back at work today. He was living with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stephens.

Agencies On Alert For Skylab's Fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Skylab death watch began in earnest today as trackers narrowed the time of the space station's expected fall to Earth to a 20-hour period on Wednesday.

The North American Air Defense Command, which is tracking the big satellite, said in its daily forecast that the 77.5-ton behemoth would tumble out of the sky between 1:10 a.m. CDT and 9:10 p.m. CDT Wednesday.

NORAD pegged the mid-point of the re-entry at 11:10 p.m. CDT. If Skylab should start to come in at that time, most of it would land in the Atlantic Ocean west of Africa. But officials expect the prediction to change, noting that the predicted mid-point in Sunday's forecast was 9:28 a.m. CDT Wednesday.

Sunday's forecast also said the end would come during a 30-hour period extending from late Tuesday night to early Thursday.

As Skylab neared the end of its long space journey, representatives of several federal agencies gathered for the first time today in a map-lined situation room to keep track of the craft's final hours, ready to take emergency action in case pieces of the laboratory cause death, injury or damage.

The situation center is in a windowless room on the sixth floor of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's headquarters. Down the hall, NASA has set up a newsroom so the media can alert the world when Skylab comes tumbling in.

Most of the station will burn up from atmospheric friction, but NASA estimates about 500 pieces weighing between a pound and 2½ tons will reach the Earth, scattering along a 4,000-mile corridor. Officials insist the odds of anyone being hit are slim.

NORAD has been making daily predictions on the fall. Starting Tuesday, it will update them every few hours, and these and the course of Skylab will be marked on large charts lining the walls of the situation room.

The final prediction will come about two hours before the expected fall. But that will be only 20 percent accurate on where the pieces may land. It will alert people in a strip about 12,000 miles long and 100 miles wide that pieces may strike there.

City Residents Skeptical Of Space Lab Warning

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If Chicken Little brought his disastrous prophecy of a falling sky to Lubbock today, his warning would have considerably less impact on city residents than it had on his barnyard buddies.

Lubbockites have been warned that the sky is falling — with pieces of Skylab to be precise — but they seem to be going with the 600 billion to 1 odds that the fragments will not hit them.

The North American Air Defense Command predicted today that the 77½-ton spacecraft will hit the earth between 1:10 a.m. and 9:10 p.m. Wednesday.

Most of the 500 pieces that will fall will weigh 10 pounds or less, but 10 pieces are predicted to weigh at least 1,000 pounds and hit the earth at 250 mph.

The problem, and the mystery, is that nobody knows just where the self-destructing Skylab will land.

Lubbock's law enforcement agencies have received a teletype message to be on the lookout for any Skylab sightings in the area, but the officers apparently are not too concerned about a destructive impact.

"If it's going to come, it's going to come," said Sgt. Earl Eubanks of the police department. "I'd rather see that than a big old hailstorm."

Chief Deputy Albert Smith said that sheriff's department is not worried about the spacecraft, "but we're all curious about where it's going to hit. We'll keep monitoring and if there's a report of the possibility of it coming down here, we'll inform the public," he said.

Mayor Dirk West figures that mobility is the clue to safety. "I'm going to keep moving to avoid being a stationary target," he said. "I'm going to try to

Carter Consulting Congressional Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is moving from a broad-brush review of the domestic problems that have dogged his administration to a close-up look at the nation's energy pinch and an economy seemingly sliding into recession.

Members of Congress from both parties flew today to Camp David for another of the secretive meetings reminiscent of the isolation that surrounded last year's Mideast summit on the Maryland mountaintop.

White House officials did not release the names of the visiting congressmen. But a partial list included Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, and Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Also invited were Democratic and Republican members of House and Senate committees dealing with energy legislation.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and other members of the congressional leadership also made the trip.

As the president entered his seventh day of seclusion, press secretary Jody Powell said Carter's discussions with a wide range of Americans — from members of his Cabinet to governors, university presidents and top labor leaders — had been "free-wheeling, remarkably candid and ... very productive."

Powell said the two delegations of senators and representatives meeting with Carter today were assembled by the congressional leadership.

Other sessions were likely to continue, the press secretary said, through Wednesday with prominent political leaders, energy experts and others.

A tentative schedule for Tuesday was being set up, with people from outside government being invited to discuss the economy, Powell said, adding that meetings were also planned with "a group of people whose interest is in religion and ethics."

Meanwhile, Carter was to be given a series of options to end long gasoline lines, promote fuel conservation and cut reliance on imported oil.

Those options, the work of an interagency task force, are intended to serve as a basis for far-reaching presidential decisions.

Powell, who was at Camp David, spoke with reporters at the White House through a telephone conference call. He and other participants in the meetings have been extremely cautious about revealing any details of the discussions.

They have portrayed the sessions in only the broadest of terms and seem to show the president in the midst of re-

Gold Soars In Europe

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit a record $291.375 an ounce in London today, and the dollar improved on world currency markets.

The new London peak compared to $289.25 at the close Friday. The price in early Zurich trading was unchanged at $290.375.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed moderate trading today at 217.05 yen, barely higher than Friday's 217.00 yen.

The U.S. currency opened at 218.00 yen, slightly higher than its New York close Friday, and rose briefly to 218.20 yen. It then began to retreat, and generally weakened through the day.

"At the 218 yen level, there's bound to be more selling than buying," one dealer noted. He also said the dollar usually begins a week higher, on expectations that there is a shortage of the currency. "Sometimes, this proves not to be the case and the dollar gets weak."

Ease Of Gasoline Shortage Brings Out Tourists

By United Press International

The gasoline famine eased along the Eastern Seaboard and motorists hit the highways in force during the weekend, giving many tourist resort operators their first summer taste of profit.

In Florida, a suddenly booming tourist business was overshadowed by the threat of a service station operators' strike, and in Arizona, a man out to beat the system learned he'd buried a liability along with a gas tank in his yard.

But where the fuel squeeze has been the tightest, businessmen catering to tourists finally were smiling Sunday.

"People were in here all day yesterday looking for places to stay," said a Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman in Souhhampton, N.Y., on Long Island. "I think it's the busiest weekend so far. The gas problem seems to have cleared up. I don't think people are having too much trouble getting gas any more."

Art Woodhead of the Niagara Frontier Parks and Recreation Commission, said it was "like the good old days" at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

"I think everybody's finally getting over the gas scare," he said. "It looks like a full house today."

Officials at Point Pleasant Beach in New Jersey reported the biggest crowds ever, and in Connecticut, Anthony Pero, manager of Ocean Beach Park in New London, said "It's our best Sunday this year.

Providence, R.I., officials reported business nearly normal at the state's southern beaches, and in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, tourism was booming.

"This gas crunch isn't hurting us at all," said Edmond Strickland Sr., manager of Strickland's Mountain Inn. "This is the biggest year we've ever had. I've been in business for 35 years, and this is the biggest."

Not everyone in the tourist business shared the bounty and if motorists were finding gas, they were paying dearly for it.

Maine and Vermont still were suffering — an indication travelers still were wary of driving too far from home.

"Don't talk to me about tourism," said Robert Brown, manager of the Shelburne Inn in Shelburne, Vt. "There are none (tourists). It's like trying to find hen's teeth."

Henry Sorrell, of the Lake Champlain Transportation Co., said business on the ferry company's tourist run from Burlington, Vt., to Port Kent, N.Y., was down 55 percent during the week.

A New York consumer group said average prices at the pump have risen since June 23 from 96 cents to 99 cents a gallon, and predicted the tab will range from $1.45 to $1.55 by the end of the year.

In Miami, independent gas station owners threatened a strike Tuesday if the profit ceiling is not raised. Attorney General Jim Smith retaliated with a warning that such a strike would violate state and federal antitrust laws and said he will seek an injunction to head it off.

In Phoenix, Ariz., Harvey Fink figured he had beaten the shortage by storing 1,500 gallons of gasoline in surface and underground tanks in his back yard. But he didn't figure on the city fire code, which limits such stashes to 10 gallons.

He was ordered to remove the tanks and the gasoline, and until the job is done, a fire offical with a radio will be stationed at his home — at a rate of $12 an hour.

Saudis Temporarily Increase Production Of Crude Oil

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saudi Arabia has increased its production of crude oil a million barrels a day — more than double the shortage in U.S. imports — for the three summer months, the Middle East Economic Survey reported today.

It could not be learned immediately how much of the increase would go to the United States, but the authoritative oil journal said it is to be marketed through Exxon, Texaco, Socal and Mobil, the four American oil companies that are participants with the Saudi government in the Arabian-American Oil Co.

Nor was it known how soon the increase might mean more gasoline at American pumps. But it could ease the threat of a shortage in heating fuel next winter.

The Saudi state radio announced a week ago that production was being increased temporarily because the government needed the extra money for its $142-billion development program. But the announcement did not say how large the increase would be or how long it would be in effect.

Saudi Arabia increased its production a million barrels a day, to a total of 9.5 million, for the first three months of the year to ease the shortage caused by the shutdown in Iranian production due to the revolution that overthrew Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. After Iranian production resumed at a reduced level, the Saudi government cut production back to 8.5 million barrels a day for the past three months although officials said the output was somewhat higher.

The Middle East Economic Survey said it learned reliably that an increase of a million barrels a day took effect on July 1 and would continue through September. It said production for the fourth quarter has not been decided, but its sources reported "the situation will be reviewed in the light of market and price conditions when the time comes."

The New York Times in a survey of the oil shortage Sunday said the United States this year needs to import 8.6 million barrels a day of crude oil and refined products to meet the demand, but total oil imports have averaged less than 8.2 million barrels a day, or a shortage of more than 400,000 barrels.

It said the gap in the noncommunist world between available supplies and demand is between one million and two million barrels a day. Japan and Italy were recently reported trying to buy oil directly from the Saudi government.

The Times said oil industry sources reported the American companies were not importing more crude oil because the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will not sell them more. Many of the members of the oil cartel are limiting production to conserve their chief natural resource and at the same time keep prices up.

Meanwhile, the official Iranian news agency, Pars, announced that Iran will accept payment for its oil in any currency acceptable to it instead of only in dollars, the standard currency used by OPEC. Officials of the National Iranian Oil Co. said this would be a convenience for buyers who would not have to convert their currencies into dollars to make payment. But they said it would have little other impact as long as contracts continue to be written in dollars.

The Iranian government announced last week that it was considering ending the unofficial link between its currency, the rial, and the dollar.

Motorists Pay More For Gas

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Motorists paid an average of three cents more a month for gasoline in the first half of the year, and although dollar prices are found in every market, Chicago led the nation in top pricing.

Retail gasoline prices rose an average of 30 percent in the first six months of 1979, the Lundberg Letter reported Saturday.

"Pricewise, the increase averages out at about three cents a month," said Dan Lundberg, who supervises twice-monthly surveys of gas stations and publishes gasoline statistics and oil market analyses on an independent basis.

The latest statistical sheet compared retail prices on Jan. 5 to those on July 6 on regular unleaded gas at full service stations.

Chicago led the nation with an average price of $1.02 per gallon, an increase of 23 cents since January for unleaded regular.

A jump of more than 20 cents per gallon for unleaded regular was common in the major cities surveyed.

Lundberg said the statistics he uses are based on twice-a-month surveys of 16,700 stations in 30 key markets.

"There is no market where there are not dollar prices per gallon," he said. "The increases in the first six months of the year ranged from a low of 26 percent to a high of 34 percent — just about 30 percent across the United States."

Two California cities, Stockton and Fresno, showed big increases. At Stockton, the average price pergallon Friday for regular unleaded was 99 cents.

Khomeini Announces Amnesty

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini announced a general amnesty today covering "all those people who committed offenses under the past regime" but excluding those involved in murder or torture.

Khomeini's announcement, read over the state radio, said the measure also applied to armed forces members. He said those excluded from the amnesty were "those who have committed murder, or issued orders for murder, or those who have tortured our revolutionary prisoners."

Khomeini's regime has executed 299 men by firing squad since coming to power five months ago. Most of those executed were found guilty of murder or torture, and thousands of other suspects are believed held in prisons around the nation.

In another development today, the revolutionary government of Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan announced it had dismissed military police chief Brig. Gen. Amir Rahimi from his post. But the general said he would not step down and claimed to have Khomeini's support in staying on.

The dual power structure in Iran has caused considerable friction between Bazargan's government and Khomeini's Revolutionary Council, the supreme authority.

State radio announced Rahimi's dismissal shortly after he claimed at a news conference that he had uncovered a plot by lower-ranking officers against himself and the Iranian revolution.

After the radio announcement, Rahimi told a reporter the dismissal was "part of a plot."

"I have contacted Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the ayatollah said no one has the right to dismiss and that I should stay in my position and carry out my duties," he said. This could not be confirmed independently.

Bazargan told the nation two months ago he had requested Khomeini to issue an amnesty so that "things would begin to go back to normal." Police and military officials had pressed in particular for an amnesty for their men to restore the morale of the nation's security forces.

The regime had announced July 3 that new complaints against members of the army and police for offenses committed under the ousted regime of Mohammad Reza Pahlavi must be by Tuesday or they would be consid invalid.

Khomeini said he was advising remnants of the past regime who still opposing the will of the nation give up "their useless efforts" and the unified ranks of the nation.

"I have always said that we build an Iran which is independen both East and West and is capabl standing on its feet," he said. "But fortunately, there are some intellect who do not give up following East West."

"We hope that with the realizatio true Islamic culture in Iran, this g also becomes aware of this reality saves itself from subservience."

Khomeini's amnesty announcem came on the eve of the birthday of Imam Mehdi, an ancient Shiite Mos patriarch whose birthday is celebr across the nation. It also followed one day the assassination of a Khom supporter, the third in less than th months by an anti-clerical terr group.

Early Sunday two gunmen rode on motorcycles to the house of Kho ni supporter Haj Taghi Tarkhani, rap on the door and when he answered him three times. They left leaflets ing an organization called Forghan responsible, Interior Minister Hash Sabaghian said.

Tarkhani, a wealthy businessma the Tehran bazaar, founded a Te mosque that was a center of rebel ac ty during the reign of the shah. Baza frequently spoke there against the archy.

Israeli Troops Kill Palestinian Terrorists

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli army patrol intercepted a Palestinian terror squad heading for Israel and killed all three raiders in a brief firefight inside Lebanon, the military command said.

An army spokesman said there were no Israeli casualties in the Sunday shootout near the western flank of Mount Hermon, the 9,232-foot peak straddling the Israeli-Lebanese-Syrian frontiers.

Beirut Radio reported later that Israeli artillery opened up across the border but there were no immediate reports of casualties. Israel did not confirm the shelling.

The military command said troops searching for Palestinian commandos in southern Lebanon Sunday night blew up two homes used by guerrillas in the village of Qabrikha, five miles west of the border.

A communique described the sweep as part of Israel's "deterrent action against the terrorists and their accomplices." It said the village was in a sector patrolled by Irish troops of the U.N. peacekeeping force but they did not interfere with the operation.

Israeli troops invaded the Arab village of Majdel Silim Thursday night and killed two Palestinians in a gunbattle. Two others were taken prisoner and two houses were destroyed in that raid, the army said.

A communique on Sunday's firefight said the Palestinian raiders carried weapons, explosives, bullhorns and leaflets "attesting that their intention was to take hostages and bargain for them."

The army said it determined that the guerrillas crossed territory patrolled by the United Nations peacekeeping command in southern Lebanon before they were intercepted. Israel has repeatedly claimed that the 6,000-man U.N. force fails to keep armed guerrillas from slipping back to their former bases in southern Lebanon.

Guerrillas have carried out two major raids in Israel so far this year. In January, guerrillas stormed a guest house in Maalot, six miles south of the border. Troops killed all three infiltrators but an Israeli woman leaped to her death trying to escape. Two months later seaborne guerrillas raided the northern resort town of Nahariya. Four Israelis and two Palestinians died in that operation.

Act 'Handicaps' Transit

GOVERNMENT'S appalling inability to solve a problem rationally rather than over-react emotionally has reared its ugly head again in the form of rules to make mass transit systems accessible to the handicapped.

What started out as a perfectly legitimate demand that the handicapped not be discriminated against has led Congress and the federal bureaucracy to the other extreme.

The U.S. Department of Transportation issued new regulations five weeks ago that would require an estimated $3 billion to $5 billion to rebuild bus and subway systems to accommodate wheelchair users.

A SUIT TO BLOCK the new federal regulations has been filed by the American Public Transit Association. It argues that existing rules, issued in 1976, are adequate.

Congress passed the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and gave DOT and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare authority to draft regulations. APTA alleges the bureaucracies exceeded their statutory authority, as they are wont to do.

"The impact of these regulations on public transportation will be a catastrophic diversion of financial, human and equipment resources at a time when the demand for public transportation is increasing at a dramatic rate," said APTA Executive Vice President B.R. Stokes.

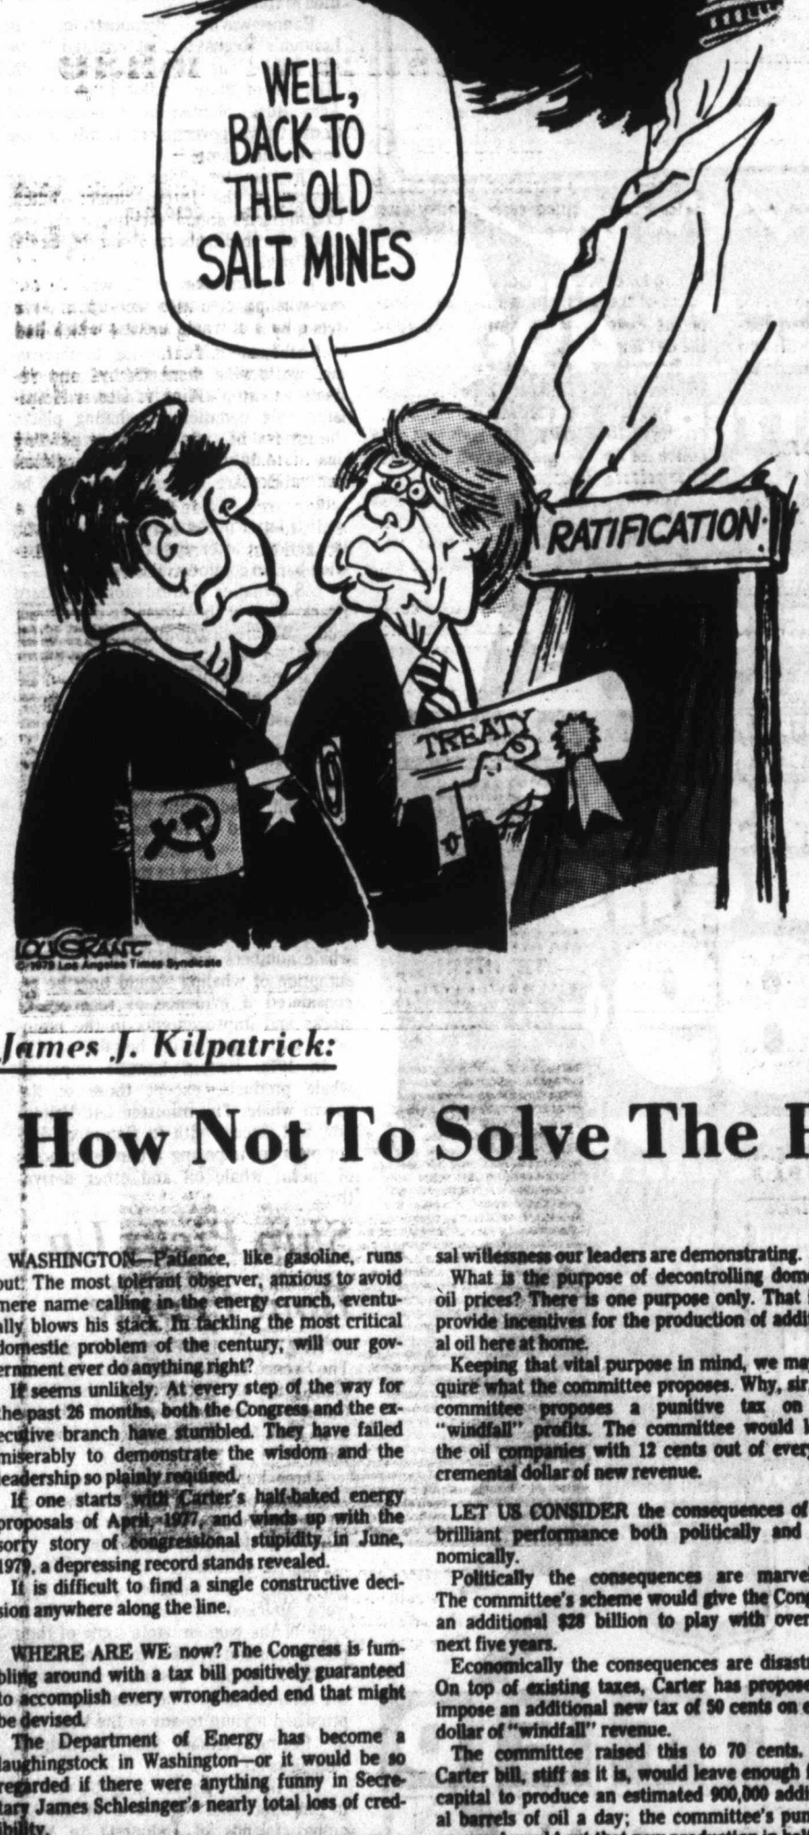

Instead of existing rules which rely on local government decisions on the most effective method of providing mobility to handicapped persons, the new rules impose a rigid requirement that every mode of public transit be made accessible.

As usual, with the federal bureaucracy, cost is no object. It sees no wisdom in applying some reasonable standard of need, or cost-benefit ratio, to its rules.

THE REHABILITATION Act provides that "no otherwise qualified handicapped individual...shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Public transit systems receive federal aid. APTA does not read the act, however, to require that every bus now in service be retrofitted with wheelchair lifts.

That position seems reasonable; DOT's doesn't.

GUTTER LANGUAGE seldom heard by many a motherly type in these parts will be filling livingrooms throughout the Channel 28 viewing area Saturday night.

"Scared Straight," a documentary about a prison program designed to scare the crime out of juvenile delinquents, will be televised here at 9 p.m.

It is an attention-getting telecast with no expletives deleted. Hardened criminals describe in earthy terms the procedure for homosexual gang rape. A 13-letter version of a four-letter word is repeated over and over again.

But if the language is shocking for hearing in the home, the message is one calculated to reduce teenage crime in any city where it's heard.

KMCC's Bill McAlister and Rusty Jones are concerned about the kind of reaction the telecast will evoke. Other cities where it has been aired have reported a positive reception with surprisingly few complaints about the language, they report.

THE PROGRAM TAKES 17 teenage boys and girls who have been in constant trouble with the law inside a New Jersey maximum security prison for a lecture from hardened criminals. The film was not censored.

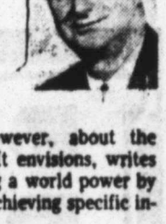

According to the show's producers, more than 10,000 teenagers have gone through the "lifers" program at the prison and 80 to 90 percent of them have been "scared into 'going straight' by" what they saw and heard there.

No studies have been made as to what effect, if any, the televised program has on juvenile delinquents.

But, as Jones says, nothing else has seemed to work in reaching them and in reducing teenage crime—of which Lubbock has more than its share.

Lesson Too Late For Learning

WASHINGTON—Damned clever, these Chinese. It takes Ancient Wisdom, which Americans regrettably lack, to juxtapose today's needs with tomorrow's imperatives, and devil take world opinion.

Would that our novice of a nation had that sort of independence with our other freedoms.

The Chinese call Vietnam "China's Cuba." They mean that Castro's incursion into Africa, as surrogate for the Soviets, and Castro's promotion of the Marxist aggression in Nicaragua, which is aimed to communize Central America, are moves and call for U.S. lesson-giving before it's too late.

All this, and more, is set forth by Maj. Gen. Robert N. Ginsburgh, (West Point '44) who went to the People's Republic last spring and wrote up his findings for Air Force Magazine (June).

HE REPORTS from extensive combat and administrative experience and as a financial consultant for the oil industry.

Ginsburgh's indoctrination included "unprecedented" meetings with the Chinese Ministry of National Defense. He learned that the border invasion of Vietnam is known in Chinese publications and conversation as "defensive counterattack," denoting pre-emptive warfare in geopolitical terms.

Vietnam, fresh from repulsing the American intervention and uniting the country, expressed its exuberance by mistreating and expelling overseas Chinese within reach.

Simultaneously, border incidents, or breaching established boundary lines, beginning by the tens in 1976, increased to hundreds in 1977 and to thousands in 1978.

INSTEAD OF treating these matters as isolated occurrences, the Peking government took notice that, while the Vietnamese agitated on the southern frontier, Soviet Russia evinced "imperialistic aims" on the northern borders.

The "defensive counter-attack" by elements of the People's Liberation Army (PLA) was not undertaken in the haste that marked our decisions in Korea and Vietnam. The Chinese leaders calculated that a punitive expedition against Vietnam would bring reaction from Russia, but the magnitude of Soviet response was all that counted.

The military planners of the People's Republic expected small-sized reactions from Russia, which they regarded as inevitable in any case, but any medium or major attack by the Russian Army would set off the war of Asia ahead of its expected schedule.

Gen. Ginsburgh found that the Chinese considered that their border war had (a) taught the Viets a lesson, (b) blocked the Soviet move for hegemony and (c) restored regional stability.

But the planning did not stop there. As Vice Premier Deng Ziaoping told a delegation of U.S. Congressmen, China would have the courage to buy modern weapons if the U.S. had the courage to sell them.

But in America, we can only make educated guesses against whom—Taiwan, Russia, Japan—the weapons would first be directed. The other three Modernizations are agriculture, industry and technology.

There is no question, however, about the Chinese long-range purpose. It envisions, writes Ginsburgh, "China's becoming a world power by the end of this century, and achieving specific interim goals by 1985."

Damned clever these Chinese. They punish their own "Cuba" today, in preparation for bigger events in the nearby tomorrow.

Sylvia Porter:

New Choice In Handling Tax-Sheltered Annuities

IF YOU WILL be retiring at any time in the future from a job with a school, hospital, church, museum, foundation or other non-profit organization, a decision you make in the 60 days following your retirement may now be of crucial importance to your financial security.

For in this short period, you must decide what to do with the retirement money many of you have been setting aside each year through various tax-sheltered annuity plans.

Tax-sheltered annuity plans are offered mainly by life insurance companies and mutual funds to enable those of you who work for tax-exempt organizations to accumulate savings for your retirement.

These yearly contributions are not taxed and neither are the earnings until you retire and begin to receive the funds.

UNTIL 1979, YOU, as a retiring owner of tax-sheltered annuities had two choices.

* You could take possession of all of your accumulated funds in what is called a "lump sum distribution" and pay a hefty income tax on the total. The tax is a clear drawback.

You could use the money to buy an annuity from an insurance company that would pay you a fixed income for a certain span and spread your tax liability over many years.

The drawback here is that annuities, while a predictable source of retirement income, make it impossible for you to adjust to inflation or changes in your lifestyle.

Once you agree to receive a specified sum per month, you are stuck with this agreement. (What you are paid is based on how much you pay in and what that money earns.)

IN ADDITION, MANY insurance companies deduct sizeable "load costs." These are charges for commissions and other expenses which, while they may be justified, can reduce the amount of money available to you on your retirement.

* Now, though, those of you who hold tax-sheltered annuities have a third choice.

As a result of recent changes in the tax laws you may for the first time elect to put your savings into a Rollover Independent Retirement Account program, reports my associate, Brooke Shearer.

Previously such Rollover IRAs were available only to employes separating from a pension or profit-sharing plan.

The key advantage of all the advantages of a Rollover IRA is flexibility. With a Rollover IRA, you may shelter your funds from income taxes, have easier access to your funds and earn higher returns than you would earn with many annuities.

BUT BE WARNED: once you terminate all your tax-sheltered annuity programs, you have only 60 days in which to place your funds into one or more Rollover IRAs.

You can place them in a bank, savings & loan association, or credit union which is offering certificates of deposit.

Or you can invest the money in mutual funds or common stocks through a brokerage house. (Most charge management fees and/or load costs; find out what the costs are and when they are imposed.)

You can entrust your Rollover IRAs to trust companies or the trust departments of banks, giving you the chance to invest in coins and stamps as well as stocks and bonds.

Or you can buy U.S. government individual retirement bonds directly from the U.S. Treasury or Federal Reserve.

You can mix your investments by setting up several IRAs, and you have the opportunity each year to terminate one and transfer its funds to another IRA without paying a tax.

You can withdraw money from an IRA at any time, but you'll have to pay an additional 10 percent tax on the sum you take out if you haven't reached age 59½, are not disabled or die.

Those of you who are not retiring and who hold tax-sheltered annuities also may terminate them and roll over your money into an IRA. You may make no further contributions to a Rollover IRA, but the funds won't be taxed unless, once again, you make a withdrawal.

MANY OF THE nation's shrewd financial consultants strongly recommend that if you do have tax-sheltered annuities, you would be much better off getting out and into a Rollover IRA.

You must begin removing funds from your IRA at age 70½, as the accounts are supposed to be used to save for retirement, not as a means of accumulating a tax-deferred windfall for your heirs.

At this age, you can then elect to buy an annuity or have the funds distributed according to a schedule over your lifetime.

James J. Kilpatrick:

How Not To Solve The Problem

WASHINGTON—Patience, like gasoline, runs out. The most tolerant observer, anxious to avoid mere name calling in the energy crunch, eventually blows his stack. In tackling the most critical domestic problem of the century, will our government ever do anything right?

It seems unlikely. At every step of the way for the past 26 months, both the Congress and the executive branch have stumbled. They have failed miserably to demonstrate the wisdom and the leadership so plainly required.

If one starts with Carter's half-baked energy proposals of April, 1977, and winds up with the sorry story of congressional stupidity in June, 1979, a depressing record stands revealed.

It is difficult to find a single constructive decision anywhere along the line.

WHERE ARE WE now? The Congress is fumbling around with a tax bill positively guaranteed to accomplish every wrongheaded end that might be devised.

The Department of Energy has become a laughingstock in Washington—or it would be so regarded if there were anything funny in Secretary James Schlesinger's nearly total loss of credibility.

The oil-producing nations of the Middle East are hiking their prices, and our country is losing immeasurably in both production and morale as the lines at the gas pumps grow.

Consider the tax bill that emerged from the House Ways and Means Committee. No matter what happens to the bill before eventual enactment, the committee's version reflects the colossal willessness our leaders are demonstrating.

What is the purpose of decontrolling domestic oil prices? There is one purpose only. That is to provide incentives for the production of additional oil here at home.

Keeping that vital purpose in mind, we may inquire what the committee proposes. Why, sir, the committee proposes a punitive tax on the "windfall" profits. The committee would leave the oil companies with 12 cents out of every incremental dollar of new revenue.

LET US CONSIDER the consequences of this brilliant performance both politically and economically.

Politically the consequences are marvelous. The committee's scheme would give the Congress an additional $28 billion to play with over the next five years.

Economically the consequences are disastrous. On top of existing taxes, Carter has proposed to impose an additional new tax of 50 cents on every dollar of "windfall" revenue.

The committee raised this to 70 cents. The Carter bill, stiff as it is, would leave enough fresh capital to produce an estimated 900,000 additional barrels of oil a day; the committee's punitive proposal would cut that new production in half.

It is incredible. Suppose, to be supposing, that no additional tax whatever were imposed upon the new "windfall" profits.

UNDER EXISTING LAW, the companies still would have to pay 60 cents of every new dollar in taxes and royalties—but the remaining 40 cents, if it were left untaxed, would finance production of 1,500,000 barrels a day in new petroleum.

That output eventually would help to eliminate lines at the gas pumps. You would think the House would welcome that prospect, but what is the view of the House?

Clobber the companies! Flay the robber barons! Think about it while you're waiting.

How did we get these infuriating, wasteful lines at the gas pumps anyhow? No other nation in the world is so afflicted. These fantastic delays are the direct consequence of the meddlesome blunders of the Department of Energy.

It is virtually impossible for even the most experienced professionals of the petroleum industry to make heads or tails of the farrago of regulations produced by the DOE.

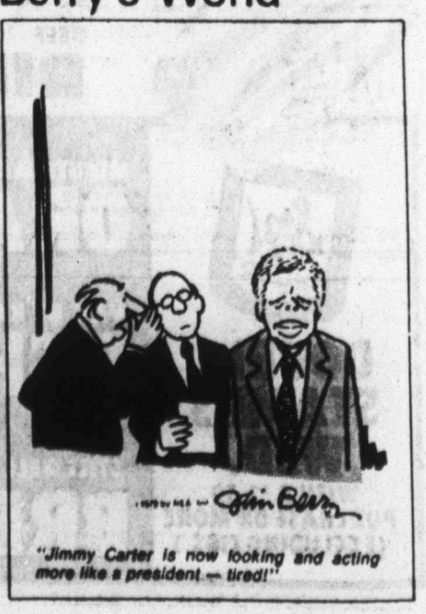

Left alone, using nothing more than the mechanisms of the marketplace and the expertise that comes with experience, the oil companies could refine, allocate and distribute the reduced supplies of crude according to their own good judgment.

THIS JUDGMENT HAS worked admirably in the past. Surely it is better judgment than anything the DOE has displayed.

Instead of letting the enterprise system work, Congress and the White House seem intent upon straitjacketing the industry. More blunders and less gas! More tax dollars, less private capital!

Twenty-six months after Carter declared the "moral equivalent of war," we have no conservation policy, no production policy and no crash program for the development of alternative energy sources. How long, O Lord, how long?

Fire Marshal's Office Probing Nightclub Blaze

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal

The Lubbock fire marshal's office is investigating the possibility of arson in a Sunday morning blaze that gutted the Studio 1 disco, 714 Broadway.

No one was reported injured in the fire.

District Fire Chief Andy Anderson said Sunday that he strongly suspects arson in the fire, which destroyed the interior of the building and its contents. However, Anderson would not elaborate, saying only that the fire marshal still is investigating the cause of the blaze.

Fire Marshal Robert Stokes, who was at the site Sunday, said he found some "unexplained things" in the rubble but indicated that determining a cause of the fire could be a long, drawn out process.

Stokes said his investigators were hampered Sunday because the only light available inside the nightspot came from the building's front and back entrances. "I think we're going to have to hook up a power generator and floodlights to get a good look," he said.

The club, which is owned by Roger Freeman and Rodney Holloman, reportedly is insured for $300,000 — $150,000 for the building and the rest of the money for its contents. Anderson said damage to the structure and its contents probably will be "many thousands of dollars."

Freeman and Holloman were named last week in a complaint filed in Lubbock Municipal Court, alleging that two men, one black and the other Mexican-American, were denied entrance to the club because they did not produce identification considered to be proper. The city's public accommodations ordinance makes it illegal to refuse entrance to someone on the basis of color or race through selective enforcement of identification requirements.

Reports show that the club's alarm sounded at 4:56 a.m. Sunday, and that when police were dispatched to check on the alarm, they discovered the fire. Police notified the fire department at 5:08 a.m., and 23 firefighters from central station, station three and station four responded to the call.

"When we arrived at the scene, fire engulfed the interior of the club from top to bottom and from front to back," Anderson said. "We attempted entry right away, but even with all our protective clothing, we were driven out by the extremely intense heat and flames.

"In a situation like that, about all we can do is try to contain it," he said. "It was just so hot and there was so much fire, that I didn't think it was worth the risk of keeping our men in the building."

Anderson said that more than an hour passed before firefighters could enter the building. "In the meantime, we had to fight the blaze through the front entrance outside. We had a difficult time trying to bring the fire under control because the club has no windows, basically only a front and back entrances to work from."

Firefighters later discovered a second-story window that had been covered with cement at the front of the building and, by breaking through it, were able to douse the flames more quickly, reports show.

Anderson said firefighters had the blaze under control by 9 a.m. A pawn shop next to the club sustained very light smoke damage, he added.

Firefighters stood by the building late Sunday to watch for possible rekindling of the fire. Firemen had a hose laid across Avenue G and set up a roadblock at Avenue G and Broadway, which officials said probably would remain until this morning.

The nightclub, formerly known as Freeman's Club, had been operating from the location for the past nine years. About a month ago, the club was remodeled extensively and reopened as Studio 1.

Robert Carey Thrasher, 28, of 2621-B Bates St. was killed early Sunday after he was struck by a car in the 200-block of North University Avenue.

Thrasher was pronounced dead at the scene of the 2:15 a.m. mishap by Justice of the Peace Charles Smith, who ruled the death accidental.

Reports show that a car, driven by William Gerald Johnson, 20, of Rockspring, was traveling south in the right lane of North University. The motorist told police he did not see the man until seconds before the accident.

Thrasher reportedly was afoot and had his head wrapped in a sweater when he was struck. Police said the dead man suffered massive head injuries and two broken legs.

Investigating officers said they could not determine what direction Thrasher was walking when hit by Johnson's vehicle.

Seconds after the accident, two women who had stopped to give aid to the victim, were injured when another car rammed into several vehicles which were blocking the dead man.

Rosie Cortez, 22, of 2721 First Place and Mary Ramirez, 30, of 2907 First Place, both of whom were out of the car and attempting to help the victim, were struck by a spinning vehicle which had been hit by another car.

CONTAINER-DUMPER ELIMINATES PROBLEMS — Shown is Fabit Corporation's newly-designed, patented and newly-built unit used by the firm's Refuse Services Division and also to be marketed. Exceptional advantages have been incorporated in the unit, manufactured in Lubbock.

Revolutionary New Container Dumper Patented, Used, Marketed By Fabit

It is making news!

"We are speaking of Fabit Corporation's new Container Dumper, selling for use with both new and existing equipment and also utilized in Fabit's own Refuse Services Division, where side-loading refuse containers are serviced in and around Lubbock."

Why is the Container Dumper excitingly new, different and efficient?

Consider the following:

It is manufactured in Lubbock by the highly capable Fabit Corp. and is being used commercially in the firm's own business, also available for purchase for use on new equipment or to replace other container dumping mechanisms.

It is covered by U.S. Patent No. 3,881,616.

This new model is an improvement over earlier machines, including those by Fabit. It picks up and dumps refuse containers from the side of the truck by means of hydraulic cylinders, thus eliminating cables, chains, sprockets and related drive components that have been a source of trouble on earlier side-loading units.

The Container Dumper handles heavier loads and is even faster than earlier models. Its simplicity and its reliance on hydraulic cylinders for power are expected to make this machine the most efficient and trouble-free on the market, it is reported.

"Since the Container Dumper outperforms other available equipment, Fabit Corp. expects it to sell readily for use on new side-loading trucks and also as a replacement for worn-out or less-efficient dumping equipment. While it currently is designed to dump steel containers in size from 1½ to 4 cubic yards, it is capable of being adapted to handle larger containers, or even plastic containers."

One must see this unit in operation to appreciate fully its utility and the engineering that has made it so simple and efficient . . . by Fabit.

Division Serves Well

Fabit solicits customers in its several departments, with special attention at this time directed to the Refuse Service Division.

Providing side-loading container service in and around Lubbock, the Refuse Service Division is in full operation, servicing enthusiastic customers who appreciate the convenience and reliability.

"Fabit can work for you, too!"

Already established and known for its versalitity in custom fabrication, manufacturing of complete machines or parts, the most recent expansion as announced by Clyde A. Blakeley, president, has proven of special benefit to commercial and industrial accounts in Lubbock and neighboring communities.

The Refuse Services Division is geared to manufacture, sell, lease, service and trade refuse containers.

Advantages Cited

The service is unique in that it uses new automatic side-loading container dumping equipment. Company officials state that the new equipment is better suited for use in narrow alleys or curbside container installation and that it does not spill as much trash as front-loading container systems.

Lubbock-Owned, Operated

Refuse Services Division is headquartered at the Fabit Corp. location at 1408 N. Quirt Ave. in Lubbock.

The division is managed by Ted Ratcliff IV who is a 1971 graduate of Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in Industrial Engineering. Ratcliff has been chief engineer for Fabit Corp. for over four years.

"Refuse Services Division's side-loading container service is cleaner, faster and quieter."

Furthermore, there is provided one source for:

(1) Dependable refuse container service with the best equipment;

(2) Container purchasing, front or side loading containers.

Advantages of the side-loading equipment are quite evident, Blakeley and Ratcliff point out:

It spills far less trash than front-loading systems, especially in windy weather.

Safety is another big factor, as the truck doesn't back; it just stops, dumps, then goes on, and the driver can see the container during the entire operation.

If noise is a factor, consider the advantage of a container firmly held and handled gently, without banging and clattering and with far less damage to the container.

Fabit knows its business; it holds process and apparatus patents in the refuse services field, and it is locally owned.

"Establishment of the new division with its wide range of services provided the first opportunity commercial users had locally for a side-loading refuse service. For businesses, apartments, etc., the advantages are evident."

Meets Other Needs

Since 1968, Fabit's Manufacturing Division has been meeting the needs of the Lubbock area for fabricated metal products such as angles, channels, handrails, walkways, ladders and other custom manufactured items. Capabilities include shearing, bending, hole punching, welding, painting and other services including engineering and development of prototype or production models.

Village Craft Corner Schedules Early Workshop Opportunities

Newly-announced workshops and classes throughout the summer at Village Craft Corner in South Plains Mall enable a season of fun and achievement.

Even for a shop traditionally offering highly-recommended instruction and products, the summer program is outstanding, with really exceptional opportunities provided in the instruction program.

(To be assured of a place in one of the classes or workshops, immediate inquiry and arrangement is urged. Don't delay!)

Among the impressive instructors and workshops are:

Danny Gamble

A Danny Gamble watercolor workshop is slated for four days, Aug. 28-31. Danny conducts demonstrations and workshops throughout the Southwest, and his paintings are found in discriminating galleries and private collections throughout the country. Gamble resides in Amarillo and is said unsurpassed as a chronicler of the stark beauty of a hard land. Deserted barn, rickety windmill and sagging fence amid a few leafless trees evoke the melancholy mood of a remote place and time. A Danny Gamble painting is unmistakable.

Annette Miller

Annette Miller (nee Wyche) will conduct mini-workshops for two days July 16-17. "Reflections in Miniature" is descriptive of some of the oil paintings of Annette, formerly of Lubbock and now residing in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex. Her work is shown in such diverse locations as Denver, Grand Prairie, Arlington, Grapevine, Hurst, Fort Worth and Lubbock. Her miniature work is presented in two collections, the Chelsea Collection and the Tara Collection and include miniatures on easels for table or bookcase display but which also can be hung, and a collection initially planned for dollhouse decor but now sought by collectors.

Ann Harris

Ann Harris of Houston returns for a workshop in oil florals for one day, July 11. Ann has studied under such authorities as Dick Turner, Fernie Parker and Robert Schushler, and her previous workshops here have proven most popular.

Georgia Bartlett

Georgia Bartlett's oil floral workshop will be for 2½ days, Aug. 7,8 and the half day on the 9th. Georgia is a master of floral landscapes, poppies, etc.,and is one of the really qualified instructors in her field.

Betty Young

Betty Young will be on hand for oil landscape workshops for five days, July 30 through Aug. 3. With studios in Seagraves, she has painted in all medias but is best known for the use of color in her oil landscapes. She has studied with instructors including Fredrick Taubes, Jerry Jordon and Jeannie Elliot.

Jane Hodgkins

Jane Hodgkins will conduct tole workshops including the cornhusker on July 12, the farm scene on July 23, and butterflies and zennias on glass on July 26. Jane is well respected in the field and has studied under Sherry Nelson and Mary Stewart, and has taught extensively.

Bill Huffaker

Bill Huffaker will hold an oil floral workshop for one day, Aug. 18. Bill is a popular local artist and his work reflects his expertise and his studies with such as Anne Harris, Jeannie Lewis and Danny Gamble.

With the early dates for many of the above workshops, it is strongly recommended that immediate pre-registration be arranged.

SPRING CREST, RIGHT FOR EVERY ROOM

Spring Crest Draperies Posting Special Prices During July Sale

Spring Crest's eagerly awaited July Sale is underway!

This means that significant specials are posted at Spring Crest Draperies ("the specialists") at 5302 Ave. Q, in Briercroft Shopping Center, Lubbock, and at the Spring Crest store, under same ownership, at 2613 Yonkers in Plainview.

"The two locations and the sale prices make it easier than ever for you to move up to Spring Crest!"

Among the specific sale values at each of the two stores are:

All fabrics at 20 per cent off;

Mini blinds also at 20 per cent off (Mini blinds are now carried with the new decorator valance);

Selected bedspreads at 10 per cent reduction;

Crestrand sheers at a whopping 30 per cent off;

Woven woods at 10 per cent savings; and Crestwood rods at 15 per cent off!

Free Estimates

Free estimates are a feature of the Spring Crest stores that are open 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, closing at an earlier Saturday 2 p.m. hour.

"Something special for every room un your home" is the promise and the reality at Spring Crest, and when this "something special" is available at marked-down prices without sacrifice or quality, then why wait?

Such values make it exceptionally easy to secure "something better for your home," affording a great opportunity to get acquainted with Spring Crest . . . with the products and services afforded, and with the home ownership and management.

Ben and Brenda Powell are owners, and they are most appreciative of the trade and friendships accorded.

Hang From Steel Spring

Why is Spring different?

"Actually, Spring Crest Spring-Pleated Custom Draperies are the neatest hanging draperies in the world because they actually hang from a steel spring inserted in the top hem with no crinoline headers to get soft and fall apart. They must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated."

Furthermore, aside from their beauty and simplicity, they are competitively priced.

Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock stocks a complete line of drapery fabrics.

A large line of decorator rods is stocked.

Warranty Unique

There is 10-year warranty on drapery hardware.

Only three to four weeks delivery time is involved for the custom made drapes.

Also available are woven woods, shades, shutters, custom bedspreads and the Classique metal blinds.

Drapery hardware is stocked for the "do it yourself" trade, too, with its simplicity lending itself to ease in installation.

Crestrand, the alternative to sheers (the elusive sheer that is different and popular) is stocked. It is beautiful, unique and thoroughly different.

Visa and Master Charge purchase plans are welcomed at Spring Crest Draperies of Lubbock and Plainview.

And remember this:

"No matter what your style, Spring Crest can dress your windows better; these custom draperies add elegance to the most formal setting, but also can be the perfect finishing touch to a casual room. These unusual draperies are formed by threading a spring steel pleater through a narrow hem at top of the material. Result: a drapery that hangs beautifully with rounded, supple folds rather than the sharp, still edges of conventional pinch-pleated draperies."

Spring Crest in Lubbock is located in Briercroft Center, between Earl Ray Music Co. and Maxine's Accent, with plenty of off-street, at-the-door parking. In Plainview an equally convenient location is in the Edgemere Center.

Any eye doctor's prescription can be filled at Fashion Eyewear, Inc.

Don't just take our word for it; come out and discover for yourself how Fashion Eyewear at 3833 50th St. in Lubbock is an exceptional optical dispensary."

Lubbock Independent Auto Dealers Group Emphasizes Code

"In purchase of an automobile, are the following factors of importance to you?"

Are you interested in picking the "cream of the crop" from a multi-line dealer not tied to the handling of any one make?

Are you leery of "curbsiders" with shaky guarantees or no guarantee?

Do you appreciate a dealer who follows all proper tax procedures, who is governed by Texas dealer laws, who complies with the federal laws including absolutely no tampering with the odometer?

Do you appreciate the forthright, positive approach of a dealer who adheres to a strict code of ethics?

Then . . . the solution looms clear:

Be sure you buy from an "independent", a member of the Lubbock Independent Automobile Dealers Association (LIADA) who is dedicated to fair dealing and subscribes to a meaningful code of ethics.

(It might be well to check on any auto to transaction, especially if you are unacquainted with the involved seller, to see if he is a member of the LIADA with its customer-considering code.)

Ethics Code Presented

The nine-point Code of Ethics is as follows:

(1) We will have a general duty of integrity, honor and fair dealing toward the general public.

(2) We will comply with all city, county, state and federal laws and shall endeavor to keep ourselves informed of those laws governing our business.

(3) We will not intentionally injure the business reputation of another member or competitiors.

(4) We will employ truth and accurance in advertising and selling.

(5) We will stand behind any guarantee given with sale of a motor vehicle.

(6) We will not perform any act which would bring disrepute to the motor industry.

(7) We will expose or halt, where found, any scheme designed to deceive or defraud the automobile buying public and aid in prosecuting those guilty of such acts.

(8) We will constantly strive to improve business methods to the end that the public will be better served.

(9) We will encourage the American system of free enterprise.

Members Listed

Adherence to this code is pledged by the following who are members of the Lubbock Independent Auto Dealers Association, listed in alphabetical order:

Auto Corral, B & B Auto, Baines Motors, Billy's Auto Sales, C.W.F. Investments, Duncan Motor Co., Eaton Motor Co.; Ed Wilkins, insurance; Fenner Tubbs Co. (used car department); James Mears Motor, Joe L. Smith Motor, Kelly Motor Co., Lubbock Auto Auction, M & M Auto Sales, Murl Rice Motors, Poindexter Motors, Snodgrass Maner Co. and R.W. Workman, honorary.

"We invite your confidence and business, and even urge that you ask your dealer regarding his code of ethics."

Children's Learning Center Conducts Comprehensive Summer Program

Even with summer well underway, the Children's Learning Center of Lubbock likely still can be of exceptional service to "you, too", this season.

Not only Lubbock residents, but others from South Plains towns have found that Children's Learning Center (dedicated to the development of the whole child) can be of valued service, with enrollment any day and with plans including monthly, daily or hourly drop-in upon completion of proper arrangements.

Opening in January in its all-new, modern, spacious facilities at 3514 22nd Place, the center is conducting its first summer program, and if success of this season is comparable to the successes already marked by the organization since its founding, then one can readily see why Children's Learning Center is so well received.

Added summer activities include swimming, field trips and outdoor sports in the afternoons, with usual educational attention in the mornings.

Day care, night care and drop-ins can be accommodated in the three shifts for the convenience of working parents or guardians. (First morning shift from 6:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m., second mornings shift from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., and the afternoon shift from 2:30 p.m. until 11:30 p.m.)

The Center is state licensed to handle 100 children per shift, reports Richard Ybarra who with his wife, Elaine, are founders, owners and operators.

Facilities Excel

Not only are all facilities the most modern and attractive, as well as functional, but the prices are reasonable, and the public is invited to visit and compare.

"We know you'll like what you find at Children's Learning Center of Lubbock."

Only certified workers and instructors are on the staff, with all having a related college degree or soon to receive one.

To fully appreciate the new facilities, individualized activities and nutritrious menus provided for the children (ages 2-10) one should visit the center. The imposing 4,200 sq. ft. building is situated on a specious tract enabling off-street parking. Visitors are welcome.

A Lubbock resident of some 10 years, Ybarra is principal of the A.C. Jackson Elementary School.

Mrs. Ybarra is director of the Center and she holds a bachelors degree from Eastern New Mexico University at Portales, and a master degree from Tech. She also can count qualifications including instruction in a day care center for four years while pursuing her studies at Portales.

Mr. and Mrs. Ybarra have three children of their own, and they express deep interest in children and attention to their pleasure and development.

It would seem to be an ideal situation at the fantastic Children's Learning Center of Lubbock!

A Full Program

Each child attending the Center is respected as an individual and given attention and activities particular to their needs and age. The Center is pledged to the physical, emotional, social and mental growth of each child.

Each child is provided with a nutrition program to include a hot meal during the time in the center. Morning and afternoon snacks are provided, as is a breakfast for the day shift group. The kitchen is spotless and all-new, of commercial type and inspected and passed by the city, Ybarra emphasizes.

"Call 793-0565, or better yet, visit the big, new Children's Learning Center, for a revelation in child care and development. It likely is just what you have been seeking!"

Edwards & Abernathie Explains Now Is Time To Purchase Home

"Now is the time to buy a home" advises Bernice Turquette, real estate manager for Edwards & Abernathie, Realtors, 3217 34th St., phone 792-5166.

Likely this statement is of no great surprise to those who follow today's business trends, those who are acutely aware of mortgage interest rates, housing starts, inflation rate, housing availability, and other key factors.

A key observation is emphasized:

Home prices will continbue to rise. Double-digit price hikes will continue to plague the single-family market. Due to strong consumer demand and rapid increases of the cost of land and of construction materials, the price tag on single-family homes could jump by about 10 to 11 per cent by the last quarter of '79 and early 1980.

Statistics Cited

The median sales price of existing homes will exceed $55,000 by the year end, and the median selling price of new homes will reach $64,000, while at present the median selling price on existing homes is $53,900.

The qualified observance by Edwards & Abernathie includes further pertinent facts, listed here in brief:

(Career women who are earning incomes that make home ownership possible and advisable are joining in the growing trend of single women buying homes instead of renting.)

Though many homebuyers have delayed the purchase of a home in anticipation of the decline in interest rates, the chances are they will be losing money, emphasizes Bernice Turquette.

"When the usury bill in Texas becomes law, with any new interest rates set up and effective as of Sept. 1, one does not have to guess but that rates could increase as much as two percent over our present rates."

Many people wishing to take advantage of existing lower rates are buying their homes now, homes that can be financed on an average rate of some 9 7/8 per cent.

Needless to say, home selection is excellent at this time in Lubbock, with prices seen low in comparison to houses in other larger cities in Texas and in other segments of the nation, especially on the west and east coasts.

For Any Need

Selection in Lubbock at this time is such that any conceivable demand can be met, speedily and most satisfactorily. Whether primary concern is upgrading one's living situation, in securing a home for immediate occupancy upon a possible transfer here, or if desiring a fine home seemingly 'just built for you', Edwards & Abernathie Realtors is on the job to meet the need. A good track record is graphic proof of its qualifications and its dedication in serving the public.

Proven Professionals

"Edwards & Abernathie Realtors is fortunate in having eight of the finest salespeople to be found in the Lubbock area. Our sales staff is ready to handle any buyer situation and will work at the buyer's convenience. We are members of Multiple Listing Service (MLS) and are equipped with the latest computer service that is a great help in locating just what you are looking for.

"Recent months have been among the best ever for Edwards & Abernathie Real Estate. There must be a reason.

"So why not contact us now, at Edwards & Abernathie, 3217 34th St., phone 792-5166, and make arrangements to do some looking for that home of your dreams. These homes are not going to get cheaper for a long time, if ever, is the qualified prediction of this company. So why delay?"

A lot of folks have recognized for years that Young's Rocks & Gems makes it a habit of "being a step ahead, always with the best, always with the unique and the beautiful."

Yes, the selection continually maintained at Young's is so extensive that gifts for any family member or friend, regardless of age, can be readily found there just as can be found additions to one's own collection or hobby.

Actually every budget can be served, and everythitng in its field is provided at Young's, located west across I-27 from the south boundary of the Lubbock Regional Airport. (Highway construction notwithstanding, you can reach Young's without much difficulty, and the trip there can be well worth the time and effort!)

'Manmade Diamonds'

An example of the "up to date" stock traditional at Young's is its superb selection of Cubic Zirconia (manmade diamonds). Available in colors and clears, rounds and fancy cuts, loose stones (with mounting available) have long been stocked at Young's, and are priced most competitively and at a fraction of the cost of diamonds. With an 8.5 hardness factor and with amazing retention of refraction, the Cubic Zirconia is more than a simulated diamond . . . it is the new breed of gemstone, dazzling in appearance and unmatched for color, cut and clarity.

"Whatever your jewelry preference, however extensive your jewelry collection, a Cubic Zirconia from Young's Rocks & Gems is worthy of your acquisition; and the cost is amazingly low.

For a rare stone, a masterpiece silver and turquoise creation, gems from throughout the world, diamonds, lapidary equipment, hobby tools, "starter" selections in raw and polished stones and minerals, even for faciting machines the craftsman can appreciate . . . all is at Young's.

(Selection from Young's is great to start a young friend on a hobby that can be enjoyed and pursued for one's pleasure and often even profit throughout a lifetime.

Gemstone setting is one of the services at Young's where a complete line of gemstones is stocked.

For every age, for everyone whether an avid hobbyist or just appreciating the beautiful, different, and interesting, Young's holds exceptional educational, informative and pleasurable interest, to say nothing of great buys in its several departments.

BUILDING MATERIALS SUPERMARKET, HOME AND GARDEN CENTER

Bowman July Values Highlighted By 'Energy Savers For Home

Energy Savers (and money savers!) for the home are featured in the Hot Summer Specials effective through July at Bowman, "your buildings materials supermarket and home and garden center".

Proving again that Bowman "makes it possible to fix your home the way you want it", banner specials have been arranged, with emphasis on the energy savers.

Isn't this a practical and thoughtful way to say "we appreciate your business"?

The several departments at Bowman are represented in the sale, and items are listed here at random to indicate the economy made possible by Bowman for home energy saving, remodeling, building, etc. The full picture can be viewed by coming on out to Bowman, 8301 S. University in Lubbock!

Turbine Vents

Of immediate interest and usefulness are the Leslie-Locke turbine vents (with wind brace and adjustable base) at only $20.19. These specifically save operating cost of air conditioning, saving monthly electric costs, remove humidity from the attic and stop shingle buckle caused from temperature pressure.

Of equal energy-saving significance and value are the Croft storm windows at $16.88, saving on energy and air conditioner costs.

And Croft bronze storm doors at $54.95; Croft white Colonial storm doors at $52.59, and aluminum storm doors at $42.95.

Select, at low prices, also, from bronze sliding patio doors, aluminum windows and full-view storm doors.

Owens-Corning insulation, 3 1/2-in., is just 12 cents per sq. ft., with six-inch at 18 cents. More insulation means less air conditioning!

Garage door weatherstripping, 8 ft. is just $2.79, and MD Low-Boy threshold, the ideal way to seal underdoor gaps, is just $5.85, 36-in.

Top values at everyday low prices are a feature at Bowman, and include evaporative air conditioner accessories.

All aspen cooler pads are marked at 20 per cent off.

The Leslie Locke PTR-12 powered ventilator is just $29.99; and gable triangular louvered vents are available at $14.29.

Boise Cascade kitchen cabinets, built to last a lifetime, are marked at 20 per cent off regular price, with free estimates and kitchen planning available.

L.D. Brinkman kitchen carpet is stocked for just $3.69 per square yard!

And at this time of year, special attention also is directed to Bowman's garden center with its multitude of products.

Such as:

Whiskey half barrels at $9.99; 4 ft. by 8 ft. wooden trellis at $6.99;

Garden Needs

Garden cart at $18.99; Flexogen water hose, 3/4-in. by 75 ft., at $29.95.

Regular $2.98 Dexol garden insect spray is a lesser $1.99 (16 oz.), and Diazinon granules, 2 1/2 lb., are marked down from $3.99 to $2.99!

Lawn edging, 20 gauge, is 10 ft. for $4.99.

Beautiful bird baths are stocked from $24.95.

Bark, soil conditioner and mulch, three bags for $9!

On and on the list of values continues, in every Bowman department!

"May we save for you, too, during our July Hot Summer Specials event?"

July Clearance

Small wonder folks are excited about the $150,000 Clearance Sale at Southwest TV & Appliance, 3415 82nd St.!

After all, every item is marked at sale price! The stock is large, and when the owners announce price reduction of "every" item, one is bound to sit up and take notice, especially when it is recognized that "name" brands are the rule there, without exception.

So . . . the wise word is to shop now at Southwest TV & Appliance before conclusion of the Clearance Sale July 15.

Harold Harvey Agency Assures Up-To-Date Insurance Services

"Isn't it most, most advisable to keep your insurance program up to date, programmed to meet the needs of today and tomorrow?

"Have you checked your insurance situation lately to determine if it meets the test of present needs?

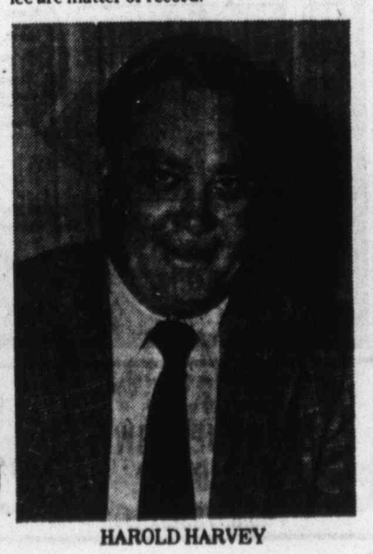

"Does your homeowners policy have inflation-guard endorsement to assure funds for replacement, regardless of inflation?

"Does your insurance fully serve the purpose of your personal preference?

"And does it need review by a knowledgeable expert in the field?

Then, turn to Harold Harvey, whether the need is for complete planning, for review, for mortgage cancellation life insurance or whatnot.

Harold Harvey's continuing efforts and subsequent successes in insurance service are matter of record.

HAROLD HARVEY

For a fact, the Harold Harvey Agency (No. 5, Briercroft Office Park, phone 747-6673) can materially assist, professionally and correctly, in the insurance picture.

Harvey takes pride in representing companies with good records, and prompt payments can be (and should be) a big factor in choosing one's insurance agent. Harvey prides in promptness.

The Harold Harvey Agency calls to attention some other situations in which they can be of prime benefit:

"Re-evaluation of one's insurance makes good sense what with property values going up every day."

Harvey points out the value of an "inflation-guard endorsement" that annually increases the insurance coverage of the home. This endorsement can be put on an annual basis on current home-owners' policies at a cost far from prohibitive. It provides a realistic protection of values.

"Specializing in fire and casualty insurance, the Harold Harvey Agency can render services that can be rewarding for every client.

Among the key areas in which Harvey can render a special service is that of home owners mortgage cancellation life insurance, paying off the mortgage in full should the breadwinner die.

The complete homeowners and mortgage cancellation package can be placed through Harvey with one company for maximum convenience and efficiency — the Floyd West Co. organization with which Harvey has had close contact since back in 1959.

Harvey also is a specialist in bonds, whether the need is administrator, guardianship, various types of court bonds, etc.

Whatever the insurance or bond need, Harold Harvey can simplify the problem. It is as elemental and easy as that.

"A package policy" that affords a substantial decrease in premiums in one of the services made available at the Harold Harvey Insurance Agency!

Applicable to commercial interests including hotel-motel and office, institutional, apartment, mercantile, processing and industrial, the Multi-Peril "package plan" is now available in Texas, and Harold Harvey at No. 5 Briercroft Office Park, is eager to assist with this program in improving one's insurance situation.

In the complex world of insurance, it makes good sense to rely on Harold Harvey, a veteran in the field.

VALUES, SELECTION ALWAYS — A full showroom of quality carpet, with prices kept as low as possible, is emphasized at Tuftwick where Arvel English, Nancy English and Hal Taylor head the knowledgeable staff that can "put carpeting in your home at less cost than you would think . . . from the carpet store where your dollar buys more."

Tuftwick's Carpet Selections, Values Meriting Early Attention

In considering carpet purchase and installation, six factors are emphasized among the many that invite reliance upon Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., Slide Road at Brownfield Highway in Lubbock.

"Consideration of each of these, one by one, could well profit you in immediate savings and long-time enjoyment of your carpeting."

(1) On July 1, all carpeting prices increased to the dealer, Tuftwick reports, with another increase looming later in the month. However, Tuftwick had a large supply on hand before that date, with still more arriving that was ordered before July 1, and all before this date is being made available at the old price! A large shipment has just been placed on the showroom floor enabling a great selection at inflation-fighting Tuftwick prices.

(2) Always, no matter the cost of carpet, Tuftwick sells at $3 to $4 per yard under suggested retail.

(3) More for the money in carpet is provided than ever before; let the folks at Tuftwick show this in graphic detail.

(4) Carpet is a great energy saver as a prime instrument in insulation. And energy savings means dollar savings.

(5) Expert installation is assured.

(6) All labor is guaranteed.

These are just some of the reasons that Tuftwick stands tall in its field. A visit to the big Tuftwick store in southwest Lubbock will reveal even more reasons for selecting and purchasing all one's carpet needs there.

"Longtime recognition of Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. as a headquarters for attractive pricing, utmost in value, and always a wide selection is a matter of general knowledge.

"But in appreciating Tuftwick for its inflation-fighting prices, have you realized that this big firm at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock includes the most elegant wool carpets, even custom made for your own situation, along with its wide choices in other materials and grades?"

Finest 100 per cent wool carpet from Philadelphia Carpets, even in custom colors, is available at Tuftwick . . . so "let us custom make your carpet" is no idle claim there.

"Seriously, if you can't find the color you need, as example, consider custom carpet manufactured especially for you, to your exact specifications!

"Imagine . . . the exact color or any imaginable color, from the softest, most delicate color of your favorite rose to the deep rich auburn shade of your Irish setter! The exact style, weight and texture . . . even the exact shape, seamless and to 25 ft. width and 60 ft. length, can be yours!

"And you can purchase only what you need. Philadelphia Carpets makes your carpet to fit each particular room, seamlessly when the room is within the above size specifications.

Carpets of imported wools assure elegant beauty and natural soil resistance. Consider Flambeau, Presentation or Supremacy from Philadelphia and Tuftwick, now; you can thus have as good a carpet as is available on the market."

Tuftwick prides in the wide selection of quality carpet kept in stock at its southwest Lubbock store.

The wide stock and the special order service is Tuftwick's contribution to helping you fix up the home for spring and summer (and all-year) enjoyment. It is Tuftwick's way of saying "the very best to you; we want to help in your home beautification and in your budget."

"Low prices are the rule at Tuftwick, with extraordinary savings posted whenever possible.

Easy terms are available, with no money down, and with up to 36 months to pay!

Attractive Display

"If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit."

Enrollment Still Enabled In Extensive Hamilton Gymnastics Season Activity

Continuous enrollment is provided in the summer program at Hamilton Gymnastics, some conceivably may not realize.

"So, for exciting courses of interest to every age and every level of achievement, one is urged to get full information now regarding participation in tumbling, apparatus, dance, cheerleading, karate and baton.

Hamilton Gymnastics, at 4811 W. Loop 289 (at corner of 50th Street and the Loop) is making quite a name for itself with its comprehensive curriculum and top grade instructors, and the summer program certainly does not detract from this reputation.

Added Feature

New "mon and tot" gymnastics classes are being offered this summer, with mom assisting the instructor. Inquire for details of these classes conducted Mondays through Thursdays, between hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Karate classes are on Wednesday evenings.

A flexible dance program is offered, together with baton, and instructors in these fields include Sharon Storey and Elizabeth Gillas. Both have records of outstanding achievement.

Vacation Aid

Johnny Hamilton, director of Hamilton Gymnastics, points out that classmembers during the summer are not charged for classes missed due to vacations.

Hamilton instructs in many classes, together with Wayne Downing, assistant coach. Downing has had four years training under Hamilton and has directed gym camps in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

It all adds to this:

"If in a quandary about summer activities, fun and achievement, then Hamilton Gym is recommended, with one of its several classes likely fitting in to one's interests and schedule.

The gym will be closed a few days in late August to prepare for the fall program.

"Surely Hamilton Gymnastics has something for you! We think so, and we'll be happy to give full details of our program and facilities. Phone the gym offices at 793-1013, or best yet, come out and see this great asset to Lubbock and area, the big Hamilton Gymnastics School at 50th Street and Loop 289."

Hamilton is a former NCAA All-American, Big 10 champion and in 1967 ranked fourth in the world professional champions (gymnastics). He has lived in Lubbock for six years and has earned quite a following in his gym program. He is an Amarillo native.

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT — Pictured is a Lubbock group copping honors in recent gymnastic competition at state level, shown here with Johnny Hamilton, coach and director of Hamilton Gymnastics where a summer program currently affords pleasure and achievement.

Economists Expect Tax Slash In 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Carter remains cool to a tax cut, many leading economists say its enactment by next spring is almost certain if recessionary trends continue.

Tax specialists in Congress also say a cut is becoming more likely, but momentum for such action is not expected until late this year or early in 1980, when the current economic slowdown is better understood and work on key legislation, such as the tax on oil company profits from the decontrol of domestic oil prices, is completed.

The Carter administration isn't convinced a recession is underway, despite evidence suggesting a decline in economic growth during the second quarter. A tax cut, presidential aides say, could intensify inflation and sabotage efforts to balance the budget.

"It would be a mistake for the administration and Congress to begin preparing a tax cut if we are going to have any hope of convincing the public we're serious about beating inflation," said Lyle Gramley, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

"We can't push the tax button at the first indication of a recession," he cautioned.

Walter Heller, council chairman during John F. Kennedy's presidency, and Alan Greenspan, chairman in the Nixon administration, are among those economists who disagree with Gramley.

"I feel a modest cut, $25 billion, or 1 percent of the gross national product, would make quite a difference in terms of the depth and duration of a recession," Heller said. "It would be a good tonic for the economy."

Heller, in a telephone interview last week, rejected the claim that a tax reduction would fuel inflation. "If you're in a soft, soft economy ... there're enough unused resources so that a tax cut will improve productivity and investment," which would work against price increases.

Greenspan envisions a tax cut by March that will aid business by cutting the corporate tax rate 1 percent and accelerating depreciation allowances.

He supports legislation proposed by a bipartisan group of lawmakers, led by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the chairman of the Joint Economic Committee. Bentsen said he foresees about a $20 billion tax reduction.

Such a cut would allow businesses to depreciate nonresidential structures in 10 years, instead of being spread over 20 years as is now the case; equipment and machinery during five years, instead of 10 years; and the first $100,000 of annual investments in certain business vehicles during three years.

Depreciation is the lowering in value of a building or machinery through wear or age. For tax purposes, companies can claim tax deductions for the amount this property depreciates.

There is growing sentiment among lawmakers and economists that any tax cut should favor business investment, even at consumers' expense.

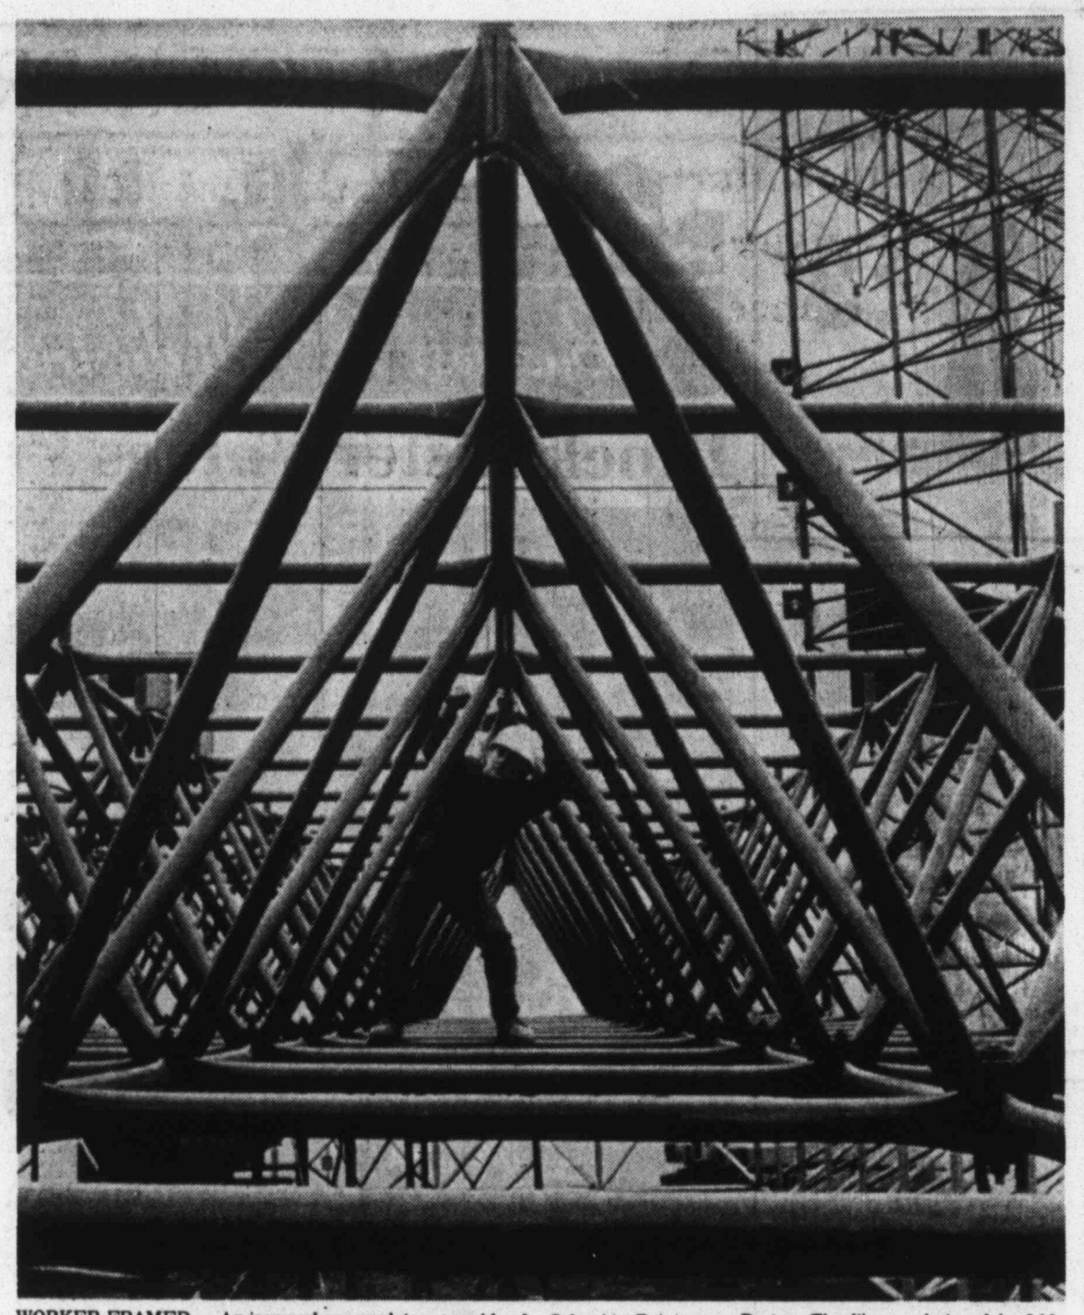

The argument goes this way: Cutting individual income taxes fuels consumer demand, which increases prices and fans inflation, currently running at an annual rate of 13.4 percent. But slashing corporate taxes will increase productive capacity, expand the supply of goods and actually cut inflation.

"That may be fine economics, but it won't hold in an election year," said a staff member of the Senate Finance Committee, who asked not to be named. "You can't easily sell a tax break for a cattle rancher when the price of beef is rising so," he said.

Any serious congressional debate, staff members of the House and Senate tax-writing committees said, probably won't occur until late this year or very early in 1980.

How fast support for a tax cut grows will depend on how rapidly the predicted recession unfolds. Last week, unemployment fell to 5.6 percent.

But private forecasters such as Data Resources Inc., of Cambridge, Mass., say these signs are not strong enough to offset other, clear recessionary trends.

Davis' Lawyers Demand Delay

FORT WORTH (UPI) — Defense attorneys for T. Cullen Davis complained today that a bailiff improperly excused potential jury panel members and demanded a delay in the Texas millionaire's murder-for-hire retrial.

District Judge Gordon Gray, who returned the case to Davis' hometown, said he would rule on the motion later in the day. He said it could result in a three-week postponement.

Ironically, it has been the prosecution that has been complaining about having to pick a jury from among Davis' hometown peers. They have stated publicly that an objective jury cannot be found among Fort Worth residents, who they say overwhelmingly support Davis.

But defense attorneys are adamant the trial on a charge that Davis solicited the murder of his divorce judge, should remain in Davis' hometown.

As a result, the selection of a jury, which was to begin today, was expected to be a lengthy procedure that will determine if the trial of one of Texas' wealthiest businessmen remains in Tarrant County.

Davis, 45, has been free on bond since the first trial, held in Houston, ended with jurors deadlocked 8-4 in favor of conviction.

The prosecution's key witness is FBI informant David McCrory — a former employee and acquaintance of Davis — who testified Davis paid him to hire a gunman to kill Judge Joe Eidson. Eidson presided over the long and bitter divorce of Davis and his ex-wife, Priscilla.

McCrory, 41, also said Davis wanted to arrange for the murders of 15 other people, including Priscilla.

The FBI and Fort Worth police videotaped and tape-recorded meetings between Davis and McCrory during which the two allegedly discussed the arrangements for the killings. One meeting involved McCrory giving Davis phony "evidence" — a staged photo — that Eidson had been killed.

Carter Confers With Politicos

viewing the range of domestic problems confronting the nation.

Carter flew to Camp David on Tuesday. Without any advance public signals, he decided on Wednesday to cancel a major speech on energy planned for the next day.

On Thursday he began consulting with senior advisers and, by Friday, the talks had blossomed into a domestic summit conference that has darkened the White House offices of Carter's key aides as they confer with the president in the Maryland woods.

Talks Sunday afternoon with a group that included representatives of environmental interests, the oil industry and academia dealt with world energy supplies and prices, strategies for reducing oil imports, and the management of the short-term enery problems, Powell reported.

Among those at that session were Energy Secretary James Schlesinger; domestic affairs adviser Stuart Eizenstat; governors Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire and Robert Graham of Florida; and two university presidents, Jerry Weisner of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and John Sawhill of New York University.

Until 12:30 a.m. Sunday, and then again over breakfast, Carter conferred with another diverse group that included the Rev. Jesse Jackson; Clark Clifford, an adviser to seven presidents, and Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO.

On his return to Washington, Jackson, a civil rights leader, said Carter was "perceptive" about "a civilizational crisis .. . that calls for radical and major reassessment."

Following his meeting, Schlesinger said it would probably take Carter several weeks to put together the energy speech he canceled last week.

"The main point is that enough time is going to be taken in order that the president feels comfortable with the decisions that he recommends," the energy secretary said in an interview broadcast today.

Schlesinger said Carter's talks with a variety of people would enrich his views "with regard to energy and in relation to other domestic problems ...."

"The very fact of viewing all of our domestic problems simultaneously in the light of history, in the light of the recent history of the United States with all of the malaise that has developed in this country in the course of the last decade will be useful in charting a new direction not only for energy, but for other issues as well," he said.

Meanwhile, as Marine Corps helicopters shuttled the guests between Washington and Camp David, there were these developments:

—Vice President Walter F. Mondale hinted in a speech in Louisville, Ky., to the National Governors Association that Carter soon would unveil an alternative fuels plan as ambitious as the program that put Americans on the moon.

"The country that developed synthet rubber overnight, the country that put a man on the moon, must now create an Apollo project to produce alternative fuels," Mondale said. "We must do that, and we must start today."

—At a closed meeting of 24 of the nation's 38 Democratic governors, 20 voted approval for a resolution praising Carter and saying: "We enthusiastically endorse his nomination and re-election."

Powell said the decisions made over the next few months and stemming from the Camp David talks "will have a profound effect on the nature of our society" for years to come.

He said that Sunday's discussions on energy did not question "the wisdom to move to phased decontrol" of oil prices, a decision Carter announced in the spring.

Nor, he indicated, was there a specific reassessment of the gasoline allocation system.

Nicaraguan Guardsmen Blamed For Executions

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nine bullet-riddled bodies were found at a government execution ground, indicating growing national guard frustration with the Sandinista guerrillas who have taken control of 24 of Nicaragua's cities and bogged down President Anastasio Somoza's drive to win back one of them, Masaya.

Reporters found the bodies of the young men, most of them blindfolded with their hands tied, on the shores of Lake Managua Sunday. The nine appeared to have been dead only a few hours.

A quick check of the area produced two more bodies which appeared to have been there for several days, plus the charred remains of at least five more, some of which were still smoldering.

A Red Cross worker said he had seen at least 10 other bodies in the immediate area.

The bodies were about 350 yards from the National Cathedral at the northern edge of Managua. Because of the 1972 earthquake the cathedral is badly damaged and is not in use. Most of the northern part of the city is uninhabited.

There had been rumors among Managua residents for several weeks that the lakeside area was a national guard execution ground, but Sunday was the first time reporters found bodies there. The dead men were dressed in civilian clothes.

Trucks carrying about 20 blindfolded young men were seen leaving the guard headquarters about a mile from where the bodies were found earlier in the day. It was not known if those killed were among those on the truck.

Meanwhile, the government's attack on the rebel-held town of Masaya, 20 miles south of the capital, was bogged down by heavy guerrilla ambushes, a Somoza spokesman said. He said most of the estimated 1,000 troops sent to retake Masaya last week are still in the surrounding countryside.

The drive on Masaya was the national guard's first attempt to retake a city from the Sandinistas. Foreign observers believe if it fails, Somoza and his family dictatorship are finished. But the national guard planes that had been pounding Masaya for three days were diverted Sunday to the northern city of Leon, Nicaragua's second largest, which also is in Sandinista hands.

The archbishop of Managua, Miguel Obando y Bravo, in a message read in all city's churches said the "indiscriminate destruction of cities ... together with the inhabitants is a crime against God and humanity." He warned against "war for vengeance" and said "the killing without discrimination of children and women when there is only suspicion that they have collaborated with the adversary has to be considered a grave war crime."

A leading Nicaraguan politician who refused to be identified said Somoza has told U.S. Ambassador Lawrence Pezzullo he will resign, but is waiting for the United States to say when. But the president told reporters on Saturday he is not resigning.

Thunderstorms Hit Panhandle, Plains

A-J News Services

Thunderstorms developed in the southeastern section of the South Plains this morning between Gail and Guthrie, while scattered thunderstorms continued to roam across the northern Panhandle and along the Gulf Coast. The National Weather Service gives the Lubbock area a 20 percent chance for precipitation tonight and Tuesday.

Hub City temperatures are expected to peak in the upper 90s this afternoon and Tuesday, cooling to the low 70s tonight.

Under fair skies Sunday, the Lubbock mercury soared to 99 degrees—a reading exceeded by numerous South Plains communities and other Texas cities. El Paso and Wichita Falls recorded highs of 105 and 102 degrees, respectively, while on the South Plains, Lamesa and Spur reached 104 degrees.

Measured precipitation throughout the state was light, with only Houston (.96 of an inch) and Brownsville (.52 of an inch) receiving more than one-half of an inch of rainfall. In Lubbock, a scant .04 of an inch was recorded Sunday.

Although measured rainfall was light, strong winds and small hail reportedly accompanied the thunderstorms that early today formed over the northern Panhandle. There were no reports of damage or injuries.

Scattered thunderstorms were forecast again today along the Gulf Coast, but for much of Texas the outlook was for generally fair skies. High temperatures were expected to range from the upper 80s in Southeast Texas to near 105 degrees along the Rio Grande River.

The extended South Plains forecast for Wednesday through Friday shows clear to partly cloudy skies, with afternoon highs in the mid to upper 90s.

Jury Still Pondering Estes Case Verdict

DALLAS (AP) — Billie Sol Estes — the former "boy wonder" of West Texas, now a paunchy, middle-aged parolee — again waits for a federal jury here to decide whether he will spend the rest of his life in prison.

The panel resumes deliberations today in the fraud and conspiracy case against the former financier and his former associate, Raymond K. Horton.

Jurors deliberated 9½ hours Thursday and Friday but adjourned for the weekend without returning a verdict on any of the counts contained in three indictments.

Estes built a $150 million fortune in the early 1960s selling mortgages on nonexistent fertilizer tanks to hundreds of farmers. His 1963 conviction on fraud charges sent shock waves from Texas to Washington.

He was paroled in 1971, however, after serving less than half of his 15-year sentence in federal prisons in Kansas, Minnesota and Texas.

The two men also are charged with concealing assets from the Internal Revenue Service so Estes would not have to pay $10 million in back taxes.

If convicted, Estes, 54, could face up to 80 years in federal prison and fines totaling $82,000, and Horton could be assessed up to 50 years and fines of $60,000.

Estes and his former secretary, Sue Goolsby, also have been charged in a four-count indictment with using documents bearing the forged signatures of Tyler millionaire Billy D. Pyron to secure loans for various business ventures.

Mrs. Goolsby is scheduled to stand trial after Estes and Horton.

The paroled swindler found himself back in the courtroom after former Mississippi promoter Don Trull released several documents, including one alleged to be a trust agreement, stolen from Estes' office more than two years ago.

Trull claimed Estes and Pyron owned him more than $1.3 million.

The revelations resulted in investigations by almost every state and federal agency in Texas and culminated last February when a federal grand jury returned the indictments.

Governors Laud Carter's Quest For Answers To Key Problems

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — President Carter already has set the course of his "domestic summit" toward a call for stringent energy conservation and a crash development of alternative fuels, Gov. Hugh Gallen of New Hampshire said today.

"I have a feeling the president knows exactly what he's doing," Gallen said. "I believe in my own mind that the president knows where he's going, but I think he wishes to have some input as to what steps to take or how to handle it," Gallen said at a news conference at the National Governors' Association convention.

Gallen was one of several governors and other national leaders who spent Sunday at Camp David, Md., where Carter began his domestic summit last week aimed at finding new answers for the country's energy and economic problems.

"I think more than anything else that the message is going to go out that we have to conserve what we have," Gallen said. "We have the natural resources to do it, and I think it's going to take the people of this country to recognize that."

Asked about hints dropped by administration officials during the governors' meeting that Carter may be moving towards an expensive program of synthetic fuel development, Gallen said, "We do not have much choice as to where we must go in this country.

"We cannot be dependent upon foreign oil," Gallen said, "because this afternoon, something could take place that would jeopardize the economy of this nation.

Gallen said he thinks "the time is ripe now where Congress is going to listen to what the president says" when Carter makes recommendations at the end of his Camp David talks. Gallen said he expects the meetings to end by Wednesday.

Democratic governors have responded with surprising force to White House pleas for political backing for President Carter as he wrestles with energy and economic problems plaguing the state leaders.

Even the Republicans at the National Governors' Association annual meeting are mostly pulling their punches until they see what comes out of the domestic summit.

After hearing Vice President Walter Mondale plead that what Carter needs most is support from his own party, the Democratic caucus passed a strong resolution Sunday calling for his re-election.

It was the second such political coup in a month by the Carter team. In Pittsburgh last month, Democratic mayors voted a resolution of support for the president in his quest for national remedies.

In an Associated Press survey of 27 governors before the conference, most of the Democrats said Carter was in trouble in their states and that the energy crisis, with gasoline lines, lost tourism and farmers and truckers competing for fuel, was causing them personal headaches.

But Friday night, a delegation of eight governors went to Camp David to talk to Carter. Since then, they have been dropping hints that the president is coming up soon with some proposals that may bail out the statehouses as well as the White House.

Sunday's resolution, sponsored by Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, was all praise for the president.

Frenchmen Launch First Nuclear Sub

CHERBOURG, France (AP) — The French government launched its first nuclear submarine, the 2,700-ton Provence, at a secret ceremony attended only by a few officials, engineers and technicians.

The 236-foot Provence is the world's smallest nuclear attack sub. Its first sea trials are scheduled for early 1981 and it is to enter active service at the beginning of 1982, officials said.

stay out of City Hall — it would probably be a prime target."

Lubbockites might take some solace in the knowledge that the director of the planetarium at Texas Tech University's museum is not concerned about any danger from the descending craft. Ronald Johnson said that the reports on Skylab's orbit show "a very slim" chance that it would hit in the Lubbock area. He said that the tube is now predicted to hit in South America or the south Atlantic Ocean.

Other residents asked about their provisions for safety from the tumbling Skylab expressed little fear for their lives.

"I don't think it will hit here," said A.E. "Bill" West. "Besides I have enough Christianity in my heart to believe that what is to be, is to be."

Beverly Workman said she has not thought about the possibility of a landing here, but said her 12-year-old son is "really impatiently awaiting the event. He's very curious and has really followed it."

Said Wayne Finnell, president of Lubbock National Bank, "We're just going to take our chances."

J.R. Warren is worried, but he does not see that there's anything he can do to alleviate that worry. "I'm worried," he said. "Who wouldn't if you have any sense." Asked if he had purchased one of the gimmicky Skylab protection helmets, Warren said he had not "and a helmet ain't going to help anyway. If it hit, it'd just drive you into the ground."

Official Hints DC-10 Return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After more than a month on the ground, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman says the beleaguered U.S. DC-10 fleet could be back in the air this week.

The 138 planes used by eight domestic airlines had carried about 60,000 to 70,000 passengers daily — about 9 percent of commercial U.S. air traffic — before they were grounded for investigation of possible defects following the nation's worst air tragedy.

With the planes parked, busy summer air traffic — made busier by the gasoline shortage — has been snarled while some airlines have been forced to lay off employees.

A decision to lift the agency's order grounding the wide-body jets was expected possibly Tuesday, FAA spokesman Fred Farrar said in Washington today.

But even if the order is lifted, the fate of the 138 domestic jumbo jets rests in the hands of a federal judge.

FAA chief Langhorne Bond put together his recommendations for the grounded jetliners over the weekend in Los Angeles and was to announce his decision in Washington, spokesman Jerry Doolittle said Sunday.

The chances "would be fairly good" that the DC-10s would be back in the air this week, Doolittle said.

Doolittle noted there will be at least a 24-hour delay in returning the planes to the air because U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson of Washington has ordered a hearing before the DC-10s fly again.

All domestic DC-10s were grounded temporarily by the FAA after 273 people died May 25 when American Airlines Flight 191 crashed after takeoff near O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

After hearing arguments by the Airline Passenger Association, which contended the planes were unsafe, Robinson also issued — but stayed execution of — an order that te fleet be grounded.

After Robinson postponed execution of the order to give the FAA a chance to defend the planes, new cracks were found in two DC-10s, and Bond on June 6 ordered the domestic fleet grounded indefinitely and directed that foreign DC-10s could not land at U.S. airports.

Doolittle said he expected Bond to allow the planes to fly again on condition that the airlines comply with certain new "air worthiness directives," probably including periodic inspections but likely not involving major structural changes.

Doolittle emphasized that Bond had not come to a final decision and may not lift the grounding order.

Many of the 143 DC-10s flown by foreign airlines have been returned to service on non-U.S. flights, and some foreign carriers — notably Laker Airlines, which operates the Skytrain between London and New York, have been critical of the FAA grounding order.

Some U.S. airlines were able to substitute other aircraft for the DC-10s, but others, including National and Western, were forced to lay off personnel and cancel some scheduled flights.

Bond spent several days in the Los Angeles area at the McDonnell Douglas plant in Long Beach where the DC-10s are built. Spokesman Ray Towne said the company had not received word of Bond's decision.

Mass Defections End Month-Long Strike

By United Press International

Independent truckers were back on the roads in full force today, their month-old strike ended by mass defections in their own ranks.

Many participants in the strike that once threatend to disrupt the nation's food supplies succumbed to the lures of big-money hauls and ereditors' pressures.

In Washington, the Transportation Department today announced four public hearings on the possibility of establishing a uniform nationwide truck weight limit, one of the truckers' key demands.

The first hearing was set for July 13 in Chicago, followed by sessions in Newark, N.J., Greensboro, N.C., and Oakland, Calif.

Most states have maximum weight limits of 80,000 pounds. But 12 states have lower limits, requiring truckers to either unload some of their goods when they get to the state line, or to drive around the states.

Members of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition, one of the last holdout bastions, voted Saturday in St. Louis to return to work after receiving a status report on the fast-fizzling strike. By late last week, it was estimated that fewer than 20 percent of the 100,000 independent truckers in the nation were honoring the strike.

"We had a break in the ranks," spokesman Bill Hill said of truckers who were getting big-money loads of up to $5,000 to haul produce from the West to the East Coast.

"But we're getting stronger all the time," he added. "We showed the government it is very possible to organize independent truckers. We have to shut down at the same time and go back at the same time."

The strike began June 7 to protest short supplies of diesel fuel, rising fuel prices, disparate truck weight limits from state to state and a variety of other issues that had griped the independent owner-operators for years.

The major gain from parking their rigs was Interstate Commerce Commission permission to levy a 7 percent surcharge on freight bills to compensate for rising fuel prices.

Beyond that, however, truckers acknowledged their gains were few.

"One of the problems we have is that the surcharge doesn't apply to the exempt trucker who hauls agriculture commodities," Paul Dietsch of Gary, Ind., another leader of the unity coalition, said Sunday.

"His biggest hope for relief is the 80,000-pound uniform weight limit and an increased speed limit. And we claimed the surcharge should have been 10 percent instead of the 7 percent they gave us.

Muzorewa Beginning Two-Day U.S. Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa of Zimbabwe Rhodesia is beginning a two-day visit aimed at rallying American support for his country's moves toward black majority rule.

Muzorewa, invited by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was scheduled to arrive here today. He is expected to meet with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and other officials.

Carter administration officials say that U.S. economic sanctions against Zimbabwe Rhodesia will remain in effect until there is more convincing evidence of a genuine shift in power from the white minority to the black majority.

Muzorewa plans to hold four news conferences Tuesday and Wednesday, hoping that American public opinion will force a change in administration policy.

In an interview today with an Associated Press reporter aboard a commercial flight that took him from Johannesburg to London, Muzorewa was asked whether he has anything new to tell American officials.

"I have a lot of things to tell them," he said. "The most important thing I will tell them is that up to now they have been misinformed and ill-advised about the situation in my country.

"As far as I know most of the people advising them in the State Department are people who are committed almost by their lives to the personalities in the Patriotic Front" — guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

At present, the Carter administration believes, in effect, that Rhodesia's 4 percent white population continues to run the country behind a black facade.

Waco Teen-Ager Held In City Stabbing Death

A 16-year-old Waco youth who is being held in Lubbock County's juvenile ward in connection with the Saturday stabbing death of Ben P. Guzman went before juvenile probation authorities at 9 a.m. today.

Juvenile officers arrested the boy at 5:30 a.m. Saturday at a relative's house.

A 19-year-old Marine military policeman on leave in Lubbock also was in the county jail this morning in connection with the incident.

Reports show that Guzman, 38, was beaten and then stabbed to death about 3 a.m. Saturday after he tried to break up a disturbance at the Sunnyside Apartments, 1027 E. 29th St., where he was manager.

Guzman was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Charles Smith, who ruled the death a homicide. An autopsy ordered by Smith revealed that Guzman was stabbed three times in the chest, and once each in the hip, back and arm. He also suffered a laceration of the head.

Services for Guzman, a native of Galveston, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Templo El Redentor, with the Rev. Joe Davila officiating.

Burial will be in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park under the direction of Henderson-Singleton Funeral Home.

Survivors include his mother, Connie P. Guzman of Lubbock; his father, Ben P. Guzman Sr. of Craigville; three daughters, Sylvia Ann Guzman, Diana Guzman and Janie Guzman, all of Craigville, Ind.; two sons, Alfonso and Rudy, both of Craigville; seven sisters, Mrs. Henry Montoya, Mrs. Joe Hernandez, Mrs. Amor Esqueda, Janie Guzman, Susy Jo Adame and Mrs. Pete Moyo, all of Lubbock, and Mrs. Eliseo Hernandez of Phoenix, Ariz.; two brothers, Rudy and Jesse, both of Lubbock; and a grandchild.

Song About Pope Popular

ROME (AP) — The Vatican Radio's pop division hasn't played it yet, but it appears the "Wojtyla Disco Dance" — a lively tune about Pope John Paul II — is the hit of the summer in Italy.

"He's the groove, he's the man, the new pope in the Vatican," say the lyrics. The record has been out for only two weeks, but is reported to have sold about 30,000 copies.

"I don't know if the pope has heard of it," said promoter Freddie van Stegeren, "but we are applying for a private audience to present the record."

Vatican prelates are aware of the record and say they prefer not to talk about it, since any comment can be seen as aiding a commercial enterprise cashing in on the popularity of the 59-year-old Polish-born pope, who was Cardinal Karol Wojtyla before becoming pontiff last year.

Chip Says Dad Will Pick Mondale

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Chip Carter says the Carter-Mondale team will be running again in 1980 despite public opinion polls that show the president's popularity is sagging.

"Mondale will accept if Dad asks him, and Dad will ask him," the younger Carter told reporters while on on a weekend tour of the Midwest.

As for the polls, young Carter said, "My father's integrity and honesty still rank high in the polls and I think we can change things around to raise his standing in other regards."

Ex-Leader Of Uganda In London

LONDON (AP) — Yusufu Lule, who served as president of Uganda for two months following the April overthrow of dictator Idi Amin, has arrived in London and is seeking hospital treatment.

Lule left Uganda amid reports of ill health and his refusal to recognize the government of his successor, Godfrey Binaisa.

His son, Waswa, 29, greeted the 69-year-old Ugandan at the airport and said: "My father is very ill. He has a serious blood disorder but we do not know exactly what is wrong."

Lule was unable to walk and was lowered from the aircraft by forklift. He was taken to Hammersmith Hospital by ambulance.

Lule was accompanied to the airport in Dar Es Salaam by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere. On Sunday, Tanzanian officials admitted Lule had been detained for two weeks as an unwilling guest. They said Nyerere tried to persuade him to renounce his claim to the Ugandan presidency.

Feline Alimony?

ATLANTA (AP) — Mary Ann Jones Dunn, who was recently divorced, can't get "cat support" to keep her 100-feline family together, a Fulton Superior Court judge has ruled.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Mrs. Dunn, 54, of College Park, Ga., said she could not afford the cat food and cleaning bills that were running up to $1,500 a month, and she asked Judge Osgood Williams to require her former husband, Henry Grady Dunn, to chip in.

In denying the request last week, Williams said state law "does not authorize support payments for animals."

Mrs. Dunn told Williams she would have to give most of the cats away. She said she already has reduced her cat family from 300 to between 75 and 100 by giving them to the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and to friends.

Voyager Begins Sending Photographs Of Europa

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Voyager 2 has began a long series of televised photos of Europa, the second largeest satellite of Jupiter, en route to its closest approach to the giant planet this afternoon.

The spacecraft, speeding along at about 44,000 mph, made a mosaic map of the moon Sunday as it passed by, 127,900 miles from its surface.

Voyager 2 made its scientific studies of Europa and the Jovian surface as it neared the giant planet. It will fly within 404,100 miles of Jupiter before being hurled onward toward Saturn, a half billion miles further into space.

The near approach was to occur at 3:29 p.m. spacecraft time, but it will take nearly 52 minutes for the signal to reach Earth at the speed of light. That will put it at 6:21 p.m. CDT.

The spacecraft made photos of the ring aound Jupiter while approaching the planet and was to make more pictures as it sailed away. The ring was discovered by Voyager 1 in March.

Scientists said the ring is believed to be thin and more like the rings of Uranus than those of Saturn.

After the close encounter, Voyager will continue its scientific investigations of Jupiter and its four Galilean moons, particularly concentrating on a series of photos of the volcanoes of Io, the bright, orange moon that is closest of the four to Jupiter.

Also, JPL spokesmen said, the spacecraft will photograph and study tiny Amalthea, the potato-shaped satellite closest to Jupiter, but not among the four Galilean moons.

Voyager 2 will pass by Io at 702,000 miles at its closest point, but a long observation period of about 10 hours has been programmed into the spacecraft's computer to study the moon's volcanoes.

Scientists said at least six active volcanoes were venting sodium, oxygen and sulfur into the space around Jupiter. The moon travels in a path called a torus, made of fast-moving sulfur and oxygen and sulfur dioxide particles.

The satellite also may have a "tenuous atmosphere" of sulfur dioxide as a result of the gases emitted by the volcanoes, Dr. Edward Stone, project scientist, said.

The volcanoes are believed to be venting directly from the core of the satellite — unlike Earth, where volcanoes originate in pockets of magma below the planet's crust.

Io is believed to be the most volcanically active body in the solar system.

Voyager 2 will continue its scientific investigation of the Jovian system until Aug. 28 while it is on the outbound leg of the journey past Jupiter and heading for Saturn.

Pilot Error Rated Cause Of Crash

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — A government investigation has blamed pilot error for last November's crash of a chartered Icelandic Airways DC-8 that killed 183 persons.

A report issued Sunday by government investigators said the plane's copilot neglected standard procedure by failing to call out the descent rate and altitude during the approach to Colombo airport. It also said a radar altimeter may have been improperly set.

The big jet, carrying 175 Indonesian Moslems back from a pilgrimage to the Mecca in Saudi Arabia, came in low and slammed into a coconut and rubber plantation about 1½ miles short of the runway. Eighty persons survived the crash, although 32 of them were injured.

Billy Criticizes St. Louis Brew

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A television show audience gave President Carter's brother, Billy, a cool reception when he put down a favorite hometown brew.

Asked his opinion of Budweiser beer, Billy Carter replied, "I tried it but I didn't like it."

The remark was greeted with a few laughs but also some jeers and murmurs. St. Louis is the home of Anheuser-Busch, brewer of Budweiser.

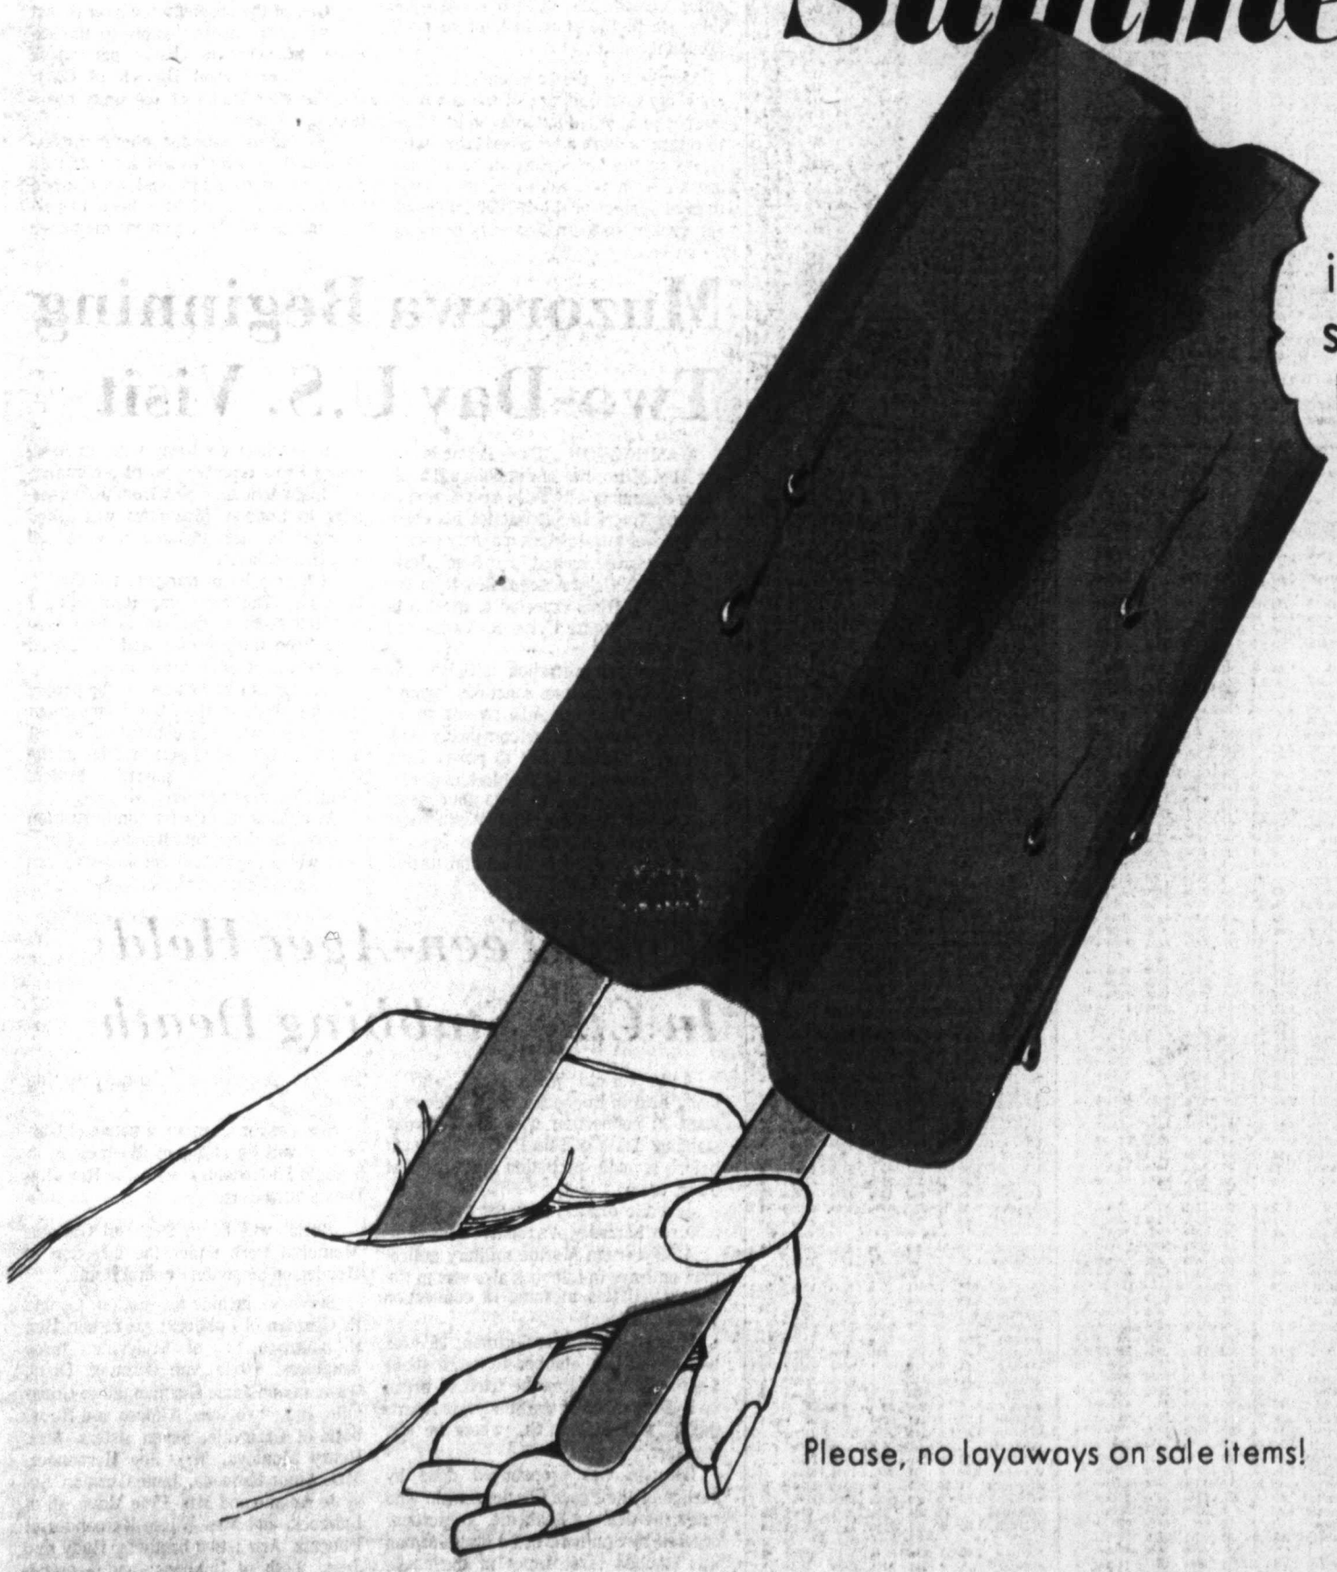

Carter, appearing Sunday at the taping of a Phil Donahue TV show, said he considers himself recovered from alcoholism since he underwent an 8-week treatment program earlier this year.

$1,000 Offered For Crime Clues

To date, Lubbock police have cleared 15 felony crimes as a direct result of informants calling Crime Line with information necessary to make arrests.

In addition to those 15 felonies, detectives are working on many leads with information received through the program.

The identity of the caller is completely protected, even from the police. A person calling the Crime Line is assigned a number or code name as soon as he calls. After detectives take action on the information, the informant calls back at an assigned time and is told whether the information was useful. Should the information lead to an indictment or confession, a "drop" is set up using the code, and the reward money is picked up in cash.

The program is funded entirely through tax-free donations from private citizens. If you wish to make a tax-free donation, send it to Crime Line, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock.

The "Spotlight Crime of the Week" carries a reward of $1,000 to anyone providing information in the murder of Arthur William Jr. at his Route 1, Box 588, residence on June 27. Williams had been shot by an unknown assailant several times in the face and once in the chest. Lubbock County sheriff's deputies found the body lying barefoot in a yard near FM 1729 and Roberts Road.

To qualify for the reward, information must be received within seven days of publication of the Spotlight information.

Several burglaries that remain unsolved also carry rewards this week. Persons with information concerning any of these will receive $300 in reward money.

The first was committed at 2304 60th St. on July 1. Investigating officers found that entry had been gained by breaking a kitchen window, and that several guns had been taken from bedroom closets.

The guns were: an antique Excel single-shot .410 shotgun, serial 157700; one H&R Topper model 158, 20-gauge shotgun, serial AH276780, engraved with Texas driver's license 5341421; a Remington model 700 BDA, serial A6362522; a Winchester .270 with 3x9 scope, Texas driver's license 6709892; a Swedish Mauser 6.5 -55, Texas driver's license 6706892; a Stevens Arms "Favorite" model 1915; a Rimfire .32 long; a Colt Peacemaker 4 inch barrel; a .22-caliber long rifle Hunter brand and holster; a Smith & Wesson .38-caliber special, serial 768607; and a jar of silver dollars and pennies worth $1,500.

Burglars struck at 4506 53rd St. on July 2, and information on the crime is worth $300. The late afternoon burglary resulted in the loss of the following items: a woman's Bulova white gold watch; a ladies class ring from Baptist High School in Little Rock, Ark.; a man's class ring from North Little Rock High School; a man's Bulova Accutron watch series 214; a 15 inch gold chain necklace; a locket-type necklace; several items of costume jewelry.

Information on this burglary is worth $300.

ALICE JEAN KINDLE

Miss Kindle Pleased With Effort

By RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Miss Lubbock, Alice Jean Kindle, returned to her parent's home in Rockwall following the Miss Texas pageant, tired but already planning to enter other beauty contests.

In a telephone interview Sunday, Miss Kindle, who was second runnerup in the Saturday contest, said she was pleased with her efforts in the Miss Texas pageant and hopes she can do as well in other contests.

Traces of disappointment were evident in her voice when she said, "Everyone who enters a pageant wants to win." But, she added, "It was a nice surprise to do as well as I did."

Miss Kindle said she didn't find the Fort Worth pageant especially nerve-wracking, thanks to her fellow contestants.

"The girls were all so nice they made it not as nerve-wracking," she said. "At first I thought it (the weeklong activites including television appearances, interviews and performances) would just be terrible."

Her most exciting moment, she said, came Thursday night when her classical piano arrangement won her the preliminary talent contest.

The Texas Tech junior, who majors in applied piano, was awarded a plaque for her classical accomplishments, and said the talent competition "was a very exciting time."

The talent contests took place Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights, following hectic days. She said she especially is happy with her win because "talent counts twice as much as beauty."

Miss Kindle said she will compete next year for the local title in another city. She cannot compete in Lubbock again because pageant rules prohibit a woman from seeking a city's title two consecutive years.

Now, however, Miss Kindle's thoughts are on her sister's Aug. 11 wedding and finding work in the Dallas area.

"I'll stay here (in Rockwall) and help plan the wedding and work," she said, adding that she will return to Lubbock in August.

She said she is glad to be through with pageant life for awhile and plans to indulge in a few private luxuries she has had to forego the past year.

"The thought of sleeping late is so nice," she said, laughing.

Lex Ann Haughey, Miss Haltom-Richland Area, was named Miss Texas for 1979 at the contest Saturday night. She will represent Texas in the annual Miss America pageant.

Farmers Must File Request

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Farmers who buy interstate natural gas for agricultural purposes must file a Priority 2 treatment request with local distributors by July 15, Attorney General Mark White said.

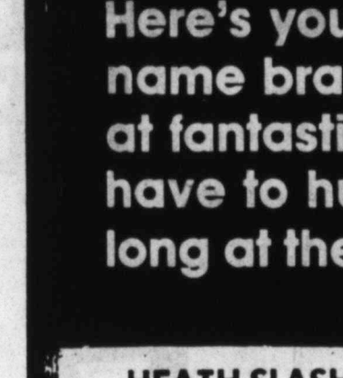

"The Priority 2 classification entitles all essential agricultural users of natural gas purchased from interstate pipelines to 100 percent of their current requirements," he said.

"Farmers had been in the absolute priority of categories of receipt for gas, but their position has been modified," Andy Keever, assistant attorney general, said Friday.

"Apparently the (Carter) administration has decided that other categories are of higher priority for the time being," he said.

The new classificaiton system, part of a natural gas curtailment plan adopted by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, is scheduled to go into effect Nov. 1.

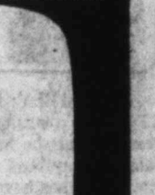

White said that after users file requests with local distributors, they will be reviewed and sent to interstate pipeline suppliers by July 30.

SPOTLIGHT ON... Family News

At Wit's End...

I've been doing a lot of thinking lately about the Kiss-'N'-Tell books.

The ones where the trusted family retainers run after former First Ladies all day and polish up their manuscripts on their day off. Where the children of superstars find a whistle and blow it, and disenchanted wives of prime ministers feel obliged to share their sex life with readers.

My personal feeling is it's unethical, an abuse of trust and is unconscionable. But what the heck, it's a living.

As I said to my cleaning woman the other day, "Who was that man who dropped you off today?"

"My husband," she said cautiously.

"What's his name?"

"Lionel."

"Is that one L or two?" I said, making a note in my notebook.

"I'm not sure. Why?"

"Nothing. I'm just trying to get to know you better."

"Is that why you taped interviews with my children?"

"They've ruined my surprise. When did they tell you?"

"They didn't. My mother told me right after you picked some correspondence and pictures from her. Did you read that awful book about my friend, Dora, written by her Friday employer? I think it's called 'Lust and Dust.'"

"Clever title," I said, jotting it down.

"It's perfectly disgusting. Why, after awhile, domestics and secretaries are going to have employers sign a statement saying they're not going to divulge any secrets they learn while we're working for them."

The phone rang.

"I'd sure hate to see that happen," I said as I faced to answer the phone. "Who's calling, please? Could you spell that? If I could just tell her the nature of the call? I see."

I turned to my cleaning woman. "It's for you. She says it's personal."

I was breathing heavily by the time I got to the extension phone in the bedroom but made it in time to hear that her Wednesday employer had written a book on her called, "Nanny, Dearest," and had just sold it to the Book-of-the-Month Club.

As I was shredding my notes, I looked up and said, "You're fired."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 13 years to a beautiful woman. I recently learned that she has been having an affair with my boss. My close friends tell me that it has been common knowledge for some time. I never suspected a thing, but now many things fit together like a jigsaw puzzle. I've been sent out of town on business trips that could have been handled locally. And although we are not in his social circle, my boss has invited us to his country club and included us when no other employees were invited.

I am in no position to quit my job. I've considered divorce, but I'm concerned about the effect it might have on our children. I am heartsick, depressed and confused. If I didn't love my children so much, I'd drive my car into a brick wall at 90 miles an hour.

Can you help me?

Betrayed In Los Angeles

I urge you to phone your local Suicide Prevention Center now. (They're listed in your phone book.) They offer individual and group therapy sessions to help you survive your depression and put your life back together again. Please call now. Write to me after you've seen them. I care.

DEAR ABBY: We have two teen-age sons. My husband opened a savings account for each of them when they were very young, and each year he puts several hundred dollars into their accounts, plus the money they receive for birthdays, Christmas, etc.

Our problem is trying to get the boys to earn money and save it on their own. What little they do earn they would fritter away on treats, records and foolishness if their father didn't insist that half of every dollar earned must go into the bank. This gives them very little incentive to earn money. They say, "What for? Dad will only make us put it in the bank."

What to do? Concerned Mother

Dear Mother: All children live for today. The future seems unreal to them. The "I want-it-now" attitude is the hallmark of immaturity. Train your children to save. If they resent it, so what? When they're older they'll appreciate having a nest egg instead of a goose egg.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after Christmas my wife bought a supply of Christmas cards at a greatly reduced price. Last evening she put them in front of me and said, "Here sign these; you aren't doing anything."

I got my pen out and started to sign the first card, then she suddenly pulled the cards away and said, "Better not. One of us might not be here next year, and I would look awfully foolish trying to explain how your name got on the card!"

John Kellogg, Findley, Ohio

Dear John: Thanks for a dandy day-brightener.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My sister eloped. My mother insists that we brothers and sisters buy wedding gifts for her since she bought gifts for our weddings.

The problem is that the rest of us all had weddings which she attended, but since she ran off and got married and didn't have a wedding, we don't think we owe her any wedding present.

We have all agreed to abide by your decision.

Wondering In Pittsburgh

Dear Wondering: A wedding gift is not a payoff for attending a wedding celebration. It is (or should be) a gesture of affection and good wishes from you to the newlyweds. Send gifts.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K954 ♡65 ◇K1062 ♣A73
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Your hand does not meet the requirements for a jump raise to three spades, but is too strong for a simple raise to two spades. The solution is to make a temporizing bid of two diamonds. Your intention, of course, is to support spades at your next turn.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ94 ♡AQ2 ◇543 ♣K105
Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—You have the strength and shape for a jump to two no trump. Nevertheless, we do not recommend that action. Since you have no diamond stopper, if anyone is to declare no trump it should be your partner. Bid one spade. If partner has a fit and no stopper in diamonds, the major suit game could be immeasurably superior.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠1093 ♡6 ◇KJ642 ♣Q543
Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?

A.—Take a demerit if you passed or responded one no trump. A raise to two spades is the correct action because your ruffing value in hearts makes your hand worth about 8 points in support of a spade contract. Don't worry about the possibility that partner might have a four-card suit. More often than not, a one spade opening bid is based on a five card suit. But even if partner has only four trumps, the Moysian 4-3 fit should be quite playable, since partner will be taking heart ruffs in the short trump hand.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q2 ♡KQJ1072 ◇A873 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ♠	Dble.	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—We are not in the habit of removing partner's penalty doubles, especially when the contract is two of a minor suit and partner hasn't doubled the enemy into game. But this hand is an exception. Since you are offensively oriented, with a virtually self-sufficient suit, and have only one sure defensive trick, we would retreat to two hearts.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ64 ♡AJ10965 ◇K3 ♣K
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—To someone who simply counts points, this is a run-of-the-mill minimum opening bid. For the connoisseur, however, this hand has steadily increased in value as the auction has progressed. Both of your minor-suit kings have increased in importance and you have excellent support for partner's second suit. We would make a general slam try by raising to five spades.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K1052 ♡63 ◇Q72 ♣KQ93
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble.	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—With this trump holding in front of declarer, you certainly don't want to pass and convert the double to penalties. Bid one no trump—10 points is about tops for this action. Introducing your club suit is an exercise in futility, for if the hand belongs in game, it should surely be played in no trump, rather than an eleven trick club contract.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J953 ♡A75 ◇642 ♣K96
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Dble.	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—You have an ace and a king more than you might have had for your initial bid, so you must make some move toward game. We wouldn't fault you greatly if you simply jumped to four spades, but the fact that you have a perfectly flat hand is something of a liability. We feel that a raise to three spades adequately conveys your intentions and expresses the strength of your hand.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ74 ♡532 ◇A1094 ♣62
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 NT	2 ♠	?

What action do you take?

A.—It looks as if Christmas has arrived early this year! You had intended passing partner's no trump opening, but now you are being offered the prospect of a juicy 300 points or better, Double. On a good day you could easily pick up 700 points.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

If you think corn is fattening, consider this:

You could eat eight ears of corn for the calories in a Big Mac or

... 6½ ears of corn for the calories in a cupful of french fries

... 3 ears of corn for the calories in a package of Twinkies

... 20 ears of corn for the calories in a pound of sirloin

... 3½ ears of corn for the calories in a container of low-fat peach yogurt.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a 5-inch ear of corn has only 70 calories, so it's hard to figure out how corn ever found its way onto the "forbidden list" of so many fad diets. The probable explanation is that corn is a vegetable, so it suffers from comparisons made with such caloric flyweights as celery and watercress.

Even when corn is compared with the so-called "starchy" foods, it emerges as a prime choice for the calorie-careful. An ear of corn has only half the calories of a hard roll or baking potato, nearly two-thirds fewer calories than a cupful of noodles. And that is without butter.

You can add a lot more butter to bread, potatoes and pasta than you can ever spread on corn. Butter can sink into a hot roll or baked potato like a cow into quicksand. But corn is non-absorbent: At least some of the butter winds up on your face, fingers and elbows.

Not only is corn misplaced on the no-no list, we'd go as far as saying that it's an ideal diet food. Here's why:

1. Corn is definitely not a "fast food." There's no way to rush it: The kernels must be nibbled a few rows at a time. Corn on the cob demands your attention; it's not the kind of food you snack on in front of the TV or pick at absent-mindedly. Eating corn is a satisfying experience that feeds all your senses. Close your eyes and think about the way corn feels, sounds and smells. 2. Corn is filling. You could put away a cupful of french fries with no effort, but even the most ambitious appetites would balk at 6½ ears of corn as a side order for a hamburger.

One reason corn is so satisfying is that it's relatively high in fiber, the non-digestible (and therefore, non-fattening) bulk that's found in fruits, vegetables and whole grains. On a weight basis, corn has seven times the fiber of french fries or noodles ... triple the fiber in a hard roll!

3. Corn is a good source of vitamin A — a half-cup of kernels provides 400 units, almost as much as yellow squash.

If you're calorie conscious, corn is a better source of vitamin A than butter or margarine. At 100 calories a tablespoon, butter has more calories than the corn you put it on.

Our favorite way to eat corn is "au jus" — sauced with its own juice. To do this, we steam corn in the smallest amount of water, then simmer the liquid down with a tiny bit of butter, to serve as a sauce. The sauce is rich with corn flavor (and vitamins). Here's how:

STEAMED CORN AU JUS

4 five-inch ears of fresh corn
1 to 2 cups water
optional: 1 tbsp. butter
(or margarine, or diet margarine)

Remove husks from corn and trim the ends of the cobs. To cook, arrange the corn in a single layer on top of a small rack, trivet, or steaming basket placed inside a heavy pot with a tight-fitting lid. Add water just to the level of the rack. Add butter or margarine. Heat water to boiling. Cover pan and lower heat to a simmer. Cook corn until tender, about 4 minutes, checking occasionally to be sure water doesn't boil away. (Add more water if needed.) Uncover pot, raise heat and continue to cook until most of the liquid has evaporated and only a few tablespoons are left. To serve: place each ear in an individual rectangular serving dish and spoon on a few tablespoons of the corn-butter liquid. To eat: roll the corn in the corn-butter sauce, add salt and pepper to taste, pick up and eat with the fingers. Makes four servings, about 95 calories each with butter or margarine; 85 calories each with diet margarine.

Doctor Claims School Turns Children Into Robots

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

The nation's five-and six-year-olds hitting the books in Grade One or learning to adjust to kindergarten are being short-changed.

They are on a conveyor belt that will turn them into robots or fashion them, cookie-cutter style, into human beings denied the chance to develop their natural sense of worth and values able to withstand peer pressure.

That's the opinion of Dr. Raymond S. Moore, developmental psychologist who favors keeping children out of school until they are eight or nine — allowing them, he says, the chance to "develop naturally." Girls would start school at eight and boys, because they aren't ready at that age, would start at nine.

Moore's voice is not the only one claiming these days that schools do things to children that should not be done: make them respond in peer pressure fashion, giving them little chance to establish their own identities and a stable sense of worth.

John Holt, the education critic from Boston, also argues that schools tend to victimize children via a social contagion that saps individuality. He's for doing away with contemporary formal schooling.

And Ivan Illich, the social critic, is among those calling attention to troublesome effects of exposing humans to so much standardized education — a la compulsory schooling. "Deschooling Society" is the title of his book on the topic.

Moore, a former college president and once an official of the United States Office of Education, also served as a school superintendent. He taught at the University of Indiana and was an officer at the University of Southern California.

His recent book, "Better Late than Early" (Reader's Digest Press), is being distributed in paperback by McGraw Hill.

"School Can Wait" is the sequel, scheduled to be published by Brigham Young University Press. The third book, in progress, will be titled "While School Waits."

The psychologist also has contributed chapters on his theory to some 40 books on developmental psychology and education.

The theory is not all that unaccepted. Moore said three states — Arizona, Mississippi, and Pennsylvania — hold it is not unlawful to keep kids from starting school until they are eight.

But in other states, if parents want to keep kids home until that age, they risk court action. Seventeen states say children must be in school by age six; 30, by seven.

Moore said feminists tend to oppose the slowly growing movement to start school later. Some feminists, in fact, favor the opposite — beginning formal education earlier than five or six.

"Mothers at home with their children for three or four additional years is what they object to," Moore said in an interview. "But children belong in the family setting at least until they are eight — if we are to do right by them."

Moore, now president of the Hewitt Research Center in Berrien Springs, Mich., and Loma Linda and Weimar, Calif., said:

"When I hear the arguments against 'late to school', I'm reminded what one of my professors at the University of California, Berkley, told us decades ago.

"Dr. Guy Wolfkill, now 95, told us the mark of the mature person is 'a willingness to sacrifice present pleasure for future benefits'.

"Parents willing to keep the children home for a few more years fit this definition. Sacrifice is required but the future benefits are incalculable."

Moore said one benefit to the child is that when he goes to school he will be well aware of his values and have personal knowledge of his strengths and weaknesses.

This kind of a child will grow into a young adult who will not have image problems or easily be re-shaped by negative pressure when he hears the argument: "But all the kids do it."

"Such children will be much more stable as adolescents and then as adults," the psychologist said.

Another benefit is that schools won't need to spend so much for remedial work. Moore said much slippage in learning in school today is due to the child not being ready perceptually for all that goes on when being 'educated' at the ages of five, six, seven, and, in the case of boys, eight.

"Their senses are not fully developed and they struggle and become frustrated. It's like expecting a boy or girl to clear the walk with a rubber snow shovel."

Going to school late would mean also that what now takes 12 years to teach would take less — reducing school expenditures.

"What we have now," Moore said, "is a system of paying more for less — unless you value humans who act all their life like sheep following a bell."

What happens during the three years tacked onto the delay in getting a child enrolled in school?

He learns organization by taking more and more responsiblity for his toys and toybox. He learns work by helping with the housework. He learns fractions by helping in the kitchen — quartering apples, for example, when Mother makes apple pie.

"But most of all," Moore said, "he learns to be a part of a family. He learns he is needed and has responsiblity and that he is wanted and depended on.

"A child with those opportunities develops a strong sense of self-worth."

The foundation Moore heads does research for school systems, churches and other nonprofit groups. In the early 50s, he was president of San-iku Gakuin College in Japan. He also taught at Tamagawa outside Toyko.

In the 60s he was a Graduate Program Officer with the U.S. Office of Education.

"Most primary teachers are in our corner," Moore said.

"I realize it is not possible for all mothers to be able to stay at home until their children are eight or nine but some arrangements should be made to help them."

Should mothers who need to earn money during those years be given payments to enable them to stay with their children?

Moore indicated that might not be a bad idea, considering the alternative.

"The increase in child delinquency, learning disabilities and family erosion — three enormous problems — are directly traceable to putting children in school before they are ready and turning over parental responsiblity for child raising to strangers."

Woman Denies Israeli Charges

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Terre Fleener, an American who spent 20 months in an Israeli prison for spying for Arab terrorists, says she never knowingly aided Palestinian guerrillas and that her confessions were obtained by threats and pyschological abuse.

"They threatened some torture ... that I would be locked in a small box. I never saw one but I understand it is like a very tiny room where you can't lie down and you can't stand up," said Miss Fleener, 24, who was released from prison last week.

The former stewardess for Kuwait Airlines allegedly took pictures of beaches and hotels for Palestinian terrorists.

"There were four confessions extracted under duress and then the case was built upon that. It is impossible ... to get a confession like this overturned in court," Miss Fleener said in an interview published Sunday in the San Antonio Express & News.

Israeli interrogators, she said, threatened to hypnotize her against her will and to inject her with truth serum.

She denied Israeli allegations that she met with a top Palestine Liberation Organization leader in 1976.

"We went around and around about that and they said they had brought someone from Lebanon they were going to torture if I didn't talk ... They had someone in a holding cell next to the room where I was being interrogated, pounding on the metal door and screaming, screaming.

"They didn't bring anyone. It was someone from SHINBET (Israeli Secret Police) in there banging on the door. That was simply another psychological tactic," she said.

"If they want to charge me with guilt by association, I had a lot of friends over there. The authorities said some of them belonged to hostile organizations. I didn't know it.

"I was not a member of the PLO and I don't think I did anything that could aid it. No one ever asked me to join and no one ever asked me to do anything for the PLO," she said.

Earlier, the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv quoted Miss Fleener, her comments apparently leaked from secret court testimony, as saying "I photographed beaches I had been requested to."

In an interview with People magazine, Miss Fleener said she was thrown to the floor several times and was "moved by force" when when she refused to go to a detention center.

Miss Fleener told the San Antonio newspaper she neither condemns or condones terrorism.

Illegal Aliens Duped By Notaries Public

DALLAS (UPI) — Many illegal Mexican aliens each year are thwarted in attempts to become American citizens and spend hundreds of wasted dollars through an unfortunate twist of language used by deceptive notaries public, who now can be prosecuted for their actions.

In Mexico, a "notario publico" is an attorney of good standing who has practiced law for at least five years and who has been certified by the state government through application. Certification of a Mexican attorney symbolizes influence, power and integrity in Mexico.

An advertisement for services of a "notario publico" to many illegal Mexican aliens represents the services of a knowledgeable, influential and well trained attorney.

A notary public in Texas, however, in most cases is not an attorney and generally has little or no influence.

"The alien who is afraid of being deported and wants to get help in getting his citizenship documents will see such an advertisement (for a "notario publico") and, believing that an American notary public is powerful and well trained, will pay exorbitant fees for a service, which should cost only $3," said Laurier B. McDonald, an Edinburg attorney who practices immigration law.

Daniel G. Fish, a consumer protection attorney with Dallas Legal Services foundation, outlined a typical case of deception:

A Mexican couple illegally in the United States gave birth in 1976 to a child, a legal American citizen. Through the child the couple became eligible for permanent resident status.

The couple gave a "notario publico" $850 to process the necessary papers. Several weeks later the couple was given a letter stating they had an appointment with the American consul general in Monterrey, Mexico.

Upon arrival, the couple was told there was no appointment, no documents had been filed and that the letter was a forgery.

In addition, U.S. immigration law had changed in the interim, prohibiting parents from using a child to claim immigration rights. The couple was unable to even seek aid from a legitimate practicing attorney.

"This is not uncommon," Fish said. "They come to us after they learn they have been taken by these "notario publicos" and are faced with deportation. Sometimes we try to find the "notario publico" who took the money and he can't be found. It's a loss. A total loss."

The Legislature this year passed a law prohibiting any notary public from advertising as a "notario publico" unless the notary is an attorney. If a notary does advertise as a "notario publico," the law requires he must further advertise he is not an attorney and has no license to practice law or collect fees for legal advice.

However, private attorneys and spokesmen for the local attorney general's office said the success of the law will depend on the extent of prosecution efforts. The lawyers predicted few cases would be prosecuted.

Commission To Decide On Case

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN— Consideration of who has jurisdiction over Whalen Lake has been moved to a conference by the Texas Railroad Commission at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

The conference will be in the third floor conference room in commission offices at 1124 Interstate Highway 35-S.

In earlier discussions by four attorneys, two each from the commission and Department of Water Resources, the lake was ruled under the jurisdiction of the commission, in accordance with DWR's water standards.

That means, DWR General Counsel Bruce Bigelow says, the question regarding discharges into the Andrews County Lake is whether the discharge requires a permit by the RRC or DWR.

"In this case," he said, "what is being discharged is the result of activities associated with oil and gas production...Therefore, it's the Railroad Commission's."

Houston Authorities Search For Rapist

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police are searching for a rapist who apparently attacks only illegal aliens — women who are then afraid to report the incidents to authorities.

A tall blond man has raped at least one woman and tried to rape four others in a predominantly Mexican-American area of the city, according to investigator Terry Pierce. Police say the man poses as an electrician to gain entry to homes during the day when the women are alone or with children.

The rapist's pattern first was noticed in April when two Mexican women living here illegally reported an attempted rape, Pierce said.

Late last month a woman reported the first rape by the attacker, described in his mid-20s, 6 feet tall, with curly, blonde hair.

Police believe he has attacked several other women who have not reported the incidents because they fear their illegal residency might be discovered or because they don't know how to report it, she said.

Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works.
The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever — (Over 35 New Improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

Search For Galleon Intensified

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — For eight years, Mel Fisher sought the treasure of a 17th century Spanish galleon lost in a hurricane, but new gold discoveries made within the past 10 days have given his search renewed intensity.

Fisher, the incurable optimist who founded Treasure Salvors Inc., insists — as he has so often in the past — that "this year's the year" for finding the main body of the treasure from the Nuestra Senora de Atocha, which sank with more than 300 people aboard near the Marquesas Islands in 1622.

This time, he might be right. His divers plan to resume their search Monday.

Fisher found the first wreckage from the Atocha in 1975, four years after his search began. Since then, his organization has recovered artifacts he values at $24.7 million.

But the bulk of the treasure — 897 silver bars weighing 75 pounds each, silver pieces of eight and copper ingots — has eluded him.

Fisher concluded that 357 years of ocean currents have spread the galleon's cargo for miles and buried it under tons of sand. He plotted a probable course 16 miles long and 1,000 feet wide for the divers to work.

The team designed L-shaped chutes they call "mailboxes" to divert the thrust from the propellers of a 167-foot diving vessel to the sea bottom and blast away the sand. They began using underwater magnetometer and ion detection equipment to alert them to the presence of buried metal objects.

Ten days ago, in one of the propeller-blasted 15-foot-deep holes in the sand bottom, diver Richard Banko found a 7-foot gold chain weighing 10 pounds.

"It was all in a ball and I just picked it up and came to the surface with it in my hands. Everybody flipped out," said Banko, 26, of Meriden, Conn.

Banko was so excited he dove back into the water, returned to the hole and emerged about five minutes later with a 6-inch gold bar.

Pit-Spitter Sets Mark

EAU CLAIRE, Mich. (UPI) — Expert use of the "Damascus barrel technique" has put a burly business machine salesman from Northbrook, Ill., into the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's best cherry pit-spitter.

George Kadenick, 47, spit a Montmorency cherry pit — chilled to a specified temperature — 58 feet, 1¼ inches to upset the former champ, who apparently overtrained in his title defense at the sixth annual International Cherry Pit Spitting Competition.

"I used the Damascus barrel technique," explained Kadenick, who stands 6-feet-6 and weighs in at 289 pounds. "You've got to roll your tongue, put the pit at the back of the tongue and just blow."

Previous record holder Bill "Pits" Mobley of Findlay, Ohio, fell far short of his old mark of 49 feet, 2 inches with a meager 31 feet, 9 inches in Saturday's event, which featured 200 competitors from as far away as Sweden and Poland.

DR. LAMB

Reduce Total Calories

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have high cholesterol. It's 299. My doctor said no cholesterol food and come back in three months. I eat no eggs, butter, bacon or pork and very little milk — only in cooking — and very little ice cream. I went back and the cholesterol was up 40 points. What do you suggest? Incidentally, I'm 71 years old.

DEAR READER — Cholesterol tests fluctuate from one determination to the next. That's why we often advise having at least three before deciding what the person's cholesterol level usually is. Stress alone can cause some people's cholesterol level to go up.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-3 to give you the general dietary principles for a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. Other readers who want this issue cand send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. As you see from it, there are quite a few more things you need to do than you may have tried.

The first important point with any of the dietary programs to lower cholesterol is to reduce your total calorie intake. If a person is overweight, meaning excess fat under the skin, none of these diets will really do much good until an adequate amount of excess body fat has been lost. After the calories are controlled, the other dietary changes such as low cholesterol and low fat, particularly low saturated fat, are more apt to help.

You need milk. It's your major source of calcium and if you're not going to use it, you'll have to take some calcium tablets or you may start having softening of your bones (osteoporsis). You can use fortified skim milk without any major concern about either fat or cholesterol intake. The same applies to using uncreamed (low-fat) cottage cheese.

I don't know whether you're overweight or not but I would suggest that you start a daily walking program to help improve your physical activity. Follow a diet that helps eliminate your obesity if you have any, eliminate the cholesterol, fats, and particularly the saturated fats, in your diet.

Some doctors don't worry very much about the cholesterol level past 65 years of age. I think that's a mistake. If you can adjust a person's cholesterol to the lower level, regardless of his age, he often does a little better. It's rarely too late to try to do something useful for people.

Many people don't realize that the mount of fat in your diet influences how much cholesterol is absorbed into your blood-stream. The fat in the mixed food bolus in your small intestine facilitates absorption of cholesterol. Even if you don't have any cholesterol in your food, it's formed by your liver and is passed with the bile into your small intestine. That cholesterol which your own body makes is then absorbed much more readily if you happen to be eating a lot of fat in your food.

Now in some cases the cholesterol is just not going to budge with dietary measures. After a truly satisfactory effort has been made by both the physician and the patient and it still stays up, then there are some medicines which can help.

Toy Indian Made From Eggshell

By SHARI LEWIS

You can make this not-very-wild Indian out of an eggshell and some bits of paper:

With a needle, poke a hole in each end of an egg. Then pick away at these holes until they are bigger than the head of a pin. If you blow gently into the hole at one end, the egg will plop out of the shell through the hole at the other end.

To make your Indian, cut a 2-inch heart shape out of cardboard. Glue the egg to these cardboard feet so that it stands upright. Cut a little blanket out of construction paper (a strip long enough to reach around the egg, shaped like the body of a small boat).

Color a design on the blanket and glue it around the egg. Either paint eyes peeking out from under the blanket, or cut them out of paper and glue them in place.

Make a headdress of feathers (cut out of paper, colored, and then glued to a strip of cellophane tape). Just stick the tape right on your Indian's head. (Your Indian can be a chief with lots of feathers, or a brave with just one.)

To make this Indian into a puppet, do not give him any feet. Instead, keep poking at the hole at the bottom of the egg until your pointer finger can fit into it.

You can give your Indian a campfire, too. Break some cotton swab sticks or toothpicks in half, stick one end of each into red food coloring, place them so they brace one another to form a tee-pee-shaped campfire and glue them in place.

The moon is full.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

Elias Howe, inventor of the sewing machine, was born July 9, 1819.

On this day in history:

In 1900, Australia entered the Federal British Commonwealth.

In 1943, American, Canadian and British forces invaded Sicily during World War II.

In 1960, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev threatened the United States with rockets if American forces attempted to oust the Castro communist regime from Cuba.

In 1974, Earl Warren, former governor of California and Chief Justice of the United States, died at the age of 83.

A thought for the day:

Author Joan Didion said, "To have that sense of one's intrinsic worth which constitutes self-respect is potentially to have everything."

GAO Says Pesticides Coming Into U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office says dangerous levels of pesticide residues in imported foods coming into the United States may be going undetected.

According to a recent report by the investigative arm of Congress, the Food and Drug Administration "does not know what pesticides are used on U.S. food imports or whether the residues that remain are safe for human consumption." But Thomas D. Morris, inspector general of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, said in a letter included with the report that many of the findings were based on outdated information and many of the accusations are not documented.

WORKING TO CLEAR NAME — Louise Mudd Arehart sits in front of the home of her grandfather, Dr. Samuel A. Mudd, who carved his niche in history by mending the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth, President Abraham Lincoln's assassin. Mudd was convicted of aiding in the assassination plot and Booth's escape. He was given a life prison sentence. The family is working to clear Mudd's name and restore his home near Byrantown, Md. (AP Laserphoto)

Descendants Continue Battle To Clear Dr. Mudd's Name

LA PLATA, Md. (AP) — For 40 years, Dr. Samuel A. Mudd's descendants have fought to clear their grandfather of the deed that inspired the saying "his name is mud" — setting the broken leg of assassin John Wilkes Booth.

The family's appeal is now before President Carter — at least the third president to consider Mudd's case in more than a century.

And this month, restoration work is beginning at the home of the Confederate sympathizer who got a life sentence for aiding Booth after he shot and killed President Abraham Lincoln.

The house, near Byrantown, Md., is being preserved as an historic landmark. It was there, about 30 miles from Washington, that Mudd repaired the actor's leg — broken when Booth leaped from the balcony of the Ford Theater, where Lincoln was mortally wounded.

"Suppose he wouldn't have set Booth's leg. What would history have said about him then?" said Louise Mudd Arehart, a 62-year-old granddaughter. "He took a Hippocratic oath of service to humanity."

Mudd's granddaughter campaigned for nearly a decade to have the house preserved as a landmark. She says a ghostly visitor inspired her to begin the effort shortly after she and her husband moved into their home here in 1962.

"I started hearing footsteps going upstairs. But we have no upstairs," she said. "I would also hear someone knocking at the door, but when I went to the door there was no one there."

Mrs. Arehart said one day she noticed man approaching her home in La Plata, about 10 miles from Bryantown.

"This man was slender ... he had an old-fashioned brown coat and cap on," she said. "I went to the front door so I could meet the man. But he wasn't there. I also went outside, but there were no footprints on the ground."

After several appearances, "I figured it had to be my grandfather," she said.

In 1975, the Maryland Historic Trust bought the property, and during its latest session, the state General Assembly appropriated $125,000 for restoration.

"The way I feel about this project is that it's important to preserve the history," Mrs. Arehart said. I think young people need it and deserve it. That's why I won't let up on it."

Meanwhile, her cousin, Dr. Richard Mudd, of Saginaw, Mich., has been trying for 40 years to have his grandfather exonerated.

Mudd was pardoned by President Andrew Johnson when he helped stop an outbreak of yellow fever on the Florida Keys island where he was imprisoned for four years.

But the Mudd family contends the pardon implies their grandfather did something wrong — something they vehemently reject.

Their latest petition, presented to Carter by Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., and Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., asks that Mudd's conviction be declared null and void.

"The family has been doing something on this for years," said Peggy Nalle, a spokeswoman for Mathais. "Previously, the petitions have gone to the White House and then on to the judge advocate general's office in the military. This time it got to the Justice Department, and the family feels that they've made progress.

She said the White House was considering "some sort of letter" to Mudd, but Robert Lipshutz, Carter's chief counsel, said "no decision has been made at this time."

Inflation, Easy Credit Make Debt Attractive

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Americans are sinking deeper in debt as inflation and the availability of credit make it more attractive than ever to "buy now and pay later."

The Federal Reserve System said that outstanding consumer debt — not counting mortgages — rose to almost $288 billion at the end of May, an increase of 18 percent from the total a year earlier.

During May, the amount of credit outstanding grew by more $3.7 billion on a seasonally-adjusted basis. Consumers borrowed a record $28 billion and paid off a record $24.3 billion in oustanding debt.

Some creditors say delinquency rates are rising, but they note that the rates are still below the peaks of the 1975 recession.

Timothy J. Connor of Interbank, which oversees Master Charge, said that cardholders had $10.6 billion in oustanding balances at the end of 1978; 4 percent of the money was 30 days or more past due. A year earlier, there was $7.5 billion outstanding and the delinquency rate was 3.3 percent.

"It's been fairly constant," said Connor. He said the record delinquency rate was 5.5 rcent at the end of the first quarter of 1975.

Cynthia Chaddick of Visa said that at the end of 1978 the delinquency rate was about 3.7 percent, one percentage point higher than it was a year earlier. "This is not a new high for us," Ms. Chaddick said, adding that a 5 percent delinquency rate was recorded at the end of 1974.

She said part of the increase is due to the fact that banks are now offering more than one card. The number of borrowers — and the amount they are borrowing — has increased sharply as more people use both Visa and Master Charge cards. "We have expected, to a degree, an increase in delinquencies," Miss Haddick said.

There are more than 100 millon Visa and Master Charge cards in the United States. There are over 10 million "travel and entertainment" cards like American Express, Diner's Club and Carte Blanche. Millions of cards are issued by oil companies, retail stores, airlines, etc.

Because of the proliferation of plastic, it is important to shop around for the best deal on credit.

There are two basic kinds of cards. One category is represented by the "travel and entertainment" cards. There is an annual membership fee. In most cases, there is no interest charge, but you must pay your bill in full within a fixed period — usually 30 days of the billing date — or face penalties. American Express, for example, imposes a "delinquency charge" of 1½ percent per month on balances that are not paid within 90 days. The company also may revoke the card.

The bank cards represent the second major type of card. There is no membership fee. You are allowed to let your account "revolve," paying a minimum amount each month, but you are assessed interest on the unpaid balance. Interest rates generally are tied to state usury laws and do not vary from creditor to creditor. The method by which the interest is calculated may vary, however.

There are three ways to calculate interest: adjusted balance, previous balance and average daily balance. The adjusted balance method offers the best deal; interest charges are based on the balance left after subtracting payments made during the billing period. The previous balance method gives you the worst deal; interest is charged on the full amount outstanding at the end of the last billing period; you do not get credit for new payments.

The average daily balance method is in the middle and it's the most common. Creditos add your oustanding balance for each day in the billing period and then divide by the number of days. A payment early in the billing period, therefore, becomes more valuable to you in terms of interest than the same payment late in the billing period.

Teen-Agers Lacking Consumer Skills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of America's 17-year-old high school students are being shortchanged on the skills they need to be good consumers, a government-financed study indicates.

The report, released today by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, paints a mixed picture of teenagers' consumer knowledge based on a survey of 4,300 youths.

The youths, who were given a battery of multiple-choice questions last year, answered only 57 percent correctly.

The teen-agers scored high on questions that required a basic understanding of how checking accounts work and about advertising and warranties.

But other questions uncovered blind spots in the students' perceptions as consumers or showed that they have trouble with math skills "needed to make quick, simple calculations demanded of the wise consumer," according to the test-givers.

For instance, 82 percent chose a correct definition of inflation, but only 14 percent realized that a homeowner with a long-term mortgage was most likely to benefit during a period of inflation. Some 28 percent incorrectly answered that someone who loaned $10,000 at today's loan rates would benefit most.

A majority of the youths said they would complain if they got an auto bill $100 over the original estimate, or if a new dental filling fell out, or if a salesman refused to sell them a stereo advertised at a very low price and tried to push a costlier model. But 60 percent said they would not complain if a store did not have blue jeans advertised on sale.

Students were generally confused about the role of Better Business Bureaus. Some 53 percent mistakenly thought the bureaus got tax support, and most did not know the bureaus' primary purpose was to help businesses.

Some other findings:

—Half the youths thought it was illegal to keep unordered merchandise received in the mail. Only 39 percent knew it was legal.

—One-third mistakenly thought that renters can deduct their rent from their income taxes. Some 36 percent knew that was wrong and 30 percent were not sure.

—Some 55 percent erroneously thought renters were protected against fire and theft under their landlords' insurance.

—Only 37 percent knew that merchants pay banks a charge on each credit card purchase.

—Less than one-third knew that if their car was repossessed and sold for less than they owed, they were responsible for the difference.

The youths also turned in a mixed performance on energy questions.

Almost half — 46 percent — knew that coal was the largest fossil fuel reserve in the United States. Only one-third knew that electric clothes dryers consume more energy in 15 minutes than color television sets, vacuum cleaners, dishwashers or washing machines.

The youths also were asked about possible causes of the energy problem.

Some 46 percent felt that "energy producers' desires for large profits" were a large part of the problem; 45 percent said actual physical shortages of energy resources were. Overall, 84 percent said the physical shortages played "some" or a "large" part, while 75 percent suspected oil companies' profiteering.

A majorit felt government regulations played a art in th problem, and more than 90 percent also blamed industry and consumers for wasting energy.

The survey was financed by HEW's National Institute of Education.

Young Lubbock Man Arrested For Alleged Pot Possession

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 12:45 a.m. today for alleged possession of marijuana after police were told the man had pulled a gun at a Clovis Road club.

The suspect was confronted by police in the 2800-block of Grinnell Street. Reports indicate a loaded pistol and more than a pound of marijuana was found in the suspect's vehicle.

The man was booked into the county jail on charges of felony possession of marijuana and unlawfully carrying of a weapon.

In other activity, thieves struck several houses under construction in the 5300-block of 85th Street.

House builder Lawrence A. Bates told police Sunday he lost $2,000 in property after thieves made off with a door, chandelier and air conditioner compressor from a house he was building at 5315 85th St.

Another builder, Edwin Lee Roberts, said that between 5 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday a $1,600 air conditioner compressor was stolen from a house he was building at 5317 85th St. No arrests had been made in the two thefts by late this morning.

Thomas Darrell Tramell of 1604 61st St. told police his wife's purse containing four $100 bills and a $273 check was stolen from his residence between 1 a.m. and 11:45 a.m. Sunday.

Isriel McBride, 24, of Ralls was treated at Health Sciences Center Hospital and released after he was beaten with a tire tool about 6:05 a.m. Sunday in the 2500 block of Quirt Avenue.

McBride told police that a man and a woman began beating him with their fists and the tire tool while he was standing next to his car. After the incident, the victim said he crawled to a residence in the 1700 block of East 26th St., and EMS was called.

Police reports also show that the rear and side windows of the victim's car had been knocked out.

Police Sunday also investigated an arson and auto theft, which reportedly occurred about 1:11 a.m. at a convenience store at 2608 Ave. Q.

Attendant Keenan Shane Rice reported that when he went to investigate smoke coming from the back of the store, he saw a man drive away in his $6,800 car. He said the suspect, described as a black male, 18 to 25, of medium height and heavy, drove west from the store.

Rice told police that he thought the suspect had set fire to the storeroom to distract him while the man drove off with his car.

Carlotta Rodriquez, 57, and Yolanda Alonzo, 23, both of 2707 Weber Dr., told police that a man entered their apartment about 6 a.m. Sunday and took their purses, which contained about $2,191 in cash and jewelry.

Miss Alonzo said she was awakened by a slamming bathroom door and saw the suspect run out the front door. She said the suspect was a black male, 14 to 17, short and thin, and was wearing red shorts.

A 21-year-old Lubbock man is minus $150 in cash after he gave a ride to a hitchhiker about 4:15 p.m. Saturday.

James Ray Jeffcoat told police that he picked up a black male at Third Street and University Avenue. He reported that when he stopped to let out the man at 10th Street and Avenue T, the suspect pulled a knife and told him, "Give me what you have in your pockets."

The suspect, described as 18 to 25, tall and of medium build, took the money and fled to a nearby apartment complex. Jeffcoat said the suspect was wearing a blue-and-white hat, brown tanktop and blue jeans.

C.E. Pryor of 3004 59th St. said that burglars took old coins and a watch, valued together at $3,400, from his house sometime between Wednesday and Saturday.

Prosecutors Will Call Witnesses To Murders

MIAMI (AP) — Jury selection and preliminary defense motions completed, Theodore Bundy's murder trial gets into full swing this week with prosecutors trying to prove the former Utah law student was the club-carrying assailant who killed two sleeping sorority women.

As the trial enters its third week today, prosecutors said they would call as witnesses some of the young women who lived in the sorority house where Lisa Levy and Margaret Bowman were slain 18 months ago.

Bundy, 32, is also charged with attempted murder in the beatings of three other Florida State University women the same morning — two in the Chi Omega sorority house and one in a nearby apartment.

In opening arguments Saturday, prosecutor Larry Simpson promised the jury a case built on eyewitness testimony and bite marks found on one victim's body.

Simpson did not say his case would point directly to Bundy as the killer. But he pledged "a consistent presentation that will leave you with only one conclusion."

Public Defender Robert Haggard told the jury the evidence is "manufactured" and predicted acquittal. He argued the eyewitness couldn't possibly have made the positive identification she claims and said the bite marks will prove inconclusive.

Two of the prosecution's key witnesses are former Chi Omega roomates who first discovered something was wrong the morning of Jan. 15, 1978.

Nita Neary testified last week, while the jury was sequestered, that she saw Bundy leaving the house with a stocking-wrapped club when she returned from a date that morning.

She has said she awakened roommate Nancy Dowdy and the two went to check whether the door was locked — unaware that Miss Levy, 20, and Miss Bowman, 21, were dead or dying in their upstairs bedrooms or that Karen Chandler and Kathy Kleiner had their skulls fractured.

Other evidence, which the defense unsucessfully tried to have suppressed, will include photos of bite marks found on Miss Levy's body and a pantyhose mask discovered at one woman's apartment.

Bundy, of Tacoma, Wash., was awaiting trial for the 1975 slaying of a Michigan woman when he broke out of a Colorado jail in 1977, later turning up in Florida. He also faces a murder charge in the slaying of a 12-year-old Lake City, Fla. girl.

Police Hunt Homicide Suspect

Police early today continued to look for a man in connection with the city's 14th homicide of the year.

Edward James Cooper, 21, of 3319 E. 14th St. died Sunday night at West Texas Hospital after being riddled by gunfire shortly after 2 a.m. that day.

The victim suffered wounds to the chest, hand and buttock while talking to a man in the 800-block of Avenue C, according to reports.

A witness told police he was talking to Cooper when a man approached from a nearby alley and shot the victim five times.

The gunman was described as a black man who had driven by Cooper and the witness about five minutes earlier in a gray El Camino.

The uninjured man, who talked to police at the hospital's emergency room, said he ran from the scene after the shooting because he was "scared."

Reports show that Cooper, who was taken to the hospital by private vehicle, also had been in a fight with a black man earlier in the day.

The dead man was taken to South Plains Funeral Home where services were pending early today.

Shooting Victims Hospitalized

Zeferino Sauceda, 25, of Slaton was listed in serious condition this morning at Methodist Hospital with a gunshot wound to the chest he suffered Saturday in front of an East Broadway nightclub.

Also injured in the same incident were Ramon Taronga, 21, address unknown, who is in serious condition today at West Texas Hospital, with a bullet wound to the stomach.

Fios Garcia, 19, address unknown, was listed in satisfactory condition today in West Texas Hospital. He also was injured in the fracas.

A New Challenge

IT WAS BUSINESS as usual when the Dallas Cowboys opened their summer training camp Friday at Thousand Oaks, Calif. Cars and buses shuttled 75 rookies and a handful of assorted veterans from the airport to the California Lutheran College campus. There was the usual commotion as the gridders checked into their dorms, took their physicals and attended Coach Tom Landry's initial briefing session.

There were few surprises. A couple of free agent running backs flunked their physicals because of knee injuries and a sprinter from Austin Peay failed to show. He was a long shot at best, signed only because of his blazing speed, and he apparently decided running down a track was a lot different from running at Jack Lambert.

He was right. Lambert takes very few prisoners.

Saturday was a fun day, too. The gridders went through Landry's special torture session called the "functional strength test." It is too complex to describe in this space, but it involves alternate sessions of sprinting and weight-lifting with little time for breathing.

Walt Garrison, not one easily dismayed, once said the functional strength test was no worse than having six teeth pulled at the same time. A lot of players agreed with him on that.

THE SKY OVER Thousand Oaks usually is clear this time of year, after the morning fog melts away, but some observers think they see a dark cloud over the Cowboy camp. The 'Pokes have some problems that threaten their 13-year winning streak and hopes for a sixth Super Bowl trip.

Not since 1974, when the Cowboys slogged through training camp during a players' strike and defections to the World Football League, has Landry started the season with so many holes in the dike.

First on the agenda, of course, is the matter of rebuilding the defensive line. Veteran Jethro Pugh retired soon after the Super Bowl and big Ed Jones recently hung up his helmet to become a boxer.

Losing two starters at the same time may not seem all that disastrous to some, but Landry ranks it with the fall of the Alamo and the communist victory in Southeast Asia. Defense has been the foundation of the Dallas dynasty, and now a big chunk of the underpinning is missing.

"It (the loss of Pugh and Jones) has weakened us considerably," Landry said last week with clenched teeth. "Although Jethro was hampered by injuries last year, his presence was very important. With Ed going at the same time, we've basically lost the left side of our line. You don't replace that overnight. It will take some time to develop as solid a left side as we've had during the last three years."

THAT ISN'T THE only headache bothering Landry, either. The loss to Pittsburgh in Super Bowl XIII last January exposed some weaknesses in the Dallas team which must be corrected if the 'Pokes are to ride high again.

Terry Bradshaw and Lynn Swann ripped the Dallas cornerbacks to ribbons in the Big One, despite the efforts of All-Pro safeties Cliff Harris and Charlie Waters to help cover for their teammates. It was no accident that Landry drafted a cornerback in the second round this spring.

The offensive line has been living on its reputation the last couple of years, but now Pat Donovan and Billy Joe DuPree must have some help in the blocking department. Landry used some high draft choices to strengthen this area, too.

Psychology plays a big part in the football, as everyone knows, and there is talk that the Steelers have intimidated the Cowboys with their two big Super Bowl victories in recent years. In fact, the Cowboys haven't beaten the Steelers in a game that counted since most can remember.

One Pittsburgh aide is quoted as saying that Dallas will have trouble swallowing the next time the 'Pokes face the Steelers. But then assistant coaches can afford to be brash — they don't have to play.

WITH ALL THE PROBLEMS, some Cowboy fans may be tempted to scrape those Dallas decals off their car windshields. But there is a ray of hope. Landry has faced this situation before, in various forms, and emerged as a winner. A man who has flown combat missions over Germany and coached Duane Thomas has seen it all.

The 1979 season is going to be uphill and against the wind all the way, no doubt, but there are some competitors in the Cowboy organization who enjoy a challenge. "If it was easy, there wouldn't be much satisfaction or glory in winning," Cliff Harris remarked recently.

Landry will drink (a Coke) to that.

Injured Carew Tops Star Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Carew topped the American League All-Star voting for the fourth time and became the only major leaguer to be elected in all 10 years of the fan balloting, according to the final tabulations announced today by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

However, the California Angels first baseman, who started the last three All-Star games at first and the previous six at second base, will be out of Manager Bob Lemon's AL lineup for the clash against the National League at Seattle's Kingdome June 17 because of ligament damage in his right thumb.

The replacement at first for Carew, who drew 3,997,081 votes, tops of any player in either league, will be Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee, who drew just over a million votes.

He will join shortstop Roy Smalley of the Minnesota Twins, catcher Darrell Porter, second baseman Frank White and third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals and outfielders Jim Rice, Fred Lynn, and Carl Yaztrzemski, all of the Boston Red Sox, in the starting lineup.

Smalley, whose major league-leading .362 average netted him 2,572,331 votes, will be making his first All-Star appearance. By beating out New York Yankee Bucky Dent by over a half-million votes, Smalley became the AL's fifth different starting shortstop in the last five years.

Also elected for the first time were White and Porter, whose 2,046,505 votes ended the catching dominance shared by New York's Thurman Munson and Boston's Carlton Fisk.

White, a backup All-Star at short in last year's game, also became the fifth starter at his position in five seasons, beating out 1977 starter Willie Randolph of the Yankees by 190,127 votes.

Boston's starting outfield had been running 1-2-3 through virtually the entire voting period. At the wire, Rice just edged past Lynn, who had led the outfield voting until the final count. Reggie Jackson of New York finished less than 400,000 votes behind Yaztrzemski.

Nelson Rallies

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Simplicity is not part of Larry Nelson's golf game.

He was a consistent money-maker in his five years on the tour, but didn't score his first victory until this year's Inverrary. Last week, he had a great shot at his second win — until Gil Morgan rolled home a 40-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole at the Memphis Classic to beat him.

It appeared Sunday he would have little trouble winning the Western Open. He had played steady golf for three days, and the man expected to be his biggest threat, Tom Watson, had fallen apart early in the final round.

After 16 holes, Nelson was four under par and led little-known Dan Pohl by a shot. But after run-ins with a bunker and a couple of trees on the 17th hole his lead had vanished with a double bogey. He finished with a final round 76, four over par.

Pohl bogeyed the last two holes, however, setting up another playoff for Nelson — this time with Ben Crenshaw, who had a 71. Both were at 2-under-par 286, while Pohl dropped into a tie with Bruce Devlin at 287.

"The only thing I figured was I couldn't hurt my (playoff) average. I'd either be 0-for-2 or 1-for-2," said Nelson.

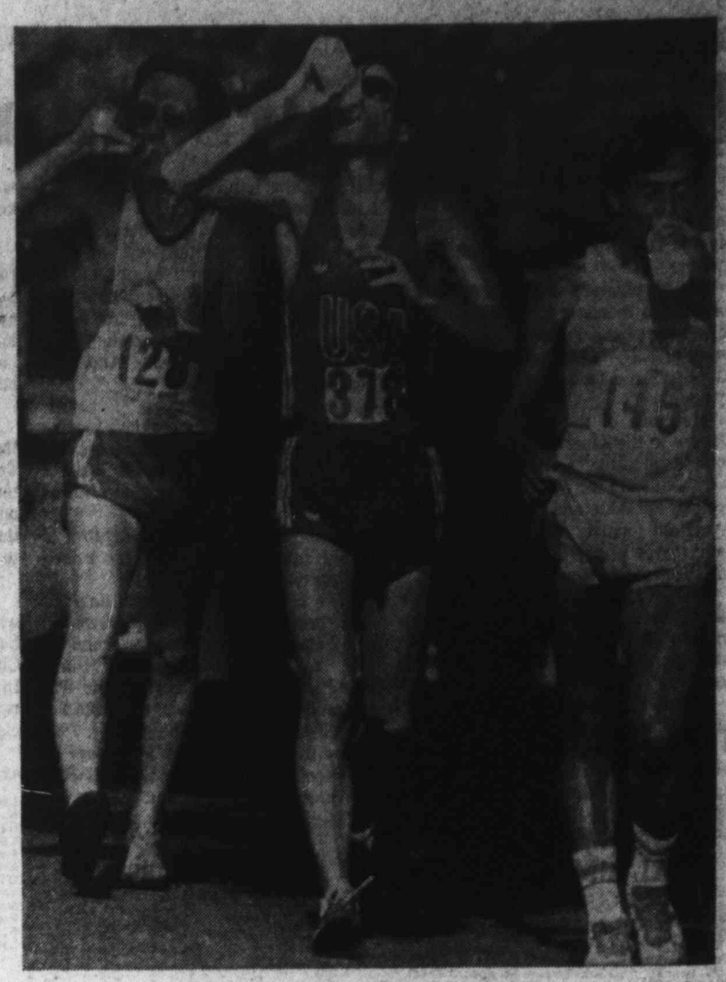

"This is one of the toughest days I think I've ever spent on a golf course," he said. "I was just mentally and physically drained — and I hit two of the best shots I hit all week (in the playoff)."

On the first playoff hole, the 381-yard 16th, Nelson hit a three-wood and a nine-iron to about two feet of the hole and made a birdie after Crenshaw got a par four.

That gave Nelson the top prize of $54,000 in the $300,000 tournament on the par 72, 7,097-yard Butler National Golf Club course. He jumped from fifth to second place on the 1979 money list with $235,097.

"I don't feel I'm mechanically any better than I was three or four years ago," said Nelson. "I feel I'm not making many mistakes. I think I'm just maturing as a professional golfer."

Watson began the day at 5-under-par, one stroke behind Nelson. But Watson, the tour's leading money-winner, bogeyed four holes on the front nine and ended up with a 78, tying his worst round of the year.

Knight Troubled Again

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Bobby Knight survived another possible elimination bout and advanced with his American basketball team into the championship round as the United States forces continued to roll up impressive statistics Sunday in the VIII Pan American Games.

The 38-year-old Indiana University coach, known for his fiery temper and colorful dialogues with press, officials, fans and others within earshot, spent a few minutes down at a local police station here Sunday morning after skirmishing with an officer.

A U.S. Olympic Committee spokesman said Knight disagreed over who was supposed to have access to the practice court, and the misunderstanding grew to the point it had to be moved downtown.

Officials said no charges were filed, and that an amicable solution was reached. Later Sunday, Knight was the picture of decorum on the bench as the U.S. team pasted Canada, 97-76, to move within four games of a gold medal.

USOC officials said, "There is absolutely no truth" to a report that Knight might have to make a court appearance later this week in connection with the incident. "It's finis," an official said.

Knight, in making personal headlines here for at least the third time, had no comment.

Except for an occasional parry and thrust with newsmen, the explosive Knight had been dormant since the start of the Games.

Knight was ejected from the opening game, for vehemently arguing a charging call in a 35-point rout.

The next day, Knight was called before the Games' Technical Committee and admonished for his on-court behavior.

Meanwhile, on the field of sport, Americans began the second and final week of competition with 13 more gold medals, including the last four in swimming. Americans took all but one gold in a week of swimming activity, posting Pan Am records in each victory and two world marks.

In the second day of track and field, the United States competitors accomplished about what was expected of them, winning five of the day's six gold medals awarded, bringing their totals in the sport over two days to seven golds in 11 events.

Stacy Wins Tourney

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Hollis Stacy wasn't satisfied with her golf game last week as she looked ahead to her bid for an unprecedented third consecutive U.S. Women's Open crown.

So the 25-year-old Georgian turned a last minute decision into her sixth pro victory at the Mayflower Classic.

"I wasn't happy with the way my game was. It was kind of on the borderline of playing really well," Miss Stacy said Sunday after winning a three-way sudden death playoff with Judy Rankin and Laura Baugh in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I felt I needed a win going into the Open," said Miss Stacy, who decided to compete here after earlier saying she'd skip the tournament.

Miss Stacy announced her decision to LPGA officials July 1 and it paid off as she carded rounds of 74-67-72 for a 3-under 213 at the 6,044 yard, par-72 Harbour Trees Golf Club course.

"I was hitting the ball well. But my ball was going around the edge ... everywhere but in the hole," she said about her game before she earned $15,000 here.

"I haven't been playing that much. I played four tournaments in seven weeks and I just didn't feel like I had a good competitive edge going into the Open. So I figured one last gallant effort would get me ready to roll."

Miss Stacy goes into the Open at Fairfield, Conn. about 20 pounds lighter than when she won it for the second time in Indianapolis last July.

"It just seems more practical," she said about weighing less. "It's just a matter of closing the mouth. I hate diets, but I just cut down on my intake and I'm drinking less beer."

Hitter Spurs Rangers Over Toronto; Astros Fall

A-J News Services

A catcher on the same team with Jim Sundberg, John Ellis got a lot of bench duty the last two years with the Texas Rangers.

That all changed when Pat Corrales took over as manager for this season, to the misery of the Toronto Blue Jays, a victim of Ellis' three-run homer in the sixth that gave Texas a 4-3 victory Sunday night.

"He's one of the greatest offensive weapons in the American League. He's a professional hitter," Corrales says.

Ellis hit .419 for Texas in 1976 before breaking an ankle and Corrales said the 30-year-old native of New London, Conn., "was pretty much the forgotten man the next two years."

One of Corrales' first acts was to make Ellis a player-coach and to insert him into the lineup as much as possible, either as designated hitter or at first base.

In the bottom of the sixth Sunday night, leading 3-1, Toronto had just added further frustration to the Rangers by pulling off their fourth double play.

But Richie Zisk walked to put runners on first and third, and Ellis hit a hanging breaking pitch off Balor Moore, 2-1, into the left field stands, but just foul. Moore then offered a changeup, and Ellis knocked it over the left field fence, this time in fair territory.

It was Ellis' eighth homer of the year. His bat was hottest earlier in the season, when Texas won its first seven games. The win Sunday gave the Rangers a half-game lead in the American League West.

Cubs 10, Astros 0

Ted Sizemore says he enjoys playing in the second half of the season, and those words are music to the ears of fans who have not seen a winner for 34 years.

Sizemore went 4-for-4 Sunday to lead a 17-hit attack that gave Chicago a decisive win over Houston.

"We have it going, we're hitting and we're breaking out now," said Sizemore, who helped out in a five-run second inning. A run-scoring single by Barry Foote and Sizemore's RBI double was followed by Ivan DeJesus' three-run homer, his third homer of the season.

Astros' manager Bill Virdon says he isn't too worried even though his club lost three of four to the Cubs.

"We started out 5 1/2 ahead, now we're seven ahead," he said. "I'd say we kept our heads above water."

Dodgers 8, Expos 6

Rick Sutcliffe, 8-7, drove in three runs with a sixth-inning double and pitched a five-hitter over 7 1-3 innings and Los Angeles snapped a four-game losing streak. Dave Lopes hit his 19th homer for the Dodgers. Ellis Valentine had a two-run shot for Montreal.

Padres 5-1, Mets 4

Doug Flynn doubled in three runs in the second inning and Andy Hassler and Tom Hausman combined on a four-hitter to give New York a split. In the opener, Dave Winfield's two-run, fourth inning single carried Gaylord Perry, 9-6, to the 276th win of his career.

Pirates 2-2, Reds 4-1

Willie Stargell cracked a solo homer with one out in the ninth, helping Pittsburgh divide the doubleheader and snap Cincinnati's four-game winning streak. In the opener, Dan Driessen hit a three-run homer and Fred Norman tossed an eight-hitter to spark the Reds.

Phillies 5, Giants 3

Mike Schmidt tied the game in the sixth with his fifth homer in three games and Pete Rose singled home the decisive run in the seventh. Steve Carlton, 10-8, struck out a team season-high 14 batters while Bob Knepper, 6-3, took the loss. Schmidt, who now has 28 homers, homered in his last at-bat Friday and three times Saturday for a streak of five in eight at-bats.

Yankees 2, A's 0

Luis Tiant allowed one baserunner — on Ricky Henderson's line single to left in the third — and Reggie Jackson hit his 15th home of the season, helping New York complete a four-game sweep of Oakland. Jackson's homer came off A's starter and loser Brian Kingman, 0-2, in the third.

Atlanta 6, St. Louis 5

Jerry Royster singled in Pepe Frias from second base with two out in the ninth to help Atlanta rebound after squandering a three-run lead in the top of the inning. Gene Garber, 5-9, was the winner while Mark Littell, 6-3, took the loss.

Orioles 3, Angels 2

Baltimore catcher Rick Dempsey blocked the plate in the ninth inning to make a game-saving play, preventing a California run from scoring and snapping an Oriole losing streak.

Brewers 5-3, Tigers 4-1

Ben Oglivie, who hit three homers in the opener, doubled in a run to back Bill Travers' four-hitter in the nightcap, helping Milwaukee to a sweep of its double-header. Oglivie set two club records and Mike Caldwell scattered nine hits to help the Brewers snap a three-game losing streak with a 5-4 triumph in the opener.

Indians 5-2, Twins 4-7

Willie Norwood singled home two runs in a three-run first inning and Dave Goltz tossed a seven-hitter, giving Minnesota a double-header split. Pinchrunner Dave Rosello raced home with the winning run from second base on a ninth-inning throwing error by Minnesota reliever Mike Marshall to give Cleveland a victory in the opener.

White Sox 4, Royals 2

Greg Pryor belted his first homer and Jorge Orta and Chet Lemon doubled home runs as Chicago handed Kansas City its seventh loss in the last eight games.

Red Sox 8, Mariners 2

Carlton Fisk hit two solo homers and Bob Watson and Dwight Evans added bases-empty home runs to back Steve Renko's six-hit pitching as Boston stayed within two games of Baltimore in the East. Renko, 7-3, struck out seven and walked three in posting his third complete game.

SABLE WINS — Black Sable, ridden by Steve Treasure, won the $542,000 Rainbow Quarter Horse Derby Sunday on a dramatic finish. Holme Maid took second and Oh Shiney finished third. (AP Laserphoto)

Black Sable Runs Strong In Futurity

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Black Sable proved her performance in posting the top qualifying time for the Rainbow Derby was no fluke as the speedy filly captured the second leg of the Triple Crown for 3-year-old quarter horses Sunday.

Black Sable stayed close to the leaders for the first half of the race, then turned on the speed and roared down the final 220 yards of the 440-yard scramble to win by a neck.

The victory earned a whopping $187,950 for Black Sable's owner, Spencer Childers of Fresno, Calif. Black Sable was bothered by severe viral infections as a 2-year-old and managed only a 1-4-0 record in eight starts for $10,342. But she has come on strong this year and her Rainbow victory pushed her 1979 mark to 4-1-1 in seven outings and upped her money line this year to $242,500.

The win also would have established the filly as the horse to watch in next month's running of the final jewel of the Triple Crown, the $1 million All American Derby. But trainer R.L. Rufus said he plans to ship Black Sable back to the West Coast because she is not eligible for the All American.

Mr Afton Bug, winner of the Kansas Derby, the first of the big three races for 3-year-old quarter horses at Ruidoso Downs, wasn't in the field for Sunday's sprint that carried a gross purse of $542,000.

Despite being the top qualifier in last month's time trials with a 22.01-second clocking, Black Sable didn't get the nod as the betting favorite for the 15th running of the Rainbow. Holme Maid, another filly, went off as the people's choice at 7-5, while Black Sable was the second-favorite at 9-5.

But Black Sable bettered her top qualifying mark with a 21.91-second effort Sunday that stands as the best time this season for 440 yards at the mountain track in southern New Mexico.

Holme Maid tried to hold off the hard-charging Black Sable in the final strides but couldn't quite hang on and had to settle for second. The runner-up finish earned $85,920 for owners Frank G. Merrill of Purcell, Okla., and Charles R. Weik of San Antonio, Texas.

Third place went to Oh Shiney, a colt that had finished second to Black Sable in their trial heat, while posting the second best qualifying time. Oh Shiney collected $44,034 for owners B.H. and Ruby Lee of Dimmitt, Texas.

North Tenth, owned by Dr. Roman R. Garza of McAllen, Texas, was fourth and earned $23,091. The remaining order of finish had Speck A History, owned by Roy Browning of Ft. Worth, Texas, earning $20,943; Rocket Lights, Jacqueline E. Spencer of Carrizozo, N.M., $20,406; Shebester Bug, Ralph Shebester of Wynnewood, Okla., $19,869; Dickeys Fireman, Lyle Simmelink, Roy Farnam and Sonny Fields of Macdoel, Calif., $19,332.

Lubbockers Fall Short

The Highway 80 Tennis Invitational finally finished play Sunday at the Lubbock Tennis Center as the tournament doubles winners were decided on the last day.

Lubbockites Curt McFarlin and Beth Nickels came the closest of any of the Lubbock netters to bringing home a championship trophy while competing in the mixed doubles play. McFarlin and Miss Nickels reached the finals of the event but lost a tough match to unseeded Amy Harris and Dwayne Petty of Brownwood. The Lubbock duo had been seeded No. 2 in the competition.

Two other Lubbock teams reached the finals but both were eliminated in straight sets. Sisters Kami and Kriss Ethridge made it into the finals in the girls 16 bracket and in the boys 14 division Jimmy Burkeholder and Mark Lehman also finished second.

McFarlin and Miss Nickels dropped the opening set 5-7 but came back to capture the second set 6-3 before bowing out in the final round.

Only one singles match was played on Sunday — that one in the tournament division for the 16 boys. The delay was neccessary since that bracket had the largest number of entrants.

Borg, Navratilova Invincible?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England — Bjorn Borg and Martina Navratilova — young, strong, bountifully talented, dedicated ... did someone also say invincible?

"One person cannot keep winning all the time," said Borg after his titanic five-set struggle against lightly-regarded Roscoe Tanner in the Wimbledon men's tennis final Saturday.

"In the fourth and fifth sets, I won the big points. One of these days I am going to lose those points, and then ...." His accented voice trailed off in a shudder at the prospect of it.

Borg has just turned 23, still young enough to want to grow a shaggy beard just for the heck of it. But now he has won four Wimbledon championships in a row, 28 matches without a defeat, and people wonder who possibly could break that string, and when.

Martina is 22. She is a big girl — 5 feet 7½, 145 pounds. Lefthanded, she hits a serve that sizzles and sometimes she spins it so wide the receiver lunges into the backstop trying to get a piece of the racket on it.

She not only is exceptionally powerful but she is also graceful for her size, and quick.

Now she has won her second Wimbledon and she is not much more than a child. People have started speaking of her In the same breath with Suzanne Lenglen, Helen Wills, Margaret Court and Billie Jean King.

Can she win five Wimbledon women's titles in a row, as Lenglen did back after World War I? Can she match Wills' eight championships or King's six?

Why not? Certainly she has all the credentials, as does Borg.

But the greatest of champions hang there by a slender threat.

It was amusing to overhear a British newsman dictating his story after borg's dramatic 6-7, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over the hard-serving Tanner.

"Borg," he said, "has the eye of the hawk, the quickness of a cat and the concentration ox a grand master chessman."

It brought back memories of 1974 when a brash, fiery Jimmy Connors, only 22, crushed one of the game's legends, Ken Rosewall, with the loss of only six games.

Connors' coach at the time, Pancho Segura, sat in the interview room and predicted none would be able to hold the kid's racket for the next 10 years.

"He is a keel-er," Segura said in his South American accent, "with the heart of a lion."

A year later an aging Arthur Ashe shamed the great Connors on the same center court. The balloon had burst. In the ensuing years, the invincible firebrand found himself losing final matches not only to Borg but to Manuel Orantes, Guillermo Vilas and others.

Invincibility is not in the vocabulary of the tennis champion, and Borg is smart to recognize it.

He had tough matches here with Vijay Amritraj, Brian Teacher and, finally, Tanner. A missed volley here, a flubbed overhead there and the scores of any one of the matches could have been reversed.

Borg is now king. He not only has tremendous natural skills and instincts but is mentally tough. This is what brings him through those tight situations.

But Tanner may be tougher next time. Then there always is John McEnroe, 20, brimming with innate skills and confidence and hard as they come. He had a bad Wimbledon, but look out for next time.

Martina has to sleep restlessly. Chris Evert Lloyd is still around, and beware of 16-year-old Tracy Austin. She's cold steel and still growing. Pam Shriver, 17, with that oversized racket, is going to bag her share. Out of Czechoslovakia has come a 17-year-old named Hana Mandlikova, the most impressive youngster in years.

Honest Man Returns Lost Wallet, Refuses Reward

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Berman Corbell is a genuine, certified $34,520 honest man.

"And you just don't find many of them thar, no more," proclaims Alexandria, La., businessman Jimmie Thompson, who benefited from Corbell's integrity although the two have never met.

Corbell found Thompson's wallet containing $34,500 in a telephone booth at the Phoenix airport, spent three days tracking Thompson down, shipped the wallet to Louisiana at his own expense, and continues to decline to accept a reward although Thompson offered him all the money.

"If it had been $50, $100 or even $500, I could understand somebody's morals in returning it," Thompson said, "but I cannot understand it because of the amount of money involved.

"When he first called me, I thought he was calling to find out what he could get. I had a lot of papers invaluable to me, also. It would have cost me quite a bit to replace, even if I could have replaced them. I told him, 'You just take whatever amount out of that pocket book you want. You help yourself. You want it all, take it, but I want my papers.'

"He absolutely refused to take anything. I thought it was some kind of gimmick."

Thompson wrote a letter to the San Antonio Light saying Corbell's honesty was "one of the most moral, honest acts that has ever happened to me and imagine one of the few in this day and age." He also wrote the factory Corbell represents praising his integrity.

Corbell, 44, coached football at McCollum High School in San Antonio for 16 years and he said the respect he has received from his former players and business associates who heard about his good deed made it worth it.

"I don't know. I just didn't think about taking the money. I guess if I'd needed money.... Nah, I wouldn't either. I've lost my billfold and worried myself sick about getting it back. I thought I'd feel better and get more out of it than if I kept the money. I have seen several of my (football) kids and they mentioned this thing. Right there it was worth it to me.

"It's been a lot of fun. Returning it will do you 10 times more good than the money. The money is something, but the feeling inside is worth a heck of a lot more than the money."

Corbell, a salesman, and his boss, Ivan J. Adair of Kompact Kitchen Cabinets, entered the telephone booth at Phoenix on Jan. 23, 1979, minutes after Thompson made a call and lost his wallet containing $625 in cash and the rest in checks. Thompson said he had another $15,000 in his coat pocket, bought an airline ticket, boarded immediately and had given up on ever getting his wallet back until Corbell telephoned him three days later in Louisiana.

"I picked up the billfold, looked in it, saw his picture on the driver's license. I looked to see how much money. I saw right away there was quite a bit of cash. I didn't want to turn it over to anybody because I wanted to make sure the man got the thing. I looked for him at the airport but he was already gone.

"He was a super guy. He tried every way in the world to give me a reward. He said 'Help yourself to the money.' Gosh, I couldn't do that, and it's not that I've got a bunch of money."

"That's a pretty high price to prove your honesty," Thompson, a retired fish and wildlife agent, said in Alexandria. "I just couldn't fathom it myself. I lose lots of money every day just in deals. I'm just wondering what I would do in the same situation."

Copter Crash Kills Two In New York

TANNERSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Two persons were killed when a helicopter with four persons aboard crashed on take-off, Saturday, near this Catskill Mountains community, state police said.

Troopers said the crash occurred near a mountain top in the town of Hunter. They said the crash site was near the New York City Police Recreation Center and that the four persons aboard the copter apparently were leaving the police center.

No fire resulted, investigators said. One of the four persons aboard the plane made the initial call to state police for help, troopers said.

Two of the four were pronounced dead on arrival at Greene County Memorial Hospital in Catskill. The other two were taken to Albany Medical Center.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration were expected to arrive at the scene Sunday morning, troopers said.

BOMB DEFUSED

MARSEILLE, France (AP) — A police bomb squad defused an explosive device containing 11 pounds of dynamite just five minutes before it was set to go off Sunday in front of a Spanish bank, police said. An anonymous telephone call sent police rushing to the Marseille branch of the Banco Espanol en Paris at about 5 a.m. The bomb was found and quickly disarmed.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your worst enemy will be yourself tomorrow, because you're likely to be short on patience and long on temper. Relax. Don't take everything so seriously.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) When things start getting expensive, it's a mistake to go along with people just because you feel caught up in the action. Back out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Competition is extra-tough tomorrow. If you're going after anything big, don't understimate the opposition. Be prepared to battle hard.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's good to try hard, but sometimes when we want something too badly we actually stifle our natural abilities by over-analyzing and overreacting. Stay calm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to tone down your intensity a shade or two tomorrow. If you push too hard you could completely alienate those who are on your side.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep your own counsel tomorrow. You don't like it when others interfere with your decision-making, so why should they like it when you do it to them?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Care must be taken tomorrow if you're attempting an undertaking where you lack necessary skills or dexterity. A serious mishap could occur.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Tomorrow could mark the end of a friendship that's been a little testy of late. If you're trying hard to maintain the relationship, don't make any waves.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Count to 10 when dealing with your mate or sweetheart tomorrow. He or she is cranky too. A minor rift could be blown way out of proportion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take extra pains not to react sarcastically or unbecomingly if one with whom you're working doesn't come up to your expectations. It will make matters worse.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might be a little too aggressive shopping tomorrow, and pick up more than you can afford. Credit purchases may be difficult to pay for later.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A self-serving attitude will go over like a lead balloon with your family tomorrow.

Firm Selling Skylab Protective Headgear

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Skylab's impending drop from space registered dollar signs in the eyes of an off-beat Kansas City firm. It is selling headgear for the event.

"No one should really be caught dead without one," is the tongue-in-cheek plug offered for paper helmets marketed by Seat-of-the-Pants Management Inc.

Since the do-it-yourself helmets appeared on store shelves a week and a half ago, 12,000 have been sold at about $2 each.

Wayne Mertel, chief engineer of the not-so-high technology division of the firm, says it expects another 3,000 to be snapped up before Skylab takes its plunge. NASA says that probably will be sometime next week.

Seat-of-the-Pants was founded late last year by two recent Harvard Business School graduates. One of them, Jeff Hall of Kansas City, came up with the Skylab helmet idea about three weeks ago. It went into production almost immediately.

"The results have been phenomenal," Mertel says. "Within days after they were on the street, we had people calling in from all across the country wondering how they could get one."

The Skylab helmets are heavy stock paper with a picture of a family watching Skylab fall. On the back are directions for shaping your own Skylab helmet out of the paper.

The helmets carry a guarantee, which reads: "Should Skylab actually fall on you, your helmet will not prevent splitting headaches. In fact, it will do you absolutely no good at all.

"But you will have the confidence of knowing you were appropriately dressed for this once-in-a-lifetime event."

The helmet, say its makers, "is the only way to prepare for the crash of '79."

"We're worried about time because the touchdown is this week," Mertel said last week. "If we see a market after that, we may produce more."

Seat-of-the-Pants got its name from its first product — executive underwear. The boxer shorts, with a stock market page emblazoned on the rear, went on sale at some of the country's most exclusive department stores in time for Christmas shopping last year.

More than 115,000 of the $8 executive underwear were sold in that venture.

Bloomingdales in New York, which marketed the executive underwear, is selling the Skylab helmets, along with department stores in Boston, Dallas, Kansas City and Denver.

Recently Installed Art Galleries Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven newly-installed galleries of Northern Renaissance and Italian 14th-and 15th-century paintings have been opened at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The museum says the seven rooms "represent the first stage in a progressive reinstallation of the museum's European paintings galleries."

It says the reinstalled galleries will include several paintings which have not been exhibited for many years.

Singer Judy Garland died in London in 1969.

Industry Associations To Fight FTC Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Funeral homes. Used cars. Trademarks. Breakfast cereal and tobacco advertising. The Federal Trade Commission is deeply involved in all of those issues and more, and it is in for a fight as a result.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce and an array of industry associations have decided this is the year to go after some handcuffs for those and other projects which they say are burdensome on business and a potential waste of tax dollars.

The fight will start in Congress later this month as legislation continuing the FTC's operation comes up for debate.

In a recent letter to all members of the Senate, chamber vice president Hilton Davis singled out three changes industry would like to see made in current law:

—Power for either the House or Senate to kill by simple veto vote any FTC project. If enough House members didn't like the commission's proposal for making undertakers disclose their prices more completely — a good example since the undertakers have been heavily lobbying Congress — they could simply end the project with a vote. The idea has never been tested in court and there is debate as to its constitutionality.

—A $75,000 ceiling on the amount of money the FTC could give to any one public iterest group for participation in an agency proceeding. Davis claimed the FTC has been giving the money to organized consumer groups and others who really don't need it.

—An order telling the FTC to stop a lengthy proceeding under which it, rather than private industry, would oversee the current system for setting standards for testing the quality and performance of thousands of consumer products.

In addition, there are moves afoot to try to amend the FTC legislation to kill specific projects such as the funeral industry rule and a second one that would require used car dealers to inspect their cars and inform the customer of various defects before the sale takes place.

The FTC's lengthy investigation of the way foods, particularly sugared items, are advertised on television has raised the anger of the food industry. And a recent agency petition to remove the trademark status from the word "Formica" on the ground it has become generic also has stirred controversy.

The FTC filed a petition with the U.S. Trademark Trial and Appeas Board saying "Formica" has become the common name of laminated plastic surfaces and other companies should be allowed to use it, for the sake of competition. It pointed out that other words such as linoleum, cellophane and even aspirin were once trademarks, but became generic.

Moves have begun in the Senate to order the FTC to keep its hands off Formica and other trademarks.

"A number of legislators and consumer groups are particularly concerned with the Formica amendment," the FTC said in a recent paper on the legislative outlook.

"They argue that if Congress wants to prevent the FTC from petitioning the trademark cancellation when a term such as Formica allegedly has become generic, it should amend the Lanham Act to remove that ground rather than seeking to achieve that end through extraordinary means — no hearings, and a rider to the FTC authorization that has not been considered by the relevant committees," it said.

Committee To Resume Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the judgment of Sen. Herman Talmadge, five weeks of hearings by the Senate Ethics Commitee have failed to prove any intentional financial wrongdoing on his part — and he wants the matter closed.

But the committee feels some important questions have not been answered. It particularly wants to hear Talmadge explain matters raised by some witnesses — including his ex-wife and former aide.

Today the committee, following a three-week break, was prepared to resume its investigation of the powerful Georgia Democrat's angled financial affairs.

Talmadge faces five charges of financial misconduct, the most serious one claiming he submitted about $50,000 in false expense claims to the Senate and converted expense money and campaign contributions to his personal use.

It is now Talmadge's turn to present a formal defense of the charges, something he hoped to avoid. After the committee completed its case, attorneys for Talmadge sought to have the charges dropped on grounds no intentional wrongdoing had been shown.

The committee rejected this and said it expected Talmadge to present a defense. But Talmadge's lawyers said they would rest their case and not offer testimony.

It was a calculated gamble that failed. Committee Chairman Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., informed Talmadge the panel wanted his explanation of the financial affair. Otherwise it might recommend the full Senate discipline him. This forced Talmadge to prepare a defense.

The defense must rebut testimony from Talmadge's former aide, Daniel Minchew, that he opened a secret bank account to launder official funds for the use of the senator and his family. Talmadge has denied knowledge of the scheme. He said Minchew embezzled $39,000 from the secret account and that the false expense claims were filed by his office staff by error.

Talmadge's former wife, Betty, testified he stashed a wad of $100 bills in the pocket of an old overcoat in a closet of their Washington apartment and that they both drew on it for personal expense.

Talmadge has insisted he rarely carried $100 bills and that he got most of his pocket money from small donations pressed on him by friends and supporters.

LAST LAUGH

BEDFORDSHIRE, England (AP) — Rajah, a laughing mynah bird, was stolen recently from the local zoo but a few days later flew back. Zookeeper Pippa Smith said the bird's loud laugh and whistles probably scared the birdnapper, noting "the thief must have either got fed up with him or realized he would be hard to sell."
