Oil value query begins tomorrow

Questions related to 1985 oil valuations will be addressed Tuesday beginning at 9 a.m. as the Scurry County Appraisal District again brings its three-member Board of Review into session.

Representatives of Thomas Y. Pickett of Dallas will be on hand to help answer these questions at the appraisal district office, 2425 College Ave.

If questions related to value cannot be answered by district personnel or the evaluation engineers provided by the Dallas-based firm, the Board of Review will be required to make a final determination.

The board is comprised of Harold Lacik, Ross Carroll and Walter Stirl.

Tuesday's hearing's will continue until all questions are answered with Wedneday set aside for further hearings "as needed."

Beginning Thursday at 9 a.m., the Board of Review will hear questions related to personal property and real estate. Local property owners whose value increased $1,000 or more have been notified of this change by the district. These notifications were sent in June.

Regarding the county as a whole, the taxable value dropped some 12.7 percent, a decline that included a 13.8 percent drop in oil-related values.

Reagan 'well' after surgery

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — President Reagan continued "to progress superbly" from his intestinal surgery today as he awaited news on whether the two-inch tumor found by doctors contained cancer cells, his spokesman said.

The results of a thorough laboratory analysis of the polyp removed from the president's colon were not expected until mid or late afternoon, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

Meanwhile, said Speakes, Reagan's chief surgeon, Navy Capt. Dale Oller, reported that he is "running out of superlatives" to describe the president's recovery. Speakes quoted Oller as saying:

"The president continues to progress superbly from his surgery. His vital signs are the same as a person who has not had surgery."

Speakes said the president was napping at midday after staying up past midnight Sunday to finish a Western novel, "Jubal Sackett" by Louis L'Amour.

"The president's only complaint is a bit of abdominal pain or discomfort when he gets out of bed," said Speakes. "The president has had no pain medication. He continues on antibiotics."

Reagan's doctors have stressed that even if cancer cells were found in the excised tumor, his chances for a complete recovery are high.

On Sunday, Speakes said, "The president is pretty much of an optimist. He's an upbeat person."

But the spokesman also said that the president "is very well prepared for any eventuality."

For her part, Nancy Reagan was cutting short a planned two-day trip to an aircraft carrier to an outing of several hours on Wednesday. She was quoted by a spokesman as saying, "I can't wait for today to be over."

A written statement released by Speakes at 9 a.m. EDT today said Reagan "continues to recover well from surgery. His condition remains good and vital signs are stable."

The White House spokesman said Reagan was "very comfortable," walked around his room briefly and sat in a chair for about 45 minutes reading a Western novel — Louis L'Amour's "Jubal Sackett" — during his first day after the operation.

"All in all, the president has had an excellent day," Speakes said.

He said Reagan's temperature was slightly above normal, a common symptom in a patient who has just had surgery.

Despite the good reports on the president's recovery, there remained a substantial chance that tests would find cancer in the 2-inch long polyp excised from Reagan's large intestine on Saturday.

"I would say that if one took a large number of lesions of this type, I would estimate that somewhat over half would have malignancy in them," Dr. Steven Rosenberg, chief of surgery at the National Cancer Institute and a member of the surgical team that operated on Reagan, told reporters after the operation.

Ask Us

Q. — Since United Way exceeded its goal last year, where did the surplus money go?

A. — The drive raised some $15,000 over its goal, campaign officials note. To cover administrative costs for the next drive, United Way will keep $2,000 of this. The remaining $13,000 will be paid to the agencies based upon their pro-rata share of budgeted funds. This payment is due during the final quarter of 1985.

In Brief

Car bomb

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A car bomb exploded today at a military checkpoint in south Lebanon, killing at least six Lebanese, Israel Army Radio reported.

The report said the car exploded near the village of Tebnit, five miles north of the Israeli border, at the boundary of Israel's designated security zone in south Lebanon.

It said two of the dead were militiamen of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army.

The area was immediately closed off to enable the militiamen to search for suspects, the radio said. The report did not give any further details.

It was the third car bomb explosion in south Lebanon in less than a week.

Body found

HOUSTON (AP) — An unemployed 31-year-old man has been charged with murder in the death of a Mormon bishop and father of seven children whose decomposed body was discovered in the trunk of his car, authorities say.

The body of Ronald Gierisch, 39, was discovered early Sunday by church members who started a search when they learned that the newly appointed bishop had been missing since leaving for Galveston on a business trip Friday afternoon.

Business formed to market oil pump monitor

A new oil field-related business operation is opening in Snyder as a former Western Texas College instructor both reclaims and redesigns a pump-monitoring device he invented some five years ago.

To be called Welpro Inc., the operation will be housed in the former Montgomery Wards building on 25th St.

The invention is called the "Grabber," and it is a microcomputer-based controller which replaces more conventional time clocks which control the production of pumpjack units.

It was originally designed by Tom Chrane, who has seved the past year as an electronics petroleum technology instructor at Western Texas College.

He will now serve as president of the Welpro Inc. operation here.

Welpro Inc. moved into the old Wards building the first week in June, but is not yet officially open for business.

The redesign of the device is now the project of Chrane, David Higgins, who serves as manager for technical development and manufacturing, and engineers Steve Holder of Post and Bobby Bentle of Sweetwater.

All four have now committed themselves fulltime to the production of the new oil field device.

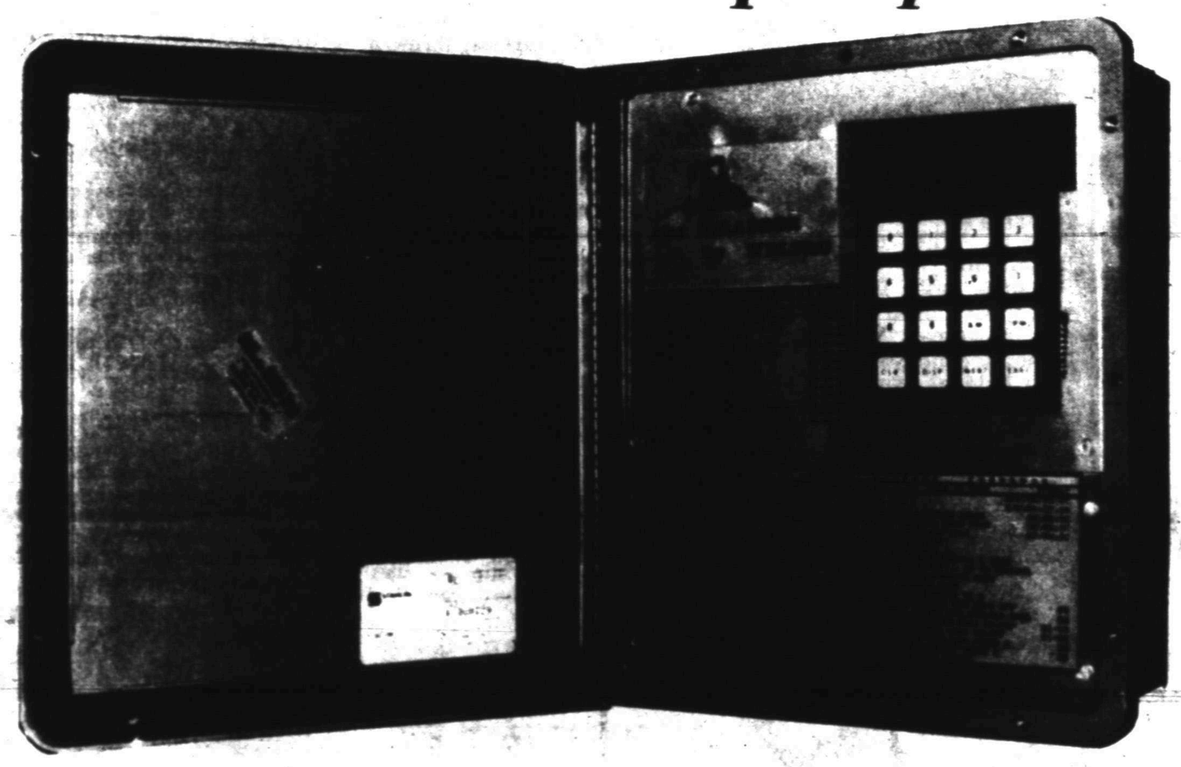

It currently sells for around $2,000 per unit, but Chrane said the redesigned model — which they expect to begin marketing early in 1986 — will cost from $700 to $800.

"The lower price of the Grabber will greatly expand the market," Chrane said.

At present he said wells have to produce at least 25 barrels a day to pay out the cost of the unit in a year's time. The redesigned model's lower price will mean that wells need only produce some 6-7 barrels a day to pay out in a year's time.

"We feel very confident about what we are doing and expect to have a substantial effect on the market," Chrane said.

To do so requires the use of several computers as well as a complete library of data books. Richard Purcella helps out as a part-time programmer as well.

REDESIGN EFFORT — The newly reorganized Welpro Inc. is involved with the redesign of this oilpatch monitor called the "Grabber." The new unit, once completed, is expected to be smaller and cost much less, says Tom Chrane, president of the company. Chrane originally created the Grabber between 1980-82. The new Snyder business will be officed in the former Montgomery Wards building on 25th St. (Illustration Courtesy Wellpro Inc.)

Within 10 weeks, Chrane said they expect to be ready to test the redesigned unit in the oil field. Interested oil companies that would like to participate in the testing of the unit can contact him, Chrane said.

He said the testing period will last three months.

From 1980-82 when he designed the original Grabber, Chrane relied on his own resources. In 1982, he sold his unit to Westinghouse and then under terms of the original agreement he exercised his option to buy back the Grabber in January of 1984.

To help finance his new venture, Chrane has sold 46 percent of the company to investors.

"I always wanted to try teaching but my heart has always been in the petroleum business since 1977. I enjoyed teaching but this is more challenging," he said.

For the past seven years, his associate David Higgins also taught at WTC. He recently resigned his post to devote fulltime to Welpro Inc.

Higgins worked for Shell Oil for three years as a reservoir engineering assistant.

About his association with the company, Higgins said, "I have liked working with computers and this gives me a chance to use my electronic background as well."

Both Bentle and Holder were students of Chrane's during the past year. Each will graduate at the end of the summer.

Both joined Welpro, Inc. because they "like the idea of being on the ground floor of a new operation."

Once the Grabber has been redesigned and is ready to be marketed, Chrane said they will add a marketing manager and several sales representatives throughout Texas and New Mexico.

Fire death suspected for former resident

The body of a woman badly burned but believed to be that of a former Snyder resident was buried Monday morning at services in San Angelo.

Rites were conducted at 10 a.m. Monday at Johnson Funeral Home Chapel for Susan Grosshans Palmer, 26, of San Angelo. Burial was to follow there.

As of Monday morning, however, Tom Green County Justice of the Peace Charlie Green had not officially ruled either on the cause of death or regarding the identity of the deceased.

Official confirmation of identity is pending final analysis of dental records.

Palmer's car was spotted burning in a remote field near the north side of the Twin Buttes Reservoir by lake rangers at 3:18 p.m. Friday, according to sheriff's department reports.

A female body — now believed to be that of Susan Palmer — was discovered inside the vehicle after firefighters extinguished the blaze.

Although the cause of death remains unknown, a Tom Green county sheriff's spokesmen said Monday that at this time foul play is not suspected in the death.

Meter tamper charges filed

Officals with Texas Electric Service Company have filed a felony criminal mischief complaint against a local man

He now stands charged with tampering with an electric meter at an apartment in the 1900 Block of Coleman Ave.

It is alleged this was done to illegally gain access to electrical service at the apartment. The offense reportedly occurred June 27.

Charged with the offense is 23-year-old Craig Merritt of 2208 45th St. He was arrested Sunday at 5:18 p.m.

Monday morning, he remained in Scurry County Jail in lieu of bond set at $1,500.

New park regulations formalized by county

Seven rules and regulations pertaining to the county parks system were officially approved Monday by Scurry County commissioners.

Parks Superintendent Jimmy Ward noted that the rules have been in force for some time, but never "officially" written down.

New rules approved Monday were:

—All motorized vehicles (including) camper trailers will not be allowed in grassy areas.

—Individual food booths or concessions allowed in the park will be from non-profit organizations within Scurry County only.

—All food booths or concessions must be removed within 12 hours after the event is over.

—The immediate area where food booths or concessions are setup must be left clean of all debris.

—All baseball, softball tournaments or any other special event will be sponsored by well-established clubs or organizations.

—Collecting money for any type class or instruction will not be permitted, exception only when sponsored by well-established clubs or organiza-

25 percent failures expected

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas school officials predict as many as 25 percent of students will fail "exit tests" that will be required for the first time this fall before high school students can graduate.

The State Board of Education on Saturday approved mandatory math and English exams for graduation hopefuls. Officials expect about 24 percent will fail the language arts tests this fall and 25 percent will flunk the math quizzes.

But Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby predicted the passing average would rise rapidly the next two years due to the state's increased stress on academics in schooling.

"We believe students will be well aware of the higher expectations placed on them by the requirement to pass this test," said Kirby. "And when you expect more from people, they usually rise to meet those expectations."

The new "exit level" tests on math and language arts will be given first this October to 11th graders. If they make a grade of 70 on the exams, they will be cleared to receive a diploma. Those who fail can take the exam again in December and twice more before they are scheduled to graduate in 1987.

School districts will offer remedial assistance to all who fail.

"By setting this standard, we will be expecting students to know 70 percent of what they have been taught in the area of math and English" said Kirby.

The 15-member appointed board, in one of the busiest three-day sessions of its year-long existence, also approved new rules that will allow Texas schools to crack down on students who bring guns, drugs and liquor to school grounds.

During its 140-day regular session, the Legislature had been unable to agree on the disciplinary measures demanded by parents and local school officials throughout the state.

And in one of the hottest discussions of the day, the board voted 7-6 to give students one-half credit toward graduation for taking a driver training course.

"This is a very important issue in our urban schools," said board member Velly Bastine.

"If you take away this graduation credit, it will hurt many of our rural schools," said member Pete Morales Jr. of Devine. "Kids must learn to drive to go to school and make a living."

A board committee, headed by Jack Strong, Longview, had recommended that graduation credit for driver training be dropped in hopes of encouraging students to take an academic subject such as English or math.

Charles Duncan of Houston, said numerous school superintendents particularly from urban areas, said they planned to drop driver training classes and leave the training of new drivers to parents and private instructors.

The new discipline rules were aimed at "incorrigible" students which school officials say cannot be handled adequately under present law.

Students who bring dangerous weapons to school; sell, deliver or use drugs on school property; assault a teacher or student, or commit arson at school may be suspended for up to a six-week period, or expelled if the violations continue.

Schools would be required to continue "home-based" instruction — such as lesson assignments — while a student was on suspension. The student would not be counted as absent from school.

Strong said one of the most important new rules would allow any student who showed up drunk or drugged to be removed from classroom.

However, the student would be turned over to proper authorities for treatment or handling, not just put off school grounds.

California town has thanks party

By The Associated Press

Firefighters and residents of Ojai celebrated together hours after the largest of California's wildfires was contained, as crews gained the upper hand over blazes that had blackened more than 1 million acres in the West.

Weary firefighters were heading for home Sunday, when the number of people on fire lines had declined to 10,000 from the peak of 17,000 last week, said Pauline McGinty, spokeswoman for the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho.

"It's getting very quiet around here," she said of the command center that has coordinated the battle against the 3,500 fires ravaging 12 Western states since June 27. "They're sending the troops home."

Flames still flashed today across parts of Arizona, California, Montana, New Mexico, Idaho and South Dakota.

A natural smoke screen hampered firefighters' efforts to halt the largest of the fires still out of control, a 27,535-acre blaze south of California's scenic Big Sur, south of San Francisco.

"There's a pall of smoke over everything," U.S. Forest Service spokesman Frank Fetsher said. "It makes it impossible to see from an airplane where it is or isn't."

Elsewhere in California, 11 fires were contained, controlled or extinguished over the weekend.

The city of Ojai, 70 miles northwest of Los Angeles, threw a thank-you party for the firefighters who kept a 116,000-acre fire out of the town of about 7,000 people.

Mounds of food, including a truckload of ice cream, were donated for the celebration, and many people offered off-duty crews the use of swimming pools.

"They saved our town and we wanted to thank them," said Ted Fleming, who organized a baked goods drive. "They worked so hard and put their lives on the line for a few dollars. ... Everyone in town was dying to say thanks, but didn't know how."

Firefighter Larry Schmitt of Blue River, Wis., said, "It makes you feel like you've done something worthwhile — like you've just slayed the dragon."

Deputy premier resigns

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Deputy Premier Jean Gol today resigned to protest the interior minister's refusal to step down after the Brussels soccer stadium riot in which 38 people were killed.

On Saturday, Premier Wilfried Martens' center-right government narrowly won parliamentary a vote of confidence on its handling of the May 29 riot. During the debate, Interior Minister Charles-Ferdinand Nothomb refused to resign, saying he had no responsibility in the drama.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column a "Trucker's Wife" described the activities of an alleged prostitute who drives a van with a waterbed in the back and "advertises" on her citizens' band radio.

In your response, you stated that solicitation (for purposes of prostitution) is legal in some parts of Nevada. That portion of your response was incorrect.

Brothels, subject to strict health, licensing and other requirements, are legal in some of Nevada's rural counties. However, soliciting any act of prostitution violates a specific statute that is applicable statewide. Therefore, the activity described by "Trucker's Wife" is illegal in our state.

BRIAN McDAY, ATTORNEY GENERAL, CARSON CITY, NEV.

DEAR MR. McKAY: I stand corrected. I wrongly assumed that since prostitution was legal in some parts of Nevada, soliciting was also.

A trucker's wife unloads:

DEAR ABBY: I am a registered nurse, married to a trucker. When I'm not working, I enjoy riding with him. It may be illegal to solicit over a CB, but that doesn't stop the hookers. Truckers are besieged with offers from hookers everywhere—not only in Nevada.

Many truckers have beds built into the cab of their trucks and prefer to sleep there instead of a motel. Law enforcement officials try to keep these hookers out of the parking areas. In some instances, the areas are fenced to keep the hookers out. I once had a hooker knock on our truck door to offer her services.

As long as there are truckers who use their services, the oldest profession in the world will continue to thrive. Truckers' wives will just have to trust their men. There are plenty of decent truckers on the road. I married one.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Concerned Mom," who was trying to teach her 5-year-old not to accept gifts from strangers, prompts this letter.

A gentleman friend of mine recently stood in line behind a mother and her young daughter at a bank. The child remarked on the visor he was wearing, as it had the name of a popular pizza imprinted on it. My friend, who is the public relations director for this pizza firm, wanted the child to have the visor, but instead of giving it to the child, he handed the visor to her mother and said to the child: "I'm giving this to your mother to give to you, because she's probably told you never to accept gifts from a stranger. You won't ever do that, will you?"

What a thoughtful way to be friendly while reinforcing a message mothers cannot stress enough.

SUE IN WICHITA, KAN.

DEAR SUE: Thoughtful, indeed. That p.r. man will go far. I'll bet when that child's mother buys pizza, she'll choose the one whose name was imprinted on the visor.

DEAR READERS: How's this for a humbling exchange:

DEAR ABBY:
We know you're bombarded with questions,
Your mail likely runs into tons,
After picking the questions to answer,
Must they always be answered with puns?
Your wisdom we value most highly,
Your witty responses are fun.
We love you, Dear Abby—but spare us
The silly, nonsensical pun!

TOM IN CAMBRIDGE

DEAR TOM:
Writing would be much less fun,
Without the "nonsensical" pun.
I know you abhor it,
But others adore it,
You lose—by 10 million to one.

DEAR ABBY: Now it's 10 million to three, as both my husband and I think your puns sound like a 16-year-old smartalic.

We are 68 and 69.

His help cometh from West

"My cup runneth over," exclaimed South after the opening lead of the club nine. South was not really that much of an expert on biblical expressions, but he was right in that there were two ways to guarantee his contract after that lead. He won the club king in hand, won dummy's queen and jack of hearts, then played the club ace and ruffed a club. Next he took the king and ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Now he led dummy's last club. He could now make the contract by throwing a diamond on that club, end playing East — a simple exercise.

East was wrong to double four clubs. Sure, he might be able to beat that contract, but does he really want a club lead if the opponents bid a slam? Certainly a diamond lead might be better.

What about West? He had heard the opponents cue-bid first- and second-round controls in both clubs and spades. If he believed them, he should have led a diamond on the go. Then poor South would have had to search his memory of sacred writings for a quip about an empty water jar during a drought.

The body of Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian foreign minister and popular son of the country's first president, was discovered on the ground outside his apartment March 10, 1948. The death was reported as a suicide by the Communists, who had seized power and begun a purge of Czechoslovakia less than a month before, but the mysterious circumstances surrounding Masaryk's death led to speculation that he had been killed.

Stars hold back Invaders; grab USFL championship

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - The 1985 United States Football League Championship wasn't a mirror image of the Baltimore Stars' season, but it was a fitting end to it.

The Stars, last year's champions, opened with a 1-3-1 record and struggled through the rest of the season, playoffs and right down to the last two minutes of their 28-24 win over the Oakland Invaders in the championship Sunday night.

"Last year it was easy," said Stars quarterback Chuck Fusina. "And it shouldn't have been. We'd have a fumble and it would bounce right into our arms. This year, we had to work for it, grind and spill blood for it."

Baltimore took the lead three times in the first half, only to be tied twice and finally overtaken in the third quarter.

Kelvin Bryant, the game's Most Valuable Player with 103 yards on 23 carries, scored two of his three touchdowns in the first 30 minutes to give Baltimore a 21-14 halftime lead.

But in the third quarter, Baltimore was showered with trouble, as it had been throughout its season. While the offense managed a paltry eight net yards in the third, Oakland took 24-21 lead on a 19-yard field goal by Novo Bojovic and a touchdown after a fumble by Baltimore running back Alan Harvin at his own 24.

Bryant put the Stars up 28-24 with 8:15 left on another seven-yard run, but on the ensuing kickoff, Shawn Faulkner dropped David Trout's kick and was nailed at his own four-yard line.

"I figured if they could go 96 yards on our defense, they deserved to be champions," said Baltimore Coach Jim Mora. "But they didn't."

They almost did.

It took Oakland nine plays to drive to the Stars' five-yard line. Bobby Hebert hit Derek Holloway with a 10-yard strike that set up a third-and-two situation.

John Williams tried to get the two yards but was stopped at the line of scrimmage by linebacker Sam Mills. Baltimore's Jonathan Sutton and Oakland's Tom Newton squared off in the last of a series of altercations that ended up with Newton being tagged for a 15-yard unnecessary roughness penalty.

Hebert overthrew Gordon Banks on the third-down replay. On fourth down, Banks went to the goal line but Sutton just managed to tip Hebert's pass away with 1:59 remaining.

"No, I don't think the better team won," said Oakland Coach Charlie Sumner. "What I'm saying is in this caliber game you shouldn't settle it on that kind of a penalty."

Baker wins Open

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) - Kathy Baker combined brilliant iron play with a sure putter on Sunday, firing a final-round 70 to capture the 40th U.S. Open by three strokes over Judy Clark for her first professional victory.

Snyder Black rips Post 14-2 and 20-1

POST – Snyder Black took a pair of wins from Post here Saturday, nailing 10 home runs along the way.

Snyder won the early game 14-2, then grabbed the second by a 20-1 score.

Snyder concluded the regular Babe Ruth season with a 10-1 record. The Black team will play Sweetwater's Senior Teenage League championship team in a practice game at 7 tonight at Moffett Field in Snyder. Snyder Black will be attending the Babe Ruth State Tournament in Andrews next week while Sweetwater will be involved in Senior Teenage League play in Merkel.

Ricky Hunter picked up the win in the first contest Saturday. He stepped out of his usual role as catcher and went the distance, giving up just three hits and two walks. He struck out eight batters.

Snyder got off to a 5-0 lead in the second inning and increased it to 7-0 when Steve Parker and Hunter rapped back-to-back homers. Justin Webb clouted a home run in the fourth inning while Dennis Martinez knocked one in the fifth.

In all, Snyder got 13 hits, led by Hunter's three-for-four effort. Chris Fryar was two-for-three with a triple, a double and a walk.

Will Foree went two innings in to pick up the win in the late game. Kenneth Pickering came in for one and two-thirds innings and Don Osborn finished out the five-inning contest.

The three hurlers allowed only three hits together, gave up five walks and struck out seven.

Snyder clouted 11 hits in this contest, led by Pickering, who was two-for-two with two home runs, including a grand slammer.

Webb launched a pair of two-run home runs. Others tagging the long ball were Brad Holcomb and Mike McWilliams.

Let's talk.
Information about your changing telephone service from Jim West, Manager-Community Relations

Spotlight on Texas

Texas has become the envy of many other states. And it's not just because of our mouth-watering chili and mesquite-smoked barbecue.

Our state is now attracting more and more businesses to headquarter or locate a major operation here. Corpus Christi was just chosen as the new U.S. Navy base for the battleship Wisconsin. And support warships will be stationed in the Houston-Galveston area. The annual economic impact is expected to top $250 million.

No longer is our state a land of only oil and agriculture. While those industries still play major roles, they are now part of a varied big picture, which includes the banking, defense, computer, tourism and telecommunications industries, to name a few.

Regardless of their locations within Texas, the influx of new businesses is a boon to the whole state. New businesses increase the state's tax base and create new jobs for all Texans.

Attracting new businesses

Helping to draw new businesses to Texas are the state's abundant resources, good climate, excellent transportation and hard-working residents.

For example, good transportation was a dominating reason for Southwestern Bell Telephone's recent decision to locate a major distribution warehouse in Lancaster, south of Dallas. The new 490,000 square foot complex will serve all five of our company's states.

In addition to transportation, telecommunications facilities are also important in many business relocation decisions.

Southwestern Bell Telephone is proud to offer top-notch telecommunications in the 450 towns it serves in Texas. For the eighth year in a row, we are investing more than $1 billion in new construction to meet Texas' growth and to continue adding state-of-the art communications facilities.

Reasonable phone rates

Also, Texas residential telephone rates are among the lowest in the nation. In fact, a recent study conducted by an investment brokerage firm — Smith Barney — found Texans had the lowest average monthly residence bill among the 18 states surveyed.

From 1975 to 1984, the average residential phone service for most Texans increased only 44 percent. During that time, the Consumer Price Index rose 93 percent, gasoline went up 117 percent, medical costs increased 184 percent, while natural gas prices rose 239 percent.

In fact, statistics show it actually takes a smaller percentage of earned income to pay for telephone service today than it did 25 years ago.

Even at our current proposed increases, Texans will continue to enjoy quality communications at affordable rates.

What makes Texas grow? It's a lot of factors, from its highways to its telecommunications services to its state government that actively works to promote economic development.

It's also good people, including Southwestern Bell Telephone's 35,000 Texas employees. We're proud of our traditions of service in the state since the late 1800s. And we're confident of our abilities to continue meeting the needs of our growing state.

Syrian sponsored...

Peace plan to take effect

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Five Syrian observers have arrived to oversee a Syrian-sponsored peace plan to end militia rule in the Moslem sector of Beirut and at the hijack-plagued airport.

The cease-fire plan, which calls for disarming and disbanding all Moslem militias in west Beirut starting today, was adopted in the Syrian capital, Damascus, last week by Syrian officials and Lebanon's 13 main Moslem leaders.

The Christians, the Moslems' main rivals in Lebanon's 10-year civil war, were not part of the new plan. There are few inter-militia clashes in Christian east Beirut, dominated by the Phalange Party and the Lebanese Forces militia. The Damascus meeting followed fierce fighting between Moslem militias in west Beirut and in the northern port of Tripoli.

The Syrian observers will sit on a committee of Moslem political leaders, army officers and militia commanders charged with enforcing peace in west Beirut.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami of Tripoli, a Sunni Moslem, presided when the committee held its first meeting Friday and agreed on an outline for a new security plan for the capital.

Past security plans have failed to end the clashes or the 10-year-old war, in which an estimated 100,000 people have been killed.

Syria has an estimated 25,000 peacekeeping troops in eastern and northern Lebanon under an Arab League mandate. Syria resumed its role as the main power broker in Lebanon with the collapse of the U.S.-led peacekeeping mission in Beirut last year and the withdrawal of most Israeli forces from southern Lebanon this year.

This is the first peace plan that Syria has put forward since the withdrawal of the Israelis and tests its ability to control the Moslem militias it supports.

The Syrians also are expected to recommend tighter security at Beirut International Airport, site of a dozen airplane hijackings in six years.

After a TWA jetliner was hijacked to Beirut on June 14 and 39 American passengers and crew were held hostage in Beirut for 17 days, Reagan canceled U.S. landing rights of Lebanon's two air carriers and called for a boycott of the airport.

The United States said it will lift the embargo when airport security is restored. The airport is now in the hands of the Shiite Moslems' Amal militia and the Druse.

The Sunday Times of London said Syria will try to secure the release of 11 Westerners kidnapped in Lebanon if the United States lifts the sanctions against Lebanon's airlines.

The weekly quoted unidentified Syrian sources as saying seven Americans and four Frenchmen abducted since March 1984 are believed held by Islamic extremists in the Bekaa Valley.

The paper quoted one of the sources as saying it will not be easy to gain the release of the 11. "We do not have control over the people holding them, but we can persuade them to release them," the source said.

Five elderly women rescued

OCEAN TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Five elderly women, all of them former mental patients, were fed corn flakes, powdered milk and soup for years at a boarding home where their Social Security checks were taken and cashed, authorities said.

"They look like survivors from a concentration camp," William Connolly, director of the state Department of Community Affairs' Division of Housing and Development, said Sunday.

"I don't think they were in immediate danger, (but) the way they were kept and treated was life-threatening."

Millions pledged after aid concert

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Telephone pledges countinued pouring in a day after the Live Aid benefit as organizers reported that the mega-concert raised $70 million worldwide to aid the starving in Africa.

Even as the 16-hour extravaganza neared its Saturday night finale with a chorus of stars from the last 20 years of rock, performers and fans agreed they could compare the concert to nothing they had known.

The Live Aid programs here and in London were beamed by satellite to between 150 and 170 nations, with a television and radio audience estimated at 1.5 billion, nearly a third of the world's population.

An estimated 100,000 people at Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium and about 72,000 at London's Wembley Stadium saw the shows live.

Organizers claimed Live Aid was the most widely viewed event in history.

While the concert was under way, Irish musician Bob Geldof, who brought together scores of rock superstars for the benefit, was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize by a member of Norway's Parliament, Sissel Roenback.

Roenback said Geldof had "mobilized future generations" of young people. On Sunday, Prime Minister Garret Fitzgerald of Ireland said his government would formally endorse the proposal.

The concert awed even some of its most celebrated performers and left them groping for the right words to describe it.

"Woodstock was a party, basically just a fun time," said Stephen Stills, whose group, Crosby, Stills and Nash, was one of the signature bands at the 1969 rock music festival. "This has a focus and a direction. This is the first time we've had the access, the technology to do this."

Chrissie Hynde, lead singer of the Pretenders, a top rock band of recent years, said the concert shifted attention from the "Yuppie" image of selfish young people.

"Consciousness-raising is the key word here," she said.

In Philadelphia, most of the crowd was in the 18-25 range. But for older fans, the rapid-fire succession on stage of such legendary rockers as Eric Clapton, Jimmy Page and Robert Plant was overwhelming.

"Several times, I found myself crying," said Bob Palmer, 33, of Coventry, R.I. "It brought back good memories of the '60s and the causes of those times."

"Being here makes you feel like you're part of something," he said. "As one person, you can't do anything about famine or other problems, but as a group, you can."

A boisterous duet by Mick Jagger and Tina Turner launched a rousing finish to the show, dubbed a "global jukebox" by promoters.

Bob Dylan followed with a three-song set including the 1960s protest song "Blowin' in the Wind," and an all-star chorus and most of the crowd joined in the finale, a singalong of this the South African famine relief song, "We Are The World."

The chorus featured such performers as Lionel Richie — who composed "We Are the World" with Michael Jackson — Jagger, Dylan, Stills, Clapton, Joan Baez and Patti LaBelle and the group Duran Duran.

In the United States, which organizers said was responsible for most of the $70 million pledged, the toll-free telephone number for pledges, 1-800-LIVEAID, was overloaded with 180,000 call attempts an hour Saturday and callers were still getting busy signals on Sunday.

Ex-resident's fire death told

Mrs. Palmer was a 1977 graduate of Snyder High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Grosshans, former Snyder residents.

Accident occurs Sunday afternoon

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Sunday afternoon.

Involved in it were a 1984 Chevrolet driven by Chrystal Franklin of 2301 Moncrief Ave. and a 1985 Lincoln driven by Leonard Bryan White of 3105 Crockett Ave.

The accident occurred at 5:59 p.m. in the 3000 Block of College Ave.

Arrests reported

Nine individuals were jailed for public intoxication over the weekend with one of those charged with an additional count of possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia.

In addition, police received two complaints Saturday, one involving a misdemeanor assault and one a disorderly conduct incident. No arrests were made in either case as of Monday.

Grass fire doused

Snyder firemen answered one alarm during the weekend involving a small grass fire.

At 12:26 p.m. Sunday, units were dispatched to the intersection of North Ave. Q and Sandra St. north of the city limits.

Snyder man injured after rural accident

Richard Harvey Taylor, 60, of 2111 28th St. sustained minor injuries including a laceration to the chin Saturday in a one-vehicle accident reported west of Snyder.

It was one of two one-vehicle accidents reported during the day out in the county.

The accident involving Taylor was investigated by Snyder-based Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen around 4:35 p.m.

According to reports, Taylor was driving a 1968 Oldsmobile on County Road 264 — north of Union near the Hays Ranch — when the vehicle left the roadway.

He was taken from the scene to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder where he was treated and released.

Earlier in the day, a group of Fort Worth residents escaped injury in another one-vehicle accident. It occurred around 4:30 a.m. some 13 miles northwest of Snyder on U.S. Highway 84.

Billy Dean Pruitt of Fort Worth was driving a 1976 Oldsmobile west bound on 84 when he lost control of the car. It eventually overturned after striking a guardrail, then crossing the roadway into the highway median.

Neither Pruitt nor any of three passengers in the vehicle required medical treatment.

NASA is debating shuttle reschedule

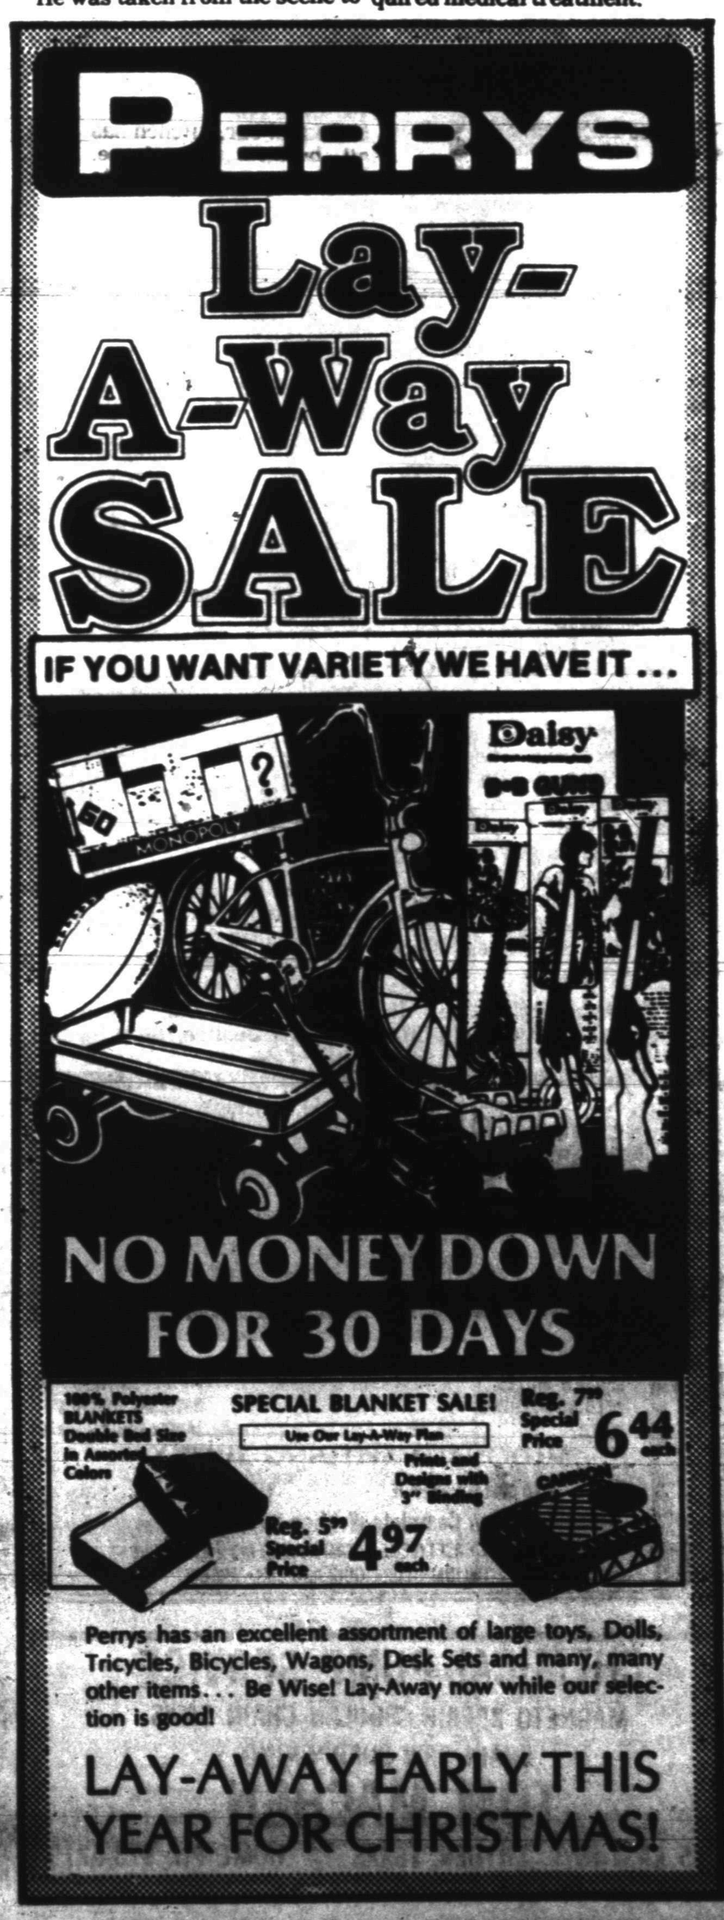

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - The aborted launch of the space shuttle Challenger will be delayed at least two weeks and could be put off indefinitely because of a tight schedule involving the other shuttles, space officials said.

NASA was expected to decide today whether Challenger will get another crack at blastoff this month or will be put on a back burner because of a heavy launch schedule involving the entire fleet of four shuttles.

Officials said Sunday they anticipate a delay of at least two weeks. The decision will depend upon an engineering analysis of a valve actuator suspected of being the cause of Friday's launch abort just three seconds before seven astronauts were to lift off on a science mission.

The valve and actuator were removed from Challenger's No. 2 Engine late Sunday, and specialists began testing for contamination or other defects.

Plan for financially strapped farmers readied for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Instead of losing a farm to creditors, wouldn't it be better for a farmer to sell the property and have the right to rent it back — including an option to buy the farm back in a few years, if things improve?

It's an idea that has been kicking around for a while, and the Farm Credit Council is hoping Congress will take it seriously. The council is a Washington-based trade association that represents cooperative agricultural lenders in the Farm Credit System, including federal land banks and production credit associations.

Ken Auer, a legislative representative for the council, says the plan would let a farmer "put his place in the parking lot for a while" until his financial situation improved.

Although the council is still putting the finishing touches on the plan, Auer said the aim is to have a bill ready for Congress by the end of the month. Farm organizations are taking a look at the council's plan, he said.

The plan includes an Agricultural Conservation Corp., chartered by the federal government and managed by an 11-member board of directors, including the secretary of agriculture and 10 others appointed by the president and subject to Senate approval.

As envisioned, the ACC would be authorized to buy farm assets from willing sellers, including distressed farmers and lenders.

"Farmers selling property to ACC would retain a right of first rental, they would be protected against the sale of their property by the ACC for three years, and they would retain the right of first refusal on the sale of their former property for an additional two-year period," says the council's report on the proposal.

The proposed language of the plan would define a financially distressed farmer as one "who, with the exception of the sale of farmland assets, has exhausted all reasonable financial alternatives to maintaining a viable farming operation."

Money for buying farm property would come from the corporation's sale of federally guaranteed bonds. No direct federal funds would be involved — unless the ACC defaults on the bonds.

In addition, all sellers of property to the ACC would be required to take part of their payments as stock in the corporation. In the case of a private seller, the current plan is to require taking 15 percent as stock. If property is acquired from the government, 100 percent of the payment would be in stock.

An example of the corporation buying land from the government would be a farm taken over by the Farmers Home Administration and then put on the market.

"The ACC would serve as a holding tank for land — absorbing the excess supply from the marketplace while serving as a new market for farmers in need of financial restructuring," the report said. "The ACC would be authorized to acquire property for a five-year period only."

Day-to-day operating expenses would be generated by leasing acquired property back to farmers or by receiving payments from the government in return for diverting property held by ACC from production.

Judge to consider settlement okay

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge who ordered sweeping changes in the state prison system planned to hear final comments today on a settlement that would end a 13-year-old inmate civil rights suit.

But attorneys involved in the litigation say approval of the agreement by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice would not be the final chapter in the fight for better prison conditions.

"The misconception that this settlement brings the lawsuit to an end has caused a lot of confusion in the prisons. The case has become larger, not smaller," said Vincent Nathan, a Toledo, Ohio, attorney.

Justice appointed Nathan as special master to oversee enforcement of the court-ordered reforms in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Prison overcrowding is the last issue to be settled in the suit, which started in 1972 as a handwritten petition by prisoner David Ruiz, who was serving a sentence for armed robbery.

Ruiz is now awaiting an appeal on a perjury conviction and sexual assault and robbery charges in a federal prison in Bastrop after it was decided he might not be safe in a TDC facility.

Nathan said approval of the settlment will not end the case because he and the court will spend the next several years seeing that the agreement is enforced.

In 1980, after an almost year-long trial, Justice issued a ruling calling for extensive reforms in the TDC and appointed Nathan to oversee them.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld most of Justice's orders, except for a section requiring one-person cells for inmates. The appeals court also asked Justice to wait a year before issuing a final decree to settle the overcrowding problem.

The overcrowding issue was to be the subject of a trial slated for last February, but attorneys averted a trial and reached a settlement in May.

Justice, who is from Tyler, already has given preliminary approval to the agreement reached in May but withheld final approval until he could hear comments from prison inmates.

Since then, TDC inmates have filed more than 330 objections to the settlement, said U.S. District Clerk Jesse Clark.

See doctor for chronic pain

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For several months I've had pain in my upper-right abdomen, just under the ribs. At first I thought it was a pulled muscle or a bruised rib. Now I notice that something under the ribs — maybe the gallbladder — is slightly swollen and tender. Is this worth seeing a doctor about?

DEAR READER — Any kind of recurring abdominal pain merits medical attention, especially if the discomfort is associated with a lump. It is beyond the scope of this column to speculate on the many possible causes of your symptoms. An inflamed gallbladder is certainly at the top of the list, but there are a lot of complicated organs crammed into that space; your doctor is the most qualified person to investigate the problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My fingernails break and split easily. Is there any kind of vitamin I can take to help strengthen them?

DEAR READER — Some people have brittle fingernails because their hands are in water often. Others may experience nail splitting from dietary deficiency. Most people whose nails break easily can find no obvious cause for this; occasionally, occupational factors may be important — but most people's nails just tend to become brittle with age.

First, get your spouse to do the dishes, or use rubber gloves. Second, make sure you are eating a balanced diet. Third, have a medical checkup to confirm you're in good health.

Last, try eating gelatin every day; the protein may strengthen your nails.

DEAR DR. GOTT — If I sit up quickly or cough hard, I see spots in front of of my eyes; this can last for a minute or so. I've experienced this since I was a child. I am 26. Is this a sign of a more serious illness?

DEAR READER — No. When you sit or stand suddenly, gravity pulls the blood from your brain. This temporary circulatory interruption can cause lightheadedness and visual difficulties. The reason is that your blood pressure does not react instantaneously to force blood against gravity when you quickly change position. The good news: This is not serious. You can avoid the symptoms by sitting or standing with less vigor. Move more slowly and with catlike movements; look cool. The bad news: It may get worse as you age.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.
