'At produce $10,025

After its first implementation, the assessment of Scurry County cotton "at the gin" will apparently produce some $10,000 in revenues — money to be placed on reserve for future cotton pest control programs here.

As of Wednesday, the group elected to oversee these funds — the Scurry County Cotton Producers Board — had received $10,025. Larry Schwarz, president of the board, commented, "We feel like we've gotten about all we're going to get this year."

The rate of assessment for county-produced cotton was ½ a cent per pound.

In addition, the amount of check-offs at the gin received confirmed predictions of a cotton bale count of some 5,000 — likely the poorest year for cotton ever in Scurry County.

"What we're really tickled about is that we only had two requests for refunds," Schwarz said. Although many local farmers likely produced no cotton this past season, he estimated 400-plus cotton producers in the county.

The two refund requests equaled returns of some $376.

"We were expecting more refunds and I do want to say thank you to (producers) for supporting the program," Schwarz said.

The fiscal year for the cotton producers board ends in April. The operation of the entity entailed some $2,300 this past fiscal year. Schwarz said no budget has been set as yet for the 1985-86 year.

The board is comprised of 12 members who were elected Sept. 7 with the ballot which approved the local assessment program. Voting in that referendum election were local cotton farmers and land owners.

With expenses for the current year deducted, Schwarz said they will now be placing $7,725 into an interest-bearing account.

A primary goal of the producer's group is to curtail the development of boll weevil populations in the county.

School reform 'to stay'

AUSTIN (AP) — An education bill approved by the Senate serves notice that education reform in Texas is "here to stay" even if changes are a "little painful," its sponsor said.

The bill dealt gingerly with the controversial no-pass, no-play eligibility rule that has had some parents and students in an uproar by leaving any revision of the rule up to the State Board of Education.

Sen. Carl Parker's bill, which was sent to the House on voice vote Thursday, would shift more money to teacher bonuses and would allow the Board of Education to decide whether teachers should be tested on their specialties, such as math or science.

The bill, however, requires the testing of teachers to see if they can read and write well enough to do their job satisfactorily.

Parker said that test would "certainly weed out anyone who shouldn't be in the classroom ... If someone cannot function, is not literate enough to pass a basic skills test of this nature, they should not be in the classroom

Pleas, terms revoked in 132nd

Two defendants indicted by the April session of the Scurry County grand jury were given probated prison terms in exchange for guilty pleas entered in 132nd District Court this week.

Allen Gleghorn, 27, of 301 N. Ave. U — indicted on one count of delivery of a controlled substance — was given a five-year probated term in exchange for his plea to that charge.

He was one of 11 suspects arrested here March 19 and 20 in connection with what was described as an undercover investigation of local drug use.

Twenty-year-old Robert Lemuel Thames of Big Spring — indicted for the March 17 theft of a motorcycle from a residence in the Royal Trailer Park — was placed on probation for four years.

He pleaded guilty to a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Pickup hits RR overpass

A 24-year-old Fluvanna man escaped serious injury in a one-vehicle traffic mishap shortly after 8 p.m. Thursday.

The involved driver was Phil Jones of Rt. 1, Fluvanna. Reports indicate he was driving his 1957 Chevrolet pickup west bound on the Ennis Creek Road just east of Wilson Motors around 8:10 p.m. when it collided with the Santa Fe Railroad overpass.

The vehicle continued under the overpass after the collision and then overturned.

Jones was transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder where he was treated for injuries described as minor cuts and brusies. He was later released.

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, writes there is good news for chocolate lovers. He says the U.S. is coming out of the chocolate closet.

"Chocolate contains phenylethylamine, a chemical that supposedly stimulates falling in love. Maybe that is a clue to America's renewed passion for chocolate--this pharmaceutical romance leads to appetite which leads to pleasure.

"The chocolate mania is being compressed into a marketing fad--monopoly games, your image cast in chocolate, chocolate retreats, chocolate aerosol sprays and a chocolate newsletter printed on chocolate-scented paper. It is clear that chocolate is here to stay.

"Per capita consumption has been rising the past four years--up about 10 pounds. But that is well below the chocolate pattern in Europe because Europeans were never indoctrinated that chocolate is just for children.

"President of the Chocolate Manufacturers Association of America says the chocolate habit is breaking a long-held bad reputation. Not only is it not as bad for you as you were told, it also might be good for you.

"Chocolate has small amounts of protein,, iron, riboflavin and calcium. But it's not a substitute for steak and potatoes. The FDA has declared that acne is not diet related. As for calories, the chocolate chief recommends perspective--an apple has about 100 calories and an ounce of chocolate about 150.

"And chocolate may be good for teeth, according to the president. Researchers have found there is an enzyme in chocolate that actualy inhibits bacterial action associated with tooth decay.

"Looking at a sweet future, it was revealed that 98 percent of the country loves chocolate. The other two percent are either allergic or won't admit it because they're closet chocophiles."

Theft report alleged 'con'

Police received a missing money report from a county man Thursday, but sketchy details related to the case Friday indicated he may have been the victim of a "con game" rather than a theft.

According to investigators, the alleged victim of the theft came to the police station around 1 p.m. Thursday and told officers that two black men had taken a large amount of money from him after he had withdrawn the funds from the Snyder National Bank.

The man reportedly left the police station before giving a complete statement and a police spokesman said Friday morning they currently do not have sufficient evidence to prove a crime had been committed.

Shuttle off

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery thundered into orbit today, carrying Sen. Jake Garn among its seven-member crew on a much-delayed mission that blasted off with just 55 seconds to spare.

The space plane vaulted off its launch pad at 8:59 a.m. EST, spewing an awesome 700-foot tail of fire as it climbed swiftly out over the Atlantic Ocean and then disappeared from view into a heavy cloud layer. Nine minutes later, Mission Control reported Discovery was in a secure orbit, 281 miles up and circling the globe at more than 17,400 mph.

Kills baby

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge has ordered a psychiatric examination for a teen-ager accused of smothering her 8-day-old son with her hands.

State District Judge Charles Hearn on Thursday ordered Leanne Marie Nichols Pitts held without bond in the Harris County Jail pending the examination, Assistant District Attorney Casey O'Brien said.

Mrs. Pitts, 19, of Houston, was charged with murder in the death of her son, Michael.

She called officers Wednesday afternoon and said she had smothered her infant son with her hands.

"She just said she had killed her baby," said constable's dispatcher Connie Greiner. "She then gave me her address."

Ms. Greiner said she kept the woman on the telephone for about 20 minutes until officers arrived at the north Houston home.

The officers found the baby's "real bruised" body in a yellow, plastic car seat on the back porch.

Reagan accusing Kremlin of exploiting differences

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan is playing down the value of a summit meeting with Soviet chief Mikhail Gorbachev and accusing the Kremlin of using threats and misrepresentation "to incite and exploit differences within the West."

In a statement coinciding with the end of Gorbachev's first month in power, the administration also blamed the Soviet Union for putting a chill on superpower relations.

"We must remember that the deterioration of U.S.-Soviet relations, which has taken place in recent years, is due in a large part to Soviet actions," White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Thursday.

"There is a limit to the degree to which U.S. actions alone can thaw out our cooled relationship," he said.

Reagan said a summit meeting would not be a "turning point" in U.S.-Soviet relations.

The administration appeared to be hardening its rhetoric about Moscow in the wake of Gorbachev's call for the United States to freeze missile deployments in Europe and his description of U.S.-Soviet relations as being in "a kind of ice age."

Speakes made clear that Reagan, vacationing at his mountaintop ranch, was in no rush to reply formally to Gorbachev's letter, received more than a week ago, accepting the president's suggestion for a meeting.

"We have communicated our ideas through diplomatic channels to the Soviets in response to the Gorbachev letter, and we will be responding more formally in due course," he said.

"We'll respond when we get ready," Speakes said. "That's the way we choose to do business."

The White House also released a transcript of comments Reagan made April 4 to a reporter for The Times of London and his written replies, dated Wednesday, to questions submitted by the newspaper.

In the written statement, Reagan blasted the Kremlin for its campaign to force the administration to abandon the "Star Wars" missile defense plan and for Gorbachev's call for a U.S. missile freeze.

"It is not at all surprising that the Soviets are now seeking, as they have in the past in regard to other issues, to incite and exploit differences within the West as a means of undercutting Alliance efforts to strengthen our defense and deterrent forces," he said.

"Their propaganda tools are familiar ones, involving misrepresentation, threats and now a call for a moratorium that would freeze the imbalance in Europe," Reagan added.

Rejecting the missile-freeze proposal, the United States says a moratorium would lock into place a big Soviet edge in warheads.

He said the Soviet Union has the world's only anti-ballistic missile system, has been pursuing research in missile defenses and has taken actions "counter to the letter and spirit of the ABM Treaty."

Substitutes may contain salt.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife and I are 70 and 68. We would like to cut down on our salt intake but don't know what kind of salt substitute to use. We have used Low Salt, Lite Salt and No Salt, but still don't know which is the best.

DEAR READER — Salt is sodium chloride, and many salt substitutes are made of potassium chloride. Lite Salt is about half sodium chloride and half potassium chloride. If one is on a sodium-restricted diet, it is important to know that Lite Salt does contain sodium and can provide more sodium than a sodium-restricted diet allows. However, it may be a good substitute for those who just want to cut down on their sodium intake.

No Salt is made from potassium chloride and other potassium salts. It does not contain sodium, and thus can be used as a salt substitute for people on sodium-restricted diets.

A word of caution is in order: Some people take diuretics that conserve potassium. These individuals should be careful about using a potassium salt, since it could cause the body's potassium level to get too high.

Unless one has a medical problem, just not adding salt to food is usually restriction enough, if a restriction is needed at all. Many healthy people have no problem in processing a moderate amount of sodium salt.

To limit one's sodium intake, one needs to know how much sodium is in various foods, particularly processed foods. I have included a list of the sodium and potassium contents of common foods in The Health Letter 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 70, active and in good health, except for an embarrassing and bothersome problem. When I eat, food particles catch in my esophagus and I have to cough. For hours after eating, I am bothered by thick mucus in my throat, which won't go down when I swallow.

I have to get up three or four times each night to clear my throat. Sleeping on my side helps, but the saliva runs from my mouth.

I have gone to an internist and two ear, nose and throat specialists, and all seem mystified. What help can you suggest?

DEAR READER — It sounds as if you have a diverticulum of the esophagus — a pocket of the esophagus that collects food and causes difficulties in swallowing. These occur most frequently in individuals in your age group and are bothersome, but not dangerous.

I do not know what kind of tests you have had, but you should have a barium X-ray of your esophagus. If no cause is found, you should have an endoscopy, in which a tube with a light on it is inserted in the esophagus to locate obstructions, pockets or other problems. This direct look at the area often resolves many questions. Consult a specialist in gastroenterology, who can perform these tests or can arrange to have them done.

Couple Decides In-Laws Are Best Enjoyed at a Distance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "Heartbroken Parents," who blame their daughter-in-law for "stealing" their son from them, thank you, Abby, for saying the daughter-in-law may have influenced her husband, but the final choice was their son's.

We live only a few hours from my in-laws, but we visit less and less as each year passes. I would enjoy a nice relaxing visit at their home, but it never happens. Please let me speak to them through you, Abby:

You turn every visit into a golden opportunity to impose your religious and political beliefs on us. They're not "discussions"; they're lectures on why your beliefs are right and ours are wrong.

Your son and I are forced to watch the painfully obvious favoritism you show toward your other grandchildren who live in your town and therefore see you more often.

We are subjected to your entire schedule of television programs because you think yours are the only appropriate choices.

We, who are health-minded nonsmokers, are subjected to a thick cloud of cigarette smoke during the entire visit.

In short, instead of making us feel as though you enjoy our company, we leave with the feeling that we have spent the weekend at boot camp.

YOUR "THIEVING" DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR D-I-L: Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Heartbroken Parents," who blamed their daughter-in-law because they no longer "had" a son.

It is a quote from "The Prophet," by Kahlil Gibran: "Your children are not your children. They are the sons and daughters of life's longing for itself. And though they are with you, yet they belong not to you. You may house their bodies, but not their souls, for their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit even in your dreams."

LAGUNA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: May I say a word about the "Heartbroken Parents" who blame their daughter-in-law for "stealing" their son from them?

I'm a daughter-in-law, too, and if it weren't for me, my in-laws would see a lot less of their son.

I'm the one who reminds my husband to call his mother. I'm the one who keeps track of the birthdays in his family. I'm the one who writes the letters, buys the cards and gifts for Mother's Day and Father's Day, and puts the pen in their son's hand to get him to sign the card. And I'll bet I'm not all that unusual.

No name or town, please. My mother-in-law thinks her son is perfect.

ANONYMOUS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: In one of your recent columns, you advised a lady to check with her neighbors before making wind chimes out of old keys.

Well, I have a comment to make on that subject. When my neighbors come to me and ask if I object to their cats digging in my flower beds, waking me up in the middle of the night fighting on top of my house and under my windows, and walking all over my cars, leaving their dirty pawprints—then I will ask them if they object to my wind chimes.

Vacation during outbreak leads to firing of director

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois public health director has been fired for vacationing in Mexico even as subordinates were telling the governor that he was holding daily staff meetings on a salmonella outbreak that has killed three people, the governor's press aide said.

The milk-borne disease has sickened nearly 3,000 people in five states in the second-largest recorded outbreak in U.S. history, and caused the Chicago area's largest grocery chain to close its dairy operation for a thorough inspection in an attempt to find the cause of the outbreak.

Thomas Kirkpatrick "saw fit to leave his responsibilities as director of the Department of Public Health at a time when he should have been at his desk," Gov. James Thompson said Thursday in a statement.

The governor's spokesman, David Gilbert, said health department employees sent memos to Thompson saying Kirkpatrick was conducting daily staff meetings on the crisis when, in fact, he was in Mexico.

"It was a mistake for Mr. Kirkpatrick to go on vacation at this time and not to tell me," Thompson said, adding, "it was a mistake for him to stay there and it was a mistake not to return."

Gilbert said it was not clear when Kirkpatrick left for Mexico or whether he was still there.

Efforts to reach Kirkpatrick for comment Thursday were not successful. A spokeswoman for the department, Mary Huck, said she did not even know that Kirkpatrick had been fired.

"Oh, you're kidding!" she said when told by a reporter. She said she didn't know Kirkpatrick had been in Mexico or where he was at the present time. "We got so busy, I didn't even ask about where he was," she said.

Also on Thursday, four lawsuits were filed in Circuit Court against Jewel Companies Inc., makers of dairy products contaminated with the bacteria.

Murals an attraction to brighten walls

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The more things change, the more they remain the same is an old saying that illustrates many aspects of home decoration. Consider, for example, the decoration of walls.

The remarkable prehistoric cave drawings at Lascaux in southeastern France prove that the urge to embellish walls is as old as humankind itself. Archaeologists theorize that only the most talented individuals had authority to draw the animals and natural features of the world that intrigued these ancient people.

Today, we, too, have our talented muralists. However, the graffiti on city walls and subway trains are examples of the commonality of the desire to embellish a wall.

If such an urge is part of your psyche, a socially acceptable way of gratifying it is to decorate the walls of your own home. Kitchen, bathrooms, children's rooms, recreation areas, laundry rooms and hallways lend themselves nicely to such a project.

Furthermore, with the use of standard semi-gloss latex paints for interiors, an individual should be able to produce an acceptable decoration inexpensively.

That opinion comes from Karen Greenbaum, half of a partnership known as Whimsical Walls Ltd. She and her partner, Iris Vanderputten, of Scarborough, N.Y., paint murals for a living on other people's walls. But Ms. Greenbaum shared some of their methodology for do-it-yourselfers.

First, she said, paint your wall with semi-gloss latex interior house paint in white or an extremely pale tone. That way you know you are starting out with a good sealed washable wall.

If you can draw freehand, then use this ability to create an appropriate scene or design. Use a grease pencil or crayon to place the design directly on the wall. The grease pencil will outline the pattern and also serve as a border to contain the paint. Once the wall is painted and dry you can erase the pencil lines.

Select as many colors as you like, suggests Ms. Greenbaum. She says successful wall murals can be as simple as a single motif in one color or elaborate all-over creations that employ many different colors.

If you are not adept at drawing, you can select one or more designs from a variety of sources and cut them out and trace them on the wall. Wallpapers, gift-wrapping paper and pictures from magazines and books on art and decorating are all sources for designs.

Once the wall is painted and dry, no further treatment is necessary if you have used washable latex paints. You should be able to wipe up spills and dirt with a sponge and soap. Since you can paint over the latex wall paint quite easily, when you get tired of the design it will be a relatively simple matter to remove it by repainting the wall, she said.

Another method is to use artists' acrylic paints and stencils sold at craft supply and home decorating outlets, according to Mary Gilliatt, a decorating authority in New York. Readymade stencils can be taped directly to the wall with masking tape.

She suggests applying the color with sponges cut into small pieces. Use one sponge for each color.

After taping the stencil to the wall, you dip a piece of sponge into one color, removing the excess by dabbing the sponge on a plate. Then, apply the paint on the wall through the stencil opening.

Do one color at a time, she suggests. Gear the size of sponge you use to the size of opening.

When you've filled in all the cut-out areas, carefully lift the pattern from the wall, being sure to bring it straight out so the paint does not run.

Include beef in daily diet

"Many dieters deny themselves beef when they might be better off including it in their meals," says Texas A&M Agricultural extension specialist Marilyn Haggard.

Texas Tech Thornton Professor Rodney L. Preston adds, "People who eat meat have a better balanced diet. Per calorie consumed, beef provides more of the required nutrients than any of the other food groups."

The university scientist pointed out that an average serving of meat supplies only 10 percent of the calories required. But it provides 59 percent of the required vitamin B12, 45 percent of the protein or essential amino acids, 34 percent of the zinc, 32 percent of the iron, 22 percent of the thiamine, 21 percent of the riboflavin, 20 percent of the phosphorous and 16 percent of the vitamin B6.

Beef and other meats are nutrient-dense foods that provide relatively large amounts of essential nutrients in relation to the total calories they contain. Inclusion of meat in the daily intake makes a well-balanced diet easy to achieve. Those who, for one reason or another, do not eat meat, must pay more rigid attention to their diets in order to achieve a balance.

Local members of the Tejas Cow Belles organization promote beef and beef products through consumer education. For more information contact Martha Huddleston at 573-3601.

Squeeze and counter-squeeze

By James Jacoby

Against five clubs, West quickly played the king and ace of diamonds. When he continued with the jack, East put up the club jack in hopes of promoting a trump trick. (It wasn't impossible for West to hold three clubs to the 10.) South overruffed and played another high club. When East showed out, declarer had to decide how to play.

West was known to have six diamonds and three clubs. If he also held three hearts, declarer could play dummy's ace and queen of hearts, ruff a diamond back to his hand, and then ruff his small heart in dummy. That wouldn't work if West held fewer than three hearts. South decided finally that with nine cards in diamonds and clubs, West did not have three hearts. So declarer cashed dummy's A-Q of hearts, drew trumps, cashed the heart king and then played out all his trumps. I'm sure you see the end position. On the last club led, West had to keep a high diamond and therefore had to blank his king of spades. The diamond was thrown from dummy, and it was now time for East to squirm. He had to keep a high heart, or declarer's low heart would be cashed. So he came down to a solitary queen of spades. Dummy took the last two tricks with the ace and 10 of spades.

Although the squeeze looks inevitable, there was a defensive counter. After cashing the A-K of diamonds, West should have switched to a spade. There would then have been no way for declarer to come to 12 tricks.

2-4A baseball in Pecos...

Tigers need sticks tonight

PECOS -- Snyder Coach Albert Lewis, after taking a look at the Tigers' anemic .221 district batting average, is calling for his troops to respond under pressure.

"I know in preseason we scheduled tough opponents so we would be ready for this. We hit some of the top guys (opposing pitchers) in the area," he said. "Back then, we were just getting ready but now we are playing for something. Some athletes have trouble responding under pressure and I think this group is having a difficult time doing that. In their defense though, I'll say that if dedication and hard work will get it done, we'll be alright. Every day after practice, hard practice, some of them stay behind and work on improving," the coach added.

The Tigers hope to find some hitting tonight as they take on Pecos at 8 here. Pecos is 3-0 in district play, 11-2 for the season. After last Tuesday's 2-0 loss to Andrews, Snyder is 2-1 and 13-4.

"We would still be alright with two district losses, but we'd like to go to Pecos and bring a win back home. We'd like to avoid having our backs against the wall," said Lewis.

The Tigers will start righthander Justin Webb, 3-2, on the mound tonight. Jimmy Cain, Charles Bollinger and Jimmy Velasquez are all among the starters in other positions, however, in case the junior gets into trouble.

The lineup, in batting order, opens with Bobby Velasquez at centerfield, Ricky Hunter at catcher, Bollinger at shortstop, Webb on the hill, Jimmy Velasquez at left field, Chris Fryar at third base, Cain at right field, Jay Mayo at second base and Willie Greathouse as the designated hitter for first-sacker Steve Parker.

Pecos is expected to start lefthander Isreal Avila, 3-0. Avila boasts an 0.78 ERA.

In other 2-4A games this evening, Lamesa (1-2, 5-10) is at Andrews (3-0, 9-6) and Monahans (0-3, 3-9) plays Fort Stockton (0-3, 2-4).

Junior high band sign-ups are due now

Due to time limitations, the Snyder Junior High band directors have been unable to contact every 6th-grade student interested in signing up for the 1985-86 school year.

If you haven't been contacted, but are still interested in having your 6th grader enrolled in the SJHS band program, then have your child go ahead and sign up for band on his/her schedule form for next year.

The band directors will be getting in touch with all who sign up within the next few days. If you have any questions, call the junior high band hall at 573-6356, ext. 7, or call Blane Hinton at 573-4111, or Rodney Parker at 573-9994.

ARMANDO ALANIZ

Armando Alaniz set to preach here

Armando Alaniz will be the speaker at a Gospel meeting April 14-19 at the Spanish Church of Christ, 501 College. Services are set for 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Alaniz's topic will be "The Existence of God."

He graduated from the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock in 1976 and preached in Texas for four years. From 1980 until the present he has been an instructor in the Sunset School of Preaching where he is dean of the Spanish department.

Fluvanna Baptists schedule revival

Fluvanna Baptist Church will conduct a revival April 14-19, featuring Mickey Fugitt, preaching, and John Sharp, evangelistic singing.

Service times are Sunday, 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.; Monday through Friday, 7 p.m. A nursery will be provided.

Sharp became involved with the ministry full time in 1979. He also writes some of his own music. Albums he has recorded include "Are You the One," "Talkin' About Heaven," "John Sharp Collections, Vol. I, Somebody New," and "Jesus Is The Rock." Sharp has appeared on CBN's programs "Sing Out America," "Daystar," and "Sunday Night Live."

He and his wife, Elaine, have two sons.

In large urban areas, cirrhosis of the liver — one of the complications of alcohol abuse — is now the second most common cause of death in the 25-44 age group, according to the Health Insurance Association of America.

Coming Sunday through Wednesday, April 21-24, to Trinity United Methodist Church will be John and Paula Sandford of Coeur d' Alene, Idaho. They are the founders and directors of Elijah House in Couer d' Alene, a counseling ministry.

Times are as follows:

—Sunday: 10 a.m. to noon; 6-8 p.m.

—Monday through Wednesday: breakfast and lecture, 6:30-7:30 a.m.; morning session, 8:30-10:30 a.m. and evening session, 6:30-8:30 p.m.

—Wednesday evening also includes salad supper at 6 p.m.

The Sandfords are known throughout the United States and Canada for seminars which they conduct on inner healing, Christian counseling, Christian growth etc. Their books and tapes are known over much of the world.

John Sandford says that their main purpose in speaking at churches and in these seminars is not to provide personal counseling to individuals, but to equip and to teach the whole body of believers in Jesus to counsel each other. Healing is administered to more people this way than if the Sandfords themselves prayed and counseled with individuals.

This is accomplished initially by the people in attendance breaking up into small groups to share and pray along the lines of what the Sandfords have just finished talking about.

The topics discussed during the four-day visit can be grouped together and called the "Transformation of the Inner Man." They have also authored a book by the same title.

A nursery is provided for all sessions except breakfast. At both sessions on Sunday and at the evening sessions Monday through Wednesday, special activities will be provided for children in grades 1-3 and 3-6. Children in grades seven and up are invited to attend the main sessions with their parents.

Everyone is urged attend.

Dotson on way back to jail after rape sentence upheld

MARKHAM, Ill. (AP) — Cathleen Crowell Webb screamed "He's innocent ... He's innocent" after a judge, saying he did not believe that she fabricated a 1979 rape charge, refused to free the man who was convicted and spent six years in prison.

Gary Dotson, 28, still faces the balance of a 25- to 50-year sentence after Circuit Judge Richard Samuels ruled Thursday that Dotson "failed to sustain his burden (of proof) and I cannot find that perjury was committed."

"I've told the truth!" said Mrs. Webb, whose testimony sent Dotson to prison, as she was led from the courthouse Thursday supported by her husband and attorney John McLario.

"I lied in 1979 and I'm telling the truth now," she continued, speaking through tears, pale and visibly shaken.

Mrs. Webb, 23, testified last week she was never raped on July 9, 1977. She said she made up the story when she was 16 because she feared she was pregnant and wanted to prevent her foster parents from learning she had had sex with a boyfriend.

Samuels, who had sentenced Dotson in 1979 on the rape and aggravated kidnapping charges, said Illinois Supreme and appellate court rulings made it difficult to accept recanted testimony.

Education bill now past Senate

Referring to the sweeping public school reform law passed in a special legislative session last summer, Parker told his colleagues:

"There have been those who expressed the view that education reform in Texas is in deep trouble, and just as soon as the Legislature had the opportunity, they would dismantle it. I think this serves notice to those who labor under the false, vain hope that education reform is a transitory thing in Texas — it's here to stay.

"I think this is a firm, strong commitment from the Texas Senate that we're committed to academic excellence even through there are some little painful areas along the way."

One of those areas would be the rule that a student who fails any course is ineligible for extracurricular activities, such as sports or band, for six weeks.

The rule has only been in effect for a few months but already there have been stories of entire spring sports squads being virtually wiped out by grades. A story told Thursday was of a star baseball player who had four "A's," one "B" and a 69 in chemistry, and he had to miss the season.

On Thursday, the Senate beat back an amendment 16-11 that would, in effect, call for daily grade checks to determine eligibility.

Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said the amendment "represents a significant retreat — that we don't really care all that much."

"Is this the big game amendment?" quipped Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, and Caperton replied, "I think so."

The sponsor, Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, insisted that his proposal "is not a retreat ... if anything, it makes the bill stronger." He said students would be immediately ineligible if they flunked a test.

Senators rejected 19-8 an amendment that would set a minimum of three weeks ineligibility for failing a course. The Parker bill states that the Board of Education "may provide" for a grade reporting period of less than six weeks.

"Personally," said Parker, "week-to-week (grading) wouldn't bother me."

Students taking "honors" courses could be exempted from the grade requirement of 70 to remain eligible. "It's better to make 65 in advanced calculus than to take basket-weaving to preserve extracurricular eligibility," Parker said.

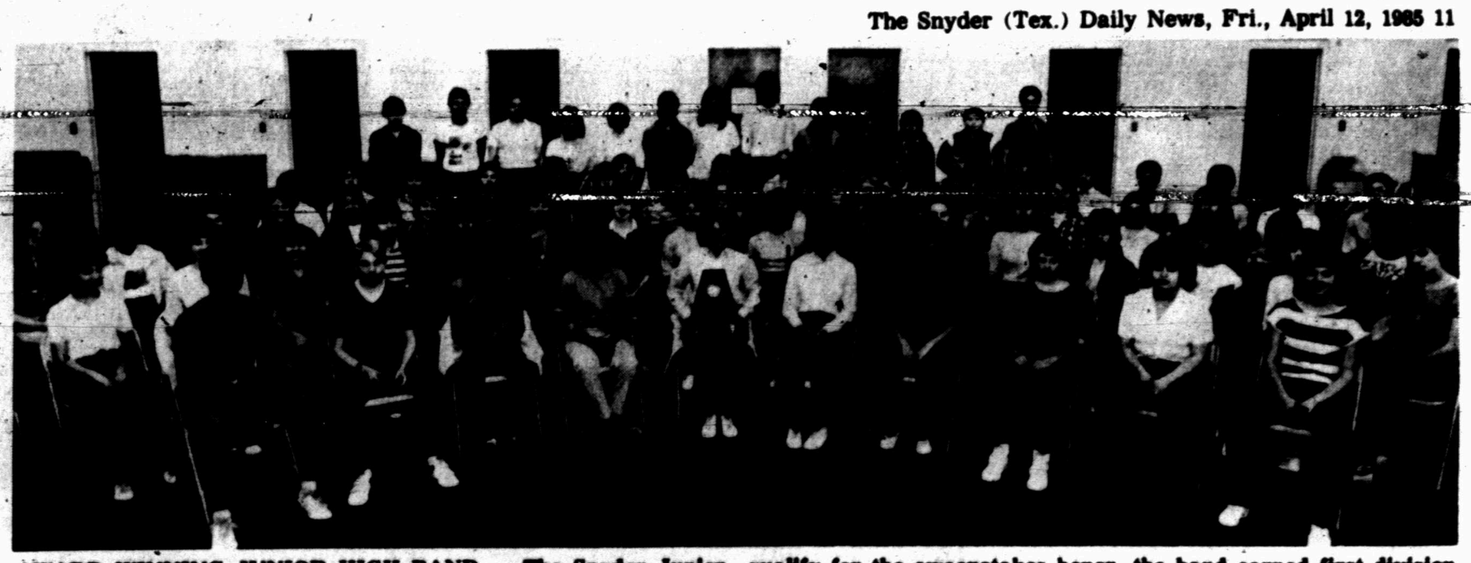

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby cast the deciding vote on another amendment, which Parker labeled as a "major retreat" in public school reform.

The amendment would allow excused absences for students who miss part of the school day to keep "health-related appointments," including trips to the dentist and optometrist.

Parker objected that this would "let students take off to get their glasses fitted or their braces adjusted."

"If you want to preserve the school day for academics, this is put up or shut up," said Parker.

Hobby broke a 13-13 tie on the amendment, which was offered by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls.

U. S. Jewish leaders are shocked

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — American Jewish leaders say they are shocked and saddened that President Reagan plans to honor German war dead by visiting a cemetery near the site of World War II's bloody "Battle of the Bulge."

Apparently surprised by the vehemence of the Jewish reaction, administration officials said the plan might be looked at again.

"There is no active reconsideration of it at present. But that's not to say there won't be," said one White House official, speaking privately. "We may or we may not" review it.

Money

The largest denomination of U.S. currency now being issued is the $100 bill. Issuance of currency in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 has been discontinued because their use has declined sharply over the past two decades.

Missing money reported here

Efforts by police Thursday evening and Friday morning to contact the victim for a more detailed statement were said unsuccessful.

Police speculate the man may have been the victim of a con game in which the two men had persuaded him to withdraw money in order to participate in a supposed money-making scheme.

in connection with the same incident — were dropped in light of Thames' plea.

In other action, the court revoked previously granted probationary terms for two individuals.

Sharon Blount — originally placed on five-years probation in March, 1984 for possession of a stolen credit card — had her probation revoked for failing to pay required monthly probation fees.

She will now be required to serve the entire five-year sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections.

Also facing a two-year term with TDC is Robbie Lee Nolan. His probation term was revoked for failure to pay fees also.

He was originally placed on two-years probation in November 1983 for the burglary of a motor vehicle reported in September of that year.

WTC faculty sets art show to mark the opening.

Thornton, WTC Fine Arts Division chairman, has included 20 pieces in his portion of the exhibit. Each piece, all wheel-thrown, bears individual designs created by a ceramic fixed air brush technique.

These pieces feature multiple layers of color — acquired by using a slow buildup and curing time — highlighted by cast bronze, bright nickel plate and 14-carat yellow gold plate pieces.

Gibson, assistant professor of art, will be showing pencil portraits. Most are of local residents and all have been created on commission.

Each portrait — which he says he attempts to make "highly individualized" — is done on heavy paper then mounted under glass.

None of Gibson's portraits are for sale. Prices for Thornton's pieces are available upon request.

Bel Geddes to return to 'Dallas'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A surprise announcement has thrown a new twist into the behind-the-scenes drama of "Dallas" — the CBS television series that specializes in cliff hangers and whodunits.

Barbara Bel Geddes, who left the series two years ago after suffering a heart attack, will return for the show's eighth season this fall as the poised and distinguished Miss Ellie, a spokesman for Lorimar productions said Thursday.

Lorimar, which produces the top-rated "Dallas" for CBS, hired Donna Reed last year after it seemed clear that Miss Bel Geddes would not return to the show.

"Barbara all along had hoped to come back, and everyone had hoped so, too," said Bob Crutchfield, a Lorimar spokesman.

Shuttle phone is now back

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — For a fee, space fans can listen in on the flight of Discovery from before liftoff to touchdown on their telephone.

For their investment, listeners will hear conversations between space shuttle and mission control, summaries of mission activities, and upcoming events and possible opportunities around the globe for shuttle sightings. The latter two services are new for the 16th shuttle flight.

There is programming to fill the time when there are no space-to-ground conversations, including NASA press briefings and taped interviews with crew members.

As on past flights, the service is provided by the National Space Institute.

Youth jobs program expanded in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — A program combining summer jobs and college-based education was so successful last year, it is being expanded to include an estimated 1,000 Texas teen-agers, Gov. Mark White says.

The 14- and 15-year-olds will participate in the Youth Opportunities Unlimited program that is being expanded from three college campuses to 10 this year, White said Thursday.

"This is not a one-shot, 'make work' program. We will teach these young people to read at the same time we teach them to work, so they can have jobs now and careers later," White said.

The governor told his weekly news conference that the program for economically disadvantaged students last year was a success. A total of 299 students lived, worked and attended classes at three university campuses for eight weeks last summer.

"The intensive, total immersion program resulted in an impressive 87.6 percent graduation rate, and a follow-up survey seven months later found that 100 percent of those contacted were still in school and 99 percent were planning to finish," he said.

Participants will receive 280 hours of classroom training, with emphasis on English, mathematics and computers, for which they can earn up to two high school credits. They will earn approximately $700 each, working 25 hours weekly at jobs which teach them marketable skills.
