Repeatedly the heated "soldadera" was pulled down behind the earthen breastworks by soldiers, but always she leaped up again. She was not hit.

Lubbock And Plainview In High Places In Building

Won't Somebody Settle This?

WASHINGTON, Apr. 6.—(AP)—Secretary of State Stimson was asked in a letter today by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, either to announce a decision on where Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and hostess of Vice-President Curtis, shall sit at official dinners, or refer the problem to the world court.

Norris is recognized in the Senate as a master of wit and his jocular letter injected a light touch in the perplexing situation confronting capital society over whether Mrs. Gann is to be accorded the recognition demanded by her brother.

Mr. Stimson remains closeted with his problem. Mr. Curtis has declared he does not regard the ruling of former Secretary Kellogg that Mrs. Gann ranks below the wives of foreign diplomats at official dinners as final.

University Student Faces Libel Count

AUSTIN, Apr. 6.—(AP)—Horace Walker of Jefferson, Tex., until recently a pre-law student at Texas university was out on bond tonight after having been charged with criminal libel for his alleged participation in publication of the Blunderbus, anonymous paper, alleged to have "scandalized" university students on All Fools' Day.

The Blunderbus, suppressed after it had become an annual habit for April 1, startled the campus and much of the sedate city, when it published the sex questionnaire, circulated at the University of Missouri, and printed other more or less "intimate" things about boys and girls who attend the university.

While Walker admitted that he had something to do with the solicitation of advertisements for The Blunderbus, he would not reveal the names of the editors or circulators, if he knew them.

After several hours of questioning he refused to give any more information, if he had any, commenting that he would "take the rough end of the deal," if necessary.

Editors Of Big Texas Dailies Roundly Scored By Waco Solon-Scribe In Address At Denton

DENTON, Texas, April 6. (AP)—Frank Baldwin, editor of the Waco News-Tribune and Waco Times-Herald, only editor of the larger Texas dailies to be a member of the State legislature, declared before the Southwestern Journalism congress here today that editors of the large newspapers of Texas on the average" lacked a "persistent, aggressive and intelligent onslaught upon the forces within the state which seek to nullify honesty in government and governmental progress."

He was addressing the congress, at the College of Industrial Arts here on "If I were Teaching Journalism."

Baldwin was drafted for the legislature by McLlennan county during the campaign of 1928 and, in the words of Representative Harry Graves, of Georgetown, whom he opposed on several occasions in debate on the floor of the House, is "The meanest man in the Texas legislature."

The Waco editor told the congress that the average larger city Texas editor's attitude toward his government had come about 'either through fear, ignorance, laziness or perhaps lack of vision." He said further that "there has arisen a tendency in Texas for big newspapers to fall into the hands of publishers, so called by reason of ownership, but that fundamentally they are not publishers, but rather everything but newspaper publishers, from lumber kings to oil kings."

"As the natural consequence of such ownership, "said Mr. Baldwin, "those newspapers' editorial units, and this means the editors, have become hirelings, working by direction, and from this regrettable situation has arisen a lack of editorial fearlessness and daring from which our great state is suffering."

Except for the testimony of Secretary Hyde, both committees will depend largely on their own knowledge of the agricultural situation and on the expressed views of President Hoover.

Slaton Home Beautification Move

Lower Water Rates Bring Record Entry List For Annual Contest Conducted In Southern City

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, April 6.—Immediate reductions in municipal water rates for Slaton residents have been announced by the city commission. As a direct result of this action, the third annual home beautification contest, recently announced by the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, will attract the largest number of entries ever received, members of the committee in charge believe.

The new water rates provide for the consumer paying $2.70 for the first 5,000 gallons used, while only 12 cents per 1,000 will be charged for each additional 1,000 gallons used. Then a 10 per cent cut in the water bill is allowed if the user pays his bill by the tenth of the month. Under this plan, it is possible for the consumer to use 20,000 gallons of water at a cost of only $4.05, while the use of 40,000 gallons would cost only $6.21. These rates are believed to be unusually low for cities the size of Slaton.

Nearly 100 homes were entered in last year's lawn contest, and a much larger number is expected this year. The contest is in charge of a committee composed of George Green, H. S. Riggs, F. C. Jackson, H. C. Burrus and C. L. Sone.

At Least That's What Texas Accident Summary For Week Of March 24 to 31 Would Indicate

Five died from burns and fifteen were injured. Falls killed two and twenty five were hurt. Two were killed and three injured by firearms Explosives claimed one life and seven were injured.

Moody's Acts Are Subjects Of Wrath And Pleasure, Too

Governor's Vetoes Result In Making Some Citizens Mad And Others Glad; His Future Doubtful

BY R. W. BARRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, April 6. (AP)—Governor Moody made a flock of people unhappy when he vetoed three measures this week. Likewise, he pleased many by disapproving of at least two of them.

They were the Wirtz Anti-Bolter bill, the Sunday Moving Picture show bill, and the Highway re-routing bill.

There were many persons interested in each of them. All three of the bills had political possibilities. If the people were to pass on Governor Moody's capabilities by his disposition of these measures, and gauge his worth from no other standpoint, it would be interesting to know if he made himself or politically eliminated himself.

His Future A Puzzle

There has been considerable talk lately about Gdvernor Moody's future. Some say he will retire to the practice of law, others contend he will aspire to the United States senate.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard's term expires in 1930. If Governor Moody aspires to higher office he will be obliged to go against a prohibitionist brother, provided Senator Sheppard decides he would wish to return to Washington.

Of the enthusiastic Smith supporters, Paul D. Page, Jr., assistant attorney-general, was about the only one still close enough to the governor to feel at ease in entering his gubernatorial sanctum to give him reasons why the Wirtz bill ought not be disapproved.

Had His Supporters

He conveyed to the chief executive informal word from, and views of many prominent Texans who thought the governor ought to sign the bill, but who did not feel free to convey directly to him their impressions.

It was contended that it was not to be thought of sponsors of the Wirtz bill to bar rank and file voters who scratched the ticket, from the next primary, but particularly it was their desire to keep ringleaders in the revolt running for office as Democrats.

Split On Movies

There will be an element that will praise Governor Moody highly for disapproving the Sunday Picture show bill, although he did so simply because he felt it was invalid under the constitution. He has not said he was in favor of Sunday picture shows. But, it is a fact that there are, Sunday movies in violation of the law. Be that as it may, there is a considerable circle of people who think that pictures on Sunday are a desecration of the Sabbath and these will thank Mr. Moody.

His action in killing the highway re-routing measure may not set well with the "boys from the forks of the creek." Under its provisions the Highway commission could not arbitrarily change the route of a state highway away from the Main street of a town of 200 people or more without consent of the county commissioners court.

Federal Troops Get Into Action During The Advance To Jimenez

Scenes during the advance from Durango to Jimenez of 10,000 Mexican federal soldiers under command of ex-President Calles are shown in the above pictures, taken by an NEA Service cameraman, who is in the field with the Calles army. A massive iron bridge, dynamited by the rebels to stop the advance of the federals, is shown in the upper right. The temporary track built below it so the trains could proceed may be seen in the picture. A closeup of agrarian troops who left their plows to fight is shown in the upper left. General Elias Calles, former president and now secretary of war, is shown in the lower right. Note that Calles shown on the left, wears the typical Mexican general's uniform. Federal soldiers, climbing down from their box cars to go into action against a rebel cavalry force, are shown in the lower left. The raiders had attacked part of the train. The infantrymen promptly clambered off the cars to beat the revolutionists. In the center is pictured one of the regular passenger airplanes, being used by the government to watch the rebels' movements and to destroy bridge behind them to prevent escape.

NEWS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL

Hub Hi-Lights, As Gathered by the Student Reporters

Latin Department Of Much Interest

Annual Banquet, Featured By Latin Menus, Roman Dress and Program In Accord Is High Spot

The Latin department of the Lubbock high school is one of the most interesting to be found anywhere. Three courses of Latin are presented; first year, Caesar, and Cicero. The first year, of course is a study of the fundamental principles and structure of the Latin language; the second year, the student studies the works of Caesar, one of the greatest statesmen and generals the world has ever known; the third year he studies either Cicero, the orator second only to Demosthenes, who is considered the greatest orator in the history of man, or Virgil, the most immortal of ancient history whose works live today.

Then there is the Latin Club, Societas Sesperi, the purpose of which is to make a more careful study of Roman life and society. The club was organized in September 1927, and has continued to grow ever since. The club meets every Monday afternoon and has instructing and interesting programs concerning the government, home life, customs, dress, amusements and games of the Roman people.

New Members Initiated

At the first of this year an initiation was held for all new members. This proved a source of much enjoyment for both the old members and the new.

Later came the annual banquet, a state occasion for the year. This was a very joyous occasion for every one. The members and guests wore costumes modeled after those which the Romans wore. An air of grandeur and fasetivity pervaded the room, and had Cicero himself been present he would have felt very much at home. The soft lights, the guests sitting at the low tables and reclining on pillows and soft rugs while eating, the menus written in Latin, delicious foods such as the Romans ate, and slave girls padding softly in and out serving in genuine Roman style gave atmosphere.

This year the club is sponsoring the sending of delegates to the Latin Tournament, an annual event held in Canyon this year. Two representatives from each class are to be sent. This contest always causes keen competition, a quality necessary for good scholarship. The delegates are highly entertained in the city in which the tournament is held. A text is given to the delegates from each class covering a general knowledge of that year's work, and a banquet enjoyed in the evening at which the winners are announced and awarded their prizes.

Ellzey Speaks At High School Here

'Service' Is Talk Subject Of Amarillo Man In Address Before Student Body Last Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. Tom V. Ellzey and little Charles Ellzey of Amarillo were visitors of the high school Wednesday and Junior high the following day.

Mr. Ellzey lectured on "Service" taking his text from Matthew 20 28. "Even as the Son of Man Came Not to be Ministered unto but to Minister and to give his life a ransom for many." The keynote of the talk was "organization plus cooperation equals service." He defined service by using each letter of the word as a "peg" on which to hang great principles and helps in life. "S" was for serve, slay self, save, smile, share and sin; "E" for energy, earnestness, efficiency; "R" for right, reverence, righteousness; "V" for vision, vigor, victory; "I" for it or self-centerdness, individuality and "me, myself and I will eat all the pie"; "C" for clean mentally, morally and physically, cooperation, conscious of wrong and character built on the Rock of Ages. "A strong Christian character" he declared "is grounded above par in the marks of service today." "E" stood for enthusiasm "which makes you go over the top" and enlistment, that is, finding the niche you fit into. He especially praised the high calling of school teachers and believed they had the greatest responsibility of anybody, excepting parents, for enlisting the youth of the land.

It Takes Persistence—Not Brains!

Student Assistant At Texas Tech Says Brilliance Isn't Essential To Success But Hard Work Surely Is

"An exceptional brain is not essential to a student assistant," a student assistant at Tech college remarked the other day. This statement was made in spite of the fact that the average under-classman regards the student assistant as a rather efficient fellow.

At the present time there must be between thirty and forty assistants in the various departments at Tech. The number varies, however, depending on the number of tests and examinations given. Some departments do not have any assistants, instructors doing all the paper grading. In some departments there is a great deal of grading done by classes during the first few minutes of the class periods. For instance, some instructors who require a large amount of reading both from textbook and from library books, have the habit of giving daily quizzes to determine whether or not the students are doing the reading. These papers are often exchanged among the members of the class and graded by the class. Such a test and the grading of thirty-five or forty papers is often accomplished within ten or fifteen minutes.

They Lose Sleep

Other longer tests often cause a loss of sleep. For the most part, students are taking full courses themselves and assisting professors on the side. Sometimes they take a night off and grade fifty or seventy-five papers, ranging in length from four to probably ten or fifteen pages.

Such a night may carry them back through the paces of history when ancient man inhabited the valley of the Nile. It may carry them through mathematical formulas. It may take them through a political election or over the fundamentals of grammar. Or, it may carry them through the works of some literary genius of the future who soars through fantastic flights with his young imagination. Most English papers appear to be of another kind, however. Prosaic themes which express personal opinions of the writer are a characteristic of the freshman. His opinions are oftimes punctuated with mis-spelled words and queer constructions of grammar. Assistants in chemistry or physics are likely to be forced to wade through experiment after experiment which has been written by some pseudo-scientist. Those grading foreign language papers are probably confronted with the most errors. It is they who probably enjoy the distinction of being able to make the most "red marks" with the grading pencil. For thirty or forty errors are likely to appear on one paper of thanslation.

Its a Hard Lot

Although most student assistants are occupied with grading papers some of them work in laboratories, either instructing or in caring for equipment. Even these students find themselves grading some papers. Grading! Grading what the other fellow has written, oftimes written half-heartedly—that's the lot of a student assistant.

It may not take an exceptional brain to be a student assistant, but it likely does. To say the least, it takes a well-disciplined brain to stick to the job while the other fellows are enjoying the social life of college. It takes a persistent brain.

Five Teams Bow To Athens As Southwest Wins Title For First Time; Tourney Was Gruelling One

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Apr. 6.—A band of giants from Athens, Texas, tonight won the 11th annual University of Chicago's National Interscholastic Basketball tournament by defeating Classen of Oklahoma City, 25 to 21 in the final contest.

The winning of the national championship, the first time the feat ever has been accomplished by a team from the Southwest, was achieved after five days of gruelling play in which the Texans bowled over five teams. The southwest has had teams in the finals but never before has that section of the country sent two of its representatives into the final contest for the gold basketball.

Jackson Falls Before Athens In Semi-Final

CHICAGO, April 6. (AP)—The 1929 National High school basketball crown will be worn by a team from the Southwest for the first time in the history of the prep classic at the University of Chicago.

Athens, Texas, and Classen high of Oklahoma City, Okla., champions of their respective states, won their way through the semi-final round this afternoon.

Athens won its way into the championship bracket by disposing of Jackson, Mich., 27 to 13 while Classen swept aside the threat of the farmer five from Joes, Colo., 29 to 23. Joes and Jackson battle for third place in the game preceding the championship affair.

Classen Is Strong

With a team of six foot plus players and plenty of strong reserves, all of whom can score, Athens battles a smart trickey five from Classen. The Oklahoma City boys know the art of stalling and breaking fast, a type of play that defeated the sharp shooting farmer ball hawks from Colorado in their semi-final game.

A battle of Centers may be expected to develop as two of the ranking pivot men of the tournament will oppose each other. McCracken, a six-foot four gangling athlete, holds down that position for Classen while Summer, only an inch shorter and a crack shot, plays the position for the Rangy Texas champions.

The two teams are the survivors of 40 fives from 33 states that opened play in the tournament Tuesday. Brockton, Mass., battles Morton of Cicero, Ill., for the consolation championship. Columbia, South Carolina, won third place in the consolation tournament, defeating Wheatland, Mo., 40 to 17.

The Athens-Jackson box score follows:

ATHENS 27—

J. Thompkins, f.	1	0	4
F. Tompkins, f.	0	0	0
Sumner, C.	4	3	0
Brannon, G.	2	3	0
Johns, G.	0	2	1
B. Tompkins, F.	2	1	0
Owens, f.	0	0	1
TOTALS	9	9	6

Herrick, f.	3	0	4

Jagnow, c.	2	0	3

Brockton Wins Consolation

BROCKTON, Mass., Outstalled Morton High, Cicero, Ill., to win the consolation championship 17 to 10 in the first battle of the final evening. Morton, using the slow tactics which won it the national title in 1927 could not draw out the Brockton defense, and when the Easterners ran up a lead Morton's boys found themselves outmaneuvered in the final minutes. Brockton led at the half 8 to 4.

Singly and collectively, these young men challenge any two hurdlers in the country for races. The fellow at the left is Ross Nichols, national intercollegiate champion, and the one at the right is Ward Edmonds, both of Stanford. Edmonds is better known as Stanford's best pole vaulter, but he has shown marked proficiency in running the hurdles this season and he may run the hurdles for Stanford in some of the big meets. They are shown here doing their co-operative hurdling act, with arms locked around each other's shoulder, and they challenge any set of hurdlers for a race of this kind—or as individuals.

Rice Owls Defeat Baylor Bruins In First Dual Meet

Conference Champs Show Admiring Crowd How Real Champions Perform; Bracey Equals Record.

HOUSTON, Apr. 6.—(AP)—Coach Ernie Hjertberg's Rice Owls today showed an admiring crowd how the champion track team of the Southwest Conference wins a meet. The score was 74 1-2 to 42 1-2, and the Baylor Bears never had a chance.

The Owls ran away with every track event on the afternoon program, giving Baylor but three places in all, as far as the cinders were concerned.

Claude Bracey tied the accepted world's record for the 100 yard dash. Bracey negotiated the century in 9.6 seconds and breezed in seven yards ahead of Mahaffey of Baylor.

Baylor garnered the majority of its points on the efforts of the Bruin field men. Here the Owls were weak.

Davis, with one first and two seconds, showed the way for the Bear point scorers. He took a first in the javelin and placed second in the high jump and broad jump respectively.

Art Shires, Chisox 'Bad Boy' Returns

DALLAS, Apr. 6.—(AP)—Arthur Shires, the "Bad Boy" of the Chicago White Sox, whose open breach with Manager Lena Blackburne a week ago caused his temporary banishment from the club, was back in Dallas today, penitent and anxious to rejoin his mates. He arrived from his home at Italy, Texas.

The Texan said he was anxious to "forget the past and go out and hit the ball." He said he would report to Manager Blackburne here Monday when the Six returned from Wichita Falls.

Texas Nine Noses Out Rice Owls In Thrilling Contest At Houston; Owls Put Up Sparkling Exhibition

HOUSTON, April 6. (AP)—A ninth inning rally, characteristic of all Billy Disch coached baseball teams, was again pressed into action today and the Texas Longhorns by scoring 3 runs, nosed out the Rice Owls 4 to 3.

Until the ninth the Owls had put up a sparkling exhibition and it appeared they would break the 9th inning jinx. The first man up got a life on Joe Knippell's error and then the Steers began pelting the horsehide until the required number of men had tallied. Score:

The Goofygoo soared 'way up high and Clowny shouted, "Me, oh my! This cabin is a classy one. We could not ask for more. There's room for everyone of us, so no one needs to start a fuss. We all can sit and wonder just where we are heading for.

"I hope this Goofygoo is kind, 'cause if he is I will not mind his taking us a long, long way, to some land we've ne'er seen. But, gee, just think how we would flop, if he'd decide to let us drop. Let's all be mighty nice to him, so he will not be mean."

The Goofygoo, still flying fast, heard this remark and said, at last, "Oh, we will all be friendly, 'cause I like you Tinymites. I'll keep you safely in the breeze and dodge the towering posts and trees. Don't be the least bit frightened if I rise to wondrous heights."

"Go right ahead. We're satisfied to just sit here and calmly ride," said Scouty. "But, don't jerk so much. It makes this cabin swing."

"I can't help that," the bird snapped back. "The wind blows me right off my track. The cabin's hard to carry. It's a clumsy little thing."

Just then they heard a distant roar. "Ah ha, it's going to rain some more," exclaimed the long-necked Goofygoo. "There's thunder in the air." And then the rain began to fall. The Tinies huddled, one and all. The rain drops didn't touch them, so of course, they didn't care.

But for the Goofygoo 'twas sad. The rain was soaking him real bad. Right quick he did a funny thing, while skimming through sky. Into the cabin came his head. "Ha, ha, I'll fool the rain," he said. "As long as my head's in here it is bound to keep real dry."

Longhorns Lose To Texas Aggies In Conference Go

Texas Cinder Team Fails To Capture Single Track Event In Dual Fracas With Texas A. & M.

AUSTIN, Apr. 6.—(AP)—Paced by Captain O'Neil who accounted for 15 of his team's points, Texas A and M College cutclassed the Texas University track squad here today in a dual meet in which the Longhorns failed to capture a single track event. The farmers scored 82 points to their opponents' 49.

In addition to showing a pair of flying heels to the remainder of the field in the dashes and 220 yard low hurdles, which he finished in the record-breaking time of 23.6 seconds, the big Cadet ran a lap in the Aggie relay team. O'Neil's time in the hurdles, which betters by two-tenths of a second the Southwest Conference record, likely will not stand since he raced with a stiff wind to his back.

Texas showed best in the high jump, where the Aggies failed to place, and in the shot and discus, both of which were won by Captain Leo Baldwin.

Not For Weaklings

2,200 Lb. Pressure On Golf Ball

PITTSBURGH, April 6 (AP).—The golfer who makes a drive of 300 yards exerts himself to the same extent as though he were lifting 185 pounds to a height of one foot, and applies about 2,200 pounds of pressure between the club and the ball, the Carnegie Institute of Technology declares.

H. A. Thomas, of the engineering department, was commissioned by the United States Golf Association to make resilience tests of golf balls. Adoption of standard specifications for golf balls by the association may result from the tests.

In conducting the research, Professor Thomas disclosed some interesting facts. He learned, he said, that the club is in contact with the ball for 1-300th of a second; that a ball is more resilient if hit at the same spot on the cover where the previous stroke landed, and balls are less resilient in cold weather than in hot weather.

Apparatus for the tests was developed by Mr. Thomas.

Captain Bud Norman registered 7 points in the field events, thus being the outstanding Horned Frog in that division.

The West Texans had an excellent dash man in Hodges and good weight men in Adams and Travis. Gray, Laurence, Woods, Vickery Thompson, Vaughn, Kegs, Leach, Stevens and Clynch were other Wildcats to score first places.

Gulliver's Paradise

Tall Timber Thick On Tiger's Roster

By VICTOR G. SIDLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 6 (AP)—Gulliver, if he wandered among the Detroit Tigers, would find a race of giants worth writing about.

He would see some super-men in action. Baseball giants the American leaguers are—the Tigers' roster contains the names of 17 men of whose height is six feet or over. No member of the squad is under 5 feet 8 inches in height, while the extreme is 6 feet 4 inches.

Manager Stanley "Bucky" Harris, a mere 5 feet 9 1-2 inches, figuratively has his hands full in handling eight pitchers, four infielders, three outfielders and two catchers who equal or top the six foot mark.

A "Man Mountain"

Fred Pipgras, 20 year old brother of George Pipgras, Yankee ace, is the 6 foot 4 inch "man mountain," and he likewise is the youngest and weightiest of the lot, yet to reach his majority, Pipgras scales 220 pounds.

The youngester hasn't much on Dale Alexander, first base reeduit from the ranks of Toronto, however. Alexander, a .380 slugger, is but one inch shorter, and five pounds lighter.

Dudley Branom, another first base custodian who was drafted from Louisville; Frank Barnes, pitcher, purchased from Houston of the Texas league; Samuel Gibson, one of last year's twirlers, and John Prudhomme, a moundsman who came from Toronto along with Alexander in a $100,000 deal, attain an altitude of 6 feet 2 inches. Branom and Prudhomme are 185 pounds, while Gibson and Barnes tip the beam at 195.

Texans on List

Not to be outdone, Charles Wade, outfielder from Evansville of the Three Eye league; Nolan Richardson, infielder from Fort Worth, Texas league, and Phil Page, pitcher, bought from Springfield, boast of 6 feet 1 1-2 inch statures.

Elam Van Gilder, the Tigers' dependable relief hurler, drapes a 6 foot 1 inch frame over the mound, while Harry Heilmann, first baseman and great batsman of the American league and George Uhle former Cleveland pitching star, are among several who are six feet even.

Gulliver would find that his fabled travels were not altogether fiction.

Tech Tracksters Outclass Bisons With Huge Score

Paynemen Pile Up 92 Points Against Teachers In 1st Home Appearance of Season; Tadlock Scores High

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

The Texas Tech track team registered an overwhelming victory over the Canyon Buffaloes in the first dual meet of the season Saturday, turning back the Thunderng Herd in the most decisive victory the Matadors ever gained over the Bisons. Coach Victor Payne's tracksters displayed enough power in the various events to run up a total of 92 points while the visitors were counting 39.

With the exception of Keith and Bennett, the Teachers failed to furnish the class of competition that is usually characteristic of Canyon cinder squads. Keith lived up to advance notice by taking first place in both the 100 and 220-yard dashes while his teammate took several second places. Lowes took the other first place for the visitors in the pole vault when he cleared the bar at 11 feet, 6 inches. This ends the story for Canyon.

Twelve First Places

Twelve of the fifteen first places went to wearers of the scarlet uniforms. In addition to these, the Matadors took enough second and third places to outclass their plains rivals as they have never before outclassed.

In three events, the Tech thinlyclads swept through with all three places. These were the 120-yard high hurdles, the javelin throw and the broad jump. The locals carried off the mile relay with little trouble. On the first lap, Lawrence of Tech brought the baton in ahead of Terry and the following three Matadors gradually widened the distance between the two teams. Lawrence, Cole, Corley and Dallas covered the distance in the order named for Tech while Terry, Crowder, Barnett and Carter were the members of the Canyon team. Dallas, the Tech anchor man finished fully 75 yards ahead of the Canyon finalist.

Tadlock High Man

J. H. Tadlock carried individual scoring honors of the day with 14 points. The lanky Matador trackster placed first in both the 120 high and 220 low hurdles. His extra four points came when he tied with Pace for first and second place in the high jump. The performance of Freeland, Dallas and Pace was also far above the ordinary. Freeland former Lubbock High school distance man, walked off with first places in both the mile and two-mile runs, coming in far ahead of the field in both events. A stiff man prevented the Tech star from recording his best time in the long distance races, but his superiority over the other joggers was decided. These two first places put Freeland in a tie with Kleth of Canyon for second high scoring honors.

Dallas not only placed in both the 100 and 200-yard dashes, but ran two beautiful 440 yard races. In the 440-yard dash, the Blond Tech flash made a sensational finish to finish second behind his teammate, Captain Vaughn Corley. Running the last lap of the mile relay, James took a comfortable lead and gained twenty more yards to win the feature event of the day for the locals.

Pace turned in a brilliant performance when he tied with Tadlock for first and second honors in the high jump. With the bar set at 6 feet, 1 inch, the two Tech jumpers, together with Hiner of Canyon, failed on three successive attempts, but on the second round, Pace hurled himself into the air and cleared the bar by inches. Tadlock made the same jump with a scissor stride. In addition to taking third place in the broad jump, Alma finished third in the 220-yard low hurdles, and with another five yards to go would have placed second. In spite of his diving finish, he was beat out by a narrow space of daylight by Bennet of Canyon.

Tech begins training Monday for their second meet of the season here next Saturday with the Daniel Baker Hill Billies.

How it happened:

100-yard dash—Keith, Canyon, first; Bennett, Canyon, second; Dallas, Tech, third. Time 10 flat.

120-yard high hurdles—Tadlock, Tech, first; Payne, Tech, second; Wilkins, Tech, third. Time 15.9.

Mile run—Freeland, Tech, first; Doak, Canyon, second; Head, Canyon, third. Time, 5 minutes, 3 3-5 seconds.

220-yard dash—Keith, Canyon,

Fine Condition Of Giants May Help Club Take Lead

Tech Baseball Outfit To Appear In First Practice Game Here Tuesday

Primary Purpose Of McGraw Is To Get Team Out In Front With Jump As 1929 Campaign Gets Under Way

Superb Physical Condition Of New York Nationals May Be Tremendous Factor In Pennant Chase

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 6.—The pleasure, comfort and safety that can be derived from a big early season lead was amply demonstrated in the American League battle last year in the case of the New York Yankees.

Without the tremendous lead that had been accumulated when the contestants turned the half in mid-July, the Yankees would have been sunk and the flag of old Connie Mack would be hanging from the mast this year instead of the very familiar colors of Colonel Jake Ruppert.

Even with their big lead the Yankees were able to fend off the rush of the Athletics only on their nerve and it is quite certain that they could not have cut in on the world series dough if they hadn't gotten away well from the wire and hadn't stepped up in the first half of the race.

It was not difficult to ascertain in the southern training camps that the managers of all the contending teams are banking a lot on getting the jump at the start. The Yankees will do it through habit. And the rivals of the Yankees will attempt it in a spirit of strategy. For the American League men all believe that if the Yankees can be pressed hard all the way from the start they will crack up in the stretch.

Senior Loop Close

All the American League men are running against the Yankees, but in the other league there is a flock to shoot at and it has devolved into a question of every man for himself. Something like Bob Jones' policy of shooting against par in match play.

John McGraw didn't say so in so many words, but it was quite apparent from the activities in the San Antonio training camp that the giant leader's primary purpose was to get his men in the condition to jump with the gun and get a good lead before the schedule threw his men against the tough western clubs. McGraw didn't have to bother much with rookies. His team was fairly well set when the athletes reported and his main job was to get the team in shape.

The Giants were the best conditioned ball club we saw in the southern sector. In fact, they advanced too fast. One month before the opening date the athletes were getting so fine that McGraw called off all work and took the whole bunch down into Mexico and turned them loose for a day. They were given liberty without restrictions in the manner of English rowing coaches, who have found their men tightened up before the Oxford-Cambridge race.

Giants Ready

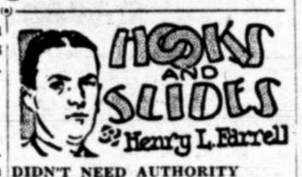

Three weeks before the season opened three of the Giant pitchers were ready to go nine innings. They wanted to go the limit and had to be restrained.

"In all my time I never have seen a ball club in better condition," Cracker Schalk, McGraw's chief lieutenant, told me. "Training conditions in Texas are ideal. It is not too hot down here and there is not the danger of a reaction when we hit cool April weather up north. Some of the clubs training in Florida are going to suffer from the effects of a sudden change. The team that is able to start the season in good physical condition has a great advantage. Games in April count as much as they do in September. Perhaps more. Because if you get a big lead at the start it has a moral effect on the other clubs."

* * *

The physical condition of the Giants may be a tremendous factor in deciding the National League pennant. There is no first-hand information available on the Cubs and the Pirates, but the long trip from California may work against them. And they were not in good shape to start the season last year. And they can't be in better shape than the Giants.

The advantage of physical condition may also work to the benefit of the Tigers in the American League. The Athletics are not in good shape and the physical ailments of a number of New York players make the Yankees an uncertainty. The Browns looked good when we saw them, but they have had some unusually hot weather in Florida and they may tighten up when they hit the chilly April weather of the north.

DIDN'T NEED AUTHORITY

The Hornsby fellow and his temperament was the subject of a discussion in a small social gathering of ball players and writers in the Giants' hotel at San Antonio one night during the spring training season.

The New York players present had very little to say about Hornsby. They didn't say he was a great fellow. They didn't say that he was otherwise. They did say that he was a little bossy, but that he was "all right."

The tendency to boss the other players on the club, it was gathered from the conversation, was the trait that the other players liked least in him. But they admitted that he may have come into the practice by habit. The players did not resent his bossing when he was in charge of the club during the period when McGraw was disabled. But they didn't see where he came into any authority when the big boss was around.

JUST A LITTLE FEUD

Some of the older players thought Hornsby got out the hammer on Freddy Lindstrom. In one of the first statements he made after he had been traded to Boston Hornsby said he didn't have any trouble with any player on the New York club but Lindstrom. And he called Lindstrom a cry baby. This feeling against Lindstrom, the players said, was the result of an enmity that sprung up between the two players the first day they were in the training camp together. And they told the story.

* * *

FREDDY TOLD HIM PLENTY

The first day Lindstrom was in camp he went to third base for fielding practice and Hornsby was on second base. The man batting to the infield put one down to Lindstrom. Lindstrom got the ball, turned toward second and, in the parlance of the ring, he let Hornsby "have it." He put everything he had in the throw and it obviously burnt Hornsby's hand and his temper. He stormed over to third base.

"Listen here, kid," he said, with his face close to Lindstrom's, "You're just a young fellow in this business and I've been at it a long time. Don't you ever let a throw go like that so soon. You'll throw your arm out sometime and when your arm is gon what are you going to do."

Hornsby meant well in his criticism, but it burnt up the fiery young Freddy.

"Who the hell do you think you are?" Lindstrom raged, stepping up close to him. "You're no more than a rookie on this ball club as far as we're concerned. We're playing for McGraw and he's sittin' over on the bench. And what's more. How the hel can you tell anyone about fielding? Listen, if you lost that bat tonight, you'd be in the bushes tomorrow."

Hornsby turned and went back to second base. It didn't get under his hide and it didn't make him timid. After that when he had any criticism to make of Lindstrom's fielding or the game of any other man on the club he said his piece.

Harry Must Watch His Step

BY JACK SOARS

Sports Cartoonist-Writer for Central Press and Avalanche-Journal

NO matter what a player's name may be or how great a reputation he has made, the mark must be towed in the ranks of the Detroit Tigers this year. Manager Bucky Harris made this plain the other day when he suggested askng waivers on Harry Heilmann for failing to comply with training rules.

Heilmann is expected to hold down first base this season. He is a hitter of acknowledged skill with 13 years of major league experience behind him. Last year he hit .342 and in 1921, 1923, 1925 and 1927 topped the American league hitters. But Harry must behave or take the gate.

Harris has Dale Alexander, a $50,000 rookie from Toronto, who led the International league batters last year, for first base emergency calls. He is a big fellow who can drive the ball with much gusto and has actually had more experience at the initial sack than Heilmann, who spent most of his time in the outfield.

College Nine To Meet Spur High In Single Game

Higginbotham Crew Goes To Big Spring Wednesday For Two Game Series With Class D Club

Tech baseballers will meet their first competition of the year Tuesday afternoon on the college diamond when the Spur High school nine comes here for a practice contest. The game with the high school lands will preceed a tw ogame series at Big Spring Wednesday and Thursday with the West Texas League club.

The games with Big Spring were first set for last week but were postponed. Coach Higginbotham has sent his baseball candidates through stiff daily workouts to whip a team into condition for the season ahead and from all indications, the hopefulls have come through in splendid shape.

With the exception of a few sore arms, the Matadors are fit and ready to tackle the Spur youngsters Tuesday and the Class D aggregation on the following two days. Strenuous batting drills have put the Tech sluggers on edge for the opening of the season.

Positions Well Filled

Practically every position on the team has been cinched, with the exception of the shortstop post. Waller Rainwater and McIlvain have been cavorting around the shortfield with almost equal ability and the Tech mentor is finding it hard to choose between the three. Rainwater has shown more ground-covering ability while Waller and McIlvain have displayed the best throwing arms. Of the three Waller has shown probably the most improvement. Brought in from the outfield, Little Red has rapidly picked up the ways of an infielder. His hitting strength may give him the edge over the other candidates.

Coach Higginbotham is anxious to see his 1929 product under fire and the Big Spring series will undoubtedly prove a strong test. Other practice games will likely be played before the college season opens here April 16 against the Daniel Baker Hill Billies. The Goats have stepped out in early season games as strong contenders in the T. I. A. A. strong hurling staff is giving the Brownwood nine a menacing position among Texas college baseball teams.

Will Jack Sign Self For Bout?

Will Promoter Jack Dempsey sign Fighter Jack Dempsey for a bout this summer under Dempsey promotion? Nobody knows, perhaps not even Jack himself. The cameraman here has pulled a trick showing Promoter Jack watching Fighter Jack sign for a bout.

What A Difference Just One Year Makes In The Life Of A Rookie!

By NEA Service

SAN FRANCISCO, April 6.—One year ago Fred Polvogt, a young catcher, wasn't good enough to get any serious consideration from the Southern League clubs, a Class A organization.

And now he is being touted as the first string catcher for the San Francisco Seals, a Class AA outfit.

Polvogt got his chance when Joe Sprinz failed to agree with the San Francisco club on salary terms and was sold to Indianapolis. He played last year in the Cotton States League, a Class D outfit.

San Francisco experts declare Polvogt is a better all-around catcher than Sprinz and predict for him a great career as a ball player.

College Players In Great Demand

NEW ORLEANS, Aprfl 6.—Having great success in recent years in developing collegians, the New Orleans club in the Southern association always crowds its camp in the spring with a number of college players. And this is no exception to the rule.

The first baseman for New Orleans this summer is sure to be a college rookie as the four candidates for the job are Kinderman from Illinois, Connatser from Alabama, Hooks from Southwestern in Texas and Brewer from Georgia Tech. Hooks and Connatser are favored now.

Three other nice prospects are Beasley, an outfielder from Georgia; Smith, a shortstop from Alabama, and Granger, a pitcher from Louisiana State.

Touring Golfers File For Entries

NEW YORK, April 6. (AP)—An ambitious golf invasion of Great Britain to get under way Wednesday gained momentum today when two former champions requested the United States Golf Association to file their entries for British events.

George Von Elm, Detroit, telegraphed executive secreatry T. J. McMahon a request to nominate him for the British open and amateur championships, while Miss Mariono Hollins, Del Monte, Calif., asked to be entered for the women's title quest.

TEXAS NETTERS WIN

COLLEGE STATION, April 6 (AP)—Texas University's tennis team made a clean sweep of its dual meet with the Aggie net men here today, the Farmers failing to win a single set in six matches.

Jolson's 'The Jazz Singer' Features Entertainment Week In Lubbock

Submarine Tale To Be Presented Last Part Week

And Then There Is The Circus And Jim Rodgers

AL JOLSON, star of the stage for years, comes to Lubbock today in his first, and greatest talking picture. The photoplay, "The Jazz Singer," has been rated as one of the best of the new sound and talking productions and its heads the amusement bill in Lubbock for the week.

"The Jazz Singer" has a throbbing human interest story to lend it interest. Then, Jolson sings several popular tunes and there are several talking sequences. Briefly, the plot is the story of Jolson's rise to fame on Broadway.

May McAvoy is the principal supporting star although the cast includes an array of screen talent.

"The Jazz Singer" holds sway during the first four days of the week but on Thursday and Friday there comes a big double attraction at the Palace. The double "smash" will be "Submarine," a film of undersea adventure, based somewhat on the theme furnished in the sinking and rescue efforts of the Submarines S-4 and S-51; and Jimmie Rodgers, the Victor record yodeling phenom, who is to appear on both days. Rodgers' records are breaking records of another kind in sales almost daily.

Circuses are usually allied with fall but this spring the conditions are reversed. Christie Brothers' circus will be here for both matinee and night performances on April 11. Among other things, Christie's circus still has a street parade—it's the largest circus still staging this time-honored procession.

William Haines in "Telling the World," a newspaper story, is shown at the Lyric today and tomorrow. More headlining attractions appear on the program for the rest of the week.

Dancing at the Uptown Dance Palace will be held on the regular nights and there will be other features of entertainment during the week.

Fish Were Hazard To Making Cinema

Large schools of jewfish, barracuda and tuna fish made the filming of Columbia's De Luxe special, "Submarine," which is to be shown at the Palace theater this week, a difficult undertaking. The scenes were made off the coast of California a point sufficiently near shore to avoid if possible the hordes of fish that were running at the time.

Much of the action was filmed under water. Jack Holt in the role of a diver does some of his most daring feats at the bottom of the sea. During the filming of one sequence a rope became entangled around his ankle. He plunged headlong, but the buoyancy of the water prevented him from falling his full length.

"I tried to rise," said Holt relating his adventure, which was verified by the film record secured by the camera. "Suddenly I was swatted on the head by something blunt. For a moment I fancied I had struck some wreckage. I looked about and beheld myself entirely surrounded by a school of tuna. They walled me in. I fought them off but it seemed like an impossible fight against such odds. They kept bouncing into me from every side. I gave the signal to be hauled aloft. It seemed hours before I reached the surface, all but exhausted from the strenuous work of keeping clear of the fish."

The weight of a California tuna ranges from 150 to 300 pounds and it is no easy task to fight with one in the water. To be caught in a school is an adventure fraught with real danger.

Kills 324 People— But It's Films

The actor who has gained fame as a portrayer of underworld roles is playing "The Killer" in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production. After the sequence in which he committed his usual murder was filmed, Betz pulled out his pencil and figured that during his life on the screen he had killed precisely 324 people for screen purposes—and that didn't count anybody he had killed more than once.

Betz also figured that if he had been arrested and sentenced to life imprisonment for each murder he would be in jail figuring the average lifetime and his present age for the next 12,960 years—which is quite a while. Anita Page plays the leading feminine role in the production, which is directed by Sam Wood.

Jimmie Rodgers To Sing Here

JIMMIE RODGERS

JIMMIE Rodgers, who in fourteen months rose from a jobless railroad brakeman to a headlining vaudeville entertainer with an income that runs anywhere from $1800 a week into dizzy figures, was in town the other day.

Rodgers is the blue yodel singer whose Victor records—especially "Blue Yodel," "In the Jailhouse Now," "Brakeman Blues" and "Waiting for a Train"—are so popular. One of his records has broken all sale records, having recently passed the two million mark.

Burt Ford of Sweetwater, West Texas representative of the T. E. Swann Music company, of Dallas, Victor jobbers in this section, was with Mr. Rodgers. He announced that the singer would appear at the Palace for both matinee and night concerts on April 11 and 12.

Rodgers, though one of the nations most popular singers, is still, at heart, a railroader.

"Lots of times I desert my pullman and journey up to the engineer's cab" he said. "And there, when I explain things to the engineer, I like to travel."

Two Outstanding Pictures Booked For Lubbock Soon

Fairbanks 'Talkie' Comes to Palace On April 24

NEWS from the Palace and Lindsey management yesterday told of two of the outstanding pictures of the year—both of which are booked for showing in this city during the month of April.

Douglas Fairbanks' latest picture and the first having sound effects and talking sequences—"The Iron Mask" is to be shown at the Palace for four days starting on April 24.

April 28, at the New Lindsey, a one hundred percent talking picture by Paramount, "The Doctors Secret"—will start a four day run.

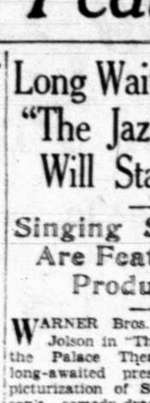

Fairbanks has ever been popular with Lubbock audiences and the added incentive of hearing him speak presages an overflowing attendance for this presentation. More about these two photoplays will be announced later.

The typewriter is credited to C. L. Sholes, printer and editor.

Long Waited Film, "The Jazz Singer" Will Start Today

Singing Sequences Are Features Of Production

WARNER Bros. will present Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at the Palace Theatre today. The long-awaited presentation of the picturization of Samson "Raphaelson's comedy-drama, which continues to be a potent attraction on the legitimate stage, will be made a gala event.

Of the production of "The Jazz Singer" it is said that the Warners have lavished so much thought, care and attention that they look upon the completed work as their supreme achievement. For nearly six months the picture has been in active preparation.

The story of the rise of the son of the cantor who deserted his home to become a jazz singer and at last was torn between the desire of his father that he succeed him in the synagogue and his own desire to shine on Broadway is well known, know. Alan Crosland, who directed the picture, is said to have treated the story in the spirit in which it was conceived. That Jolson is the logical exponent of the story of the picture is clear from the facts that the story of his own life parallels it in many places.

Chief in Jolson's support is May McAvoy as leading woman in the role of Mary Dale. Warner Oland has the role of the elderly cantor. Among others in the numerous cast are Otto Lederer, Eugenie Besserer, Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, Anders Randolf, William Demarst, Bobby Gordon, Richard Tucker and Nat Carr.

Christy's Circus Has New Line-Up Of Novel Stunts

Famous Show Will Come Here This Friday

The Christy Brothers wild animal circus, which will be here Friday, April 12, for two performances, is better equipped this year than ever before in its history; the program is one of the lengthiest, more varied and composed of better acts than ever boasted of before by this world renowned organization and has a most fascinating array of circus divertisements.

This season the management has added an entirely new equipment and, as in previous seasons, they are always first in new ideas and innovations. You will find in this big, sparkingly clean, friendly circus, newness, freshness, smartly dressed, fast moving and every expression the very highest development of circus ideas.

Ingenuity and variety distinguish the circus program. There are wonderful trained wild animal acts, upon which primarily the fame of the show was founded, beautiful equestrienes in swagering raiment, aswish with silk and aflame with color, in hazardous feats on the backs of galloping horses. Wonderful acrobatic groups tumble in the different arenas like a cascade. It is hard to bet the breath in trying to get the details. Numerous aerial stars keep the lofty canvas dome alive with flying forms and there is an army of fun makers, clowns galore, whose sole mission is to entertain with amusing pantomimic sunts that will surprise even the old circus fan.

Book Tells About XIT Ranch

We Just Can't Be Good, Says Author In Liveright Book

It's Not Our Fault Is Title Of New Book

NEW YORK, April 6.—Well, it's no use! It seems we just can't be good. Mankind has been up to misconduct as long as history has been able to record his transgressions, and doubtless was up to some evil mischief in unrecorded days.

Furthermore, there's nothing new in the way of sin. It's all been done over and over again. There's nothing original in being as bad as you can be. And the same disdeeds have in a general way, been frowned upon by the tribal laws of all times.

You see, for something like five years Dr. Alfred L. Hall-Quest, of Columbia university, has been engaged in research concerning why we mibehave like human beings. The results are contained in an extremely interesting book, "It's Not Our Fault" (Liveright.)

Leaving aside such major matters as murder, the minor sins of omission and commission have been caused largely by the creation of civil and religious laws. It has been almost impossible for the average man to avoid breaking one or more of these; and even when he has been a good boy in the eyes of himself and his admirers, he has managed to become an evil-doer in the eyes of some other fellow.

Nor does the moral rating of civilized man rise above that of his aboriginal ancestors.

"Primitive man was far more of a gentleman than we have been willing to admit," writes Prof. Hall-Quest. "And it's a nice question whether the modern apartment house and human stockyards of our cities offer better conditions for living than the kraal or the cave."

An aborigine, he tells us, would be shocked by some of our ordinary customs.

And it all resolves itself down to a difference in tribal standards. Which, of course, is a very broad subject. From the standpoint of philosophy, it's the consequence which must be considered. However good the motive, if the consequence is bad then the whole idea must be bad.

Thus, it is argued, charity is looked upon as something good. Yet, if one gives to charity for the praise involved, the motive becomes selfish and not benevolent—hence it is bad. And if the charity results in encouraging idleness and pauperism, again it is bad. So good deeds can plant bali seeds and bad deeds can bring good.

More Ways to Be Bad.

Man's efforts throughout the ages has been to standardize conduct—yet tens of thousands of years of effort have failed to remove the tendency toward wrong-doing. Instead, the professor hurrics to inform us, "the efforts have multiplied the forms of human misconduct."

For morals cannot be made uniform. Free will is an eminently important factor in the life of man and cannot be lightly weighed. What's worst, such a simple matter as bad health can make all the difference in the world in behavior. A rebellious stomach, for instance, has been known to send many a man's moral behavior into a slump. The noises of a great city such as Manhattan can produce a nervous overstimulation which leads to irritability and restlessness. Too much quiet, on the other hand, can produce another form of restlessness.

There seems no way out—we just can't be good. But we can recall the golden rule and be tolerant to our fellows and give them a "Cheerio," with some reason for believing that they're not much worse than we are.

I advise a reading of this work by a great many people.

Vivid Picture Of Early Panhandle Given In Volume

This Country Has A Romance All Its Own

THE PANHANDLE country has a romance all its own and the story of its early days—of times when vast ranches covered the area, and when the Indian and buffalo contested with the white man for supremacy—forms a unique chapter in American history.

A vivid and authentic picture of early days in the Panhandle is given in the "XIT Ranch," a volume just published by the Lakeside Publishing company of Chicago.

The volume is of absorbing interest from cover to cover. A record of the famous XIT, probably the largest ranch ever located in America—where more than one hundred cowboys 'punched' 150,000 cattle over its boundles domain—the volume is also a record of the history of this entire part of the country.

Photographs abound—photographs which may show buffalo drinking from picturesque arroyos; which may show cowboys at ease beside the ranch chuch wagon; or which might show vast herds of cattle—herds such as no longer exist in this country—grazing on the sweeping Panhandle prairies.

In the book are mentioned dozens of pioneers who were trail blazers in the Panhandle—men who left landmarks in living and growing cities, men of whom even the present have heard, time and again.

The XIT ranch was composed of the 3,000,000 acres and that's 4606 sections more or less—which was traded by the Texas legislature to the Capitol Syndicate Land company of Chicago in return for the present massive red stone state capitol at Austin.

Bullets Whistle Through Arizona Town And American Trooper Is Wounded As Mexican Revolt Is Continued

The American cavalryman was shot in the chest when his patrol after uncovering a cache of grenades on the American side of the border, was fired on by Mexicans believed to be revolutionists.

The federal garrison at Naco beat back a mass attack of rebel tanks, infantry and cavalry. Rebel casualties were greater than those of the federals, though no definite check was available.

Reinforcements Arrive

A reinforcement of about 300 federals arrived at Naco, Ariz., by train from El Paso, and joined their comrades in the trenches during the hottest part of the fighting. They were permitted to come by train from El Paso and to cross the border, apparently under orders from Washington. It was thought that the rebels with whom American troopers had their brush had received news of the federal troop train and were waiting to bomb it.

The federal army on the West Coast occupied Culiacan, capital of Sinaloa, without resistance. General Cardenas reported to Mexico City that the rebels were retreating to San Blas, near the Sinaloa-Sonora border.

In the main northern campaign, General Almazan's advance guard occupied Santa Rosalia, about 90 miles south of Chihuahua city where the rebel forces have been re-formed. They also took Parral, a strategic mountain point, General Calles informed the government. There was no fighting in either place.

Estimates Differ

General Escobar placed rebel dead in the fighting around Jiminez at no more than 200. The federal estimate was 1000.

A strong federal punitive expedition was on its way to combat guerrilla bands of so-called "Cristeros" whose activities have become a serious menace in Jalisco and Guanajuato.

Washington Approves Action Of Lassiter

WASHINGTON, April 6. (AP)—The government viewed with satisfaction today the action of Major General Lassiter at San Antonio in sending 18 airplanes to Naco, Arizona, to see that Mexican rebel planes do not drop any more bombs on the American side of the international border.

At the same time they continued apprehensive over the safety of inhabitants of the American town through which bullets sprayed today as rebel forces launched an unsuccessful attack on the federal garrison in the Mexican town of Naco.

Destroyer Under Way

The U. S. Destroyer Moody was under way from San Diego to Tobari Bay off the Mexican coast to replace the destroyer Robert Smith, been dispatched to Topolobampo, Mexico, at request of the state department.

State department officials expressed some surprise on learning that immigration authorities had permitted some 300 disarmed Mexican federal soldiers who had been interned at Fort Bliss to reenter their country at Naco, passing through Arizona. This action followed the protest of Governor Phillips, of Arizona, against permitting passage of troops through the state, and Secretary Stimson's assurance thata Arizona's sovereignty would not be violated.

However, as the men were unarmed it was indicated that they had the status of Mexicans illegally in the United States, liable to deportation and thus not coming under the classification of troops.

Rebels Forced Back By Defending Federals

NACO, Sonora, Mexico, April 6. (AP)—Attacking this Mexican federal stronghold in force today, rebel troops of General Fausto Topete failed to defeat the defending forces of General Lucas Gonzalez and were forced back with apparently considerable losses. Although the casualties on neither side could be definitely determined, federals were reported to have suffered the least.

Coincident with the opening of the battle early in the day, an American trooper, Private John Finezee, negro, Tenth cavalry, was shot in a brief enocunter between a United States patrol and Mexicans believed to be rebels on the border eight miles east of here. Other casualties on the American side of the line during the battle included two Mexicans, a girl and a woman, slightly wounded by rifle bullets.

Rebels Drop Bomb

In addition to the wounding of the trooper and others on United States territory, a rebel plane attacking the federal trenches dropper a bomb on the Arizona side of the line. It exploded fifty feet from a telegraph office where newspaper correspondents and telegraphers were working, shattering windows and starting a fire in a trash pile.

Charles Newton was slightly wounded by a fragment of the bomb which fell in the back yard of his home.

Airplanes, tanks, infantry and cavalry of the revolutionary forces launched the long-threatened attack on Naco. Naco was defended by 800 federal troops augmented to nearly eleven hundred during progress of the battle by arrival of a train of Mexican soldiers who had been interned at Fort Bliss, Texas. The rebel attackers numbered upwards of 1,500.

Tanks Used By Rebels

Two airplanes, two tanks, about 500 cavalrymen and columns of infantry joined in the rebel onslaught shortly after dawn. These forces by noon succeeded in penetrating a cemetery east of town and drove the federals from the front line tranches despite a withering fire.

Rifle and machine gun fire from the federal trenches was augmented by a single piece of artillery, a one pounder. Rebel tanks, converted from farm tractors, pushed their armor plated snouts up to the federal entanglements, sending streams of bullets from machine guns concealed in their interiors, while federal bullets beat a ringing tatoo on their sides.

The battle raged with bullets singing about the adobe walls of this little town. For three hours Naco, Arizona, across thte international line from here, was the recipient of lead passing directly through the town from a vicious fire directed at both flanks of the federal trenches.

Trenches Are Found

The clash with the Americans came after the United States troopers had found a cache of 75 grenades near the border. While the squad was guarding the explosives a Mexican patrol approached from the Mexican side.

It was challenged as it reached the border, and opened fire. Finezee went down as his companions returned the fire and dispersed the Mexicans

The grenades were believed to have been intended for rebel use in today's storming of the federal trenches.

The first hint of brewing battle came at three o'clock this morning, when a terrific blast of dynamite wrecked a locomative inside the federal trenches here. An electric circuit supplying both Naco Sonora and Naco, Arizona, with lighting current had been cut in the American town.

Bombing Begins At Dawn

At daybreak General Topete started intensive bombing operations over Naco with three planes working in relays, and marched his cavalry and infantry out of the hills as his bombs crashed in the federal town.

A heavy fire began to pour into the trench from the east, west and south at eight o'clock. Rifles and machine guns behind the entrenchments beat out a vicious fire in answer.

Firing broke out again briskly after the reinforcements had come in from Fort Bliss, where they had been interned for weeks. The rebels rallied and eassayed again to storm the breastworks. They were beaten off with less difficulty the second time and had drawn off out of range for the most part by 11 o'clock. Sporadic firing, involving isolated parties of would-be attackers continued long after the main battle had ended.

As the rebel troops advanced to the attack on the east flank, General Ramon Yucupicio's Indian cavalry surged over the international line into the United States for several yards. A reinforced United States cavalry patrol under command of Lieutenant R. W. Curtis pushed them back into Mexican territory and warned General Yucupicio to remain on his own side of the fence. Rebel planes, after Topete's troops had withdrawn, dropped a parting octette of bombs on the victorious federal troops and, under stinging machine gun fire, one of the rebel aviators maneuvered his plane in a defiantly reckless exhibition of stunting directly over the Naco trenches.

Bombings Recur In Rebel Siege Of Naco, Sonora

NACO, SONORA, Mexico, April 6. (AP)—Eight bombs were dropped on federal entrenchments here this afternoon in a renewal of hostilities by rebel airmen. General Topete had his troops concentrated just out of federal gun range. Whether he was preparing to assault Naco again today was not learned.

Topete Promises No More Bombing From Planes

NACO, Ariz., April 6. (AP)—Captain T. M. Rundel, courier for Brigadier-General Frank S. Cocheu, commanding United States troops along the border, returned to the American army camp here this afternoon with assurances from rebel General Fausto Topete that no more bombs would be dropped on the Mexican federal garrison at Naco, Sonora.

Yank Planes Set Out From Galveston, Enroute Naco

GALVESTON, Texas, April 6. (AP)—Twelve planes from the third attack group took off at 1:30 p. m. today for Naco, Arizona, under orders from the corps area commander. They expected to reach El Paso by sundown, but planned to stop overnight at Marfa if delayed.

Each carried a pilot and one man and was loaded to capacity with ammunition for the five machine guns taken as equipment. Captain H. N. Heisen is in command.

Seven officers and 43 men from Fort Crockett will leave by train tomorrow morning for Fort Huachuca to join the aviators.

Federals Push Rebels Back On West Coast

MEXICO CITY, April 6. (AP)—Federal troops operating on the Pacific coast and in the state of Chihuahua today continued to push back the rebels toward Sonora, hoping to catch them in a vise-like movement and deal the final blow of the revolution in the homeland of the late President Obregon. The column of General Lazaro Cardenas, driving toward Sinaloa, occupied Culiacan, the capital, without resistance. Insurgents, under Generals Iturbe and Cruz, were said to be still retreating and to have reached the vicinity of San Blas, rail junction near the Sonora border.

In Chihuahua, the army of General Juan A. Almazan occupied Santa Rosalia, on the trunk railroad from Jiminez to Chihuahua city, and also the strategically situated mining town of Parral, on a branch line southwest of Jimenez. Both had been evacuated by insurgents.

Colorless Half-Day Session Marks Wall Street

Price Trend War Indecisive; Call Money In Slump

Turnover In Stocks Small, Setting Low Record Thus Far This Year; Foreign Exchanges Quiet

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 6. (AP)—A colorless and indecisive contest for control of the price trend dominated a quiet half-day session on the stock market today. The public kept to the sidelines, and professional traders displayed little energy.

Bears took advantage of the normal wave of week-end selling to launch a rather feeble drive early in the session, but met with some resistance, and toward the close bulls checked the downward trend by staging an upturn in the rails.

Credit Still Cloudy.

The fact that the credit situation seemed no nearer clarification with Federal Reserve authorities announcing continuation of their present policy of speculative credit curtailment, and banks apparently disposed to co-operate and with commercial requirements coming to their seasonal peak in a few weeks, left little incentive for large scale constructive operations.

The drop in the call money rate to 6 per cent late this week caused no enthusiasm, with 9 per cent time money, the highest since the panic of 1907.

The day's business news was meagre, and without influence on the market. The first 22 chain store systems to report April sales showed a gain of more than 23 per cent over March, 1928.

Turn-Over Light.

The day's turnover of stocks was the smallest for any Saturday session thus far this year, aggregating but 1,615,090 shares. As measured by the Associated Press price indices, gains and losses at the close about cancelled each other

Upturn in the rails was led by the Van Sweringen issues

This movement was stimulated by the prospect of an early consummation of the acquisition of the Pere Marquette by the Chespeake and Ohio, and by the inauguration of dividends on Alleghany Corp. preferred stock.

Express Goes Up.

American Express was again hurled upward, mounting 35 1-2 points to a new record price at 395. National Surety jumped 11 points, and Columbia Gas issues mounted about 4. Superior Steel was again in demand, mounting nearly 6 points to a new peak at 72 3-4.

Oil shares recovered as leaders in the industry were inclined to minimize the effect of the opinion of Attorney General Mitchell as to the authority of Federal Conservation Board and the curtailment plan, on the eventual success of the plan. Houston and Pan-American issues rose 2 to nearly 3 points, and Standard issues were firm.

Case Threshing dropped nearly 20 points in a small turnover, and motors and coppers were generally heavy. Anaconda, Baldwin locomotive, Burroughs Adding Machine, Commercial Solvents, International Telephone, were among issues losing 2 or 3 points and more. Motor products dropped 3 points to a new 1929 low.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, but generally steady with Sterling cables a shade firmer.

Belgium And Holland Stay By Their 'Bikes'

BRUSSELS, April 5 (AP).—The use of the bicycle, the "motor of the poor," is increasing in Belgium.

A total of 241,000 cycles were registered for 1928, as compared with 233,000 in 1927 and 129,000 in 1920. The use of the cycle is increasing also in Holland, but is on the decline in France.

'Open House' Being Held By Laundries

Hundreds of Lubbock housewives last week took advantage of the open house which is being staged from April 1 to April 27 by three Lubbock laundries, the Lubbock Laundry, the Family Service Laundry and the Model Laundry.

Management of the three establishments has invited all housewives of Lubbock to inspect the method used to clean so efficaciously even their daintiest fabrics.

The "Open House" holds good until the 27th and everyone in Lubbock, especially the housewives are invited. A courteous attendant will be pleased to show them through the laundries, explaining the various methods used.

Modern machinery is used in all three of the laundries mentioned and the most efficient of methods are employed.

The Lubbock Laundry is located at 1001 Avenue G, the Family Service at 1618 Avenue H, and the Model Laundry at Thirteenth and College avenue.

Cotton Declines On Weather News

General Market Closes Steady With Decreases Of 7 To 11 Points At New York Today

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 6.—Reports of favorable weather in the south and relatively easy Liverpool cables were reflected by generally lower prices in cotton today. Week-end covering was supplied on slight rallies from an opening decline and the lowest prices were reached in the late trading when July sold at 19.87, closing at that figure. The general market closed steady at net declines of 7 to 13 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 13 points. May contracts eased off to 20.44 and October to 19.81 under liquidation and some local and southern selling. These offerings were not particularly heavy and the market steadied up a few points during the early trading on covering for over the week-end.

There seemed to be enough uncertainty as to weather conditions over Sunday to check selling and bring in a little scattered buying. But after selling up from 19.90 to 19.94 for July prices weakened under renewed liquidation. In the late trading, May eased off from 20.50 to 20.43 and October from 19.85 to 19.78 closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest.

Wheat Prices Come Out Second Best In Rough And Tumble Fight Against Canadian Storm News; Corn Is Firm

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 6.—In a rough and tumble encounter with Canadian storm news today, wheat values came out second best. Widespread rain and snow appeared to have brought about an end of drought complaints from Canadian spring wheat territory. Largely as a consequence, wheat prices underwent a drop of almost 2 cents a bushel, but the effect was later partly offset by liberal export business and by advices of high winds in western Kansas and western Nebraska as well.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 3-8 cents to 5-8 cents net lower. Corn finished unchanged to 1-4 off, oats a shade to 3-8 cents up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Situation Is Acute

So acute has been the shortage of sub-soil moisture that the situation until today was said to be unequalled in 25 years. It was asserted that the wheat crop of the Canadian prairie provinces depends more on good amounts of sub-soil moisture than is the case in the majority of other wheat sections of the world.

Export demand for North American wheat gave evidence of having broadened out on today's break in prices, and there was also much evening-up of accounts for the week-end. Rallies that ensued were given further impetus by late reports of Kansas and Nebraska dust storms especially in the western sections of both states.

Corn Averages Lower

Corn averaged lower, sympathizing with wheat weakness, on the other hand, country offerings of corn today were small, and the cash corn trading here was firm.

Oats developed a strong undertone, weather conditions next week being expected to prove adverse for field work. July rye sold today at a new low-price record for the crop

In the provision market, holders of May lard were selling out, but were reinstating with purchases of July and September.

Limited Supply At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, April 6. (AP)—The limited supply of livestock here Saturday attracted steady values with the strength of the market for the week trading. The cattle supply contained more straight loads than usual for a light offering, while quality was generally lacking in rail hogs.

The car of bulls sold at $785 and seventeen head averaged only 1,055 pounds. This price was in line with the trend of the bull market for the week.

One car of good light heifers sold at 13.15 and averaged 510 pounds.

Individual cows sold at 5.25 to 9.40, while one car that averaged 807 pounds sold at 8.50.

Not enough calves were on hand to test the market.

Quality was lacking in rail hogs. The rail top was 10.60, for a load that averaged 179 pounds. Best truck butchers sold at 10.25. Bulk of the 175-250 pound truck butchers sold at 10.00 to 10.25; packing sows at 8.50 to 9.25 and a few feeder pigs at 8.00.

No Federal Probe To Be Made In Illinois

Sheriff Opens War On Bootleggers

Finish Fight Declared By Florida Sheriff, Nemesis Of Gulf Coast Rum Running Gangs

(By Associated Press)

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 6.—Declaring unrelenting war on "the worst rum and murder ring in Florida," Sheriff W. B. Cahoon, on whose head bootleggers are reputed to have placed a price of $1,000, today redoubled his effort to find the slayer of Joe Haywood, his former deputy, shot to death Wednesday night.

Haywood, a former federal dry agent at Birmingham, Ala., since coming to Jacksonville as a deputy sheriff had become known as the "Terror of Bootleggers." He, too, had a price on his head, authorities were informed.

In the fourteen suspects in jail today, the sheriff believed he had the slayer.

The sheriff announced the shotgun with which Haywood was killed as he sat in a car at a grade crossing waiting for a train to pass, had been found, and it was the property of the sheriff's office. The gun was found in possession of Bill Oglesby.

Meanwhile Dan Hysler, bootleg king, was expected to surrender. The sheriff expressed belief Hysler was the "brains" behind the killing.

Cotton Is Fairly Firm In Trading New Orleans Says

Market Closes Steady With But Little Easing Off; Traders Ignore Forecast Of Rain Prospects

(By Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, April 6.—Cotton prices fluctuated narrowly today easing off slightly under some liquidation and ring selling on the favorable weather in the belt and disappointing Liverpool cables, July sold down to 19.78 and closed at that figure compared with 19.88 at yesterday's close. The general market closed steady at net declines of 10 points.

The market opened easy at a decline of 2 to 5 points and prices continued to ease off after the start until May sold at 19.78, July 19.81 and October 19.65 or 7 to 8 points under yesterday's close.

Some Covering Seen

There was some covering on the scale down and prices rallied a few points from the lows but the demand was supplied by a renewal of liquidation on the favorable weather in the belt and prices gradually worked lower for the remainder of the session. Lows of the day were made in final trading when May traded at 19.71, July 19.78 and October 19.62 or 10 points net down. The close was at the lowest.

Traders practically ignored the prospects for rain.

Upturns In Price Of Killing Stock Feature Of Week

S. D. A.)—Livestock trade this week around the 11-market circuit was featured by moderate to sharp price upturns on most killing classes of cattle. The chief strengthening influence was curtailed receipts Demand at eastern dressed beef markets continued slow, but with supplies moderate, prices were boosted materially. Closing values on fed steers and yearlings are unevenly 25c to $1.00 higher, the better grades generally showing the most advance. Stocker and feeder classes were firm to slightly higher, demand broad for thin light weight stockers of good to choice quality. Aggregate receipts were around 154,600 a decrease of 23,500 from last week but 4,000 heavier than a year ago.

Hog Trade Fluctuates.

Hog trade was marked by considerable fluctuations in prices. Sharp advances early in the week were followed by a severe decline in midweek, while on late days moderate upturns were enforced. Current prices are unevenly steady to 25c higher than a week ago, with closing top of $11.80 at Chicago. Total offerings were around 460,100 against $487,870 last week and 493,221 a year ago.

What Makes Up Good Butter Is Told To Women

A lecture on butter judging, in which ways of discriminating between good and bad butter were explained, was given by R. M. Renner of the dairy products division of Texas Technological college yesterday at the monthly session of the county council of women's home demonstration clubs.

Judging is by flavor, color, body, salt content and by appearance of the package or container in which it is vended.

If butter tastes oily, burned, cowy, acidy, like cheese garlic, old cream or fish, or if it is metallic it is off in taste, he explained.

Thirty-two women attended the session and nine clubs out of the eleven in this county were represented.

The next meeting of the county council is to be held on the eighteenth day of May.

Miss Louise Baird, demonstration agent, presided over yesterday's session.

Some Planting To Start This Week

Bulk Will Remain For Latter Part Of Month, However, Say Reports To Farm Office Here

Planting will start on scattered farm throughout the Plains region during the week just ahead, bult bulk of this work will not take place until the latter part of the month, reports to the county agent's office yesterday indicated.

Season in the ground at this time is excellent and at this stage all indications are for a record yield in both cotton and feed crops during the season ahead.

An increase of probably ten percent in total acreage is forecast for this season by Mr. Eaton.

Total Production Of Season Passes 35,000 Bale Mark

Lynn County Ranks Second With 34,217 Bales; Lamb In Third Place With Output Of 32,417

Lubbock county's total cotton production for the 1928-1929 season was 35,644 bales, according to the official report of the United States Department of Agriculture, which has just been compiled.

The production figures confirmed forecasts from local experts that the county would produce approximately 35,000 bales this year.

An increase of about 13,000 bales over last year was shown. Last year's production aggregated about 48,000 bales.

Lubbock led the South Plains area in production.

Lynn county, of which Tahoka is the county seat, was second with a total of 34,217 bales. Lamb county ranked third with 32,471 bales.

Chickens Proved Good Investment

HAPPY, April 6.—The story of how 278 pullets netted him $752.50 in nine months time from egg production alone, is told by J. H. Morgan, Happy, Route 2. Although raising chickens merely as a sideline to his wheat farming, Morgan stated that a few chickens furnished an income to farmers that often looks as attractive as that of a wheat or cotton farm.

Morgan originally purchased 1,000 baby chicks from an early spring hatch. Of this number, 898 survived. Exactly 520 roosters were sold for enough to pay for the initial cost of the flock, besides furnishing a profit, and the 378 pullets were kept for egg production. From April 1, last year, to January 1, 1929, eggs from the flock brought $1,960. Feed, none of which was raised on the farm, cost Morgan $307.50, leaving a profit of $752.50, or a little more than $84 per month, as the chickens, part in making the farm a paying proposition, according to Morgan.

Poultry Bringing 22 Cents a Pound

SNYDER, April 6.— Twenty-two cents a pound is being paid at this poultry market this week. Two weeks ago when 20 cents was paid one local produce house had 391 customers who were paid $4,110.30 for their eggs, cream and poultry, a record that had never been equaled here on any previous Saturday.

With the near arrival of the Ballard Produce company here who will install a cream and poultry killing plant, Snyder will boast of four poultry houses, namely the Western Produce Co., Titman Egg Corporation and Farmers Produce Co.

Mechanical Pickers Are Object Of Research

BY FRANK I. WELLER
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Convened here to authorize standards by which the various grades of American cotton are to be bought and sold for the next two years, delegates to the third international biennial Universal Cotton Standards conference declared that the quality of spinnable cotton is deteriorating and blamed present ginning practices.

Department of agriculture observers, attach extraordinary significance to the frank recommendation that American ginners improve their methods. While the department did not join the discussion, it indicated that specialists may be put in charge of an exhaustive study designed to reveal wherein effective changes can be made.

Speed Up Process

The delegates said that ginners have speeded up their machinery, and expressed the belief that mechanical arrangements for cleaning the lint may not be efficient under high speed. They questioned the effect of high speed on the strength of cotton fiber, but in the absence of specific information hesitated to point out individual instances contributing to the decline in quality.

Methods of picking cotton are looked upon as contributing factors in good and poor ginning. Low cotton prices and high labor costs in 1927 led to revival, particularly in Texas and Oklahoma, of "sledding." Ordinarily, cotton harvested by sleds does not go to the gins as clean as hand picked lint.

Sled Used Widely

Many cotton farmers believe sledding is only an emergency method, but others believe it will be improved and even more widely adopted. It is immensely cheaper than hand picking. Estimates of snapped and sledded cotton in Texas and Oklahoma run from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 bales.

Sleds commonly are drawn by two horses and operated by two men. The sleds have toothed arrangements, not unlike mower guards. They strip all bolls from the stalks, regardless of their state of maturity. Naturally, considerable foreign material is harvested at the same time. This at first caused some ginners to oppose the use of the sled, but recently they have shown less opposition.

Ginners say that cotton sledded under ideal conditions is of about the same quality as the usual run of snapped or pulled cotton, but that where fields are grassy or where badley constructed sleds are used, the method may give poor results. Sometimes 15 per cent of the crop is left in the field, although good sledding has harvested as much as 95 per cent of the crop.

Mechanical pickers, still in the experimental stage, have shown a marked improvement over the sled in keeping the cotton clean. Stripped from the plant, the bolls are taken up separately and carried to sacks at the rear of the machine while blower fans remove the lighter material.

Crosbyton Looks For Banner Year

Building Permits Soar As Many New Homes Are Put Under Construction; New Church In Offing

CROSBYTON, April 6.—(Special)—With a building campaign on which has been increasing every month of the new year, Crosbyton is looking forward to the best year in the history of the city. Building permits issued during the months of February and March totaled $48,751, the largest portion of this being spent in the residential districts.

Buildings permits already issued during the first week in April point toward a record month of this year which does not include the contract let last week for the new $21,000 Baptist church building.

Extension of water mains and fire protection for the new residential districts is now under consideration of the city council and plans are expected to be acted upon in the near future.

Several new buildings are being considered at this time, the building committee of the First Methodist church, are drawing up plans and considering constructing a new home for that congregation.

Finish Drive On Prairie Dogs Here

Finishing touches to the prairie dog extermination campaign that has been waged here during recent weeks are to be applied next week by workers from the county agent's office.

Large numbers of the dogs have already been killed and the county has been worked thoroughly.

Mechanical Picker Ousts "Sled"

The mechanical picker (below) is still in the experimental stage but is a great improvement over the "sled" (upper right) in sending clean cotton to the gin. Nils A. Olsen (inset) chief of the federal bureau of agricultural economics, was chairman of the Universal Cotton Standards conference before which were laid complaints that the quality of American spinnable cotton is deterorating.

Expansion Of Dairy Show Will Be Made In Keeping With Progress Of This Section As Livestock Region

Not Needed Farm Relief May Go Elsewhere

SNYDER, April 6.—That Scurry county is among the leading agricultural counties in West Texas was further demonstrated this week when one of the most widely known farm papers in the West printed the following editorial:

"From reports received from Scurry county, Texas, there is little demand for government farm relief and government price fixing in that section. No doubt the enterprising farmers and business men all favor such legislation as will place agriculture on an even plane with other industry, but as to price-fixing through a government agency, no.

"We recently received some interesting data from Scurry county. It was under date of March 20 and looked like a carbon copy of some publicity matter, but it bore the earmarks of accuracy. This letter stated that two carloads of eggs had just left the Snyder market for Detroit, Mich., it being one of the regular shipments. It also stated that 20 cents per pound was being paid farmers for hens, and that on the previous Saturday a produce house in that city paid 391 farmer customers the sum of $4,110.30 for cream, eggs and poultry. We understand that this is a regular number on the Saturday program.

Everyone Connected With Exposition Jubilant At Its Success, County Agent Eaton Says

Expansion and development of the Panhandle-Plains dairy show, now permanently housed at Plainview, will keep step with dairy development throughout this section of the country, according to Dave F. Eaton, Lubbock county agent, who until recently was president of the Dairy Show association.

Mr. Eaton, returned yesterday from sessions of the show at Plainview said that additions to the present dairy show building would be made before time for the exhibition next year.

He said that everyone connected with the show was jubilant over its success. Officers and directors, the immediate staff of the exposition and Plainview merchants joined in voicing gratification at the crowds, the quality of cattle and the large number entered.

"I never expected a show like this in its second year," said Mr. Eaton, adding that he believed the exposition was destined eventually to grow into one of the largest of its kind in the nation.

The show opened Tuesday with a record throng of boys representing vocational agricultural classes in all parts of the Panhandle-Plains country.

Wednesday, judging of cattle started and this was continued through Thursday. Thursday night nearly 300 people attended the annual business session and banquet of the association, electing officers, transacting business and laying plans for next year.

Friday a parade by exhibitors was staged and Friday afternoon an auction sale was held.

West Texas C-C Agricultural Chief To Demonstrate Terracing At Texas Tech Tuesday; Students Will Watch

B. M. Whiteker, agricultural manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will conduct a terracing demonstration at the Texas Technological college Tuesday, April 9, and the general public is invited to attend.

Farmers of Lubbock county and the South Plains are especially invited to attend the demonstration and a good number of agricultural students at the college will watch the terracing.

Terrace Pasture Hard

One feature of the demonstration will be the terracing of pasture land at the college. While a large acreage of farm land has been terraced in Lubbock county, very little pasture land in all of West Texas has been terraced. The terrace will be laid out to retain all the moisture that falls on it.

The college has under way a two-year terracing program which will include the 900 acres of farm land and 800 acres of pasture land at the college before it is completed. The demonstration to be conducted by Whiteker Tuesday will link in with the Tech program and will be a part of the two year program.

To Show Implements

In addition to the terracing implements and machinery at the college a number of Lubbock implement dealers will have implements at the college to be demonstrated. The college has an abundance of big farm horses and it is likely that some of the implement concerns will have tractors at the demonstrations to be used in the terracing work.

According to Mr. Keating, damage to the extent of $2,000,000 annually is being caused by this damage to the grain sorghum crops of Texas. The seed will be treated with a copper carbonade dust which has been developed as the most dependable anti-smut compound and during these two days the seed will be treated without cost to the farmer. GREEN LINGERIE

Pastel green is the best spring lingerie shade. A dainty matinee is made of this green in crepe de chine, with its raglan sleeves inserted with wide beige lace and its lower edge finished in the same.

NEW NECKLINES

The latest daytime modes have close to the throat necklines. All manner of novel organdy, georgette and lace touches bring this about. The collar of self-fabric that stands up for itself in the back and has a light touch of white cream, pink or pale yellow in the front is very good.

HAD YOU TAKEN NOTICE

Of the very important fact that things are looking up in Lubbock real estate? Work is proceeding rapidly on the Broadway underpass this to be immediately followed by the Avenue H underpass, right away now work will begin on the two big hotel propositions, we are getting ready to vote the airport bonds and place our city among the leaders in that regard, this to be followed by the vote to build the new high school building, and that to be followed by the highway building proposition. Lubbock has continued to go forward, and the reason is that her people are progressive and stay in the lead on needed developments, and that is why she is going to make a real city. Do not wait too long now to make that real estate investment you have intended making.

The very best medium priced piece of realty in Lubbock today is the property at 804 Avenue Q, and the buyer is sure of a splendid profit on it. It is worth every dollar of $4,250. $3,150.00 will buy it yet. The lot is unusually large, 55 by 148, facing east on pavement, pavement paid, and $1,000 will handle it. It is absolutely the very best chance in Lubbock today to pick up about $2,000 profit in a short time. See us.

YOU HEAR PEOPLE SIGH NOW

—and regret that they could not have been in Lubbock 10 years ago so that they could have made profitable real estate investments. But the fact is the chances are better today for a safe and profitable investment than then, for we know now the direction and trend of development.

We know now that business is going up Broadway to Q and then spread north and south on Q. Lots on Q at Broadway or Main or 10th, are much higher than on Q at 9th or 8th, but in two or three years those lots at 8th or 9th will be commanding high prices and then you will sigh again, and wish you had bought them when they were cheap as they are now.

Considering the certain trend of business and investment that 55 by 148 foot lot at 804 Avenue Q would not be high now at $5,000.00, but at $3,150.000 it is is the greatest offer in Lubbock.

$1,000.00 cash will handle it, and when you put $1,000.00 in it you have immediately made another $1,000.00. Come up and let us talk the matter over.

Slight Interest Is Shown By Local And County Voters In Elections Of School Board; Monroe Most Excited

With no opposition, Lubbock's three school trustees yesterday received all 85 of the votes cast here in that election, it was announced last night by Claude A. Burrus, election judge.

The only other results obtainable last night were those at Carlisle, where 16 votes were cast. Trustees elected here were, I. N. Gilliland, A. G. Jons, H. B. Loftis and W. F. Price. For county trustees, W. A. Pincher received five votes and A. F. Daniell, seven.

From Slide, information came that no election was held, because of the fact that so few could ever be induced to come to the polls.

Turmoil Over Selections Marks Monroe Voting

While most of the independent school districts of Lubbock county elected trustees yesterday with apparent calm, some opposition marked the election at Monroe, 12 miles north of Lubbock.

Chief Deputy O. B. Conley was stationed at the Monroe polls throughout the day to prevent any trouble which might break out among the voters.

Two rival factions, contesting for the supremacy of the Monroe school board, have opposed one another for some time in that community. At the last meeting of the board in December, physical violence was resulted to and several persons were injured as a result.

Three Places Open.

In the election yesterday three trustees were to be elected to the board. Three candidates were placed on the ballot by each of the two sides. Then one faction added four names of members of the opposite side in an effort to split the vote of the opposition, county officials said.

County Judge Robert H. Bean and County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson were besieged throughout the day with telephone calls and visitors concerning the tumultuous election. Citizens of Monroe would demand: "Why wasn't so-and-so's name on the ballot?" or "Can a man's name be placed on the ticket against his wishes?" and "Can a man 60 years old vote without a poll tax?"

Court Action Once.

Court action echoed a trustee election held at Monroe last year, as members of one faction contested the election.

Candidates for the three trustee places to be filled yesterday were: A. M. Hallmark, A. J. McGee, Grant Bumgarner, B. W. Phillips, A. A. Davis, T. E. Cole, J. B. Mallet, S. J. Rogers, O. B. Graham and R. T. Mowdy.

With Deputy Conley on duty no trouble was reported. Although in other independent districts several candidates were running for the same trustee position, no excitement equal to that of the Monroe election was anticipated.

A Kingdom For A Mule This Time!

Spotted Animal From New Mexico Range Purchased By I. R. Kelso For His Spacious Missouri Estate

PHINEAS T. Barnum may be the king of the curio collectors for the gullible public, but Judge I. R. Kelso, president of the Texas Utilities, stands alone as an individual collector of rare species.

The veteran lawyer, who is in Lubbock on business with the local branch of the public service institution, has added a spoted mule to his rare collection of pets for his country mansion near Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Discovery of the freakish member of the beast of burden family came after a long and widespread search for such an animal to team with a spotted dog, which has come to be a favorite with the Kelso family and especially the grandchildren of the venerable sportsman.

His Future Drab.

The mule stood yesterday caged in a specially-built crate on the Santa Fe tracks, ready to be shipped to his new home on the Mississippi. A few days before it had roamed the ranges of a New Mexico ranch. A bored expression was visible on the countenance of the white-nosed brute, and so far as he knew, his future was drab.

But mules are like thousands of human beings that we know—lacking in foresight.

We say this because—

Nestled on the hillside of the Father of Waters stands the palacial country home of Judge I. R. Kelso, our hero's present owner. Situated in the foreground of a 15-acre tract this estate furnishes its owner an opportunity to carry out his many hobbies. A special line from Cape Girardeau carries electric pwer to its premises, furnishing light for every inch of the 15-acre tract with its play grounds, tennis courts and fishing streams.

Here Are The Reasons.

Judge Kelso's two grandchildren, who live in St. Louis, furnish the motive for the spending of thousands of dollars in making this country home a veritable paradise. These two tots make regular visits to "Grandpa's" with their mother, playing with the pets the Judge has collected and making use of the various playground apparatus. Judge Kelso points with pride to the grounds where his hobbies materialize, making special note of the brilliantly lighted bridges which span the stream running through his farm.

Yes, "Sunday," as the spotted mule is known, because he was born on Easter Sunday, will have a treat in store for him when he reaches his new home on the Mississippi. Playmates, running water and eats galore should make him forget the ranges of New Mexico and thank his stars that he has spots instead of a solid color.

TO OPEN AIRPORT

MINERAL WELLS, April 6. (AP)—Many West Texas visitors were here today to attend the program formally opening the Mineral Wells airport, which began this afternoon and will be concluded Sunday.

Free Girl, 16, Who Killed Father

Jewell Bradford, 16-year-old Holland, Mo., girl, is shown with her mother, whom she saved from her father's abuses by slaying the father with his own gun after he had attacked Mrs. Holland. It was charged that Bradford had repeatedly beaten his wife and the daughter is said to have killed him after efforts to save her mother from punishment failed. No charges were filed against Miss Bradford.

Authors of Both Eighteenth Amendment And Jones Law Approve New Commission

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Senators Morris Sheppard of Texas and Wesley L. Jones of Washington agree that crime is too prevalent. Thus agreeing, they agree also in commending President Hoover's commission plan, to decide on the best means of strengthening law enforcement.

Wets practically are a unit in attributing the so-called 'crime wave' mainly to prohibition.

As authors, respectively, of the Eighteenth amendment and the recently adopted 'five-and-ten act," stiffening the maximum penalty even for first violations of Volsteadism, Senators Sheppard and Jones, perhaps, are the two best qualified members of congress to dispute this anti-dry contention—which both do vigorously.

'Indeed," says Senator Sheppard, "the crime situation probably would be worse than it is today, but for prohibition."

At first the Texan questioned whether crime really has increased as much as has been represented although, even so, he expressed approval of the Hoover investigation—since "there is no reason why we should not desire still better conditions," as he expressed it.

On consideration, however, he inclined to the view that there has, after all, been an increase in "the number of murders," or—amending this statement in response to the suggestion that the growth in the country's prison population cannot be due solely to more murders—"an increase in the number of crimes of violence."

• • •

And why more crimes of violence? "That," replied the Texas senator, 'is precisely what we need an investigation to determine—that, and all other problems involved in the situation.

"For one thing, we obviously need more courts.

"There is no fault to be found with those we have already, but we have not enough of them. Their number has not increased in proportion to the increase in our population. They are congested. There is a necessity, not for different machinery, but for more of it."

• • •

Some authorities contend that the severity of the Jones "five-and-ten law" will make convictions far more difficult in liquor cases.

"The law should be thoroughly tried first," said the senator.

"It may give entirely satisfactory results. If not, perhaps we shall find it desirable to draw a distinction between offenders on a small and a large scale—as we draw a distinction between petty and grand larceny."

• • •

"The Jones-Stalker law," says Senator Jones, giving its full official title to the 'five-an-ten" statute, 'is not more severe than the law has been hitherto.

"On the contrary, in some respects it is milder.

'It merely gives more discretion to the bench"—up to a maximum of five years' imprisonment, $10,000 fine or both, beginning with first offenders.

"I believe we are entirely safe in trusting to the humanity of our judges.

"If a judge should prove unduly severe in his sentences, under this act, it would be hard to escape the conclusion that his severity was due to hostility toward the law, on his own part.

"I think it is recognized that those who commercialize prohibition violation should be more rigorously dealt with.

"Harshness in minor cases is not intended—as specifically stated."

Senator Jones readily admits that crime has increased.

"It appears," he thinks, 'to be a post-war development — perhaps partly due to the war itself; probably partly due to the fact that we live differently today from the life of the pre-war period.

"Besides we are hampered by legal technicalities.

"While I am a friend of our constitution, it may be that one of our difficulties lies in the fact that our constitution is written. England's is not. There there is no getting back of court proceedings. Here an appeal is so easy."

Senator Jones was sponsor, at a recent session of congress, of a proposal to limit the right of appeal, in certain cases, strictly to grounds of law, leaving the verdicts of juries unassailable.

• • •

Will President Hoover's law enforcement inquiry resolve itself, unavoidably, into an investigation essentially of prohibition?

Senator Sheppard answers "no" unqualifiedly.

"It will be especially a prohibition investigation," answers Senator Jones, only to the extent that the prohibition law, of all our laws, is especially under attack."

This Is The Season For Wind Storms

And From What 'They Say' Sand Storms Of Western Texas Are Nothing To Compare With A Tornado!

WHILE Lubbock and the South Plains have their sand storms the winds of spring are playing havoc in other sections of the nation and the world and if reports of the American Nature association are to be accepted as a criterion our wind storms, while uncomfortable, aren't nearly so bad as they might be.

"This is the tornado season.. for there are seasons for storms just as there are for roses and sweet corn. The dust storm that came down out of the Gobi desert 1500 miles away and smothered Shanghai a few days ago is but an example of what wind can do, says the American Nature Association. Sand storms from the Sahara have traveled far over the Atlantic ocean.

There are always reports of high winds around springtime. The famous blizzard of 1888 was from March 11 to 14. This swept the northern half of the United States.

The Samoa hurricane of March 16, 1889, wrecked American and German warships in the harbor of Apia, with heavy loss of life.

The St. Louis tornado of May 27, 1896, was the most destructive of the three tornadoes that have occurred in large American cities, the others being the Louisville tornado of 1890 and the Omaha tornado of 1913.

Violent Rotary Winds

Records show ...that devasting storms are in spring and fall.

A tornado is a cloud—an upright, revolving, roaring, devastating cloud. But it is not a typhoon, a monsoon or a hurricane. Above all it is not a "cyclone." Typhoons and monsoons are storms covering large areas, hundreds of miles in diameter, and they give rise to straight winds only. The winds of a tornado have a violent rotary motion. The word "cyclone" refers, correctly, to the great storm areas which pass, week by week, across the United States.

Barometer Is Key

If the barometer falls a cyclone is approaching. A tornado may accompany it, provided the cyclone is of tornado character; provided the locality is tornado territory; above all, provided it is tornado season.

Tornadoes come in season, and that season is limited to March, April and May. April is the month of bumper tornado crops. A later variety flourishes in May and, rarely, a few spring up in late August and September. The hot days of summer are not producers of the funnel cloud.

Statistics show that nearly 80 per cent take form in the first three months of spring.

Their Playground.

Tornadoes seldom occur outside the United States. The Mississippi valley reserves them mainly for itself. Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri run neck and neck for the funnel-cloud honors. Nebraska easily takes second place. Then comes Mississippi, Alabama, Iowa, Illinois, the Dakotas and Minnesota. Outside this region the whirling cloud seldom strikes. It is unknown in California. New England is never visited.

The Portland storm of November 26 and 27, 1898, is an example of the danger of ignoring storm signals. The steamer Portland, which furnished the object lesson in this case, was one of more than 140 vessels wrecked by the storm on the New England coast.

100,000 Drowned

In the Backergunge cyclone, October, 1876, more than 100,000 people were drowned by the storm waves over the Ganges delta. In the Tay bridge disaster of December 28, 1879, the bridge over the Firth of Tay, in Scotland, was blown down while a passenger traing was passing over it.

Closely connected with the development of weather forecasting is the "Crimean storm" of November, 1854. This tempest raged over the Black sea and played havoc with the fleets and camps of the allied forces engaged in the Crimean war.

The French astronomer Le Verrier, director of the Observatory of Paris collected information concerning the progress of the storm over Europe which convinced him that if telegraphic reports from the western part of its course had been available its disastrous effects might have been averted.

As a result of this inquiry, he drew up plans for an international telegraphic storm-warning service, which was established by the French government, and the cooperation of other European countries in 1855. Within the next two decades nearly all the civilized countries of the world organized similar services of their own, and the scope of these undertakingsg was enlarged to include a general system of weather forecasting from charts based on telegraphic reports.

MUSEUM MEN ELECT

SAN ANTONIO, April 6. (AP)—James Chilliman of Houston was elected general chairman of the Southern States Museum conference at the business session today and was empowered to appoint the three vice chairmen who will head art, history and science sections. Dr. L. Jones of the University of Alabama was named secretary, and New Orleans was selected as the next meeting place of the conference.

RAIN IS HEAVY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 6. (AP)—A rainstorm of terrific violence broke over Syracuse and central New York early today, causing injury to a dozen persons and property loss estimated tonight at more than a quarter million dollars.

FLOWERS MASK BRIDGE

SHELBURNE FALLS, Minn. (AP)—A "bridge of flowers" will span the Deerfield river near here, masking a bulky cement structure. The touch of beauty has been made possible by the Shelburne Falls Woman's club. Sally Service, a Boston landscape artist, will supervise the planting of flowers along the bridge, which is on the Mohawk trail. Thousands of motorists pass along this route every summer.

Three Burned In Prairie Blaze In Northern Kansas

Covered Wagon Days Again Recalled As Flames Rage Across Farmland; Damage Is About $100,000

(By Associated Press)

ATWOOD, Kan., April 5. — Fleeing for their lives before a raging prairie fire, farm families in the wide, thinly populated stretches of northwestern Kansas have re-lived vividly the hardships of covered wagon days.

Tonight two men and a woman were in a hospital here, the woman fighting for life against serious burns. At least one other person was recovering from minor injuries. Two families had lost their homes and their farms were reduced to smouldering acres. A third had lost everything except its house.

Starts In Straw Stack.

A blazing strawstack near Brewster, fanned by a 40-mile wind, made a fiery path 10 to 12 miles wide and roared through 30 miles of Rawlins and Thomas county farmland, to be halted at a highway a quarter mile south of Atwood, last night.

Their motor car fired, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Miner were seriously burned before they found refuge under a ledge. Mrs. Miner's condition is critical. Neil Walker and Mrs. Stella Hill, a widow, nearly lost their lives in a race with the flames. Both were burned, Mrs. Hill only slightly.

Loss of personal property, livestock, hay, pasture and farm land was estimated at more than $100,000.

In New York

By Swan

Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, April 6—An air of brooding melancholy creeps into these gay affairs which tradition has associated with th theater-like old ballroom of the Waldorf.

Those who gather know this is "farewell" . . . that never again will the old walls echo with their merriment and song . . . that soon the hostelry will be laid waste and there will be only sentimental legends.

I found this note of sadness even in the annual jinx of the Dutch Treat Club, whereat gather all the who's who of the art and literary world.

It is a club unique among clubs. It has no clubrooms and no dues. Members keep a weekly rendesvous around lunch tables. A member who fails to appear on two or more occasions stands in danger of being dropped, because the waiting list for membership is perhaps the largest of any Manhattan organization. This membership is very limited, and has no elasticity. I know persons who have had their names listed for five years or more and still are well down the line.

The active chieftains are such dignitaries of the art and writing world as Rollin Kirby, Clarence Kelland, Ring Lardner, H. E. Webster, Rube Goldberg, Dean Cornwall, Marc Connelly, Reinald Werrenrath and Heywood Broun.

Sketches for the annual jinx are written by nationally known persnages and the pgrams are illustrated by artists whse names are hushld wrds.

Young love celebrates the advent of spring in Manhattan by bustop tours of Fifth Avenue.

In fact, there is a perpetual bond between spring and bus tops.

Young love, beset by all the difficulties of space and place, still finds a way. And so the saying, juggernautish tops o fa bus become an endless caravan for young Romeos and Juliets—heads pressed close and arms about waists.

For young love in New York cares little for the eyes of the world. I doubt if there is any place in the world—Paris not excluded—where young amour is more openly carried on. There is little choice in the matter. Necessity becomes the mother of unconvention. One must court more or less openly—or not at all.

And so, as spring creeps in, all the odd nooks and crannies of the great city become spots of rendezvous—the world marches by and grows so accustomed to the picture that it barely turns it head.

Nor is there a city in all the world where folk hate quite so much to go to bed.

Paris, with all its reputation for gaiety, is a 10 o'clock town. It's possible to shoot up most any of the leading boulevards at midnight, with some assurance that no one would be hit—unless it be a gendarme.

New York, on the other hand, dearly loves anything that will keep it up to the wee hours of the morning. There are few streets, however isolated, whereon one will not meet a straggler or two whatever the hour.

Nor do I know of any city, whatever its size, where girls fear so little to be out alone at late hours. I have been told time and again that girls feel safer on a New York street at 3 o'clock in the morning, than they do in most other cities at 11 in the evening. The reason is that they generally have plenty of company. That is, there are other girls coming and going and plenty of help to call upon, if need be.

Bishop Fights Beauty Pageant

Catholic Dignitary At Galveston Writes Girls And Urges That They Refuse To Enter 'Vulgar Display'

TEMPLE, Tex., April 6. (AP)—Bishop C. E. Byrne of Galveston reiterated here tonight that he had advised "Miss Austria" not to appear in the Galveston bathing beauty contest because it was "uncouth and vulgar". He said he had sent similar letters to the parents of as many entries as he could reach.

I have been fighting this thing for three or four years" the bishop declared. 'I make no attack on the girls, but on the business men of Galveston. It is simply parading girls in bathing suits who do not go in bathing as a means of drawing a crowd."

Writes Ireland, Too

Bishop Byrne said he had addressa letter to Dublin newspapers, advising against sending an Irish beauty to the contest, and that they had appreciated it.

"People in other countries do not know that their girls will come here, be dressed in bathing suits and paraded like animals at a fat stock show," he said.

Bathing contests are becoming almost extinct, the bishop pointed out. Atlantic City has given up its contest, he said, and "only the backwoods places—so to speak—are keeping it alive."

VIENNA, April 6 (AP)—Local newspapers today printed what purported to be a photographic reproduction of a letter written by the Right Rev. Christopher E. Byrne, Catholic bishop of Galveston, Texas, advising Miss Lisel Goldarbeiter not to participate in the coming world beauty contest in his city. Miss Goldarbeiter recently was judged the most beautiful girl in Austria.

He Gives His Views

The Bishop was reported to have written.

"The pageant is an uncouth, vulgar display for the purpose of advertising. If you come here you will be asked to parade in only a bathing suit before a motley crowd who will scrutinize you at close range as they would a beautiful animal. I cannot see how any self-respecting or decent young lady would enter such a contest."

The bishop's letter said that no Galveston lady would enter such a contest.

Dirty Boys

Use City's Smudge Pots For Fun

During the course of paving Lubbock's alleys, in the business section, of late, it has become necessary for the city to place obstructions at the intersections of these alleys and principal streets. As these obstructions are made of boards, a warning light has been suspended from these, as a means of keeping automobile traffic out of the alleyways.

The warning lights, in some instances, have been a smudge-pot sort of thing, filled with oil and left burning through the night.

Saturday night a quartet of boys confiscated one of these pots, extinguished the blaze and proceeded forthwith to use the smoot accumulating thereon as means of blacking their faces.

Thoroughly smudged with the smoot, the quartet, none of them seeming to be older than 10 or 12, the youngest appearing about 8, and red-headed at that, trooped through the streets of the city, down to "The Flats," Lubbock's negro quarters, and back again.

Luckily for the boys, no policeman apprehended them. At the completion of their rounds, they did as best they could to wash the black from their faces, headed for their homes with dubious forebodings as to how they might explain "how come."

Ford Town Car Is Chauffeur-Driven

New Body Type Of Model 'A' Shown For First Time Here At Auto Show Creates Sensation

Among the many attractive designs on display at the recent Lubbock Automobile Show, the new Ford Town car possibly more widespread comment than any other one machine on the floor. This new body type that has been added this year to the Ford Model "A" line was the first of its kind to be brought to Lubbock.

In discussing the new Town car, George E. Benson, local Ford dealer, stated that this new product of Ford Motor company has proven unusually popular with the business men, bankers and others who have used it in the cities.

"The Ford Town Car has been an attraction wherever it has been on exhibit," Mr. Benson said, "because it embodies something entirely new in automobiles for this country. It is the first chauffeur-driven car ever offered by an American manufacturer in either the medium or low price fields. Formal in type, it has the nobility of the Model "A" Ford, which makes it an ideal shopping car under present day traffic conditions.

"The body of this car is mounted on the dependable Model "A" Ford chassis. Both in design and interior appointments the body is similar to the smart, chauffeur-driven cars seen on the boulevards of continental Europe.

"Triplex, shatterproof glass forms the partition between the driver's seat and the interior compartment. The finest imported whipcord is used for the interior upholstery, while on either side of the cushioned seat is a covered arm rest.

Driving An Ambulance Is Tough Job

All Reported Accidents Not Always Genuine Say Men Who Dash Out On Emergency Calls Here

IN case Mr. Volstead and his adherents are looking for a little cheer, they might spend an afternoon interviewing the men who make emergency ambulance calls.

The chances are that the emergency drivers aren't cherishing any feeling of brotherly love toward the drunks. For they may have just returned from a little excursion during which they played valet to some man who had imbibed too freely of liquors.

A driver of an ambulance here was awakened early one morning by a call from a down-town cafe and asked to carry a man to a hospital.

The fellow had been run over by an automobile, according to the telephone message, and had suffered a broken leg.

A hasty drive was made to the cafe and sure enough there sat the man groaning and rubbing his thigh where a protuberance was evidence enough of a fractured bone. Bystanders were summoned and the man was carefully lifted into the waiting car and taken to the hospital where he and the ambulance driver were greeted by a chorus of laughs.

The fellow was not injured at all. He was drunk and suffering a few illusions, and it was his third visit to the hospital in one night.

The Way It Happened

The story developed then that there had been an accident early the evening before in which a boy's leg was broken. This man had heard of the accident as he began drinking and as he became drunk he imagined that his own leg was fractured.

In staggering about town he fell down and his wooden leg became misplaced to cause the bulge which showed through his trousers and deceived enough people that he was carried to the same hospital three times in one night.

30 Miles for Nothing

More recently a call came from a community some thirty miles from here and an ambulance was sent for a man who was supposedly poisoned from liquors and dying.

The man was "drunk" all right, but he wasn't poisoned and by the time the ambulance arrived he was sufficiently sobered that he refused the ride to Lubbock.

Another little drive is remembered by one of the local men. He was called out in the evening to get a "very sick man" whom, it developed at the hospital was simply well soused.

Some inquiries were made around and finally it was discovered that the fellow lived in a hotel so the attendant took him home. Meantime the drunk decided that the attendant was a doctor.

"We had to get him off the cot when we got to the hotel," the attendant related, "so we told him that he had better flop over when we rolled the cot up to the bed. He flopped over all right and then when we started to go on home he called out 'Shay Doc, will it be all right for me to smoke?'

"I lit his cigaret for him and started off again but he called me back and asked for a hypo.

"I got hard then and told him I had just taken him to the hospital and given him a shot and that he had better shut his eyes tight and get to sleep and that I'd be back at 9 the next morning to fix him up again.

"He rolled right over and shut his eyes like a baby, and we had him locked in until he sobered up."

Wife Shut Him Out

Another driver remembers a night when he drove a fellow all over town to various addresses which the drunk claimed were home. In the end his home was found but there was also the man's wife saying that he should not enter.

"I just rolled the fellow out and drove off. I don't know how the little marital argument ended," he chuckled.

Driving out into the night and picking up the injured and sick is more or less just business for the ambulance attendant, but he does not become entirely innured to pain.

"It does not bother me so long as I am helping out an injured one," one attendant said, "because then I

South Plains Ships To All of World

Foreign Countries Are Heavy Consumers For Some Of Crops Raised So Abundantly Near Lubbock

TUCKED away in the vast southwest, comparatively unknown to a large part of the world, the South Plains of Texas with Lubbock as its Hub and capital, plays ah extremely important part in furnishing produce and agricultural products to the remainder of the world.

Cotton, grain, eggs and butter produced in this section is shipped from Lubbock to seaports to the northeast, south or west, eventually finding itself either on the backs or the tables of the people of many foreign nations.

Germany, Holland, Italy, England, Japan and India are among the outstanding destinations of the exported products of the South Plains. Local cotton, grain and produce dealers, well acquainted with the points to which their respective products are shipped, report that products of this section touch to a certain extent virtually every inhabited section of the world.

Much Cotton Exported

Lubbock cotton brokers state that about ninety per cent of the cotton produced in this section is exported. About eighty per cent is shipped from here to Houston, Galveston, eventually arriving in Germany Italy and other continental countries. About ten per cent is shipped to the Pacific coast and thence to Japan and India. Only about ten per cent of the cotton produced on the South Plains is consumed for domestic uses, seven per cent going to the southeastern states and about three per cent going to the factories of the north and east for domestic consumption.

Grain Goes to Europe

Of the grain, most of the maize is shipped to the east and northeast and most of the wheat is shipped to the north. Some of the threshed maize is shipped by way of Galveston to European countries. Some kaffir and sudan also are exported to from Houston and Galveston ports. A considerable amount of the South Plains grain finds itself finally in the Missouri valley.

New York, Massachusetts and California are the chief destinations of the poultry and egg produce of this section. Some of the eggs are sent from here to Mexico and some to New Orleans, Cuba, and other

Snyder Preparing For Club Meeting There This Month

One Hundred And Twenty-Five Clubs To Be Represented At Seventh District Meet In Snyder

SNYDER, Texas, April 6—The eyes of the women of West Texas are on Snyder with the approach of the annual meeting of the seventh district, Texas Federated Women's Clubs, to be held here April 25, 26 and 27. Representatives from the fifty-two counties in the district and from 125 clubs will be here. More than three hundred delegates are expected.

So much has been heard of the agricultural, social and general business life of Snyder that the fact is sometimes overlooked that Snyder is also a city of culture, of fine homes and paved streets; of churches and schools and provides recreation for the people. One of the most beautiful public squares in all Texas may be found at Snyder and with the recent installation of 76 ornamental light standards, the square is as bright at night as in daytime.

Town Is Building

One of the most remarkable achievements that every Snyder citizen is proud to mention is the building of new, modern brick and stucco residences here. During the past six months homes costing from $9,00 to $20,000 have been rearing their roofs to the skies with the consequence that during 1928 Snyder enjoyed the unusual building permit total of $261,665 as compared to $97,526 in 1927. As a concrete example of the building activity that is going on here, building permits in January, 1926, were nil. In January, 1927, they amounted to $7,550, while for January just passed, $33,150 were the totals granted for building purposes.

Visitors who come here have been styling Snyder's wonderful home growth as "The City of Beautiful Homes" and a city that has always maintained a record of hospitality that is surpassed by no other city in West Texas. Every committee for the district meet of the Texas Federated Women's Clubs is now functioning in Snyder where it is hoped to hold the greatest meeting ever known in the federation.

Mrs. Myrtle Flanagan, 24, a road-show dancer, willed her little five-year-old daughter to her mother as she was dying. The law is saying, however, that a parent may not will a child as it would a tract of land or money in the bank, and that regardless of the mother's will, the child must go to whomsoever the law designates, probably to her father.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Feminists might grow inflamed at this, citing the injustices of women bearing the pain of childbirth, only to have no right to direct the destinies of their own children. And yet, here's opining that such a law is a good thing. If women could legally will their children away like so many puppies, there would be as many injustices done to fathers as the present state of affairs wrecks them on mpthers. There are no more wise and just women than men.

DEAD BEFORE STYLE

Women workers in a certain cotton mill in Salem, Mass., are learning the evolution of fashion as it goes hand in hand with industrial safety. A few months ago they were ordered to substitute low heels for high; a little later, skirts no longer than knee length were suggested as necessary for safety, and now the company suggests that overalls would be preferable to even the shortest skirts in consideration of whirring machinery.

Meekly the women are submitting. We hear a great deal about fashion

BABIES KILLED

The two little youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wallach of Bethlehem, Pa., were killed when their father's still exploded the other morning. The father explained that it was his first attempt at making moonshine, and that he did it because he could not support his family on his weekly wage of $18 a week.

Here's a dramatic tragedy. The paternal urge to do more for his kids sent the father into the moonshine business, and that very move killed the kids.

Perhaps the same officials who met the bootleg liquor curse by languidly opining that everybody who broke the law and drank ought to be poisoned by bad liquor, will also opine that if a few more babies are killed by still explosions, it may help to stop the business.

* * *

"UNWRITTEN LAW"

The famous "unwritten law" functions very well when husband shoots the "destroyer of his home." Mrs. Cleve Adams, 29, widow of Harry Adams, former head of the weather bureau in Hartford, Conn., is wondering if it will work so well when a mere wife invokes it and slays not the third person, but the immediate faithless spouse. She chloroformed her husband the other day because of his various infidelities.

If she'd killed some of "the other women" she'd probably have had an easier time with the jury than she will because she killed her husband. Human nature does love to see "the destroyer" pay and pay and pay!

* * *

MOTHER LOVE

Little Edith Reynolds, six, of Fort Worth, was burned almost to death while playing with her dolls in front of a gas stove. Her mother gave 80 square inches of skin to be grafted on her child. An obvious comment might be a reflection on the superiority of maternal to filial love, with some glib comment to the effect that while a mother would make this sacrifice for a child, few, if any children, would make it for a parent.

But that's not so. Just about as many children would surrender skin for a parent, as vice versa. They'd give the dramatic, momentary gesture of affection, even if they couldn't stand a long continuous gesture such as living with a parent or supporting him or her.

"CRADLE OF THE DEEP"

With all the excitement about Joan Lowell, author of "Cradle of the Deep," who spent most of her life till she was 17 on her father's trading schooner, and who has written of seeing sailors torn asunder by man-eating sharks and the wild virgin dances of savages, nothing seems so amazing as the fact that her shore mother would let her go with a seafaring father. The maternal instinct generally fights to keep all the offspring with it, even if there are 11 of them.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

The Home Visitation Evangelistic campaign begins at the Methodist church Sunday. The pastor will preach at 11 a. m. on a revival theme. This revival differs from the usual in that there will be no preaching services during the week, except for workers. It is the purpose to visit every Methodist family in the city not identified with the local churches, as well as others who are in some way connected with the first Methodist church. For the past few weeks there has been an effort on the part of the ladies of the church to secure the names of all of those living in the city, who are in any way connected with this church.

At the evening hour, the pastor will speak again on an evangelistic theme. There will be usual song service preceeding the sermon, and there will be special numbers at both services.

The Sunday school meets at 9:30 a. m. Last Sunday was a record attendance for some months, and the interest is steadily increasing.

The Epworth league meets at 7 p. m. with an interesting program planned.

Open house at 5:30 to which all young people are invited for a good time.

This church makes a sincere effort to welcome all visitors and strangers. Make yourself known and you will be cordially received.

points. The local Swift plant here ships produce to branch houses all over the United States, with some little export. The shipments consist chiefly of dressed poultry, eggs and butter. Some of this produce is consumed in Texas although the largest part is shipped away. Much is shipped to South Carolina and Rhode Island.

Proof of the widespread destinations of the products of the South Plains was given by a recent statement of F. B. Houghton, Chicago, vice president of the Santa Fe railway system. He stated, "The most substantial agricultural territory on our whole system is the South Plains country. From Lubbock, Plainview, Floydada, Lamesa, Muleshoe, Seagraves and other points they are shipping butter and dairy products in carload lots to New York and Philadelphia. Their kaffir corn and kindred sorghums are being exported through Galveston to Denmark, Germany, Holland and other continental countries."

Ancient Volume Gives Rare Data About Early Days

Veritable Mine Of Information On Texas Given

WACO, April 6.—A rich mine of detailed information on early Texas history, never before translated, although it has been the source of much historical writing, is now the first time being put into the English language by a Waco man, Rev. Gabriel Tous, who has in his possession one of the rare copies of the Chronicles of Isidro Felis de Espinosa, printed in Mexico City, in 1746.

The book is in two old, yellowed volumes, the first of which only was written by Espinosa, the second volume being compiled after Espinosa's death, by Juan Domingo Arricivita.

Tous knows of only two other copies of the chronicles besides the one he has, which was obtained from Mexico City. One is in the Congressional Library at Washington, and one in the University of Texas library. Bolton, according to Tous, drew largely on Espinosa for his historical data, as have other historians.

An interesting fact noted in this book relates to the Brazos river. Espinosa calls the Brazos the Colorado. This is not because he confused it with the present Colorado river, but because he actually named it the Colorado, just ts he called the present San Gabriel river, the River of Souls (Rio de las Animas)' and the Little river, the Rio San Xavier. It was not until later that the Brazos received its present name, "Los Brazos de Dios, or the Arms of God.

Several legends deal with the final naming of the river on whose banks Waco stands. One tells how, after a long drought, Spaniards hunting water, found it in the Brazos, and named it "The Arms of God," because they thought God had led them to it in their need. Another, and even more dramatic story, is that the Spaniards, pursued by hostile Indians, fled across the river just in front of a head rise, which roared down the stream bed in time to halt pursuing redskins. "It is the arms of God reaching down to hold them back," the Spaniards cried, and named the river accordingly.

I. C. C. Case

hearing. And, it was in a big way that Lubbock intervened in behalf of the Santa Fe railway's application for a permit to extend its Seagraves branch into southeastern New Mexico.

Active participation taken at the trial, which thing it was by Albert L. Reed, of Dallas, traffic expert and attorney employed by the Board of City Development, was second only to that of H. C. Pipkin, of Amarillo attorney for the Santa Fe.

Santa Fe Lauds City

In support of this statement is the expression of Tom B. Gallaher, general freight and passenger agent for the Santa Fe, when he said that Lubbock's assistance to that railway was of as much importance to their side of the case as any other one thing.

Some of the many things that were told, of what the extension asked for by the Santa Fe will mean much to Lubbock, and of what Lubock will mean to that country to be traversed by the road, are given herewith.

What the road would mean to Lubbock is quickly to be told. It will represent the opening up of a vast new area, rich in potentialities of many degrees. The most evident of these is that of presert development in the cattle industry. Because of quicker access to market by cattle raisers of Lea county, New Mexico, the extension will bring more dollars per head of cattle, now lost through shrinkage in driving to Seagraves. These extra dollars will, to some extent, find their way into Lubbock's trade marts.

Agricultural Expansion Coming

Agricultural expansion of Lea county will immediately spread. The enormous belt of shallow water, which underlies more than a million acres, will undoubtedly be put to work raising everything indigent to the southwest country, together with many things other sections cannot produce.

S. E. Cone, wholesale grain dealer of Lubbock, presented some interesting ifgures at the hearing Friday, which show, by comparison of results obtaining in the area adjacent to the present Seagraves branch, that is to be expected with the construction of the extension, should the Santa Fe receive the I. C. C. permit.

Prior to the construction of the Seagraves branch, Terry county produced no corn. Neither did Gaines county. In 1920, Terry county produced 173,420 bushels of corn and 144,440 bushels of grain sorghums. In 1927, this county produced 750,000 bushels of corn and 500,000 bushels of grain sorghums.

May Expect Growth

Gaines county, in 1920, recorded a production of corn totalling 39,458 bushels, with 23,483 bushels of grain sorghums. In 1925, the county's corn crop increased to 63,120 bushels and its grain sorghum to 45,467. In 1928, thsi county had a production of 250,666 bushels of corn.

"The development along the proposed Santa Fe extension" he said "will be as great as has been obtained in these counties."

Like Winkler county, the southern part of Lea county, because of its oil content, is unfit for much agricultural development, Mr. Cone testified. His reasons for Lubbock offering a better market for much of the products to be raised in the upper portion of Lea county, was given as based on the existing fact that no such facilities for handling grain crops, nor any federal inspeciton points, nor drying facilities, such as exist here, are available at any station on the Texas and New Mexico's proposed extension, nor on the main line of the Texas and Pacific railroad, between the cities of El Paso and Fort Worth.

Storage Facilities Afforded

At Lubbock there are facilities for storing 1,500,000 bushels of all kinds of grain. In Plainview, there are storage facilities for 3,050,000 bushels and at Amarillo, 7,000,000 bushels in storage capacity. The Plainview and Amarillo storage advantages where also exist similar inspection and transit advantages, are available by way of the Lubbock gateway.

Grains move, says Mr. Cone, in four general directions from this southwestern area. To the gulf ports for export, 20 per cent of it goes. To the middle west, 40 per cent, and to California, 10 per cent. The remaining 30 per cent goes to Texas interior destinations, principally south of the main line of the Texas and Pacific railway. These figures are based on averages made over a period of 10 years.

Exchange Offers Market

Lubbock's grain exchange, with 16 active members operating on it, furthermore, offer immediate market for grains in this territory, and producers are thus protected here against guess at prices to be obtained at far-away markets.

Cone evidenced decided familiarity with hog raising conditions in this territory, as well as knowledge of grains. The bulk of hogs produced here, he contended, move to markets in California, mostly by way of Los Angeles. He declared hog raisers could not secure as good a price on the Fort Worth market, from packers, as can be had in Lubbock, naming the fact that both Swift and Armour packing interests keep buyers in this field at all time. The Santa Fe, therefore, furnishes advantages to producers not to be had by the T. and N. M., with special stock trains operating to the California markets, offering two or three days' service.

Other services available in Lubbock, for southeastern New Mexico producers, were enumerated by A. B. Davis, manager of the chamber of commerce.

Hub City Advantages

"The territory to be traversed by the Santa Fe proposed construction is a part of the great South Plains", Davis testified. "It is upon the Llano Estacado and is a homogeneous part of the Plains country of Texas. We have always served that area. The people in that area carry on their commercial relations, banking and so forth, with the people of Lubbock. The children of the people living in Lea county, New Mexico, take advantage of the wonderful educational facilities located in Lubbock. Many of them come to the Texas Technological college, maintained by the State of Texas here.

"Lubbock is recognized as one of the leaders in the development of the South Plains country. For several years we have carried on an advertising campaign seeking to locate prospective home-seekers in this territory. For the year 1929 we will spend approximately $22,000 to carry on a national advertising campaign in many national magazines. The purpose of this advertising is to colonize and settle the South Plains territory. At present there are approximately 2,500,000 acres of land under cultivation on the South Plains. Of course, the larger percentage of cultivated lands is closer to Lubbock and along the lines of railroad development. There are between five and six million acres of just as fine, fertile, tillable agricultural land on the South Plains yet to go under the plow and the proposed extension of the Santa Fe strikes into the heart of the finest land."

In conclusion, Davis stated: "Producers of agricultural products, livestock and hogs, would be deprived of all markets except Fort Worth and El Paso by the construction of the T. and N. M., railway and, as these are basic commodities upon which the development of this country depends, it is not fair to deprive these producers of other markets which are recognized as being better markets in a majority of cases."

Although this part of the testimony was stricken out of the record at the hearing, it expresses what Lubbock believes to be facts affecting the area, and are to be considered with the other facts that this city offers adequate markets for supplying Lea county citizens with merchandise, furniture, building materials, various manufactured articles, none of which lie in as close proximity to the section as does Lubbock.

know that I am doing what I can to relieve him and my mind is absorbed with my work. But I can not stand to simply look on."

Administer First Aid

The attendants are prepared to administer first aid to the injured when thy go on a call and they are trained to determine something of the extent of injuries in order that they may handle one in the least painful way while he is rushed to the nearest hospital.

The greatest difficulty in making runs is caused by cars which dash in front of the ambulance or otherwise interfere with driving, according to the men here. The greatest care is necessary in driving to avoid accidents while the ambulance is speeding on a call because other drivers do not allow right of way, these men state.

Excitement Often Costly

Accidents and illnesses which require hurried trips to hospitals or sanitariums always create excitement which brings grief to the ambulance driver and his attendants. Wrong addresses are given or the one 'phoning is unintelligible in his speech so that the call can not be easily understood. For these reasons the ambulance drivers go on many wild goose chases.

Frequently they are called far into the country and upon their arrival find that the injured have been sent on into the city by a passing motorist or that they have revived and gone on their way. Often the injured one does not require medical attention at all and was only dazed in the beginning, according to these men who have their own methods of determining the extent of some injuries.

"If a man makes a lot of noise, we know he probably is in pain but he is not critically injured because the critically ill or injured person does not make much outcry," according to these men who minister in emergencies.

INSTRUCTIONS NEEDED ON WAGES OF CRIME

Those that are interested in some sort of reform program to hold down our prison population ought to take up the vocation of teaching little boys that crime doesn't pay as decent wages as ditch digging. Sometimes a daring bandit make a big haul and gets away with a large amount of money, but usually he has to split it several ways—and these big hauls are few and far between. Crime, as a career, like everything else, should be figured on the law of averages.

Interesting information on what crime actually pays in annual wages to those that engage in it is given in a recent editorial in the Shreveport Journal. That newspaper points out that in the Good Book it is remarked that "the wages of sin is death." According to modern experts on the subject, the wages of crime is starvation—which is the same. The warden of Sing Sing prison, in New York, estimates, after careful survey, that the average criminal can not hope to make more than $25 a week, even while "working regular." The loot in robberies committed in New York during the year 1928, sometimes large and sometimes small, averaged the pitiful sum of $30.75. Of some 900 persons sent to prison in that state, convicted of crimes of all classes, it is shown that their "earnings" in crime amounted to $490; for this they must serve 12,389 years, all told. The prison population of this country is around 125,000—more than the standing army of the United States—and the cost of crime annually amounts to around $13,000,000,000 counting time lost, court and police expenses, prisons and the like. A most depressing feature of the findings of Warden Lewis, of Sing Sing, however, is contained in his announcement that commitments on convictions for robbery during the past ten years have increased from 3 to 24 per cent of the whole number, and that 47 PER CENNT OF THESE CRIMES ARE COMMITTED BY BOYS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 17 AND 21 YEARS. On the other hand, less than one-half of one per cent of robberies are committed by men who have passed the age of 37 years. The statistics submitted by this Sing Sing official not only prove that there is a crime wave, but that its crest is being ridden by the youth of the land. In this connection, it would seem that many of these young men—and women—could be made to change their courses if they could be made to realize, first, that crime does not pay living wages under any circumstances.

THE AUTOMOBILE AND FAMILY LIFE

A man has been found who sees nothing alarming in the trend of modern life. To the contrary, he sees hodiernal customs and pleasures as improvement over the old. He is H. Augustine Smith, Director of Fine Arts in Religion at Boston University School of Religious Education.

"Instead of being weakened now, the home is becoming stronger every day," Professor Smith declares. "Instead of being an instrument of danger, the family car is a bond of unity. Instead of weakening the home circle, the common interest of radio has recreated it."

After hearing so many educators and preachers disparage modern tendencies and the lack of home life, this expression must be heartening to all who have desired to see America progress along all lines as well as economic. That the statement comes from an authority such as Professor Smith unquestionably makes it more refreshing.

Of course there are those whose reputation and study vest their expressions with authenticity who will contradict the Boston professor, but we cannot help but feel that there is a measure of truth in what he has said, despite the calamitous statements that are made so often.

It is true that the automobile lends itself readily to the youth bent upon breaking customs and shocking tradition, but it is also a very desirable vehicle, for the family in the city that wishes to spend the week-end on a motor trip into the country, or the rural family that wants to see something of life in the urban centers during the week-end. It is a vehicle that will spice an otherwise drab and isolated existence with the interesting contrast of another world. Many of our new inventions have a similar potential value and it is not unreasonable to believe that they often are used for this purpose as well as for the more questionable practices which are paraded before us by those who choose to picture the race on the road to ruin.

Perhaps if the possibilities of the automobile and other modern inventions for strengthening the unity of the family circle were impressed upon the people as often as is the part they play in leading the youth astray it would be used to serve the former purpose more often.

RECKLESS DRIVING

Some folks seem to have to criticize something and if it is not something that's really worthwhile, they jump on the police department because the cops spend too much time chasing reckless drivers. Personally we believe that this is a very important matter; to look after Traffic violations may not be looked up as a very great crime, but it is one of the most abused things inexistence. There is hardly a person that does not violate the traffic rules in some way or other most every time we drive back and forth from town to home; not through any criminal intent, but rather unintentional. But at the same time we believe that violations of the traffic ordinances or rules of the highways might prove, and often does prove disastrous, in as much as it causes many deaths, or life time cripples. In Kansas City, a few days ago, a drunken driver sent his machine down the street at the speed of forty miles an hour. He ignored police signals to stop and finally crashed into a group of school children. Three of them were seriously injured. By a miracle, not one of them was killed. The driver, it was learned, had never committed any serious crime in the past. Yet at the moment he drove down the street he was the most dangerous man in Kansas City. A long term in the penitentiary is the punishment he deserves.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

CAPITAL'S AIR-MINDED PROPAGANDA MIGHT MAKE BETTER IMPRESSION IF WASHINGTON HAD A DECENT LANDING FIELD

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The one city in the United States which ought to have an adequate, safe and exemplary airport hasn't even an approach to anything of the sort.

In Washington, the national capital, even the army and navy are without decent landing fields.

Civil, military and naval aviation is supervised from Washington. The air mail service is directed from the Post Office Department here. The National Aeronautic Association has its headquarters here. All the larger plane manufacturers and flying companies are represented in the capital.

This is the place whence in recent years has come an enormous amount of propaganda designed to make America "air-minded." Today it appears that if many other communities are not far more "air-minded" than Washington, they have at least been quicker to demonstrate their "air-mindedness" by practical measures. For they have established airports which make Washington's facilities look sick.

Thanks to that fact, rain at inauguration time prevented the large demonstration by civilian airplanes which had been carefully planned for March 4. The whole thing had to be called off and owners or pilots of 35 planes were advised by wire to stay away because of dangerous landing conditions.

Two private fields here were too small to hold the visiting flyers, so arrangements had been made with the army to use Bolling Field, where the 50 or 60 army and navy planes stationed here are quartered.

After three or feour days of intermittent rain the government field became a bog, spotted with dangerous water holes. Major Burdette Wright, the member of the inaugural committee in charge of the civilian aviation show and an experienced pilot, decided that conditions were too hagardous to justify taking a chance. The army and navy staged a limited air parade on inauguration day with pilots thoroughly familiar with the field.

In the last few years several government planes have turned over on their noses at Bolling Field because of water holes or other conditions. A satisfactory airport has to be satisfactory under all conditions and should be equipped either with drainage facilities or artificial runways on which planes can land and take off.

Several years ago the government filled in an area just south of the old Bolling Field, which is now the only portion usable in all sorts of weather, but this is far from adequate. A month ago a civilian plane got itself stuck in the mud and required nearly 200 men to pull it out. Three or four planes barely missed surrounding obstacles at inauguration time and one crack pilot had to make several attempts before landing successfully.

Bolling Field is narrow and built between the Anacostia river and some bluffs. At the north end of the field rear up the naval radio towers, on the east are buildings and a hill, on the west is the river and to the south is an old steel mill with high smokestacks.

With a west wind blowing, pilots must come over the hill and through bad air currents. That makes the going bumpy and turbulent, which would be bad business for transport planes loaded with passengers.

Major Wright, who is the Washington representative of the Curtiss interests, says that his concern is not operating any flying service here because of the poor facilities, and the same thing goes for the other large companies.

Diet and Health

35 POUNDS UNDERWEIGHT DETRIMENTAL TO HEALTH; GAIN OF 20 DESIRABLE

Slimmy Showbones and Fannie Fattenuf

DEAR DOCTOR: Is there any help for me? My family history: My name is Slimmy Showbones, and I married Fannie Fattenuf, who, when a bride, was known as Really Ritesize. I am some past 50 years, in fairly good health, but 35 pounds underweight, and Fannie thinks more meat on my bones would better become my style of beauty. Now, if I've lived to this age with a handicap of 35 pounds underweight, guess there is nothing to worry about, except Fannie's opinion. (And she reducing. Been on a diet for six months, and lost 22 ounces.)

"As to sugar for one of my condition and habits, should the equivalent of a tablespoonful of cane sugar, three times a day, be about right? Would only one tablespoonful of sugar a day be enough for me? And would it be all right for me to substitute about two dozen peanuts for two eggs or its equivalent in meat (peanuts giving fat and protein?).

"Now, I understand that you get seven million letters a day and can answer six million. If I am about to pass out, please send me an S. O. S. S."

Your method of mentally doling out your sugar to the amount of one tablespoonful a day, and your peanuts to two dozen, is very significant. I'll wager that Fannie doesn't think of sugar and peanuts in those quantities!

Statistics have proven that persons after 40, for the average, who are slightly underweight, have better health and a longer life expectancy; but 35 pounds underweight would be too much. You might gain 20 pounds or so, Mr. S.

The same foundation diet that I give to the reducers should be used by those who wish to gain, only amplified considerably. Whole milk, or half milk and cream, should be taken instead of skim or buttermilk. Peanuts register 100 calories to the half ounce of the meats (approximately 12 whole peanut meats), 20 of which are protein calories. One egg, 75 calories, has 27 calories of protein, and if you eat two eggs a day (150 C., of which 54 are protein calories), and want to substitute peanuts for that, you'll have to have 250 calories of peanuts (30 peanut meats instead of 12.) The protein of nuts is very high grade, and for animals it has been shown to be biologically complete; that is, the protein contains all the building elements. So you can substitute nuts for meat or eggs if you like. (You need approximately 250 to 350 C. of protein daily, so you will have to get more protein from other sources.)

Nuts are one of the best gaining foods, for one-half ounce of the meats is 100 C. You can profitably add 200 or 300 C. a day of nuts or nut butters in your diet. Not long ago we ran a letter in the column from a reader who gained many wanted pounds by eating considerable peanut butter every day, extra. Egg yolks and cream are also great gaining foods.

You can eat more candy, also, for that is very easily assimilated and is very high in calories, and is a quick energy food. Be careful not to increase your free fats and oils too much, for they might upset you.

It is much better to have five or six small meals a day than to try to eat too much in one meal. Gradually work up to 1,000 or 1,500 C. a day more than you have been eating, and I will guarantee that your wife will be satisfied. Tell her that she isn't cutting out 1,000 calories a day or she would have lost more than 22 ounces in six months. (But that is certainly better for her than gaining.) I can give you more succinct advice: You eat as Fannie does or used to before she began to diet. Also, send for the reducing and gaining pamphlet.

Our Hope Is That Lindy Will Be Henpecked!

SO THINK WE

We think the reason so many people do not know the pastor of their church is because they do not go to church often enough to get acquainted with him.

We think the reason there are more students for the ministry in Chicago, than any other city in the United States, is because there appears to be a greater need for their work there than anywhere else.

Wet think about the most painful thing in the world is for a man to be stabbed in the back by a friend—a person that he favored many times—and then have them pull a stunt that shows their yellowness. Their lack of appreciation.

We think the Jones law is going to make it as hard for the bootlegger and the fellows who mage liquor, or else it has them badly fooled. Never mind men, there will come along a criminal lawyer who will tell you how you can violate it and get by. There seems not be a maker of a law that does not find his equal in breaking it, but even then we have not lost hope that the prohibition laws can be enforced.

We think that one of the really dependable market tips might be asparagus, but, it would go to the bottom of the board if we had to buy all that was consumed.

We think that something should be done to the south end of Avenue H. We are told that there is much need for repairs on this street, south of 19th, and before it reaches the county and state highway. The people of that part of the city should petition the city commission to pave this street, or continue the paving south from where it stops to the connection with the state highway.

We think it must have been a wonderful "beacon of light" to the keeper of the light house when the radio was set to work.

We think that Dan Moody has probably vetoed more bills than any other governor. Dan seems to really take his job seriously. He may make some mistakes, but we believe he is conscioentious, and if he makes a mistake it is simply because he is trying to do the right thing.

We think there will be one of the biggest crops of federal and state candidates in the history of the nation in 1930.

We think that Wisconsin probably thought she was pulling a big sunt when she voted to repeal the state law against prohibition and the making of home brew. However there is still the Volstead act that they must face, and that law is going to be in the federal constitution for a long time. And the old saying that it won't be long now does not apply to the Volstead act at all.

We think when a nation spends all the money they have on the "war path" they never will have any federal aid to give for better highways.

We think everybody in Lubbock regretted to see those great big trees dug up and carried away in the court yard. No matter if they were "just locust trees." They were the biggest trees in Lubbock county and a tree in the country should have proper recognition, and be appreciated till the last signs of sap is gone from its trunk.

We think that even Andrew Mellon is a pretty wise old duck when it comes to money matters. Early in the spring—we think some time in March—he advised people to put their money in government bonds rather than speculative stocks, and now many thousands of them wish they had taken his advice.

The Way of the World
-BY GROVE PATTERSON

COST OF CRIME

The total revenue of government in the United States—federal, state, and local—is said to be about eleven billions of dollars a year. Eleven billions is approximately the amount Uncle Sam loaned European countries during and after the war. And it is interesting to learn that statisticians figure crime, in one way and another, costs this country about eleven billions. Think of the government employes—federal, state and local—and the manifold institutions in every county in America that are made necessary by the tendency to criminal activity on the part of the human being.

* * *

CONTROL

An old proverb says that "love is without prudence and anger without control" The most dangerous tendency in humans is the tendency to surrender themselves to the dominance of their instincts, and impulses and emotions. It is the business of the really civilized man to control his emotions—not be controlled by them. Right at that point lies the line of difference between man and the lower animals from which some say he has sprung.

* * *

APOLOGIES

Some folks refuse to make an apology when they have merely been misunderstood, although they have hurt somebody else very much. They think they are absolved because their intentions were right, although they did not make themselves clear. The fact is they are guilty and owe an apology just the same. Just because one can not make himself clear does not excuse him for hurting another.

* * *

POLICY

Policy is a very important word. One thing we ought to get as early in life as we have intelligence to device it—and that is a policy. We ought to lay out for ourselves a definite course of action. There will always be deviations and exceptions. We shall doubtless fall short of our expectations. We must accept such failures and not be too disheartened by them. We should not change our policy unless we have sound reasons and much evidence for doing it.

NURSERY AT LAMESA

Extensive Business Looms For Establishment

LAMESA, April 6.—A nursey has been located at Lamesa through the efforts of the civic department of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce. Ben Moore, former postmaster of O'Donnell, has purchased a track of land one half mile north the city limits on the No. 9 highway from Judge J. E. Garland of this city. Nursery stock will be planted out immediately according to Mr. Moore. Moore will also establish on this property his home and other improvements. His plan is also to make a park of the acreage so he states. This business has been long needed according to officials of the local chamber who have endeavored to conduct tree and evergreen campaigns here for several years.

'DATE' PROMENADE

Campaign For Beautifying Campus At C. I. A.

DENTON, April 6 (AP).—A rustic bridge for a date promenade three hundred red bud shrubs, new benches and additional concrete walks are included in a general "campus beautiful" campaign under way at the College of Industrial Arts.

The rustic bridge is built across Lake Hubbard and forms one of the most picturesque spots on the campus. Other plans for beautification include the planting of thousands of flowers and trees for next year.

THE GROUP AND STUDY METHOD

* * *

BY M. H. DUNCAN
Superintendent of City Schools

Real Thinking Brought Out

Under the recitation system, the dearth of real thinking in the average class is depressing. Like one in a room with a foul odor the teacher may become accustomed to it and not expect anything better; the pupils may not know any better and come to believe that the aim is to cram into their heads the information contined in the text book; but the visitor who understands the meaning of education is mightly depressed by the failure of the average recitation group to use their minds. Pupils in such a situation seldom venture to have an idea of their own. They merely memorize what it in the book and give it back to the teacher without letting it touch their minds. In fact, some one has described the recitation as the place where the thoughts of the book pass from the pupil to the teacher without touching the mind of either.

Written Work Used

The group and study method calls for much written work because it requires the accurate and constant use of the pupils's mind. It calls for actual cerebration on the part of the pupil and gives him no opportunity to be a mere passive recipient, but compels him to be an active inquirer. It develops ability to use the mind every day in every piece of work requiring the pupil to practice the use of logical arrangements and accurate thinking.

Of course, many people do not like to use their minds. They had rather not be disturbed in the even tenor of their way. They like the ease of the recitation system better than the effort that has to be put forth under the group and study method. They do not like to think and will keep from doing so just as long as they can. Such people are likely to believe that the group and study method puts too much responsibility on them and requires too much of them. It requires real thinking on the part of the pupil, and no pupil can use his mind without growing in the power to do so. Any pupil who will conscientiously do the writing required in the group study method will grow in mental ability. He will grow in all those things necessary to effective work and he will also gain new interest in his work.

PLAN AIRPORT

Lamesa Seeks To Rank As Air Center

LAMESA, April 6.—Lamesa is to build an airport and a landing field if plans of the Lamesa luncheon club, the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce and the American Legion materialize. A school of flying will be conducted when the field is complete according to present plans. The committees are now busy seeking a landing field of 160 acres and the arrangement of such necessary equipment as will make the airport modern and according to requirements. It may be that a bond election will be called that the city may own the port.

SLATON 'ROYALTY'

King And Queen Of School Are Presented

SLATON, April 6.—In an elaborate and spectacular program, held Wednesday night at the high school auditorium, Demp Cannon and Miss Pearl Edmondson were crowned "king" and "queen" of Slaton high school. Cannon is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Cannon. The queen is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Edmondson. Both students are juniors, and were selected for these high honors in spirited contests in which over 300 high school students took part.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

"HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN is shot between one and four Saturday afternoon. His secretary, RUTH LESTER, finds his body Monday morning, sprawled beneath the airshaft window of his private office.

McMANN, detective sergeant, questions the following suspects: Ruth, MRS. BORDEN, Borden's estranged wife and mother of his two children; RITA DUBOIS, night club dancer, with whom Borden was infatuated; and JACK HAYWARD, Ruth's fiance, with office across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

McMann's belief in Jack's guilt is strengthened by the testimony of elevator boys MICKY MORAN and OTTO PFLEUGER, and of BILL COWAN, Jack's friend, who says he heard Jack threaten Borden's life Saturday morning. McMann sends a detective to bring in JAKE BAILEY, Borden's bodyguard. Meanwhile he questions BENNY SMITH, Borden's office boy; ASHE, his manservant; MINNIE CASSIDY and LETTY MILLER, seventh floor scrubwomen.

A fresh scar in the wall outside Jack's window and a flattened bullet found on the cement seven flights below the airshaft window convince McMann Borden fired in self-defense at his murderer who stood in Jack's window. Minnie tells Ruth that while she was cleaning Borden's office Saturday, she saw him take an orchid-tinted envelope from a small drawer in his desk.

Ruth at last finds the secret drawer and she and McMann read the six letters concealed there. They are from MARTHA MANNING, an old sweetheart of Borden's. CLEO GILMAN, a former friend of Borden's, is shown in. When McMann asks where she was Saturday afternoon, she laughs in anticipation of the surprise she is about to give him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"At two o'clock," Cleo Gilman announced calmly, after a long draw at a new cigaret, "which, I gather from our unduly excited newspapers, was approximately the hour when poor old Harry was bumped off, I was in Pleasantville—delightful little town, but rather slow, don't you think?—getting married—"

"Married!" McMann exploded.

"I was afraid you'd take it like that," Cleo sympathized. "But bear up, darling. The worst is yet to come. I was married to—Arthur Dean Pendennis the third—or is it the fourth?"

"Young Pendennis, the multimillionaire clubman?" McMann said slowly, gazing with something like awe at the voluptuous blond who was smiling lazily at him.

"Fie, fie, Hawkshaw, you've been reading the tabloids!" Cleo Gilman Pendennis chided him.

"If you were married Saturday, how does it happen that you returned to your apartment alone today?" McMann demanded skeptically.

"Well, you see," Cleo smiled enchantingly, "our marriage came as quite a surprise — to Arty. I myself thought I could manage it nicely, as I did, but I agreed with Arty that he'd better hurry home and break the news to mother—a rather terrible person, his mother, I understand. He's with her now, having a rough time of it, I'm afraid—since the papers somehow got hold of the fact that his little Cleo was being 'sought' to be 'grilled'—oh, those tabloids! They are insidious, aren't they? Arty has been trying to purify my English—"

McMann drew a deep breath and spread his hands in a gesture of defeat. "Sorry to have bothered you, Mrs. Pendennis. And I hope we can hush things up so as not to cause you any serious trouble with your husband.—"

"Oh, please don't trouble your darling old head about me!" Cleo interrupted quickly, her smile brilliantly carefree. "Really, Hawkshaw—and you can call me Cleo, now that we're so well acquainted—this is an awfully lucky break for me. You see, I'd made a sort of general confession of—er—naughtiness before Arty proposed to me—no eof those blanket confessions that can cover a multitude of sins and sinners, like Harry Borden, and he forgave all. But dear old Mrs. Pendennis won't let her precious boy come near me again, after she realizes that he has married one of the 'women grilled in Borden's murder'—which is, I repeat, a perfectly swell break for little Cleo!"

* * *

"You mean—you don't want to live with your husband?" McMann stared at her incredulously.

"How quick you are, Hawkshaw! Little Miss Lester here tumbled 10 minutes ago, but for a man you're not so dumb! Of course I don't want to live with Arty. He bores me. Would you believe it?—he quotes a couple of poets named Sheats and Kelly by the yard, and for weeks I've had to listen and say, 'Oh, dar-r-ling! How perfectly sweet. And how beautifully you recite poetry!' Arty, I may add, so that you will understand all, has never been in a night club in his life and intends to leave half his forutune to the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"If there is anything left of it when you've taken him to the cleaners," McMann grinned. "I suppose you've got your marriage certificate with you?"

"Dated Saturday, and issued at Pleasantville, a bona fide county seat," Cleo assured him obligingly, as she extracted the precious document from her large, snake-skin handbag. "It took us two hours to drive to Pleasantville, and we were married at two o'clock. Our honeymoon was spent in the Pendennis shooting lodge, up in some ghastly mountains somewhere—"

"All right!" McMann interrupted bursquely, as he returned the marriage certificate to its owner. "But just a minute," he detained the nonchalant beauty who had risen and was wrapping her platinum caracul coat abotu her. "Perhaps you can help me. . . . From your intimacy with Borden, do you know of anyone who had threatened his life, or of whom he was actually afraid?"

Cleo laughed. "Harry was afraid of his shadow. I suppose you know he had a bodyguard? I used to think he was dippy on the subject, and I tried to kid him out of it, wouldn't let him talk about it—and sure enough, some one did bump him off, just as he—"

"Did he mention names?" McMann interrupted.

"He gave me a long song-and-dance when I first met him about the sweetie he had before he fell in love with me—used to tell me by the hour about how crazy she was about him, and how scared he was that she'd try to get even. But, Lord, all men talk like that about the women they're through with!"

"He wasn't hard to take," Cleo laughed. "I gathered he'd been ripe for picking a long time. . . . But—sorry, Hawkshaw! I'm naming no names. Just write it down that I don't know her name."

She drew on a beautiful, silvery gray glove, smiling at the scowling detective with wide, topaz eyes, as she added: "I've had a number of labels pinned on me, first and last, and probably the Dowager Queen Pendennis will think up a good, hot new one, but—even Harry Borden, when he gave me my notice on January 2, had the grace to say I was a—good sport. . . . So long, darling! I've had a wonderful time. Goodby, Miss Lester. If I were as pretty as you are I'd have grabbed off the Prince of Wales instead of poor old Arty."

When Cleo was gone McMann refused to meet the eyes of the girl opposite him, making a great ado of shuffling his memoranda on the case.

"A good sport," Ruth said softly. "Borden must have been crazy to ditch a peach like that for Rita Dubois," McMann agreed, lowering his head so that his blush might not be so apparent.

Ruth laughed. "Maybe Mr. Borden was an exception to the rule you follow, Mr. McMann—he was one gentleman who really preferred brunets. Mrs. Borden is brunet, Martha Manning is—"

"Detective Carlson with Miss Manning, sir," Birdwell interrupted.

As he had done upon the arrival of both Rita Dubois and Cleo Gilman, McMann had the woman shown into the dead man's private office, while he conferred briefly in the outer office with the detective who had brought her in.

In the brief interval before the detective sergeant's return, Ruth Lester had opportunity to study the woman about whom her curiosity had been raised to an extraordinary pitch—the woman who might never have been involved in the investigation of Harry Borden's murder if it had not been for her—Ruth's—interference.

Ruth saw a no longer young, but still lovely woman—tall, very slender, graceful. Beneath the brim of a long-worn but still smart dark blue felt hat a pair of great dark eyes—their brilliance heightened by the mascara which frankly beaded the lashes—surveyed the room in which her former lover had died, then came to rest inquiringly upon Ruth.

"Thank you," Martha Manning murmured. Then, releasing the full glory of the voice that Ruth knew so well, and which had been thrice sdecribed since Borden had died: "I am Miss Manning. May I take off my coat, please?"

Ruth watched her remove the well-cut but slightly shabby garment of dark blue cloth, trimmed with worn black sealskin, revealing a straight-line frock of silk crepe, almost the exact shade of red as the rouge spots on her thin, heavily powdered cheeks, and the brilliant salve on her lips. "Too much make-up," Ruth told herself, "but somehow it suits her."

Miss Manning laid her coat on the back of the chair which Ruth offered, then seated herself upon it, crossing her knees, so that one foot swung free, unconsciously revealing to Ruth the fact that the meticulously brushed black suede pumps had been half-soled.

She waited calmly, her black-gloved hands loosely clasped about a small black leather handbag in her lap, her face in repose, her dark eyes gazing steadily at one of the windows that looked out upon the street.

If she was nervous, apprehensive, she concealed it admirably. She

Today's Poem

THE RONDEAU

You bid me try, Blue Eyes, to write
—Tonight?
Reflect. Some skill I have, 'tis true;
But thirteen lines!—and rhymed on two!—

Still, there are five lines—ranged aright
These Gallic bonds, I feared, would fright
My easy Muse. They did, till you—

Behold!—the Rondeau, tasteful light,

ade no fluttery movements, she d not raise a hand to pat the allops of soft black hair that out-ned her artistically made-up face; d not fish in her handbag for lip-ick or compact with which to add ouches to an already perfect job of ersonal adornment. Nor did she peak again. She simply waited. nd when at last McMann entered he rom she greeted him, in that rgan-like contralto voice, as cour-eously and calmly as if they were eeting at a social function.

"You're Miss Manning? Martha Manning?" McMann asked abruptly, hen he had seated himself at the lead man's desk and was ready with his inevitable pencil and pad of eratch paper.

"Living at the Acropolis Hotel?"

"Yes. I am employed there, as Mr. Carlson has undoubtedly told you," the woman answered courte-ously, with no hint of resentment.

"From six in the morning until half-past 11. I accepted the posi-tion because the hours are short. My health is not very good, requiring me to spend a number of hours each day in the open air," Miss Manning replied calmly, but then suddenly she betrayed either nervousness or the call of a long-indulged habit: "Do you mind if I smoke?"

"Nervous?" McMann grinned, as the woman stripped the gloves from her hands and opened her bag to extract a package of 15-cent ciga-rets. She had no cigaret case. Per-haps. Ruth thought pityingly, Bor-den nhad once given her just such an expensive case as Cleo Gilman had displayed in that office an hour before, but if so, it had undoubtedly gone, along with Borden's other rich gifts, to pay her small son's ex-penses at boarding school. Ten dol-lars a week and a tiny hotel room for five and a half hours' work a day! Suddenly Ruth felt slightly ill, ashamed. . . .

"Draw your chair up to the desk so you can reach this ash tray," Mc-Mann suggested, his voice noticeably less harsh.

"Thank you," Martha Manning replied simply, and obeyed. In the new position her body was turned squarely toward Ruth, but her head, with its long, slender, lined neck—an age-revealing neck—inclined cour-teously toward her inquisitor.

"Miss Manning," McMann began again, in a crisp, business-like man-ner, "what was your relationship to Henry P. Borden?"

Natural color crept from that pathetically thin throat and blend-ed with the brilliant spots of rouge. Martha Manning inclined her head in mute assent.

"When did you and Harry Borden become lovers and how long did the relationship last?" McMann de-manded.

The woman stiffened and her nos-trils dilated. "I'm afraid I must de-cline to answer that question, Mr. McMann! I have admitted the re-lationship, which ceased to exist al-most a year before Mr. Borden's—death." The lovely contralto voice vibrated with indignation, but it broke just before it uttered that last word.

McMann shrugged, his narrowed gray eyes fixed on her flushed face. "Miss Manning, when did you last see Harry Borden?"

HAD GIVEN UP HOPES OF EVER BEING WELL

"I Am Just Simply Feeling Great Since Using Orga-tone," Says Lubbock Citizen

"I was in such a terrible condi-tion, really, I had given up all hopes of ever being a well man again," said J. W. Gordon, of 1511 Ave. F, Lubbock, Texas, who has been in the plumbing business here for quiet awhile.

"I haven't been in good health for two years," he continued, "my system seemed to be all run down, and my appetite was very poor and I just had aches and pains all through my body. Right after ev-ery meal, gas would form and bloat me up until I would be mis-erable for hours afterward, and couldn't hardly get my breath. I had a bad case of constipation and had to take strong laxatives all the time.

"I was extremely nervous and couldn't sleep well at night, and would roll and tumble and when I got up of a morning I would feel worse than when I went to bed. I would have dizzy spells and would be very billious. I was going down hill every day and knew that I needed something to put me in condition.

"Seeing Orgatone so highly ad-vertsed and recommended by ev-eryone here in town, I decided to try it and it has certainly set me right. My run down, nervous, irri-table feeling are gone and my ap-petite trouble afterward. All of my aches and pains have left me, and I sleep like a log every night and feel simply great. I am glad to tell everyone I see about Orgatone, for it has brought back my health when I had given up all hopes of ever being as well as I am today."

Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile preparation contaning no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowens Drug store under the personal di-rection of a special Orgatone rep-resentative. Also at Plainview ex-clusively by the South Plains Drug store. Out of town customers are being supplied by mail upon receipt of price $1.25 for one bottle or $6.25 for six bottles. Adv.

Air Mail Pilots Are Now Guided By Radio Beacons

Bad Weather For Flying Is Beaten By Arrangement

Flier's Greatest Enemy Is Being Routed—Now Standard Equipment On NAT Air Mail Craft

By NEA Service

CHICAGO, April 6.—The chief enemy of the aviator, weather, is being defied through the installation of radio beacon stations on the ground and receiving sets in planes.

The National Air Transport, operator of airmail and express lines, has installed ground to plane communication sets on all of its planes plying between Cleveland and New York. Ships on other divisions of the company's network are rapidly being equipped with similar sets.

With these sets operating in planes, pilots can keep on a direct course between New York and Cleveland through the aid of radio beams sent out by radio beacon stations located at Cleveland, Bellefonte, Pa., and Hadley Field, N. J.

The equipment of the ground station, which operates on 500 watts, consists of a cross loop transmitter instead of the regular vertical antenna. The use of this cross loop enables radio beams to be transmitted in a given direction.

Signals in Code

Two signals are sent out over this transmitter, one for the left side of the course and its opposite in code to the right. Both these signals meet on the exact line of the course to form a series of dashes.

A pilot can determine the nearness of his plane to the fields by the increase and decrease in the strength of the signals and the varying of the distance between the boundaries of the radio beam. Toward the end of the beam's range, it diverges to a width of two or more miles. It converges as it nears its origin.

The equipment on the plane consists of a receiving set placed in a small compartment directly behind the pilot's seat, a vertical mast antenna attached to the fuselage about midway to the tail surfaces, earphones, a volume control on the instrument board and batteries.

Guided Through Fog

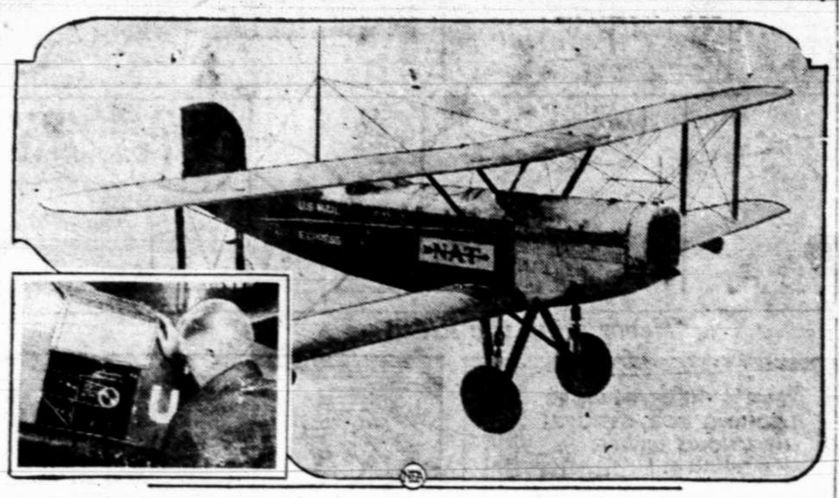

The beam transmitter is used to keep the plane on a set course in foggy weather, or in any weather in which the visibility is poor.

In connection with the beam service is a weather report service. This is worked with a different type of transmitter, tuned to a higher wave length. Hourly reports are broadcast, but in case of an immediate impending storm, the beam signal is interrupted, which is a signal for the pilots to tune to the higher wave length and get the voice warning of the storm.

At present, the voice and beam communication is limited to a one-way traffic—ground to plane. But a system has been developed which will shortly facilitate two-way communication.

The N. A. T. plans to install these directional beacons at 200-mile intervals in the near future.

Radio Beacons Defy Worst Weather

This radio equipped airplane—note the vertical antenna—is flown by N. A. T. pilots between Cleveland and New York, guided by radio beacons. Radio technician F. E. Gray is shown at left inspecting the compact radio set which is placed behind the pilot and which is controlled by means of a cable from the instrument board.

Maine May Impose State Radio Levy

$1 A Year Assessment On All Receiving Sets May Be Placed To Maintain State Department

(By Associated Press)

AUGUSTA, Me., April 4 (AP)—A state tax of $1 a year on all radio receivers to be used for maintaining a state radio department is proposed in Maine.

The department, under the provisions of a measure introduced in the Maine legislature, would investigate and remove cause of radio disturbances. It is explained that the measure is designed to put teeth into an act passed two years ago which renders it unlawful to operate any receiver radiating energy between 200 and 550 meters.

A department of radio control to be placed under the public utilities commission would be created. The commission would appoint a chief radio supervisor to whom would be delegated such powers as the commission deems necessary. Several zones would be created with district supervisors and subordinates appointed to each zone. Office and laboratories for the radio department would be established in Augusta.

The commission would be called upon to study radio interference, investigate causes of radio disturbance, and issue rules prohibiting the use of radio equipment causing interference.

Owners of all receivers would be required to register their equipment with the city and town clerks before January 1 each year, and pay the license fee for that year. The sets would be marked as registered and would be subject to inspection by the public utilities commission at any time. A description of each set would be required on registering.

A fine of $10 to $100 might be levied, under the measure, for use of an unregistered radio set.

Television Again Seeks Popularity

Indications Point To New Broadcasting Phase As Popular Pastime During Next Season

NEW YORK, April 6.—Television in 1929 may or may not make another bid for the popularity that it strived to gain last season. Yet a glance into the laboratories seems to indicate that the stress should be on the "may" rather than the "may not."

Every place where investigations are being made into the possibilities of improving the present systems of light transmission by radio scientists are hard at work endeavoring to overcome the obstacles to satisfactory television. They admit that their problems are many but are enthusiastic over their accomplishments to date.

Most of the television activity on the air has settled into the short wave bands not far below the broadcast channels. In the vicinity of 150 meters, 22 transmitters have been given assignments which they intend to use for light impulses. In the broadcast band an occasional station has obtained permission for television between the hours of 1 and 6 a. m. the only time light can be sent in the 200 to 550 channels.

A big share of the recent efforts has been bent toward bettering the system by which moving pictures from a film can be sent. This method is more reliable and not quite so complicated as reproducing by radio "movies" of a person sitting before a television camera.

STATE OWNED

WOS, Jefferson City, Mo., is said to be the only state-owned radio station in the country. It is located in the dome of the State capitol building.

THESE RADIO PICTURES

Seventeen stations are now licensed for television. They will broadcast on three short wave bands, running from 2,000 kilocycles to 2,930 kilocycles.

Housewife Wooed And Won In Radio Program Of NBC

History Of The Household Institute Is Related By Broadcasting Staff Of National Chain

By NEA Service.

NEW YORK, April 6.—High up in a skyscraper office building here two young men were concocting a plot. It was a little over a year ago, and across a desk they were scheming to woo a married woman—one with children.

Scratch pads were full of figures. Plans were presented, discussed and discarded. Finally the two agreed on the following action: They were to discard the accepted procedure of wooing in the moonlight; they were to wait until daylight, about noon, and while her husband was at work and her children in school they'd set about winning her affections.

It didn't take them long to get started. And they soon received more than 100,000 letters from her!

But they weren't love letters!

The two villians of this story were officials of the Radio Household Institute which presents a morning household program over the Red network of the NBC. The "wooed" wife and mother was the American housewife who, the two men believed, could be reached more readily at the time they agreed upon. The letters were fan mail, health and household questions, requests for recipes, cooking booklets and related information.

Guided By Letters.

The plot marked the beginning of the Radio Household Institute programs. It started on the air with only 16 stations using its services. At present more than 30 are on its network.

At the helm of the institute is Miss Winifred Wishard, who acts as director and conducts the Junior Cooking class. She has a hand in preparing all the programs and handles all the fan mail.

"The letters our audience sends in are the most important element in our work" she says. "They guide us and they give us the enthusiasm to keep on striving for better and more useful and more entertaining programs."

Acting as her chief aid on the dramatic staff is William Brenton. He is a graduate of Princeton university and while there was a director of the Princeton Triangle Club Theater.

The marked success of this feature is attributed to its line of entertainment. It does not limit itself to ordinary household advice. Its slogan is "Variety, Novelty and Surprise."

MAIL ORDER RADIO

Four text books, serving as a guide to radio service men, have been prepared by the radio division of the National Electrical Manufacturers' association in cooperation with the Radio Institute of America. Four examination papers are offered with the books.

Army Amateur Radio System, Proven In Value, Will Be Extended Through Entire Country By Experts' Program

Emergency News Service Rendered By A. R. R. L. Is Cause For New Scheme Of U. S. Signal Corps

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—The emergency news service rendered by members of the American Radio Relay league in cooperation with the U. S. Army Signal Corps has proven so valuable in the past that officials of these organizations have decided to revise the army-amateur system and increase its scope.

During the past three years this amateur radio transmitting group has proved its worth in broadcasting emergency reports of tornadoes, floods and other disasters in which ordinary land wires were rendered useless.

"Three years of operation under the original plan have demonstrated the advisability of revising that plan to provide for an expansion of the system to cover more thoroughly all parts of the United States," says Major General George S. Gibbs, chief army signal officer.

The present plan, which went into effect March 1, calls for the banding together of "ham" operators in what is known as the Army Amateur Radio Net. This is composed of one station in each army corps area, of which there are nine in this country, and in each department in which amateur activities are permitted. The control station of this system is at Port Monmouth, N. J.

Nets Within Nets.

Each corps area has its own amateur radio net, taking in one station in the capital of each of the states in the area. This network is subdivided into approximately five geographical areas, with the state capital having the net control station.

Connected with the state amateur radio nets will be the district amateur radio nets, situated in each state so as to give the best possible service.

The last division of this large network is the local amateur radio net which is composed of all amateurs in local areas.

High Radio Cost To Solve Problem

Fan Mail Shows That Public Is Demanding Bigger And Better—And More Costly Programs

By NEA Service.

CHICAGO, April 6.—High cost is going to solve the broadcasting problem, says Morgan L. Eastman, pioneer broadcaster and manager of WENR, Chicago.

Eastman points to the fact, revealed by fan mail, that greater demans are being made upon the men behind the microphone for bigger and better — which means much more costly — programs, and that thi strepd will cause the smaller and less competent boradcasters to drop out of the field.

"Today there is little competition as keen as that between radio broadcasting stations," declares Eastman. "The result is that the standard of programs is being raised higher and higher every week and the cost has gone up by leaps and bounds.

"Better receiving sets have made it possible for people living almost anywhere to pick up stations that are putting on the good programs—the stations that are spending large sums of money to please the listeners. It follows that the listeners generally, having their choice, are becoming more and more intolerant of mediocre entertainment."

Eastman points out that the investment on a big station today runs from $750,000 to $1,000,000 and that cost of maintaining it, including operation and talent, would run anywhere from $150,000 to $300,000 or more a year. Some of the costs he mentions are:

Transmitter, $5,000 to $40,000; studio and office rent, $15,000 to $60,000; pickup equipment, $10,000 to $15,000; depreciation on transmitter, $60,000 to $120,000; music and supplies, $7,000 to $11,000.

In addition there are insurance, taxes and other costs, not to speak of the high cost of talent, that boosts this annual sum up high. Ordinary microphones cost $75 each, while the new type of condenser mike has a price of $400. And WENR has 21 of the latter type.

Tubes have to be replaced after about 1,000 hours of usage, which is about every four months, for the average station. And each tube costs from $75 to $300 each.

OPEN HOUSE

Every Afternoon Except Saturday, 1 to 4 O'Clock

April 1 st. to April 27 th. Inclusive

The laundries cooperating in this move to educate the housewives of Lubbock of the value of sending it to the laundry are especially anxious that every woman in Lubbock and the surrounding territory attend this open house at least one day. Then you can see the plan of operation, how every angle for the proper cleaning of your garments has been taken into consideration. A courteous attendant will escort you through the entire process, and explain every method that is used.

SEE!

The Magic Bubbles Distil the Dirt

The woman who has tried these services wonders how we get the clothes so white, clean, crisp and sweet smelling. She would marvel all the more if she could see how gently it's all done.

The Result is all in the modern, super-human machinery that the laundry industry has developed—incomparable in effect to any home method or appliances. It's in the Magic Bubbles too, of purest of soaps—in the specially processed softened water; n the four 15 minutes sudes immersions and the seven separate alternating hot and cold water rinses. It's not an art nor an artifice—it's a science.

SEE!

The Gentle Care That Is Taken

Have you ever watched Sarah rub and tug over the scrub board—or poke and pull at your clothes with a pole in the wash boiler? Is it any wonder the fabrics give, the buttons pop off or hubby complains of frayed cuffs and collars and holey socks.

Come to these Laundries and let us show you how gently the same operations are performed here with even more immaculate results in the appearance of your clothes. That's only one of a dozen reasons why it's better and cheaper to send your laundry to the Laundry.

SEE!

Our Accurate Sorting Systen.

Aside from the thorough cleanliness of the laundry work and gentle handling of your clothes here is another important advantage you gain n sending your laundry.

As a matter of sanitation every family's budle is as separately and individually washed as in your own home. Furthermore the white goods are separated from the colored goods and each separately washed. Such personal attenton insures against loss of clothes, assures the utmost n cleanliness and the security of fabric and color.

SEE!

How You Save Time More Economical

Consider that the average family's laundry takes from four to five hours to wash. Another three or four hours to dry, and another three or four hours to iron—really a day and a half at least. At 50c an hour you'd pay yourself double what these Laundries would charge you for the same amount of wash work. And that doesn't take into account your cost of material and washing utensils.

How much more profitably and pleasantly your time can be spent with the children or your social friends—and how much more thoroughly your laundry work will be done.

Old Time Education Methods Are Supplanted Here

Group Study Plan, Begun In Lubbock This Year, Permits Thinking Among Students; Teachers' Work Changed

Old Time "Three R's" Give Way To New Ideas; The Watchword In Schools Here Is 'Learn By Doing'

IN THE attitude of children in a ward school room of Lubbock one morning this week was indicative, youngsters are going to be looking for another personification to replace that old ogre known as school. Times are changing and instead of the spulchral silence which was the old school master's idea of an Egyptian school room, there is—shades of "them" good old days—an unmistakable buzz pervading every room and seeming order has been left out of the day's program.

Informality Reigns

Desks have been pushed together in one side of many rooms, making large seats like those relegated to antiquity a score of years ago; small tables fill the other half of the rooms and around these are grouped chairs, boxes or benches; aisles have been dispensed with in some of the buildings and pupils walk in and out of doors informally.

School isn't what it used to be. The group study plan has been introduced.

"Readin', writin' and 'rithmetic" are no longer taught to the tune of the proverbial hickory stick in Lubbock schools, for methods of instruction are changing.

That "inner urge" which has followed on the heels of the suppressed desires and complexes of the last few years, is being exploited here in the new system introduced this year by Superintendent M. H. Duncan.

Opinions Differ

The group study plan is meeting with cheers and jeers. Teachers and patrons alike are expressing their opinions concerning the system, some of them favor this method and express a belief that the children are learning far more readily than they did under the old method of presentation; others are more dubious and some teachers complain that they are encountering many difficulties in attempting this method of teaching.

The development of a child's individuality is one stated reason for using this system and teachers who are in favor of the method are enthusiastic in telling of their work this year. The children, too, seem to have an attitude of pleasurable anticipation concerning their studies. The method is more successful with beginners than with the older students, according to some of the teachers, because it is easier for beginners to enter into the new system than it is for boys and girls who have been trained for several years under an entirely different system. For this reason the method is used more in the lower grades.

Much Activity Seen

A trip to one ward school upon a typical morning last week was enlightening concerning this new method of training children.

Unannounced visits were made from room to room and in each there was a different picture, always accompanied by that business-like hum of activity.

In Here there were several children grouped informally near a window and a cloak room studying spelling together and the group leader, one who is chosen because of her scholarship and ability as a captain, was grading papers which were to be committed to the teacher later in the morning.

In another corner of this same room there was another group of children about a table engaged in a reading lesson that had all the earmarks of an intimate story hour; another group was preparing a lesson in numbers.

Confusion Is Lacking

Another visit disclosed a room filled with children who were unmistakably working and there was no announcement that the teacher had gone on an errand down the hall. The old time scurry, the dust from flying erasers and confusion which were natural accompaniments of teacher's absence were lacking.

Nowhere was found that puritanical grouping of children in prim rows up and down the room and the children moved about their businesses with ease and informality, while the teachers went from group to group conducting lessons in a new way.

Problems are presented the pupils in such a way that their efforts combine writing and spelling, neatness, or citizenship, each factor receiving consideration in compiling a final grade. Poems and stories are illustrated and each child presents his own interpretation while the teacher functions largely in an advisory capacity.

Results Are Surprising

Surprising results are found in these methods and many unsuspected talents are discovered, according to the teachers.

Groups for study are selected according to the abilities of the children and promotions occur as the children are capable of working with a faster unit. Each group has a leader who assists individuals.

"If one child in a group does not know the pronunciation of a word or the solution of a problem, some other child usually does and in teaching the others each one strengthens his own knowledge," one of the teachers explained. "It is seldom that the children come to me with their simple problems as these are worked out in the group," she added.

In presenting a lesson one teacher displayed a group of sentences in each of which there was one word to be supplied by the children. One sentence read, "A man has — legs."

When papers were checked on this problem, virtually every child had supplied the word "two" in the blank but one youngster had written in the word "long," an incident which brought delight to the teacher.

Teacher Is Director

In the higher grades, also, this same plan is followed and many of the problems of the school are worked out by the pupils while the teacher simply directs activities.

Many times a new subject is introduced to the entire class in order that the same directions need not be repeated to several units, and the teachers often find this plan more satisfactory. But the actual problems of the new subject are presented to the groups, members discuss their work together and prepare their lessons, group captains grade the work—even their own—and then present grades and work to the teacher for a final grading.

"It is sometimes surprising how faithful these captains are in their work," one teacher remarked. "They are honest in giving their grades and make helpful suggestions on papers, which go back to the pupil for correction."

The plan is not meeting with uniform success but this is not to be expected, according to Mr. Duncan, since it is difficult to introduce any new system to teachers and pupils in a large school with entire success the first year.

However, many of the teachers and pipls are finding the system satisfactory, the element of play has been introduced in much of the work and the children are finding that responsibilities in their studies bring to them a satisfaction in results that has not always been known.

Tech Co-Eds Are More Proficient Than Dan's Cupid

Members Of Archery Class Can Hit Targets And Are Enthusiastic About Their Work, It Is Found

"CUPID may have been a good marksman all right," declared a Tech coed last week, "but I'll bet he never hit the mark as much as twenty-three times out of a possible twenty-four as I have just finished doing."

Even Miss Zella Riegel, physical training teacher who is instructing the girls in the age old art of shooting the arrow, admits that the girls are going exceptionally well to have only been practicing two weeks.

One girl suggested that Cupid, who is known from mythology to be a beautiful boy with wings and equipped with a bow and shaft of arrows, is always represented as being blind or blindfolded and that consequently, he can not always be sure of the mark at which he is aiming. But the other girl answered that even admitting the fact, Dan has been at his job for hundreds and hundreds of years. "Besides, she said, when this West Texas sand gets in your eyes you are as blind as Cupid."

Class Is Open

The archery class is open to any Tech girl who wishes to sign up for it although it was primarily intended for students who are physically unable to undergo the strenuous "left-right; up-down; bend" of straight physical culture.

An archery field has been fitted up in front of the gymnasium and ninety feet of ground has been marked and bowled off. Equipment for the class includes two dozen bows and arrows and two targets. The targets are marked with a bulls eye in the center which counts 9 to the person lucky or good enough to hit it while other circles on the target are red, blue, black and white which count correspondingly less.

According to Miss Riegel the girls are greatly interested in the class and twenty-four have already signed for the course. A score board is to be put up in order that they may keep a record of their progress.

Ten Reasons why

300,000 careful buyers have chosen the New Chevrolet Six since January 1st

Ever since the date of its introduction, the new Chevrolet Six has swept triumphantly on to greater and greater heights of popularity. Value for value and price for price—buyers have compared it with other cars in the low-price field. And the result has been an overwhelming public preference—over 300,000 buyers since January 1st. And everywhere the enthusiasm is constantly increasing—for the new Chevrolet Six combines, as does no other car in the world, those ten great fundamental factors which careful buyers are now demanding in the cars they buy.

6-Cylinder Smoothness

Due to the finer inherent balance of its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, the new Chevrolet provides that smooth, quiet, flexible performance which is the distinguishing characteristic of the truly fine automobile. At every speed, the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration. You can ride and drive for hours without annoying rumble or noise fatigue—every mile a delight for both driver and passengers.

6-Cylinder Getaway

And in sheer brilliance of performance, as well as in smoothness and quietness of operation, the new Chevrolet Six is a revelation. An automatic acceleration pump results in remarkably fast acceleration whenever the accelerator is suddenly depressed. And a new high-compression, non-detonating cylinder head eliminates every trace of "lugging"—even when you have occasion to accelerate swiftly in high gear.

6-Cylinder Speed

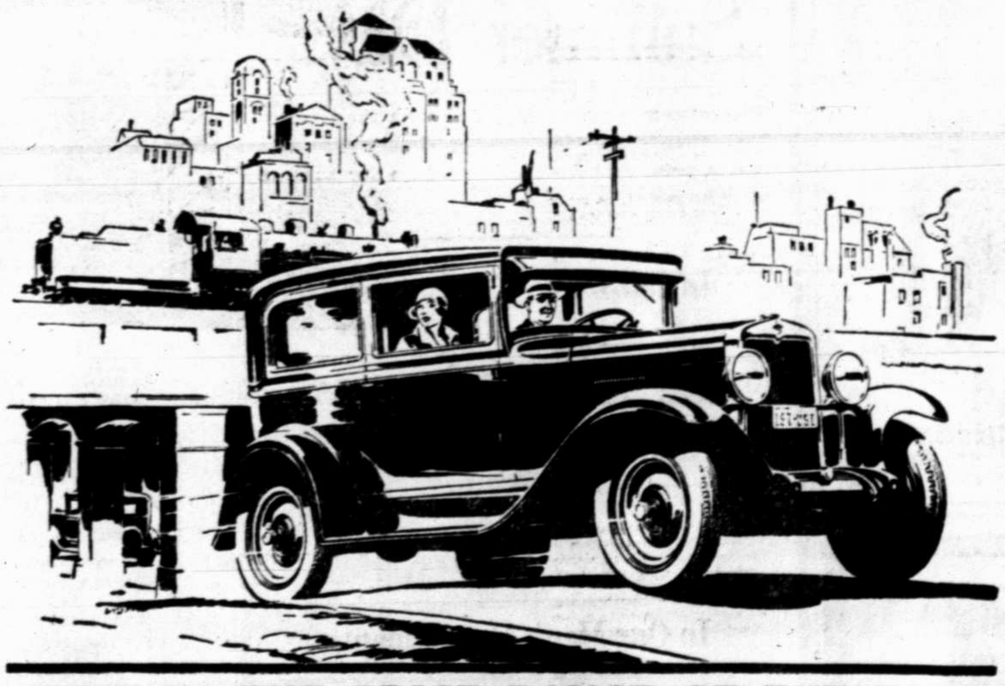

Naturally, Chevrolet's powerful six-cylinder valve-in-head motor might be expected to provide speed in abundance. But even more important than the speed of the new Chevrolet Six is the smooth, quiet, restful comfort you experience at every point on the speedometer. You can open the throttle wide with a feeling of complete security—and you come to the end of a full day's drive entirely free from the weariness caused by engine noise and body rumble.

6-Cylinder Power

The great reserve power of the new Chevrolet Six is a constant delight. The steepest hills are taken with ease. Heavy roads are negotiated without the necessity for frequent gear-shifting. And even at the higher speeds, there is always that feeling of confidence which comes from the knowledge that additional power is at hand . . . instantly available for whatever need may arise.

Modern Safety Features

The new Chevrolet Six is equipped with every modern safety and convenience feature—typified by a full ball bearing steering mechanism, non-locking 4-wheel brakes with separate emergency brake, foot controlled adjustable two-beam headlights, automatic fuel pump, theft-proof Electro-lock, electric motor temperature indicator, and Fisher VV windshield and adjustable driver's seat in all closed models. As a resuk, it is one of the easiest and safest cars in the world to handle.

A SIX IN THE PRICE RANGE OF THE FOUR

Better Than 20 Miles Per Gallon

The marvelous performance of the Chevrolet Six would be considered exceptional in any automobile. But in the new Chevrolet it is nothing short of sensational—for here it is combined with operating economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. As a result, those who can afford to own any automobile can afford to own and operate a Chevrolet Six!

Exceptional Riding Comfort

Another vital factor that has influenced hundreds of thousands in their selection of the new Chevrolet Six is its exceptional riding comfort. Built on a wheelbase of 107 inches . . . offering the deep-cushioned luxury of bodies by Fisher . . . and with the entire upper structure cradled on four long semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—it travels the roughest highways with amazing comfort. And its balance on turns and curves is equally exceptional—for the rigid frame and the long springs reduce sidesway to the minimum.

Beautiful Fisher Bodies

The marvelous bodies on the Chevrolet Six reveal, as never before, the matchless artistry that has made the Fisher name renowned throughout the world for excellence in coachcraft. Longer, lower and roomier . . . finished in attractive, long-lasting colors . . . and upholstered in rich deep-tufted fabrics that give to the interiors an air of custom elegance—they introduce into the low-price field an entirely new measure of style and distinction.

Proved Dependability

Before the new Chevrolet Six was presented to the public, it had been tested for more than a million miles on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground. Never did a new motor car go into the hands of its owners more thoroughly proved in every detail. And now, reports of its performance on the highways of the nation pay glowing tribute to its endurance and dependability.

Amazingly Low Prices

Many people do not realize that this marvelous new six-cylinder Chevrolet is actually offered in the price range of the four. Compare total delivered prices as well as factory prices when determining automobile values. You will find Chevrolet delivered prices include the lowest handling and financing charges available.

Weather Effect On Automobiles Gets Close Study

Wind, Temperature And Sun Produce Changes In Operation Of Motor Vehicles, Experts Assert

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, April 6.—Every motor car owner has his own ideas about the effects of weather on his automobile, but the manufacturers must have definite scientific data on weather effects if they are to build cars for all-weather use.

Weather bureaus, consequently, have become an integral part of the outdoor laboratories or proving grounds used by manufacturers to test their products and keep tab on the industry by testing competitors' products.

If the sun passes under a cloud for an instant the weather men say it has an immediate effect on carburetion on high compression motors. Wind has an important part in increasing or decreasing the speed of a car. Temperature effects the functioning of automobile engines.

The elaborate weather bureau maintained by General Motors at its proving ground near Detroit is representative of the highest development in the study of weather condition as effecting the performance of automobiles.

Here the engineers are interested in learning the detailed comparative performance of every motor car on the market in the United States or abroad. It is necessary, therefore, to control every variable which might attempt to insert inaccuracies into the comparative tests.

The weather itself cannot be controlled, so the motor car engineers have done the next best thing by obtaining a minute record of weather conditions at all times and making allowances for each particular condition when the reports are compared.

O. T. Kreusser, who is in charge of the company's outdoor laboratory, says that the slightest variation in weather is compensated with mathematical exactness. One instrument records the exact wind velocity instantaneously, so the effects of air resistance and wind on the speed of cars can be studied.

Another instrument keeps tab on the sun, and makes a record whenever it hides behind a cloud or is obscured by fog or rain. Temperature, humidity, rain fall and all other conditions are carefully recorded.

Airplanes To Carry 250 Passengers Seen By German As Possibility Within Three Year Period

(By Associated Press)

MIAMI, April 6. — Dr. Claude Dornier, designer and builder of the world's largest flying boats, carrying 250passengers in luxury will be in use within three years.

Dr. Dornier is known as one of the world's greatest creative geniuses in aeronautics and his most extravagant predictions of the past have come true, many of them through his own hand. He is head of the Dornier flying boat factories, which employ 2,500 men in Germany, Switzerland and Italy, and now is building an 80-passenger flying boat.

The "Dox", which he plans to launch in May, is a gargantuan ship larger than anything sane optimists have predicted in this country.

Imagine an apartment house 150 feet long built to house 80 people, offering refrigeration, a restaurant, reading room, promenade walk and individual compartments surpassing the luxury of private railroad cars. Vision this luxurious "apartment house," with maid and telephone service, flying through the air at 200 miles an hour, and you will get some conception of the giant plane.

The German engineer is so certain that his big plane will be successful that he is working on two more. They are designed to fly mail to South America and carry passengers through Europe.

The "Dox" has a wing spread of 150 feet and is powered by 12 nine-cylinder radial engines developing 6,000 horsepower. It will weigh 50 tons when loaded; cruise 2,700 miles, and should be able to land and takeoff from a heavy sea.

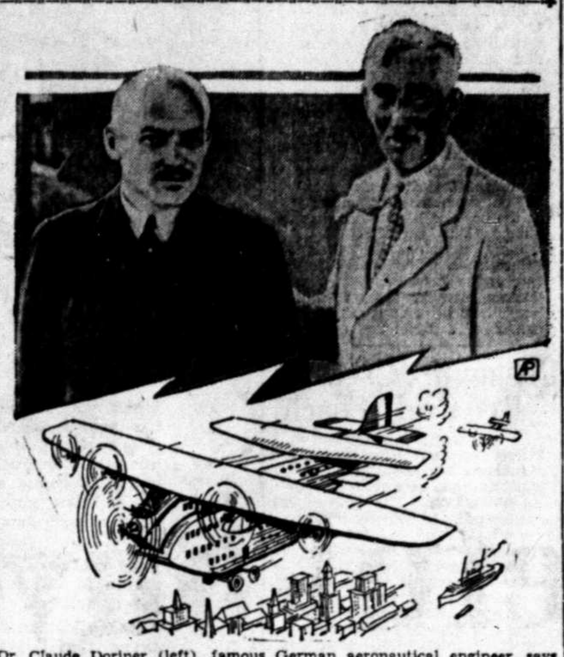

"It surpasses in size any heavier-than-air craft ever built," Dr. Dornier says. "The individual compartments are as roomy as and even more luxurious than Pullman cars. You can retire and sleep with all the comfort of a bed at home, with greater quiet than afforded on a railroad train. Four of the 12 engines can fail, and we still can fly on with ease. We are just putting the final touches on it at my factory in Switzerland."

He made a forecast as to ocean service.

"Not until 1,000 horsepower and 2,000 horsepower airplane engines are built will you see regular trans-Atlantic airplane passenger service," Dr. Dornier said. "The first trans-Atlantic service will be mail service, but we must wait for bigger engines for passenger service. Germany has been handicapped seriously by war treaties which have prohibited engine development."

Dr. Dornier came to Florida as the guest of Gar Wood, who plans to purchase a four-motored 24 passenger Dornier Super-Wal flying boat to tour Europe and Africa.

Dr. Claude Dorlner (left), famous German aeronautical engineer, says that airplanes carrying 250 passengers will be developed within three years. He described his new 80 passenger "Dox" nearing completion in Switzerland, to Gar Wood (right) while visiting the speed boat enthusiast in Florida.

Ease Of Parking DeSoto Feature

More than five million cars are parked daily in the business districts of the large centers of population in the United States, according to a nation-wide traffic analysis just completed by Detroit automotive engineers studying parking conditions throughout the country.

Observers found the De Soto Six a car that best meets the serious situation and gave it a wide margin over other makes of cars viewew from a window in a high building in the motor metropolis as they checked the traffic flow in a congested area down town with stop watches. Because of the ease with which it can be parked quickly in a small space, the elapsed time with the De Soto Six was considerably less than for other cars. Officials of the company said this was due to the particular type of steering gear used by the De Soto and the exceptionally quick response of the engine to the accelerator and to the four-wheel brakes.

Motorists seeking parking space in heavy traffic swoop down on a vacant spot at the curb, the prize falling to the driver with the car that immediately responds to the touch of the accelerator—the car that handles easily and turns in a narrow radius.

Powerful Beacons Defeat Fog

New Form Of Projector Is Cheating Mist, Once Considered Deadly Foe Of Aviation

CLEVELAND, April 6. (AP)—Fog, the aviator's worst enemy, gives way to the powerful beams of light projeted into the air by a new form of airport beacon, say its designers.

The beacon, designed by engineers of the National lamp works of the General Electric company, has been erected at the Cleveland municipal airport, where it is under going further tests.

Incorporated in this multi-light unit are several principles of lighting, each said to be a distinct aid to night pilots. It provides a fan of light which when rotated reaches the pilot at every angle that he may approach the field.

One-half of the light fan is white and the other half red. The rotation produced alternate red and white flashes which instantly attract the pilot's attention and enable him to identify the airport.

The high intensity beams are projected by the lower, drum shaped units, of which there are four—two red and two white. These are identical in design with those used to mark the airways. The upper units, set to project a less intense beam of light at higher angles, are standard, narrow beam, floodlight projectors.

Motor Highways Link Big Cities

ANGORA, Turkey, April 6. (AP) — Turkey's remote, isolated new capital city is to be brought more swiftly and closely in touch with Europe through the Turkish government's construction of an asphalt speedway connecting Angora with Constantinople.

This first automobile boulevard in Turkey will bring the Asiatic fortress-capital of the new republic within five to six hours' distance by motor to Constantinople, Turkey's metropolis and European outpost.

Modern Turkey will speed over the same road in America and European high-power cars, but at Ada-Bazaar it will swerve from the old holy trail toward the north, for its Mecca is now Angora.

Machines Take Part Of River

While machinery is daily replacing man in the production of life's necessities and luxuries, it is only through machinery designed by master engineering brains that motor cars of today may be turned out in great quantities without sacrificing quality. The American motor car industry is one of the greatest employers of labor in the world, but the accuracy of work done in the manufacture of automobiles is to no great extent dependent upon the human equation and its natural liability to err.

From delicate scales which can accurately register the increased weight of a sheet of paper upon which a pencil mark has been placed, Chrysler engineering apparatus ranges up to a unique and powerful machine upon which finished cars are given "road tests" more severe than any human being could endure driving on a "provind ground."

Through the use of this machine a Chrysler car is put through rigid and accurate road tests equal to driving at all speeds over roads of every imaginable condition. The advantage of this machine is that the road reaction can be and is carefull observed and records are immediately made of any weaknesses that develop.

In this test the car is driven on the machine so each of its four wheels rest upon two rollers. The rollers are driven by the car's rear wheels. Special geaing connects the rear with the front rollers, which in turn rotate the forward wheels of the car at the same speed.

On each roller are mounted irregularly spaced, raised, metal cleats and while the motor is turning over these severely bump and toss the car about. Automatic controls leading to the accelerator make it possible to "drive" the car at any desired speed and assist in producing a wide range of road conditions, such as no owner would subject his car or himself to in hundreds of thousands of miles.

If you consider beauty first, what car can compare with the low, graceful lines of the Roosevelt? If you determine preference by performance, what car can match the smooth, effortless power of the Roosevelt 70-horsepower straight-eight engine? If you would go into the full mechanical detail, what car matches the specifications of this advanced Roosevelt?

The more one goes into the facts, and from every angle, the more apparent it becomes that no car in the world gives so much at or anywhere near the $1000 figure.

We submit here many of the outstanding Roosevelt features. They tell part of the story—but the car itself tells far more.

May we have the opportunity of showing and demonstrating the advantage of Roosevelt straight-eight transportation to you?

THESE INTERESTING ROOSEVELT features tell the great story of value. Nowhere else has so fine a car been offered at or near $1000.

Worthy successor to the world-famous Commander which sped 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes in heroic proof of its speed and staying power. Heir to the full fruits of Studebaker's engineering genius, which requires no further evidence than the fact that Studebaker today holds, undisputed, every official speed and endurance record for fully equipped stock cars.

Today's Commander is emphatically today's motor car. Its superb performance is matched by forward, youthful style, which beautifully interprets that performance. Lower—lower looking—and steadier at great speed—because of its costly double-drop frame. Restful riding, such as motoring never knew until Studebaker introduced the luxury of ball bearing spring shackles, is still further enhanced by hydraulic shock absorbers.

Available either with straight-eight or with six-cylinder motor, The Commander is offered by Studebaker, Builder of Champions, as "the greatest motor car ever built and sold at its price." Your first ride will prove it.

China Pins Hopes In Travel By Air

SHANGHAI, April 6. (AP)—China is becoming airminded. Airplanes and air routes for passengers, mail and freight are being talked all over the country.

Officials and civilians, from the headwaters of the Yangtse to the Pacific ocean and from Canton to Mukden, are busy visualizing the glory that is to be China's when her communities have been brought close together by ultra-modern transportation facilities. Airplane transportation companies are being projected in various communities and agents for foreign airplane makers are on the job.

Lack of funds is the only dampening influence and this is being in part overcome by governmental appropriations, stock selling schemes and public subscription.

Dodge Sees Record In Truck Industry

Sales volue in the truck, bus and motor coach field for 1029 appears unusually bright from surveys of the market represented by the world-wide dealer organization of Dodge Brothers, according to Howard E. Sneathen, director of the company's truck sales.

1.General prosperity shared alike by industrial and agricultural districts. 2. Construction of additional thousands of miles of paved roads and street widening projects. 3. Stabilization of foreign markets, opening larger export possibilities. 4. Engineering and mechanical improvements of new models that represent desirable features for more economical and dependable operation. 5. The growing demand for fleets of truck on the part of corporations expanding its motorized delivery service because of its many advantages.

"The year 1928 represented an increase of 16 per cent in production sales volume compared to 1927," said Mr. Sneathen. "These figures alone show the remarkable growth of the industry, and indicate that just as the public is profiting by every development of the automobile, it is likewise reaping the benefits of the increased use of the motor truck, bus and coach.

HOW'S SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAEL KLEIN

By ISRAEL KLEIN

Undoing what winter driving has required in the proper operation of a motor car is the most important task for the motorist at this time. Cleaning out the cooling system and the transmission and differential was discussed last week. The next step is to clean out the crankcase and oil filter, to readjust the generator so it will charge the battery at a slower rate, and to set the carburetor back to summer driving.

* * *

No matter how far the car has been run, winter and its accompanying dirt and grime might have clogged up the oil filter so that it is almost ineffective as an oil cleaner. This apparatus, therefore, should be inspected and cleaned out until oil flows through it freely. If it is clogged with dirt, especially after the car has run 10,000 miles or so, the old cartridge should be replaced. This will assure clean lubrication in the engine.

Inspection of the filter should be made when the motor is warm, for it is then that one may know exactly the condition under which oil is being fed into the engine. It is thinner and can be drained through more easily.

At the same time the viscosity of the oil can be tested properly and if this is too thin, or there is no film between the fingers, it should be renewed.

The practice of cleaning out the crankcase with kerosene is inadvisable because all of it can't be drained out after using and what remains cuts the fresh oil that is put in. Instead of kerosene, thin oil may be used to clean the crankcase. This, at least, won't reduce the efficiency of the regular lubricant.

* * *

For warm weather driving, the carburetor will have to be adjusted to permit a much leaner mixture of gas and air to go through to the motor. This adjustment adds a greater proportion of air to fuel than has been required in winter.

Another warm weather adjustment is that of the generator. During winter, it had to put a heavy charge into the battery in order to make up for the greater use of lights and starting motor. The longer days and easier starting cause a much smaller drain on the battery. Therefore, this electric plant requires a lower charge from the generator.

If the charge isn't reduced to about 10 or 12 amperes, the battery may become overcharged and easily ruined.

The adjustment of generator and carburetor should best be left to a service man who knows exactly how to make it. There are many types of carburetors in use, and each has its own peculiarities of adjustment. If not done properly, it may cause more harm than good. Although the generator is not so complicated, it is too delicate an instrument for any novice to handle, if even for adjustment of the charging rate. It takes any service man a minute or two, and the driver may feel satisfied it has been done properly.

* * *

While the carburetor is adjusted, it might be cleaned of any sediment that might have collected at the bottom of the bowl from the fuel passing through it. This can be done easily by opening the screw or drain plug at the bottom and leaving out just enough gasoline to be certain of having cleaned out the bowl.

The same may be done with the fuel in the gas tank. Opening of the plug at the bottom of the tank will release the sediment and water that has collected there and so leave the tank free of impurities for the summer.

The fuel strainer should also be cleaned out so as to be sure of a full and clean flow of gas to the carburetor.

Has Tiny Car

Six - year - old Heir Is Autoist

BELGRADE, April 6. (AP) — Crown Prince Peter of Jugoslavia who has received a miniature automobile as a present for his sixth birthday is learning to drive his car, under the close supervision of his royal mother, Queen Marie.

Prince Peter sits behind the wheel of the car and rides full speed through the palace grounds, King Alexander looking on, sometimes with anxiety as the boy and his mother whirl around sharp corners.

Every morning the Crown Prince, in a uniform of a private in the Jugoslav army, goes through regular army drill, learns how to carry a minature gun, how to salute and march.

Plymouth Used By Grid Coach

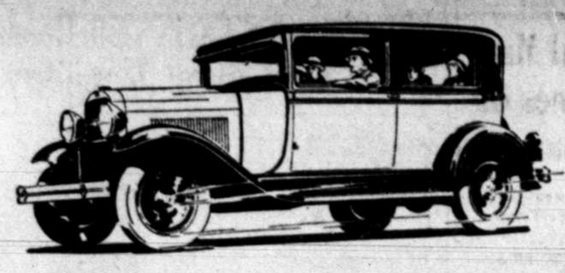

Rugged power, unusual strength, and stamina are essentials in both football players and good automobiles. When Coach Ted Weiman of the University of Michigan wishes to develop these qualities in his players, he turns to the automobile for the features he desires.

With the opening of the spring football season at the University of Michigan, Coach Weiman devised a new and unique method of eliminating the winter kinks from his players. The players were met at the field with a Plymouth coupe driven by the Coach and attached to the front bumper of which was a 12-foot beam. This device makes an ideal bucking machine and serves admirably in training the athletes in the fine points of line bucking.

Coach Weiman sits in the driver's seat and directs the players who put their shoulders to the beam and buck the car with all their power. The car rolls backward a few feet until Coach Weiman applies the brakes. The car comes to a sudden stop. When the players can carry the car backward with all four of the wheels sliding, they are learning something of what it means to meet a tough foe on the gridiron.

BELGRADE (AP) — The bones of 100,000 soldiers of Serbia, France, England and Greece will be placed in a massive tomb which the Jugoslav government has erected at Kamtchatklan. On this blood drenched hilltop the allies defeated the Bulgarians 10 years ago.

WARSAW (AP)—Twelve thousand Polish wives are waiting here for visas to join their husbands in the United States. The quota for Poland is only 6,000 yearly.

New Mineral May Keep Engines On Go Without Oil

Sedimentary Mineral Which Is Millions Of Years In Age, May Revolutionize Automotive Problems

By NEA Service

LOS ANGELES, April 6.—An engine that will run at high speed indefinitely, with little or no lubrication, is seen in the near future by Jean D'You, metal expert, who has been experimenting with aelium, a newly discovered sedimentary mineral thought to be 25,000,000 years old.

The properties of this metal, as found by D'You, are that it will hold lead in suspension in copper or cast iron; will change the structure of all metals; will fuse lead and copper and any metal; will increase the body lubricant to all metals fused with it.

Experiments show that engines having bearings made from 45 per cent lead and 55 per cent copper, fused wi htaelium, require no oil or lubrication to keep theb from burning out.

"Aelium has a hydrocarbon base and radioactive elements. It gives to the lower melting metals the much-desired carbon body and allows the higher melting metals to absorb more of the carbon elements.

"An automobile engine is possible today to permorm with 10 per cent of the ordinary lubrication, and the owner need not fear burning out cylinders or bearings. A crank case could be broken and yet a thousand miles be made without oil and without damage."

Government Opens New Helium Plant

AMARILLO, April 6. (AP) — The government's new $1,500,000 helium plant opened here this spring is the last word in gas equipment.

A pipe line 11 miles long carries from Amarillo fields the natural gas from which the helium is extracted by solidifying all other gases except the helium. Another pipe line five miles long stretches from the government plant to the U. S. Zinc smelter company.

A mooring mast for dirigibles may be erected near the 26-acre helium plant so that ships can fuel here. The gas is shipped in specially designed government cars.

The plant replaces the Fort Worth helium works, which have been closed. The new location is based on the large supply of helium in the Amarillo fields.

Model Courts Train Future Lawyers

Tech Law Students Learn By Practice, Court Procedure They Must Follow After Leaving College

Dress collars, popularly known as "Joe Bailey" collars, and black string ties are in vogue at Tech on the second and fourth Wednesdays of every month, when the college's most picturesque organization, the Pre-Law club meets. Bailiff's, Judge, sheriff, prosecuting attorney and counsellors for the defense are seen in full regalia of their offices when meetings open.

Frequently, after finishing its business, the club constitutes itself a court and goes in session to consider cases which are on its docket. The court thus formed, known as the "Texas Tech district court," is probably the only one of its kind in the world. Both civil petitions and criminal indictments are taken up and considered by it, and regular court procedure is followed and adhered to as closely as possible.

At the opening of a case, the sheriff, who is attired in a typical sheriff's costume, consisting of a star, holster, gunbelt, and revolver, stands up and cries out at the top of his voice, "Hear ye, hear ye!" Then "his honor" calls the court to order and the trial proceeds. So close is the conformity to real life that the sheriff is now investigating a bribery case arising out of a recent trial. Both prosecuting attorneys shouted, "We accept" in unison, as soon as they heard the name of one of the veniremen.

Ranking above this court, however, there is the Supreme Court of the Pre-Law club, a collegiate court of three justices. Matters of high import, such as impeachment of officers and appeals from the lower court are taken up in the Supreme Court, from whose decisions there is no appeal.

Far from being taken lightly, these trials are conducted in serlousness and even solemnity, having the purpose in view of familiarizing future lawyers with court methods. Already a historic institution, deeply engraved in the traditions of Tech, the PreLaw Club succeeds in attracting the attention of the entire college with its trials. At the most recent trial a crowd of sufficient size to nearly fill a large lecture room attended. The great majority of those who attended were not members of the club, but came as spectators.

Gives Guarantee With Used Cars

Progressive Step Taken As Oakland Agrees To Stand Behind Reconditioned Automobiles

PONTIAC, Mich., April 6. — Another progressive step recently taken by a prominent automobile manufacturer toward better business methods in the merchandising of used cars, came to light here today when the Oakland Motor Car company announced adoption of a national policy under which all Oakland-Pontiac dealers will be asked to furnish a written guarantee with all reconditioned used cars.

Under terms of the guaranty, parts are furnished free to replace any found defective during the first 750 miles of driving, provided the mileage is run up within 30 days after the sale. The car also may be returned within 48 hours after the purchase if it proves unsatisfactory and the full purchase price applied to any other car, new or used, of equal or greater value in the dealer's stocks.

Written Guarantee Issued.

A written guaranty printed on lithographed bond paper is issued by the dealer to the purchaser at the time of the sale, while all cars carrying the guaranty also have a windshield sticker on which is printed, "Reconditioned GUARANTEED Good Will Used Car."

The object of the new plan, according to M. L. Buck, manager of the used car department, is to provide the purchaser with concrete evidence of the good faith of the dealer who makes the sale.

ON AUTO ROW,

Thirty-five new automobiles have been sold and delivered by Lubbock dealers since the automobile show closed a little more than a week ago, a close checkup among the fourteen local dealers disclosed yesterday. This startling figure includes practically every agency that was represented in the show.

While the majority of the sales included in the above figure were direct results of the show, local dealers are more impressed with the promising list of prospects derived from visitors during the two-day affair. The good will which has undoubtedly been created by the car demonstration and the personal touch with the prospective automobile buyers of this section is valued for more than the immediate sales.

The coming of spring weather and the accompanying malady of "spring fever" has had its effect upon Auto Row. Roadsters and the various sport models are beginning to move and dealers here have placed their orders in accordance with the growing demand of the younger set for the open cars. A number of dealers unloaded shipments last week with wire wheel jobs predominating. One of the most popular designs of this sort which were on display at the recent auto show was the DeSoto roadster, the yellow Espanol.

The Cap Rock Motor Company, local De Soto branch house at Plainview under the caption—Swan Motor Company. The Plainview house reports the sale of two new cars during the past week. A used car lot has been established by the local DeSoto concern. The new location is on Avenue H in the 900 block. A small structure will be erected on the lot within a few days for the headquarters of the used car manager.

The Joe Hilton company of Plainview, recently established in the Hale County capital is at present housed in temporary headquarters but will hold its formal opening on about May 1 when the new building is completed, according to the local Chrysler distributor. L. P. Chinn, formerly of the Lubbock sales force, has been named manager of the Plainview business establishment.

The auto show was a 'howling' success from the standpoint of putting over of the new automobile designs, but failed to clear up the used car problem here, a number of local dealers are moaning. Some favor staging a used car show on one of the prominent used car lots. Handlers of the more expensive automobiles are the ones who have been hit the hardest. An alleviation of the used car problem would result in an immediate pick-up in new car sales.

The Gough Motor company reports the sale of a new Studebaker President Eight to Jim Hundley, prominent business man of Post City. Mr. Hundley drove his new seven-passenger machine from the local show rooms Thursday morning.

Fred Joyce, local plumbing contractor, is the owner of a new Graham Paige Sedan purchased from A. W. Moore, local dealer.

Travis Bailey, who recently established the Packard and White Truck agency in Lubbock, has returned to his home in Roswell, N. M. Mr. Bailey plans to make weekly visits here to keep in touch with the Lubbock branch.

City's Growth Is Reflected In The Telephone Office

Increase In Both City And Long Distance Calls And Additions To Subscriber Lists Are Noted

THE GROWTH of Lubbock, which has drawn so much national attention to the city and the territory throughout the past six years, is reflected in the growth of the telephone business here, Thomas A. White, district manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone company, with headquarters here, announced yesterday.

While no trans-Atlantic calls have ever been placed from Lubbock as yet, the long distance business is rapidly advancing and of the 61 switchboard operators employed 34 of them work on the long distance board, Mr. White pointed out. The exchange handles calls every day to such points as New York, Chicago, San Francisco and other far away cities. Several local firms have business connections on the west coast which they frequently communicate by telephone.

Aid to Business

"We have local dry goods stores and ladies' furnishing shops that order their needs from New York and other markets by long distance telephone. Among other uses to which the service contributes much is the personal communication with loved ones and friends. We have one man in Lubbock who uses station-to-station calls several times per month, to his sister in New York. This man is Harry Meyers, manager of Jarrett's Fashion Shop, Mr. White stated.

It was brought out that in last November the local exchange handled as many as 1,150 long distance calls per day. The number of calls were greatly increased over the average, because of the oil activities together with the season for cotton buying and marketing in New Orleans, Houston and Galveston, which points brokers would call to close sales after buying from the neighboring towns over the South Plains. The number of long distance calls at this season will average around 850 per day here.

Many New Phones

Lubbock has added 150 new telephones from January 1 to March 1, and as compared with other Texas centers in its class, this is considered as an outstanding figure. It was further brought out that to improve the foreign service and all service to eastern points underground cable is being put into service during this year from near Sweetwater and connects with the present subways feeding to all eastern points.

Forty-five million dollars is to be expended on an underground cable 2,500 miles in length, connecting the states of Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Texas in a veritable "subway" for the voice. Underground, beneath, fields and valleys, across mountains and rivers, will go these long distance telephone systems in a gigantic network, built to serve the southwest.

"In connection with the foreign overseas service, we have discovered a substance known as 'peramalloy' which is used for the construction of cables, and when the system is completed Texas will have cable connection with the foreign countries of France, England, Germany and others," Mr. White said.

And most of us feel like making war on our neighbors after their chickens have dug up our garden, or flower bed, for the third time in as many days.

Desk Sergeant J. T. Inmon, says he's getting tired of sending out a cop to give warning every time there is a complaint filed, and there are several every day.

"It doesn't do any good, so I am just going to issue a warrant for the arrest of the offender, and then send out the cop. For the benefit of those who don't know, there is a city ordinance to prohibit the running at large of domestic fowls within the corporate limits of the city of Lubbock. The owners of such fowls may be punished by a fine of not less than $1 or more than $25. Last year the fines were about $5, but this year we are going to make them heavier."

It's An Old Story

Every year the police set out to make people keep their chickens up, but rarely "have any luck." This year they say they intend to make people keep their chickens up if they have to "throw 'em in the hoosegow."

Chief of Police John Lemond said the police were not yet forcing people to pay fines, but it looked like they would have to do something.

"We tell them and they won't do it, so we are going to do plenty if they don't get those chickens up and keep them up."

Chickens are like some children, everywhere but at home. Just as long as the chickens don't bother the owner he doesn't care where they are. But just let some neighbor's chickens get in his garden, and then watch the fireworks.

Hey, Boy! Page Mr. Horatio Alger

Otta 'Red' Wilcox, Pride Of Local Telegraph Office, Has Record Of Which Story Books Could Be Proud

On April 1, a modest, sandy-haired youth of 18 summers stepped into the office of night manager of thhe local Western Union telegraph office.

Slighty more than three years ago, this youngster was threading his way through traffic on a "bike" carrying messages hither and thither like an automaton in the everyday business of the city. But Otto Wilcox wasn't content with just being an ordinary messenger boy. He wanted to follow out a motto which is in a permanent place in every Western Union office "Listen, fellows, do you want a career or just a job"

He Worked Hard

"Red" as he is known by his fellow-employes and acquaintances over the city, evidently saw a chance for advancement and determined to make the most of it. His work and the attitude he took became noticeable around the office.

After less than two years as a messenger, Ira Jenkins, manager, promoted him to clerk. Then he began his study of telegraphy which he has just about mastered now. 'Schooling' hasn't been included much in "Red's" learning for he was forced to earn his own livelihood at the age of fourteen due to estrangement of his parents. He has attended school at odd times during his employment with the company and is to take a three-month's course this summer. The school of experience has evidently given him valuable training, however.

Night manager of a telegraph office requires considerable responsibility for a lad of 18 but "Red" appears ably capable of filling the position. Night manager isn't the highest position in the office, there's more steps to climb and some day he might have the managership of an office all his own. Consistent work and study will bring one, he seems determined.

Mr. Alger would probably take "Red's" case and make a "thriller" for the high school lad to read by strewing a few imaginary obstacles and roses in his path. The above, however, is only the bare facts of the youngster's story. His life's story desires and ambitions might be somewhat different.

These are not known, for "Red" was not approached on the subject, in fact, he doesn't know this story is being written.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has been slow to inaugurate a government air mail service. The department of communications now promises that mail planes will be put in operation next April between Tokyo and Kyoto.

Wright's Lower Cost and Sales System

In planning this system, our president, Mr. Spencer H. Wright, instructed his employes to place all prices of merchandise down to a SPOT CASH PRICE in line with our famous slogan, "Just One Price—One Just Price." This is exactly what was done. There is only ONE price at all of the WRIGHT STORES thus assuring you the satisfaction of knowing you have not paid but the one and only one price for that particular article. We offer our prices in comparison to those of any other company, mail order house or manufacturing house.

CREDIT TERMS!

In planning this system, we knew we had to be just as far to our friends that wished terms on their purchases as to the ones paying cash: therefore we decided on the just one price. We have arrangements whereby you may have all the terms you may need on your contract. We even allow two, three, four and five years for final payments with this system, which assures you there will be no burden attached to your purchasing furniture under this system. We install new accounts under this system from one to twenty months as a basis to determine payments. As you increase your purchases the time limit increases as well.
