P. O. RECEIPTS GAIN HEAVILY 1ST 6 MONTHS

Local Office Increase For First Half of 1925 Is $26,031

QUARTER GAIN, TOO

January to July Total Is Announced As $133,219.21

Wichita Falls was given further indication Friday of the sure and substantial manner in which it has grown of late when postal authorities here announced that post office receipts for the first six months of 1925 were larger by $26,031.47 than receipts for the same period of 1924. This is taken by those interested in the community's development as one of the surest signs of a healthy and progressive expansion.

Lon H. Howard, assistant postmaster, reported that from January 1, 1925, until June 30 receipts of the local office were $133,219.21. For the same period in 1924 they were $107,187.74, or a gain of $26,031.47.

It was also found that the second quarter of this year had outstripped the second three month period in 1924 by $13,245.95. This year postal receipts for the three months of April, May and June were $68,275.57, and those some months in 1924 were $55,029.62.

Wichita Valley Long Staple Cotton The Equal of The Salt River Valley

DALLAS visited a big city Friday and said:

"Wichita Falls is a revelation of progress to any man who has only had an occasional chance to watch its progress," said Victor H. Schoffelmayer, agricultural editor of the Dallas News and the Semi-Weekly Farm News, who spent Friday in the city renewing acquaintance with old friends and making new ones. Mr. Schoffelmayer, who is directing the statewide "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" contest, came to Wichita county to look into the possibilities of irrigation and to interest farmers in this section to enter the cotton contest. He speaks Saturday at the annual farmers' picnic at Henrietta, where many cotton growers are expected to sign up for the state cotton contest.

"I had the pleasure," said Mr. Schoffelmayer, "or spending some time in Wichita Falls in 1919 during the Burkburnett oil boom and remember sleeping on hotel floors and in hotel chairs in the lobbies for lack of rooms to accommodate the thousands who flocked to this section then. I have never in my life seen such rapid and consistent progress in city building annd planning anywhere as I find in Wichita Falls. Younr wide, well paved downtown streets, your modern signal system, the newness of your stores and the many other evidences of progress on all sides tell the story better than I can.

"The Wichita river irrigation project is destined to transform this section into one of the greatest agricultural territories of the southwest. I saw long staple cotton which has been grown on your land which is the equal of anything I saw in the El Paso and Salt river valleys. The opportunities for truck growing are immense with the constant growth of your city. Your future should be bright and secure.

"I must not forget to mention the friendliness of your people, which is an asset in itself. We are watching your development with pride and interest."

THE WEATHER

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch
The Drum.

TA-RUM. Ta-rum, ta-rum, ta-rum, ta-rum,
With marching feet a-down the street
They come, they come, they come!
The bugles are all blaring,
The life is loud and clear,
But, oh, the rolling of the drum
Is all that I cean hear, ta-rum,
Is all that I can hear.

Ta-rum, Ta-rum, Ta-rum, ta-rum, ta-rum,
The brassy throat, the bugle note,
Sings merrily to some.
But when the men are marching,
And when the men are gone,
I still can hear the rolling drum
Forever rolling on, ta-rum,
Forever rolling on.

Ta-rum, Ta-rum, Ta-rum, ta-rum, ta-rum,
One soldier gay who marched away
I know will never come.
The merry bands are playing
For those who never part.
But I can only hear the drum
Still beating in my heart, ta-rum,
Still beating in my heart.

SCOPES TRIAL FALTERS; MAY NOT STAGE IT

Defense Attorneys Seek To Transfer it To U. S. Courts

CHICAGO, July 3.—(AP)—Announcement today of a sudden shift in the plans of the defense brought about the possibility that John T. Scopes, principal in the case to test Tennessee's anti-evolution law, may never face trial at Dayton, where his case is docketed to begin next Friday.

Under the new plan, announced today by Clarence Darrow, associate counsel for Scopes, the case will be carried directly to the federal courts, either at Knoxville, or Chatanooga, through proceedings seeking to restrain enforcement of the law by the Tennessee authorities. This action would bring the constitutionality of the Tennessee statute directly to issue in the federal courts, where, it is agreed by all parties the ultimate adjudiciation of the question must be made.

State Helpless.

Should the defense secure a federal injunction, the Dayton trial would be blocked pending appeal of the prosecution to a higher court. And should the United States supreme court sustain such an injunction on the ground that the Tennessee law is incompatible with the constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech and religion, the state would be powerless to move against Scopes in any legal action.

While citizens of Dayton were obviously perturbed by news reports that the community might be deprived of the trial for which it had so long and laboriously planned, attorneys for the prosecution rather scouted the idea that anything serious would result of Mr. Darrow's plan.

SMALL FIGURES TO MARK TEST OF U. S. DEFENSE

Army Officials Expect a Slight Enrollment Saturday

TWO MAIN REASONS

Coolidge Veto of November 11, and 2-Day Week-End Holliday

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Beginning at daylight tomorrow, America once more, theoretically will be mustering for war.

The occasion will be the second test of national defense plans.

The war department and general staff were already on a stimulated war footing tonight, headed by Major General John J. Hines, chief of staff., and with General Pershing standing by to observe results of the nine months work on muster plans since the first test September 12, the whole military establishment in Washington was on duty and in immediate communication with the nine corps area commanders on whom chief responsibility for the test devolves.

Will Be Disappointing.

That the results may be disappointing, so far as the number of one-day volunteers assembled tomorrow to fill up skeleton reserve units, national guard regiments and the regulars to war strength, is concerned, was admitted by many officers. Last September approximately 1,500,000 men turned out or nearly 300,000 more than would be needed in the first months of an actual war mobilization. Officials have every reason to believe, however that the fourth of July test will bring out facts of utmost value since the next step before the department is the establishment probably by law or a permanent system for testing muster machinery.

As far as the patriotic demonstrations tomorrow are concerned, it is possible that the aggregate number of Americans gathered will exceed the sixteen or more millions who shared in a similar way in the test last September, since the test is coincident with celebrations of independence today.

Two Handicaps.

Two natural handicaps marked the preparations for the test tomorrow. They were the brief period allowed after President Coolidge disapproved November 11, first proposed, and the fact that the fourth, which is preferred, comes on Saturday, part of a two-day week-end holiday. Both of these conditions entered into reasons given by numerous governors for declining to take an active part in the test as their states did last September. The state restriction for the most part however, related only to national guard participation in the test.

From all of the states where governors found it impossible to give full cooperation the war department has received advices that patriotic organizations such as the American Legion and other veterans associations, were making a greater effort to stimulate participation by their communities than in the first test.

Until the returns are in late tomorrow night, from all corps areas, no estimate of the nation's response to the call will be of much value.

THE CAT YODEL

"Fort Worth ball moguls," vouchsafes Johnny Parker, "are not tempered by any altruistic bother over the alleged wallop handed Texas league's reputation when six other club officials bunched up and split the season. It's the Dixie series; that's whats worrying 'em, and the meager possibility that now Cats may miss out on series coin."

SUCH BRUTAL THOUGHTS.

"However, the season is split, so that's an end of it. What I would like to see now is for the Cats to get going right off the reel and be out there in front about six games by July 15. This would be the end of the split season for a certainty, for then the spitters not only would not profit by the act but would see their turnstiles rust for the rest of the year."—Pop Boone in the FORT WORTH Record.

* * *

Wonder what Fort Worth if in fourth place for several seasons and Wichita Falls was away out front, and somebody suggested a split race along about July 2—wonder what Fort Worth would do?

* * *

Sweet sentiment in Pop's dissertation. Let the rest of the team owners watch their "turnstiles rust." Yeah, that's nice just as long as the Cats can draw good crowds.

DUKE STOPS VET PADGETT IN 8 ROUNDS

Colorado Puncher Flashes Briefly at Close Range

By BLONDY CROSS.

Duke Trammel, walloping 18-year-old Fort Worth welter and Wichita Falls' fistic idol, accomplished Friday night in the Pat Carrigan post, American legion, leather program's feature event something that no more than one out of 100 of his friends and none of his (sorry to say) coterie of enemies believed he could.

Duke Trammel, the youngster, the mauling kid from the burg where Jakie Ats holds away, knocked out Cowboy Padgett, the Colorado puncher, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

The end came suddenly and unexpectedly, for Padgett had led the sixth and seventh rounds with furious flurries of infighting, the style of battling which happens to be Trammel's poorest department. But midway in the eighth the Fort Worth lad caught Padgett with a stiff right uppercut to the jaw. Cowboy dived into a clinch. They struggled around the ring momentarily until Referee Everett parted them. Now Padgett had been boxing on his toes throughout, but he broke the clinch flat-footed, unsteady, but apparent to only a few ringside observers and Trammel himself. They sparred a few seconds. Padgett started a left, but Trammel had already set with his right shoulder dropped a fraction. The Cowtowner flashed over with a swishing starboard hook. The blow landed on the left jaw. The clout packed the sleep potion with it, but in the batting of an eyelid, Duke hooked with his left, catching his opponent flush on the button, standing Cowboy to the canvas and on his shoulders with a thud.

Trammel stepped back to his corner. Padgett came up at the count of four, but he was out on his feet. The Fort Worth knuckler rushed his opponent to the ropes. Padgett was a sad sight. Out, unable to hit back, unable to move away, and with his left glove held haphazardly before his face, he was clearly defeated. Trammel picked his openings with methodical precision and shot another right, and another and another. The third sock bent Padgett back across the ropes, limp and helpless. The referee halted further punishment by stopping the bout and awarding the decision to Trammel.

Outcome Certain.

Trammel, though seemingly bewildered and worried in the first round, stacked up as the ultimate victor from the start. Padgett came out dancing and sparring. Trammel, fighting cautiously, but surely, earned an edge for the round.

Duke shook Padgett in the second with a right hook, albeit a glancing blow, that sent Cowboy running back on very unsteady legs.

They fought on even terms in the third. Neither landed effectively, in fact, Padgett, outside of a bit of short chopping at close quarters in the first, had not laid a glove on Duke.

Again in the fourth, the potent socking Trammel, shook up his veteran opponent, this time with a right uppercut that had it not glazed Padgett's chest, would have landed cleanly on the point for a knockdown. As it was, the blow connected sufficiently to jolt Padgett and force him to grab for support. He lunged into a clinch, holding Trammel's arms to his side.

The fifth possibly went to Trammel; however, Cowboy caused excitement among some of the more rabid ringsiders by his work at close quarters. Padgett charged in during the sixth, backed Trammel about the squared circle, boring away in the clinches at Duke's mid-section. It was Padgett's round. Cowboy duplicated in the seventh with exception of a ringing right clout to the left cheek that almost upset the westerner. Trammel was learning to push Padgett back when he dived in for close work. He shoved Padgett away several times in the seventh thereby, no doubt, avoiding quite a bit of punishment around the rotunda for his rugged opponent had him bested at close quarters by a goodly margin. It was after Trammel had pushed Padgett from him in the eighth that he sent in the wallop that stopped Padgett's dancing and which before 30 seconds elapsed led to the cowboy's undoing.

Tabby Fools 'Em.

Tabby Levine broke the hearts of many of the wise boys by not losing to Blas Rodrigues in the eight-round semi-final event. Levine, the Wichita Falls bantam, was picked by many to catch a neat licking at behest of the flying gloves of Rodrigues, the Torreon flyweight.

But Tabby landed more clean blows, usually counter wallopers, and was given a well earned draw by Referee Everetts. Blas carried the fight to his heavier opponent, but could make no headway at his strong forte, infighting, because Levine tied him up in the clinches, all of which aroused the ire of a number of spectators who wanted Levine to swap it out at close quarters, thereby probably receiving a nice lacing. Had Levine fought in the clinches there is little doubt but that he would have lost the verdict. But under the instructions of Dan Morgan, veteran trainer, Levine wisely grappled with Rodrigues every time they came together until broken by the referee. Outside of the fact that Rodrigues carried the fight to him the greater portion of the route, Levine possibly had an edge on points, meaning blows landed on his opponent and blows blocked or forced into out-and-out misses.

Dale Bolin, Wichita Falls bantam, bested Billy Pizitso, or something similar, in every round of a four-rounder preceding the semi-final. Kid Norford, negro welter, outpointed Battling Sam, who appeared to be no less than a light heavyweight. Sam was willing but not clever. There was a curtain raiser put on by a pair of youngsters. Wildcat Monte officiated during the prelims.

Tesar hurled a nice game for Dallas, keeping the 12 Exporters hits well scattered. Beaumont completed four double plays.

PLUVE HALTS FURTHER DRIVE AGAINST SPUDS

Skipper Tanner Saves His Team for Twin Bill Today

WACO, July 3.—Waco won the last game of the first half of the season from Wichita Falls Friday in a six-inning contest, which was stopped because of rain, 6 to 0. Del Pratt hit a homer for Waco. Dorman also hit one over the fence in the seventh, but it did not count when rain robbed Waco of their half of the inning.

The Spudders did not seem to care whether they won or not. Tanner was saving for the July 4 twin bill.

Standard of Indiana Rebate Knocks Hole In Gasoline Market

1-2 TO 1 1-2 CENTS ALLOWED TO BIG BUYERS

New Navy Gasoline Drops Half Cent in North Texas

UNEXPECTED MOVE

Standard Was Thought Ready to Advance Tank-Wagon

A decrease of a half cent or more in the local refiners' quotations of new navy gasoline, 58-60 gravity, end point 437, brought that commodity down once more below the thirteen-cent level to twelve and one-half cents Thursday and Friday under the pressure of an announcement that the Standard Oil company of Indiana will inaugurate a policy of rbeating under their own tank wagon and retail schedule both to filling stations and large consumers in their territory. The rebate will amount to more than one and one-half cents a gallon to the larger purchasers of both the named classes. The result of the announcement both in group III and North Texas Thursday and Friday was that a considerable gallonage was available at one-half to one cent under the schedule of July 1 quotations.

Turn for Worse.

For the past week or so the refined market has been rather sluggish awaitnig a turn for the better, in an expected tank wagon increase by the Indiana concern. The turn came but it was in the opposite direction. The tank wagon increase that was expected due to declining light oil production and increasing consumption was passed over, and the rebate policy instituted instead.

Platt's Oil Gram, a daily report sent out from Tulsa by the National Petroleum News, itself a weekly trade journal, says the following regarding the Standard action: "The discount schedule is thought by many to be an effort on the part of the Indiana concern to eliminate secret rebates and inside prices in their territory. It is applauded in many quarters as a real step forward in putting all cards face up on the table."

Opinion Differs.

In local quarters various reasons are offered for the new policy.

"It is a move to increase the depression business or winter sales, eliminating the necessity of investing in storage because it ties up purchasers over a year's time, for in order to get a full rebate for a year the purchaser must buy all his gas from the Indiana in order to meet the minimum rebate requirements."

Another reason advanced is that it it is to make way for a general tank wagon increase which refiners say cannot be staved off much longer.

The rebate schedule as announced by the Standard of Indiana follows: (For filling stations).

Where purchasers from the tank wagon are over 1,000 gallons per month, one-half cent a gallon.

Where purchases from the tank wagon are over 2,000 gallons a month the rebate is three-fourths cent a gallon.

Where purchases are 3,000 gallons, rebate 1 cent a gallon.

On purchases over 6,000 gallons a month the rebate is one and one-half cents a gallon.

Consumer's Rebate No. 1.

The following is the schedule for retailer to consumer service:

The customer taking more than 300 gallons per month gets one cent a gallon rebate.

The customer taking more than 600 gallons a months gets two cents a gallon rebate.

In addition the customer who during the year uses between 3,600 and 7,200 gallons will get a rebate of one-half cent over the first named rebate.

Advices from Fort Worth state that the contracts the Standard is offering filling station operators have been seen in that city. This is understood to be true over most of their territory.

It is a radical change of policy of any major company in the gasoline business and may have a far-reaching effect on the smaller independent refiners. Then, too, the big consumer of gasoline will get a big discount on his gas bill, although the flivver owner can hardly be expected to reap much out of Standard patronage under the new schedule.

News of the Fields

Two Big Wells

Two big wells in old Texas areas attracted attention yesterday:

At Powell the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 2-B-30, J. Smith, southeast of Mildred in Navarro county, Powell field, did 2,000 barrels in ten hours from sand at 1,967-2,046 feet. It is the first well in the 2,000-foot sand, the big deep production coming at 2,900 feet. Development in the sand, should the horizon have any expanse at all, should materially increase the Powell light oil output.

On the edge of the Cross Cutt area in north rn Brown county J. W. Newton No. 7 on the Conway survey dropped to 35 barrels an hour flowing after doing almost 1,000 barrels in the first twelve hours from the sand at the usual 1,200-foot level.

Texhoma-Pace, Edgerly

Texhoma Oil and Refining company and Pace were down 1,705 feet yesrreday and drilling on their No. 1 Edgerly well located in the S&MGRR survey, abstract 276, east of Fowlkes Station, Wichita county.

Cullen, Anderson

L. H. CULLUM had set casing and was bailing yesterday on his No. 1, Anderson, two locations east of the Norday discovery well, west line of block 22, South Anderson ranch subdivision, north of Swastika, southwest Archer county. Sand was topped at 1,414 feet.

Frederick Test

FREDERICK, Okla., July 4.—Construction of a derrick on the farm of R. P. Dunham, nine miles southwest of Frederick, section 16, township 3 south, range 18 west, has been started this week. Three crews are at work on the location.

Williams and Wilson are making the test and have manifested much interest in the locality's first test.

Bastrop County

Water shortage has closed down the two deep tests in Bastrop county of east central Texas.

Simms Oil company No. 1 B. H. Smith, west corner of that farm, A. Lytton survey, 12 miles west of Bastrop, has shut down at 1,800 feet. Lyles et al No. 1 Spooner, L. Leverenc survey, midway between the Simms test and the town of Bastrop, is shut down for water at 200 feet.

Texhoma, Montague

Texhoma's No. 1, Rowland, John Chambliss survey, in north Montague county, has set and cemented casing on a sand showing oil and gas encountered at a depth of 731 feet and drilled to 753 feet.

Lemon Shut Down.

Texhoma's No. 1, Lemon, in the northeast corner of their Lemon lease, south of the Howard, is shut down with casing set and cemented at a depth of 729 feet on a gas sand. The gas will be brademheaded if possible and the hole continued to an oil sand.

Pace, Mitchell

George Pace et al No. 1, Mitchell, Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park was flowing 15 barrels an hour yesterday and reckoned at 400 barrels a day from the sand at 1,298 1-2 feet to 1,298 feet, one of the best wildcat completions in Wichita county in a long while.

The well showed better than 200 barrls on the swab Thursday and started flowing Friday morning. It opens a new productive horizon in Wichita county a half mile west of the Howell pool, with which it may connect when wells are drilled deeper in the area, and a half mile south of an old shallow district.

Penn, Tillman County

Robert R. Penn of Dallas will spud a 3,000 foot rotary test July 4 in the northwest corner of the southeast of section 16-18w-3s, Tillman county, Oklahoma, in an effort to extend the Burkburnett-Electra-Vernon production just over the Texas line.

The well is three and one-half miles west of Davidson and 10 miles south of Frederick, Okla. Heath M. Robinson of Dallas did the geological work. Dixie, Tidal, Sinclair, Twin States, Phillips, Waite Phillips, Peerless, Gypsy and Prairie have protection.

The play on the 8,400 acre block is a cross fold on the Great Bend Arch, upon which is Burkburnett, Electra, Vernon and other extreme North Texas pools.

Barney Carter Area

There are 29 operations in the Barney Carter district of southern Stephens county, eight miles north of Ranger, a summary of the field reveals. Of these, 10 are drilling, 7 below 3,000 feet, two spudding, five rigs and three are locations.

Dry in the Lake Eastland sand, the oil pay of that district, four of these are drilling to the Ranger, or McCleskey pay. There are but three big companies interested: Tidal Oil company, Phillips Petroleum company and Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil company.

Carter & Thomasson No. 4 Langford, southwest of the southeast of the southwest of section 1, T. & N. C. Ry. survey, is drilling at 3,125; No. 5 Langford, southeast of the southwest of section 1, is drilling at 1,340 feet; No. 6 Langford, southwest of the southwest of section 1, is drilling at 3,250 feet.

Big Lake Area

Big Lake Oil company is to monopolize the Reagon county university land production if yesterday's development in that West Texas field may be taken as showing anything.

Big Lake Oil company's No. 26, University, in the center of the southwest of the southeast of section 25, block 9, Reagan county, was flowing 112 barrels an hour from sand at 2,048-2,070 feet, a rate of about 2,750 barrels a day.

Just a short distance east the No. 28 is standing with 200 feet of fluid in the hole from the sand topped considerably lower at a depth of 2,983-85 feet.

The indications are that the field is going north and west and pinching out toward the east leaving Texon's leases with a bunch of dry holes and small producers.

Millions Die Of Indigestion

Most Common, Yet Insidious of Fatal Diseases Strikes Like Lightning and When Least Expected.

Protect yourself by strengthening your digestive organs with Ferraline—then eat what you please without fear of trouble.

Nature, with Her infinite wisdom, has provided in Ferraline a quick and sure relief for the millions who are living in constant fear of that dreaded disease—Indigestion. Ferraline is not a concoction made by man but is a strictly natural product, and contains the essential elements which Nature has provided to strengthen and tone up the weakened organs of digestion.

Indigestion and weak blood march hand-in-hand. No dyspetic can have pure rich blood until his digestion is made perfect again. Stomach disorders always weaken the blood and weak blood causes anaema, weakness, and nervousness.

If you have had warnings of Indigestion, do not delay another day to accept the positive guarantee that your money will be promptly and cheerfully refunded if the very first bottle of Ferraline does not give you relief. Don't be misled into believing that heart-burn, gas, bloating, constipation, biliousness, sick-stomach, heart and kidney pains will gradually go away. These are danger signals warning you that the dread disease, Indigestion, is gradually sapping your very life. Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Ferraline, then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. A ten-days treatment of Ferraline will cost you only One Dollar at your druggists. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

"Fort Worth ball moguls," vouchsafes Johnny Parker, "are not tempered by any altruistic bother over the alleged wallop handed Texas league's reputation when six other club officials bunched up and split the season. SUCH BRUTAL THOUGHTS.

"However, the season is split, so that's an end of it. What I would like to see now is for the Cats to get going right off the reel and be out there in front about six games by July 15. This would be the end of the split season for a certainty, for then the spitters not only would not profit by the act but would see their turnstiles rust for the rest of the year."—Pop Boone in the FORT WORTH Record.

Wonder what Fort Worth if in fourth place for several seasons and Wichita Falls was away out front, and somebody suggested a split race along about July 2—wonder what Fort Worth would do?

Sweet sentiment in Pop's dissertation. Let the rest of the team owners watch their "turnstiles rust." Yeah, that's nice just as long as the Cats can draw good crowds.

DUKE STOPS VET PADGETT IN 8 ROUNDS

Colorado Puncher Flashes Briefly at Close Range

By BLONDY CROSS.

Duke Trammel, walloping 18-year-old Fort Worth welter and Wichita Falls' fistic idol, accomplished Friday night in the Pat Carrigan post, American legion, leather program's feature event something that no more than one out of 100 of his friends and none of his (sorry to say) coterie of enemies believed he could.

Duke Trammel, the youngster, the mauling kid from the burg where Jakie Atz holds sway, knocked out Cowboy Padgett, the Colorado puncher, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

The end came suddenly and unexpectedly, for Padgett had led the sixth and seventh rounds with furious flurries of infighting, the style of battling which happens to be Trammel's poorest department. But midway in the eighth the Fort Worth lad caught Padgett with a stiff right uppercut to the jaw. Cowboy dived into a clinch. They struggled around the ring momentarily until Referee Everett parted them. Now Padgett had been boxing on his toes throughout, but he broke the clinch flat-footed, unsteady, but apparent to only a few ringside observers and Trammel himself. They sparred a few seconds. Padgett started a left, but Trammel had already set with his right shoulder dropped a fraction. The Cowtowner flashed over with a swishing starboard hook. The blow landed on the left jaw. The clout packed the sleep potion with it, but in the batting of an eyelid, Duke hooked with his left, catching his opponent flush on the buttpon, standing Cowboy to the canvas and on his shoulders with a thud.

Trammel stepped back to his corner. Padgett came up at the count of four, but he was out on his feet. The Fort Worth knuckler rushed his opponent to the ropes. Padgett was a sad sight. Out, unable to hit back, unable to move away, and with his left glove held haphazardly before his face, he was clearly defeated. Trammel picked his openings with methodical precision and shot another right, and another and another. The third sock bent Padgett back across the ropes, limp and helpless. The referee halted further punishment by stopping the bout and awarding the decision to Trammel.

Outcome Certain.

Trammel, though seemingly bewildered and worried in the first round, stacked up as the ultimate victor from the start. Padgett came out dancing and sparring. Trammel, fighting cautiously, but surely, earned an edge for the round.

Duke shook Padgett in the second with a right hook, albeit a glancing blow, that sent Cowboy running back on very unsteady legs.

They fought on even terms in the third. Neither landed effectively, in fact, Padgett, outside of a bit of short chopping at close quarters in the first, had not laid a glove on Duke.

Again in the fourth, the potent socking Trammel, shook up his veteran opponent, this time with a right uppercut that had it not glazed Padgett's chest, would have landed cleanly on the point for a knockdown. As it was, the blow connected sufficiently to jolt Padgett and force him to grab for support. He lunged into a clinch, holding Trammel's arms to his side.

The fifth possibly went to Trammel; however, Cowboy caused excitement among some of the more rabid ringsiders by his work at close quarters. Padgett charged in during the sixth, backed Trammel about the squared circle, boring away in the clinches at Duke's mid-section. It was Padgett's round. Cowboy duplicated in the seventh with exception of a ringing right clout to the left cheek that almost upset the westerner. Trammel was learning to push Padgett back when he dived in for close work. He shoved Padgett away several times in the seventh thereby, no doubt, avoiding quite a bit of punishment around the rotunda for his rugged opponent had him bested at close quarters by a goodly margin. It was after Trammel had pushed Padgett from him in the eighth that he sent in the wallop that stopped Padgett's dancing and which before 30 seconds elapsed led to the cowboy's undoing.

Tabby Fools 'Em.

Tabby Levine broke the hearts of many of the wise boys by not losing to Blas Rodrigues in the eight-round semi-final event. Levine, the Wichita Falls bantam, was picked by many to catch a neat licking at behest of the flying gloves of Rodrigues, the Torreon flyweight.

But Tabby landed more clean blows, usually counter wallopers, and was given a well earned draw by Referee Everetts. Blas carried the fight to his heavier opponent, but could make no headway at his strong forte, infighting, because Levine tied him up in the clinches, all of which aroused the ire of a number of spectators who wanted Levine to swap it out at close quarters, thereby probably receiving a nice lacing. Had Levine fought in the clinches there is little doubt but that he would have lost the verdict. But under the instructions of Dan Morgan, veteran trainer, Levine wisely grappled with Rodrigues every time they came together until broken by the referee. Outside of the fact that Rodrigues carried the fight to him the greater portion of the route, Levine possibly had an edge on points, meaning blows landed on his opponent and blows blocked or forced into out-and-out misses.

Dale Bolin, Wichita Falls bantam, bested Billy Pizitso, or something similar, in every round of a four-rounder preceding the semi-final. Kid Norford, negro welter, outpointed Battling Sam, who appeared to be no less than a light heavyweight. Sam was willing but not clever. There was a curtain raiser put on by a pair of youngsters. Wildcat Monte officiated during the prelims.

PLUVE HALTS FURTHER DRIVE AGAINST SPUDS

Skipper Tanner Saves His Team for Twin Bill Today

WACO, July 3—Waco won the last game of the first half of the season from Wichita Falls Friday in a six-inning contest, which was stopped because of rain, 6 to 0. Del Pratt hit a homer for Waco. Dorman also hit one over the fence in the seventh, but it did not count when rain robbed Waco of their half of the inning.

The Spudders did not seem to care whether they won or not. Tanner was saving for the July 4 twin bill.

Standard of Indiana Rebate Knocks Hole In Gasoline Market

1-2 TO 1 1-2 CENTS ALLOWED TO BIG BUYERS

New Navy Gasoline Drops Half Cent in North Texas

UNEXPECTED MOVE

Standard Was Thought Ready to Advance Tank-Wagon

A decrease of a half cent or more in the local refiners' quotations of new navy gasoline, 58-60 gravity, end point 437, brought that commodity down once more below the thirteen-cent level to twelve and one-half cents Thursday and Friday under the pressure of an announcement that the Standard Oil company of Indiana will inaugurate a policy of rbeating under their own tank wagon and retail schedule both to filling stations and large consumers in their territory. The rebate will amount to more than one and one-half cents a gallon to the larger purchasers of both the named classes. The result of the announcement both in group III and North Texas Thursday and Friday was that a considerable gallonage was available at one-half to one cent under the schedule of July 1 quotations.

Turn for Worse.

For the past week or so the refined market has been rather sluggish awaitnig a turn for the better, in an expected tank wagon increase by the Indiana concern. The turn came but it was in the opposite direction. The tank wagon increase that was expected due to declining light oil production and increasing consumption was passed over, and the rebate policy instituted instead.

Platt's Oil Gram, a daily report sent out from Tulsa by the National Petroleum News, itself a weekly trade journal, says the following regarding the Standard action: "The discount schedule is thought by many to be an effort on the part of the Indiana concern to eliminate secret rebates and inside prices in their territory. It is applauded in many quarters as a real step forward in putting all cards face up on the table."

Opinion Differs.

In local quarters various reasons are offered for the new policy.

"It is a move to increase the depression business or winter sales, eliminating the necessity of investing in storage because it ties up purchasers over a year's time, for in order to get a full rebate for a year the purchaser must buy all his gas from the Indiana in order to meet the minimum rebate requirements."

Another reason advanced is that it it is to make way for a general tank wagon increase which refiners say cannot be staved off much longer.

The rebate schedule as announced by the Standard of Indiana follows: (For filling stations).

Where purchasers from the tank wagon are over 1,000 gallons per month, one-half cent a gallon.

Where purchases from the tank wagon are over 2,000 gallons a month the rebate is three-fourths cent a gallon.

Where purchases are 3,000 gallons, rebate 1 cent a gallon.

On purchases over 6,000 gallons a month the rebate is one and one-half cents a gallon.

Consumer's Rebate No. 1.

The following is the schedule for retailer to consumer service:

The customer taking more than 300 gallons per month gets one cent a gallon rebate.

The customer taking more than 600 gallons a months gets two cents a gallon rebate.

In addition the customer who during the year uses between 3,600 and 7,200 gallons will get a rebate of one-half cent over the first named rebate.

Advices from Fort Worth state that the contracts the Standard ie offering filling station operators have been seen in that city. This is understood to be true over most of their territory.

It is a radical change of policy of any major company in the gasoline business and may have a far-reaching effect on the smaller independent refiners. Then, too, the big consumer of gasoline will get a big discount on his gas bill, although the flivver owner can hardly be expected to reap much out of Standard patronage under the new schedule.

News of the Fields

Two Big Wells

Two big wells in old Texas areas attracted attention yesterday:

At Powell the Humble Oil and Refining company's No. 2-B-30, J. Smith, southeast of Mildred in Navarro county, Powell field, did 2,000 barrels in ten hours from sand at 1,967-2,046 feet. It is the first well in the 2,000-foot sand, the big deep production coming at 2,900 feet. Development in the sand, should the horizon have any expanse at all, should materially increase the Powell light oil output.

On the edge of the Cross Cutt area in north rn Brown county J. W. Newton No. 7 on the Conway survey dropped to 85 barrels an hour flowing after doing almost 1,000 barrels in the first twelve hours from the sand at the usual 1,200-foot level.

Texhoma-Pace, Edgerly

Texhoma Oil and Refining company and Pace were down 1,705 feet yestreday and drilling on their No. 1 Edgerly well located in the S&MGRR survey, abstract 276, east of Fowikes Station, Wichita county.

Cullen, Anderson

L. H. CULLUM had set casing and was bailing yesterday on his No. 1, Anderson, two locations east of the Norday discovery well, west line of block 22, South Anderson ranch subdivision, north of Swastika, southwest Archer county. Sand was topped at 1,414 feet.

Frederick Test

FREDERICK, Okla., July 4.—Construction of a derrick on the farm of R. P. Dunham, nine miles southwest of Frederick, section 16, township 3 south, range 18 west, has been started this week. Three crews are at work on the location.

Williams and Wilson are making the test and have manifested much interest in the locality's first test.

Bastrop County

Water shortage has closed down the two deep tests in Bastrop county of east central Texas.

Simms Oil company No. 1 B. H. Smith, west corner of that farm, A. Lytton survey, 12 miles west of Bastrop, has shut down at 1,800 feet. Lyles et al No. 1 Spooner, L. Leverenc survey, midway between the Simms test and the town of Bastrop, is shut down for water at 200 feet.

Texhoma, Montague

Texhoma's No. 1, Rowland, John Chambliss survey, in north Montague county, has set and cemented casing on a sand showing oil and gas encountered at a depth of 731 feet and drilled to 753 feet.

Lemon Shut Down.

Texhoma's No. 1, Lemon, in the northeast corner of their Lemon lease, south of the Howard, is shut down with casing set and cemented at a depth of 729 feet on a gas sand. The gas will be brademheaded if possible and the hole continued to an oil sand.

Pace, Mitchell

George Pace et al No. 1, Mitchell, Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park was flowing 15 barrels an hour yesterday and reckoned at 400 barrels a day from the sand at 1,298 1-2 feet to 1,296 feet, one of the best wildcat completions in Wichita county in a long while.

The well showed better than 200 barrls on the swab Thursday and started flowing Friday morning. It opens a new productive horizon in Wichita county a half mile west of the Howell pool, with which it may connect when wells are drilled deeper in the area, and a half mile south of an old shallow district.

Penn, Tillman County

Robert R. Penn of Dallas will spud a 3,000 foot rotary test July 4 in the northwest corner of the southeast of section 16-18w-3s, Tillman county, Oklahoma, in an effort to extend the Burkburnett-Electra-Vernon production just over the Texas line.

The well is three and one-half miles west of Davidson and 10 miles south of Frederick, Okla. Heath M. Robinson of Dallas did the geological work. Dixie, Tidal, Sinclair, Twin States, Phillips, Waite Phillips, Peerless, Gypsy and Prairie have protection.

The play on the 8,400 acre block is a cross fold on the Great Bend Arch, upon which is Burkburnett, Electra, Vernon and other extreme North Texas pools.

Pierce lease in the southeast quarter of section 3, T&NO block "B" is spudding. Carter No. 2 R. B. Pierce, 1,000 feet north of No. 1, is a rig. Carter No. 1 Vaughn, northwest of the southwest of the southeast of section 1, is spudding.

No. 1 Pritchard, southeast of the southwest of the west quarter of section 2 block "B," is dry in the Lake sand and drilling at 3,650 feet; No. 2, northeast of the southwest of the same quarter, drilling at 2,975 feet; No. 3, northwest of the southwest of the same quarter, dry in the Lake sand and 3,575 feet deep, pipe parted there; No. 4 Pritchard, southwest corner of the same quarter, is a rig; No. 5 Pritchard, northwest of the southeast of the same quarter, drilling at 2,160 feet and gasing.

States Oil corporation No. 1-A Vaugn, southwest of the southeast of section 1, is drilling at 2,100 feet. States No. 1-B Vaughn, center of the northwest of the northwest of the third quarter of section 2, drilling at 1,890 feet. States No. 1 Lipe, southwest of the southeast of the northwest of section 1, drilling at 1,190.

Tripplehorn Bros. No. 1 Morton, third location south of the northwest corner of the southeast of section 123, H&TB survey, is drilling at 1,360. Clayton, Kell & Blair No. 1 Morotn, third location north of the southwest corner of the northeast of the southeast of section 123, is drilling below 1,325 feet.

Tidal Oil company No. 1 Mayhall, northwest corner of section 124, H. & T. B. Ry survey, is drilling below 800 feet.

Barkley et al No. 3 Pritchard, southwest of the northwest of the west quarter of section 2, block "B," is drilling below 1,000 feet; No. 3 Pritchard, dry in the Lake sand, is drilling at 3,655 feet.

Texas-Pacific Coal and Oil company J. D. Collett, southwest of the northeast of section 1, block "B" is a rig. Fort Ring Oil and Gas company No. 1 Dulaney (formerly Scott fee), 1,000 feet south of the northwest of the third quarter of section 2, block "B" is a rig.

Corzelius Brothers.

Corzelius brothers No. 1 Spicer, 1,000 feet north of the southwest corner of the third quarter of section 2, block "B," T&NO survey, in the Barney Carter district of south Stephens county eight miles north of Ranger, has shot a show of oil and gas at 3,771 to 3,800 feet in broken shale and the hole has 2,000 feet of oil. It is cleaning out 60 feet off bottom to test in what is supposed to be the Ranger pay.

Big Lake Area

Big Lake Oil company is to monopolize the Reagon county university land production if yesterday's development in that West Texas field may be taken as showing anything.

Big Lake Oil company's No. 26, University, in the center of the southwest of the southeast of section 25, block 9, Reagan county, was flowing 112 barrels an hour from sand at 2,948-2,970 feet, a rate of about 2,750 barrels a day.

Just a short distance east the No. 28 is standing with 200 feet of fluid in the hole from the sand topped considerably lower at a depth of 2,983-85 feet.

The indications are that the field is going north and west and pinching out toward the east leaving Texon's leases with a bunch of dry holes and small producers.

Millions Die Of Indigestion

Most Common, Yet Insidious of Fatal Diseases Strikes Like Lightning and When Least Expected.

Protect yourself by strengthening your digestive organs with Ferraline—then eat what you please without fear of trouble.

Nature, with Her infinite wisdom, has provided in Ferraline a quick and sure relief for the millions who are living in constant fear of that dreaded disease—Indigestion. Ferraline is not a concoction made by man but is a strictly natural product, and contains the essential elements which Nature has provided to strengthen and tone up the weakened organs of digestion.

Indigestion and weak blood march hand-in-hand. No dyspetic can have pure rich blood until his digestion is made perfect again. Stomach disorders always weaken the blood and weak blood causes anaema, weakness, and nervousness.

If you have had warnings of Indigestion, do not delay another day to accept the positive guarantee that your money will be promptly and cheerfully refunded if the very first bottle of Ferraline does not give you relief. Don't be misled into believing that heart-burn, gas, bloating, constipation, biliousness, sick-stomach, heart and kidney pains will gradually go away. These are danger signals warning you that the dread disease, Indigestion, is gradually sapping your very life. Regenerate your digestive organs at once with Ferraline, then you can eat three good meals every day without discomfort. A ten-days treatment of Ferraline will cost you only One Dollar at your druggists. The Ferraline Co., Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

WILL MAP OUT HIGHWAY PROGRAM.

Chairman Frank Lanham of the state highway commission and his fellow commissioners are preparing for the regular monthly meeting of the commission on July 13th, which will start the all important work of mapping out the road program for 1926. Chairman Lanham says the commissioners will have little or no money to allot at the coming session and their chief concern will be the 1926 program to connect and effect a cardinal system of highways in Texas.

Furthermore he says the commission inherited allotments and road designations aggregating $16,000,000.00 covering the 18 months starting January 1st of this year. Of course, the plain English of this is, that the state highway commissioners of the Neff administration journeyed far into the future, and made huge allotments and designations. In that way they pledged all the money on hand and in sight.

Indeed Chairman Lanham says the funds have all been obligated until about July 1st of next year, and thus the present commissioners will have little money to distribute until July 13, 1926. In addition to that the chairman says, this commission was also left the heritage of maintaining about a thousand additional miles of highway completed about the time it took office. That has also been a drain on their funds.

This left them with but little money for new projects, then he volunteered this information; "what I think we will do with the 1926 funds not alloted is to go as far as we can in connecting our state system of highway and make it worth while to the whole state. This is in furtherence of our plan for a cardinal system of highways for Texas. Chairman Lanham also explained for the benefit of the people that the 1926 allotments would largely be based on building across gaps and providing continuous trunk highways. Later in the year he said, or early in the new year, the whole program of 1926 construction to make these connections will be outlined in a statement to the public.

It is predicted that the semi-monthly sessions of the state highways commissioner for some months to come will see very little money allotted and very few new highway designations made and the commission will be concerned in completing work already contracted for.

And so it goes.

The outgoing commissioners left a big handover, and when their successors go out there will be another big hangover in the shape of allotments and designations aggregating millions of dollars. As for the people, they demand one hundred cents worth of material and labor for every dollar invested in highways. They demand the competitive system in the awarding of contracts. They demand real roads or highways for the hard earned money which is taken from their pockets.

JAPS ON DECK.

A New York trade journal says Japanese interests are reported to be buying considerable American cotton. Sure, Japs are ever on deck. They know what they want. They are among the first comers and the first buyers when the picking and ginning season begins. This is a record they have established. They come to Texas early. They are here when the first boll opens. They are here when the first bale is sent to the gin. They are here when the first bale is marketed.

They pay the price; they pick up high grade cotton; they ship it across the continent and across the Pacific ocean to Japan; they fill their warehouses. If there is a famine crop and they have more cotton than they need they sell it at a fancy price in the Orient. Japs are never asleep like the Chinese. They have traveled faster and farther in less than 60 years than the Caucasian has traveled in two thousand years.

They are warlike; they are industrious; they are thrifty. When it come to competition the Jew and the Yankee have nothing on the little brown brother. American guns compelled Japan to open its ports less than a century ago. They traveled so fast they became so successful and their competition was so fierce that the ports of America had to be closed to prevent the sons and daughters of the rising sun kingdom from obtaining a greater foothold on these shores.

They threatened to put the fruit growers out of business in California. They threatened to put the berry growers out of business. They threatened to put the farmer out of business. These are the hard boiled facts. Self preservation is the first law of nature and because the Caucasian could not compete with the Jap and survive in certain fields of human endeavor, the Jap was told to stay away from these shores.

A thrifty, hardy, industrious and aggressive people who are gluttons for work and save what they make, are dangerous competitors to those who love luxury and a life of comparative ease.

ROCKEFELLER A PATRON OF ART

George Grey Barnard, the noted sculptor of New York, gathered the most famous collection of Gothic art the western world has known. He spent years in foreign countries collecting six or seven hundred priceless relics. Now John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has again disclosed himself a patron of art. He paid $600,000.00 for the Barnard collection and presented the same to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

George Grey Barnard did not exact any exhorbitant price for his collection. He desired that it should be the property of the people of New York. Rockefeller's money made it possible. Flowers for the living. American millionaires are gathering in the art treasurers of the world, and New York is getting to be a famous art center.

Uncommon Sense

TEAM WORK.

"For ten years," said a prosperous business man, "my wife insisted that I was killing myself with work.

"I had just gone into a business about which I knew no more than any merchant would know about merchandising in general. The business was new; the town was new. Everything was new.

"We were getting ready for an opening when I joined the firm. I worked all day, and went back and worked till midnight. My wife constantly protested.

"But I kept at it, because I saw that this was the only way to find out what I needed to know about the business. In a year I had the habit of day and night work so fixed on me that I couldn't break it. I still went back to the store after dinner two or three nights a week.

"All this time I was the object of sympathy, sometimes of disapproval at home.

"I had to listen to long lectures about what I owed my health, and how I couldn't take with me the money I was making.

"The joke about that was that I wasn't making any money, to speak of, that is, no great sums of money were coming in at that time.

"A year or two ago some sort of change came over my wife. She began to take an interest in my business, and to ask me questions about it, instead of regarding it as some sort of rival which was stealing my affections.

"Sometimes she came down to the store and looked the place over. By and by I got to talking problems over with her. She no longer objected to my spending so much time on the job. She had begun to see the necessity of it.

"And she had learned too that an able bodied man can do twelve hours or more of work a day and not kill himself, provided he takes a little exercise and doesn't over-eat.

"Now there is team work at my house. My wife is my best help in my business. She thoroughly understands the reason that I devote so much time and attention to it, and she does not consider that I am stealing this time from her.

"The result is that I am getting a lot more enjoyment out of life, and my work is getting easier.

"Incidentally work I did eight or nine years ago, for which I got nothing at the time, is beginning to draw pay.

"What I mean by that is that the capital of experience that I was laying up in my mind is paying dividends. I make fewer mistakes, and mistakes are what make failures.

"It was natural that my wife couldn't understand at first, and that team work was impossible. But we have it now. And we shall be able when I retire to put the same team work into the foreign travel that we plan.

"It took ten years to enable us thoroughly to understand each other. But the ten years was well spent. We might have got along faster had this come about earlier, but we make no complaint. Better team work after ten years than never.

TRYANNY AT ITS WORST

Bad statutory laws are the worst form of tyranny. They destroy the freedom which is an American heritage. This is the verdict of Judge Francis Neal Parke of Maryland, president of the Bar Association of that state. Judge Parke is a member of the court of appeals, the highest legal tribunal of Maryland. In his annual address he declared that the courts have functioned too long not to know that it is unwise to enact a law which is repugnant to the habits and opinions of those effected.

It is his deliberate opinion if there is fault to be found it is with the legislative body, for the court must enforce the law. Judge Parke defended lawyers against the many criticisms of the general public, saying that such critics were usually persons who had been justly punished, disappointed litigants or other indignant at the enforcement of statutory laws. He urged admitting to the bar only those entirely qualified and called for rigorous enforcement of the ethics of the profession.

Isn't it true that lawyers make the laws? Isn't it true that the American senate is dominated by lawyers? Isn't it true that the lower house of congress is dominated by lawyers? Getting nearer home, has there ever been a time that the state senate of Texas has not been dominated by lawyers? Or the lower house of the legislature, for that matter.

If there are bad statutory laws, aren't the lawyer lawmakers responsible, to a great extent at least, for their enactment. Hogg was a lawyer; Culberson was a lawyer; Sayers was a lawyer; Lanham was a lawyer; Tom Campbell wasn't, but he became a lawyer; Colquitt was a printer and an editor; Jim Ferguson is a lawyer; Pat Neff is a lawyer; all the candidates for governor thus far spoken of are lawyers or pear lawyers, with two exceptions.

Call the roll of the senate of the 39th legislature. Call the roll of the house of the 39th. Then jump to the city of Washington, the capitol of the nation and call the roll of both houses of the new congress? This is not a general indictment of lawyers, or lawyer lawmakers, but as they are ever dominant in legislative halls, if there are bad statutory laws destroying the freedom which is our own heritage then the lawyer lawmakers should not be relieved of their responsibility for that which Judge Parke of Maryland declared to be the worst form of tyranny.

As for the 39th legislature, lawyer lawmakers lead in bringing about the repeal or at least the amendment of laws which they declared to be the worst form of tyranny. Americans are law mad or at least those who control the politics of the country to be law mad. Every two years there are from 10,000 to 40,000 new statutes written into law by the lawmakers of America, national and state, and the lawyer lawmakers are there when the roll is called.

McADOO ON THE JOB.

William Gibbs McAdoo is a quick worker as well as a quick thinker. Four hours after the news came that Santa Barbara had been wrecked by an earthquake, he assembled a number of California bankers in the city of Los Angeles and suggested that the clearing house of California furbish a revolving loan fund of $2,500,000 for the purpose of assisting in the rebuilding of the business district of Santa Barbara.

His suggestion was adopted without debate and the financiers of California are working out the McAdoo plan in detail. This former secretary of the treasury remarked to his fellow financiers that the last earthquake happened 112 years ago, and it probably would be another 100 years before another one occurred.

Science isn't bokum. Dr. Bailey Willis of Stamford university, several weeks ago predicted an earthquake in the general regions of Santa Barbara. By a strange chance he left for Santa Barbara the day before the earthquake came and was in the very heart of the disturbance.

Santa Barbara will rebuild just as San Francisco rebuilt itself. Galveston was destroyed by a gale. Galveston was rebuilt. It is the American way

Referendum Vote On Evolution Is Asked

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 3 (AP).—Whether evolution, barred from the schools in Oklahoma City by legislative enactment in 1923, shall be readmitted probably will be decided by the voters in a referendum election.

The subjects were outlawed in a rider to an appropriation for free text books. Early this year the legislature repealed the free text book law.

When opponents of evolution learned that the repeal of the law would permit the subject to be resumed in the state schools they circulated petitions calling for a referendum election.

The sufficiency of these petitions is now being checked by the secretary of state. The law provides that the governor may submit refered measures at once or at the next regular state election. If the petitions are found sufficient it is believed that Governor M. E. Trapp will let the matter rest until the general election in November, 1926.

Woman At Amarillo Dies From Accident

AMARILLO, July 3.—Mrs. H. M. Frasier, Lubbock, died in a local hotel at 4 o'clock this morning from internal injuries received yesterday afternoon near Raton, N. M., when she was struck by the projecting feet of a dead cow which was being hauled in a motor truck.

Mr. Frasier, her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Perry, Lubbock, and her two small grand children were returning from Colorado where they had gone for the children's health. They were repairing a tire when the truck is said to have crowded Mrs. Frasier to the running board and the cow's feet knocked her unconscious. She was brought to Amarillo for treatment.

The body will be sent to Lubbock for burial.

HOW IT STARTED
"Boston Common."

A park which is famous the country and the world over is Boston Common. No visitor to New England, no traveler passing through the city which once held a "tea party" whose echo has reverberated through the pages of history would fail to visit the "Common." And it is because of these historic associations that "Boston Common" has a significance and an importance beyond that of a mere park or playground.

The "Common" dates back to colonial times, antedating by over a hundred years the famous tea party, which is another boast of the city of the Puritan tradition and the broad "A." It had its origin in 1634 when the ground which comprises it was set aside for a training field and "common ground" for public use. It is from the words "common ground" in the original decree that Boston Commen takes its name.

HOUSTON—A large oil tank of the Sun Oil company near Humble was struck by lightning at 11 a. m. today, and in a few hours thousands of gallons of oil were a mass of flames. The oil was boiling over the sides of the huge tank in a cataract of flames, sending skyward great black clouds of smoke.

DALLAS—Explosion of an improvised fire cracker made by filling a small bottle with powder may have impaired the sight of a 11-year-old negro boy here today. He had punched a hole in the top of the bottle covering, inserted a string for a fuse and after igniting it, leaned over it to see if it was burning.

DALLAS—A woman and two men are in jail and police are investigating a report that children were being served with beer after a mother brought her 5-year-old son to the emergency hospital here, in an intoxicated condition believing that he had been poisoned. After the child told police a woman had given him beer, investigation of officers disclosed that the house at the address given by the boy had already been raided.

GALVESTON—A. L. Reed of Dallas was elected president of the Texas Industrial Traffic league at the annual membership meeting of the organization here today. Other officers chosen were: H. C. Eargle, Beaumont, first vice president; E. P. Byers, Fort Worth, second vice president; W. J. Johnson, Gulf, third vice president; F. A. Leffingwell, Dallas, secretary-treasurer.

Gotham Firm Fails For 35 Millions

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP)—Encumbered by slow moving assets the New York stock exchange brokerage firm of Dean, Onativia and company were thrown into bankruptcy today with liabilities estimated at $35,000,000 and assets at $30,000,000 or more. While the amount of money involved is the largest of any stock exchange failure in recent years, counsel for the firm declared that the actual loss would be small and that creditors and customers were well protected.

PEACE REIGNS IN ENGLAND
Oxford and Asquith Amicably Settle Differences at Dinner.

LONDON, July 3.—(AP)—Final demonstrations of peace between Lord Oxford and Asquith formerly Herbert H. Asquith and David Lloyd George were made last night at a dinner of the "Eighty Clubs." The organization composed of strict Asquithians who formed it as a result of the war-time liberal break which at times has threatened to separate permanently the followers of the then prime minister Lloyd George, and those of his predecessor, Asquith.

Lord Oxford referred to Lloyd George as possessing the methods both of a seer and of a gladiator through his happy endowment of temperament, sleepless interest and unfailing sympathy with the needs of the common people.

CHAPTER XXIII.
A Flying Table.

Around the house, all at once, a shadow moved. Pete's eyes focused upon it. He started at it until all about the focal point of his gaze shadows were moving, dancing in weird and rhythmic formations. Yet in spite of all the tricks of optics, all the creeping cars of his query, he held to the right shadow among them all; was sure, at last, that the moment he had waited had come. And then he didn't know quite what to do. It had been simple—it had seemed ridiculously simple, indeed, when Bill had given him his orders—to stop anyone who came from the house. Now it didn't seem simple at all.

He had the enormous advantage of knowing where the other man was, while the latter couldn't possibly know whence an attack might come. But he would know as soon as Pete moved, that was the devil of it.

He did too; when Pete, afraid to wait longer, slid down from his sill the other took alarm at once, and straightened up, running toward the water. Even in his haste Pete knew what that must mean—that the boat was near at hand. And that conviction gave him a strength and a speed such as he didn't know he could achieve. He cut across; just in time he did the one thing the other couldn't have expected; left his feet as cleanly as he had ever done on a football field, and brought his man down with a beautiful flying tackle, his arms locked around the other's legs just below the knees.

His hands moved up instantly to the other's throat; he held him so, in a deadly grip, until his struggle grew faint and ceased as he lay still, on his back, a ghastly object in the faint light, his breathing stertorious.

"Done for him, I guess," said Pete to himself, rising to his knees and staring down. "Gee! I don't care. either! Gosh! Bill and I are committing assorted murders and things wholesale tonight! If the tide comes in that lad we tied up out on the rocks'll drown—and I guess Bill croaked the bird from the tunnel! Oh, well—let 'em come!"

He didn't know what to do next. But a low whistle from the tunnel opening recalled him to Bill's order to stay near there, and he went, quickly.

"Good stuff!" Bill said von land him. They must be comin'—what? Gee—wish I knew what to do next!"

"There's one thing I just thought of," said Pete. "Did you notice that door, Bill? There's no keyhole in it. They must have some signal—and they can't use this tunnel at all, the way I make it, unless there's someone to open the door on the other side. They must fasten it with bolts some way."

"That's right!" said Bill. "Say! We could follow them up and get their signal—"

"Wouldn't do us any good to get in there—not when the whole gang's in!" said Pete. "Hold on—there's some way to use that—but that's not it."

"I know!" said Bill. "I've got the one I beaned when we came in here, parked inside—he's just about comin' round too. Here's what we'll do. You stay and watch the house, see—where you were. I'll set up a reception committee. I'll lay you money that bout'll turn around after they hear from me—let me have your gun. You're right—we haven't any use for the crowd in the boat no more."

"But I can't see—"

"You will!—Shove off—on your way. We don't want to let them get away from the house with the lady, do we?"

"All right."

Pete started. But Bill called him again.

"Listen! They may get started, at that, the way I'm lining this up now. You got the keys for your car—transmission lock—whatever you got —switch—both of them."

Pete rummaged in his pockets and found the keys.

"Good! Then we're all O. K. That car of yours'll catch anything they've got. All right—on your way."

Once more Pete had to resume the watchful waiting that had so sorely tried his spirit before. But this time it was easier, and he didn't complain.

Merry hell broke in upon Pete's reflections. There was a sudden hideous spitting clamor of revolver fire, redoubled in volume and effect because it came from the tunnel. Startled cries and oaths sounded; some one in the motor boat abolished the muffler, and the engine joined the infernal chorus. More shots rang out; some one yelled—as a man yells when he is hit, not seriously but painfully.

Just for a second Pete looked seaward. The motor boat was on the way out, leaving a white wake behind it, rising as it half planed and sent spray flying before it.

"Hey, Bill!" yelled Pete.

In the house a light showed in the living room for a moment, and then went out.

CHAPTER XXIV.
The Capture.

From the tunnel opening Bill called sharply. Pete raced to him.

"Come on! We got to work quick now!" Bill shouted. "Here's this delegate. Boom him along—quick!"

Pete, to his unfeigned surprise, suddenly recognized the boy who had stopped him on the road that morning and warned him to go home. He was struggling and cursing now. But Bill tapped him smartly on the back of the head with Pete's pistol.

"You do as you're told!" he said. "You hear me—I'm giving it to you straight! You go to that door and signal them to let you in—or as sure as I'm here you'll be under the sand five minutes from now!"

And with Bill's pistol against his back, the boy knocked. Obviously he was following a prearranged code. Pete and Bill waited, breathless. In a moment the sound of bolts being drawn came to them. The door moved. Bill slipped back a pace and waited.

"Who is it—and what in hell's going on?"

Bill shot forward, as if he had been shot from a gun. With an amazed cry the man on the other side tried to shut the door. But Bill was too quick; he bore him down, and Pete was through after him on the instant. He let the boy go; Bill cursed him for that a moment later, for the boy didn't waste a second, but was off at once, and only laughed derisively as a bullet sang after him.

"Elizabeth!", Pete shouted. He looked around; there was a dim light in the great room in which he found himself. It was full of wooden cases; just as he had guessed, this was the storeroom.

"Pete—oh, Pete—quick!" Elizabeth answered him. At the same moment a man cried out, in furious amazement. Not in the room they were in, though—but just beyond it.

Pete sprang across, with Bill after him. A door was half open; they were just in time to see a man disappearing through a narrow opening in the floor of another passage, like the one they had traversed, but only half a dozen feet long—and with a wooden floor.

Pete plunged down; ran forward—the only way he could go. Suddenly he stopped. Then instinct made him push upward, and the roof yielded. There were steps before him; he flew up to find himself in a great round cylinder. Suddenly he cried out. The furnace! There was the secret entrance that he hadn't been able to find! Fool—fool!

In a moment he was in the cellar and leaping up the stairs to the kitchen, with Bill after him. In the hall he heard the roar of a starting motor—and another scream from Elizabeth. Even as he got outside he saw a car moving toward the main road.

"Hand over your keys—quick!" Bill snatched them from him; flung himself into Pete's car; cursed as he realized that he had to lose precious time to get out of the barricaded of the bootleggers' cars made. But when they reached the road a moving dark blur was still in sight before them—to the west. It vanished around a curve, but Bill cried out, gaily:

"All right—they haven't got a chance!" he cried. "I can get 70 outa this boat now."

Not on that road, though! Even Bill had to slow a little, yield precious time to the car ahead, which relatively at least, could outstrip Pete's car here. But ever and again, as they rounded a curve, they saw the black blur; neither car had lights.

Soon, though, as the road widened and grew comparatively straight and smooth, weight and power began to tell, and Bill gained fast. Until, suddenly, the car ahead stopped, when they were so near that they could see two figures leap from it and drag another, and start, half running, half walking, into the sand hills to the right.

"All right—all right—we got 'em now!" Bill cried. "There isn't enough cover to hide a rabbit!"

He shot the car up to and past the other; together he and Pete sprang out. They might have had trouble in tracking the others, but a shot betrayed them. Bill couldn't fire back, because of Elizabeth—not yet. But he and Pete went for the spot whence the shot had come, and a strangled cry from Elizabeth, cut off halfway, confirmed their direction.

It was over a minute later. Even as they came in sight Elizabeth broke away. One man darted after her; Bill shot the other in the leg and brought him down, and Elizabeth's pursuer, with a cry of fear, gave it up and took to his heels. For a moment Bill hesitated, gun in hand.

"Oh, hell! Let him go!" he said. He approached the man he had shot. You would have it buddy," he said.

CHAPTER XXV.
At the House.

Bill had, as Pete had always known, great and sound instincts. Anybody would have thought he didn't know there were two such people as Pete and Elizabeth in the world.

"Bet!" As she turned to him Pete opened his arms, and she went straight into them, to be held close. He kissed her—of course he did! There were things to be said and settled, no doubt, but that wasn't one of them.

"Oh, Pete! Pete darling—you're all right? They said you were dead—"

"Dead, hell!" said Pete. "They didn't have sense enough to make that true! Bet—they didn't hurt you?"

"Not a bit!"

"Bill—oh, Bill! Pete cried. "Come here! Bet, this is Bill, the demon taxi hound I told you about—the one who helped me buy the car! They wrote a part for him in this show—and he didn't like it, so he wrote in his own lines! If it hadn't been for him—"

"Aw, forget it, bose," said Bill. "I got a girl of me own—see? Three kids, too. That's why this is goin to come in pretty handy."

"Oh, Lord!" said Pete. "Bill, you'l sure get yours for this night's work, old man! But I'm not rich any more—I've blown it all in, one way and another, since I bought the car. So you'll have to wait till I earn some more."

"Wait, nothin'," said Bill. "Boss, you didn't figure what that stuff totaled up to that's back in your cellar, did you? Neither did I; but when we get ours and split 50-50 we'll both have enough to buy a meal and some theatre tickets!"

"I never thought of that!" said Pete.

"Well, think about it now," said Bill. 'Course, if we could hold on and sell it ourselves—but I suppose you wouldn't want to go in the business. No—we'll have to turn it over to the federal bunch—after we've counted it."

"You—did you kill any one?" said Elizabeth. "Not but what it was all right, if you had to—"

"Oh, I don't guess so," said Bill cheerfully. Not unless the guy we tied up out by the rocks drowned. Depends on how fast the tide's comin' in. I'll have a look-see when I get around to it."

"Say! I wonder how this bird I shot is?" suddenly asked Bill.

He went over to inquire. All right, it seemed. More scared than hurt, Bill reported; entirely willing to take care of himself, too—inclined to be grateful for the chance, even. His wound was in a fleshy part of his leg and he could walk, after a fashion, as he proved.

Very cheerfully indeed, the three of them piled into Pete's car and were about to start when Bill remembered the other machine, and decided to drive that back.

So Pete and Elizabeth drove back together, with Bill leading the way, and Pete drove with one hand since he kept one arm about Elizabeth, without protest of any sort from her—until, suddenly, he stopped the car with a jerk and took his arm away, and Elizabeth roused herself to stare

AUTHORSHIP

Bill Biff is a stranger to Latin and Greek,
His spelling is what might be styled as unique,
His grammar is queer,
For he learned it by ear—
Bill Biff is a heavyweight fighter.
But Bill is receiving, as you may have heard,
The fairly good pay of a dollar a word—
And is gathering fame
And achieving a name
As a noted American writer.

As a speaker he isn't a shining success
For him a long sentence is "Naw" 'or "I guess."
But wherever he goes
He's invited to pose
For the camera men and reporters.
Yet he clutches his pen every Saturday night,
At least so his manager tells us, to write
For a dollar a word
(As you've already heard)
Of the life that he leads at his quarters.

Young man if you yearn for an author's career,
And look for big pay when your writings appear—
Do not wast any time
Writing prose stuff or rhythme,
Keep away from Behemian bunches
Like Byron and Shakespeare and Shelly and Keats,
But pick up your speech from the lads on the streets—
For these are the days
When the writing game pays
For the gent who has wallops and punches.

WILL MAP OUT HIGHWAY PROGRAM.

Chairman Frank Lanham of the state highway commission and his fellow commissioners are preparing for the regular monthly meeting of the commission on July 13th, which will start the all important work of maping out the road program for 1926. Chairman Lanham says the commissioners will have little or no money to allot at the coming session and their chief concern will be the 1926 program to connect and effect a cardinal system of highways in Texas.

Furthermore he says the commission inherited allotments and road designations aggregating $16,000,000.00 covering the 18 months starting January 1st of this year. Of course, the plain English of this is, that the state highway commissioners of the Neff administration journeyed far into the future, and made huge allotments and designations. In that way they pledged all the money on hand and in sight.

Indeed Chairman Lanham says the funds have all been obligated until about July 1st of next year, and thus the present commissioners will have little money to distribute until July 13, 1926. In addition to that the chairman says, this commission was also left the heritage of maintaining about a thousand additional miles of highway completed about the time it took office. That has also been a drain on their funds.

This left them with but little money for new projects, then he volunteered this information; "what I think we will do with the 1926 funds not alloted is to go as far as we can in connecting our state system of highway and make it worth while to the whole state. This is in furtherance of our plan for a cardinal system of highways for Texas. Chairman Lanham also explained for the benefit of the people that the 1926 allotments would largely be based on building across gaps and providing continuous trunk highways. Later in the year he said, or early in the new year, the whole program of 1926 construction to make these connections will be outlined in a statement to the public.

It is predicted that the semi-monthly sessions of the state highways commissioner for some months to come will see very little money allotted and very few new highway designations made and the commission will be concerned in completing work already contracted for.

And so it goes.

The outgoing commissioners left a big handover, and when their successors go out there will be another big hangover in the shape of allotments and designations aggregating millions of dollars. As for the people, they demand one hundred cents worth of material and labor for every dollar invested in highways. They demand the competitive system in the awarding of contracts. They demand real roads or highways for the hard earned money which is taken from their pockets.

JAPS ON DECK.

A New York trade journal says Japanese interests are reported to be buying considerable American cotton. Sure, Japs are ever on deck. They know what they want. They are among the first comers and the first buyers when the picking and ginning season begins. This is a record they have established. They come to Texas early. They are here when the first boll opens. They are here when the first bale is sent to the gin. They are here when the first bale is marketed.

They pay the price; they pick up high grade cotton; they ship it across the continent and across the Pacific ocean to Japan; they fill their warehouses. If there is a famine crop and they have more cotton than they need they sell it at a fancy price in the Orient. Japs are never asleep like the Chinese. They have traveled faster and farther in less than 90 years than the Caucasian has traveled in two thousand years.

They are warlike; they are industrious; they are thrifty. When it come to competition the Jew and the Yankee have nothing on the little brown brother. American guns compelled Japan to open its ports less than a century ago. They traveled so fast they became so successful and their competition was so fierce that the ports of America had to be closed to prevent the sons and daughters of the rising sun kingdom from obtaining a greater foothold on these shores.

They threatened to put the fruit growers out of business in California. They threatened to put the berry growers out of business. They threatened to put the farmer out of business. These are the hard boiled facts. Self preservation is the first law of nature and because the Caucasian could not compete with the Jap and survive in certain fields of human endeavor, the Jap was told to stay away from these shores.

A thrifty, hardy, industrious and aggressive people who are glutons for work and save what they make, are dangerous competitors to those who love luxury and a life of comparative ease.

ROCKEFELLER A PATRON OF ART

George Grey Barnard, the noted sculptor of New York, gathered the most famous collection of Gothic art the western world has known. He spent years in foreign countries collecting six or seven hundred priceless relics. Now John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has again disclosed himself a patron of art. He paid $600,000.00 for the Barnard collection and presented the same to the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

George Grey Barnard did not exact any exhorbitant price for his collection. He desired that it should be the property of the people of New York. Rockefeller's money made it possible. Flowers for the living. American millionaires are gathering in the art treasurers of the world, and New York is getting to be a famous art center.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

TEAM WORK.

"For ten years," said a prosperous business man, "my wife insisted that I was killing myself with work.

"I had just gone into a business about which I knew no more than any merchant would know about merchandising in general. The business was new; the town was new. Everything was new.

"We were getting ready for an opening when I joined the firm. I worked all day, and went back and worked till midnight. My wife constantly protested.

"But I kept at it, because I saw that this was the only way to find out what I needed to know about the business. In a year I had the habit of day and night work so fixed on me that I couldn't break it. I still went back to the store after dinner two or three nights a week.

"All this time I was the object of sympathy, sometimes of disapproval at home.

"I had to listen to long lectures about what I owed my health, and how I couldn't take with me the money I was making.

"The joke about that was that I wasn't making any money to speak of, that is, no great sums of money were coming in at that time.

"A year or two ago some sort of change came over my wife. She began to take an interest in my business, and to ask me questions about it, instead of regarding it as some sort of rival which was stealing my affections.

"Sometimes she came down to the store and looked the place over. By and by I got to talking problems over with her. She no longer objected to my spending so much time on the job. She had begun to see the necessity of it.

"And she had learned too that an able bodied man can do twelve hours or more of work a day and not kill himself, provided he takes a little exercise and doesn't over-eat.

"Now there is team work at my house. My wife is my best help in my business. She thoroughly understands the reason that I devote so much time and attention to it, and she does not consider that I am stealing this time from her.

"The result is that I am getting a lot more enjoyment out of life, and my work is getting easier.

"Incidentally work I did eight or nine years ago, for which I got nothing at the time, is beginning to draw pay.

"What I mean by that is that the capital of experience that I was laying up in my mind is paying dividends. I make fewer mistakes, and mistakes are what make failures.

"It was natural that my wife couldn't understand at first, and that team work was impossible. But we have it now. And we shall be able, when I retire to put the same team work into the foreign travel that we plan.

"It took ten years to enable us thoroughly to understand each other. But the ten years was well spent. We might have got along faster had this come about earlier, but we make no complaint. Better team work after ten years than never.

TRYANNY AT ITS WORST

Bad statutory laws are the worst form of tyranny. They destroy the freedom which is an American heritage. This is the verdict of Judge Francis Neal Parke of Maryland, president of the Bar Association of that state. Judge Parke is a member of the court of appeals, the highest legal tribunal of Maryland. In his annual address he declared that the courts have functioned too long not to know that it is unwise to enact a law which is repugnant to the habits and opinions of those effected.

It is his deliberate opinion if there is fault to be found it is with the legislative body, for the court must enforce the law. Judge Parke defended lawyers against the many criticisms of the general public, saying that such critics were usually persons who had been justly punished, disappointed litigants or other indignant at the enforcement of statutory laws. He urged admitting to the bar only those entirely qualified and called for rigorous enforcement of the ethics of the profession.

Isn't it true that lawyers make the laws? Isn't it true that the American senate is dominated by lawyers? Isn't it true that the lower house of congress is dominated by lawyers? Getting nearer home, has there ever been a time that the state senate of Texas has not been dominated by lawyers? Or the lower house of the legislature, for that matter.

If there are bad statutory laws, aren't the lawyer lawmakers responsible, to a great extent at least, for their enactment. Hogg was a lawyer; Culberson was a lawyer; Sayers was a lawyer; Lanham was a lawyer; Colquitt was a printer and an editor; Jim Ferguson is a lawyer; Pat Neff is a lawyer; all the candidates for governor thus far spoken of are lawyers or pear lawyers, with two exceptions.

Call the roll of the senate of the 39th legislature. Call the roll of the house of the 39th. Then jump to the city of Washington, the capitol of the nation and call the roll of both houses of the new congress? This is not a general indictment of lawyers, or lawyer lawmakers, but as they are ever dominant in legislative halls, if there are bad statutory laws destroying the freedom which is our own heritage then the lawyer lawmakers should not be relieved of their responsibility for that which Judge Parke of Maryland declared to be the worst form of tyranny.

As for the 39th legislature, lawyer lawmakers lead in bringing about the repeal or at least the amendment of laws which they declared to be the worst form of tyranny. Americans are law mad or at least those who control the politics of the country to be law mad. Every two years there are from 10,000 to 40,000 new statutes written into law by the lawmakers of America, national and state, and the lawyer lawmakers are there when the roll is called.

McADOO ON THE JOB.

William Gibbs McAdoo is a quick worker as well as a quick tinker. Four hours after the news came that Santa Barbara had been wrecked by an earthquake, he assembled a number of California bankers in the city of Los Angeles and suggested that the clearing house of California furhish a revolving loan fund of $2,500,000 for the purpose of assisting in the rebuilding of the business district of Santa Barbara.

His suggestion was adopted without debate and the financiers of California are working out the McAdoo plan in detail. This former secretary of the treasury remarked to his fellow financiers that the last earthquake happened 112 years ago, and it probably would be another 100 years before another one occurred.

Science isn't hokum. Dr. Bailey Willis of Stamford university, several weeks ago predcted an earthquake in the general regions of Santa Barbara. By a strange chance he left for Santa Barbara the day before the earthquake came and was in the very heart of the disturbance.

Santa Barbara will rebuild just as San Francisco rebuilt itself. Galveston was destroyed by a gale. Galveston was rebuilt. It is the American way

Referendum Vote On Evolution Is Asked

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 3 (AP).—Whether evolution, barred from the schools in Oklahoma City by legislative enactment in 1923, shall be readmitted probably will be decided by the voters in a referendum election.

The subjects were outlawed in a rider to an appropriation for free text books. Early this year the legislature repealed the free text book law.

When opponents of evolution learned that the repeal of the law would permit the subject to be resumed in the state schools they circulated petitions calling for a referendum election.

The sufficiency of these petitions is now being checked by the secretary of state. The law provides that the governor may submit refeared measures at once or at the next regular state election. If the petitions are found sufficient it is believed that Governor M. E. Trapp will let the matter rest until the general election in November, 1926.

Woman At Amarillo Dies From Accident

AMARILLO, July 3.—Mrs. H. M. Frasier, Lubbock, died in a local hotel at 4 o'clock this morning from internal injuries received yesterday afternoon near Raton, N. M., when she was struck by the projecting feet of a dead cow which was being hauled in a motor truck.

Mr. Frasier, her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Perry, Lubbock, and her two small grand children were returning from Colorado where they had gone for the children's health. They were repairing a tire when the truck is said to have crowded Mrs. Frasier to the running board and the cow's feet knocked her unconscious. She was brought to Amarillo for treatment.

The body will be sent to Lubbock for burial.

HOW IT STARTED

"Boston Common."

A park which is famous the country and the world over is Boston Common. No visitor to New England, no traveler passing through the city which once held a "tea party" whose echo has reverberated through the pages of history would fail to visit the "Common." And it is because of these historic associations that "Boston Common" has a significance and an importance beyond that of a mere park or playground.

The "Common" dates back to colonial times, antedating by over a hundred years the famous tea party, which is another boast of the city of the Puritan tradition and the broad "A." It had its origin in 1634 when the ground which comprises it was set aside for a training field and "common ground" for public use. It is from the words "common ground" in the original decree that Boston Common takes its name.

DALLAS, July 3.—Patrons, including many finely dressed women and apparently well-to-do men, of the Orchard Hill Chicken Garden east of Dallas, complained last night that service suddenly became lax and food and drinks were not forthcoming promptly. A few of the curious started an investigation and learned that officers were raiding the place. Quite a few more became curious to see how officers conducted a raid and followed them around the place until one of the peace officials called for "that newspaper man," remarking he should begin to get names for his front page story. Lord Oxford referred to Lloyd George as possessing the methods both of a seer and of a gladiator through his happy endowment of temperament, sleepless interest, and unfailing sympathy with the needs of the common people

LAND'S END

-By William Almon Wolff

CHAPTER XXIII.
A Flying Takle.

Around the house, all at once, a shadow moved. Pete's eyes focused upon it. He started at it until all about the focal point of his gaze shadows were moving, dancing in weird and rhythmic formations. Yet in spite of all the tricks of optics, all the creeping care of his quary, he held to the right shadow among them all; was sure, at last, that the moment he had waited had come. And then he didn't know quite what to do. It had been simple—it had seemed ridiculously simple, indeed, when Bill had given him his orders—to stop anyone who came from the house. Now it didn't seem simple at all.

He had the enormous advantage of knowing where the other man was, while the latter couldn't possibly know whence an attack might come. But he would know as soon as Pete moved, that was the devil of it.

He did too; when Pete, afraid to wait longer, slid down from his sill the other took alarm at once, and straightened up, running toward the water. Even in his haste Pete knew what that must mean—that the boat was near at hand. And that conviction gave him a strength and a speed such as he didn't know he could achieve. He cut across; just in time he did the one thing the other couldn't have expected; left his feet as cleanly as he had ever done on a footbal field, and brought his man down with a beautiful flying tackle, his arms locked around the other's legs just below the knees.

His hands moved up instantly to the other's throat; he held him so, in a deadly grip, until his struggle grew faint and ceased as he lay still, on his back, a ghastly object in the faint light, his breathing stertorious.

"Done for him, I guess," said Pete to himself, rising to his knees and staring down. "Gee! I don't care, either! Gosh! Bill and I are committing assorted murders and things wholesale tonight! If the tide comes in that lad we tied up out on the rocks'll drown—and I guess Bill croaked the bird from the tunnel! Oh, well—let 'em come!"

He didn't know what to do next. But a low whistle from the tunnel opening recalled him to Bill's order to stay near there, and he went, quickly.

"Good stuff!" Bill said you land him. They must be comin'—what? Gee—wish I knew what to do next!"

"There's one thing I just thought of," said Pete. "Did you notice that door, Bill? There's no keyhole in it. They must have some signal—and they can't use this tunnel at all, the way I make it, unless there's someone to open the door on the other side. They must fasten it with bolts some way."

"That's right!" said Bill. "Say! We could follow them up and get their signal—"

"Wouldn't do us any good to get in there—not when the whole gang's in!" said Pete. "Hold on—there's some way to use that—but that's not it."

"I know!" said Bill. "I've got the one I beaned when we came in here, parked inside—he's just about comin' round too. Here's what we'll do. You stay and watch the house, see—where you were. I'll set up a reception committee. I'll lay you money that bout'll turn around after they hear from me—let me have your gun. You're right—we haven't any use for the crowd in the boat no more."

"But I can't see—"

"You will!—Shove off—on your way. We don't want to let them get away from the house with the lady, do we?"

"All right."

Pete started. But Bill called him again.

"Listen! They may get started, at that, the way I'm lining this up now. You got the keys for your car—transmission lock—whatever you got—switch—both of them."

Pete rummaged in his pockets and found the keys.

"Good! Then we're all O. K. That car of yours'll catch anything they've got. All right—on your way."

Once more Pete had to resume the watchful waiting that had so sorely tried his spirit before. But this time it was easier, and he didn't complain.

Merry hell broke in upon Pete's reflections. There was a sudden hideous spitting clamor of revolver fire, redoubled in volume and effect because it came from the tunnel. Startled cries and oaths sounded; some one in the motor bout abolished the muffler, and the engine joined the infernal chorus. More shots rang out; some one yelled—as a man yells when he is hit, not seriously but painfully.

Just for a second Pete looked seaward. The motor boat was on the way out, leaving a white wake behind it, rising as it half planed and sent spray flying before it.

"Hey, Bill!" yelled Pete.

In the house a light showed in the living room for a moment, and then went out.

CHAPTER XXIV.
The Capture.

From the tunnel opening Bill called sharply. Pete raced to him.

"Come on! We got to work quick now!" Bill shouted. "Here's this delegate. Boom him along—quick!"

Pete, to his unfeigned surprise, suddenly recognized the boy who had stopped him on the road that morning and warned him to go home. He was struggling and cursing now. But Bill tapped him smartly on the back of the head with Pete's pistol.

"You do as you're told!" he said. "You hear me—I'm giving it to you straight! You go to that door and signal them to let you in—or as sure as I'm here you'll be under the sand five minutes from now!"

And with Bill's pistol against his back, the boy knocked. Obviously he was following a prearranged code. Pete and Bill waited, breathless. In a moment the sound of bolts being drawn came to them. The door moved. Bill slipped back a pace and waited.

"Who is it—and what in hell's going on?"

Bill shot forward, as if he had been shot from a gun. With an amazed cry the man on the other side tried to shut the door. But Bill was too quick; he bore him down, and Pete was through after him on the instant. He let the boy go; Bill cursed him for that a moment later, for the boy didn't waste a second, but was off at once, and only laughed derisively as a bullet sang after him.

"Elizabeth!", Pete shouted. He looked around; there was a dim light in the great room in which he found himself. It was full of wooden cases; just as he had guessed, this was the storeroom.

"Pete—oh, Pete—quick!" Elizabeth answered him. At the same moment a man cried out, in furious amazement. Not in the room they were in, though—but just beyond it.

Pete sprang across, with Bill after him. A door was half open; they were just in time to see a man disappearing through a narrow opening in the floor of another passage, like the one they had traversed, but only half a dozen feet long—and with a wooden floor.

Pete plunged down; ran forward—the only way he could go. Suddenly he stopped. Then instinct made him push upward, and the roof yielded. There were steps before him; he flew up to find himself in a great round cylinder. Suddenly he cried out. The furnace! There was the secret entrance that he hadn't been able to find! Fool—fool!

In a moment he was in the cellar and leaping up the stairs to the kitchen, with Bill after him. In the hall he heard the roar of a starting motor—and another scream from Elizabeth. Even as he got outside he saw a car moving toward the main road.

"Hand over your keys—quick!" Bill snatched them from him; flung himself into Pete's car; cursed as he realized that he had to lose precious time to get out of the barricaded of the bootleggers' cars made. But when they reached the road a moving dark blur was still in sight before them—to the west. It vanished around a curve, but Bill cried out, gaily.

"All right—they haven't got a chance!" he cried. "I can get 70 outa this boat now."

Not on that road, though! Even Bill had to slow a little, yield precious time to the car ahead, which relatively at least, could outstrip Pete's car here. But ever and again, as they rounded a curve, they saw the black blur; neither car had lights.

Soon, though, as the road widened and grew comparatively straight and smooth, weight and power began to tell, and Bill gained fast. Until, suddenly, the car ahead stopped, when they were so near that they could see two figures leap from it and drag another, and start, half running, half walking, into the sand hills to the right.

"All right—all right—we got 'em now!" Bill cried. "There isn't enough cover to hide a rabbit!"

He shot the car up to and past the other; together he and Pete sprang out. They might have had trouble in tracking the others, but a shot betrayed them. Bill couldn't fire back, because of Elizabeth—not yet. But he and Pete went for the spot whence the shot had come, and a strangled cry from Elizabeth, cut off halfway, confirmed their direction.

It was over a minute later. Even as they came in sight Elizabeth broke away. One man darted after her; Bill shot the other in the leg and brought him down, and Elizabeth's pursuer, with a cry of fear, gave it up and took to his heels. For a moment Bill hesitated, gun in hand.

"Oh, hell! Let him go!" he said. He approached the man he had shot. You would have it buddy," he said.

CHAPTER XXV.
At the House.

Bill had, as Pete had always known, great and sound instincts. Anybody would have thought he didn't know there were two such people as Pete and Elizabeth in the world.

"Bet!" As she turned to him Pete opened his arms, and she went straight into them, to be held close. He kissed her—of course he did! There were things to be said and settled, no doubt, but that wasn't one of them.

"Oh, Pete! Pete darling—you're all right? They said you were dead—"

"Dead, hell!" said Pete. "They didn't have sense enough to make that true! Bet—they didn't hurt you?"

"Not a bit!"

"Bill—oh, Bill! Pete cried. "Come here! Bet, this is Bill, the demon taxi hound I told you about—the one who helped me buy the car! They wrote a part for him in this show—and he didn't like it, so he wrote in his own lines! If it hadn't been for him—"

"Aw, forget it, boss," said Bill. "I got a girl of me own—see? Three kids, too. That's why this is goin to come in pretty handy."

"Oh, Lord!" said Pete. "Bill, you'l sure get yours for this night's work, old man! But I'm not rich any more—I've blown it all in, one way and another, since I bought the car. So you'll have to wait till I earn some more."

"Wait, nothin'," said Bill. "Boss, you didn't figure what that stuff totaled up to that's back in your cellar, did you? Neither did I; but when we get ours and split 50-50 we'll both have enough to buy a meal and some theatre tickets!"

"I never thought of that!" said Pete.

"Well, think about it now," said Bill. 'Course, if we could hold on and sell it ourselves—but I suppose you wouldn't want to go in the business. No—we'll have to turn it over to the federal bunch—after we've counted it."

"You—did you kill any one?" said Elizabeth. "Not but what it was all right, if you had to—"

"Oh, I don't guess so," said Bill cheerfully. Not unless the guy we tied up out by the rocks drowned. Depends on how fast the tide's comin' in. I'll have a look-see when I get around to it."

"Say! I wonder how this bird I shot is?" suddenly asked Bill.

He went over to inquire, All right, it seemed. More scared than hurt, Bill reported: entirely willing to take care of himself, too—inclined to be grateful for the chance, even. His wound was in a fleshy part of his leg and he could walk, after a fashion, as he proved.

Very cheerfully indeed, the three of them piled into Pete's car and were about to start when Bill remembered the other machine, and decided to drive that back.

So Pete and Elizabeth drove back together, with Bill leading the way, and Pete drove with one hand, since he kept one arm about Elizabeth, without protest of any sort from her—until, suddenly, he stopped the car with a jerk and took his arm away, and Elizabeth roused herself to stare

AUTHORSHIP

Bill Biff is a stranger to Latin and Greek,
His spelling is what might be styled as unique,
His grammar is queer,
For he learned it by ear—
Bill Biff is a heavyweight fighter.
But Bill is receiving, as you may have heard,
The fairly good pay of a dollar a word—
And is gathering fame
And achieving a name
As a noted American writer.

As a speaker he isn't a shining success
For him a long sentence is "Naw" 'or "I guess."
But wherever he goes
He's invited to pose
For the camera men and reporters.
Yet he clutches his pen every Saturday night,
At least so his manager tells us, to write
For a dollar a word
(As you've already heard)
Of the life that he leads at his quarters.

Young man if you yearn for an author's career,
And look for big pay when your writings appear—
Do not wast any time
Writing prose stuff or rhythme.
Keep away from Behemian bunches
Like Byron and Shakespeare and Shelly and Keats,
But pick up your speech from the lads on the streets—
For these are the days
When the writing game pays
For the gent who has wallops and punches.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, July 3.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

The demand for wool has continued more or less steadily and the tendency of prices is to harden, although there has been no further noteworthy advance in wool during the past week.

The opening of tropical goods in New York by the American Woolen company at prices showing substantially no change from last year, has created a favorable impression throughout the trade.

The new clip situation develops slowly, but steadily and prices show a slight tendency to harden still further.

London opens Tuesday with offerings of 120,000 bales, not a large offering and sentiment both here and abroad favors a good opening. South America is in a slightly better condition. There are 501,000 bales of old wool unsold in Australia.

Mohair is quiet, but generally steady. Quotations:

AUSTIN, July 3 (AP).—Attempt to place the Texas Bar association on record as opposing Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's convict pardoning program was defeated when President Robert W. Stayton ruled out of order a condemnatory resolution offered by W. C. Wear of Hillsboro, a candidate in the last election for chief justice of the supreme court. The resolution threw the convention into tumult, with proponents and opponents of the resolution all striving at one time for recognition.

President Stayton ruled out of order the resolution because the constitution of the association forbids reference to politics. The author of the resolution, Judge Weat, acceded to the ruling; but Richard Mayes of Corsicana demanded the right to make a statement. "We want no tyranny here. I demand relief from the ruling of the chair," stated Mayes. On a rising vote, a majority of the delegates sustained the ruling of th president. The convention also voted to refuse Mr. Mayes the personal privilege of making a statement. Whether the attorney from Corsicana intended to speak for or against the resolution was not apparent.

Text of Resolution.

Tex tof the resolution offered by Judge Wear follows:

"Whereas, the governor of Texas has in six months exercised executive clemency in favor of convicted criminals in about 400 instances, the greatest number in which that power has been used in the same length of time in the history of this state; therefore, be it resolved that the Texas Bar association is opposed to a too liberal use of the pardoning power, because it tends to bring the law, the courts, and the state into disrepute and tends to increase crime and disrespect for the government.

"We, therefore, call upon the governor not to be too easily influenced in favor of petitions presented by those convicted of serious violations of law."

Offering of the resolution came shortly after noon, following a two-hour period given over to eulogizing of members of the association who had died since the past meeting. Being assured by President Stayton that the convention was open for new business, Judge Wear stated: "I want to call attention to the demands made yesterday upon this association by a certain person in high station, and to say that I do not approve of either his speech or of the indiscriminate granting of pardons."

"You are out of order," ruled the chair. Judge Wear demanded the right to read a prepared resolution. He read the resolution regarding pardons creating much excitement. Following the sustaining by the convention of the chairman's point of order President Stayton recognized a motion to adjourn.

Jim Is Knocked.

Reference to former Governor James E. Ferguson's speech of Thursday had been made earlier in the day by Robert Lee Bobbitt of Laredo, chairman of the house judiciary committee of the thirty-ninth legislature. Arising to speak on "unconstitutional measures," Bobbitt said:

"Judging from the reflections on a lot of fine people made from this platform yesterday by a distinguished citizen in an extemporaneous speech, it will be well for me to read my speech."

Bobbitt then read his address.

"Glaring defects in the system of legislation making in Texas, according to Bobbitt, are: The constitutional limit of 60 days of the regular session; election of members for one terms and the small salary paid; failure to limit the number of bills that may be introduced, and monopolizing of the time of important committees with local bills.

"The combination of these defects makes it easy for private influences to drive through dangerous legislation; oftentime a harrassed legislature passes a bill to get rid of a merciless lobby," said the speaker. "This state almost overnight has developed from a wilderness to a commonwealth; but we are yet struggling along with an ox-cart scheme of legislation."

"Any citizen who does not cooperate in the fight for better government, but, instead, devotes his energies to criticizing thsoe legslators who are makng a sacrifice to serve their state, is a peace time slacker," said Bobbitt.

The association endorsed the national defense day test of July 4, following an address by Major Henry Williams Stiness of the United States army.

Euliges of Rudolf Kleberg, Charles A. Culberson, and of some thirty other members of the association who died since the last meeting, were delivered today.

CAPTURE OUTLAW CREW.

Countraband Goods Found in Mexico By Federal Authorities.

DE LRIO, July 3.—Dispatches published in El Porvenir, Mexico newspaper of Guadalujara, just received here, declare that a cargo of contraband arms and ammunition was captured on Suchiate river in the state of Chiapas by Mexican federal officers. The seizure consisted of 500 rifles and 12,000 rounds of ammunition. The cargo was abandoned on approach of the soldiers and the rebels fled in the direction of the Guatemala frontier.

HOLIDAY FOR PRISONERS

Convicts At Houston Pen to Be Given Barbecue By Manager

HOUSTON, July 3.—The prisoners of the Blue Ridge state farm will be given a holiday and a big barbecue on the Fourth of July by H. C. Addision, manager of the farm.

Besides the 225 convicts on the farm, a number of guests have been invited, including the prison commissioners, members of the prisoners' aid society and others.

Western Union and other telegraph service to this city was not inpaired and reports that many lives had been lost were declared erroneous. Reports of many persons being injured also was declared to be fals

TOM MIX STARTS TODAY

"The Deadwood Coach" Shows Film Star In One of Favorite Roles

There probably will never be any story-book character more appealing—especially to the feminine mind—than a good bad man, a beloved outlaw, a generous bandit. For that reason, if for no other, "The Deadwood Coach," the William Fox production which opens tonight at the Strand theatre is destined to be popular.

The story is adapted from the famous stage play, "The Orphan," and Tom Mix, on Tony, rides triumphantly through scene after scene filled with hair-raising incident with all the gay abandon of his old time films.

There has been some attempt of late to make a kid-glove hero of the virile Mr. Mix. Somebody discovered that he could wear a tuxedo and spats with quite as much ease as he could wear chaps and sombrero, and sought to cash in on the phenomenon. It didn't work. Or, at least, it didn't work with the real Mix fans.

Tom Mix long ago enthroned himself in the hearts of his audience, as king of all cowboys; and that audience knows that a real cowboy doesn take kindly to a "boiled" collar.

So Mix is back again on Tony, riding hard, shooting straight and leaping from crag to crag to make rescues which make the heart beat fast and the pulses thrill.

Representative of Defunct Russia Wins Law Suit; To Apply It On Debt To U. S.

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP).—Sarge Ughet, who is a great sovereign nation all by himself, has won a court verdict for $853,000 and when he gets the money apparently he may spend it as he pleases, leading the life of Riley.

He is the sole diplomatic survivor of the defunct Kerensky regime in Russia. After the fall of the czar and the accession of the Kerensky government he came to the United States as financial secretary of the Kerensky ambassador, Boris Bakhmetieff, to whom the United States lent millions.

Bakhmetieff resigned when the soviets gained control. Federal courts sustained Ughet when he announced himself as the representative of the state of Russia.

In this capacity he sued the Lehigh Valley railroad for destruction of a shipment of war munitions bought by the czar's government in the Black Tom Island explosion July 30, 1916. Federal Judge Mack yesterday directed a $853,000 verdict in Ughet's favor, upsetting previous decisions.

Ughet says he is going to pay the money, if he gets it, to the United States treasury as part of the Kerensky war debt.

Agents of the soviet government, however, threaten to petition for a receiver. They say the money is going for a counter revolution under Grand Duke Nicholas.

REPORT SAYS COTTON NEEDS HEAVY RAINS

Condition of Crop Is Reported Low Due To Drouths

HOUSTON, July 3.—The Texas cotton crop now is in all stages of development, ranging from plants just through the ground to open bolls. While the condition is low, a good soaking rain soon probably would cause considerable improvement, the division of crop and livestock estimates of the United States department of agriculture reported today. In numerous sections, particularly south central counties there has been too little moisture to bring up the seed, or to support the sprouts.

"In this section there are places which have not had more than showers in a year and counties which have never had a cotton failure are in a distressing condition now," the report said. "On June 25, there were localities in every district where the crop was at a standstill on the lack of rain and millions of acres which did not exceed three to six inches in height. In many counties grasshoppers are becoming numerous. Weevil activity is reported in only a comparatively few counties. The crops are unusually clean and well cultivated but generally they are very young and shallow rooted. The most serious drawback this year is the lack of a deep season in the ground, the shortage of rain during the winter and spring and the irregular rainfall in May and June having supplied only sufficient moisture except in a few favored sections. In many of the south central counties the soil contains no available moisture.

"Much of the abandoned wheat, oats and corn acreage has been planted to cotton or feed crops and about two thirds of the new land broken this year has gone into cotton. It was estimated that the acreage planted and standing on June 25, was 103 per cent of that of 1924, the greatest increase occurring in the west center, west and southeast."

Pipe Line Company Winner in Tax Suit

TEXARKANA, Ark., July 3.—(AP)—Judge Frank A. Youmans, in a decision announced in federal district court here today ruled that pipe line companies operating underground lines between states are not subject to arbitrary taxes levied at a specific amount per mile by the county improvement districts. The decision was made in injunction proceedings filed by the Standard Pipe Line company against the Miller county highway and bridge district.

DROWNED IN BATH TUB.

WICHITA, Kan., July 3.—In trying to climb back into the bath tub in which his mother had just washed him, Keerlit Keefer, 2 years old, was drowned here late this afternoon. The babe was found hanging head downward in the tub with his legs dangling on the outside.

HOPPER FIGHT COST MUCH IN TILLMAN CO.

A Total of $7,072.50 Has Been Spent in Annual War

FREDERICK, Okla., July 4.—Tillman county, second greatest cotton producing county in Oklahoma, has already spent $7,072.50 combating the grasshoppers, says County Agent L. H. Beaty.

This amount includes only the materials for the mixing of the poison bran mash and includes no labor for mixing or spreading the poison. More than 13,000 pounds of arsenic has been used.

Other materials include bran, lemons and molasses. The latter commodity purchases amounts to more than $2,062.50, Beaty figures.

AMERICAN CUSTOMS WILL RULE AT ENGLISH WEDDING.

LONDON, July 3.—American customs will be followed at the wedding of Norman Bailey Woolworth, son of the late F. M. Woolworth of New York, to Miss Pauline Elizabeth Stanbury of London. The ceremony will be performed in the famous church of St. Margarety's Westminster on Tuesday.

The choir will meet the wedding party at the door and precede the bridesmaids, the bride and her father to the chancel, where the ushers and bridesmaids will line up in the shape of a fan while the bride proceeds to the altar.

An elaborate color scheme has been devised for the ceremony. All the bridesmaids frocks and picture hats have been made alike but each will be of a different pastel shade of pink, blue, green, mauve or some other pale tint. The flowers will be disposed to harmonize with the general color scheme. The bride will be attired in a silver effect dress with silver lace train.

The bridegroom's best man, Edward Maher, and the eight ushers are all from Yale. Two of the bridesmaids come from New York, two from Canada and the others are English.

There will be a reception at the bride's home, after which the couple will proceed to the continent for a honeymoon trip, later going to New York.

SHOOTS TWO ASSAILANTS

Kansas City Laundryman Kills One of Men

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 3.—(AP)—Percy B. Baker, 64-year-old superintendent of a local laundry, today shot two men who had assaulted and attempted to rob him. One of the bandits died. The other, bleeding profusely, was pulled into a motor car by a third accomplice who escaped.

Baker was attacked while en route to the laundry. He was knocked to the pavement and stunned.

Drawing a revolver he opened fire on his assailants. One of them, Rosolino Bonure, well known police character, fell fatally wounded. The other was shot through the body.

ANOTHER HIGH MARK SET BY BUILD PERMIT

Week's Total Amounts To $146,575; One Big Contract

Another high water mark in building permits was hung up here last week when new construction authorized from Monday to Friday, inclusive amounted to $146,575. This will take a top rank among records for weeks dweld of any unusually large structure started.

The most pretentious building authorized during the week was the new $15,000 ice plant to be erected by E. R. Brinker at Tenth and Baylor. The second in size was a permit for a $10,000 church building granted the Church of the Nazarene, which will erect a structure at 413 Burnett.

The balance of the week's permits were for smaller concerns, most of them moderately priced residences and repair jobs.

Balcones Fault Zone

Milam County.

Simms Oil company and the Reiter-Foster Oil corporation are starting up two deep tests on a 15,000-acre block in Milam county. Both are fault line tests in search of either the Woodbine, Edwards, Eagle Ford, serpenine or other oil pays that the Balconnes fault has yielded. Chiefly, however, the tests are for geological information which will be used to determine later locations.

No. 1 Stidham, 600 feet from the south and west lines, J. P. Jones survey, about 10 miles northeast of Cameron, near Jones Prairie, is moving out derrick timbers.

No. 1 McKinney, three miles west of Stidham No. 1, is 1,630 feet from the south and west lines, John K. Tyler survey, on the same 15,000-acre block. It is also moving out derrick and rig timbers.

Also in Milam county, Magnolia Petroleum company No. 1 Kime, S. P. Carson survey, is drilling in shale at 3,510 feet, a fault line test.

Butler Brothers and Braden, No. 1 Woodall, Fisher survey, is drilling at about 3,200 feet, with about 300 feet of chalk taken topped around 2,700 feet.

Near Reagan.

C. W. Harrison has made a new Balconnes faul line location in Falls county for No. 1 Bargainer, Jos. Matthews survey, one mile east of the little town of Reagan, and has a derrick built. Harrison's No. 1 Bletsch Thompson, Mitchell survey, five miles south of the old Koose gusher, is drilling.

Richardson Bros., Young

Richardson brothers will drill a 600-foot well three miles north of Loving on the Barrett farm to test out a shallow sand which showed considerable oil just below 500 feet in their dry hole on the C. W. Johnson lands, Edward W. Sargent survey. The new test is one mile southeast of the 1,200 foot duster.

Location is in the east end of a narrow 112-acre strip of the east 450 acres in the Edward W. Sargent survey.

Richardson brothers' No. 1, Colbert, in the center of the northwest of the southeast of section 178, E. T. Ry., survey, about 15 miles northwest of Albany, Shackelford county, is drilling below 350 feet. It is a 1,600-foot test.

HOUSTON MAN IS SHOT

Adversary Walks in and Begins Shooting Without Warning

HOUSTON, July 3.—J. G. Fisher, 30, is in St. Joseph's infirmary with serious bullet wounds in the neck and chest, following a shooting affray with Johnnie Loonan, 25, about 6 p. m., Friday.

The affair took place in a domino parlor. Witnesses stated there were no words passed between the two. Loonan is said to have walked into the domino parlor where Fisher was sitting and the shooting started at once.

Young Parents Arrested At Olney Draw Terms In Pen For Morphine Sales

FORT WORTH, July 3.—Tears of a youthful mother and her oath that she would die before using narcotics again availed nothing in federal court Friday and the girl was sentenced by Judge Wilson to 15 months confinement after she had entered a plea of guilty to possession and sale of morphine.

The young mother was Mrs. Trixie King, who was arrested three weeks ago at Olney, charged with violation of the Harrison narcotic act. Jack King, her husband and the father of her child, and G. C. King, his brother, also were arrested on similar charges. The King brothers also entered pleas of guilty. The husband was sentenced to 15 months and the brother to a year and a day in the penitentiary.

Judge Wilson, in passing sentence on King and his wife, said that he was not ordering them confined as a matter of punishment, but rather in an effort to help them rid themselves of the drug habit. Their baby, they told the court, is with the wife's mother in Oklahoma City.

TRUCK IS DEMOLISHED.

But Three Occupants of Borrowed Vehicle Are Unhurt.

WACO, July 3.—Richard Shakespear of China Springs, lost control of a borrowed truck at the top of a steep Cameron Park hill this afternoon and the car rolled back down the incline, smashing through a stone wall and turned over three times, landing in a ten-foot ditch, demolishing the truck but not seriously injuring any of the three passengers.

KNIGHTHOOD WILL MAKE NO DIFFERENCE TO PADEREWSKI

LONDON, July 3.—Paderewski has let it be known that, notwithstanding the conferment of a knighthood upon him a few days ago by King George, he will continue in the future to be known as plain Mister, Monsieur or Herr while away from his native Poland.

At home the great piano virtuoso will be "pan" — the equivalent for Mister—to everyone, as in the past. Poland is one of the most democratic countries in the world. Following the armistice when it became a republic, titles were abolished. Everyone was thus put on an equal footing.

Drosky drivers continued to tip their hats to bankers but the bankers in turn tipped theirs to the Drosky drivers, the shop keepers or even the street cleaners if by chance they happened to have a speaking acquaintance with them.

Paderewski, who frequently spends weeks and months at his country place near Cracow, hobnobs with his peasant neighbors, many of w hom call him "Ignace," his first name, or Jan, his second. As is the Polish custom Paderewski addresses his farm laborers as Pan, and they call him Pan, too.

The pianist says he has no intention of putting on airs at Warsaw, where he owns the largest hotel, at his country places in Poland and Switzerland or when he goes abroad to give concerts or associate with nobility.

The knighthood gives him the right to call himself and be addressed as 'Sir.'

JAIL GROWING FAMILIAR

Iowa Man Gets Particular About Cell He Is to Occupy.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, July 3.—The inside of the county jail is getting so familiar to Harold C. Andrews, coal merchant, that every time he is arrested for violating the motor laws he wants to know which cell he shall occupy.

He was released on a writ of habeas corpus a few days ago, after serving 20 days of a 120-day sentence. Two days later he was back in jail. Today he pleaded guilty to other counts and was given 60 days more and fined $100.

Local Hoover Agent Gets Trip As Prize

Mr. F. H. Whitley, in charge of the Hoover department of the Perkins-Timberlake company, left Thursday to take advantage of the first prize for the largest sale of Hoovers in this district. The prize was a trip to the Hoover factory in North Canton, Ohio, and one hundred dollars cash outside of his expenses.

Mr. Whitley was congratulated by Mr. Lloyd Doolittle, district manager at Dallas, as a top notcher.

Following a request made by Mr. Doolittle, Mr. Whitley went equipped with white shoes, white shirt, white trousers, and red socks. The rest of his equipment to be furnished at the factory.

TEN THOUSAND SEE RACES AT ELECTRA FRI.

Huge Crowd Takes Park In Celebration at Race Track

ELECTRA, July 3.—The first day of the W. T. Waggoner racing program here Friday brought out some of the best racing in northwest Texas. The races were started at 3 oclock before an estimated crowd of 10,000 racing fans.

Following the afternoon of racing a big barbecue was served to several thousand visitors at the race track. Over 46,000 pounds of beef were used in the giant barbecue, all the gift of Mr. Waggoner. Hundreds of loaves of bread and several barrels of pickles were consumed by the hungry crowd.

Carnival On Grounds.

The E. P. James carnival attraction company was on the grounds with thirty or more amusement tents, a large ferris wheel, a merry-go-round, and many amusement concessions.

The Doc Holland's Hippodrome troupe entertained the big crowd between races with several balancing and fire-eating acts.

Mr. Waggoner made a short talk to the race track crowd preceding the races. He was introduced by Judge Barwise, attorney for the Fort Worth and Denver railroad.

The program for Friday calls for five big races, a series of performances at the track by the vaudeville trope, and a huge fireworks display in the evening. A crowd exceeding 12,000 is expected for the second day of races.

Man Sues Railroad And Gets $30,000 Judgement Against Negro Porter

BEAUMONT, July 3.—There is a negro porter in the service of the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western railroad 10 years ago that has a judgment of $30,000 for personal injuries hanging against him as the result of the verdict of a jury entered in the fifty-eighth district court here today.

Here is how it happened:

Maurice Baccarratt filed suit against the railroad on May 3, 1915, charging that while he was riding the "blinds" on a passenger train from DeQuincy to Beaumont on April 28, 1915, that a negro porter hurled a rock or something of that nature and knocked him off and under the wheels. As a result he lost his left hand and was permanently crippled in the right. The case was tried three times before and "mistrial" was the result each time. Today a jury brought in the verdict giving Baccarratt the $30,000 prayed for. A further examination of the verdict showed that in answering directly on the special issues, "no" was written after the question was the porter acting as an agent for the railroad when he hurled that rock. This would make the judgment run against the negro porter, it is contended, instead of against the railroad company and attorneys for Baccurratt filed a motion to set aside the verdict today. The attorneys for the railroad company insists on the verdict's being entered, Judge George C. O'Brien before whom the case was tried has the motions under advisement.

Suzanne Captures Wimbledon Singles

WIMBLEDON, July 3.—Today the all-English tennis tournament brought forth the expected and the unexpected. Suzanne Lenglen, the French marvel, did what had been expected when she captured the women's singles for the sixth time since 1919 by defeating the young English girl, Joan Fry, 6-2, 6-0. The American doubles pair, Ray Casey of California and John Hennessey of Indiana accomplished the unexpected when they overthrew the favorites in the men's doubles semi-final, Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet of France, 7-5, 5-7, 9-7, 6-4, and entered the final against Jean Borotra and La Coste also of France.

Body to Take up Obligations of That Nation To America

PARIS, July 3. —(AP)—The French government has decided to send a mission to the United States with the object of reaching an agreement with the American debt funding commission relative to the payment of France's debt.

The plan was approved by the council of ministers today and it is taken for granted that the cabinet at full session tomorrow will give its formal assent. It is even considered likely that the cabinet will proceed to discuss concerning the make-up of the mission and the time of its departure.

Foreign Minister Briand has asserted that the mission will start as soon as possible, but Finance Minister Caillaux's pre-occupotion with grave financial problems has caused September to be mentioned as the most likely time.

It took courage and vision and strength, nearly a century and a half ago, for those patriots to write this nation's charter of freedom, and make it mean something.

There are tasks today that call in no less measure, for courage, vision and strength—in nation, state, city, in everyday things.

Declaration of Independence

(Unanimously Adopted in Congres s, July 4, 1776, At Philadelphia)

WHEN, in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are institutel among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evince a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to altar their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolution, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands.

He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers.

He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has created a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies, without the Consent of our legislature.

He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: For quatering large bodies of armed troops among us: For protecting them by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world: For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury: For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offenses: For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighboring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments: For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated Government here by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty and perfidy scarcely parallel in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation.

He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms. Our repeated Petitions have been answered by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

WE THEREFORE, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be free and independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is and ought to be totally dissolved; and then as free and independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor.
