

AXIS EXPECTS BALKAN INVASION

Litigation is Expected on Portal-to-Portal Pay

Decision By WLB Is Due Later Today

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—A war labor board (WLB) decision on the soft coal wage dispute is expected today and informed sources say it will leave to litigation the issue of portal-to-portal pay.

The decision, while not directing a court test, is expected to say, in effect, that the board is passing up any ruling on the issue and that if the miners feel they have a case they may turn to the courts.

Barring a last minute hitch, these sources which would not permit identification, said the probability is an 8 to 4 WLB vote with the labor members dissenting.

Such a decision, it was said, would be made without prejudice to the rights of members of the United Mine Workers to bring lawsuits under the fair labor standards act to recover travel-time pay, as iron ore miners in the south have done.

The board is expected to vote this morning and announce its decision and accompanying opinions later today. It is understood that this schedule was adopted so that the labor members may have time to prepare a minority report to be announced simultaneously with the majority ruling by the public and the industry members.

The United Mine Workers policy committee was scheduled for a mid-afternoon meeting. It may remain in session to await the WLB's ruling and possibly decide the course to be taken after the present truce extension expires Sunday night.

UMW President John L. Lewis has refused to recognize the WLB's authority and appeared to be facing the alternative of another tie-up of the nation's soft coal mines or working for Secretary Ickes for the duration of the war while court action is sought.

The WLB had the alternative of going into the merits of the portal-to-portal demand and ordering a definite, general payment. This possibility was reported to have been explored at length. The public members, however, were represented as concluding that in taking such action they would have to calculate travel time on a basis of average travel for a group of workers and that this method would not cover the individual's rights under the wage and hour law.

The government figures, for instance, show average travel time of 48 minutes a day. Some of the workers, therefore, have travel time substantially exceeding 48 minutes and might still have a claim for travel pay if a settlement were made on an average basis.

The issue is whether travel time is working time requiring compensation under the fair labor standards act. A federal circuit court has ruled that it is, but in that case the principal factor involved was in the time in excess of the statutory 40-hour work week.

Veteran Marine Finds More Squawking At Home Than On Guadalcanal

MEDIA, PA., June 18.—(AP)—Private First class Jack Sugarman doesn't quite know what to make of all the people who come to see him while he's home on furlough.

There are a lot of them because the 21-year-old marine who, according to the citation that came with his navy cross saved the lives of nine officers and killed 132 Japs on Guadalcanal—is the town's No. 1 war hero.

Most of the women kiss him on cheeks that never felt a razor until last year. They ask him how it feels to be a hero and he always says he didn't think much about it at the time; he just fought. Then:

"I don't know what we'll do about shoes," one matron sighed. "Three pairs a year why?"

"A fellow out there got lost on patrol one night," said private Sugarman. "The lost his shoes when he tried to swim a stream. He tore strips from his shirt to bind his feet; after that he used his pants."

"Every day he hiked miles, following a stream. Finally he got to an outpost. There wasn't much left of his feet. He couldn't have worn shoes if he had them."

"They talk to him about gasoline and fuel oil rationing."

"Out there," said Sugarman, "we burned up during the day and froze at night. But the fellows didn't squawk much. We had a pool. It was black with mud. The idea was when he lived in to pretend it was Atlantic City."

The task him what he thinks about strikes.

"I could tell you what they say in the foxholes when they get a report about a new strike," said the youth who used to steal rides on the fire truck and play cowboy with the farmers' cattle. "I won't though."

His dad, Alex, who runs a grocery store and sells meat when he can get any, took him to a restaurant for a steak.

"Don't try to keep it up, pop," said private Sugarman. "Remember, I'm here for 40 days. There was a fellow out there who got along on berries for 40 days."

Naples, Sicily Pounded By Allied Planes

(By The Associated Press) Italy's bomb-scarred port of Naples, two Sicilian airbases and enemy shipping off Greece came under the stall of Allied warplanes in the latest assaults in the Mediterranean, it was announced today.

Italian headquarters said Allied raiders also blasted the area of Mt. Vesuvius, the famous volcano, including modern Pompei.

Axis radios asserted that British and Indian reinforcements had been moved to Cyprus, 69 miles off Syria, a potential base for invasion of the Balkans, Crete or the Dodecanese islands. American troops were said to be among the Cyprus garrison.

Cyprus is the third largest island in the Mediterranean, after Sicily and Sardinia.

RAF night raiders shot up railway trains and barges in northern France. German planes, flying low over the rooftops at terrific speed, bombed a postoffice in London and killed two persons. Three others were killed in an English south coast town.

The war at-a-glance: Invasion litters Germans reported removing 1,000 concrete tank barriers daily from Maghgot line to strengthen French coastal defenses; Berlin expects Allied attack on Balkans and Crete.

Russia—Red armies beat off new German attacks in Orel sector; Soviet planes set 100 big fires in raids on German airbases; Nazis report Russians massing before Orel and west of Kursk.

While axis radios nervously declared that British and American armies were preparing to strike across the eastern Mediterranean, Allied warplanes continued to hammer Italy's anti-invasion defenses.

U. S. heavy bombers flying from the middle east attacked the airbases at Comiso and Biscari, Sicily, and returned without loss. RAF long-range fighters again blasted an enemy ship off Delos Island and shooting down a three-engine Italian bomber off Cyprus.

Big RAF Wellington bombers returned to the attack on the Italian mainland, port of Naples and scored hits on the dock area.

Berlin dispatches to Ankara said the Balkans provided the likeliest target for Allied invasion, and declared:

"German and Italian troops have already occupied all important positions in this new theater of war and have strongly fortified them. The Germans said defense preparations 'particularly apply to Crete.'"

66 Guadalcanal Casualties Listed

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP)—The record breaking 120-plane air assault by the Japanese against Guadalcanal island Wednesday cost American forces 66 casualties, the navy announced today.

It had been previously disclosed that the Japs lost 77 of their fighters in the massive air attempt and that only six American planes were lost. Today's communiqué said the pilot of one of those planes had been rescued.

Other damage, first reported in dispatches from the south Pacific and restated in the official war bulletin here were one United States merchant ship and one landing barge hit.

The communiqué listed personnel casualties as 25 killed, 29 injured and 22 missing, afloat and ashore. Further details of the air battle revealed that the Japanese air forces engaged were estimated to have been 60 bombers, and 60 fighters.

Nervous Tension Cause Of Much Underweight

MISS MACDONALD: relaxes.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Nervous tension, something most everyone suffers these days, is one of the greatest causes of loss of weight.

If you are the type who "just simply can't relax, no matter how I try," do these three exercises which singling star Jeanette MacDonald says relieves her taut nerves every time.

First, the oxygen energizer—blow out all the air in your lungs and then inhale deeply. Repeat 10 times.

Second, the nerve relaxer. Raise shoulders up to ears, then push shoulder blades back together until they hurt. Now, still keeping them together bring them down as far as they will go.

And, third, touch the tip of your thumb to the center of your palm and stretch thumb out as far as possible. Repeat 10 times with each finger. Finish with 10 wrist circling movements to the right and then to the left.

How do you feel—relaxed?

Dallas Falls Down On Mailing Ration

Books To Citizens

DALLAS, June 18 (AP)—The Office of War Information said today that the people of Dallas are falling down on their "biggest wartime job"—the mailing of War Ration Book 3.

Mailing to Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana is more than 700,000 books behind schedule.

"This is a challenge that Dallas cannot ignore," Mrs. Don Houseman, placement chairman for the volunteer office of the Dallas Civilian Defense Council, said.

We have promised to provide the volunteers to do this important job, but we are forced to admit that Dallas citizens are not responding as they should," she said.

An average of 400 volunteers per day is carrying the load, despite the fact that the Council's plea for at least 800, Mrs. Houseman added. They have mailed 2,416,592 books, but 3,145,429 should have been mailed in order to keep up with the schedule to get the job done by July 15.

Hubbard Funeral Conducted At Miami

Special To The NEWS. MIAMI, June 18—Funeral rites were conducted for William Miller Hubbard, age 51, Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 at the Baptist church with Rev. R. G. West, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, Pampa, officiating, assisted by the resident pastor at Miami, Rev. William B. Waldrop, Baptist pastor; Rev. E. Lee Stanford, Methodist pastor; and Rev. H. W. Nicholson, Christian church pastor.

Mr. Hubbard died in a Pampa hospital Monday afternoon after a short illness, though he had been in failing health for several years.

Mr. Hubbard was born in Kentucky in 1892 and has resided in Roberts County for a number of years, where he was engaged in farming and trucking. He was married several years ago to Miss Ruth Gillis.

He was ordained an elder in the Church of the Brethren but did not give full time to that profession. He was a veteran of World War I. A men's chorus furnished the music with Mrs. W. F. Locke, pianist. A large number of Pampans were present for the funeral. Burial was in the Miami cemetery.

New Texas-Mexican History Advocated

AUSTIN, June 18 (AP)—The history of the Texas-Mexican war needs re-writing from the point of view of accurately presenting its political history and the social and cultural backgrounds of the two peoples involved, declared Arturo Arana y Freg today at an Inter-American conference.

Anaiz y Freg, holder of a Guggenheim fellowship and professor of history at the National University of Mexico, asserted a new version of the war was a must urgent need for Inter-American understanding.

Historians on both sides of the border need to bury prejudices and collaborate in writing a unified history, he declared.

The conference was sponsored by the University of Texas Latin-American Institute.

Canadian Club Conducts Frozen Food Demonstration

Special To The NEWS. CANADIAN, June 18—A frozen food demonstration was given Wednesday forenoon in the home economics room at the Canadian high school, especially for benefit of those using or planning to use food lockers.

The demonstration was sponsored by the Home Economics club. Membership requirement in this club is to have majored in home economics in college, most of them teachers.

Miss Argen Hix, Hemphill county home demonstration agent, was assisted by Miss Louise King, chairman of the food conservation committee, in giving the frozen food demonstration.

Vegetables used were English peas, small stringless beans, small yellow squash. These were prepared and placed in jars ready for the food locker, the squash blanched by steaming over boiling water eight minutes then covered with brine in glass jar; the peas and beans blanched only one and one half minutes. The brine was made by using four teaspoonful of salt to one quart of water. Peas and beans may be packed dry or in brine.

Rhubarb was prepared by cutting in portions which could be placed in a glass fruit jar and covering with syrup made by dissolving three cups of sugar in a quart of cold water. Fruits are not blanched.

Preparation of other fruits and vegetables was explained. Also preparation of chickens for freezer lockers.

Opportunity was given for questions.

A can of pineapple from the locker and prepared sometime ago was opened for sampling, tasting exactly like the fresh fruit. It was stated berries are especially suited to the freezing method. That fruit and vegetables which can well do not do so well in the freezing method and those which can poorly are best frozen.

This was the first of three similar demonstrations on frozen foods given by Miss Hix. The others at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday and at 10:30 a. m. Thursday.

First Methodist Sunday Services
The attendance at the First Methodist Church last Sunday was excellent. The church school attendance was 445, and attendance at the worship service was splendid.

Another good day is expected this Sunday with church school beginning at 9:45 a. m. The pastor will preach both services of worship. The morning services begin at 11:45, and the evening services at 8:00.

The splendid choir, under the direction of Mrs. Claude Gallman will sing the Anthem, "Bless the Lord," by Ivanhoff. Mrs. John S. Skelley will play for the Offertory, "Elegiac Melody," by Greig.

The Youth Fellowship meets at 7:15 p. m. Miss Margaret Ellen Burton will play a violin solo, "Moonlight Sonata," by Beethoven, for the special music at the 8:00 o'clock hour of worship.

The Fellowship hour following the evening services was held last Sunday on the lawn back of the parsonage. It was one of the best, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended.

You are invited to attend the services of this church this Sunday.

Central Baptist To Observe Fathers Day
The men of the church and community will be given special attention at Central Baptist church Sunday as Mr. James E. Frost, music director, and Rev. T. D. Sumrall, pastor, have made special plans for the day.

A full chorus of 44 men will occupy the choir Sunday morning and render the music for the worship service.

Rev. Sumrall will deliver a special message to men in commemoration of Father's Day. The sermon subject will be, "Gideon and Three Hundred Brave Men."

Through mail and by personal contact many men have been invited to this service. In the sermon Rev. Sumrall will emphasize the kind of men needed in Pampa churches and civic life as well as the type of fathers we need today. All men are invited to this service.

Sunday evening at 8 o'clock the service will be evangelistic in its nature. The sermon subject will be The Death of Christ. Suitable music by the full mixed chorus will blend with the sermon theme.

Let all women and boys and girls honor father on Father's Day by attending church somewhere Sunday. You are cordially invited to worship with the Central Baptist unless you are already affiliated with some other church.

Calvary Baptist Church Program
Sunday school will begin at 9:45, with morning worship at 10:50 o'clock, and Training Union service at 7:00. Evening worship, 8:00 o'clock. Mid-week prayer meeting, Wednesday at 8:15 p. m.

Next Sunday is Father's Day and a program is being planned in keeping with the day. Mr. Glenn Field will be in charge of music.

The subject will be "Father's Responsibility." A cordial invitation is being extended to one and all to attend these services. The evening service will be evangelistic.

"Fellowship Day"
Observed By Church
The Church of the Brethren will hold its June "Fellowship Day" on Sunday, with Rev. H. M. Coppock, of Cincinnati, Ohio, as guest minister. Rev. Coppock is pastor of the Cincinnati Church of the Brethren and president of the District Mission Board of Southern Ohio, representing 53 congregations with a membership of some 12,000.

He is the father of four sons and four daughters, all grown and active members of the church. This fact should qualify Rev. Coppock as a "Father's Day" speaker. Two of the sons are residents of the Pampa congregation. Mrs. Coppock and one daughter will also be present.

The schedule for the day will be as follows: Sunday school at 10 a. m.; sermon by Rev. Coppock at 11 a. m.; Fellowship basket dinner at noon; Father's Day, talk by Rev. Coppock at 2 p. m. on the subject, "The Joy of Being a Father." There will be no evening service.

At 11 o'clock the 17 altar candles, representing the men in service, will be lighted by two brothers, Albert and Tommy Smith. Following the services of the day Tommy will leave Pampa for service in the navy.

The church, of which Rev. Russell G. West is pastor, extends a welcome to all. All service men are especially welcome. 600 North Frost is the location.

War Prison Camp Due For Brady
SAN ANTONIO, June 18 (AP)—Col. McDonald D. Weinert, district army engineer, said today the contract for construction of an internment camp at Brady, Texas, had been awarded to Charles H. Oehler of Galveston.

(In Washington, the war department said work on the camp, to cost approximately $2,000,000, was to begin immediately and be completed in six months. The department said the camp would be of temporary frame construction and have a capacity for 3,000 prisoners of war and 450 guards and a station hospital. All other details of construction were withheld.)

Zion Lutheran Church Services
In observance of the Trinity Sunday Festival, Rev. Wolter, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, will for this 11 o'clock address use the Word of God, Ephesians 1, 3-14, as a guide, on the basis of which he will emphasize the truth that while not all gods who have been made by the imaginations of men are adequate gods, there is a God who is adequate, namely, the True God of Holy Scriptures—the first person of the Holy Trinity who created the world and planned our salvation; the second person of the Holy Trinity who worked out our salvation; the third person of the Holy Trinity who applies this salvation to each one of us for our practical benefit—this is the adequate God, the true God, the True God.

At 7:45 p. m. Rev. Wolter will use the Word of God, I John 4, 13-14, to expound on the topic "The World Needs Not A God, but The True God," according to which he will show that what the world needs is not just some vague notion about some magic god, but faith in the true God, faith in God the Father as the one to whom it is responsible; faith in Jesus Christ so that it can find forgiveness for its sins and be at peace with the Father; faith in the Holy Spirit so that it may come to find Jesus Christ and through Jesus find peace with the Father.

Pleasure Driving

The Automobile Club of New York is exemplifying the type of obstructionism that Adolf Hitler had in mind when he assumed that no democracy could prosecute total war successfully. Fortunately Hitler was wrong. Both the American and the British publics, with a lot of fussing and fuming, come through in the pinch—no thanks to short-sighted trouble-makers.

The Automobile Club protests that the OPA has a "Gestapo" at work in the eastern states, checking on pleasure driving, which is banned because there is not enough gasoline for essential motoring and even then oil-heated homes are facing critical shortages for next winter because we cannot build up a reserve of fuel.

And the club protests that "we are still awaiting a definition from the OPA as to what constitutes pleasure driving and what is essential and non-essential driving."

That is tommyrot. Every motorist knows which of his trips are essential, in view of the acute shortage. He knows not only when he is driving for pleasure, but he also knows when he is burning precious gasoline to drive somewhere that he could go by public conveyance—with less comfort, perhaps, but otherwise just as well.

If there is a "Gestapo," which is the epithetical way of designating a corps of inspectors, it is justified by the utter failure of a sizable body of eastern motorists to cooperate in saving gasoline to win the war.

The desperate straits to which the east is reduced—the necessity for spreading the pleasure driving ban to Ohio, then to the Carolinas, and perhaps to Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska and the Dakotas—is due in part to the fact that when OPA Administrator Brown tried the honor system, he found too little honor.

Mr. Brown has been criticized severely and justly for his unrealistic attempts to please everybody, particularly the politicians.

Now he discovers what his predecessor, Leon Henderson, knew: that total war is a very unpleasant business, which requires sacrifices; that while the majority will respond to appeals, a large minority is selfish and self-centered, and has to be whipped into line.

In a limited way, Mr. Brown has been forced to get tough. He deserves support from good citizens, not snide criticism.

RUBBER OF THE FUTURE

What is to become of our war-created synthetic rubber industry if natural rubber becomes plentiful after the war is a question that has begun to interest many persons. How much tariff protection will synthetic require and how much should it receive in fairness to American car owners? If it cannot compete with natural in even price competition, should it be allowed to expire? Do we wish our wheel-mounted civilization, let alone the national defense, ever again to be dependent on the East Indies? If natural rubber in Brazil comes back in a large way, how about good neighborliness?

None of these questions can be categorically answered now. But John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., speaking before the New York Chamber of Commerce, discussed the prospective conditions and national objectives which will shape the answers. His treatment of the problem they present seems to render its solution a less formidable task than most of us believe it to be.

Mr. Collyer expects that whatever else happens "those responsible for the national defense" will determine to specify use of synthetic rubber in defense equipment in sufficient volume to "assure continuing operations of the large scale plants," thus affording the country adequate rubber in any emergency and some recourse against high prices for the natural product. It is obvious that the Government could follow this policy almost regardless of the price factor.

In connection with price, Mr. Collyer referred to his own forecast of three years ago that synthetic could be made for as little as 25 cents a pound and then quoted Rubber Director Jeffers' recent statement that a price of 16 cents was likely to be reached. Mr. Collyer, added, however, that it would take a still lower price to eliminate natural rubber on economic grounds alone. That is, he assumes that East Indian rubber will not again be held for prices much higher than either of the figures just mentioned, an assumption which seems safe enough.

Precise answers to the questions posed in the first paragraph hereof will have to await the results of further research and development in the synthetic rubber field. But it seems clear now that we shall need neither to sink the new industry nor to be wholly dependent on it and that a fairly open choice between the two products will probably answer the price question. The technically uninformed—such as this newspaper—cannot quite dismiss the possibility that synthetic rubber may be so improved and so cheapened as to put the natural article out of the competitive running. Mr. Collyer, an experienced tire manufacturer, clearly does not expect that to happen.

UGH—WILLKIE—NOO, NOO, NOO!

(New York Daily News)

Wendell L. Willkie told reporters at Oberlin, O., a couple of days ago that Ham Fish, Gerald L. K. Smith, Alf Landon and Col. Robert R. McCormick disapproved of him, and "if this keeps up I may be nominated (for President in 1944) in spite of myself."

The argument is not good. If everybody of whom Col. McCormick disapproves runs for President next year, we'll have rather a scrambled election.

The distinguished radio news commentator, Raymond Gram Swing, also does Washington correspondence for the distinguished London Express. In a recent dispatch to the Express, Mr. Swing had this to say about Republican 1944 Presidential prospects:

"The two foremost candidates at this time are Wendell Willkie, who is Tweedledum to Roose-

CAN A NEWSPAPER RESPECT RELIGIOUS BELIEFS?

A reader contends that this newspaper should respect the religious beliefs of all its readers. It might be possible for a newspaper that was only interested in making the greatest amount of material profit to refrain from discussing religious beliefs if that is what respecting religious beliefs requires. This policy however could only be followed by a "milk-and-water" newspaper that was not interested in the spiritual and material progress of mankind. But it seems impossible for any newspaper that is interested in the welfare of mankind to separate religious ideals from political ideals.

Henry Jackson, president of the college for Social Engineers, Washington, D. C., in his Introduction to the Thomas Jefferson Bible explains the impossibility of separating spiritual and political affairs better than I can. I quote:

"If we ever expect to restore the 'lost spirituality of public affairs,' politics and religion must be riveted together in our thought. The separation of politics and religion results from the distinction of secular and sacred. Both words have been ruined and will be regenerated only when we discover that the field of both is the same. Religion is a spiritual attitude to life; politics is the art of directing society so as to produce the greatest good for human welfare. Religion is the principle of a right attitude; politics is the application of that principle to human needs. The two are inseparable."

A newspaper that is interested in the welfare of all people and of the race, and thoroughly believes that a religion of principles, of impersonal rules, will result in a better government than a religion of sagas, myths and supernatural practices which it believes retards human progress. For the publisher to do so, would be to sell his soul for a mess of pottage. And no religious belief has any right to establish a taboo on its discussion when it interferes with improving man's understanding as to how to have a government that more nearly administers justice to all people.

Certainly any person who can point out any religious suggestions made by this column that will be harmful to progress, will be showing me the greatest possible respect by pointing it out, privately or publicly. Some people have queer conceptions of what respect means. Getting people to understand natural laws is the best way in the world to show respect for the personality of another.

TALKERS BUT NOT DOERS

Did you ever notice that the individual who is constantly proclaiming that we can now produce enough to free everybody from want is invariably an individual who himself has never done much to add to the wealth of the world?

The Roman Empire had these same kind of people who advocated free bread and free circuses. The less these great humanitarians themselves know about production the more they like to talk about total production.

COURAGE TO SEE

Few people realize the courage required to see what will happen before it does happen. Especially does it require courage after one has seen it to point it out to others. Most people are offended when something is pointed out that is contrary to their pet theories and beliefs.

A Sailor Writes Home

Navy Lieut. James Kraker told the Virginia, Minn., Kiwanis recently about a letter he censored, written by a sailor somewhere in the far Pacific to his father, a coal miner. If the father went on strike, the son wrote that he no longer would regard "you as my father, and going out on strike could only mean that I mean nothing to you as a son."

"That boy and many like him," commented Lieutenant Kraker, "are bitter—bitter against those people within the United States who have struck and done those things which have slowed production of vital war needs."

A mortally wounded anti-aircraft crew member slips over-board, so that no time shall be taken from the battle to minister to his comforts. "Yet," says the Navy officer, "the people at home won't sacrifice a dollar."

Exaggerated? Sure. But that is how a lot of fighting Americans feel about it.

Well's Tweedledum in foreign affairs, and Gov. Bricker of Ohio, Bricker is a god administrator, a bitter antagonist of the New Deal Liberalism, but next to nothing is known about his views on foreign affairs.

And, that was a mouthful from Mr. Swing. Willkie is indeed foreign-affairs Tweedledum to Roosevelt's Tweedledum. Both of them want the United States after this war to go into some kind of world super-state, in which we would be out-voted and, to be unkindly blunt about it, out-gunned.

No More Sister Acts, Please
We don't think the Republicans should nominate Mr. Willkie next year in any event now imaginable.

But especially should they not nominate him if Mr. Roosevelt gets the Democratic nomination for which he is now angling.

Many Americans do not want the United States to surrender its independence to any world state. They want it to go on being the sovereign nation that it now is, able to pull its own weight in the world affairs, without any other government's or super-government's permission.

Those people are entitled at next year's Presidential election to register that attitude by voting for a candidate who represents their views.

If the choice is between Willkie and Roosevelt again, the anti-world state element will be unable to register its opinions, and thus the 1944 election, like the 1940 thing, will be no real election.

The people were led up the garden path in 1940, and both Willkie and Roosevelt have had the laugh on the people ever since.

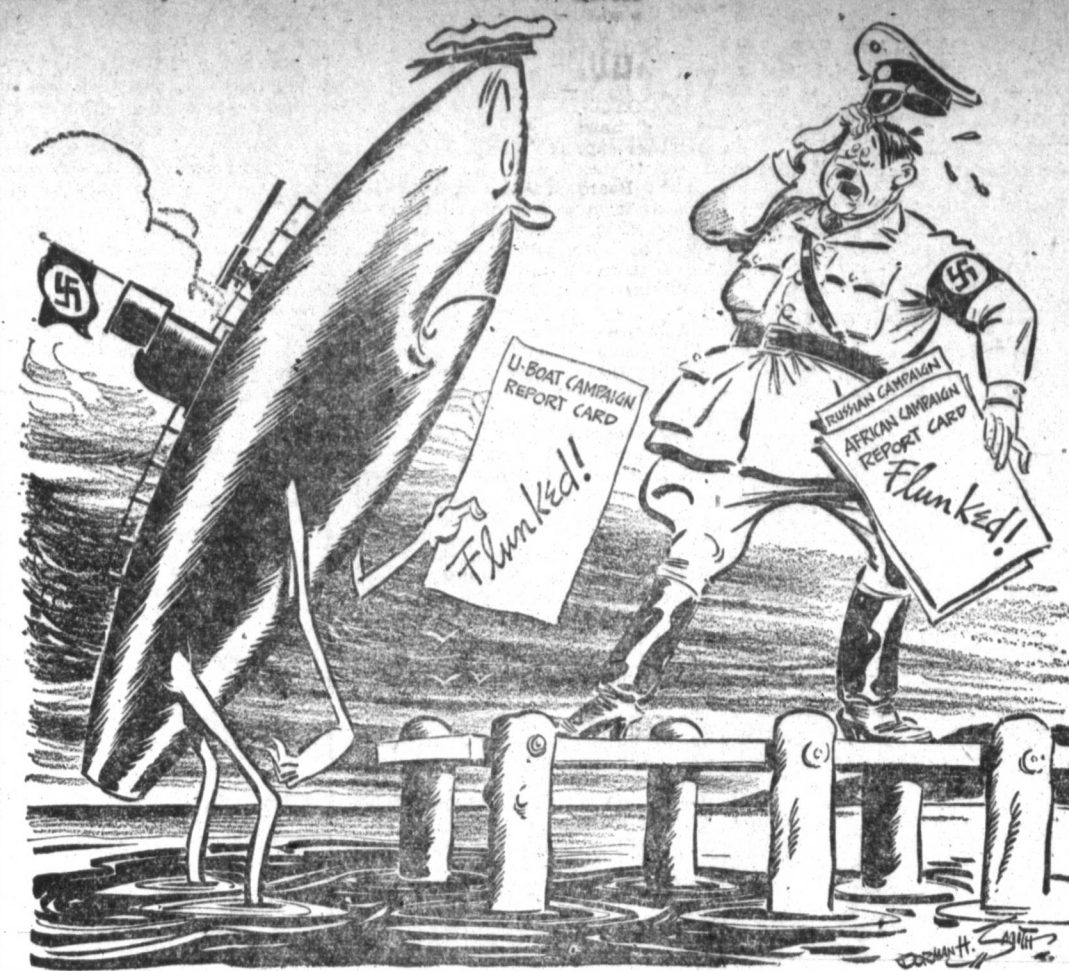

But please, no more sister acts. Try something new for '44.

(Cashmere Valley Record)

All war economies aren't proving hardships. The pin shortage, for instance, has brought happiness to mankind. We opened up a new Sunday shirt this week. Instead of having pins in the collar, pins in the shoulder, pins in the neck, pins in the bosom, pins in the cuff, pins in the tail, pins in the elbows, this wartime garment was neatly fastened with just two pins.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

CANNY—The reason behind general Republican opposition to the McClellan Bill requiring Senate confirmation of all officials earning more than forty-five hundred dollars a year is both partisan and somewhat comical. But it helps to explain why so many efforts to check Executive authorities have foundered on Capitol Hill.

The GOP-ers are anxious to show up the downtown bureaucrats for their plan to headline the alleged inefficiencies of this crowd as a leading issue next year. Privately the minority favored the door Tennessee's measure but a few of its more far-sighted members introduced this thought at informal caucuses on the scheme.

Even though the Republicans should win the White House in 1944 it is not mathematically possible for them to capture the upper chamber. Thus, with the McClellan prohibition in operation, a Democratic Senate would have the deciding word on appointments submitted to that body by a G. O. P. President. The opposition could deprive the reigning group of its control of patronage by refusing to okay the nominations.

Similar considerations lay behind the Martin-McNary faction's support of Leon Henderson when he was Price Administrator. Although anti-Roosevelt Democrats reduced his appropriation, the conservatives favored giving him almost the amount he asked for originally. Explanation is that Leon, being more canny politically than most people realized, had scattered fat jobs on Whitekites in his State and regional offices.

REVOLT—Washington diplomats were justified in hailing the removal of office of stiff-necked, anti-American Ramon S. Castillo in Buenos Aires. Almost anyone would be more favorable to our cause than this reactionary.

Bitter Argentines living in New York, and businessmen of the city who have returned by plane from the pampas since the overturn, insist that Tweedledum has merely succeeded Tweedledum. So far as a genuinely democratic movement is concerned the Ramirez shuffle is only a fake revolution.

The real rebellion they assert, is still in the cards and the present junta of gold-brained opportunists is likely to be kicked out before many months—sooner.

The objective of the usurping brass hats—in addition to checking the rise of the radical party—is to fool Uncle Sam and make him believe that the River Plate rulers no longer are cheering for a Hitler triumph and hence deserve a few choice slices from the lend-lease bacon. They noticed how successful France was in acquiring petroleum from the naive Allies when he stopped flitting openly with the Axis. Their scheme is to ape El Caudillo. But Washington apparently is not being deceived by the stratagem. Several months ago a delegation of liberal politicians from Buenos Aires quietly visited the District of Columbia and whispered a prophecy about a false revolt which last week came true in every detail.

Unless the State Department changes its mind, it may not venture far beyond technical recognition of the upstairs regime until the generals prove they have swung toward the United Nations.

TIGHTROPE—The government of Roberto Ortiz and his successor Castillo came to power in 1930 when an uprising ousted a hopelessly bungling democratic administration and established a hard-boiled military dictatorship with the support of wealthy landowners and cattle kings.

Dissatisfaction has been brewing among the common people out demands for liberal legislation were ignored by the reigning clique. This crowd also remained on good terms with Berlin because many of its members believed Argentine trade would benefit in a totalitarian commercial world. Yet some of them, too, wanted to be friendly with Britain, their old best customer, and with the United States.

In fact Castillo himself frankly asked Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who visited Latin America recently why Washington treated his country as if it were a prodigal child.

Johnston replied, "We feel like parents sitting up until the wee sma' hours of the morning and praying that their teen-age daughter will return home unharmed."

But the generals who now compose the cabinet became convinced that Uncle Sam would never deal with Castillo. They wanted arms so their army would be as well equipped as that of their rival neighbor, Brazil. So they tossed out the notoriously neutral president and brought in a bery of new faces, hoping thereby to gain the blessing of Washington and London without changing either the social foundation of their government or its tight-rope European policy.

TRUTH—The legend of Yankee frugality an foresight was recently exploded by Maritime Commissioner John M. Carmody, who won his spurs in Pennsylvania. As a New Deal Democrat, he enjoys telling this tale about the region which sired Calvin Coolidge.

A certain Maine yard reported that it was unable to construct vessels at the contract price fixed by the Federal agency. A Commission financier suggested that its money allotment be increased, pointing out that in the war crisis the production of boats was more important than saving cash for the Government.

"Hang it," blurted John, "I can't see that line of argument. I know a little plant in Marinette, Wisconsin, that is keeping well within its budget and turning out grand stuff. Let's investigate the matter."

Mr. Carmody discovered that the Padger State corporation, headed by Dr. C. H. Boren, a community go-getter, had kept costs down by obtaining its lumber from the nearby upper Michigan peninsula. The New England firm, despite a fine stand of local timber and an abundance across the Canadian border, was buying its supply in California.

Sensors Brewster and White of the Pine Tree Commonwealth complained to Mr. Carmody, and requested a larger subsidy for their constituents. But when the facts were explained to them in detail they admitted that maybe the home folks were not so smart as their fathers and grandfathers.

Now, whenever a New England shipbuilder submits his troubles to the statesmen from Maine, they reply, "We don't always agree with him, but see John Carmody. He is blunt and tells you the truth even though you may not like it."

Mr. Byrnes Has His Hands Full

By PETER EDSON
Pampa News-Washington Correspondent

MR. JUSTICE SENATOR OFFICE OF WAR MOBILIZATION DIRECTOR JAMES E. BYRNES has bit off quite a chew for himself in assuming the job of chief government rat-hole watcher, extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of sweetness and light, good-will and brotherly love among the bureaucrats in war-time Washington. No wonder he says he doesn't want to be vice-president, ever. This job will be a lot more exciting.

Justice Byrnes' announced plan of operation for his new office, particularly as it relates to his ambition to funnel Congressional investigations through one Senate and one House committee, and to stop inter-departmental rows before they get started fills a long-felt Washington want. Carried to the extreme, this new method of "mobilizing" the war effort might be considered a move towards muzzling the department heads by not letting them make faces at each other, or an effort to suppress the constitutional right of Congressmen to get up on their hind legs and complain about the war effort, except before the chosen committees.

It might also lead to the suppression of a reduction of some of the more dramatic news that comes out of the capital. In the eyes of some people, nothing is happening in Washington unless Harold Ickes or Bill Jeffers or John L. Lewis is calling somebody a nasty name, unless the Truman Committee is exposing some scandal, or unless the Army is trying to wreck the War Production Board or vice versa.

BICKERING NOT NEWS

BUT bickering and controversy do not make the constructive news that should come out of Washington, and a sudden and permanent ending of all such blowoffs, under the Byrnes plan should be welcome, just so long as it is not used to cover up administrative mistakes, what the Congressmen call bureaucratic bungling, and the policy decisions that need full public discussion and airing.

A complete blackout of news on some of the controversial issues now raging in Washington would be a relief, but only if the issues were buried alive if they were simply buried alive.

Consider also the duplication of effort in the various Congressional investigations on phases of the civilian war effort.

The Senate Committee on Agriculture had been investigating OPA price roll-backs and subsidies for two weeks, when the matter was taken up by the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. Most of the witnesses are the same. Currently, the House Small Business Committee raked the Office of Price Administration policies over the coals of its hot seat, while a House subcommittee on agriculture went after OPA's grade labeling program and a Senate Small Business Committee looked into the poultry supply and distribution situation.

TOO MUCH CONFUSION

OPA is today the hot subject of these five investigations, but before OPA became the center of all this attention it was something else—manpower, or war production, or small business in general, or gasoline, or rubber, or steel, or aluminum.

These things are admittedly all important and maybe they deserve all the attention and abuse showered down upon them. Director Byrnes realizes the complexity of them all and the difficulty in trying to get investigations of all the war problems centered in one committee of the House. Congressional investigations are, in general, healthy things.

But in duplicating each other, they tend often to pile confusion on top of confusion and that is not the obvious way to shovel away a pile of confusion which litters up any front yard.

As a step towards increasing the efficiency of not only the war effort, but of Congress itself, the proposals which Director Byrnes has made constitute a notable step towards the removal of much Washington confusion.

The neatest trick which Mr. Byr-

This is the story of girl doctors said would never be able to face an audience again—a girl born and bred to acting who spent seven months in a hospital before she dared look in a mirror. She made her stage debut at three. Her father was the leading man, her mother the leading lady of an eastern stock company. It wasn't long before she became one of America's brightest stars of the legitimate stage. And then came tragedy—tragedy in the form of a kettle of grease on a kitchen stove. Inexperienced in the kitchen, she threw a pan of water on the stove when the grease suddenly caught fire. There was an explosion and the career of one of America's foremost stage stars nearly came to an end.

Her face was horribly burned. Doctors despaired of ever repairing her facial beauty. But they did, in a miracle of modern surgery. Then her star shone brighter than ever—85 weeks on Broadway in "Personal Appearance." Then motion pictures—"Valiant is the Word for Carrie," "They Gave Him a Cent," "The Hairy Way," "The Maltese Falcon" and "The Crystal Ball." The girl doctors said would never be able to face an audience, again, but who came out of that accident without a single scar—Gladys George.

ADOPTED AMERICAN

He was eight years old when he gave his first performance in his London home clad in his mother's favorite tunic which she made into a costume. Her hand clapping—properly applied—was his only applause. He grew up to become a hotel clerk. Then he became an amateur actor with an ambition to play American gangster roles on the London stage. With his small savings as a hotel clerk, he enrolled in the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. For months he listened to orators to perfect an American accent. He memorized their greatest speeches and could deliver Woodrow Wilson's entire inaugural address. Then his ambition was realized. He was cast in a London play as an American gangster. He played the role so successfully that Gilbert Millner, the Broadway producer, called his London agent to "sign up that American actor and send him home."

It wasn't long before the former hotel clerk was reciting on the screen a great speech he had learned from a phonograph record—Lincoln's Gettysburg address. The hotel clerk who became a star—the star of the new film hit, "This Land is Mine"—Charles Laughton.

UNDERSTUDY'S UNDERSTUDY

This story makes honest men out of fiction writers who love to tell of the little understudy who stepped into the star's shoes. She was only an understudy to the understudy. All his roles were cast when she read a few lines for Max Reinhardt, rehearsing a Hollywood Bowl production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." But he was so impressed with her ability that he asked if she would like to understudy Jean Rouvel, who was understudy for Gloria Stuart in the role of "Hermia." She accepted. Then the understudy, Miss Rouvel, was called away on a motion picture assignment. Came the day before opening of the "Dream" and the star, Miss Stuart, was called up for a film role. The understudy to the understudy was the only one left to play the role of Hermia. The rest you know. The understudy to the understudy who became a star—Olivia de Havilland.

B-26 Bomber Performs For Pampa Cadets

Aviation cadets, soon to win their wings at Pampa Field, are still talking about the maneuverability of the Martin B-26 bombers, following recent demonstration of that "hot" airplane by Major "Squeak" Burnett, a member of General Dill's staff, now on temporary duty at the B-26 school at the army flying field, Dodge City, Kansas.

Many of the men who have graduated from Pampa Field are now flying B-17's, B-24's and other famous U. S. army aircraft, both in action and at combat training schools, but the B-26 Marauder school at Dodge City is one that is drawing increased interest from Pampa Field fliers.

In the recent demonstration here, the B-26 pilot giving one exhibition showed cadets some of the flying features of that ship, circling the field in what amounted to an almost vertical bank and "buzzing" the field in a low maneuver. He also showed cadets how the big craft would fly with one motor functioning, "feathering" its other motor to a stop.

Major Dill Ellis, commander of a B-26 Squadron in the Pacific theatre of operations, recently arrived back in the United States, has offered high praise to the Marauders for their combat efficiency. He reported to the war department that a single group of B-26's had shot down 90 Jap Zeros in aerial combat and had destroyed many others on the ground during the past several months.

He also declared that the plane has proved itself to be an excellent medium bomber, with an amazing ability to take hard blows and still come back with its crew.

Slowness, Not Speed, Of North African Win Convinces Experts Conflict Has Years To Go

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Informal observers are neither blinded nor deafened by the astounding promptness of the Afrika Korps' collapse the instant its back touched the wall.

What impresses them more is how long it took to get it there.

Now, surveying all the ponderable elements, military and economic, that comprise grand strategy, they say: "This is still going to be a long war. That is the real lesson of Tunisia."

Conquest there gives us a firm footing on the southern moat protecting Hitler's "Fortress Europa"—but on that moat's southern bank.

We must still cross the moats—the Mediterranean and the Channel, still force the drawbridge and portcullis—Italy and the Balkans, France and the Lowlands, before we storm the citadel, Germany.

POWERFUL DEFENSES

Its outworks are defended first by shore-based aviation, which has proven formidable against warships or transports, then by myriad submarines, then by fortifications in successive belts whose strength varies but adds up, manned by the world's most formidable army which can oppose to our perhaps 25 experienced Allied divisions, a hundred as experienced and probably better supplied by railroads and roads forming a network of interior lines.

We and the British must skirt those interior lines to supply our hundred-odd "fronts" the long, hard way, by ships. Of bottoms, there are never enough. Submarines are delaying our moves. Though this year the Allies build 25,000,000 tons they will not fully solve the supply problem. To have solved the biggest production problem in history is wonderful, but we must get the products where they are needed—and when. There can be no invasion without supplies—10,000 different kinds.

And invasion, in prevailing American military opinion, there must be. Some Americans and more British still hope bombing will blast German morale until it cracks like that of the Afrika Korps. But Intelligence reports indicate that while bombing has good effect, especially upon German railroads, it is not exactly devastating industry, particularly the many plants in hitherto inaccessible regions. Although our new fighters will greatly help escort heavy bombers, bomber production is less satisfactory to us than im-

New Machinery For Rubber Due

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—With a flood of harder-to-handle synthetic rubber expected from government plants next year, the War Production Board probably will be asked soon to authorize substantial quantities of new machinery for making tires, hot water bottles and other rubber goods.

Rubber director William M. Jeffers' office was reported to have been impressed by the contention of rubber companies that their present machinery will be inadequate to handle the synthetic product.

They estimated that the processing of synthetic requires about one-third more machinery, power and labor than the same amount of natural rubber which their equipment was built to facilitate.

Some officials estimated that new mixers, mills, vulcanizers, tire building machinery and other equipment in a volume sufficient to process about 250,000 tons of synthetic—roughly one third of the 800,000 tons to be turned out annually—would be required.

Heavy strains in the capacity of tire makers are expected when they are called on not only to fill the needs of military vehicles and aircraft, but to replace civilian tires which will take no more recapping.

All plant units of the synthetic rubber program are expected to be in operation by the end of this year. Jeffers has declared 5,000,000 synthetic civilian tires by the end of this year and 30,000,000 in 1944.

proving anti-aircraft defense is to the Nazis. Conservatives believe they won't be bombed out this year, or next.

Nor starved out. The occupied countries will be starved to the epidemic-line, to weaken them lest they help an Allied army of liberation, and to keep the Germans strong. Nor her oil shortage, though it is becoming rather serious.

"Germany's hour is not yet," say those who add up these factors. Perhaps 1944—late—but also, perhaps, 1945.

JAPAN'S 1,000,000-SQUARE-MILE FORTRESS

Nor Japan's. She too, holds the citadel of fortress the outermost of whose million square miles we barely touch from Australia. For reconquering it the Antipodes are an unsatisfactory base—remote, still under-equipped and undermanned—many of whose supplies travel 7500 miles. China is even farther, bloodied, its many soldiers pitifully under-equipped, Alaska is nearer, but not fully developed, and handicapped by the Jap Aleutian foothold. Siberia, nearest of all, will remain neutral certainly until Hitler is beaten. Any major military blow may have to await that consumption, plus greater superiority by sea and especially by air. More promising than costly island hopping is attack by large air-borne infantry and artillery forces—which need much training and many planes and gliders.

By more air-power and better bases we can best support our submarines in whittling Japan's precious shipping and cargoes of iron, tin, oil, rubber and food from her pirated empire. Given time to exploit and fortify that empire, she believes she can hold on and tire us out in its white-man-killing jungles. Her army, like Hitler's, is still more experienced than ours and at least as well led. It has had no Tunisia. "This war will last one hundred years." And indeed, if Hitler's war lasts two more years, Tojo's may last another two, to 1947—given the time needed, to transfer forces from Europe.

So say those who see war's ponderable factors, military and economic. Yet war is conflict, not of mathematical formulae, but of human beings, and the winner is often old General Impendable. His strategy turns upon questions like these: The Doolittle raid nearly drove Japan's excitable people crazy. How about getting bases and equipment to repeat it—time after time? Germans can crack their backs once to the wall. How about more surrender-propaganda among them? But unless enemy morale cracks, it still looks like a long war.

Cold Storage Butter Stocks Are Increasing

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—Dairy trade sources today said a huge increase in cold storage stocks of butter during the past month, as revealed by Department of Agriculture figures, indicated large quantities of the commodity had been removed from consumer channels as a result of price rollbacks.

Heavy supplies of butter were sold to the dairy products marketing association, a government financed agency, dairy men said and therefore were taken out of retail channels. These stocks now are owned by the DPMA, or by other government agencies to which they have been transferred.

Cold storage warehouse stocks of butter on June 1 totaled 82,666,000 pounds, almost three times as large as the 30,199,000 pounds in warehouses a month earlier and the largest for any June 1 since 1939. While the seasonal trend is upward from May to June, dairy men said this alone could not account for the increase in view of the strong domestic demand.

The government got the butter, dairy men said, because at the time the rollback was placed in effect, no provision was made for subsidy payments to owners of butter in transit or already in warehouses. This butter had been purchased from producers on the basis of pre-roll-back retail prices.

Rather than still sell the butter to consumer outlets at a loss, owners turned it over the DPMA. The rollback price on 92 score butter was 41 cents a pound, but the DPMA was willing to pay 46 cents a pound. Consequently, butter which would have gone to consumers went to the agency, dairy men asserted.

'Daily Bulletin' At Post Is Dressed Up

An "old friend in a brand new dress" made its appearance today at Pampa Army Air Field. "The Daily Bulletin," official headquarters publication, is now being printed under two-colored heading.

Arranged and designed by artists in the post reproduction department, the new heading is done in red and blue on white paper. The main title "Daily Bulletin" is printed in red on blue propeller-shaped background. Above and below the main heading, also in blue, are the words "Headquarters Pampa Army Air Field, Pampa, Texas." At the bottom of the legal-length bulletin is a two-colored box for publishing the daily schedule of showings at the Post Theatre. Here, the division title, "Post Theatre," is printed in red, flanked by two air force emblems of blue. On each side of the space for listing the showings at the theatre are tri-colored symbols of the theatre.

The bulletin is printed every morning through Saturday, so that official notices and announcements may be made available to all field personnel.

Jack Shelly, present chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, had served as instructor for the preceding three classes.

Semi-Pro Tourney

Opens July 22

WACO, June 18 (AP)—The eighth annual Texas Semi-Pro Baseball tournament will open here July 22.

Army and navy outfits are eligible to compete without winning district meets and among the teams already entered is Waco army flying school, boasting four major league players.

This may be the year when Texas can cash in at the national tournament at Wichita, Kansas, where the state team has pitched for Eddy in 1936. He now is one of the top hurlers of the major leagues.

District tournaments are scheduled at Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. One already has been held at Abilene.

A. & M. Player

Is Sent To Rice

HOUSTON, June 18 (AP)—Rice Institute finally got a break in service assignments where athletics were assigned.

The Owls lost most of their football team when the marines were assigned to Southwest Louisiana Institute.

But now comes Henry Hook, star tackle of John Reagan high school last year, has been taken from Texas A. and M. and sent to Rice. Hook enrolled at A. and M. in January but is in the naval V-12 program.

A. and M. has no V-12 program so Hook gave Rice as his preference among available schools. The navy recognized his choice.

Cronin Hits Homers As Pinchhitter

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer Joseph Edward Cronin, the stylish stunt manager of the Boston Red Sox, will have a new story to tell the soldiers and sailors overseas if he makes another journey abroad for the Red Cross next winter.

The boys will want to hear again about the time that the Philadelphia Athletics came to Boston for a five-game series during which Cronin, 36 years old and round as a barrage balloon, made four appearances as a pinchhitter and produced three home runs, every one with two teammates aboard.

Cronin will start his story with that doubleheader on June 15, a Tuesday. His Red Sox lost both games, but the red-checked Irishman, whose batting average was around .300 for his few previous appearances, brightened the first game by parking one of Lum Harris' knuckle-ball pitches in the stand in the seventh inning. He couldn't repeat in the second game.

This will lead up to the climax on Thursday, when he reached the peak in pinch hitting a home run in each game of a doubleheader.

The A's had a 4-1 lead in the seventh inning of the first game when Babe Barna and Skeeter Newsome got on base and Cronin came up against Russ Christopher. Quickly he belted a drive into the stands to tie the score, and the Sox went on to 5-4 victory.

In the second game the A's were winning 8-4 when Cronin came up against Russ Christopher. Quickly he belted a drive into the stands to tie the score, and the Sox went on to 5-4 victory.

Winning the nightcap lifted the A's into third place in the American League because Detroit dropped a twilight-night doubleheader to the Cleveland Indians 3-2 and 6-5, the second game going 12 innings. Red Sox pitcher Mike Mayrick received credit for both victories with Manager Lou Boudreau driving in the deciding run with a ninth-inning single in the first game and Slorin the winning run in the second session.

The New York Yankees were given a 9-8 decision over the Washington Senators in a ragged game in which the winning run was forced across on a walk by Early Wynn with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Luke Appling belted the Chicago White Sox to nose out the St. Louis Browns 4-3 in 13 innings. He doubled for two runs to tie the score in the ninth and singled home the winning run in the tenth.

The New York Giants completed a sweep of their three-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers by winning 8-5 on the impetus of a five-run first inning against Kirby Higbee.

The Chicago Cubs were held to four hits, but one of them was a three-run homer by Ival Goodman and brought them a 3-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who made just six safeties off Paul Demaree.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Here it is past the middle of June and there hasn't been a major golf tournament yet—what makes it the other World War... The Hale America tourney filled the gap last year when the national open was abandoned. Although the Yankees-Senators race is about the hottest thing in baseball right now and Washington is about the hottest town (without reference to weather), the Yanks won't return to the capital until Sept. 17. Richmond University, which nearly quit football when Coach Johnny Penlon went into the service, is due to get a batch of good players July 1 when the navy moves in. The consignment may include most of the mighty William and Mary team.

And word from the midwest is that a large part of Minnesota's 1942 team will wind up as marine trainees at Northwestern.

Shorts and Shells
Clark Griffith, who ought to know, says that Ty Cobb was a far better base stealer than George Case but Case is a faster runner. Griffith has had time Case at 98 for 100 yards in a baseball uniform.

Exact program, time, and judges are not yet to be decided. Persons registering for the carnival should report to the pool at 9 each night for practice, immediately after signing up. First practice was held by some of the early contestants last night.

Idea of the carnival is to provide entertainment right here at home for Pampans, who in pre-war years were drawn to the attractions at Lake Marvin and other nearby resorts.

Persons who wish to compete in the swimming and diving events are asked to register between now and June 23 either with Dick Duncan, pool life guard, or with Mrs. Jack Davis, 549 Hughes, telephone 1955-W. Mrs. Davis and Duncan are supervisors of the carnival.

They Call It Pacific

by CLARK LEE
The Escape to Corregidor—and Havoc

Chapter 17
THERE was a sudden and startling change in the tone of the morning USAFFE communiqué on December 30. Colonel Harries handed it to us at 11 A.M. It said, ominously, "Enemy dive bombers control the roads in northern Luzon." Our forces had withdrawn from Lingayen Gulf and the "battle line" ran through Zaragoza, sixty-five miles north of Manila. The enemy forces advancing from the south reached Lufiana and Dolores, forty-five air miles southeast of the capital.

The people of Manila were frightened. Up until then the communiqué, although reporting Japanese advances, had been optimistic. For all the people knew, we were winning the war and the bombing of Manila was something to be endured due to the temporary absence of pursuit planes. Of course, our pursuit forces would be replenished shortly. Help was on the way!

That afternoon the USAFFE communiqué went back to the old line. It asserted: "Our forces are holding firmly on all fronts." Next morning's papers said the same thing, and even on New Year's Day the people of Manila did not know that there were no forces in front of them either to the north or south.

I DETERMINED to go to the southern front in the morning to check on how close the Japanese advance units were to the city and whether the road to the coast through Cavite was still open.

At seven-thirty on December 31 I went to USAFFE and found Colonel William Marquat on the second floor, studying maps. The big office was nearly deserted and there were evidences of preparation for further departures: papers stacked in boxes, packed suitcases sitting about, and the walls being stripped bare.

I asked Colonel Marquat whether I should drive on down south and see the front for myself. "If you do," he said, "it will be the last thing you will see. The Japanese are at Pasay, which is only a few miles from Nichols Field. They are definitely on the Bagtas road and the road to Yantay. Don't go!"

I fully realized then that we did not intend to make a fight for Manila. The situation became entirely clear.

I drove back to the office as rapidly as possible and told Cronin the story. He had some information of his own: the wireless stations were to be dynamited by the Army at 11:30 A.M. and all communication with the outside world would cease. It was then about 9:15 A.M. We decided to try to inform our New York office that Manila was about to be captured. We wrote out a half-dozen urgent service messages, hoping one or more of them would get through the censor.

I worded one, "Just returned from southern front stop departed 630 by automobile returned 730 stop stories coming shortly if time." In New York they correctly interpreted the main import of the message: the Japanese were knocking at the gates of Manila and the city would fall shortly. However, the AP credited me with having gone to the southern front. Actually there was no front in the south.

Early in the afternoon we met again in the Jacobs' room in the Bayview Hotel. There were Mel and Annalee, Ray Cronin, Carl Mydans and his wife, Shelley Smith of Life Magazine. None of us had seen Arch Royal Gunnison of NANA, or Jack Percival the Australian reporter, recently.

Mel had important news. "I met a captain who is going out to Mariveles by freighter tonight and will take us along if we decide to risk it."

Nobody knew exactly what there was at Mariveles, except what Carlos had told me about a number of people from Manila already living in the hills behind the bay.

"I'm going," I said. "Anything to stay out of their hands even if it's only for a few hours longer." Carl said, "It seems foolish to go, and since Shelley is with me, we will both stay here and be interned." Cronin and Brines made similar decisions, feeling that they could not desert their families. Mel was undecided until Annalee made up his mind for him. "We're going, Mel."

WE went and as dawn broke on New Year's Day we found ourselves anchored close to the north shore of Corregidor. We had dodged mine fields and jagged during the night and it had been an extraordinary New Year's.

There were numerous soldiers on the docks, mostly Americans. They helped us load our gear, the air raid siren cut loose with its reverberating alarm and everybody started running. We scrambled ashore and followed, breaching our unfamiliar way between one-story buildings of corrugated iron and wood. We came to an air raid shelter built of concrete and shaped roughly like a subway car. There was room for one more, and Annalee Jacoby went inside. The rest of us raced on, up an embankment and onto a trolley track which we followed in the direction of the disappearing soldiers. The track led into the middle of a hillside and into a long, arched concrete tunnel.

In the next few weeks we came to know the tunnel well, for it was not only the safest place during air raids but the nerve center of the defenses on Bataan and Corregidor. It was open at both ends, about a quarter of a mile long, and was jammed with American and Filipino in blue denim, seated four and five deep along each wall for the entire length. Boxes of food and ammunition were piled to a height of six feet along the walls.

The Military Police caught up with Jacoby and myself during the first air alarm. "Where did you come from, what are you doing here, and who are you?" We produced our press credentials and Mel said, "We were just passing by with two sea captains on our way to Mariveles to catch a tug for the Dutch East Indies. We stopped to get permission to go through the mine fields."

The M.P.'s were understandably skeptical. "Oh, yes, of course," they said. "And where are the two captains?" In the rush for shelter we had lost our captains. A trip to the guardhouse was in order. When the all-clear sounded we went back and found Annalee from her shelter down by the water front and reported to the guardhouse.

OUR interrogator turned out to be Captain Benson of Pittsburgh and we quickly became friends. Benson was big and handsome with high color and a dimpled chin—the type of face they put on recruiting posters. Instead of locking us up, he took care of us for the next few days, getting us something to eat now and then, and blankets and mattresses, and once, miraculously, a bottle of Four Roses. But the M.P. book had no provision for two civilian men and a girl in a military area in wartime and Benson didn't know exactly what our status was.

A friend at court was urgently needed. He appeared in the person of Major Diller (subsequently twice promoted and hereafter Colonel Diller) aide to General MacArthur and public relations officer and censor during the brief USAFFE interval in Manila. Colonel Diller, when we encountered him in the big tunnel during the second air raid alarm of the morning, was astonished to see us, but friendly. He wasn't sure at first whether we could remain on Corregidor but he would be glad to give us transportation to Mariveles.

For some reason Mariveles suddenly became the place where we least wanted to be. We guessed that once we were up in the woods we would be completely out of touch with everything, with no possibility of getting any stories out and with nothing to eat but coconuts—if any grew there. The idea of being cut off from the outside world was becoming a known quantity. Everybody looked well fed and the tunnel seemed a likely place to sit out air raids. During the next few days whenever an M.P. suddenly threatened us with deportation to Mariveles, Colonel Diller would come to bat for us with instructions to "give them time to complete their arrangements with the captains."

We never managed to make arrangements with the captains, but the colonel's intervention sufficed until General MacArthur was informed of our presence on the island and regularized our status. General MacArthur saw that we got uniforms and had us assigned to the officers' mess, but not even the general would give us permission to send stories.

"I'm going," I said. "Anything to stay out of their hands even if it's only for a few hours longer." Carl said, "It seems foolish to go, and since Shelley is with me, we will both stay here and be interned." Cronin and Brines made similar decisions, feeling that they could not desert their families. Soldiers Are Permitted To Do Farm Work

By REP. EUGENE WORLEY

From time to time it has been requested that word from Washington in various matters of current interest might be of aid to the people whom it is my honor to represent. It will not be possible to maintain a regular column due to the press of work, but I trust the things I do write will be of helpful assistance.

If this column appears in your local paper thanks are due the editor.

Farm labor is scarce and in an effort to secure help for the farmers in making crops I asked the war department if it was not possible to release men for this work without injuring the war effort. I was officially informed as follows:

"Military personnel are not granted furloughs for the purpose of farm work. However, commanding officers of all posts, camps, stations, divisions, and lower separate units have authority to permit soldiers to engage in farm work in nearby communities during normal off-duty periods of to permit passes for the purpose of, in the opinion of the shortage of available farm labor; the soldier concerned desires permission to pass; such action will not interfere with the customary employment and regular engagement in farm work of local civilians; will not interfere seriously with training; and no expense to the government is involved. Pay for service rendered by the individual and all other conditions of employment are left to the determination of the individual soldier and his farm employer so far as the Army is concerned."

Farmers in need of help in harvesting crops are asked to refer the matter to their County Agent who is authorized to give them the best available information about securing needed workers. Some localities have established regular headquarters where those seeking agricultural work and farmers needing help may register. In any case your county agent will know the best course of action.

Former Pampan Is Honored By Pantex

Paul H. Gray, former Pampa resident, recently received recognition for outstanding service at Pantex Ordnance Plant where he is employed as special duty mechanic.

Gray was one of the first employees to contribute to the "Keep 'Em Shooting" employee suggestions plan which was inaugurated at Pantex May 1. For his idea to facilitate another operation of an air compressor he was awarded an award for initiative and patriotism signed by Lt. Col. R. M. Baecher, Commanding Officer of Pantex and by Howard G. Philbrook, the general manager.

Cooperation In Clean-Up Asked

Even if it does take more energy and time this year than last to do the job, let's make Pampa a clean city and outstrip last year's clean-up campaign record, was the appeal City Manager W. C. deCordova made today, as the start of the annual clean-up drive drew near.

The campaign is to start Monday and to continue through Saturday, June 26.

"Now is the time to clean out the attics, the garages, the weedy junk heaps that may have accumulated in the back yard," the city manager said. "We don't have the extra men to help in gathering up the trash this year, so it's going to be up to the home owners to put forth extra effort and cooperation."

"Get the dead tree limbs and your other trash gathered up by Monday and have it ready to be picked up when the trucks start on their rounds."

Tuesday will be the first day for picking up the trash and the schedule will be:

West, Somerville, Russell, Cuyler, Ballard, Gillespie, Houston, Starkweather, Barnes, Reid, Finley, Henry, Talley, Oklahoma, Schindler, Hughes, Pitts and Graham.

In other words, we are planning to go all out, which is the best we could do if you want to be ready for three years or four years more."

The funds provided—$59,037,599, 673 in new appropriations and $12,472,839,200 of previous funds continued available—will, General McNarney told the committee, do this:

Provide a fighting air force of 272 groups and 3,000,000 ground troops, 36,000 bombers, 38,000 fighters, 12,000 transport planes and 9,000 training planes, with spare engines and parts to keep them in action;

Furnish combat divisions with enough ammunition, tanks, small arms, cannon, combat vehicles and other equipment "to enable us to come to grips with and destroy the enemy."

Permit the maintenance of more than 900 airfields, 4,500 army posts, and 700,000 hospital beds, and provide for internment camps for 325,000 war prisoners.

"We have passed from defensive to offensive action," McNarney said, after recalling that when last year's supply bill was passed the army had less than 2,500,000 men only partly trained and equipped and "we were in a precarious position, confronted with two aggressive, well-equipped and well-trained enemies on two fronts."

"Having driven the Axis from Africa, we intend to deliver the knockout blow on the enemy's home grounds," he continued. "We have stemmed the forward movement of the Japs and are now in the process of evicting them from their conquests. Aerial warfare is being intensified... this will be followed at the proper time by an all-out blow by both land and air. We will bring the war home to Japan, Germany and Italy."

The 7,533,000 enlisted strength of the army is the goal set for the end of this calendar year and includes an estimated 140,000 WAACs. It does not include 603,000 army and 10,000 WAAC officers.

The army's enlisted strength by the end of this month, recalled General Somervell, will be 6,500,000 men, or almost twice its size at the end of the first World War.

The committee wrote into its formal report "unqualified endorsement" and condemned "in no uncertain terms those who indulge in maligning this splendid group of patriotic women, who are doing all they can to aid in the war effort."

of war and have strongly fortified them."

Offering no definite assurance invasion can be prevented—and intimating that the Balkans furnish the most probable point of Allied attack—the article said hopefully: "in any case it is certain everything possible has been done for defense of the European continent."

The defense preparations, it went on, "particularly apply to Crete. With aid this advanced position on Europe's southeastern rampart can be efficiently defended."

WILSON

Pampans recall that Uncle Pomp, dressed in a Confederate uniform, and riding a horse, was a colorful part of one of the Fiesta parades.

As a young man, Mr. Wilson took part in horse races near Cleburne and later when in this county had quite a reputation as a bronc rider.

Mr. Wilson's father was from Tennessee. The father and five of his brothers made the journey to Grayson county by oxcart.

Before becoming a Gray county resident, Mr. Wilson had joined other young and older men in a freighting business from North Central Texas to the Gulf and the Lower Rio Grande valley.

This was about the time of the War Between the States, and the freighters had to ford all streams as there were no bridges on their routes at that time.

Born within one year and nine months after Texas was admitted to the Union, Mr. Wilson has witnessed all the progress of the Lone Star state from the exhort to modern highways, the automobile, and 400-mile-an-hour planes.

Survivors are three daughters, Mrs. R. D. Kinkade, Johnson City, Tenn.; Mrs. M. Paxton, LeFors; Miss Miriam Wilson, Pampa; a son, W. E. LeFors; 16 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren, and one great-grand grandson.

Acting Governor Runs Into Horner's Nest

AUSTIN, June 18 (AP)—Senator A. M. Alkin, Jr., of Paris came to Austin Wednesday expecting the usual program of formalities and niceties for his brief term as acting governor.

He ran smack into a horner's nest—a plea for a declaration of martial law by Beaumont authorities.

The first official act planned for Alkin was signing a land patent for a parcel in Red River county, his native county.

He got around to the land patent Thursday—admittedly an anti-climax to signing the martial law declaration last night and sitting by the phone until after midnight to receive reports from Beaumont.

Alkin said Homer Garrison, state police director, reported that the situation in Beaumont was quiet.

With the Beaumont situation apparently under control, Alkin, who is commander-in-chief of the state guard as well as acting governor—because Governor Coke R. Stevenson and Lieut. Gov. John Lee Smith are out of the state—settled down to the routine tasks, and pleasures of office.

Appointed honorary colonels on his staff were Coke R. Stevenson, Jr., of Junction; W. N. Furey of Paris, managing editor of the Paris News; Joe C. Travis of Paris.

Biggest Navy Bill Approved Finally

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The largest Naval appropriation in history, a $27,637,000,000 measure carrying $9,118,000,000 for warships and auxiliary craft as well as funds for other Naval operations, went to the White House today for expected quick approval.

The senate completed legislative action on the measure by a voice vote.

A $1,583,000,000 item in the huge bill will provide funds for building 29,142 more fighting and training airplanes.

The house yesterday agreed to additions, totalling $173,539,000, tacked on by the senate.

work week of 35 hours, all productive time. Their old contract, which the WLB ordered extended pending settlement of the dispute, provides for time and a half after 35 hours. The miners contend, therefore, that if travel time is working time it should be measured after 35 hours and paid for at time and a half rates.
