VOTE WEDNESDAY

QUESTION OF FOREIGN FRANCHISE OR LOCAL DEVELOPMENT

A thorough investigation of conditions prevailing at Amarillo and other Texas towns as a result of gas franchise grants will be made by a committee of Lubbock business men headed by Mayor Pink L. Parrish before the proposal of A. J. McMahon to run a pipeline from the Amarillo field to Lubbock has been definitely acted upon.

At the opening of the meeting yesterday afternoon Mayor Parrish explained that the fact that the city commissioners are evenly divided on the proposition makes it imperative that he take a stand one way or the other—to accept the proposal as made by Mr. McMahon else reject it, and it was in order to be better posted on what the people of Lubbock want that the meeting was called.

A forceful speech favorable to acceptance of the McMahon proposal was made by Senator W. H. Bledsoe.

FORMER LUBBOCK MAN GIVES
$5,000.00 BAIL IN AMARILLO

AMARILLO, June 12.—Elzie Simmons, formerly of Lubbock, has been released here on $5,000 bond following his indictment by a special grand jury on the charge of assault with intent to murder John Pythian. Pythian was shot through the lung last Tuesday as he sat in an automobile in front of Simmons' house, and escaped further injury by running away under a hail of bullets. WILL START TEARING DOWN CITY AUDITORIUM MONDAY; TO MOVE IT TO FAIR GROUNDS

J. H. Murdock was Saturday awarded the contract by the South Plains Fair directors to wreck the city auditorium and move the lumber and building material to the fair grounds where it will be used for building purposes, and will begin wrecking work Monday.

Taking the standpoint that the old building will be much more useful to the fair association than to the chamber of commerce the directors of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce voted to donate the building to the fair board provided they would move it before the middle of July.

The fair directors are making preparations for the best exposition this fall that has ever been staged here and the donation of the auditorium will be used to a good advantage. The fair buildings have been crowded to capacity for the past few years and additions have been needed. The board has not announced what the lumber will be used for other than for building purposes.

STILL BEHIND ON SALE OF AMARILLO MEETING TICKETS

COMMITTEES SELL ONLY FOUR IN SATURDAY
CANVASS

25 NOW LACKING

MUST HAVE THAT MANY OR LUBBOCK GETS NO SPECIAL

After a day's work which netted four sales, and with a deficiency yet of 25 tickets, the ticket selling committee for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention is yet undaunted and has such confidence in Lubbock that they believe that Lubbock will rally to the cause Monday and buy the remaining number to insure the special train.

The committees Saturday were able to sell only four tickets. This can be accounted for to some extent by the fact that Saturday is always a busy day in Lubbock. The committees will take the field again early Monday and expect to sell the necessary number of tickets to assure the train Monday morning.

"Lubbock has gone too far to fall down now," Kuykendall said Saturday. "New dispatches have gone out to every newspaper in West Texas that Lubbock is honoring a special train to Amarillo with 200 boosters to throw a big sombrero in the ring for the 1927 convention, taking issue with Wichita Falls, San Antonio, and El Paso regarding the best place to hold the next convention."

This is one of the best opportunities for Lubbock to get some good advertising that has presented itself in several years. Fifteen dollars will take a Lubbock booster to the convention city and back, and will provide a sleeper for hotel accommodation both ways and during the convention. Lubbock official regalia, which will likely be one of the most unique costumes to appear at the convention is also included in the price of the ticket.

The district clerk's office received yesterday from the executive offices at Austin a proclamation restoring full citizenship to J. L. Jordan, formerly of Slaton.

BALLOT BOX THEFT AND MURDER ARE ALLEGED, CALDWELL

TWO HELD FOR LANGE MURDER, FOUR FOR VOTE THEFT

WAS KLAN ROW

SHERIFF SAYS HE HAS CLEARED UP
MYSTERY

CALDWELL, Texas, June 12.—Preliminary hearing of six men held here after arrest on indictments in which two were charged with murder and four with theft of a ballot box, growing out of Klan elections in 1922, will be held before District Judge J. B. Price Wednesday at 10 a. m.

Buck Tuttle, charged with ballot box theft is the only member of the sextette in jail here, the others having been taken to Bellville by Sheriff Clint B. Lewis after their arrest.

The two charged with the slaying of Otto B. Lange, truck farmer on July 3, 1922, are Kinch Shelburne and Charles Balke; the three besides Tuttle, charged with ballot box theft, are J. M. Shelburne, Sam Gaines and Davis Lauderdale.

Lange was slain after being hauled from his bed at his home on his ten acre truck farm near here, July 3. He was shot as his small daughter and his wife fled with the quartet of masked men to spare him. No reason, excepting high anti-Klan feeling has ever been attributed for his murder.

The theft of the ballot box of which the quartet are accused occurred during the hot Klan election in 1922.

After the polls had closed at Merle, a village near here, four masked and armed men drove up to the booth in an automobile. Pointing shot guns at the election officials they seized the ballot box and fled. The next morning the Merle ballot box was found with the others in the court house here, but it was empty.

The well will be drilled to a depth of 3,500 feet unless oil or gas in paying quantities has been found at a lesser depth, and rig equipment is already being hauled to the location where actual drilling operations are to be started within 30 days, Mr. Bledsoe said.

A new standard rig will be used. The Wicker Land company owns eight thousand acres of land surrounding the location and has taken leases on large holdings in that vicinity.

LOCAL LANDMARK GUTTED BY FLAMES; CONTENTS ALL LOST

FIFTEEN ROOMERS ESCAPE
FROM BIG FRAME

BUILT BY T. S. JACKSON
SIXTEEN YEARS AGO

Flames wiped out one of Lubbock's oldest landmarks last night, the Jackson house, when the thirty room two story and attic frame structure, built sixteen years ago by T. S. Jackson, was completely gutted and its contents destroyed.

The fifteen roomers and the family of A. C. Ellis, who lived in the house, were all accounted for late last night, with the exception of one man, named Thomas, who was in Room 30, but a search of the ruins failed to show any traces of him, so it was assumed that he had escaped.

Most of the roomers lost all their clothing, and Mr. Ellis' private belongings, valued at about $500, were a total loss. They were uninsured. The building and contents, owned by J. J. Chauncey, were insured. Mr. Chauncey said he was unable to estimate the value of the old building or the contents.

Mrs. Ellis discovered the fire, when, in passing through the hall after a drink of water for her fifteen year old daughter, Evelyn, who was ill of tonsillitis, she smelled smoke and opened the door to the women's parlor in the north east corner of the lower floor. A burst of smoke and flames nearly knocked her down, she said, and then she gave the alarm. Mr. Ellis, who was in the front of the house in the lobby at the time the flames were discovered, said that there was plenty of time to save much of the contents before the fire got too much headway, but that everybody got excited. The sick girl was carried out, and Marie, sixteen year old daughter of Mrs. Cunningham, who roomed next to where the fire started, fainted almost as soon as she got out of the house; and was carried away by Officers Robertson and Williams.

The roomers were mostly men. One or two of them saved their clothes, but the majority lost everything, as was the case with Ellis family.

The one story frame annex, used for a dining room, was not greatly damaged, and neighboring brick buildings escaped. Firemen had six lines of hose playing on the flames, and kept a line on the smoking ruins all night. The fire lasted about an hour and half, during which time a great crowd swarmed around. Police stopped all automobile traffic a block from the flames.

The Jackson house originally stood several blocks from its present location. It was moved about ten years ago.

WICHITA FALLS IS AFTER CONVENTION

WILL LEAD 150 TO W. T. C. C. MEET AT AMARILLO NEXT WEEK

WICHITA FALLS, June 12.—With pledges of support being received from many cities and towns in the jurisdiction of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, more than 150 Wichita Falls business men will go to Amarillo next week for the annual meeting of the organization. A special train, carrying more than 125 representative Wichita Falls business men will make the trip, leaving the city Monday night and arriving in Amarillo early Tuesday morning. The train will return, leaving Wichita Falls at midnight June 24, arriving home early Thursday morning. In addition to those going on the special train, a score or more are expected to make the journey by automobile.

Wichita Falls is expected to be the strongest bidder for the 1927 convention, having announced last year at Mineral Wells that it city desired to entertain the organization's members in 1927.

Elaborate plans for the convention are being made. The Wichita Falls men will be garbed in special uniforms, which is expected to make their appearance the most unique ever seen at a convention parade. Plans have been made for the presentation of a unique ball fight, in which all the style and color common in olden times when bull fights were great drawing cards, will be injected. This will be presented at intervals during the days from a mammoth truck. For the parade the Wichita Falls delegates will be dressed as cowboys and this is expected to give color to the line of march.

Many other features are also being arranged, among which will be the appearance of the famous Wichita Falls jazz band.

Wichita Falls is already looking forward to the 1927 convention and promises one of the greatest entertainments which the members of the organization have ever been given. Many interesting side trips will be some of the features. These would carry the visitors through one of the greatest irrigated regions of the nation and to the seventh largest artificial body of water in America, Lake Kemp, from which come the waters that irrigate the great valley. Half a dozen magnificent hotels and a score of smaller ones, promises unusual hotel facilities for a convention of this kind.

Joyce Hawley Told To Jump In Lake

By United Press

CHICAGO, June 12.—Chicago invited Joyce Hawley to jump in Lake Michigan today if she must give an exhibition of her wares in this city. This, the answer to Managers of Earl Carroll's bath tub nymph, who wired Guyon's Paradise, a local ball room, offering to bring Joyce Hawley here in a dancing act.

"The only bathing site open to Miss Hawley in Chicago is the lake," was the reply wired by Manager Guyon to J. F. Horn, who had telegraphed from Scranton, Pa., asking engagement here for Miss Hawley.

UNCLE SAM'S ADVICE ON THE CITY HOME GARDEN

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Production of vegetables at home relieves transportation difficulties and solves the marketing problem, Uncle Sam tells the man who has a back yard or a vacant lot next to his house.

He points out through the Agriculture Department that, in addition to producing food, the man can get exercise and recreation too by working a little while each day on the garden.

Free the soil from debris, then spade it up to a depth of 8 or 10 inches, then rake the ground over. Sometimes it is necessary to use manure on garden land but usually the backyard offers choice soil.

As a rule not more than 10 or 12 different kinds of vegetables should be grown in the city home garden. These should be chosen from the standpoint of securing the greatest food value from such a limited area.

Beans stand at the head of the list in importance for the small garden. Root crops, including beets, carrots, parsnips, radishes, turnips and rutabagas are next. These come tomatoes, sweet peppers, egg plants, okra, or gumbo, onions, cabbage, Swiss chard, lettuce, spinach, celery, peas, potatoes, sweet corn and sweet potatoes.

Uncle Sam warns beginners not to experiment with novelties but confine themselves to a few standard sorts. Potatoes, peas and sweet corn should not be planted unless the garden has plenty of room.

Boy Scout Commissioner At Littlefield

L. S. Harkey, scout commissioner of the South Plains Area Council Boy Scouts of America, will deliver messages on scouting in three churches at Littlefield today and this evening, preparing the way for the scout troops there to be taken over by the churches.

According to Mr. Harkey, a wholesome interest in scouting exists there and it is believed that with the churches taking over the work even greater progress in the work will be made.

Littlefield business men have made a great many provisions for the advancement of scouting in the troops of that city.

Says This June Is Coldest Yet

HEREFORD, June 2.—Dr. John W. Overton, of Hereford, swears that this is the coldest June he has ever seen in this territory, and says that Hereford should be advertising as a summer resort for tourists from other sections. "We have freezing weather in June," is the doctor's testimony. All his water pipes in his office froze up June 10. Here is the reason.

Cloyd and Sons, who operate a meat market on the first floor of the building had just installed an efficient refrigeration system for business. The outfit is called the Baker Company System of Refrigeration, and is one of the most modern in this section. It is run by an electric motor. The new system will add to the efficiency of Cloyd and Sons' plant, but Dr. Overton is still wondering if he will have frozen water pipes all summer.

DISPLAY FLAGS MONDAY, D. A. R.

THEY GIVE RULES FOR FLAG DOG USE OF LOCAL COLORS

Monday is flag day, and the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution have asked that United States flags be displayed. They call attention to the rules of respect, most violated in the display of the flag, to wit: Never drape the flag; that is, do not catch up any of the corners, tie it in knots, hang it over an automobile or a table, or anything of that sort. If used on an automobile or a float it should be on a staff, and the staff firmly attached in an upright position. The flag should never touch the ground nor should it be used in any way which will permit it to be soiled. It should not be used as a part of any costume, nor in connection with any advertising. Other emblems flags should never be displayed above it. If the flag is not floating free from a staff, but is hung from a window or an awning or against a wall, it should hang straight, with the blue starred field uppermost and to the flag's own right, that is, to the observer's left. When displayed in the middle of a street, or between buildings, it should be displayed vertically with the union, or starred field to the north or to the east.

Lubbock D. A. R.'s will meet next Saturday, June 19.

PLAN FIRE-WORKS FOR PLAINS FAIR

DIRECTORS SIGN CONTRACT WITH CHICAGO COMPANY FOR DISPLAY

The directors of the Panhandle South Plains Fair Association have recently signed with the Thearle-Duffield Fireworks Division of World Amusement Service Association of Chicago to furnish one of the most spectacular fireworks displays ever witnessed in West Texas each of the four nights during the fair, September 29, 30, October 1 and 2.

The Thearle-Duffield Fireworks Division of the World Amusement Service Association is the largest manufacturers of fireworks in the world and the directors have instructed the company to go the limit in giving the fair crowds the best fireworks display possible.

The Greek gods on Olympus are going to steal down from their lofty heights to attend the mammoth fireworks exhibition as one of the features of the program.

The fair crowds will be due for a real treat when the field engineers set off a salvo of what are known as Aerial Chant Rockets.

These special picnic compound rockets, three in number fired in rapid succession. They ascend to a great distance and break into a myriad of golden nuggets. Each of these floats toward the earth in a graceful curve of fire, creating a shrill, plaintive note which echoes through the night air until all of the particles have reached the ground. The rain of gold and the plaintive shrieks form one of the oldest effects ever devised in the spectacular art of pyrotechny, giving the impression that the gods of old may actually be heralding their coming by shrill shrieks as they pass before the spectators, heard, yet unseen.

Fireworks are to be one of the many free attractions which fair visitors will enjoy September 29, 30, October 1, and 2.

Coolidge Ordered Out of White House

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Coolidge has been advised definitely that he and Mrs. Coolidge will have to move from the white house while the mansion is under repairs. He looks upon it as a "painful operation."

Present plans call for beginning the work after congress has adjourned next March, which also will come after the end of the winter social season when the mansion is used for entertaining. From six to ten months will be required.

During the past fiscal year a total of 13,778 immigrants entered Canada from the United States.

Street Paving At Hereford Starts

HEREFORD, Tex., June 12.—Actual work on the paving began in Hereford Thursday, in front of the Broadwall property on West Third, by the Jordan construction Co., of Plainview. Every effort will be made to rush the paving program which covers forty blocks in the residence and business section. Gutters and curbing will be the first step in the paving work. Rapid progress is being made on the water works extensions.

CHILE CONDEMNS LASSITER

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 12.—The press of Chile joins in asserting that General William Lassiter, chairman of the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission, is unable, before the holding of the plebiscite, to declare that it is impracticable.

It is pointed out that President Coolidge's arbitral award calling for the plebiscite was made after a year of examination of the case as presented by Chile.

The newspaper La Nacion, in a long editorial, reviews every detail of the case and calls for popular support of the government.

A plan is under way to replace the horse cars of Teheran with electric trolley lines.

CONE BOOSTS FOR T. T. TRAIL

SAYS IT WILL GIVE PLAINS DIRECT CONNECTION WITH SCENIC WEST

"More direct connection with the west by the designation of a federal highway connecting with the Texas Transcontinental trail here and leading to Denver, Colorado, the White Mountains, Carlsbad cavern, and in fact giving Lubbock direct connection with places of interest in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California is possible if we but make the necessary efforts to secure it," S. E. Cone of Lubbock, member of the board of directors of the Texas Continental trail told the Avalanche last night.

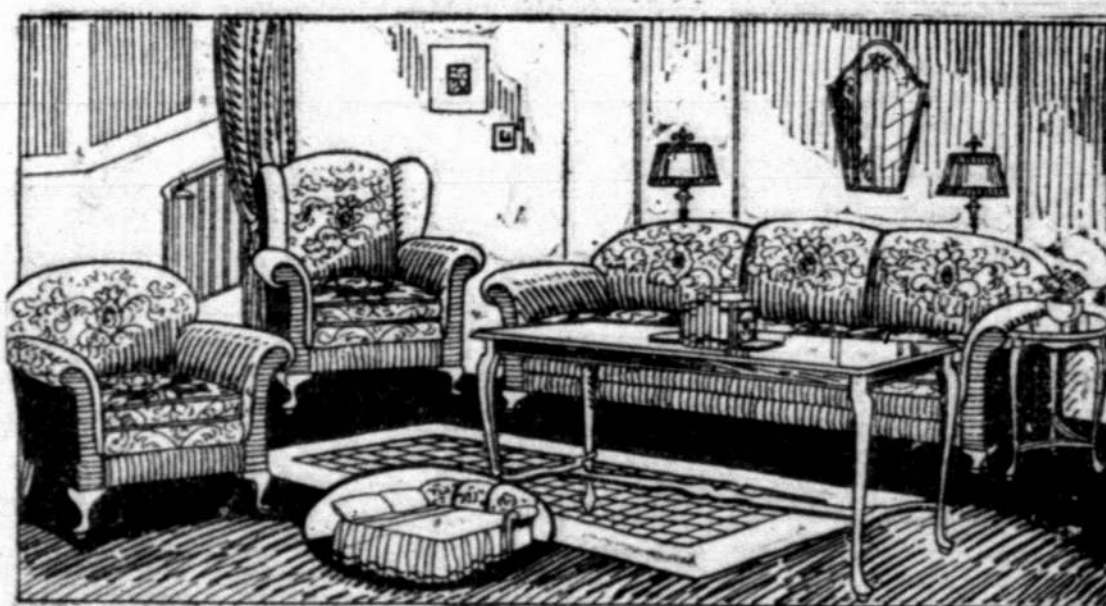

Mr. Cone, who was among those attending the T. T. T. meeting at Aspermont Friday said that Mr. Losh, southwestern representative of the federal highway department is enthusiastic over the designation of a highway that would take care of the traffic pouring into Lubbock from the east over the Texas Continental trail.

RESPECT THE RIGHT—"Ye shall not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the fact of man; for the judgment is God's." Deut. 1:17.

WISE ROYALTY

On King George's 61st birthday a Canadian newspaper, acknowledging the firm hold that sovereign has upon the people of the British Empire, explained it thus: "While other thrones have tottered and fallen in the revolution against autocracy, the British throne remains the symbol of strengthened democracy. For the sympathies of the King are always with the people. His tactful act and timely word directed to the overcoming of discords and difficulties within the Empire which he knows so well, reach to the man on the street, not because he is King, but because his appeal is in behalf of his people. Democratic government and democratic laws have reached farther in Great Britain since George V became sovereign than in any other country. True, he is not the government, and does not make the laws, but his blessing is on them all, so long as they represent the wishes and contribute to the welfare of the great mass of the population. As King he recognizes the sovereignty of his subjects. There can be no quarrel between the people and such a King." Here is a picture of royal wisdom. It isn't the first time in history that a King has cast his lot with the masses of his countrymen rather than with subjects of title and wealth. But such a policy is shrewder today than ever before, because now the people have the power to rule, and are determined to use it. So we have the odd spectacle of a real democracy reigning in the name of a king. Could our ancestors have imagined that in 1776?

MINDS AND HAY

A student entering a present day university says Prof. Charles E. Rugh of the University of California, has knowledge heaped on him like hay, while he sits passively in the classroom. If Lincoln had been educated in this way, he says, "his brain would have become so befuddled as to be useless to him." The colleges, while piling knowledge upon the poor student's helpless head "provide him with no opportunity to integrate the information thus obtained." By "integrate," we presume, the professor means put together, assemble, organize that knowledge for practical use. Well, it does look a good deal like that, when you see the fine young fellows pouring out of the colleges without much notion of what they're about, and apparently without much notion of what life is about, and what relation their accumulated knowledge has to it. They usually manage, however, in some way or other, to get their knowledge sorted sooner or later, the useful separated from the useless. And generally even what seems useless remains as an invisible foundation on which they can build something worth while. Psychologists say that everything which goes into the mind remains there, held by the subconscious mind, even though the conscious mind doesn't realize it. Thus forgotten knowledge may function like the roots of a tree. All of which isn't saying that the colleges shouldn't organize, more than they do, what they pour into a student's mind, and shouldn't make him do more of his own thinking before he goes out into the cold, Missourian world.

BACK SEAT DRIVERS

Claude H. Harman, a San Francisco locomotive engineer, has sued his wife for divorce because she persists in telling him from the back seat just how to drive, and thereby "belittles his ability as a driver." The lower court has refused the decree, but the aggrieved husband is going right ahead, appealing to the state supreme court to give him his matrimonial and automotive freedom. From this, ladies with a penchant for back-seat driving may see the dreadful effects of such a course. Better sit there grinding one's teeth at masculine stupidity than impel a poor driver, in desperation, to head for a divorce court or the nearest cliff.

THE RESTFUL MOVIE

Maybe Thomas A. Edison is right in saying that Americans don't want speaking films because they prefer "restful quiet" in a moving picture theatre. A frequent patron of the movies remarks that his own experience supports this view—"there is really more rebellion among a picture show audience against conversation and irrelevant noises than among those attending the spoken drama." American ears have to endure a good deal from the noises of every-day life, especially in crowded cities. It is a relief to many a sound-weary and nerve-weary man and woman to drop into a place where, along with entertainment that distracts one's thoughts from personal or business affairs, the stress is transferred from ears to eyes. There was a time when this was so hard on the eyes as to jangle the patron's nerves, and so spoil the benefit of silence. But improvements in the projecting machines have remedied that. The ordinary, picture theatre today is really restful. May we still have such theatres, even if the talking films arrive, instead of letting chatter and jazz invade the last sanctuary of silence—outside of the church.

COURTROOM PAY.

Federal jurors and witnesses now draw higher pay, as the result of a recent act of Congress. The jurors get $4 a day instead of $3 and the witnesses $2 instead of $1.50. This is modest enough recompense, especially for the jurors, who have long hours and responsible work. Almost any person can earn more money doing almost any kind of work. It is usually worse with the state and municipal courts. Court work is still on the old basis of a time when a couple of dollars a day was fair pay. Something should be allowed, no doubt, for a sense of public obligation. Jury service, and perhaps witness service, too, should be considered a public duty. Yet the witness or juror, like any other servant of God or man, is worthy of his hire. Most witnesses and jurors lose too much in rendering such service. And if they were paid more nearly according to ordinary standards of industry or business, it might induce the courts to expedite lawsuits more than they do, in order to save expense.

KEEP THE TOURISTS MOVING

A good many tourist camps in the Far West are said to be adopting "love 'em and leave 'em" as their motto for the coming season. "Them" refers to the fine, free, overnight facilities offered to transient campers. They want the visiting tourists to use and enjoy these facilities—water, light, fire wood, shade trees, and so on—and then to move on promptly. Problems have arisen because of so-called tourists who ceased touring when they struck a free camp that met their tastes and needs. Such campers have all too frequently settled down to a makeshift sort of housekeeping, sending their children to local schools doing enough odd jobs to meet current food expenses and otherwise leading lives of comparative idleness. Naturally they have not proved satisfactory guests to the hospitable communities offering the camp sits. "Move on" is to be the new order for tourist campers. Any family that wants to settle down and become responsible citizens may do so—but not in the camp grounds.

THE FARM WOMAN'S FEATS

It has always been recognized that farm women performed prodigies of labor but the full story has never been told. Here is part of it, as revealed by the Western States Extension Conference. The average rural housewife spends 30 days a year carrying water, pumping and toting out again. She washes and dries three acres of 20 tons of it into the house and then toting it back a year. She bakes countless pies, often walking a quarter of a mile per pie. She could save 10 day's time a year just by installing a drain to carry out the waste water, and the other 20 days by having a pump or faucet at her sink. She could save drying those three acres of dishes by using a dish drainer, even if she couldn't afford a dish washer. She could save 1 1/2 miles of walking a day as a Montana woman did—proving it by a pedometer—and also save an hour and a half of time, by grouping her kitchen things more conveniently and taking short cuts.

FARM BOOKKEEPING

Bookkeeping is one of the next things the Department of Agriculture wants to teach farmers. Large agricultural enterprises—big plantations or ranches, large fruit or dairy farms—are usually run on a basis of economic efficiency. But the small farmer, in most parts of the country, does not keep books on himself and so does not know much about his own efficiency or how well his crops repay his labor. A little sound bookkeeping should go far to open the minds of such farmers to a clearer understanding of their whole problem, including its solution. The household budget has rescued many a salaried family from mysterious financial troubles. Bookkeeping and budgeting should help many a farm family in the same way, by setting things down, in their proper relation to each other, disclosing the wastes of labor or money and suggesting the sort of remedies needed.

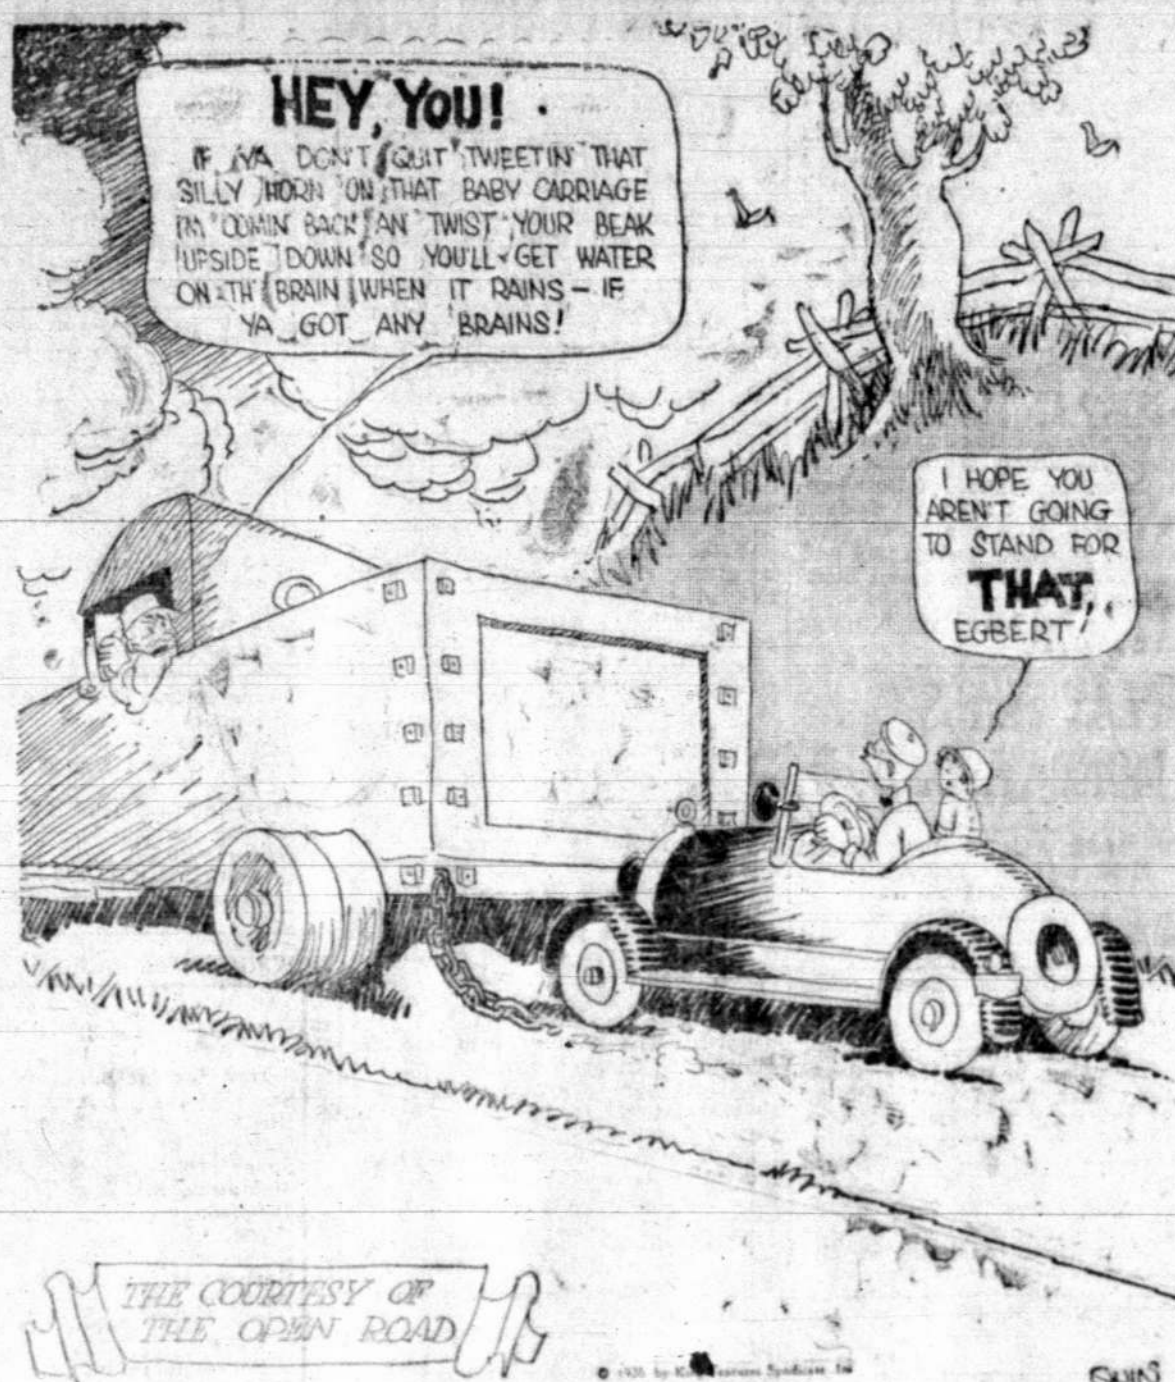

DEBT REDUCTIONS

There is some disagreement about the President's declaration that whatever surplus develops henceforth in the national treasury should be used not to reduce taxes further, but to reduce the national debt. By one method, the taxpayers would hold onto a little more of the money they are now paying the government. By the other, the government would take that bit of money and use it to pay its debts—which are also the taxpayers' debts. The latter method looks sound as a general proposition. The policy suggested is a good one for individuals to follow in their private affairs. Use your surplus to reduce your debts and cut down interest charges.

ARMS PARLEY DELAYED

Delay always seems to feature everything in which international diplomacy has a finger. One can, therefore, sympathize with the members of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference, in their protest against what would prove to be a long delay, namely, the adjournment of the meetings until each government gives an official definition of "armaments." Certainly that is something that can be arrived at without subjecting the vital question of arms limitation to an interminable delay that might preclude an early settlement of the vexing question.

Over Sunday Tourists

So Think We

We think there is great need for a great many improvements out at the Tech, and it will take a lot of money, and we will need all the help we can get, and as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has made a good team in helping us in the past they will no doubt be willing to help us in the future, especially if they see we are inclined to help ourselves.

We think the fair association was very wise when they accepted the gift of the Chamber of Commerce of the auditorium. It will make some real buildings that we have been in need of for some time. And too, it will be good riddance of the building where it now stands.

We think that if Lubbock is going to the Amarillo Convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, we should go strong. There is no use to have a dozen or so representatives go up there and wade around among the masses of people who will be there. Make a real showing, or take down our flag.

We think that if everyone would think right hard on what was the happiest moments in their life, that they would find so many happy hours and moments in their past life that they would never find occasion for grumbling about anything any more.

We think that as soon as the state highway department builds up that road from Slaton to Lubbock, that the city should meet the work at the city limits, and pave the streets into town.

We think that Lubbock possibly has the most indifferent program of building and development just at this time that she has ever had in the history of the city.

We think that the back yard and alley is no place for tin cans and rubbish in a nice town like Lubbock.

We think it is every citizen's duty to help make Lubbock the cleanest and prettiest town on the Plains.

We think that Lubbock should get busy at once and make a thorough test for gas and oil.

We think that the modern home is equipped with everything except a family.

We think that there could be a great improvement in the looks of most every place in the city, by the frequent use of the hoe and the rake and the paint brush.

We think that the automobile market is not nearly so near saturated as the automobile drivers

We think that if fifty bands attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, that there will be no scarcity of music

We think that if a person laughs the people laughs with you and if you frown, they laugh at you. Take your choice.

It Is Reported

That Lubbock needs a street sweeper that will pick up automobile tires, dead dogs and cats, and other similar articles off the streets of Lubbock. We are of the opinion that we have a mighty good sweeper, and it does its work well, but it will not pick up such articles as we suggest, and we believe that it is unreasonable to expect that it should however these dead cats, etc., should be removed every twelve hours at least this warm weather.

That a full day's work in June is almost as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth.

That since the political campaign has opened and candidates are going hither and thither over the country that few people have to walk along the highways. They can all get a free ride.

That since the boys have commenced going without hats that it is hard to tell just when summer comes and goes. There is still one sign that hardly ever fails. When the ladies begin to wear their furs we can rest assured that it is summer time.

That a certain cigar manufacturer is expecting a tobacco prohibition law soon, and he is now trying to popularize the one and one half percent tobacco cigar.

That a little boy insisted on going to the dentist in his daddy's car, and when asked why he said he was sure it would not get there and he would be spared the pain of the operation

That some newspapers boost other towns than their own but the Avalanche is prone to set forth the advantages of its own town rather than one a hundred and fifty miles away.

WHERE THE MONEY GOES

We have in this great country over 24,350,000 families; of this number only 45.6 per cent or 11,000,000 own or are paying for the roof over their heads! This means that 55 per cent of our families are renters.

Statisticians tell us that the average wages earned in this country is about $1,500 per year. The Union Trust Company, of Cleveland, has compiled records to show what becomes of this money. These records indicate that the average family spends $15 per year for furniture, $86.69 for tobacco; $30.80 for perfumes and cosmetics; $32.85 for clubs and theatres; $14.57 for soft drinks; $14.37 for cakes and confections; $94.00 for new automobiles; $82.45 for house furnishings; $100.78 for fuel and light; $231.40 for clothing and about $500 for miscellaneous services of various kinds.

These items absorb over $1,000 of the total average income leaving about $500 to pay for food and house rent, and the balance goes to savings accounts.

From this it will be admitted that in order to pay their bills and meet the budgets, the average family needs organizing just as much as many business men need it.

DIVORCES

Divorces are increasing, both in absolute numbers and in proportion to population. For last year no complete figures are as yet available. According to preliminary returns, however, for 35 states there were 97,925 divorces in these states in 1924 against 95,236 in 1923, and while the number increased during more or less in 14. An extraordinary year in 21 states it decreased exception to the general rule of a relatively high divorce rate is South Carolina, which grants no divorces for any cause whatsoever. By way of contrast, is the state of Nevada. In 1925 the Nevada divorce rate was 33 per thousand against 3.6 for the whole country.

Indiana is entirely out of debt. The only other state in this condition is Nebraska. The economic independence of Indiana has been brought about by the judicious gathering of various state funds and expenses into one vast fund which has been under the control of the state tax commission.

A BIT OF HEAVEN HERE

A little bit of Heaven here, Though brief the day and swift the year;
A kinder world in which to live, Where men the faults of men forgive.

This is the dream I faintly see And wonder will it ever be.
I'd like to see the lanes of earth Aglow with fellowship and mirth;

I do not doubt the God above Nor question His unending love; I trust His purpose and His plan, My only quarrel is with man.

Would we could catch His spirit here, And banish doubt and hate and fear, Making this world a gentler place, With more of beauty and of grace.

HUBBERS TAKE LAMESA TRIP FOR GAME TODAY

"STINGY" WILL TOSS GAME TODAY

The Lubbock Hubbers will journey to the Dawson County Capital this morning to meet the strongest nine the Hubbers have hubbed this year. The Lamesa club have always been hard customers for the Hubbers and have made things a little warm in the baseball circles; the games played with the Lamesa club last season were about an even break.

It has happened that "Stingy" Hudspeth will bet to cut his former mates down at it will be Frank's day on the mound at Lamesa.

Hudspeth was with the Lamesa club all of last season up until the time of the Denver trip and he pointed the Hubbers forces for the tournament.

Bean, the ace moundman of the Waxahachie high school nine state champions in the Interscholastic Baseball, will be on the mound for Lamesa. He defeated Underhill in a game early in May in the Rotan.

Sled Allen requests that if any cars are going to Lamesa this morning that they drive by the Sled Allen Cafe and take several of the ball players down. To the present time as like a car or two for the players and will need them by morning.

Man 'O War's Son Wins Belmont Race

BELOMONT RACE TRACK, NEW YORK, June 12.—Man 'O War, probably the greatest horse the American turf ever bred, has won the historic Belmont stakes again.

Not in person this time, but thru his splendid son, Crassus, who gave a thorough beating to eight of the best 3 year olds the east could muster this afternoon.

When Samuel D. Riddle, Crassus owner, led the glistering colt through the ran to the steward's stand to receive the $500 in plate that goes with the rich purse, it was the third time the honor had gone to the Glen Riddle farm. Six years ago Man 'O War won it himself. His progeny began arriving on the turf last year as 3 year olds and the dynasty was started when American Flag stepped out in front.

Today's running was the sixth renewal of the Belmont. A crowd of 40,000 watched it through a steady rain that made the going bad and the mile and a half was run in the rather slow time of 2:32 1-5.

Suzanne Defeats Browne, 6-1, 6-0

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
PARIS, June 12.—Suzanne Lenglen, who probably would have defeated Helen Wills or any other woman tennis player in the world flashed today across the wet center court of the Racing Club to defeat Mary K. Browne of California in the final match, women's hard court championship.

Bain felt during part of the play. The score was 6-1, 6-0 and it provides a fair measure of Suzanne's superiority over the American captain of the Wightman cup team. Miss Browne is a heady, crafty player. Suzanne is a marvel at speed with a genius for the spectacular and unexpected. Suzanne was better than in any previous best today. Our own Helen Wills probably could not have beaten her.

"Mary played the smartest tennis I ever have seen," Vincent Richards said after the match today. "But she lacked the speed and youth to carry through a base line defense. She tried an effective net attack until forced to fall back to the base line."

Say Good Beet Soil At Hereford

HEREFORD, Tex., June 12.—The soil, water and climate in the famous Hereford shallow-water belt are ideal, and the Hereford country should develop into one of the major sugar beet producing sections of the Union. This is the verdict of Mr. Sinsheimer, representing the Holly Sugar Beet corporation of Holly, California, who inspected this section recently. He was the guest of E. H. Flood, local land dealer and oil man.

Mr. Flood recently distributed sugar beet seed free to a number of the leading irrigation farmers of the Hereford country, and is enthusiastic over the prospects for making Hereford the center of a vast sugar beet field.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 12.—A special supreme court today reversed the Texas court of civil appeals and affirmed the district court in the case of Mrs. Kate G. Bailey vs. Sovereign camp, Woodmen of the World, from Dallas county. Members of the regular court were dissatisfied with the decision in the case because of membership in the W. O. W.

Mrs. Bailey, who sued for payment of a benefit certificate issued to her husband, was given judgment for $1,514 in the district court. The appellate court reversed this decision and rendered judgment for the fraternal order.

MISS RYAN A TENNIS HOPE

By HENRY L. FARRELL.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
PARIS, June 12.—Even with the partnership that might be expected in France and the admiration of an artist that England should have for a veteran performer, the opinion prevails in Europe that Miss Suzanne Lenglen, world's tennis champion is in the gravest of danger when she comes to England late in June to defend her world's championship at Wimbledon.

Americans, disappointed because of Helen Wills' ability to play, following her recent operation for appendicitis, may not know that European tennis fans hold Elizabeth Ryan in high regard.

DYKE CULLUM PLANS APARTMENT

RECEIVES DRAWINGS FROM CONTRACTORS FOR

Dyke Cullum, owner of the Auto Accessory company here and who for several years has been in business in Lubbock, has just received from his contractors, Parks Green of Abilene, the second floor of the building on Avenue K between the street from the Hotel Lubbock, where four beautiful apartments have been arranged. The apartments, despite the fact that they are a part of a single building, each possesses its peculiar architectural design, one being strictly English design, another in Spanish, another in American and the fourth the French design, woodwork in each apartment harmonizing with the design.

Lighting fixtures for the new apartments were prepared by the Owens Electric company of Lubbock, these designs peculiarly fitting the architectural plan of the apartment in which they are installed. The four apartments include sixteen rooms and four baths. This completes Mr. Cullum's building, the basement which is occupied by the Auto Accessory company, which also occupies an office space on the first floor, other rooms on the first floor being occupied by Owens Electric shop, and Mrs. Darby's coffee shop, which is just being completed.

The building has been erected at a cost of $35,000.

GAS FRANCHISE

see, who discussed in detail the several features of the contract as proposed.

Mr. Bledsoe was especially emphatic in condemning holding up definite action on the McMahon proposition because of probable development in the local field. C. E. McGeorge, chairman of the committee from the Kiwanis Club to urge securing natural gas for Lubbock, expressed a favorable attitude toward the McMahon proposal.

So Is Higgins
Robert F. Higgins, well known local attorney, in an eloquent plea for acceptance of the McMahon proposition declared that natural gas would mean more for Lubbock than a new railroad, expressing the opinion that "nothing would come nearer breaking the heart of all Lubbock than for news to be flashed to those watching developments here that a proposal to give natural gas to the city had been rejected."

Slaton Stands Pat
O. L. Slaton, president of the Board of City Development, was then called upon to express his opinion on the proposal, and in a manner characteristic of his decisive way of acting on all problems, expressed his opposition to the proposal of Mr. McMahon, and declared that Lubbock should get natural gas at forty five cents instead of sixty seven and a half cents as proposed.

Mr. Slaton expressed some embarrassment at being called upon due to the fact he said, his opinion on the proposition was already well known.

Dow Talks
James L. Dow, editor of the Lubbock Morning Avalanche, spoke along the same line that was pursued in his editorial in the Saturday morning issue of this paper, declaring that he does not want Lubbock to get natural gas or anything else at a price that would be prohibitive. "I want natural gas for Lubbock as bad as any one does, but I am in favor of knowing that we have a proposition that safeguards the interests of the consumers as well as the pipe line company," Mr. Dow said.

After other talks both favorable and unfavorable to the proposition were made, following which Mayor Parrish declared that he would assume the responsibility of investigating the gas proposition at Amarillo and would cast a deciding vote at a meeting of the city commission Wednesday.

SENATORS TO BURN MIDNIGHT OIL

PLAN NIGHT SESSIONS ON RIVERS AND HARBORS
BILL

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The senate commerce committee today agreed to hold night sessions, if necessary, in order to complete hearings next week on the rivers and harbor bill and bring it to a vote in the senate.

The measure authorizing completion of the many large navigation projects already has passed the house.

Meanwhile-bitter fights have developed in the committee over certain projects. These include the plan to widen and deepen the Illinois river to for man open water way from the great lakes to the Mississippi river. This project involves the diversion of water from the Great lakes and is hotly opposed by Michigan and Ohio senators, who claim the diversion is lowering the lakes to the detriment of shipping.

Other debatable projects include the plan to extend the navigability of the Missouri river from Kansas City to Sioux City, Iowa, and the project authorizing the government to buy the Cape Cod canal now privately owned.

Major General Harry Taylor, chief engineer of the United States army as removed the Illinois project and the Cape Cod project and has testified that the Missouri river plan is "feasible for man engineering" standpoint.

Dr. L. D. Ames, professor of mathematics in the Texas Technological College, left yesterday for Berkeley, California, where he will teach in the summer school at the University of California. Mrs. Ames and daughters, Jane Frances and Katherine, left at the same time to spend the summer at St. Louis, Missouri, going by automobile.

Judge Clyde F. Elkins and family are visiting relatives and friends at Haskell.

Says Elections In Pa. Always Crooked

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Organized fraud and corruption prevail generally in elections in Pennsylvania, three witnesses told the senate primary campaign investigation committee today.

Any man who had sufficient money could carry the city of Pittsburgh in a two man race, Frederick K. Beutel, western state leader in the recent campaign of Gifford Pinchot, for the republican senatorial nomination declared.

The present republican organization in Philadelphia has built up a system through favors, promises and money that makes the third largest city in the United States subject to the political will of the leaders T. Henry Walnut, western Pinchot leader, said.

But these two larger cities of the state have no monopoly on election frauds, C. J. Goodenough, state manager for Pinchot, added later. Other section, too, are subject to these conditions, he said.

SET DATES FOR FLOYD CO. FAIR

SEPTEMBER 24 AND 25 ARE NAMED FOR ANNUAL EVENT

FLOYDADA, June 12.—September 24 and 25 are the dates set for the thirtieth Floyd county fair to be held at Floydada. This decision was reached after considerable discussion at the regular meeting of the Floydada chamber of commerce Thursday evening.

The first attempt to have a county fair since 1919 will be made this year and it is the plan to conduct it in the same order that the state fair is conducted. Practically the same score card will be used and nine communities have already signified their intention of preparing exhibits for the fair. The unusual good prospects for a bumper wheat crop has made Floyd county farmers jubilant over the opportunity of showing their neighboring counties what the "bumper wheat producing county of the state" can do.

The hostesses on this occasion were Mesdames A. E. Whitehead, R. A. Baldwin, Alex DeLon, Briggs Robertson, J. E. Eckert and Miss Jeannette Ramsey.

As the guests entered the alcove to the club house they were served punch by Miss Frances Adams and Mrs. Jere Clayton.

The reception suite was made very attractive with decorations of spring time flowers and potted plants and a profusion of pink roses were used in baskets and cut glass bowls throughout the rooms.

As the guests arrived they were entertained by violin and piano numbers furnished in a most pleasing manner by Royce Pember and Howard Hoffman, brother of the honoree.

A program given entirely the girls who had been friends and associates of Miss Hoffman during her high school and university days was very much enjoyed. "The Moon Behind the Cottonwood" and "You Came at Dawn" were two voice numbers given by Lois Stallings followed by a piano solo "The Butterfly" rendered by Beryl Hardesty. Frances Adams then gave a delightful reading and Helen wisely a violin number. Eunice McDonald delighted her audience with the piano solo "Fauna" by Chaminade.

One of the most entertaining features of the program was an original mock trial presented by several Slaton women in which an entire courtroom scene was reproduced and Mr. Douglas was tried before a Slaton jury for having removed Slaton property to Lubbock without proper recourse to law. The selection of the jury from those impartial upon the case caused much merriment by their witty excuses. The witnesses were all girls with whom Miss Hoffman had been closely associated during some period of her life. Mrs. Maude Wallace acted as judge and was so disguised in man's attire that few guessed her identity. Mrs. A. E. Whitehead very cleverly took the part of the prosecuting attorney and Frances Blundell acted as attorney for the defense. Mrs. M. A. Pember was most accurate as "Aunt Carrie." Mrs. W. R. Spencer told us how young Douglas acted when he first met Frances. Lois Stallings, who represented Frances Hoffman, had certainly studied her type well and even "took off" Frances as one of her favorite numbers in past years. Richard Douglas was wonderfully impersonated by Mrs. Harry Green. Other witnesses were Faye Tucker, Josephine McHugh, Evelyn Stallings and Mrs. Jere Clayton, all of whom had many secrets and clever things to tell on each of the parties in the case. Since the jury was unable to reach a verdict, the case was taken over by the judge who in a most pleasing manner presented a large suit case to Frances and returned a decision in favor. The case was filled with many beautiful lyrics—the gifts of the friends of the honoree.

Then followed a tea cart loaded with Haviland china and many other gifts too numerous to mention.

Following a piano solo by Beryl Hardesty a dainty ice course of pink hearts and individual cakes in pastel shades with dainty rose stick-ups was served to more than one hundred guests including several from Lubbock.

Miss Hoffman was very sweet in her appreciation and much happiness was wished her by the departing guests.

The guest list for the afternoon included Miss Hoffman, Mesdames W. R. Graves, H. G. Eakes, M. A. Pember, Farris Frye, W. F. Price, Harry Green, Gus Robertson, G. M. Harlan, G. W. Short, R. G. Shankle, A. G. Payne, J. A. Klesner, H. Hewes, H. C. Jones, Cole Oliver, Irwin Brewer, J. W. Wood, J. S. Lanham, J. S. Edwards, Ross, L. B. Hagerman, J. C. Stewart, Fred Stogdole, R. L. Smith, C. BIG TIM MURPHY RINGS THE BELL

JUST OUT OF PEN. HE IS MADE HEAD OF CHICAGO TIRE DEALERS

CHICAGO, June 12.—"Big Tim" Murphy has hit the top in the tire business.

The Horatio Alger-like rise of this most colorful of labor leaders reached its peak today when he was elected president of the Chicago Tire Dealer's association.

"Big Tim" seems to have risen to a job that fits it was made for him and within a few months he expects to save enough money to pay that $20,000 fine that the government has been howling for.

Ever since his release from Leavenworth penitentiary last spring after serving term for his part in the million dollar Dearborn street mail robbery, Tim has been trying to figure out a way to pay that fine, which was imposed along with the sentence.

His first stunt was to return to his old "in back of the stock yards" haunts and try to get some money out of the gas house workers union which he formerly ruled as president. But the gas boys were as poor as ever so Tim went to Texas and engaged in the culture of bananas and banana oil.

The bananas didn't grow fast enough and the government continued to howl for his money.

"I'll have to raise it in a hurry," Mr. Murphy said, "and robbery is still against the law. I think I shall go into the tire business." And so he did.

Tim's skill as a san organizer brought him immediate recognition from the tire dealers association. Within a week he was the best contact man in Chicago and applications for membership were rolling in faster than the headquarters stenographers could record them. Tim's intimacy with the production of banana oil simply had the dealers kick up their heels and squealing for Mr. Murphy to come and get their money.

Then suddenly the call went out for a special meeting of the association members. Many of the dealers couldn't attend as the announcement came too hastily for a record crowd. But Mr. Murphy was there and so were a lot of the new members he had inducted into the association. And much to his surprise "Big Tim" was elected president.

"Service, that is the basis of my success," said the new president, "I expect to give the association a business-like administration."

EAT RAW SAUERKRAUT AND LIVE TO BE 70!

By United Press

BERLIN.—"Eat sauerkraut! It will cure you of all sorts of diseases including tuberculosis, and if consumed regularly will enable you to reach the biblical age."

This is not a quotation from the advertisement of a sauerkraut manufacturer, but the opinion of Professor Hartmann of Heidenheim, famous German physician, who laid down the above maxims in a recent issue of the Munich Medical Weekly.

However, to assure efficacy, sauerkraut should be consumed raw. Cooking destroys its healing power. Hartmann, to strengthen his arguments, cites the late professor Metshnikoff, famous Russian physician who claimed that in countries where raw sauerkraut forms an essential part of the daily diet, the greatest number of old people are to be found.

Lady Manners Pays For Her Face

CHICAGO, June 12.—Lady Diana Manners, who appeared as the Madonna in the "Miracle" bill for $1,000.

The settlement was reached out of court Friday between attorneys for her and Dr. H. J. Schireson, who brought suit to collect for the facial operation. When the suit first was filed, Lady Diana repudiated the bill, denied the operation had been performed and accused the surgeon of taking advantage of a chance acquaintance with her mother. "The money really meant nothing to me," Dr. Schireson commented Friday night. "It means so little, in fact, that I would gladly give it to any charity that Lady Diana might name."

"I am glad the settlement has been reached and that she has admitted owing the bill. Her denial of the operation put me in a bad light and there are certain ethics that would have restrained me from causing her the embarrassment of being questioned in court. But had the lady been a man, no quarter would have been given."

Navigation in Columbia has been suspended for more than six months because of the drought.

KENDRICK OF WYOMING SAYS HE SAVED THE VOLSTEAD ACT

By JULIAN SNYDER
WASHINGTON, June 12.—How one vote decided the fate of the Volstead Act in 1917 and brought prohibition is revealed.
It was a senator who cast this decisive vote—the quiet, keen-eyed Kendrick, Dem., of Wyoming.
In voting as he did, Kendrick disobeyed the late President Wilson but he saved the Volstead Act from being shelved in the Agriculture committee.
"I disobeyed President Wilson who did not think it was fair that considering whether to report the dry law to the senate. A vote was taken. The result was a tie. Three senators voted for and three against the measure.

"At the time the vote was taken I was attending a session of the finance committee," Kendrick said. "Senator Sheppard called me and told me the committee vote on the Volstead Act was a tie which would have shelved the bill. considering whether to report the dry law to the senate. A vote was taken. The result was a tie. Three senators voted for and three against the measure.

CONVICTED OF PERJURY

New York.—Earl Carroll has been convicted of perjury on two counts by a jury in the United States District Court over which Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard presided. His conviction came after he had testified that no person had "stepped into, been pushed into, or otherwise entered a bathtub" on the stage of his theatre on the morning of the party.

Salads Valuable Part of Man's Everyday Fare

Especially Rich in All Essential Vitamines.

No daily menu is complete without a salad. Present-day wives know that this type of food brings to the meal a rich vitamin store so necessary to bodily health, and which may not be obtained nearly so well from any other source.

Good salads are always relished. They can be served with most every meal—at luncheon—at dinner or as the piece de resistance of the midday supper. A tasty and nourishing salad served with an assortment of dainty sandwiches or toasted crackers and coffee makes an appropriate and easily prepared luncheon.

Suggestions, like the ones given below, help to vary the daily salad dish.

Frozen Salad.

1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 cup chopped apples
1 cup chopped cherries
1 cup chopped peaches
1 cup chopped oranges
1 cup black walnuts
1 cup raisins

Combine evaporated milk and cream, chill and whip. Chop fruit and nuts and add to whipped cream and mayonnaise. Omit fruit juice from this mixture. Pack in baking powder tins or round molds. Place in a 1 to 3 salt-free mixture; let stand for three hours. Unmold and serve in one-inch slices on a bed of lettuce leaves.

Ginger Ale Salad.

2 tbsp. gelatine
1 cup cold water
1-3 cup boiling water
1 cup ginger ale
1 cup lemon juice
1 cup ginger syrup
1-2 cup Malaga grapes, halved
1-2 cup sliced celery
1-2 cup apple slices
2 tbsp. minced string beans
2 tbsp. minced preserved pineapples
2 sliced pineapples, sliced

Make like any gelatin jelly. The syrup is that in which the ginger is preserved. The grapes should be skinned and seeded, the celery very tender, the apple cut in matchlike strips.

Variations—The fruits added may, of course, be varied. Grapefruit pulp is sometimes used. Blanched almonds (sliced) are a good addition (about 1-3 cup). If preserved ginger is not used, use more ginger ale in place of the ginger syrup. Serve with creamy salad dressing.

Creamy Salad Dressing.
1 1/2 cups boiled (pineapple or or mayonnaise) dressing
1/2 cup oil
1/4 cup evaporated whipping cream
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. fruit juice

Combine evaporated milk and cream, chill and whip. Add sugar and then fold into the salad dressing. Especially nice for fruit salads. Sufficient for ten salads.

PROHIBITION ISSUE LOOMS FOR 1928

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, June 12.—"There is no question in my mind but that both Republicans and Democrats will endeavor to write a wet plank into their national platforms in 1928," says Senator L. D. Tyson, dry Democrat of Tennessee.

His statement made after the Illinois, Pennsylvania and Oregon primaries had brought national attention to prohibition as a political issue, may be taken as the representative view of those in Congress cognizant of political developments.

"The drys have a real fight on their hands," he said.

Many senators and congressmen wish that the prohibition issue could be taken out of national politics. They do not believe that a man should be elected to national office because of a stand either for or against the national prohibition act. They feel that economic issues should predominate. For that reason they believe that referendums should be held in various states so that the will of the people could be expressed once and for all without affecting any candidate. But the stolid drys are opposed to referendums and there is considerable dispute over the constitutionality of Congress authorizing a national referendum on any subject.

The Democratic National Convention of 1924, however, adopted a plank endorsing a national referendum on the League of Nations issue. Defeat of the party in the election which followed prevented a test of the legality of national referendums or working out the problem of federal machinery to hold such a contest.

Democrats who favored the plank contended that the previous election in which James C. Cox of Ohio, standard bearer of the party, was defeated overwhelmingly by Warren G. Harding, Republican, on the League of Nations issue was not a final judgment of the people. They contended that other factors entered the campaign which made the election anything but a referendum on the particular issue.

Republicans during the campaign twitted the Democrats for their referendum plank, saying nothing of the kind ever could be held and asking how the Democrats proposed to go about it.

In the Senate recently during debate over the prohibition question, Senator Ashurst, picturesque Democratic dry from Arizona, arose and told the wets:

"If the wets want a referendum in Arizona let them put up a wet candidate. They'll get all the referendum they want."

The only proposal thus far made for the proposition is the joint resolution introduced by Senator Walter E. Edge, leader of the Senate beer bloc. His resolution would merely express the sentiment of Congress that the various states should set up the machinery for local referendums with co-operation of the postmaster-general.

LEVELLAND BOY BITTEN BY DOG BEING TREATED FOR RABIES HERE

Karnes King, four year old son of O. V. King, of Levelland, suffered painful injury to his right arm when bitten by his dog at the family home on June 3rd.

The dog bit the child twice and later went into convulsions, and when members of the family attempted to kill the animal it hid beneath the house, and later when members of the family became alarmed about the child's condition and sought to kill the dog to have an examination made of its head to determine whether or not it was suffering with rabies, it could not be found.

Fearing that delay in treating the child for rabies might prove fatal he was rushed to the Lubbock Sanitarium where daily treatments are being given and will be continued through a period of fourteen days. It is unusual for such cases to be treated locally, as until the establishment of the institutions like the Lubbock Sanitarium here these cases were usually sent to Austin for treatment or were neglected entirely.

The child's condition is not at all serious at this time.

DONATES FINE FOWLS TO TECH

24 RHODE ISLAND REDS GIVEN TO COLLEGE BY EVANS

O. L. Evans of the Lubbock Hatchery donated 24 choice Rhode Island Reds to the Tech Poultry Farm yesterday. They will be selected from the best breeding birds, of the Lubbock Hatchery flocks by W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department of the college.

This gift shows the interest shown in the Tech plant and the willingness of Mr. Evans to co-operate in every way possible to bring up the grade of chickens raised in this section. This is the first gift of this kind made to the college and the authorities feel very grateful to Mr. Evans for his kindness. The chickens will be delivered to the college plant in the near future.

Traveling Men Make The Best Movie Actors

By LINCOLN QUARBERG

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 12.—Traveling salesmen make the best movie actors, according to a biographical survey of the screen's most popular leading men. A check on Hollywood's biggest male stars reveals that a majority of the "Romeos" of the screen, as well as the most popular "heavies," got their professional starts as knights of the grip.

Feminine hearts on any train would palpitate if they knew that John Gilbert was in the smoking room swapping yarps with the drummers.

Yet that is just what Gilbert was doing only a few years ago—and he received no more than passing notice then from the fair sex. Gilbert used to be a salesman for the Good year Rubber Company, working out of its San Francisco office.

"There really isn't much difference between selling your personality to a prospective customer, and selling yourself on the screen to millions of movie fans," said Warner Baxter today, admitting he was for some time an insurance salesman for the Travelers Insurance Company, out of Philadelphia.

Neil Hamilton, youthful Galahad, who has a tremendous following among film fans, was formerly a prosaic stocks and bonds salesman in Toledo, and later a drummer for a wholesale cigar firm there.

Pierpont Morgan and Jesse L. Livermore lost a powerful rival when Douglas Fairbanks gave up his early ambition to be a "wolf" of Wall Street, where he was selling stocks and bonds for a brokerage house, and turned to the stage.

Norman Kerry was formerly a traveling salesman for a leather goods concern. He was out one day trying to sell a new saddle to Art Acord, noted western star.

"You're not a bad-looking chap," said Acord, "why don't you go into pictures?" Kerry thought it was worth his chance, took a screen test, and today is one of the most popular stars on the screen.

Lawrence Gray, Gloria Swanson's leading man, started out as a bond salesman in San Francisco. On a trip to Los Angeles he became fascinated by the movies and San Francisco lost a citizen to her rival city.

William Haines also sold bonds for a New York firm, and Ralph Forbes, Paramount's latest find, and Ruth Chatterton's handsome young English husband, used to operate a bond office of his own in London.

Ralph Graves sold structural steel in Cleveland, where his father owned a large steel works.

Adolphe Menjou started his career as a salesman of restaurant supplies in Pittsburgh. Robert Frazer was formerly a grocery salesman in Worcester, Mass. William Boyd was an automobile salesman in San Diego. Ernest Gillen, a newly discovered leading man signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was one of the thousands of real estate salesmen in Southern California.

Robert Ames, who recently left the stage for pictures, once sold policies for the Standard Fire Insurance Co.

Dick Sutherland, character heavy, used to be a whiskey salesman, Wallace Beery and his equally famous brother, Noah, both started their careers selling candy and peanuts in a circus.

WILL SHOW STUDENTS GOVERNMENT OFFICES

AUSTIN, June 12.—An opportunity to visit the state offices and the governor's mansion will be given the summer school students of the University of Texas on the first local excursion of the term, according to Miss Ruby Terrill, dean of women, who is in charge of this phase of the summer entertainment program.

CIVI LMARRIAGE

Constantinople.—Under the new civil code, marriages may be performed by a municipal functionary, designated by the Prefect. This law, does not, however, prohibit the Mohammedan ceremony, with whom has prevailed for centuries. The code becomes effective September 1.

Spain has accepted Rockefeller Institute's gift of $420,000 for a school of chemistry at Madrid.

WILL SHOOT FOR TECH AT AUSTIN

LIEUTENANT KING LEAVES FOR STATE RIFLE MATCH THIS WEEK

T. O. King, 2nd lieutenant in the Tech cadet corps left last night for Austin where he will represent the Tech in the state rifle matches which will be held the first four days of this week.

King is a freshman at the Tech and was one of the experts on the rifle team. He has participated in the national meet which is held at Camp Perry, Ohio, for the past two years in the citizen's military training camps. There he won high score in the matches and was a member of the eighth corps area team which won the meet.

Expert rifle men from over the state will contest in the meet. It is thought by me who have seen King shoot here, that he will have an excellent chance for honors.

HONOR ITALIANS

Rome, Italy.—A United States ship to provide free transportation for Italian veterans, who served in the United States army during the world war, to this country, will sail in the course of two months, Ambassador Fletcher has informed Premier Mussolini. He asks that an Italian warship act as a escort of honor.

GERMANY TO ENTER RACE FOR WORLD AIRPLANE SUPREMACY UNDER NEW REGULATIONS

PARIS, June 12.—All allied countries which are interested in the commercial supremacy of the air expect a formidable rival in Germany before many months pass. This is a result of the relaxation by the Allied Governments of the nine rules which were set up in April, 1922, in order to prevent the development of military aviation in Germany. These regulations naturally retarded Germany's progress in the commercial field as well.

Under the new agreement Germany has a fair chance to compete with all other countries and airplane builders here and in England expect much of the German makers. In exchange for giving Germany freedom of the air the Allies have obtained from her the right to fly over Germany, which has hitherto been denied them. This means that the competitive race is on.

The chief points in the new regulations are the abolition of all restrictions on the power of German civil aircraft, and the continued prohibition of the building by Germany of military aircraft. The interpretation of the term military aircraft as given as single-seater machines fitted with engines of more than 600 h.p., machines on which machine-guns, torpedoes, bombs, etc., can be mounted, and wireless-controlled aircraft.

Germany may, however, obtain special authority to build single-seater fighters for entering in international competitions. The number of German army pilots is reduced to thirty-six by the new regulations.
There is no limit to the number of civil pilots Germany may train, although Government money may not be employed to subsidize flying clubs or schools.

The regulation prohibiting military aviation in Germany also demands the suppression of all military air manoeuvres, including formation flying, mock air combats, gunnery exercises and bombing practice.

The nine rules originally laid down by the Allied Government were never effective in stopping German constructors from building military aircraft. The firms of Junkers, Rohrbach, Dornier and others have been building military aircraft for some time, although the machines were actually assembled outside of Germany. This the Allies were powerless to check.

In still another respect the Germans showed their resourcefulness in face of the regulations. They concentrated on practical aircraft with motors of small horse-power, and succeeded in outstripping all other makers in this important feature of flying.

BRITISH TOURISTS
BEATEN BY CHINESE
SOLDIERS NEAR PEKING

By United Press.
PEKING—A party of British motorists arriving here from Tientsin brought a tale of mistreatment by Chinese soldiers which is considered one of the most disgusting incidents of recent years.

Several automobiles were engineering a difficult bit of road only ten miles from Peking. There was considerable traffic. Although travelling slowly, one of the cars brushed a ditch and upset its Chinese occupant. The car stopped and one of whom is in the employ of the Ap-dressed Asiatic Exposition—two British men in the machine conversed with the Chinese, who said the upset was his own fault and that he was not hurt.

The two foreigners were about to go on when a couple of Chinese soldiers dashed up, stripped off their belts, and began to strike at the foreigners. According to their story told here, the foreigners attempted to defend themselves, but a whole group of soldiers arrived, levelled their rifles and declared the foreigners must submit to punishment or they would fire.

There were foreign women in the machine. The odds were hopeless, particularly in view of the fact that the Britishers were unarmed. And so for a period of several minutes they were forced to stand by their ear while two soldiers beat their heads with belt buckles.

Finally the Chinese who had been upset came running up. He begged the soldiers to stop, declaring that he had not been harmed and that the soldiers might get themselves into serious trouble. So the soldiers deserted and the foreigners went on to Peking.

Representations are being made the Chinese military authorities but it is thought that identification of the soldiers will be impossible.

NEW STORE AT WOLFFARTH

THAT COMMUNITY LOOKS TO HAVE GOOD EXHIBIT AT PLAINS FAIR

H. A. Sullivan has recently completed a new residence and opened up a new store in Wolffarth, according to D. F. Euston, Lubbock county farm agent who attended the organization meeting of the Wolffarth Community club Friday night.

The community is displaying a good spirit of co-operation and are looking forward toward much progress. Crop conditions are excellent in the community and a live agricultural committee has been appointed to see that a winning agricultural exhibit is gathered to be displayed at the Panhandle South Plains Fair. This committee has also been delegated to interest as many of the farmers of the community in the Farm Contest of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce as possible.

The community will encourage a program of diversification of crops and raising of stock and poultry. Poultry raising and hog raising has a fairly good start in the community now.

Ed Schroeder, poultry raiser, has a good flock of Rhode Island White fowls. His birds took first honors at the Panhandle South Plains fair and second place at the State fair of Texas at Dallas last fall. William S. Hays, new owner to the section has an excellent flock of Barred Rock hens. Both Hays and Schroeder plan to exhibit at the Panhandle South Plains fair this fall.

M. L. Caviness and Lee Jarvis have good herds of hogs which they plan to enter in the Panhandle South Plains fair.

Wolffarth is beginning on a building and settling era that is going to make a real little city in a short time. With the rich land surrounding the community and with the progressive people of the place joining together to promote the interests of the entire section, there is little left to prevent the place from making a real little city.

Mussolini Is Called "Hypobulic"

By United News
NEW YORK, June 12.—"Mussolini is a 'hypobulic'."

Dr. Edward E. Mayer, a Pittsburgh psychiatrist made this statement Friday at the 83rd meeting of the American psychiatric association here.

"Mussolini is hypobulic because he is playing like a hysteric with low-threshold stimuli to which he responds with all his being rather than to reasoning motivated conduct," Dr. Mayer said. "Hypobulic exists as the predominant attribute of a strong personality, for it is not a weak will at any time. The fanatical prohibition is an example of a hypobulic personality."

Two kinds of wills Dr. Mayer named hypobulic and deistic. The deistic person subjectifies his emotions and is a poet and dreamer. The other objectifies and is dynamic," he said.

VIENNA GIRLS EARN THEIR OWN LIVING

VIENNA, June 12.—Viennese girls are fast learning how to become useful members of society. Not satisfied with their century-old reputation for unrivaled beauty and charm, they are now reaching out for laurels in the business and industrial world.

More than half of the women of this city between the ages of eighteen and forty-five are earning their own livelihood; and some are supporting or helping to support their families.

The census taker discovered that there are now 753,000 women in Vienna over fourteen years of age. Of this number 360,000 are engaged in gainful occupations.

Although the total male and female population of Vienna is ten percent less than before the war, the actual number of women employed in banks has quadrupled. The number in the railway service has tripled; while in the post, telegraph, telephone, and insurance offices the number has doubled.

BELL RINGERS REFUSE TO ATTEND CHURCH

LONDON, June 12.—The bells of Blackawton, in Devonshire, shall not ring because the men who know how to ring them will not promise to keep the Lord's Day holy.

The bells of the parish church were once famous in the county, but they have not been ringing for ten years. Rev. William Charnell, the 72-year-old vicar, has made another drive for proper bell-ringers and has failed to find the right kind of men. He posted a notice inviting application from seven men who understood change ringing, but added "they must be men of good moral character, and who are in the habit of keeping holy the Lord's day. He offered a bonus for those who would guarantee to attend three services out of four."

Five men capable of change ringing, volunteered to ring the bells but refused to promise to attend church very regularly. They offered to teach young men, but no young men could be found to meet the rigid qualifications.

The determination of the vicar to have his way is keeping the bells silent and the church council is considering an appeal to the Bishop of Exeter to solve the problem.

SANTA MONICA, Calif., June 12.—A chain of national parks, extending from coast to coast, has been recommended in resolution adopted by the United States good roads association.

Morristown, Tenn., was chosen as the next meeting place of the association.

ROBERT HOPPER TALKS FOR LUBBOCK

HE WILL REPRESENT HUB OF PLAINS IN "MY TOWN"
CONTEST

Hubert Hopper one of the leading speakers of the Lubbock High school will represent Lubbock in the "My Town" speaking contest at Amarillo during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, June 21, 22 and 23, according to an announcement from Superintendent M. H. Duncan, Saturday.

Hopper has proven himself to be one of the best orators in high school honors having been awarded fourth place in the interscholastic league meet at Austin recently.

He has his address which will be delivered in five minutes at Amarillo already prepared and will compete with other West Texas speakers at the convention. Hopper is going up expecting to make a good showing with the other speakers. Several worthy prizes are being offered to the winning speaker including: a silver loving cup, offered by Thomas Etheridge, Jr., of San Antonio, one hundred dollars in gold, offered by Leon Shields, of Coleman, a scholarship in the Texas Technological college, and probably other prizes to first place, winner, and cash prizes to second and third places.

The thousands that attend the convention from every corner of West Texas will hear Hopper tell why Lubbock is the best town in the world in which to live and to do business.

The contest is restricted to bona fide high school students in West Texas.

BUENOS AIRES SEES RUN ON FUR SHOPS

BUENOS AIRES, June 12.—Furriers in Buenos Aires are experiencing one of the biggest seasonal runs in several years, for the decree of fashion has made certain changes in the style of women's furs, and the women of Buenos Aires follow fashion as closely as any of their sisters of other nations.

"There are half a million women in Buenos Aires who bought fur coats without lighter collars and cuffs last year," a prominent furrier told the United Press. "Now they are making a run on the fur shops, for the fashion demands collars and cuffs, and the Argentine woman takes an intense interest in being stylish."

Contrary to the general opinion in North America, furs in the Argentine are not cheap. The native furs are but quality demands the same price here as in New York. The fur shops of Buenos Aires are as completely stocked as any in the world.

FT. WORTH BOOSTERS WILL STOP HERE

HUB CITY. ON JUNE 24

Fort Worth trade boosters will stop an hour in Lubbock June 24, according to a letter received by the local chamber of commerce from the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce. The boosters will be accompanied by the Fort Worth Police band that will render a few numbers during the visit. The train will arrive here at 8:50 on the morning of June 24 and depart at 9:50.

The boosters will attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Amarillo June 21, 22 and 23 and will visit a number of the principal towns on the route back to Fort Worth via Lubbock.

The Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce has been assured of Lubbock's welcome when they arrive and a big crowd is expected to welcome the Fort Worth business men when they arrive here June 24.

Farm Bloc Ranks Lose Lenroot

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Ranks of the farm bloc supporting the Dawes, McNary-Haugen farm aid bill were reduced today when Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, attacked the measure as unconstitutional in a speech in the senate. Farm leaders heretofore have counted on the Wisconsin senator's aid. Lenroot, by his speech, upholding the administration's opposition to the Haugen bill, placed his own September squarely upon a political fate in the Wisconsin primary election platform, observers believed.

Lenroot admitted the need of farm relief and offered a substitute bill, modification of the Jardine-Tincher-Fess plan, which has been approved by the administration.

SCOTS TOO REFINED DRAMATIST TELLS THEM

By United Press.
EDINBURGH.—The trouble with the Scots, according to St. John Ervine, dramatist, is that they are not coarse enough in speech.

"Get rid of your dreadful pulpit manner of speaking and speak more coarsely," he advised boys at a musical festival here.

"Some of the reciting," he explained, "lacks emotion and perhaps that is a characteristic of the Scots. You have an immense amount of mind, but not enough emotion. I hope you won't grow up terribly intellectual and not emotional. You are very refined. Your delivery is like that of a minister giving a funeral oration over a corpse."

ASKS HIGHER VALUATION

By United Press.
EMPORIA, Kans.—Instead of the usual complaint made by property owners to the county commissioners that the property valuation is placed too high, the board there was confronted with a request by Mrs. Helen Burton, colored, that the assessor placed the valuation too low and asked for an increase.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Two recently discovered drugs may take the sleep out of sleeping sickness, according to an announcement by the American Chemical society. The drugs, ethersanol and propanolol, both containing arsenic, showed great promise in combatting the nearly always disease in experiments conducted by Professor A. S. Lovenhart, at the University of Wisconsin.

CALIFORNIA AFTER FISH CHAMPIONSHIP

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—California—leading fishing region of the world.

This may sound like a press agent's platitude, but it is more than likely to be substantiated by statistics, according to state officials.

Such noted world fisheries as Gloucester, Mass., and Nova Scotia are likely to be eclipsed by California before many years—not because the fish are leaving the east for the Pacific coast, but because of the increased attention paid to the industry here in recent years.

Norway—for many years known as the sardine center of the world—must look to her honors, for 78 per cent of all the fish brought into California ports last year were sardines, and more than 315,294,986 pounds of them were handled here last year.

Most of the sardine fishing is out of San Pedro and Monterey harbors. Dr. H. C. Bryant of the University of California, and member of the state fish and game commission, declares that last year 404,200,066 pounds of fish were brought into California ports, having been caught in water adjoining the state.

In addition to this some 12,645,512 pounds were caught by California fishermen in Mexican waters.

White sea bass, barracuda, yellowtail, tuna and albacore are other species of fish found in abundance in California fishing waters. Salmon fishing has suffered a noticeable decrease, at the rate of 5 per cent a year. Because this state was at one time the greatest salmon producing center of the world, and now ranks in fourth place, the state is making a rigid investigation of the causes for the decrease.

One of the most recent investigations has been of purse seining, to determine if this method is resulting in the depletion of certain species of salmon. But regardless of the loss in salmon, the industry is increasing by leaps and bounds, and a continuance of such growth will spell world leadership within a few years, according to Dr. Bryant.

Uncle Sam's Advice to Housewives

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Complete elimination of clothes moths from the home is difficult—but it can be done, Uncle Sam tells housewives.

Through the U. S. Agriculture Department Uncle Sam has detailed instructions in a pamphlet telling how to eradicate the moth or to reduce their numbers through control measures.

"Trunks are not moth proof but red cedar chests can keep out the clothes eaters," he says. "Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid is probably the best method of eradicating fabric pests from the entire household, but on account of its danger to human life it should be used only by those who have had experience with it."

Uncle Sam warned that cedar chips, unless fresh, will have no effect on moths. Tobacco extracts, lavender flowers, cayenne pepper, all spice, black pepper and many other recommended preparations for moth eradication are worthless, he said.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT APPROVES 10 POSTAL LEASES

BRIDE KILLED

Chicago.—A bride of three months Mrs. Mary Novakoricki, 24, was killed when her throat was cut by a windshield, she was thrown into as a result of an automobile wreck. Her husband was driving and he is said to have crashed into the rear of his brother's automobile, the impact throwing Mrs. Novakoricki thru the windshield.

2152 Enrolled In T. U. For Summer

AUSTIN, Texas, June 12.—At the close of the first day of registration 2,152 students had enrolled for the first term of the University of Texas summer session. At the same time last year 2,146 students had registered. Within the first few hours of registration on the second day, the enrollment had been increased to 2,195. This number will be further augmented, as it is possible to register for courses for credit as late as June 16. In the School of Law, 90 students registered on the first day. Graham B. Stiles of Austin, was the first student of the 2,195 to register.

The train of the wedding dress of Evelyn Laye, an English actress, who married recently, was twelve feet long.

STUDENTS EARN $50,000

By United Press.

EUGENE, Ore.,—Fifty thousand dollars isn't much money when Henry Ford and Andrew Mellon are figuring their income tax, but it is a lot of money for the working students of the University of Oregon to earn in one school year, says Mrs. Charlotte Donnelly, in charge of the Y. M. C. A. employment bureau.

According to her report, 129 students having regular employment earned $13,003 during the fall term and partial employment brought in $3,000 more. During the winter term the same 129 students earned $12,468 while the odd job workers earned $900. The spring term earnings show $10,763 for the regular workers and $1,000 earned by part time workers.

Delayed for fifty years, because each had relatives to support, the wedding of Albert T. Gardner and Miss Leona Gibbs took place recently in Philadelphia.

RADIO

NEW YORK, June 11.—Now that "supercap" of 50,000 watts (50 kilowatts) has been tried out on the public, is 500,000 the next step?

Harry Sadenwater, engineer in charge of the General Electric stations, in a recent address before the Radio Club of America, declared use of the term "supercap" when referring to a mere 50,000 watts as base level. He pointed out that 50 kilowatts of power is often used for lighting up a sign. He believes that the ten-fold increase in power recently instituted by WGY in reality only effected a trebling of the signal strength of the station. In his talk, he stated that the 50 kilowatt transmitter of WGY is located five miles from Schenectady proper and that many listeners who were able to get the signals of the 5,000 watt transmitter on a crystal receiver, using small indoor antennae, were unable to get the more distant transmission of ten times greater power.

"We do not know at this time if such a step is economically practical. The 5 kilowatt station may be operated successfully using three UV-207 tubes, but when we go to the 50 kilowatt transmitter, 22 UV-207 tubes are needed. The rate at which the maintenance cost increases is high. We are now working on the problem of replacing the eight radio frequency power amplifier tubes that are operated in parallel in the WGY 50 kilowatt transmitter with a larger type of tube. Possibly with this larger tube, it will be practical, from a maintenance expense standpoint, to increase the power to 500 kilowatts."

WGY, starting out in life as a 500 watt station, jumped to 5,000 and then, for experimental purposes to 50,000 watts. Practically all the important Class "B" stations are now using much more power than 500 watts, formerly the standard.

way the coat, and sent for his old one. He did plenty of explaining to his daughter that night.

One of Cannon's friends asked him how he came to buy an automobile when he had always opposed their use.

"The wimmin folks insisted on having one and they picked this one out," Cannon is said to have replied. "But I can't exactly say I bought it. You see my son-in-law wanted to match to see who should pay the bill."

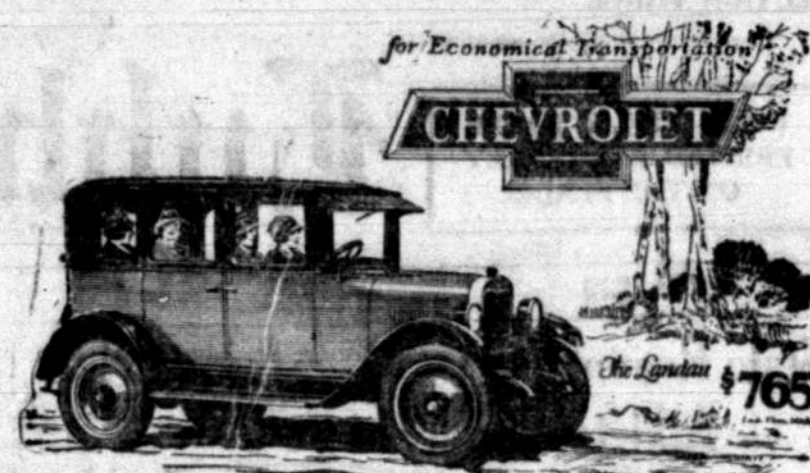

"I was agreeable and reached for a chip. I spat on one side of it and tossed it up. John said 'wet' and it came 'dry' so he paid for the car."

A host at a dinner party about twenty years ago insisted on talking about how much he had paid for everything in his house. Finally he uncorked an especially fine brand of wine and holding it in his hand described how he had purchased it.

Uncle Joe grew impatient and interrupting said:

"We don't give a continental darn what you paid for that wine. This is not the committee on appropriations but a bunch of thirsty impatiants, and if you don't get that butter to pass it pretty quick, I for one will help myself to a whole bottle."

The wine was soon passed.

Smithsonian-Chrysler East African Zoological Expedition Trapping Numerous Varieties of Antelopes and Gazelles

The Sable Antelope.

The East African Bongo, a specimen collected by Sir Northrup MacMillan.

BECAUSE there are more kinds of antelopes and gazelles in Tanganyika Territory in East Africa than in all the rest of the world is one of the reasons why the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition from the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, is today in that Territory.

Antelope is the name given to numerous kinds of deer-like mammals—animals which have horns—intermediate between the deer and the goat, with cylindrical ridged horns. Gazelle is the same given to the smaller antelopes.

Antelope in Tanganyika Territory, which is under British mandate, are protected, but permission has been obtained from the British authorities to trap a number of antelopes to be transported to the National Zoological Park in Washington, which is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution.

The Dik-Dik, one of the smallest antelopes.

The Nile Lechwe, obtained by the Smithsonian East African Expedition under the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

there are some 16 or 17 kinds in Tanganyika country ranging in size from the great and stately eland, the bulk of which have been known to measure more than six feet at the shoulder, down through all gradations of size and color to the diminutive dik-dik, barely topping 15 inches in height.

A study of the horns of antelopes and gazelles is a study of the variety of nature. The oryx, for example, has scimitar shaped horns; the kudu, spirally twisted horns with out sharp barbs; the topi, sharply angu-lated lyre horns; the sable antelope, having horns that sweep backward in a semi-circular curve; while the reedbuck is distinguished by the pronounced forward curve of its horns.

The object of the Smithsonian-Chrysler Expedition is to bring back alive, for exhibition in the National Zoo in Washington, approximately 100 species of wild animals, some of which have never before been seen in America; and others at present rare in this country and not now found in the National Zoo.

The expedition is under the direction of Dr. William M. Mann, director of the National Zoological Park. Members of the party sailed from New York to Southampton and from there to Dar-es-Salaam, seat of government of Tanganyika Territory. From Dar-es-Salaam the party proceeded to Tabora which is about halfway between the coast and Lake Tanganyika, one of the largest bodies of fresh water in the world. At Tabora a base camp was established.

The trip from Dar-es-Salaam was made over the Central African Railway which is probably the world's crookedest railroad. The road winds over a rolling country in a descent of about 4,000 feet to the sea. Its many turns can be explained by the way the Germans let contracts for its construction. The contractors were allowed so much per kilometer, with no total distance named, between two points. The result was that many contractors put as many miles as possible into each section.

The Smithsonian-Chrysler expedition is using a safari of 150 men to capture animals. No killing will be done except to supply fresh meat for food.

The expedition was made possible by Walter P. Chrysler, motor car manufacturer, who has interested himself in the National Zoological Park, which attracts more men, women and children in Washington than anything else of public interest.

weeks ago, some of our young people who are attending the Tech have just gone through the ordeal of taking final examinations in hot weather. However, they report good grades in everything. Two of our young people, Irene and Willie Perry, intend to attend the Tech this summer. They have been attending the Tech since Christmas and their record is far above the average.

R. A. Burgess, superintendent of public school at Childress was home on a short visit. He reports that his vacation this summer will be getting a new high school building in readiness for next year's school.

Royce Trotter, who has been attending the University of Texas the last year has accepted a position with a book company and will make his headquarters for the summer in Kansas. Those who know his ability are sure he will make a big success.

Mr. Erwin Daniel was in Lubbock Wednesday, but did not tarry long because it was too fine weather to be out of the field long.

Mr. Currie Dalton was a visitor in Canyon Wednesday. He has been attending the Tech and is leaving immediately for his home in Epply, where he will help his father in the big wheat harvest that will begin in a week or two.

Miss Opaline Mosely of Lubbock, and Miss Mae Coleman, also of Lubbock, were visitors during the last week at the home of Miss Frances Pugh.

Attendance at Sunday school has dropped considerably. However, we are not the kind of people to let it drop.

Sunday night singing was well attended. Miss Gildwell Mullins, of Lubbock, who is organizing a class in music, played for us. We will be glad to have her with us any time.

Get busy and do something, and then we won't have to say that the only news we have heard is that Mr. Lundell, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Perry have bought new two-row go-devils which, shown as that, we have three more progressive farmers.

RUSSIA LOOKS AHEAD TO OIL CONTROL OF WORLD

MOSCOW, June 12.—Soviet authorities are following with the deepest interest the pourparlers now under way in Paris between Michael Lomov, as head of the Russian oil syndicate, and representatives of the Standard Oil.

These negotiations, it is felt here, are bound to prove an important factor in reestablishing normal relations between Russia and the United States while their effect upon Russian oil development and, indeed, the oil situation of the entire world, should be profound.

The importance of Russian oil deposits to Soviet foreign relations is accepted here as fundamental. It is pointed out that oil has already smoothed out the Soviet relations with France and Italy, both of whom use Baku oil in their navies.

Russia believes that the development of the Baku and Grozny oil fields will mean a total annual production of 120,000,000 barrels by 1930. Of this amount Russia hopes to export to Europe at least half, or 60,000,000 barrels. Since this would equal 50 percent of Europe's consumption, the Soviet looks forward to a fairly dominant position in the oil markets of Europe, if not of the world.

I. S. Friedman, acting head of the Oil Syndicate in the absence of Lomov, told the United Press that the Soviet economic authorities would welcome the cooperation of the Standard Oil Company in developing the unexplored and partially explored Russian oil resources. He mentioned particularly the oil fields around Emba, on the eastern shores of the Caspian Sea, which contain four hundred square miles of valuable oil deposits.

While the Soviet intends to keep control of the main developed fields at Grozny and Baku—the oil form which it is now selling to England, France, Germany, Italy, and Turkey—there are other great fields in the Caucasus, the Crimea, and in Russian Central Asia, which it is willing to share with others, whenever economic and political advantages may be thus gained.

False Cotton Reports Would Be Penalized

WASHINGTON, June 13.—Amendment of the act of May 3, 1924, which authorized the Department of Agriculture to issue semi-monthly cotton crop reports and provided for their publication simultaneously with the Department of Commerce running reports, is proposed in a bill (House bill 11432) of Representative Vinson, of Millersville, Ga. (Dem.)

The House Rules Committee agreed, June 7, to report a special rule for consideration in the House. The amendment would add new sections to the present law as to details of the cotton reports.

Would Give Accuracy
The new sections in the Vinson Cotton Reporting bill provide that hereafter the Secretary of Agriculture each year shall include in the first report issued by him in July an estimate of the acreage of cotton in cultivation. To get this, the secretary, besides existing methods, would annually enumerate actual number of acres in cotton in important cotton producing counties in the area he designates, with number of acres in farms and plantations in such areas, "and such other information pertaining to agriculture production as the Secretary of Agriculture may prescribe." This enumeration would be completed not later than June 25 each year. The regularly employed enumerators would be paid a reasonable compensation of a farm plantation or acreage basis, with restrictions of existing law which prohibits improper use or publication of such information.

The bill would penalize anyone over 21 years old refusing or wilfully neglecting to answer questions concerning acres of cotton in the areas designated which he is cultivating directly or indirectly or number of acres in the farm or plantation on which the cotton is growing or who gives false answers by trial for misdemeanor with $100 maximum fine.

Abandonment Covered
The first cotton report issued by the Secretary of Agriculture in September of any year would include an estimate of cotton acreage abandonment to September 1 of the cotton in cultivation on July 1. The first cotton report issued by the Secretary of Agriculture in December of any year must include an estimate of cotton acreage abandonment to December 1 of the acreage in cotton in cultivation July 1. The other provisions relate to a cotton crop reporting committee or board first passing on estimates or reports before approval by the secretary, authority to the secretary to issue regulations and rules to carry out this proposed legislation and authorizing $100,000 appropriation, or additional sums, for this purpose, during the fiscal years 1926-27.

CANYON PARAGRAPHS

It has been so long since we have been represented in the county letter column that we are almost ashamed to come back and try to explain why we haven't found enough news to print. At this time of the year, there is just one news item, and it applies to everyone, that is, we are all hard at work killing the weeds and starting the ground in the best crop that we can remember having at this time of the year. Everyone got a good stand of cotton and since it has not rained in over a week, we are going to get it in shape where we can handle the weeds without any difficulty. Cotton is not the only thing that is coming along fine. Mr. Gammel and a number of others have some real fine looking corn and the grass on the ranches along the north border of our community is the best it has been for years.

Good grass seems to have brought us an unusual amount of jack rabbits. Gene Wofford and all of his helpers have not had much luck in thinning them out. If something is not done to kill them out, Hess Griffin, Ted Barnett and a few others are going to lose several acres of crop.

Speaking of good conditions reminds us that East Texas is still having a hard time trying to get some cotton to grow, so after all, we may be lucky enough to get a good price for cotton.

Jack Ammons and family are visiting in Van Zandt and Henderson counties. When they return this week they can tell us something of crop conditions over Texas.

We thought that when school closed that the social activities would slow down, but those that attended the parties at J. A. Burgess' and James Gammel's showed that we still have some life yet.

We had quite a little bit of excitement when the young flood caught us in Lubbock and we did not know whether we could swim the creek or not. For your information, no matter how high the creek gets, if you go out the Plainview road and go up the Crosbyton railroad road, the water never gets too high, but you may run into a little mud hole or two.

Although school closed several

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED with Irene Rich is a picture of this week.

SYNOPSIS

John Manning, candidate for re-election as District Attorney, has declared his intention to prosecute his own son, Bob, for manslaughter, the boy having been in a car which crashed into another, killing a woman. The wife and mother, Eileen, is incensed at her husband. She loves and admires him, but her affection for the boy is even stronger. Jerome Wallace, a former suitor, is a candidate against Manning and he tells Eileen if he is elected he can help Bob.

Wallace had promised to procure Bob's freedom if he were elected, and John would continue to be as adamant if he won, but crushed, his spirit broken, if he lost. It was only with an effort that Eileen restrained herself from fairly groaning aloud as the problem lay plain before her. Was ever wife and mother torn from a happy and sheltered life to face a more grievous dilemma?

Then suddenly her face filled with relief. There was still a way from her point of view. An easy way could John's stubbornness be overcome and he brought to a reasonable view of the duties and true responsibilities of parenthood. She had once been repulsed, but why repulse? Had not persistence turned defeat into victory for many another woman when hope seemed dead?

She shifted her position in the car. It was the slightest sort of movement, but with the change the reverse she had exhibited towards her husband that morning, seemed to fade and a subtle warmth to creep into her manner towards him.

It was not lost upon John. Hardly had she moved before he smiled at her. It was a propitiatory smile, bringing an eagerness to his tired, haggard face which was almost pathetic.

"You must be dreadfully tired, dear," he said gently. "You never sleep a wink last night."

"No, nor did you either, John," she agreed sympathetically.

He reached down and procured a cushion.

"Let me put this behind your back, Eileen. It will make you more comfortable."

She allowed him to adjust it and sank back upon it with a pleased sigh.

"That is better, thank you, John." Then, after a moment's hesitation, "I could almost say I am perfectly comfortable were it not for Bob."

His face brightened as they talked, but now it clouded.

"I know, dear—it is hard—awfully hard for you to bear."

"But think of Bob, John!" she cried, with a feeling which she was at pains to promptly suppress.

"How can I be happy with him in such a place, amongst such surroundings?"

There was tenderness and anxiety in his face as he regarded her with never a word.

"He's so pale, John. You must have noticed that," she went on. "It's no wonder shut up in that horrible place."

"It is a hard experience for the boy," he agreed, with a sigh.

"Hard? It's positively fearful, John," she shivered. "What can he do with himself but sit there and think and think? To remain there day after day amidst such depressing surroundings is bound to have a bad effect upon him. It cannot help but leave its mark upon him in some way, and John, might it not—is there not real danger that it will affect his mind?"

"No," he said, with the assurance born of exact knowledge. "Thousands of men pass years—for that matter, many are confined for life—without the slightest deterioration of their mental faculties."

"But Bob is different," she persisted, promptly shifting her ground. "He has been carefully reared; he is used to all the luxuries of life. Think of the hardship it must be to him to adjust himself to the conditions in such a place!"

Although she eyed him questioningly, his only answer was a grave nod.

"I am sure the food served is detestable."

"It is plain fare, but thoroughly wholesome, Eileen, you can rest assured of that."

"But are you sure that it agrees with him, John? Remember, dear, I've always had to be extremely watchful of his diet."

He stared ahead with anxious and unseeing eyes as if lost in thought.

"Perhaps he is thinner," he mused, as if talking to himself, and then to her. "Did you think he was thinner; did he seem thinner to you, Eileen?"

Impulsively she reached forth to touch his hand, her eyes alight with hope.

"John, you do care—you do care deeply, don't you?"

"How can you doubt it, Eileen?" he groaned, giving way to his feelings before her kindness. "God knows it sometimes feels to me as if it must break my heart."

"Not your heart, dear, not your heart, if you play fair with Bob—with me."

He gazed at her, anguish plain in his face, as if he wished to be certain of her meaning.

"Play fair with Bob, with you, Eileen?"

"I mean exactly that," she said, her soul in her eyes. "When are you going to use your ability, your professional skill—yes, your office—every bit of influence you can bring to bear, anything, to get your son out of that awful jail?"

He gazed down at her, a great tenderness plain amidst his feeling.

"Poor little sweetheart, that great big mother's heart of yours makes you forget. You would be the last to ask me to make use of my official influence to—"

"Don't mistake me, John. Why mine matters, I'd have you use anything and honor you for doing anything to help Bob. How much longer are you going to keep this sort of thing up?"

He took a deep breath and when he spoke it was quietly, but with intense resolution.

"Just so long as I am District Attorney, just so long as I am in office, Eileen, I must do my duty as I see it." Then, as if to temper his attitude, he stretched forth his hand to touch hers. "Can't you understand, darling? Surely you must realize my position?" he pleaded.

But without a word in response she drew back in her corner of the car and, withdrawing her hand, allowed his to fall unheeded upon the cushion. Again she had tried to bring her husband to her way of thinking without success. Never a thought for herself had she had, only for Bob, their son. Yet John, her husband, had refused her. With bitterness there came a remembrance of Wallace's words:

"Who could help you more than your husband?" Apparently, yes—body. At least he, a man to whom she had hardly given a thought in twenty years, was afflicted by no such scruples as those which bound her husband.

If Eileen had been reserved in her attitude towards her husband before, she was cold now. At the door of her home she allowed John to drive away with never a word, straight for her own room. She made, refusing lunch, nor did she appear to greet her husband at dinner. A prey to disappointments, yes; but more and more given to thought to Wallace's pledge of assistance. In the face of her husband's unending purpose, in despair of being able to help Bob in any other way, Wallace's offer seemed her final hope.

Texas State Board of Health Weekly News Letter

Camp Sanitation

Dr. H. O. Sappington, state health officer, has asked the assistance of county and city health officers in the inspection of local Boy Scout camps as a means of safeguarding the health of the thousands of boys who will occupy these camps during the summer months. These camps are becoming more popular each year, inasmuch as science has conclusively proven that sunlight is one of the best tonics and curative agents known, and when coupled with fresh air and wholesome exercise, gives a long way in promoting physical fitness.

"In Pennsylvania," Dr. Sappington stated, "the state maintains sun camps for children suffering with rickets, tuberculosis, and other diseases, and these children play in the sun for hours at a time with no clothing other than a band, and splendid health improvements have been shown wherever these camps have been conducted. The value of sunlight as a health factor is being universally recognized, and for that reason vacations are especially beneficial when spent in the open."

Approved Tourist Camps

Tourist camp sanitation as a means of protecting the health of those on outings and vacations, is also receiving the attention of the state board of health. The following camps have complied with the sanitary regulations prescribed by the board, and others will be added to the list as soon as satisfactory reports are received from local health officers: Abilene, Green State Camp; Austin, Barton Springs and Deep Ed. Park; Belton, Yette Tabler and City Park; Bonham, Oak Glen Park; Brenham, Fireman's Park; Bryan, Dellwood Park; Childress, Lake Frost Park; Denison, Mamon Park; Edinburg, Tourist Park; El Paso, Camp Grande; Fort Worth, Trinity Park; Galveston, Hawkin's Tourist Camp; New Braunfels, Camp Warnecke and Nowotny Camp; Georgetown, Goodlett Park; Greenville, City Park; La Grange, City Park; Lampasas, Anderson Park; Leonard, State Park; Longview, Lake Lamond Park; Lufkin, Jones Lake; Magnolia, Park; Tent City, Marble Falls, Johnson Park; Mineral Wells, City Tourist; Palacios, B. These 3 great engineering factors —throw an entirely new light on present-day-performance standards

Here is a remarkable new-type of car, different in performance, comfort and ease of driving from anything you have ever known before.

It is a complete new departure in automobile engineering.

The whole car is designed as an integral, harmonious unit. All parts are co-related with each other. It is unit-engineered to meet modern performance standards.

You can drive an Overland Six hour after hour at high speed without wear on the engine. It was designed for an average road speed of 40 to 55 miles an hour.

Its low gravity center gives you a feeling of security never before found in any car of this type. Without side-sway or slipping or wandering . . . the car fairly hugs the road.

This big, sturdy Six will actually out-pull, out-run and out-perform anything else of its size, or weight, or price-class.

It is a car of exceptional comfort. The big, broad door openings are 32 1/2 inches wide. You can get in or out with the utmost ease.

The beautiful lines of the Overland Six are universally commented upon by its owners.

Nothing has been spared to make this car a positive comfort-revelation. In fairness to yourself, see the Overland Six before buying any car today.

MINE HERO

Seranton, Pa.—The heroism and quick thinking of Foreman Thomas Hielop, smiling red-faced mining man of 55 years, saved the lives of 69 miners trapped underneath a fire that broke out 300 feet deep in the Mount Lookout mine of the Temple Coal company. He went into the mine, after discovering the fire, short-circuited the ventilating system so that the air pumped into the mine did not scatter the smoke, and finally succeeded in bringing the men out alive. His son helped him turn the trick.

PATENTS GRANTED TO TEXAS FOLKS

COMPILED BY MUNN & CO., PATENT ATTORNEYS

Of 877 patents issued in the last week, Texas inventors obtained 14.

That these inventions are worth while is attested by the number of patents that already have been assigned for manufacture and sale. In other cases the inventors are planning to manufacture them themselves or still are negotiating for assignments or royalties.

The following information is compiled by Munn & Co., of New York, Washington, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

James N. Watts, of Clyde, Cultivator Attachment. This relates to cultivator attachments, and pertains particularly to a combined weeding and hoeing device adapted to be fixed to and across two or more shanks of a cultivator machine. Mr. Watts assigns one-half of his patent to Julian F. Bailey.

William H. Whisler, of Houston. Shock Absorber. This relates particularly to shock absorbers of the type in which a pivoted lever is operatively associated with oppositely acting spring elements to afford a cushioning action for both the shock and rebound.

Hugh Foley, of Sour Lake. Apparatus for Rotating Pipe. This provides gripping mechanism capable of being positively moved into position for gripping and arranged to take hold of the object and rotate it quickly and without slipping.

Emery R. Nabors, of San Antonio. Advertising Device. This provides an advertising device which may be self propelled and which will also incorporate a toy machine gun, for example as well as an electrically flashing sign. Mr. Nabors assigns one-half of his patent to Thomas E. Breed.

Joseph Becker, of Waring. Pump Mechanism. The main object of this invention is to provide a mechanism for reciprocating the piston of a pump so that water can be drawn thru a pump from a subterranean level.

Robert E. Chatham, of Dallas. Signal Device for Railways. This relates to improvements in railway signals and in such connection it relates more particularly to that part of the signal apparatus which provides the connection between the track and the wired connections leading to the semaphore, or the like.

Benjamin J. Greer, of Athens. Wrench. A further object of this invention resides in the provision of a wrench which is caused to grip the work with a pressure varying with the amount of force applied to the lever of the wrench. Mr. Greer assigns one-half of his patent to J. R. Wood.

William Hubert Fitch, of Fort Worth. Pencil. This relates to pencils and has for an object to provide a pencil of the type wherein a lead is maintained in position for writing purposes during such writing operation and withdrawn when the writing has been completed for protection.

Ralph E. Wilson, of Dallas. Cotton Feeder. This invention aims to provide a simple but effective means whereby rotation may be imparted to the feeding shaft of a cotton feeder.

John William Carpenter, of El Paso. Milk Bottle Holder. This device has been designed with a view of compelling the customer to place the empty bottle in the container in exchange for the full bottle to avoid the loss of both the empty or the full bottle.

Charles Edwin Welch, of Waco. Holder. This invention relates to improvements in roll holders especially adapted to hold rolled toilet paper.

Walter G. Vreeland, of Houston. Traveling Block. This invention relates to a traveling block particularly designed for use in connection with well drilling apparatus. Mr. Vreeland assigns his patent to Lucey Manufacturing Corporation.

World's Fastest Cable Will Soon Be Laid

Early in June work will be started on the laying of the world's fastest cable. It will lie on the floor of the Atlantic and will afford direct communication between New York and London. It will have a capacity of 2500 letters per minute, will be eight times as fast as any cable now connecting these two points, and will be able to show its heels even to the new permalloy-loaded cable uniting New York and southern Europe by way of the Azores.

The new cable, which will be the twentieth across the Atlantic and the ninth to be operated by the Western Union Telegraph Company, will be ready for service in September. It will span the Atlantic from Bay Roberts, Newfoundland, to Penzance, England. This section of it will be laid first. Upon its completion, the section from New York to Bay Roberts will be laid. The actual work of the laying of the cable will be done by the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company of Greenwich, England; which manufactured it.

The laying of the new cable is the result of a demand for increased facilities for trans-Atlantic communication much greater than before the World War. As there had long been in service automatic devices for the sending and receiving of cablegrams, the attention of cable engineers was turned towards the possibility of improving the cable itself. This resulted in the discovery of the magic metal permalloy and the laying of the improved New York-Azores cable and the laying now of the new and still further improved cable between New York and London.

Like the cable to the Azores, the new New York-London cable will be loaded with permalloy. This is an alloy of iron and nickel which under certain conditions has a magnetic permeability many times that of any other known substance. Engineers experimented for some time with varying percentages of these two elements under different conditions of temperature and strain with the result that the proportion of approximately 80 per cent nickel and 20 per cent iron, annealed and heat-treated in a particular way, was found to be commercially producible at a cost which was not prohibitive.

Around the copper conductor of the new cable, which is 3800 nautical miles long, is wound a single continuous strip of permalloy one eighth of an inch wide and six thousandths of an inch thick. The permalloy is bedded in a special compound which is first applied to the copper conductor in a thin film and is then coated on its outer side with the same compound.

The result of this loading of permalloy is the capacity of upwards of 2500 letters per minute which the new cable will possess. While it is not strictly accurate, electrically speaking, to state that the loading of the cable increases the speed with which the impulses pass through from one end to the other, it makes it possible, however, the sending of such sharply defined signals that the intervals at which they follow each other are considerably reduced without overlapping.

In the manufacture of the new cable care has been exercised to follow all of the standard specifications for cable manufacture with the single exception of the addition of the permalloy loading. The size of the copper conductor has been slightly reduced from standard practice so that the diameter of it and its permalloy wrapping will be equal to that ordinarily used for copper alone.

The total diameter of the conductor and its permalloy wrapping is just a fraction short of a fifth of an inch, the remainder of the cable being used for insulation and protection. The completed deep sea section of the new cable is only an inch in diameter. As the water becomes more shallow near the shore, heavier cables are used. The copper conductor, however, is of uniform diameter throughout, the increased weight and bulk being the protective armor for the working part.

The ship which will be used in the laying of the new cable is the Colonia, the largest of the half of a hundred vessels designed especially for cable work. It is 487 feet long with a beam of 56 feet, gross tonnage of 7,981 and a net tonnage of 4,980. It is equipped with engines of 5,000 indicated horse power, has twin screws, a normal steaming speed of 14 knots, and a complement of 150 men.

The operation of laying a submarine cable begins with the landing of the first shore end. This part is coiled in the first of the cable storage tanks kept on board ship. The shore end is buried in a deep trench running to a point beyond low water mark. One end being made fast on shore, the cable is paid out automatically over the stern and sinks of its own weight as the ship steams ahead. From the tank the cable is led to the drum of the paying-out machine. This machine is equipped with brakes which can be instantly adjusted to regulate the speed with which the cable passes over the drum. The cable leaves the vessel over a great pulley or sheave at the stern. Between this and the drum it passes over a dynamometer which indicates the strain on the cable. If the reading of the dynamometer indicates that the strain is too great the brakes are eased off. If the scale indicates that the cable is going out at a rate which will give too much slack, the brakes are tightened.

The whole atmosphere on board the ship while the cable is being laid is one of constant watchfulness from the experts who supervise the uncoiling of the cable from the tanks to the watchers at the stern miles paid out.

Says Russia Is Registering Rapid Progress

By HENRY WOOD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
GENEVA.—Remarkable progress is being made by the Soviets in the matter of industrial and economic development, according to a detailed report just prepared by Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor Bureau, for submission to the International Labor Conference.

The report which is based upon the development that has taken place in Russia the past year states that the amount of land under cultivation has now reached 95 per cent of what it was before the war. On the other hand industrial production generally is still only at about 50 per cent of the pre-war output.

Nevertheless, great progress has been made even in industry. During the past year the extraction of iron ore has increased 130 per cent; smelting has increased by 97 per cent, and the wrought iron output was 88 per cent more than the preceding year.

Cotton spinning has increased by 89 per cent and the manufacture of cotton-tissues 78 per cent.

Railway traffic was 22 per cent greater than the previous year while the commercial operations of the various trusts that are under the control of the state increased by 59 per cent.

Commercial syndicates not under the control of the state showed an even greater gain, their operations totaling 76 per cent more than the year previous.

The co-operative syndicates of consumers increased their business by 55 per cent, while the co-operative agricultural syndicates had an increase of 57 per cent to register.

What is considered even more important, however, from the standpoint of the International Labor Bureau is the fact that the output of the individual workman for all lines of industry increased by nearly 38 per cent.

It is admitted, however, that there was not a corresponding increase in wages as the latter show an advance of only 22 per cent.

These figures, according to Thomas, demonstrate that the Soviets are making serious efforts to improve their industrial and economic situation.

BIG ICEBERG

New York.—An iceberg 2,000 feet long and extending 100 feet above the surface of the sea, was sighted from the Hamburg of the Hamburg-American line on its recent return from Europe. Commander Thomas Kier said it was the second largest he had ever seen. It was sighted 1,130 miles east of the Ambrose Channel Lightship.

MACNIDER TALKS TO WEST POINT GRADS.

By United Press

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—West Point graduates, who became full-fledged arm officers today, had the novel experience of being told that they must now go to school under enlisted men.

You will serve under men and with men, particularly the old non-commissioned officers who know more about the army than you will know for many a long year," Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider informed the graduating class of the U. S. Military Academy.

While advising the young officers to learn from older men in the service, both officers and enlisted men, MacNider indicated that the army needs new ideas to meet new conditions.

"Absorb all you can learn from them but leave room in your mind for your own discoveries. The world is always in a state of flux and strange history is being written every day. Stay pliant, and remember that most battles—not military ones alone—have been won by common sense," he continued.

DIARY TELLS HOW WE LIVED AND WHAT WE WERE IN 1788

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 12.—How a certain young Connecticut doctor jogged over the country roads in November, 1788, to visit relatives and friends in New Haven, how he ate "Pompano" pies and drank Thanksgiving flip, how he appraised the pretty girls he met at parties, is all set down with a wealth of detail in an old diary just received by the Yale University Library.

The author of the diary was Mason Fitch Cogswell, Yale 1780, who was a prominent physician in Hartford more than a century ago. His great-grand daughter, Mrs. Edward W. Root, presented the yellowed manuscript to the university because of the intimate details it gave of the life of the time, just after the close of the Revolution.

The diary tells of young Dr. Cogswell's trip from New York to Stamford to attend a wedding, what he ate and drank and the people he met and what they wore; the condition of the roads, the houses and the liquor at the inns. From Stamford he jogged on up to New Haven, stopping at Bridgeport to refresh himself.

He speaks of his thoughts as he drew near to Yale which he describes as the "seat of my former pleasures" and the recollection of a "thousand happy circumstances crowded into" his heart. He tells of family reunions, of the politics of the times in detail.

What The Farmers Are Doing

Mr. C. M. Doyle, who lives near Grovesville, was in Saturday. He said they had a good rain Friday night but it did them very little, if any damage, but at Monroe there was quite a lot of hail with the rain, which did some damage. He thought, however, the rain was so heavy it prevented the hail from doing greater harm. Mr. Doyle lived in Runnels county before coming here. He has 175 acres in cotton, all up and doing fine, also 50 acres in feed with fairly good stand. He has only a small acreage in corn but his corn is looking fine at present—it is up about knee high.

Mr. Bert Pray has a farm near Meadow, but lives in the city. His men on his farm have about 600 acres in cotton and 200 acres in feed crop. He thinks the community clubs that are being organized in parts of the county will result in much good to the farmers in all the communities where they are organized. He is highly in favor of these clubs, as they bring a friendly feeling among the farmers, and among the business interests that meet with the farmers and encourage such work.

Mr. E. T. Mathis, who lives four miles south in Friday. The crops are in good shape down here, with sunshine, so the crops could be worked out and grow. Mr. Mathis said he would plant some cane yet as he preferred June planted cane for choice. He only had a small acreage in corn but his corn is fine. He rather wished he had planted more corn this year. Mr. Mathis and his brother work together and they are real up-to-date farmers. They have a flock of chickens and some fine Jersey cows and grow some fine gardens and belong to that class of farmers who believe in growing a good living at home. We stopped at their farm last fall and looked over their gardens, they were simply fine—all kinds of vegetables growing in profusion.

Mr. J. E. Carter, who lives near Wolfthorpe, was in Saturday. They have fine crops out his way. All have a fine stand of the different crops. He gave a report of the club work in his community. The community club work is a great one, and all should take an active part in such work. He said there was a community club organized in his community last Friday night and all present were highly elated over the meeting and the work they had started.

Mr. E. J. Powell, who lives near Canyon school house was in Saturday. He said cotton was up to good stand; might have to plant over some feed crops. He said the farmers have their crops in good condition, and the outlook is good at present. He thinks there will be about the same amount of cotton planted this year as last, with possibly a little more feed planted. He said his own crop consisted of 40 acres of feed and 60 acres of cotton.

Mr. W. P. Basher, who lives north in the Caldwell community, was in Saturday. He said they had a good rain Thursday evening and night, which was the best rain of the season, but it did no material damage. The crops all are looking fine, except some that will have to be planted over.

Mr. J. C. Jones, who lives three miles west of Monroe was in Saturday. He said they had a big rain but no hail, but said one of his neighbors, Mr. Giles, who live adjoining his farm, was hailed out, and will have to plant over some or all of his crop. He said the hail only covered a small territory, but was very destructive where it went. He said the crops except the one damaged by the hail were all in excellent condition, and the outlook could hardly be any better for a good crop.

Mrs. W. S. Sullivan, who lives northwest near Round-up, was in the city Saturday. He said his crop was good up to last Saturday evening, when the big rain and hail which covered about two miles square hit his crop. He said he had thirty acres of cotton that did not extend into the hail territory, but all the balance of his crop would have to be planted over. That is he lost 80 acres in the hail. He said he had it about all planted again. Mr. Sullivan seemed to be in good spirits and had rushed up his planting.

Mr. M. O. Hennen, who lives out southwest 8 miles was in Tuesday. His crop is in fine condition. He has a fine crop of corn. He had to plant over part of his crop of cotton, but balance was all looking fine. Mr. Moore has only 80 acres in his farm but works more land than that.

We made a quick trip southwest Wednesday morning. We met Mr. Carl Sworts, who lives on one of the McCrummen farms. Mr. Sworts is from Oklahoma. He has 90 acres in crops; has 40 acres in feed and 50 acres in cotton.

We called at the farm operated by L. W. Sullivan 8 miles southwest of the city. He had to plant some of his cotton over on account of the big rain that came on Saturday evening a week ago. His land was very loose and the big rain ran the loose soil in and covered the cotton too deep for it to get out, hence he had to plant it over. He said, the feed crop was damaged some by the rain and hail, but was coming out, and looking well at present. On this farm is a very fine garden with most all the vegetables that grow in this section growing in the garden. He said the hail damaged the garden some but it sure did look good to us. Mrs. Sullivan has a large flock of Rhode Island Reds which make the farm look very interesting.

We visited the farm operated by Mr. E. W. Wren, which is the L. D. Kinser farm, southwest of the city about seven miles. Mr. Wren came here from Hunt county two years ago, and likes this county fine. He has 160 acres in crop on the place mentioned, but is working, in all, 365 acres.

We passed the farm of Mr. Tol Caraway, but we did not see the man working that farm, but will say he has his crop up in fine condition and seems to be a real good farmer. One other very interesting farm we passed was that of our efficient commissioner, M. T. Warlick. This is a well planned and well arranged farm and the man who is operating this farm seems to be a first class farmer. Mr. Warlick's improvements are all practically new, and he has a young orchard started on the place. The crops on this place had extra good stands.

One thing too often overlooked on our trip over the county there was one thing we noticed and that was the lack of the use of the drag harrow. We saw several fields that were needing the harrow run over them. This would kill many young weeds that are coming out of the ground and would break the crust that is forming on top of the land. Some men were running the harrows but very few were doing this kind of work compared to the much larger number who are neglecting it. If we knew there would be plenty of rain it would not be quite so necessary, but even then, we have always found that the harrow is one of the best tools to use on land after such rains as we have had recently. They will keep the land from packing and drying out.

Other Farms Visited on Our Trip We stopped at the farm operated by Mr. C. O. Pendley, southwest of the city about seven miles. Mr. Pendley has his crops all up and growing. He has a small feed crop and a large crop of cotton. He has a large flock of very fine White Leghorn chickens. He sent north and bought 50 fine young chicks early in the spring and they are now a fine lot, besides he has hatched off several hundred.

We stopped at the farm operated by Mr. H. W. Wren, who is just here from Lamar county. They have only been here since March. Mr. Wren has about 150 acres in cotton and 100 acres in feed. He has a good stand on most all his crop. He had to plant over about 30 acres of cotton. Mr. Walker has some peanuts and pop corn and quite a lot of sweet potatoes.

The W. M. Ross Farm Visited Wednesday morning we visited the farm of W. M. Ross, who lives about three miles southwest of the city. Mr. Ross has an ideal quarter section farm. His improvements are all practically new and all well planned. He and his wife are great lovers of flowers and their nice home is well set on every side with flowers and roses. They have fine large garden and grow all kinds of vegetables that will grow on the plains. Mr. Ross has lots of young fruit trees set all about his place. Also had a row of grape vines about 50 feet long that was a beautiful sight to look on. They were heavily laden with grapes. This row furnishes them all the grapes they can use for all purposes and then they have some to sell. The thing that attracted our attention most was his dewberry patch. It consisted of two rows about 40 feet long and the rows were 4 feet apart, but the vines had run out both ways until they are about 8 by 40 feet. We have been used to dewberries all our life but have never before seen as many berries the same place anywhere we have been. They will soon be ripe and they will have a great crop this year. We finally went out to look his farm over. He has a fine farm and in fine condition and was giving us good cultivation. He had three long racks of feed; one of feterita, one of hagar and one of milo. These would last him another year, but he has another good feed crop almost in sight and believes in keeping a good supply of feed on hand all the time. Mr. Ross has 30 acres of feed crops and 50 acres in cotton. His crops are fine condition and he keeps them that way during the growing season, or until they are ready to lay by, as we sometimes say, but he never quits until cultivation will do no more good.

One other very important thing we had almost overlooked was the fine large flock of Barred Rock chickens. They have a fine lot of them and think they pay best to raise as they make quick growth and are soon ready for broilers and fowling. OTHER SECTIONS HEARD FROM Mr. Oscar Roberts, who formerly lived here but now lives near Lovington, New Mexico, was in the city Monday. He said crops are fine and grass the best it has been in several years. All crops are up and growing off nicely. He said the entire country was excited over the big rain well near Lovington. He said they have a well that flows ten million feet of gas daily with a sprinkle of oil occasionally. Mr. A. Y. Pemberton, who lives 10 miles east of Tahoka, was in the city Monday. The conditions are as good as any one could ask in his county. They have had plenty of rain and no hail. He has lived there since 1917, but he thinks the crop prospect is the best it has ever been during this long period of time. He only has a small acreage of corn this year but he thinks this will be a good year for corn, and that corn can be made a profitable crop. Some years past he made corn crops that averaged 50 bushels per acre for three successive years, 1920-21-22. He said he is sorry he had not planted more corn this year and may plant some late corn yet. Mr. Pemberton said during these good corn years he had about 1600 bushels of corn he could not find a market for, so he hunted up and found some hogs to feed it to, and in this manner received about $2 per bushel for his corn. Mr. Pemberton said there were very few hogs in his section of the country and he thought it was a good time for farmers to go into the hog business again. He thinks it is a bad plan for farmers to grow so much cotton with the prospects of much lower prices, and neglect growing hogs, for which there is such good demand, and at good prices. He says these plains are fine for growing hogs and the amount of bacon and lard sold on the plains and most of it sold to plains farmers, is indeed a bad comment on the farmers of the plains. Mr. Pemberton said there is very little grain, such as oats, wheat and rye grown in his county, but there is no reason why these crops could not be grown and be very profitable to the farmers. It would help in one particular, it would enable the farmers to better rotate their crops and not run the land as long in cotton.

foot of gas daily with a sprinkle of oil occasionally.

We met Mr. E. P. Norwood on the streets Monday. Mr. Norwood has 600 acres in farms. His men are all good farmers and have their crops in fine condition. He said there was one very noticeable thing about the crops on his farms and that was the extra good stands. They had some bluegrass, but by seed, deep and frequent plowing they had killed it out. We are glad that our progressive farmers have learned the plan by which this pest can be effectively killed out on the valuable land they have done so much injury. That good farmer, Mr. S. R. Loftin, who lives in the Barton community, was in the city Monday. He said his crops are all in fine condition; has good stand and the best prospects he has ever had since he has been in the county. He has lived here three years. Mr. Loftin has 6 acres of corn that is fine. He is planting two acres in fine corn, the seed of which he secured in Mississippi. He is planting this corn to make into syrup this fall. He believes in growing everything possible for home use. Mr. Loftin has a fine garden, a nice flock of chickens and some good hogs. He has a good stand on most all his crop, which help to make a good living at home. He says when this is done, then cotton becomes a money crop and does not have to be spent for things to live on.

WHY NOT GROW LARGE CROP OF PEAS THIS YEAR

We have mentioned before the importance, and profit to be made by growing peas in this county. There is no surer crop to be grown than peas made into hay it has been considered to be better than alfalfa. Then the further fact that they improve the land when they are plowed under, and land planted to peas can produce a good crop of corn and then be planted to wheat or rye or oats in the fall. If peas are planted and cultivated so the land will be left level they can be cut with mower and piled up with pitchfork, or raked with hay rake and shocked and until cured and stored or better still be put into the barn. When the pea vine hay is baled up as many put it up in fine feed for all kinds of stock and all kinds of stock will eat it readily and relish it very much. If peas are grown on a smaller scale, then the best way to harvest them is to cut with a hoe, after the dew dries off in the morning and then take a fork and pile them in small shocks while they are green, round off each rick and as they cure out they will settle down and will soon be so they will turn a big rain in case one should come. There is one other thing that should be kept in mind and that is there has never been enough peas grown here to meet the demand for food purposes. Tons of peas are shipped into the county each year, we of course pay a big lot of green peas, for the table before we can grow them here, but when the season does come in here, we surely ought to supply the demand after that until we can grow them another year. Then there are tons of beans sold here each year that are grown in other parts of the country that could be grown right here in this county. Pinto beans, pink beans, and lima beans, the latter have sold for a round 20 cents all the winter and spring. These can all be grown here in this county and in the South Plains and should be grown not only for home use but to send out to other parts of the country, where they do not grow. We think if more attention was given to these crops we would have less cotton produced and better prices for what we did produce, we must learn to feed ourselves if we will attain to prosperity.

FARM GOSSIP

Use Your Knowledge

Over two thousand years ago Archimedes said: "Give me a lever long enough and a prop strong enough I can angle handed move the world."

That ancient philosopher's theory has been put into practical use with the wonderful lifting machinery used by men today and can be used to real advantage on the farm.

The farmer's lever is the agricultural knowledge now available for his use and the prop is his practical knowledge of farming.

There are so many farmers who are about the best agricultural methods, but do not use them. It is no good to know things that you will not benefit by.

Get the right dope and use your good old common horse sense and you will believe what old man Archimedes said.

Keep Off My Side

"Keep off my side, Bill! Mother make till get back on the side of the bed." Now just how many times have the kids bothered you with the above exclamation.

They are not different from grown-ups and it just human that they fight over that imaginary line in the bed. Grown-ups are just as bad and even over the hog, breaking into your fields look just as stupid to the outsiders as the row of the kids over the place in the bed.

Don't get mad too quick, think well before doing anything you will regret later.

Don't be so quick to yell "Keep off my side."

Farmers Regular Folks Now

"Yes! Farmers are regular folks now," that's what a young town fellow said the other day and from his viewpoint he is right. It wasn't long ago that city folks and farmers were two separate kinds of folks and there really was some kind of line between them, but most of that has changed now and on the street of any city around you can't tell them apart now.

A few years ago they dressed differently and the country girls walked shyly down the streets, but now their skirts are just as short and the checks just as full of rouge as her flapper sister's and the cities and automobiles, good roads, radios, mail delivery, schools, newspapers, picture shows, magazines and even the churches, have turned the trick and they do and look alike now.

Both the farm folks and the city folks have learned to know each other better and they find that each is as human as the other and that they were not different after all. Sure, old ways and sometimes bad, don't always take to the new things and the new things, but the young folks—well we can't tell the difference now.

Just to show on how much they think alike, down on our home town there are a good number of our young progressive farmers, members of Young Men's Business League and other organizations of the town and they are considered just another business man.

That's the right way to do and the folks will soon all be saying "Farmers are regular folks now."

Old Swimming Holes Gone

No doubt you learned to swim in that old swimming hole down in the pasture under the shade of the trees along the creek and just very doubtful if you knew then just what a bathing suit was.

We know we didn't and in summer months we didn't have to get in the water tub at all just kinder rinsed off those dirty feet before we got in bed—but the old swimming holes have mostly gone and your young ones all have some loud colored bathing suits to wear in the waters now.

Mighty few girls know how to swim in the old days, but my sakes swim can dive and swim as good as the boys now and even staid old grandmothers are not shocked when she sees the girls in their beautiful one-piece bathing suits ready to jump into the water and cavort away.

After Fighting Blueweed Seven Years

Fritz Fuchs Now Uses Sheep to Subdue Them—M. R. Martin

There is a farmer who lives twenty miles north of Lubbock, near Abilene, that is making the blueweed serve him in place of his serving the blueweed. Most all sections of Texas have some weed or grass that is considered a pest. In Central Texas the cocklebur and crab grass, as well as Johnson grass, are considered the worst enemies of the farmer. In the Lubbock section the blueweed is about the worst pest in the form of vegetation with which the farmers have to contend. Most all the farmers in that section spend a great deal of extra time and money in attempting to eradicate this weed. Fritz Fuchs, a farmer of the section, has been in the west long enough to become a native. He moved from Brewster county to his present farm 17 years ago. Mr. Fuchs was originally from Lavana county. Fought Losing Battle for Seven Years There were about 150 acres in cultivation when he bought the place. It is interesting to follow the different steps in Mr. Fuchs' farming program which have made him one of the outstanding farmers in that section, and have crowned his efforts with success. According to his version, he fought the blueweed for seven years, just like most of the other farmers throughout the West are still fighting it today. After a seven years battle, a realizing that he was fighting a losing game, he decided to divide his farm into convenient fields and use sheep. He bought 100 head of sheep. He believed that no country anywhere but the Lubbock section for sheep, since since they are always healthy. They can be economically kept, an dit is an easy matter to get a high per cent lamb crop with anything like proper attention. During the past few years he has averaged 100 per cent lamb crop. There are about three reasons for this high percentage. In the first place, only pure-bred rams are used; in the second place, he has shelter provided for the sheep in cold weather; in the third place, he has the best bred so that the lambs will be dropped in January. During this month he is not bothered with his farm activities, so in place of spending most of the time in town discussing the weather and politics, as a good many farmers of our acquaintance do, he puts in about 12 hours each day caring for the sheep. Then again he raises sufficient feed and uses this feed intelligently. By the way, when we remember that this man has been in the Lubbock section 17 years; that he has weathered every kind of a season imaginable; that he has passed through the fat years, and more especially the lean years; when we remember that there have been several very lean years during the past 17 years, and when we hear Mr. Fuchs say that he has not bought any feed during the span of these 17 years, we are more or less prone to believe that he is entitled to the honor which Mr. Eaton, county agent of that county, gave him when he said, "Mr. Fuchs is one of the best farmers that I have had the pleasure of coming in contact with during my lifetime. He is intelligent and continues to become more intelligent by the use of good books, magazines, farm papers, farm meetings and every source that he can avail himself of."

Wool Pays Expenses and Keeps Up Flock

Mr. Fuchs tells the increase from his flock each year. He has found that the wool crop pays the expenses and the replacement of the sheep. This gives him each year's increase as a net profit. In 1925 he had 32 ewes and raised 92 lambs. These lambs averaged 81-1-2 pounds, and brought 11 cents per pound on September 1, which gave him approximately $9 per lamb profit. The ewes brought $2 1-2 cents per pound. Due to the limited pasture and the main purpose for which the sheep are kept, he has adopted the practice of keeping the old ewes until they are about eight years old, then sell them and replace with a lamb crop. When we consider that he is using the sheep primarily to eradicate the blueweed, and that at the same time the sheep are paying him approximately $1,000 net profit each year, we can easily realize that Mr. Fuchs has solved the blueweed menace, and at the same time has added a type of livestock to his farm that is paying a handsome dividend on the investment. It has been his practice when new land is cleared to pasture this with the sheep for about two years in order to kill out the blueweed, then the sheep are taken from this pasture and placed in another field that has become infested with the blueweed. The farm is divided into four parts. The sheep run on each pasture about two years and are then removed to the next field. Another valuable income from the sheep which is overlooked by most of the farmers, is the manure which is accumulated in the corral. This is taken up about twice each month during the winter and used in the orchard, garden and field. During the winter he feeds an average of about one bundle of manure to three sheep per day. This bundle of manure is valued at about 5 cents. The principal feeding period is during November, December, January, February, March and April. On the basis of 1-2-3 cents per day each sheep would consume during these six months about $2.52 worth of feed. This bundle of manure keeps the ewes in good condition, since they have access to green pasture during the winter months. This winter he has had 65 acres in wheat, which has furnished grazing for his sheep, dairy cows and work stock. Due to feeding, care and individual attention, the mortality rate among the sheep is exceedingly low on this farm. He has lost only six ewes during the past six years.

This farm maintains two tenants who grow cotton and feed. One tenant works on the third and fourth. He plants one-half of his acreage to feed and one half to cotton. The other tenant farms on the "halves." He usually plants one-fourth feed and three-fourths cotton, because he has no stock to consume the feed which he would raise. The whole farm this year will have 65 acres in wheat, 15 acres in oats, 185 acres in cotton, 245 acres in feed crops made up principally of maize, red top cane, kafir and hegar. The 65 acres which is sowed in wheat is a part of the 150 acres which was in cultivation when Mr. Fuchs bought the farm. It had been abandoned by the previous owner due to heavy infestation of blueweed. This old field has been in a sheep pasture since 1914. It was broken up last summer and sowed to wheat in the fall. A close examination of this field showed that the sheep had practically exterminated the blueweed.

Red Top Cane

Mr. Fuchs believes that red top cane is the best money crop on his farm except cotton. He usually produces from 20 to 25 bushels of seed per acre, which usually bring from $2 to $2.50 per hundred. This past year, which was an extremely dry year in the Lubbock section, four acres were terraced and then planted to red top. From the time the cane was planted until it was harvested, not enough rain fell to run in the terraces. These four acres produced about 152 bushels of seed while the remainder of the cane crop which was on leveled land produced at the rate of 20 bushels per acre.

Another interesting sidelight on Mr. Fuchs' farming schedule is that during the past 17 years he has missed only two peach and plum crops due to freezes. During this period he has made an apple crop each year. His orchard consists of about one acre set out to peaches, plums, cherries and apples. Spraying and pruning in this small orchard are followed just as systematically and as carefully as if the farm income depended on this orchard. He has had sufficient fruit for home consumption since the orchard began to bear, with a surplus to sell in Lubbock markets every year.

The day when Mr. Eaton and I visited this farm we found Mr. Fuchs busily engaged in building a new poultry house. This farm maintains at present 125 Standardbred Rhode Island Reds. During the past year he got a flock average of 172 eggs. The flock is culled twice each year by County Agent Eaton and Mr. Evans, superintendent of the Lubbock Hatchery. By using the type of male birds which meets with Mr. Evans' approval, and by severe culling twice each year, this flock has been "certified." As a result, of this work eggs from this farm are used by the Lubbock Hatchery and the best cockerels find ready market as breeders in Lubbock county and other places.

There is yet another angle to this farm which makes it even more interesting. Some years ago four high-grade and six registered Jersey cows were purchased. Mr. Fuchs helped to organize a co-operative cream association at Hale Center. It is interesting to note that this cream association has "topped" the price in sweet cream in the Plains country for the past few years. The skim-milk is fed to the chickens and hogs. He keeps one registered Duroc-Jersey sow which produces sufficient pork for home consumption. The dairy and poultry income from this farm pays all the expenses. This leaves the income from sheep, cotton and feed as clear profit.

The Fuchs have a beautiful rural home with flowers and a nice lawn. The home has all of the modern built-in conveniences, running water in the house and at other convenient places over the farm, as well as electric lights. Every year Mr. Fuchs adds to the convenience and

Two Insects to Look Out For

R. R. REPPERT

Grasshoppers Local infestations of grasshoppers are being reported in the north and west portions of the state, and damage may be severe in regions that did not experience heavy rainfall during the past winter and spring.

Farmers are urged to fight these insects early, if they threaten to migrate from pasture lands or fence rows into the cultivated crops, by the use of the poison bran mash. This is made up of the following ingredients:

Coarse wheat bran, 25 pounds. Paris green or white arsenic, 1 lb. High grade amyl acetate (avoid cheap grades of benzal oil or benzoin liquids), 1 ounce. Cane or sorghum molasses (avoid corn syrup) 2 quarts.

Water sufficient to make a moist mash as explained below: Mix the bran and poison together thoroughly. Dilute the amyl acetate and molasses in about two gallons of water. Pour this liquid over the mixture of poison and bran until every particle is moist. Then make further additions of water and mix thoroughly until a mash is obtained that is quite moist, yet so it will fall apart after being tightly squeezed and so may be readily sown broadcast.

This quantity of mash should be broadcast so as to cover about five acres. A good practice is to mix at night and sow early in the morning before nine o'clock since the hoppers do not actively feed until the dew dries up. If it is desired to kill hoppers in grass land sow over the entire acreage to be protected. Where they are migrating from fence rows or pastures into cultivated crops sow the fence row or a fairly broad margin of the pasture, and also a broad margin of the cultivated crop with the mixture.

Amyl acetate is preferable in the formula but if it cannot be obtained, substitute six lemons for one ounce of the amyl acetate. This should be diluted with water as with the other substance, but one should use both lemons and rinds, grinding the latter in a fine food-chopper. Do not place the mash in piles. Do not use lead arsenate—use Paris green or white arsenic. Do not use cheap banana oil or benzoin liquids.

Winged May Beetles

Two different kinds of Winged May beetles, often called "Four o'clock bugs," are reported from several sections of Texas, and we fear serious damage from these to many fields of cotton. These are black or brownish beetles, about three-quarters of an inch long, such like the ordinary June bugs, that fly around lights at night, only these species do not fly.

The beetles develop from white grubs infesting land that has been in grass or has been abandoned to weeds a year or two previous, and since the beetles cannot fly, damage to cultivated crops progresses from the sides bordering such locations, or in the case of newly broken land, may appear simultaneously over the entire field.

Where migrating, the beetles can be stopped with a fair degree of satisfaction by blowing a double row of the bottom of the furrows with land-side next the area to be protected. If potholes are then dug at intervals in the bottom of these furrows, the beetles will collect in them and may be killed by the use of kerosene or with a blow torch. Poison bran mash, strewn along the bottom of the furrows, will be effective and more practical. Use the same formula as for grasshoppers.

A more convenient method of control will be by the use of the poison bran mash, made as for grasshoppers, and sown broadcast as advised for them. With the May beetles, however, a heavier application, covering say about two or three acres with the amount given in the formula, is advised, making the application somewhat in advance of the apparent damage.

When it comes to dairy cattle it is much more important that only the best class of producers should be kept. We have noticed a report from Dr. C. W. Larson, chief of the bureau of dairying U. S. Department of Agriculture, Dr. Larson, after making quite a lot of investigation of the profits of dairying, found last year, "that the average gross income on the 26,000,000 dairy cows in the United States was only $100 per cow. Feed housing and care and milking these cows, represent labor and expense that must be deducted from this small amount and the remainder represents profit."

"The bureau of Dairying, however, qualifies this relatively poor showing by stressing the obvious fact that many herds supplying milk are above the average. This report goes on to show that the average cow only produces 4600 pounds of milk when they could easily be improved and brought up to produce twice this amount. This authority shows that it takes just as much spirit and care to raise a cow that produces a higher production, as the low producing cows."

Feed a Very Important Factor in Milk Production

Next to, if not equal, in importance is the right kind of feed for good production in milk. We think this is a point generally overlooked by our dairymen and other milk producers in this section of the country. We have gotten into the habit of utilizing any kind of feed for milk cows just as we do to carry other classes of cattle thru the winter. This would hold good with milk cows, they must be fed a ration that will produce milk and these things must be carefully studied by the farmers and dairy men of this section.

We have the Tech here at our disposal to help work out all these points which will tend to increase the production and profit on our milk producing cows.

There was one very important thing we noticed in the report mentioned and that was the ratio of increase when improvement was made. When a cow produced 150 pounds of butter fat the income above cost of feed was $23.00 when the cow produced 300 pounds of butter fat the income above cost of feed was $74. When the production was 450 pounds the income above feed cost was $122. So it is clear how important

A LETTER WRITTEN SIXTY YEARS AGO BY MOTHER OF MRS. J. K. CARAWAY, FROM ERATH COUNTY VERY INTERESTING

The following letter was handed to us a few days ago by Mrs. C. F. Stubbs, which is one written by her grandmother and relates incidents in the history of the country that time, that will be of interest to many people at this time.

The following written fifty one years ago by Mother Caraway to her son L. J. Caraway, who was then in the confederate service will be of interest for the reason it shows the waiting, sorrows, and forbearance with destiny undergone by the good mothers and people of that age. Just imagine yourself placed under such conditions and see how thankful you would be for the great good times we now enjoy right here in the same country from which this letter was written. The letter follows:

State of Texas, Erath county, January the 13th 1865. A. D. Dear Louis: I seat myself this cloudy evening to inform you how we are and how we are getting along. We are all well at this time. The connection is well. Your pappy and Johnnie, and Falt and Mr. Tinpin is gone out to the timber hunting hogs. They have caught three today. Falt came back after wagon to haul them home. They killed three yesterday, they are very good pork. They are some of the big hogs that your pappy bought from Mr. Bargeby the first year we came here. He thinks he will get enough to make his meat this year.

Adam has not got back off of the big scout yet. I shall look for them next week. I heard yesterday they had discovered where the Indians were and were preparing to surround them. Two of Tottens men came back to Stenhenville and told it there and Mr. Duvall told it here yesterday. He thought the report was true. Also they said there was great deal of Indian sign going on in almost every direction. Squares and children they were going on in the direction of the head of Colorado. There is said to be 772 of our men gone on the scout. I hope they will get some of our horses back. We have 33 missing not found yet. Your pappy has hunted the range over and over, he is satisfied they have got that many.

Johnnie and Falt was gone after Bois d'arc timber five weeks and four days, they brought timber enough to fill two wagons. L. F. Cowan brought enough to fill two and his buggy and got a great many boards thru. they could not fetch. They had no bad luck while gone. Our school is going on very well. One wedding down the creek last week, Joe Hawkins and the Widow Gregg. Gregg was killed about three months ago. Hawkins was living with them before he was killed. Greggs was killed by a man that sold him some horses, his name was Ogle.

Mr. Campbell got shot in the throat, it was done accidentally. George Woods was in his office and was fooling with it and it went off unexpectedly. The bullet went thru a package of clothing he had on his arm and through his coat collar and vest and shirt collar before it touched the skin or it would have been a great sight worse. Your pappy was at town last week and saw him, he is getting better.

Louis, I have been looking for you two weeks, every time the dogs would bark and I am in hopes I will see you before a great while longer, for you know how it is to look for any one and can't see them and think maybe they are not coming this time at all. O, I do long to see the time come when you do come. It seems like you have been gone four years. I haven't had any letter from Bryant since the 12th of last September. I understand by W. H. Pate's letter that you have received one dated October 10th. He wrote some of the bad news that was in it. I am sorry to hear of the death of our dear friends and connection, though God giveth and God taketh away and His will must be done in spite of all.

O, Louis I am in trouble about my dear sons. You are in one place, Bryant in another, Adam in another, all three in danger. Oh, it does almost break my heart. O, Louis I did not once think that I would be so uneasy about my sons if they were out on the frontier ranging, but now I have had the chance to know. I think now Adam will see the hardest time he ever saw in his life. There has been as bad a spell of weather as I have seen in several years. They haven't any wagons to haul them in if they should get sick or wounded. They will have a bad time getting home.

John, Adline said tell you she was well. The children are well. Adline will write to you next week. She did not think it worth while for us to both write at the same time. John we haven't heard from you since you left home. Adline has written to you one time, I must close by saying remember your dear old mother, and remember that I want you to come as quick as you can get a furlow. May God bless you and shield and protect you from all danger, and return you both to your loved ones at home.

MORE COTTON ON FEWER ACRES AND MORE MILK FROM FEWER COWS

tant it is to have good cows instead of just cows. These results can only be successfully worked out by having milk testing associations in each community. We have called attention to the importance of these testing associations before but these seems to have been a response from any one that should be interested.

The report we have been referring to finally says, there need not be a single cow added to the present number in 50 years and there should not be any added but by the right kind of selection and improvement the demand for milk and the ever increasing demand, can be met and prove satisfactory to the producers of milk and to all mankind as well. Without doubt the demand for milk will increase very fast form year to year and the safe and profitable thing for all milk producers to do, is to see that they have better cows all the time.

SPORT FLASHES

MILLER HUGGINS

By PAUL WHITE

(United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, June 12.—A year ago when the Yankees were headed nowhere in the American League and were battling to remain out of the basement, one man was blamed for the tremendous flop and that man was Miller Huggins.

Today the Yankees are at the top of the Junior circuit and stand an excellent chance to hang on to that precious position, but in the comments on the form reversal one hears nothing about the same Miller Huggins, who has continued as the pinstriped manager of the Yanks.

Huggins probably would be the most tragic figures in baseball if he believed one-tenth of the diatribes directed against him. As it is he fails to inspire praise and offers an excellent target whenever anything goes wrong.

A man who has managed a team winning three pennants and a world's series in three years might be expected to draw the plaudits of a hero. But not Huggins. The attitude of sports writers and the general public seemed to be that the Yankees were victorious in spite of Huggins rather than because of him.

And last year's debacle seemed to confirm the impression that the Yanks as a team depended wholly upon the antics of Babe Ruth and that any bush leaguer could make more of a success than Huggins.

This, as said before, is another year. Col. Rupert, the genial owner of the Yankees, always has had oceans of confidence in "Hug" and his confidence appears to have been well placed.

Areat deal of the 1926 success of the Yankees, certainly, must be laid to Ruth's reformation. But aside from the great slugger the New Yorkers have a powerful team and one wonders if Huggins shouldn't receive some of the glory.

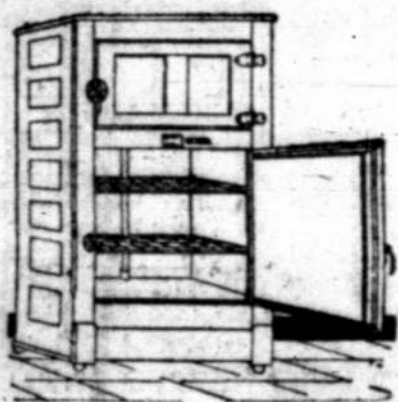

The charge has been made frequently that Ruppert has bought winning ball teams but this year it is noticed that six regulars were developed in major league baseball by Huggins. These are Meusel, Combs Gehrig, Koenig, Lazzeri and Collins. And this sextet is worth a lot more money than any club owner could furnish on a moment's notice.

FAMOUS ESTATE PASSING

LONDON.—Another famous estate the Leweston, near Sherborne, is going under the hammer shortly because taxation and post-war social conditions prohibit its maintenance. The Leweston estate has the distinction of having been owned by three different families only in the course of a thousand years.

"In William the Conqueror's time and long before," the Lewestons of Leweston were held in high esteem. The manor house was rebuilt in Georgian times and stands in a delightful park.
