Wastewater treatment hearings set

FULTON — The town council approved a resolution Tuesday evening, Oct. 11, setting two dates for public hearings on the need for a wastewater treatment plant on Oct. 24 and Nov. 1.

The council will meet with representatives from Triad Engineering of Austin on those days to discuss a comprehensive study the firm is making on the need for and the feasibility of building a wastewater treatment plant to serve the Fulton area. If the need is determined, the council will begin applying for a grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to build the plant.

Council members also received estimates on repairs on the Fulton Fire Station. One estimate included patching the roof, straightening panels, rebracing the engine room roof and painting for $3,635. Another estimate included more extensive repair of the roof and ceilings, replacement of several doors, repainting inside and out as well as replacing several beams and columns for $20,803.50.

The cost of remodeling and adding on the existing fire station was earlier estimated at approximately $25,000. However, the Town of Fulton, which owns the fire station, has elected to make temporary repairs on the building with the intention of applying for a grant to build a combination fire station and town hall in the next few years.

Council members decided at Tuesday evening's meeting to have the fire chiefs meet with Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline and Alderman Elgin Dietz Saturday morning, Oct. 15, to determine exactly what needs to be renovated. Repair work will then be let out for bids according to standard procedure.

The second reading of the 1983 tax rate and the second reading of the town's proposed subdivision ordinance took place during the meeting. The 1983 tax rate has been set at .0353 with a 3 percent discount for October payments, a 2 percent discount for November payments and a 1 percent discount for December payments.

Walter McMillan Sr. submitted a proposal to lease the bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier. McMillan and his family will run the stand, offering live shrimp, dead bait, lures and fishing tackle. They also plan to set up a snack bar to serve sandwiches, coffee, tea and cold drinks, expanding the menu as business warrants. McMillan also will pay the electric bill and the liability insurance on the structure, and will submit 6 percent of the stand's gross earnings to the Town of Fulton as payment.

The council will consider McMillan's proposal at next week's meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Annexations pend before city council

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

A public hearing has been called for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 25, on Rockport's proposed annexation of approximately 300 acres of land, including two tracts in Aransas Bay and several lots along Hwy. 35 North.

The hearing was called during Tuesday night's meeting of the Rockport Council at which the council also set Oct. 25 as the date for a hearing on a request for annexation of Rockport Country Club Estates Unit II into the city. That hearing is also scheduled for 7 p.m.

Both annexation proposals will come before the council for second hearings on Nov. 8.

Scheduled for hearing is the city's proposal to annex State Tracts 149 and 150 in Aransas Bay, a total of more than 288 acres.

City officials also propose annexation of the site of the U-Tote-M at the Key Allegro Bridge, two tracts just north of the SeaAire Shopping Center between Hwy. 35 North and Little Bay Shores and several lots north of those tracts along Hwy. 35 that are not presently in the city.

Also proposed for annexation are the lot presently occupied by Joe's Exxon at the intersection of Glass and Hwy. 35 and the lot on Hwy. 35 presently occupied by Sandpiper Real Estate.

Reason for the annexations, city officials have said, is to straighten the city limits lines and take in property that over the years has become completely or nearly surrounded by the city but could not until now be annexed.

In the past, the city could not annex property except by request of the property owners. With the adoption this year of home rule, Rockport can now involuntarily (without the property owner's request) annex up to 10 percent of its total area per year.

The proposed annexation of Rockport Country Club Estates Unit II is at the property owners' request.

In a related item during Tuesday's meeting, the city council accepted a recommendation from the city planning and zoning commission that Unit II of RCC Estates be annexed with the zoning requested by the developer except for one lot for which B-2 business zoning had been requested.

P&Z Chairman Jack Guillet told the council, "We (the P&Z board) don't think this is right. It (the lot for which B-2 zoning was asked) is adjacent to R-1. We feel there should be a buffer between it and R-1. We feel there is no justification for this request."

The zoning board's recommendations for zoning on all property proposed for annexation will be presented at the Oct. 25 and Nov. 8 hearings.

In other action during Tuesday's meeting, the council adopted on second reading the new zoning ordinance and amended zoning map and the ordinance annexing the Live Oak State Bank site into the city.

Also adopted on second reading was an ordinance granting a special use permit to Linard F. Day Jr. allowing construction of a private fishing pier on Water Street.

The council heard a request by representatives from the G.I. Forum asking permission to place a Veterans Memorial in front of City Hall and told the representatives the request would be considered when plans for remodeling the city hall building are finalized.

"I don't see anything wrong with it — I think it's a terrific idea," Rockport Mayor Burt Mills said, "but I don't see what action we can take now until we have a workshop to decide what we're going to do about city hall remodeling."

The council was scheduled to consider setting a date for a workshop at Tuesday's meeting but tabled the matter due to the absence of Alderman Murray McMillan.

Council members nominated Lenore Beck and Tom Rogers to the appraisal district board of directors for the 1984-85 term. Beck and Rogers are two of the county school board's nominees.

Schulz clarifies athletic bill payment

Rockport-Fulton High School Head Football Coach Aubrey Schulz called a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12, to clarify what he called "a misunderstanding" involving payment by the school board of an expense reportedly incurred by the Rockport-Fulton Athletic Booster Club.

At a meeting of the Aransas County Independent School District board of education Monday evening, Oct. 10, several board members questioned payment of a bill for $916 for athletic weight equipment. ACISD Superintendent E.J. Randow said at the meeting that the Boosters had ordered the equipment for the football team but had been unable to pay for it, causing the district to pick up the bill.

Coach Schulz explained Wednesday that it was he who ordered the equipment from Nu-Life Exercise Equipment earlier in the year. Schulz said at the time he told the company either the Boosters or the school district would pay for the equipment when it came in. When the equipment came in, Schulz said, the Athletic Booster Club did not have the funds necessary to pay for the equipment. The company finally submitted its bill to the school district for payment at the October meeting.

According to Randow, policy set forth by both the University Interscholastic League and the Texas Education Association states that clubs and support organizations may make donations of funds to the school district but that those donations may not be earmarked for a specific use by the group.

County launches program to educate drinking drivers

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

As a result of a new, tougher DWI law Aransas County has initiated an Alcohol Safety Driver's Education program in an attempt to rehabilitate persons convicted of driving while intoxicated, Probation Officer Gerald Clark has announced.

The program, which began in September, is one result of tougher DWI legislation passed during the last regular session of the Texas Legislature. The new law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, brings about many changes — including the definition of driving while intoxicated. As of Jan. 1, a person with an blood alcohol concentration of 0.1 percent or more will be guilty of DWI by definition.

According to Clark, those who receive probation after being convicted of DWI in Aransas County must attend the county's Alcohol Safety and Driver's Education program, an eight-hour course taught by a certified instructor. Those who fail to complete the course within 180 days of conviction will have their license revoked, Clark said in an interview Friday, Oct. 7.

'...things are going to get tough for DWI offenders

Tuition for the program is $20 and must be paid by the person convicted. Approximately 20 persons participated in last month's program. The next series of courses is scheduled to take place Nov. 9, 16, 23 and 30.

The course is not a crusade against the evils of drinking, Clark said, just drinking and driving. "The purpose of the course is not to show blood and guts but to inform the DWI offender what drinking does to the body and the mind." He said that all participants are given a pretest at the beginning of the course to test their alcohol knowledge and another test upon completion. The average score of the pretest is 72.5 percent correct and the average final test score is 87.7.

Clark, who has been a probation officer for 10 years, says he sees less and less recidivism for DWI offenses. "The mere fact that they can lose their driver's license has a big impact on them," he says, since most people depend on their driver's license for their livelihood.

"It's serious business now," he says of DWI, and statistics show that the tougher new law comes at a crucial time. According to the statistics presented to the Texas Legislature when it was considering the bill, half of the people in the U.S. will be involved in a DWI collision during their lifetime. In addition, drunk driving is the most common form of violent death and the leading cause of death among young people. In fact, in 1980, drunk driving was involved in the death of a person in Texas every four hours.

Clark said that one of the best points of the new law is the fact that as of Jan. 1, breathalyzer tests can be submitted as evidence in court, something which in the past was prohibited. Those who refuse to take a breathalyzer or other test may lose their driver's license for up to 90 days, even if the driver is not charged or later convicted of DWI. In addition, a refusal to take a breath test may now be introduced as evidence at the trial.

Another extremely important aspect of the new law is that the use of deferred adjudication will be eliminated. Under this previously used method of deferred adjudication, the individual pleads guilty before a judge, who then delays entering judgment pending a period of probation. If the person completes probation successfully the offense is removed from his or her record. No longer will this procedure be open to DWI defendants.

Counties with populations of 25,000 or more will be required to use videotape equipment to show how a defendant acted and looked at the time of his or her arrest. This tape can then be submitted as evidence in court.

First-time offenders convicted of DWI stand to lose their driver's license for a period of 90 days to one year. Subsequent offenses could result in license suspension for 180 days

Single-industry economy hazardous to state's welfare

AUSTIN — Recession in the oil and gas industry this past year brought home a clear, sobering message for Texas: We cannot remain economically dependent on this single industry. It is time to concentrate our efforts on expanding other Texas businesses and attracting new ones to provide the necessary diversity for a strong and stable economy.

In the face of sluggish demand and dropping prices for oil and gas, we learned just how dependent we have become. By midsummer, 637,000 Texans were looking for work and state tax revenues, heavily tied to the oil and gas industry, declined sharply, leaving the state with a decrease in estimated revenue for 1984-85 of about $3 billion.

Not all our economic concerns are related to these diminishing energy resources. But even as the industry recovers economically, it will provide fewer and fewer jobs for Texans as we move toward the 21st century. With our population growing at twice the national average, at least 160,000 people are entering the job market in Texas each year.

To meet this challenge, I have established the Governor's Office of Economic Development (OED), staffed by aggressive professionals working to broaden the markets for Texas products and services and to help Texas communities attract the kinds of new businesses they need and want.

This office will promote expansion of trade, particularly exports of Texas agricultural products, manufactured goods and services. Through careful planning and technical assistance, the OED can help minimize the risk to small businesses ready to expand into new markets and help identify high growth businesses and their corresponding foreign markets.

Studies show that 80 percent of our growth and new jobs are expected to come from expansion of existing businesses in Texas.

Currently, Texas lags third behind Florida and California in gross revenue from exports. With a concentrated trade expansion strategy, we can increase sales, create new jobs and rebuild this state's revenue base.

Attracting new businesses, which will improve a community's quality of life and tax base, has become a highly competitive enterprise. Not every Texas city and town has the resources and network to know what businesses to target.

The OED can provide local governments with needed background data on businesses looking to relocate. This office is developing a base of detailed economic and technical information to build a case for relocating to Texas.

Texas is a good place to live and work and, with a well-coordinated strategy at the state level, we can make our communities economically stronger and able to afford the quality schools, transportation systems and other public services which enrich our lives and provide a healthy future for our children.

investment in small businesses by reducing the capital gains tax rate from 20 to 10 percent for those who buy new issues of stock and hold onto it for at least five years.

The Bentsen bill would also permit small corporations to claim tax deductions on up to $250,000 of the dividends they pay; simplify Last-In-First-Out (LIFO) accounting and inventory rules for small business; and permit small businesses to use cash accounting methods similar to those now allowed farmers.

We need to encourage the entrepreneurs and risk takers to turn their ideas into small businesses so that jobs will be created and our economy will grow and prosper.

Lebanon: another Vietnam?

Congressman Bill Patman

Lebanon could become another Vietnam. That was at the heart of my vote to limit the stay of U.S. Marines in Lebanon to much less than 18 months.

The administration asked for — and won — an 18-month resolution. I voted against it, as did a majority of the House Democrats. I think 18 months more is too long to keep the Marines in Lebanon. They were ordered into that country in August 1982, more than 13 months ago.

We may end up leaving them there until 1985. But Congress should thoroughly review the situation on a continuing basis — with almost daily briefings, to the extent possible.

Meanwhile, our Marines remain vulnerable to sniper fire, land mines and other hostile military actions. They need a position they can hold without the casualties they have sustained.

We need cooperation from the leaders and others in the country we are trying to help. We can't take over their war for them. We can try to give stability for a limited time. But Lebanese leaders must be able to provide a government acceptable to the Lebanese people.

Frankly, the Lebanese leaders would like to see the Marines there almost permanently. They know that as long as the Marines are there, our country will back them — not only with naval and air support but also with huge quantities of money, supplies and help of all kinds.

Under our agreement with the Lebanese, our troops cannot engage in "combat" operations. As a peace-keeping mission — if that is what they are — their self-defense authority and capability are necessarily limited.

The Lebanese armed forces must be able to protect our small force. Congressional concern about the role of the Marines has increased greatly. Our concern has been heightened because of U.S. casualties and the use of U.S. artillery in support of the Lebanese government army.

A majority of Congress decided that the stepped up action indicated hostilities posing a grave threat to our troops. Congress felt it should invoke the War Powers Act.

Our action authorizing the Marines to remain 18 more months, preserves Congress' power under Article I of the U.S. Constitution to declare war. The President has refused to recognize the constitutionality of the War Power Act.

Nevertheless, the administration finally agreed to the so-called compromise, mainly because it allows 18 more months in which to seek a peace agreement in Lebanon.

Clearly, we are not in a position to immediately evacuate. But I voted to limit the stay of our troops to a shorter time unless Congress gave specific approval for a longer stay.

That resolution would have struck a good balance. It would not have committed our troops for 18 more months, but at the same time it did not call for immediate withdrawal. It would have created a better climate for working out a lasting peace.

There has been little debate on our policy in Lebanon. Why are we there? Is it to keep the peace? If so, what peace are we keeping? Is our purpose to preserve the present government or to seek reconciliation between factions? Is it to keep Syria from moving in? Is it to prevent a presumed show of weakness on our part?

There has never been a clear enunciation of our purpose of policy there. Whatever the purpose, we should not be giving the administration a virtual free hand to keep our troops in Lebanon 18 more months.

Getting your money's worth

It may be hard to believe, but a national study claims practically every U.S. employee and retired employee will get their money's worth out of Social Security.

Conclusions in the latest survey differ from earlier studies that claimed younger members of the work force won't get back what they are putting into Social Security.

People often say they expect to receive only part of the amount they contributed to Social Security.

Old and new studies agree on one major point. Current retirees and those who will retire soon are receiving much more in Social Security benefits than they put in, and will do much better under the systems than their grandchildren.

In at least one instance, cited as an "extreme case" in the latest study, some married couples have been receiving more than 26 times as much as they contributed.

Authors of the latest study looked first at total Social Security taxes paid by employees who worked continuously from age 21 (or, if older, from 1937, when Social Security started) and retired in 1960, 1965 and every five years through 2025. It was assumed tax money was invested, as it was paid in, at market interest rates for government securities.

They then compared taxes-paid-in plus interest totals with the expected value of Social Security benefits at the time of retirement. On both taxes and benefits side, researchers looked only at money going to old age and survivor payments. Disability and hospital insurance taxes and benefits were excluded.

This method was then applied to two sets of figures. One was Social Security taxes deducted from employees' paychecks. The other added Social Security taxes paid for employees by their employers.

Even after 1983 changes in Social Security were considered, everyone participating in the Social Security program still wins, although in some cases not by much, the study concluded.

It is easy to find out how much is in your Social Security account. Send a postcard requesting this information to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Social Security Administration, Baltimore, Md. 21235.

Bill would protect small businesses

By Senator LLOYD BENTSEN

Even with our economy on the upswing, nearly 11 million Americans are still out of work. We should be doing all we can to protect the jobs we have and to create more.

Our largest producer of jobs is the small business community, which creates 60 percent of the new jobs for American workers and accounts for almost half of our Gross National Product.

But the current economic climate is not a good one for small business and that does not bode well for American workers.

Ever-increasing budget deficits threaten to devour all the savings available for investment. Current interest rates are still too high to make borrowing possible for many firms.

Small companies that rely for financing on external sources, such as bank loans

or capital markets, need help.

I have introduced legislation in the Senate that addresses some of the basic problems that confound small business — a lack of investment money, complex inventory procedures and inadequate equipment.

The Bentsen bill has five provisions. One of my proposals would make small businesses more competitive by allowing them to claim the same tax credit for investing in used equipment that larger, better financed companies get when they buy new equipment.

Under current tax law, a business operator investing in new equipment can claim 10 percent of the purchase price as a tax credit. But a smaller business, able to afford only used equipment, can claim the 10 percent credit on only $125,000 of the purchase price. This limitation will increase to $150,000 in 1985.

For example, an individual would have to buy more than $600,000 of used equipment to establish a small machine shop employing 10 people. The operator could expect an investment tax credit of only $12,500. A business able to buy $600,000 in new equipment would get a $60,000 investment tax credit.

My legislation seeks to eliminate this competitive disadvantage for smaller, less well-financed businesses.

Another part of my bill would encourage long-term

Live Oak Peninsula philosopher

Worth more than a basketball player

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula philosopher on his grassburr ranch is puzzled over the high rate of pay some people make these days. Dear Editor:

If you asked them, most people without even thinking would agree that practically any congressman, excluding one or two, is worth more than a basketball player.

But that's the worst kind of thinking and could lead to higher and higher national deficits.

A basketball player has just been given a seven-year contract for $15 million, which is over $2 million a year. Figure that up on your kid's pocket calculator and you'll see how financially staggering is the argument that a congressman is worth as much as a basketball player. Let's see, 430 congressmen at the basketball rate would come to . . . I've never learned to work a calculator. We live in an unreal world. Two popular movie stars will each get $5 million for appearing in a movie. Another movie star has signed a contract for $12 million to appear in just one picture.

Just the other day a popular writer was paid $1 million for a one-page outline of a book he's promised to write. For reading the news on the evening network program, an anchor man gets around a million a year, if he has a good head of hair. Probably more if he wears a different colored sweater every evening.

I got to thinking about this the other day when I sold a calf that brought the same price it would've brought 20 years ago.

You might agree that basketball players, movie stars, popular writers and newscasters are better now than 1960 calves, but I can't see it.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

Aging Third World new issue

By the year 2000, two-thirds of all aged people in the world will inhabit developing countries. This will increase to three-fourths during the next 25 years.

Translated into hard statistics, that means by the year 2000 there will be 600 million people over age 60, 400 million of whom will be living in developing countries. By 2025, there will be 1.1 billion aged, 825 million of whom will inhabit developing countries.

Apart from the magnitude of these figures, their political, cultural economic and social implications for all countries are staggering. Traditionally, in developing countries, elderly people have been cared for by their children. Not so now. The family structure, which has been the glue of Third World societies, is breaking down.

U.S. Ambassador John W. McDonald, U.S. coordinator for the World Assembly on Aging, said he talked with a man who had visited a village in Yemen. The visitor found only old people and the very young left in the village. The others had gone to cities or towns to look for work.

Citing this example, McDonald said he considers aging "the major new development issue of the century."

Austin at Wharf

AT THE RISK OF sounding heartless, I almost heaved a sign of relief when I noted that none of my countrymen were killed in that Buddhist shrine in Burma the other day. You see, wherever one looks in the world, this nation is involved in one way or another and often as not for the wrong reasons.

Consider Central America. We are there because of the fear of spreading Communism. In this there is justification but do we really know whether we are on the side of the right guys or the wrong ones? In the Middle East current troubles were actually created by our national naivete, back in the late 1940s. Then in the Philippines we support the army of a hated dictator because we can't afford to lose military bases there. And so on and on. If only everywhere in the world everyone would listen to us, forget their own customs and cultures, then all would be love of mother and apple pie.

WELL INTERIOR SECRETARY Jim Watt has gone. Surprising the number of people who think of him as head of the Environmental Agency. But at least as a people we can cope with Watt. He's American and we think of the job he did as secretary according to our various concepts.

For my own part I never thought of him as a friend or foe, but never the monster he has been made to appear in some quarters. However, the least of his ill-considered remarks was the one that caused him to give up his job. At the risk of being branded callous I find nothing really wrong with his statement to the effect that his appointments to a committee included "every kind of mixture . . . a black, a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

Rather crude humor, I'll grant, but his hearers burst into spontaneous laughter. I heard and saw it twice. My question then is since when have those designated become ashamed of their circumstances in life? I suspect that no one would have thought a thing of the statement had it not come from Watt, a man with a background of gaffes, some of which are either dumb or bigoted.

One senator, commenting, observed that use of the word "cripple" is derogatory and has been out of use for at least 20 years. I have news for the senator. In Texas two of our most respected organizations have the word "cripple" in their titles. Handicapped and disabled. I reckon, just haven't reached us in these parts.

Talk about the Russians being paranoid. In this country we have become just as much so when it comes to descriptors for people, their jobs, status, sex, color.

Communications is focus of two workshops

Two workshops designed for managers and administrators entitled "Indirect Communications: Maintaining Good Will in Difficult Situations" will be held on the Corpus Christi State University campus in late October.

The workshops will focus on handling communication which involves unpleasant or negative situations in such a way that it will still result in good will toward the writer and/or the company.

The format will include lecture, discussion and practice sessions.

There's plenty of good news

David Campbell is not a cheerleader.

He is a Ph.D., a psychologist and senior fellow at the Center for Creative Leadership in Greensboro, N.C. He might be mistaken for a cheerleader however, because unlike most of his intellectual peers and our society in general, he is an optimist. Better still, he is a very well-researched optimist.

(If you thought optimists were extinct or at least an endangered species, you're right. But I've got to tell you something: This man is such an optimist he's researched the original "Pollyanna.")

So put your worries about yellow rain, nuclear war, AIDS, hyperinflation, world bankruptcy and all those trendy ills that keep the presses churning aside and consider some of the good news Campbell delivered to the stunned and dour at a recent meeting of the American Psychological Association.

— We've got things going so well, we've lost our perspective.

"When was the last time," Campbell asks, "you gave a dinner party for 180 people, gave them a drink, fed them dinner, served them coffee afterwards and cleaned up after them, all in less than an hour? That happens about 3,000 times each day in the U.S." Still more impressive, it happens five miles up at sub-zero temperatures, while we are moving at almost 10 miles a minute on this nation's scheduled airlines. Whatever the inconvenience of an overly cold sandwich, the tackiness of a limited wine list or a ground delay at (God help you) Pittsburgh, we shouldn't take scheduled miracles for granted.

Now even poor health is voluntary. "Most of us," Campbell says, "are going to die from our lifestyles — from smoking, lack of exercise, excessive drug use and overeating."

Men in this country, he points out, can expect to live almost 10 years longer than their counterparts in the Soviet Union; the infant mortality rate is a third of that in the Soviet Union; and the rate of job-related accidents has been declining for decades. As Blue Cross-Blue Shield has gone to great lengths to publicize in recent years, the biggest improvements we can make are in what they call "Health Thyself" — changing some of the habits that shorten our lives.

— Positive change is coming even faster. "Future Shock" may be hard to take, but Millennial Sloth is more deadly. One dramatic example Campbell provides is the cure for scurvy: A killer of ship crews in 1500, a possible cure was found in 1601 when a ship's captain gave his sailors daily rations of lemon juice. Nothing, however, was done about the cure. For centuries!

The British Navy didn't use lime juice until 1795 and the merchant marine didn't use it until 1865. It took four lifetimes to cure scurvy.

Modern disease remedies are disseminated throughout the world in less than a generation and some technologies — such as semiconductor memories — have proliferated in less than a decade. Campbell, for instance, tells of visiting Machu Picchu, the ancient city of the Incas in the Peruvian Andes.

Isolated? "Not even Coca-Cola signs," he says. Yet when he negotiated to buy a blanket and wanted to know how much it was in dollars, the weaver retrieved a Casio calculator from her shawl and provided the conversion from Peruvian currency to dollars.

If you think about your own work, chances are it has been changed for the better by new tools. Here are some from mine:

— Twenty-five years ago, in a summer job, I tried to build an instrument that would measure the heat produced in the polymerization of vinyl chloride. Even with the help of an MIT classmate who was an electronics wiz, there was no simple way to use vacuum tubes and make a circuit that would multiply.

Fifteen years later, pocket calculators with much greater capacity swept the country and now they are in remotest Peru.

— Almost 15 years ago, while a management consultant at Arthur D. Little, I spent most of a week rearranging wires on an IBM card sorter while making a cost-reduction study for a major media company. It was done that way because having programmers do it would have taken forever. Now the same work can be done on a small computer and much more complicated data analysis often provides the foundation for these columns, but it can all be done in minutes.

The bottom line? Social wars, threats of war and major environmental problems notwithstanding, Campbell believes we are living in "the most creative, productive and effective problem-solving society" in human history.

Take a minute, just a minute, every once in a while and enjoy it.

For a collection of Scott Burns' columns about discount dividend reinvestment plans, send $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Dividend Reinvestment, The Scott Burns Column, P.O. Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

RRC announces pipeline, gas summary

SEPTEMBER PIPELINE SUMMARY

AUSTIN — Railroad Commission (RRC) Chairman Mack Wallace has announced that 17 permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in September. In August, the commission approved 20 permits and 23 were granted in September 1982.

Ten of the new permits were for gathering pipelines, three were for trunk transmission lines, one was for a distribution line, one was for a gas plant line and two were for multi-purpose lines. Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while a trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect. At gas plants gas is stripped of the liquid hydrocarbons usually present in wellhead gas.

Sixteen of the newly-permitted lines will transport gas and one will carry crude oil.

In September five permits were granted to operate pipelines in the Refugio area (District 2), three in deep South Texas (District 4), two each in Southeast Texas (District 3) and West Central Texas (District 7B) and one each in East Texas (District 6), the Panhandle (District 10), and the San Antonio (District 11), San Angelo (District 7C) and Midland (District 8) areas.

Gathering lines approved: Sexton Oil & Minerals Corp., Corpus Christi, gas, Nueces County and offshore; Superior Oil Co., The Woodlands, gas (two lines, one each in Hidalgo and Lavaca counties); Enrich Oil Corp., Abilene, gas, Runtels County; Sandefur Petroleum, Houston, gas (two lines, Live Oak County); American Producers Inc., Houston, crude, Midland County; Pogo Producing Co., Houston, gas, Jim Hogg County; Paisano Transmission Co., George West, gas, Live Oak County; A.D. Mammel Properties Inc., Tyler, gas, Harrison County.

Trunk transmission lines approved: Corpus Christi Gas Gathering Inc., Corpus Christi, gas, Dimmit County; Venture Pipeline Co., Houston, gas, Wharton County; Seagull Transmission Co., Houston, gas, Calhoun and Matagorda counties and offshore.

Distribution lines approved: Neches Gas Distribution Co., Houston, gas, Jefferson County.

Gas plant lines approved: Panhandle Producing Co., San Antonio, gas, Taylor County.

Multi-purpose lines approved: Prairie States Gas Co., Wichita, Kan., gas, Lipscomb and Ochiltree counties; Colony Gathering Corp., Midland, gas, Throckmorton County.

SEPTEMBER OIL AND GAS DRILLING APPLICATIONS

A total of 2,367 drilling applications were processed by the Railroad Commission in September.

In August 12,320 applications were processed as oil and gas operators sought to avoid a $100 drilling permit fee that went into effect on Sept. 1. The fee will provide funds for plugging abandoned wells and general enforcement of state pollution prevention laws involving oil and gas operations.

The September total included 1,820 applications for permits to drill new oil and gas tests, 55 applications to deepen existing holes, 193 applications to plugback existing holes and 24 applications for service (non-producing) wells. Operators also filed 275 amended drilling applications.

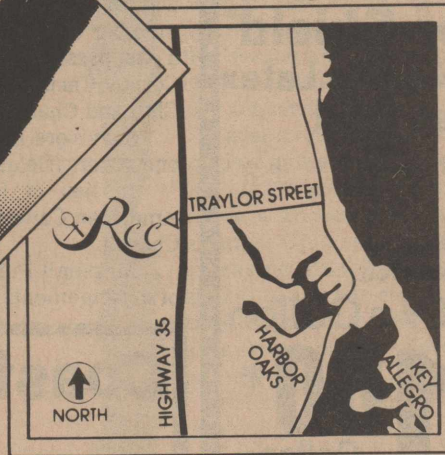

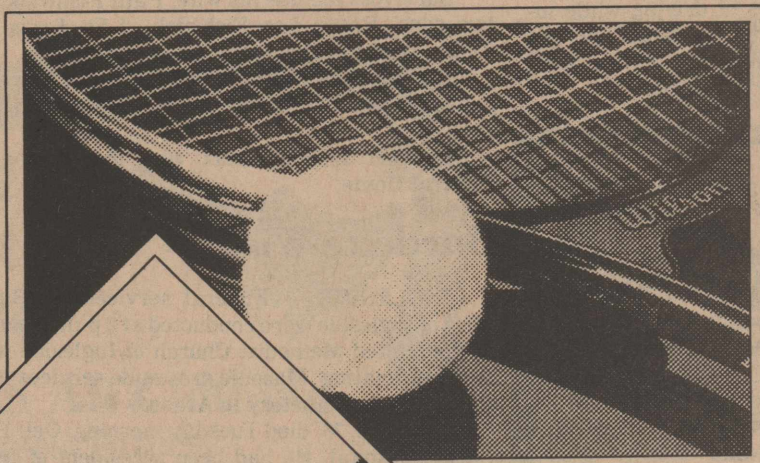

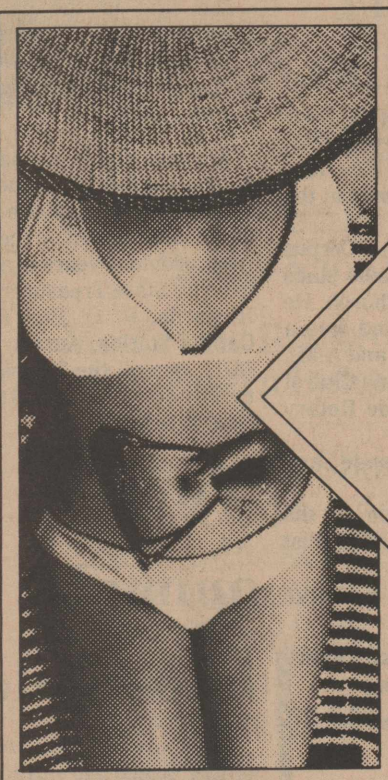

Applications for new oil and gas holes in September included 260 in the San Antonio area (District 1), 49 in the Refugio area (District 2), 139 in Southeast Texas (District 3), 111 in deep South Texas (District 4), 49 in East central Texas (District 5), 76 in East Texas (District 6), 294 in West Central Texas (District 7B), 123 in the San Angelo area (District 7C), 219 in the Midland area (District 8), 208 in the Lubbock area (District 8A), 220 in North Texas (District 9) and 72 in the Panhandle (District 10).

In September a year ago the commission processed 2,667 new oil and gas test applications, 79 deepening applications, 236 plugback applications, 77 service well applications and 785 amended applications.

In September 1983 the commission processed 25 oil and 98 gas discoveries. For the same period a year ago, 52 oil and 128 gas discoveries were processed.

In September, operators reported 487 oil and gas dry holes.

"Put a Little
Spice in Your Life."

The man who's been everywhere likes it where he is

By PAT BLAIR
Not too many years back, a song was making the rounds about a man who's "been everywhere."

It could've been written about Paul Gill.

"I used to travel quite a bit," Paul said during a recent interview at his home in Oak Terrace, "including going bi-weekly for four months between New York and Los Angeles. I crossed the Atlantic 19 times and have been around the world once.

"I have traveled by ship, train, plane, chopper and riverboat..."

A native of Baltimore, Md., Paul graduated from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute then continued his education in engineering and business management at John Hopkins University, Carnegie Tech, Penn State University, Rutgers and General Motors Institute.

His jobs, like his travels, have been varied, but most of his career was with the consulting firm of Booz, Allen & Hamilton — although he also worked with Epasco, the consulting firm for the South Texas Project.

And mentioning the South Texas Project reminds Paul: "I checked out the Three Mile Island Plant while it was being built, while they were building unit 2." That, he recalls, was around 1965.

He also did work for a time with International Engineering, a consulting firm called Production Research Corp. and Emerson Consultants — the company he was working for when he retired and he and his wife, Margaret, came to Rockport.

"I've been in mining — coal and potash — railroads from terminal development to locomotive building, (railroad) car building, watches, electronics — I ate food cooked in a microwave well before they came out publicly — shipbuilding, chemicals, oil refining, tool making, textiles..."

He married Margaret in 1935 — they have three children and two grandchildren — and she shared most of his travels with him. They have lived throughout the United States, in Hawaii (for a year), London, South Wales, Pakistan, Bangladesh, pre-Castro Cuba, Egypt and Quebec. In addition, they have traveled to all the states except the five northwest ones, Paul says, to Nova Scotia, Bermuda, Nassau, Jamaica, India, Scotland, Japan, Thailand, Hong Kong, Nepal, Greece, Italy, Austria, Germany...

"One airplane flight I took was 26 hours long," Paul says. He has memories of being caught in a snowstorm in Saskatchewan, of visits to Black Forest, the Vatican, Acropolis, Stonehenge, Dylan Thomas' home in Wales, the Great Pyramids, Luxor and the Valley of the Kings.

When Paul retired, he and Margaret made a list of all the places in which they'd lived and visited. At that time, they were living in Houston — which was home for three years — and one of the places they'd visited was a small town on the Texas coast... Rockport.

"We decided Rockport answered all our criteria," Paul said. They moved here in 1976.

Since coming here, Paul has become active in the Rockport Rotary Club and is a board member of the Aransas County Council on Aging. He's a past president of the Oak Terrace Property Owners Association and he and Margaret are both members of the Rockport Chapter of AARP.

Among his hobbies is the fishpond he and Margaret have in their back yard, stocked with varieties of goldfish. "We feed the birds, feed the fish..." He enjoys woodworking and has his workbench set up in the garage.

"And I tend the lawn," he said. "Margaret does the flowers — I stick to the lawn."

And he still gets calls "once in a while" from firms he once worked for, seeking his advice.

But he doesn't travel. "I threw away my traveling bags," he said. "I don't want to travel anymore — I've seen enough."

The man who's been everywhere likes it just where he is.

It's not too late to fertilize your lawn this fall

By MIKE ROTHROCK
County Extension Agent-Ag
San Patricio-Aransas counties

If you haven't fertilized your lawn in a while, it's not too late to do so. Fall fertilization can boost a lawn while minimizing energy requirements for mowing and removal of grass clippings.

A fall application of fertilizer not only prolongs green color in lawns but also increases turf density and reduces weeds.

Warm fall days and cool nights provide conditions favorable for grass to accumulate carbohydrates that promote root growth and help winter survival. And since leaf growth is also less during the shorter fall days, delaying lawn fertilization until mid-September or October helps reduce mowing requirements and energy use.

I recommend applying a fertilizer high in nitrogen and potassium and low in phosphorus.

Both nitrogen and potassium are important to leaf growth and color and root growth. Potassium is also important to winter survival, disease resistance and drought tolerance. Phosphorus is essential but is required in much lesser amounts than the other nutrients.

I suggest a fertilizer with an 18-18-5, 10-10-5 or similar analysis for the fall application.

Base the rate of application on the nitrogen content, the first number in the fertilizer analysis. Apply 1 to 2 pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn. If the lawn has not been fertilized for the past three months or longer, use the 2 pound higher rate.

Boyd Wright sculpture exhibit opens at art museum

An exhibition of sculpture by California artist Boyd Wright opens at the Art Museum of South Texas, 1902 N. Shoreline in Corpus Christi, Thursday, Oct. 15, and will be on display through Nov. 30.

The 24 sculptures in the exhibition are wood constructions and assemblages. Wright's work is about personal experiences and about the task of coping and adaptation to the revelations of daily existence.

Wright, born in Idaho and raised in Montana, currently lives and works in Ojai, Calif. He received his B.F.A. from Utah State University in 1967 and his M.F.A. from the University of Idaho in 1970. He is the recipient of the National Endowment for the Arts Individual Artists Fellowship in 1982-83 and his most recent commission was for Arco Oil Company for their new building in Dallas.

Growing up in the Rocky Mountains of Montana and Idaho, Wright's physical world was comprised of a landscape of craggy mountains meeting wooded valleys opening into vast grasslands. In this sparsely populated region the few man-made objects to be seen were basically simple pragmatic forms — a line of fence posts, a stacked pile of firewood and the open grid structure of a horse corral.

The house and barn were straightforward unelaborated structures and only the odd chunky shapes of tractors and heavy equipment and the various small hand tools to be found in the shed or barn could be considered eccentric to the eye and sculpturally unique.

Set against this picturesque background, Wright found meaning to simple gestures. His small works "Learning to Spit" and "The Bull" are examples of a natural sense of humor and his ability as a sculptor to graphically amplify basically mundane experiences.

His three-dimensional forms project into space, interweave and overlap as one moves around them. Wright basically works with open rather than closed forms. They are organic and skeletal, relating more to human space and form as opposed to the scale and forms of architecture.

The references made to shrines, "Photo: A Shrine," and altars, "Grandstand (Altar, Triangles-Relationship)," suggest Wright is involved in a kind of neo-primitivism, a wish for spiritual fulfillment out of the daily regime of the American work ethic. His work spiritually joins with the box constructions of Robert Helm of Moscow, Idaho, and anthropomorphic figures by James Surls of Splendor.

Public address equipment missing in church burglary

Microphones, speakers and a six-channel amplifier were reported missing to the Aransas County Sheriff's Department Wednesday, Oct. 12, after a Fulton church was burglarized sometime between Monday, Oct. 10 and Oct. 12.

Entry was apparently gained through an unlocked door. Value of the missing items was estimated at $2,050.

The office of a county veterinarian was also hit by burglars between Sept. 24 and 26. Missing items include drugs, $80 in cash and a pistol. Sheriff's deputies are investigating the incident.

The manager of a city car wash reported $105 in cash and checks were taken from the storage room of the car wash Friday afternoon, Sept. 23. A description of two suspects has been given to the sheriff's department.

The plate glass window of a city dress shop was shot with a gun on Saturday, Oct. 8. Damage to the window was estimated at $170.

Terry Jay Stephenson of Rockport was arrested on charges of criminal mischief after he was observed throwing a glass bottle through the window of a trailer belonging to Leo Prophet of Rockport on Friday, Sept. 7. Damage was estimated at $100.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating an incident on Oct. 6 in which a window at the Fulton Oak Apartments was broken.

The sheriff's department arrested three persons on charges of driving while intoxicated last week and one on charges of driving with license suspended.

Texas Treasurer Ann Richards has released the names of five Aransas County residents or businesses to whom money is due from the state treasury's unclaimed money fund.

The names are E and N

Air Conditioning, Harry H. Lutz, Radleelia Ramirez, R. G. Scott and Daredeth D. Scriftfield.

Richards said the treasury owes these people $50 or more from accounts that have been unclaimed for the past seven years.

Statewide, Richards is seeking some 20,000 individuals or businesses who are due a total $7 million from abandoned accounts held in the unclaimed money fund.

"We're working hard to reunite people with their lost or forgotten money," Richards said. Under Texas law, the State Treasury is responsible for holding accounts and other types of property reported by banks, insurance companies and other businesses unclaimed or abandoned for seven years.

Richards said she is putting a high priority on returning these funds to the rightful owners. "There is no time limit on filing a claim," she emphasized. "If we have the money, we'll give it back once we verify ownership as the law requires."

She said in the past 12 months, the Treasury returned more than $1 million in lost or forgotten money.

Anyone who is named as having unclaimed money or who believes he or she may have abandoned accounts from previous years is asked to write State Treasurer Ann Richards, P. O. Box 12608, Capitol Station, Austin, Tex. 78711, or call the Treasury's toll-free "hotline," 1-800-321-CASH.

Twenty animals

Rockport's animal control officer issued one citation for violation of the city's animal control ordinance and impounded 20 animals — 10 dogs and 10 cats — during September.

The monthly animal control report issued to the city council at its meeting Tuesday night showed all 20 animals destroyed for reasons of injury/health during the month.

One dog bite was reported but the injury wasn't serious. The animal control office received 92 calls during the period.

Area fishing report

Beach Road Bait House — 729-8614 — Redfish are coming in pretty good. Some croakers and flounder off pier, caught on live shrimp. Good supply of live and dead bait for the weekend.

Sea Gun — 729-2341 — "The fishing's been real good!" Plenty of nice sized reds, drum and flounder from charter boat trips. Trout are bigger than usual. A group out on Wednesday afternoon after the big blow had real good luck.

Sandollar Marina — 729-8562 — "Fish have been pretty decent lately." As far as the weather allowed this week, fishermen had pretty good luck. Trout and a lot of reds (too little to keep) caught off the pier. Trout (most in the 14-inch range) are best late at night. Lots of bigger reds coming in on boats from farther out. Excellent bait supply through the weekend and if the weather holds, fishing should be good.

Matagorda deer permit available

Applications for 125 deer hunting permits for a special hunt on Matagorda Island during December are available from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Department officials said persons who receive permits must provide their own transportation to the island which can only be reached by boat. The hunt headquarters is located approximately seven miles south of Port O'Connor.

The $25 permit will entitle the hunter to participate in two days of hunting. Primitive camping is available, but there is no telephone, electricity or public water supply on the island. All provisions including drinking water must be brought to the island by the hunter.

Deadline for submitting application forms is 5 p.m. Nov. 7. Participants will be selected by drawing.

Monday night game, taking Sinton 15-9, 18-16. The seventh grade "B" team lost Monday, 8-10, 8-10. In eighth grade play, the "A" team remains undefeated, taking first place in the Sinton tourney (see page 1) and winning their Monday night game. The "B" team won Monday night, dropping their first game 9-10, then returning to win 10-5, 11-9. (Photo by Becky Werhan)

Fall flounder run means extra fun, but care should be taken

The annual fall flounder "runs" along the Texas coast offer wadefishermen excellent opportunity to catch the tasty flatfish. However, wading around flounder-fishing areas can be hazardous.

Biologist Jerry Mambretti of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department said good flounder areas often have strong currents, heavy ship and barge activity and sharp dropoffs. "Wadefishermen often overlook the importance of a flotation device (life preserver) because they don't expect to be in deep water," Mambretti said.

Drownings often occur when anglers lose their footing and are swept into deeper water. "Waders worn by fishermen can fill with water and make it even more difficult to swim to safety," Mambretti added.

Port Aransas area flounder fishermen employ a fishing technique which combines both artificial and natural baits to catch flounder.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department fishery technician Marshall Smith said when flounder fishing picks up in the fall months, fishermen rig two "worm jigs" on their line, then dress each jig with a small strip of skin cut from the white underside of a flounder. He said the extra attraction of the cut bait seems to enhance catches.

1,200 POUNDS OF TASTY FISH, designated for a fish fry for local high school athletes, were donated recently to the Rockport-Fulton Athletic Boosters by Larry's Tackle Town. Booster president Bob Dingenary (far left) presented Tackle Town owners Larry and Mary John Hoffman with a Booster plaque of appreciation Thursday. Dingenary also thanked Danny Adams of D & T Seafood, who arranged the donation and was responsible for the massive task of filleting the fish, caught in the recent Tackle Town tournament. A&I Javs take on S.F. Jacks

The Texas A&I football team will host S.F. Austin State in a Lone Star Conference game here Saturday night, and the Javelina defense will be facing the league's total offense leader for the past two years.

Game time will be 7 p.m. in Javelina Stadium and in attendance will be nine high school bands from throughout South Texas taking part in Band Day activities.

The SFA attack is led by Tod Weder, 6-foot-1-inch, 180-pound senior quarterback who led the LSC in total offense last year, is the league's total offense leader this season and has been selected as the LSC's top offensive player this fall.

Weder averaged 232.0 total yards a game in 1982 and hit 147 of 298 passes for 2,064 yards or an average of 187.6 a game. This season, he is averaging 196.6 total yards an outing and has completed 65 of 119 passes for 860 yards, an average of 172.0 yards a game.

Weder's .546 completion percentage is the best in the LSC this year.

The SFA rushing is led by Michael LeBlanc, 5-foot-11-inch, 175-pound junior fullback. He is averaging 57.6 yards a game and has averaged 6 yards a carry.

The Lumberjacks are averaging 389.2 total yards a game, 185.2 rushing and 204.0 passing, while the squad has allowed 284.6 an outing, 136.6 rushing and 148.0 passing.

The Javelinas are led in total offense by quarterback Chris Soza, who has averaged 88.0 yards a game.

Bon appetit!

By ANN THOMAS

This week bon appetit salutes our German heritage and Octoberfest. A visit to Fredericksburg, Germany, would be fantastic or locally one to New Braunfels or Fredericksburg almost as good for a sampling of real German cuisine. Unfortunately, there are those of us who can do neither so here are some authentic recipes to make in your own kitchen. Why not have your own celebration?

GEBACKENER BLUMENKOHHL

(Fried Cauliflower)

1 large head of cauliflower
1 cup flour
1/2 cup milk
2 large eggs
1 1/2 teaspoons melted butter
3/4 teaspoon salt
Wash and cut the cauliflower into flowerettes. Soak in salt water 15 minutes. Remove and drain well. Cook the flowers in 2 inches of water for 5 minutes or until just tender. Remove and drain well.

Prepare batter with ingredients listed above and dip flowers in it being sure to coat well. Drop into deep, hot grease and fry to a golden brown. Drain on paper towels.

SAUSAGE, CABBAGE AND POTATO CASSEROLE

Prepare German sausage as directed and set aside. Boil 1 large head of cabbage which has been cut in quarters. Boil 4 large potatoes which have been pared and cut in half.

When vegetables are tender, drain and remove to a greased dish and place sausage chunks amid the vegetables. Season slightly with salt and pepper and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes to meld the flavors.

SAUERKRAUTSALAT

2 cans sauerkraut, rinsed and drained
1/2 cup chopped onions
1/2 cup chopped green peppers
2 cups chopped celery
1 small jar pimentoes, finely chopped
3/4 cup white vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery salt

Mix all of the ingredients and refrigerate overnight. Serve cold.

GRUNER BOHNENS

Trim and shred lengthwise 1 pound of fresh green beans. Cook in boiling water for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, fry four slices of bacon until crisp and then saute 2 tablespoons chopped onions with the bacon. Remove and reserve the drippings.

To the drippings, add 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mix well. Drain the beans well and add them along with the bacon and onions to the skillet. Mix gently and serve as a side dish with German sausage.

OVEN CABBAGE

Butter a casserole dish and preheat oven to 325 degrees. Put 3 cups shredded cabbage in it. Cover with the following mixture and bake 45 minutes.

2 well beaten eggs
3/4 cup cream
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika

May cover this with bread crumbs, dot with butter and sprinkle with your choice of grated cheese to add a soufflé like texture.

ROTHER RUBEN MIT APFLE

Grease a casserole dish and preheat oven to 325 degrees.

2 cups chopped cooked beets
2 cups chopped raw apples
1/2 cup finely sliced onions
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Mix all ingredients gently and place in dish. Dot with butter and sprinkle with nutmeg. Cover and bake 1 hour.

HOT SLAW WITH SAUSAGE AND APPLE

1/2 pound sausage
3 tablespoons white vinegar
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups shredded cabbage
1 large apple, grated
Fry sausage and drain, reserving drippings. Add the next four ingredients to the skillet and bring to a boil.

Reduce heat and add final two ingredients simmering for 1 minute while being certain that liquid coats cabbage and apples well. Remove to dish and top with sausage.

APPLES AND ONIONS

Sound like an unlikely combination? It isn't if you are of German ancestry.

Set over at 375 degrees and grease a casserole dish. Peel and cut in 1/8-inch slices four large apples and four large onions. Saute eight slices bacon which have been minced and remove, reserving 2 tablespoons grease in which to toss 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs. Layer apples, onions, bacon and cover with a mixture of 3/4 cup water and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Top with crumbs and bake for 15 minutes.

CREAM CHEESE KUCHEN

1/2 cup butter
8 ounces cream cheese
1 1/4 cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup milk
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt

Topping:

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup nuts

Cream the butter and cream cheese. Add sugar, blend in eggs, vanilla and milk.

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Mix well and pour into 9-inch by 13-inch pan then cover with topping. Bake for 35-40 minutes.

APPLE STREUSEL CAKE

1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
3 apples, sliced

Cream butter and egg mixed with milk. Add flour, mix all and press into 8-inch by 12-inch pan. Put apples on top and sprinkle with mixture of 3/4 cup sugar, 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons butter. Bake 45 minutes at 375 degrees or until apples are done. (Recipe does not call for greasing the pan but a light coat of Pam might be a good idea.)

SOFT GINGERBREAD

This recipe has been in my mother's family for so many years that we feel it must have come with the family from Germany.

1/2 cup sugar
1 cup dark molasses
1/2 cup butter
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
2 teaspoons baking soda dissolved in 1 cup boiling water
2 1/2 cups flour mixed with 1/2 teaspoon salt
2 large beaten eggs

Mix all of the above ingredients and add the eggs last. Pour into a greased, floured pan and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until tester comes out clean. Do not overbake! Delicious plain, but delightful with a dollop of whipped cream or lemon sauce poured over it.

DESSERT PRETZELS

These are similar to a tea-cake.
1 cup butter

2/3 cup sugar
8 ounces sour cream
3 eggs, separated
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon soda

Combine butter, 2/3 cup sugar, commercial sour cream, 3 egg yolks, 1 egg white, baking powder, soda. Mix well. Chill overnight.

Divide dough into 24 equal parts. Working on a slightly floured board, use palms of hands to roll each portion into a strand 1/4 inch in diameter and 12 inches long. Form each strand into a loose knot, tucking ends under. Place on baking sheet and brush lightly with egg whites and if desired, sprinkle with a mixture of ground cinnamon and sugar. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned.

That concludes our offering for this week. If any of you would like a specific recipe please write to me in care of this newspaper and I'll try to get it for you. Do enjoy your Octoberfest dinner and I hope to see you back here next week. Until then, bon appetit!

Honey makes a versatile sweetener, energy booster

Honey has been the primary sweetener in the human diet for centuries. It was referred to as the sustainer of life during Biblical times. Not only was it thought to prolong and enhance one's health, but it was one of the few foods during that time that could be preserved for future use. This energy booster comes in the simplest form of carbohydrate available which makes for quick digestion and absorption.

Honey today is used in a variety of ways. Besides its popular use in baking and cooking, honey has been used in healing as well as in cough syrups and beauty aids. Beeswax, another product of the honeybee, is a component of adhesives, candles, cosmetics, polishes, paints and lubricants. . . to name just a few.

Honey is composed of approximately 18 to 20 percent water and most of the remainder is carbohydrate (levulose and glucose). Vitamins present in raw honey include thiamine, riboflavin, ascorbic acid, pyridoxine, pantothenic acid and nicotinic acid. Iron, copper, sodium, potassium, magnesium, calcium, phosphorus and manganese are some of the minerals found in most honey.

Honey is 90 percent pre-digested and aids in the digestion of other foods. The combination of simple sugars enables the body to use some of the food (glucose) within a few minutes or ingestion, while the levulose portion delays its energy production for later use. The flavor, color and aroma of honey varies according to the flower and the plant source of the nectar. The general rule of thumb is "The lighter the color, the milder the flavor." Some light colored honeys such as clover seem sweeter than the amber honeys such as buckwheat, but the darker honeys may contain greater amounts of minerals.

Let's compare honey with cane or beet sugar. Honey is a direct product of nature; sugar is a plant product which must be extracted and refined. Honey in the raw state has a measurable amount of vitamins and minerals present; sugar does not. Honey per unit measured is sweeter than sugar. A calorie comparison will show honey having 1,481 calories per pound while cane sugar contains 1,815 calories for the same amount.

In most health food or back-to-nature recipes, honey is the primary sweetener. Citrus honey is excellent for light sauces on fruits and salads. The full-flavored honeys are used in spicy pastries. Honey in baked goods makes the product softer, more moist and makes sauces smoother in texture.

Honey comes in many forms on the grocery shelf. You can find it in liquid, comb, cut comb, creamed and chunk styles. This offers a wide variety of possibilities for its preparation.

Honey has the ability to absorb and retain moisture so your baked goods will last longer on the shelf. Room temperature is best for storing your honey — in a plastic or glass container. If it does crystallize, just heat it until warm (not over 140 degrees F.). This will retain its nutrient content and flavor as well as returning it to its liquid state.

When using a recipe that calls for sugar and deciding to substitute honey, remember the three basic rules of substitution:

Use less honey than sugar (3/4 cup honey per 1 cup sugar).

Reduce liquid in recipe by 1/4 cup for each cup of honey used.

Reduce oven temperature 25 degrees to prevent overbrowning.

Once you try cooking with honey — you will be pleasantly surprised at how easy it is. Those interested in the uses of honey and the production of honey and other honeybee-derived products will find programs and short courses of interest at the 1983 Texas Beekeepers Convention in Austin on Nov. 3, 4 and 5 at the Sheraton Crest Inn. For information write to Texas Beekeepers Association, Route 1, Box 95-B, Edcouch, Texas 78538 or call 262-1722.

Antipasto perfect as a light meal anytime

Italians frequently combine hearty appetizers and soups for light lunches or suppers. Why not try this delicious duo as any easy meal? The antipasto, which literally translated means before the meal, is composed of a variety of meats, cheese, fish, eggs and vegetables. This cold assortment is then doused with a tangy dressing. To accompany their antipasto, Italians eat a typical vegetable soup call Minestrone. Your soup can be ever so easy . . . creamy tomato with meatballs; beef ravioli with vegetables; mini beef cannelloni with vegetables; chicken stock with meatballs and chicken; or minestrone with meatballs. Chock full of vegetables and pasta, (in the minestrone it's called ditaline) these soups are not only delicious, but nutritious. Salute the Italians. Buon appetito!

Salute Texas seafood during National Seafood Month

October — National Seafood Month — is a good time for consumers to salute the Texas seafood industry by preparing seafood at home.

"It's fitting that we acknowledge both the economic and nutritive value of this natural resource," says Annette Redell Hegen, consumer information specialist with Texas A&M's Agricultural Extension Service.

Texas fisheries produced $186 million worth of seafood in 1982, notes Hegen.

Because it is a high quality source of protein and is low in fat, more nutrition-conscious Texans are discovering seafood, says the specialist.

Although 70 percent of the seafood consumed by Texans is eaten in restaurants, there is a growing interest in preparing it at home.

People have gotten over the idea that all you can do with seafood is fry it or bake it, says Hegen. Seafood is becoming popular for microwave cooking, smoking and grilling outdoors and even drying for jerky.

Consumers are also learning that they can use seafood for salads, dips, sandwiches and a variety of recipes in addition to main dishes.

During the fall, shrimp, oysters, crab, bay and gulf fish are available for Texan consumers. Although the price per pound may seem high, says Hegen, it is quite reasonable when you figure the per-serving cost of this high-protein food.

Anyone interested in cooking seafood can get a free series of recipe cards and brochures on all types of Texas seafood, by writing Seafood Marketing, Texas A&M University, P.O. Box 158, Port Aransas, Texas 78373.

Beef provides key nutrients for dieters

Many dieters deny themselves beef when they might be better off including it in their meals, says nutritionist Marilyn Haggard.

Beef and other meats are nutrient-dense foods that provide relatively large amounts of essential nutrients in relation to the total calories they contain, she explains.

"When dieting it can be difficult to obtain recommended levels of all nutrients, especially those which are present in relatively low concentration in foods," says the Texas A&M Agricultural Extension specialist.

Nutrition-conscious dieters who are concerned about getting enough vitamin B-6, iron and zinc, will often take costly vitamin pills and dietary supplements. Yet beef is an easily available source of these nutrients, says Haggard.

The key to including beef in low-calorie diets is selecting lean meat and eating it in appropriate amounts, says the nutritionist.

Teenage girls and women who are dieting should be especially concerned about their consumption of lean meat since this is a group most likely to be iron-deficient, notes the specialist.

Indigent health studied

Due to the present, critical situation in Texas relating to the responsibility for the cost of health care for indigents, the Texas Hospital Association (THA) has established a Task Force on Medical Indigents.

Drastic reductions in federal funding for health care programs coupled with the effects of national economic developments have strained hospitals to the point that the increase in uncompensated care provided to indigents will affect the financial status of all Texas hospitals.

In previous sessions of the Legislature, public hospitals have unsuccessfully attempted to obtain the authority to seek payment for services provided to indigents from alternate sources. The Task Force was created to recommend to the Texas Legislature an equitable resolution to this dilemma. The final Task Force report will be submitted by Sept. 30, 1984.

Task Force Chairman James F. Pears, fellow of the American College of Hospital Administrators (FACHA), Memorial Hospital, Marshall, and Vice Chairman B.H. Corum, PhD, RPH, FACHA, Bexar County Hospital District, San Antonio, appointed three subcommittees to study major areas of concern.

Robert Gutierrez, McAllen Methodist Hospital, will chair the Subcommittee On Defining Indigency, Residency and Scope of Service.

Richard L. Durbin, Harris County Hospital District, Houston, will direct the Subcommittee On Identifying Financial Resources; and the Subcommittee On Public and Private Hospital's Responsibilities will be led by Douglas D. Hawthorne, FACHA, Presbyterian Hospital of Dallas.

The Task Force will conduct membership hearings in several locations throughout the state to gain insight on the viewpoints of THA member hospitals. The Task Force also will monitor the progress of the Texas Legislature's Task Force On Indigent Health Care and studies conducted by other impacted statewide associations.

A complete list of Task Force and subcommittee members along with meeting dates is available through the Government Relations Department at THA. THA is the Austin-based trade association for hospitals in Texas with over 800 institutional and 4,500 personal members.

Hightower names board appointments, says bond program open

Proclaiming the state's new Agriculture Development Bond Program "open for business," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower introduced Friday, Oct. 7, his appointees to the three-member Agricultural Development Board that will oversee the program.

"As far as I'm concerned, we've scored a coup," Hightower said.

"We've landed one of the most successful ranchers in the state, the president of one of the oldest food processing companies in the state and one of the most respected bankers in the state. I couldn't be happier that people of this caliber have agreed to serve. Their experience will be invaluable."

Travis County rancher/businessman Mike Levi will chair the new board, Hightower said. Levi, a founder of the Red Brangus cattle breed, is immediate past president of the American Red Brangus Association and an active member of a number of other state and national cattlemen's organizations.

"I can't speak highly enough of Mike," Hightower said. "He's been one of the most active and articulate members of our Texas Family Farm and Ranch Advisory Committee which keeps Gov. White and me informed about the problems of grassroots farmers and ranchers around the state. I rely heavily on him already and I'm extremely pleased that Mike has agreed to head up the Agricultural Development Board."

Kenneth L. Burgess of Littlefield will serve in the designated finance seat on the board, Hightower said. Chairman and chief executive officer of the Security State Bank in Littlefield, Burgess also is chairman of the Olton State Bank and the Muleshoe State Bank and serves as a director of Bank of the West in Lubbock and of Texas Independent Bank in Dallas.

He also serves on the boards of Water Inc. and the High Plains Research Foundation and is a member of the Advisory Council of the Texas Tech School of Banking, Burgess, a graduate of Texas Tech and the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking, has 15 years of farming experience and 15 years of agricultural lending experience.

"We feel that in Ken Burgess we've gotten one of the top agricultural finance people in the state," Hightower said, "and Ken's peers obviously share that judgment — he's the new president of the Independent Bankers Association of Texas and is vice chairman of the State Bank Division of the Texas Bankers Association. We're lucky to have him on our board."

Ralph E. Velasco, president of Amigos Food Co. Inc., of San Antonio, will fill the board slot requiring food processing and marketing industry experience. Amigos Food is one of the oldest family-owned food processing operations in the state and Velasco is past president of the Texas Food Processors Association.

"Ralph serves in an advisory capacity to the School of Business at the University of Texas in Austin," Hightower said, "and we're looking forward to making him spend even more time in Austin in the future. Ralph is really the board member who knows first-hand what's involved in financing and running an agricultural product processing and marketing operation and we're delighted to have him."

The Agricultural Development Board held its first meeting Oct. 7 and is ready to begin accepting applications for projects to be financed under the new program which was created earlier this year under the sponsorship of Sen. Ted Lyon (D-Rockwall) and Rep. Bruce Gibson (D-Godley).

The program allows Texas counties to create local corporations to issue tax-exempt bonds to make low-interest financing available to farmers and ranchers to begin processing and marketing the agricultural products they produce.

Hightower stressed that the bonds do not obligate the state in any way. Early interest in the program, he said, indicates that the new board members will be kept busy.

"Officials in three counties already have the ball rolling to create the local corporations," Hightower said, "and we're getting word of a number of ventures that would meet the legislative requirements for this type of financing."

"For instance, one rancher wants to use the financing to integrate into prepared Mexican foods. A Northeast Texas farmer wants to start a cotton gin cooperative for local farmers that now have to transport their cotton long distances and are at the mercy of other ginners.

"Three West Texas ranchers want to open a small retail outlet for their own beef. One West Texas farmer wants to start a winery. A couple of others want to build a facility to wash the squash they grow and bag."

"Some farmers in East Texas want to build a $6 million plant to compress wood chips into pellets for use as fuel. And one peanut processor, concerned that his local peanut producers are going out of business, wants to bring the producers into the ownership of the company so they can make enough to continue producing the peanuts his company needs to stay in business."

"The fact is that there's not much processing of agricultural products in Texas," Hightower said. "Most of our production is shipped out-of-state for processing, so the possibilities for our farmers and ranchers to move into that 'value-added' sector of the food industry are virtually unlimited."

"I have high hopes for this program — I think it will help our Texas producers hold onto some of the profit that traditionally has gone to the big middlemen, the processing and marketing conglomerates."

Two men arrested for theft

Two men were arrested by Rockport police on charges of burglary of a vehicle Oct. 11 after they were observed taking a battery out of a car parked in the lot of a city discount store.

Pablo de los Santos of Los Fresnos and Reynaldo Ramos of Brownsville were arrested after law enforcement officials detained a vehicle fitting the description of the suspects' car. The battery was found in the back seat of the car.

Both suspects were also charged with possession of marijuana after a search of the vehicle turned up a small amount of the substance.

Juan C. Romero of Rockport was arrested Tuesday, Oct. 11 on charges of driving while intoxicated, driving with license suspended, evading arrest and resisting arrest after his vehicle was observed going 58 miles per hour in a 40 mph zone.

Prepare for arrival of new kitten

By HAP LUTZ, DVM

In welcoming your new kitten, there are a few things you'll want to have to make the newest member of the family feel right at home. First, a bed. A cardboard box will do; however, it should be large enough for your cat to turn around in. Place a warm blanket in his bedroom — and don't be surprised if he'd rather snuggle up to you!

Second necessity is a litter box. This can be made from a plastic dishpan. Line the pan with a sheet of plastic to make the cleanup easier. Put about two inches of commercial clay litter in the box as an absorbant and deodorizer.

The third and last item necessary is two vessels, one dish for water, another for food. Both should be rust-proof, tip-proof and not too deep. Locate them in a permanent place. Most people put them in the kitchen.

Help your cat feel at ease by letting him explore his new home. Don't smother him with attention. Let your cat set the pace in your new friendship.

You will find the first day in a new home is a big day for you and your cat.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, mail them

TV viewers in the East already have begun seeing one of the cleverest and best-produced series of commercials in a long time. The ads are for Bally's Park Place Casino Hotel and they show a group of seven renowned sports personalities singing and dancing their praises for this Atlantic City landmark. Put together in conjunction with the Emmy Award-winning "Greatest Sports Legends" TV series these commercials feature Baseball Hall of Famers Willie Mays and Brooks Robinson; tennis hustler Bobby Riggs; hockey great Phil Esposito; former pro basketball standout Walt Frazier; National Football League legend Johnny Unitas; and all-time wrestling champion Bruno Sammartino. Dressed in tuxedos and surrounded by the elegance and bright lights of Bally's, these sports legends may not always sing on tune or dance in step — but their message is clear and memorable. And all the commercials have the same tag line: "Bally's Park Place Casino Hotel — Atlantic City's Winning Address."

Housewife Shirley Smith of Albany, Ore., became the first woman to qualify for the Homelife tournament of kings world chain saw cutting championship when she won the power saw contest at the Lake States Logging Congress, Duluth, Minn. The 46-year-old mother of four will be one of 16 champion woodcutters trying to win $10,500 in prize money at Tournament of Kings VI on Wednesday, Oct. 5, in Charlotte, N.C. Defending champion is three-time winner, Roy Booth Sr. of LaGrade, Ore.

Willie Mays isn't making a big deal about it, but he has conceded that he "hoped and expected" that the next commissioner of baseball would allow him to become involved in the national lifetime again. "I'd like to work as an ambassador of good will for baseball," the Hall of Fame outfielder said. "I think I could represent the game well in lots of things, especially with the kids." Since he became a public relations representative for an Atlantic City casino, Mays, 52, has been barred from any dealings with major-league baseball by commissioner Bowie Kuhn. But Kuhn will be replaced before next season and Mays is hoping for a change of heart by his successor. "Sure I want back in," he said. "I'm watching that commissioner thing real close. Me and Mickey, too." "Mickey," of course, is Hall of Famer Micky Mantle, whom Kuhn barred from baseball for the same reason.

Roy Bell, the lawyer for suspended Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Steve Howe, said he advised Howe to sit out the remainder of the 1983 baseball season. Howe, who has been treated for use of cocaine, was suspended by the Dodgers when he missed the team's flight to Atlanta and then refused to undergo a drug test upon arrival. "One thing I can tell you, Steve is not on narcotics," Bell said. "N-O-T, not. But I can't afford to have Steve stressed out any more by the fans, the media, the pressure. I don't think he can take the emotional strain."

"Steve is a very fine ball-player, but I'm concerned about 10 years. I'm not concerned about four weeks." Last winter Howe acknowledged a cocaine problem and spent a month in a Phoenix, Ariz., rehabilitation clinic. In May, he missed a home game and then spent another month at a treatment center in Orange, Calif.,

MCA TV's nationally syndicated Olympics preview series, "The Road to Los Angeles," has released new shows for its second season. Produced by Trans World International, the 25-week series profiles Olympic hopefuls from all over the world and includes footage of each athlete competing in international competition. The series will once again be hosted by the San Diego Padres All-Star first baseman, Steve Gravey, with former pro-football great Jimm Hill serving as field correspondent and will be filmed on location throughout the United States. Actual pre-Olympic meets and action competition will be the focus of the programs, which begin airing in January and lead straight up to the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

He's only got another week to go, and Seattle Mariners relief pitcher Bill Caudill is making sure the scales don't go beyond 205 pounds. "I've cut down to two beers a night," said Caudill, who has a clause in his contract that guarantees him $2,500 if he keeps his weight at 205 or less this season. "I figure the less beer I drink now, the more I can drink in the winter. I feel I've already saved 412 beers. That should hold me for a while." Caudill, 27, added that he still has the good fastball — but he knows it can't last forever. "Why do you think I was always hanging around Gaylord Perry?" he asked. "I'm working on other pitches. Gaylord taught me what to do when my fastball goes. He taught me that finesse comes in a little jar."

Los Angeles Raiders defensive tackle Lyle Alzado is genuinely offended that some writers have characterized the Raiders as dirty players. "We don't kick anybody . . . we just go after people," Alzado said. "I wish people would stop looking for bad things and write about what we do — win. When I was with Denver and we went to the Super Bowl, people said the same things, but we played the same way — overly aggressive. When you get hit by three, four, or five people at once it might seem dirty but it's aggressive. Dirty is taking a shot at someone to hurt 'em. We don't do that."

Two of the three New York Rangers who were traded to the Detroit Red Wings in the off-season — forwards Ron Duguay and Ed Johnstone — have decided that maybe it wasn't such a bad deal after all. "To be very honest, I've had a couple of months to think about it now and I'm very excited about the whole thing," said Duguay, who accomplished Johnstone and goaltender Ed Mio to the Wings. "I'm somewhat relieved because I did not have a tough time in New York. I'm relieved that I won't be there. I had a chance to talk to some people (about Detroit). I ran in to Rusty Staub (who used to play for the baseball Tigers) and he just came over and started to tell me about Detroit, that it's not as bad as what people make it out to be."

Boxer Roberto Duran popped into Video Shack on Broadway and bought 46 feature films — mostly mystery and suspense. He holds the all-time record there for purchases: two years ago, he wrote out a check for over $10,000 for more than 200 video cassettes.

EASEMENT BY PRESCRIPTION DEFINED

An easement is the right of one person to use another person's land in a certain manner. The most apparent type of easement is the right of one person to travel across the property of another at a given location.

Land buyers may find persons crossing their newly acquired property without permission. Can this activity be stopped? The answer depends upon whether those persons initially had permission and how long they have been crossing the property.

If they initially entered without permission and have been crossing the land openly and continuously for 10 years, then they have a so-called easement by prescription. Such an easement requires an exclusive use, however. If the landowner has used the easement in the same way as the claimant, the claimant's use is not exclusive and the easement is not valid.

If you have questions about easements, contact an attorney.

TAX BENEFITS STILL MAKE REAL ESTATE ATTRACTIVE

Two traditional advantages of real estate investment — cash flow and property appreciation — have been tempered by high interest rates and lowered inflation rates. But one significant advantage remains — and that is tax benefits.

With a small amount of your money and a large amount of borrowed money, you can still buy property that will provide you with a large tax shelter. Tax deductions, which you can claim as a property owner, include depreciation on the property and the interest paid on your loan. Depreciation can be claimed even if your property is increasing in market value.

So, depending on your investment objectives, real property may still provide you with the investment benefits you need, even in a high-interest-rate, low-inflation-rate economy. Ask your broker for more real estate investment information.

FHA PROVIDES 30-YEAR LOANS FOR MANUFACTURED HOUSING

The Federal Housing Administration recently decided to put mobile home buyers on a par with purchasers of site-built homes. Mobile homes, or permanently sited manufactured housing, may now be financed with the same type of FHA loans used for other types of homes.

The new program allows homebuyers to borrow up to 97 percent of a home's cost or value — whichever is lower — with a loan term of 30 years. A manufactured home that is placed on a permanent foundation and complies with federal manufactured housing construction standards may qualify. In addition, graduated-payment mortgages insured by the FHA may be used. This program, however, has a much lower loan ceiling, a shorter term and a higher maximum interest rate. For more information, contact a mortgage lender.

TWENTY-FIVE PERCENT OF INCOME WISE LIMIT FOR HOUSE PAYMENT

At one time, lenders felt no more than 25 percent of a homeowner's income should be spent on house payments. However, when prices and interest rates rose in the 1970s, the 25 percent rule of thumb broke down.

In some parts of the country, homebuyers ended up paying more than 40 percent of their income for house payments. The sacrifice seemed worthwhile, since the investment aspects were good.

Today, the investment advantage looks less bright in light of a lower forecasted growth rate in home values and lowered federal income taxes. Many homebuyers may feel a return to the 25 percent rule is prudent.

Ways still exist to stay within a budget and acquire a desirable home, however. You can, for instance, buy a smaller unit in a condominium or townhouse development. Ask your broker about affordable options for homebuyers.

SELLER BENEFITS FROM HOME INSPECTION

When a professional home inspection is included as part of the sale of a residence, the buyer is an obvious beneficiary of the resulting report. But the seller can benefit from home inspection as well.

For one thing, the inspection lessens the possibility of misrepresentations. The doctrine of "let the buyer beware" no longer applies in real estate. The apprehension that a sale might be invalidated by an unfavorable report is overshadowed by the possibility that a buyer might uncover a flaw at a later date and turn to legal remedies for compensation.

A competent home inspection also may reduce some of the seller's legal liability because the buyer receives a complete, impartial report on the condition of the home at the time of the inspection. Ask your broker about the standardized contracts which state the buyer's right to have the property inspected by qualified parties. Laugh Out

There's a story about an efficiency expert who only says his prayers once a year, New Year's Day. The rest of the time he just jumps into bed and says "ditto."

At a college examination a professor asked: "Does the question embarrass you?" "Not at all, sir," replied the student; "not at all. It is quite clear. It is the answer that bothers me!"

"What were those unusual greens we had tonight, Cook?" "You remember you said those geraniums in the garden looked so lovely you could eat them?" "Yes." "Well, you have."

A man on trial for his life was being examined by a group of psychiatrists. Suddenly, one doctor shouted at him: "Quick, how many feet has a centipede?" The man came back in a dry, dry voice: "Gad, is that all you have to worry about?"

Renters should know their rights

AUSTIN — Over half the people in Texas are tenants. And most have a security deposit. Many renters don't understand the purpose of that deposit or their rights regarding its refund.

A security deposit is not the price you pay for leasing a residence. It is the money a landlord holds to protect him against the damage you may purposely or accidentally cause to his property. If a tenant does not cause any damage to the leased property, and fulfills his legal and contractual obligations, the landlord must return the tenant's security deposit. That the law.

Art. 5236e of the Texas Revised Civil Statutes sets out the legal rights and obligations of the landlord and tenant regarding security deposits. Before moving, a tenant must...

- Give the landlord proper notice of termination in writing;
- Fulfill the lease agreement and cause no damage over "normal" wear and tear;
- Leave the lease premises cleaned;
- Give the landlord a forwarding address in writing;
- Return the key.

A landlord is obligated to return your security deposit and give you a written itemized list of the deductions for repairs and cleaning within 30 days after you move out. If you have provided a forwarding address, and the landlord fails to send you a written list of deductions within the required time, he must return the entire deposit without deducting anything and cannot collect for damages.

If the landlord refuses to give you your deposit back, or if you do not agree with the amount or reasons for his deductions, you can sue for your deposit. If the landlord keeps the deposit in "bad faith," you can sue for $100 plus three times the amount of the deposit wrongfully withheld and attorneys fees.

The best way to protect yourself is a check-in, check-out list, witnessed by someone not living on the property, or the landlord or manager. Let the manager or landlord know what damages there are to the property when you're ready to move out, and even take pictures if you want to have extra proof.

If you should have a landlord-tenant problem, contact our Consumer Protection Division office closest to you. You'll find division offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Huntsville, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio.

School Land Board accepts bids

AUSTIN — The Texas School Land Board accepted bids Friday for oil and gas leases on 241,570.66 acres of state land that earned the state's Permanent School Fund $29,102,416.04.

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, as chairman of the School Land Board, released the results of the lease sale which included 365 bids that were accepted and another 22 that were rejected, the first bid rejections at the General Land Office since 1968.

"We rejected 10 bids for tracts in the Gulf of Mexico and 12 bids for tracts in bays," Mauro said. "Most of the bids rejected in the Gulf were for tracts adjacent to federal tracts along the three marine league line. We rejected these because in every case we received only a single bid and the federal government received substantially more per acre than we did. In some of the cases, the federal government accepted bids at $5,000 an acre for proven production where we received bids for about $300 per acre."

Mauro said the other bids were cases of companies submitting "go fishing" bids, a bare minimum bid on the chance that no competition would drive the price up. All of these were single bids.

"I am still going to encourage rank wildcat production and development of old land," Mauro said. "But these didn't seem to be those kind of cases."

The bids rejected by the School Land Board totaled $1,197,658.99. Total bids on the tracts of land put up for lease equalled $38,364,184.49. The board reviewed 526 bids in all.

"I am very pleased that this lease sale will continue the growth of the Permanent School Fund and continue our state's commitment to public education," Mauro said. After the proceeds from the sale were deposited in the Permanent School Fund, that account rose to more than $3.9 billion.

Interest earned from the Permanent School Fund is used within the Available School Fund to support public education in Texas. Last year that meant school districts across Texas received more than $600 per student from the Available School Fund.

"By having a policy of accepting bids from companies that are showing a good-faith working relationship with the state in the development of its natural resources, we should be able to expand that fund to help meet the growing educational needs of Texas while lessening some of the tax burden that quality education places on the people," Mauro said.

State employee turnover rates high, according to study

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock has released results of a study of turnover rates among employees of Texas state agencies.

"I'm proud to report the turnover in the comptroller's office is about half the statewide average," Bullock said. "Taxpayers are well served by experienced state employees."

Turnover in the comptroller's office was 8.6 percent during the state's 1983 fiscal year. Average turnover for all state agencies during the same period was 15.9 percent.

cent.

"The more we can cut this rate, the fewer taxpayer dollars have to be spent on training replacements and the more our employees can concentrate on their jobs collecting taxes, estimating revenues and managing the state budget," Bullock said.

Of major state agencies, only the Department of Highways and Public Transportation, Texas Employment Commission and Parks and Wildlife Department had less employee turnover than the comptroller's office.

Bullock also pointed out a number of terminations in his office weren't people whose talents were lost to state government. "A number of people we lost were the result of raids by the slew of statewide office-holders we elected last year looking for qualified people to run their departments. People left this office for the Land Office, Agriculture Department, Treasury and other state agencies where the training they received here is being put to good use."

Deborah Hay Company to perform

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Deborah Hay Dance Company will perform at the Art Museum of South Texas, 1902 N. Shoreline in Corpus Christi, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22.

Tickets to the performance will be $2.50 general admission and $2 for Art Museum members.

A lecture demonstration will be presented at 1 p.m. Oct. 22 by Deborah Hay. The demonstration will be free to the public. A workshop is set for Oct. 23 from 1 to 6 p.m., conducted by Hay for a fee of $20 with limited space available.

The Saturday evening performance by the dance company will consist of two pieces from the company's repertoire: "Shaking Awake

the Sleeping Child" and "Tribute to Growth."

Hay is an internationally known choreographer, teacher, and performer whose goal is to make contemporary dance available to both dancers and audiences.

"When we are confronted with art," she says, "we usually think there is something we should know before we see it." Her dancing dispels this myth. "What I am dancing," explains Ms. Hay, "is what you see — whatever you see."

Providing clear access to movement for both dancers and audiences has been a focus of Hay's work during the 20 years she has been teaching and performing. In addition to the study of traditional dance forms like ballet, she studied and performed with avant-garde artist Merce Cunningham. Her work was further enriched by a two-year study of T'ai Chi, the oriental martial art that aims for total consciousness in movement.

The goal of Hay's dancing and teaching is to develop an awareness of the wholeness of the body. This includes using techniques that enhance the ability to be present in movement and encouraging the awareness and discovery of the dance within each person.

Her work with large groups of dancers, both trained and untrained, has been in this spirit of releasing the dance within the dancer rather than imposing a rigid structure on the individual or group. Her aim is to restore to everyone the ability to dance.

For more information on the lecture, workshop or performance contact the Art Museum at 884-3844.

Marker commemorates first Girls' Tomato Club

A special historical marker commemorating the first Girls' Tomato Club, one of the forerunners of the modern-day 4-H program, was dedicated at Cameron in Milam County, Oct. 2. The first such club was organized in Milam County in 1912 by the first county home demonstration agent in Texas, Edna Trigg. Its purpose was to teach girls to grow and can tomatoes and soon more than 100 girls were enrolled. Those first

Girls' Tomato Club and Boys' Corn Clubs that had been organized in 1908 in Jack County eventually gave way to today's 4-H program.

CORPUS CHRISTI — Ruby Ann Justilian, Corpus Christi State University senior music major, will perform a voice recital at 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22, in CCSU's Center for the Arts Warren Theatre. The public is invited to attend this free recital by the CCSU soprano. The program will include "With Vedure Clad" from "The Creation" by Haydn, "O Komme Holde Sommer-nacht" and "Vergebliches Standchen" by Brahms, "Ici Bas" and "Au Bord De L'eau" by Faure, "Batti, Batti" from "Don Giovanni" by Mozart, "Donde Lieta" from "La Boheme" by Puccini, "When I Bring You Colored Toys" by Charpentier and "Love in the Dictionary" by Dougherty.

Arlene Long will accompany Justilian on the piano.

The recital is presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the bachelor of music degree. Justilian is a student of Dr. Joe Long, adjunct professor.

Justilian received her associate of arts degree from Texas Southmost College in Brownsville in 1982.

She is attending CCSU this semester on a music scholarship.

Antihistamines have wide variety of uses today

Although antihistamines no longer make headlines as miracle drugs, they have played a major role in medicine for the past 35 years, says the Texas Medical Association.

Antihistamines' importance stems from their effectiveness in dealing with a variety of medical problems including hay fever, motion sickness, itching and stomach ulcers.

As their name suggests, antihistamines fight histamine, a chemical substance found in nearly all body tissue. When released, histamine causes some uncomfortable reactions.

It contracts smooth muscles such as those of the windpipe and the stomach. At the same time, histamine relaxes other muscles including those of tiny blood vessels. The result is a redness particularly in the face and upper body, called the "flushing area."

Histamine also causes swelling particularly where many small blood vessels are located, such as inside the nose. The third main reaction is itching and pain caused by histamine's effect on sensory nerve endings.

Release of histamine from tissues can be triggered by an allergy, physical trauma, heat or radiation injury severe enough to damage cells and reactions to certain drugs, foods and dyes. Snake and insect venoms also stimulate histamine release.

Antihistamines are most useful in relieving the sneezing, runny nose, nasal congestion and watery eyes that accompany hay fever. They also can prevent the queasy stomach and dizziness that come with motion sickness.

In addition, antihistamines can relieve the swelling and itching that often accompany allergic reactions to drugs such as penicillin or to foods and food coloring.

Antihistamines' tendency to cause drowsiness makes them useful as ingredients in sedatives. Drowsiness, in fact, is their main problem in common usage. Fortunately, not all antihistamines cause the same degree of sedation.

Here are some suggestions for using antihistamines safely:

If a prescribed antihistamine makes you too drowsy, ask your doctor if another drug or a different dosage would work.

Avoid driving autos or operating machinery.

Don't drink alcoholic beverages or take depressant drugs such as tranquilizers.

When using over-the-counter antihistamines, don't take two products containing them at the same time.

If you have asthma, glaucoma or prostate problems, check with your doctor before taking OTC antihistamines.

Child care workshop offered signed to help anyone who works with 1-2 year olds in forming objectives and planning activities appropriate to the toddler. Students may include day care and nursery school teachers and parents."

The instructor will discuss and demonstrate activities and materials for developing skills in mental, sensory and social areas.

The workshop will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5, at the Petroleum Training Institute, 3302 N. Ben Wilson.

What USO is doing today for service families!

I was 19 when I moved away from home with my husband in the service. Now that we're stationed here in Germany, it's good to know that I have a friend... the USO. Its volunteers and staff have helped my family feel comfortable from our arriving at the airport, to learning the bus system to seeing the various historical things. It's good to know that we have the USO... the three most important letters in helping others.

Support USO through the United Way, ODFC, or local USO campaign.

When the rain comes

The Shepherd's staff

By the Rev. JOHN NORVELL
Pastor, Lighthouse Gospel Church

SeaFair '83... didn't we have a time! The months of planning and preparation that went into the overall event, not to mention the blood, sweat and tears from those individuals that sponsored booths. And the response of the "seafairing" crowd was enthusiastic enough.

Then it rained. "Let's not talk about it."

All Saturday night it poured.

"That's enough." The Sunday "seafairers" saw Rockport at its wettest... and again it came, dispelling the afternoon adventures.

"Quiet!" So what... it rained. We don't want to admit it or dwell on it, but doesn't it happen in your life like that sometime. You plan, hope, build and do your best... then it rains.

Maybe you don't get the raise at work you were hoping for. Maybe your report card tells a story you don't want told. Or your toilet won't flush because of what the rain did to your septic tank. So, what's new? That's life.

"It rains on the just and the unjust." Everybody gets their share. The good part about it is, God has promised to be with us (especially in the hard times) and give us grace. Grace is the power and ability to do God's will in spite of opposition or hindrances.

Yes, you can make it with God's help. That difficult task or long, hard day can turn into a good feeling, if you know God is "going to bat" for you. God makes all the difference in this old (wet) world. Let Him.

THE BIG CHILL, from Columbia Pictures. Directed by Lawrence Kasdan, screenplay by Lawrence Kasdan and Barbara Benedek. Starring Kevin Kline, Glenn Close, William Hurt. Rated 'R' ★ ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Lawrence Kasdan has written or co-written some of the most successful pictures of all time — "The Empire Strikes Back," "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Return of the Jedi." Those are his "big" films, but some of his "little" films are just as enjoyable, notably "Continental Divide" and "Body Heat."

Going from "Body Heat" to "The Big Chill" is not as far a trip as a thermometer might indicate. Although "Body Heat" had a terrific plot, the characters were remarkably well defined, and the story really hinged on their personal traits and flaws.

"The Big Chill" rests entirely on its characters as the film's premise. Seven people have come together at a friend's funeral — a friend they knew in the '60s who has committed suicide. The reunion is both tragic and comic, as lost dreams face present realities, past ideals are set against current attitudes, and romances from their youth are compared to today's marriages, affairs and divorces.

Kasdan is a child of that time, and the college referred to in the film is his own alma mater. It's not surprising that Kasdan would be able to write well what he has experienced, but conveying past memories, feelings and friends through a script, and then shaping that into a popular movie is an enormous task.

That Kasdan has succeeded so well is a tribute to everyone else involved as well. As an ensemble piece much in the spirit of "Diner," "The Big Chill" takes a remarkably perceptive script that says as much, if not more, about the '80s than it does the '60s.

"The Big Chill" combines warmth, humor and friendship without the ponderous traumas of a reunion film such as "That Championship Season." The soundtrack (put together by Kasdan's wife) is terrific.

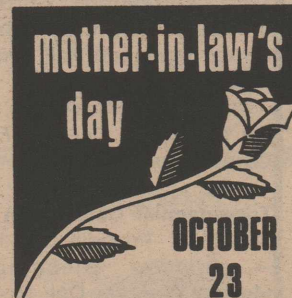

Kasdan learned from George Lucas how to pack a lot of information into each shot and frame, and so "The Big Chill" is the kind of film that can and probably should be seen again. It is one of the best films of the year.

CLOSEUP: Jim Brolin met Bette Davis for the first time during filming of ABC's new hit "Hotel." "It was really a thrill for me," Brolin said, "I had not met Miss Davis before, and when I walked into the room she came right over to me with her hand out. She had a professional quality that demanded respect. When Miss Davis was on the set, everyone was right there and not about to make a mistake. They knew they were working with someone who is refined, true to herself, and has done her homework."

FOCUS: During the last month, the spotlight has been on the new TV season and ABC tossed a gala in honor of all the talent performing on that network. Sipping and supping under the stars around the meditation Pools of the Century Plaza Hotel, the Goodyear blimp lighting up the skies with the names of the new shows, were the likes of ... Joan Collins in a short frilly yellow silk dress deep in conversation with her "Dynasty" producer Aaron Spelling ... Little Manny Lewis ("Webster") shooting pics of all the other celebs ... Madeline Kahn ("Oh Madeline!") sans her usual frou frou, demure and understated ... Handsome, blonde Marshall Colt squiring a handsome blonde lady telling me he is taking her to New Orleans to see Mardi Gras. Marshall hails from the Crescent City ... Jack Coleman talking with his fellow "Dynasty" member Pamela Bellwood while munching chili and pizza ... Six-foot-five Ken Howard ("It's Not Easy"), with his five-foot-two wife, daughter of "Dear Abby" and author of "Eppie" the bestseller about her mother ... Connie Selleca ("Hotel") with handsome husband Gil Gerard reporting son Gib is now two. When we last chatted, Connie was carrying the baby ... Mary Jackson ("Hardcastle and McCormick") just back from a trip to Canada reminding me her role in "The Waltons" ran for ten years ... John Ritter swamped by interviewers graciously granting an answer to all ... Susan Clark and Alex Karras ("Webster") still happily combining marriage and career. Susan, tres chic in a hat and gloves ... Cathy Lee Crosby showing off her fabulous figure in a bright red dress that clung in all the right places ... Ricardo Montalban in his ever present white linens ... Unfortunately, four of ABC's superstars, Linda Evans, John Forsythe, Stephanie Powers and Robert Wagner were filming and couldn't come, but everybody else did.

COMING EVENTS: "Believe It Or Not" has launched its second ABC season opposite "Sixty Minutes" and is pulling out all the stops to dent that program's ratings. At a party to herald the new season, hosts Jack and Holly Palance arrived in a forty foot long limo to the blaring of bands and the hoopla of the crowd. Ray Bolger, Liza Minnelli, Mervyn LeRoy, Wilt Chamberlain and others featured in Ripley cartoons were honored with plaques while some 200 guests applauded, wassailed, and watched never-before-seen rare footage from "The Wizard of Oz" ... Chalk up Sunday November 20th (ABC) for "The Day After." Starring Jason Robards, Jo Beth Williams, Kyle Aletter, John Lithgow, etc. it's the devastating drama about the results of a nuclear attack on the United States. © 1983, McNaught Synd.

Wine Notes and Tips

Two newly released white wines from Mirassou Vineyards were quite impressive, each in its own unique way. The Mirassou 1982 Johannisberg Riesling from Monterey County ($8.50) is a 1983 Orange County Silver Medal winner and a true delight for oenophiles who like the sweeter, German-style whites. This Riesling has a clear, pale-golden color, a pleasant fruit-floral aroma, a smooth full body and a peach-like flavor; the slight botrytis influence offers intense, honeyed fruit qualities, and the wine makes a succulent accompaniment to fruit, either as aperitif or dessert. Mirassou 1982 Chenin Blanc of Monterey County ($5.50) is a crisp, off-dry table wine with a flowery aroma and lots of pleasant fruit, well-balanced with a nice finish.

* An interesting addition to the U.S. wine market from New York State is Finger Lakes Wine Cellars 1982 Cayuga, a crisp, light, fruity white wine which recently won the highest award given in the Finger Lakes Wine Competition's semi-dry category, a Silver Medal. The Cayuga varietal has only been released for commercial planting in the last decade, and this Branchport, NY, winery is only a year old, but the wine is definitely one to try if you visit the area.

* To answer all your questions about California wines and cuisine — using the wines in your cooking and choosing the most compatible foods and wines to enjoy together — a new book has just been published by the Wine Appreciation Guild in cooperation with Wine Institute. More than 700 recipes from appetizers to deserts include the culinary uses of California wines as well as the most felicitous matings of wines and foods.

Soap Bubbles

CAST AWEIGHS: ABC: We hear that Anthony (Luke) will be leaving "General Hospital" around about the end of the year. It's said that the re-emergence of Genie Francis as Laura will have something to do with the way Luke — and perhaps Laura, too — will depart the series on which they both made soap history. Also leaving the show (for the second time) is Kin Shriner (Scotty).

"Ryan's Hope" is hoping you'll really go for the reborn Joe Novak. He's an actor whose name is Michael Hennessy — and we'll have a lot more to tell you about him in upcoming columns. We'll also be able to tell you more later about the other changes for "RH," including the removal (at least temporarily) of two regular characters.

Sandy Gabriel, wife of John Gabriel (Seneca, "RH") is returning to her role as the flamboyant Edna on "All My Children."

"Edge of Night" continues to add fascinating folk to its cast list, to wit: Chris Weatherhead who plays the alluring Alicia Van Dyne, Schuyler Whitney's (Larkin Malloy) ex-wife — and Pamela Shoemaker, who plays the actress Shelley Franklyn. Henry Slesar, who wrote "Edge" shows for over a decade, now does co-headwriter duty on "One Life To Live."

Over at NBC, the Peacock's nestlings like to keep it in the family: David Oliver of "Another World" could almost call Sam

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

How do nitroglycerine tablets help angina attacks? — B.H.

Nitroglycerine redistributes the blood around the heart by dilating small blood vessels and allowing blood to reach the blood deficient portions of the heart. This redistribution of blood also causes a decrease in pressure and workload on the heart.

Have child resistant containers really helped in reducing children being poisoned? — C.M.

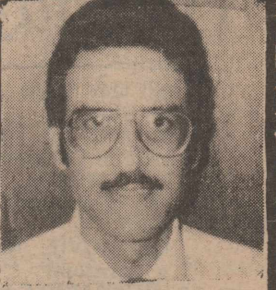

Poisoning of children from aspirin and aspirin substitutes (like Tylenol) are often used to measure the effect of child resistant containers. Such ingestions by young children as reported by poison control centers have declined by 65 percent since 1970. Poisoning resulting in death to children under 5 years of age has declined 69 percent during the same time period.

What happens in the body that makes alcohol and tranquilizers taken together such a dangerous combination? — N.C.

Alcohol often accelerates the absorption of drugs like tranquilizers and results in higher than normal amounts of drugs in the blood stream. It's as if the person took an overdose of the drug.

A budding romance between police partners Nick Velano (Ed Marinaro of "Hill Street Blues") and Jennifer Oaks (Melody Anderson of "Manimal") is at risk when she poses for a photo layout in a national magazine, in "Police Woman Centerfold," airing MONDAY OCT. 17 on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies."

Assuming that international politics don't foul up the competition, cable viewers will get a preview of how the U.S. women's volleyball team will fare in the 1984 Olympics when it meets the Cuban, Soviet and Japanese teams in matches that ESPN will televise Oct. 16, 19 and 21. These three teams will be among the strongest that the U.S. women will face in Los Angeles.

USA airs the West Virginia-Penn State football game on Saturday, Oct. 22. West Virginia has looked pretty good so far this year. Penn State has not looked so good. Nonetheless, they're not about to roll over and play dead.

For those of you who are heavy metal rock fans, MTV presents an interview with Ozzy Osbourne this week. The show will also include Ozzy performing such classics as "Paranoid" and "Flying High." He is so off the wall that the interview is bound to be entertaining.

Movies this week on Spotlight:

"The Godfather" (Oct. 19) — The movie is in many ways more a meditation on an American business success story than on organized crime as such. As in "Apocalypse Now," director Francis Ford Coppola looks at the destruction of a great man, both physically and morally, and asks "what went wrong?" Marlon Brando is outstanding as Don Corleone, the mob boss. The supporting cast includes James Caan, Al Pacino and Robert Duvall.

"The Godfather II" (Oct. 19) — In some ways this film

Marlon Brando in "The Godfather"

is not as intense as its predecessor, but it is more consistent. Coppola seems to have a clearer idea at what he is getting at. The scenes shot on New York's Lower East Side are particularly memorable. Robert DeNiro is completely convincing as the young Don.

"Poltergeist" (Oct. 20) — Steven Spielberg's suburban horror flick. The film seems to be set in the next subdivision over from where "E.T." took place. It is just as funny as it is scary — and it is plenty scary.

The Nostalgia

By Marie landiorio

In 1960, CBS launched a new type of adventure series that promoted a loose, non-committed lifestyle that was a prelude to the mid-'60s "love generation" philosophy.

"Route 66" followed the story of Tod Stiles and Buz Murdock, two young men from different backgrounds, who went on destinationless trips in Tod's Corvette. The series was filmed on location as they crisscrossed the United States, meeting all sorts of people and getting into all kinds of situations.

Buz left the series in 1963 and was replaced by Linc Case, a hip Vietnam War hero who was unsure of what he was looking for in life. Linc joined Tod while trying to find himself and stayed with him throughout the remainder of the series.

Question: Can you name the actors who starred as Tod, Buz and Linc?

Answer: Martin Milner, George Maharis and Glenn Corbett

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am an up and coming young executive. As such, I have a lot of responsibility and pressure. Basically, I'm an easy guy to get along with and try to be as fair as possible to those working under my immediate supervision. However, lately I find I have a problem with one of the workers. While he is not directly answerable to me, he can still make things look very bad for me in the eyes of top management. In fact, that is precisely what he's doing. I originally was trying to work things out with him, but that's proving to be more and more futile. He is lazy and refuses to execute any work orders until the last possible minute. Consequently, much of my work has been getting out too late to do anyone any good. I have spoken to him about this several times, but it seems to fall on deaf ears. Our supervisor is aware of this, but for whatever reasons, he is giving this guy more than his fair share of "chances." I'm really at a loss with this situation. My job is important to me, as is my credibility in the company.

What do you suggest I do? BEFUDDLED

DEAR BEFUDDLED: This is indeed a delicate situation. The major problem seems to lie with your supervisor. Since he is aware of what's going on, it should, of course, be his place to straighten things out. His unwillingness to do so should reflect on him, not you. However, I realize what should be is not always what is.

I suggest you keep after this guy. When he does anything wrong, even the slightest infraction, let him know immediately and in no uncertain terms. Document everything that's going on. At the end of perhaps a two-week time period, present your supervisor with copies of your documentation. Perhaps seeing the facts in black and white will egg him into action.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am 17-years-old and have been told I'm quite mature for my age. I guess that's true because my brothers and sisters are all older and I've always hung around with them. My 24-year-old brother has a friend the same age whom

I really like a lot. He's always very nice to me, but doesn't seem to feel the same way about me as I do about him. I even asked him once and he said he liked me, but that I needed to do some more growing up. He also said my brother would probably kill him if he asked me out.

I'm really crazy about him. How can I get him to take me out?

IN LOVE

DEAR IN LOVE:

It's well-known that generally women do mature more quickly than men early in their development.

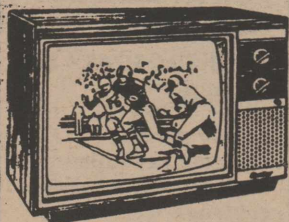

However, at 17, the disparity between you and a 24-year-old man is just too great. His experience and age are not something you could easily relate to. In fact, it wouldn't surprise me if your interests were pretty different.

By all means, do date men who are two or three years older. You'll both find that mutually fun and interesting. In the meantime, forget about your brother's friend. I believe he let you know nicely that he's not interested. Let it go at that.

INNER TUBE

By Joan Crosby

RUMOR MILL — One of the new series, which has a large male cast, is having problems casting females, according to word from the set. Young women are hired, work a bit, then are let go. It's called growing pains in TV, which means some people don't know exactly what they are looking for in the role.

That happens more often than not in casting. Sometimes people don't know what they want and expect the actor to bring it to them, which means if an actor chooses to read an audition scene one way, they accept that and never ask if the actor could read it another way. And that's why people are called actors. If they are good they can give the producers what the producers want. But if the producers don't know what they want, problems arise.

ALL-STAR CASTS — Greg Evigan, formerly of "B.J. and the Bear," is filming a second-season entry called "Masquerade." Co-starring is Kirstie Alley, who was in "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan." Also in the cast is Patricia McCormack, who is in the CBS-TV movie "Night Moves" (and who was a child star on Broadway and in such films as "The Bad Seed"). TV veterans Alice Ghostley and Pat Hingle and newcomer Peter Juraskik, one of the stars of "Bay City Blues."

Kirstie is a trouper. She has been filming long hours, has a bad throat and when she was dismissed from the set at 7:20 one evening, she raced to the theater and made it in time to be ready to go on for an 8 o'clock curtain at a Los Angeles theater version of "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

Hickman returns to school

By Andy Noble

"High School USA," which airs Sunday, Oct. 16 on NBC, is one of those ideas that seems like it can't miss.

The show brings together young stars of 1950s and '60s TV series, including Bob Denver ("The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis," "Gilligan's Island,") Dwayne Hickman ("Dobie Gillis") and Tony Dow ("Leave It to Beaver") as faculty members at a Midwestern high school, while contemporary teen stars like Michael J. Fox ("Family Ties"), Laurie Hendler ("Gimme a Break") and Nancy McKeon ("Facts of Life") play students.

"High School USA" marks a return to TV acting for Dwayne Hickman, now a 48-year-old CBS programming executive. Hickman plays a biology teacher who's crazy about a gym teacher, played by Angela Cartwright, who starred in "Make Room for Daddy."

"I've been offered many things during the past few years, but nothing really that interesting," Hickman said. "But this role really appealed to me, it was one of the funniest scripts I've seen in ages, and it was agreeable to CBS."

"Dobie Gillis," which ran from 1959-63, has become popular again in syndication. The show featured the misadventures of Dobie, the typical American teen-ager of the era, and his beatnik buddy, Maynard G. Krebs (Bob Denver).

"I don't know if you could do Dobie today," says Hickman. "He's such a '50s or '60s character — the innocence, the naivete. Michael Fox could do it, and he'd be very good at it, but I'm not sure it works anymore."

"The kids on 'High School USA' are not at all like 'Dobie Gillis.' Even if you updated 'Dobie Gillis' to 1983, would it still be 'Dobie Gillis'? I don't think so. The charm in that character was that he was kind of a 'Happy Days' child. Ronnie Howard would have been an ideal Dobie and I think Henry Winkler might have played Maynard."

Miss Chao orients herself to 'AfterMASH'

By Joan Crosby

Some men might think Rosalind Chao has the stereotyped attributes that most men want in a woman: the Asian wife who is dutiful, great around the house and always quiet and calm.

But Miss Chao, who is 5 feet 6 inches tall, thin, beautiful, gentle, witty and calm says, however, "I'm going to be the worst catch. First, I don't enjoy housework. Then I don't like to cook. If I am on a date with a young man and he starts to talk about Oriental women and what good wives they make, and how they love to cook, I know I'm never going to hear from him again."

Miss Chao has been caught, professionally, at least. She is playing Klinger's war bride wife in "AfterMASH," the series that takes Klinger (Jamie Farr), Potter (Harry Morgan), and Father Mulcahy (William Christopher) into civilian life in a Veterans Hospital in Missouri.

Even though Miss Chao, who was born in Los Angeles to parents who migrated from mainland China, speaks flawless English, her role of Soon Lee Klinger requires her to speak with an accent.

"When I heard my accent I couldn't understand what I was saying," she smiles. "She is a woman who is trying very hard to become an American. I don't think TV has touched the story of a war bride. 'AfterMASH' is first."

When Miss Chao auditioned for the role, as far as she knew, she was only

going to be a guest.

"Then it turned out that I would be in the last episode, the movie, and the one before that. One day Bill Christopher took me aside and said he wanted to tell me something that he thought I should know. I had heard rumors there would be a series, but he confirmed it and told me I would be part of it."

Named after Shakespeare's Rosalind in "As You Like It," she also has an Oriental name, Jya-lin, which means Precious Jade of the Family.

She smiles, "I'm very Oriental in everything but housekeeping duties."

A WEEKLY SYNDICATED COLUMN
FROM STARS HALL OF FAME ORLANDO, FLORIDA

LIONEL BARRYMORE THE GRAND OLD MAN

Although extremely gifted, the young Lionel Barrymore was unable to earn a living as an artist, and because he had a wife and young daughter to support, turned to film-making to earn some money. Although only intending to supplement his small income as an artist, Lionel quickly found that D.W. Griffith's American Mutoscope and Biograph Company were paying up to $125 a week—and couldn't resist the easy opportunity.

Lionel found a creative outlet in writing his own one-reelers for Griffith and then accompanied him across country to Hollywood for the winter season. There, Lionel made some rather unsuccessful films for First National and seemed to be stuck playing small parts until he was cast in "The Claw".

His performance was extraordinary and his talent then began being paid the attention it was due. The play went on tour with rather tragic results—Barrymore's wife, who was actually playing his daughter in the production, left him because he fell in love with Irene Fenwick, who played his lover on stage. Despite Ms. Fenwick having been a previous girlfriend of his brother Jack, and despite her rather checkered personal life and skeletal appearance (she was an anorexic) Lionel was smitten and divorced his wife of eighteen years.

In Lionel's defense, he was the perfect husband to Irene, and was absolutely devoted to her. Even if he left her for just a few hours he would return bearing gifts of flowers or jewelry. Unfortunately his solicitude was never able to cure her anorexic obsession and he took her inevitable early death very hard.

Lionel's influence on the new talking pictures was quite important. His stage training enabled him to guide other, less experienced but more well-known actors, through the complicated route of having to talk as well as act—and he began to get more into directing than acting. Irving Thalberg even allowed Lionel to direct his wife, Norma Shearer, and John Gilbert in "Romeo and Juliet" in 1929, and Barrymore followed up with guiding Buster Keaton into his talkie debut in "Free and Easy."

Despite his successes as a director—Barrymore is credited with introducing Clark Gable to the screen—Lionel returned to acting after directing "Ten Cents a Star." Although an outstanding success for the new Barbara Stanwyck, critics made no mention of the director, which depressed Lionel immensely.

In 1932 Lionel joined his brother John and his sister Ethel to make "Rasputin and the Empress." Lionel played Rasputin with all the intensity and concentration he could muster. He refused admittance by anyone to his dressing room once he was made up and literally lived the character of the Mad Monk during the length of filming.

"Rasputin" drew praise from the critics and box office records from theater-goers. The film also drew a large lawsuit—because some of the people it depicted were still alive and resented the implications the movie made. Simultaneous lawsuits in London and New York resulted in the movie's editing, a large pay-off for an out-of-court settlement and the fact that no Hollywood movie was ever released again without the legal disclaimer "The events and characters in this film are fictional and any resemblance to persons living or dead is purely coincidental."

Deciding that films and acting was really his life's work, Lionel remained in Hollywood and starred in such classics as "Duel in the Sun" and, of course, the Dr. Kildare films. He died in 1954 at the age of seventy-six.

At Six Flags Stars Hall of Fame in Orlando, Florida, the "Grand Old Man" of acting stands on the set of "Rasputin and the Empress." Despite his confused career as an artist, musician and director, he is remembered today as an actor—and a remarkable one at that.

Ask Kate

Has Bill been Buffaloed?

By Kate Woods

"Buffalo Bill" was supposed to be back this year, but I haven't heard it mentioned on NBC's fall schedule. What happened? — K.I.

Dabney Coleman as the ever-conniving Bill, will be back as a replacement for one of the network's early casualties.

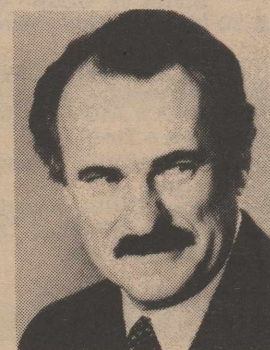

JUKE JOINT — South-side Johnny and the Asbury Jukes do one of the Miller beer commercials. I think they're great. Is there some place I can write? — B.S.

You can write Johnny and the Jukes in care of the following: Sekuj, Ltd., P.O. Box 405, Bogata, N.J. 07603

NICE GUY — Please tell my husband and me who played "Captain Nice," a sitcom character who was very much like "The Greatest American Hero" only older. — S.B.

The otherwise staid William Daniels played the police department chemist turned superhero in the 1967 comedy. Alice Ghostly was his nagging mother and Ann Prentiss was the female interest — Sgt. Candy Kane.

WAITING FOR RICK — When is Rick Springfield's movie coming out? I've been waiting and waiting. — T.G.

Dabney Coleman

Hope you can hold out until spring because the Universal release is scheduled for an Easter opening.

GLYNIS — I just saw Glynis Johns on "Cheers" playing Diane's mother. Didn't this fine English actress once have a TV series of her own, a comedy, perhaps? — C.P.

The gravely voiced Miss Johns starred 20 years ago in "Glynis," a CBS sitcom that lasted two seasons. She played a daffy mystery writer who helped her lawyer husband (Keith Adams) investigate crimes.

'Legends of the Game' recalls ex-NFL heroes

GRID GREATS — E.J. Holub is a legend. E.J. Holub? Yes, E.J. Holub. Along with other ex-National Football League greats, Holub is being featured by CBS Sports on "Legends of the Game," a series of TV reports.

"Legends of the Game," hosted by Irv Cross, is being telecast as a segment of "The NFL Today," the CBS Sports pre-game, halftime and post-game NFL program. Brent Musburger is the host of "The NFL Today."

Holub, who is being featured on Sunday, Oct. 16, was a star linebacker for the AFL-NFL Kansas City Chiefs in the 1960s. He had played at Texas Tech.

"The objective of 'Legends of the Game' is to take a fresh look at some of the NFL's greatest former players — today in their current life styles, and yesterday as they reminisce about their football careers," says Cross.

Cross, a former NFL defensive back, says he was surprised that these "Legends of the Game" have such a variety of post-football careers.

He located Holub, for example, on a horse ranch in Oklahoma. The ex-Chiefs star now trains cutting horses.

"It's really interesting to catch up with these one-time NFL greats and see what they're doing since they came away from football," Cross says.

In other interviews, Cross

talked with Charlie Conerly in Mississippi where the former New York Giants quarterback operates a string of discount shoe stores; and with Don Maynard in San Antonio, Texas, where the former New York Jets pass catcher was attending an insurance managers convention.

Here is the remaining CBS Sports schedule for "Legends of the Game": Sunday, Oct. 30, Paul Hornung; Sunday, Nov. 13, Keith Lincoln and Paul Lowe; Thursday, Nov. 24, Jackie Smith; Sunday, Nov. 27, Fred Biletnikoff; Sunday, Dec. 11, Charlie Taylor.

The "Legends of the Game" features are co-produced and directed by Sherm Eagan of CBS Sports and Bob Angelo of NFL Films.

George Veras is the producer of "The NFL Today," and Duke Struck directs. Ted Shaker is the Executive Producer.

Jill Jackson

HOLLYWOOD: Amanda Plummer literally knocks your head off with her performance in "Daniel." As the deranged daughter of a couple executed for conspiracy, this real life daughter of Christopher Plummer and Tammy Grimes is certain to garner an Oscar nod for Best Supporting Actress. AND, depending on what we get between now and December 25th, the film and its director Sidney Lumet could also receive nominations. The rest of the cast — Timothy Hutton as the son, Daniel, Mandy Patinkin and Lindsay Corouse as the parents, Ed Asner and John Rubenstein as the attorneys — is outstanding.

Word round is big, big money is being offered

ROGER MOORE

Roger Moore and Sean Connery to co-star in a big, big budget film, "Radio Active." As yet, no assents from either 007, but, could be.

After he blew the whistle on David Begelman's embezzling, Cliff Robertson didn't work for quite a while, but now everything's coming up adorable. He has a running role in "Falcon Crest," is spokesman for AT&T on the tube and in print, appears in "Brainstorm" with Christopher Walken and Natalie Wood, and has written a sequel to the award winning "Charly." Cliff will also direct and play the title role.

Blind singer Jose Feliciano said the biggest laugh he had all year was when a New York newspaper interviewer asked him if he believed in love at first sight.

HOLLYWOOD IS READING: Hollywood Wives by Jackie Collins, sister of you know who. It would be awful if all Hollywood wives are as Collins depicts them, but some are, and it's a good juicy read with a spicy plot twist ... James Cagney: The Authorized Biography by Doug Warren (St. Martin's Press). Critics are pointing out inaccuracies and omissions, but if you care for Cagney it will suffice ... Also from St. Martin's, Charles Bronson by David Downing and Sean Connery by Kenneth Passingham. Both small, (130 pages) with pictures.

BITS N' PIECES: Mickey Rooney's wife, Jan Chamberlain, has her own career going. She recently warbled to packed rooms at "The Four Queens" in Las Vegas ... Steve Martin, whose heart used to belong to Bernadette Peters, has been dining about with Victoria (Winds of War) Tennant ... Friends are hoping it's not true that Barbara Bain and Martin Landau are separating after twenty years of marriage ... Looks like the minute careers get going, marriages go. Now it's Leigh Taylor-Young, who bounced back in "The Hamptons" and Guy McEwaine, recently made president of Columbia Pictures, trying it apart ... Upcoming in December from Twentieth-Century Fox: "Two of A Kind" starring John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John, "Silkwood" with Meryl Streep, Kurt Russell and Cher, and "To Be Or Not To Be" a comedy about a Polish acting troupe starring Mel Brooks and Anne Bancroft ... Now it's the Longevity Association Awards. Bob Hope and Gene Autry chaired the event along with Milton Berle. I'm all for everybody living a long and happy life, but isn't that reward enough?
