PATROL CARS UP IN FLAMES — At least five San Francisco police cars go up in flames after being torched by demonstrators near City Hall Monday night. Gays and others went on rampage of city after jury returned a voluntary manslaughter verdict for former Supervisor Dan White in the killings of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

Violent demonstrations erupt in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Thousands of angry, bitter demonstrators, many of them homosexual, rampaged in the streets after a jury ruled it was manslaughter — not murder — when former Supervisor Dan White shot and killed Mayor George Moscone and gay Supervisor Harvey Milk.

The mob of 5,000 people had expected a murder conviction for the City Hall killings.

When the verdict — voluntary manslaughter — came down Monday, they converged on City Hall, smashed its doors with iron bars, set cars afire and rampaged through the streets.

Milk, the first avowed homosexual elected to the Board of Supervisors, would have been 40 today.

The prosecution had sought a first-degree murder conviction that could have brought the death penalty.

Under the jury's verdict — just what the defense had sought — White, 32, could be free in less than five years. The maximum sentence would be just less than eight years.

White had admitted shooting Moscone and Milk in their offices on Nov. 27, after trying to convince Moscone to reinstate him to a supervisor's seat he had resigned. Milk opposed reinstatement.

White's defense was mental illness.

When the seven women and five men on the jury brought in their verdict, they were grim-faced after six days of deliberations, and nearly a month of being sequestered in a hotel during testimony.

They refused to talk about the verdicts, but one juror, white-haired Grayce Jackson, described the jury as "very tense, very upset."

White bowed his head when the second verdict, for Milk's death, was read. There was a collective gasp in the packed 90-seat courtroom.

And outside it, reaction was swift.

Many in the city's large homosexual community, estimated at one-sixth of its 660,000 residents, marched from predominantly gay Castro Street to City Hall. The demonstration began peacefully, with shrill whistles and angry chants. Some protesters carried placards reading, "Avenge Harvey Milk."

Then, as the sun set, demonstrators reached City Hall — and smashed windows, chanted, and pelted the ornate domed structure with rocks, tomatoes and eggs.

Several people were injured by flying glass when the doors were smashed, and police used the chemical Mace to control the crowd. Tear gas canisters left a pall of acrid mist over the melee.

'Killer Bees' expected to return this afternoon

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said today the Killer Bees are expected to return at 3 p.m. to their jobs in the Senate after a five-day absence.

Hobby said he had talked with one of the 12 absent members, who advised him that the Senate should recess until 3 p.m.

"I'm sure the absent members will return and we can resume the normal business of the Senate," Hobby told other senators.

He said the Senate would stand at ease until 3 p.m.

Earlier, Gov. Bill Clements said he is thinking of declaring vacant the 12 Senate seats.

Clements returned to the Capitol after a four-day trip to Connecticut. He was out-of-town when the dozen rebels fled the Senate Friday in protest of a presidential primary measure.

The governor has taken a hands-off attitude on the election proposal.

"We'll explore that possibility today. We're going to look into it and look into what precedents we might have for it," Clements told reporters of calling a special election to replace the absentees.

"It's a shame these elected officials are walking away from their responsibility," the governor said.

On Monday, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby conceded the Killer Bees probably have succeeded in blocking a 1980 presidential primary bill they contend was tailor-made for John Connally.

But don't expect Hobby to wave white flags, send out conciliatory messages to the dozen absentees or let down support for the controversial election proposal.

"To reward behavior of this sort is obviously not wise," Hobby told reporters in his office Monday.

He scheduled a 10:30 a.m. Senate session today amidst rumors the gang would not reappear until 12:01 a.m. Wednesday.

If the AWOL senators return, Hobby was asked, would the presidential primary stand a chance of passage?

"I think not," he replied.

As the group ended their fourth day undercover, Hobby, the Senate's presiding officer refused to withdraw warrants for their arrest.

He ordered them captured Friday after they boycotted a Senate session to stop action on a measure that would hold a 1980 presidential primary in March, separate from May primary elections. Unless two return, the 31-member Senate lacks 21 members needed for a quorum and can do nothing.

The rebels claim the primary measure would benefit Connally by allowing Democrats to vote in the Republican presidential contest, then cast ballots for conservative Democrat state candidates two months later.

Connally, a Democrat when he served six years as Texas governor, has said he does not care when Texas holds a primary.

Hobby thought one absent senator, Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, was heading back Monday.

"I expected him at noon. He hasn't appeared. I have no further information," the lieutenant governor said.

Brooks told the Associated Press in a telephone interview that he was in Oklahoma when the others fled Austin. He said he heard radio reports while driving back to the capital Monday that he had "abandoned" the Killer Bees.

"I've never been out of sympathy with them, although I have not been with them physically," Brooks protested. He told the AP he would call Hobby and offer to negotiate a settlement in the stalemate.

Brooks never reappeared.

'Personal reasons' cited

Spannaus resigns

Harry Spannaus, manager of the Big Spring Industrial Park, resigned that post following the regular meeting of the city council today.

The resignation will become effective June 1, but the council unanimously requested that Spannaus stay on in an advisory capacity until June 30.

Spannaus' replacement will be appointed by the new city manager, said Mayor Wade Choate, following the announcement. The council has chosen a candidate for the city manager's post, and the Mayor plans to notify him of the choice immediately.

"The candidate and his family will be in town later this week, and we expect an answer from him early next week. He will be responsible for replacing Col. Spannaus," said Choate. "It is my understanding that Harry has been offered a better position in the private sector," he added.

Spannaus cited "personal reasons" for his decision to resign outlined in a letter to the mayor:

"I respectfully submit my

resignation as Industrial Park and Airport Manager, effective June 1, 1979. My resignation is based solely upon personal reasons. Should the Council desire, I will attempt to make arrangements to stay on until a replacement is found or at the latest, until June 30, 1979.

"I extend my warmest regards to the past and present members of the Aviation Committee, Steering Committee, Chamber of Commerce, Industrial Foundation, City Employees, City Council and Industrial Park and Airport lessees who have successfully faced the challenge of base reuse development and City recovery following the closure of Webb Air Force Base. I believe that the City can be proud in accomplishing the near impossible. I further express my personal thanks to those men and women who offered their time, talents, personal assets and efforts in making Big Spring an economic recovery model for others to follow.

"I pledge to you and the Council my continued and total support and effort for achieving our ultimate goal of a greater and more prosperous Big Spring as long as I remain a citizen of the community. My family and I wish all citizens of Big Spring and Howard County the greatest success for the future."

As a Colonel in the U.S. Air Force, Spannaus held the post of Wing Commander at Webb AFB. Following the closure of the base, he was appointed as Industrial Park and Airport Manager in 1977.

"We would like to express our sincere appreciation to Col. Spannaus for the job he has done. He and the city have been through some tough times, and we all know what a fine job he has done. We wish him the best of luck," said Mayor Choate, this morning.

Property dispersal debated

Auditing policies draw fire

By JAMES WERRELL
An open debate about the efficiency of the city's auditing policies took place at today's regular meeting of the Big Spring City Council.

The debate was spurred by a proposal made by Councilman John Massey that both an updated city audit and an inventory of all federal property from the former Webb AFB be undertaken.

At the meeting Massey read in their entirety the 25 proposals made by Lee, Wilson, Reynolds & Co. in the annual city budget for improvement of city financial operations.

"In light of these recommendations, and because we have two new council members and a new city manager to consider, I propose that a new city audit be made so that we know what the exact financial situation is at this time," said Massey.

Included in Massey's proposal was a call for a more complete accounting of dispersal of property formerly owned by Webb AFB.

"Tables from the industrial park are now being used at the city park, and numerous vehicles being used by the city have been painted white with a 'City of Big Spring' decal on the side. This is an improper procedure, and it has placed Col. Spannaus (industrial park manager) in a compromising position because he signed for all that equipment," said Massey.

The first half of Massey's proposal was immediately challenged by fellow member Ralph McLaughlin.

"I take exception to the fact that these suggestions from our auditors were placed in the minutes of today's meeting. They were part of the audit at the time it was approved, and are a part of those minutes," he said.

McLaughlin then asserted that a new audit would cost the city over $11,000, and that auditors are (See more, page 8A, col. 2)

Action/reaction: Rezoning notice

Q. The City of Big Spring notifies all property owners within 200 feet of an area when a rezoning hearing concerning that area will be held. The letter, naming the time and place, usually arrives only five days before the hearing. Abilene and Midland display public signs in the area to be rezoned, designating the time and place of the hearing, well in advance of the hearing. Why can't Big Spring give the same type of publicity to all zone change hearings?

A. "That's a possibility," said Paul Feazelle. Feazelle reminded us that he's only been acting city manager for a brief time so he may have missed something but, "As far as I know, it (your idea) has just never been suggested." He said he would make a note of it and would bring the subject up at the appropriate time.

Proposal for study on solar energy in West Texas filed

Texas Electric Service Company, in conjunction with Rockwell International, a major multi-industry company, today filed a proposal with the Department of Energy to study the feasibility of using solar energy to generate electricity in West Texas.

The nine-month feasibility study would help determine the economic and technical problems associated with partially converting an existing gas-fired generating unit to a solar energy system.

"We don't really know whether it's possible to use solar energy to generate electricity on a large scale like this, but a feasibility study could help us answer many of the uncertainties," TESCO President Bill Marquardt said.

The proposal is only one of several that are expected to be filed by utility and industry teams. The DOE is expected to approve several such studies by Oct. 1.

"The conversion of a conventional generating unit to solar power is a totally new process so there are many questions about the system and whether it will work," Marquardt said.

"This proposal is just another part of our commitment to exploring all the available energy technologies to ensure our ability to provide reliable electric service to our customers now and in the future."

If the proposal is approved, TESCO and Rockwell International would analyze the requirements for retrofitting a 115-megawatt generating unit, located at Texas Electric's Permian Basin power plant near Monahans, with a solar system to be designed by Rockwell. Theoretically, electricity could then be generated with solar energy as well as conventional fuels, such as natural gas or oil.

Generally, the solar energy system being considered for study would involve a field of reflective mirrors, called "heliostats," over a half square-mile area.

The mirrors would concentrate the sun's rays on a large tower in the middle of the field. The concentrated sunlight would be used to make electricity through the plant's conventional system.

"The system theoretically, would work much like our present method except that instead of only burning natural gas or oil to generate electricity, we would also be using heat from the sun," Marquardt explained.

Preliminary information indicates that the Permian Basin area in West Texas is particularly suitable for solar energy application because of the high percentage of days (about 275 days out of the year) when sufficient sunlight is available.

The feasibility study would involve no actual construction of the solar facility. After analyzing the results of the approved nine-month studies, the DOE will determine which studies, if any, warrant further research and design work.

Westbrook water customers will be paying higher rates

WESTBROOK — Water customers in Westbrook will be paying higher rates in the future.

Westbrook purchases its water from the Westbrook school district, which has notified the city council of a boost in rates.

The increases will show up in June billings authorized by the city council.

The minimum rate for the first 3,000 gallons will increase from $5.50 to $7.50. The rate per 1,000 gallons above 3,000 will go from $1 to $1.50.

ON DRAWING BOARD — Texas Electric's Permian Basin power plant near Monahans in West Texas is shown here with the proposed solar energy system superimposed where it might be located, theoretically. The system would consist of a field of heliostats, or reflective mirrors, situated over a half square-mile area. 16 being considered for Coahoma supe job

COAHOMA — The Coahoma school board convened Monday night to set guidelines for the newly-hired school business manager, Grady Tindol, and discuss the 16 applicants who are still being considered for the job of school superintendent.

The superintendent's job is being vacated by W. A. Wilson, who is moving to Big Spring sometime this summer.

According to Board

President Harold Abernethy, the applicants will be screened again before the list is reduced to six or seven persons. Those will be interviewed personally by the board before a final decision is made.

The trustees meet again at 7 o'clock this evening to discuss school policies, at which time a representative of the Texas School Board Association will be on hand to serve in an advisory capacity.

Jury weeks canceled

A scheduled Howard County jury week was cancelled when none of the cases docketed except for one could be tried, according to County Attorney Harvey Hooser.

Hooser said a jury would not be called for just one case. The one defendant ready for trial was W. R. Snelser. He was arrested on suspicion of malicious malice.

County Judge Bill Tune will be on vacation the third week in June. Jury week for June has been cancelled also.

Rojo placed on probation

David Allen Rojo, 810 W. 8th, entered a guilty plea Monday in 118th District Court to burglary. He received a 10-year probation sentence. Rojo was arrested March 28 and indicted May 16.

Golf ball-sized hail reported in Texas

By The Associated Press

A slow-moving cold front was spreading rain from the Carolinas to Texas, where some sections of the Lone Star state reported golf ball-sized hail and three-inch downpours in less than an hour. The heavier rainfall was concentrated over northern Texas and Arkansas. Locally heavy rain was expected to spread eastward into the lower Mississippi Valley today.

Thunderstorms brought large hail and flash flooding to North Central Texas on Monday.

Here's what fuel means on your electric bill.

BASE RATE FUEL @ $0.009

The cost to provide your electric service is divided into two parts: base rate and fuel. The base rate covers the cost of bringing electricity to you—things like the miles of lines, substations, power plants and the Texas Electric employees to make it all work are included in the base rate.

But the other part of your bill, fuel, is what some people don't understand. The "fuel" amount on your bill is what we must pay to buy the natural gas, oil or lignite coal that we use to make your electricity.

Without that fuel, all the other things that make up your electric service system would be useless. We must burn fuel to make your electricity. How much we use each month to make your electricity is shown by the fuel amount on your bill.

At Texas Electric, we want you to understand what you're paying for.

Complex campaign laws labeled dangerous

By DAN MALONE
Harris-Hanks Austin Bureau
Copyright 1979, Harris-Hanks
Communications, Inc.

AUSTIN — Texas campaign finance law is so complex that scores of would-be lawmakers turn into technical law breakers every election year.

The law's general requirements are simple. But its intricacies pose difficulties for candidates and political action committees that must file campaign finance reports.

Secretary of State George Strake, keeper of the reports, says there's an education problem. Candidates want to do what's right, but they don't understand how.

"It's like filling out any government form. Ninety-nine percent (of the mistakes) are honest," Strake says.

Missed deadlines; omission of dates, addresses and funding details, and gaps and overlaps in periods covered are typical errors found in a reporter's review of 1979 lawmakers' statements.

Most errors are technically punishable by a fine, but formal complaints against candidates or committees are infrequent.

Strict and literal enforcement of the law would make "criminals out of people running for office," Terry Goodman says.

She is a former director of the secretary of state's division that handles campaign spending statements.

Several states have educational programs that spell out the reporting requirements for candidates, Goodman says. Texas does not.

The secretary of state distributes a 46-page memorandum explaining the 22-page law. The office also periodically notifies candidates of reporting deadlines.

Strake says he is considering other measures to improve understanding of the law but hasn't decided on any changes.

Strake's office has not reported any violations to prosecutors. When mistakes are found, letters are written requesting the additional information.

"We're trying to do what's reasonable. I don't think we were instructed to be policemen," he says.

Policing the 800 candidates who are required to report their political spending and fund raising would be a Herculean task. Between one-third and one-half of all candidates failed to meet some aspect of the law's requirements in 1978, Raymond Dasch, a secretary of state attorney, said.

Dasch later retracted his statement. There are no complete records on how many candidates violate the law and his figures were just guesses, he said.

Political newcomers don't hold a franchise on misunderstanding the law. Incumbent lawmakers, who have filed statements before, also have their share of troubles.

For example, Rep. Frank Tejeda of San Antonio filed his 1978 statement of contributions and expenditures three months late.

He said lost receipts documenting expenditures caused the problem.

Rep. Tom Uher of Bay City also had troubles. He filed a report on time but didn't itemize his expenditures or the $8,250 he received from special-interest groups.

Uher said he thought he was only required to list total expenditures and contributions for the year since he was an unchallenged incumbent. He later filed an amended report.

The law requires hundreds of candidates and special-interest groups to file periodic lists of money they collect and spend for campaigning.

Viewed as a whole, the law is designed to tell voters who is footing the bill for political races for state offices.

But during any given year, political fund transactions elude complete tracking.

Tens of thousands of individuals contribute to hundreds of committees which contribute to hundreds of candidates.

Candidates, in turn, give

Rhodesians emigrate

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Rhodesians are emigrating to South Africa at the rate of 700 a month, the department of statistics reported recently.

In 1978, the Rhodesian immigrant total was 8,650, including 822 engineers, 244 doctors, 271 accountants and 257 teachers.

Leapin' bullfrogs!

LANEXA, Va. (AP) — The least a frog jockey has to do is set his contender on a platform and hope he'll jump. Warren Cash's entry, Sam, did just that — leaping 13½ feet for a $300 prize and the championship of the 1979 Bluegrass Froghoppin' Hoedown.

But not all the contestants performed for the 4,000 people who turned out for the weekend competition in this New Kent County town.

"Some of these frogs wouldn't even move," scoffed Cash, of Fishersville, Va. "People would pour beer on them, blow on them, take their hat and fan them, take their shoe and stomp it beside them" — in vain.

One frog jockey overstepped the bounds.

That individual, Cash said, "was stomping beside his frog and accidentally stomped his frog."

Fair warning

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — When Robert Melton was arrested and charged with the robbery of a convenience store, he told officers they weren't going to be able to keep him in jail.

According to police spokesman Billy Tinsley, Melton was placed under $20,000 bond and sent Monday to the Tuscaloosa County Jail.

A little more than two hours later, Tinsley said, the 27-year-old Melton asked to use a telephone and, instead of going into the phone booth, ran to the street, jumped into a waiting car and disappeared.

Said Tinsley: "Obviously he was a man of his word."

40 mph, no gas needed

DENVER (AP) — After racing an automobile down a Colorado highway at 40 mph, a racing dog valued at $30,000 has been returned safely to her owner.

The dog, a whippet named Extra, escaped from her loading cage at Denver's Stapleton International Airport on Friday. She was not seen again until two Aurora men found her "running toward Lookout Mountain" near Golden on Monday.

Florida execution case will not affect Texas' 122 condemned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Wednesday's scheduled execution of John Spenklink in Florida will not hasten death appointments for 122 condemned prisoners in Texas, an assistant attorney general said Monday.

But Anita Ashton disagreed with a Texas Civil Liberties Union lawyer who said federal court decisions in two Texas capital murder cases could result in new trials for many of the state's Death Row inmates.

The rulings involve the prosecution use of psychiatric testimony and a requirement that jurors in capital murder cases not consider the death penalty while determining guilt or innocence.

John Duncan said, "It is our judgment that 90 percent of Texas Death Row inmates will have their convictions overturned because of these two rulings," Duncan said.

But Ms. Ashton said the rulings, now being appealed by the state, would affect only 40 percent of the condemned prisoners if upheld.

Presently, 121 men and one woman are awaiting death by lethal injection in Texas. The state's last execution was carried out in 1964.

The recent federal court decisions involve Ernest Benjamin Smith, sentenced to die in a 1974 robbery-shooting of a Dallas convenience store clerk, and James Paul Burns, who received the death penalty in a 1974 robbery-murder in Odessa.

In overturning Smith's death penalty, U.S. District Judge Robert Porter of Dallas held that a defendant must be warned that the results of a psychiatric examination can be used against him.

"Never before have psychiatrists been required to give a warning," Ms. Ashton said. "It's a novel case."

In the Burns case, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled the so-called "juror oath" unconstitutional. Under the oath, jurors must ignore the possibility of the death penalty in capital murder cases while determining the defendant's guilt or innocence.

Under Texas law, persons convicted of capital murder face either death or life imprisonment.

Florida's scheduled execution of Spenklink will not affect Texas death penalty litigation, Ms. Ashton said.

"Spenklink is the first death row inmate to go through the entire appeals process," she said. "The other inmates will have to do the same."

KNOW YOUR CARRIER

Fourteen year old Gina Loftis has had a Herald carrier route for three years. Her experience shows in her work. Last month, Gina had only one service error delivering 1820 newspapers. Normally, Herald carriers average one error per 600 deliveries. Satisfied customers show that Gina is a responsible and dependable carrier. Subscribers on her route No. 234 should be proud to have Gina as their news carrier.

Her route encompasses the 500-900 blocks of 18th, 1700 block of Aylford, 1500-1600 Lancaster, 1300-1800 Gregg and 1600-1800 Pennsylvania. If you live on Gina's route, you should be commended for helping Gina complete her collections by the 10th of the month.

Gina enjoys the profits she receives by conscientiously managing her own business. She saves her route earnings in the bank.

Gina is a seventh grader at Goliad where she plays in the school band. In her spare time she likes to collect stamps and read. She is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. William R. Loftis of 1707 Aylford.

We want young boys and girls like Gina to learn and earn from a Herald carrier route. Call 263-7331 for an application.

Power outage in Boston for 5 hours Monday

BOSTON (AP) — Surgeons worked under emergency lighting and nurses carried green glow sticks through shadowy hospital corridors while utility crews worked to restore power that plunged eight hospitals, the Harvard Medical School and 40,000 homes into darkness for five hours.

The outage Monday night caused emergency cases to be diverted to other sections of the city. Elevators stopped between floors, trapping patients and visitors. Life support systems stopped temporarily and fire alarms were useless.

Boston Edison Co., the city's utility, said the blackout was caused by an explosion and fire at an electrical substation. It was the second power failure in the city in as many months.

However, hospitals reported no blackout-related injuries, and police said there were no incidents of looting in the darkened streets.

"I have engineers, nurses, security guards and housekeepers walking the floors and corridors constantly to protect against fire outbreaks," Peter Bent Brigham Hospital Associate Director Henry Beltrami said during the blackout.

Two emergency operations were conducted using emergency electrical generators at the 330-bed institution. Nurses lighted their rounds with glow sticks — plastic tubes filled with a chemical that glows in the dark.

"It's really frightening," said Joanne Gallo, 24, a volunteer at Children's Medical Center, who was with a 13-year-old boy in a body cast when the lights went out at 7:25 p.m.

"Some of these kids are on life support machines. There were people stuck in the elevators. They still were trying to pry the doors open when I left. The kids were excited at first. But order was restored pretty quickly."

Mrs. Thatcher apt to have imitators

The recent victory of Margaret Thatcher's Conservative Party in the British elections is another indication that the people in many enlightened countries are turning away from liberalism.

Voters found Mrs. Thatcher's rhetoric against high taxes appealing. They were also tuned in on her wave length when she spoke out against government waste, trade union arrogance and abuse.

THE ELECTORATE'S decision to name Mrs. Thatcher the first woman prime minister of any European country had been forecast for some time by students of politics in England. The Conservative tide suggests something more than a change of attitude on a narrow range of purely political subjects. Many analysts have seen in Mrs. Thatcher's rise to leadership a rebirth of British values that go beyond politics. They look upon her as an Ayatollah of the middle class, a spokeswoman for what American politicians a few years ago called the Silent Majority.

These are the people who have seen their social values erode, their bank accounts and their life styles kicked around and put down for years by what might loosely be called the New Libertines.

The heavies in middle class British eyes are not much different than those seen by Middle Americans — the high taxers, big spenders, regulators and defenders of everybody's 'rights' except those of the working, law abiding, staid-laced majority.

The perception, in Britain as in America, may be exaggerated, but it is grounded in reality.

In Britain, the people have said, 'Enough.' Will Americans follow suit? R. W. Apple, an astute writer for the New York Times, recently wrote of Margaret Thatcher's rather remarkable appeal:

'SHE STANDS FOR those values — thrift, industry, self-reliance, honest, chastity, family solidarity — that were as entrenched in British families like hers 40 years ago as they were in families of that era in similar circumstances in Fort Wayne, Ind., or St. Joseph's Mo. They are values that have faded poorly in post-war Britain, and what Mrs. Thatcher is about, in one sense, is their restoration.'

It will be surprising if American politicians, studying the Thatcher victory, do not ask themselves whether the same values are still recognized in this country.

Mrs. Thatcher is apt to have a lot of imitators in American politics by the time 1980 rolls around.

Anniversary

Around the rim

Marie Homeyer

Happy anniversary to me! One year ago today I started working here and a lot has happened in that length of time.

It seems just like yesterday that I was worrying about getting everything done in the two weeks from the time I graduated from college until the time I started my new job. It was also a time that I was worrying about whether or not I would be able to make it on my own without my parents there telling me what to do all the time.

I can still remember clearly moving from my apartment at A&M to home and leaving most of the boxes packed and packing more boxes with the remainder of the items at home.

AND, IT DOESN'T seem like that long ago that I was running around town trying to find a place to live. For a while there, I thought I was going to have to spend a few weeks in a motel before I found a place to live.

But what really made the difference for me was the people that I work with and the friends that I made as soon as I moved here. Tommy and Walt made getting used to the new job and learning everything I needed to know one of the easiest things I've ever done. And I had no time to get homesick once I made a whole new set of friends at a party that Carol Hart had invited me to the night after I arrived in town. I just jumped right in and I've been having a blast ever since.

Carla has been a big reason for the fun I have had while working here. She introduced me to a lot of her friends and got me involved with her family. They, too, kept me sane.

In the past year lots of changes have been made in the staff. The staff that was here when I started is almost completely different now. Bob Burton, Danny Reagan and Marj Carpenter have left for new jobs in other states and Carla is leaving us soon for a new life in Odessa with her new husband. Also, new additions were made in the society section and Eileen stayed, but moved.

BUT WITH ALL the changes, Danny (Coach) Valdes is still as crazy as the first day I met him last April when I was here for a job interview. He keeps me laughing almost the whole time — from the time that he gave me my first taste of sailing to the present time when he is coaching me on the softball field. Tagging along with Danny has always been fun for me. I have been able to see lots of the territory and have been able to meet many different people through those jaunts of picture taking.

One period in the past year that I really enjoyed was the time during the fall that I was covering area high school football games for Nathan. It was one of the most interesting times I have spent — getting to see the towns that I had read about but had not been to. I have always enjoyed sports writing and did a lot of it in high school and college. It is something that I am looking forward to again this fall.

It has been a fun year but most of all I have proved to myself that I can survive on my own — a very important thing that I wanted to know.

Questions posed

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Federal grand juries are closing in on President Carter from all sides. On May 8, his closet adviser, Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo, was questioned by a Washington grand jury. On the same day, brother Billy Carter was subpoenaed to appear before an Atlanta grand jury.

And this week, still another Atlanta grand jury is reviewing the case against Bert Lance, the president's former banker and budget director. A decision probably will be made soon whether to go ahead with an indictment, which the grand jury voted months ago, but which the Justice Department brass have held up.

IF JIMMY CARTER weren't president, he would be a star witness before all three grand juries. The first grand jury, for example, would like his testimony on the Robert Vesco case.

Vesco is an international swindler who transferred millions worth of stock to a group of Georgians. They were expected, in return, to get him off the hook with federal law enforcement agencies.

A key figure in the plot was Spencer Lee IV, who had the right White House connections. He was paid $10,000 and was offered a share of the stock if he could help Vesco.

This much has been established: Lee flew to Costa Rica to see Vesco, then flew to the Bahamas to help set up a dummy corporation to launder the Vesco stock, then flew to Washington to talk to his White House buddies.

But according to Lee's sworn account, White House aide Richard Harden persuaded Lee to pull out of the conspiracy. The White House has acknowledged that Harden, meanwhile, reported the whole plot to President Carter.

This leaves some intriguing questions, which the grand jury might want to put to the president. Why didn't he report the conspiracy to the Justice Department as the law required him to do? Not until several months later did the criminal division learn about the Vesco caper and began an investigation.

HARDEN SPOKE to the president on Feb. 15, 1977, about Spencer Lee's involvement with Vesco. Why did Carter scribble a note to Attorney General Griffin Bell the same day, urging: "Please see Spencer Lee of Albany when he requests an appointment"? It was initialed "J.C."

And why did the president, knowing Lee had been paid to help a notorious fugitive pull White House strings, appoint him three months later to a Judicial Nominating Committee to help select federal judges?

The president, of course, won't be asked these questions by the grand jury. But the grand jury, meanwhile, has questioned his friend Kirbo about a curious conversation with a witness in the case. Kirbo was put together with the witness by Harden.

According to a tape of the conversation in the grand jury's possession, Kirbo advised the witness not to cooperate with the FBI, but to feed information to columnist Bill Shipp of the Atlanta Constitution. The latter has trumpeted the White House version of the Vesco affair.

The second grand jury has a number of questions that only the president can answer about his peanut business. His brother Billy pleaded the Fifth Amendment, for example, when prosecutors questioned him about a $1 million loan from Bert Lance's bank for a peanut sheller. The loan was improperly secured and disbursed.

Yet it was Jimmy Carter, not Billy, who owned 63 percent of the business. And, apparently, Jimmy Carter made the approach to Lance for the questionable loan.

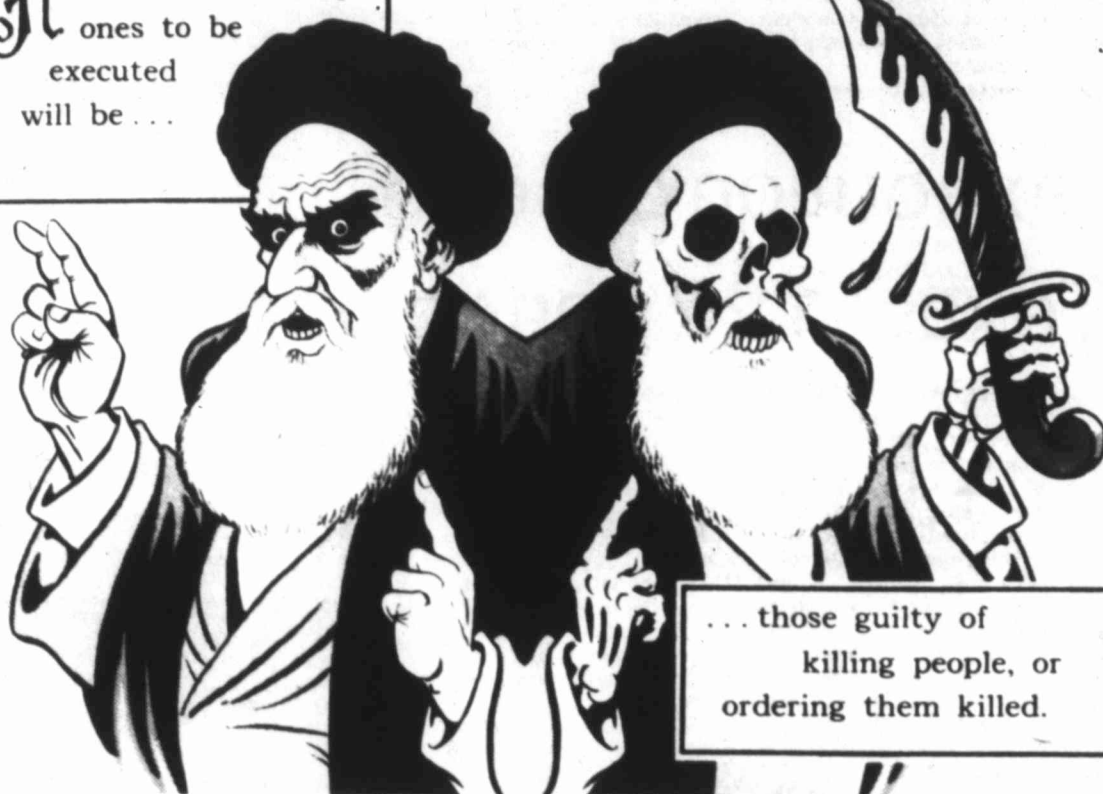

Lance had acknowledged under oath: "I had conversations with (Jimmy) Carter about his ideas about a modern peanut-shelling operation in his hometown of Plains, Ga. . . I told him at that time, if and when he wanted to buy a new peanut sheller, I would hope we would be given the privilege of financing it."

The third grand jury, in reviewing Lance's harem-scurm banking practices, has sorted through the records for evidence that the bank's money might have filtered illegally into the Carter campaign. The president's testimony might help clear up some uncertainties.

The White House has insisted that Carter is innocent of any wrongdoing in these cases. The questions, nevertheless, remain unanswered.

WASHINGTON WHIRL — The May 6 demonstration on the steps of the Capitol against nuclear power featured such popular music stars as Jackson Browne, Graham Nash, John Hall, Joni Mitchell, John Sebastian and Dang Fogelberg. They've been in the vanguard of the anti-nuke fight for years. But they're not against all kinds of fuel by any means.

Henceforth, the only ones to be executed will be . . .

those guilty of killing people, or ordering them killed.

Trichomonas can be 'passed along'

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: For years I used a combination hot-water bottle and douche unit. It deteriorated with time and the sides became stuck together. When I ripped it apart, I found black marks on the inside of the bag. Could it have been a breeding place for the trichomonas germ? I was treated for a fungus infection recently. — R.S.

The water bottle is not a breeding ground for the trichomonas organism. It thrives only in special body tissue. The one that causes vaginitis in women and infects the urethra (urine outlet) and prostate in men is a very particular little organism. It thrives only in the moist, alkaline (non-acid) world of human tissues. It may live a few hours outside of this environment, but will not reproduce. The substance in your bag was probably common mildew. The only possible way for the bag to have been the source of an infection is if it had been used by a woman who had it, then immediately afterward by a second woman.

There are three different trichomonas organisms: one found in the bowels (trichomonas hominis), one in the vagina (trichomonas vaginalis), and the trichomonas tenax, found in the mouth tissues.

People do get trichomonas other than through sexual contact, however. Women may get it when isolated in institutions, where it is believed spread by contaminated toilet articles, clothing, washcloths — and douches. The organism cannot survive drying or an acid environment, which is why vinegar douches are helpful in treatment of the vaginal infection.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Please tell me the difference between mineral oil and castor oil for the relief of constipation. — E.B.

There's a lot of difference: Mineral oil is a lubricating laxative. Castor oil is an irritating purgative. Castor oil is one of the most rapidly-acting laxatives you can imagine, and it may result in large explosive bowel movements. The only good thing to be said for it is its awful taste, which fortunately limits its use. It is to be avoided unless specifically recommended by a doctor for unusual circumstances (such as bowel cleansing for X-rays).

Mineral oil must be used with caution also. It can interfere with vitamin and mineral absorption and cause malnutrition. It should be used carefully with tots and the elderly to prevent its being breathed into air passages and lungs, which can cause pneumonia.

Castor oil contains various substances, chiefly oil from the castor beans. Mineral oil is a liquid petroleum, a derivative of petroleum. For a complete discussion on the subject, see "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is any form of shaking called Parkinson's disease? — J.F.

Absolutely not. There are several forms of palsy and different causes for them. The shaking of Parkinson's disease is quite distinctive. It is called "resting tremor," meaning it is most pronounced when the hands are relaxed, as when they are laying on one's lap. That's only one sign. There are other symptoms and little diagnostic tricks the doctor uses to confirm Parkinson's and distinguish it from other neurological disturbances. I wish I had space to discuss this complex subject more fully, which I will on another occasion. For now, be assured that all shaking is NOT Parkinson's disease.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Will calcium tablets help arthritis? — J.G.

Calcium in any form will not help because arthritis is not caused by calcium deficiency. An adequate calcium intake is advised for any person throughout life. It is not considered a treatment for arthritis, however.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Our pastor spends all his time preaching on current issues or giving book reviews on modern novels or plays. He never preaches anything from the Bible. Do you think we should change churches? I feel we are suffering spiritually. — J.M.

Dear J.M.: Paul told the young pastor Timothy to "Preach the word" (II Timothy 4:2) and this is still the great calling of the pastor. It is true that a preacher may feel led to help his congregation understand how the Gospel applies to modern life. But, above all, we have been given a priceless treasure in the Word of God, and your spiritual life will suffer if you do not learn its teaching and apply it to your life. Frankly, I feel sorry for any man who tries to preach from contemporary literature alone, when he has the richness and fullness of the Word of God available to him. People today above all are asking, "Is there any word from the Lord?" (Jeremiah 37:17).

Whether you should seek another church is not for me to say. You will want to weigh it carefully and prayerfully, in light of both your family's spiritual needs and your own responsibilities to witness for Christ. In some situations, I believe, a person may be led of God to remain in such a church to "strengthen what remains and is about to die" (Revelation 3:2). No church is perfect, but normally you will want to seek fellowship in a church which will help you grow spiritually.

Do not be too hasty in your decision. You may be surprised to find there are many others in your congregation who feel as you do. It may even be that some of you should go in a loving and gentle spirit to share your concern with your pastor. He may not be aware of the way he is neglecting the Word, because he believes he is preaching what people want to hear.

Pray for your pastor, and pray for others in the congregation who perhaps do not know Christ and do not realize that God has spoken to our world. Don't be judgmental, but by your love seek to share Christ as He opens up opportunities.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

The recent issue of the Coahoma "Wide Awake" magazine exists because of the dedication and hard work of Coahoma faculty advisors Aileen Bohannon and Marilyn Read. I have never known anyone more sincere or dedicated than these two teachers. They are creative, imaginative, and represent the highest character I know in modern education today.

The fact that the Awake junior high students can now take photographs, develop film, print both continuous tone and halftone screened photographs, and write in journalistic style directly relates to the efforts of Mrs. Bohannon and Mrs. Read.

The quality of the Wide Awake magazine is superior to many publications I have seen and the layout and photographs are something any college would be proud of. I am pleased to have been a small part of their hard work in allowing them the use of our facilities.

The goal of the Howard College journalism program is to serve the public and all area schools in every way we know. I have enjoyed so much helping this group to achieve a project never before possible with pre-high school students.

Coahoma has much to be proud of with Aileen and Marilyn. I look forward to future endeavors.

Hats off to Jan Morgan

By ROBBICROW

It was an evening of Mexican food and music when over 100 community people gathered at the Big Spring Country Club May 18 to pay tribute to Mrs. Kent (Jan) Morgan for her end-less efforts with the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation fund-raising Gayla.

Guests were seated at tables laid with white cloth enhanced by single strips of green gingham cloth. Baskets of assorted spring flowers accented each setting.

Before dinner, several musical numbers were performed by the Mexican band "Comancheros." Everyone then served themselves to a buffet-style meal of enchiladas, spanish rice and Ranch-style beans.

Mrs. Morgan instigated the first Gayla in 1974 continuing the event every succeeding year with the exception of 1977. Through her efforts, the center has seen over $10,000 in additional funds.

proclaimed Larry Bristo, director of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, to the large crowd attending the event.

The board president is stepping down as chairman of the Gayla and turning the responsibility over to Mrs. Jerry (Jan) Iden.

"I felt I should step down and give someone with newer and fresher ideas a chance," revealed Mrs. Morgan.

"I'm sure Jan will do a super job."

An engraved sterling silver tray was given to the Gayla founder with Bristo meeting the presentation.

In closing, Mrs. Morgan conveyed these thoughts: "Without people who care, the center would have folded many times. You must do what you believe in. And I believe in it. Big Spring is very fortunate to have such a center that cities like Waco don't even have."

As in-coming Gayla chairman, Mrs. Iden enthusiastically stated "I'm excited and I have many big plans."

"Jan got the job done."

To Summer Cottagers: How To Repel Boarders

DEAR ABBY: Now that the summer season will soon be upon us, how about some help for us poor suckers who have summer cottages?

We've had our cottage for eight years, and each summer we grow more popular than the summer before. Friends and relatives come in droves to enjoy themselves in the sun and partake of our food and drink. They stay anywhere from a weekend to a full week. They always come empty-handed, of course.

We have even written notes in advance saying, "We are sorry, but we can't have you this year,"—but they come anyway. Why are some folks so thick? We bought this place to get away from these people.

We don't want to seem cranky, but we'd like to entertain the guests we really WANT, without all these others "surprising" us. We're tired of running a free hotel, and are thinking of selling. Can you help us?

HAD IT IN MINNESOTA

DEAR HAD IT: If you've actually written to say you can't accommodate them, but they come anyway—your only salvation is to develop a thicker hide. Greet the unwelcome ones at the door with, "You may stay for a few hours, but when the sun disappears, please do likewise."

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to I'M WITH YOU IN MALIBU, you wrote: "Perhaps I'm bending over backwards to urge parents to set good examples for their children to follow."

You would do well to bend over backwards to urge parents to heed the words of George Bernard Shaw:

"If you must hold yourself up to your children as an object lesson, hold yourself up as a WARNING and not as an EX-AMPLE."

Can one guy love two girls?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Billy from Tacoma, Wash., is in love with two girls at the same time and asks guest writers for their opinions.

Sarah Laski, 17, who lives in Dubuque, Iowa, and Steve Kyle, 18, who hails from Colorado Springs, Colo., will tell it the way they see it. Welcome!

Dr. Wallace: I know this sounds stupid, but I am in love with two girls at the same time and I love them both equally.

I am a freshman in college and girl No. 1 is my "old" girlfriend who is a senior in high school.

Girl No. 2 is a senior in college who I met in college. I enjoy being with both girls very much and don't want to lose either one. I date both twice a week and neither girl knows about the other.

I know I'm in a "happy trap," but I want this relationship to last as long as possible. Do you see anything wrong in this situation?

I'd also like to hear what your teen guest writers have to say. — Billy

Billy: Since you are a college freshman you should be spending more time on your studies and less time on your love life. Date each girl once a week and tell each about the other.

Hello Billy: You asked for it so I'm going to give it to you. You are not in love with both girls, you are only in love with yourself.

You are a greedy young man who constantly must feed an inflated ego.

You deserve neither of these young ladies. — Sarah

Hi Billy: Actually, I'm envious of you. At the present time I don't have a girlfriend. My last one dumped me because she said she found a guy who was better looking and had better manners.

But enough of my problems. Let's get to yours. I see nothing wrong with loving two girls at the same time, but I think you should do the manly thing and inform the young women.

If you do, and one drops you, give her my address. — Steve

Home tour highlights study year

By JANET ROGERS

County Extension Agent Extension Homemakers in Howard County highlighted a year of study on home furnishings with a tour of homes May 16. Fifty homemakers participated in the tour.

Homes toured were those of the Spencer Wolfe family, the A.F. Supak family and the Ray Lawlis family. The homes featured a variety of window treatments, color schemes, accessories, furniture arrangements and energy saving ideas. Homeowners hosted each tour and provided information on building, decorating and remodeling.

Alta Lee Underwood, Dolores Norred and Frances Zant were in charge of providing a special guest book for each hostess.

Thirteen attend Special Olympics

The Association for Retarded Citizens met Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Reddy Room of the Texas Electric Service Co. for their final meeting until September.

Two films were viewed, one on the Advocacy program and the other entitled "Eternal Children."

Mrs. Lorena Cole, president, presided. Mike Cowley presented her a corsage of shasta daisies in appreciation of her service. Mrs. Cole is moving to Snyder.

Cowley showed the group the Joy Bell Advocacy Award plaque which will be given to Alice Hedges, a teacher's aide at Moss Elementary for the last 15 of 16 years. Mrs. Hedges was not present at the meeting.

Officers were elected for the current year. Ruth Buss was chosen president, and Mike Cowley, vice president.

Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Grant hostesses at breakfast

The Past Matrons Club of the Coahoma Chapter No. 499, Order of the Eastern Star, met at the Methodist Church of Coahoma for the May 5 breakfast.

Mrs. John Westmoreland, president, presided. Mrs. Charter Hale gave the invocation. Due to the incapacity of the devotional chairman, Mrs. Florence Read, past worthy grand matron of the grand chapter of Texas, Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Westmoreland gave the devotional.

Hostesses for the breakfast were Mrs. Hale and Mrs. David Grant.

The table was laid on gold linen with straw baskets of sunshine yellow silk daisies and yellow napkins.

12 members answered roll call.

Mrs. Westmoreland thanked the club for the honor of serving as president for the past year and induced Mrs. H.E. Heaton who will serve as president for 1979-80.

Mrs. Heaton named her officers, Jane Headrick, vice president; Eleanor Garrett, secretary; Mrs. D.S. Phillips, treasurer; Florence Read, devotional chairman and Mrs. C.J. Engle, reporter.

Hostesses for June 2 breakfast will be Mrs. Westmoreland and Mrs. Hale.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you likely to become involved in arguments over money, property, possessions and such, but the evening brings you a chance to engage in recreations you enjoy.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study monetary status well and make improvements so that you have increased abundance in the future. Express kindness to others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Go after your personal aims in a most definite manner for best results. Discuss future with a trusted friend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to dull duties early in the day so you will have time for more interesting activities later. Express happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you steer clear of argumentative acquaintances and thereby keep out of trouble. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try not to irk a higher-up today or you could have more trouble than you can handle. Try to establish more harmony in the home.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study further into new interests that have come your way, but don't make a definite decision until late in the day.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The daytime may seem difficult but by evening all goes smoothly. Don't argue with your mate who is not thinking straight now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Postpone handling civic matters until the evening and then you can do a much better job. Avoid one who is temperamental.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan time to handle dull work that has been accumulating. You can make a fine impression on others at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to become more productive in career matters. Use your smile more and ward off a possible bad encounter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Absent yourself from home in the late afternoon when arguments could start. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Instead of arguing with a good friend, await until the evening when your thinking is changed, before making a decision.

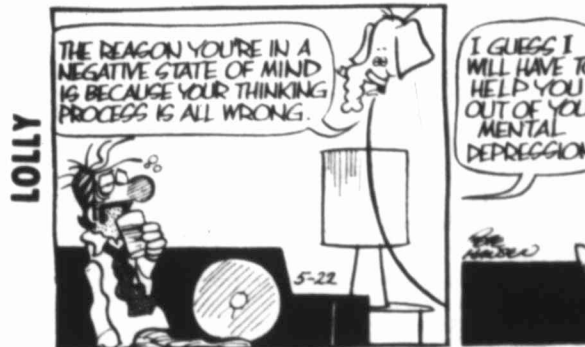

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be most capable in helping others with their problems, so be sure to give the best education possible, along such lines as law and medicine for best results. Give good spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Bianca Jagger to get aid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bianca Jagger will get financial help from her estranged husband, Mick, to pay for medical repairs after a roller-skating accident.

Jagger's attorneys said he was in England Monday, but Mrs. Jagger was present when a judge ordered the rock star to pay his wife $12,000 in temporary support and up to $2,500 for her medical bills.

Superior Court Judge Harry Shafer also ruled Monday that Jagger must deposit $35,000 to be held for paying Mrs. Jagger's attorney fees as the couple's bitterly disputed divorce case proceeds.

Burglary attempt foiled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sharp-eyed neighbor helped foil a weekend burglary attempt at Barbra Streisand's Bel-Air home, according to police.

Detective Gerald Winkle said Monday that officers recovered $30 from Carol McClure, 42, of Oklahoma City, after arresting her at Ms. Streisand's home Sunday. The officers were summoned by a neighbor who was keeping an eye on the home while the actress-singer was gone.

Ms. McClure was booked for investigation of burglary.

Weissmuller's mind good

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Weissmuller is being transferred to a convalescent home because his health — not his mind — is failing, says an attorney for Weissmuller's wife.

Albert Coombes on Monday disputed statements by Jack Staggs of the Motion Picture and Country Hospital, where the 74-year-old former "Tarzan" movie star is staying. Staggs had indicated the actor is suffering from "psychological problems."

"The move was only necessitated by fear that medically he might need 24-hour care," Coombes said. "The problem is that Johnny has several medical conditions that could endanger his life, were he to be unattended for a period of time."

Boston mayor to run again

BOSTON (AP) — Kevin H. White, elected mayor of Boston in 1968, says he will try for an unprecedented fourth successive term.

White met Monday with Vice President Walter Mondale and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass. The group scotched rumors that President Carter might offer White an ambassadorship to give O'Neill's son — the state's lieutenant governor — a shot at the mayor's job.

White, a Democrat, is in his third four-year term. He is the only Boston mayor to have served 12 years. The term was increased from two to four years shortly before his arrival.

U.S. recognition not needed

NEW YORK (AP) — Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo says he couldn't care less if Britain and the United States choose to recognize the new government of Rhodesia.

But, he cautioned Monday, both should take pains to avoid the wrath of black Africans determined to bring majority rule to their continent.

Special Forces officer dies of heart failure

DALLAS (AP) — Col. Arthur "Bull" Simons, a former Special Forces officer known for rescue missions he led into North Vietnam and Iran, died of heart failure Monday.

Simons, 60, suffered a heart attack last March while vacationing in Colorado. He died at Baylor Hospital here Monday at 4:30 p.m.

The 30-year Army veteran directed a team of 15 hand-picked men three months ago that rescued two American engineers held hostage in Iran on official corruption charges.

While on active duty in 1970, Simons led an assault on the Son Tay prison camp in an unsuccessful effort to liberate Americans thought to be held at the site 30 miles north of Hanoi.

The prisoners had been removed from the camp before Simons' raiding party of 53 men attacked. The strike force met heavy resistance, but sustained no casualties.

The two engineers held hostage in Iran — Paul Chiapparone and Bill Gaylor — worked for millionaire H. Ross Perot's Electronic Data Systems firm.

"My family, the people at EDS and I were fortunate to know this special man. Today is one of the saddest days of my life," said Perot, who financed the Iranian rescue effort.

"All of us in EDS will be forever indebted to Col. Simons for his unselfish, heroic act in rescuing our people from Iran."

"Col. Simons was a special man. He could lead, motivate and control a group of men better than any other man I have ever known. He had a great concern for the people. ... He always took the most dangerous assignment on a mission," Perot said.

Perot said he contacted Simons in January after attempts failed to negotiate a $12.7 million ransom for the two engineers.

"As my friend he went to Iran, placed his life at risk and refused to accept payment for his services," Perot said.

Simons said the death of his wife of 38 years in March of 1978 left him a lonely and restless man who was ripe for the EDS assignment.

Simons retired in 1970, ending a military career that spanned 30 years and three wars. It also included a stint training guerrillas in Laos.

During his career, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Silver Star.

His body will be flown to Pensacola, Fla., following a memorial service Wednesday at 9 a.m. at Highland Park Presbyterian Church.

A military funeral is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon in Pensacola. Simons will be buried beside his wife, Lucille Margaret Simons, at Baarrancas National Cemetery in Pensacola.

HEADQUARTERS FOR WEST-TEX TELEPHONE
...serving eight counties in area

West-Tex Telephone serves eight counties

West-Tex Telephone Co-Op Inc. serves portions of over eight counties.

These were areas which at one time had no telephone service at all.

The Stanton based co-op has served them now for many years. The original subscribers in these areas were very grateful for telephone service and appreciative of the service.

Like many other things, from generation to generation the demands increase. And West-Tex Co-Op works constantly to keep up with the demands and improve the service. Where at one time there were eight parties on some of the rural lines, they now find it a rarity if there are more than two or three and there are many single party lines.

Equipment has improved. The selection of telephones has improved. They also offer such items as bells that will ring out in the barn in rural areas and long extension cords.

Their idea is to serve these areas to the best of their ability. Check with them for new improvements and ideas they have for better service. Call 756-3393 in Stanton or drop by their headquarters building on West 80.

NO-ROACH IS SUREST ANSWER
...to have roach-free kitchen

No-Roach eliminates cockroach worries

Some people never have the neighbors in...and it's understandable. Who wants to take a chance on the neighbor spotting a cockroach flitting across a counter, or down a drain? So it is with thousands of housewives, all over America who never join a Bridge Club, because they know they can never take their turns having the girls in.

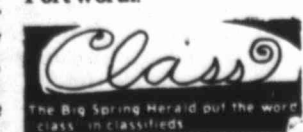

Or can they? Of course they can. All they have to do is discover Johnston's No-Roach...the sure-fire answer to cockroach problems. Not to mention ants...and silverfish...and spiders...and so forth. No-Roach is the household insecticide that keeps the promise of its name. The seeming magic about No-Roach is the ease with which it is used. You just brush it on anywhere that roaches or other crawling pests may assemble: across doorways, windowsills and baseboard; in cupboards and along the edges of kitchen cabinets.

No-Roach dries to an invisible shield that is colorless and odorless. All the time you are serving coffee to the neighbors, No-Roach is killing cockroaches eggs back in the nest...because every roach (or insect of any kind) that crosses No-Roach, picks it up on its feet and takes it home.

Do the neighborly thing.

Serve the ladies on the block a cup of coffee in a roach-free kitchen...thanks to Johnston's No-Roach. No-Roach is available at Furr's, Sav-U, Gibson's, Foodway, Giant Discount and all grocery stores. Distributed by Winn Dixie, Fort Worth.

EARLY MAILBOX INVENTED BY IRA F. COLLINS designed to improve appearance and security

'Mailbox Improvement Week' being observed

May 21-26 is "Mailbox Improvement Week," and Postmaster Frank Hardesty urged all local customers to paint and repair unkept or damaged mail receptacles, in town and on rural routes.

"Customers should be sure their boxes provide adequate protection to the mail and are easily reached by carriers to help speed collection and delivery of their mail," Postmaster Hardesty said.

The postmaster recalled that a man named Ira F. Collins was among the first to show interest in improving the appearance and security of the mailbox.

On April 29, 1903, he filed an application with the U.S. Patent Office for a two-part, cylindrical mail receptacle. It consisted of a detachable scoop with a weather-proof outer casing, and a metal flag that could be raised to indicate when mail was to be collected.

"Until Collins came along," Postmaster Hardesty said, "many makeshift receptacles—including tin cans nailed to trees—were used as mailboxes, particularly after rural mail service began in 1896."

Today, he said, a variety of approved commercial mailbox designs are available for use with decorative posts, and those who prefer a custom-made mailbox may check with the Big Spring Post Office to make sure it meets specifications and requirements.

During Mailbox Improvement Week, residents should examine their mailboxes to determine whether they have been damaged by weather or vandalism—particularly those located along rural routes, city curb-lines, and highways—and should make any necessary repairs or improvements.

Good time to control pecan nut casebearer

The best time to control the pecan nut casebearer in Howard County will be from now to May 31.

Control measures should be applied to control the small casebearer larvae just after the larvae hatch from the eggs and before they begin to tunnel into the nutlets.

There will be some difference in the time that casebearer hatch between pecan varieties within orchards and in home yards. To determine the best time to control casebearer, the nutlets should be inspected daily for eggs and the first casebearer damaged nutlet.

When the first damaged nutlet is observed, control measures should be applied. A thorough job of inspection must be done or casebearer will cause considerable damage before the damage is detected.

Homeowners can use Zolene, malathion or carbaryl (Sevin R). Follow the directions on the label for mixing and applying the spray treatment.

Zinc can be applied to the foliage of pecan trees when applying an insecticide for casebearer control. Regular zinc applications are needed for good development of pecans in Howard County.

For further information on pecan pests and their control, contact County Extension office in the basement of the Courthouse or call 267-6671.

Champagne Ball ducats on sale

A night of reminiscing will be sponsored by the Spring City Theatre, June 2, from 7:30 p.m. to midnight.

The Champagne Ball, held in the Settles Hotel Ballroom, will feature music from the 1930s and 1940s, as well as special entertainment. Champagne punch is included in the price of the tickets, which are $10 per couple or $7.50 stag.

Tickets are available from Theatre members and the Chamber of Commerce office, as well as Arcand Electronics, Faye's Flowers and Malone-Hogan Clinic. Proceeds will go to support the productions of the Theatre group.

Police beat Station looted, woman assaulted

Someone drove off with $429 worth of Foy Dunlap's Fina Service Station.

Dunlap told police Monday that sometime between 1 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 a.m. Monday, he was robbed by someone who gained entrance through a window. Gone was a telephone, adding machine, keys, candy, auto parts, a C.B. Radio and antenna, and $17 worth of gas.

The robbery cost Dunlap over $429.

Bob Brock Ford was the victim of a theft between 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. Mon. A pickup truck box railing set, valued at $75, was removed from the premises between those times.

A large broken window at Hall Bicycle Shop, 1401 Scurry, was blamed on strong winds accompanying the Sunday thunderstorm.

H.F. Development, E. 4th, was the victim of a soggy sense of humor Monday. Sometime between 3:20 and 3:47 p.m., someone turned on a water faucet and left it running.

Gasoline thieves failed to outsmart 7-11 Grocery, 623 McEwen, Monday. According to reports, two men filled an automobile tank and paid for $3 worth of gas and then returned to the automobile, helped themselves to $3.23 more gas and drove off. They got away with the gas but not as inconspicuously as they had apparently hoped.

Debbie Cox reported to police early today that she had been beaten about the face, arms and legs by a man known to her at her home. The assault occurred at 1 a.m.

A man enjoyed a meal "on the house" today, 2:05 a.m., at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop. The restaurant reported that the man left without paying for his sandwich and coffee. His bill was $3.40.

Four minor accidents were reported Monday.

James Newton of Snyder and John Wilson, 1710 W. 3rd, collided at 2nd and Benton, 12:17 p.m.

The intersection of FM 700 and US 87 was the scene of a collision involving Tamara Miller of St. Vrain, N.M., and John Dickens, P.O. Box 2361.

A car owned by Timothy Allen Pero, 2501 Carlton, was struck while it was parked at Rip Griffin's Truck Stop, 8:08 p.m. The driver of the colliding car left the scene.

The parking lot of Super Save, 1610 S. Gregg, was the scene of an accident between Joe Bob Travland, 2410 Carlton, and Mitchell Alan Harris, 538 Westover, 10:09 p.m.

Moisture hopes dim

County farmers watching clouds

Many farmers continue to watch the skies today although the forecast for the area gives no real hope for more moisture.

Across the four-county area monitored by the Colorado River Municipal Water District, rainfall varied from .5 of an inch to 3.5 inches since the rain began Sunday.

"Lake Thomas caught one foot of run-off, and Spence has yet to get a measurable amount," said R. A. Schilling, administrative assistant for the CRMWD. "We aren't sure Spence will get any at all."

Official rainfall for the rain period was 2.72 inches measured at the Big Spring experiment station.

All the surrounding area wasn't as lucky, however, with some communities receiving less than an inch of the precious moisture.

At Fairview, rainfall was measured at approximately .5 of an inch for the entire period, while to the north near Luther and Vealmoor, from .25 to 3.0 inches was measured. Therefore, while many of the area farmers will begin planting as soon as they can get tractors in the wet fields, others will still be "waiting for rain."

Other area rainfall totals were Ackerly, 2.5; Knott, 2.0; Garden City, 1.2; Colorado City, from .4 to 3.0 within the city limits; and Lake Thomas, 2.8.

Registration on Lamesa campus of HC begins May 30

Registration will be held May 30-31 and June 1. Three business courses, two English courses and two physical education courses are being offered along with one class each in government, history, mathematics, reading, sociology and Spanish.

Holland best place to live

PARIS (AP) — Holland is the best European country to live in, according to a recent survey by the French magazine Le Point.

Giving points for health, culture, stability and comfort, the survey placed Denmark in second place, followed by France.

At the bottom of the list, ranked as the "least inviting countries to live in" were Britain and Ireland.

PREPARING FOR SHOW — These students of dance instructor Ora Burson were having dress rehearsal Monday in preparation for their spring recital, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Municipal Auditorium. The performances will cover every type of dancing from ballet to disco, featuring the students in both pictures, as well as a number of other students who take dance lessons from Mrs. Burson at the YMCA.

Walton recovering from ankle surgery

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Walton will be ready for the 1979-80 season, Dr. Daley said.

The 6-foot-11 former Portland Trailblazer star underwent surgery as part of a rehabilitation program, a club spokesman said.

The surgery may be a factor as the Clippers try this week to arrange compensation with Portland, sources said.

A former advisor to Walton, Jack Scott, said over the weekend that Walton's physical condition renders the former All-American from UCLA unfit to play basketball.

"He's playing basketball, but he can't jump," Scott said. "He's afraid and anxious that he won't be able to play again."

Surgery was performed by Dr. Tony Daley, head physician for the 1980 U.S. Olympic teams.

Dr. Daley said the surgery was the same procedure that Phil Ford, the National Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year, underwent prior to his senior year in college.

Cardinals batter Merkel

The Big Spring Cardinals ran their season record to 5-0 with a 9-1 victory over Merkel Sunday afternoon.

Frankie Rubio sparked the Cardinals, twirling a three-hitter and striking out 13 Merkel batters. Rubio was also potent with the bat, drilling a two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth for all the runs that he would need.

The rest of the Cardinals hit the ball effectively, with Arthur Olague having the only extra base hit, a double.

The Cardinals visit Abilene Sunday to play a group of Hardin-Simmons University players, then return home on June 3 to host Carlsbad, New Mexico.

Fitch given release from Cleveland post

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — When it came to the final moments of his nine years as coach and general manager of the Cleveland Cavaliers, Bill Fitch unashamedly shed tears.

Fitch, the 46-year-old quip-master and admitted basketball junkie, asked for and was given his release from the final two years of his current contract with the National Basketball Association team.

"Sometimes the actors need a new stage," Fitch said, his voice choking with emotion as he and Nick Mileti, team president and majority owner, made the announcement Monday.

Fitch said he went to Mileti following this past season and talked about his future with the club.

"He said, 'Think about it and take your time,'" Fitch said. "I talked to some people that I respect, I went on vacation for 10 days and I talked to a couple of (NBA) clubs. I just think it was time for a change."

The Cavaliers slipped to 30-52 last season, missing the NBA playoffs for the first time in four years. However, Fitch, the only coach in the expansion-born team's history, said that had little bearing on his decision.

"I don't think I had as good a 30-52 and I think if our club is healthy next year, it'll be a good team. I can say that now," Fitch added with a smile. "I'm no longer a touter here."

There has been speculation that Fitch will be the next coach of the Boston Celtics, but about his future he would say only, "If I stay in basketball and go elsewhere — and I think the chances are 90 percent that I will — I just want to give myself 24 or 48 hours of breathing room before I do anything."

Mileti, the man who brought the NBA to Cleveland in 1970 and hired Fitch, called the decision "a mutual conclusion."

Shepard ruled ineligible for post-season games

HOUSTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association has notified University of Houston quarterback Darrell Shepard he will be ineligible to participate in any post-season bowl games for the rest of his college career at UH.

Shepard and UH officials had appealed for reinstatement of his eligibility for post-season games. Houston spent the 1977 season on probation after the NCAA accused the Cougars of recruiting violations involving Shepard and his purchase of a car.

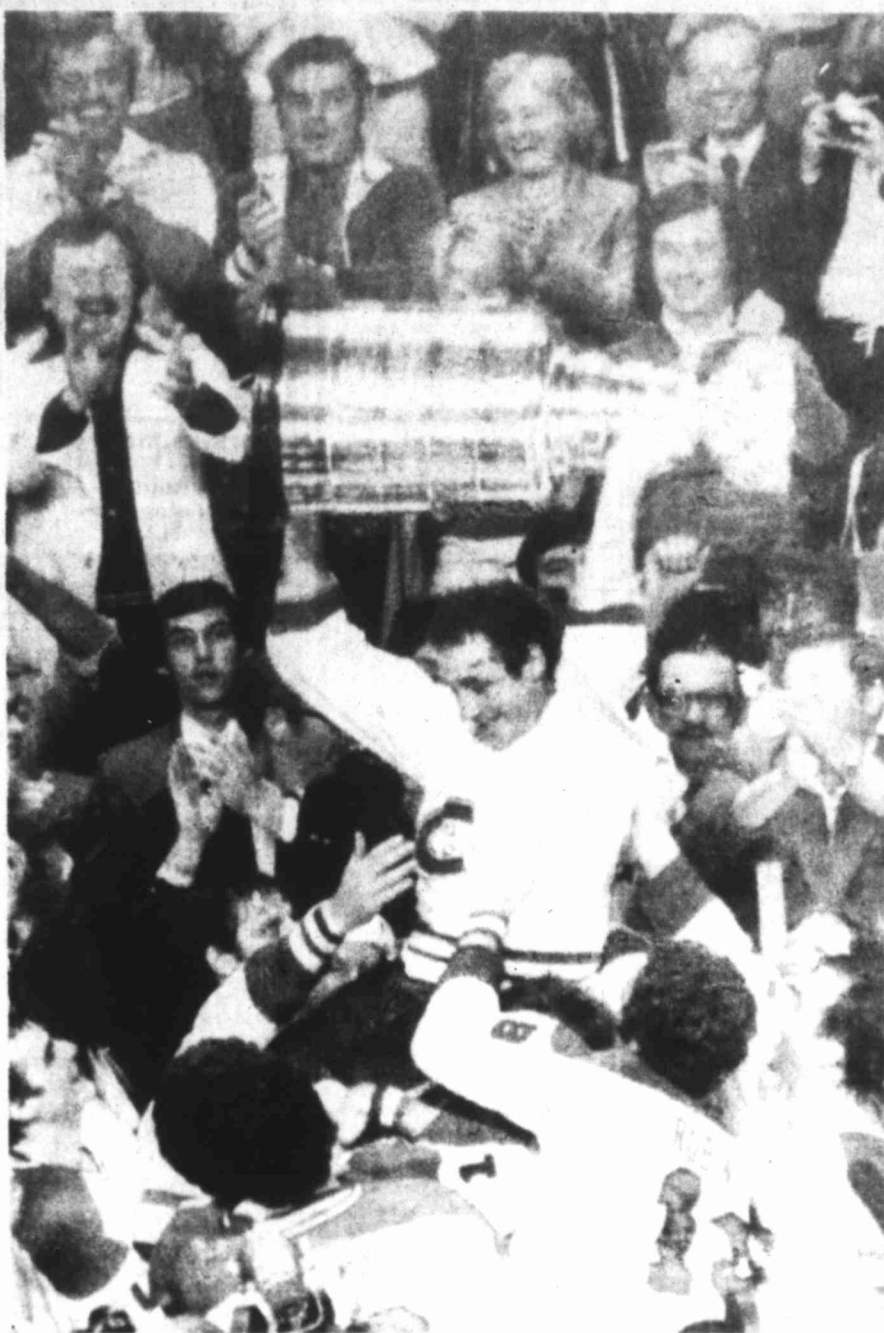

"I think they made the wrong decision," UH Athletic Director Harry Fouke said. "He is eligible to play 33 of the 36 possible games, most of them against the closest rivals, but he will not be able to participate in bowl games."

"I don't think there's much we can do about it right now."

The NCAA letter said Shepard could transfer to another school and become immediately eligible. However, to transfer to another Southwest Conference school, Shepard would have to get unanimous approval of the other eight SWC schools.

Shepard was red-shirted his freshman year with the Cougars and is eligible this fall for participation in the regular season. But if the Cougars go to a bowl game, Shepard would have to stay behind.

The NCAA has sanctioned over all bowl games.

HOISTING THE CUP — Bob Gainey of the Montreal Canadiens hoist the Stanley Cup high on the shoulders of his teammates as the Montreal Forum fans applaud Monday night after the Canadiens defeated the New York Rangers 4-1 to win the Cup for the fourth consecutive time. Gainey won the Most Valuable Player trophy for the playoff series.

Erxleben signs lucrative pact with New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints have signed their No. 1 draft choice, kicker Russell Erxleben of the University of Texas, to a six-year, million-dollar contract.

The contract was signed Monday, but no terms were announced.

However, reports indicated it may have made Erxleben the highest paid kicker in professional football history.

The contract — a series of six, one-year pacts — reportedly included a $300,000 signing bonus and a sliding salary that will average about $150,000 plus bonuses.

Erxleben, both a punter and a kicker, holds the NCAA field goal record with a 77-yarder against Rice in 1977. He made three field goals of more than 60 yards and 11 of more than 50 yards. Asked if he thought his distance would be cut by the National Football League rules which forbid use of a kicking tee, Erxleben said it might be reduced about 10 yards a kick.

But he said he didn't expect any trouble kicking off the artificial turf in the Superdome.

As a combination kicker, he scored 120 of 134 extra points attempted in college and 49 of 78 field goals. He punted 214 times for a 44.2-yard average, with a hang time on punts consistently more than five seconds.

Most NFL teams have a separate kicker and punter, but Erxleben said he plans to keep on kicking both ways.

He said coaches' resistance to having only one kicker might be because it would require two replacements if the kicker got hurt.

"But we don't get hurt that much," he said.

"The kicking game is as important as offense and defense," Coach Dick Nolan told reporters. "Russell is capable of handling the kicking and punting jobs for us. I think we've corrected and cured our problems in that area."

The Saints already have a kicker, Rich Szaro, and a punter, Tom Blanchard.

Erxleben said he'll try to take both their jobs. "I've got to get it from them."

Besides, he said, Szaro now wears a No. 15 jersey, and Erxleben, who was assigned No. 14 by the Saints, said: "This is the first time in my life I've had a different number than 15. I've been wearing 15 since high school, college and Little League."

Big Spring coaching staff hosting summer sports program

Big Spring Athletic Director Ron Logback and his staff are attempting to determine if there is an interest in our community to have summer sports program for local youngsters. The program would be designed for both boys and girls from the fourth grade through high school.

If there is enough interest, Logback and his staff would run a six-week program over an eight-week period. This would allow a person an opportunity to have two weeks off when needed and also receive the total six-weeks instruction.

The areas in which instruction is planned includes track, volleyball, basketball and weight lifting. The program would be held two hours in the morning from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. for one group, and two hours in the afternoon from 1:00 to 3:00 for another group, five days a week. The approximate starting date would be June 4.

The program would cost each child $8.00 and would be operated by the high school coaching staff.

If you have any questions regarding this program, please call Logback at the high school. The number is 263-2271.

Montreal wins Stanley Cup

MONTREAL (AP) — After winning six Stanley Cup championships since 1968 on the road, Montreal's mighty Canadiens decided it was time to give hometown fans another view of the victorious skate with the coveted trophy.

And captain Serge Savard and veteran center Jacques Lemaire did just that Monday night after the Canadiens whipped the New York Rangers 4-1 before a packed crowd of 18,076 at the Forum.

Everything came up "4s" for Montreal. It scored four goals, two by Lemaire and one each by Rick Charraw and Bob Gainey. After losing the opener of the best-of-seven showdown with New York, the Canadiens roared back to win four games in a row, giving them a fourth consecutive National Hockey League crown.

Just 11 days earlier, the Canadiens were on the verge of surrendering the Cup, trailing the Boston Bruins 3-1 in the third period of the seventh game of their semifinal series. They rallied twice and then pulled out a victory on Yvan Lambert's overtime goal.

With a chance to wrap up the series against the Rangers, the Canadiens didn't let it slip away. New York managed a 1-1 standoff after one period, but the Canadiens were in command the rest of the way.

"We came a long way since Boston had us 3-1 in the seventh game," Savard said.

"The Boston thing was a death struggle," goalie Ken Dryden said. "Then we lost the first game here to New York. We were flat. But in the last four games, we got the feeling that we could put it together for an entire 60 minutes."

Many of the Canadiens whooped it up in the dressing room, spraying champagne and beer around much more than indulging. Others, like All-Star defenseman Larry Robinson, sat quietly, reflecting on another job well done.

Steward and Co.

win Louisiana Draw

The foursome of Howard Stewart, Keith Hamilton, Earl Cota and John Stanley combined to fire a 60 and take top honors in a Louisiana Draw Golf Tournament held Sunday at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Summer Orchestra Camp gets under way June 17

LUBBOCK — Applications are available for the 23rd Annual Texas Tech University Summer Orchestra Camp for string students in grades seven through 12.

The camp will be held June 17-29 on the Lubbock campus.

String students who have had at least one year of training are invited and will be required to participate in an orchestra and section rehearsal in addition to several electives. Students are placed in one of the orchestras by audition.

Classes, from 8 a.m. - 4 p.m., include technique, solfeggio, theory, conducting, chamber music, body movement and sight reading. Swimming also will be taught. The 1979 camp is also sponsoring a special master class for string basses and an orchestra director's seminar.

Guest conductors are Curtis Peacock, conductor of the Casper Symphony and Casper Youth Symphony in Wyoming, and Herbert Karpicke, conductor of the Louisville Youth Chamber Orchestra in Kentucky. Peacock has worked with state festivals in Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Colorado and was guest conductor for the 1979 Arizona All State Symphony. The professor of strings at Casper College was one of nine young conductors chosen to participate in the 1978 American Symphony Orchestra League's conductor workshop with Dr. Richard Lert.

Karpicke is assistant principal violist with the Louisville Orchestra and principal violist of the Louisville Chamber Orchestra and Kentucky Opera Association. He is a former conducting student of Rudolph Kempe in Munich, Germany, where he played with the Munich Bach Orchestra and Munich State Opera. He was conductor of the Flint Civic Symphony in Michigan and the Munich Gabrieli Chorus and Orchestra.

Applications and information regarding tuition, housing and recreation are available from Richard C. Meek, Director, Texas Tech University, Box 4239, Lubbock, Tex. 79409.

Leslie Percy qualifies for certificate at OC

ODESSA — Thirty-seven spring graduates of the Odessa College Nursing Program were recognized in recent commencement exercises.

Mrs. Sue Blair, OC registrar, awarded 15 vocational nursing certificates and 22 associate degrees in nursing.

The vocational nursing certificate qualifies the student to take the Licensed Vocational Nurse (LVN) examination.

The associate degree in nursing enables the student to take the Registered Nurse (RN) licensing examination.

Both the academic vocational award, based on student's grade average, and the clinical vocational award, based on performance in hospital setting, were given to Betty Suellentrop of Midland.

Associate degree in nursing awards went to Jeannie Miller of Odessa, academic, and Barbara Waldrop of Odessa, clinical.

In addition to Suellentrop, vocational nursing certificates went to Lynette Carrens, Robyn Dildane, Dan Rodgers and Jan Wells, all of Odessa; Dorothy Agnew, Andrews; Pansy Bonds, Lela Hunt, Jennifer Spicer, Marcia Ingram, Cynthia Sauls, Christina Slaughter and Elizabeth Suellentrop, all of Midland; Carolyn Hargrove, McCamey; Patricia Sawyers, Garden City; and Lula Caldwell, Crane.

Besides Miller and Waldrop, associate degrees in nursing were awarded to Raymond Aplin, Pauline Brooks, Jacqueline Cates, Shirley Pruitt, Rory Qualls, Rebecca Ray, Vivian Reeves and Jo Richardson, Odessa.

Also, Eddie Barr, Barstow; Randal Dygert, Carla Harrell, Lisa Jolley and Gary Moore, all of Midland; Ricky Ferrell, Abilene; Debra Mason, Kermit; Becky Miller, El Paso; Leslie Percy, Big Spring; Merle Reilly, Andrews; Mary Smith, Marfa; and Kim Woodward, Fort Stockton.

Cathy Valdes on Dean's List

Cathy Valdes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Valdes of Big Spring, was named to the Dean's List at Texas A&M University for the spring semester.

Cathy had a grade point average of 3.3. She is a junior, majoring in Education.

ELTON IN CONCERT — British rock star Elton John performs in Oktyabrsky Hall in Leningrad Monday, the first stop in his eight concert tour of the Soviet Union.

Tickets sell for up to $150

Elton a hit in Russia

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — British rock star Elton John's first concert in the Soviet Union erupted into a frenzy, with nearly 4,000 Russian fans dancing on their seats or in the aisles.

Uniformed Leningrad police and other Soviet officials were helpless to control the screaming, clapping mobs Monday night. "I was determined to make it successful," the 32-year-old singer told reporters after the concert. "That's the biggest achievement I've ever received as an artist."

After the 2 1/2-hour performance, which John ended with a spur-of-the-moment of the Beatles hit tune, "Back in the U.S.S.R.," young people at first refused to leave the Oktyabrsky Concert Hall. "El-ton, El-ton," cried the teen-agers who surged below the stage.

Outside the hall, at least 2,000 youths spilled over wooden barriers and a human chain of police just to catch one more glimpse of John, who stood in his dressing room window and waved to the crowd.

"I'm so delighted. The kids are incredible," John said.

An official with the Soviet concert agency, Goskontsert, which had arranged the British star's appearance after months of negotiations, said: "I've never seen anything like this. Never."

No Western rock star as well known as John has ever been allowed to tour the Soviet Union. Monday night's performance was the first of four concerts he will give in Leningrad, followed by four more shows at Moscow's Rossiya Hotel.

The British rocker noted that after 10 years of performing to huge audiences all over the West, "I needed a challenge so we said, 'Let's try Russia.'"

Before John even walked on stage, scores of young people were gathered outside the hall trying to beg a ticket from foreigners and passers-by. Tickets were said to be selling on the black market for 100 rubles — $150 — each.

John greeted his audience by saying "Dobry vecher" (Good evening) and gave a short bow as fans admired his purple satin tunic-and-pants outfit worn with a black, gold-spangled scarf.

The audience ranged from middle-age women in bouffant hairdos to jeans-clad, leather-jacketed teen-agers in the rear of the hall.

Groups of teen-agers ran up to the stage in between songs to give the singer flowers, for his autograph or get a kiss on the cheek until concert hall ushers blocked off the way to the stage.

One group of well-wishers was even expelled from the hall.

The atmosphere electrified when percussionist Ray Cooper arrived on stage in an eerie, dramatic swirl of smoke and pulsing strobe light that sent the Soviet crowd whistling and cheering.

The two performers launched into expert renditions of their famous hits, including "Saturday Night," "Tommy" and "Crocodile Rock."

They brought both young and old leaping to their feet with the chart-topping tune "Benny and the Jets."

Cooper and John urged the crowd to clap and sing along. Hundreds streamed down the aisles to crowd in front of the stage, to the distress of Soviet officials.

Canadian election draws large voter turnout today

TORONTO (AP) —

Canadians from Eskimo settlements above the Arctic Circle to the steel and glass canyons of major cities today choose the government that will lead them into the 1980s and through the gravest crisis in their nation's 112-year history.

The choice is between the Liberal administration of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the flashy, tough-talking French-Canadian who has been prime minister for the past 11 years, and the opposition Progressive Conservatives, led by untested 39-year-old Westerner Joe Clark.

In a two-month campaign, Trudeau appealed for support in the name of national unity, saying only he could keep separatist-minded Quebec province from seceding and splitting the country in two. Clark told Canadians that for the sake of a troubled economy it was time for a change at the top.

The opinion polls showed the two major parties dead even at about 40 percent each in the popular vote. But because of the peculiarities of Canada's parliamentary system and political patterns, analysts gave the Conservatives a slight edge.

It would be the first Conservative government since 1963, and Clark, the career politician who would head it, Canada's youngest prime minister.

An expected 70 percent of Canada's 14.5 million eligible voters were casting ballots for their representatives in a newly expanded 282-member House of Commons. Polling places were open to 8 p.m.

The party winning the most seats generally forms the government and its leader becomes prime minister for a maximum mandate of five years. In today's election neither major party is expected to win a clear 142-seat majority. The one winning plurality can expect to rule as a minority government for a year or two, longer if it can get firm support from a minor party.

Trudeau, 59, spent most of the campaign's final day at his country retreat near Ottawa, then traveled to Montreal and watched the Canadiens defeat the New York Rangers for the Stanley Cup hockey championship at the Montreal Forum.

Clark's last campaign hours were spent in his home province of Alberta, in Canada's West, the base from which he worked his way up from running campaign errands to member of Parliament and leader of his national party in a surprisingly swift climb.

The campaign in the end came down to the issue of these two personalities.

Clark's theme was "Let's get Canada working again." He assailed the Trudeau economic record, pointing to 10 percent inflation, 8 percent unemployment and huge government deficits.

He proposed new programs to aid private business and big tax cuts, including U.S.-style deductions for mortgage-interest payments.

Ed Broadbent, leader of the socialist New Democrats, the third-strongest party, denounced Trudeau for the inflation and unemployment, dismissed the Conservatives as lackeys of big business, and called for greater government intervention in the economy and industry.

Cullen Davis plans wedding this week

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Cullen Davis and his longtime girlfriend, Karen Master, will marry this week, after his divorce becomes final, the multimillionaire industrialist says.

He declined to reveal the exact date.

"I don't want to let the cat out of the bag too much. Let me just say it will be this week," Davis said.

A close friend said, however:

"The wedding will probably be Thursday. They want to be married as soon as the divorce is final."

Mrs. Master, who has been married once previously, was a key witness for Davis at two criminal trials—when Davis was accused of murdering his 12-year-old stepdaughter during a shooting spree at the Davis mansion in August 1976 and when Davis was accused of putting out a contract on the life of his divorce court judge.

Mrs. Master testified Cullen was in bed with her at the time of the shooting, and Davis was acquitted. Several months ago, she corroborated his story that he was "just playing along" with Charles David McCrory, his former employee-turned-informant, when they discussed various murder plots, and a hung jury resulted.

Priscilla, who was wounded in the 1976 shooting incident, was Davis' second wife. Their marriage was ended last month in a ruling of District Judge Clyde Ashworth. In the divorce decree, the judge awarded the couple's $6 million, 20-room mansion to Davis and gave Priscilla 30 days to get out.

She has to pay him $50,000 a day if she isn't out by Wednesday, which is also the last day she can appeal the divorce decree. Her friends said she plans no appeal.

Davis said his marriage to Mrs. Master will be a quiet affair at a friend's home in Fort Worth, with only a few couples on hand.

"It won't be at Karen's and it won't be at the mansion. We want to keep it very small and very private," Davis said of the wedding.

They plan to move into the mansion as soon as Priscilla moves out, Davis said.
