The two new councilmen will be sworn into office at the May regular council meeting.

ing was reported raging at the top of the world with both sides pledged to "liberate" Tibet.

The Indian government's All-India Radio increased the volume of its broadcasts to tell the Tibetans their Dalai Lama was safe in India and to broadcast detailed speeches on the Tibetan situation by Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru. Peiping Radio stepped up its broadcasts earlier.

All political parties in India except the Communists denounced the Chinese Communist suppression in Tibet as a "blood bath," a "second Hungary," and an example of "Chinese imperialism."

Many members of parliament saw the action in Tibet as a threat to India and to the two Indian protectorates of Sikkim and Bhutan and the independent kingdom of Nepal, which serve as buffer states between India and Tibet.

There were demands that Nehru should have more vigilance on India's 1,200-mile Himalayan border and increase border troops. Other members of parliament said they doubted Peiping's integrity and asked Nehru to screen new Indian army recruits to see there was no danger of their turning Communist.

One of the major developments to jolt Indian parliament members was Peiping's scoop on the Dalai Lama's arrival in India, an announcement made many hours before Nehru confirmed it in parliament. Members asked the government to inquire into this and to investigate Red China's vast espionage system in India.

Famed Architect Dies Today At 89

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—World-famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright, 89, founder of the modern school of building craftsmanship and storm center of artistic controversy most of his life, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The "eccentric old gentleman," as friends referred to him in his later years, succumbed following an emergency operation Monday for treatment of an intestinal tract obstruction. He had responded well to the surgery, his doctor said, but apparently his age made recovery impossible.

Critics often disputed whether Wright was the greatest American architect of the 20th Century but all agreed he certainly was the most famous for his individualistic style—a blending of precision machine-age lines with nature's living forms in stone, steel, wood or glass.

Wright maintained a home and school called Taliesin West on the desert near here, although he normally spent his summers in Wisconsin where he built a spacious, low, native-stone, rambling house also named Taliesin—Welsh for "radiant brow"—in Spring Green during his mid-years.

Wright's son, Frank Lloyd Wright Jr., and a motion picture actress-granddaughter, Anne Baxter, as well as numerous children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

His doctor said Wright died at 5:45 a.m. e.s.t. of "complications resulting from the operation."

He entered the hospital last Saturday.

Both artistically and personally Wright's life was a battle with the contemporary schools of thought. And he captured acclaim abroad long before his own country recognized him as a "titanic force" in building design through the American Institute of Architects.

Some regarded him as a master builder, a genius with boundless ability. Others believed him to be theatrical, denouncing his style as uncouth and inhuman and without any sympathetic alliance with true culture.

Wright was born into his career of turmoil June 8, 1869, at Richland Center, Wis., not far from Spring Green and its hilly farm country. His mother, a school teacher, was determined he should become an architect after seeing him work with colored geometric figures of wood and cardboard.

It was during his enrollment at the University of Wisconsin that the young architect saw the new north wing of that state's old Capitol building collapse. The horror of the scene remained with him. Dissatisfied, he quit school as an architect and moved to Chicago.

But gradually he won acceptance of such "Wrightisms" as windowless bathrooms and kitchens, heating through the floor and the abandonment of unnecessary curves and superficial ornament.

Hitched Career to Machine

His fame developed slowly, but then skyrocketed when the Wrights designed Imperial Hotel in Tokyo, erected on a floating foundation, was the only building to withstand the 1923 Japanese earthquake—one of the worst in history.

Even before the turn of the century, Wright had abandoned long-standing European architectural forms and hitched his career to the machine, which he described as the "conqueror of the drudgery and demoralization of this earth."

Project Mercury Has 'Lucky 7'

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government today identifies the "lucky seven" vying for the dangerous privilege of being "the first American in space."

They are the so-called Mercury Astronauts, the team of young Navy and Air Force test pilots being trained for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's manned satellite program known as Project Mercury. The team members, whose identities have been kept secret until today, will be identified and introduced to newsmen at NASA headquarters.

About all that was known about them before today was that all were eager to make the team, all are married, are graduates of a military test pilot school, hold the equivalent of a bachelor's degree in engineering or physical science, have 1,500 hours of flying time, are under 40, and are no more than five feet 11 inches tall.

Set For 1961
The seven were picked from 55 volunteers, all so highly qualified for the historic mission that selection of the final team was difficult.

Which of the seven will be Mercury Pilot No. 1 will not be known until the day the first U.S. manned satellite is launched sometime in 1961. He will be the one judged by flight surgeons to be in the best form, physically and psychologically, on launching day.

The chosen pilot will keep his rendezvous with space in a special capsule equipped to re-enter the atmosphere and land safely at a specific place.

After whirling around the earth for about 24 hours, the capsule will be skidded down by reverse rockets built into it. In the atmosphere it will be slowed by one parachute and lowered to a safe landing by another.

Adenauer To Be Powerful

BONN, Germany (UPI)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer intends to be a strong federal president on the pattern of his friend, French President Charles de Gaulle, political sources said today.

Until now the West German presidency has been mainly a symbolic and ceremonial office. But apparently De Gaulle has given the German leader ideas, although Adenauer was once suspicious of his motives.

Informed sources said Adenauer is fascinated by the manner in which De Gaulle managed to rise above party politics by becoming president yet retained the essential powers in his own hand. The French presidency had virtually no political powers until De Gaulle took over.

Adenauer was understood to have ordered the Interior Ministry to prepare a detailed study of the possible powers of the presidency if it were occupied by a strong man. This move coincided with the opposition Socialist Party's campaign to abolish the office.

Moisture Will Revive Wheat

United Press International

The best rains of the year—up to 4.25 inches—were reported in Texas today. A Fort Worth grain company executive said the moisture was worth a million dollars to crops. The heaviest rain fell in Travis County, where 4.25 inches was reported at the small community of Manchaca. Texas farmers and ranchers, especially those with grain crops, benefited the most from the moisture.

"That rainfall was worth more than one million dollars," a Fort Worth grain company executive said.

"The wheat crop was about gone . . . this will revive it." Up to three inches of badly needed moisture fell on wheat, cotton and rain-starved grasses.

Church Steeple Hit

The spring cold front—which brought snow to the upper Panhandle—moved off the Texas coast today. In its wake, near-cloudbursts dumped 1.82 inches of rain at Brownsville. Brownsville police said as much as three inches fell in outlying areas.

Lightning struck the steeple of a Catholic church at Brownsville and jarred bricks off.

Palacios, measured 1.50 inches of rain overnight. Galveston got 1.06 inches. Austin 1.93, Houston 2.25, Beaumont 1.08, and Texarkana 1.09. Heavy rain fell around Tyler.

However, the rain hit in spots. The Weather Bureau at Fort Worth's Carter Field, measured 10 of an inch. At Love Field in Dallas, an official .02 inches was recorded.

A tornado wrecked a house and garage and ripped up trees along a 300-yard path near Lufkin Wednesday. It hit the Centerville community 40 miles east of Lufkin and wrecked Albert Beauchamp's house. There were no injuries.

Temperatures Drop

Rainfall ranged upward to two inches in the Panhandle and South Plains and was described as the best in five months. Amarillo reported 1.11 inches. Childress 1.65, Lubbock 1.54, Stamford 1.04, Sweetwater 1.75, Abilene 1.48, San Angelo 1.89, Big Spring 3.0, Coleman 1.15, Sterling City 3.0, Rockledge 3.0 and Graham 3.0.

Adenauer departed Wednesday night for a four-week vacation on the shores of Lake Como in Italy and probably will spend the next month considering his choice. Political hopefuls were expected to visit him in Italy.

In the meantime Adenauer has every intention of personally shaping the broad policies of the government for at least the next two years. He gave the country fair warning in a national radio and television address Wednesday night when he said the "rights and duties" of the presidency were vastly underrated, both here and abroad.

Rotarians Hear Secretary Steakley

TEXAS government is financially at the end of the beginning of an era. Pampa Rotarians were told by Zollie Steakley, Secretary of State of Texas, at their regular weekly luncheon Wednesday.

In explaining his remark, Steakley pointed out that the state faces a budget deficit of $65,000,000 for the year ending in August and if we manage to raise enough revenue through sources other than a sales tax or an income tax, there is a good chance that Texas can go another decade without either of these taxes being imposed.

The Secretary pointed out that revenue bills are yet to be reported out of house committees and this means they have to pass the house floor before they can be considered by senate committees. With an adjournment deadline of May 12 for the legislature, Steakley implied that the governor was almost sure to have to call an extra session.

Speaking in conjunction with Life Insurance Week which is locally sponsored by the Top O' Texas Association of Life Underwriters, the speaker lauded professional insurance salesmen and told of the great responsibility they held in planning the fortunes of everyone.

Steakley expressed his deep confidence in our form of government and the ability of an alert and enlightened electorate to come up with the right decisions at the right time. He did warn, however, that the tendency in some circles to contend

FARMERS REVOLT IN RED CHINA

HONG KONG (UPI)—Farmers in Red China's Wankong commune, northwest of here, battled Communist troops for four hours last Thursday in an abortive revolt that left 19 soldiers and 24 farmers dead, it was reported today.

Scanty reports reaching here by way of Portuguese Macao said the uprising began when Red soldiers drove a sick man into the fields and made him work until he died. Word of the uprising was brought out by fishermen who travel between Red China and Macao.

ARCHITECT

Modern Office Building
At 21, Wright married Catherine Tobin, who bore him six children, and began to take outside commissions to support his growing family as well as to satisfy his flair for creative work. After six years with Sullivan he set out on his own and during the next two decades built throughout the Midwest more than 150 of his "prairie houses."

The public called his work "modern" almost immediately, and many of his buildings still have—after almost half a century—the look of modernity about them. Innovations included use of horizontal lines to make the houses seem to hug the plains, roof apertures for interior lighting and corner windows—all calculated as new conceptions for human shelter.

At that period in Wright's life he also designed his first modern office building at Buffalo, N.Y., with such novelties as air conditioning, metal furniture and plate glass doors and windows.

At the age of 40, in 1909, Wright defied society by leaving his wife, who died recently in California, and six children for another woman. It was for her that he built Taliesin where he began to school a few working apprentices who had started coming to him from all over the world.

Young Car Thief Is Nabbed

SHAMROCK (Sp) — A "coops and robbers" chase that began near here Wednesday night ended early this morning at Erick, Okla., with the arrest of a 15-year-old St. Louis, Mo., car thief.

The youth, driving a 1951 Ford stolen from Shamrock about 9:30 p.m., was spotted on Highway 66 by Wheeler County Sheriff B. S. Dorman and Deputy John Cooper about 12 miles east of Shamrock.

The Ford, with Dorman and Cooper in hot pursuit, crossed the Oklahoma state line and then crashed just east of Erick.

Dorman said the youth fled on foot and evaded officers who began an all-night search of the area around Erick. During the early morning hours the youth broke into the Bonebrake Hardware at Erick and stole two guns.

At about 9:30 this morning he was arrested at the Erick bus station by Oklahoma State Patrolmen. The youth is now in custody at the Beckham county jail at Sayre.

The stolen car belongs to Paul Harmon of Shamrock. Damages at the time have not been determined.

The car theft was the second here since Sunday. On Sunday morning a 1956 Ford belonging to Harold Slack was stolen during church services from in front of the Baptist Church.

The car was found wrecked and burned about two miles west of Sayre, Okla., that evening, and officers arrested Floyd Wayne Pierce of Sayre. Pierce is now in custody at the Beckham county jail in Sayre.

Orange-Date Tarts Is Perfect Dessert To Prove Grandiose Culinary Talents

To prove your culinary ability at a small party, perhaps you'd like to keep this recipe readily available. It's called Orange-Date Tarts and is a natural for holiday festivities.

Orange-Date Tarts can actually serve you — most of the preparation can be done in advance.

CULINARY MAKE-UP
In this particular recipe, the art of pastry preparation is extremely important.

A regular pastry recipe is used — the shortening called for is lard. Lard in baked product preparations can help you to "show off" your culinary adeptness in handling pastry. Lard is known to have the greatest "shortening" power of any shortening. In essence, lard can produce the most flaky, tender pastry possible.

The pastry in this recipe is made into tarts. This is done by cutting the pastry into circles, 5 inches in diameter. The cover of any 1 or 2 pound coffee can will act as an invaluable guide in this project.

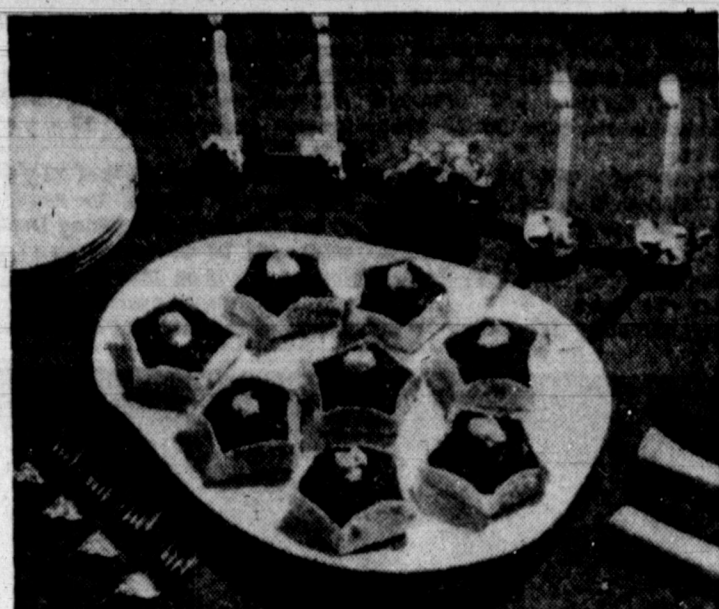

FASCINATING FILLING
This filling is outstanding party fare. Oranges cut into fourths and ground along with dates which also have been ground act as the base for the filling. Savory additions include grated orange rind and lemon juice. The whole mixture is thickened to a serving consistency by the aid of cornstarch.

Next step is for the orange and date filling to cool.

Before serving, whipped cream is folded into filling. The filling is then placed in the tarts and topped with whipped cream.

With Orange-Date Tarts being served for an afternoon dessert, the only last-minute detail involved is the operation of folding the whipped cream into the cooled mixture.

If you want to say Happy Thanks, giving to your friends, what better way could you find?

ORANGE-DATE TARTS

8 baked tart shells
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 peeled oranges, cut in fourths
1 1/2 cups pitted dates
1/4 cup sugar

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup whipping cream

Grind together orange pieces and dates. Combine sugar, cornstarch, flour and salt. Stir in orange juice. Add the ground oranges and dates, orange rind, lemon rind and lemon juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened, 5 to 8 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in butter or margarine. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, whip cream until stiff and fold into chilled orange-date mixture. Spoon filling into baked tart shells, 8 tarts.

TART SHELLS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 to 3/4 cup lard
4 to 6 tablespoons cold water
Cut 8 aluminum foil circles, 5 inches in diameter. Mix together flour and salt. Cut lard into flour until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Add cold water, a little at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through flour with fork until dough just holds in a ball. Use as little water as possible. Roll dough to about 1/8 inch thickness. Place foil circles on dough and cut out. Place pastry with foil side down on cookie sheet. Prick with fork. To form tarts, bring the edge of the foil up, at four or five points and pinch together. Bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 10 to 12 minutes. Remove foil from pastry, 8 tart shells.

"Put On The Dog" With Doggone Good Hot Dog Casserole That's Easy To Do

You can "put on the dog" with this "hot dog" casserole. That is, this is a dressed up way to use convenient and savory frankfurters. This is a casserole recipe so it's made ahead, ready for the oven. The cheese and slices of frankfurters make an interesting decoration over the top. Wonderfully inexpensive rice and slices of onion accent the frankfurter flavor, and the mushroom soup gives the casserole a tempting and creamy texture.

Tasty Tortes For Happy Retorts

There's a surprise ingredient in this recipe. Your delighted guests will never guess that Saline Crackers form the base for this Heavenly Torte!

HEAVENLY TORTE

4 eggs, separated
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
12 Premium Saline Crackers, crumbled (about 1-cup crumbs)
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 cup finely chopped, blanched almonds
1 package lemon pie filling mix
Grease and lightly flour bottoms of 3 inverted square or layer cake pans. Beat egg whites to soft peaks; gradually add sugar and continue beating until stiff and glossy. Fold Premium Saline Crackers crumbs, grated lemon rind and nuts into egg whites. Spread equal amount of mixture on bottom of each pan. Bake in slow, pre-heated oven (325 degrees F.) 25 minutes. Turn off heat and let cool 15 minutes with oven door partially open. Make lemon pie filling mix according to directions on package, except add the 4 egg yolks and only half the sugar called for in directions. When filling is cooled, assemble torte with filling between layers. Chill at least 4 hours before serving. Serves 8.

INGREDIENTS:

1 1/2 to 1 lb. frankfurters
3 tablespoons cooking fat
2 cups thinly sliced onions
1 cup uncooked white rice
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups water
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1, 10 1/2 oz. can mushroom soup
1 cup water
4 to 5 large slices American cheese (about 1/4 lb.)
Into 1 to 1 1/2 inch pieces. Make slantwise cuts for a more interesting shape. Melt the cooking fat in a skillet. Add the onions and frankfurters. Keep out some of the frankfurters to decorate the top. Cook until the onions are tender and the frankfurters are browned.

While the frankfurters cook, put the rice, salt and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Cover. Turn the heat down low. Simmer over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on 10 minutes.

After the rice cooks, stir in the pepper, mushroom soup and water. Stir into the frankfurter mixture. Spread over a greased shallow baking dish holding at least 5 cups. Cut the cheese into triangular pieces.

Arrange the cheese and the frankfurters in an interesting design over the top. Cover and store in the refrigerator until mealtime. Remove baking dish from refrigerator and allow to come to room temperature. Broil until hot through and until the cheese is browned. Serve immediately.

This recipe makes 5 to 6 generous servings.

On rainy days when children have to play indoors, fortify yourself with a bracing cup of tea, Pecan Tea Rolls and a few friends. Tc.

Brighten Your "Everything's Wrong" Day With Cheery Pecan Tea Roll Party

Almost every parent has experienced the nerve-racking results of a day when the children have to play indoors, because of inclement weather. One of the best ways to avoid letting their boisterous, playful yelps defeat your intentions to keep cool-and-calm-no-matter-what, is to fortify yourself with anti-nerve wracking ammunition. The minute the weatherman forecasts rainy weather, ask a few friends to join you in an afternoon tea break with Pecan Tea Rolls.

To get the best results from an afternoon tea break, i.e., relaxation, relief of fatigue and a pick-up, brew the tea according to the Four Golden Rules:

1. Always use a teapot. 2. Bring freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil. 3. Use enough tea, i.e., one teaspoonful or one teabag, per cup. For stronger tea, increase the amount of tea, not the brew.

Ernie Switches To 'Mikado' With Smile

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Tennessee Ernie Ford tries something new next week when he switches from his easy-going song fest to a condensed version of an operetta.

The old pea-picker, who clomped out of the Tennessee mountains, is going highbrow with "The Mikado"—but with lowbrow overtones.

"We'll sing the Gilbert and Sullivan songs like they wrote 'em," Ernie drawled. "But 'between numbers you might say I'll keep the story going as best I can with a little humor, Tennessee flavored."

Not content with playing a single role, old Ern will essay the parts of Ko-Ko and the Mikado. Consistently High Rating

"We never tackled anything like this on the show before," he said. "But back in Bristol, Tenn., when I was 18 years old I played Ko-Ko in a special presentation by the Virginia Interment School for Girls. It was very big. Ended up by doing it twice, the folks liked it so well."

"This here program is a large departure for me. Might say it's a trial balloon. If it's a success there might be others—like 'The Red Mill' and 'Carmen.'"

"Course I know we're foolin' with success and could hurt ourselves."

By success Ernie referred to his ratings—consistently higher than his competition, "Playhouse 90," and his spot among the top 10 shows in the various polls.

"If CBS ever changes our opposition to 'Bunkhouse 90' we'll all be dead," he grinned. "I'm scared to death of them westerns."

Big Western Fan
"I'm a big western fan myself. Biggest fan they got. I watch 'em all every week, so I know all the characters and what they're up to every time I turn the TV set on."

Ernie bemoaned the expense of the show, noting that each wig will cost him $75 and the rented costumes will knock his budget into oblivion.

"All the stuff will be authentic," he said. "And except for me the cast will be made up to look like Japanese, with slanted eyes and beards. I can't have my eyes slanted because I have to give the commercials before and after the show. That'd look pretty funny."

Ernie will watch his mail and ratings on "The Mikado" program—which beams Thursday night—and if all goes well he plans to alternate his usual show.

Smith Rolls Up His Sleeping Bag And Heads For 'Laramie'

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ever wonder what happens to a TV western star when his series is unloved?

He heads right back into another horse opera.

Such is the case with John Smith, who co-starred with George Montgomery in "Cimarron City," which was put out to pasture after 33 segments. With reruns it will stagger through the summer months before collapsing altogether.

Smith, a blond "anyone for tennis" kind of character, will roll up his sleeping bag and six guns and head for "Laramie," which happens to be the title of the new series.

Hour-Long Epic

Scheduled to hit the coaxial cable next fall, "Laramie" is an hour long epic to be filmed in color for NBC.

Actor Smith is unconcerned about "Cimarron City's" demise. "He was unhappy with the actor position again of competing with Montgomery," he said. "There's bound to be friction and trouble with two leading men. When a good script came along, we were equally capable of playing the role, but the decision was never mine."

"Laramie" will also alternate leads, but whoever is selected to play the other leading man won't appear in the same sequences.

Taylor And Fisher Meet Stumbling Blocks To Altar

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher are running into all kinds of stumbling blocks, but they're going right ahead with their marriage plans.

The couple learned Tuesday that the rabbi who officiated at Miss Taylor's conversion ceremonies last week, when she embraced the Jewish faith, will not be able to marry her and Fisher in Nevada next month.

Rabbi Max Nussbaum, whom Miss Taylor, 27, asked to perform the wedding rites, was advised by three Nevada judges that he cannot perform the Nevada ceremony because he does not have a congregation in that state. Rabbi Nussbaum's congregation is in Hollywood.

For the kind of evening when a girl really dresses, a sophisticated perfume is a must. This girl uses one which is a truly memorable scent.

that I do.

Week Separate Shows

"We'll work it like they do on 'Maverick.' Each of us will star in separate shows instead of assuming major and minor roles in the same show."

Smith flashed a toothpaste-ad smile and launched into a pitch for the new program. He said, "it will deal with human relationships something like the father-son combination in 'Riflemen'."

Instead of a father, or a son, John will work with a kid brother whom he is trying to raise to manhood under the blazing guns of Wyoming badmen.

"We're still casting for the boy," he went on. "But it looks as if Hoagy Carmichael will play a caretaker on our ranch. It's strictly a character role, but important to each story line."

If "Laramie" pulls an el folder, a la "Cimarron City," Smith sees no reason why he should not move on to still another western.

SEATO WAS ORGANIZED AFTER REDS' SIEGE OF DIEN BIEN PHU

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Editor

Five years ago today the heroic defenders of Dien Bien Phu were entering the fourth week of siege by the Indo-Chinese Reds. It was a siege that was to last 55 days, with Red artillery zeroed in from the surrounding hills and the defenders battling disease and starvation as well as enemy guns. It was the climax to a war that raged for more than five years previously. For the French it was Europe. A fight for survival in Asia, for survival in an area in which during 80 years of occupation they had invested about two billion dollars but had been slow to permit any degree of independence. For most of the remainder of the Western world, the war in Indo-China was a localized affair which stirred little interest. But it was, in fact, a war between the free world and Communism, with an import which equalled the stakes in Korea and the present stakes in the Middle East and Europe. The siege of Dien Bien Phu captured the imagination of the West and finally it became likened to the siege of Bataan in which Americans fought and died to delay the southward surge of the Japanese early in World War II. Out of it also came the birth of a new organization for defense against Communist encroachment. It was the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), another brainchild of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Its birth came about like this:

Under pressure of the steadily deteriorating French position in Indo-China, the Western powers agreed to a conference in Geneva beginning on April 26, 1954, to negotiate an armistice in Indo-China and a political settlement for Korea. Agree On Split

Geneva failed to produce a political settlement for Korea, but it did agree on a geographical split in Indo-China, the principal effects of which were to divide Vietnam, largest of the Indo-Chinese states, into north and south, the north going to the Communists under Ho Chi Minh and the south becoming the republic of Vietnam. Dulles abstained from the Geneva agreement but two days after its conclusion called for collective arrangements for the security of the "free peoples of Southeast Asia."

On Sept. 8, 1954, SEATO came into being in Manila. In its membership were the United States, Britain, France, Pakistan, Thailand, The Philippines, Australia and New Zealand.

It was both an alliance against expanding Communism and against the imperialist ambitions of Red China. Unfortunately, the weaknesses it had then, it suffers from still. Continues To Function

It never was a cohesive military organization such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Europe. And of its membership, only The Philippines and Thailand truly were Southeast Asian. It excluded Nationalist China on Formosa and was looked upon with suspicion by Indonesia, Burma and India.

Nor could it operate as an economic aid because that field already was covered by the 18-nation Colombo Plan. Its first attempt at joint military maneuvers came close to being a fiasco.

But with all its weaknesses, SEATO has continued to function and perhaps to act as a deterrent against Communist aggression. This week in Wellington, N.Z., SEATO meets again. A heartening report will say that Communism has been reduced materially in The Philippines and Pakistan.

Owners Don't Repair Septic Tanks, Until It's Too Late

By HENRY J. BECHTOLD
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many home owners give too little thought to the proper maintenance of septic tanks or cesspools until it is too late. In most cases they have septic tanks or cesspools that function for years efficiently and with little expense on the principle of diffusing liquefied waste directly into the soil. It is only when trouble arises that many people realize they even have such a system.

There are more than six million homes in the United States with private sewage disposal systems, and about one-third of the homes now being built are located in areas without public sewers.

Grease, which accumulates and seals the underground walls through which the waste water must pass, is the main cause of faulty private disposal systems. A lower than normal amount of the bacteria necessary to "digest" or break down the solids also is a big trouble factor.

Can Corrode Plumbing
When these conditions develop the entire system generally must be emptied and cleaned, an operation which costs from $20 to $75.

not including damage to lawns and shrubs. Despite this cost, many homeowners have their disposal systems emptied and cleaned every three to four years to keep it in good working condition. Others use strong chemicals, such as lye, caustic soda and acid, to clear clogged systems, but such methods usually provide only temporary relief. In addition, these chemicals can corrode plumbing, pit kitchen porcelain, and actually destroy the beneficial bacteria on which the system depends.

On firm (Lewis Research Laboratories, Inc.) markets what it says is a solution to the problem, without bearing the cost and disadvantages of the above mentioned cures.

Develops Formula
It has developed a formula (Septi-Kleen) containing more than one billion bacteria to the gram, which it said maintains the natural organic balance. The firm points out that increasing use of chemicals and detergents in the modern home has tended to aggravate the disposal system problem.

The emptying of detergent-laden laundry water, water softeners and bleaches into the disposal system can destroy the bacteria necessary to its efficient operation, he says. And strong chemicals used in sterilizing equipment, or photographic work also can cause abnormally rapid accumulation of sludge and clogging of the system.

It recommends that homeowners follow a few simple precautions which should hold to a minimum the chances of having cesspool or septic tank troubles:

Avoid Greases
—Avoid discharging greases down the kitchen drain. Waste grease from frying pans should be poured off into cans and disposed of with the regular garbage. It also is advisable to scrape greasy materials from plates and pots into the garbage.

Do not install a garbage grinder unless the disposal system has been designed for the purpose and has at least 50 per cent more than the regularly required capacity. This type of unit tends to shorten the life of the system by introducing excessive amounts of grease and solids.

Do not plant trees or large shrubs over the sewage disposal area since their roots may be attracted by the moisture and clog the lines. Do not depend on lye, caustic soda or acid as permanent treatments.

Home Loans To Continue, But Interest May Be High

REAL ESTATE
By EDWARD COWAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The supply of money for home loans is considered ample and is expected to stay that way for some time, but interest rates may creep upward.

Such is a rough consensus of government officials who work from day to day with figures and charts showing how the money markets are behaving.

Reports from all parts of the nation show conventional mortgages are now being written at 5 1/2 per cent interest on the average. The rate tends to be higher in the Southwest and West where money is traditionally tighter, lowest in the Northeast, especially New England.

According to the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), the conventional rate has edged up only fifteen-hundredths of a point from its recession-induced low of last August. This, officials say, demonstrates that mortgage money and interest rates are more stable than other interest rates and have in fact withstood some tendencies toward tightening that have affected other parts of the money market.

FHA officials point out that secondary market prices for FHA-insured mortgages have been fairly stable since December. In February discounts actually narrowed a fraction, and early reports for March suggest more of the same.

Strong Flow
Moreover, the flow of applications for FHA insurance has been strong. A better-than-seasonal increase for March is expected to show up when a final tally is released next week.

This would back up private statements by FHA officials that they are confident there is enough mortgage money available to continue to finance a high volume of FHA activity.

"Mortgage money is in no danger of drying up," one top official said. FHA commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman has publicly stated that he does not anticipate having to raise the maximum 5 1/2 per cent interest ceiling on FHA loans to keep them competitive.

How easy is it to get a home loan? Put to the manager of a local savings association, the question drew this response: "We've got plenty of money to lend. We're not giving it to people who don't have some of their own for a down payment. But if you've got some cash and good credit we'll do business with you."

Gelatin is not and cannot be prepared from such proteins as horns or hoofs, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Will Men Don Aprons Professionally? Question Raised By Home Ec Shortage

By AILEEN SNOODY
NEA Staff Correspondent

ALBANY, N.Y. (NEA) — Practically in spit-levels have been home economists seated contentedly in spit-levels have their professional counterparts wringing their hands.

There are more jobs for trained home economists than there are people to fill them. But it's all a merry circle. Marriage, it appears, is stealing the majority of the women who majored in the field. And why did many of them major in home ec? Well...

"I guess we did too good a job teaching women to be home-makers," says Dorothy S. Lawson, of the Bureau of Home Economics Education of New York. A former teacher who strayed into administrative work in Albany, she admits the future at this moment looks dim for schools and industry.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Recently a neighbor of ours took her six-year-old shopping for shoes. Afterward they stopped in at an ice cream parlor. As James, mother paid the cashier, he became interested in the candy display. Joining him she said, "Come on, it's time to get home."

The three words he spoke have become a vogue among the children in my city. Continuing to drift along the candy counter, he said, "Explain me why."

She was tired — and had had all she could take of "Explain me why." She said, "Because I say so."

It worked.

Like Japanese beetles, a phrase like "Explain me why" can't be confined to one area of our country. When it starts badgering you, I hope you respond to it with a firm "Because I say so."

Because today's children know all about our need to justify — any denial of what they want. They know that we want to appear right to them more than anything else in the world.

They have become adept at exploiting this need with phrases like "Explain me why." They force us to rally every reason we can think of to make ourselves sound irrefragable.

Like James, they seldom feel any genuine interest in our reasons for wanting them to leave candy counters, to go to bed or reduce the TV volume. They have just discovered that "Explain me why" keeps us busy trying to justify what we want while they continue to do what they want.

The response "Because I say so" is a very good experience for them.

It's good experience because no authority is ever perfectly reasonable.

So we have no moral right to try and present ours as always perfectly reasonable. Like us, children have to learn to pull over to curb whether the traffic cop explains his order or not. They're going to have to rush letters through for their bosses whether or not his demand for speed seems reasonable.

While any self-respecting adult has to take issue with authority when it violates integrity, no sensible person asks perfection from it. People who want reasons for everything you ask them to do are just as boring as people who never want any.

Woman's Club Has Annual Breakfast

CANADIAN (Sp) — The Canadian Woman's Club held its annual Easter breakfast in the Fellowship Hall of the Presbyterian Church recently was presented by the children's chorus of the First Presbyterian Church under the direction of Mrs. Burr Morris.

Approximately 85 members and guests attended the breakfast. In charge of the arrangements were Mmes. E. M. Morris, J. L. Cleveland, John Waters, J. L. Yokley, George Earl Tubb and H. H. Marks.

Besides good working conditions, Miss Bucher confides that this is not a low-paying profession. Teacher salaries range from $4,000 a year in some starting positions to $12,000 or more for college deans. In business, the potential income is $10,000 or more for experienced home economists.

Of the 42,000 home economists teaching in schools, Miss Lawson would like to see more men among the swishing skirts.

"Home ec," she explains, "no longer means only cooking and sewing. We are adjusting classes to meet the changing needs of the American home."

To do this more schools each year concentrate their courses on home management and consumer problems — preparing boys and girls for rewarding home life.

"This is where we need men," Miss Lawson says. "More boys are interested in the senior family life courses because they teach finances, management and buying. And there is a definite place for a male teacher in these classes."

"Besides, it never hurts to get the male point of view." She also would like to see more men behind the cafeteria lunch counters. School cafeterias require top planning and good buying methods and "men certainly could help here."

Mendelssohn drift into dietetics, nutrition, hotel management, industry and research.

Even in these areas, though, there is a shortage of qualified personnel. Coupled with relatively low numbers of undergraduates working toward degrees, it adds up to good news for someone looking for a profession.

Career opportunities will be wide open through 1965, according to the American Home Economics Assn.

Deans of home economics say large numbers of job requests are going unfilled. Thus students who do plan to work in the field find themselves in demand, especially those with advanced degrees and experience.

Olga Bucher, president of the association, says the severe shortage in teaching indicates the overall condition of the field.

Each year only 3,100 home economics teachers receive their diplomas. They must fill about 5,000 new and replacement teaching positions in secondary schools. But, not all of these teach. They go into industry or work for newspapers, magazines, radio or television or some other phase.

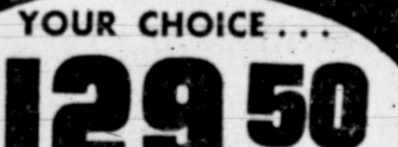

The Rogers Hosts To Ace High Club

CANADIAN (Sp) — Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rogers were hosts to the Ace High bridge club in their home recently.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bill McQuiddy and members attending were Mrs. Hub Hext, Messrs. and Mmes. John D. Glenn, Francis McQuiddy, Tom Riley and Dr. and Mrs. Rush Snyder.

High scores for members were tallied by Mrs. Rush Snyder and Francis McQuiddy and a guest high went to Bill McQuiddy.

So Simple

It's a pleasure for a woman to go shopping this spring.

The sacks, the trapeze dresses, the harem skirts and all the other weird looking fashions that stared at us last year are gone. So are the "amusing" hats that never did amuse anyone but their wacky creators.

In the place of all the scarecrow outfits, with bows tacked on in odd places and skirts too short to sit down in comfortably, there are actually clothes designed to make women look pretty.

The lines are soft and graceful, the colors are meant to be flattering, rather than startling. The hats are almost irresistible to any woman who loves pretty hats, and whose eyes each spring are drawn to store windows.

You can even take a man shopping with you this spring without fear of hearing any comments like, "How can you be sure it isn't a maternity dress. It looks like one."

Stiles this spring not only appeal to women, but they are the kind that make men say, "Now, that's the way a dress ought to look."

So you needn't dread shopping this year. After the pavement pounding we women did last year trying to find a few clothes in which we didn't feel absolutely ridiculous, shopping is going to be a breeze.

The designers have been kind to us this year. They've been good enough to remember that we're women and that we love clothes that simply underline that basic fact.

SPRING CLEANING TIME

means cleaning pantry shelves and all the miscellaneous pots and pans that are seldom used, such as the large roaster, and special cake pans. Give these pots or pans a sudsy rubbing inside and out with an oval interwoven soap pad which shines as it cleans.

OUTDOOR CLEANING

is a must for many people in the spring: the aluminum storm windows and doors as well as the panes. Try using an oval steel wool pad on the aluminum areas to make them bright and new looking.

THE FAMILY CAR

deserves a "spring cleaning" too on a sunny day. Wax and chrome polish will do the trick almost. But don't forget the whitewall tires and the easiest way to clean them with an oval interwoven soap pad.

DEAR ABBY...

DEAR ABBY: What can be done with a four-year-old child, who sometimes stays up as late as 10 o'clock, doesn't shut her mouth and insists on sleeping with us nightly until we carry her into her own bed asleep? I am sick and tired of this. When I try to put her to bed at 8 o'clock she cries and screams and throws up her supper. My doctor says nothing is wrong with her and all she needs is DISCIPLINE, but he doesn't know how strong-willed she is. I am ready for a nervous breakdown.

MRS. W. D.

DEAR MRS. W. D.: Your doctor is trying to tell you it is time you showed your child who is boss. Put her in her own bed at 8 o'clock in spite of her tantrums. You might have to "tidy her up" and return her to bed again, but once she learns her scenes are futile there will be no more nonsense.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you mentioned a woman who listened in on the party line and thought you might enjoy knowing how I handled a similar experience. I

Legion Auxiliary Makes Meet Plans

American Legion Auxiliary met in its regular session recently with Mrs. W. A. Breining, president, in charge of the meeting as final plans were made for the American Legion and Auxiliary Convention to be held in Pampa on April 25-26. All members were urged to attend the convention. Members are needed to register delegates; anyone who can help is asked to call Mrs. Breining.

Convention delegates elected were Mmes. Breining, Bessie Foster, F. W. Shotwell, Cora Yates with alternates, Mmes. Joe Shelton, Emily Coston, Turner and Katie Vincent.

Plans were completed for the candidate, who will attend Girls' State this summer representing the local auxiliary. Mrs. Coston announced that she would send the registration application to Austin.

Poppy Day plans were discussed and the chairman, Mrs. Shotwell, announced that poppies were ordered. She urged all members to assist with the poppy sales on the Saturday before Memorial Day.

Mrs. J. M. Foster presented a program on Child Welfare, and cited the fact that a great deal of work is being done by auxiliary members for children of veteran families.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by the hostesses, Mmes. Breining and Coston.

OUTBOARDS FOR THE ARMY—How does the U.S. Army get light vehicles across rivers? One way is by using outboard engines, above. Three of the kickers churn up the Mosel River near Bern-Kastel, Germany. Western Allies Divided On Handling Of Berlin Problem

Foreign News Commentary
By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Editor

Despite the honeyed words of the official communiques, there remain plenty of irritations and differences of opinion among the Western Allies on just how to deal with the Berlin question.

Fortunately, on one significant detail there is agreement: The West must not be forced out of Berlin, nor can it afford to sacrifice any of its rights there as defined under the Potsdam and subsequent agreements reached among the Western powers and Russia.

But after that, the divergences are both wide and deep.

British newspapers have accused West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of undermining Prime Minister Harold Macmillan who has taken a leading role in attempts to find a basis for honorable negotiations between East and West.

British newspapers have been equally caustic in their criticism of some American generals, including Gen. Lauris B. Norstad, Allied commander in Europe.

General Disapproval Of Trip

The criticism springs from Norstad's firmly stated position that there should be no reduction in the North Atlantic Treaty's defensive powers and no agreement reached which would sacrifice its maneuverability.

Among other Allies, including the French, there was general disapproval of Macmillan's trip to Moscow and his private talks with Russian Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

Despite Macmillan's known record of having opposed appeasement of Hitler prior to World War II, there remains the suspicion that he would not be above some appeasement of Khrushchev now.

The very enormity of the tasks facing the foreign ministers and the men at the summit lends itself to bitter disagreement even among friends.

For example, one proposal would unify Berlin but would retain four-power guarantees and would invite United Nations participation to see that the guarantees were kept. Such a proposal would mean that the city administration either of West Berlin or East Berlin would have to be abolished.

It may be considered certain that neither administration would thus invite political suicide.

Another proposal would lead to the gradual withdrawal of foreign troops in Central Europe, the area finally to include Western sections of the Soviet Union.

That idea is reminiscent of the Polish plan of more than a year ago for a neutralized missile and atom-free belt across Central Europe.

Military men scoff at the idea of disengagement and point out that it would take modern missiles only a matter of minutes to cross any neutralized belt which might be set up.

Further, they point out that military maneuvering space in Europe is limited anyway and that any plan to pull Allied forces back from their present positions would give all the advantages to the Russians.

Question Of East Germany

Finally, there is the question of East Germany itself. The ultimate objective of the Russians is to gain international recognition for a permanently separate East Germany. A first step is the Khrushchev plan to turn air and land controls over to the East Germans, thereby forcing Western recognition.

Any sign of Western retreat here is met by the deepest suspicion both by the Adenauer government and by the West Berlin administration of Mayor Willy Brandt.

It has been obvious the United States approaches the forthcoming foreign ministers' and summit conferences both with suspicion and pessimism.

There seems only one ray of hope. The questions of Australia and Trieste at one time also seemed insoluble but solutions were found.

Sal Mineo Equipped With Curly Locks Lethal Weapons

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sal Mineo routed the U.S. Army this week in a pitched battle over cropping his curly black hair.

The losers were a major and sergeant, technical advisors on a new movie, who insisted Bronx-born Sal have his ringlets sheared for the role of a recruit. A platoon of other actors obeyed the edict. But not Sal.

When Mineo appeared for work the Army brass marched him off to the 20th Century-Fox barber shop and stood by amazed as Sal instructed the scalp butcher how to clip his locks down a fraction of an inch at a time.

After an hour and a half the Army gave up, returning to the set.

"I stayed a full two hours," Sal gloated. "When the barber finished I put on a GI hat and reported to the director."

"But when I took off the hat the Army blew a gasket. It was just as long as ever. They just sort of gave up on the whole project."

Weapon In Hand

Mineo, a beagle-eyed youngster of 20, claims his hair is so curly it stands straight up when cut short. As he talked, he ran his fingers through his tangled waves, happy at his victory over the Army.

He looked as if he hadn't been in a barber chair for a year.

"When I played an Indian in 'Tonka' they wanted to cut my hair," he beamed. "But I refused and wore a wig instead."

"Two things have sorta been my trademark in movies — my hair and some kind of a weapon in my hand. Even in the Indian picture I packed around a tomahawk."

"I started with a pocket knife in my first picture, 'Six Bridges to Cross,' then it was a pistol in 'Rebel Without a Cause.'"

Sal graduated to switchblade knives and brass knuckles in "Somebody Up There Likes Me," since then he's packed popcorn palaces with teenagers who might fall to recognize him without the ever-present armament.

"I guess I'll never play a clean-cut, All-American boy role," Mineo said. "I don't look the type. No one ever mistakes me for Pat Boone."

Close To Teen-Agers

In keeping with his tousled hairdo, Sal again carries a weapon in his latest film, "A Private's Affair." This time it's an M-1 rifle.

"My bad-kid roles have helped me with the teenagers because no matter how bad I am the character is always sympathetic," Sal went on. "They feel sorry for a kid who's gone wrong."

"But I want to make it clear there is no relationship between my screen roles and my own personal life. Lots of kids think I'm

Akihito's Wife May Become Lonely Woman

TOKYO (UPI) — Crown Prince Akihito, Japan's "lonely man," will give up his nickname when he marries Friday, but the epithet soon may fall on his bride-to-be.

Akihito acquired the nickname from "The Lonely Man," a controversial book describing his life of enforced seclusion. From the time he was three years old the prince has lived apart from his parents, surrounded by chamberlains and imperial household officials. That is about to change.

"My condition of loneliness will disappear in a few days," the 25-year-old crown prince laughingly told his college classmates during a reunion.

If Akihito is looking forward to a tough guy in person, and they tell me to look 'em up if I ever get into trouble.

"I get as close to teenagers of all kinds as any actor can, and I find that more than 90 per cent of them are good kids."

Sal hitched up his tailor-made fatigue uniform and wondered aloud if the Army will provide him with the same neat fit when he is drafted sometime within the next two years.

One thing for sure, young Sal won't keep his curls when he plays the GI role in real life.

Major Loop Season Gets Underway

Erdelatz Resigns As Navy's Coach

By MALCOLM ALLEN
United Press International

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI)—Scuttlebutt, that famed old Navy "intelligence" system, hinted today that Eddie Erdelatz' sudden resignation as Navy football coach was due to a long-smoldering dispute with Naval Academy brass about athletic policy.

The announcement of Erdelatz' resignation burst suddenly on the sports world Wednesday night after the former pro coach had spent nine years at the Navy helm—years in which the Midshipmen again became a football power, gained the upper hand over Army and won two bowl games.

A dispute between Erdelatz and Academy officials had been reported for some time. But things were supposed to have been smoothed over last fall when Eddie received a lucrative offer to coach Texas A. & M., took a trip down to Texas to talk about it, and then returned to the Naval Academy. Only a week ago, he had a press conference and talked of plans for the 1959 season.

Successor Unknown
But all that was torpedoed by the brief announcement from Rear Adm. Charles L. Melson, superintendent of the Academy, during the supper hour, followed by a brief statement from Capt. Slade Cutter, Navy's athletic director. It wasn't until several hours later that the absent Erdelatz issued a statement to the press.

And when it came Erdelatz admitted that his plans for the future "are unknown."

Erdelatz explained his resignation this way: "Since 1950, with the ever-changing administration, it has been increasingly difficult to adjust to the varying conditions. Therefore, in view of these conditions and for other personal reasons, I feel I am unable to continue coaching here."

Also unsettled was the question of where Navy goes from here. Capt. Cutter disclosed that all of Erdelatz' assistants "will remain for the coming season." But he admitted, "We have not had time for communication with or from any possible successors."

Becomes Winner
The exact basis of disagreement between Erdelatz and Academy brass never has been made clear. Some sources said it concerned recruiting and training policies.

Erdelatz' first Navy team in 1950 lost six of its first seven games—then won the last two, including an incredible 14-2 win over a previously unbeaten Army team.

His next team failed to win in the first seven games—then won the last two, including a 42-7 rout of Army that stands as Navy's most lopsided win over their arch-rivals.

The Erdelatz system took hold in 1952 and he enjoyed winning records after that. His 1956 and '57 teams each lost only one game. His 1954 squad had an 8-2 record and whipped Mississippi in the Sugar Bowl. His 1957 team had a 9-1 record and defeated Rice in the Cotton Bowl. Last year's Navy team won six games and lost three.

To most Navy men the most important part of Erdelatz' record was this: His teams beat Army five times, lost only three, and tied once.

VP Nixon Throws First Ball For Washington-Oriole Tilt

By ERNEST BARCELLA
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon came out of the bullpen today to throw out the first ball of the 1959 big league baseball season.

Today he was pitching relief for President Eisenhower, who is on a golfing vacation in Georgia.

But after the 1960 presidential elections, he hopes to get the starting assignment on his own.

From the presidential box at Griffith Stadium, Nixon was set to make the ceremonial first pitch five minutes before the Baltimore Orioles—the American League—on its 59th season at 1:30 p.m., e.s.t., before an expected crowd of 25,000.

Another right-hander, Washington's Pedro Ramos (14-18), and southpaw Jack Harshman (12-15) of Baltimore drew the professional pitching assignments.

Rain Likely
Only one other game was scheduled in the big leagues today—at Cincinnati where the Reds open at the National League season.

SKEET SHOOT SET
The Art and Civic Club of LeFors is sponsoring a skeet shoot on Saturday and Sunday. The Saturday shoot lasts from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., and the Sunday shoot from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. It will be held west of LeFors, on the Champlain Lease. The public is invited, and there will be concession stands.

host to the Pittsburgh Pirates. All other teams start Friday.

A forecast of "cloudy and colder with rain likely" may ruin the vice president's big chance as a starter—just as it did in 1953. But, unlike the situation six years ago, if today's game is washed out, Nixon will still get his chance. The game would be rescheduled for Friday—before Eisenhower gets back from Augusta.

This was the first time a vice president has had the ceremonial pitching chore since 1944, when Henry A. Wallace substituted for war-busy President Roosevelt. It will be the first time since 1945.

Joe Cronin, the man who gave Washington its last pennant 26 years ago, came back today in a new role—president of the American League. Washington and Baltimore lineups were studied with new faces. Notable newcomers to Baltimore were Bobby Avila, obtained from Cleveland in a winter trade; Billy Klaus, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, and rookie Willie Tasby. Making their bow with Washington were infielders Reno Bertola and Ron Samford, who came here from Detroit, and rookie Bob Allison.

Declares Holiday
Most of the capital's big names made it a point to go out to the ball game. Members of the Supreme Court were prepared to deliver some informal opinions about the umpiring. And by sheer coincidence, Congress—which just returned from an 11-day Easter recess—declared itself a holiday today.

Loes Back
With Birds
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Temperamental Billy Loes was back with the Baltimore Orioles today—sore arm and all.

Traded to the Washington Senators last Wednesday for pitcher Vito Valentini, Loes complained of a sore arm as soon as he showed up at the Nationals' training camp. The veteran right-hander was examined by a doctor, who diagnosed Loes had "an incomplete rupture of a right shoulder muscle."

When the Senators threatened to ask Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to cancel the deal, Baltimore officials voluntarily reclaimed their problem pitcher Wednesday and returned Valentini to Washington.

Although baseball purists will argue that spring exhibition games mean nothing, the American League wound up with all the honors in this year's tuncups.

The three AL teams—the Baltimore Orioles, Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox—finished with better records than the Los Angeles Dodgers, who headed the National League standings.

The surprising Orioles topped all major league teams with a 17-8 won-and-lost mark for the spring training grind and were followed in order by the Red Sox (16-11), the White Sox (14-10) and the Detroit Tigers (13-10).

5 PHS Teams Enter Amarillo Relays

11 Pampa Track Men Will Try For Cinder Meet Wins

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

AMARILLO — Top of Texas fans will get a preview of the District 3-4A track meet, here Friday and Saturday, when the eight 3-4A squads compete in the Amarillo relays.

Dwaine Lyon's Pampa Harvesters, along with the other district teams, other class 4A teams, and 3A teams, will be entered in the class AA division. Class AA, A and B schools will enter the class A division.

The Relays will be held at the Amarillo Sandie Stadium. Preliminaries are set for 1 p.m. Friday, semi-finals for 9 a.m. Saturday, and finals for 2 p.m. Saturday.

The Relays have no bearing on District 3-4A. The district meet will be held next Saturday, April 18, in Amarillo.

Lyon will take 11 men from his surprisingly strong team to the Relays. They are Rex Williams, Paul Brown, Dwaine Urbanczyk, Steve Dobbin, Charles Geise, Harold Stokes, Buddy Rawls, Charles Warren, Dickie Watkins, Tommy Locke, and John Gross.

The Harvesters have come on strong in the last few weeks, after a slow start, to finish high in the last three meets they entered. They were eighth in the West Texas Relays, fourth in the Mustang Relays, and fourth in the Southern Invitational meet at Duncan, Okla.

Williams, who has won six events this year, and been high point man in the last two meets, will be entered in the high and low hurdles, shot, and discus.

Warren, the number two hurdler, will be entered in both hurdles races and the mile relay. Brown, one of the top weight men, will take part in the shot put and discus throw.

John Gross, who placed fourth last week in his specialty, will run the mile, and Tommy Locke, Lyon's top sprinter, will enter the 220-yard dash, 440-yard relay, and mile relay.

Watkins will enter the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, and 440-yard relay. Geise will be in the same three events. Stokes will be in the 100-yard dash and 440-yard relay, and Rawls and Urbanczyk will take part in both the broad jump and mile relay.

There is one casualty on the Harvester squad—half-miler Bill King is injured, so Pampa will have no entry in the 880-yard run. Despite their good showings the past month, Pampa is not favored to finish among the top two or three teams. 3-4A squads have dominated almost every meet they've entered, and in all of the meets so far, at least one of them has finished ahead of Pampa.

Two Golf, Two Net Squads To Compete In Area Meet

AMARILLO — Pampa golf and tennis teams will be entered here Friday and Saturday in the Amarillo Relays. "A" and "B" teams will be entered in both events.

First round tennis matches begin at 1 p.m. Friday on the Amarillo city courts. They will continue Saturday morning, if there are enough contestants to make it necessary. Finals are slated for 1 p.m. Saturday.

There will be 36 holes of golf. The first round will be played at 1 p.m. Friday, and the second round will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Class 4A and 3A schools will play at Amarillo Country Clubs, and AA, A, class B, and "B" teams will play at Tascosa.

The Pampa varsity will be playing at the country club, and the B team will join the other B squads in competition at Tascosa course.

Golf Squads
This will be the first inter-school competition of the year for the Harvesters B golf team, composed of John Ellis, George Smith, Ronnie Eldridge, and Robert Sidwell. Ellis played in the last two district meets with the A team, and fired rounds of 84 and 87. The others have seen no action this season.

Bird Dog Trice's varsity is in fifth place in District 3-4A, with a total score in two district meets of 643. They trail second place Amarillo by 21 strokes, and must overtake the Sandies in the final district meet in order to qualify for the regional playoff.

The Relays matches have no bearing on the district race, but they will serve as a warmup and trial run for the Pampa district meet, April 18.

In addition to their showing in the district meets, the varsity linksters finished fifth among 45 teams in the season opening South-west Recreation Meet, and failed to place at the West Texas Relays.

The starting four, with their season scores, are Don Fox, 82, 86-83-169, 89, 76; Larry Tarvin, 79, 91-86-177, 78, 77; Paul Machowicz, 81, 91-83-174, 80; Eugene Yeary, 83, 95-86-181, 80, 81.

Tennis Team
For Terry Cullley's net squad, the Relays will be the first tournament of the season. They were to have played their first complete team match today at Spearman, weather permitting.

In the boys' division, Terry Smith will be entered in singles, and Wayne Wood and David Brown will team up for doubles. Hugh Stockton, a sophomore, will compete in the "B" division singles.

Sharon Osborne, who has won the only two matches she's entered this year, will compete in girls' "A" division singles, and Jackie Fikes will go for Pampa in the girls' "B" division singles.

Small Loan Amendment Escapes Big Filibuster

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press International

AUSTIN (UPI)—A constitutional amendment to allow the legislature to regulate small loans escaped a short but fierce filibuster and won tentative approval from the Senate late Wednesday night.

The session's first filibuster, rambling on for more than seven hours against the bill, whose backers say it will eliminate loan sharks.

But shortly before midnight he abandoned the fight after the weary Senate rejected his amendment to require the legislature to regulate loans of $600 and under.

The Senate left the final outcome of the proposal in doubt. It passed by a 19-8 vote, but as a constitutional amendment it must get a two-thirds majority vote of the entire membership — which would be 21 votes.

The constitutional amendment, which would require a vote of the people to go into effect, would authorize the legislature to regulate and classify small loans and set maximum interest rates, but it sets no limit on the amount of small loans. It was authored by Rep. Criss Cole of Houston, and has passed the House.

Owen called it a "special interest" plan which would "protect the loan companies instead of the people."

Sen. Abraham Kazen Jr. of Laredo, sponsoring the measure, said it would rid Texas of the "loan shark state."

Owen said the senators backing the bill are "high-type men" but had been changed by the "almighty dollar."

"Here we find two-thirds of the Senate falling down before that idol — the idolatry of the dollar. Some say this is a useless fight — but when you speak for a moral cause, a fight is never useless."

"Terrible indictment," "I would not indict the people of this state by saying this Senate reflects the true feeling of the populace."

"That's a terrible indictment," Owen said.

Sen. Charles Herring of Austin stepped into the fray with a bill to allow loans of $500 and under to be regulated, but it was killed, too. "I think every loan shark is 100 per cent behind this (constitutional) amendment as it is now written," Herring said.

Owen made his talkathon in three speeches. He spoke for two hours in the afternoon, then gained the floor again and spoke four more hours before losing it on a technicality.

Introducing a new type of automobile which is likely to take some sales away from the cars which have been providing the bulk of their sales, the low-priced models.

If they praise the new smaller cars to much, they will be admitting Romney was right and they were wrong in the past. And they will be admitting their most popular cars are not all the public could wish for.

U.S. Small Cars To Face Rocky Road

DETROIT (UPI)—The smaller cars which will be produced by the "big three" auto makers this fall may have to sell themselves. Despite the fact that they have agreed to produce smaller cars, none of the big three auto makers are enthusiastic about the decision.

Chrysler Corp. President L. L. (Tex) Colbert has even gone as far as knocking the smaller car his company plans to produce.

"Who will buy a shorter, narrower, less easy driving economy version of a Plymouth, for example, when for $150 more he can buy the Plymouth itself?" Colbert has asked repeatedly in public.

Ford and General Motors have refrained from belittling the compact car but they have shown little enthusiasm about it.

GM Remains Silent

Ford devoted only a single paragraph of its annual report to the formal announcement that it would offer a small car this fall. Usually an announcement of a new type of car by one of Detroit's giants is heralded by reams of fanfare.

General Motors, although ahead in the race to turn out a smaller car and expected to include more innovations in it, remained silent about its plans.

One reason for this, of course, is that the auto companies don't want to run the risk of injuring sales of their 1959 models by blowing the trumpet too loudly too soon for the smaller cars.

Harry Chesebrough, general manager of Chrysler's Plymouth division, warned salesmen recently against "fanning the fires for a product that does not exist" and told them to concentrate on selling what was currently available to sell.

Possible Conflict Of Interests

But perhaps a bigger reason for the cool reception the big three are giving their own small cars is the "conflict of interests" the small cars present to the manufacturers.

American Motors President George Romney predicted this "conflict of interest" some time ago when he was asked how his company would withstand direct competition from the big three.

The problem the big manufacturers face is that they are in-

Slow Drivers Are Penalized

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Penalties imposed for slow driving during a snowstorm were meted out to 11 cars today shortly before the Mobile Economy Run took off on the last lap of a five-day journey from Los Angeles to Kansas City.

The United States Automobile Club fined 11 of the 47 drivers time penalties ranging from 20 minutes to 20 seconds for failing to cover the Denver-to-Lincoln leg within the prescribed time Wednesday.

The fines mean the cars will have to be driven at higher speeds today with subsequent increases in fuel consumption. Four of the cars affected were Pontiacs, two Buicks, and a Plymouth, Dodge, Edsel and Oldsmobile.

The cars took off from here at 3 a.m. and were due in Kansas City at 11:20 p.m.

Going into the final 293 miles, leaders in the various classes were Rambler, Chevrolet, Plymouth, Dodge, Thunderbird and Cadillac. Women drivers led in three of the four divisions in competition against men.

Vatican Takes Security Steps After Shooting

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Vatican officials, shaken by the wounding of the commander of the Swiss Guards, almost within earshot of the Pope's apartments, today considered tightening security precautions surrounding Pope John XXIII.

Informal sources said the officials were thinking in terms of stricter checks of passes and clearances for those entering the Vatican for all but the most public functions.

Security restrictions deep inside the Vatican appeared to be as tight as they could be, but the officials were concerned by the fact that former guardsman Adolph Rucker was able to smuggle a pistol through one of the Vatican's main gates.

Rucker, a former guardsman who had been dismissed for reasons of health and was seeking reinstatement, shot and wounded Col. Robert Nuenlist, the guard's commander Wednesday.

Nuenlist was recovering in the Vatican hospital from two bullet wounds. Vatican sources said Rucker apparently was mentally unbalanced when he fired the shot.

Vatican sources said Rucker would "almost certainly" be turned over to Italian authorities for trial under the 1929 Lateran Pact between Italy and the Holy See.

Petticoat Mayor To Run Inona

INONA, Kan. (UPI)—Mrs. Marie Wycoff, new mayor of this western Kansas village, promised today that she, her woman police judge, and all-woman city council won't hang chintz curtains in the windows of the two-room city hall.

But it wouldn't surprise Winona's menfolk if they did, after what happened in the municipal elections Tuesday.

The seven women, none with any political experience, successfully waged a last-minute write-in vote campaign and ousted the seven unopposed male candidates for the city offices.

"I never saw anything like it in my life," said E. T. Huntington, editor and publisher of the weekly Winona Leader. "The town is full of characters."

"We girls got together Saturday and decided to run after several people called us and said it was time for a change," Mrs. Wycoff said.

"It's quite an honor, I think... but we didn't really expect to win. I shouldn't say that, should I?" she added.

The girls have no special ax to grind, Mrs. Wycoff said.

"But we've been thinking about the sewer system and cleaning up the town a bit. We also plan an addition to the school."

Some of the male candidates still can't understand how their opponents logged a 2-1 margin over them with the write-in votes.

Agreement With Evil?

This sympathy business is being worked to death.

Sure, human beings are sympathetic. It's a natural, built-in reaction.

When we see some other person undergoing some kind of pain or anguish, we have a fellow feeling for the sufferer. We know, all together too well, that were conditions otherwise, the pain or anguish might be ours. Therefore, we vicariously experience a twinge of sorrow, and most of us are moved to do what we can to cheer up or assist the sufferer.

But it seems to us that the natural sympathetic qualities we have are being exploited in such a manner that the gentle fellow-feeling we normally experience and expect to experience, is being drowned by professional "do-gooders" who are trying to shake their cronies by playing up the miseries of others or their own fancied ills. And that is quite another thing from a natural response to woe.

The other day, for example, we met a fellow who had just purchased a new car. His wails were frightful. The engine was using too much gas. There were mechanical imperfections. The color was not to his liking. The seats weren't comfortable. There was not enough head room. It didn't respond to his touch quickly and deftly enough to please him.

He wanted a law passed to prevent the manufacturer in Detroit from "rooking" him the way he felt that he had been rooked.

The back of our hand to such a fellow. Nobody compelled him to buy the car. If he was "taken," as he insisted, the fault was his own and none other's. He could have shopped around. He could have found another car. Nobody could rightfully claim that there are no choices in the market place.

But, freely and voluntarily he bought what he bought. Finding that he made a bad choice, he is bellowing for "protection."

There are hundreds of other invocations to sympathy that confront us every day. We're getting tired of them. The man to whom we refer is a cry baby. His problem is his own fault. And when he wants to invoke force by governmental decree to prevent him in the future from having a chance to choose something, we lose patience with him. Of course, this particular appeal to tears is readily seen thru, most of us run into the congenial complainer at rather frequent intervals. We hear it constantly. The job is too tough. The wages aren't high enough. There's sickness in the family. There ought to be a law. Are we becoming a nation of chronic bellyachers? It could be. And if so, we believe it points to a dreadful malady, right at the base of our thinking. This constant search for sympathy on the part of some is one of the symptoms of group -itis, will-of-the-swarm, socialism. Actually, it reveals an appalling loss of manhood.

We recall an experience one day in the London underground during the blitz. We met a fine young man who was wearing an arm in a sling. The fellow was cheerful and talkative and we chatted for a bit, discussing the war effort, the fire-rats of the night before and other bits and pieces of news. When he got off the train we asked a man sitting next to us something about the background of the young fellow. It happened that he was well known. The week before his home had been demolished by one of those fiendish V-1 weapons. He had lost a sister. His parents had been killed earlier in the war as a result of the bombardment.

Not at any time in our conversation had these tragedies been alluded to. He wasn't looking for sympathy. Rather, he had been expressing sympathy for others and a direct question concerning his arm had elicited a reply: "Oh, it got out on a bit of glass." Indeed, it had. He had been buried in debris for nearly two hours when his home was destroyed.

It seems to us that when people are really up against it, there arises in them a reluctance to talk about their problems. Having truly experienced disaster, they do not like to share it, for they feel an unwillingness to expand the nature and meaning of the disaster.

Here in this great country we are going soft. The "disasters" most of us face are minor inconveniences, the bulk of which are self-created. So we dramatize our woes, and cast about for sympathy. Did it ever occur to us that sympathy can become a type of agreement with evil?

Labor Boss Cliches

When a particular untruth is repeated sufficiently often, it frequently is believed. It is believed, a cliché is usually produced somewhere along the line which sums up the untruth and presents it in succinct form. Much of our mental activity in this brainwashed era is related to our ability to swing from cliché to cliché like some chattering gibbons.

Very superior clichés manufactured during the years by labor bosses of one sort or another - things like: "a living wage," "job security," "guaranteed wages" and, especially, "human rights" are superior to property rights. That last one is particularly effective. But all of them are simply summations of constantly repeated fallacies, which, by much repetition, cloud the truth.

For example, take a "living wage." What a nasty implication is contained in a sentence which implies that an employee is not being paid such a wage. The hint is that the employer is killing his employees by failing to provide him enough for subsistence.

Examine it carefully and you will discover the nonsense. How much is enough? Since people's tastes, appetites, disciplines and habits are all different, two people paid the same wage for the same work could end up with one saving money and making investments as a result of his saving, the other being unable to pay his bills and thus suffering much abuse from bill collectors. Both are alive, hence both are receiving living wages. Only the government, by failing to provide for a man who was not alive.

But in one case, by good management, the wage is munificent; in the other, an identical figure is not nearly "enough." And by use of the phrase "living wage," the second man is adjudged to be wrongly treated by his employer when, in fact, he is being treated just the same as the first employee, but is an incompetent when it comes to managing his own affairs.

Why blame the employer for furnishing a job which keeps an incompetent gainfully employed, simply because the incompetent can't seem to find enough money? A similar dissection of the other phrases will reveal their faulty and illogical basis, not to say their rather "canny" appeal to the baser passions.

But let's take that one, "Human rights." This is the cliché which causes some union members to fear impoverishment. This is the kind of cliché which spells "featherbedding," "made work" and "pay for doing nothing."

But look at it. Here is a flat statement that property has no rights. Property has no rights. Property must be non-human. We do not concede for a moment that one man has a right to own another man.

But, in thinking of rights, might we not suggest that among the greatest of human rights is the right to own property privately? Of course. Then what is meant by human rights being superior to property rights?

Actually, what the labor bosses are saying is this: They are saying to newspaper plants, if you receive unpaid bills for a day or two, we will compel you to hire bogus type setters who will sit all day setting those ads, having them proofed, only to throw them away, because the prepared mats have all that time and effort - never

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLLES

Union Member For 15 Years
Answers 30-Year Employer's Questions On Economic And Moral Subjects

Editor's note: This is the conclusion of the series from the transcript of questions and answers on economic and moral issues between Frank Buck, for many years a member of the Carpenters Union, and R. C. Holles, president of Freedom Newspapers. In the first series, Holles answered Buck's questions. Currently, Buck is answering Holles.

Holles: If the accumulation of efficient machines be retarded because of artificially high wages established by collective bargaining, then how can arbitrary wages be of benefit to all workers?

Buck: Well, I'm going to have to ask you a question if you want me to answer that. What is the difference between a high wage and an arbitrary high wage?

Holles: High wage is where the man produces and he gets more, because he produces more, and artificially high wage is where wage is established by threats of injuring the employer, his customers and his supplies.

Buck: Well, can any high wage benefit the employee if it takes profits from the employer?

Holles: Well, each worker should get all he produces on a free market basis, and the more he produces, the more he ought to get.

Buck: How can he get all he produces? He never gets all he produces.

Holles: Why doesn't he?

Buck: How can he get all he produces?

Holles: Must not man produce his own wages? The employer is paid for selling what the workers produce. The employer is just a sales agent, trying to market what the employee produces.

Buck: How much is he to be paid? How much is the employer to be paid?

Holles: Is there any other fair way than letting all employers bid against each other and letting all employees bid against each other? Then you get a free market.

Holles: Has not collective bargaining, by strike and setting wages higher than their exchange value, prevented additional wealth from being produced?

Buck: Perhaps, but not necessarily.

Holles: Has collective bargaining ever added a bit of wealth to the world?

Buck: No. Bargaining does not add to wealth. Production adds to the world.

Holles: Has collective bargaining added to the total production by strikes, by seniority and limiting apprentices? Has it not prevented additional wealth from being produced that could be divided among workers and customers? Then is it not reasonable to conclude that it does not benefit the workers as a whole?

Buck: Such a conclusion is not reasonable in my opinion.

Holles: If collective bargaining has not added to total production but has reduced it, as you have admitted by strikes and limiting apprentices, then it is certainly true. Do you deny the premise?

Buck: Yes.

Holles: If a man fails to answer these questions frankly and honestly or contradicts himself in answering them as to how collective bargaining can be made permanently to benefit all workers and still continue to advocate collective bargaining, he is the blind trying to lead the blind?

Buck: Yes, if he fails to answer them frankly and honestly, or in answering he contradicts himself.

Buck: Now show me, Mr. Holles, where I have contradicted myself.

Holles: Well, you have no method what this does to the cost of the product and the number of workers employed.

The worker has a right to his job, and labor saving is destructive. So, in order to protect the right of the worker we will throw thousands out of work by closing up plants and making fewer newspapers. This way the bogus type setters can still be employed for doing nothing.

And some people still believe that unions are helping workers because they prevent fewer businesses from operating?

And look at other industries. Unions limit bricklayers to 500 bricks a day when most competent workmen can lay 1,000 in that time. Paint brushes are limited to 4 inches in width. Paint sprayers are verboten. Electricians are limited as to the number of outlets they can install in a day.

Ready-made window frames are outlawed. Unions demand that pipes be threaded on the job. Ordinary laborers are forbidden to unload trucks.

Airlines must carry extra pilots or engineers who have nothing to do but go along for the ride. Diesel engines on trains still carry the coal-shoveling fireman without a lump of coal to be shoveled.

All of this, under the cliché, "human rights are superior to property rights," interferes with goods and services from being all human rights, prevents many available, throws people out of work and creates friction and discord everywhere.

Isn't it marvelous what the labor bosses can do to us by getting us to believe their silly clichés?

Carbon Copy Of Oppression

Robert Allen Reports:

Wisconsin's Proxmire Starts Making Headway

WASHINGTON — Senator William Proxmire is beginning to make some definite headway with his stentorian demand that Democratic caucuses be held on major legislative proposals.

Curiously, however, that is bringing no cheers from some of the Wisconsin's strongest election backers - labor!

Reason for this anomalous backstage situation is that Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, target of Proxmire's blasts, is sounding out colleagues on whether a party caucus should be held on the labor reform bill sponsored by Senators John Kennedy, Mass., and Sam Ervin, N.C.

This controversial measure is the chief "pending business" before the Senate. Under the policy advocated by Proxmire, this legislation should be considered at a Democratic caucus before it comes up in the Senate.

Johnson, who favors the bill, is willing to do that. So is Proxmire, although he has not directly asked for such a caucus.

But that is exactly what AFL-CIO leaders do not want.

They are fearful that a Democratic caucus would develop into bitter rowing which, later on the Senate floor, would cost them votes for the Kennedy-Ervin bill, which they are vigorously supporting against more drastic proposals.

Another important factor in this labor reluctance toward a Democratic caucus is that a party declaration for the Kennedy-Ervin bill might lose Republican votes.

This possibility seriously concerns the unionites.

Behind that apprehension is a private poll showing 60 senators in favor of the Kennedy-Ervin measure - 49 Democrats; 11 Republicans.

A partisan Democratic pronouncement in favor of this bill could antagonize some of those Republicans. The labor leaders are anxious to avoid that, as they want a bipartisan label on the measure to bolster its chances in the House - where it was lost last year.

So George Meany, head of AFL-CIO, is not alone in his reluctance to promote the general welfare and the individual welfare. You won't let all people help establish values.

And that is the caste system. It violates the coveting commandment and the Declaration of Independence.

Buck: Wages have to be established through competition between workers. They must do the job, in other words, the best. They must get along with their fellowmen in doing that, enough so that they don't have the status of the employees that are working.

Holles: That, of course, is part of the free market. It does not require or permit an employer to expose his employees to disease. Or if they had a disease of collectivism and communism that was poisoning the minds of the people, the employer should be permitted to guard against that by refusing to hire employees whose agent or themselves would not answer questions on moral economic subjects without evasion or contradicting themselves, just as he has the right to refuse to hire a disease carrier or any dangerous person.

Summary Later

Mr. Buck and I, at some later date when we both have time, hope to summarize the discussions on how wages should be arrived at that are fair to employees, employers and customers. It is hoped that this summary will point out contradictions on the part of either party.

I wish at this time to thank Mr. Buck for his attempt to bring about a better understanding on this important subject so that all people will have more goodwill in their hearts and at the same time be able to improve their standard of living.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK — In my discussion of the Dale Francis articles, in our Sunday Visitor, first for and then, suddenly against Fidel Castro, of Cuba, I mentioned meeting C. A. Baumgartner, who represents this influential Catholic weekly in New York. Mr. Baumgartner's only editorial newspaper experience occurred many years ago in Cincinnati when he wrote a seasonal fixture about bowling, probably called "Strikes and Spares."

Suddenly Mr. Baumgartner said he had been highly amused by my discussions of Jack Dempsey, the Cincinnati cop, who had pleaded guilty to bootlegging and, accordingly, had been chosen for a career as a labor statesman by Paddy Morrin, otherwise known as Paddy Morrin.

As I say, the business that took me to Mr. Baumgartner's New York office was the dramatic recantation of our Sunday Visitor's enthusiastic pro-Castro articles by its own correspondent, Dale Francis, who now said Castro was a Red and as bad a butcher as Fulgencio Batista.

ACROSS THE RIVER—Across the Mosel River near Bern-Kastel, Germany, goes the U.S. Army's heavy equipment assault boat. It's powered by the inboard-engined motor boat in the center. This is standard procedure for moving vehicles across a river. This was part of Eighth Infantry Division operations.

Plastic Bags Can Become Child-Killers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Warning to parents: Don't let plastic bags become child-killers, as abandoned refrigerators did.

At least four children have suffocated in the filmy bags used for the delivery of dry cleaning. The deaths occurred in Phoenix, Ariz. The National Safety Council and the American Medical Assn. revealed Tuesday they were preparing "medical alerts" on the containers, just as they have warned in the past about unintended ice-boxes and a noxious swizzle stick that hit the American market some months ago.

The National Institute of Dry Cleaning, which has headquarters in nearby Silver Spring, Md., reported it was asking its 8,500 members—and possibly all 34,000 dry-cleaning establishments in the country—to warn customers of the danger.

An AMA report on the Phoenix cases indicated that static electricity in the bags caused them to cling to the victims' faces and cut off their breathing. Three of the youngsters were 2 years of age, the other was 4.

"Hundreds of millions of these bags are being used by dry cleaners in this country," William L. Brown, director of public relations for the cleaning institute, reported.

Medical authorities think perhaps the climate in Phoenix contributed to the four deaths—since dry, cool air is most conducive to a buildup of static electricity.

White Deer Voters Pick McCauley

WHITE DEER (Sp.)—In the city election Tuesday, L. J. McCauley, manager of the White Deer Lumber Company, was elected mayor. W. R. Howard, Harry Hughes, and Wayne Jordan were elected aldermen. Only 48 votes were cast.

In a school election, Ray Lowe, 156; Hardy, 158; McBrayer, 97; and M. A. Gann, 82. Only three places were to be filled.

'Silver Whistle' Plays Monday At White Deer High

WHITE DEER (Sp.)—The High School speech department will present a three-act comedy, "The Silver Whistle," at 8 p.m. Monday in the auditorium. The play is directed by Hobart McDonald.

The scene of the play is an old folks' home run by Rev. Watson, played by Eddie Reed. Things are going well, until a man, Oliver Erverter, played by Jack Reynolds, appears and fouls things up.

Other members of the cast are Kathy Bennett, Roy Kay Thompson, Jimmy Bearden, Kay Stephenson, Joe Downs, Karen Collins, Linda Moore, Norman Warminski, Linda Moore, Tommy Powell, Alton Heaton, and Wayne Hughes.

Jack Reynolds, Kathy Bennett, and Mark Collins were members of the cast of the one-act play which placed third in the Interscholastic League play contest in Austin last spring. Reynolds also appeared in several plays at West Texas State College last summer.
