Gamel of the Minter-Gamel company, who are both buying spring stocks in the big city, are stopping at the same hotel. "The Imperial" is the name of the hostelry.

BETTER ROADS IN CROSBY COUNTY ARE PLANNED

Crosby county, which joins Lubbock on the east, has heard the call for good roads that, largely through influence of the recent enactment of the state legislature setting aside a proportional amount that the state may pay with the various counties toward the good roads program, is bringing good roads to the greater part of the state.

A campaign is now under way in Crosby county that is believed will lead to voting of bonds in the sum of $200,000 to be applied on a hard surface program. This amount, if voted by the people there, will be matched by the state highway department, giving the county $400,000 for its first construction program on hard surface highways.

The proposed construction program would join the Lubbock county project at the east edge of the county, and would traverse Crosby county in an east and west direction, giving a hard surface road through the two counties. In the opinion of local highway officials the proposed amount will be sufficient to lay a standard construction concrete highway through the county, for under proposals, $20,000 to the mile would be provided.

With the recent announcement that King county is now finishing up work on a highway construction program pursuant to acceptance of the road for maintenance by the state highway department, it appears that the Plains country is becoming thoroughly awake to the benefits of good roads, and if the Crosby county proposal comes through, much traffic that is now diverted to the southern route from Ft. Worth and other central Texas cities, will traverse the new route, coming directly through east Plains towns.

CHANGE OF VENUE OVERRULED; FEELING HIGH IN STEPHENVILLE

(By Associated Press.)
STEPHVILLE, Texas, Jan. 18.—Motions for a change of venue and for a continuance were overruled here this morning when F. M. Snow, woodcutter was placed on trial for the murder of his stepson, his wife and mother-in-law.

The motion for change of venue contended that Snow could not obtain impartial trial in Erath county, where the population had been greatly agitated by the discovery of the severed head of Bernice Conner, and the subsequent finding of the ashes of the wife and her mother. The motion for continuance asked that trial be delayed until Snow could be examined for insanity, indicating that this would be the defense in the case.

TWO MEN CHARGED IN INDIAN CASE CALLED BACK

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Jan. 18. (AP)—An order for the return to the Oage County Jail of W. K. Hale, and Earnest Burkhardt, charged with murder by both state and nation, was signed here today by Judge Jesse Worten.

Hale, wealthy cattle man, and Burkhardt, his nephew, were arrested here January 4 on state warrants charging them with complicity in the death of W. E. Smith at Fairfax. They were taken that night to Guthrie to testify before a federal grand jury. The grand jury indicted them for murder in connection with the death of Henry Rosh, a wealthy Indian.

OFFICERS STILL HOLD YOUTH FOR CONNER SLAYING

DOES NOT REMEMBER HIS WHEREABOUTS, YOUTH TELLS McWHORTER

Hopelessly enmeshed in his own testimony, the most of which he has retracted and branded as false, Perry (Jack) Wilson, 21, of Canyon, who was brought here Saturday from Postville, N. H., in the county jail for questioning in connection with the death of Fred Conner, Tulsa automobile dealer, whose body was found in the edge of the Lubbock-Amarillo highway on the morning of July 15.

The youth still refuses to talk about the Conner case, claiming that he does not remember where he was the time the automobile man was killed, according to County Attorney Owen W. McWhorter, who is directing the investigation. He can remember when he was discharged from the regular army the latter part of last June, and recounts incidents that happened a few days after the death of Conner, but claims he has no recollection of the few days intervening, the attorney said.

MACHINE STARTS CONGRESS FIGHT TO CHANGE LAWS

CHURCH REPORT IS MADE BASIS OF PLEA OF WET CHAMPIONS

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The unofficial committee for modification of the Volstead Act, headed by Representative Hill, Maryland, today probably issued an appeal by 56 House members urging other representatives to join in an attempt to liberalize the law at this congress.

The committee proposed to hold public hearings to receive suggestions for "proper liberalization" before agreeing on a bill for modification. "Modification of the Volstead Act will come", the committee letter said. The only question is what form of modification shall take and when such modification will be made.

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America after its industrial research as to the effect of prohibition on the community regarding industrial, social and moral conditions, stated that "drinking by young people as compared with pre-prohibition times is more and the attitude toward law enforcement and respect for laws in general is worse."

The federal council also stated that the anti-saloon league of Iowa "after a long and arduous fight in Dubuque, Chicago, St. Joseph, Muscatine, and Dubuque" said "rampant lawlessness increasing by leaps and bounds is forcing Iowa to face the problem of either demanding strict enforcement of the present laws or else of modifying these laws to permit the sale of light wines and beer."

NEW FACTS SHOWN IN MYSTERY OF HUSBANDS

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Jan. 18. (AP)—Another touch of mystery was added today to the thirty-year matrimonial career of Mrs. Laura Christy, 48, held in the county jail at Lisbon, charged with the first degree murder of Rev. William Christy, her husband of nine days.

Charles Whipper, brother of Mrs. Christy, told officers she had married a Steubenville, Ohio, man, who died two years ago, making a total of seven spouses, six of whom, police say, are dead.

Hugh McDermott, chief of police, says Mrs. Christy admitted to him she administered poison to her most recent husband, who died Wednesday, when he "asked for it," while suffering from indigestion.

Whipper, who was unable to give police any clue as to the cause of the death of his six brothers-in-law, said neither he nor his father, Jacob Whipper, of Hammond, Ind., will retain an attorney for Mrs. Christy.

Frederick Harmon, of Athens, N. Y., is the only living former husband of the woman.

MRS. J. H. YOUNG AND SON, James, of Estancia, New Mexico, are at present the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foster. Mrs. Young and her son have been visiting in San Antonio.

Fraud Is Basis Of Divorce Action Of Fawn Gray, Dancer

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18. (AP)—Fawn Gray, dancer, filed suit for annulment of marriage to Theodore McFarland, a Philadelphia newspaper man in the circuit court of Baltimore today. The annulment papers give the dancer's real name as Gladys Marie Brown, daughter of a New York cartoonist, her age as 29 and that of McFarland as 27. The marriage, it is stated, took place two months after a party beginning in Philadelphia and ending in

New York. The papers allege that all members were under the influence of liquor when the marriage ceremony was performed. Miss Gray states that she had no recollection of the ceremony, and asks annulment on the grounds of fraud, misrepresentation and deceit. Fawn Gray loomed largely in the limelight several months ago when she won the favor of Harry K. Thaw, during one of the latter's visits to New York.

Democratic Assault On Tariff Is Begun

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—The democratic assault on the tariff, begun by members of the House, went forward today at the other side of the Capitol. Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, declared in a Senate speech that high tariff rates place a heavy burden on the farmer. Whenever he buys farm implements, paint, a bed, a sewing machine, a pill, a thimble, or a safety pin, as well as hundreds of other necessities of life, the Senator said, the farmer pays a tariff levy.

GOLF STARS WHO FINISHED PLAY IN TEXAS OPEN TOURNEY SUNDAY ENTER 'BEST BALL' COMPETITION

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 18. (AP)—Seeking further financial rewards several score professional golfers who wound up the Texas Open Tournament yesterday were entered in best ball contests, scheduled for today at local country clubs. Among them was MacDonald Smith, of Great Neck, L. I., who annexed the Texas Open Title at the Brookridge municipal course yesterday in a thrilling nip and tuck battle with Bobby Cruikshank, of San Antonio and Jack Burke, of Houston. Smith on Deck. Smith, one behind Cruikshank as this threesome started the final hole, forged ahead on the home green when the former Oklahoma City pro, nettled by a fellow professional's chatter, missed three putts and lost his grasp on the championship with 288. One stroke behind the "whispering Scot," Cruikshank took the $800 prize and Burke, with a score of 292, divided $1,200 with Harry Cooper, of Dallas, and Abe Espinosa, of San Francisco.

No formal complaint was made to tournament officials of the shouting of William Meihorn, pro from the Westmoreland club, near Chicago, at the time Cruikshank was putting. Perched in a tree beside the green Meihorn, who in 1922 lost the Texas Open to Walter Hagen, shouted comments on the dinnative Scot's play and made retorts to an official, who rebuked him.

Al Espinosa, Chicago pro, told the Associated Press that "Meihorn does that sort of thing frequently. He called me names before all the gallery at the P. G. A. tournament when I had him five up. He also caused trouble at the Los Angeles open because he didn't want to play on both courses." Cruikshank greatly resented Meihorn's talking but he did not attribute his defeat to that. He admitted, however, that he was disturbed by the pro's comments as he was making decisive putts.

The first contest today was at the Alamo club. The San Antonio Country club offered $500 in seven prizes

Billy Evans Says

McGraw KNEW WHAT HE WAS DOING WHEN HE TRADED FOR JIMMY RING

On the surface it may appear as if Manager John McGraw of the Giants got the worst of his recent trade with the Phillies, still I am willing to string along with his judgment. In sending Jack Bentley and Wayland Dean to Philadelphia for Jimmy Ring, McGraw parted with two players who cost him in the neighborhood of $125,000.

Without going into details it would seem that McGraw paid a pretty penny for the veteran Ring who has already seen service with four major league clubs. McGraw doesn't jump at conclusions. You can wager he carefully considered the proposition from every angle before he went through with it.

I venture to say that McGraw would be frank enough to admit that Dean and Bentley will be far more valuable to the Phillies than Ring. On the other hand, he figures Ring will be a greater asset to him than the two players with whom he parted. McGraw has it doped that his pitching must be greatly improved if he is to be in the running this season. He prefers a certainty rather than a gamble.

McGraw SELDOM ERRS While Jimmy Ring has never had what could be called a big year in the

Two Sport Stars

Presenting Charlie Rogers, star quarter and half-mile runner of the University of Pennsylvania. He's expected to bring in many points for the Red and Blue during the coming track season. Rogers is also a star football player, being one of the best backs Penn has had in a long while.

16 victories against five defeats, while last season his mark was 11 games won and only 1 lost.

However, Bentley is the type of pitcher who is most effective against clubs with a certain batting style. Jack wasn't dropped in at random, rather the spots were picked for him. To illustrate the breaks it is possible for a pitcher to get. Bentley, who allowed better than five earned runs per game last year won 11 and lost 4, while Laque, who ranked first in effectiveness, could win but 16 while he dropped 18.

SOME INSIDE DOPE

No doubt Dean has been a bitter disappointment to McGraw. He starred with Louisville, the same year Earl Combs, now of the Yankees, was the big noise in the outfield. It is said the Yankees and the Giants were the chief bidders for the two stars. Their spirited efforts to land the players caused the prices to soar. I have it that the two clubs at a conference threshed out the matter, the Yankees needing outfielders worse than pitchers dropped out of the bidding for Dean, while the Giants did the same on Combs.

At the time, I talked with a number of players from the American association and they all thought the Giants got the best bet in the league. It now looks as if the Yankees got the prize. Perhaps the earned run column explains why McGraw parted with Bentley and Dean. Allowing the opposition five runs per game won't win many contests unless a pitcher is getting plenty of breaks.

Birth Control Film at the Lindsey Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday

The success of modern marriage depends entirely upon full knowledge of the laws of sex and that ignorance of these laws results in discord, divorce, the double standard of morals and sometimes suicide and murder, is the lesson taught in the motion picture, "Tell Me Why," dealing with birth control, which will be shown at the Lindsey theatre in Lubbock two days only, this Tuesday and Wednesday, January 19th and 20th.

DEATH TOLL GOES TO FOUR IN CAR ACCIDENT

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18.—The death toll resulting from the fall of a street car from a bridge into the Ohio river here last night was increased to four today with the recovery of the body of Gilbert J. Schell, conductor of the ill-fated trolley. The body was found in the river a short distance from the scene of the accident. Twenty-two persons were injured, several seriously.

Miss Agnes Johnson, 23, was the only one of the known victims to drown, her body having been found floating in the river soon after the crash. The two other Mrs. Rebecca McKee, 60, and her granddaughter, Marion Signett, 7, succumbed to injuries at a hospital. All were residents of the Pittsburgh district.

Search Is Continued. Search was continued to find Snell's body. It is also possible that other bodies may be located, as there is no accurate record of how many persons were in the car.

Wonder at the small death list was expressed by Pittsburgh railway officials and others who viewed the wreck. The "city" leaving the rails at the approach to the bridge and plunging through a guard rail, turned over once before striking the water, 40 feet below. One end struck the bank and rested there, while the other end was submerged in water as far as the middle doors.

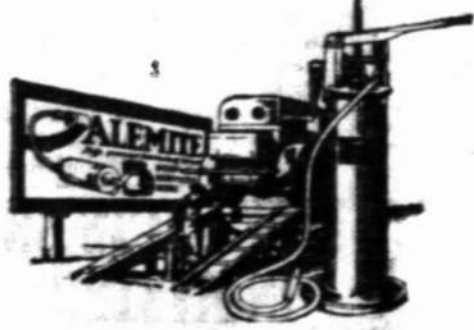

A rigid investigation is in progress, company officials announced.

Lubbock's Continuous Growth

One of the contributing factors to the continuous growth of this city is its low light and power rate—made possible by the operation of a plant by the citizen-ship.

Lubbock's reputation for having in use more electric stoves than any other city in Texas was brought about largely by this same low cost of current.

And as long as the people co-operate in the maintaining and operation of the plant just so long will she enjoy the benefits of that co-operation.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18. (P)—The cotton market opened easy mainly because Liverpool cables were lower than the spot. First trading losses of four to seven points and prices closed off a few points additional right after the call. March trading down to 19.75, May to 19.16c, and July to 18.76c, or five points to 11 points below Saturday's close. At the end of the first half hour the market was steady and unchanged from Saturday's close to a few points lower. The weather map showed considerable rain over Sunday in the central and eastern portions of the belt, but little rain in the West.

The market ruled fairly active all morning and prices advanced on the strength of the near positions. March traded to 19.85c, or 22 points above the early low and sixteen points above Saturday's close. The later positions advanced in sympathy with May trading up to 19.85c and July 18.75c, or 15 to 18 points above the early low. At noon prices were right at the high points.

The market after advancing to 320.00 for March and 319.40 for May early in the afternoon, or 1 to 2 points above the high of the morning eased off five to ten points later of realizing. The undertone continued good, however, and after the slight increase in prices showed an inclination to improve again and many traders looked for a higher closing. The good demand for spots and the large exports for the day helped to strengthen values on the reports from the cotton goods markets.

WOOL GROWING DISCUSSED

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 18. (P)—High cost in wool and mutton production have come to stay and the wool man must meet that cost with the government with grazing questions. Frank W. Hagenbarth, of Spencer, Idaho, president of the National Wool Growers' association, told the members at the opening session of the organization's first annual meeting here today.

Cheap open ranges have almost disappeared except in the case of a few isolated spots in the western states. Mr. Hagenbarth continued. The investment in land and grazing rights now equals almost dollar for dollar the investment in livestock. To take profits from this investment means that haphazard methods of even ten years ago cannot be followed. Growers cannot longer take long chances of large profits by risking investments in large flocks where their range rights are insecure.

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (P)—Mixed prices marked the resumption of stock trading today with buying of several speculative issues influenced by the large gains in reserves recorded by clearing house banks last week. American Can, Du Pont and Southern Railway opened a point higher, while short covering accounted for an initial gain of two points in Hudson Motors. Marland Oil reacted a point.

With constructive interests regaining confidence in the outlook for continued cheap money and undiminished industrial activity the market threw off its early hesitation and moved toward higher levels. American Can and U. S. Steel took leadership of the advance, which included Chrysler, Hudson, Jordan and General Motors, California Packing, Woolworth, Public Service of New Jersey, Baldwin,

Sears-Roebuck, Norfolk and Western, Delaware and Hudson, General Petroleum and Pan-American B, in which the early gains ranged from 1 to 2 1/2 points. Louisville and Nashville moved up to 133 1/2, regaining a large part of last week's loss. A few heavy spots included Marland, Union Bag and Paper, and International Business Machines.

Editorials A MATTER OF PAY

Investigation by the United States bureau of education reveals that in spite of numerous preparatory schools for teachers the teaching staffs of rural communities show but slight improvement. The product of two-year normal schools goes almost exclusively to city schools. There does not seem any reason to expect a change in this. At any rate, the investigators have none but the most elemental suggestions to make for improvement which they regard as essential.

First there must be recognition by rural people that their children cannot have secondary or higher education if they do not receive elemental training adequately. For this good teachers are needed. The farmers must demand them. But it is plain that as long as teachers are free to select from among the jobs available they will not choose small country schools if they can go to the city. When the normal school authorities are empowered to assign teachers against their will, not many new teachers will be graduated.

If rural schools are to be better served than they have been their managers must compete for competent teachers. Instead of paying the minimum salary permitted to be paid they would do well to offer premiums for good teachers. That would draw competence away from the city.

MEXICO'S THREAT

In enacting legislation which threatens to imperil the interests of American investors within that republic it may be the purpose of the Mexican government to test the limit to which the United States government will permit it to go in such a proceeding. At least the Mexicans are of a mind to give no more assurance to foreign property owners than they can help. The United States government does not assume to dictate to Mexicans what legislation they shall enact, but it does claim the right to protest against laws that would defeat agreements made to assure American rights. Investments in Mexico made by Americans in good faith and under the then existing laws are entitled to protection and that is all that our government asks.

The protest which has been made against the recently passed land and petroleum laws may have the effect of modifying or eliminating the provisions which menace the rights of American investors. In case there is refusal to amend the objectionable features of the measures interruption of diplomatic relations would be the probable result. One nation cannot retain relations with another when contacts are openly flouted. American investments in Mexico are estimated at a half-billion. The amount involved is sufficient to warrant positive steps for its protection from threat of confiscation.

The desire of Mexicans to prevent the exploiting of the natural resources of the country at their expense will elicit sympathy but fulfillment of their purpose would not justify confiscation of investments made in entire good faith under law.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

TELEGRAPH KEY IN WHITE HOUSE HAS EVENTFUL TIME

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. — When President Wilson in pajamas at 3 o'clock in the morning sleepily signaled for the opening of the San Diego exposition, he probably gave the most picturesque touch yet felt by the famous White House gold telegraph key. But there have been many distinguished fingers upon the virgin nugget. Edward W. Smithers, veteran chief telegrapher at the White House who was handed the key as a gift by President Taft, will be proud to tell you the history it has made and still is making.

"You know how people are, when they start some big affair they like to have the president press the button," says Smithers. "Well, this is the button. The key first was used on the afternoon of June 1, 1909, to open the Alaska, Yukon Pacific Exposition at Seattle. It's base is white Alaska marble, and the metal parts are solid gold, except the actual electrical connections. Studded over it, you see, are handful of gold nuggets, the original ones discovered by George W. Carmack in the Klondike in 1896."

"It was a great ceremony, that first time. President Taft made the connection on the 4,000-mile circuit which made the gates fly open and put the world's fair on its way. It was in the East Room, and a great crowd of ambassadors and senators were there.

"The pajamas incident in connection with the San Diego exposition was due to their desire to have things open at midnight, New Year's eve. Just as the new year of 1915 came in. That was 3 o'clock here. President Wilson agreed and had himself awakened. He walked down stairs in pajamas and bath robe, yawning and pressed the key, then said 'Happy New Year' to the White House people and went back to bed."

Journal Jabs It is hard for an ignorant man to tolerate his own society. A tombstone usually speaks well of a man who is down. If a man can keep out of politics and the penitentiary his friends seldom have occasion to feel ashamed of him. If you would admire folks overmuch you should not know them too well. A genuine love of good literature adds more to one's capacity to enjoy life cheaply and wholesomely than any other human quality natural or acquired.

Chuckle Awhile Tom Sims Says

The Scotsman's Wife From Answers, London: Scots tell more good stories about themselves than any other race. In fact, it is said that there is a society in Aberdeen which meets once a week to concoct tales against their own town and townfolk. The Earl of Aberdeen himself is an inveterate story teller, and the point of his yarns is against his countrymen.

The latest yarn from "Up North" has to do with a man who went to the local minister and asked how much it would cost to get married. He had his fiancée waiting in an ante-room. "It will cost you just what you think she will be worth to you as a wife,"ocularly said the minister. Thereupon the man handed over a shilling and at the same time shouted to the girl to "Come in, Maggie!"

The minister took one quick look at the young woman and promptly amended the prospective husband a sixpence change from the shilling! Passing The Buck From the Boston Transcript: "I couldn't decide among my beaux, so I told them all to see papa." "Well?" "Now I'm worse off than ever; papa gave his consent to every one of them."

Light Overhead From the Youngstown Telegram: Two small boys stood in mute admiration before a wonderful mechanical bird which filled a toy shop with melody. "Gee, I'd like to have that!" exclaimed one. "But it costs $100," the other replied. "I know," said the first boy, "but think how much you'd save on bird seed!"

In The Dark From London Opinion: "Your husband seems a clever man." "Does he know anything?" "He doesn't even suspect anything."

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, jilted her fiancé BRUCE REYNOLDS, and gets a job on the Telegraph to see life. Adventure begins at the roadhouse where a prominent man kills himself. By a red scarf Barbara connects LYDIA STACY, wealthy widow, with the case. Mrs. Stacy likes Bruce. He reveals her advances to the title ANDREW McDERMOTT, editor of the Telegraph, that Vale Acres, Bruce's realty firm, is crooked. As though to bear this out, Manners, Bruce's partner absconds. Bruce weds VIOLETTA CRANBY, factory girl. Barbara, who unknowingly helped the match through her "love" column, is left just a little bitter by this. She plunges into her work. At a convention she sees Manners and has him arrested. He implicates Bruce. By confronting Mrs. Stacy with the red scarf Barbara persuades her to testify for Bruce and this wins his acquittal. McDermott's daughter, Fanny who shares Barbara's apartment weds Jerome Ball, man about town, and goes to Chicago. Barbara, lonely, is further depressed when a child is born to Violetta and Bruce. Barbara accepts a job on Footlights, a magazine in New York, offered by Harvey Christopher, a dramatic writer. In New York she takes an apartment and invites to dinner, BOB JEFFRIES, former police reporter of the Telegraph, who is now a New York newspaper man. With him comes a pretty girl. "I think we'll be married at Christmas and take a trip back to the old home town for our honeymoon. I want to show off my wife to the old gang." Barbara suppressed something that was half sigh, half yawn. Bob was fingering the music on the piano. Not finding anything to his liking, he seated himself and began to sing some of his own improvisations, tuneless rhymeless little ditties to Annabelle. Barbara watched him, spellbound. He was scarcely recognizable as the Bob Jeffries of the old cynical, happy-go-lucky day. Annabelle made an venture in conversation. "My, but I'm glad to know you, Miss Hawley. I'll tell you a secret. When Bob called up the other night and said he'd have to break a date with me to take an old friend to the theater, I was so mad I cried all evening. Swore I'd never speak to him again, and all that." "You know the 'old friend' story is such a thin one. And I hadn't any idea what you were like. Thought you might be a fascinating vamp. But, now that I've met you, I know how silly I was." "Whoop-ee, Anne, wait a minute. Was that an intentional insult, or just one of your lovely little faux pas? Don't you know the worst insult you can offer any woman is to let her know you think her hair is too long? I shouldn't think Barbara would have anything more to do with you, after that. Better apologize, p. 3, 4." He was clowning. He did not see Barbara's eyes narrow as he rattled on. Annabelle stammered. "Oh, really Miss Hawley, I didn't mean you weren't fascinating, but, now that I've would have thrilled her a year before. Coming into the office one afternoon just before Christmas, she caught Miss Furnival's eye through the glass partition. The woman smiled and beckoned to her. "Nat Blumfeld is with the boss, just now. Think he's discovered a second Duse down in the Village. She's been doing pantomime at one of those freak stable parlours the Villagers affect. Writes free verse, acts, paints, cubistic horrors and all that. My bet is that she can't do any one thing well. "But it would be interesting for you to meet her. You haven't seen much of Bohemian New York yet. If you hang around when Blumfeld comes out, where Miller will see you, he'll probably give you the assignment." "Thanks for the tip, Betsy. I'd like to do the story." It happened as Miss Furnival had predicted. Miller caught sight of Barbara as he was ushering Blumfeld out of the office, and gave her the story. Barbara caught a bus for Washington Square. The address Miller had given her proved to be in a street lined with blank-faced old brick buildings, whose stair-railings climbed in parallel lines for block after block. Barbara found the number at the head of one of the innumerable staircases, on whose top step sat a black cat. The animal blinked indolently at her as she let the little brass knocker fall. The blow knocked flakes of venerable paint from the door. The door was opened by a girl whose corn-colored hair stood in a miraculous hayrick about her head. "May I see Miss Olivero?" Barbara

The girl lit a cigaret. "Say," she said to Barbara, "You look like a Villiger, born and bred. Why don't you move down among us?"

New Go On With The Story CHAPTER XLIX THIS is Annabelle, Bob said taking one hand of the girl in both of his, "my fiancée. Fooled you that time didn't I, Barbara? You thought I was bringing a man. But look at her! Who would look at a man when he could see a girl like Annabelle?" "Silly boy," gurgled Annabelle, dimpling. Barbara held out her hand. "I'm glad to meet you, Bob hasn't told me your last name." "So I haven't," said Bob. "It's Rogers. But Annabelle will do for all practical purposes. Well, babe, aren't you going to offer us chairs?" Barbara flushed. "Why, of course, but you seldom wait to be invited to sit down, Bob. Pick out the two comfiest chairs and make yourselves at home for a moment, while I go look at the dinner."

In the kitchen, Barbara stood perfectly still for several minutes, leaning against the table. Then she turned about and went back to the living room. She heard Annabelle say, "Sh-h!" to Bob as she entered the room. They were sitting side by side on the couch and the girl was blushing rosy. She had taken off her coat and the little blue hat, revealing a mass of red curls, above a childish forehead. Barbara smiled at them. "I hope you two aren't too much in love to be hungry. I planned this dinner for two hungry men. So Annabelle will have to rise to the occasion." Annabelle laughed. "I can always eat, Miss Hawley. But I don't know about Bob. Sometimes he just sits and looks at me instead. It's really awful."

Barbara drew the chair up to the table and brought the cocktails in. "Oh, do let me help!" cried Annabelle jumping up and running into the kitchen, where she stood helplessly looking about her. "You run back to Bob. There isn't really anything for you to do," Annabelle obeyed. The evening wore through. Barbara brought dishes to the table and removed them, poured the afterdinner coffee, blew out the candles when they began to drip on the table cloth, and at last cleared away the dishes. There was no conversation—only giggles from Annabelle, lover's non-sensence from Bob and weary acquiescence from Barbara.

"Honestly, Babe," said Bob, later in the evening, "when I think of all that rot I used to talk about the horrors of matrimony, and then look at myself now, I think the gods must be giving me the horse-laugh. A year ago I was dodging marriage with all the ingenuity there was in the Now I'm bending every energy to make a way to set up housekeeping with Annabelle. Not a grain of constancy in me. I'm happier than I've ever been in my life, and I don't care who knows it." He looked adoringly at Annabelle's red curls, and put up a hand to smooth them.

The Footlights office became more interesting. Stage celebrities dropped in frequently to talk with Miller, or to pose for pictures in the studio. Press agents of the higher circles were constant visitors. Barbara saw nearly every play on Broadway during her first three months on the staff. She became acquainted with the great windy spaces behind stage, where she stood in the wings, waiting to see men and women stars in their dressing rooms. She had tea with persons whose names

FIRE DEPARTMENT BUSY SUNDAY NIGHT

Three calls from widely scattered portions of the city Sunday night, only one of which brought any material damages, kept the local fire department "on the run" until well past midnight. One of the calls came at 8 o'clock, another at 11, and the third at 1 A. M.

The first call came from a residence at 715 Avenue G, when flames, believed to have been caused from faulty electric wiring, broke out, but did only slight damage to the paper on the ceiling. The 11 o'clock call was from the corner of 11th St. and Ave. D, when fire left in a trash pile in the yard spread to the fence, and but for quick response on the part of the fire department would have been driven by the wind to the house.

In making this second call, the fire truck, being driven by Joe Wolffarth, sideswiped an automobile occupied by

Although the thermometer has risen in Paris the cold is still intense in the mountain regions, notably in the Alps and the eastern Pyrenees, where many villages are cut off by snow drifts, which vary from six to ten feet in depth.

HOFFMAN COMPANY ATTORNEYS IN COURT TODAY OPEN FIGHT TO BE GRANTED TRIAL CHANGE OF VENUE

AUSTIN, Jan. 18. (AP)—Contending it was the invaluable right of their clients to be tried among their neighbors, attorneys for the Hoffman Construction company today launched a fight to transfer the state's $421,000 highway suit to Eastland County, residence of three of the stockholders.

G. A. Davidson, president, F. G. Hoffman, and M. J. Kelly live at Eastland; Ray Staras, the fourth individual defendant, lives at San Antonio. The defendants also demanded their pleas of privilege be tried separately and that the privilege pleas, seeking change of venue be tried before a jury. Twenty nine were empaneled. From this group, 12 will be selected to hear the pleas of privilege or the case on its merits.

Late today Judge George Calhoun, of the fifty third district court, is expected to rule whether the pleas of privilege will be heard separately.

The case will not go to trial on its merits until defendant's plea of privilege are disposed of. R. C. Staras, San Antonio, and F. G. Hoffman, other stockholders of the defendant company, are here.

The defendants contend they must be tried in county of residence, and not in Travis County.

Indications are the hearing will not start until this afternoon as several hours will be devoted to empanelling the jury and calling the docket.
