CANCER MEMORIAL GIFTS POSSIBLE SAYS MRS. BACHMAN

In response to numerous requests from families and individuals, the American Cancer Society has inaugurated a memorial fund to which families and friends of cancer victims may contribute.

Contributions made in memory of a friend or a member of the family are acknowledged by the American Cancer Society, and a memorial card is sent to the family stating that a memorial has been received and giving the name of the donor. The only information needed is the name of the person honored and the name and address of the person to whom acknowledgement should be sent. These contributions may be in any amount.

Memorial funds are used to support the society's three-fold attack on cancer through research, education, and service.

Although the major source of funds for this program comes from the Society's annual April Crusade, memorial funds received throughout the year are becoming of increasing importance to the Society as more families and individuals become aware that they cannot contribute in the name of a loved one to the ultimate victory over this dread disease, she said. The American Cancer Society is deeply grateful to individuals and families throughout the county who are using this practical means of assisting the Society to carry on the fight against cancer.

Memorial funds for the American Cancer Society can be sent or given to Mrs. A. L. Bachman, Aransas County chairman, at 1903 Glass Ave., Rockport.

COLE SAYS SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN IS NOW UNDER WAY

The Service Unit Commiteee of the Salvation Army is underway with its third annual campaign according to vice chairman, Cecil Cole. Cole said today that during the next ten days that the committee would have through its campaign general chairman, some two score of volunteer workers active in the community making contacts for the dollars to finance the program during the next year.

The Service Unit Committee in Rockport does a heavy welfare service in time of immediate need to the unfortunate. Cole pointed out that the committee is the major agency that takes care of the transient, provides food, shelter and clothing during the winter months for those in need.

The committee sets its own policy and is manned by people known in the city and Fulton area. Only once a year do they ask for financial assistance. The goal set is $1,000.00 and said to be well within the ability and willingness of the citizenry.

The local Committee is composed of Rev. Cecil Lang, chairman, Cole as vice chairman, treasurer, Sheriff Arlie Shivers, welfare sec'y, Judge John D. Wendell, Shelley Roaten, J. D. Gray and James H. Sorenson, Jr.

SKELLY WILDCAT TO START DRILLING

Falcon Seaboard Drilling Co. barge was moving in Friday for Skelly Oil Co. No. 1-C Gulf, proposed 11,500-foot Aransas County wildcat, 14 miles northeast of Fulton in Mesquite Bay.

June Shrimp Landings Are Above May

Domestic landings of raw headless shrimp in Texas ports amounted to 2,100,000 pounds in June, or 868,000 pounds above last month, according to Orman H. Farley, Supy. Fishery Reporting Specialist of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Farley said this was 481,000 pounds less than landings in the same period during 1961.

Landings at Galveston this year for June were 370,800 pounds as against 111,400 pounds a year ago; at Port Arthur and Sabine, 53,100 pounds against 64,700; Freeport, 298,000 pounds against 391,-900;

Matagorda and Palacios, 41,000 against 16,800 pounds; Port Lavaca, 76,900 pounds against 53,-700; Aransas Pass, Rockport, and Corpus Christi, 451,000 pounds against 767,900 pounds; Port Isabel, 407,000 pounds against 573,-200; and Brownsville, 431,900 compared to 631,500 in 1961.

June landings this year consisted of 462,000 pounds of brown shrimp taken from bay areas between Corpus Christi and the Louisiana border. Farley said that small brown shrimp were very abundant in all the major bays, except Matagorda, Trawling was poor there, but San Antonio Bay and the Southern end of Lavaca Bay (which are actually part of the Matagorda Bay system) and sporadic and heavy runs of small brown shrimp.

Gulf trawlers worked waters beyond ten fathoms off the Texas coast, south to the Gulf of Campeche, in the high seas off the coast of Mexico. Vessels trawling adjacent waters took large quantities of small shrimp but could not land them in Texas under the present size limitations, the marketing specialist said.

Texas laws state that white shrimp used for other than bait purposes can not be smaller than 65 headless shrimp to the pound, or 39 heads-on shrimp, for the brown species, while the pink shrimp count is 50 and 30.

Farley said that vessels caught large quaitities up to 22 fathoms, and vessels moved in and out from the shore continuously, trying to avoid these small shrimp, but they were so abundant that this was almost impossible.

Catches of 43-50 count shrimp were fair through June, but will not make up for the great damage inflicted on the shrimp population that were fast approaching marketable size.

Farley stated that the month was clouded by accusstions and counter-accusstions, hurled by industry members, bay fishermen, and others over the question of bay vs. Gulf fishing. The bait industry contends that it has the inherent right to operate within legal limits of the shrimp bait fishery, for they contend, they are not merely a few bait camps supplying a few weekend fishermen. They say they are a vital part of a multimillion dollar sports fishery complex, proportionally distributed in every port city along the Texas coast.

Bait shrimp are frozen and packaged in the same bright-colored and appealing cartons used for table shrimp, and they are merchandised as aggressively as any other seafood item, Farley said. The number of persons employed in this commercial enterprise is not as great as in the Gulf fishery, but there is slight difference in many localities.

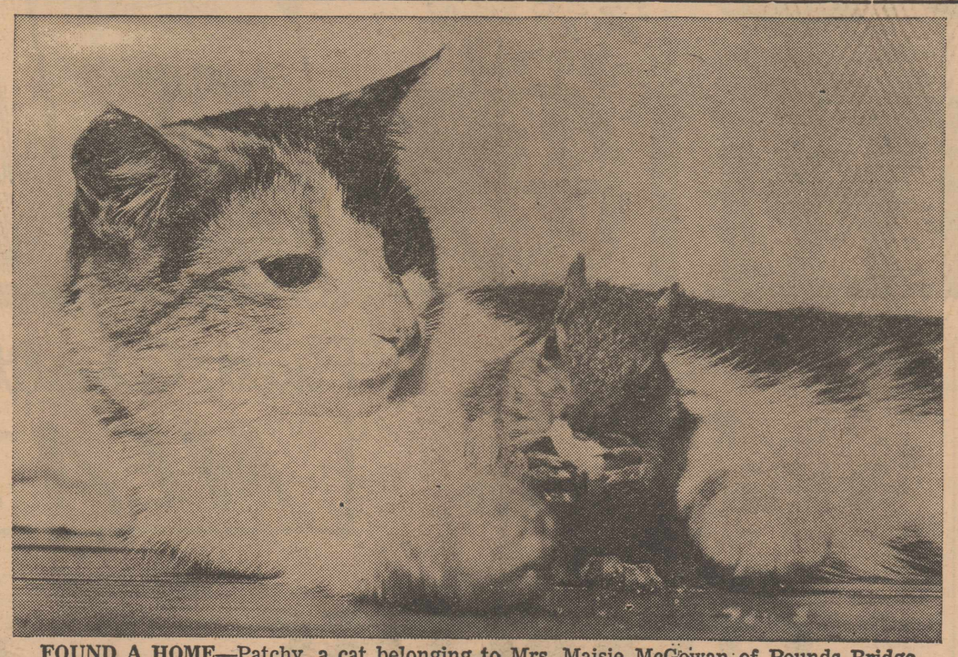

Landings of blue crabs, chiefly for processing, amounted to 410,000 pounds — slightly below the previous month's total. Crabs were of good quality but slightly smaller than in previous months. This, Farley said, may be expected in the summer. Fishermen received six cents per pound, live weight for good quality blue crabs.

Finfish landings amounted to about 225,000 during June—slightly above the landings for May, but in line with the expected seasonal catch. Two species, ling (cabio) and sea catfish (gafftop) were abundant through June. Fishermen reported catches fairly large numbers of ling along the entire Texas coast. Gafftop were exceptionally abundant in all major bay and Gulf areas, However, Fairley said, neither species is particularly important in the commercial catch.

MUNDINE DOGS WIN RIBBONS

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Mundine and granddaughter, Linda Inman spent the weekend in Elgin. They attended the Milan County Fox Hunters' Association Bench Show and barbecue at Rockdale Saturday night.

Mundine received ribbons for fourth place with Harry T. Jr., all age hound, and fourth place for puppies under six months, with Brian and Missy Lee.

FOUND A HOME—Patchy, a cat belonging to Mrs. Maisie McGowan of Pounds Bridge, Kent, England, watches her adopted son Ferdinand, the squirrel, munch his meal. When Patchy lost her litter of kittens, she took on the task of raising the orphaned squirrel.

Boy Drowns In Boat Basin

A 9 year old boy drowned in the boat basin here about 3:30 p.m. last Thursday.

He was Ernest Longoria Jr., 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Longoria, Sr.

Justice of the Peace G. D. Johnson ruled death was due to accidental drowning.

Johnson said that from his inquest he gathered the following account of the drowning:

Ernest was swimming in the basin with several other children. He floated away from the group on an inner tupe. Later the others missed him and began a search.

Sheriff A. C. Shivers, Deputy Robert Hughes and police officers investigated.

The water was about six feet deep where the body was found. The boat basin is not ordinarily used for swimming.

Funeral services were at 3 p.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

The Rev. Luke Buergler, O.S.B., pastor, officiated. Burial was in the Rockport Cemetery under the direction of the Cage-Marshall Funeral Home.

The boy had lived here all his life. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, Loyd Mack Longoria; four sisters, Donna Marie, Barbara Ann, Norma Jean and Sonia Sue; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Longoria, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Garcia, all of Rockport.

CONDEMNATION COURT AWARDS $10,000.00

A three - man condemnation court, consisting of Arthur Bracht, Leonard LeBlanc and A. L. Bachman, appointed to set a value on ten acres of land known on most maps as the Epstein block, made an award of $10,000 to the owners, thus clearing the way for construction of the new junior high school.

One of the conditions of the award was that the $10,000 gave the school system only surface rights to the tract, allowing the owners to retain the minerals. However, no wells can be drilled on the acreage, but must be directionally drilled in case this should become necessary.

SENIOR DANCE TO BE SATURDAY

There will be a senior high dance at the Youth Building on Saturday night, July 21, the first to be held in the new patio. Music will be furnished by the Shades, and the dance will last from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight. The combo consists of George Corbett, Charles Crosby, Eldon Macky, Dillon Beasley and Chuck Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dick will be the chaperones. Admission is fifty cents.

TOMMY MIKEAL BREAKS HAND

Tommy Mikeal, vacationing in Garner State Park last Sunday, slipped, fell, and broke his hand. He is recuperating nicely.

Mrs. James Jarboe At Road Meet

Mrs. James A. Jarboe of Rockport was one of more than 100 delegates from the coastal areas of Texas and Louisiana registered in Brownsville Monday for a two-day meeting of the Louisiana-Texas Hug-the-Coast Highway Association.

The group was organized in April, 1960, primarily to promote the extension of U. S. Highway 11 from New Orleans to Brownsville.

The major north-south route begins in Montreal, Canada, and continues through the eastern United States in a southwesterly direction to terminate presently in New Orleans. The aim of the two-state association meeting here is to secure the single number "11" as a continuation of this route to Brownsville, southernmost city on the U. S. Mexican border.

Currently, travelers following the "Hug-the-Coast" route, from New Orleans to Brownsville, are confronted with 10 changes of highway numbers. It begins with U. S. 90 in New Orleans, then several state roads in Louisiana and Texas, concluding with entry on U. S. 77 at Robstown which goes to Brownsville.

Ray Burgess, director of the Louisiana Department of Highways, told the delegates that Louisiana is promoting the extension of U. S. 11 by "upgrading the deficient sections along the proposed route."

COPANO SPORTSMEN TO HAVE MEETING

The Copano Sportsmans Club will hold a meeting Monday, July 23, in Woodsboro, at the High School Cafeteria.

A fish fry is planned and serving will start at 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Mr. Jim Johnson, from the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, Austwell, Texas, will present two films "Outboard Fisherman USA" and "Hunting the Puma."

There will also be a discussion on new legislation that will effect the hunter and fisherman.

UN DELEGATES TO REPORT ON THEIR EXPERIENCES

Robert Reed, a member of the Junior Oddfellow Lodge of this city, and Ann Cactele of the Theta Rho Girls' Club will talk and show slides taken during their recent trip to New York to attend a session of the United Nations, at 8 p.m. at Oddfellow Center in this city on July 24.

All Oddfellows and Rebekahs are urged to attend.

ROY DeFOREST AT CHASE FIELD

Second Lieutenant Roy E. DeForest, USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. DeForest of Fulton, Texas, has reported to Training Squadron 24 at the Chase Field Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Beeville, Texas, June 26, to begin his final weeks of flight training.

Upon completion of this training he will receive the golden wings of a qualified Marine pilot.

Lt. DeForest is a graduate of the University of Texas.

Jaycee Forum Set For July 21-22

From 100 to 125 South Texans are expected to gather here on July 21-22 for a regional Junior Chamber of Commerce forum sponsored by the local club.

A shrimp boil will be held on Rockport beach at 7:30 p.m., July 21. Registration will begin at 10 a.m., July 22, at the 812th AC&W Squadron at Rockport AFB, where the meeting will be held.

W. B. Mobley, Jr., Corpus Christi Jaycee, will be the featured speaker at a luncheon on July 22.

Meetings will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Conducting the meetings will be Jess Mills of Corpus Christi, who will speak on "Retention"; Joe Ramirez, of Alice, speaker on "Membership," and Stanley Freed of Laredo, on "International Relations."

The meetings will be interrupted by a cocktail hour at 2:30 p.m., and will resume afterward. The forum will adjoin at 4:30 p.m.

PUTTING CONTEST PRO-AM SCHEDULED AT COUNTRY CLUB

There will be a putting contest for members and ther guests at Live Oak Coutry Club, Thursday, July 19, starting at 7:30 p.m.

This will be a 54-hole match. Entries must be made before starting time.

The Inter-City Pro-Am will be held at Live Oak on Friday, July 20. Deadline for entries is noon. Tee-off time is 1:00 p.m.

The event is open to members and visitors in the area. Entry fee is $5.00, which includes green fee.

BAPTIST YOUTH TO LEAD REVIVAL

Rev. James Stanley will preach at the youth-led revival to be held at the First Baptist Church of Rockport, during the coming week, July 22 thru 29.

Services will begin at 7:30 each night. Rev. Stanley brought the message for the revival last summer.

Marion Warren, a student of the University of Corpus Christi, will lead singing as well as presenting special music and directing the choir.

This revival is led by the youth for all those who wish to attend. Fellowships and seminar will be held after the services.

ROCKPORT MAN NAMED TO FISHERIES BOARD

Gov. Price Daniel has appointed Weldon Cabaniss of Rockport as a member of the Gulf State Marine Fisheries Commission. Cabaniss, a lawyer and former county attorney of Aransas County, succeeds Wilson Southwell of San Antonio, whi is now a member of the Game and Fish Commission.

MICHAEL'S PUPIL HOLDING TAFT SHOW

A student of Simon G. Michael, of the Rockport School of Fine Arts, is halding her own one-man show in Taft.

The twelve paintings, on display in the office of the Taft Tribune, belong to Mrs. J. S. (Selma) Glisson, and include a portrait, several landscapes, and some still lifes.

Mrs. Glasson says she started painting in oil, but works in pastels and charcoal as well.

CEMETERY ASSOCIATION TO HOLD MEETING JULY 23

The quarterly meeting of the Rockport Cemetery Association will be held Monday, July 23, at 4 p.m. at the home of the Misses Vivian and Velma Picton.

County Election Is Set for Saturday

Other Funds For Purchase of Fire Equipment Thirty Cent Ad Valorem Tax Asked To Release

Election day is Saturday, July 21, and the issue at stake is the thirty-cent ad valorem tax which, Judge Wendell says, will release other funds for purchase of fire equipment so badly needed by the county. Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

The statute under which the election is called provides that such moneys can be used for any purpose the ordinary and special road and bridge funds now collected by the county are utilized, and, according to County Auditor James Millikin, passage of the tax could cause the tax of home stead owners to drop some $6 a year on a $10,000 homestead.

At present, he said, road and bridge and special road and bridge funds calll for 22 cents a year out of the money collected by the county out of its 80-cents constitutional levy, and the special road and bridge tax voted a number of years ago.

If the ad valorem tax is voted, funds from it can be used to release these two. Seven cents would go to the general fund, and the special road and bridge fund would go to the general fund, and the special road and bridge fund would no longer be collected under a projected 1962 budget, Millikin said.

Under the ad valorem tax plan, the tax levy would remain the same, $1.50 per $100 assessed value, and would bring in the same amount of money, for the navigation district levy has dropped by fifteen cents next year, and the special road and bridge fund amounted, in the past to the other fifteen cents.

Judge John D. Wendell said that through re-allocation of funds permitted by this switch in tax sources, it would be possible to by the pumper and other equipment needed by the fire department, and to enlarge library facilities.

The following polling places and election judges were set in the election order:

Precinct 1A: Voting Center, Aransas Pass, Mrs. Glenn Ellis, presiding judge.

Precinct 1: Rockport Fire Station, Mrs. Fay Brundrett, presiding judge.

Precinct 2: Aransas County Courthouse, Mrs. Elbert Mundine, presiding judge.

Precinct 3: Fulton Fire Station, Mrs. Harry McDow, presiding judge.

Precinct 4: Concession Hall, Goose Island State Park, Mrs. E. N. Adams, Jr., presiding judge.

The ballots will read as follows:

"For a Farm-to-Market and Lateral Road tax not to exceed 30c of $100 valuation."

"Against a Farm-to-Market and Lateral Road tax not to exceed 30c per $100 valuation."

Judge Wendell pointed out that the first $3,000 valuation on residential homesteads would be untaxed for this levy. This would automatically exempt many of the people in the county, he said.

Dredge Spreads Feast For Gulls

A lot of people will soon realize their secret dreams to own an island or—at least—part of one.

From the bottom of Little Bay, between Rockport and Fulton, the dredge Melvin is raising land on which over a thousand houses can be built, while fat and sassy gulls squabble over the feast spread before them along the sand.

Life aboard the Melvin is sheer, twenty-four-hour a day dredgery, as her big diesel chugs along, and she cuts a wide swath wherever she goes, deepening the bay and using the spoil to raise Key Allegro.

It all started last year when a group of San Antonio men, headed by Carl C. Krueger, Jr., bought low-lying Frandolig Island from Aransas County Navigation Board; acquired the mineral rights from an individual; and changed the island's name to Key Allegro.

Dikes were raised around the perimeter of the island by dragline and bulldozer, to hold the sand which was to be pumped from the bottom of Little Bay, to raise the entire island six feet above high tide. Then the Melvin moved in, her cutter gnawing away at the sand which, mixed with water, is forced through long lines of pipe by giant pumps, to the place where it is needed.

Along with the sand and water come countless tidbits of the sea which are spewed from the end of the discharge line to form a feast for the gulls. These birds loaf around and fight among themselved over some gull delicacy, almost too lazy to move.

But Capt. Millard Ticer says that it won't be long before the gulls' banquet is over.

"We're due to finish sometime in August," he said.

And as soon as the Melvin is through, homes and apartments will begin to sprout from Key Allegro. Already many of the lots in the first unit have been sold, and only this week another group of San Antonio people purchased ground on which to erect a luxury compartment complex.

Construction on this is expected to start in September, Krueger said.

SCOUT LEADERS ACCEPT INVITATIONS TO ATTEND SPECIALIZED TRAINING

Eight scout leaders in the Mustang District have accepted invitations to highly specialized Scout Leader Woodbadge Training Course, to be held Oct. 6 to Oct. 14, at Camp Karankawa, at Mathis.

The course invitations are extended to outstanding experienced scouters in the southwest part of Texas, and is limited to 32 scouters. The men who will attend are Clarence Maedgen, Mathis; Eppie Paz, Stanley Brinkoeter and Eddie Marburger, Sinton; Ray Turner and Dempsey Duprie, Taft; Dr. H. F. Elliot and Ron Schultz, Rockport.

The course is led by nationally trained instructors and is patterned after the original leaders training program that was developed by Baden Powell, originator of the scouting program.

During their week in camp, they will study and put into practice the skills and theory of the scouting program. Others in the Mustang District who have participated in the course in past years are Joe Benson, Don Daniel and O. A. Gingrich, Sinton; W. J. Mott, Portland; James Henry, Refugio; and T. L. Huffstutler, Mathis.

MRS. LEONARD LeBLANC FLIES TO COLOMBIA

Mrs. Leonard LeBlanc left early this week for South America to attend the wedding of her son, Charles, to Lilia Guerrero, of Cali, Colombia.

Charles, his wife, and Mrs. LeBlanc will return next week to Rockport, where the newlyweds will make their home.

Rise Expected In Shrimping Activity

With the opening of inshore waters to shrimp trawlers, shrimp processing in Rockport and Fulton is expected to take a sharp rise within the next few weeks.

Waters within 10½ miles of the Texas coast are closed from June 1 to July 15 by state law, in an effort to allow brown shrimp to grow.

Gulf catches outside the 10½ mile limit haven't been anything to brag about for several weeks, shrimpers say. Trawling for bait shrimp has also been poor.

The bay season opens August 15, when white shrimp become targets for shrimpers, and small boats from the Texas coast as well as from other states increase the fleet of shrimpers considerably.

However, this movement depends on how good the catches are.

ROBERT REED WILL TALK AND SHOW SLIDES

Robert Reed will talk and show slides taken during his recent trip to New York to attend a session of the United Nations, at your club, civic organization of church.

Please contact Mrs. A. L. Reed and arrange the date, place, etc.

During a nationwide contest, Robert was selected to represent this area at a session of the United Nations.

Your local Oddfellow and Rebekah lodge is glad of the opportunity to offer you this fine constructive entertainment.

WE INVITE—

We invite Glenn Mundine and guest to see "The Pleasure of His Company" and "Love Come Back" playing Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Cove Drive In Theatre.

This clipping from the Pilot (good for person named above only) will serve as your admission.

Place Names Are A Record Of Area History

Place names in this area are a record of the people that have been here since early times.

When Alonzo de Leon, back in 1691, discovered the headwaters of a river along which a lot of pecans grew, he said "nuts", or rather "Nueces" and the name has stuck to the river and the county in which Corpus Christi stands.

And, of course everyone knows that Pineda named the bay, and thus the city, because he discovered the place on Corpus Christi Day in 1529. But how many people know the origin of names like Robstown, Violet, and Clarkwood? Or can come with a lucid explanation of the names Oso, Flour Bluff, and Banquete?

Take Clarkwood, for instance. In 1910, Z. H. Clark built a store on the Texas-Mexican Railroad, west of Corpus Christi, and petitioned the postal department for an office which he wished to name after himself. But there were already two named Clark and Clarksville, so he had to settle for the name the community bears today.

Still further west is Violet, where a post office was established years ago by J. A. Fiester, who named it after his wife—Violet.

Robstown was founded in 1904, when the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico started building tracks south from this point, through the ranch belonging to Robert Driscoll, from whence comes the town's name. Farther south is another town, built at the same time, and likewise on his ranch, so what was more natural than to call it Driscoll?

F. Z. Bishop, built the town south of Driscoll, and established a post office on December 20, 1910. Banquete was named for the banquet which Brownsville merchants gave there for the people of San Patricio, back in 1832. The merchants brought along their goods to trade after the meal.

Agua Dulce was named for the creek near which it stands. This creek heads into Jim Wells County, runs southeast to Alazan Bay. Agua Dulce, of course, is Spanish for Sweet Water. One of the battles of the Texas revolution was fought here in 1836, on March 2, the same day that the colonists declared Texas independent of Mexico.

William Bluntzer established the little community on the Nueces that still bears his name 64 years ago, and, until the postoffice was discontinued in 1930, he was the only postmaster.

Of course Cal Allen was the owner of the site on which the town of the same name is located. It was established in 1904, and the post office came ten years later. Hew Noakes was postmaster for about 30 years.

Nuecestown needs no explanation, although it was the beginning it was named the Motts, because of the clumps of timber around it.

Port Aransas was named for the pass through which the Corpus Christi Ship Channel reaches the sea, but before that it was called Tarpon, because of the fish which sportsmen came from all over the world to catch.

Aransas Pass, of course, was first the strait between Mustang and the St. Joseph's islands, connecting Aransas Bay with the Gulf of Mexico. And Aransas City and the county of Aransas were all named for the Aransas River.

In turn, they probaby took their beginning from an earlier word. A Spanish record of 1594 mentions the Cayo de Aranzazu or Rancho de Santa Gertrudis, indicating apparently that one was identical with another.

However, the former was the entire watershed of the Aransas River and its bays, the latter but part of the cayo. The rancho mentioned was later known as the Rancho del Diesmera, which embraced most of the territory around the present town of Refugio and extending toward the Aransas River and Copano Bay.

Three of the components of the Cayo de Aranzazu have retained the Spanish name in Anglicized form, namely Aransas River, Aransas Bay, and Aransas Pass, and Aransas City was another. This used to lie about where the south end of Copano Causeway is now, and is long gone. Aransas Peninsula and Aransas Point were later renamed Live Oak Peninsula and Live Oak Point. And the Isla de Aranzazu, called Aransas Island by early English-speaking residents, is now known by an Anglicized form of Isla de San Jose, St. Joseph's Island.

Mustang Island, separated from St. Joseph's Island by Aransas Pass, was once called Wild Horse Island, for the same reason that it bears its present name. There were so many wild mustangs there that ranchers are reputed to have killed hundreds of them to keep them from mixing with their own stock.

Chapman Ranch was named for P. A. Chapman, who bought 35,000 acres from the King Ranch and divided it into a number of rental units. In addition he built a store and a school which he called Santa Cruz. However, as there was already a post office by that name, it was changed to the more prosaic form by which the community is stil known.

Petronila, below the Chapman Ranch, is named after the nearby creek of the same name, but where that name came from no one seems to know. Luby, a small community east of Petronila, was named after J. O. Luby, who opened an oil field there in the 1930's.

San Fernando Creek forms part of the boundary between Nueces and Kleberg counties and was named by the Spaniards for St. Ferdinand. Turkey Creek, a short arroyo running into the Nueces near its mouth, was so named because of the numerous wild turkeys found there in early days.

The Cayo del Oso means the Callo del Oso, and this in turn, rather freely translated, means the Watershed of the Bear. The name probably was given to the little creek because some early Spaniard saw a bear in the cane brakes along its course.

At the mouth of Oso Bay is Ward Island, no longer an island, because connected with the mainland. But once the waters of Oso completely surrounded it, and it was owned by "Pegleg" Thomas William Ward, a hero of the Texas Revolution.

Ward lost a leg at the Battle of San Antonio, in December, 1835. Six years later, he lost an arm in an accidental explosion of a cannon which he was preparing to fire in a San Jacinto Day celebration.

Infierno Creek, in Nueces County, appears in Spanish records as Callo de Infierno (Watershed of Hell). An arroyo draining into Baffin Bay, its banks are lined with Indian campsites.

Tunas Creek in Nueces County still bears its original name. Old Spanish maps call it Arroyo de Tunas, or "Stream of the Fruit of the Prickly Pear."

TELEPHONE TALK

by Allen Short, Manager

HELP!

Writing a newspaper column has its advantages and its disadvantages. On the good side, it gives me a chance to discuss a variety of telephone topics and pass on news and views concerning my company.

On the bad side, I sometimes come up "bone dry" and can't beg or borrow an idea to write about.

And that's where you come in.

If you have a question you'd like answered or a subject you'd like discussed, just drop me a line in care of this paper. Only one restriction—keep the subject on telephones and communications. I'm no good at settling family fusses or giving personal, legal or medical advice. And if you come up with a question I can't answer, I'll try to find someone who can. How about it? Any takers?

DO YOU KNOW THE ANSWER?

During his entire lifetime, how many hours would you guess the average man spends telephoning?

Well, the answer might seem impossible (to anyone but a teenager) but the average is 8,760 hours! (And while this is sure a lot of time, just think how many hours you save by telephoning instead of having to deliver your message personally!)

Anyway, it strikes me that as long as you're going to spend a year of your life on the phone, you may as well do it conveniently. And nothing offers more convenience than personal extension phones wherever you work, sleep or play.

We've got phones in a rainbow of colors to suit your own good taste. Just call the business office, or ask any telephone service man.

A WORD TO THE WISE

"Sorry, we've just filled our last vacancy."

I ran across this cartoon in one of our company publications. I think the moral is clear without me adding too many words.

July is a popular month for vacations—and if you want to be sure of a reservation, always call ahead. Our telephone booths are nice but they were never designed for overnight stays.

So long, see you next month.

Barnett's World Tour Account Continues In Japan

Our first impression was disappointing. Gone was the vision of the Japan of the picture books. The traffic was terrific; the streets were not too clean, due to water shortage; and the parks were poorly kept. Tokyo had suffered a disastrous earthquake in 1923, followed by a fire which almost destroyed the city. Then it was 80 per cent destroyed again by the bombings of World War II.

After we recovered from the disappointment of not finding it according to our ideas, we began to realize that it was a truly great city, with many things of interest.

We saw the 250-acre grounds of the Imperial Palace in the heart of the city, surrounded by ancient moat; some of the city's 69 universities; grade schools and thousands of school children, for Japanese are 99% literate; also the huge stadium were the 1964 Olympic games will be held; several temples; the farmers arcade with block after block of cheap goods; one of the world's best transportation systems, with commuter trains at the rate of one a minute; subways, and thousands of busses and automobiles.

We drove through many blocks of wholesale stores specializing in paper decorations for Christmas and festivals, their fronts gay with all kinds of beautiful streamers of paper. One street was lined with every kind of book store—300 in all. In another all the shops sold Buddhist and Shinto household altars. Finally we visited the Ginza shopping district, the Fifth Avenue of Japan, where all the products and art work of the country are sold. We ended our day at the Imperial Hotel, designed by Frank Lloyd Wright in 1890—one of the few buildings in Tokyo which withstood the great earthquake of 1923. The old section in which we stayed has been modernized, but the public rooms were the same, with beautiful enclosed Japanese gardens.

Tokyo is a fairyland at night. The Japanese are past masters of neon lighting, and when it is all turned on, and thousands and thousands of people come out on the streets, you begin to realize what a great and gay city it really is.

Before we ended our first long day, we thought back over the reception these courteous people had given us. The children are so very friendly and all eagerly wave when we wave at them. Everyone we met impressed us as being very fair and also most courteous. Throughout our short stay in the country, we felt that the people were always more interesting than the scenery.

Our tour was arranged by the Japan Tourist Bureau, and with the usual efficiency of the Japanese, it was managed to perfection, with no detail for our comfort overlooked. They were exactly on time in starting each phase of the trip—not a minute late. So at exactly 7:50 a.m. we left the hotel to board the train for Nikko, 90 miles away in the mountains. The train was excellent—as good or better than our American trains.

Soon we were passing through farming country, the Japan of the picture books. Since there are two crops of grain raised each year on each plot of ground, wheat and rice, and this is the transition time, some of the fields had waist-high grain, while in others the young rice shoots were being transplanted by hand.

Both women and men do this work, and work from first light in the morning until dark. Since rice is grown in water, the people work standing and ankle-deep. A few wear boots, but most are barefooted. Some fields are cultivated by small hand tractors, and a few horses, but most either by water buffaloes or by hand spading. Besides the grain crops, there were vegetables of all kinds, fruit trees and strawberries. We saw many large, white egrets in the flooded fields. The farmhouses were all very neat.

At Nikko we were taken by bus to visit a famous Shinto shrine, of extremely ornate design, built about 1650. Here we saw the original sculpture of the "Three Wise Monkeys," who "hear no evil; see no evil; and speak no evil." The most striking thing about the shrine was its setting in a magnificent grove of cypress trees. Over the river at Nikko is an ancient bridge painted vermilion, used only by royalty.

Nikko is in the mountains, with fine forests, rushing mountain rivers, and woods food of azaleas all in bloom.

After lunch at an inn set in fairy-like gardens, we were driven high up in the mountains to a lake which is in the crater of a volcano. The road is called the "Alphabet Road" because it has 48 hairpin turns, one for each letter of the Japanese alphabet. It was an exciting ride, especially in so large a vehicle as a 50-passenger bus, meeting many other large buses on the way down. They told us there were wild monkeys to be seen along the road, but we were not fortunate enough to see them.

A two-hour train ride brought us back to Tokyo for dinner, after which we wearily boarded the ten o'clock train for our overnight trip to Kyto. These overnight trains are quite different from the modern day trains. They reminded us of the old green plush Pullmans of a generation ago in the United States. However, there was one difference. On each berth there was a freshly-laundered kimono to be used as a sleeping garment, and house shoes underneath each bed.

Some people used their kimonos for sleeping, but since they were stiffly starched, we used ours only as dressing gowns.

As soon as we could see (4:30 a.m.) we got up to see some more of Japan rushing past our window. Now, instead of rural scenery, we passed through miles and miles of industrial districts. The industrialization of Japan never ceased to amaze us. There were factories, steel mills and heavy industry of all kinds. Along with all this new development has gone a change in housing. Huge blocks of apartments are springing up in all the industrial centers, another indication that Japan is becoming Westernized.

Our last day was spent in Kyoto, which, for 1100 years, was the capital of Japan. Because of its many shrines, temples and palaces, considered as a National Treasure, it was not bombed during World War II. It is a charming city, neatly laid out with tree-lined streets. It is noted for its many beautiful temple gardens. We visited two, both lovely beyond description. Our city tour ended at noon with luncheon at a fine modern hotel. Two hours were ours to do as we pleased before boarding the bus to rejoin the ship at Kobe. These we spent shopping in the hotel shops and resting.

On the long ride back, "Baby", just as enthusiastic and peppy as usual, entertained us with many facts about Japanese family life, and even ended by telling a few jokes to bolster up our lagging spirits.

Among other things, she told us that every Japanese man or woman changes from Western clothing to a kimona as soon as they reach home; that no Japanese talks during a meal (it isn't considered polite); that nearly all modern homes have one room furnished in Western style; that generally they eat food cooked in the Japanese manner, with a western style meal about once a week, like we occasionally eat a Mexican dinner.

REBEKAHS INSTALL NAW OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Mrs. R. L. Condley, retiring noble grand, opened the regular meeting of the Rockport Rebekah Lodge with 19 members present, and Mrs. Penny Kizer, deputy president of District 56, with her staff, Mrs. G. W. Scott, deputy warden, Mrs. Grace Roberts, marshal, and Mrs. Ethel Byers, chaplain, installed the officers of the Rockport Rebekah Lodge for the coming year.

Plans were made with the committee of the IOOF Lodge for Oddfellows and their families, Rebekahs and their families, and friends who are interested in any branch of the order to have an open meeting at the Oddfellow Hall, Tuesday night, July 24, to hear reports from Ann Cassel and Robert Reed, representatives of the Rockport Theta Rho and Junior Oddfellow organizations, who were delegates to the United Nations Assembly recently, in New York, and to see the pictures which they took on their trip.

These young people are very appreciative of their opportunity to visit the UN and to have a tour lasting three weekse to the northern and eastern portions of the United States, and they will be happy to meet with any service club, church, or other community organizations who will invite them to tell of their trip and show the slides they made.

Mrs. Kizer, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Byers and Mrs. Billie Post were guests from the Ingleside lodge.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Mikeal and Mrs. Stan Heath served pink angel food cake and punch.

The table was laid with a lace cloth over green taffeta, with a ceramic peasant woman bearing a bowl of fruit on her head as the centerpiece. Bud vases of half blown roses were at each station and on the piano.

The Rebekahs will have a White Elephant sale and degree practice at their regular meeting Thursday night, July 19.

Wilson Brooks, of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hurley and two grandchildren are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brooks.

Outdoors In Texas

By Vern Sanford

You can add greatly to your outboard enjoyment by making sure your boat and motor match and by keeping both in tiptop shape.

When you're buying a rig, take into consideration the purpose for which it will be used most frequently—pleasure cruising, water skiing, fishing, etc. Obviously a rig designed for pulling water skiers isn't an outfit for serious fishing.

Then, too, when you purchase a rig make sure you get the correct horsepower motor.

Don't mount a 50-horsepower job on a 14-foot boat that is used solely on a 24-acre lake.

And of course if fishing is your main concern, a 10-horse motor will do the job adequately. Then both the initial expense and the operating cost are less.

When it comes to mounting the motor on the boat, the motor leg should be perpendicular to the surface of the water. When running through the water, the cavitation plate should knife cleanly.

If the motor is mounted so that the cavitaion plate slants downward, here's what happens. When you pour on the power, your boat will dig at the stern. The bow will ride high. And instead of skimming over the water on plane, your boat will be pushing a wall of water. You won't be able to get good speed or a stable ride.

If the motor is mounted so the cavitation plate slants upward, the bow of the boat will have a tendency to dig into the water. Again you have great loss of speed. Also, the ride will be unstable and dangerous.

So, the cavitation plate is much like the stabilizer on an airplane. For a smooth, even ride the angle of attack must be zero.

Assuming you have the motor mounted at the proper angle, the next thing to consider is the propeller.

Most large motors these days are sold without props. The dealer installs the correct pitch and diameter prop for your boat and load. This isn't a gimmick to run up the prices. It's just good common sense.

For example, a racing wheel is wholly unsuited for a fishing rig. And by the same token you wouldn't want a work prop mounted on a motor used for racing.

If you own a big motor and use it for different purposes, it would be wise to purchase two props—or perhaps one of the new adjustable-pitch props. You can use the prop or pitch best suited for the boat load and purpose. In the long run you'll realize a savings in the amount of fuel used.

Specifications of a prop are given in terms of diameter and pitch.

Diameter is determined simply by measuring the diameter of a circle formed by the tips of the blades.

Pitch is the distance the prop moves the boat during one complete revolution.

But remember to take slippage into consideration when referring to pitch. Let us say that the prop has a pitch of 10 inches. For every revolution of the prop, does the boat move forward 10 inches? No. Remember that the prop is pushing weight, and the weight will determine the amount of slippage. With a general utility wheel, you can usually figure on the slippage amounting to 20 or 30 per cent. Slippage will increase with added weight and weight distribution within the hull. And slippage, of course, varies with speed.

Your outboard prop will collect a lot of nicks and dents in the course of operation. Nicks and dents on the leading edges of the blades result when the wheel strikes rocks, logs and other debris in the water.

These dents and nicks may appear to be minor, but they can have a pronounced effect on both boat and motor performance. You'll get excessive vibration and noise.

And there have been cases where a badly damage prop has vibrated fittings loose from both boat and motor. Even very small nicks and dents can cause excessive motor wear.

Have your prop checked periodically and realigned. It will go a long way toward lengthening the life of your motor. And, of course, you'll get better performance and more enjoyment from outboarding.

If you boat a lot in rocky shoal waters, it's wise to carry along a spare prop. You can cause serious motor and boat damage by trying to run home with a prop that has a big chunk knocked out of a blade or one blade knocked way out of pitch.

How about weight distribution within the hull? With a planing hull, the weight should be so distributed that when under full power the boat will be planing on the back one-third of the bottom.

Too much weight forward will cause the bow to dig; too much weight in the rear will cause the stern to squat and dig.

If the bow digs, then every little wave or current will cause the boat to deviate off course. If the stern squats, you'll have difficulty in seeing over the bow. If there is a strong cross wind, you'll have trouble keeping on course because of the wind swinging the bow.

An improperly loaded boat is very difficult to steer.

I might also point out that speed only magnifies steering troubles on an improperly loaded hull.

A steering wheel is a wise investment for the outboarder. It provides more positive control over the boat and more stable turning. Furthermore it allows you to face forward so you can devote full attention to the road ahead.

Outboarding is fun when you purchase a rig to suit your purpose. It's just like buying a car—you wouldn't buy a passenger car to haul produce on a farm, and you wouldn't buy a flatbed truck for pleasure driving.

Mrs. Robert Ayers III Honoree at Bridal Shower

Mrs. Robert Young Ayers III, the former Miss Jerry Lynn Harrell, was named honoree at a bridal shower held at the home of Mrs. H. F. Elliot, between the hours of four to seven, on Wednesday afternoon. Hostesses for this event, in addition to Mrs. Elliot, were Mrs. Lynwood Eller, Mrs. Hugh Highfill, and Mrs. Jack Sparks.

In the receiving line were the honoree; her mother, Mrs. Milton Harrell, Mrs. Robert Ayers II, and Mrs. H. F. Elliot.

An arrangement of pastel flowers was used as a centerpiece for the dining room table. The serving bar, in the den, was decorated with yellow and white flowers, and bore the crystal punch set and silver coffee service.

Mrs. Charles Satsky and Miss Sandra Spencer served the coffee; Miss Cynthia Highfill and Miss Gayle Griffith alternated at the punch bowl. Miss Janine Torres served the cake.

Miss Rose Ann Elliot, Miss Sue Harrell, and Miss Phyllis Ayers were in charge of registration. The registery table was covered with a cutwork, hand-made, heirloom cloth, made fifty years ago in Hawaii. It was centered with a bride doll, made in Germany, and wearing an antique lace dress.

Miss Caroline Clark was in charge of the gifts which were displayed on tables covered in green linen and trimmed with bridal wreath.

About a hundred guests called during the receiving hours.

B&PW CLUB HAS MEETING

The Business and Professional Woman's Club met Monday evening, July 16, 1962, at the Episcopal Parish Hall.

The club is planning to have a bazaar the first Saturday in December, and Mrs. T. E. Griffith was appointed chairman of the affair.

Several civic and educational projects were discussed.

The planning meeting for the District 13 Conference will be held in Corpus Christi on Sunday, July 29. The meeting place is the new Viking Motor Hotel, between Portland and Corpus Christi. The time is 1 p.m. Price of the lunch will be $2.

Anyone planning to attend is asked to phone Mrs. Ronnee Schultz by July 27.

The next meeting will be Aug. 20, at 8 p.m., in the Parish Hall.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Charlotte Wilkinson, of Fulton, announces the marriage of her daughter Allena to Forest R. Jones, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Jones, Sr., of Port Mansfield, Texas.

The wedding was solemnized in Edinburg on July 13. They will make their home in Fulton.

Word has been received of the death of R. E. Britt, of Lamesa, Texas, a former resident of Rockport.

Architect Ends Survey Here of Historical Homes

As a part of the Historical American Building Survey, conducted by the American Institute of Architects, Robert Beasley, Beeville architect, has just concluded inspection and historical research on four of the old homes in Rockport, a project on which he was assisted by Jack Baughman.

The homes that Beasley surveyed are the Bruhl home; the Hynes house; the Fulton mansion; and the Mathis house. All of them are Victorian in style, and all of them date from the early days of Rockport.

Oldest and most famous, of course, is the Fulton Mansion, presently owned by J. F. Boldin.

Built by George W. Fulton, a cousin of inventor Robert Fulton, the house was begun in 1862 and completed in 1867.

In his research, Beasley uncovered a number of interesting facts about Fulton, as well as the house he built. Fulton came to Texas in 1837 as a volunteer to aid in the defense of this state against Mexican general Santa Anna, and served in the Texas army until it was disbanded, at which time he held the rank of captain.

He was appointed draftsman in General Land Office of Texas, and in 1838 was appointed customs collector for the infant Republic of Texas. In 1840 he married the daughter of Henry Smith, who was Texas' first governor. After 6 years, the Fultons moved to Baltimore to give their children a better education.

Later the family returned to Texas where Fulton became a member of the Coleman-Mathis Cattle Company, and, when it was re-organized as Coleman-Fulton Company, he was elected president. He died in 1894, after which Mrs. Fulton moved away. The house has had several owners since then, and was once used as a restaurant. Now it is used as a curio shop and recreation hall for guests of the trailer park in which it stands.

Beasley says that the house has many interesting architectural features, some of them far ahead of their time.

Of three stories and a half, the basement, mostly above ground, was built of shell concrete, reinforced with iron rails. This basement contained a large kitchen, a room with troughs around it in which running water cooled food, a dumbwaiter to carry food to the dining room, a furnace and a laundry with swinging racks near the furnace on which clothes could be dried.

Above the basement, the floors, walls and partitions are heart pine 2 x 10's which were dipped in tar and then laminated, alternating with the 2 x 12's in the floors. Cypress siding is tongue-in-groove 1 x 4 cypress, laid vertically with quoins and trim of cypress.

The hearths, dining room and entrance hall floors are Italian tile. Other floors are pine. First floor rooms have fireplaces faced with Italian marble and with ebony mantels. Two over mantel mirrors still remain. The moulded trim in the house is of walnut. These rooms har crystal chandeliers with glass tubing for gas lighting. Two of these wall fixtures remain.

The stairway, with walnut railing, leads to the second and third floors, each of which is complete with a bath containing a toilet, copper tub, marble lavatory, and hot and cold running water. The four bedrooms on each floor have Italian marble lavoratories built into the corner of each.

Beasley says there was a four-foot high secret room (used for storing money received from the sale of cattle and hides) on the third floor, under the tower room, with access through panels in the walls of adjacent closets. The roof is shingled with copper.

There was a plant for manufacturing gas used for lighting and the centrally located furnace which with outside air through a duct, forced warm air through pipes in the fireplace grate in each room. A water tank on the roof supplied the plumbing fixtures, a second tank in the basement provided drinking water, and a third tank outside held water for the laundry.

Surrounded by an iron fence, the yard was formally landscaped with walks, flower beds, and a fountain. The driveway was paved with asphalt, and the house furnishings were imported from France.

(Description of the Bruhl, Hynes and Mathis houses will follow in other issues of the Pilot.)

Rockport Makes The Book Again

This little seaside town has made the book again—because of its abundant bird life and nationally famous ornithologist, Mrs. Jack Hagar.

In past years, Mrs. Hagar and the birds of Rockport has appeared in Associated Press dispatches, in the pages of LIFE, and in many of the big and little dailies and weeklies of the nation, as well as in two or three books.

"Karankawa Country" by the late Roy Bedichek, was one of these, and "Wild America," by Roger Tory Peterson and an English writer was another. But, for that matter, hardly a book on the ornithology of this part of the world has appeared within recent years but has mentioned her and Rockport's birds.

All these stand on the shelves of the libraries of the world, and have tolled people as far away as Malaya and Europe to this section of the Texas coast, to see the teeming bird life, probably without parallel elsewhere in the world.

Other places have more birds at times, but none of them have as many birds of as many species as does Rockport.

Latest to acknowledge this fact is Ivan Sanderson's new book, "The Continent on Which We Live."

This magnificent volume, just published, will cost you a cool $20 if you buy it, a fact that will deter the confirmed nature lover but little, for it is probably one of the most beautiful and fascinating ever to come from Sanderson's typewriter.

In it, Sanderson pays tribute to Rockport, Mrs. Hagar, and the birds of the area.

And, even if you can't read, the illustrations, in full color, from the top camera man of America, are worth the price. There seems little reason to doubt that this will soon become a collector's item, treasured on the shelves of libraries and individuals, and continuing to shout the glories of Rockport's avian population and their faithful observer.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Evans and son, David, of Fort Worth, were weekend guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Volney Cavitt.

Follow Simple Rules In Automobile Accident

Vacation time is near. Soon millions of people will be driving about the country, and automobile accidents will occur with increasing frequency. What should a person do when involved in an accident?

At such times it is hard to keep your wits about you and know just what to do It is therefore a good idea to plan in advance just what you would do in event of a smash-up. Here are a few simple rules that every driver should commit to memory.

1. Stop! Failure to stop can result in serious criminal consequences.

2. Render Aid. If anyone is injured: (1) Render first aid. (2) Stop bleeding. (3) Call a doctor or an ambulance or both. (4) Do not move an injured person in any way that could possibly add to his injury.

3. Protect the Scene from Further Damage. You may be liable for damages to approaching drivers, unless they are properly warned. If the highway is obstructed at night, have someone turn his headlight beams on the wrecked vehicles.

4. Call an Officer. Policemen, Highway Patrolmen, Sheriffs and their deputies are trained accident investigators whose testimony may be invaluable in establishing your civil claim for damages.

Gather Information . . . Write it Down. Don't trust your memory. Don't guess—be specific, Measure skid marks. Step off distances. Be sure to obtain names and addresses of witnesses. You are required by law to exhibit your driver's license to the other driver—and he must do the same.

6. Be Careful What You Say. Even if you feel you probably are to blame, it is best to make no admission. You may learn later that the other driver was equally at fault, or more so. Emotional comments can be misconstrued by others, or may be misquoted. Whatever you say, make it fractual.

7. See Your Doctor if there is the slightest chance you may be injured. Serious injuries do not always result in immediate pain or bloodshed.

8. Consult Your Lawyer Immediately. The sooner your lawyer is brought into the matter, the better he can advise you and your rights. He can obtain statements from the witnesses while their memories are fresh, and do many other things to insure that the true facts are preserved. Get your lawyer's advice before giving any interviews or statements to investigators or adjustors for the other side.

9. Inform Your Insurance Company Promptly. Failure to do so may void your policy.

10. Report the Accident to the Department of Public Safety. This is required by law if there is any injury, death, or if total damages exceed $25.00.

An official accident report form may be procured from the Police, Sheriff's Dept., Highway Patrol, or State Dept. of Public Safety.

(This column, is prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret and law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

PRESBYTERIAN CIRCLE ONE MET JULY 12

Circle One of the First Presbyterian Church met at the home of Miss Lillian Fahr.

We enjoyed our social meeting with refreshments.

The meeting opened with a prayer given by Mrs. M. F. Clanahan. This was followed by the roll call with a message from the Bible.

Our moderator was Mrs. Pat Greene who as always, gives a very interesting lesson , the subject being James, the Just.

Emphasis was given by Miss Lillian Fahr on a very interesting subject, Let's Learn About Christian Citizenship. This was discussed by all members.

We are very happy to say one new member was added to our circle. The meeting closed with Mizpah.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gene Bird, Aug. 9. The following members were present:

Miss Lillian Fahr, Mrs. Gene Bird, Mrs. M. F. McClanahan, Mrs. Elbert Mundine, Mrs. Pat Greene, Mrs. Ed Goode.

When Zoos Were Corner Drugstores

Does your rheumatism trouble you? Drop down to the zoo and drink some elephant blood. Got a headache? Then let the elephant touch you with his trunk and throw your aspirin aside. Do you have the gout? Then try the ancient Egyptian remedy for it. Take the grease from an oryx antelope, one centipede, a hippopotamus, lion, ass, crocodile, mouse, lizard and snake. Melt them together and season with certain herbs and you'll never have another twinge in your foot if you anoint it with the concoction.

Ridiculous? Silly? Sure, but it was remedies such as those that the ancient doctors depended and, if we can believe their books on medicine, from every animal, including man, a specific could be prepared to combat some human ailment.

Some animals such as hyenas were drugstores on four legs, and from this walking garbage can no less than 79 remedies were available. Their teeth took the place of oil of cloves and the dentist, the aching human tooth being touched with one of the hyena's. The same result could be attained by wearing all its teeth, properly arranged, as a necklace.

Wear one as an amulet, and nightmares and bad dreams would vanish; tie one to your arm and you could hit whatever you threw at. A cap, made from the skin of the head, protected the wearer against headaches, if he didn't have an elephant handy.

Marrow of the hyena's backbone, mixed with old oil and gall was strengthening to one's sinews. Colic, palpitation of the heart, and fever could all be cured by some part of this fearsome beast, while the bristles of the snout, applied to the lips of a woman, acted as a love potion.

Beavers were heap big medicine, also, producing no less than 66 nostrums. Castoreum, from the scent glands, mixed with oil of roses and pucedanum and applied to the head was used as a narcotic, but the same effect could be attained by swallowing the nauseous mess with a little water.

As a fumigant, it acted as an excitant to patients afflicted with lethargy, the smell probably being sufficient to arouse the laziest. It was also an antidote for poisons, a curative for the earache, sciatica and epilepsy, and had no equal, mixed with wine, for alleviating the bites of spiders, snakes, insects and scorpions.

Of less use to the ancient chirugeon was the hippopotamus. Nevertheless, the hide reduced to ashes, was used as a cure for tumors and swellings, while smoke from its fat was a specific against fevers. A tooth from the left side of its jaw would charm away toothache and skin from the same side of its hear, dried, made a wonderful hair tonic.

Another mainstay of this zoological drugstore was that beautiful and fabulous beast the unicorn—our present day rhinoceros. To the horn of this wonderous beast were ascribed many marvels. Alicorn, as it was called, formed the peculiar treasure of kings, for the possessor of a cup made of alicorn need fear neither epilepsy nor death from poison. For this privilege, princes potentates and paladins were willing to purchase it for its weight in pure gold, and even today in some parts of the world it is highly valued, although for a different reason.

Ashes from the skin of a crocodile applied to the body acted as an anesthetic, and the croc, eaten boiled, was supposed to cure lumbago and sciatica. Tortoise flesh was an antidote for poison and a repeller of magic and, eaten as a soup, a cure for scrofula or king's evil, so-called in medieval times because it was thought that the touch of a monarch's hand would cure it.

The dried muzzle of a wolf or the skin from its neck were efficacious against enchantments, and an ancient version of eggnog, the eggs of an owlet, administered to a drunkard for three days in his wine produced a strong distaste for that liquor. Tortoise blood was a cure for asthma, and elephant's blood was used in treatment of consumption.

Fat of a sea-calf, mixed with hyena's marrow, was a remedy for hydrophobia; ashes of oysters were used for a toothpaste, and the flesh of a whale, mixed with salt, for pyorrhea. Hangnails were removed by the ashes from a burnt dog's head, mixed with ewe's milk, butter and honey.

As a counterpart for the modern eyebrow pencil, ants eggs beaten up with flies were used to darken the eyebrows. Bat's blood made an excellent depilatory, but if that didn't work you could always try ashes of a hyena's heart, and the fat from a crocodile was very highly recommended.

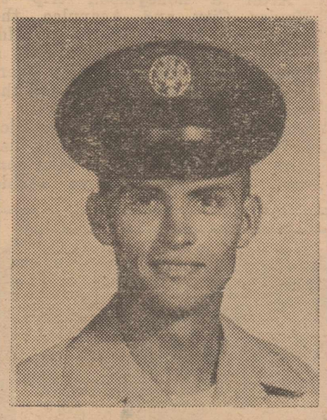

Ashes of burnt earthworms applied with oil prevented hair from turning white and, if you were bald, blood of a sea tortoise made an excellent hair tonic. The gall of the same animal was used to produce synthetic blondes, taking the place of peroxide, and leaving the ringlets a golden color.

Freckles were removed by the use of cuttlebone (taken from a species of octopus). Fish glue, mixed with sulphur, alkanet and lithargo, was the ancient equivalent of the plastic surgeon and, instead of having their faces lifted, ladies flounced in to an ancient beauty shop where the mixture was applied "to efface wrinkles and plump out the skin." And for that school girl complexion, lion's fat, mixed with oil of roses, was believed to cure spots on the skin and to enhance the whiteness and clearness of a skin you loved to touch. Pimples were treated with poultry grease, beaten up with chopped onions.

Diseases of the heart, kidneys and body, love, potions, preventatives of intoxication, pains in the feet, house-maid's knee, or halitosis, all were one to the ancient doctor or beauty specilaist. All he did was take down his pharamacopeia, look up the proper animal, bird or fish from which to get his remedy and then, gun in hand or fishing rod on shiulder, go looking for the ingredients of his prescription.

Sometimes the patient survived.

JAMES R. FOX COMPLETES BASIC AT LACKLAND

Lackland AFB, Texas.—Airman Basic James R. Fox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Fox of 1004 Cedar, Rockport, Texas, is being reassigned to the United States Air Force technical training course for aircraft accessory systems specialists at Chanute AFB, Ill.

Airman Fox, who has completed his basic military training here, was selected for the advanced course on the basis of his interests and aptitudes.

The airman is a 1959 graduate of Aransas County High School in Rockport and a former student at Southwest Texas State Teachers College in San Marcos.

Mrs. M. D. Harryman and children, of Groesbeck, are visiting with her mother, Mrs. G. H. Eller and relatives.

Key Allegro Fossils Were Camels, Horses

The fossils found on Key Allegro during bulldozer and dragline operations earlier this year have been identified. Two of them were molars from a prehistoric camel, dating from the end of the last Ice Age, according to Aalbert Heine, of Corpus Christi museum.

Also identified are five molars and one incisor from prehistoric horses, three molars from a prehistoric bison and one milk tooth from a mastedon. All are estimated to be at least 6,000 years old.

In the collection are two bones which are modern by comparison. They are from a buffalo which lived only a century ago.

Identification of the bones by Heine was confirmed by the Museum of Natural History in New York City, which sent the relics back to the local museum.

The bones were unearthed during the development of Key Allegro, a Florida-type subdivision between Rockport and Fulton. That area formerly was known as Frandolig Island and is now owned by Carl C. Krueger Jr. and Associated, a group of San Antonio financiers.

Vermillion Construction Co. bulldozers were leveling the island prepratory to filling it and dredging canals.

The camels, like the horses, were of North American origin, and went through the major part of their evolutionary development on this continent.

The camels of the Old World and the llamas in South America represent emigrations from this continent during the Pleistocene epoch, and their present absence here is the result of extinction at the very close of the Ice Age, Heine continued.

Camels first appeared as small animals with short limbs. As they gradually evolved, their legs became longer, as an adaution for rapid running, and their neck increased in length.

Their hooved feet were transformed into spreading padded feet, adapted for walking through the soft sand, apparently as they migrated from North America to the deserts of the Near East.

Camels reappeared along the coast when a native camel driver Hadji Ali, brought African camels ashore at old Indianola, in 1856-67.

"They had made their evolutionary trip around the world," commented Heine.

"Hi Jolly," as the old camel driver was called, brought his load of camels here during the administration of President Franklin Pierce, at the instigation of Secretary of State Jefferson Davis.

In 1903 a prospector staggered into a Quartizite, Calif., saloon with the unlikely story that he had seen a camel in the desert.

Doubting Thomases found Hi Jolly with his arms around the neck of his beloved camel. Both were dead.

A monument marks the spot. An inscription reads: "The last camp of Hi Jolly, born somewhere in Syria about 1828, died at Quartzite, Dec. 1, 1903. Came to this country Feb. 10, 1857 driver, packer, scout. Over 30 years in faithful aide to the U. S. Government."

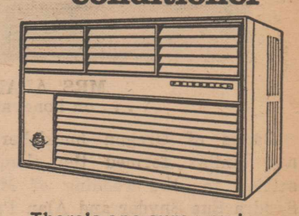

The story of Hi Jolly was retold when his daughter, Mrs. Minnie Tidro Hansford, died Dec. 30, 1958, in Rialto, Calif.

Horses in North America today were brought back to this continent by the Spaniards, Heine said.

There are some placed in Texas today where the geological formations are called the Eguus Beds because of the great number of horse bones found there.

Camel bones have not been so plentiful, the museum director added.

MISS SANDRA SNYDER BECOMES BRIDE OF ALAN GIRARD IN CHURCH CEREMONY

MRS. ALAN PAUL GIRARD
. . . on honeymoon trip to Acapulco

Banks of Oregon huckleberry, and smilax formed the chancel setting for the wedding of Miss Sandra Sue Snyder and Alan Paul Girard Saturday evening, July 3, at the First Baptist Church in Aransas Pass.

The Rev. Bill G. Arnold officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Clarence Snyder, 503 West Harrison boulevard in Aransas Pass, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hubert Girard of Westchester County, N. Y.

Tall branched wrought iron candelabra, with burning white cathedral tapers, garlanded with Oregon huckleberry stood on the altar steps and in the background.

Wrought-iron floor baskets of white Majestic daisies, gladioli, carnations and emerald greenery, with a large formal center arrangement, completed the altar setting. Trailing smilax was entwined in the choir rail, with daisies and white satin streamers marking the pews.

Italian peau de soie

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal wedding gown of candleliught Italian peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace, edged with seed pearls and sequins, in a Regal silhouette. The molded bodice, designed with a wide, square decolletage, was closed down the back with a single row of tiny satin buttons. Draped folds about the shoulders formed the brief sleeves. A regal sweeping overskirt formed an opulent cathedral train which was accented with seed pearls and iridescent sequins on floral falls of re-embroidered Alencon lace and opened onto a colonnade sheath.

A queen's crown of pearls held her tiered French silk illusion veil which fell to fingertip length. She wore long gloves and carried a formal cascade bouquet of lily of the valley, starlite roses and miniature English ivy garlands centered with a white Cattleya orchid, caught with French maline and ivory streamers tied in love knots.

Bridesmaids

Mrs James Dupnik was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Fred F. Soward Jr., and Miss Eldagene Naylor.

The wore identical sheaths of sunburst yellow silk peau de soie fashioned with a back drape of silk organza. Pearls accented the squared necklines. Their matching pill box crowns were caught with circular illusion veils. They wore white gloves and carried semi-cascade bouquets of Majestic daisies and croton leaves tied with white satin ribbon and French tulle.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Judy Rhodes of Miami Springs, Fla., Miss Anne Park, Miss Clare Coleman and Miss Esther Clarie Taylor.

Francis Hubert Girard was his son's best man. Groomsmen were James R. Dupnik, Jack Conoly of Beeville and Clarence Garrett. Gary Boehnke and Bill Miller ushered.

The bride's mother wore a sheath of a mauve re-embroidered lace, designed with a high neckline and the waist was accented with self belt and bow. Her hat vieled with Fench silk illusion, was of mauve iridescent sequins. She wore matching accessories and a purple Cattleya orchid. The groom's mother wore a dress of Gainesboro blue Swiss peau de soie with sleeves and yoke of appliqued Alencon lace. Her headpiece was of matching fabric and her corsage was a lavender Cattleya orchid.

Reception

A reception followed at Live Oak Country Club. White gladioli, stock and Majestic daisies accented the entrance where the receiving line formed. Compotes, overflowing with white roses and pompom asters, decorated the ballroom mantel. The fireplace was filled with fresh magnolia foliage and philodendron. Two large white net wedding bells, decorated with yellow roses and satin ribbon accented the wall above the mantel. From the ceiling hung giant net wedding bells and swags of white tulle.

An anniversary candle centered the bride's bouquet for the bride's book table. A silver tray filled with rice bags and surrounded at the base with yellow roses was on a table in the foyer.

Garlands

The bride's table, skirted in white tulle over satin, held a porcelain white cherub epergne-candlabra with burning white tapers. Garlands of yellow rose buds and English ivy swags accented the table. The four tiered wedding cake, topped with miniature bells, completed the table setting.

Antique silver candelabra held tall yellow tapers and was decorated with English ivy and daisies to form the centerpiece for the bridegroom's table which was laid with yellow crystalline.

In the house party were Mrs. Jack Conoly of Beeville, Mrs. Troy Shirley of San Antonio, Mrs. Marvin R. Thomas of Corpus Christi, Mrs. T. E. Griffith of Rockport, Mrs. William E. Nicholas of Sinton, Mrs. A. B. Cole of Alice, Mrs. Royce Lindsey of Corpus Christi, Mrs. W. J. Mott of Portland, Mrs. Ann MacDonald of Forest Hills, N. Y., Miss Bertha Girard of Malone, N. Y.

Mrs. Thomas M. Andrews, Mrs. J. T. Stellman, Mrs. Owen A. Rhodes, Mrs. Cecil W. Miller, Mrs. E. F. Falgout, Mrs. R. D. Hatch, Mrs. M. E. Naylor, Mrs. Boyce Elliot, Mrs. Oscar Galjour, Mrs. Harvey L. Rice, Mrs. Edward Redmond, Mrs. F. K. Lytle, Mrs. L. S. Wood, Mrs. Clarence Garrett, and Mrs. R. C. Phillips.

After a honeymoon trip to Mexico City and Acapulco, the couple will live in Baltimore, Md.

For traveling, the bride wore a bone-colored silk suit. Her overblouse was of printed silk and the jacket was waist-length with a wide notched collar. She wore Dior brown accessories and a silk hat with a bouffant crown. Her corsage was the Cattleya orchid from her bouquet.

The bride was graduated from Aransas Pass High School and the University of Miami where she was a member of Kappa Delta Pi, Phi Kappa Phi, Tau Beta Sigma, Delta Theta Mu and Sigma Delta Pi, national honorary societies. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

The bridegroom was graduated from the A. B. Davis High School of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and the University of Miami where his fraternity was Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He will attend the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery at the University of Maryland again this fall. Xi Psi Phi is his dental fraternity.

Other out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Blair of Corpus Christi and Mrs. Louise Earl of San Antonio.
