LUBBOCK SLAYER HANGS HIMSELF IN CELL

U. S. Army Will Protect Calles At Laredo, Prosecutor Is Informed

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Three lives have paid toll for the failure of the city of Wichita Falls in earlier years to require permits and the meeting of certain requirements and safeguards in the erection of buildings within the city limits, for faulty construction was doubtless the cause of the crash of the wall of the Antlers hotel in which three men lost their lives Thursday morning.

The city employs firemen to safeguard our lives and property at the risk of their own lives. This risk of life is likely to come at any fire, whether the building is properly constructed or is a shell likely to collapse in the midst of a fire.

We are informed that the city cannot legally provide insurance for the men who thus risk their lives in our behalf. If an individual fireman takes out insurance himself the rate is so high as to be almost prohibitive.

We are therefore all the more under obligation to give as much as we can, which will be little enough, to the fund now being subscribed for the families of the two men who lost their lives in the crash of a wall Thursday morning.

And it will be poor appraisal of their sacrifice if we do not do all that we can do as a city and as citizens to see that defective construction of buildings already erected are remedied as quickly as possible and that all buildings in the future meet the requirements of safe construction. This is a responsibility that rests upon all of us and for which we are all accountable.

Now comes the season when the —we almost said, festive—candidate doth appear. The candidate is rarely festive. He's too much in earnest for that, and if we were a candidate we'd be earnest, too.

Some folks are worried over what the "Hoovercrats" will do and others what the "regulars" will do. That does not worry this home town talker. He believes the regulars will be as glad as the Hoovercrats to see them back or vice versa. When that is the situation there ought to be no trouble.

Of course there will be dissenters on both sides but they will be in such a small minority that they can't cause a great deal of trouble.

It's a pleasure to turn from politics, which is always controversial, to the subject of fishing. You doubtless remember that this talker in starting this colym asked for letters from readers on almost any subject. Here's one from someone who at least read about our luck in fishing at Lake Wichita:

Dear H. T. T.:

Most of us have our pet theories which we should like to see aired or advocated in the public prints. Your recent invitation for contributions to your column, it seems to me, should bring out much material for discussion, for we are a rather opinionated people whose hobbies only infrequently appear in the newspapers chiefly because most of us don't like to sign our true names to such communications unless the matter be of some real import.

Since you seem interested in fishing, although you admit you departed from Lake Wichita without a single crappie, I ask that you give a little space to my own pet theory —that of the regular stocking of Lake Wichita (and other nearby lakes) with fish.

The city of Wichita Falls and the chamber of commerce annually spend several hundred dollars in various forms of public recreational enterprises. Why don't these organizations devote a little work and a small part of their funds to the regular stocking of the lake which is hardly five miles from the heart of the business section?

On first thought this may seem a rather silly proposition. Yet, I believe that more people in Wichita Falls fish than participate in any other form of outdoor activity. Two weeks ago, when the fish were biting good, it is estimated that more than 6,000 persons fished at Lake Wichita in less than three days. Can you name any other sport in which 6,000 Wichitans participate in three days or even three weeks? As for visitors—the people we like to impress with our city's true worth—I believe more of them take a few hours for fishing while guests here than ever go to either of our golf courses, see our baseball games or football games or enjoy our park programs.

From the commercial viewpoint, I think a lake well stocked with fish within five miles of downtown Wichita Falls would be of more value as an advertisement and a builder of good will than any other recreational feature we could offer. From a public viewpoint, I know of no enterprise that would bring as much wholesome pleasure to as many people as would good fishing close to home.

The cost of stocking the lake annually would be comparatively small. Rearing ponds for the growth of bass and crappie fry would be inexpensive. From 200,000 to 300,000 fingerling size fish could be placed in the lake each year without increasing materially the burden of city or chamber of commerce expenses. We cannot expect the Izaak Walton league to maintain the supply of fish, for the membership of this organization numbers only a small part of those who enjoy the recreational facilities of Lake Wichita. I think the thing is a worthwhile municipal or civic project. But as I have said, this is my pet theory. "IKE."

Thanks, Ike, there's meat in the coconut in that suggestion and would be more fish in Lake Wichita if it were carried out. If 200,000 or 300,000 fingerling crappie and bass could be placed in that lake it would be the biggest attraction that could possibly be provided. Maybe h. t. t. could even have some luck.

Bring on your letters, folks, they'll put a little thought and variety and spice into this colym. H. T. T. needs help.

EX-PRESIDENT OF MEXICO TO HAVE IMMUNITY

State Department Stalls Valls' Plan to Nab Notable

DEATH PLOT CHARGE

Warrant Names Calles in Conspiracy to Murder Two Officers

LAREDO, Texas, Dec. 13. (AP)—The United States government will protect, with armed force if necessary, the passage of Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, through Laredo, John A. Valls, district attorney here who has threatened to arrest Calles in connection with the slaying of two Mexicans in 1922, was informed today.

Richard Boyce, American consul at Nuevo Laredo, across the Rio Grande in Mexico, called at the office of the district attorney today and notified him officially that the American government would protect, with armed force the diplomatic immunity which it granted General Calles when it vised his diplomatic passport.

Warrant Held

A warrant charging Calles with conspiracy in the death of Gen. Lucio Blanco and Col. Aurelio Martines here in 1922 is in the hands of the sheriff, but Valls announced today that he had notified the state department that he would respect a certificate from that department attesting Calles diplomatic immunity.

Valls' only reply to the threat of armed force was to say:

"We will wait for Friday the thirteenth to pass before making any further comments."

Valls sent a communication to the state department in which he

Carl Williams Blamed for Failure Of Board to Stabilize Cotton Prices

C. L. Stealey Says Oklahoma Member of Board 'Protects His Victims'; Bares 'Sure System' for Market

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. (AP)—Carl Williams, the cotton representative on the farm board, was charged in testimony before the senate committee investigating cotton exchanges today by C. L. Stealey, former general manager of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers' association, with being responsible for what he termed the board's failure to stabilize cotton and wheat prices.

Saying Williams had divulged to him an "absolutely dependable method" by which he could "foretell the future course of the markets," Stealey testified that cooperatives, including the Oklahoma association, had lost heavily in gambling operations by following Williams' advice.

"Protects His Victims"

"It seems logical," he said, "that this man would desire to protect his victims," explaining that this could be done only by keeping the price down.

The committee is investigating speculative activities on the New York, Chicago and New Orleans exchanges in an attempt to ascertain the cause of the present depressed market.

Stealey's statements were denied in a telegram from the Oklahoma association, but Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, a member of the committee, said the farm board had been "decidedly unfriendly" toward a proposal to raise the present loan basis from 16 to 20 cents a pound, as suggested by southern senators.

May Call Officials

Stealey urged that officers of the association be called, and Chairman Townsend said the committee would decide later.

The testimony of the Oklahoma man, who described himself as a farmer and producer as well as a newspaper editor, came in the midst of a long examination of J. F. Henican, president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, and Edward S. Butler, its former president.

FIRE RELIEF REACHES $712

Akin and Jones Make Plea For Contributions

The special fund begun Thursday for the aid of the families of the two firemen killed and the five injured in the collapse of a wall at the Antlers hotel fire Thursday morning had mounted to $712.50 Friday night.

A total of 12 contributions were received Friday. The fund was started by a group of representative business men of the city in conjunction with the Wichita Falls Safety council and the subscription list was placed in the hands of The Daily Times and Record News. Lester Jones, president of the Wichita Falls Safety council, and Mayor J. W. Akin have issued pleas to the city to express in a material way what could not adequately be expressed in words of sympathy to pay in part the tremendous debt of gratitude to the injured firemen and the widows of Turner and Anderson.

Contributions of any size will be accepted for the fund. Expenses attendant on the funerals and arrangements and the hospital bills will prove a heavy drain on each family.

The special fund will be used toward paying hospital bills and the remainder will be divided between the families of the two who were killed.

Quanah Man Hurt In Road Mishap

Jack Henderson of Quanah, Texas, was critically injured about 8:30 o'clock Friday night when he was struck by an automobile while attempting to get his own car back onto the pavement of the Henrietta highway about eight miles from Wichita Falls.

He was started for a hospital by a passing motorist and was transferred to an ambulance which met the speeding machine about half way to the city. The injured man was taken to the Wichita General hospital. His condition was described as "extremely critical" by the attending physician. Injuries consisted of a badly shattered thigh bone, a terrific concussion of the brain and other cuts and bruises in addition to a finger crushed off bythe impact.

Henderson had not regained consciousness at 1 a. m. Saturday, almost five hours after the accident.

He was struck by a machine driven by H. A. Pendleton, 1605 Buchanan street, who was said to have been blinded by the headlights of another automobile parked near Henderson's car.

Aha! It's the Hungry Frenchmen to Blame For Lengthy Skirts

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (AP)—Foreign entanglements in the form of long skirts decreed by Paris style dictators were denounced today by New York club women.

After hearing the skirt debated at length at a meeting sponsored by the New York State Federation of Club Women, the 600 delegates indicated by applause their approval of a statement that "American women cannot be dictated to by a small coterie of meal ticket seeking Frenchmen in Paris."

Six models, three dressed in the short skirts of last year and three in the new longer style, were called to the platform. The short skirts won a popularity vote from the audience.

Gertrude Lawrence, English actress, wearing a skirt 12 inches from the floor, defended long skirts. She said:

"The new styles with their long graceful lines are more aesthetic. They are easier to look at, and that should be a determining reason for us."

Rita Weiman, short story writer, arrayed in a frock which was 17 inches from the floor voiced the declaration of American independence of Paris style-tyranny in a speech championing the short skirt. She said:

"My task is almost helpless. I am pitted against the entire world of fashion and commerce. But we must fight. After years of comfort we find ourselves trying to manipulate dresses that drag on the dance floor.

"I agree every woman likes to cross a ball room floor in a trailing dress. But we must remember the dust we pick up. They are trying to make us look quaint again.

"I don't believe in knees except in bathing suits. But I do believe in honesty. The new styles are not honest. I do believe American women should refuse to be meal tickets to the foreign style mongers."

Arthur (The Great) Shires Will Meet Solid Hack Wilson in Ring

Chicago Promoter Seeks Bigger Arena After Signing 'What-A-Man" With "Dempsey of Dugouts"

By DALE HARRISON
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—The battle not of the century, but of the centuries, will take place in Chicago early in January between Charles Arthur (the great) Shires and Lewis (Hack) Wilson "the Dempsey of the Dugouts."

Promoter Jim Mullen came to terms with Wilson today by telephone to Martinsburg, W. Va. Mullen promised Wilson $10,000 to meet Shires, and immediately upon receiving acceptance, started figuring on possibilities for moving the battle to a larger arena. The clash promises to become a huge attraction and the White City arena which will accommodate only 5,000 spectators, would not be large enough to meet the demand. Mullen planned, if it could be arranged, to borrow the Chicago coliseum or possibly the Chicago stadium.

The Great Shires Ready

Shires already has pronounced himself ready, willing and anxious to meet any and all comers, preferably Gene Tunney.

Shires is the White Sox first baseman, but he admits to talent of high order in several other sports. His claim to boxing brilliance was born of two ex-officio combats with his erstwhile baseball manager, Lena Blackburne. His one professional ring appearance last Monday night ended in exactly 21 seconds with his 225 pound opponent, Dangerous Dan Daly of Cleveland, on the floor.

"That," said Arthur (Whataman) Shires, after helping his victim from the canvass, "is how I sock when I'm in good humor. I hate to think what'll happen if I get mad."

Wilson Some Battler

Hack Wilson, rotund and fragile ankled, is of more retiring disposition but he is not without his fight victories. His activity in this line has been recognized by the National league, which upon occasion has fined and suspended him when he became hostile to the peace and dignity of the baseball field.

Wilson expressed a willingness to take on the entire Cincinnati club last summer and actually did come to blows with Pete Donohue and Ray Kolp, pitchers. A Chicago milk

MAN CONVICTED FOR SLAYING WIFE SUICIDES

Clay Lester Uses His Belt To Choke Out Life in Lubbock Jail

HAD TO BEND KNEES

Prisoner Could Have Relieved Strain by Putting Feet Down

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Dec. 13.—Clay Lester, 35, convicted of murder and sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary choked himself to death in his cell in the Lubbock county jail shortly afternoon today with his belt.

He was convicted last Tuesday night in the 99th district court here, seven of the jury voting for a death sentence on the first ballot, on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal shooting of his estranged wife, Vergie, Oct. 24.

Testimony brought out at the trial showed that he had shot his wife in the head two hours after she had filed charges of aggravated assault against him. Eye-witnesses to the shooting stated on the witness stand that Lester not only shot his wife but he straddled her body and beat her in the head while she lay dying.

He was found by officers in his cell hanging limp from a plumbing pipe with his belt around his neck. He had been forced to bend his knees to hold his feet off the floor in order that the weight of his body might make the belt tight. Had he changed his mind after he started the choking, he could have easily stood erect and loosened the belt from choking him.

Those who found Lester's body in his cell believe that he had been dead about an hour when found at 2 o'clock today. He was rushed to the Bynum Bros. Funeral home where many curious people rushed for a chance of seeing his body.

Just a week before Lester pleaded with a brother, R. B. Lester, to bring him some poison. "If you'll do me this favor," Lester's brother quoted him, "I'll end all this."

Lester left a brief note to the brother. "Please take charge of all I have," it said.

Mrs. Virgie Lester was shot to death Oct. 24 at a cafe which she operated here. At the trial Lester pleaded insanity. When the jury brought in its verdict, sentencing him to life imprisonment, the convicted man, when the verdict was read, expressed his disgust.

Declaring it was a cold-blooded slaying, Lester asserted that if the jury found he was sane when he committed the crime he should have been sentenced to die in the electric chair.

DEEP OIL MEET AT NOON TODAY

Stockholders to Elect Directors at Luncheon

Permanent organization of the Deep Oil Development company, subscriptions to stock in which now total considerably more than $600,000, will be effected at a meeting of stockholders and prospective investors at the Wichita club Saturday noon, according to plans announced recently by Frank Kell, principal sponsor of the movement.

Reservations Asked

Those planning to attend Saturday's luncheon have been requested to notify the Deep Oil Development company's headquarters in the Hamilton building by 10 a. m. Saturday, in order that reservations may be made. No charge will be made, it was announced by those in charge.

Preliminary work of bringing the deep drilling organization into being began in September, when about 90 men representing Wichita and surrounding counties met at the Wichita club as the guests of Mr. Kell and determined to launch such a campaign. Three weeks later a meeting of about 200 citizens of Wilbarger, Clay, Archer, Young and Wichita counties resulted in the completion of a temporary organization charged with securing of a charter and creation of a fund to range between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

The finance committee appointed that day, headed by Harry Hines, at once set the larger figure as the goal toward which the project would work, and plans for financing were quickly made. In the meantime, a committee headed by Leslie Humphrey filed the necessary papers for incorporating the company.

Kell to Preside

Temporary directors elected at the same time include Frank Kell, N. H. Martin, J. J. Perkins, James E. McKanna, W. B. Hamilton, John Hirschi, J. I. Staley, W. M. McGregor, L. H. Cullum, J. S. Bridwell, J. T. Harrell and John F. O'Donohoe.

Mr. Kell, who recently returned from the East, where he sat in conferences called by President Herbert Hoover for discussion of industrial conditions in the country, will preside at Saturday's luncheon. He indicated Wednesday that observations drawn from those conferences may be mentioned Saturday at the Deep Oil Development company meeting.

Indictments Warranted In Vote Probe, He Says

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 13. (AP)—Sufficient evidence was presented to the grand jury of the federal district court at Brownsville this week in the Hidalgo county election fraud cases to warrant an indictment, according to Fred Horowitz, special assistant attorney general, who arrived in San Antonio today.

The report exonerating all those who were accused of irregularities was not on his recommendation, he said.

"I think sufficient evidence was presented to warrant indictments. I have no other statement to make and so far as I am concerned the investigation is closed."

Connie Franklin's Former Pal Says 'Ghost Man' Must Be Somebody Else

By DUKE MERRITT
United Press Special Correspondent

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 13.—A knot of Ozark mountain ment formed a tight circle near here late today, drawn close together by an intense interest.

Externally the scene—laid between the log cabin of John Fulks and the woodpile of Stanley Younger—resembled a gathering for a cock fight. Actually it had to do with the possible life or death of five men of the community who are in jail charged with murdering Connie Franklin, a stranger who came into the hills last year, then mysteriously disappeared.

In the center of the group was a man who claims to be Franklin and who returned here several days ago and threw the whole question of whether there had been a murder into a snarl around which mountain folk rallied with loudly-voiced opinions.

Besides the returned "Franklin" was Coleman Foster, brought here from Oklahoma by the state and claiming to have been "buddies" with Connie Franklin for a long time."

"Have you ever seen this man before?" asked Hugh Williamson, prosecuting attorney, of the "Franklin" he contends is an imposter.

"No, I don't recollect him," replied the "ghost man."

"It's Somebody Else"

Ben Williamson, brother of the prosecutor and chief counsel for the defense, turned to Coleman and asked if this man was the real Franklin, the man who courted Tiller Rumimer, illiterate girl who was among those who told of the supposed murder and said her "Connie was burned in a woodpile."

"No, this ain't Connie," Foster declared. "There ain't nothing hardly about the man that's like my old buddy. He's somebody else."

Partisans of both camps were among those who crowded closer. Coleman looked uneasy. There was John Fulks and Stanley Younger and "Crick" Greenway, relatives of the five men accused of carrying terror through the broken and isolated country, using a horsewhip to enforce their wills, beating and burning Franklin.

"Let's get out of here," Foster said to the attorneys. "I'm sorta afraid of 'Crick' Greenway."

The man who Foster has accused of being an imposter has stayed at Greenway's home since he came here from Humphrey, Ark.

Foster Leaves Crowd

Foster was led away from the score of men who returned to debate of the sensation that has almost stopped work at the sawmill and has thrown the long years of routine in the hills into discard with its distractions.

A little apart, Foster told the prosecutor and defense lawyer:

"That man ain't Connie Franklin. Connie had a mole on his neck that I used to shave around. Connie was dumb like and this man is smart. Connie had a crooked toe on his right foot and you see for yourself when this man took off his shoe, his toes are straight. Anyways, Connie's hair was blonde and his eyes gray."

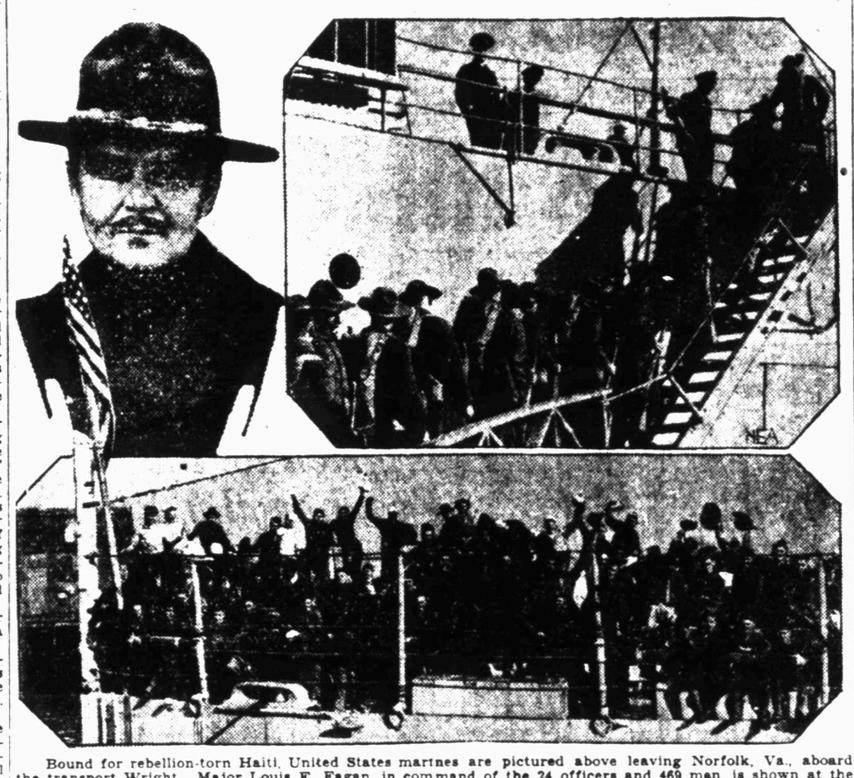

The "Franklin" attorneys examined has black hair and eyes.

Hugh Williamson then announced he would prosecute the five defendants to the fullest extent of the law in the trial opening Monday. He expressed himself as thoroughly convinced the real Franklin was slain.

The defense said another attempt would be made to establish that the man here is Franklin through railroad workers at McNeal, Ark., with whom Franklin once worked.

"There's not much more I can say," the man who has held the leading role in the strange play of contradictions here said after today's scene provided a climax. "If I'm Connie Franklin, I don't know what's got into Colie. He's double-crossing me."

Houston Couple Found Shot to Death by Girl

HOUSTON, Dec. 13. (UP)—Relatives of Virgil Crouch, 25, and Verna Crouch, 20, found the couple shot to death at the home of the girl's mother here this afternoon.

The woman's body was found in a bedroom with a bullet in her chest. Crouch's body was found in an adjoining room, with a bullet wound in his head. A .45 caliber double-action pistol was found near his body.

A. S. McCann, step-father of the slain woman, said the couple had quarreled before the shooting. They had been estranged for some time.

Texas Boy, 15, Held For Killing Playmate

GOOSE CREEK, Texas, Dec. 13. (UP)—Yesterday a schoolboy playing basket ball, today Jack Brashiere, 15, of Goose Creek, is charged as a murderer.

His victim was a smaller and younger schoolmate, Carl Rayner, 14, who died after a schoolboy quarrel from a head injury.

Brashiere hit Rayner three times and when Rayner fell backwards his head struck a railroad rail. Three hours later he died.

Friday, 13th, Proves "Innocent as New-Born Canary"

Reporter Seeks Vainly for Evil Results From Jinx Day

Those who do believe in Friday the Thirteenth as an institution are likely to find plenty of bad luck in any given day to fill the bill. "Who do," spelled differently, but saying the same as "hoodoo," and there you have it. Or, it has you, as the case may be.

Friday, yesterday, brought information of one energetic young business man in this city who admitted having gotten himself engaged on the fateful day, and although the affair thus initiated culminated several years ago, he yet refused to assert that it has back-fired. His condition, according to his own self-appraisement, represents no unusual need for life or accident insurance—and in that fact he saw even a ray of good fortune. But he's one of those fellows who could fall down a coal mine shaft and come up crowned with a diamond tiara and with free gold fillings in his teeth. Other evidence should be found to measure the authenticity of the day's traditional powers.

Black cats and ladders taken separately seem to be the favorite horrors for Friday the Thirteenth, but at a late hour no black cat had waylaid a single Wichitan, according to reports. No check was made of benedicts east of the Denver tracks, however.

True, there was a ring around the moon Wednesday night, but whether it presaged a political, bootleg, or the ordinary bathtub variety of unwelcome ring could not be ascertained locally.

Of all the loose bricks which might have fallen to dent the crania of otherwise undented—or undaunted—Wichitans, not one single brick was seen to follow such fell impulses Friday. Reports of local hospitals contained no mention of damaged bricks brought in for treatment.

On the basis of prolonged haunting of hospitals, morgues, filling stations, and news rooms throughout the day, one may declare that Friday the Thirteenth is much maligned, thoroughly harmless, and innocent as a newborn canary—but he should of course, cross his fingers. Saftey first.

BUSINESS TONE IS OPTIMISTIC

Tenth Federal District In Improved Condition

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 13. (UP)—An optimistic tone continued to prevail over business conditions in the 10th federal reserve district, and, with the exception of seasonal declines in some lines trade volume is reported equal to or above the preceding weeks.

Retail Christmas trade with few exceptions, notably shoes, is as good or better, merchants report, than last year.

Although Christmas stocks are practically complete, short and small lot orders make wholesale trade heavy and well distributed over the district.

Some industries, such as lead, zinc and oil, are experiencing a seasonal decline over last month. Flour output shows a slight slowing down from recent weeks, and slightly under a year ago.

An Oklahoma City survey showed that more than $37,000,000 will be spent in construction work during 1930. Manufacturing concerns will spend between $16,000,000 and $15,000,000 in expansion while refineries will add about $4,000,000.

Business of all kinds transacted by checks in the 10th federal reserve district totaled $18,500,000,000 to Dec. 4 this year, according to reserve bank figures, exceeding all of 1928 by $1,000,000,000. Retail department store business for November showed a 6.9 per cent increase over the same month of 1928, according to the same authority.

Artecedents of Wife Of Oil Baron Attacked

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (INS)—Among the charges contained in Edward E. Kern's suit for $750,000 against Mrs. Col. Henry H. Rogers, and his cousins, Count and Countess Zichy, it was learned today, is the allegation that the oil millionaire's bride is an illegitimate daughter of the late Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria.

Papers in Kern's suit, which charge that the defendants caused him to be discharged as Colonel Rogers' confidential secretary because of his knowledge of Mrs. Rogers' antecedents and her early life, were filed in the supreme court Wednesday.

There hasn't been a bank failure in China for more than 900 years, it is said.

'GREAT' SHIRES MEETS WILSON

Charles Arthur to Battle Powerful Cub

"Just another one of those amateur pugs trying to cash in on my reputation," he said. "I never regarded outfielders as much, anyway. If he lasts one round, which is highly improbable, he won't have to take off weight this summer. I'll knock it off."

"Workout" Monday

Never in the history of the ring has a newcomer been in such demand as "Shy" Arthur. Promoter Mullen had 42 challenges the last time he counted and the telegraph companies were considering the route to Mullen's office a regular beat.

Challenges have come from baseball players, house detectives and even a penitentiary where a convict became so incensed at Shires' boasting that he announced himself even willing to go straight to get a crack at the Shires chin—"if he'll keep it shut long enough."

Lefty O'Doul, Phillies outfielder, said if Shires fights like he plays first base, "he's a setup for me." The house detective at the hotel where Shires had his final encounter with Lena Blackburne last summer, is another who has pleaded with Mullen for a chance to cut the great Art down to his size.

So many are the demands for a whack at Mr. Shires that Mullen is working out plans for what he modestly calls "the tournament of brag." He hopes to have the challengers meet in a series of elimination contests, the winner to have the right to put a padlock on Shires' chin, if such a thing is possible.

Shires said he would be glad to assist Mullen in any way.

"If you get too many of these self-called tough guys," said Arthur, "I'll take two on a night, or at the same time. The quicker the better. The guy I want is Gene Tunney."

"You've been married longer; maybe you can tell me . . ."

"..... he used to be so cheerful," Alice said, dabbing at her eyes.

JUNE thought something terrible must have happened when Alice came to her in tears and said that she and George weren't getting along well after being married only three months.

". . . . . he used to be so cheerful," Alice said, dabbing at her eyes, "and now he's so irritable—especially at meal times. This morning after breakfast he growled a good-bye to me and . . . . . ."

"How many cups of coffee did he have?" June asked, shrewdly.

"One—and he drank only half."

"What kind of coffee was it?"

"It was . . . why, I really don't remember. What difference does it make?"

"All the difference in the world, my dear," June told her chum. "A husband without good coffee at breakfast is like a bear. I made the same mistake with Dan. You get White Swan Coffee for George and . . . well, you just get it. You'll get the surprise of your life."

Alice got both—the coffee and the surprise.

It never takes a bridegroom any longer to begin praising his wife's coffee than it takes for her to discover White Swan. Its appetizing aroma and satisfying flavor are always welcomed as essential to the full enjoyment of every meal.

The delicious quality of White Swan is the result of many highly perfected processes; some as old and artful as the happy custom of serving coffee; others as new as science can devise.

Modern roasting ovens bring out the natural flavor of the imported coffees which are so nicely combined and balanced in achieving the full, rich quality of the White Swan blend.

After roasting, White Swan is packed in sealed tins and handled promptly. No chances are taken with the freshness of its flavor. New York Central Line Plans Gigantic Merger

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (INS)—The New York Central railroad, it was announced today, plans to put into effect on Feb. 1, its $2,000,000,000 merger scheme, the largest merger in point of property value to be consummated in the United States.

The lines which will be joined with the New York Central are the Michigan Central and the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis.

Last January, the Interstate Commerce commission approved the Central's acquisition of the two lines on condition that provision be made for the acquisition of certain short lines in the territories served by the merged roads. These short lines have not yet been obtained, but it was learned that the commerce commission believes negotiations for them have proceeded to a point where the New York Central may be permitted to put its merger into effect.

A note, crumpled in Fitzgerald's fist, gave the first clue to the proposed break.

While much of the script was illegible because it had been written by a hard pencil, the note, which was in Fitzgerald's handwriting, had noted three possible means of escape.

NEW FLU CURE NOW HOPED FOR

Isolation of Influenza Bacteria Is Reported

CHICAGO, Dec. 13. (UP)—Science today envisioned a cure for the ravages of the dreaded influenza germ with the announcement by Dr. Isidore S. Falk, 30-year-old professor of bacteriology at the University of Chicago, that he has succeeded in discovering and isolating the hitherto elusive "flu" bacteria.

Dr. Falk quietly made the announcement in his laboratory last night before a group of 50 students. His momentous discovery climaxes a six-year period of research in general experiments for the isolation of the germ.

Making no bold predictions, Dr. Falk stated his successful research now brings the "hopeful prospect that an antitoxin for influenza" will be possible.

"I hope that a vaccine prepared from dead microbes of the influenza germ can be absorbed through the mucous membrane of the nose and throat and in this manner effect a cure," he explained.

Unknown until now by medical science, the influenza germ which has taken its toll in thousands of lives is of the pleomorphic streptococcus type, according to Dr. Falk.

"It's appearance," he said, "is like a microscopic chain of unmatched beads which a child has strung together."

Dr. Falk used a group of Simian monkeys to aid in the "mobilization" campaign which he and his associates began one year ago when the influenza epidemic was at its height.

Dr. Falk is an alumnus of Yale university.

TICK CAMPAIGN GETS RESULTS

Many Texas Herds Still Are Harassed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. (AP)—The cattle tick that has taken a toll in death as great as 90 per cent from herds in southern, southwestern and western states is being gradually eradicated.

Although the tick continues to harass herds in many sections of Texas, the agriculture department reports better conditions are found in California and the southern states.

Appearing before the house appropriations agriculture subcommittee Dr. John H. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal husbandry, said:

"This last year we released from quarantine 23 whole counties and parts of five counties; over 22,000 square miles in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. The release in Oklahoma removed all of the federal quarantine from that state."

Dr. Mohler said eradication work was needed in Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, and Florida, and that it should be continued in Mississippi, although conditions had improved to some extent.

California, he added, had constructed a fence from the Pacific ocean to the Sierra Madre mountains to keep out tick infestation, while Georgia was considering building a fence on the Florida border since it has been freed of the tick. Texas, he continued, was considering building a fence along the Rio Grande to keep out Mexican infestation.

Sailor's Small Son Dies From Liquor's Effects

CHICAGO, Dec. 13. (UP)—Like a grown up sailorman, Jimmy Rogers used to "go to sea" on the lake steamer on which his father was a sailor, and like many a seafarer, the 4-year-old died from too much whisky.

A pint bottle half full of moonshine liquor, remnants of a quantity that had been used to celebrate the escape of the father, William Rogers, when the steamer Wisconsin sank in a gale on Lake Michigan more than a month ago, was Jimmy's undoing.

Artist Tells Of Work Of Woman's Choral Club

By LOIS PARKER

Ensemble singing has always been considered of paramount value in the life of European music, and rapidly our own country is realizing the real beauty, the variety and charm produced by choral organizations. The value and demand was evinced as late as in the Sunday Times and Record News, for in that issue we read that Cesare Sodero, maestro of the N. B. C. programs has assembled a group of 200 voices which will supplement his symphony orchestra and which he calls a vocal symphony.

An appreciation and encouragement should be the reward of the director and each singer in the Woman's Choral club for bringing to Wichita Falls the most excellent as well as the varied and interesting programs. The program to be presented Monday evening at the First Presbyterian church will feature compositions from the romantic period of music. Many of the most successful modern compositions both light opera and popular numbers derive their origin from the most beautiful and fascinating music of this period.

It is not alone what we learn in music, but what we see as well. The vivid yet eternal pictures that our own great masters of music have painted for us in sound. The Woman's Choral club created for me a vivid true picture seven years ago with their singing of that lovely number, Edgar's "Snow." These ennobling and uplifting memories are priceless and it is just such a memory that will linger when these voices will sing a favorite on Monday evening, "By Moonlight," Robert Schumann's poignant tone picture of the earth floating in the serene and shimmering moonlight.

The program is excellently balanced, bringing us these favorites of the romantic period and interesting compositions.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The word "tragedy" is a great and alarming thing.

◇ ◇ ◇

The terrible holocaust of Thursday morning was tragedy in the stark meaning of the word.

◇ ◇ ◇

People far away read the story and exclaimed over the horror.

◇ ◇ ◇

But it was a part of Wichita. Men known and loved, passed out in giving their lives for their fellow men.

◇ ◇ ◇

Heroism is a glorious thing but it does not stop the ache of a lonely heart.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Greater love hath no man" begins a tender verse, full of glorious promise, but its shining light sheds little glow on one left behind.

◇ ◇ ◇

Time is the only healer. And time heals because it deadens the torn edges of wounds.

◇ ◇ ◇

Beneath a scar there is a tissue that twinges with the sweetness of memories that can be no more.

◇ ◇ ◇

Life's greatest heroes are the unacclaimed; the lovers of those who went out in a blaze of glory.

◇ ◇ ◇

One may march into battle unafraid. There's an uplift about the bugle blowing and when one marches by your side, there's not so much loneliness.

◇ ◇ ◇

Money Will Not Buy Things Most Worth Possessing

Why It Pays a Girl to Be Good—Should This Wife Return His Mother's Jewels to Her Divorced Husband? — Are Girls Spoiling Modern Youths?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a poor girl, working for my living, and have nothing except my salary. Can't afford to dress as I would like to, but I could have all the pretty things I crave by accepting them from some rich men I come in contact with in my work. About four years ago I fell madly in love with a poor man, and he gave me reason to believe that he was in love with me and intended marrying me, but one day he disappeared without saying good-by. This treatment has made me cynical, and I ask myself why I should keep myself good and if I am not a fool to go shabby and worry about trying to make both ends meet when a rich man is willing to give me all I crave. If you can tell me any reason why I should stay good and miss all the things in life that only money can buy, you will be doing me a great favor.

—DECENT WORKING GIRL.

Answer: You answer your question in your last line when you speak of selling yourself for the things that money buys. For you see, my dear, money has a strictly limited purchasing power, and the things in the world that are best worth having it will not buy. Purity, honor, innocence, virtue, self-respect, the respect of one's fellow creatures, these are not for sale over the counter, though many a millionaire would give half his wealth to purchase them.

I can give you many reasons why it pays you to be good. One is that a girl makes such a sorry bargain when she sells her immortal soul for a yard of chiffon and a plate of lobster Newburgh and a joyride in a sports car. It is pitiful how cheaply girls sell out. If the men who buy them were settling great fortunes on them that would enable them to always live in luxury, one could understand how they were so dazzled by the glittering offer that they lacked the strength to refuse it.

But to sell out for a flimsy frock or two and a good time is to sell your birthright of purity for a mess of pottage. What bad judgment! What a losing trade for any girl! Why, just to be able to sign yourself "A Decent Working Girl," as you do, is worth more than all the clothes in all the specialty shops in town and will carry you farther than a Rolls Royce.

It pays a girl to be good because only good girls are really happy. Happiness comes from within, and it is only those who are at peace with their own consciences who get any real joy out of living. The things that are outside of us can give us physical comfort and a momentary pleasure, but that is all. Real happiness must come from deep down within ourselves.

Watch the faces of the girls who are earning their own honest living and you will find that they are quiet and serene. They have smiles on their lips and they get fun and laughter out of little things. Watch the faces of the girls who have taken what is euphoniously called the "easiest way" of getting the things they want. Their faces are peevish and fretful above their furs and laces. Their eyes are hard, their lips bitter and their laughter is loud and mirthless, the crackling of thorns under a pot.

It is because wrongdoing has brought these girls no happiness and they are restless and dissatisfied that they light one cigaret from the butt of another; they rush madly from night club to night club and place of amusement to place of amusement, always where the lights are brightest, the jazz band loudest and where the artificial gayety is most pepped up and it is why they almost invariably take to drink or drugs to dull memory. The Japanese call such women "the sorrowful sisterhood," and it is true that no women are more miserable than those who have sold themselves trying to buy pleasure.

It pays a girl to be good for the sake of her own self-respect. There is just one person in the world whom we must be able to look in the face and that is ourself. We must be able to respect our own integrity, to know that we have the courage to stand the gaff. To be ashamed of one's self is the bitterest torture one can endure.

It pays a girl to be good because she keeps herself worthy of wifehood and motherhood and when love comes to her she is not afraid to take it. She goes with clean hands to the man she marries. She is not stalked by the ghost of a past that forever menaces her happiness. She does not have to lie to her husband nor live in the fear that he will discover the secret she hides in her heart. She does not have to look into her little children's eyes and pray God that they will never know what their mother has been.

Finally, it pays a girl to be good in health and length of days. Sickness and death are the sure portion of those women who, as the Bible puts it, "set their feet on hell."

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Three years ago my husband left me for another woman. He deeded me all of his property, so I have no kick coming there, but after he divorced me he had the nerve to ask me to send him his dead mother's rings which I had in a safety-vault box. Also, he wanted me to give him a silver platter that belonged to his mother, but I have refused to let him have either. He has always been very silly about the rings and would never let me wear them, but said that when our daughter was 18, she is 14 now, he might have them reset for her. My daughter sides with her father and thinks I should give him the rings and the platter, and they are causing a lot of trouble between us. I don't want to give these things up, but neither do I want my daughter to turn against me. What shall I do?

—MRS. X. Y. Z.

Answer—I think you should let your husband have the rings and the silver dish, as they are hallowed to him by memories of his mother, and have no associations to you that make them dear. Anyway, they belong to your husband and not to you and you have no right to keep them.

He seems to have been very generous to you in money matters, so why do you not show your appreciation by being liberal with him? You see that even your daughter recognizes the justice of her father's claims, and she will certainly have a very poor opinion of you if you do not show some sporting spirit in the matter.

But isn't it queer what an absurd valuation women will put on a piece of jewelry or a bit of silver? I have known families to be estranged, brothers and sisters alienated from each other and enmities aroused that never were laid to sleep again over the division of a dozen old battered teaspoons or a box of cheap jewelry.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My son has been spoiled by his young lady friends, who are nice, well raised girls, too, and that is what I can't understand. He is just the average young chap, nice looking, good company, good salary, good car, but nothing wonderful to anybody but his mother. But he never has to ask a girl to go out with him to any place of entertainment. Some girl calls him up and offers to take him in her car. He breaks dates when he pleases, knowing the girls will not resent it. When I tell him that girls didn't do that way in my time, he says times have changed and the girls do the chasing now. Thanks to these same young ladies, he is growing into a spoiled, self-centered, selfish man who is going to make some woman a selfish husband. Must the girls of today use this way to get their man? I think they lose the sweetest thing in life, that of being sought after.

—JUST A MOTHER.

Answer—I agree with you, but then I, too, belong to an older generation when men did the courting and a boy thought it was an honor to come to see a girl instead of having her hound him into making a date. And I would like to remark in passing that in those days when men were the pursuers instead of the pursued, girls received much more attention from men than they do now.

In every age women have been wise to the love game, and doubtless the modern girl does have to use drastic measures to get her man, but there is no denying it does spoil the men and is poor preparation for marriage. For if a girl has chased a man before marriage, he will naturally always think that she should be so grateful to him for marrying her at last that she should spend the balance of her life trying to please him.

—DOROTHY DIX.

U. S. Army May Guard Calles

Laredo Prosecutor Stalled In Arrest Plans

said the law would be allowed to take its course if such immunity were not extended to Calles.

Valls Makes Reply

Valls' letter was in reply to a communication from the state department forwarded through Counsel Boyce advising the district attorney that Calles bore a Mexican diplomatic passport vised by the proper authorities and that the president of the United States recognized Calles' diplomatic status. The letter requested a statement of Valls' intentions in the matter.

Valls in his reply declared "information you convey is too vague and indefinite to form the basis for a definite answer.

"When the president of the United States called upon the American people to stand by constituted authorities in the enforcement of the laws, he penned no idle platitudes. Surely the president of my country did not mean that his memorable appeal to stem the ever increasing crime wave should apply only to the mean and defenseless violators of the law," the letter read.

After stating "no amount of evidence will convince me that my government would deliberately invest with diplomatic immunity a fugitive from justice for the foul purpose of enabling him to evade arrest and punishment," Valls closed his letter by saying:

"I therefore advise you that if Calles should unfortunately be able to produce a certificate from the secretary of state under the great seal of that office, attesting diplomatic immunity, he will be allowed to proceed unmolested. Otherwise, the law will take its course as in ordinary cases."

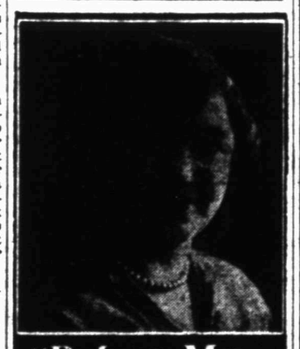

Calles, who passed through here several months ago en route to Europe, was not questioned in any way by Webb county officials, Valls at that time being district judge. He said that any move on the charge would have to be made by the district attorney. Since then, however, Valls has taken over his old duties as district attorney.

General Alvaro Obregon, assassinated after he was elected to the presidency, also was charged by Valls in the conspiracy. Recently the Webb county grand jury returned indictments in connection with the case against Duke Carver, Bexar county, Texas, constable, and Allen Walker, former United States marshal. Carver is under bond and Walker is reported to be in Mexico.

The bodies of the Mexican officials, handcuffed together, were found in the Rio Grande several days after they were alleged to have disappeared from a Laredo hotel.

Bullington Named Director Of National River-Harbor Congress

Orville Bullington, president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, has been elected a director in the Rivers and Harbors Congress of the United States, according to information received Friday from Washington, where the 25th annual session of that body is now in progress.

Prominent in the action thus far reported by the present congress is a resolution which endorses the proposed systems of lakes and reservoirs as a solution of the flood control problem instead of depending upon levees.

Numerous representatives of Denison, Dallas and other Texas points are present at Washington in the interest of a proposed dam across Red river, eight miles northwest of Denison, as a part of the flood control building program. Such a dam would impound sufficient water to form a lake containing 217 square miles of surface, and would require an outlay of about $33,000,000 by the government, according to information furnished in the hearing.

Given Honor

Man Commits Suicide At Wife's Suggestion

School Bonds Would Give Work to 1600

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 13. (UP)—Labor for 1,600 persons for four months will be provided here by passage of the proposed $2,150,000 school bond project, J. G. Stearly, board of education business manager, said today.

Stearly pointed out that building of six new school buildings outlined in the proposal will materially aid any unemployment situation that might exist by expenditure of more than half the issue for construction purposes.

Bus Explosion Probe Awaits Terrell's Return

AUSTIN, Dec. 13. (AP)—Mark Marshall, state motor transportation director, said today a date for the railroad commission investigation of the recent explosion on a San Antonio-San Angelo bus probably would be set after C. V. Terrell, railroad commissioner, returned to Austin.

The blast, reported to be an explosion of motion picture films being transported on the bus, resulted in three deaths.

Marshall said a thorough investigation would be made to determine if there was any negligence and the commission would consider whether the danger of explosion of films was sufficient to warrant their being barred from buses.

Terrell was in Fort Worth.

Local Store Again In Sales Increase

With an increase of 78.05 per cent in November sales, as compared with sales for the same month in 1928, the local J. C. Penny Company store took first place among all company stores in this state, Manager R. S. Fidler learned Friday.

This increase in business gives evidence of the economic soundness of conditions in and around Wichita Falls, Mr. Fidler commented.

This is the third time in succession that the local store has stood first in increase in sales for the month.

FIRE'S VICTIMS ARE IMPROVED

None of Injuries Expected To Result Seriously

Firemen and hotel guests injured during the blaze which destroyed the Antlers hotel Thursday morning were reported resting well Friday night at the hospitals where they will probably be confined for several days. A final examination of the wounded Friday revealed that injuries had not been as serious as was first feared, when shock and nerve-strain made the condition of each appear critical, physicians said.

Howard Tate, fireman of station No. 1, probably the most seriously injured, was reported improved. He is suffering from a sprained back and a broken ankle at the Wichita General hospital.

W. E. Phillips, fireman, suffering with a broken arm, severe cuts and bruises, is resting well at the General hospital.

Roy Anderson, brother of Geno L. Anderson who was killed, is recovering from severe shock, bruises and cuts. He is at the Wichita General hospital to recuperate his strength.

A. O. Johnson, fireman, was resting well. He suffered bruises and shock when he jumped almost three stories from a corner of the burning structure. He is at the General hospital.

Mrs. Billy Miller, a hotel guest, is also resting well. She suffered a deep gash on the leg when she jumped 25 feet from her room to the adjoining roof. She is at the General hospital.

Fire Chief J. L. McClure was reported resting well at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Friday night. He is suffering from severe shock, heat and smoke, emphasized by his advanced age.

R. D. Rankin of Sterling, Okla., who jumped three floors from the burning building to the ground and escaped with only slight bruises and shock, was released from the Hargrave-Walker hospital late Thursday.

Public Building Plans Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. (AP)—The house public buildings committee today approved the government's huge building program by voting to report favorably two bills to authorize the appropriation of $239,740,000 for construction in the national capital and throughout the country.

One measure would authorize $230,000,000, half of which would be for new department buildings and other structures in Washington, and the remainder for postoffice buildings in cities in practically every state.

The bill as introduced in the house provided for authorization of $215,000,000, of which $115,000 would have been for construction in Washington, but the committee in executive session today increased the sum so that an equal amount would be available for work outside the District of Columbia.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 13. (UP)—R. N. Trotsky, who claims relationship with Leon Trotsky, was sentenced to four years in the state penitentiary by Judge Frank K. Nye, here today on a charge of performing an illegal operation.

Judge Nye granted Trotsky a stay of execution at the request of A. M. Gunn, defense counsel, who said the defendant already was named in a federal warrant charging illegal entry.

Hearing was set for Tuesday. If the court recognizes the federal warrant Trotsky may be deported.

He admitted a prior conviction on a charge of volation of the Dyer act and sale of mortgaged property. The present offense occurred three or four years ago.

Trotsky lived meanwhile in Texas and he was said to have been connected with a hospital at El Paso. Police there identified him by a picture and notified Minneapolis authorities.

Dr. R. N. Trotsky lived in Wichita Falls several months and later served a jail term at Austin.

PRISON IDEAS DIFFER WIDELY

Committee Votes Favorably On Site Near Austin

AUSTIN, Dec. 13. (UP)—Sharp division of opinion as to what should be done about rehabilitating Texas' prison system is expressed in reports to be given to Gov. Dan Moody on the subject.

The prison centralization committee today voted favorably on a report to establish a $4,000,000 prison plant within 20 miles of Austin, with modern prison camps on the Imperial, Darrington and Harlem camps.

One minority report, signed by Representatives Murry and King, calls for a $1,000,000 prison plant on the Imperial farm, and another signed by Senator Nat Patton and Representative Harry Graves calls for rebuilding of the Huntsville prison.

The governor is expected to call a special session of the legislature in January to act on the reports.

Two Slayers Die on Gallows for Crimes

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Dec. 13. (INS)—Two men paid the supreme penalty on the gallows here on Friday, the thirteenth.

Costello, convicted of slaying an Oakland bank teller in a holdup, was hanged at 10:03 and pronounced dead 15 minutes later.

Negra, convicted of having slain his brother-in-law and ranch partner, slipped through the trap at 10:28 and was pronounced dead 12 minutes later.

Because of the recent prison riots, Warden Holohan took unusual precautions to guard against any disturbance during the hangings, but the executions passed off without incident.

POLICE SEEK TWO 'CON' MEN

George E. Hucking and Son Disappear

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Dec. 13. (INS)—Investigators were searching today for George E. Huckins, and his son, Elmer S., heads of a business which they declared would pay "investors" 26 per cent interest, following their mysterious disappearance.

It was rumored that the younger Huckins had drawn $250,000 from a bank here recently.

A telephone conversation yesterday to the Bank of Hancock at Hancock, Wis., revealed that a $2,000 note owed by Huckins to a Hancock man and due Nov. 18 had not been paid.

The Huckins solicited money for their scheme and were said to have received a huge amount. Although they did not divulge the nature of their business except to state there would be a large interest paid.

Charles Negus, partner of young Huckins in the cigar business, was said to have invested $70,000 in the enterprise.

THERE is a destiny that shapes our names as well as ends. As witness: the Leviathan—once a mythological monster, a source of wonderment to the ancients, and now a performer of miracles which even those long-bow artists, the biblical scribes, hadn't the imagination to contemplate.

In all the annals of wizardry, man encounters no feat more incredible than the just-established telephone bridge between the entire network of A. T. & T. stations and a moving ocean liner.

And to emphasize the significance of that dramatic episode, the Atlantic chooses the day set for inaugurating the service, to indulge in the wildest rage that almanacs remember.

A 108-mile gale ravages western Europe. It cuts Britain from contact with the continent. It piles channel shoes with wreckage. But it fails to invoke the hours of dread uncertainty which once would have torn the hearts of every family with a member afloat.

The storm kings cannot break the invisible link which thanks to Hertz, Marconi, DeForest, and Bell, irrevocably bonds the five continents to the seven seas.

Thirty-odd years ago, civilization was dumbfounded to learn that a pole in Ireland had chattered in Morse code with a pole in Newfoundland.

Yet the same generation, which witnessed that amazement, is broadcasting symphony concerts to the north and south poles, and is apt any moment to hear the actual winds howling there through present loud-speakers—and, furthermore, sit beside steam radiators watching exploration planes hevering above earth's last outpost.

TELEVISION barely missed Byrd's magnificent gesture—but the hour that will reveal all secrets of geography, all tragedy, and all momentous happenings, wherever occurring, through household instruments, waits merely upon a few laboratory experiments.

History, abandoning the inkwell for the film, flies from a thousand daily theaters of action to parade in person before the footlights.

Asiatic rulers, continental premiers, American statesmen, captains of great industries and vital causes, nightly appear in the vocalized news-reel, from which the confessions of criminals resound, followed by the chants and capers of cannibal tribes and the echoing cheers collected at Australian racetracks, brought intact with the panting thoroughbreds themselves.

The Chinese pirates, who raided and burned a British passenger vessel between Swatow and Hong Kong, are already in the toils of the lens as well as the law.

You need no longer to draw upon your favorite blood-and-thunder author for knowledge of that strange guild of heredity freebooters. The charred hulk which they audaciously swarmed, and members of the grim fraternity, en route to retribution, will shortly dance down the electric beam which all notorious, illustrious and exotic folk must henceforth cross.

Plenty of food for thought in printers' ink, besides the effect of Mr. Grundy's possible appointment to almost-Senator Vare's seat—or Secretary Mellon's proposed reduction of government bond rates to 3½ per cent.

Thou Shalt Not Kill

BYRON C. UTECHT has been a newspaper correspondent in Texas for more than 25 years. In his line of duty he has "covered" for his newspapers many of the big trials in Texas and has handled many others as an editor on the desk. Mr. Utecht has written a series of articles for the Austin American on crime and the administration of justice in Texas as it affects crime under the heading "Thou Shalt Not Kill—6,000 Years After Cain."

From his long experience in reporting trials under scores of judges in all sections of the state, Mr. Utecht concludes that there is nothing wrong with the personnel of the courts. "The judges are men of high character and serve to the best of their ability and if there is a faulty system the fault is not theirs," he says, but does intimate that there is something decidedly wrong with a system which permits motions for new trials, continuances, changes of venue, exceptions, appeals and rehearings so that a case may be in the courts for years.

Mr. Utecht offers a list of 23 suggestions. You may not agree with all of them, but coming from a man who has had so much experience in reporting criminal cases, they are worthy of consideration. Here they are:

1.—Eliminate delay of trials over trivial technicalities, either through statute or by agreement of various bar associations.

2.—Modify the liquor laws so that they will not make a large percentage of our population felons.

3.—Discontinue making arrests and having prosecutions because someone has a flask in his hip pocket or because he drank a glass of beer.

4.—Require enforcement officers to go after the big sources having illicit liquor dealings, providing the country is not yet ready to repeal the 18th amendment and substitute the Canadian system.

5.—Call a decided halt in the enactment of so many laws regulating the private conduct of citizens, as well as regulating every step of their business.

6.—Remember no one has a legal or moral right to kill another person except in self-defense, and this applies to officers as well.

7.—Cooperate in movements, home, church and school joining, for creation of sentiment for more wholesome, active and healthy lives.

8.—Substitute a little charity for denouncement and punishment. "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal," the Bible says.

9.—Change the worn out, inhuman prison systems in Texas and in all other states. Prisoners being human must be so treated or they will be worse when they come out and take deadly toll. Employment, training and liberal use of the parole must be established at once.

10.—Either by law or moral suasion or ethics compel full light to be thrown on cases in courts.

11.—Get juries that read the newspapers. If a man has an opinion but is willing to abide by evidence and so swears he is as fair a juror as you can get, and maybe better.

12.—Publicity of full details of sensational trials should be limited by agreement among editors, for as it is now stories often approach the obscene, sensual and gruesome, which is bad for children and youths.

13.—Swat the movie that continually makes heroes of gangsters and gunmen, this being true even when the handsome movie idol slays all the overgrown villains. Why we're not nearly as criminal and sensual a race as movies make out.

15.—Take an active interest in public affairs, legislation and politics for politics is merely another name for your government. Don't let the professional politicians run it.

16.—Should capital punishment be abolished? You should study this. All crime experts say it never deters crime.

17.—Read the teachings of Christ. It won't hurt you whether Christian, Jew or Mohammendan, Buddist or nonbeliever. He gives some good common sense that beats all law.

18.—If you need a stimulant and have finally decided you can't drink it all up anyway, try golf, handball or romping with the kids in the back yard at home.

19.—Remember hurting or killing a man is cheap, nonsensical revenge. Just make him feel cheap and you'll feel better and won't be arrested.

20.—Spend more time at home. You cannot do it after you're dead.

21.—Just put it in your notebook that Cain was a dumbbell when he demanded whether or not he was his brother's keeper.

22.—Repeal the 18th amendment or substitute actual enforcement for the present farce.

23.—Send to prison some of the public officials like those of Chicago who receive big bribes for protecting bootleggers.

The Beauty We Lost

AN EASTERN ART MUSEUM the other day spent $1,000 to acquire the last of the oldtime American clipper ships. That bit of news got dismissed with a brief paragraph. Yet a great deal could be written on it; poems, romantic tales of bygone days and bygone men, melancholy essays on vanished glories and outworn beauties.

We have come a long way, in one direction or another, since the day when the clipper ship was a living reality. Our age is altogether unlike the age that built those fabulous old ships. We have a different outlook on life, a whole new set of standards. The clipper ship, magnificent creation that it was, is as out of date as the Phoenician galley; yet, because it was magnificent, a thing for poetry and romance, we put the last surviving specimen under the wing of an art museum, and feel a pang at the thought that this is all it is good for.

Why should we be so stirred by this one additional indication that old age is gone forever? We are busy and fairly prosperous and at least relatively happy. Our world wags quite smoothly, taking one thing with another. Why should the phantom vessels of 75 years ago move us to idle day-dreams?

Perhaps it is because our modern world is just a little bit short of beauty. For the clipper ship, above everything else, was beautiful. It was, in its way, as breath-taking a creation as a great painting, or a cathedral. One of the most lovely bits of prose in English is Richard Henry Dana's description of a full-rigged ship under all sail. Overseas merchandising, once upon a time, was a trade in which an artist might engage; not a business or rusty steamers and clanking machinery, as it is today.

We miss that sort of thing more than we know. We are not lucky enough to be carrying on the work of daily life with beautiful tools. Discarding the clipper for the steamer we have saved time and gained profits—and lost something very precious. What museum of the future will ever want to save a 1929 oil tanker or cattle boat?

Yet we may console ourselves. The clipper ship, after all, was built to be efficient and useful, not to be beautiful. It came into existence as a money maker. The clumsy, sawed-off ships of the 18th century gave way to it, not because marine architects wanted to produce beauty, but because they wanted to produce speed and make money.

They were, in other words, moved by the same motives that move us. And there is just a chance—a chance worth clinging to—that our own age, likewise, striving to produce the utmost in utility, will, in the end, also produce supreme beauty.

Already there are indications. A mail plane, soaring through the sky, is a thing to lift up one's heart. Perhaps, in the course of years, we too shall be making cargo-carriers that are worthy to stand beside the clippers of a lost century.

Brass Buttons and Brass Tacks

It appears that the New York police department has good reason to be proud of its record. Only one blemish stains its books—it deals with the cowardice of a patrolman, who was stripped of his shield and gun 25 years ago. The incident happened somewhere below 14th street. The yellow patrolman had been urged to hasten to a tenement where a murder was taking place, and he had refused to go to the scene until it was too late.

After the murder crashed the front pages, neighbors complained about the cop, who alibied that he had rapped on the pavement with his stick for aid and not getting it, went into the place alone, only to find that the murderer had escaped. He argued that with aid he might have got there earlier and trapped the killer.

At his trial the other policemen on the same beat swore that they heard no nightstick raps for help, so he was dishonorably discharged from the force. All of which reminds us of a thrilling police story that took place in a leading midwestern city not many years ago.

The town was terrorized for weeks by a madman, who was not part of the local gangs, but he used most of their stunts and was more desperate. A number of people, with good reputations were found dead across the way from a two-story dwelling, and for days the bluecoats were stumped for a clue. Then they discovered that the killer was clipping innocent passersby with a shotgun from his window, two stories up, and they set out to capture him. After losing two of their men via the sniper route they went into conference.

But weeks elapsed and the murderer couldn't be bagged. The local newspapers harangued the police force for their failure and then the town's bravest detective summoned some of his conferees.

"We're being kidded to death," he growled, "it makes me ashamed to think that we can't get that guy and all I called you here for was to ask for a volunteer or two, to come with me and bring that man out of there dead or alive." The others agreed. "Please let me go!" each cried.

After laying out their plans they proceeded to the death sector at night and, upon their arrival, some surrounded the house while the brave detective and two cops stealthily crept up the stairs leading to what they believed was the killer's room.

As they reached the door they rapped for admittance. But there was no response. "Open that door," thundered the fearless detective, "or we'll break it in!" Still no response.

"You're trapped on all sides and you haven't a chance to get out of there alive," yelled the detective, "so open that door before I count three!"

Getting no satisfaction after the cry of "Three!" the officers rammed in the door with a heavy log, and the thunder of gun powder that followed almost demolished the whole house. After the smoke had cleared, the detective discovered one of his comrades dead in front of the entrance to the room. The two survivors, with pistols drawn, fired aimlessly into the room and then saw the man they wanted sitting up in bed staring at them blankly.

"Put up your hands!" they both yelled, but before finishing their command, they realized he was dead. The other policeman came to the scene, leaping over the body in the hall, and after inspecting the room, the detective realized that they hadn't killed the prisoner, but that he had arranged for his own end, in case he couldn't escape.

The maniac had outfitted the place so that if the door to his room ever opened from the outside it would release the trigger of a shotgun aimed at his own head—which is how he died.

Then the detective in charge looked at the body of his dead officer and discovered a most horrible thing!

The dead comrade had not been felled by any bullets coming out of the room!

There had been only one shot—the one that killed the murderer!

There wasn't any blood on the dead officer. Or a wound.

He died of fright!

Grouping his men about him the detective coldly said: "This disgrace must never be known. All of you were Joe's pals and if you ever let it out that he didn't die in action trying to capture that madman, you will not only blacken his name, but that of the department. Remember! None of you must ever tell the truth!"

Then the detective fired a bullet into Joe's head.

The ageless argument: "Are Critics People?" was revived again the other evening, with the actors in the audience maintaining that critics might be people, but that they certainly weren't human beings, as if that mattered.

Then someone connected with the "Fifty Million Frenchman" show remarked that Helen Broderick, one of its stars, was immensely pleased with the notice prepared by a certain entertainment inspector. "In fact," said the speaker, "you made her very happy, and she asked me to thank you very much."

"Tell her," replied the drama defender, "never to thank a critic for anything she rates."

Marriage for Two— By Arthur Somers Roche

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl, Joyce Carroll.

A few days later they are married, agreeing that the marriage shall in reality be nothing more than a friendship.

Shortly they sail for Biarritz, where Joyce gains great popularity and where Larry finds himself falling in love with her despite evidence of her strange past. A man named Ratky Rogan, in New York, tries unsuccessfully to tell Larry something of his wife, and in Biarritz Joyce gives 40,000 francs to a woman of the demimonde and tells Larry she lost the money at the gambling tables.

During a party given by Billy Valdemagara, a red-headed Spaniard and Larry's best friend, Larry comes on Helen Wilson on a high cliff overlooking the sea, and, feeling all his old love for her revived, takes her in his arms. They are seen by Paul Weedon, who threatens to spread the story. Larry goes at once to tell Joyce and is suddenly overwhelmed by the realization that it is Joyce he loves, not Helen. Joyce, however, refuses to credit his love for her.

Burton's Threat

"Joyce, that's unworthy of you," he pleaded.

"How do you know what's worthy or unworthy of me?" she cried. "What do you know about me, anyway?"

"Enough," he said gently, "to know that you aren't behaving very well now."

"And you feel that you—just from the moonlight with—just from the arms of another woman—you feel that you can tell me anything of decent behavior."

"Joyce, you said that we had an agreement? Suppose I wanted to kiss her again—would I be violating any pledge to you?"

"You'd be violating something more important than a pledge—you'd be violating every known decency if, in the very moment you kissed her, you came to me speaking of love for me."

"But don't you see," he argued. "I didn't know, I cared until—"

"I don't think," she interrupted, "that I care to have your love for me weighed in the scales of another woman's arms. I think—oh, why do you make me talk? You're hateful, hateful. And—it's vulgar—for people to quarrel. But it's more vulgar for you—to go to another woman, talk of divorcing me—"

"Joyce," he begged, "would you mind if we didn't talk about it? I've been the most incredible fool that ever lived. I'm everything you want to think me. But I'm also, my child, the man that happens to love you, and—it hurts, Joyce."

"Do you think it doesn't hurt me? You say that Mr. Weedon saw you. Do you think it's pleasant to have all Biarritz know that my husband, the man I married a month ago, is already having an affair with the girl he was once engaged to marry?"

"Weedon won't talk," he said.

"No? How little you know of people, Larry. Did you strike him?"

He nodded assent.

"Then, of course, he'll talk. Oh, I know. He's a coward and all that. But he must have some respect for himself, and the only way he can have it is by pretending to himself that he's not afraid of you."

He thrust shrewdly. "It seems that you're more worried about people knowing what I did than by the fact that I did it."

Her eyes were glacial now.

"What you did or may do can have no possible effect upon me by itself. But what other people know—I don't care for pity. And when you insult me by telling me that another woman's kiss has made you love me—"

"If my love is an insult," he began.

She interrupted him impatiently.

"Let's be anything, but not melodramatic," she said.

She started to go on, but he didn't catch her words, so quickly did she smother them. Following her glance, he turned around. Helen Wilson, her mother, and Frank Burton stood behind him.

A Battle of Wits

"We want to be presented to the bride," said Mrs. Wilson.

Stiffly Larry performed the introductions.

"Larry ran away so quickly—never told his friends . . ."

Whatever thrust lay back of Mrs. Wilson's opening sentence was parried before it was delivered.

"It was my fault," said Joyce easily. "I could have made Larry stay in New York, but—Larry's a very exacting husband. He wants one, so to speak, all to himself."

It was vulgar. Larry conceded that. But so was Mrs. Genevieve Wilson. She knew that her daughter had been engaged to Larry. To intimate, in her opening speech to Joyce, that Joyce's husband had run away, was to intimate that he ran because he had done something shameful. Well-bred people don't do that sort of thing. And vulgarity can only be met by vulgarity. Courtesy upon a boor is wasted, is misinterpreted as a sign of weakness. And there was, Larry knew, nothing of weakness in the woman he had married.

"I've been talking with Larry," said Helen.

Joyce laughed, there was genuine merriment in her voice, and Larry, who knew that she was far from gay deep down inside her, marveled at her acting.

"He told me," she replied, "about that ridiculous Mr. Weedon also."

"What was that? What did Weedon do?" Burton spoke for the first time.

Joyce looked blandly at Helen, waiting for the other girl to speak. In this warfare between them, Larry realized, Joyce had somehow, incomprehensibly drawn first blood. For Helen blushed painfully.

"Oh, nothing, Frank. He is ridiculous, you know."

"Looks like a rat to me," said Burton.

Joyce eyed this man of more than middle age. He had remnants of a sort of good looks, and she recognized the pains he had taken to preserve these remnants. Here was no man who indulged in outdoor sports for the pleasure games gave him. Rather, this was a man who worked so many dull minutes each morning, so many more boring minutes each night, for the preservation of his waistline. She could visualize the masseurs who came to him. Knew instinctively that his barber kas as important a functionary with him as the hairdresser is to the normal woman.

In the average person who seizes upon the shadow of youth and tries to convert it to substance, there is something pathetic, sometimes even something admirable. But not in Frank Burton. The man was mean, essentially and completely mean, and Joyce felt instant antagonism toward him. He was, she felt, of Weedon's type, only he had a strength that Weedon lacked, a ruthlessness of purpose that had made him, instead of a petty blackmailer, a master of finance.

He gave her back glance for glance, appraising her coolly as she was valuing him.

"Will you dance with me, Mrs. Tracy?" he asked.

Joyce rose. "I should love to," she replied.

She hid a smile at the chagrin on her husband's face as she glided away with Burton. It was a situation worthy a French farce. The bride of the jilted fiance was dancing with the new fiance.

Declaration of War

"Thank you," murmured Burton.

She looked up at him, his purposeful eyes told her that he was paying no commonplace tribute to her condescension in dancing with him. Too many young and beautiful women had danced with Burton, she sensed, for him to feel flattery because another one slipped willingly into his arms. The man who could win Helen Wilson, even though money was the heavy artillery in the victory, would hold no light estimate of himself. She inconsequently wondered that he danced so well.

"Why?" she asked.

"I always feel grateful to any one who doesn't avoid an issue."

"But why to me?" she inquired.

She felt the arm about her move in response to a shrug of the heavy shoulders.

"Fence?" he retorted.

"Fence?" She felt color in her cheeks.

"A woman who could do what you've done doesn't have to parry when she's dealing with a man who could do what I've done," he said.

"I suppose," she tried to laugh "that's very clear, only I—I'm afraid I don't understand."

"Word's don't matter. If you understand me, that's enough," he told her.

"And how could I understand you?" she queried.

"Just as easily as I can understand you," he replied, "more easily. Because I had to make inquiries about you—had to rely on written reports—"

"Written reports?" She tried to keep dismayed anger from her voice, but felt a sickening certainty that she could not deceive this man.

"Naturally, I didn't want the private detectives I engaged to know that they were working for me," he calmly answered. "So—the reports were written, not verbal. But you—your husband perhaps mentioned me. And a man of my are, who proposes marriage to a very young woman—well, a girl like yourself would think such a man easily read."

She ignored the latter part of his speech.

"Why did you have—detectives," she almost choked over the word, "trace me?"

"Why do I have reports on every one with whom I do business?" he countered.

"I'm sure I don't know." She tried to be glacial, and once again felt that her effort was unperceived by him, or, at least that the result of her effort was unimportant to him.

"Because knowing the other fellow's strength—or weakness—may vitally affect my own attitude," he told her.

"And you have discovered my weakness?" she ventured.

"Perhaps your strength," he said.

"Because you anticipate doing—business—with me?" she asked.

"Such a thing is possible, isn't it?" he demanded.

"I can't imagine why," she replied.

"Then imagine, if you can, why I am in Biarritz," he suggested.

"Why shouldn't you be in Bairritz?" she asked.

"Do I seem the sort of man to be led around by the nose?"

"Are you being led—that way?" She was avoiding his eyes now.

"Keep Your Husband!"

"I happen to want something very badly, Mrs. Tracy," he said. "That something happens to be the girl to whom your husband was so recently engaged. It doesn't matter that it is, perhaps, rather silly for fifty to want twenty. I want her. That's enough for me, Mrs. Tracy. And I trust that it will be enough for you."

"I think," said Joyce, "it's about time for some sort of explanation."

"But the explanation is obvious. You're too clever not to have guessed it, Mrs. Tracy."

"But I haven't," she assured him.

"Well, I'll try to put it in words of one syllable," he said. "My fiancee demanded that we come here. She knew that your husband was here. She may have regretted her dismissal of your husband. Now do you understand? If you don't, I'll make it still clearer. You married for money, Mrs. Tracy. A girl doesn't marry, for love, a man she doesn't know. Mrs. Tracy, you want your husband to keep his money don't you?"

"Well?" she said, as he paused.

"Then keep your husband," he snapped.

Now she sought and held his eyes. She stifled an impulse to laugh. The bride of a month was being ordered to hold her husband's affection. But she didn't laugh. The threat she read in Burton's eyes drove mirth from her mind.

What was he intimating about Larry's money? But he was answering the question for her.

"Lose your husband, Mrs. Tracy, and I promise you that he loses every cent he has in the world."

The Once Over

Being Nice About Being Noisy
(Copyright, 1929, by the Associated Newspapers)

PHILLIPS

The Irving Trust company, building a skyscraper in lower Broadway, New York, has sent a courteous note to all houses in the vicinity apologizing for the riveting about to begin and assuring neighbors that the work will be rushed "to minimize the discomfort."

That's the idea! A courteous note of apology, a little expression of regret soothes the outraged ear and tempers the strained nerve. If you must be noisy, be nice about it. The following form letters for various occasions of major disturbances are suggested:

Gentlemen:

Is it too much to ask that you be tolerant and forgiving during the next couple of months, during which time it will be necessary for me to make a pretty terrible racket in your vicinity? Any steam whistle is annoying enough, and I am sorry to have to confess that this one has a shriek that will split your eardrums.

To me this means that the cellar is being dug with gratifying dispatch, but to our neighbors it must seem that I am just an old nuisance.

Appreciating this, I wish to assure you that every effort will be made to get it over with so you may cease dictating letters through a megaphone.

Love and kisses,
Steve, The Steam-Shovel Man

Sir:

May we respectfully ask your forbearance for the next eight or ten weeks during the dynamiting? While to us each blast will mean a thrill of accomplishment, we feel that to our neighbors it will be, to say the least, disconcerting.

Accept our assurances that the blasts will be set off as speedily as possible and please remember us to your Aunt Minnie and all the children.

Affectionately,
The Esposito Excavating Co.

Dear Sir:

We take this occasion to announce that for an indefinite period we expect to operate a flat-wheeled surface car by your house. Much as we hate to do this there is no way out. It is comforting to realize, however, that you can always stick your head under a pillow.

Your devoted friend,
The Municipal Trolley Co.

Dear Madam:

May we hope that you will show poise and self-control during the next few weeks until we get tired of the new radio we have just bought? My husband and the seven children now regard it as a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It must, however, make the neighbors pretty sick.

Yours as ever,
The Mahoney Family.

How Oxygen From Wichita Plant Is Used at Hospital Here

Sufferers from pneumonia, asthma and other similar diseases may inhale the same oxygen that furnished them life before their illness through an oxygen tent which uses oxygen extracted from Wichita Falls air.

Dr. R. L. Hargrave of the Hargrave-Walker hospital has recently installed an oxygen tent and has made arrangements with the Wichita Falls Oxygen company for use of their product.

The oxygen tent is arranged so that the gas is released in just the right proportions to the breathing ability of the patient. Numerous lives have been saved through this method during the few years since its invention.

Dr. Hargrave, a nurse at the Hargrave-Walker hospital, a patient, and Sam R. Hord of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company are shown with the machine in the top picture. Below is shown a scene in the local oxygen plant.

BRECK-WACO WILL BATTLE

25,000 Fans May Watch Contest

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 13. (AP)—The state high school football race, clearing house for future stars of the Southwest's universities and colleges, will hold the center of the stage tomorrow.

Possibly 25,000 fans will watch the four survivors of a hard campaign fight it out for the privilege of meeting a week hence for the schoolboy championship of Texas. They will see a surprisingly fine brand of football.

Out in West Texas, among the oil derricks, the Breckenridge Buckaroos' champions of a vast region extending from Fort Worth to the Westernmost confines of the state, will encounter the far-famed Waco Tigers, soverigns of Central Texas, four times state titlists.

Port Arthur will be the scene of a semi-final melee between that city's surprising Yellowjackets, survivors in East and South Texas, and the Denton Broncos, champions of the North.

Breck Favorites

Breckenridge, an outstanding favorite in the campaign, went into the semi-finals last week by defeating Amarillo, 13 to 0. Port Arthur edged out Brownsville, 13 to 12. Waco downed Central of Fort Worth, 12 to 0. Denton came from behind to lick Marshall, 20 to 14.

Although the two battles tomorrow are of equal importance, in that a finalist will emerge from each, the tilt at Breckenridge has commanded a majority of interest. For one reason, the two sections which Breckenridge and Waco represent have supplied the state champion for eight straight years. For another, there always is a certain glamour to any game in which the Waco Tigers participate. Coach Paul Tyson's team has compiled the greatest record of any high school unit in the entire country.

Tigers' Fine Record

Since joining the interscholastic league eight years ago the Tigers have lost just four games, one each to Abilene, Oak Cliff, Corsicana and Beaumont. The latter defeat later was marked off when Beaumont was declared ineligible. The Tigers have not lost a game on their own gridiron in eight years.

Waco has one of its weakest units this year, but the coaching genius of Paul Tyson has brought it unscathed through a tough district and into the round before the finals. Critics are agreed that, man for man, Breckenridge will have quite an advantage in tomorrow's feature bout, but they likewise agree that any team coached by Tyson and with the Waco "tradition" back of it cannot be counted out until the final gun.

Waco's "Spinner" Formation

Waco's chances to reach the finals are wrapped up in its great "spinner" formation. Since 1927 the one play, with its numerous variations, has been the most consistently fine offensive weapon used on a Texas gridiron.

Breckenridge is loaded this year. It has some great individual stars in the Magnesses, Graham, Wohlford, and Cox, and knows its football fundamentals. It rates a favorite, particularly if the game is played on a wet field. In 11 games this season the Buckaroos have never been behind at any stage.

Jackets Favorites

Port Arthur has been made a favorite in the other big tussle, the result of their sensational victory over a supposedly all-powerful Brownsville eleven last week. The Jackets have gained reputations as the "scrappingest" outfit in the state. They are tenacious. Last season they went to the finals by the skin of their teeth. This time they were not expected even to win their district title, but they nosed out on the final day, and here they are in the semi-finals again. It seems impossible to get them out, hence their position as favorites tomorrow.

Denton displayed a tricky running and passing offense to dispose of Marshall last week. Finding themselves behind late in the game, the summoned the punch to march down the field to a winning touchdown.

Both Denton and Waco reached the battle sites in time to work out this afternoon. Both squads will be followed by special trains bearing their supporters.

PAUL TYSON AND TIGERS ARRIVE ON BATTLE SCENE

Special to The Record News

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Dec. 13.—Coach Paul Tyson and his Waco Tigers, champions of all Central Texas, slipped into Breckenridge Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock for their semi-final championship bout Saturday with the all-West Texas and Panhandle champs—Coach P. E. Shotwell's green shirted Buckaroos. The guards of Tigerville, clamoring to tuck away their fifth state grid championship in the past nine years arrived here via bus and put up at the Burch hotel, awaiting the blast of the referee's whistle, which will send these two elevens into a battle for the right of the winner to go into the state finals one week from Saturday.

Tigers Primed

Coach Tyson brought a team here Saturday that will be in prime condition, calling themselves the underdogs and pitched to a high degree of enthusiasm and fight. Having waded through a field of tough opponents this year with a team rated early in the season to be only second rate, the Tigers have proven that they have great ability, not only defensively, but offensively.

The Tigers asked to use the local playing field for a short workout as soon as they arrived. Coach Shotwell will more than likely take the field for a short period after the Tigers have gone in. Neither Coach worked their charges hard Friday, but put more emphasis on polishing up all that has been drilled into them for the past week.

Buckaroos Ready

The Buckaroos are in perfect mental and physical condition with exception of Captain Carey and Wray, a guard. Wray will probably get into the game. He has improved greatly this week, but Captain Carey is sure to be missing from the lineup. He has been confined to a hospital for the past two days.

Barring injuries and with Wray in shape, Coach Shotwell will likely start his 11 smashing starters who gave the Amarillo Sandies the licking of their lives almost a week ago.

OLNEY WINS TITLE BOUT OFF HEREFORD, 7-7

1929 Olney Cubs' Championship Football Team

The Cubs are by name, front row: Floyd Hamilton, W. Emmett Hunt, Wilson Gilmore, Barney Dees, Tom Patrick, Bill Hill, Terry Carter, Frank Wix, Gus Kuehn, Floyd Wright, Braxton Gilmore; middle row: Crawford Paschall, Ray Shaw, Robert Greer, Scott Wix, R. J. Duckworth, A. J. Graves, Rankin Goode, Claude Goldsmith, Ray O'Brien, Wilber West; top row: Coach A. A. Acker, assistant Coach F. Cowan, Lover Perkins, Leon Ragle, Ellis Furr, Lawerence Sullivan, Clyde Ellis, Jack O'Brien, Frederick Martens, Louie Cowser, George Vardeman, Earnest James, and Alonza Bryan.

Pictured above are the members of the Olney High school Cubs, champions of districts numbers 3, 4, 1 and 2. The Cubs have rolled up an impressive season record this year, winning eight straight conference games without a single loss. The district honors were achieved through a 13 to 0 victory over the Seymour Panthers on Thanksgiving day. In the bi-district game with the Jacksboro Jackrabbits the Olney eleven emerged the winner by 37 to 6.

GREAT GRID EXHIBITION

Cubs Penetrate 20 Yard Zone 4 Times

By M. GRUVER
Record News Correspondent

HEREFORD, Texas, Dec. 13.—The Olney Cubs won from the Hereford Whitefaces here this afternoon in one of the greatest exhibitions of football ever witnessed in this section. When the final whistle blew the score stood 7 to 7, and according to interscholastic rules, the game was awarded to Olney on 20-yard line penetrations. The Cubs were within the Hereford 20-yard zone four times, once in each period, while the Whitefaces were able to cross the Cub 20-yard line only twice both times in the quarter.

Game in Hereford's Zone

Practically the entire game was played in Hereford territory. Only once in the first three quarters did Hereford get beyond Olney's 35-yard line. On the other hand the Cubs threatened for touchdowns on three different occasions. In the first period the Cubs brought the ball to the Hereford 14-yard line, but a bad pass from center lost the ball to Hereford, Seeds recovering. Again in the second period with the ball on Hereford's 19-yard line Carter again made a bad pass, with Seeds recovering. The third quarter brought Olney again to Hereford's six-yard line and a pass Goode to Wix, missed by inches. To Hereford goes the credit for the first score, after holding the Cubs scoreless for three periods but unable to penetrate Olney territory. Hereford took the ball on Olney's 40-yard line and through a series of line punches brought the ball to Olney's three-yard line where Jowell carried it over for the initial score of the game. Clennin kicked goal.

Olney Aerial Game

Olney then opened up their well known passing machine and with the ball on their own 25-yard line carried it the entire length of the field in five passes to Wilson, Gilmore and Greer, where Greer received another pass for touchdown. Goode passed to Green for extra point. Total yards gained for Olney amounted to 327 yards, gained from line running 150, and from passes 177 yards. Hereford gained a total of 250 yards from straight football and attempted only one pass beyond the line which was incomplete. Most of Hereford's attack was criss-cross passing behind the line. Hereford led in first downs, 14 to 12. Greer and Clennin split honors in punting each averaging 30 yards. Clennin returned one punt for 10 yards on six Olney punts while Goode returned six out of nine for a total of 32 yards. Goode's passing to Scott, Wix, Greer and Wilson Gilmore was too much for the game Herefords. Graves and Greer came through for line plunging honors when yards were mostly needed. The Gilmore boys together with Dees and Patrick were Olney's strong defense players, making many beautiful tackles behind the line. Carter, Frank, Wix and Wright opened some nice holes for the Olney backfield. Hill, replacing Patrick who was injured in the last quarter, made a beautiful recovery on one of Clennin's fumbles.

Hereford Luminaries

Hereford was not without its individual stars. The line plunging of Jowell was responsible for their lone tally. Clennin and Russell got through for several nice gaines but again were thrown for losses by the Olney tackles. Seeds, Hereford center, played an outstanding game with an eye that was continually watching the ball. He recovered three Olney fumbles that were headed for touchdowns. Gregory, Hereford end, held Goode on his return of punts and was down on every one. Gregory broke through on several occasions to throw Cub backfield men for losses. The second half opened up with Olney pulling that wonderful fake play that should have scored a touchdown. With Scott Wix lying just inside the line on the kickoff Goode passed to the hidden player on the first play for a gain of 38 yards. The pass was a little short, pulling Wix toward the center of the field where he was caught after racing the 38 yards.

By virtue of the Cub win this afternoon Olney completed a most successful season having not lost a game in eight conference games. No doubt the Hereford aggregation is the strongest the Cubs have opposed this year and the game, one of the cleanest ever witnessed, will go down in history as one of the greatest ever played by class B teams in the state.

Lubbock Westerners Humble Cleburne High School Gridders by 25-13 Count

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Dec. 13.—Coach Frnka's and Morgan's Lubbock high school Westerners flashed through a brilliant football game here today completely outplaying the Cleburne high school team 25 to 13 in a post-season struggle.

Cleburne lost only one game this season and that to Waco 7 to 6, Tillo.

The Westerenrs flashed a running attack with plenty of blocking and other accessories that advanced the ball when they grew tired of passes, while the Cleburne squad relied largely on Stephens to rip off a few long sprints around the end.

Westerners Score Early

The Westerners scored early with Yancy Price taking the ball over, only to be pushed back to their one foot line where the Lubbock line rose up as one to turn back an evident Cleburne score.

With eleven ball hawks on the field to pick up every fumble, Lubbock had another advantage in several breaks. Smith scored early in the second period with a line buck after a 33-yard run. A pass, Lawson to Watkins for 47 yards, paved the way for the third touchdown and Lawson went over. Taking the ball on their eight-yard line, Cleburne sprung a surprise when Captain Langdon backed behind his goal line, fought off three tacklers while Lubbock lost 13 to 7 to Amand whipped a pass to Peyton who ran 70 yards for a touchdown.

At the Half

The half ended with the score, Lubbock 19, Cleburne 6. Stephens came to life early in the last period, ripping off 44 yards around end to put the ball on Lubbock's 10-yard line for the visitors. Langdon went over for a touchdown from the three-yard line and Fine kicked goal for the score, Lubbock 19, Cleburne 13.

The score was thus when Stephens again ripped off a 35-yard run to put the ball on the seven-yard line. From here the ball went to the one-yard line where the Lubbock line rose up again to beat back an evident touchdown, which would have tied the score and given the kicker a chance to win the game. Price kicked out for Lubbock and the Westerners were off again, Green ripping off another 55 yards.

Ballinger Tromps Roscoe Hi by 20-0

ROSCOE, Texas, Dec. 13. (AP)—Ballinger High school's heavy eleven plowed through the Roscoe Plowboys today for a victory of 20 to 0, and the Class B championship of the region made up of districts, 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Frank Coker, fullback, scored all touchdowns for Ballinger. Roscoe's greatest threat was turned back on the six-inch line early in the third.

CARNEGIE TECH PLAYS TROJANS

U. S. C. Rated Three Markers Better

By MARK KELLY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13. (US)—Two sturdy football teams wind up the Los Angeles football season tomorrow when Carnegie Tech of Pittsburgh and the Trojans of University of Southern California face each other in the coliseum.

Both are twice defeated aggregations. Yet both are representative of the best there is in football and the clash brings together two well-matched elevens. The Trojans should win and should register three touchdowns in doing so. Unless their defense is weakened over past performances these same Trojans ought to hold those Skibos to one touchdown. And the score to be about 20 to 7.

This is a risky prediction and one predicted purely on the dope as available from a multiplicity of sources. Carnegie lost to Notre Dame, 7 to 0, and to Pittsburgh, 34 to 13. The team never was organized that could score five touchdowns against the present Trojan gang and that goes for any all-American gang you choose to nominate for the assignment. On top of two defeats the plaid was tied by Washington and Jefferson, a team that was twice tied and twice beaten. In eight games the Skibos scored 132 points to 47 scored against them. Karcis, their ace, was out of several of the bigger games yet compare the two teams' records and no amount of caution or that overworked home-town scare stuff to help out the coach by prodding the athletes can make one do other than pass the buck right to Mr. Trojan and expect results.

Otto Von Porat Feels Wrath of New York State Solons' Suspension Ruling

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (AP)—The "foul problem," bane of the fight game's existence and chief irritator of boxing commissions, came in for a raking today as the New York state solons plastered an indefinite suspension on Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight from Chicago, and adopted temporary legislation for the future.

The commisison decided that fighters who commit fouls must now toil on a piece work basis, receiving payment only for the number of rounds that preceded the disqualifying blow. The amount to be paid the offending battler will be decided and disbursed by the commission. More drastic legislation is promised later.

Such a departure from the common procedure, where the customer usually pays the bill for far less action than was expected and the combatants themselves receive full wages, has been threatened by the commission for some time. The low left swing that brought about the disqualification of Von Porat in his bout with Phil Scott at Madison Square garden Monday night, ended the 12-round match early in the second round. Under the new rule, Von Porat would have been paid only one-twelfth of his guarantee.

Von Porat's suspension bars him from a bout scheduled with Paulino Uzcudun at the garden Jan. 3.

Another departure, forecast several weeks ago, came through the commission's sanction of a match at catchweights in Buffalo Dec. 26 between Jackie Fields, the welterweight champion, and Frankie Schoell, Buffalo middleweight. The fathers ruled that Fields may take this bout if he will also sign to defend his title in New York state within the next six months.

Heretofore the commission always has ruled that champions must defend their titles in every appearance here.

Smith did not state what his plans were. May has accepted a position with an old company. Smith will remain here until the expiration of his contract next June.

Basket Ball League Meeting Is Held To Arrange for Games

With a view looking toward the organization of a commercial basket ball league, a meeting was held Friday night in the offices of Featherston, Hawkins & Vague, Staley building, to discuss ways and means of launching the coming cage season in Wichita Falls. A half dozen of the leading business firms of the city sent representatives to the meeting and a committee made up of Charley Spragins, Walter Nelson, Frank Haley and Carter McGregor was appointed to make some kind of arrangement with the Junior college and high school authorities for the use of the gymnasium for regular practice and for the league games. It was proposed that a full eight-team league be made of the commercial league.

Next Tuesday night another meeting will be held in the same offices to perfect the organization of the league and to draw up a schedule of games to be played.

More than the usual amount of interest has been manifested in a local commercial basket ball league this year and it is expected that the project will prove a big success in every way. The race for supremacy in the league last year was hotly contested and was won by the Texas Electric Service company. They then met the Kelsey Lumber company team, Fort Worth, in a playoff series but lost the best two out of three games.

Among the representatives at the Friday night meeting were Charley Spragins, Mike Goldstucker, Ralph Howard, Tom Beaty, W. B. Featherston, Jim Jones, Ross Crittenden and George Brown.

Hack Wilson May Box Great Shires

CHICAGO, Dec. 13. (INS)—Hack Wilson, the clouting outfielder of the championship Chicago Cubs, today was pondering an offer of $5,000 to meet Arthur Shires, White Sox first baseman, in a 10-round boxing match.

Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, who staged the recent Shires-Dan Daly bout, wired the offer to Wilson at his Martinsburg, W. Va., home late yesterday. Today Mullen was in receipt of a wire from Hack asking a few days to "think it over."

The event would be staged "sometime in January," Mullen said. He indicated he would attempt to lease the Chicago stadium for the unusual battle.

The "Great Shires" first attracted attention as a potential challenger for heavyweight honors when he knocked out "Avenging Dan" Daly in 21 seconds last Monday night. Dan was allegedly out to even scores with Shires for the latter's assault on Lena Blackburne while Lena was manager of the White Sox.

Wilson has quite a record for "knockouts," too! But they are of the unofficial variety. He created a sensation here last summer when the polished off a couple of Cincinnati players in the same afternoon. There have been other impromptu bouts in his career that narrowly missed the police dockets. One was with an unidentified milkman near Wrigley field.

Reagan Junior Hi Eighth Grade Wins Off Seventh, 13-0

Intramural football was launched in Wichita Falls when the eighth grade players of the Reagan defeated the seventh grade of the same school by a score of 13 to 0 Friday afternoon at Wilson field. The eighth grade eleven proved too heavy and stout for the seventh grade and beat them, but not until after a hard fight between the two teams.

Frances Onstot, right halfback, made the first touchdown in the initial period on a neat end run. A line buck carried the ball over for extra point. After the marker in the first period the seventh graders bucked up to hold their opponents for nearly one-half the duration of the game. Then toward the last of the third period Onstot got loose on another end run and galloped over the goal line for the second and last touchdown of the game.

The seventh grade played a good game all the way, especially when it is taken into consideration that they were outweighed. Hardy, quarterback, was exceptionally good on forward passes and was well assisted by Ballard, halfback, who got on the receiving end of several nifty passes.

Frances Onstot was easily the star player for the winning team. He bids fair to make some high school a good man. Edward Sparkman also played good ball for the eighth graders.

These football players are Reagan youngsters who did not make a letter on the regular team. They were coached by four Reagan letter men. Jack Cossey coached the seventh grade and was assisted by Bob Decker. Henry Berry coached the eighth grade and had as his assistant Harry Williams. Coach Beck kept a general supervision over both teams.

The lineup for both teams follows:

8TH GRADE (13)		7TH GRADE (0)

Health and Diet Advice

Fruit Juices

There is a tantalizing and refreshing flavor to fruits, and for this reason they are often used in flavoring drinks and desserts. Real fruit juices are not only pleasant to the appetite, but they possess real value in containing important minerals which are necessary for the body. All of the fruit juices possess these minerals which have a tendency to neutralize acidity in the body and add to the alkaline reserve of the blood. Three of the best fruit juices are orange juice, cider and grape juice. They possess a definite food value and many people notice an increase in energy soon after drinking these wholesome juices.

They may be used for eliminative fasts, as they do not require much effort of the body to digest them and they do not interfere with its efforts at eliminating impurities. This is also the reason why many patients living exclusively on the fruit juice diets for a time are able to continue with their daily activities and often notice an increase in strength at the same time.

There is quite a bit of difference however, in the pure crushed fruit juices and the flavorings in artificial fruit drinks which can be manufactured at a much less cost, and most of the drinks and punches are made from artificial colorings, cane sugar, water and some acid, usually citric acid or phosphoric acid. It is a good idea to encourage drinking fountains to serve the real fruit juice which are health promoting, and to discourage them from selling the fruit juice imitations.

Almost any of the fruits can be made into wholesome drinks. Among these we find orange, lemons, grapefruit, limes, apples, grapes, pineapple, peaches, apricots blackberries, loganberries, raspberries, strawberries, pomegranates, plums, and in fact any of the juicy fruits or berries. Pleasant drinks can also be made from any of the dried fruits by making them over night in water and then slowly simmering the juice and fruit for a few minutes, straining out the pulp. Among these we find unsulphured peaches, figs, prunes, pears, dates, etc.

There are a number of vegetables which likewise make good drinks. For example the juice can be extracted from raw rhubarb and mixed with water and honey with perhaps a little beet coloring. The juice from mint leaves can also be squeesed out and used as can sassafras root, licorine root, etc.

A very simple method of extracting the juice is first to mash the fruit with a potato masher or fork, or by running it through a grinder and then extracting the juice by squeezing it through a cloth bag. A potato ricer is sold on the market consisting of a perforated drum and a plunger inside. This type of ricer serves very well as a fruit press as well, and is very convenient where small quantities of fruit juice are desired. For those who wish juice in larger quantities, there are several fruit presses and fruit mills, the latter grinding the fruit and separating the juice from the pulp. Every home should have some sort of convenient juice extractor. Fruit juice can also be bottled and pasteurized for future use, using just the same processes as you would in canning fruit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cysts on Head

Question—T. J. writes: "I have three or four lumps on my head. They are about as big as marbles, and I can move them about with my fingers just like a little piece of loose bone under the skin. There is no pain, whatever, but would like to be rid of them. Would also like to know what causes them."

Answer—The cysts you write about are probably fatty tumors caused from an unnatural growth of fat cells accumulating in one group. Where there are as many as three or four of these growths it surely shows faulty metabolism and the need for living according to better health rules than you have been doing. The only practical way to remove such lumps is by surgery. Such an operation is simple, and when the proper care is taken there is no danger.

Cream of Tartar

Question—L. J. asks: "What medicinal value has cream of tartar? Is it of any value as a blood cleanser?"

Answer—It is true that cream of tartar is often considered a blood cleanser, but why take anything of such doubtful value when it is possible through fasting and dieting to make your blood 100 per cent clean? Did you read the articles I wrote last spring about a cleansing diet? If not, I will be glad to send you these articles which have now been prepared in a single pamphlet. Just send your name and address on a large stamped envelope.

Dizziness

Question—G. W. asks: "Will you tell me what it is that makes me dizzy when I turn my head? When I lie down, or turn over in bed everything seems whirling around.

Answer—There are many causes of dizziness, but from your short description it would appear that your trouble is caused by some lesion or congestion in the vertebrae, or in the muscles of your neck. Consult some doctor from one of the schools of manipulative therapeutics.

Hungarians Deny Wholesale Murders

BUDAPEST, Hungary Dec. 13 (UP)—Gesturing with toil-gnarled hands, four Hungarian peasant women told a crowded court at Szolnok today they were blameless in one of the greatest wholesale murder cases of history.

The four were the first of 42 defendants, mostly women, accused of killing more than 100 relatives since the war in an effort to obtain their land till it as their very own. Poison was the most favored instrument of death.

Frau Ross Rolyvha, 44, was the first to speak. She denied to the magistrate, to fellow villagers and to the foreign newspapermen in the courtroom, that she had confessed to poisoning her husband.

Lydia Sebestyes, 71, stooped and wind-bronzed, denied she had been accessory to another poisoning.

Juliane Lipka, 66, charged with three murders and with being accessory to two others, made a blanket denial.

Marie Koteles, 50, said she positively did not kill her husband with poison.

GINNINGS TAKE SHARP SLUMP

Cotton Season in County Nearing End

Due to weather conditions, premonitions born of its being the 13th day of the month, or the inevitable exhaustion of the country's cotton crop, ginnings in Wichita county took a decided slump Friday and indicated definitely that the end of the season may be in sight.

Even the Electra community, prolific in its production of bales recently, dropped of 19, four less than were ginned at Burkburnett. The extreme reduction in activity was registered in Wichita Falls, however, with only three bales reported for the day. The county produced a total of but 66 bales for Friday, bringing the season's mark to 21,508.

The rain which began falling late Friday afternoon will materially hasten the termination of the ginning season, according to opinions expressed by ginners and buyers. In most districts, little cotton remains in the field, and the chance of its enduring to a profitable harvest were said to be slight.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 13. (AP)—Cotton was comparatively quiet but showed a generally steady undertone during today's trading on covering and trade buying. After selling up from 17.05 to 17.15 during the early trading, January reacted several points but steadied up again, touching 17.14 in the late trading and closing at 17.10. The general market closed steady at net advances of 1 to 6 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 2 points. After some irregularity it firmed on buying believed to be for foreign and domestic trade account. Active months sold about 5 to 10 points net higher with December advancing to 17.05 and May to 17.70 on the demand which evidently included considerable covering. Southern selling was not much in evidence after the first half hour but the advance brought realizing and the market sagged off several points during the middle of the day with May working down to 17.59 or a couple of points below yesterday's closing quotations.

Offerings were not heavy, however, and the market steadied during the middle of the afternoon with active months selling back just about the best levels of the morning. Closing quotations were several points off from the best.

Price movements in cotton were probably influenced to some extent by fluctuations in the stock market. Reports from Washington with reference to the progress of the cotton investigation again absorbed much of the trade's attention and routine news factors came in for comparatively little comment.

Spinners takings showed a falling off as compared with the previous week but were in excess of last year's figures, with the world's visible supply of American cotton showing an increase of 91,672 bales compared with 112,097 last year.

Liverpool cables reported continental and hedging in the market there and said there was an improved inquiry from India for cotton cloth but that stocks of yarn were increasing.

Exports today 35,478, making 3,713,236 so far this season. Port receipts 47,864. U. S. port stocks 2,646,069.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13. (AP)—Cotton was rather quiet today, prices showed some disposition to improve. Firmer stocks appeared to be the only incentive to the advance. January contracts opened at 17.00, rallied to 17.12 and closed at 17.08, or 6 points net. The general market closed steady at net gains of 4 to 6 points.

Liverpool cables were 3 to 4 points lower than due and influenced an easier opening here. Initial transactions showed losses of 3 to 4 points but offerings appeared absorbed at the decline and a good trade demand developed, apparently on the firmness of stocks. January recovered to 17.10, March 17.38 and May to 17.60 or 9 to 11 points above the opening figures.

Trading was quiet during the morning but prices improved slightly with March at 17.39 and May 17.62, or 10 to 12 points above the early lows and 4 to 5 points over the previous close. During the afternoon the market fluctuated within the early range gradually working up to within a few points of the top in final trading, March closed at 17.36 and May 17.60, or 4 to 5 points net higher.

Receipts, 60,729, for week, 297,360; for year, 6,260,368, last year, 6,358,382. Exports, 28,528; for week, 162,449; for year, 3,617,402; last year, 3,978,425. Stocks, 2,699,464; last year, 2,401,051. Star Halfback Pleads Guilty To Theft to Increase Crime Record

"Roving" Halfback Leaves Trail of Crime at Three Colleges Where He Shines on Gridiron

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 13. (UP)—Louis Derry, star Tiger halfback, was free on bond of $500 here today after his surrender to sheriff's officers on a larceny warrant. Derry surrendered himself in the office of Sheriff Clyde Ballew shortly before noon today.

Derry's attorney, Ruby M. Hulwin, appeared at the sheriff's office with him and bond was arranged shortly thereafter. Prominent Columbia business men and sportsmen were sureties on the athlete's bond.

DERRY LEAVES RECORD AT KANSAS SCHOOL

LAWRENCE, Kan., Dec. 13. (INS)—Lee Derry, formerly of Paragould, Ark., University of Missouri halfback, who is wanted in connection with jewelry and clothing thefts from another student's room in Columbia, Mo., has both a criminal and athletic record here.

Local police first became acquainted with Derry following his robbery of three gold watches, several suits and other articles at the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity house here in September, 1925.

Derry had gone to the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity house during the rushing season and told men there that he had been held up on U. S. highway No. 40. After staying for a few days there he left, supposedly for football practice at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

Shortly after his disappearance, the clothing and jewelry disappeared. A fraternity house robbery at K. S. A. C. in Manhattan, Kan., was also reported. The sheriff here made a hurried trip to Fayetteville and arrested Derry while at practice on the football field.

The stolen clothing was found in his room, and the watches were recovered from Kansas City pawnshops. Derry pleaded guilty to grand larceny and burglary and was sentenced Nov. 10, 1925, to the reformatory at Hutchinson. The youth was paroled in May, 1927.

The other appearance of Derry at K. U. was a few weeks ago at the last M. U.-K. U. game when he made a 33-yard run which made possible the victory for the Tigers.

Derry was recognized by many as the man who had given the hard luck story to the men at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house, but no public mention was made, nor was he reported to the Big Six conference, athletic officials here said.

While attending the University of Arkansas he was said to be one of the best football players ever produced in the Razorback school.

Friends of Derry then claimed he would make a name for himself—he did but in the wrong way.

Derry's home now is said to be in Poplar Bluff, Mo.

Bank Suit Involves Forged $2,250 Draft

Claiming that the Borger bank failed to take reasonable precautions before honoring an alleged forged check for $2,250, the First National bank of Wichita Falls Friday afternoon filed suit against the First National bank at Borger for the amount of the check, drawn upon the local institution. The plaintiff bank named the City National bank here as alternate defendant, the claim being based upon an endorsement placed on the check when it was presented at the City National bank.

According to the terms of the petition filed Friday, a check for $2,250, bearing the forged signature of W. P. Collins was sent through from Borger to the City National bank here, where it received the regularly stamped endorsement of the Borger bank before it was cashed at the First National bank where Mr. Collins is a depositor.

When the check was repudiated by Mr. Collins, the local bank began an investigation. The plaintiff claims that the Borger bank cashed the check without identifying the man who presented it.

Loot in Iowa Park Theft Recovered Here

Recovery of a number of suits and dresses stolen from the home of Harry Parker, west of Iowa Park, on Nov. 14, was announced Friday in the sheriff's department here after the goods had been identified in a local second hand store.

Investigations conducted by Dick Morris, Charlie Gant and Warren Belcher, deputies, on a tip from Bill Detliff, city marshal at Iowa Park, Friday led to the discovery of both the suits and dresses for sale in the local shop. Other goods, already sold, were traced to their buyers and returned to the owners. Neither the buyers nor the manager of the store is believed to have had knowledge that the goods were stolen, Sheriff W. G. Bralley announced. A part of the loot, valued altogether at $500, is still unrecovered.

There Are Various Ways of Doing Things

But There Is Usually ONE BEST One!

That holds true in locating a desirable rental location. There is the old time method—wearing out shoe leather—and disposition—looking up and down this street and that one—trying to find something desirable—usually failing.

Then there is the twentieth century method—sitting in your easy chair in front of the fireplace—reading the rental offers in Daily Times-Record News Classified Section—making the selection EASILY and CONVENIENTLY—then getting in touch with the advertiser—and arranging to view the property.

Which is best? Not a difficult question to answer, is it? Remember this when YOU are seeking a location!

JUNIOR C.-C. WORK PRAISED

Organization Credited With Reviving City's Spirit

Brief addresses by four local citizens and a 30-minute program of light opera and musical comedy selections by Frank Bird and his Bluebirds, KGKO radio staff orchestra, comprised the program given at the weekly membership meeting of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Kemp hotel Friday noon.

Declaring that the Junior chamber of commerce has already justified its organization by material contributions to the welfare of the community, J. C. Mytinger credited the organization with two definite accomplishments.

"The enlistment of this congregation of young men," he said, "has placed at the disposal of the city power that formerly was going to waste, so far as any organized civic endeavor was concerned. That is the first and greatest accomplishment, in my opinion. It has brought into play an element in civic forces which was lacking.

Outlook for 1930

"The second achievement which has been accomplished almost alone by the Junior chamber of commerce is the removal of a bad mental attitude which had prevailed here more or less effectively during the past three years. Your activities have done more to install a constructive spirit of optimism in our citizens than those of any other local organization."

Mr. Mytinger predicted that the year 1930 will offer much more encouragement in the way of material industrial development than has been seen since 1925.

"Our own local Deep Oil Development company will greatly stimulate the further recovery of our principal business, which is in oil, and which has now reached the favorable state of a balance between production and consumption."

B. D. Donnell, editor of the Daily Times, stated that "the injection of enthusiasm into the citizenship of the city has materially brightened the atmosphere in Wichita Falls.

"Without presuming to be a psychologist," said Mr. Donnell, "I have come to believe that individuals, cities, business conditions, things, and opportunities generally will be just about as we think they are. The power of suggestion is one of the greatest factors in the universe for changing conditions. Your organization has successfully applied that power."

Likening the influence of the Junior chamber of commerce upon Wichita Falls to that of Alexander Hamilton upon the United States 125 years ago, B. D. Sartin said:

"You touched the corpse of Wichita Falls, dead with pessimism, and it aroused as from the dead and sprang to its feet. This spirit of optimism and spirit of make-believe—for it was almost that by necessity when the Junior chamber of commerce was organized—is something the city should acknowledge with pride, because it has restored confidence in the city."

300 Sought at Banquet

J. L. Jackson Jr., vice president of the chamber of commerce, and advisor to the junior organization, expressed his appreciation of the work already done, and remarked that "things don't just happen; this organization was formed at a time when it was badly needed."

T. J. Waggoner Jr. spoke of the movement now under way to put the municipal zoo on a firm financial footing by presenting a Little Theater play at the Memorial auditorium on Dec. 27. All civic organizations are giving concerted cooperation in an effort to sell 5,000 tickets at 50 and 25 cents, he said. Temple Shell will be actively in charge of the sale of tickets.

Guy P'Pool, secretary, urged all members to work actively toward obtaining an attendance of 300 men at the annual banquet and business meeting to be held next Monday night, Dec. 16, at 7 o'clock in the Wichita club. Walter Nelson Jr., president, was in charge of Friday's meeting.

The hour opened with a special program arranged by Frank Bird for the occasion. The first group of selections was a medley of airs from the operetta, "Rio Rita," and the second consisted of excerpts from the Gilbert and Sullivan light opera, "Mikado," including the universal favorites "Tit Willow," "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," and "Wandering Minstrel." The concluding group, "Reminiscences of the South," climaxed a medley of Southland airs with an effective finale built upon "Dixie."

Tarrant Attorney To Address Junior C.-C.

Robert Stewart, district attorney of Tarrant county and a resident of Fort Worth, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of the Junior chamber of commerce at the Wichita club next Monday evening, Dec. 16, according to Guy P'Pool, secretary of the organization.

Mr. P'Pool also stated that an address by J. Wilkie Talbert of this city also has been added to the program heretofore announced. It was also learned that Charles Doran, tap and buck dancer who will entertain the gathering, will be accompanied by Miss Katherine Douglass, pianist.

Reservations for the banquet may be made by calling chamber of commerce offices at 4131, it was announced.

LITTLE THEATER, Avenue H and Polk street: "White Collars," 3-act comedy drama, 8 o'clock.

STRAND: Nancy Carroll, Helen Kane and Jack Oakie in "Sweetie" musical comedy. Screen singsong. Paramount news.

MAJESTIC: "Untamed," with Joan Crawford and Ernest Torrence. Joan has done better. "Syncopated Trial," talking novelty—one of the best shorts thus far. Movietone sound news.

OLYMPIC: "The College Coquette." Comedy. Pathe news.

GEM: Tom Mix in "Soft Boiled." Chapter 2 of "Tarzan the Tiger." Comedy.

QUEEN: The Griffin players, melodrama.

Relaxation for the tired business man, rejuvenation for grandpa, thrills and throbs for the sleek-haired youths and collegiate femmes—that's "Sweetie," now at the Strand. Media for its pleasant injection are Nancy Carroll, Jack Oakie of Oklahoma, William Austin, and that little Kane girl, Helen, who is one of a kind.

◇ ◇ ◇

Campus atmosphere that does not take itself too seriously forms a familiar background. The theme song is more than passable for those who take their jazz straight, the comedy is that and one extra for good measure, and should we ever go in for divorce in a large way, Nancy Carroll will please favor as co-respondent. The little red-head is quite as appealing as usual; which is a fortissimo superlative, as we see it.

◇ ◇ ◇

Helen Kane singing "He's so Unusual" collected a full garland of chuckles, and Oklahoma's Jack Oakie's refreshing conceit and ebullient spirit is balm for jaded nerves. William Austin is himself, and if you have not followed William's career—well, you ought to believe in Friday the 13th.

◇ ◇ ◇

Even with the galaxy of stars already indexed, the show must have a hero, and that's how Stanley Smith got in, with a very nice voice, a very nice boyish face, and doing the trick in a very nice fashion. And if you can find room in that sentence for another nice, put it in. It fits. An exceptionally clever bit of character work in a small part was turned in by Stuart Erwin: Might have been the mighty "Honk" of recent fame in Cisco, for he was a beefy tackle, and in examination defined a preposition as "What a fellow says to a girl when he asks her 'will she.'"

◇ ◇ ◇

It's merely a matter of choosing a paragraph in which to report that Jack Oakie furnished one of the highlights, for that's why they have Jack in just about the best comedies out of screenland. In this case it is his song hit, "Alma Mammy," on the chorus of which a burlesque chorus of collegiates agonize collectively. Mr. Oakie's Jolsonic emoting over his Alma Mater in modern musical setting was something for the audience to grin over—that is, those in the audience—while the faculty solidified in a state of shock.

◇ ◇ ◇

Shades of "50 years gone by" flit back into memory through the medium of "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet," a sing-song feature presented from the screen with animated cartooned figures. Just to mark the passage of time since folks really threw themselves into such honest sentiment around the family organ, the show completes with a better-than-usual talking news review. We give it carte blanche—you may take grandmother, Aunt Het, the minister and his wife—the whole family, as is. It has a clean bill of health.

ALTUS FAVORS SCHOOL BONDS

Need of New Buildings Is Told at Meeting

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 13.—The present crowded school situation of Altus was discussed by several men Wednesday night and at the close of the mass meeting called for this purpose an almost unanimous approval was given for a second bond issue for the erection of additional classrooms in the local school system.

Following the suggestion of persons at this meeting the audience voted for a committee of five men from the chamber of commerce be appointed by the president, C. W. Snyder, to work with the board of education in making plans for the proposed bond issue election. These men were urged to make a thorough study of the present situation and of the needs in this city.

Board of education members were urged to outline definitely the program to be followed in case a bond issue is carried in order that citizens may know exactly the proposition for which they are voting. Several local business men who voted against the recent $200,000 proposed bond issue for the school proposition said their reason for voting against the issue was because they did not understand exactly how the money, if voted, was to be spent.

These decisions followed the opening address of the evening by Haskett Pruitt of the state department of education from Oklahoma City, who was introduced by C. W. Snyder, chamber of commerce president, representing this body which called the mass meeting.

Pruitt has recently completed a survey of the local school situation and found that additional buildings and buildings erected properly are very much needed for the city.

Board members, Mayor S. E. Hickman, chamber of commerce members and various other citizens entered the discussion, all expressing a desire for another bond issue to be submitted.
