Reagan Lifting Grain Embargo

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said today he is lifting the grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

In a statement read to reporters at the White House, the president said he was lifting the embargo "after weighing all options carefully and conferring fully with my advisers."

Read by deputy press secretary Larry Speakes, the statement also referred to Reagan's opposition as a presidential candidate to the embargo and said the decision to lift the ban was delayed out of concern the Soviets might "mistakenly think it indicated weakening of our position."

The embargo was imposed by former President Carter in response to the Soviet military move into Afghanistan.

The Reagan statement began, "I am today lifting the U.S. limitation on additional agricultural sales to the Soviet Union."

The statement said the administration consulted with U.S. allies before lifting the embargo.

During the presidential campaign, Reagan argued that the embargo forced farmers "to bear an unfair burden" for a policy he also contended did little harm to the Soviet Union.

After Reagan took office, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. led those who argued against lifting the embargo while Soviet troops were poised for possible intervention in Poland.

During the first three months of the Reagan administration, both the president and Haig have been sharply critical of the Soviets, particularly for what they contend is the Russian support for inter-

Play Going To Austin

Snyder High School's one-act play is headed for Austin again, presenting Director Jerry Worsham with an opportunity to break his own record with an eighth state title.

The Snyder play, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," won top honors Thursday in regional University Interscholastic League competition at Odessa.

Several members of the cast took individual honors also. Jack O'Banion was named best actor in the region, and Barry Tubb and Mark Robertson were named to the all-star cast. Joey Forbes received honorable mention.

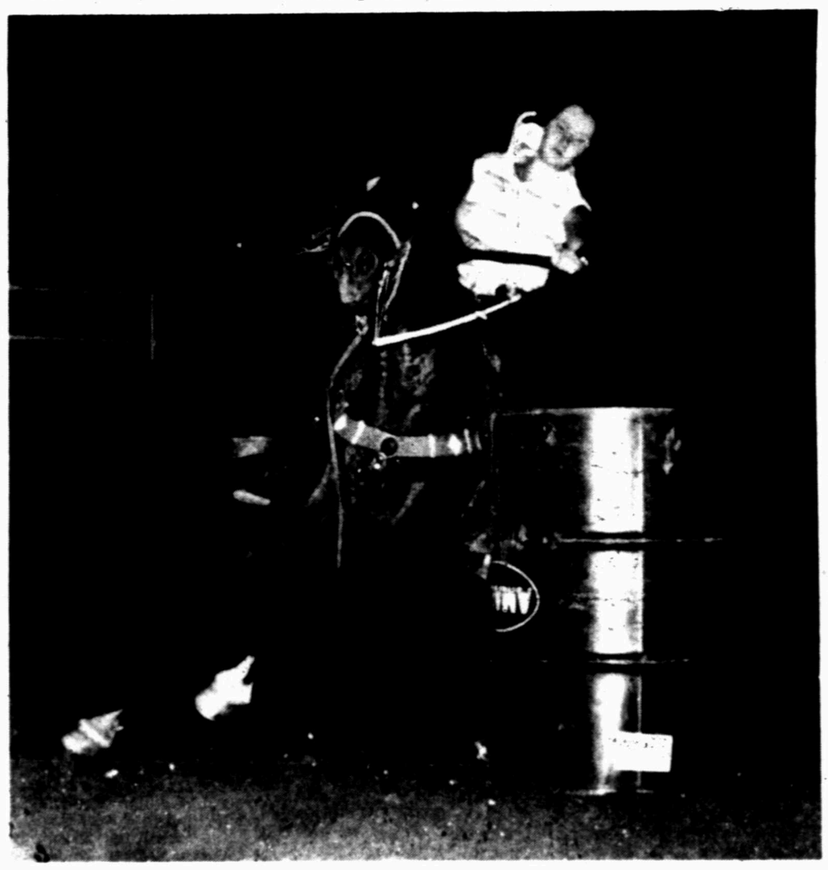

This is the 11th time that a Snyder High one-act play has advanced to competition on the state level at Austin. Last year's Snyder High production was named first-runnerup at the state level.

Worsham's students already had set state records for the number of times to reach the state finals and for the number of state titles. Thus, all honors received this year mean that the local students are breaking the school's own records.

The state one-act play contests are scheduled for May 8 in the Hogg Auditorium at Austin.

Q.—How much was the most rain ever recorded in Snyder in one month and when did it occur?

A.—Our records here at the SDN, which go back some 70 years, show that the 11.91 inches which fell in September of 1980 broke the old record of 11.27 inches, which had been set in August of 1920.

Vickie Daniel To Keep Kids

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — After the longest child custody trial in Texas history, Vickie Daniel was allowed to keep her two youngest children by default — but that was good enough for her.

"I didn't understand what had happened at first," Mrs. Daniel said late Thursday, after jurors voted that neither she nor her sister-in-law, Jean Daniel Murph, should be awarded custody of the children.

But when a child-custody jury makes that ruling, Texas law provides that custody and all rights automatically go to the natural parent — and once that was explained, Mrs. Daniel was a happy woman.

"I am elated," she said, amid congratulatory hugs from spectators and relatives in the packed courtroom. "I'm so happy I'm going to go home and hug my children."

Jurors had deliberated almost two hours before deciding not to name a "managing conservator" for the two young sons Mrs. Daniel bore former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. — a man she is accused of killing.

The jury had three options in deciding custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

They could have awarded the boys to Mrs. Murph, their aunt; to Mrs. Daniel, their natural mother, or to neither woman — the option they finally chose.

"Say some prayers and take care of those kids," said Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, as he shook his client's hand.

Haynes said the decision bolstered his "unbroken, unbridled faith in the jury system," and was the "most acceptable verdict for Vickie Daniel and the system."

Under the "neither" ruling, all rights — including visitation — are denied Mrs. Murph and the rest of the powerful Daniel family.

"I think the issue is closed now," said one of Mrs. Murph's attorneys, Andrew Lannie. "I don't foresee an appeal."

Mrs. Daniel has been charged with murder in Daniel's Jan. 19 shooting death. Her trial has been set for October.

Mrs. Murph filed the custody suit after her brother's death. In the resulting six-week trial, she contended her sister-in-law was an unfit mother.

But Haynes portrayed Mrs. Daniel as a woman victimized by a husband who beat and sodomized

Time To Change Sunday

Daylight Saving Time begins this weekend.

Clocks and watches are to be changed officially at 2 a. m. Sunday, but for practial purposes, most people probably will want to make the change Saturday night before they retire. Time pieces should be moved forward one hour. For example, if the change is made at 10 p. m., it should be moved to 11 p. m.

Rep. Shaw Here Today

Rep. Larry Don Shaw of the 63rd District, was scheduled to be in Snyder late today.

Shaw planned to attend an open forum type meeting at 5 p. m. in the Student Center at Western Texas College and later in the evening attend a performance of the WTC Dinner Theatre production of "The Good Doctor."

The public was invited to visit with him during the session in the Student Center.

Inflation Moderating

WASHINGTON — Economists say the worst may be over for this year's inflation, although rising food prices could offset moderating energy and housing cost increases in the next few months.

The government announced Thursday that inflation fell below double-digit figures last month, slowing to a 7.5 percent annual rate. It was the smallest increase since last summer and was primarily due to moderating energy prices, the government said.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Thursday, 69 degrees; low, 47 degrees; reading at 7 a. m. today, 52 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1981 to date, 8.21.

WEST TEXAS: Mostly fair and warmer through Saturday. Highs 70s and 80s. Lows 50s except low 40s mountains. Highs Saturday 80s except low 90s Big Bend.

Hospital Move Goes Smoothly

The move into a new wing at Cogell Memorial Hospital has been smooth for the most part, the hospital's board of managers was told last night at their regular meeting.

Cy Miller, hospital administrator, said that 25 surgical patients and 18 medical patients were now in the new wing and that the remaining rooms for medical patients were due to be filled, possibly today, as equipment is activated. A few minor problems with equipmemt have been solved with relative ease, Miller said.

Members of the board toured some of the older hospital facilities, which will be renovated and put back into use as demands arise.

Miller said that the hospital's central supply unit would be moving into its new facilities in the new wing today. This is the last department to take up its operations in the new wing.

During last night's board meeting, the administrator's report for the month of March was approved.

The report showed a daily patient census of 72 for the month and the census for the calendar year now has averaged 71.

Rex Robinson, president of the board, presided over the brief business session. Other board members attending were Sam Cross, Roy Kidd, Leon Autry, John Jarrell, A. Z. Glover and County Judge Preston Wilson.

Miller said that around 2,000 persons attended the open house event in the new hospital wing last Sunday afternoon.

New Secretary Gets Initiated

Terry Webb, who recently began her duties as secretary in the Senior Citizens Center office, couldn't have gotten a faster introduction to the varied responsibilities of her job.

Everything at the center is on double time because of preparations for the May Day fund-raising activities on May 2, and Mrs. Webb is right in the middle of all the planning.

Mrs. Webb was graduated from Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College. Her husband is Jerry webb.

May Day will be held in the Scurry County Coliseum this year, and it will get underway when the barbecue serving lines open at 4:30 p. m. There will be entertainment until 6:30 p. m. when serving lines close and attention shifts to an auction sale of 30 quilts made in the Senior Center, a bronze sculpture donated by Dr. Robert Taylor of Snyder, eight prints by former Snyder artist, C. Warren Cullar, and other items.

No tickets will be sold at the door for the barbecue, but if you aren't lucky enough to get one in advance you can content yourself with a slice of pie or cake from a refreshment booth.

This is the fourth year the center has sponsored May Day, its major fund-raising event of the year. Anyone who would like more information on the event may call the center at 573-0104.

Speedy Neiman of the Hereford Brand says the country has become so obsessed with individual rights that criminals are pretty sure when they commit a crime that, 1. they will not get caught, 2. if they do get caught, they will never go to trial, 3. if they go to trial, the punishment will be light.

"While the number of violent crimes are few in our own community, we are plagued by continual burglaries and by acts of vandalism. The rising tide of crime is with us because criminals are getting away with it," says Nieman.

"Our society is giving the criminal every benefit of the doubt, wringing its hands and wondering if the criminals will ever take pity on us and leave law-abiding citizens alone."

Here's an observation passed along by Jerry Tidwell of the Hood County News.

"It's a gloomy moment in the history of our country. Not in the lifetime of most men has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. The domestic economic situation is chaos. Our dollar is weak throughout the world. Prices are so high as to be utterly impossible. The political cauldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent, upon the horizon. It is a solemn moment. Of our troubles no man can see the end."

Sound familiar. Well, at least it seems appropriate for the times. But it came from Harper's Magazine in 1847.

those smart machines

Several years ago, a prescience movie entitled "2001: A Space Odyssey" spellbound audiences with a plot about an extended space voyage. the spacecraft's master cmputer known as "Hal," who possessed the power of speech and was making most of the technical decisions, staged a murderous mutiny to take charge of the space mission.

Thanks to computer technology advancing at an incredible rate, some primitive, conversational prototypes of "Hal," are already functioning out there in certain advanced U.S. industries, not only taking orders spoken to them, but frequently talking back.

According to the Wall Street Journal, a Ford Motor Co. worker in Teterboro, N.J. picks up a package at the loading dock and tells the computer where to store it. With unerring accuracy, the package is carried by conveyer belt and unloaded at the proper storage shelf.

Meat inspectors at six Wilson Foods Corp. packing plants dictate all necessary data on each hog carcass to a computer, which prints a complete record on each farmer's hogs and later writes a check to the farmer.

Texas Instruments Inc. has developed a $3 silicon chip that can recite a vocabulary of up to 200 words. Soon computers will be able to provide telephone directory assistance and make hotel and airline reservations. International Business Machines Corp. has been working for eight years on a word-processing system that could take dictation.

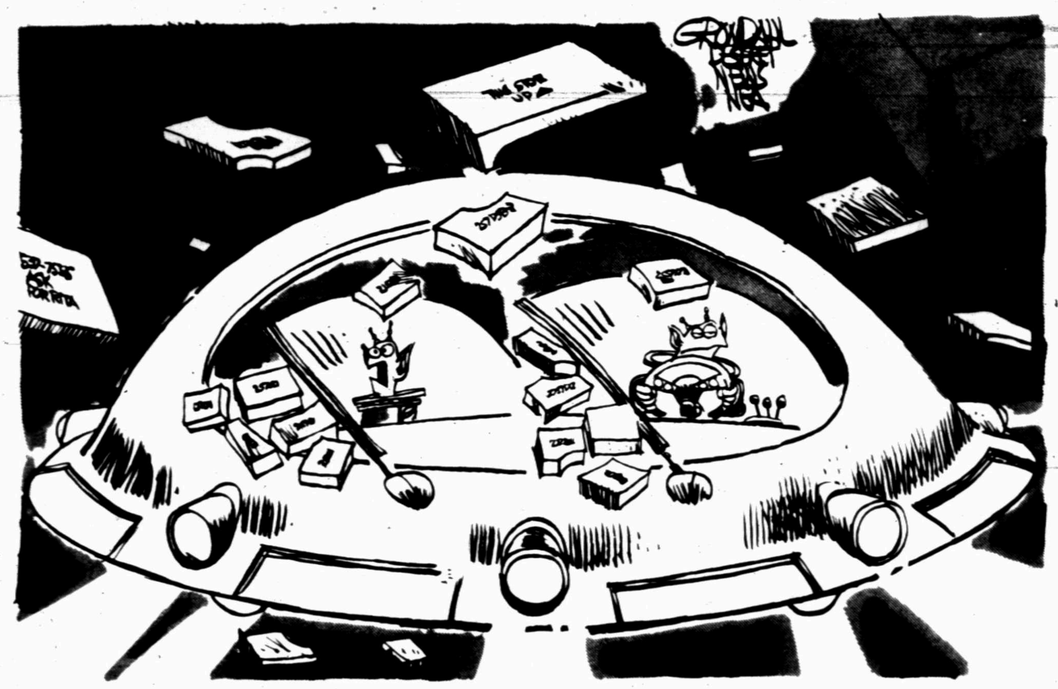

A talking chess board manufactured by Fidelity Electronics Ltd. of Miami is a big hit, even at $360. And a flood of speaking toys is predicted by next Christmas. Toys for grownups are promised by Toshiba Corp., a Japanese electronics firm—voice-controlled television sets will be available by 1983.

Some computers are programmed to respond only to certain individuals who have "trained" them. Others recognize a prescribed number of words no matter who speaks them.

Cars, we are told by General Motors, will be able to speak out and warn of low oil pressure, for example. The makers of appliances envision washing machines that will complain about overloads and ovens that call out when something is about to burn. The possibilities are endless.

The capacity of computers to solve mathematical problems in split seconds or remember everything indefinitely is, in a way terrifying. It is even more so when speech is added to the computer's mechanical genius, giving it the ability to rebuke its human master for the smallest error, and to rebel as well at anything less than perfection.

Still, we shouldn't be too intimidated. If and when these talking computers get too big for their silicons and too sassy, we can deal with them just as the astronaut did in "2001." We can pull their plugs.

"What is all this stuff anyway? It looks like floor tiles."

I hate to buy things that don't show.

Okay, so I admit it. I'm a snob, but you can't get respect out of a root canal or new underwear.

You could fork out a couple of big bills and have a septic tank so clean you could cook in it, but does anyone care? Plant a few geraniums in the side yard by the garbage can and people go crazy.

My whole house is flash and show. You walk into it and the first thing that hits you is the immaculate order of things. All the drawers closed. There is a feeling of neatness. You know without asking that the people who live here have clean fingernails and pay their paper boy on time with cash.

Behind a closed door under the sink is a cookie sheet born the year "The Wizard of Oz" was shown for the first time.

Inside the bottom drawer are dish towels so dingy that if a child played with them. You'd make him put them down because you "don't know where they've been."

In the "catch-all" drawer is a pair of reading glasses made whole by a paper clip connecting the stem to the frame. Outside is a 45-foot garden hose with a torn-sheet tourniquet every three or four feet that puts the leaks in traction.

If something doesn't show, we don't fix it, paint it, empty it. clean it, cover it, deodorize it, polish it, alter it, bleach it, wax it, or recognize it in public.

Maybe if there were more of an incentive, we'd pay attention to nonvisibles. Perhaps a sign by the front door that reads, "This house has just had a termite inspection and has been declared clean." Or, "The pad under this crummy carpet is waffled for comfort with little air pockets and it's top of the line."

I learned a long time ago not to waste my time on things that could not be seen. I never sewed up a pocket in a winter coat, never hemmed a slip that you could turn over at the waistband, never bought a water heater until the basement flooded, never replaced the tiles behind the stove, never threw away the scissors with half the tip broken off.

All you people out there who paint the inside of closets—and you all know who you are—listen to me. It's like having your light burn out in the refrigerator. who knows when the door is shut?

Living in an ivory tower isn't easy. In fact it is probably impossible to reside there indefinitely without taking a tumble. Two incidents come to mind.

The first occurred Saturday in the parking lot of Arlington Stadium when a brawl broke out among some busloads of gamegoers. One man had part of his ear bitten off and a pregnant woman was punched in the stomach. A mundane enough occurence in our violence prone society and hardly worth mentioning, except that the buses were chartered by the Dallas County Criminal Bar Association and were filled with defense attorneys, county prosecutors and investigators, police officers and even a judge.

Those are the very people charged with keeping the peace. How does it feel to be among the regular riffraff fellas?

The second incident involves that most prestigious of newspapers, The Washington Post. The Post was a well respected institution even before it scored the scoop of the century with the Watergate story. Maybe its gotten lazy since, or maybe it just got caught. Anyhow, it recently won the most coveted of prizes, a Pulitzer, for a heart-wrenching story about an eight-year-old drug addict in the city.

The story had everything. It really made one ask questions and cry out for change in a society that would allow such a fate to befall its children.

A top notch piece of journalism in every way except one — it never happened, it was fabricated from the word go, fiction, or in this case, lies.

The reporter promptly relinquished her Pulitzer and resigned but the damage was done. The cornerstone of any newspaper is its credibilty — can the public believe what it prints.

I've sadly observed that the bigger the paper the more it tends to position the facts in a manner which creates the best reading. Another way of putting it is, if you have the makings of a good story, don't let the truth ruin it.

One of the agonies of working on a small paper is, you can't get away with even little things. (I misspelled kerosene Wednesday and the phone was ringing before the ink was dry.) Someone once said that in a small town everybody knows what happens anyway, they just buy the paper to see if it got it right.

Sometimes the news is not very exciting, but that's just the way it is. If it's entertainment you seek, try the National Enquirer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Buying your first home should be exciting, interesting and enjoyable, says the National Association of Realtors. "On the other hand" it concedes, "it can be a pain in the neck."

After reading the Realtors' list of possible sources of funds, some would-be buyers might also conclude that the pain can spread north into the cranium and south to the lower back, too.

However, the recommendations do suggest how hard it is to buy a house these days, when taxes and inflation shrivel the paycheck, and the median purchase price paid by first-time home buyers exceeds $50,000.

The list begins with a reminder that the financial rule of thumb has been bent. Whereas 25 percent of monthly income once was considered the maximum a couple could afford for housing, the limit now is 33.

A 33 percent figure can be achieved, of course, only by cutting into other spending areas, and while the Realtors don't spell them out, those areas generally include entertainment and travel, and sometimes even family size. The pain in the neck is now spreading perceptibly.

Before you can even consider the discomfort, however, you must consider how to raise the down payment. "Draining your savings account is the most obvious way," the Realtors report. "But if you come up short," they advise, "you may have to tap other sources."

What other sources? Well, you might borrow on your cash-value life insurance policy. The life insurance industry doesn't like that idea, as you might have heard, but they can do little about it: They must lend it, generally at a maximum of 8 percent, if you ask them for it.

Insurers warn, however, that borrowing from them can conceivably endanger you insurance policy. The possibility exists, for instance, that if you fail to meet loan payments your policy could cease. In your quest for a house, that is, you are moving into areas of risk, and risk have shown itself to be a major cause of stomach, neck and other pains.

Should you follow the next suggestion you'll know the pain is truly physical rather than psychosomatic. You are advised that "Buying a home that needs work is another way to economize," because "Sellers may be willing to lower their asking price if they don't have to make major repairs..." Those repairs, of course, would be made by you.

Ah, but the aches and pains and stresses and sacrifices might be worth it. You are advised that "Once you're in, you'll be able to use the accumulated equity as downpayment on your second purchase."

You have won another chance. You have won the right to do it again.

donald f. graff

Canadians have done it again.

Some of them, that is. Those who went to the polls in the country's latest decisive election—Quebec's, which has produced another typically Canadian mixed bag of winners and losers.

So mixed, in fact, that this early in the analyzing it is far from perfectly clear exactly who should be considered which.

Premier Rene Levesque is, of course, the big winner with his Parti Quebecois picking up 80 or the 122 seats in the new provincial assembly. Or is he?

Levesque has provided Quebec with what even the opposition recognizes as excellent government. The French-speaking majority is master in its own house and it is a very well-run house. Quebec voters appreciate that, more than they do his determination to detach the province from the rest of Canada, as they demonstrated in last year's referendum on that issue.

A reading of the April 13 Quebec returns in this light suggests the voters returned Levesque despite, not because of, the very cause that is his party's raison d'etre. And he pledged himself during the campaign not to submit the separatist question to another referendum during a new term in office. Levesque has an impressive string of short-term achievements, of which the election victory is the latest, but they do not appear to be bringing his long term goal any nearer.

The opposition Liberals, who only a few months ago were virtually conceded the election, are the big losers. Or are they?

Their leader, Claude Ryan, certainly came out on a very short end. He has lost not only the premiership to Levesque but quite likely considerable ground within his own party, which may now be inclined to look elsewhere for the winner it thought it had found in him.

The party itself is not, however, in such bad shape as its minority status in the new assembly — 42 seats—might indicate. In the popular vote, there wasn't all that much difference—46 percent for the Liberals and just under 50 percent for the Parti Quebecois. The Liberals still have a broad electoral base and reasonable assurance of being able to continue to thwart Levesque's efforts to detach Quebec from the rest of the confederation, their primary interest at the moment as the closest thing to a national party in Canadian politics.

Then there is the fellow whose name was not even on the ballot but had every bit as much at stake in the election as Quebec's party leaders.

Pierre Trudeau.

It was his Liberal Party that went down to defeat and his most visible political adversary, Lebesque, who was returned to power. So the Canadian prime minister is a double loser. Or is he?

Ryan, who shares Trudeau's opposition to Quebec autonomy but otherwise has some divergent ideas on the shaping of the Canadian confederation's future, has been removed for the time being as a potential rival in national and party politics. And while Levesque may be back stronger than ever in an adversary role, that has its advantages for Trudeau.

Levesque makes a convenient bad guy against whom to rally the rest of Canada to the federal cause. He is an important ally of other provincial premiers opposing Trudeau's drive to revise the Canadian constitution in the direction of a strnger central government. But his commitment to Quebec separatism makes that cause less than common. And it can be argued that his own continuing success in Quebec, demonstrating that French Canada can exist and prosper within the larger confederation, is providing one of the strongest arguments against his own separatist cause.

Levesque does have one option. He could call another provincial election with separatism the issue before his new five-year term is up, technically not violating his no-referendum pledge. but possible benefits to anyone at this point appear questionable.

If Canadians run true to form, it would not turn out to be decisive.

Women In Saudi Arabia May Soon Be Driving

"Islam protects women because they are more important than men, not because they are inferior to men," the banker added.

Although the government of King Khaled officially accords top priority to the education of girls, they must be segregated from boys. Women work as primary school teachers, doctors, nurses and social workers, but only with members of their own sex.

Restricting women to their homes or to jobs that have no contact with men has forced the government to import large numbers of foreign workers to cope with growing economic development.

Saudi women who live in burgeoning urban centers, mainly in the oil centers in eastern Saudi Arabia, are said to be quietly campaigning to get permission to earn drivers' licenses.

Only men are allowed to drive in Saudi Arabia, and women in the developing areas complain that hired drivers are scarce and expensive.

But a traffic police superintendent was quoted as insisting that it is "improper for women to drive." He said he was worried that a female driver who suffered a flat tire might have to remove her veil to fix the flat.

Try A Different Type Of Sandwich

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When we heard there was a new-to-us Salad Sandwich being served in Paris, we welcomed the arrival of a recipe based on the new formula. Now we wonder whether the cook who first devised the new French sandwich wasn't inspired by the American Caesar salad? There are croutons in both Salad Sandwich and Caesar Salad. What do you think?

SALAD SANDWICHES
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves
1 medium tomato, diced
1 small green pepper, seeded and cut into thin short strips
1-3rd cup finely chopped red onion
½ cup pimiento-stuffed green olives
4 round hard rolls (each 5 inches wide)
4 slices Swiss cheese, cut into thick short strips

In a medium bowl whisk together the oil, vinegar and basil; add the tomato, green pepper, onion and olives and toss well. Chill, stirring several times, for a couple of hours.

Before serving, cut each roll in half horizontally. Cut out the soft inner part of each roll half, leaving a ¼-inch thick shell. Cut these soft inner parts of the rolls into ½-inch cubes. Place cubes in a broiler pan (minus the rack) and broil, stirring several times, until they are golden brown. Cool. Toast the hollowed-out roll halves and place hollow-side up on a serving dish. Toss the marinated chilled mixture with the roll cubes and Swiss cheese; spoon into the cavities of the rolls. Serve at once.

Makes 4 servings.

Neck toner

For a lovely, firm neck that won't sag prematurely, do this exercise every day. Place the heel of your hand underneath your chin. Now try to open your mouth against the resistance of your hand, using neck and chin muscles. Repeat 15 times.

Lip tricks

Here are some tips from the makeup experts on how to use lipsticks to look your prettiest. Chose a shade that's compatible with your skin color — warm colors for warm tones, cool for cool tones. If the color changes on your lips, try applying foundation before lip color. Shop around until you find a formula that feels creamy and glides easily over your lips. What works best for a friend may be wrong for you.

Not all the players in that Cavendish Club rubber game are life masters or national champions.

We doubt if Larry Rochlin and Eric Spector have ever played any duplicate at all much less any tournament bridge.

Larry lives in Paris, but business brings him to New York several times a year and when in New York he is at the club every afternoon and any evening he can get a game.

We think Eric plays just so as to bid slams. He doesn't seem to care whether or not they make — he just bids them and hopes for the best.

Larry's preempt is typical of the game. Everyone preempts with any excuse and Eric looked at his three aces and bid the slam.

Larry ducked the first diamond and won the continuation. Then he cashed dummy's ace of hearts and ran off trumps.

The three-card ending found Larry with K 10 of hearts and deuce of clubs while dummy held the 10 of diamonds and A 7 of clubs.

West held two clubs and the high diamond while East held Q J of hearts and a club.

Now Larry cashed his king of hearts to squeeze West out of one of his clubs. East had already been forced to come down to one club so Larry discarded dummy's 10 of diamonds and made his slam with dummy's ace and seven of clubs.

Opera Program Entertains Beta Sigma Phi Members

Mary Lou Scott entertained Beta Sigma Phi members Tuesday night, April 21, when she staged a one-woman performance of the opera "Carmen". She began her program about drama appreciation by stating that five elements of drama are found in opera. These five elements include staging, costumes, choreography, characterization, and plot.

Though opera is sometimes difficult to understand, knowing the story line aids in its appreciation. She set the background for "Carmen", which takes place in Sevilla, Spain, around 1820. While music from the opera played in the background, Mrs. Scott, dressed in an appropriate costume, dramatically interpreted major scenes from "Carmen".

In the business meeting which preceded the program, fifteen members were present to discuss plans for the annual Founder's Day Banquet which will be April 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

President Mona Bryan announced that next year's officers will be installed at the banquet. Members also discussed the state Beta Sigma Phi convention in McAllen June 26-28.

Dena Ellis, woman's club representative, announced that Gloria Myers of Beta Sigma Phi has been elected corresponding secretary of the Martha Ann Woman's Club Board of Directors. Mrs. Ellis also reminded members to plan to attend the woman's club Silver Tea which will be May 2.

The next meeting of Beta Sigma Phi wil be May 5. Retiring officers will serve as hostesses.

Northeast PTA Has Meeting

On April 21, the Parent Club of Northeast Elementary had its regular meeting. Due to very small attendance, the meeting was very informal and conducted by John Lamb, the president.

A nominating committee was appointed to nominate officers for 1981-82. They will be presented at the May 12 meeting which will mainly consist of brainstorming ideas for Parent Club activities during 1981-82.

The attendance contest winners' activities and the sixth grade reception were also discussed.

The elegant knot

If you have long hair, you can create an elegant evening style by making a chignon or knot at the nape of your neck. Brush all your hair into one hand, making a pony tail at your nape. Secure tightly with an elastic band at the base. Moisten hands with water or lotion. Twist hair tightly to within four or five inches of its base. Then, holding the far end, push hair like a plunger into the elastic band area. It will automatically loosen into a soft, pretty knot. Twists ends around and under this knot and anchor with hairpins.

Gramm Says People Supporting Cuts

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If everybody got the same reaction from their constituents that he did, Texas congressmen will solidly back President Reagan's spending cuts when the proposed budget hits the House floor for a test vote next week, Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station says.

"People of my district definitely want to cut the budget," Gramm said, although he stopped short of the prediction several days ago by Gov. Bill Clements that two-thirds to three-fourths of the 24-member Texas delegation will support the president's budget.

"I hope he's right, but I've not had the opportunity to speak to all the members of the Texas delegation yet," Gramm said.

Clements made his prediction after visiting with Reagan Tuesday, at the end of a 2-day stay in the nation's capital during a governors' conference. He said he would "twist some arms" to help win Reagan more votes among the Texas delegation.

The governor had invited the Texas congressmen — most of whom have been back in their districts during the Easter recess — to come to Austin on Thursday to talk about the president's recommendations.

That meeting was scrubbed, however, because of the death of the son of Texas GOP state chairman Chet Upham.

If Clements proved correct on his prediction, at least 16 Texas congressmen would vote for the bipartisan Reagan budget bill introduced by Gramm and Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, the ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee.

The Democratic leadership in the house is trying to get support for an alternative budget, offered by Budget Chairman Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., that gives less money for defense than Reagan has asked and restores cuts to social programs axed by the president's proposal.

"How the Texas delegation is going to vote, I don't know. I feel we're going to have strong support — certainly more than half. I'd be delighted if we could reach the total the governor has said are possible," Gramm said.

Eight Texas congressmen and 38 other Democrats have formed a coalition known as the Conservative Democratic Forum that has given Reagan hope of winning his fight in the House.

The Democrats hold a 243-192 edge in the House, but the Republicans are expected to vote as a block for the Reagan plan and 26 of the 46 CDF members would give the GOP the magic 218 votes needed for a majority in the 435-member House.

"I felt when I left Washington that we had about 20 conservative Democrats that were pretty solid (for Gramm-Latta), another 10 strongly leaning our way and another 10 on the fence, so to speak," said Gramm, in a telephone call from a midweek speaking engagement in his district.

Republicans Jim Collins of Dallas, Bill Archer of Houston, Jack Fields of Humble, Tom Loeffler of Hunt and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson will vote yes on the Gramm-Latta bill.

A Texan, Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, is chairman of the CDF; Gramm is head of its budget group; and another Texan, Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, is head of the CDF tax cut group.

Both of them are expected to join Gramm in backing the president's budget proposal, along with the five other Texas CDF members — Sam B. Hall of Marshall, Ralph Hall of Rockwall, Jack Hightower of Vernon, Richard White of El Paso and Marvin Leath of Marlin.

That would account for 13 of the 16-to-18 votes Clements said would be forthcoming.

But several Texas congressmen are lined up firmly against Gramm-Latta, including Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, the House majority leader, and Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Dallas, both of whom voted for Jones' version and against Gramm-Latta in the Budget Committee earlier in the month.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, has spoken out sharply against the cuts requested by Reagan, and Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, represents a large black population that would be affected by many of the social programs to be cut.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, said he will support the Jones resolution, although he would support an amendment adding more money for defense.

The other Texas congressmen, all Democrats, are Jack Brooks of Beaumont, dean of the Texas delegation; Charlie Wilson of Lufkin; Bill Patman of Ganada; Kika de la Garza of Mission; J.J. "Jake" Pickle of Austin; and Abraham "Chick" Kazen of Laredo.

The Rules Committee, of which Frost is a member, meets Tuesday to decide which amendments will be in order when the budget bill hits the House floor for consideration, probably late next week.

"I haven't seen any counts and I don't know how the vote will go. A lot of it will depend on what amendments are allowed," said Frost.

Several of the Texas congressmen were undecided when they left for Easter recess how they would vote on the budget bill, their aides indicated.

President Reagan has been making telephone calls, trying to persuade the CDF members to support the Gramm-Latta bill. Key Democrats also have been making the rounds, trying to keep the CDF members in line with the party view.

"It's going to be interesting. I think this vote will be the most important vote of the 97th Congress," Gramm said.

The CDF is made up mostly of congressmen from the south.

Oklahoma is represented on it by Glenn English, Dave McCurdy and Wes Watkins; Arkansas by Beryl Anthony; and Louisiana by John Breaux, Jerry Huckaby, Buddy Roemer and Billy Tauzin.

After Texas with 8, North Carolina has the most CDF members with 7, followed by Georgia and Florida with 5, Alabama and Louisiana with 4, Oklahoma with 3, Mississippi with 2, and Arkansas, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, New York and Arizona with 1 each.

White Unveils Discipline Plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White, who made classroom discipline a keynote of his 1978 campaign, has unveiled an 18-page list of what school officials, parents and students should and shouldn't do.

Among other things, the code says students should not bring guns to school, parents should be sure their children are "properly attired," and school officials should "maintain an atmosphere conducive to good behavior."

"The purpose of the code, which is the result of over a year's work, is to provide a statement of the law as it pertains to school life and the rights and responsibilities of our students," White wrote in a preface.

The booklet was released at a Thursday news conference. White was joined by Joe Kelly Butler of Houston, chairman of the State Board of Education.

White said his proposed code is intended to "permit teachers to teach and students to learn."

Butler said copies of the code would be sent to all school districts, where local school boards can adopt it, adopt some of it, or ignore it.

White told reporters the booklet is "designed to let teachers know what their authority is in the classroom, and help them avoid lawsuits arising from discipline situations.

Students' responsibilities listed in the code include: "Attend all classes, daily and on time," "Be properly attired," and "Obey all school rules."

School personnel should "maintain an atmosphere conducive to good behavior" and "obey district and school policies and regulations," among other things.

The booklet includes explanation of state laws concerning student conduct and discipline.

Pages to be given to elementary school students say, "Your school district has adopted a set of conduct rules. The rules do not allow you to ... damage school property; have weapons, such as knives or guns, at school or at school events; ... cheat or copy the work of another student."

The corporal punishment section of the code sets out restrictions on paddling of students.

On another topic, White said he probably would appeal a state judge's ruling in favor of evangelist Lester Roloff. The judge ruled last week that Roloff does not have to get a state license to run youth homes.

Colonial Hill Sets Revival Services

Colonial Hill Baptist Church will begin a series of revival services Sunday.

The visiting evangelist for the revival will be Dr. Bill Thorn, minister and former president of Dallas Baptist College.

Sunday services will begin at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. and during the coming week, there will be services at noon and at 7:30 p. m. daily, Monday through Friday.

DR. BILL THORN

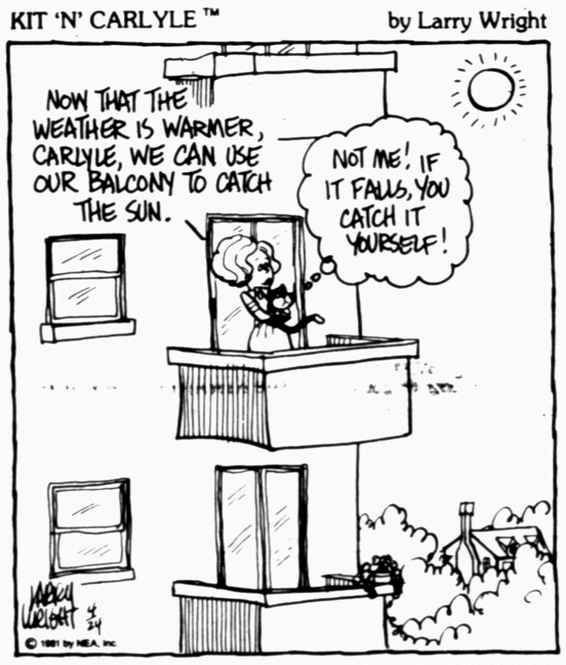

Dr. Thorn, who now lives at Red Oak, Tx., holds a bachelors and honorary doctors degree from Hardin-Simmons University where he was a varsity football player, and masters and honorary doctorates from Southwestern Baptist Seminiary and southwest Baptist College. He was pastor of Calvary Baptist church in Lubbock for 10 years and pastor of Metropolitan Baptist Church in Wichita, Kan., for 11 years.

He serves on the board of development of HSU and on the board of curators of Redford School of Theology. He is a past president of the Texas Baptist School Administrators' Association and past president of the Kansas Convention of Southern Baptists.

Dr. Thorn has traveled extensively and speaks over 400 times each year to civic, religious, charitable, educational and business groups. He is the author of four books, the latest of which is "Little Threads That Bind Big Men."

The public is invited to attend all of the revival services at Colonial Hill, said the Rev. Miller F. Robinson, pastor.

New Type Mortgage May Hike Borrowers' Monthly Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new type of mortgage, which consumer groups say could push homeowners toward likely foreclosure, will allow lenders to raise borrowers' monthly payments — or increase their total debt — as often as every 30 days.

Government officials say they had to open up loan practices for financially strapped savings and loan associations or else already-tight home-loan money would have dried up almost completely.

But consumer groups say the new type of mortgage could "wreak total havoc" in the housing market.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, by a 3-0 vote Thursday, authorized federally chartered savings and loan associations to offer open-ended, adjustable-loan mortgages. Under such an agreement, a lender could raise a home-buyer's monthly payments, raise the total of the loan or lengthen the life of the loan in tandem with increases in market interest rates.

The lender also could lower mortgage payments.

Market rates, such as the interest on short-term securities, have been highly erratic recently but generally have been moving upward.

Ellen Broadman, attorney for Consumers Union, said of the bank board's action: "They're turning owning a home into a game of chance" in which many buyers would face foreclosure if interest rates rose quickly.

However, board members said financially troubled lenders must be given greater flexibility in designing loans if mortgages are to remain available.

Many S&Ls lost money in the past year or so because they had to pay interest rates as high as 15 percent to attract deposits, while being repaid for older home loans at rates of 6 percent or lower.

"We simply cannot continue to have savers subsidizing borrowers," said board member Andrew DiPrete. He called the relaxation of the loan agreement rules "long overdue."

The house-construction industry also has been hurt by high mortgage rates, now averaging close to 15.5 percent.

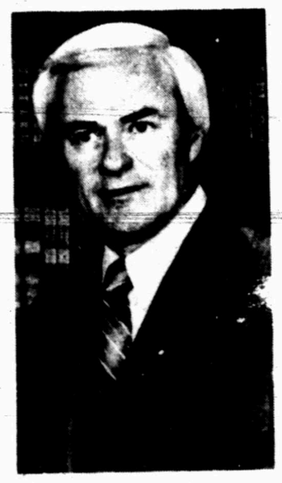

In theory, S&Ls might offer the new mortgages at lower rates since they could raise payments later if market interest rates surged.

The new regulation, which takes effect next Thursday, will not affect existing mortgages. And board members said they do not expect the new type of mortgage to completely replace traditional fixed-rate, fixed-term home loans.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Wife invaliding herself

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife is 70 and she retired two years ago. Since then she has acquired the habit of lying in bed most of the day reading. I'd say she spends an average of 20 hours a day in bed. We went to the zoo yesterday but we couldn't enjoy it. She can't walk a half block without sitting down. There actually doesn't seem to be anything wrong with her. I've tried to get her out of bed, tried to get her to exercise more or go to a doctor but I might as well talk to the moon.

Do you have a booklet on this subject? I hate to see my wife turn herself into an invalid long before her time.

DEAR READER — She will be an invalid if she insists on staying in bed all the time. Since you mentioned the moon, let me say that I studied the probable effects of space flight and being on the moon with my colleagues by putting healthy young men to bed rest. It causes enormous changes. It does affect the circulatory system, including the resting heart rate. It slows down bone marrow activity in forming blood cells and allows the body to lose excess amounts of water.

Some people call it bed disease. There is an optimal level of activity for almost everyone. No one should be in bed unless there is a definite medical indication for it like a body cast or a state of shock.

If your wife likes to read, have her read The Health Letter number 6-6, Effects of Inactivity, Including Bed Rest, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

She will need to gradually increase her physical activity. Ask her to sit up to read. That will help. Also encourage her to walk some every day with you and gradually increase the distance. She can walk and stop and walk. If she is not feeling well, she really should see a doctor. It is not normal to be able to walk only a half block.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About five years ago my gynecologist gave me several series of testosterone shots. I had lost all desire for sex and this was to help this condition. Well, it certainly did, and I am now enjoying a new active sex life, at 56, with my husband. We were almost ready to separate on account of my lack of interest.

Because I lived quite a distance from my doctor, he finally gave me a prescription so I could administer shots to myself. The effectiveness began to wear off so I increased the dose. The side effects are a little deeper voice and a quite abundant growth of hair, especially on my face, arms, stomach and chest. In fact, I have to shave my face daily now. Still, it is worth it. Other than the hair side effects, is this medicine safe?

DEAR READER — First, your letter points out that hormones can be an important factor in a person's sex drive. Elderly women with terminal cancer of the breast treated with testosterone have developed exceptional sex drives.

If you take too much male hormones you will develop male secondary sexual conditions, which explains your deeper voice and hair. There can be other complications and you certainly should not continue to take testosterone without checking back with your doctor.

national terrorism.

In a speech prepared for delivery today to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Haig said Moscow's support of "terrorism and war by proxy" represents "the gravest threat to world peace."

Haig also said the United States will never accept the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has been campaigning within the administration against the embargo.

Haig has insisted the United States would be sending the wrong signals if the embargo were lifted during the tense days of February and March when the Soviets appeared headed for a possible military invention in Poland. In recent weeks, though, Haig has retreated from his statements that Soviet intervention appeared imminent.

Haiti is the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere, according to National Geographic. Each year thousnds of people try to leave the country, where it is estimated that unemployment ranges up to 50 percent.

Under terms of a 1975 agreement, the Soviets have been able to buy 8 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat annually.

her, abused her two children from her first marriage, fondled his own son's genitals, smoked marijuana, drank to excess and had a "weird" relationship with his sister.

Witnesses for Mrs. Murph — including Daniel's father, former Texas Gov. Price Daniel Sr. — questioned those allegations and depicted Mrs. Daniel as an emotionally unstable woman who might harm her children.

In closing arguments, Haynes accused the Daniels of filing the custody suit to punish Mrs. Daniel for the shooting, saying none of the 58 witnesses paraded through the proceeding testified his client was an unfit mother.

J.C. "Zeke" Zbranek, Mrs. Murph's attorney, countered that Mrs. Daniel "hurt her children in the worst way possible. She took away their daddy."

Bison Project Begins

BUFFALO GAP, Texas (AP) — Jack Grimm, the wealthy Texas oilman who has searched for practically everything that's missing, used blasting powder and buffalo steak to start his latest project—a 2,000-foot cliffside carving to honor the American bison.

The monument, which will rise 40 feet high and stretch 2,000 feet along the side of a limestone mesa Grimm owns nearby, will be about four times the size of Mount Rushmore when finished, Grimm said. The sculpture is a few miles outside Buffalo Gap which is about 10 miles southwest of Abilene.

Motel Held Liable

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Motel operators have a responsibility to their guests, particularly their female guests, to protect them from unwanted outside intrusion, a federal court jury foreman said.

In fact, the jury E.L. Davis headed decided this week to award more than $180,000 to a woman raped at a suburban Fort Worth motel as a warning to the motel industry, Davis said.

The victim, a Chicopee, Mass., woman, claimed the motel she sued did not provide a secure door lock, which allowed a man to break into her room and rape her in November 1979.

Jurors awarded her $188,275 Wednesday, including $75,000 in punitive damages.

Child Abuse Case Filed

Charges have been filed in Justice of the Peace's Office against John Ray Gernertt for causeing bodily injury to a child. Gernertt is alleged to have hit and kicked a minor child on April 18.

'Nuts And Bolts' Course Good, Even For Elite

NEW YORK (AP) — Kym Vanderbilt is accustomed to getting A's. She is used to hearing praise for her writing from teachers at Lincoln High School.

So, does the 17-year-old Miss Vanderbilt think she needs a three-week crash course on the finer points of exposition, the mechanics of thinking clearly, the nuts and bolts of the English language?

"God, yes," Miss Vanderbilt said emphatically.

On Aug. 15, Miss Vanderbilt may be among the 200 freshmen reporting for just such a course at Bard College, a small, liberal arts school located at Annandale-on-Hudson. She is an applicant and is still awaiting word on whether she has been accepted by the college.

For the three weeks before the start of fall classes, Bard freshmen will work in small groups, nine hours a day, six days a week, to improve their writing.

There will be one teacher for every 10 students, and each student will be required to write something every day, generally on literature. In the final week, they will write on the subject of justice.

Three times a week, students will have to submit typed papers in "perfect" form, free of any errors. To help them, the "Syntax and Grammar Crisis Center" will dispense advice in the evenings.

Students pay nothing for the summer program; a group of private donors is picking up the tab for their schooling and room and board. They will get no grades, but all freshmen are required to take part.

"The program really came about after years of frustration on our part," said Leon Botstein, Bard's 34-year-old president.

Bard professors are not alone in their frustration. College educators nationwide complain that incoming students lack basic skills.

At Bard, most students score in the upper 500s in the College Board tests, compared with the national average of 423. Even so, Bard administrators offer these quotes from applicants' writings:

—"Depending on Russian foreign aid, Greek rebels were faced with tsarist Russia failing to materialize."

—"The summer camp I attended has to be credited for a majority of the person I am today."

—"As the beginning of my senior year in school grew near, I decided to make the ultimate most of what was to be offered to me."

Botstein said he believes poor instruction on the level of junior high and high school is only part of the problem. Many students seem to suffer from "a fear of using the language wrong," he said.

"There's a lot of fear — papers are written the night before, at the last possible moment. They wing it, tell everybody they winged it and then, when the grade comes in, they tell everybody they didn't try," he said.

Botstein is wagering that by giving students a firm grounding in the use of language, Bard will increase their self-confidence and allow intelligent students to display their intelligence.

"The students are very studious. They work, they underline, etc., but they don't have the self-confidence to say, not that they care about something, but that in caring about something they actually may have something to say," he said.

Botstein recently outlined his plans to 50 high school teachers, guidance counselors and students who have applied to attend Bard.

"Do you like it?" he asked. The answer: "Yes."

"I feel that I personally need this because I'm not able to formalize ideas in the papers I write," said Adam Distenfeld, 18, a student at Brooklyn Friends School. He blamed the "educational system."

Distenfeld was not entirely pleased with the plan: "It sounds like it's going to be much more intense than college actually is....It sounds like we're not going to have much time to sleep."

Barr Hogen, 18, a student at Poly Prep in Brooklyn, also approves of the course. She said her writing has regressed recently, as "teachers who have been teaching for 50 years" took weeks to grade essays.

Miss Vanderbilt said she had been "molded and shaped into not thinking for myself — writing other persons' opinions, not my own." She said she wants to do more, but lacks the self-confidence.

"It's a little scary," the Yonkers student said. "I've always been told that I have a talent for writing. But what if I go to Bard, and I find that I can't cut it? It's a bit frightening."

Week To Stress Bicycle Safety

Snyder Public Schools will participate in Bicycle Awareness Week beginning Monday.

The special week has been designated by Gov. Bill Clements. The governor's proclamation states that the growing use of bicycles for transportation and the resulting increase in accidents throughout the state is evidence of the need for bicycle safety programs. The governor said bicyclists need to know the laws and correct driving procedures so that they can operate safely in today's complex traffic environment.

The Snyder Public Schools activities during the week will include programs by the Snyder Police Dept., bicycle registration and maintenance programs at several of the schools, classroom programs on bicycle safety, and the use of bicycle safety film strips. The major emphasis of the public school programs will be on "Education for Responsible Bicycling."

Poland emerged as a parliamentary republic after World War I. It remained free until Sept. 1, 1939, when Nazi Germany invaded from the north, west and south.

Tennis, Track, Baseball On Weekend Slate...

SHS Tiger Action Fast, Plentiful

Snyder Tiger sports enthusiast might do well to pitch a tent somewhere in the Lamesa-Andrews-Odessa range tonight, the "center" of at least five events involving Snyder High School athletes.

Actually, if the tennis buffs aren't in Odessa already, they're late.

Kelly Scott, Snyder's entry into the girls Region I Tennis Tournament, was to begin making her bid for a berth at state this morning at 10:30 in Odessa. Scott, runnerup in District 2-4A girls singles, was to take on tough Angie Riza of Cleburne in the opening match.

Winner of the match was to meet either Knighten of Lubbock Dunbar or Castillo of Fort Worth Hirschi at 3 p.m. Victors enter Saturday's 10:30 a.m. finals - and are automatically eligible for the upcoming State Tournament.

The regional meet is being held at Odessa College.

A brisk drive to Andrews would bring fans to the opening field events of the boys District 2-4A Track and Field Meet, which was to get underway at 1 p.m. with the high jump, long jump and discus.

Running preliminaries begin at 3 p.m. in all events except the distances.

Baseball lovers needed to break away early however, to make the drive to Lamesa by 4 o'clock, where Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers were attempting to sew up a round-one District 2-4A title. Snyder, playing Lamesa today and Pecos in Snyder on Monday at 4, needs one victory out of the two-game set to clinch the round-one title and an automatic berth into any post-season district playoffs.

Starting pitcher for the Tigers today was expected to be either Tony Degrate, 6-1, or Gerald Don Hicks, 3-2-1. Degrate had been pegged as Snyder's starter earlier in the week against Pecos - before two games with the Eagles were postponed. Hicks showed mastery over Lamesa in an earlier meeting between the two teams however, which Snyder won 10-0.

Saturday's action opens again with the Regional Tennis Tournament in Odessa. If successful Friday, Snyder's Scott will be in finals action at 10:30 a.m.

With luck, the tennis will wind up just in time for fans to zip over to Odessa High School where the girls Class 4, Region I Track and Field Meet is being held. Snyder's Brenda Anderson is slated to throw the shot and compete in the triple jump at noon (12:00). Teammate Pam Brown will run in the 100 meters at 2:15 p.m. First or second place finishes would send those girls to an upcoming state track meet in Austin.

Some fans will leave Odessa for other parts of the area early as Snyder athletes are involved in goings-on in Lubbock and Andrews in the early afternoon.

Snyder junior varsity baseball team is slated in action in Lubbock, taking on Estacado at 1 p.m. in the first of a doubleheader.

At Andrews, competition in the district track meet resumes at 1 with the shot put and pole vault. Finals in the running events face the starter's gun at 3 p.m. and continue until the early evening.

Astros Still Slumping; Fall To Cincinnati Reds

by The Associated Press

Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds had it - but lost it.

Then the Reds had it again, but not without a struggle.

"Every time we come to Houston it doesn't matter the score, they always make it close," said Cincinnati first baseman Dan Driessen after a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Houston Astros Thursday night.

"I watched the Astros in the (National League) playoffs last year against Philadelphia when they kept coming back, and they always find a way to do it against us."

The multi-directional game was first going Seaver's way. Cincinnati's star right-hander was working on a no-hitter for 6⅓ innings and held a commanding 4-0 lead going into the eighth.

Then the roof caved in for Seaver at the Astrodome, as Houston scored four runs to tie the game at 4-4. But the Reds finally pulled it out in the 10th on Driessen's RBI single.

"At least we came back and won," said Seaver, who did not figure in the decision. "The way we've been playing, it shows excellent fortitude to keep trying. We didn't put our tails between our legs."

The Astros, last year's NL West champs, lost for the 10th time in 13 games this season.

"Those boos will turn to cheers when we start getting hits," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "I don't think anybody likes to hear them, but they're part of the game."

In other NL games Thursday, Los Angeles beat San Diego 3-1 and Atlanta stopped San Francisco 7-3. In the American League, Chicago took a doubleheader from Baltimore, 18-5 and 5-3. Two games were rained out - New York at Pittsburgh in the NL and Toronto at New York in the AL.

Dodgers 3, Padres 1

Rick Sutcliffe scattered five hits in eight innings and drove in the game's first run as Los Angeles beat punchless San Diego.

Sutcliffe, 2-0, struck out four and walked three, including one in the ninth when he was relieved by Steve Howe, who gained his second save.

The Padres, who brought a .206 batting average into the game, got their only run on Jerry Turner's pinch homer in the eighth.

BANQUET TICKETS -- Dorcas Perkins, a member of the Dusters, and judoist Eric Johnson receive tickets to the Western Texas College annual All-Sports Banquet from Pam Johnson. Western Texas honors its athletes at the banquet, scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday in the college Student Center. Tickets are $5.50 each and may be purchased in the Student Activities office at the center. Reservations may be made by calling the office at 573-8511, extension 276. (SDN Staff Photo)

Kuhn Takes Owners' Side On This Occasion

DALLAS (AP) - Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who twice has sided with the players in their disputes with management, finds himself firmly on the owners' side in the dispute over free-agent compensation that could lead to a player walkout May 29.

"This time the owners are clearly right," Kuhn said during an interview broadcast Thursday night on radio station KRLD-AM. "I have publicly been on record for a long time as believing that there should be compensation of some kind. I'm very strongly of that view. I think it's an important need of the game."

And Kuhn said he will not lean on the owners to compromise their position in order to avoid the walkout.

Players threaten a strike to protest the owners' adoption of an agreement for compensating teams that lose players through baseball's free agent rules.

A recent, well-publicized case involved outfielder Dave Winfield who played out his option at San Diego, became a free agent and signed a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Yankees. San Diego received nothing.

"When a San Diego loses a Winfield, they ought to get a guy back that they can play," Kuhn told KRLD, outlining the idea behind the agreement owners have adopted.

Players contend the plan will dampen the free-agent market. They say owners will be discouraged from aggressively pursuing free agents, fearing the compensation to a player's former team would be too high.

"The clubs bargained for the right to compensation last year and they should have it," the commissioner said. "Anybody who looks for me to put the heat on the clubs to water down the provision that's now in effect in order to get a settlement is looking to the wrong guy. I'm not going to do that."

Rockets Hope Home Will Aid This Time

HOUSTON (AP) - The Kansas City Kings' defense couldn't have been more effective if Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons had put a picket fence around Houston's Calvin Murphy and guarded Moses Malone with the Third Army.

The third game of their National Basketball Association Western Conference final resumes here tonight and Houston Coach Del Harris says the Rockets can't afford a repeat of Wednesday night's 88-79 loss.

"The big story was that we shot 27 percent in the second half and we went through the entire San Antonio series shooting 52 per cent," Harris said of the loss, which evened the best-of-seven series at 1-1.

Fitzsimmons kept running in fresh troops against Malone and when those got tired he'd send in another regiment. Second year forward Reggie King may receive a battlefield promotion for his defensive work on Malone.

"It's the first time I've ever guarded Moses, and it was no picnic," King said. "I didn't guard Moses by myself. I fronted him, and the other guys helped from behind. You have to hit Moses before he hits you. He's awfully strong, awfully big, not just tall."

Sam Lacey and Leon Douglas also contributed to Malone's frustrating evening.

"It's going to be a great series," Lacey said. "It's not over by a longshot. We've got three more to win and they've got three more to win."

The Kings' strategy would not have worked, Harris said, if another Rocket had a hot hand.

"If (Robert) Reid or anybody else was having a good night, they couldn't lay back and zone up on Mo and concentrate on Murphy," Harris said. "If the other guys are having a decent night we are all right."

The Rockets will be trying to overcome the homecourt "disadvantage" against the Kings. In 24 playoff games, Houston and Kansas City together have won only four home games.

Pump Jack To Tee Off Friday

Snyder Country Club will host its annual Pump Jack Golf Tournament tomorrow and Saturday, with practice rounds planned for today and evening entertainment scheduled for two nights.

Today's practice round included an optional sweepstakes and golfers can relax tonight to entertainment provided by auctioneer Tex Farnsworth at 7.

Action gets underway at 7:45 Saturday, with tee times in the morning and early afternoon. Saturday night, Ben Blewitt will provide entertainment. The evening's fare includes a happy hour and buffett along with entertainment by the musical and variety performer.

Format for the tournament will be low ball, medal play over 36 holes. There are to be eight flights of eight teams each. Prizes are $250 to the first place team, $150 for second and $100 for third.

Participating teams may call 573-7101 for their Saturday tee-off times.

Title Fights Scheduled

HOUSTON (AP) - Welterweight champions Sugar Ray Leonard and Thomas Hearns are expected to defend their titles June 25 in the Astrodome.

At a scheduled Monday news conference, Leonard is expected to announce he will defend his World Boxing Council title against Ayub Kalule, the WBC junior middleweight champion, and Hearns announce he will defend his World Boxing Association crown against Pablo Baez of Los Angeles.

The Hearns-Baez match is contingent upon Hearns successfully defending his title Saturday against Randy Shields in Phoenix.

The six-fight June 25 card also pairs Pipino Cuevas, former WBA welterweight champion, against Jorgen Hansen, the No. 3 contender.
