Thut said 5 p.m. today was the deadline for in-person voting. Ballots that have been mailed outside the county may reach Thut's office as late as noon Saturday, providing they are postmarked on or before June 2.

LIONS CLUB EXCHANGE

Texans To Get Look At Swedish Culture

By BEN KECK
News' Staff Writer

Through the efforts of the Pampa Noon Lions Club, two Swedish fathers are going to become "True Top O' Texans" next week.

Two Pampa girls, Barbara Lynne Brown, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul N. Brown, 1606 Fir, and Connie Barber, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Barber, 1807 N. Sumner, are scheduled to leave Monday for a tour of major European cities and a four-week visit with a Swedish family.

The girls, accompanied by 62 other young Texans, will be participating in The Texas Lions' Clubs' Youth Exchange Program.

Connie and Barbara said they are both looking forward to visiting Europe. "I understand there is an island near Sweden where the people live by ancient customs," said Barbara, a sophomore at Texas Christian University.

Connie, a Pampa High School senior, said she was anxious to see how young people in London dressed.

"We will fly to London from New York," she said. "I have heard the kids there dress a lot differently than we do here. I just want to see if it's true."

The girls said the only thing they know about Europe is what they have heard. They both said they were not going on the trip with any preconceived ideas.

After arriving in London, the girls will go to Paris where, as Connie said so excitedly, "We will have lunch at the Eiffel Tower."

They will go from Paris to Stockholm where they will be met by the families with whom they will live for four weeks.

Barbara will live with a Lions Club family in the town of Va and Connie will stay with a family in Farila. Barbara said she received a letter from a girl in Va who visited Eastland, Texas, last year.

Later in the month, two young people from Lions' families in foreign countries will arrive in Pampa for a four-week visit.

Local Lions officials have not yet learned who the visitors are, or from which country they will come.

They will spend the first two weeks in Pampa with Dr. and Mrs. Joe Donaldson, and the remainder of their visit will be with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Anderson.

Once in Sweden, Barbara and Connie will present the father of their respective European "families" with a certificate signed by Pampa Mayor Milo Carlson and Chamber of Commerce President Don Lane, proclaiming them "True Top O' Texans."

The exchange program is designed to promote better relations between members of Lions International. For each person sent from a town in the United States, a young person from a foreign country is sent to replace him.

Rogers, Dobrynin Talk Of Mid-East

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Secretary of State William P. Rogers' meeting today with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin may help determine whether the Nixon administration heeds steadily increasing congressional pressure to supply additional jet warplanes to Israel.

It will be the first Rogers-Dobrynin meeting since the Soviet envoy returned from more than a month of consultations in Moscow. It comes with Congress applying increasing pressure on President Nixon to sell Israel the jet warplanes.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., planned to introduce a resolution that would urge Nixon "to call upon the Soviet Union to withdraw all Russian personnel as a major step toward the encouragement of peace in the Middle East."

What Dobrynin has to tell Rogers could have a major bearing on the forthcoming presidential decision whether to grant Israel's longstanding request for 25 more supersonic Phantom jets and 100 more A4 Skyhawks.

Scott Monday sent Rogers a letter signed by 73 senators urging immediate aid to Israel. Congressional pressure plus administration pessimism concerning the possibility of Soviet moves to ease tensions made it virtually certain, most diplomats believed, that a decision favorable to Israel would be forthcoming in the not too distant future.

Officials said Rogers had two principal questions he hoped to get clarified by Dobrynin.

—What is the intent of Moscow's action in sending its own pilots into the air over Egypt to provide for the defense of the central and western part of that nation, which also is protected by sophisticated new Soviet FA3 ground to air missiles?

—Is Moscow ready to give some positive response to formulas proposed late last year by the United States to get Israel and its Arab adversaries engaged in peace negotiations?

U.S. officials said there had been no hint from Moxcow of any change in Soviet policy, which they described as apparently designed to extend Soviet influence as deeply as possible into the area by increasingly ading the Arabs in their struggle against Israel.

These officials were not optimistic about the outcome of any new round of Soviet-American discussions of the Middle East such as that which ended without result in December.

President Nixon Encouraged By Progress In Cambodia; Plans To Appeal For Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon, armed with an "encouraging" progress report on the Cambodian campaign, plans to appeal to the nation Wednesday night for support, in a move he hopes will knock down the Senate's efforts to restrict his military options in Indochina.

Looking tanned and relaxed after a long California weekend, Nixon was working on the 15-minute televised report he will deliver at 9 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

Aides said he would tell the nation of the "encouraging" briefing he received during the weekend from his high military advisers on both the Cambodian operation and the Vietnamization efforts. With Senate critics ready to vote on a series of amendments aimed at curbing Nixon's powers as commander-in-chief, aides said Nixon would appeal for public support.

Monday the White House clarified one aspect of the President's Cambodian policy. It said he has ruled out U.S. air cover and logistical support for any South Vietnamese forces which might remain in Cambodia after June 30, the deadline for the U.S. pullout.

"U.S. air support in Cambodia after June 30 would relate directly to the security of the U.S. forces in South Vietnam," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. "That does not suggest tactical air support of ARVN (army of the Republic of South Vietnam) forces in Cambodia after June 30."

Ziegler's statement suggested Nixon was attempting to discourage extension of the war in Cambodia by the Saigon government, which is seeking to bolster the regime of Gen. Lon Nol, Cambodian chief of state.

Ziegler's reference to air support after June 30 appeared to be leaving the door open for more bombing raids inside Cambodia, if necessary, to protect American troops in South Vietnam.

Late Summer Yard Contest Set By Chamber

The Fire Prevention and Safety Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will conduct Pampa's second annual beautiful yard contest, according to an announcement today by Warren Fatheree, committee chairman.

The city will be divided into four sections comprising Wards 1, 2, 3 and 4. First, second and third prizes will be awarded to the most beautiful yards in each ward.

One prize will be awarded for the cleanest one-block long alley in town.

Fatheree said nominations for the most beautiful yards may be made late in the summer and prizes will be awarded by the judges the first week in September.

Nominations may be submitted by anyone, the committee chairman stated, pointing out that several hundred nominations were made in last year's contest.

"The beautiful yard contest," Fatheree said, "is a follow-up to the city's annual cleanup campaign which just ended."

EXPOSITION OPENS

The exhibition, Limpex '70, was put on to give inventors a chance to display their wares for potential manufacturers.

Cosmonauts Orbit As Neil Armstrong Visits Soviet Union

MOSCOW (UPI)—Two Soviet cosmonauts orbiting the earth in Soyuz 9 reported today everything was going smoothly in the flight, unofficially dedicated to visiting American astronaut Neil A. Armstrong.

Soviet sources said Armstrong watched the television films of the launch Monday night in the apartment of a cosmonaut, Maj. Gen. Georgy Beregovoi, during a party that lasted until 3 a.m. in honor of his trip to the moon.

Armstrong's first inkling there would be a space shot came when Beregovoi turned on the television set shortly before the launch was shown and told him, "This is especially in honor of your trip here."

Armstrong was said to have replied: "It is one of the best gifts you can give me."

Soyuz 9 was launched at 10:09 p.m. Monday in an unusual night shot from the Central Asia Soviet Space Center at Baikonur.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the crew of the spaceship reported after five orbits this morning they were "coping well with conditions of weightlessness and carrying out the flight program."

North Viet Infantry Cracks South Vietnam's Best Division

SAIGON (UPI)—Charging behind mortar barrages, North Vietnamese infantrymen broke into a newly-established camp of South Vietnam's best infantry division in the jungle highlands today and inflicted the heaviest government losses in South Vietnam for six months.

Two Americans and one Australian adviser were also wounded in the attacks which military sources said killed 40 South Vietnamese troops, wounded 67 and left 17 missing.

The North Vietnamese force, estimated at battalion strength, left 31 of their dead in and around the camp, military sources said.

An estimated 700 men of the South Vietnamese 1st Infantry Division, which is taking over the defenses of the north from departing U.S. Marines, were spending their first night in an artillery base three miles from the border of Laos and 24 miles south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam.

The Communist troops broke through the camp perimeter in a first assault shortly before 5 a.m. The defenders beat them off with the help of air strikes and artillery salvos, but the Communists again attacked the base three hours after daylight.

South Vietnamese reinforcements were rushed to the region.

Throughout the day the North Vietnamese poured mortar and sniper rifle fire into the camp on the site of an abandoned U.S. artillery base known as "Tun Tavern" after the Philadelphia tavern where the U.S. Marine Corps was established during the Revolutionary War.

Military sources said that about 700 South Vietnamese troops were moved into the mountain camp to set up artillery batteries that could pound a network of roads which Communist forces were building from their Ho Chi Minh supply complex in Laos into the strategic border region.

The South Vietnamese losses were the heaviest in a single fight in South Vietnam since mid-November when 56 soldiers were killed in a battle in the Mekong River delta southwest of Saigon.

TV Crews Lost In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodian government sent a battalion of paratroopers into the search today for two American network television crews missing south of Phnom Penh since Sunday.

The CBS and NBC teams, a total of eight men, were feared captured by Communist troops along with the three Cambodian drivers.

Three American correspondents were in the group—George Syvertsen and Gerry Miller of CBS, and Wellis Hangen of NBC.

Military spokesmen said the Cambodian paratroopers took up the search 35 miles south of the capital on both sides of Highway 3, where the two teams were last seen. Their three cars were later found abandoned.

A total of 20 correspondents now are listed as missing in Cambodia and all are assumed to have been captured.

Cold Front Vies With Springtime

Local temperatures fell below the 50 degree mark early this morning, but sunshine at mid-morning was pushing thermometers toward 60.

A cold front that moved into the area Sunday afternoon, causing heavy rains locally, drove temperatures steadily downward Sunday night and Monday.

A light mist fell upon the city late Monday night, but lasted less than half-an-hour.

At mid-morning today, though temperatures were warming, winter-like clouds were forming east of the city.

The weatherman promised partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures through Wednesday.

Crime League Minister's Dream

By DON TURNER
News' Staff Writer

Youth Crime Prevention League Of America, which held its fifth annual Pampa seminar Monday, is an organization born in the dream of a Methodist minister 12 years ago.

The minister was Dr. Louis Calvin Browning, a Negro, who as pastor of Bethel Methodist Church, Temple, became concerned with what he saw as a growing disenchantment of young people with the church.

"I saw the youth wandering from the church leadership," Browning said. "I saw a necessity to organize the youth and give them adult supervision to direct their energies in the right direction."

So Youth Crime Prevention League Of America was formed to help youth, especially those living in predominantly black communities, learn to apply for jobs, stay in school and respect law and order.

"Support yourself," Browning told the group of about 40 Pampa youths of mainly grade school and junior high age. "Do a job well, and they will call you back to do another job."

"I believe in responsibility. Everybody ought to work who can work. What made America great is work. Dick Gregory says 'Damn the American flag.' I disagree with Dick Gregory. I love America."

"We have black policemen and white policemen. They are your friends.

"What causes war is the have nots want what the haves got. If it's not worth working for, it's not worth having ..... Ninety-seven per cent of the black boys, girls, men and women do not go along with the Carmichaels and Rap Browns. They want to be constructive."

The speech was short and simple covering a lot of areas quickly. In less than thirty minutes Browning covered the goals of the organization.

It was hard to tell what effect Brownings words had on the group, but it appeared he believed very strongly in what he was saying.

His words were definitely to the right of the answer being voiced nationally by militant

Eggers Says Governorship Should Take Lead In Fighting Pollution Of Texas Beaches

AUSTIN (UPI) — Paul Eggers, Gov. Preston Smith's Republican opponent in the governor's race, said Monday the governor's office should take lead in fighting pollution of Texas beaches.

In a Capitol news conference Eggers said the state has no adequate organizational or financial preparations to combat oil spills which might threaten the Texas Gulf Coast. He criticized what he called a "leadership vacuum" at the state level.

The Wichita Falls attorney was especially critical of Smith's handling of oil globs and small yellow pellets which washed up on Texas beaches during the last month. He did not mention the oil slick that fouled Galveston Beach last weekend after an oil rig exploded in the Gulf of Mexico.

"The state reaction to these situations has been totally inadequaet," Eggers said. "And there is little evidence that future beach pollution will be dealt with any more decisively."

He said the man Smith named to head an ad hoc committee on pollution—John Shanahan — had no prior experience with pollution problems.

"Such problems cannot be dealt with on an ad hoc basis," Eggers said. "An emergency team or task force must be organized, trained and equipped to deal with future environmental crises. State funds have to be made available for this purpose."

Eggers called for an "extensive reevaluation of current antipollution liability," and said the state should be able to act to clean up beaches without waiting until the source of the pollution can be found and the blame placed.

He called repeatedly for state funds available to deal immediately with oil spills on beaches, but said he was not yet sure how large that fund should be or how the money should be raised.

Dr. Browning Still Concerned And Working With The Young

blacks — a group he believes to be a minority of the black population.

Though not in support of the status quo, Browning said Negroes should make their progress "cautiously."

"I think we must be cautious in moving so that it would be substantial," he said. "Nothing happens overnight. If Carmichael had not come out, the black people would have been ahead.

"Many white people were opening up as opposed to the status quo. When Carmichael came out, the others who wanted to keep everything as it was, pointed at Carmichael."

Browning still believes progress is being made.

"I think our society is coming to the point now where a person is judged by what they are and not the color of their skin."

This is a change that can not be legislated, but has to come in the hearts of men, Browning said.

"To bring about a lasting peace, to curb uprising hate, we need a spiritual revolution of love and goodwill," he said. "What the law can not do, God can, through His son."

"I would suggest Christians become more actively engaged in supporting organizations working toward a program of goodwill and love and become more active in speaking up. We've looked to the politicians to do what the church should do. We have failed in our mission if we just go to church."

Presently Browning is trying to raise $200,000 to build a new headquarters in Dallas. Headquarters for the organization now is 109 S. Judkins, Fort Worth.

Though the state legislature has recently passed bills commending the efforts of Browning and the crime prevention league, the fund drive has moved slowly accumulating about $20,000 in two years.

But the 63-year-old preacher continues traveling through Texas and 15 other states asking for financial support and encouraging youth to stay in school, work and respect the law.

"I am 63," he said, "and I have enjoyed working with youth. It has kept me young thinking and young acting listening to their problems and trying to help them."

Rio Grande Valley Officials Try To Prove Census Wrong

United Press International

City officials in the Rio Grande Valley are mounting a large-scale campaign to prove the U.S. Census Bureau wrong.

Preliminary census reports released last Thursday showed Valley cities declining in population. City officials refused to believe it.

At least 10 cities are conducting telephone campaigns and door-to-door recounts to try to find persons overlooked by the census. So far their lists of the uncounted show: Harlingen, 1,200; Edinburg, 357; Brownsville, 355; Raymondville, 35; Mission, 65; McAllen, 202: Weslaco, 81; Mercedes, 49; Pharr, 69, and San Beneto, 48.

But most of the efforts to find the uncounted are just now getting into high gear.

Edinburg Mayor Lloyd Hawkins, president of the Lower Rio Grande Valley Development Council, conferred Monday with Jefferson D. McPike, field director of the U.S. Census Bureau.

Hawkins said McPike "doubted seriously there was the kind of error local officials think there is.' McPike reportedly told Hawkins if he could find 1,000 uncounted people in Edinburg the Census Bureau would concede its error and recheck in all the Valley cities.

"Of course the burden of proof is on us and we accept it," Hawkins said. "I think we will find 2,000 or 3,000 in Edinburg." Preliminary census figures show Edinburg dropped from 18,706 persons in 1960 to 16,748 persons in 1970.

"If we prove him (McPike) wrong, he is going to have a real red face," said Walter Shirah, manager of the Edinburg Chamber of Commerce. "One lady called in and said they missed a whole nursing home with 37 persons."

Shirah said the town was asking for volunteers by blocks and would print up forms and identifications for the local recounters.

In Harlingen, where more than half of the 12,000 persons with telephones have already been contacted, 1,200 persons said they had not been counted in the census, Chamber of Commerce manager David Allex said.

"It is a conservative estimate of around 4,000 persons have been missed, and we can document a minimum of 1,300," he said.

Brownsville Chamber of Commerce manager Steven Bosio said the recheck in that city would begin in earnest today. "We had 32 persons missed in a one-block area, and a nursery with five families — a total of 29 persons — living in the back were missed," Bosio said.

Weslaco officials have lined up eight women to contact citizens by phone today.

Don Carter, Chamber of Commerce manager in San Benito, said, "We refuse to believe our so-called 'infallable United States Census Bureau, and if they don't ocrrect the figures, we won't use them in our lit-erature anyway."

Bill Coon, Chamber manager in Raymondville, said, "We are not out to skin anybody, but we just think there are not as many people gone as they think."

Station Goes Back On Air After Sabotage

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston's Pacifica radio station resumed broadcasting Monday night, three weeks after sabateurs dynamited the station's transmitter.

KPFT-FM is supported by the controversial Pacifica Foundation and broadcast a broad spectrum of political opinion, ranging from Ku Klux Klan spokesmen to supermilitant SDS Weathermen.

A station spokesman said there had been a rash of telephone threats before the bombing. "We thought they were just crank calls," he said. "I guess one of them wasn't."

The $25,000 transmitter and the shack that housed it were completely destroyed by the blast late at night May 13. The spokesman said the bombing was probably done by "right-wing types" who objected to the station's liberal views. No one has been arrested in the case.

The station's first program since the bombing was a documentary on Lee Otis Johnson, a Houston Negro who was given a long prison term for possession of marijuana.

The new transmitter is being kept under guard and housed in a reinforced concrete bunker-type building.

CREST MOVES TO SEA

VIENNA (UPI)—The Danube crest moved slowly eastward toward the Black Sea today, leaving behind flooded harbor installations in Romanian river ports.

Agerpres, the Romanian news agency, reported flooding in the ports of Turnu Severin and Turnu Magurele.

Work crews assisted by volunteers and army units strengthened dikes to protect factories and farmlands from the floods.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Like the first talking movies, the development of long-playing records and the introduction of home television, there now comes another historic breakthrough in entertainment:

The television cassette.

In effect, it is a combination of these three earlier developments. For video cassettes are long-playing films and-or visual tapes that individuals will be able to buy or rent, and then play on their own television sets by means of a small attached unit. Eventually, cassette-playing units are bound to be built in to standard television sets.

The potential of cassette-programming is staggering, and is already shaking up show business, where innermost circles concede an enormous breakthrough on the consumer level is inevitable. It is estimated that cassettes will be, at minimum, a billion dollar industry by the end of the decade.

And show business is only one phase of it. From publishing to education to self-instruction to business techniques, cassettes will be a factor to be reckoned with.

Furthermore, the technical compatibility of cassette units with the burgeoning cable television (CATV) field—both operate on the simple principle of wire connected to antenna, with no outside picture interference—makes cassettes a high, inexpensive, natural programming source for CATV systems. And programming, is what CATV needs to become a video power.

Operating on the same simple technical principle, it is entirely conceivable that, when the breakthrough is complete, apartment buildings and hotels will be able to offer films and other programs via cassettes—as airlines today present inflight movies.

Almost anything in any communications medium, except spot developments, could be packaged in cassettes. All the volumes of a standard encyclopedia, for instance, could be put on a cassette no bigger than a small-to-average-size book, with home viewers naturally able to stop at any page.

By current estimates, mass-produced home cassette units will be available possibly within several years and certainly well before the end of the decade. The first models are expensive and aimed chiefly at institutions like corporations, educational concerns and hospitals. The units are about the size of a tape deck, and all you do is connect them to the antenna outlets of your television set, and pop in your cassettes.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—E. F. Hutton & Co., although it sees a strong possibility of a test of Tuesday's lows later on, thinks "the overall market has seen its worst for a while and the near term is likely to see more up days than down ones.

Standard & Poor's noted that Wall Street gave a positive response to President Nixon's Wednesday dinner meeting with business and financial community leaders. More important, however, it stressed, was the fact the market has staged a technical rally that seems to have more staying power than anything in recent weeks. If next day or so, S&P feels it will be a good technical sign.

The most impressive thing about the dramatic market upswing is the fact that it came without the help of a single news factor, Shearson, Hammill & Co. said. At this state, however, the firm noted, it must be regarded as a technical comeback because the fundamental news background remains unchanged.

Pampan Graduates With Honors From College

SAN ANTONIO, — Sister Davlyn Ann Duesterhaus, CCVI, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. Duesterhaus, south of Pampa, was graduated with honors from Incarnate Word College on May 24. Sister Davlyn Ann received the Bachelor of Arts degree in elementary education maqna cum laude.

Only two students in the total 1970 graduating class of 295 were graduated with this high academic distinction. Sister also had a minor field in history.

Sister Davlyn Ann was named to junior and senior membership in the Alpha Chi National Honor Society, reserved for the top ten percent of college upperclassmen in the U.S. She was also selected for inclusion in the annual publication Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

She is a member of the Congregation of the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word, the order which operates Incarnate Word College and the Santa Rosa Medical Center in San Antonio. The Congregation celebrated the 100th anniversary of its founding in San Antonio last July.

Archbishop Francis J. Furey of San Antonio and Dr. S. Thomas Greenburg, IWC president, presided at the evening commencement ceremonies at San Antonio's HemisPlaza Theatre. Over 3,000 persons attended. Rev. William Wallace of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. delivered the commencement address, "To Reach the Unreachable Stars."

The 1970 class was the largest in IWC's 89-year history.

Primary Elections To Be Held Today In Seven States

By United Press International

There are primary elections Tuesday in seven states, including California and New Mexico with important contests. But most national attention will be centered on an eighth state, Alabama, where George C. Wallace is attempting a comeback.

"If the black bloc vote wins this election it will have control of this state for the next 50 years," Wallace said Saturday in one of his final appearances in Alabama's guvernatorial runoff campaign.

Wallace, a former governor and 1968 presidential candidate, trailed incumbent Gov. Albert P.Brewer by about 11,000 votes in the seven-man May 5 Democratic primary election.

Brewer said during the weekend Wallace's bloc vote charge was "an effort to scare you into voting for or against a candidate. . .the black vote issue is the same old issue that's been knocking around for years in Alabama."

Tunney Leads Brown

The California poll released Saturday showed that Rep. John V. Tunney led Rep. George Brown, 31-27, in a race between two liberal congressman for the Democratic nomination for the seat held by Sen. George Murphy. Murphy was rated 57-23 over Norton Semon or the GOP nomination.

In California's governor's race, Assemblyman Jess Unruh was rated 47-24 over Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty for the Democratic nomination to run against GOP incumbent Ronald Reagan.

In New Mexico, Gov. David Cargo and conservative Anderson Carter were rated a tossup in the Republican battle for the right to oppose Democratic Sen. Joseph M. Montoya. Six Republicans and three Democrats were seeking their party's nomination to succeed Cargo.

Here is a rundown on other states:

Iowa — Former Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton and House Minority Leader William Gannon were the leaders in the Democratic race for the right to oppose GOP Gov. Robert D. Ray. Republican Rep. Fred Schwengel faced the serious challenge of state legislator David Stanley.

Mississippi—Two Republicans are seeking the nomination to run against Rep. Charles H. Griffin. Other congressmen, including Sen. John C. Stennis, are unopposed.

Montana—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield is certain to win renomination over two opponents. There are Republican contests for both representative nominations.

New Jersey—Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. is expected to win Democratic renomination over satte Sen. Frank J. Guarini. Former state GOP Chairman Nelson G. Gross has only token opposition for the Republican nomination for senator. Democratic Rep. Edward J. Patten faces a serious challenge for renomination from Lewis B. Kaden, who is backed by the peace movement.

Mrs. O'Hair Performs Wedding

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — With rock music substituting for "Oh Promise Me," Madalyn Murray O'Hair, the atheist "pastor" of Poor Richard's Universal Life Church, performed her first wedding Sunday.

Mrs. O'Hair presided at the wedding of Robert Egan, 22, and Shelly Hill, 20, both of Austin. The ceremony was held outdoors at dusk.

When asked why he chose an atheist ceremony, Egan said he wanted to be married in a ceremony "that would have real meaning."

"I hope this is the first of literally thousands of atheist weddings all over the United States," said Mrs. O'Hair as the rock music continued to blare.

Twenty-four close friends of the bride and groom attended the wedding. It began at 8:45 p.m. and was over in five minutes.

The former Miss Hill wore a long white dress which reached to her ankles but no veil. The groom wore psychedelic colored shirt and pants. No one gave the bride away.

"She's a big girl now and can make her own decisions," Mrs. O'Hair said.

'Stop Smoking Week' Begins In Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — "Stop Smoking Week," began today in Fort Worth. Doctors urged residents to try it at least a little while without cigarettes, and city officials backed sponsors of the idea in asking residents to send their cigarette money to help tornado-stricken Lubbock.

The idea, sponsored by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, is to use the money oridinarly spent to buy cigarettes for one week and to send it to the Lubbock United Fund 'Disaster Relief.

Price Expects City-Oriented House Will Pass Farm Bill

WASHINGTON — Rep. Bob Price, R-Texas), a member of the House Agriculture Committee, today, said it now appears a farm bill will be approved by the House Agriculture Committee this week.

Price's statement came on the heels of the Committee's rejection of a series of amendments sponsored by the "farm coalition." The Committee had earlier adopted two Administration-backed amendments to set the price support for domestic wheat at 100 percent of parity and to guarantee a 32-cent per bushel price support payment on corn with equivalent amounts for grain sorghum and barley. The bill also provides for a payment which when added to the national average market price, will equal 35 cents on cotton and a 11.5 million acre national allotment.

Price said that the give and take of many months of discussion are finally coming down to the point where decisions are being made. "Today's action," he said, "sets the stage for next weeks important vote on the whole bill."

Price also pointed out that in the months of debate on this legislation he had been able to obtain committee approval of his amendments to permit sweet sorghum grazing on set-aside acreage, to allow county committee option on the grazing set-aside acreage, and to increase the grain sorghum loan in relationship to corn.

"The committee also adopted my amendment to prohibit grazing on land retired by long-term contracts under the cropland conversion program," Price added.

"In brief," the 18th District lawmaker said, "this bill now represents a compromise between many points of view. It promises to spend at least as much money on the major farm programs as is being spent now. Yet to be resolved is one of the most troublesome aspects of the bill — the limitation on payments."

"The question still remains," he concluded, "whether a city-oriented House will approve the new bill."

NEW DIPLOMAS

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI)—The 250 graduating students at the Rhode Island School of Design received their diplomas on a reproduction of a nude painting by the 19th century French artist Ingres.

The black and white reproduction of the nude woman reclined above the elttering on the diploma, which was bordered by rust and purple flowers. The traditional formalities of speakers, bands and caps and gowns were ignored at Saturday's ceremony. The graduates wore bright spring clothing and a cannon was fired to honor those receiving degrees.

Cambodia's Big Undertaking Building Up An Instant Army

By ROBERT C. MILLER

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—The Cambodians have undertaken the biggest military construction job in Asia—building an instant army to fight their instant war against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

After the ouster of Prince Sihanouk on March 18, the Cambodians found themselves with a broomstick army almost overnight being blitzed by the Communist troops who had enjoyed sanctuary in their country.

It was an exaggeration to call the 35,000 uniformed bodies a Cambodian army. Only the commissioned officers had shoes. There was little ammunition for the few guns available, and spare parts were impossible to obtain.

The French army began supervising the training of the Cambodian army 15 years ago after the Cambodians won the right to create their own defense force at the 1954 Geneva Conference.

Prince Sihanouk convinced himself and the Cambodians that war was impossible. The training program became a farce. The French advisers merely went through the motions of training.

The immediate problem of arms and ammunition was solved by an airlift from South Vietnam. Canadian-built Caribous flew in nightly loaded with small arms and ammunition. There also have been shipments of supplies and military equipment from South Vietnam.

The South Vietnamese would be happy to take on the training job, but the Cambodians want no part of the Vietnamese, North or South. Neither nation trusts the other.

France has sent all but 110 of the military advisers home on "holiday" and is maintaining a strict hands-off policy in Cambodia.

The Cambodians have instituted an on-the-job training program for the army. The recruits are given a few basic fundamentals and sent out to battle with the more experienced units. They are also using the American-trained Cambodian professionals from South Vietnam as fire brigades to check the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese offensives, and to help train the army.

Hickle Proud Of His Anti-Pollution Plane

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel is justly proud of the airplane he helped build—"It has no sonic boom, doesn't pollute the air and requires no runways or new airports."

Hickel's invention is a paper airplane, which he entered in a local contest here. He calls it "the environmentalist."

The craft was made entirely from recycled refuse by the Black Clawson Co. of Middletown, Ohio, Hickel said.

"This aircraft, in addition to being a completely recycled product, has several other environmental quality aspects," he said in a note accompanying the entry.

"You will note upon flying Jthe environmentalist,' it has no sonic boom, doesn't pollute the air and requires no runways or new airports."

Canadian Dollar Freed From Rate

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canadian dollar was freed from its peg of 92.5 U.S. cents Sunday and allowed to float upward to a value closer to par with the American dollar.

Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson announced the Canadian currency was being freed from a fixed exchange rate for the second time since World War II. He set no time limit or upper ceiling for the floating dollar.

The move followed rapid increases in Canadian exports and the flow of foreign capital into Canada. To compensate for this, the government has had to buy more and more U.S. dollars and foreign reserves reached a record high.

The expected upward revaluation would make foreign goods cheaper in Canada, Canadian products more expensive abroad, foreign travel cheaper for Canadians and visits to Canada more costly.

The immediate increase in value was expected to be only a few cents, but this would ease the pressure on the government exchange fund and discourage speculation in Canadian dollars at the government's expense.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Perhaps you are aware of the industrial feud that has developed between the Ford Motor Co. and Eagle Shirtmakers, Inc. If not, I'll give you a quick fill-in.

First I should point out that the auto industry does not paint new cars with ordinary colors, such as brown, red and blue. It paints them with glamorous colors bearing names like "silver dawn," "misty magenta" and "passion puce."

Very well. Back when Ford introduced the Maverick, someone in the firm decided to poke a little fun at this rather pretentious practice. So Ford gave its new small car a jocular color chart with such droll hues as "hulla blue," "anti-establish mint" and "Freudian gilt."

Well, everyone got a chuckle out of this. Everyone, that is, except the folks at Eagle Shirtmakers, Inc.

Seems that Eagle had previously conducted a contest to pick some witty new color names for its shirts. And, in what Eagle regarded as an unamusing coincidence, most winning entries turned up on the Maverick color chart.

Which caused Eagle to turn "plagiarism pink."

Eagle therefore decided to get revenge on Ford by running another contest—this one a contest to pick a new name for the Maverick. Here are some of the winners in the Maverick renaming contest:

—The "Fordgery." Some models have interiors done in "bouncing check." Others have seat covers made of fake "patent-pending leather."

— The "Ford-noise complaint." Runs on chicken soup and has matzoh-ball bearings.

—The "Fordello." Described as "a blowsy beauty, outfitted with lush plus red trappings, allpurpose red lights and a radio that plays ragtime only."

May be Vulnerable

I have no doubt that Eagle enjoyed tweaking Ford in this manner. It appears to me, however, that Eagle may have left itself vulnerable.

The logical next step would be for Ford to conduct a contest to pick a new name for Eagle shirts.

In anticipation of such a contest, I looked throogh my birdwatcher's manual to pick out some shirt names that also would have an ornithological ring.

My proposed entries, with proper apologies to Eagle, run like this:

—The "short-tail waistbuncher," "frazzled-neck wrinkler," "drip-dry buttonpopper," "frayed-cuff shrinker," "long sleeved seamsplitter," "button-down throatbinder," "non starched limpcollar," "soon-faded broadcloth" and the "underarm stainshower."

It Never Repeats??

WASHINGTON (UPI) —History never repeats itself, it is said. But sometimes it comes close.

Speechwriters for Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, found what they thought was an apt comment for today's times in a well known American magazine. It read:

"It is a gloomy moment in history. Not in the lifetime of any man who reads this paper has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so dark and incalcualble.

"In France, the political cauldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty.

"England and the English empire is being sorely tried and exhausted in a social and economic struggle.

"The United States is beset with racial, industrial and commercial clacs drifting we know not where.

"Russia hangs like a storm cloud on the horizon of Europe dark and silent. It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel indifference, which happily no man pretends to feel in the issue of events.

"Of our own troubles, no man can see the end."

WOULD EXTEND TAX

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., planned today to introduce a bill that would extend for corporations the 5 per cent tax surcharge until 30 days after President Nixon officially declares that U.S. forces have ended combat operations in Cambodia.

The surcharge, currently levied on personal and corporate income, is scheduled by law to expire June 30.

Hollywood In Review

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jorge Rivero is not a very good Mexican.

The handsome young actor can't eat Mexican food, is revolted by bullfights and he's tone-deaf, perhaps the only Mexican who can't sing.

But he is to Mexico what Valentino was to American movie-goers 40 years ago. He is mobbed in the streets south-of-the-border by admirers.

Rivero is unplagued by fans in Hollywood where he is currently co-starring with John Wayne in "Rio Lobo," a role originally written for Robert Mitchum.

Rivero is muscular and stands more than 6-feet tall. He is a fierce looking young man who has built his reputation in horse operas.

In the cinema center film he plays a half-breed — half French, half Spanish. His English is excellent but accented. Jorge speaks German even better, having spent six years in Heidelberg where he graduated from college as a chemical engineer.

"When I returned to Mexico I was going to work in my father's tannery," Jorge explained. "But I worked only one day when my older brother said, "Remember, I'm the boss.'

"After that I decided to become an actor."

Jorge had something of a following to begin with. He was a star on the Mexican track team in the 1954 Pan-American games, finishing second the 100-meter sprint. At the Tokyo Olympics he was sixth in the 100-meter swim.

He starred in "The Gunman" and became an instant hit. Since then he has worked in 20 other Mexican films and in a small role in "Soldier Blue" which led to his current part.

"Working with John Wayne has made me a big man in Mexico," Jorge said. "He's Mexico's favorite Hollywood actor.

"Being in a picture with Duke raises my status and my salary in Mexico City. Besides, it fulfills my childhood dream of acting in a Hollywood movie."

What about Mexican food, bullfights and being tone-deaf.

"My parents were born in Catalonia and immigrated to Mexico before I was born," Jorge explained, as if that covered his shortcomings.

"But I was born in Mexico and am very proud of being Mexican. They compare me with Rudolph Valentino," he concluded. "And that may not be too far wrong. He was a Mexican who changed his name!"

Disastrous Quake Victimizes Peru

LIMA (UPI)—A disastrous earthquake inflicted heavy damage Sunday in cities and towns from Peru's desert coast to the Andes Mountains and the Amazon jungle. First estimates said as many as 200 persons were killed.

Huaraz, a mountain city 180 miles northeast of Lima, and the fishing port city of Chimbote, north of Huaraz, were among the worst hit. Peruvian President Juan Velasco Alvarado said he would go to Chimbote to view the damage.

A radio report from Huaraz to the newspaper El Comercio in Lima said there were 100 dead. The Panamerican television station estimated the death toll there at 200.

The government's National Disaster Council said it was sending four trucks loaded with emergency supplies to Chimbote but said it had little hope of getting aid quickly to Huaraz because of various reports the highway had been blocked in several places by landslides and damage.

An amateur radio operator reporting to government agencies through the national emergency frequency said several policemen were killed when the police station collapsed.

"Maybe 95 per cent of the houses have been destroyed," the radio operator said.

Red Cross officials estimated 60 per cent of the buildings in Chimbote were damaged.

The quake registered a strong 7.75 on the Richter Scale. It hit Lima about 3:25 p.m. and panicky residents fled swaying apartment buildings. Women knelt and prayed in the streets.

Sunday's tremor was felt 300 miles south of Lima in the village of Nasco and as far north as Southern Equador. The Red Cross said it received a report that the city of Iquitos deep in the Amazon jungle 600 miles northeast of Lima was stricken.

Paul Wyse, a ham radio operator for the Summer Institute of Linguistics, said the Indian village of Macara in the Andes Mountains, where the institute is studying languages, was destroyed by the quake.

"The town of 2,000 to 4,000 has been leveled," Wyse said. "There are no casualties known except for one man who suffered a head injury.

"All water supply for the town has been cut off. The mountain has slid down from both sides to the road has been closed."

CLAIM RECORD

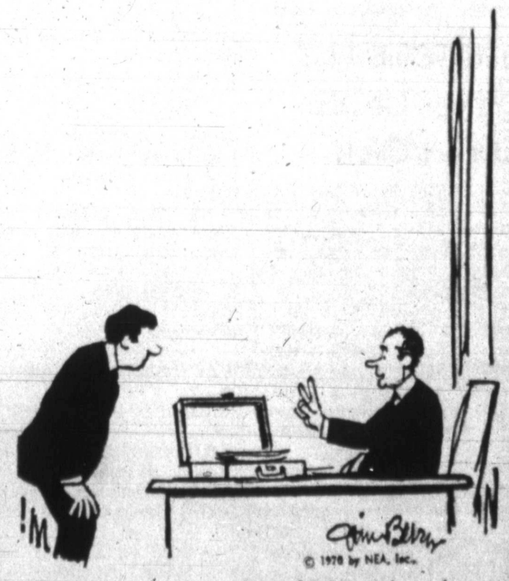

LONDON (UPI)—Sixteen actors belonging to London's Eltham Little Theater claimed a word record Sunday after reading all Shakespear's 37 plays in 68 hours, 12 minutes, 10 seconds.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: That 17-year-old boy who wrote, "the boy is not always the aggressor," knew what he was talking about.

I am a 17-year-old girl, and several times I have felt like going farther than I should with my boyfriend, whom I really like.

All of us have normal passions that get stronger during adolescence. Married people have an outlet for their sexual desires, but what about teen-agers?

In American society, we are expected to abstain from sex relations for years and years until we are married. Why? So many other countries like Samoa have relaxed marital codes. I can see logical reasons for not being promiscuous, such as danger of venereal disease and unwanted babies; but when two healthy people want sex and know how to prevent pregnancy, and disease, why the big "No No?"

Our society is way ahead in so many things, like science, but it leaves its natural urges to wither away by pretending they don't exist.

If there is any valid reason why two healthy people in love should refrain from pre-marital sex, I would like to know what it is.

TRUTH SEEKING

DEAR SEEKING: The big "No No" is not the relationship between two normal, healthy, mature, responsible people "in love" —, it's the use of sex by the immature, irresponsible, confused adolescent who mistakes his first sexual stirrings for "love."

"Knowing" how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and veneral disease is not enough to prevent them — witness no decline in illegitimacy even with The Pill — and in spite of all the education concerning venereal disease, it's still on the increase.

When you are ready to accept all the responsibilities and commitments of "love" and a family, you will not ask me what is wrong with pre-marital sex.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16 and a diabetic. My doctor has me on a very strict diet, and I have to have my meals served promptly at certain hours.

For instance, I have to have eight ounces of meat for dinner every night with a vegetable and some starch, and for breakfast I have to have two pieces of bacon, one egg, a glass of orange juice and milk.

My problem is, I want to visit some friends of mine this Summer at their cottages. How can I go about asking the parents of my friends to serve me special foods at a set time without sounding rude or selfish?

DIABETIC GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Since you obviously do not know the parents of your friends well enough to make such requests without embarrassment, if you want to visit them, I suggest you provide your own special foods, and also be prepared to cook for yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I am involved in patient care in a hospital. We are frequently criticized as being "heartless" for asking the "next of kin" for permission to perform a post mortem (autopsy). Obviously we cannot ask this question before the patient dies. Equally obviously we cannot wait until the grief has passed (a year or more — if ever).

If people understood that an autopsy is simply a careful examination of the body by specially trained doctors, perhaps there would be a greater acceptance of the procedure. No more "damage" is done to the body than is done by embalming which is required by a law in most states.

Even though the cause of death may be known, much may be learned from an autopsy. (For example, "how the cancer spread" may help researchers find ways to reduce the suffering of future cancer patients. Or it may give clues to earlier detection of the disease.)

EVEN NEATNESS in packaging and wrapping the customer's cleaning is something the folks at Vogue take a lot of pride in. (Staff Photo)

Vogue Owners Make Claim: "If It's Dirt, We Get It Out"

It is not known whether Eve laundered the fig leaves for her and Adam, or sent them out.

Had those garments had any difficult spots on them, chances are strong in those days, the local cleaner would not have been equipped to remove apple stains. Berry juice, lipstick, or blood from the wild chicken that Adam brought home for lunch.

He would probably have pinned a note to the garments which read, "All that could safely be done to clean your garment was accomplished, but the papya juice cannot be removed without risk to the garment."

Such stories do not please customers, and may be familiar to Pampans.

But according to Fred Malone, operator of Vogue Cleaners, 1542 N. Hobart, his establishment is not so quick with the alibi.

It is known in the industry there is a tendency among some cleaners to look for the easy way out when some of those difficult stain problems crop up.

These cleaners often avoid any risk which might be involved in processing a garment.

This reluctance may be due, in large part, to lack of trained personnel and adequate knowledge in the often difficult cleaning process.

Hence the alibi notes.

Vogue cleaners maintains a staff of specialists who are thoroughly competent in the business of wet and dry cleaning, spotting, and finishing.

As new fabrics are developed, some causing new cleaning and stain problems, Malone makes sure that he and his staff are updated on any new techniques that may be required of maintain good service to customers.

Malone admits that occasionally a particular stain, on a particular type of fabric will pose the impossible, but he maintains that if there is a solution, his establishment knows about it.

New State Park System Opened

United Press International

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Monday will officially open almost 7,000 acres of new park lands to the public, heralding what officials have called a "new era" for the state park system.

The "new era" tag apparently applies to the scenic and historic emphasis in the three new parks, which is somewhat of a departure from the rest of the state parks where the primary emphasis has been on receation.

At 8 a.m. Monday, the department opened the new 4,800-acre Pedernales Falls State Park in the Hill Countr, the 738-acre Hueco Tanks State Park near El Paso, and the 1,270-acre Dinosaur Valley State Park at Glen Rose.

All are within an hour's drive of major population centers. The Dinosaur Valley and Pedernales parks are the first two purchased under a $75 million park bond program approved by the public two years ago.

Each of the parks will be open on a "day only" basis initially. Parks Director William M. Gosdin said some picnic facilities and chemical toilets will be avalable in each of the three parks when they open Monday.

The Pedernales Falls Park, located on the scenic Pedernales River in the Blanco vicinity between Austin and San Antonio, is the most recent acquisition of park land. It was bought by the state in April from Mrs. C. R. Wheatley, and features some unusually picturesque waterfalls and scenery set in 4,800 acres of rugged, cedar-covered Hill Country.

The falls from which the park gets its name—a series of water cascades covering more than a quarter of a mile of the river—will be open for observation only, Gosdin said. A large picnic area along the river will also be open, and maps will be available to direct energetic hikers to the scenic waterfalls along tiny Bee Creek.

Dinosaur Valley Park, 3½ miles from Glen Rose on Farm Road 205, has long been a local picnic area. It has considerable waterfront on the Paluxy River, which flows over the famed dinosaur tracks in the shallow stream bed which gave the park its name.

"There is a lot of room for hiking there," Gosdin said. "It's a beautiful area, and is wooded in some sections."

Glen Rose is about 60 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

Wall Street Shows Signs Of Recovery

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the stock market completed a record recovery Friday, an analyst told newsmen he wouldn't predict the worst slide since the depression was over. But he said if the recovery continued, it would be "a good technical sign."

Wall Street opens today with the closely watched Dow Jones industrial average standing at 700.44 points. It had plunged to its lowest level in more than seven years last week before staging a dramatic rebound of 69.23 points in three days that gave it a net gain of 38.27 points, the first weekly gain in two months.

No one on Wall Street would say what prompted the recovery, but President Nixon, trying to promote "a new steadiness of progress," called more than 40 top financial and business leaders to Washington last Wednesday—the day the DJ began its recovery with a record 32.04-point climb.

The Nixon administration has contended Wall Street has "some" effect on economic and fiscal policies, but has said the stock market many times overreacts and is not always an accurate indicator.

But Attorney General John N. Mitchell, a former Wall Street lawyer, told Mississippi businessmen May 19, "At the same time, the market is an accurate measure of investor confidence, and has a real effect on both consumer and capital spending.

"To ignore this would be putting your head in the sand and that is one thing this administration does not do," he said.

Great State Fair Set For October

DALLAS — Big Tex and his great State Fair of Texas are off on another journey for the 1970 Fair, Oct. 10-25 in Dallas.

Last year Big Tex made it to the moon, but this year he will lead Fair visitors into the mysterious world of the ocean depths with the "Exposition of the Seven Seas."

Neptune, King of the Oceans, will assist in guiding Big Tex through a comprehensive theme exhibit that is presently being developed in conjunction with Texas A and M University to be presented in the New Dimensions Pavilion.

Neptune will also explain to Big Tex the enormous influence the oceans have on man's existence as well as the age old lore of the sea.

Joseph B. Rucker, Jr., executive vice-president and general manager of the fair said, "it was natural for us to turn to the scientifics exploration of the other great space still virtually unexplored — the oceans of the earth."

The 85th annual exposition will emphasize future aspects of oceanology and ocean engineering while at the same time giving prominence to the historical and legendary romance of the sea.

Along with the many exhibits, the moitf of the Seven Seas will be further enhanced by special events, nightly parades, park decorations and additional exhibits.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Olympic champion Randy Matson said he wasn't surprised when he shot put more than 71 feet in the IC4A games here Saturday.

Dodgers Nip Chicago, 5-4

By United Press International

Rico Carty isn't the only bonafide All-Star candidate who has been left off the National League ballot.

Billy Grabarkewitz of the Los Angeles Dodgers is another.

Grabarkewitz, just another infield candidate with the Dodgers during spring training, hasn't stopped hitting since winning the regular third-base job at the beginning of the season.

The 5-foot-10, 170-pound infielder delivered his third game-winning hit in as many days Monday, when his two-run homer in the sixth inning carried the Dodgers to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs in a rain-abbreviated contest.

Grabarkewitz' homer, his fifth of the season, came after Wes Parker had cut the Cubs' lead to 4-3 with a run-scoring double. It was Grabby's second game winning homer in as many days. He also delivered the big hit, a two-run triple, in a Dodger victory Saturday night.

There were no games scheduled in the American League.

Grabarkewitz, who is hitting .373, should get plenty of write-in votes for the All-Star team, even though his name was not among those placed on the original list of candidates last spring. However, it is unlikely he will beat out Tony Perez of Cincinnati for the third-base position. Perez is currently hitting .376 and leads the majors in home runs (18) and runs batted in (53).

Dock Ellis scored his first complete game triumph since April 9th with a six-hit performance against San Diego. Ellis evened his record at 4-4 and helped the Pirates' offense with a single, a stolen base and two runs scored. Matty Alou backed Ellis' pitching with a pair of doubles.

Partnership Event Slated

Pampa Country Club will host its fifth annual Partnership Golf Tournament Saturday and Sunday.

Entry fee for the tourney is $15 per contestant. Only Pampa Country Club members are eligible.

Two two-man teams will tour the course together but no two teams may play with each other on consecutive days.

Saturday's results will be determined by net aggregate score, which will consist of both gross scores minus both handicaps. Net best ball competition is schedlued for Sunday's round.

Players may arrange starting times by contacting the golf shop.

J.C. Ward and Dale Ladd paired to win the event last year.

Bruins Name GM As Head Coach

BOSTON (UPI)—As predicted more than two weeks ago, the Boston Bruins conducted a very far-reaching and expensive search for a new coach of the Stanley Cup champions. It was four feet long and took two seconds.

The Bruins promoted Assistant General Manager Tom Johnson to succeed the retired Harry Sinden Monday. In picking Johnson, they chose a man who had occupied the desk next to Sinden's in the club's front office.

Tryout Sessions Set For Legion Baseball

American Legion baseball tryouts will be held at 6:30 p.m. today through Thursday at the Pampa High School practice field.

Coach Terry Haralson will fill his 18-player roster after the final practice Thursday. Players must attend all three tryout sessions to be considered for the team.

Only 15 through 18-year-old high school boys may compete in the American Legion program. Those born on or after Aug. 1, 1951 are eligible.

Haralson must send his roster to American Legion headquarters before June 15. Each player must provide a $10 insurance fee and a copy of his birth certificate by that time.

Although a schedule has not been released, the team, nicknamed Rebels, will play its first game Monday. The opponent and site are unknown at this time.

District games will be played Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays. Wednesday and Saturday contests will be night games and Sunday home games will be played in the late afternoons.

All district games will last nine innings unless otherwise agreed upon by the opposing coaches. Each game of a doubleheader will consist of seven frames.

District 18 will be divided into two zones, East and West. Pampa will compete in the East zone along with Spearman, Shamrock-Wheeler, Perryton, Borger and Groom. The West zone will consist of Amarillo High, Palo Duro, Tascosa, Caprock, Canyon and Dumas.

The winner of each zone will advance to the district playoff. Site of the playoff is as yet undertermined.

Contact Coach Haralson at 665-3300 for further information.

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE

Everybody's Mad At Writer Bouton

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Everybody keeps asking Jim Bouton the same question.

Why?

Why did he ever write a book like "Ball Four" which already has evoked almost as much controversy as Bowie Kuhn's decision about what to do with Denny McLain.

Bouton's book hasn't even been published yet but the knuckle-balling Houston reliever has been doing a lot of catching, from all sides, ever since Look magazine began printing some of the excerpts.

"I don't know whatever made him do it," says one of Bouton's teammates with Houston, "But I know this: Not only has he got all of us mad at him, but all the guys on the other clubs feel the same way, too. How could he do what he did? Did he forget most of us have wives? The first thing my wife asked me after she got through reading what he wrote in the magazine was 'Do you have any airline stewardesses living at your hotel?'"

"I did it for only one reason," Jim Bouton says. "I did it to share with others some of the fun I've had in baseball."

One of the passages in his book that has drawn a lot of fire his why had to do with one of his former Yankee teammates, Mickey Mantle.

"The worst thing I said," says Bouton, "is his injuries might've healed quicker if he had gotten more sleep instead of loosening up with the boys at the bar. Is that so bad? I also said I liked his sense of humor and his boyishness and I respected him for being a great ballplayer."

Jim Bouton said a lot of other things in his book, too. He told how ballplayers and airline stewardesses usually hit it off beautifully together, how some ballplayers are peeping toms and how ballplayers kid about their wives in clubhouse conversation.

My own personal reaction to Bouton's published excerpts was that they made for light evening reading but that Bouton would've been much better off and he left them unsaid. I'm sure I'd have felt more strongly about some of the things he said if I were one of his teammates and if it was my wife who read them.

Jim Bouton obviously is one of those free-wheelers who doesn't believe in the old clubhouse slogan: What you see and hear in here, leave in here. I know he doesn't believe in it because he told me so.

"We're not," he said, "talking about national security here."

Yankees' Roy White In Shadow Of Mantle

By MARTY RALBOVSKY

NEW YORK (NEA) — The last man to play the outfield regularly for the New York Yankees and to switchhit for power and average and to steal bases and bat third or fourth in the order against all variations of pitching became a household word long before Tom Seaver — or even Spiro Agnew — did.

It was a different era, an era in which the Yankees and Mickey Mantle were winning American League pennants and world championships annually. The other spiked shoe eventually dropped — the Yankees fell into the AL Cellar and the other team from New York won a world championship — and now, in this 1970 season, the Yankees are finally on the road back to pennant contention.

Similarly, a switch-hitting outfielder with power and speed afoot is the catalyst, the leading hitter for average, home runs and runs batted in. His name is Roy Hilton White but, at this stage of his Yankee career, his name prompts as much public attention as Jerry Kenney's does, or Horace Clarke's does, or Frank Leja's did.

Roy White is the Henry Aaron of 1957—there every day, doing his job well, sometimes spectacularly, but without acclaim. Like Aaron in those years of Milwaukee Brave success, Roy White's name frequents the agate type that details the league's leading hitters but rarely does it mushroom into the bold letters of eight-column headlines. Mickey Mantle attracted more attention during his rookie year with the Yankees than Roy White has in all of his four seasons as a Yankee, the last three as a regular. One might be tempted to ask why.

"Roy White is a helluva ballplayer," said one of the players from a rival team earlier this season, "but he has a colorless personality."

"Roy White doesn't get any ink," said one of his Yankee teammates, "because he doesn't go looking for it."

Roy White

"Roy White," said Roy White, "does his job as best he can. If people want to make a big deal out of it, fine. If not, fine, too."

It is no secret that Roy White is a product of the Al Kaline - Harmon Killebrew School of Non-Flamboyance. Ask him a question and he will answer it politely and pointedly, with no waste of adjectives. His slender face rarely bends itself in displays of emotion, and his dark eyes don't dance animatedly at the mention of his batting statistics. He speaks in a clinical monotone.

"You win, and people know who you are," he was saying before a Yankee game. "Look what happened over there (nodding his head in the apparent direction of Shea Stadium). They won, and now everybody knows who they are. Some of them aren't great ballplayers, but their pictures are all over the papers and magazines and now books.

"A lot more people know about them than know about us. The reason is they won. They are the world champions."

Roy White makes no selfclaim to being the Yankees' 1970 answer to Mickey Mantle. But already this season he has pulled the Mantlesque feat of hitting home runs from both sides of the plate in the same game — the only player to do so in the major leagues so far this year. Unlike Mantle, he's not primarily a power hitter but if the right pitch comes along, the upper decks at Yankee Stadium, are indeed, inviting targets.

"People talk about having color — what do they call it, charisma?" White said. "Hell, what's wrong with having charisma in the way you play? I don't think I have to go around waving my hat and taking bows. I still feel if you do your job well every day — or nearly every day — people will notice you. All this charisma stuff is fine, but you still have to produce."

Van Gerbig Owns Seals

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland Seals are today owned again by the group headed by Florida millionaire Barry Van Gerbig.

Superior Court Judge Robert Schnacke Monday ruled that Trans-National Communications, Inc., of New York defaulted on four loan payments in recent months. They totaled $1.6 million, including $991,000 owed to Wells Fargo Bank.

Van Gerbig's group, called Seals Ltd., brought court action to regain control of the team which joined the National Hockey League as an expansion club in 1967 and has lost an average of a half-million dollars over the past three seasons.

The next step is for the court to hear further testimony on the proposed sale of the club for $3.4 million to Oakland A's baseball club Charley Finley. Judge Schnacke will hear arguments on this June 9.

Finley's offer has been the only one received thus far for the Seals, but the judge has invited other offers.

Flood Testifies As Trial Goes Into 3rd Week

NEW YORK (UPI)—Curt Flood testified in federal court that he thinks he can still earn almost $500,000 playing baseball.

Flood, who took the stand for the second time, said he thinks he can play another five years at $90,000 a year.

However, Chub Feeney, the National League president, then testified that Flood's figures are "speculative."

He added, "Flood is not in the same class with Willie Mays, Stan Musial and others."

"Flood is attempting to overthrow baseball's reserve clause in his suit against baseball. The trial resumed Monday after a Memorial Day recess and is now in its third week.

Feeney also said that the reserve clause is necessary for the continued operation of baseball. He claimed baseball's farm system for developing players for the major leagues would be jeopardized if the reserve clause was abolished.

"The farm clubs would go out of existence as they would be the first to go under," Feeney said. "This would, in turn, hurt team development."

Asked by a Flood attorney, Jay Topkis, whether he knew the difference between a ball player and slave, Feeny rplied, "quite a difference."

He added, "A ball player is free to pursue outside work, free to live anywhere he wishes and has negotiationg powers for his own contract."

Slump Hits Job Market

The plans of many students, or so we are hearing, to take the summer off to work out their frustrations against the system by devoting themselves to the campaigns of the candidates of their choice in this fall's elections may make good economic as well as political sense.

The job market, from current indications, is in no condition to absorb the masses of young that have flooded it seasonally during the long years of economic expansion. A general cutback in new hiring is showing up in federal surveys of employment potentials.

Curtailed opportunities are having an immediate effect on job-finding programs for needy urban youth, with several major cities already reporting serious problems and on the masses of students still in school who usualiy seek summer-only jobs.

But the cruelest cut of all is to graduates, who in most fields have had it very good in a seller's market for almost as long as current generations can remember.

Recruiting, particularly on-campus, is generall y down. Most graduates can still expect to be placed, if no longer so quickly, but few any longer are in a position to pick and choose among choice offers.

There are, however, a few notable exceptions. Prospects continue good for qualified graduates from minority groups, particularly blacks. Once as a population group the first to suffer in bad times, they are still in relatively short supply and still sought after.

The equal opportunity slogan needs updating. Things have changed.

Westward Ho, Teachers

Horace Greeley apparently has found an entire new generation of disciples.

The great editor's advice of a century ago to "go West" is suddenly being taken by teachers who, according to a recent news item, are fleeing the educational and environmental crises of the cities for the wide-open spaces of Montana.

The underpopulated mountain state, long on scenery but short on appeal for the sophisticated, only a few years ago had problems staffing its schools. But to their surprise, superintendents currently are besieged by applicants from out-of-state. The Great Falls school system, for example, reports some 1,500 applications for 125 vacancies.

And for the privilgege of seeing clean cities and cleanlooking students, the out-of-staters are willin to take, according to one superintendent, "awful salary cuts" — up to $3,000 a year.

That in itself just might be enough of a shock to many a financially pressed metropolis to put new life into the environmental cleanup campaign.

In the new McDonald's hamburger places, there will be no yellow arches above simple glassed-in take-out counters.

The 2,500 more outlets being planned by McDonald's operation will be brick-walled restaurants with paneled dining rooms. And no arches.

Oldtimers among hamburger aficionados will probably ignore the new restaurants. After all, we grew up with those arches.

H. L. Hunt Writes

CHINESE NUCLEAR THREAT

Recent testimony before a Congressional committee indicates the Red Chinese will pose a nuclear threat to this country by 1975. The U.S. should take all necessary steps to defend its people against this threat.

Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird said that Pentagon intelligence has concluded that "on a minimum number of shots the Chinese have made more rapid progress than any other nation" in developing nuclear warheads. At the present time Peking has the capability for a warhead and is now working to perfect a launch vehicle. The Pentagon estimates that the Chinese communists will test fire an ACBM within the next twelve to eighteen months.

Dr. John Foster Jr., a leading scientist in the Pentagon, testified: "The Chinese have demonstrated a remarkable rate of progress in the development of nuclear weapons with obvious emphasis on thermonuclear weapons."

Dr. Foster also reported that the Red Chinese have already "probably delivered a low-yield fission warhead by a short or medium-range ballistic missile" in tests.

This testimony shows why the U.S. should develop an adequate anti-missile system to protect our cities. The Sentinel program as originally proposed would have met this need. But this proposal has since been changed to leave our cities unprotected.

It is the responsibility of a government to defend the lives of its citizens against aggression. By abandoning the Sentinel program, our government has left the cities of this country unprotected. The testimony pointing up the Red Chinese nuclear threat should provide the occasion for a revival of the Sentinel program and the construction of an adequate anti-missile defense system.

With Some Reservation

By INJUN WOODY

I had a dream the other night that was a funny. I was dreaming about pigs. There was this feller what was training them, see—

What he did was to put some pigs into a chamber which was divided by a barrier. The chamber had a metal floor and he could send an electric shock through it, which he did occasionally.

After a while he started sounding a buzzer to warn the little porkers that they was due for a shock in six seconds! You might think pigs are dumb — but they wasn't so dumb that they wouldn't jump ove. the barrier to a non-electrificed floor when they heard the warning buzzer .....

Then the dream changed. Instead of pigs standing in the chamber there was a group of congressmen. Instead of a warning buzzer, though, they were shown the stupidity of boondoggle programmes but not one would jump the barrier to a sound fiscal floor.

Waves of taxpayer's admonitions would shock them, but still when the next warning appeared in the form of a giveaway appropriation they would laff at the shock which followed.

Finally, the budget barrier got so high, $205 billion geets, that the few who tried to jump over it to safe ground could not make it. The shocks came at them now faster and faster, until they were at last burned to a crisp.

I awoke with the uneasy feeling that a pig has more intelligence than a congressman.

WASHINGTON

Signs Are Prevalent That Economy Is Turning Corner

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It is easy these days to go to a government economist and get an optimistic evaluation of what the economy is going to be doing six months or a year from now.

There is a well-marked administration line.

This reporter, therefore, has made it his business of late to talk to men who make economics their business but who are not in the government or necessarily sympathetic with it.

What has come up is surprising for the concensus of these economists is that from a technical standpoint we have begun to turn the corner toward renewed growth.

This may not be very heartening to the man who loses his job in the next two months or to the housewife who sees her grocery bills continue to move up for some months to come.

But this belief is important in the sense that these men see daylight ahead, not continued gloom and not a 1929-30 plunge downward.

These economists do hedge a bit. The speed with which improvement comes depends, they say, on how much of his earnings and his savings the consumer is willing to spend.

If he freezes, in fear of a thumping depression, we're in for trouble. But if the consumer spends at a normal rate, things should gradually grow better and by a year from now the economy should be growing again at a reasonable or normal rate (with inflation not wiped out but pushing ahead at a much slower rate than in the recent past).

The thing to note in this regard is that personal income overall has more than kept pace with inflation. Personal income nationally today is between 6 and 7 per cent above what it was in July, 1969.

Industrial wages are moving ahead markedly. Government workers' incomes are higher. Social Security payments are larger.

Barring some major unexpected shift in the economy, the growth in personal income is expected to continue through the remainder of this year.

In making their predictions, the economists this reporter knows are making certain assumptions on what the administration is going to do based in part on what President Nixon's men have done already.

These economists note that since early this year the Federal Reserve Board has been increasing the money supply — whereas previously the board had been checking that growth.

If this trend continues, it will be easier to borrow money. Eventually, interest rates should go down and the rate of price growth should be slowed.

Some administration restraints on federally aided state and local construction have been eased.

These economists expect that in the months ahead there will be a series of additional small administration moves of this sort — some real (as those noted above) and some psychological, as the cut in margin requirements for buying shares on the stock exchanges.

But the economists are basing their feeling that we have turned the corner on a variety of indicators which have become mixed and confused, some pointing up, others down. This mixture itself is a sign that we are turning a corner of sorts.

The Gross National Product has held relatively steady for something like nine months, even after discounting the effects of inflation. Employment has gained slightly in the same period, despite the increase in unemployment. Overall industrial output has held up well, despite the major slumps in defense buying, automobile sales and home building.

When the British retreated toward Boston, the Colonial forces followed them singing "Yankee Doodle," which became popularized as an American patriotic song.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Heed Doctor's Advice On Aspirin Dosage

If you have arthritis, aspirin is the best single remedy you can take unless you have sensitivity to it or can't use it for some other reason. Before embarking on a course of self-treatment, however, you should have your doctor determine whether you really have arthritis and, if so, what type. He should also advise you about the dosage and about other elements in the total treatment.

Beside relieving pain, aspirin also reduces inflammation. This is especially important in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis. For this reason it is important for anyone with this type of arthritis to continue taking the prescribed dosage even after the pain subsides—otherwise the anti-inflammatory effect is lost. Don't change your dosage without consulting your doctor.

Persons with arthritis can usually tolerate much larger doses of aspirin than a normal person and should take the dosage just below that which causes ringing of the ears. If you are the type who can take aspirin and find that it is helping you, you should consider buying plain aspirin in a bottle of 1,000 tablets as this will mean an appreciable saving.

Q — What causes motion sickness? What is the remedy? I get it from merely bending over or getting up quickly from lying in bed.

A — True motion sickness occurs in persons whose equilibrium regulating apparatus (inner ear) is unduly sensitive. There are several effective remedies, such a meclizine (Bonine) and amphetamine (Fetamin), but dizziness induced by sudden changes in posture is not true motion sickness. This type of dizziness can usually be avoided by making these changes in position slowly. For extreme dizziness the aforementioned drugs are often helpful.

Q— What is Roche given for? What are the side effects?

A — Although Roche was printed on the capsule you sent, this is the manufacturer's name. I cannot identify most of the capsules sent to me but this one happens to be Librium, a tranquilizer. The side effects from too large a dosage include drowsiness, nausea and mental confusion.

Agnew Right or Wrong? —Poll of TV Newsmen

WASHINGTON — Attacks on the news media by Vice President Spiro Agnew, which have themselves been widely criticized and sharply contradicted, apparently draw some support from newsmen on the firing line.

That is the suggestion of a recently completed poll of television news directors. The poll, privately commissioned, and conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., is summarized here for the first time.

It indicates that one new director in four sees only good results flowing from the Vice President's criticism of TV. Nearly half of them are portrayed as believing that Agnews comments will have results which are both beneficial and harmful.

According to the poll, most news directors say they, personally, have not been intimidated by the Vice President's remarks. The few who say they have been influenced refer to Agnew's implication that the media might be brought under tighter government control.

Although they do not feel that they have been intimidated, personally, most of the new directors feel other broadcasters have been negatively influenced. They mention, particularly, network managements and network newsmen.

They profess to have noticed a caution in criticizing the administration and in reporting on controversial issues. Some say they think there is less commentary and, when it is attempted, a softer tone in such news analysis.

A little more than a third of the news directors (about half of those in large metropolitan areas) believe that Agnew was out to threaten or intimidate the television industry when he launched his attacks in a speech last November.

AGNEW RIGHT? — The poll is based on telephone interviews with 100 television news directors completed last month. The nationwide sample included TV stations in small (less than 150,000 population), medium (up to 600,000) and larger (over 600,000) communities.

Asked whether Agnew was right in speaking out in the November speech, 46 per cent of the news directors supported the Vice President's action and only 26 per cent of them said he should not have done so. The Vice President's margin of support was higher in the medium and small communities.

"I think he has the right to speak out, regardless of the fact that his high office carries something else with it when he speaks out," said one news director from a station in a small city.

"This was intimidaton by the government and an intent to fetter the free press," said a big-city news director, responding to the same question.

HELPFUL— HARMFUL? — Relatively few of the news directors, asked about the overall impact of the Vice President's statements, find them wholly beneficial or totally harmful. Twenty-four percent believe them to have been beneficial (40 per cent in small cities). Only 16 per cent think the remarks will have wholly harmful results, with no such reaction at all from small city news directors.

Forty-five per cent of the sample group think the Agnew remarks will have both beneficial and harmful results, with 55 per cent of the big-city news directors taking that view. Twelve per cent of those interviewed (one out of four in the small cities) think the Vice President's criticsm will have little impact of any kind.

"He stimulated a lot of thought on the part of newsmen and people, but at the same time he was very heavy-handed He used a meat axe instead of a scalpel in his remarks" said a news director from a city in the medium size category.

"While it is a good idea to criticize industry, what he criticized was wrong," said a big-city news director.

"He missed his target."

INTIMIDATION? — Sixty-five per cent of the news directors assert that they have not been intimidated at all by the Vice President's attack. Of those who admit to being influenced, most say they have been intimidated "a little."

On the other hand, 55 per cent of the sample, state that, regardless of their own feelings, they think other broadcasters have been intimidated. That opinion is shared by 67 per cent of the news directors in the big cities.

STRAIGHT TALK:

'Pollution' Now Their Thing

By TOM ANDERSON

The New Left, the Marxists, the liberals, the do-gooders and President Nixon have all embraced pollution as their new "thing."

Let us always keep in mind that, polluted as we are, there are worse things than pollution. Nationally syndicated columnist John Chamberlain touched on this in a recent column:

"One's personal feeling of elan about the coming battle for a decontaminated world, however, is a little hashed when one has one's nose rubbed in the scientific complexity of some of the choices that lie ahead of us. Do we actually know where the balance lies when it comes to applying pesticides, for example? DDT is supposedly bad, for certain species of birds at any rate. But it is also bad for disease-bearing mosquitoes and flies and many crop-eating insects.

"The Federal Government, listening to the anti-DDT clamor, has decided in favor of the birds, which means that the mosquitoes are going to get a reprieve, too. But now a most unusual warning comes from a friend of mine, Robert Sullivan of Sheffield Forest, Pa., who is in the business of growing Christmas trees. He says that complete elimination of DDT could mean the end of Christmas trees as we know them.

"The reason is that, since the growing abandonment of DDT, the gypsy moth is on the move again. It has been infesting progressively larger forest areas of New England, New York, New Jersey, and eastern Pennsylvania, and has been moving into Canada and Virginia.

"John A. Koch, president of the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association, tells of one large isolated patch of trees in Centre County, Pa., that has been completely denuded of foliage.

"Mr. Koch and Mr. Sullivan do not profess to be ecologists. And neither of them wants to witness the 'silent spring' that Rachel Carson predicted if pesticides were to kill off the birds. But unless we can come up with a good substitute for DDT, we may get a 'silent spring' anyway. As Mr. Koch puts it, 'I wonder what all the birds and the bees will be doing when there aren't any leaves on any of the trees?'

"Mr. Koch and Mr. Sullivan, since they raise tree crops, might be accused of making self-serving statements. But Hardin B. Jones, a professor of Medical physics and Physiology at the University of California in Berkeley, who has no Christmas tree investment to defend, thinks that DDT is a 'remarkable compound which has done more than any other chemical to make the world comfortable and to increase the food supply.'

"'Of all the pesticides,' says Prof. Jones, 'DDT is the safest. At high levels it is destroyed rapidly by body tissues; at low levels it is metabolically inactive and harmless, simply dissolved in body fat. The use of organic pesticides was a significant step of improvement because theretofore many foods were contaminated with arsenic and lead-containing pesticides which probably did have a detrimental effect on health.'"

The New Left, of course, is really MOST interested in destroying the capitalist system and one free Republic. They prefer planting marxism to planting trees.

Our greatest need is not to destroy pesticides but to create an effective pesticide to be used on the New Left.
