SCENE OF BOMB BLAST — A number of people were reportedly killed and at least seven horses were badly injured (and later destroyed) following a car bomb explosion on Carriage Road in Hyde Park, London Tuesday morning. A detatchment of the Queen's Household Cavalry were on their way to Buckingham Palace for the traditional Changing of the Guard when a car bomb was detonated as they left Knightsbridge Barracks.

Nine killed in London bombings

LONDON (AP) — IRA bombs, one packed with nails, tore through a mounted cavalry unit and a military band in two London parks today, killing nine people, wounding 36 and sending victims and horses flying through the air, police said.

In the House of Commons, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher condemned the Irish Republican Army and declared: "These callous and cowardly crimes have been committed by evil and brutal men who know nothing of democracy and we shan't rest until they are brought to justice."

Scotland Yard said three people were killed in the attack on the queen's Household Cavalry in Hyde Park, including at least two soldiers, and that civilians were among the wounded. Police said six people were killed at the bandstand blast in Regent's Park, and one witness said all were soldiers.

The passing of the Household Cavalry, resplendent in silver breastplates and crimson uniforms, attracts hundreds of local and foreign spectators to Hyde Park every day for the changing of the guard ceremony. At least seven horses were killed by the nail bomb, which was placed in a parked car.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the Hyde Park bombing, and British police said the second bomb also was the work of the IRA, which has been fighting for 13 years to oust Britain from Northern Ireland.

The bombings occurred on a bright summer day and Cmdr. William Hucklesby, commander of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist branch, said there was no warning. He said the car that blew up was packed with 10 pounds of explosive containing four-to-six-inch nails.

The bomb at Regent's Park, where London Zoo is located, went off at a bandstand where the Royal Green Jackets regiment band was playing for dozens of spectators, including many elderly people.

One witness, Ronald Benjamin, said: "I was just sitting in a deckchair looking at the band when

Board studies Pereira payment

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

The Howard County Consolidated Tax Appraisal District board took no action yesterday following an executive session to discuss Chief Appraiser Gene Pereira and his $250 monthly car allowance.

A check yesterday with the Austin office of the Texas Department of Public Safety revealed the chief appraiser has no Texas drivers license, yet he receives a car allowance from the district.

Board President Roy Watkins said the board had discussed the allowance "at great length" and would review the matter for next year's budget. The board met in executive session with Pereira for 25 minutes. Final approval of the 1983 budget is not expected until September with the current budget running through December.

Pereira said he could not comment on matters discussed in executive session but did say: "What I've done is strictly above board — I've worked hard for Howard County."

Prior to the executive session, the board held its regular monthly meeting, postponed from last week due to lack of a quorum. The board heard two presentations from appraisal firms seeking the district mineral evaluation contract for 1983 and 1984.

Pritchard & Abbott, an Odessa firm which has handled the county and district oil and gas evaluations since 1926, submitted a total bid for the two years of $112,500. District Manager Jim Rapier and Tom Miller met with the board to present the company's case. Hugh Means, representing Capitol Appraisal Group Inc., discussed his company's bid of $104,600 for 1983 and 1984.

The board did not award the district's contract but moved to consider the proposals from the two companies as well as a third bid for $130,000 from a Dallas firm.

In other action, the board examined the proposed budget for the appraisal district for 1983. Roy Watkins told board members they need to take action on the budget at the August meeting. Pereira said the budget has to be passed by Sept. 15, including a public hearing on the budget.

The board also approved sending Mary Jara of the appraisal office to the Texas Association of Assessing Officers school. Pereira told the board the state property tax board requires attendance at the school for personnel handling certain appraisal items. He noted Ms. Jara was in charge of all personal property for the district.

Board member Lila Estes recommended the board commend the appraisal office personnel for getting the appraisal finished ahead of schedule and for their overtime work in what Roy Watkins called "the most critical job in the county."

Trustees OK smoking area

By CLIFF COAN
Staff Writer

Coahoma school board members changed several school policies at their meeting last night — including the designation of a student smoking area — but Coahoma Independent School District campuses will remain "open," said Superintendent Richard Souter.

The trustees "changed a few things" in the student handbook, Souter explained.

One of those changes was for a "designated smoking area for students in high school" to be established, Souter said.

"We kicked it around," he said, "and we felt like, since we have some students who smoke, we'd rather put them in a place where we can watch them than have them go off campus to smoke. We're not encouraging smoking."

School board members also discussed "closing" the CISD campus, Souter said, but "we decided to keep the same policy as we have."

"It wasn't really a big problem," he said. "Our policy has been that they couldn't leave the campus in a car." That policy will remain the same, he said.

The school's drug and alcohol policy also will remain the same, Souter said.

That policy states that "any student known to have a dangerous drug or alcohol in his or her possession or known to be under the influence thereof while in school or while participating in a school-sponsored activity, after due notice to the violator and after a hearing before the board, if found guilty, shall be suspended for the balance of the semester. Students shall not be permitted to make up work missed during a suspension."

The school's policy on tardy students also came in for some revision, Souter said. "The old policy was that if they were tardy at the beginning of school day or after lunch, they had to go to principal's office," he said. The principal was responsible for issuing the student a pass to return to classes.

"Now, they'll go to the teacher and the teacher will report tardies to the principal," Souter said. "Then, (the principal) will take the appropriate action."

Athletic lettering policies also were changed. Any athelte who completes a season in any sport and who is in good standing and recommmended by the coach will receive an award in accordance with University Interscholastic League award and eligibility rules, Souter said.

No athelete will be eligible for an award if he is dismissed or drops out of participation, Souter said. Awards will consist of one major award of a letter jacket, he said, along with a certificate for each other sport in which the qualifications for a letter are met. An atheltic council, consisting of the head coach of the sport involved, the athletic director and the principal will decide any questions concerning eligibility for awards, Souter said.

In the past, Coahoma athletes had to play a certain amount of time in

Loan shift reflects farmers' problems

By BOB CARPENTER
Staff Writer

A recent survey of Big Spring and Coahoma banks revealed second quarter figures showing an overall increase in total loans, while total deposits for the same time period showed a decrease. All four banks surveyed had increased loans; however, only two of the banks were able to record a rise in deposits.

Second quarter loan totals were $124,033,622 as opposed to $111,844,944 for the first quarter. Second quarter deposits fell to $241,868,361 from $252,619,835 in the first quarter.

According to bank presidents there are several reasons for the fluctuations in total loans and deposits.

Jimmy Taylor, president of First National Bank, said loans increased at his institution because of business and agricultural loans. He said businesses are using the loans to buy inventories and farmers are having to borrow because of the ailing agricultural economy.

First National also experienced a drop in deposits which Taylor attributed to money paid to the Internal Revenue Service for income taxes and he said oil-related deposits were off in the second quarter.

Bill Read, president of Coahoma State Bank, said his bank's loans increased because "we bought participation loans from other banks." Read said Coahoma State "needs loans" so it calls other banks in the state in an attempt to buy loans.

After finding a prospective seller the bank then strikes a deal followed by the signing of legal papers, Read said. Coahoma State recorded approximately $2,200,000 more in loans over first quarter figures.

Security State Bank President J.D. Nelson said his bank's second quarter loans were up because of "commercial loans." The bank showed an increase of approximately $500,000 in loans over first quarter totals.

"They're not up all that much, but in the last three months we've had more business-type loans," Nelson said. "Business has been pretty good," he added.

John Currie, president of State National Bank, said the drop in deposits and rise in loans was "a reflection of the adverse farm economy."

"It's been a very expensive year. The farmers have had to replant several times, and as a group they didn't have a lot (of capital) to carry over. They started borrowing earlier and they are still borrowing," Currie said.

As for a turnaround in the economy, Currie said he didn't expect things to "get any better until December or January." Most of the bankers were in agreement that a sluggish oil and agriculture industry would slow the economic pace of the area, but most were hopeful for an upturn in the economy by the year's end.

White House targets insanity defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, spurred by the acquittal of John W. Hinckley Jr., is supporting a bill that legal experts say would all but eliminate insanity as a defense in federal criminal cases.

Attorney General William French Smith testified Monday that Congress should bar the use of the insanity plea except in rare cases where the defendant was so deranged he thought, for example, "he was shooting at a tree."

The attorney general, alluding to the Hinckley case, said the current "intense debate and discussion" may provide the opportunity for drastically limiting the insanity defense.

He told the Senate Judiciary Committee he endorsed a measure sponsored by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, which would hold the defendant responsible if he "knew he was shooting at a human being to kill him."

Hinckley, President Reagan's assailant, was acquitted on June 21 by reason of insanity.

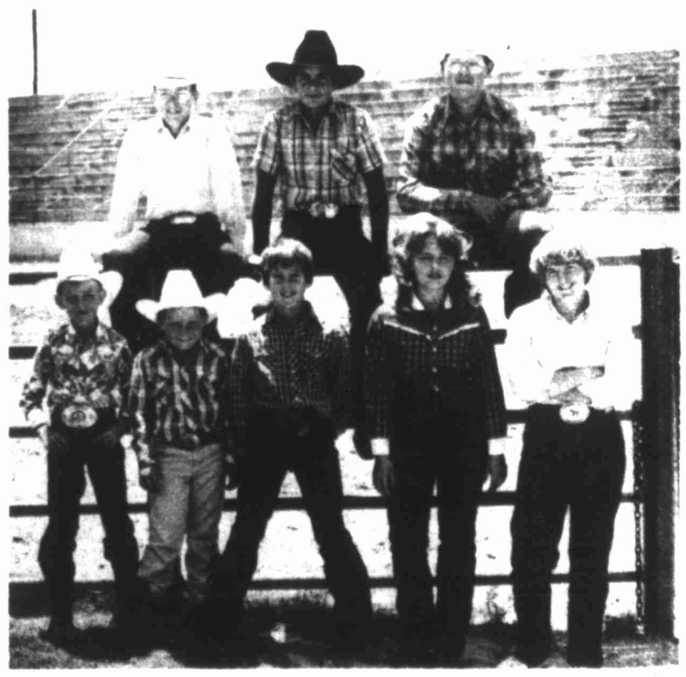

He has been committed to a mental hospital in the District of Columbia and can only be freed if psychiatrists determine he is no threat to himself or society and a court accepts the finding.

The Hatch proposal is one of at least seven bills aimed at restricting the use of the insanity defense.

In endorsing it, Smith said, "The criminal justice system has tilted too decidedly in favor of the rights of criminals and against the rights of society."

The attorney general said the Hatch bill "would effectively eliminate the insanity defense except in

Q. How do you contact Southwestern Bell supervisors and executives?

A. Darlene Gifford, Southwestern Bell manager for the Big Spring area, suggested people continue to call for assistance or drop by the phone center on East Fourth. She said Southwestern was going through some departmental changes which could have accounted for difficulty in reaching particular management personnel.

Big Spring has been undergoing a "workover," but some ongoing problems will persist for a period of time, Ms. Gifford said.

Voting starts in Phinney-Cobb CISD rematch

Absentee voting in the Clovis Phinney Jr.-Ken Cobb Coahoma school board election rematch was to end at 4:30 p.m. today.

Absentee votes in the election totaled 63 this morning, said Tax Assessor—Collector Dorothy Moore. Four of those ballots came by mail, she said, and the remainder were cast in the tax collector's office.

The election itself is set for Saturday, with balloting to take place in the Coahoma Fire Station for precincts 7 and 9 under the eye of election judge Jeannie Darden; the Sand Springs Fire Station, with Mrs. H.C. Wallin serving as election judge for precincts 18 and 21; and Vincent voters of precinct 5 voting at the Vincent Baptist Church under election judge Ben Neel.

The initial results of the April 4, 1981, election had been challenged by Cobb, who claimed in a lawsuit the board had "improperly and without authority examined each ballot cast in the election" and discarded a vote for him. Cobb lost the election by one vote.

Cobb's suit claimed the board was improperly acting as canvassing committee and included illegal ballots in order to give Phinney the election victory.

State 118th District Judge Jim Gregg ruled in July 1981 that it was "impossible to ascertain the true result of the election" and declared the election null and void, while ordering a new election. The court found the canvassing committee had taken the illegal actions claimed in the suit.

Phinney appealed the verdict, but Chief Justice Austin McCloud recently issued an opinion from the Eastland-based 11th Supreme Court of Appeals affirming the action of the state court.

Chamber execs at seminar

LeRoy Tillery, executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and Bill Forshee, assistant manager of the chamber, recently attended the Institute for Organization Management at SMU. The institute is one of six annual sessions sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce at leading universities throughout the country.

Tillery and Forshee spent 27 classroom hours in a course of study designed to assist executives in improving knowledge and skills necessary to enchance the effectiveness of their organization. Curriculum covered included philosphy, interpersonal processes, government, law and organizational structure forms.

Funeral home adds chapel

Trinity Memorial Funeral Home has announced the addition of a commital chapel at its Trinity Memorial Park facility. Steve Childress, president of the funeral home, said the chapel will be available for burial services if the family wishes to forego the traditional tent-type interment because of inclement weather. The chapel will hold between 60 and 90 people, he said.

Hospital officer speaks

Donna Chandler, quality assurance coordinator at Malone-Hogan Hospital, will speak to the Texas Extension Homemakers Association of Colorado City Lake today.

She will discuss her job, which includes monitoring of medical staff activities, on-going reviews of patient care and the coordination of patient comments and complaints.

Her appearance was arranged through the hospital's Health Speakers Bureau. For information about the speakers bureau, call 263-1211, extension 110.

HC library receives grant

Howard College's Anthony Hunt Library recently received notification from the U.S. Department of Education that it will be the recipient of an $840 grant, effective Oct. 1, 1982, through Sept. 30, 1983.

Through the last several years the grant has held consistently at $3,900, but declined because of budget expenditure cuts.

The funds are used to purchase library materials such as books, periodicals, phonograph records and audio-visual materials.

Execution stay mulled

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements will consider a 30-day stay of execution for a Texas death row inmate who — at his own request — is scheduled to die by lethal injection Thursday, the governor's press secretary said.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and a state district judge in Amarillo refused Monday to give Charles F. Rumbaugh the 30-day stay requested by his parents.

Rumbaugh, 25, would be the first Texas inmate to be executed since July 1964 if his execution goes off as scheduled at midnight Thursday.

Police Beat

Woman, 19, reports rape

A 19-year-old Big Spring woman reported to police at 3:10 a.m. today that she was raped last night by a man who waited for her in her car to get off work. The offense is the second rape reported to Big Spring police in the past five days.

The victim said she had driven two or three blocks from work when the man sat up in the back seat and told her to keep driving until they came to the site of the rape on the 11th Place extension half a mile east of Cosden refinery, detective Lt. John Wolf said.

The woman told police she was raped in her car between 11 and 11:15 p.m. yesterday. The assailant left the area on foot and the woman drove "home to contact her parents," Wolf said. She called the police department about three hours later, Wolf said.

The man was described by the victim as being six feet tall, weighing 200 to 230 pounds with a dark complexion, dark wavy hair and a full beard and mustache.

Police said they arrested two men yesterday on warrants signed by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin for separate cases of aggravated assault.

Seventeen-year-old David Milford Williams of 811 Wyoming was arrested at 11:02 a.m. in connection with an aggravated assault reported last Saturday by Daryl Washington of 1003 S. Nolan. He was released this morning on $15,000 bond set by Heflin, according to sheriff's office records.

Also arrested was Manuel Lopez, 26, of Northcrest Apartment 21, at 8:29 p.m. in connection with an aggravated assault that took place June 11, police said.

Alphonso L. Rodriguez of Sterling City Route Box 133-M told police that at 11:35 p.m. yesterday a person known to him shot him with an unidentified type of handgun while he was inside the Quatros Copas Lounge on West Highway 80. Rodriguez was treated and released from Malone-Hogan emergency room, according to a hospital spokesman. Police said no suspects had been arrested as of this morning.

Conrad Scott of 603 McEwen told police he suffered a $2,555 loss in damage and stolen goods when a person known to him broke into his home and stole an acoustic guitar, 25 record albums and did extensive damage to the interior of his house.

Robert Burgess of 2405 W. 16th reported to police that between 9 p.m. Sunday and 8:50 p.m. yesterday someone stole a Suzuki dirt bike from his back yard.

Vickie Smith of 4003 Dixon told police that between 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. yesterday someone stole a Suzuki motorcycle from her carport.

Ann Botts of Barcelona Apartments building 9, aparment 259, told police that between 10 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. yesterday someone stole a Kawasaki motorcycle from in front of her apartment.

Dickie Partlow of 2210 Merrily reported to police that between 10 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. yesterday someone stole a Yamaha dirt bike from his garage.

Don Minyard of Quail Run aparment 3 reported to police that between 12 a.m. and 6 a.m. yesterday stole a car stereo from his son's Blazer.

Vickie Bell of 2507 Cheyenne told police that between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. July 14 someone stole a tape case and 24 eight-track tapes from her vehicle parked at Bob's Custom Woodwork in the Big Spring Industrial Park.

Linda Smith of 407 W. Ninth, owner of Hidden Treasure Shop, 808 W. Third, reported to police that between 6:50 p.m. and 7:30 a.m. Sunday a male subject who had been living inside the business left on foot, taking a set of keys to the business, a black and white television and $20.35 cash.

Nita Boyd of 1303 Runnels told police that between 12 a.m. and 9 a.m. July 13 someone stole two plant hangers and pots from her front porch.

Vicky Labarge of 2701 Central told police that between 12 p.m. Saturday and 6:30 a.m. yesterday someone stole the knock-offs from all four tires on a 1959 Chevrolet pick-up truck parked in her driveway.

Carolina Velasquez of 509 N. Main reported to police that between 5 p.m. Saturday and 4 p.m. yesterday someone scratched the paint on an Oldsmobile Cutlass parked at her residence.

A Pontiac Grand Le Mans driven by Jacqueline E. Wilson of 2304 Roberts, a Plymouth Fury driven by Ramona T. Gomez of P.O. Box 232 in Ackerly and a Chevrolet Impala driven by Lucillia O. Dominguez of 815 N.W. Sixth collided at Gregg and Third at 3:30 p.m. yesterday, police said. Police said they ticketed Ms. Wilson for running a red light. No injuries were reported.

A Fiat Bertone driven by Rebecca S. Powell of 2714 Central and a Ford pick-up truck driven by Floyd C. Smith of 2706 Central collided in the 2000 block of Gregg at 11:27 p.m. yesterday, police said. Police said they ticketed Ms. Powell for failure to yield right-of-way. No injuries were reported.

Rape suspect free on bail

Charles Wesley Mack, 48, of Midland, was released on bonds totaling $80,000 yesterday, according to Howard County Sheriff's Office records. Mack was arrested by Big Spring police July 15 in connection with the rape complaint of a woman traveling through town.

Mack was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin on charges of rape as well as unauthorized carrying of a weapon, records show.

● Sheriff's deputies arrested four persons last night in connection with the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Earl Hanke, 24, of Sterling City Route; Cary Burgess, 20, of Sterling City Route; Robert Johnson, 19, 1506 State Park Drive; and Troy James, 21, 3905 Hamilton, were released on $5,000 bonds each without being confined in county jail, according to sheriff's records.

● Terry Glidwell, 29, of Alabama, posted a $10,000 bond after being arraigned before peace justice Bobby West on suspicion of forging a prescription, according to sheriff's records.

● Arthur Joseph Moffett, 38, of 200 Goliad, was released on $1,000 bond after being arraigned before West on a driving while intoxicated charge.

● Joe Molina Ledesma, 20, of 504 Lancaster, was released from county jail under a $1,500 personal recognizance bond on the authority of the Howard County probation office. Sheriff's records indicate Ledesma had been arrested by sheriff's deputies July 15 in connection with a revocation of probation charge.

those rare cases in which the defendant lacked the state of mind required as an element of the offense."

"... A mental disease or defect would be no defense if a defendant knew he was shooting at a human being to kill him," he continued. "Mental disease or defect would constitute a defense only if the defendant did not even know he had a gun in his hand or thought, for example, that he was shooting at a tree."

The statement marked the administration's first formal support for restricting the insanity plea.

On June 1, Reagan commented on the outcry over the acquittal of Hinckley, who attempted to assassinate him on March 30, 1981. The president said the law placed an unfair burden on the prosecution.

"The thing that has also caused a lot of criticism is the fact that the ruling placed on the back of the prosecution the need to prove that someone was sane rather than the other way of proving that he was insane," Reagan said.

"... And you know if you start thinking about even a lot of your friends you would have to say 'gee, if I had to prove they were sane I would have a hard job,'" he said.

The jurors in the Hinckley case were instructed to find the defendant innocent if they decided the prosecution had failed to prove that he was sane.

Smith's position goes beyond calling for a shift in the burden of proving sanity or insanity.

Light fighting reported in east Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli and Palestinian forces exchanged intermittent small-arms fire through the night near Lake Quaraaoun, at the southern end of East Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, Israel's military command reported today.

An army spokesman said the fighting was light, and he gave no casualty figures. He said Israeli soldiers safely dismantled three mines found planted near the lake, which is about 25 miles southeast of Beirut.

It was not known how large the Palestinian force was. Some of the guerrillas in South Lebanon when the Israelis invaded June 6 escaped into the Bekaa Valley, which parallels the Syrian border and is controlled by the Syrian forces that entered Lebanon in 1976 to end the Lebanese civil war. But the bulk of the Palestine Liberation Organization's armed force — an estimated 8,000 guerrillas — is trapped in West Beirut by an Israeli force of 35,000-40,000 troops, 300 tanks and a fleet of gunboats.

The Israelis are threatening to storm the city if the Palestinians don't leave Lebanon on their own and have expressed increasing impatience with U.S.-sponsored negotiations.

An American-mediated cease-fire — the sixth since Israeli forces invaded Lebanon to crush the PLO and drove to Beirut — has been more or less holding around the Lebanese capital for nine days. There have been daily firefights between Israeli troops and Palestinians entrenched in the Moslem western sector and on the city's southern flank, but none of them have been large-scale.

With negotiations stalled by the Arab world's refusal to provide a new home for the PLO, officials in Beirut and Jerusalem were hoping a way out of the stalemate could be found in Washington today. President Reagan was meeting there with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam and his Saudi Arabian counterpart, Prince Saud al-Faisal.

The Lebanese government radio said the United States' top priority is to persuade Syria to reverse its refusal to accept the PLO. Syria has said it will admit Yasser Arafat and other Palestinian leaders but insists the rest of the guerrillas should remain in neighboring Lebanon.

Khaddam met Monday in Washington with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and said the beleaguered Palestinians "must under no circumstances be subjected to a forced exodus."

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said last weekend that the PLO has "less than 30 days" to get out of Lebanon but has not set a specific deadline.

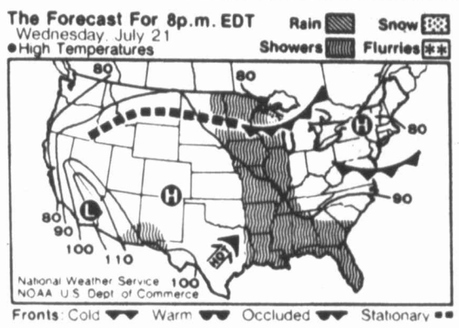

In West Beirut, the PLO's attention shifted temporarily from the Israeli siege to a massive hunt for the kidnapped acting president of the American University in Beirut, David Dodge.

The PLO said it had no clue to the identity of the kidnappers. But a witness to the abduction on the university campus Monday said the kidnappers shouted as they drove away with Dodge that they belonged to Amal, the paramilitary arm of Lebanon's estimated million Shiite Moslems.

About 220 young Arab prisoners — most of them between 12 and 16 — were turned over by Israel to the International Red Cross Monday. Israeli officials said the youths were trained by the PLO as anti-tank fighters. They said they released them because they were too young to be tried as criminals in Israeli courts.

Israel is holding another 4,000 prisoners at its camp in Insar, Lebanon.

Weather

Thunderstorms in Ohio Valley

By The Associated Press

Scattered showers and thunderstorms continued across the Ohio Valley and the mid-Atlantic Coast early today, and a few heavy thunderstorms fell in the southern Plains as cooler Canadian air moved into the Northeast to relieve heat-weary residents.

Thunderstorms which earlier produced severe weather in Kentucky had weakened considerably. A few showers were over southern Arizona and showers and thunderstorms were heavier in northeastern Oklahoma, south-central Nebraska and western Washington.

Clouds were partly cloudy in the East, and mostly clear over the rest of the nation.

Tornadoes raced across Indiana late Monday. Lighting and winds were blamed for at least two forest fires in remote sections of Colorado.

For tonight and Wednesday, the National Weather Service predicted widely scattered showers and thunderstorms along the northern Atlantic Coast and from the lower and mid-Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic Coast.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected over the southern Atlantic Coast states, with sunny skies over much of the rest of the nation.

Temperatures across the country ranged from 44 degrees in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to 96 degrees in Phoenix, Ariz.

In some other reports:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 70 foggy, Boston 76 hazy, Buffalo 71 showery, Charleston, S.C., 76 partly cloudy, Cincinnati 70 partly cloudy, Cleveland 72 foggy, Detroit 68 cloudy, Miami 83 fair, New York 79 cloudy, Philadelphia 74 cloudy, Pittsburgh 69 foggy, Washington 76 fair.

Canada — Montreal 64 partly cloudy, Toronto 63 partly cloudy.

EXTENDED FORECASTS

West Texas: Partly cloudy with no important temperature changes. No significant precipitation. Highs in the mid 90s north to near 105 Big Bend valleys. Lows in the upper 60s north to the mid 70s south.

FORECAST

West Texas: Widely scattered showers and thundestorms Panhandle and most of mountains mainly at night through Wednesday, otherwise sunny days and mostly fair at night. Highs mid 90s mountains and north to near 104 Big Bend. Lows low 60s mountains to upper 60s Panhandle to 70s elsewhere.

Pittsburgh prays for jobs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The stadium scoreboard flashed "Jesus is the Answer" next to an advertisement for U.S. Steel as 8,000 people — including idled steel and coalworkers — asked God for a miracle to help revive their struggling industries.

"Satan and all your forces, we command you to get out of town and take your hands off our mills!" the Rev. Gary A. Mitrick told the Three Rivers Stadium crowd at the "Miracle of Pittsburgh" prayer meeting Monday evening.

The free-admission meeting was sponsored by four Pittsburgh businessmen who said they had a "vision" of 35,000 people invoking divine will to reverse setbacks in the nation's struggling steel and coal industries.

"We're asking God's forgiveness for the errors that have been committed — on management's side, on labor's side and on the people's side," Sal Moliterno, 34, a Pittsburgh wholesaler and one of the sponsors of the three-hour revival.

"The steel mills and the coal mines are not the source for people," Moliterno said. "God is the source, where people should have gone in the first place."

About a third of the nation's steelworkers have been laid off in the industry's current slump, and a sixth of unionized coal workers are jobless, according to industry and labor figures.

United Steelworkers Union representatives are due in Pittsburgh Wednesday for follow-up talks to last week's sessions with the nation's major steel companies, whose mills have been operating at less than half capacity.

The union is considering industry appeals for wage and benefit cuts to help reduce production costs in the face of low demand, high interest rates, and stiff foreign competition.

"I came down here because I'm laid off and because I think God can help us with these problems," said millwright Bob Shope, 35, a father of eight.

"Hopefully, God will inspire people to come up with the right answers and open some doors," said Shope, of nearby Munhall, who was laid off from U.S. Steel Corp.'s Homestead Works a month ago.

"Pittsburgh needs a miracle! Amen!" Mitrick chanted from a platform in center field.

Despite little publicity, oppressive heat and a threat of thundershowers, the revival drew a larger turnout than many Pirates' baseball games this season.

"I'm just here praying for a better world," said Martin Olaharski, 37, of Green Tree, a former air traffic controller who was fired after he and his colleagues went on strike last summer.

"There's a lot of power in prayer," said Ben Coleman, president of USW Local 3968 in nearby Canonsburg.

"We just feel it's now the time to turn to God," said marketing executive Harry Guidotti, another of the organizers who rented the city-owned stadium for $10,000 for the prayer meeting. "It's time to pray for a healing of management and labor."

Several Pittsburgh-area steelworkers union locals have held benefit rock concerts, raffles and mill gate collections to feed jobless colleagues hurt by layoffs.

JOB PRAYING — Former steel worker Ron Hutson raises his arm in prayer during a prayer rally at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh Monday. Over 8,000 people gathered to sing out their prayers asking for jobs and help for the steel industry.

Vows to keep tight control

Volcker unveils money supply targets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker told Congress today the Fed will keep its relatively tight grip on the nation's money supply, but will not tighten it further as his earlier long-term plan had indicated.

Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee that economic recovery from the recession was "highly likely in the second half of 1982," although that recovery will be far from robust.

Volcker's comments made it clear that he and the other six Fed governors have no intention of trying to encourage lower interest rates and economic recovery by allowing the money supply to surge upward.

But the new growth targets also are at least some concession to Fed critics who say Federal Reserve tight-money policy has starved some businesses into bankruptcy and prolonged the recession.

Volcker's long-term plan — as announced last year — was to lower the money supply targets by one-half percentage point each year.

Instead, he said today the target for the basic money supply of cash and checking account deposits next year will remain at this year's level: a growth range of 2½ percent to 5½ percent.

Growth of a broader money supply measure — savings accounts and money market mutual funds as well as cash and checking — will be steered toward a rate of 6 percent to 9 percent, as at present.

Along with saying the growth targets envisioned for next year should help economic recovery, Volcker also contended the essentially unchanged targets actually would lead to lower monetary growth in 1983.

That's because growth this year in the money supply measures probably "will be close to the upper end of their ranges or perhaps even somewhat above them."

Volcker's release of the updated money-growth goals today followed action Monday by the Fed board to lower the interest rate that regional Federal Reserve Banks charge member financial institutions.

The reduction from 12 percent to 11½ percent is the first easing of the Federal Reserve's "discount rate" since December.

Lima humming for Willie

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Country-western singer Willie Nelson, who has volunteered to perform a free concet in Lima to help boost the city's spirits, has already done so without so much as strumming his guitar.

A local teen-ager calls the concert "the biggest thing that's ever happened to Lima." And a bank officer admits that "it's really kind of exciting."

There have been so many volunteers to help with the July 30 event that it's been a challenge to find things for everyone to do. "It is turning out to be everything it was meant to be," said Bud Jones, owner of two restaurants and an organizer of the event.

It all started when a Wall Street Journal article compared Lima, a Frost Belt town that has taken the economic recession squarely in the teeth, with San Angelo, Texas, a Sun Belt town that hasn't.

So Jones and others went to work. The result is being touted as "the biggest morale boost" for the city's 48,000 residents.

Hundreds of Nelson fans camped all night at the Allen County fairgrounds and thousands more stood in serpentine lines last week to get free tickets to the open-air concert. In all, 27,000 tickets were handed out July 12 and 3,000 more July 13.

The front-page article that started it all noted that Lima was losing population; housing starts had dropped off; 7,000 jobs were lost in two years; city government was unable to pay its bills, and foreclosures and repossessions were up. Community leaders couldn't argue with the facts, but complained that the Wall Street Journal had nothing good to say about Lima.

"What we needed most was to have something positive happen," said Jones, who had been named chairman of Square Fair '82, sponsored by the Council for the Arts of Greater Lima to promote local artists.

Martha MacDonell, council executive vice president, was partial to Nelson but knew they couldn't afford him. Jones considered the Wall Street Journal article that said nice things about San Angelo, compared with Lima.

San Angelo was in Texas, he reasoned. Nelson lives in Texas. On a whim, Jones called the San Angelo Chamber of Commerce and asked for Grady Elder, chief executive. They talked for nearly an hour.

"While he was talking, I remembered that a man who runs an advertising agency here told me he knew Willie Nelson," Elder said, referring to Sam Lewis. Elder described Lewis as "a little man with a big heart who will never be worth a dime because he's always running around the country doing benefits."

Southwest Airlines may face liquor license loss

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawyers trying to protect Southwest Airline's liquor license say they will show the man who complained stewardesses sold beer to his 14-year-old son had promised creditors he would receive money from the airline.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission is conducting a hearing on allegations by Leonard Pressley Sr. of Abilene that the airline sold seven beers to his son on a Lubbock-to-Austin journey Jan. 17.

The airline faces possible suspension or loss of its liquor license if the TABC finds the carrier violated liquor laws.

Pressley testified Monday that he had pleaded no contest to fraud charges in 1980 and was deeply in debt when he made the complaint against the airline.

Southwest Airlines attorney James Parker said Monday that he intended to show Pressley promised creditors he would be receiving money from the airline. But Parker said Pressley had not filed a lawsuit against Southwest.

Pressley said a failed business left him facing repossessions and lawsuits last January. But he denied ever telling creditors he expected to win money from Southwest Airlines.

Pressley complained to the TABC after Austin airport police reported finding Leonard Pressley Jr. drunk in the airport an hour after his plane landed. The boy, who wears a moustache and looks older than his 15 years, approached an officer and said, "I need some help. I'm drunk and I'm just a kid," one of the officers testified.

Pressley Sr. testified that after taking his son to church in Lubbock, he put the boy on the flight back to Austin where the boy was to catch a shuttle bus to the San Marcos Baptist Academy.

Balanced budget law needed

The nation's capital has emerged from the "wet" season into the hot, humid time of year when, in years past, Congress and a large part of the city packed up and left for the summer.

But not any longer. Thanks to air-conditioning, the Senate and House of Representatives, following the July Fourth recess, are at work on details of the $770 billion budget for fiscal 1983. It is perhaps the most important activity of the year.

It is the time when Congress and its spending and tax committees redistribute the revenues collected by the U.S. Treasury.

This huge income-transfer process is evidenced by a study of taxes paid by different income groups, which is made yearly by a nonprofit Washington research organization, the Tax Foundation.

In 1980, just nine million U.S. taxpayers in the upper 10 percent bracket paid more than half of all federal income taxes. In contrast, taxpayers in the lowest 10 percent bracket paid less than 1 percent.

Put another way, the taxpayer in the upper 10 percent bracket (those earning $34,100 or more a year, paid an average tax of $13,748. The average taxpayer paid $2,653.

How is the money spent, or redistributed? Largely through a vast array of social programs which benefit millions of Americans, ranging from war veterans and retired federal workers to Social Security recipients, welfare families, dairy farmers and the like.

Despite charges of some lawmakers that the 1983 budget cuts these programs "to the bone" — a Senator declared, for example, that "every provision of this budget resolution will add more to the rich and take from the poor" — despite such outbursts, these programs continue to grow rapidly in costs and number of recipients. Senate Budget Chairman Pete V. Domenici (R-N. Mex.) cited date showing these outlays for major benefit programs: 1976 — $153.2 billion; 1981 — $295.9 billion; 1985 - $419.2 billion (projected).

WHATEVER AMERICANS may think of the big income-transfer system, it is clear they have little control over it. The absence of adquate spending control is largely the cause of massive federal budget deficits — 20 of them in the last 21 years.

Adoption of a balanced budget-tax limitation amendment to the U.S. Constitution is needed, because the budget now is buffeted on both sides of the ledger.

Both spending and tax revenues are out of control. On the one hand, inflation and bracket creep, which push people into higher tax brackets, automatically drive up tax revenues. On the other, automatic cost-of-living adjustments are driving the cost of federal benefit programs out of sight.

The proposed balanced budget-tax limitation amendment would hold the yearly increase in tax revenues to the same percentage increase in national income the year before. At long last, it would place a limitation on how much of national income the government may collect and redistribute. Tragically, there is no such limitation today.

Psychological baggage

"This is ridiculous," said Tabash, as he read The New York Times on the beach. "It says here that the toughest time for couples is when they go on vacation. The reason seems to be that the couple is together for an uninterrupted block of time. The husband and wife have fantasies of what it will be like to be together, and many times these fantasies don't come true, so they get angry and pick fights with each other over little things. One doctor in the article calls it 'psychological baggage.' "

Fenton laughed. "Barbara and I don't feel that way."

Fenton's wife sat up angrily and said, "My name isn't Barbara. It's Bernice."

"Barbara — Bernice, what's the big deal?" Fenton asked.

"After 15 years of marriage you could get my name right."

"Now you're getting picky," Fenton said. "Barbara is my secretary, and every once in a while I get them mixed up," he explained to the rest of us."

"It's an honest mistake," I agreed. "A guy can't remember his wife's name ALL the time. That's why I always call mine, 'Honey.' "

"What else does the article say?" Fenton wanted to know.

Tabash referred to his paper. "People who take vacations are full of guilt. They feel guilty about not working. They feel guilty about taking a vacation their parents can't afford. Guilt leads to disharmony in the couple and ultimately spoils their vacation."

"I don't feel guilty about not working," said Dobler. "I'm enjoying every moment of it."

"Then why are you on the phone to the office every day?" Astrid Dobler asked.

"Because I have to know what is going on," Dobler replied bitterly. "You can't have a good time if you have no idea what they're doing in the shop while you're away. My clients don't pay me to sit on the beach all day long. I notice you call the housesitters every day."

"That's different. It's my house, and if they don't hear from me daily, they'll think I don't care what they do to the place," Astrid retorted.

Dobler turned to all of us. "I couldn't go on vacation if I didn't check in with the office. One lousy call a day doesn't make you a workaholic."

"You've never known how to take a vacation, because your parents never took one," Astrid said.

"They never had the money to take one," Dobler shouted.

"Right now they're stuck in an apartment in Brooklyn all summer. It gives me heartburn every time I think about it."

Astrid said, "I'm not responsible because you're having a guilt trip about your parents."

"Keep reading, Tabash," I told him. "I think you're making our summer."

Tabash said, "The article says they did a study at the University of Minnesota and found more couples fought with each other during the summer than at any other time in the year."

"It figures," I said. "That's when they're stuck with each other's neuroses for the longest period of time."

"What neuroses?" my wife wanted to know.

"I'm not talking about us," I said. "Besides I thought you were sleeping."

She threw a bluefish at me.

"What am I supposed to do with this?" I sputtered.

"Stuff it in your psychological baggage."

Billy Graham

I married a non-believer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a Christian, but I feel that I disobeyed God by marrying a man who is not a believer. Our marriage is not happy, and now I wonder if I should divorce him. What do you think? — Mrs. V.A.I.

DEAR MRS. V.A.I.: No, it would be wrong for you to leave your husband for this reason. You took a vow before God to be faithful to him until death parted you, and God takes the marriage vow very seriously. Yes, it may not have been his perfect will for you to marry someone who had no interest in spiritual things, but do not compound that problem by disobeying God again and getting a divorce.

There are several things I believe you should be doing. First, I want to ask you this question: are you doing all you can to grow in your own spiritual life? Are you learning more about Christ and his will for you by reading the Bible every day and hearing it taught in church? Are you having fellowship with other believers — not just good times socially, but times when you talk with others about spiritual problems and God's answers to them? And are you praying regularly — including praying for your husband, that he will come to have an interest in Christ and give his life to him? If not, the first priority for you is to recommit your life to Christ and determine by his grace to follow him each day.

Then you should do all you can to be a loving wife to your husband. I sense from your letter that your relationship has gotten cold across the years but you need to take the initiative to put the spark of love back into it. No husband responds well to constant criticism or a negligent attitude toward him.

Also, realize that your most effective witness to your husband will be the testimony of your life, as Christ changes it and makes it warm and loving. The Bible tells us that Christ loved us and gave himself for us, and then says "Wives, in the same way be submissive to your husbands so that, if any of them do not believe the word, they may be won over without talk by the behavior of their wives, when they see purity and reverence of your lives" (I Peter 3:1-2). God can heal your marriage and do wonderful things in it, if you will yield it to him and let him have his way.

Workman's diet

For years and years, Americans have been fanatical about keeping their waistlines trim.

They've been at it so long so hard that it is obvious they are doing something wrong.

Here is a carefully worked out, extremely hip diet and exercise program that will whittle you down to nothing in no time. The beauty of it is that you don't have to do or eat anything unusual. Just lead a normal, hectic American life.

The night before you start this program, set your alarm clock for an hour earlier than normal. Be sure and turn the alarm up as loud as it will go and place it close to your ear. Now go to sleep.

DAY 1

When alarm blasts you out of bed (gets heart started), jump three feet and knock clock behind bed. Stretch down to pick up clock (limbers arms, strengthens back).

Breakfast
1 glass fresh orange juice
1 slice wheat toast
Black coffee

Start coffee. Put bread in toaster. Squeeze orange juice (tones wrist, moistens eye), drink, spit out pips (limbers tongue, firms lips). Next run to smoking toaster where bread has gotten stuck. Try to dislodge with knife. Receive massive electrical shock (generally gets entire system going).

Notice that coffee is no longer perking because you have blown main kitchen fuse. Go to cupboard in garage where fuses are kept. Cupboard is dark (tones eyes). Feel around in cupboard for fuses. Bang head on cupboard door (tones brain).

Replace fuse. You are late for work. No time to drink coffee (saves calories).

Lunch
Iced tea with lemon
1 plate roast beef
Cheddar cheese
1 frosty mug beer

Go to most popular restaurant in town. Shove way through crowd (strengthens shoulders). No room at tables, so sit at overcrowded lunch counter. Shout order 5 times (strengthens lungs). Wait 30 minutes (tightens stomach).

Finally receive tea (no ice or lemon; saves calories). Wait another 20 minutes (tightens stomach more). Receive plate of stringy roast fat and slice of thin, discolored cheese wrapped in plastic. Unwrap and sniff cheese (tones nose). Eat plastic wrapper (fewer calories).

Attempt to cut roast beef (tones wrists, arms). Accidentally tip plate over onto lap of welder seated next to you. Buy welder beer (no calories).

Coffee break
1 sandwich
Potato chips
Black coffee

Go to break room at office. Buy sandwich of your choice and bag of potato chips from vending machine. Machine takes money. Pound on machine (tones arms, fists).

Put sandwich in microwave. No coffee in pot. Curse. Make coffee (tones assorted muscles). Take sandwich out of microwave. Burn fingers. Yell (strengthens lungs some more) and juggle sandwich (tones fingers). Drop sandwich on floor. Pick up (limbers waist, knees).

Sit down with battered sandwich, lukewarm coffee and bag filled with air and three broken potato chips. Gaze at this for awhile, then get up and go back to work (no calories).

For rest of the afternoon, go about routine. That means racing to meet deadlines, missing important appointments and phone calls. This will have bracing effect on heart and digestion.

After work, go home to cut grass. Lawn mower is broken. Carry mower to car (strengthens back, arms). Put in trunk and back car out of driveway. Back into car you didn't see because you have lawn mower sitting in trunk. Person in other car swears he'll sue (makes blood boil).

Find out half hour later that you are to be audited by IRS.

Dinner
1 cylinder oxygen
Sedatives
Hospital IV

DAYS 2 — 7

..Bed rest in hospital. Consume mostly fluids, followed by doctor's suggested diet.

..Estimated weight loss after week on program: 65 pounds.

Secret documents loosely guarded

WASHINGTON — Some of the nation's most sensitive security documents are so loosely guarded that one of my reporters has been able to walk in off the streets and pick them up.

But let something tawdry occur, and our elected leaders will pull up the covers. They'll invoke national security and reach for the secrecy stamp in an attempt to cover up the embarrassment.

They won't hesitate to use the secrecy stamp to censor the news. Yet they are much less vigilant when it comes to protecting the real secrets that could affect the nation's safety.

THE WHITE HOUSE, for example, is the nerve center of the entire federal government. High fences, patrolled by armed men and sophisticated electronic devices, keep out intruders. Planes are forbidden to fly overhead.

Detailed plans of the White House electrical, sewer and shelter systems could provide invaluable information for spies. It would be like the Central Intelligence Agency getting its hands on engineers' drawings of the Kremlin.

Yet some of these vital documents have been literally lying around in non-secure offices inside the General Services Administration. They are intended for the use of private contractors who work on White House projects, but anyone who looks as if he knows what he's doing can examine them, and even walk away with copies.

My associate Dale Van Atta, dressed in cowboy boots, corduroy pants and non-matching jacket, visited the GSA one sunny day and browsed around the area where these contractors' documents are kept. There were no security guards. Nobody challenged him.

He had previously obtained a copy of an archiect's drawing of the White House "underground utilities," stamped "For Official Use." He also got a copy of an unclassified map titled "White House Grounds," showing the various ducts, conduits and manholes intalled under the lawns and driveways around the executive mansion.

BUT THE REAL paydirt was located in an unlocked file-cabinet drawer clearly labeled as containing White House material. It was a 19-sheet collection of oversized architecural drawings, which Van Atra spread out on top of the cabinet to study. No one questioned him; in fact, one government worker offered to Xerox the material for him.

"Primary Electrical Systems and Shelter Improvements" were the title on the first page, which was a detailed map of the White House taken with an X-ray camera.

Exact locations and distances were neatly noted on the map — the protective fences, the red ash tree, the 60-foot burr oak, guardhouses, drains, electrical conduits, high-water alarm systems, everything.

The 18 following pages included schematic drawings titled Power Line One Diagrams; East Vault and Shelter Power System Control and Instrumentation; Mansion Vault and West Wing Vault Power System Control and Instrumentation; Electrical Site Plan; Plans — East Vault, Shelter and Data Processing Room; Plans — Mansion Vault, West Wing Vault and East Wing; Electrical Schedules; Electrical Controls, and Panels and Controls.

Originally classified simply "For Official Use Only," the 19-page document was later classified "Confidential" by the White House Military Office, with the instruction: "Declassify on 19 August 2000."

..Footnote: The Secret Service was appalled at Van Atta's easy access to the White House plans, and assured us the problem will be corrected. In return, we assured the Secret Service their secrets were safe with us — certainly a lot safer than with the GSA.

..LEST WE FORGET: A group representing nearly 500 U.S. airmen rescued from the Nazis in World War II is being frustrated by the State Department. The former airmen want to erect a memorial to their Yugoslav savior — the controversial Czech leader Draza Mihailovich.

The National Committee of American Airmen Rescued by General Mihailovich wants to pay for a monument in the nation's capital honoring the man whose underground forces saved them when they were shot down over occupied Yugoslavia. But the timorous diplomats in Foggy Bottom are afraid of offending the communist regime founded by the late Marshal Tito, who had his rival executed as a collaborator at the end of the war.

Four years ago, I reported how the aging Tito had enlisted the help of the U.S. ambassador in Belgrade in a successful effort to block the memorial to Mihailovich. Legislation approving the monument is still bottled up in House and Senate committees, thanks to continuing opposition from the State Department. Small wonder: Lawrence Eagleburger, the ambassador who helped Tito kill the memorial four years ago, is now an under secretary of state.

FLYING AMBULANCE — A helicopter ambulance circles a cloud of smoke rising from a fire at a small petroleum refinery in Baytown. The blast and resulting fire injured at least 14 people Sunday night. The cause is being investigated.

Cause still undetermined in blast that hurt 14

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — Ten workmen remained hospitalized in critical or stable condition today with burns suffered in a fire and explosion that destroyed seven storage tanks and a tanker truck at the Chemical Exchange Inc.

Fourteen person were injured, in the Sunday explosion, which broke windows for miles around the plant. Residents of a nearby nursing home were evacuated.

Baytown firefighters said the blaze finally was extinguished at about 3 p.m. Monday.

Company president David Smith said the cause of the explosion had not been determined and that it would take insurance investigators about two weeks to determine the amount of damages.

Smith said the blast occurred in the area where a tanker truck was loading on gasoline from one of the tanks.

Newel "Gene" Redus, 53 and Rick Booher, 25, remained in critical condition.

Astronauts foresee space city

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts Thomas K. Mattingly and Henry W. Hartsfield, still flushed from their seven days in orbit aboard space ship Columbia, lavished praise on the winged craft and said that it now needs a city in space for an orbiting destination.

The astronauts, who spent a week orbiting the Earth in the final test flight of Columbia, said the craft was ready for routine missions into orbit and that it held a promise that could now not even be imagined.

Mattingly called the space shuttle system a "highway to space," and said that the "next logical step" was construction of a permanent orbiting station.

"All we have is a freeway," he said. "Now we need to build the city."

The space agency has proposed that it be given funds to start design and construction of a large station that would permanently house astronauts in space. The space shuttle would act as a ferry, carrying personnel and supplies between Earth and orbit.

Experts at the space agency have conducted studies, but no funds have been allocated yet for construction of such a station.

Hartsfield said the fourth flight of Columbia was nearly flawless.

"We demonstrated that we do indeed have a reusable vehicle, a reliable vehicle, and a highly versatile vehicle," he said. "In short, we have a space transportaion system."

"This craft that this agency has put together is the most spectacular piece of machinery you can imagine," said Mattingly, the commander of the mission.

During their seven days in orbit, Mattingly and Hartsfield performed a series of secret military experiments and did tests on devices that may eventually be used to make unique products in space.

Hartsfield said experimenters are delighted, in particular, with a machine that made medical compounds that are much purer than anything that can be made in Earth's gravity.

The astronauts during their mission also focused on the Earth, and reported seeing impressive displays of lightning over the deserts of Africa and the jungles of South America.

"You can see lightning extending over hundreds of miles" above the floor of the African desert, said Mattingly.

Above South America, said Hartsfield, there were displays of what he called "sympathetic lightning."

"You could see lightning work up a line for 500 to 600 miles," he said. The display seemed to start at one end of the line and move across from cloud to cloud, said the astronaut.

A cloud of "fireflies" followed the spacecraft throughout its week in orbit. Particles lighted by sunlight danced outside the spacecraft window from the time the craft achieved orbit until it returned to Earth, they said.

At first the particles were in a large cloud, but they gradually diminished and disappeared as the craft reentered the atmosphere.

The astronauts were launched on June 27 for their week in space and landed at Edwards Air Force Base on July 4. They made a pinpoint touchdown on a concrete runway — the first time for the shuttle to land on concrete — before an Independence Day audience that included President Reagan.

They have spent the days since in an intensive debriefing at the Johnson Space Center.

Columbia has been ferried across the country to Kennedy Space Center where it is being prepared for its fifth flight, now scheduled for the fall.

FASHION REVUE WINNERS — Paula Allen (left) and Leigh Anne Wallace (right) model garments they entered in the Howard County 4-H Fashion Revue. The revue was held July 13 in Spring City Senior Citizens' Center. The girls were presented awards for their winning entries.

4-Hers participate in county Fashion Revue

The Howard County Fashion Revue was held July 13 at Spring City Senior Citizens' Center. "Pathways to Fashion" was the theme of this year's revue with 14 local 4-H members competing from five clubs.

Each contestant was presented a ribbon or trophy and a gift donated by Sew What Fabrics and Howard County Extension Homemakers Clubs.

Serving as master of ceremonies for the Fashion Revue was Scott Underwood of Gayhill 4-H. Entertainment was provided by Underwood and Cassie Underwood.

Contestants were judged on construction techniques used in making their garments, records used in their projects and the overall fit and appearance of the garment.

Libby Wallace, Tasha Rock and Angie Nichols all received blue ribbons in the Mini Miss Division, ages under nine. In the nine to 11-year-old division, Leigh Anne Wallace of Lucky Acres 4-H was awarded a trophy and blue ribbon as winner with her daytime non-tailored garment and Brandi Nelson of Forsan 4-H was awarded a blue ribbon and $5 gift certificate to Sew What Fabrics as alternate with her evening and specialty wear garment. Debbie Nelson, Kelly Newton and Tonya Rock were awarded blue ribbons and Dana Dolan and Suzanne Tuesday were awarded red ribbons in this division.

In the 12 to 13-year-old division, Tessa Underwood of Gayhill 4-H was awarded a trophy and blue ribbon as winner with her daytime non-tailored garment. Robbie Dolan of Forsan was awarded a red ribbon and $5 gift certificate to Sew What Fabrics as alternate with her daytime non-tailored garment.

In the 14 to 19-year-old division, Paula Allen of Coahoma was awarded a trophy and red ribbon as winner with her daytime tailored garment and Dawn Underwood of Gayhill 4-H was awarded a trophy and blue ribbon as winner with her daytime non-tailored garment.

A $10 gift certificate from Sew What Fabrics, donated by Howard County Extension Homemakers, was given to Junior Cotton participant, Leigh Anne Wallace, and a Senior Cotton participant, Dawn Underwood, for their entries made of 100 percent cotton fabric.

Those 4-H members receiving first place will compete in the District VI 4-H Fashion Revue to be held July 29 in Fort Stockton.

Couple announces daughter's engagement and wedding

Dr. Robert F. Powers of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. Delores Powers of San Clemente, Calif., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lisa Suzanne, to Ralph Gregory Brooks, son of Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Ralph L. Brooks, 2908 Hunters Glen.

The couple will be married in Our Lady of Fatima Church, San Clemente, Calif., August 14.

Luncheon slated for volunteers

The Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Services Council will hold its luncheon and orientation for volunteers Thursday.

The orientation will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. in the Staff Development Room C in the Allred Building. At 12 noon, a luncheon will be held in the auditorium of the Allred Building. A walking tour of BSSH campus led by the Chaplaincy Department will occur from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Those interested may make reservations by 5 p.m. today by calling the Volunteer Services Office at 267-8216 ext. 536. To be certified as a volunteer, those interested must attend at least one general orientation.

Auction chant

DANVILLE, Va. (AP) — Lady Astor, socialite and first female member of the British Parliament, was the daughter of Col. Chisholm Langhorne, the man credited with developing, in 1858, the auctioneer's chant method of selling tobacco which is still in use today, according to R.J. Reynolds Tobacco.

Dear Abby

Water thrown on husband's bath

DEAR ABBY: I've seen numerous letters in your column over the years from wives complaining that their husbands don't bathe enough, so this letter may be a first.

My wife complains because I bathe too much. I bathe routinely every morning. After a hard day's work (office) I bathe before going to bed. If we are going out in the evening, before putting on fresh clothes, I always take a bath.

I've been meaning to write this letter for a year, and am doing it now because my wife told me very emphatically again that I was overdoing the baths, and as a favor to her I should bathe only every other day!

She says this has nothing to do with conserving water or energy — she just likes me better when I am not freshly bathed. Have you ever heard of this?

I am very much interested in your reply.

BATHES TOO MUCH

DEAR BATHES: Your wife may be one of those women who prefer the natural scent of the unwashed male. (Not necessarily "dirty" — just unwashed.) Don't sniff at the significance of odors. Their effect on one's emotional (and physical) responses is vastly underrated.

Dr. Donohue

Of bunions and bunionettes

Dear Dr. Donohue: What can you tell me about bunions and bunionettes? What are the causes and cures? I had a bunionette X-rayed and I was told it was from loose shoes. It hurts when I walk. Will vitamins help? — Mrs. R.G.

R.G. is not kidding us. There is such a thing as a bunionette. If you compare your hand, a bunion would be a swelling at the knuckle of the thumb and a buionette a similar swelling at the knuckle of the little finger (bit toe, little toe).

Wherever they are, Mrs. R.G., they are not from a lack of any vitamin. You either inherited a tendency to form these swellings or you have tried to fit your feet to your shoes rather than the shoes to your feet. It has been said that shoes are made to fit everybody, and usually fit no one.

"Tight" shoes, are the usual setting for bunions or bunionettes. The swellings form as the toe is pushed in toward the other toes. It is possible this might occur with too loose shoes, especially if they are quite active and force the toes forward into too narrow spaces at the front. In any event, the constant inward pressure throws the base of the toe out of line and out against the shoe side.

If you cannot get rid of your pain by adjustment in your shoes, you may have to have the swelling pared down and the toe realigned through surgery. I would have the foot looked over by a foot specialist. You can read about this in the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet." Other readers wanting a copy should write me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents to cover printing and handling.

Are you bothered with ringing in the ears? If so, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for his booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

KIDNAPPED CAT — Raymond Guthrie of Harkers Island, N.C., holds Cry Baby, a kidnapped cat recovered a day after his abduction June 24. A grand jury indicted two women charged with abducting the feline and demanding an $18,000 ransom.

Catnappers indicted

Two women allegedly demanded $18,000 ransom

HARKERS ISLAND, N.C. (AP) — Indictments were returned Monday against two women who allegedly tried to extort $18,000 from two brothers by kidnapping their pet white and yellow tomcat.

The owners said they were prepared to pay the ransom for the safe return of the cat, who they said is like a member of the family.

The victim, Cry Baby, is identified on arrest warrants as "one domesticated male cat, white in color with yellow tail."

"It's kind of a humorous crime, but we're taking it seriously — as seriously as if they'd broken in your house and stolen $18,000," Frank Galizia, a Carteret County deputy sheriff, said Monday.

Ava G. Willis, 21, and Sherri Styron, 19, both of Harkers Island, N.C., were charged June 25 with extortion, breaking and entering and larceny.

Testimony ended Monday afternoon before the county grand jury, which returned indictments of breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny and larceny after a break-in and communicating a threat to wrongfully obtain money.

The cat was taken June 24 from the residence of Raymond and Charles Guthrie in Harkers Island, a seaside community of about 2,500, Galizia said. The animal was recovered the next day after deputies arrested Ms. Willis and Ms. Styron. Galizia said the women led the Guthries to a spot where the cat was to be exchanged for the cash.

Charles Guthrie, 67, said Monday he and his brother returned to their house the afternoon of June 24 and were met by a neighbor. The neighbor told the men he had seen the two women inside their cabin and that the intruders left with something wrapped up, Guthrie said.

The door to the house had been broken open but nothing else was missing, he said.

Guthrie said he and his brother went to see Ms. Styron's father, who accompanied them to the home of the other woman's mother, where they found Ms. Styron and Ms. Willis.

Guthrie said Ms. Styron's father joined him and his brother in urging the two women to return the cat. But Ms. Willis and Ms. Styron told the Guthries they would never see the cat again unless the brothers paid a ransom, Charles Guthrie said. The suspects first demanded $2,000, then later upped the ransom to $9,000, Guthrie said.

Charles Guthrie said he went to the home of a deputy who referred him to a magistrate, and warrants were taken out against the suspects.

After he returned home, the suspects telephoned him and said they were upping the ransom demand to $18,000, Guthrie said.

Guthrie said he and his brother withdrew $18,000 from the bank the next day and met the suspects at a marina.

Guthrie said the two women got into a car and agreed to show the Guthries where Cry Baby was hidden.

Galizia said he and another deputy followed the suspects for a short distance, then pulled them over and arrested them.

The suspects then directed the officers to a remote spot on Harkers Island, where the cat was found under a fish basket, Galizia said.

"We got him back, safe and sound," Guthrie said. "That's all we were worried about. It shook us up and I still can't help feeling bad about it."

Guthrie said he and his brothers often adopt cats that wander up to their house. "They're like members of the family to us," he said. "They're like our children."

5 men convicted in coal swindle

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Five men were convicted Monday of bilking $1.5 million from hundreds of people who thought they were investing in coal cntracts, the U.S. Attorney"s officesaid.

!Ago7w6 wtnesa3 the five-week trial testified that the defendants, claiming to be knowledgeable about the coal market, persuaded them to invest with American Coal Exchange and First Fidelity Corp.

But the defendants had no training and knew little about the business, and the investors learned they would have to take delivey of tp to 15,000 tons of coal, find their own buyers and pay to haul, process and store the coal, federal prosecutors said.

Both companies, based in Pittsburgh, were convicted along with the individuals, the U.S. Attorney's office said in a statment.

U.S. District Judge Barron McCune ordered the two principle officers of the corporations jailed. McCune revoked the bond of Lawrence Morris, 44, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., president and sole officer of American Coal Exchange. The judge jailed Norman Bialy, 41, also of Fort Lauderdale, president and sole officer of First Fidelity, after Bialy was unable to post an additional $30,000 bond.

Bialy has also been indicted by a federal grand jury in Baltimore in another alleged swindle, said Frederick Thieman, an assistant U.S. Attorney.

Also convicted were salesmen Robert Walton, 36, of Upper St. Clair, John Birch, 31, of Pittsburgh, and Thomas Desmond, 56, of Louisville, Ky.

Morris, Bialy, Walton and Birch were each found guilty of 20 counts of violating federal mail and wire fraud laws, while Desmond was found guilty of one count.

McCune deferred sentencing.

LA coroner's hearing opens with controversy

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — A civil service hearing at which Thomas Noguchi is seeking to regain his job as coroner opened Monday with allegations that he once forced a drug firm to pay $2,000 for access to public records.

Also called into question was a report ordered by county officials before they demoted Noguchi that blamed problems in the coroner's office on a lack of money and manpower.

Noguchi's attorney, Godfrey Isaac, moved that allegations regarding the $2,000 by county lawyer William Masterson be stricken from the proceeding as prejudicial. Hearing officer Sara Adler took the motion under submission but let Masterson proceed.

Noguchi is trying to win back the job he lost April 27 when the county Board of Supervisors demoted him to physician-specialist. Since then he has performed autopsies at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center, across the street from his old office.

"I am quite ready," Noguchi said as he arrived for the hearing. "I have served the people of Los Angeles County well. I have done everything that can be done (within) the budget we have been provided, and I have worked conscientiously and (been) available 24 hours (a day). No person can do better than I have done."

The report on the coroner's office, compiled by a team of pathologists and forensic science experts, concluded that Noguchi was doing the bestjob he could with the funding available. The team was headed by Dr. Leslie Lukash, coroner for Nassau County, New York, whose observations were included in a 1982 management audit of the coroner's department ordered by the county Board of Supervisors prior to Nogushi's demotion.

However, Charles Norris, chief of management services for County Administrative Officer Harry Hufford, said that Lukash privately had made much more severe comments about the coroner's operation.

"He thought it was a mess ... that he (Noguchi) had one of the worst offices in the United States," Norris said at the hearing.

"My conclusion is that Dr. Noguchi is seriously deficient as a manager," he added.

..MASTERSON, A PRIVATE attorney hired by the county for this case, said evidence will be presented to show "serious dereliction of office," including mismanagement, absenteeism, sensationalizing celebrity deaths, and the 1979 payment of $2,000 by Eli Lilly Co. to Noguchi's Life Foundation in 1979.

The Life Foundation is a private, non-profit group to aid in transplant research, Isaac said, and Noguchi maintains that he does not recall the incident.

"Dr. Noguchi has no recollection of it," Isaac said outside the hearing. "There is certainly no crime involved (in what may have been)a donation."

Masterson contended Lilly paid the money to the foundation through the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center in order to use public records in the coroner's office for a federally ordered investigation into deaths possibly related to the pain-killer Darvon. The investigation is still pending.

He said "a public trust has been breached" in the incident.

"That, in and of itself, is ample reason for the discipline that has been taken," Masterson said.

Through it all, Noguchi, dressed in a blue suit, sat quietly.

Inside the hearing, Isaac set up color posters, including pencil sketches by Noguchi, detailing the coroner's accomplishments. One poster depicted a harried coroner's worker with a telephone to each ear. Another poster, titled "Statue of Justice," had a blindfolded Noguchi holding scales in each hand, with one scale filled with media, police and public and the other scale with families of deceased people.

Wandering minstrel

Minister heeds true calling

By SETH W. MOSKOWITZ
Winston-Salem Journal

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — It's been a long and rocky road, as spiritual journeys so often are.

But it seems to be getting smoother all the time because four years ago Nicholas Edward Hodsdon finally heeded his true calling and became a wandering minstrel, or, as he dubs himself, "The Troubador."

In his scarlet doublet and brown velvet hose, his white lace ruff and long black surcoat, Hodsdon looks very much the well-dressed Elizabethan courtier.

He entertains and educates, throwing into his performances liberal doses of literature and history, as well as juicy tidbits about the goings-on in Queen Elizabeth's court. He gives his audiences love songs and court songs, ballads and bawdy refrains. He offers tunes on the tabor pipe, songs strummed on the harp-like psaltery and lilting refrains from the 15 strings of his lute.

Hodsdon, 40, spends each summer on Roanoke Island at the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site, which was settled during the reign of Queen Elizabeth. There, Hodsdon dresses in an Elizabethan costume and plays his lute while interpreting Elizabethan culture for the public.

The rest of the year he lives in an apartment in Old Salem, Winston-Salem's national historic district, from which he takes his one-man Elizabethan cultural drama to public schools and street festivals, college campuses and public parks throughout the Southeast.

Some may think it odd that an ordained minister of the United Church of Christ should spend most of his time decked out in velvet, traveling about the Southeast singing secular songs more than 400 years old.

But Hodsdon is simply following his calling, he says. He received his calling early one morning in 1975 in a Benedictine monastery in Valyermo, Calif., where he was leading a weeklong workshop on liturgical dance and scriptural song.

He had just finished writing a four-part arrangement for the Song of Solomon when he had what he describes as an ecstatic vision.

"Go sing to people," Hodsdon was told.

He didn't heed God's message right away, though — not until he had paid a heavy price for not doing so, he says.

He returned to New York City, where he intended to resume the life he had been leading there for a dozen years, working numerous part-time jobs for various churches and community organizations. He did all that while working on his master's degree in divinity at the New York Theological Seminary and his master's degree in music at Teachers College of Columbia University.

No sooner did Hodsdon return to New York, though, than everything began to dry up. Conferences were canceled. Jobs fell by the wayside. Every time he turned around he found another obstacle.

Law-abiding escapee wants clemency

COURTLAND, Va. (AP) — David McBride, who fled a Virginia prison in 1975 and created a new and law-abiding life in Sweden, received a one-year suspended sentence Monday for his escape.

But McBride still has 22 years left on the 25-year sentence he received in 1971 for selling LSD, with 1985 the earliest permissible parole date, according to Corrections Department spokesman Wayne Farrar.

Circuit Court Judge B.A. Williams sentenced McBride on the escape charge, and he is being held at Southampton Correctional Center.

McBride, 34, was arrested May 5 in a New York airport on a stopover during a flight from the Virgin Islands to Sweden. He has asked Gov. Charles S. Robb for clemency from the drug sentence.

The conviction came when McBride was 22, for twice selling about 30 tablets of LSD to a police informant. He contended his arrest was the result of a frame-up, but his appeal was turned down.

In his appeal to Robb, McBride, now married and the father of a 2-year-old son, wrote:

"I sit here now, wondering why Virginia would still want to punish this man of today for a mistake made by a youth 12 years past.

"I ask you: Would it be right for you today to punish a man and destroy the life God has created for me, for a mistake a youth made so long ago?"

McBride first went to British Columbia, Canada, after his escape, where he met and married a Swedish woman. An earlier marriage had fallen apart after he went to prison.

McBride and his new wife went to Sweden in 1976 and started a boatbuilding business there two years later.

The U.S. consul in Stockholm, Robert F. Dorr, described McBride as "law-abiding and apparently exemplary."

When McBride was arrested, he and his wife were on their way back from the Virgin Islands, where they had thought of moving, even though Sweden had provided a sanctuary.

"We wanted to be close to America. It was our dream of returning here one day. We want our son to go to school here," Maria McBride had said shortly after the arrest.

McBride's letter to Robb was passed on to Secretary of the Commonwealth Laurie Naismith, who will investigate and convey her findngs to the parole board, which in turn will make a recommendation to the governor.

Psychological warfare

Britain bred terror among untrained Argentine soilders

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

STANLEY, Falkland Islands — In fighting an enemy that outgunned and outnumbered them 8,000 miles from home, British forces were aided by an element of psychological warfare that exaggerated their strength and bred terror among ill-trained Argentine conscripts, military officials and islanders say.

The numbers of British warplanes and troops were inflated, and the British played on the conscripts' fears of being slaughtered by rigorously trained British units, among them the fierce Nepalese Gurkhas.

"Napoleon spoke of the necessity for establishing a moral ascendancy over one's enemy," said Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, commander of British land forces that took the Falkland Islands back from Argentina on June 14, ending their 74-day occupation.

"By that he meant it was important to create in the enemy's mind an expectation that he would be defeated. I think to a large degree we created that expectation."

SOME OF THE psychological warfare was orchestrated in London. Other aspects were improvised.

British press reports, often based on unofficial — and therefore untraceable — Defense Ministry leaks spoke of as many as 60 British Harrier jets marauding the skies over the Falklands.

But in post-conflict interviews with soldiers and airmen here, it emerges that at no time were more than 20 of the vertical-takeoff fighter-bombers in operation.

When the huge container ship Atlantic Conveyor — later to be sunk by an Argentine missile — steamed into the South Atlantic, it carried not 20 Harriers, as was reported at the time, but five.

When the Defense Ministry in London announced that for the first time Harriers were refueled in the air and flown to the Falklands with just one stop on Ascension Island, the press reported as many as 20 jets had accomplished the feat.

There were only two, replacements for a pair of Harriers lost after a collision on patrol.

By comparison, Argentina had more than 140 high-performance jet combat aircraft when the conflict began.

Perhaps it was the psychological edge that explains why at Goose Green, some 1,300 Argentine soldiers were captured by 450 British paratroopers, or why at Stanley, some 11,000 Argentines surrendered to between 4,000 and 5,000 Britons.

Or why, despite their numerical advantage, their well dug-in positions and modern equipment, the Argentines never launched a counterattack, but waited in their trenches for British assaults.

The Argentine force was composed largely of ill-trained conscripts, clearly awed by the professional British marines, paratroopers and guardsmen.

THE ARGENTINES also reportedly feared the Nepalese Gurkha soldiers who formed part of the British 5th Infantry Brigade.

When the requisitioned luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 left Southampton harbor, much was made — particularly in the Argentine press — of the inclusion of the Gurkha Rifles. The Nepalese fighters, who have a long history of service to the British crown, were pictured displaying their famous curved-blade Kukri knives.

Eric Goss, manager of Goose Green settlement, reported that when the British landings began at San Carlos, 15 miles to the north, it was the Gurkhas who were foremost in the minds of the Argentine garrison.

There was other evidence of official disinformation in London.

The most notorious example was a May 20 briefing by permanent Defense Undersecretary Sir Frank Cooper in which he said — on condition his name not be used — that British forces were not planning a D-Day style invasion of the Falklands but rather a series of hit-and-run raids on Argentine positions.

Even as he spoke, some 5,000 British servicemen were preparing to land at San Carlos. The first units came ashore early the next morning. When Fleet Street finally realized what had been done, editors howled.

The Argentines engaged in their own form of disinformation, claiming repeatedly that British attacks had been repelled and British ships — most often the aircraft carrier HMS Invincible — sunk. But these claims were easy for the British to disprove simply by contacting their forces in the field.

BSSH counselor honored

Mrs. Myrtle Tatum, certified alcoholism counselor at Big Spring State Hospital, recently was presented the "Counselor of the Year" award at the annual Texas Association of Alcoholism Counselors Convention and Workshop in San Antonio.

This is the second consecutive year that the award has been presented to a Big Spring State Hospital counselor. Clyde Alsup, administrator of the facility's alcoholism unit, won the award last year.

Mrs. Tatum is president of the Big Spring-Permian Basin Association of Alcoholism Counselors. A charter member, she has been active in the association the past 12 years.

Past awards received by Mrs. Tatum include a Public Service Award from the City of Big Spring for her work in establishing and operating the detox center.

SOVIET BLIMP — The Soviet-designed airship "Ural 3" hovers during recent test flight near the town of Berezovsky. The helium—filled craft, covered with rubberized silvery fabric, is a prototype for an air crane with a load capacity of 15 tons to be used in construction of power transmission lines and gas and oil pipelines in remote areas.

Sail to Nantucket: yarns by the bucket

BY HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

NANTUCKET, Mass. — Down at the end of Nantucket town's cobblestoned Main Street stands the quaint and historic Pacific Club, the only place in my considerable experience as an insomniac where I have seen folks playing cards at 7 o'clock in the morning.

This observation, however, does not include the tourists aboard the posh powerboats tied up along Straight Wharf, who deal out the first hand as soon as the sun breaks through Nantucket's perennial fog, which can be as early as 5 a.m. or three days later.

What, you may ask, is the Pacific Club doing to justify itself on this charming little island 20 miles out in the Atlantic Ocean off Cape Cod?

Well it seems the club was founded quite some decades ago by captains of Nantucket whaling ships which mostly worked in Pacific waters. Over the doorway are the facsimile nameboards of the Eleanor, the Dartmouth and the Beaver, three locally owned brigantines whose holds contributed the necessary oolong for the Boston Tea Party. The club now is frequented by some of the saltiest characters on view anywhere outside a label for canned clam chowder (New England style) or a box of oysterettes: bearded and grizzled retired sea captains, skippers of commercial fishing boats, a semiretired charter boat captain or two and perhaps a few out of work actors hired by the local Chamber of Commerce from central casting to add more local color to an island dune deep and drifting with nautical nostalgia.

Step off a 30-foot sloop as we did, seeking surcease from the tumultuous seas and salt-spray soggy sandwiches at an island chowder house, and the placemats set before you help work up an appetite by recalling the grisly murders and mutiny aboard the Nantucket whaler, The Globe. It gave our wind-and-work-wearied crew, three days out with three days left to go before returning to permanent duty aboard our LSDs (large steel desks), a few ideas about abruptly altering the command structure. The plot, however, never quite hatched. Since only the captain (a complex blend of Bligh, Queeg and Ahab) knew how to read a map or a chart or whatever they call those mayonnaise stained rolls of tattered paper kept beneath the bunk mattress in the main and only cabin, we chose tyranny over certain immortality as an offshore navigation hazard marker.

Speaking of mutiny, local lore here also tells of the tart-tongued Nantucket whaling captain who staged a one-man mutiny at a church social on the island when one of the serving ladies brought his bowl of oyster stew.

"Tell the cook," he instructed the waitress, "to put a few more oysters in this bowl. The only ones I've seen so far are about a day's sail apart."

I wish I had worked up enough courage to use that line at an overpriced and grossly over-praised seafood place where the jumbo shrimp in the shrimp cocktail were about as frequent as scheduled El Al flights into Jedda airport.

Benjamin Franklin's mother, the placemat at another restaurant informed us, was born on Nantucket, and the island suffered severe shipping losses in the Revolutionary War. You get a lot of history with the hors d'oeuvres around here, even if the drinks are about as weak as that tea they served at the Boston Tea Party.

Packager foresees publishing changes

NEW YORK (AP) — Although he's a book packager, Bill Adler doesn't earn his living wrapping books.

Rather, he wraps up book deals.

Says Adler, an amiable 53-year-old with a penchant for puffing on long cigars, "A packager, simply put, comes up with an idea for a book, then finds a writer to write it and a publisher to publish it.

"For example, if it came to me that the weather in San Francisco might make a book, I'd get a publisher interested, then I'd get the San Francisco weatherman to write it.

"As it is, my firm's specialty is celebrity books. Bill Adler Books probably represents more celebrites than anyone. These books are autobiographies. What I do is bring together a celebrity, a writer, a publisher, and we make a deal."

Adler, who describes himself as "primarily a book person who is interested in causing books to be published," tells all about packaging in his new book, "Inside Publishing." He also talks about his experiences as a literary agent and as a writer, pointing out that "70 percent of my income comes from packaging and agenting and 30 percent from writing."

Writing is what got him into his present line of work.

"I got in through the back door, sort of," Adler recalls with a smile. "I started out as a television writer. I spent about eight or nine years doing that, and then I got the idea for a book.

"I thought there might be a book in the funny letters kids send home from camp. So, I rounded up about 125 of these letters and got them published in a book called "Letters From Camp." The book sold well enough for me to do other books, and before I knew it I was out of television and into the book publishing wor ld."

Adler says he now plans to add publishing to his ventures. His firm is going to publish a book dealing with the nuclear arms race.

He says he decided to expand his operations because of the changes that have taken place in the publishing world.

Adler says, "It used to be that you really had to have a large sales force to distribute a book. But the way things are now, the bulk of distribution has fallen into four or five hands — the big bookstore chains. Nowadays, you make five calls, get them to agree to carry your book, and your book will be distributed in over 60 percent of the country."

SMOKEOUT RESULTS — Two months ago, some 450 residents of Nevada watched their cigarettes burn following a mass hypnotism session called "The Great Nevada Smokeout." Today, organizers of the smokeout claim more than one-third of the participants are still off cigarettes, and hypnotist Greg States says, "I think the overall effect is extremely good." He said he believes the success rate is higher than other programs designed to help people quit smoking.

Hillside Strangler says memory hazy

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Confessed Hillside Strangler Kenneth Bianchi, returning to the witness stand after a 10-day break in the murder trial of his cousin Angelo Buono, professed a fuzzy memory Monday about the women he has admitted killing.

Bianchi, near the conclusion of his direct prosecution testimony and facing cross-examination later in the week, testified about the 10th victim, Cindy Lee Hudspeth, 20, who once lived across the street from Bianchi's apartment house in Glendale. But he said he could not remember much about the day she died.

Under questioning by Assistant Attorney General Michael Nash, Bianchi claimed that he first met Miss Hudspeth at Buono's auto upholstery shop in Glendale and said he thought the meeting occurred in the early afternoon.

However, Nash pointed out that Bianchi previously had said the meeting was in the early evening.

"I remember that it was the afternoon," said Bianchi. "I don't know what to tell you. If you want something more exact, it's impossible. I'm giving it my best shot. I'm just being general."

Superior Court Judge Ronald George instructed Bianchi that he must answer specifically.

In response to the next question regarding why his answer differed Monday from previous statements, Bianchi said petulantly, "I don't know why it's different. It just is."

Repeated comparisons of Bianchi's previous statements and his current testimony have been going on since he first took the stand last month as the state's star witness against Buono.

Buono, 47, is charged with all 10 of the notorious Hillside Strangler murders of young women and girls whose nude bodies were found dumped on Los Angeles area hillsides in 1977-78. Buono faces the death penalty if convicted.

Bianchi, 31, is testifying against his adoptive cousin as part of a plea bargain to save him from the death penalty. He pleaded guilty to five of the Los Angeles killings and two similar murders in Bellingham, Wash., and has been sentenced to life in prison in both states.

Although Bianchi has insisted on the witness stand that Buono is guilty of the slayings, he has failed to give many details of the killings which he had provided earlier to police and in testimony at a preliminary hearing.

Asked at one point why his descriptions to authorities were more detailed earlier, he said: "It was to give me credibility because I was taking credit for the crimes. ... Those are details I was pressed on, so when I was pressed, I delivered answers."

Bianchi told jurors what he remembered of Miss Hudspeth's last day alive — the meeting at Buono's shop, taking her into Buono's house and seeing her undressed.

"I think she was walked into the spare room and I believe we had sex with her," Bianchi testified, but he could not remember other details, such as who had sex with her first.

"I have absolutely no picture in my mind right now, absolutely none," he said.

Miss Hudspeth's body was found Feb. 17, 1978, off Angeles Crest Highway north of La Canada.

California farmers find almonds useful

By JOHN MORGANTHALER
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Like its cousin the peanut, the almond is one versatile nut. So with California production soaring, growers are spending millions to find new ways to cash in on them.

For years, they've roasted, blanched, slivered, sliced, diced and cubed their crop, and turned it into soaps, hand lotions and face creams.

Almonds come canned, packaged and in bulk in at least 20 flavors. There are candy-coated almonds, almond brittle, chocolate bars with almonds, and almond slices on fish and Danish pastries and ice cream sundaes.

But faced with a projected 50 percent increase in production by 1987, the California Almond Growers Exchange has opened a new Almond Research Center at its Sacramento headquarters to expand on these offerings.

It claims to have already developed 2,000 almond products.

There are now almond salami and almond cheese in Japan, "almond milk," a popular soft drink prescribed for stomach ulcers, in Italy, Japan and Spain, and almond butter and almond oil sold in health food stores.

The exchange says it spends $5 million a year on print, television and radio advertisements to promote almonds. Its promotions included persuading airlines to distribute little packages of the nuts as snacks and getting NASA to send them into space with astronauts.

California is the world's largest almond producer, with a crop last year of 406 million shelled pounds. That compares with 60 million pounds in No. 2 Spain and 20 million in Italy. No other U.S. state produces almonds commercially.

The growers' Sacramento plant is the world's largest almond factory. It markets much of the world almond supply under the "Blue Diamond" label.

Besides new ways to use the nuts, the center is seeking new uses for the hulls. They can be made into cattle feed, gasohol, molasses, and burned for power production.

Chemist John Mattei, who heads the research center, says an almond is 22 percent carbohydrate, 23 percent to 25 percent protein and the rest fat — mostly unsaturated and with no cholesterol. As a protein source, he claims almonds are better than beef.

Almonds also are a source of Vitamin E and contain magnesium, phosphorus, copper, iron, calcium, zinc, niacin, thiamin and folacin.

California's warm weather and irrigation systems make it ideal for almonds, which were introduced to the area a century ago from New England. Mattei says the Sunshine State is "about the only place in the United States that can raise almonds."

In addition, growers here have learned to speed up the production of nuts on young trees, by grafting almond cuttings on peach stock. California trees produce in the fourth year, unlike those in Spain which take a decade to produce almonds.

Unlike the Old World almond trees, which live for hundreds of years, the California grafted trees start to decline after 25 years.

The production figures are startling. Trees in Spain produce 125 pounds per acre. In California, where it was 450 pounds per acre in 1950, it has soared to over 1,200 pounds per acre and is still going up.

SCENE OF DISASTER — Workers try to free victims from beneath the wreckage of two skywalks that crashed on to a crowded dance floor in the lobby of Kansas City's Hyatt Regency Hotel last July 17. 114 people were killed in the disaster. The hotel reopened for business las October.

The night the sky fell

Kansas City remembers skywalk disaster

By MARK PETERSON
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Chuck Hayes and his wife, Jayne, went to the Hyatt Regency Hotel for a leisurely night of dancing and drinking. Then the sky walks fell.

Both were crushed in debris. Hayes now uses a brace and cane to get around. His wife — who was given last rites during surgery — is two inches shorter than she was before the accident, her spine having been shattered. Both undergo physical therapy. Both feel mental anguish.

One year after the city's worst disaster, which killed 114 people and injured 200, the physical and psychological wounds fester. Although it's not known who is to blame for the collapse, out-of-court settlements have totaled $24 million.

"I hope a settlement for us is near," said Hayes, a radio newsman whose legs and two vertebrae were crushed when tons of steel and concrete fell July 17, 1981. "But I don't want this thing swept under the rug. Someone was responsible. And whoever it is, they must be having some problems sleeping. If they don't, they're not human."

"When I ache and hurt, I wonder if it will ever end," added Hayes, who is jittery in a crowd or thunderstorm. "I just don't want to hurt anymore. We're young and have many things to do."

..MARY MADDUX watched as the concrete and steel crashed down suddenly on her friends who were dancing and mingling at a tea dance in the lobby of the hotel, which had been opened for only one year.

Although Ms. Maddux, 55, escaped physical injury, her spirit still sags.

"I get dressed and all ready to go somewhere," she says, "and then I'll get tired, or just find some reason not to go. Sometimes I'll stay home and sit in the dark."

So does Norm Zammar, who was on one of the walkways that gave way. "This has been a year of pure physical and psychological drudgery," said Zammar, a middle-aged account executive for a communications firm. "Week after week after week I wonder: 'Where does it end?'"

After the collapse, the hotel closed for remodeling. It reopened in October. Today, there are no sky walks or any public dances.

Occupancy at the hotel is at the same level it was before the accident, said Hyatt spokeswoman Ginny Vineyard, but declined to give occupancy rates.

"We are right where we projected we would be," she said. "We are very satisfied with the current state of business."

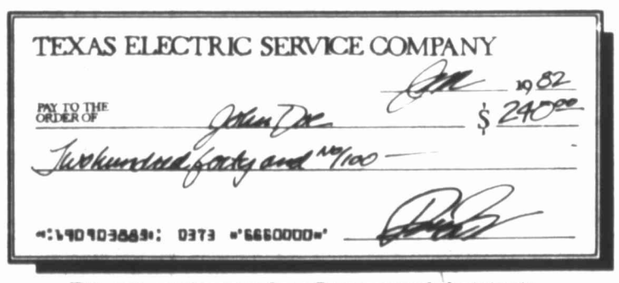

Following a seven-month investigation by the National Bureau of Standards, the federal agency concluded that a critical design change in the sky walk support structure caused the collapse — not faulty workmanship or materials. The bureau said the final design of support-structure components was inadequate.

NO COMPANY involved in the design and construction of the walkways has acknowledged initiating the change. And no lawsuits filed in the case have gone to trial.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis recently dissolved a class-action suit stemming from the collapse. U.S. District Judge Scott Wright had certified the class-action to determine, in one jury trial, which defendants were liable for compensatory and punitive damages.

Lawyers for the class-action said they are appealing the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Save energy with high-efficiency a/c and get a bonus from Texas Electric

The amount shown is for a 3-ton central electric air conditioner with an SEER of 8.5.

If you replace your central electric air conditioner with one that's more efficient, Texas Electric will pay you a bonus of $80 per ton.

Not only that, you'll save on your electric bill as well. For example, a high-efficiency 3-ton unit will save you up to $160 a year.

This equipment costs more initially, but the bonus from Texas Electric plus the savings on your electric bill will make up the difference in just a few years.

If enough people buy high-efficiency equipment, summer peak load growth will be slowed — and so will the need to build new generating plants. In the long run, this will help hold down everyone's electric bill.

Before you replace your old air conditioner, ask your dealer about central air conditioners, heat pumps, and window units that qualify for this program.

Texas All-Stars stay alive with 10-2 win

Rodriquez back in form, throws 4-hitter

By GREG JAKLEWICZ
Sports Editor

LAMESA — The one thing you don't want to do is get the Texas League All-Stars upset. Stanton and Midland Western have suffered as a result of Midland Mid-City's mistake last week.

Mid-City rallied late in the game to defeat the defending District III champions in the tournament opener. Texas has since returned to destroy Stanton 25-0 and then blasted Western 10-2 here Monday night.

At the same time, Mid-City rallied by Midland Eastern 3-2 to set up a possible meeting between the first round opponents, this time in the loser's bracket.

In games tonight, undefeated Big Spring American tangles with Midland North Central in one 8 p.m. game while host Lamesa tests Midland Tower at the Minor League ballpark. After tonight, only two teams will be unbeaten in the tourney.

The most encouraging thing about Monday's game was the return of pitcher Sam Rodriquez. Rodriquez pitched in the tournament opener against Mid-City but did so with a pulled back muscle. Monday night, he looked like his old self from the city tournament.

Rodriquez had his patented curveball working and scattered four hits, struck out 12 and walked just two in getting the complete-game victory. The two runs he gave up were both unearned.

Texas rolled to a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Jerry Doporto got things going with a two-out triple and scored when a fading pop-up by Felix Rodriquez was dropped by second baseman Robin Pyle for an error. Rosendo Yanez singled him home and then scored on a series of Western mistakes.

Western got a run back in the second when Todd Dillard reached on bobble by third baseman Gary Rodriquez and toured the bases on three passed balls.

Texas matched that run in the bottom of the frame. Gary Rodriquez singled and Jay Fryar walked. Sam Rodriquez then hit into an apparent double play but after Pyle forced Fryar at second, he threw the ball away at first to let Gary Rodriquez come home.

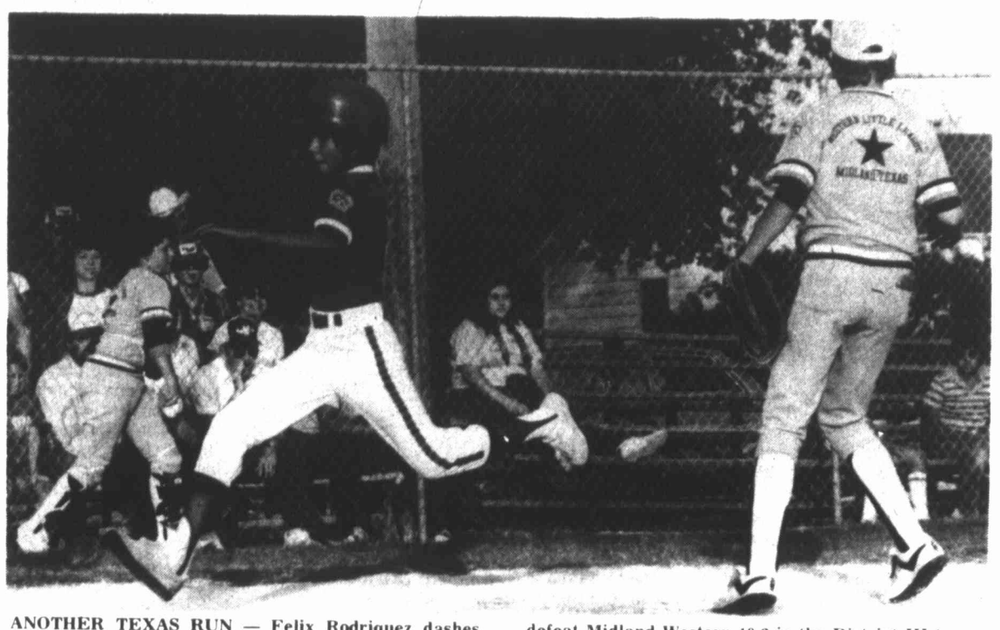

In the fourth, Texas increased its lead to 6-1 when Pyle dropped a pop-up by Felix Rodriquez with the bases full to let two runs in.

Western got its final run in the fifth. Mooney Martinez doubled to right-center, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Brent Elliott's fielder's choice. Elliott hit the ball to Felix Rodriquez and the Texas shortstop bounced his throw to the plate trying to save the run.

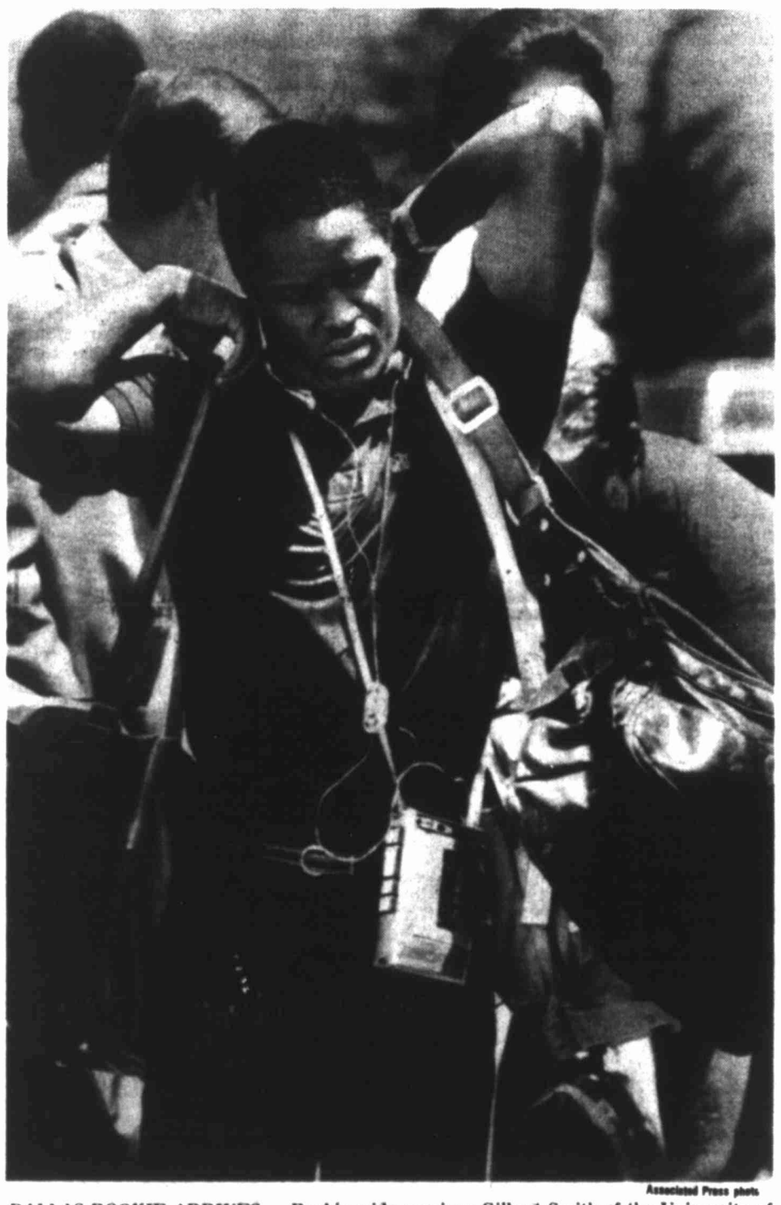

If there was any doubt about the game, Texas erased those thoughts in the bottom of the fifth, scoring four times. Rocky Ramirez tripled home Paul Martin and scored on a passed ball and Jay Fryar doubled in Damian Zarate to make it 9-2. Sam Rodriquez singled to knock in Fryar and Texas led by a final 10-2 count.

In the game, Texas rapped out eight hits with Fyar going 2-for-3 to lead the way.

Texas plays again Wednesday at 8 p.m. against the loser of tonight's Tower-Lamesa game.

ANOTHER TEXAS RUN — Felix Rodriquez dashes across home plate after Rosendo Yanez singled in the first inning. Yanez later scored to give the Texas League All-Stars 3-0 lead and the Big Spring team went on to defeat Midland Western 10-2 in the District III tournament in Lamesa. Watching Helplessly on this play is Midland pitcher Danny Elliott and catcher Joel Hobbs, left.

DALLAS ROOKIE ARRIVES — Rookie wide receiver Gilbert Smith of the University of Texas at Arlington heads for the dormitories loaded down with his belongings Sunday as the Dallas Cowboys arrived at California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks, Calif., to begin training camp.

Schramm wants spot tests

Cowboys boss hopes to curb drug abuse

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys players are required to take physical examinations — including a check for illegal drugs — at the opening of each training camp. But Cowboys president Tex Schramm says that is not enough.

Schramm would like to see the National Football League institute unannounced spot checks of players during the regular season to combat drug use by players.

"At least it would be a step," said Schramm, who said the spot checks would be more effective than the training camp exam because of the element of surprise.

"You don't pick up anything on the reporting physical because it's obvious the player knows he's going to take the physical," he said. "I don't think any test would be worthwhile unless it's an unannounced spot check."

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, strongly opposes spot checks as invasions of privacy. On Monday, Garvey filed charges of unfair labor practices against the NFL Management Council after hearing reports of drug tests conducted by the Denver Broncos and Miami Dolphins.

"I don't understand Garvey's position," Schramm said. "It (the spot check) would be a service for the player. In the long run, players who have a problem would prefer to have it done."

Three of the 88 Cowboys examined Monday failed their physical exams but Cowboy officials said the failures were not related to drugs.

The Cowboys' most-publicized brush with drug abuse came last year when former Dallas linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson checked into a rehabilitation center and admitted he was addicted to cocaine.

Henderson said his cocaine abuse began while he was with the Cowboys. Schramm said a spot inspection program would have caught Henderson's drug use in its early stages, but said nobody with the team suspected Henderson of cocaine use at the time.

"We didn't attribute (his behavior) to drugs because we thought it was part of his personality," Schramm said.

The players association and the management council, currently bargaining over a new standard players' contract, are debating various methods of dealing with drug problems in the league.

Hawks ink three baseball stars

A catcher and two infielders, one of those doubling as a pitcher, have signed scholarship agreements with Howard College baseball coach Bill Griffin.

Inking letters-of-intent are catcher Doug Hatch of Lubbock Monterey, infielder-pitcher Ricky Sustaita of Amarillo Caprock and infielder Stephon Hodge of Caprock. The addition of the three high schoolers brings Griffin's roster up to 15 players.

Hatch, a 5-9, 14-pound switch-hitter, was an all-state selection in the outfield his junior year as Monterey claimed the Class AAAAA state title. He was moved to catcher his senior year but "still did a fairly good job" Griffin reports.

He was named the most valuable player on his team and was an all-district and all-city selection. Hatch hit .404, rapped four home runs, knocked in 40 runs and stole 14 bases.

"I don't mind telling you... this kid can play," Griffin says. "I've already told him I plan to use him in the outfield and I don't want anything to touch the grass."

Sustaita is another versatile player signed by Griffin. He has played both second base and shortstop as well as taking his turns on the mound for Caprock.

While in the infield, Sustaita hit .303 and drove in 21 runs. His pitching stats were a 5-2 record and 42 strikeouts in 59 innings with an earned run average of 2.50.

He won all-district honors for Caprock.

"He has a very wicked curveball... that's what got me interested in him," Griffin said. "I'll work him in the infield — at second — if he's got the bat. But I know he's got the curve."

The third signee also played at Caprock. Hodge, a 5-10, 155-pounder was an all-district choice his junior and senior seasons, as he played two positions. He played shortstop as a junior and then won all-state honors as a third baseman. He hit .455, walloped five home runs and knocked in 45 runs.

"He's very capable of starting at third base for us," Griffin said. "He should fit right in with our plans."

Griffin is hot on the trail of more recruits, hoping to sign 20 this summer. His next target is a pitcher.

"I don't have that left-handed pitcher yet," he reports. "That's my big need now."

Smooth-playing Vilas wins U.S. Pros

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — A relentless authoritarian in complete charge on the court, Guillermo Vilas turned into a thoughtful diplomat in the interview tent.

Is he playing as well now as he did when he won 13 tournaments in 1977?

"It's very difficult. How can you compare? It's so complicated," he said Monday night after rolling over Mel Purcell, 6-4, 6-0, for the title in the $200,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Should he be considered a better player, at the moment, than Ivan Lendl, who lost here in the quarterfinals to Purcell, or John McEnroe?

"That's a disrespectful question. You're talking about such great players," Vilas said. "Lendl, who won eight tournaments; McEnroe, who won Wimbledon when he was nine years old, drinking milk. I'm not going to answer that."

He may have answered those questions on the tennis court in easy straight-set victories over fourth-seeded Yannick Noah in the semifinals Sunday and then Purcell.

Purcell, seeded seventh in the tournament and ranked 30th in the world, stayed with the top-seeded Vilas in the first set. But, in the second set, Purcell's speed was no match for Vilas' strength and deft touch as the Argentinian mixed deep topspin lobs with sizzling passing shots to bury the underdog from Murray, Ky.

"You have to play great to beat him, and I played great in the first set and he still beat me," said Purcell, who is still seeking his first title in a Grand Prix tournament worth at least $200,000 after failing in three finals since he turned pro in 1980.

For Vilas, ranked second in the world, the conquest was another milestone in the brilliant career of the 29-year-old lefthander. It was his 57th Grand Prix title, tying him with Ilie Nastase for second place. Jimmy Connors leads with 91.

It also was Vilas' sixth championship of 1982, doubling his total of last year and more than in any full year since 1977.

His first prize of $32,000 lifted his winnings for the year to $324,300, third in the world behind Lendl and Connors. Vilas said a lot of hard work is responsible for that income.

"Once you start working, there comes a time sooner or later when everything falls together," said Vilas, who lost in the finals here to Bjorn Borg in 1975. "This kind of life is so competitive. You have to play every week and fly and pack and play again."

All-Stars win

ABILENE — Moe Rubio tossed a six-hitter and Tommy Olague collected a first-inning RBI single to lead Big Spring to a 2-1 victory over the Lubbock All-Stars here Monday night.

Big Spring plays Abilene at 8:30 p.m. tonight in the winner's bracket of the sub-sectional tournament. Abilene downed San Angelo 6-2 in the early game Monday.

Lubbock hurler Travis Walden walked four in the first inning to let in one run and Olague connected for the game-winner to give Big Spring a 2-0 lead.

Rubio gave up two singles in the sixth but a double play and a strikeout ended the threat. Lubbock scored an unearned run in the seventh.

David Anguiano and Russ Stukel also had hits for Big Spring.

Duo wins golf

The team of Tano Chavarria and Robert Rodriquez fired a 63 Sunday to win the Chicano Golf Association Two-Man Partnership at the Comanche Trails Golf Course.

Second place went to the duo of Tom Fletcher and Juan Montalongo with a 65 while Jerry Barron and Johnny Scott carded a 66 for third place.

Over 50 golfers participated in the event.

T-Top tourney

Entry deadline is July 28 for the Danny's T-Top Slow-Pitch Tournament.

Entry fee is $85 and is limited to Class B and under teams. Trophies go to the top four teams with individual awards to the top three. An all-tournament, MVP and Golden Glove winners will be named.

Contact Danny Heckler at 915-267-1061 or 263-1195 to enter.

Sox win twice

The Big Spring Red Sox moved to 9-1 on the season with a 20-4 mauling of the Abilene Pirates Sunday afternoon.

Louis Rodriquez got the complete-game victory while Adam Yanez and John Morelion smacked home runs. Morelion had four hits and Yanez three in the big win.

The victory gave the Sox a sweep of the Pirates. The week before, Big Spring won 9-7 in Abilene with a 15-hit attack led by Morelion and Mechie Sarmiento with three basehits each. David Cruz was the winning pitcher with Rodriquez notching a save.

Big Spring hosts the Big Lake Tigers in a 1:30 p.m. double header Sunday at the Roy Anderson Complex.

Arnis set

A martial arts exhibition is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Bodycentre.

Master Leo Gaje will conduct the program.

Red Sox, Yaz romp Rangers, 9-5

BOSTON (AP) — With Texas in front 5-4, first baseman Dave Stapleton of the Boston Red Sox ended the Rangers' eighth by catching a high foul barehanded after losing his mitt in a collision.

Almost on command, the Red Sox reacted to the order, rallying for five runs in their half of the eighth as rookie Eddie Jurak singled home the tying run, Jim Rice broke the deadlock with his third single and Carl Yastrzemski belted a three-run homer for a 9-5 victory.

While handing the Rangers a seventh consecutive loss, the Red Sox rallied from a five-run deficit for their fourth victory in five starts on the current homestand. And, with Milwaukee bowing to Minnesota, Boston moved back to within one-half game of the Brewers in the American League East.

The Rangers, who hit just .197 in losing the first six games in the current slump, combined 12 singles and four walks for a 5-0 lead against Boston starter Chuck Rainey.

However, Texas starter Doc Medich was shelled after retiring the first two batters in the seventh. A single by Rice and two walks loaded the bases and Danny Darwin replaced Medich. Gedman broke the shutout bid with a two-run single, taking second on a throw to the plate. Stapleton then singled home two more runs.

Darwin, who had been 5-0 lifetime against Boston, failed to retire a batter in the eighth as his record dropped to 6-5. Rick Miller doubled, took third on a single by Jerry Remy and scored on Jurak's first major league RBI.

American League

Rice, who had been 1-for-18 lifetime against Darwin then lined a single scoring Remy. That brought southpaw Jon Matlack from the Texas bullpen.

Yastrzemski, who had been 1-for-11 lifetime against Matlack, drilled the reliever's first pitch into the Texas bullpen for his 12th homer of the season and No. 438 of his career.

"That was a wild one," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said. "We proved once again that we can come back from way down. After being shut out (9-0 by Kansas City) Sunday and leaving a lot of runners on base in the early innings tonight, we were wondering if we'd ever get another run. But our guys never quit."

Angels 6, Orioles 5

Bob Boone's two-run homer in the seventh inning snapped a 1-1 tie and triggered the California Angels to a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Monday night.

After Boone's second homer of the season gave the Angels a 3-1 lead, California put the game away with three runs in the eighth, two on a single by Tim Foli.

Boone's second homer of the season helped to pin the defeat on Scott McGregor, 11-7, and ended the left-hander's 12-game winning streak against the Angels.

Steve Renko, 8-2, yielded solo homers to Cal Ripken Jr. in the fourth and to Joe Nolan in the seventh in notching his first triumph since June 21.

Twins 6, Brewers 4

Tom Brunansky hit an inside-the-park grand slam and John Castino and Lenny Faedo added solo homers, leading Minnesota to a 6-4 victory over Milwaukee, snapping the Brewers' eight-game winning streak.

Yankees 5, Mariners 3

Tommy John pitched 71-3 innings of four-hit ball and Oscar Gamble, Dave Winfield and Roy Smalley slugged second-inning home runs to power New York to a 5-3 victory over Seattle.

White Sox 6, Tigers 0

Harold Baines and Vance Law hit third-inning solo homers to back the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Lamp as Chicago downed Detroit 6-0, snapping a five-game losing streak.

Indians 5, A's 4

Third baseman Wayne Gross' throwing error with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning allowed Jack Perconte to score the winning run as Cleveland defeated Oakland 5-4.

Blue Jays 4, Royals 2

Leon Roberts and Barry Bonnell belted solo homers to back Luis Leal's six-hitter as Toronto defeated Kansas 4-2 to extend its winning streak to five games.

Astros tumble to Cubs in 11th inning

CHICAGO (AP) — Jay Johnstone became very angry when he found himself reacting like an uptight weekend golfer in the sixth inning by taking a third strike.

"I was thinking about my hands, my grip, my shoulders and trying not to lunge," said Johnstone. "I had so many things on my mind that I forgot to swing."

But he calmed down by the 10th inning. He singled home the tying run and then scored the winner on Jerry Morales' pinch single to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

The Astros had taken a 5-4 lead in the top of the 10th on Phil Garner's run-scoring single before the Cubs put on their show of dash and daring.

Leon Durham singled to open the bottom of the 10th, and when Gary Woods struck out after failing on attempts of a sacrifice bunt and a hit-and-run, Durham stole second.

Johnstone lashed a single to right to score Durham, and then went from first to third on a single by Larry Bowa before scoring on Morales' clutch hit.

Johnstone, a nomad who is with his eighth major league club but has become an expert in the art of hitting, has been in a mild slump.

"I landed on my shoulder and bounced off the walls a few times," said Johnstone, explaining some of his defensive exploits. "I had a kink in my shoulder. I don't think that was the reason for not hitting, but it was on my mind so I tried to do some different things.

"Then I started lunging and uppercutting the ball," said Johnstone. "But the last time up today, I decided to see the ball and hit it."

Morales wasn't so sure his looping single would drop.

"I got jammed," said Morales, "and it's a good thing I didn't hit it good and the wind was blowing in. That helped it come down. If I hit it good and the wind isn't blowing in, Poolie (Terry Puhl) would have caught it."

The victory gave the Cubs an 8-2 lead in their series with the Astros this year and Manager Lee Elia was unable to explain his team's success against Houston.

National League

Braves 4, Cardinals 1

Joaquin Andujar balked home the tie-breaking run with the bases loaded in the eighth and Bob Horner followed with a two-run single, giving Atlanta a 4-1 victory over St. Louis.

Dale Berra drove in three runs with a home run, single and a sacrifice fly to lift Pittsburgh to a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati.

Dodgers 2, Expos 1

Recycled right-hander Vicente Romo combined with Steve Howe on a six-hitter, earning his first major league victory in more than eight years, as Los Angeles beat Montreal 2-1 and snapped the Expos' four-game winning streak.

Phillies 7, Padres 6

Mike Schmidt and Bo Diaz hit consecutive solo homers in the second inning and Gary Matthews extended his hitting streak to 14 games with a two-run single during a four-run third to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-6 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Midland falls 7-4 to Jackson

By The Associated Press

Andy Van Slyke had a homer, a double and a single to lead the Arkansas Travelers to a 5-1 Texas League baseball victory over the San Antonio Dodgers.

In other Texas League action Monday night, Jackson beat Midland, 7-4, and Amarillo edged Tulsa, 6-5, in 10 innings.

All Texas League teams will be off tonight to prepare for Wednesday night's all star game at Tulsa. League play will resume Friday night.

Kevin Hagen, who was aided by six double plays, was the winning pitcher. He is 7-9. The loser was Paul Voigt, 9-8.

The Jackson Mets scored three runs in the eighth inning to break a 4-4 tie and take a 7-4 victory over the Midland Cubs.

John Semprini, 4-4, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Randy Clark, 2-6.

Carla Wellenda has no fear of high wire

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer

PAWTUCKET, R.I. — Hanging by an ankle on a swaying pole 110 feet above the ground, Carla Wallenda doesn't think about the fall that claimed the life of her high-wire-walking father.

"I don't feel it's dangerous because I know what I'm doing," Miss Wallenda said. "Once my spotlight fuse blew out and I was up there hanging in the dark and all I could think of was my husband would be mad at me because I left the Crockpot on."

As the spoke, she speared another porkchop from a frying pan and put it in the Crockpot to keep warm as she stood in the kitchen of the trailer where she lives while performing away from her Sarasota, Fla., home.

A pet skunk, two dogs and a monkey sniffed her feet as she prepared dinner for her husband, Mike Morgan, and 14-year-old daughter, Valarie.

Outside stood the 110-foot pole where she would climb that night to entertain the crowds on the midway at Billy Burr's Funorama in a week-long stint at Pawtucket's Narragansett Park.

She is the daughter of Karl Wallenda, the circus legend killed four years ago at the age of 73 when high winds blew him from a high wire stretched between two high-rise hotels in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

As a girl she sat in a chair balanced atop the seven-man pyramid invented by her father as the crowning achievement of the Great Wallendas.

She rode in the precarious perch from 1950 to 1961. She was out on her own when the pyramid fell in January 1962. Her cousin Dieta was killed and her brother Mario paralyzed in the 30-foot fall during a Shrine Circus in Detroit.

"Dieta only had three steps to go to get to the safety pedestal when he said 'I can't hold it' and they fell," she said.

Despite the tragedies which have hit her family, Miss Wallenda says she has no fear of flying.

"My grandmother was a performer all her life and she died of old age at 96. I had an uncle who was run over by a drunk driver when he was very young, so ...This is our way of life. Tragedy to me is like some of those coal miners who go into the mines for generations and generations and face that danger."

She reached into a cupboard for a week-old newspaper clipping showing her son Enrico, 27, walking a tightrop stretched over a tiger pit at the Columbus, Ohio, Zoo.

"My four kids are the eighth generation and they're all dedicated to aerial work," she said.

"The seven-man pyramid has never been duplicated. I heard of an act in South America that is supposed to do one, but it's not the same as my father's with the chair on the top."

Exxon plans discount

HOUSTON (AP) — Exxon Company USA plans to expand a discount program to motorists who pay cash for gasoline and diesel fuel.

Exxon announced Monday it hopes to have the program in operation within six weeks following a test of markets in Phoenix, Ariz., Worcester, Mass., Jackson, Miss., and Norfolk, Va.

R.C. Kiddo, Exxon USA marketing vice president said motorists in the test programs saved about four cents per gallon for paying cash.

"Discount for cash allows motorists to elect to use the convenience of the credit card or pay cash for motor fuel and save money," he said. "Two-thirds of the nation's motorists pay cash for their motor fuel, and this program will provide dealers with a way to price more competitively for this business."

About 90 percent of the dealers involved in the pilot programs have chosen to participate in the program, Kiddoo said.

VIDEO LISTING SERVICE
...at HOME Realtors now

HOME Realtors knows what you're looking for

The hit T.V. show of the season is being shot in HOME Realty offices, and anyone considering selling or buying a home can't afford to miss this Big Event.

Some time ago, HOME introduced the Video Listing Service, one of the most innovative approaches to selling homes since the MLS.

With the VLS HOME Photographs homes inside and out, in detail and in color. Whenever someone is interested in seeing a home for sale, we show them our 'library' of homes for sale on our special television, with pleasing 'background music and voice-over' describing the home in full.

Says President Jeff Brown, "VLS eliminates many of the problems of showing homes, because it's like having an open house 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. It's a very timely tool — it can save considerable time and gasoline."

"After all, looking for a home is an arduous task, whether you're new to the area or a native. The video service makes it easier on everyone — the buyer, seller and agent."

Advantages to the home seller are obvious; if the family is moving out before the home is sold, VLS can photograph the home to its best advantage. And the homeowner no longer has to stay at home evenings or weekends in case someone wants to see the house.

Probably, though, one of the most popular benefits of VLS is that it 'qualifies' the people who do personally visit the home.

Homeowners using the service have called it 'Inspirational' and "One of the best ways to shop for a home," sales associates certainly agree.

HOME Realtors-Appraiser is located in the Coronado Plaza on FM 100 and Gregg. Check with them today.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New approaches are available that could pave the way to greater success in the future. Don't remain wedded to outmoded methods. Use your hunches to gain your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Associates can help you to expand and become more successful now. Think along more constructive lines at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Go far, if necessary, for the advice you need to improve your financial position. Handle public duties well and gain prestige.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss with loyal friends the best way to gain your goals. Be more enthusiastic in handling regular responsibilties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan to use your talents more wisely in the future. Contact persons who can help you to improve your image.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Ideal time to visit a new area and make the most of the opportuntities there. You can easily gain a long-time goal now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to handle personal reponsibilities early in the day for best results. Pay more attention to loved one at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen to the views of associates and come to a better understanding. Go to the right sources for the data you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to the practical suggestions of an expert and follow them. Make sure to keep promises you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use a new approach in expressing your talents. Come to a better accord with loved one. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more willing to do the things at home that will increase harmony. Take health treatments. Think constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) After important work is done, go out with a good friend to a different type of amusement than you are used to.

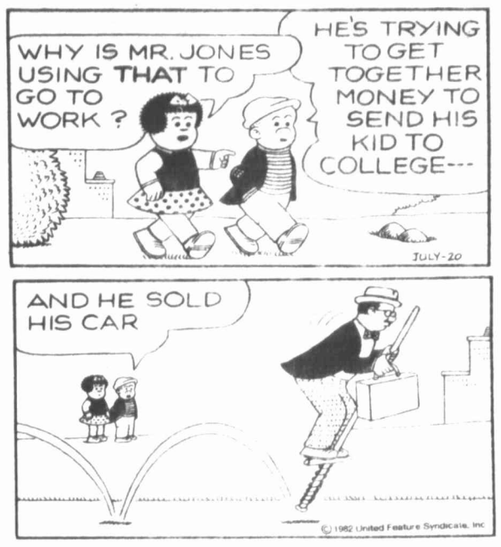

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss financial matters with family members and cut down on expenses as much as you can. A new outlet could be profitable.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to engage in projects that are of a practical nature and should be encouraged in this. The pioneer spirit is definitely in this chart. A good education should be given so that your progeny can be successful.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Four injured in balloon

WINSLOW, Maine (AP) — A hot-air balloon hit a 12,000-volt power transmisson line today and four people were hurt, including a 43-year-old woman critically injured when she jumped 30 feet to the ground, police said.

Two of the balloonists were taken to a hospital in Waterville for treatment of burns and other injuries. The other two were treated and released, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Winslow police officer Richard A. Grindall, who saw the accident, said he had been following the balloon on its southeasterly descent across town when it hit the power lines shortly after 7 a.m.

"It was coming down fast, but not that fast," he said. "It wasn't a free fall."

He said he saw one passenger, Catherine A. Bolduc, 43, of Winslow, jump from the basket only seconds before it struck the wires. She was listed in critical condition.

"I called for rescue as soon as I saw her jump," Grindall said.

CHATTY BASSETT — Chumley, a bassett hound owned by Robert and Marianne Smythe of Chapel Hill, N.C., is in the doghouse over some phone calls he answered, including one from a dental hygenist. The Smythes say they have moved the phone to sideline Chumley's new diversion.

N-plant charges denied

FORT WORTH (AP) — Inspectors and construction supervisors at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant beig built near Glen Rose deny charges of shoddy work.

Statements from nine witnesses for Texas Utilities Generating Co. were filed Monday with the U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, contradicting accusations made last week by the Citizens Association for Sound Energy. The organization — known as CASE — is trying to block government licensing for the plant.

Company witnesses said Comanche Peak is a safely built plant with adequate quality-control programs, and said all charges of poor workmanship at the facility have been investigated and proper action has been initiated where needed.

CASE filed complaints from former plant workers alleging faulty construction and improper inspections.

Court to decide Moon deportation

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge is expectedto decide next month whether Rev. Sun Myung Moon can be deported because of his conviction and prison sentence for tax evasion.

Nina Cameron, counsel for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Tuesday that Moon has 30 days to ask U.S. District Judge Gerard Goettel to bar the service from using Moon's conviction and sentence as grounds for deportation.

Federal law allows the immigration service to deport an alien who has been convicted of a crime of moral terpitude and sentenced to a year or more in prison.

On Friday the Korean evangelist was sentenced to 18 months in prison for failing to report $162,000 in income during the 1970s.

Laurence Tribe, Moon's attorney, said last week that Moon would file the immigration motion within 30 days.

Moon's lawyers also are appealing the conviction.
