Although, technically, the strike is still going on, some of the National Football League veterans showed up in their respective training camps in time for the first televised games in their league. Many of them probably would have been better off if they stayed away because it was obvious to television viewers as it must have been even more so to fans in the stands, that they were not in shape to play well. In fact, some of the rookies have succeeded in making a bigger splash in the early-season exhibition games than the veterans.

Undoubtedly the temporary truce which sent most of the striking veterans into the training camps last week was influenced by the fact that the networks were beginning to televise some of the games. Also, it was apparent that some of the veterans were becoming apprehensive because the rookies were getting a head start on conditioning.

The fare presented so far tends to indicate that teams dominated by rookies probably can play a game as interesting to the fans as one played by veterans who are not in shape and whose timing has not been sharpened by regular drills.

Anyway, the hour grows late and both players and team owners are going to have to get busy and come to some agreement if they hope to present a game the fans will "buy."

One thing that fans have difficulty understanding about the strike is how the players can suddenly become so unhappy about their situation when most of them are faring far better than a vast majority of the fans who pay to see them play. Indeed there have been professional football players for years who held PhD degrees, were qualified engineers and even medical doctors and dentists who seemed to prefer to play professional football as long as they could rather than get going in other professions which beckoned. And John Q Fan knows they were not passing up these other professions for peanuts.

★ ★ ★

The Monday night NFL season's television debut also served notice that fans can count on the entertainment this year being confined strictly to the playing field. Oh, how they miss Dandy Don Meredith!

Fred Williamson, Meredith's replacement in the Monday night trio, just didn't come through on his premiere. Not only is he definitely not another Dandy Don, he's not a Frank Clarke or an O. J. Simpson, either.

Except for a few Howard Cosell barbs, which sounded like they had been warmed over several times, there was very little to hear, except Frank Gifford's familiar monotone. Fortunately, the Miami Dolphins and Minnesota Vikings were trying to play a little football and were succeeding here and there.

Oh, well. They say it's supposed to be a spectator sport anyway. —WACIL McNAIR.

IN 'ALPHABET' BLAST MURDERS

Bomber Suspect Is Held

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Yugoslavian immigrant with a record of sex offenses has been arrested for investigation of murder, and police say he is the "alphabet bomber" whose deadly charges have killed three persons.

Police and the FBI said Muharem Kurbegovic, 31, was taken into custody on Tuesday night after he planted a tape recording in a trash can in a rest room at a Hollywood take-out restaurant.

They said Kurbegovic was the man who identified himself in telephone calls and other tape recordings as "Isaac Rasim," military leader of an organization he called Aliens of America.

He was called the alphabet bomber after threatening to spell out the group's name "in blood" unless immigration and sex laws were repealed.

William A. Sullivan, assistant director of the FBI in charge of the Los Angeles office, said Kurbegovic was apparently acting alone and "at this time it would be my opinion that there is no such group as the Aliens of America."

Police said Kurbegovic, who had been employed until this week at a blueprint company in Los Angeles, was unarmed and offered no resistance when he was arrested.

Kurbegovic, who has light, curly, short hair, was marched past newsmen at police headquarters and booked in connection with an Aug. 6 blast at Los Angeles International Airport that killed three persons and injured 35.

Last Friday night, in response to a warning from the man who called himself Isaac Rasim, police found a 25-pound bomb planted in a locker in a downtown bus station. The device was disarmed.

After Kurbegovic's arrest, police aided by bomb-sniffing dogs searched his Hollywood apartment and hauled away what they described as a large cache of chemicals and explosives.

They said the haul included numerous bottles of clear liquids, several cans of gunpowder, a large spool of electrical wire, a cassette tape recorder, a gas mask and a number of books on how to make bombs. Police would not say what the clear liquid was, but they said all of the material found could be used in making a large quantity of powerful explosives.

Sullivan said it was not known where the explosives were obtained.

A police spokesman said plainclothes officers and FBI agents had been following Kurbegovic for more than 18 hours before his arrest at the restaurant, Carl's Jr.

Witnesses at the restaurant described him as "mild looking." Tim Rice, 26, night manager at Carl's Jr., said the man ran in through a side door, followed by armed plain-clothesmen. He said the man was brought out of the restaurant handcuffed after what appeared to be a brief struggle.

Shooting Ends Jail Standoff

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — The standoff by five inmates seeking freedom collapsed in bursts of gunfire today in the jail atop the Potter County Courthouse with possibly one dead and three others wounded.

Authorities said a man taken from the courthouse on a stretcher fully covered was dead. He was not identified.

Three others, believed prisoners, were taken earlier from the courthouse to ambulance.

Stan Smither, 32, a jail guard and the lone hostage, was the first person out of the courthouse. He apparently was uninjured.

The sheriff's office did not reveal any details immediately other than to say, "It's over."

One of those taken on a stretcher was a woman, believed to be Barbara Thiel, one of the inmates who was reported helping the four men inmates, although her mother said she was an unwilling participant.

The shooting followed several hours of face-to-face confrontation on the seventh floor between the inmates and Sheriff T. L. Baker and one of his captains, Don Smith.

Until this morning when the officers went to the jail, negotiations had been carried on by intercom between the jail inmates and officers on the ground floor.

The four inmates using butcher knives stolen from the kitchen, took over the seventh and eighth floors near midnight Monday.

They took two jail guards as hostages, but released one who had suffered a severe hip injury.

Tribute Paid To Davies

WASHINGTON (AP) — In solemn and moving ceremonies led by President Ford, Ambassador Rodger P. Davies came home today from war-torn Cyprus where he was slain Monday while working for peace.

"He loved and worked for peace and he lost his life in search for peace for America and for all the world," Ford said in eulogizing the career diplomat.

The President and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met the ambassador's two children, Ann Dana, 20, and John, 15, at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington when they stepped from the blue, white and silver jetliner.

The plane, from the presidential fleet, also carried Davies' body home from Cyprus, where he was killed Monday as snipers and a mob attacked the U.S. Embassy in Nicosia.

The President and Secretary Kissinger stood beside the children as an Air Force band played the National Anthem and a battery of howitzers a hundred yards away boomed out a 19-gun salute.

"A professional Foreign Service officer has come home, returning not to joy but to sadness, not to parades but to solemn ceremonies," Kissinger said.

His deep voice at times thickening with emotion, the secretary told the children: "Your father leaves behind a legacy of which any man should be proud."

ON NELSON ROCKEFELLER

Congressional Approval Assured

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield promised quick action today on Nelson A. Rockefeller's nomination to be vice president.

Mansfield told reporters every effort would be made "to get it done before we go out in October."

With overwhelming praise except from some longstanding Republican foes, Rockefeller's confirmation by Congress is virtually assured, but there is some question about how long it will take.

Congress plans to meet only about six more weeks between now and November. Congress is scheduled to begin a Labor Day recess Thursday and is tentatively scheduled to recess again in October for re-election campaigning.

Chairman of both House and Senate confirmation committees declined Tuesday to set any target date and House Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., did not rule out confirmation after the November elections.

"I'm not going to set any timetable except whatever timetable is necessary for thorough and responsible consideration," Rodino said.

Rodino and Senate Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., set confirmation machinery, including requests for a full FBI investigation, in motion immediately after President Ford named Rockefeller his nominee.

Both chairmen said a major question is how long it will take to investigate Rockefeller's multimillion dollar financial holdings to see whether there are any conflicts of interest.

Rockefeller flew into Washington in his own plane Tuesday morning to accept the nomination, held his first news conference, paid courtesy calls on some congressmen and then flew out to continue a vacation in Maine.

Before he left he told newsmen he believes President Ford "has every intention" of seeking election in 1976 to a full term.

"That was my impression, that's what I urged, that's my assumption," Rockefeller said.

GM To Rollback Planned Hikes

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors announced today that in respone to a request by President Ford it will partially roll back a planned price increase for 1975 cars.

GM said it would reduce the scheduled increase by an average $54 from the previously announced figure.

The auto maker's action had been predicted by the Detroit Free Press in a dispatch from its Washington bureau.

The newspaper said the President had indicated the move was coming when he conferred at the White House with leaders from the House and Senate.

GM chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg said the nation's largest industrial firm was implementing the rollback in response to "President Ford's appeal to all segments of the American public to help fight inflation."

GM, the auto industry's acknowledged pricing leader, had announced that prices of its 1975 vehicles would be going up by nearly 10 per cent, or an average $500 per vehicle. The figure included $480 in the base price plus $15 to $20 for shipping costs. With the rollback, the increase would be just short of 9 per cent, or slightly more than $440 on the average.

In addition, 1975 prices will include an average $130 increase for antipollution equipment, primarily for the catalytic converter, Gerstenberg said. He added the price for the emissions devices includes no profit markup.

Shortly after taking office, the President criticized GM for the increase and said he hoped other auto makers would not follow suit.

Chrysler and American Motors have been silent. Ford Motor Co. said it would boost prices by about 8 per cent, then said Tuesday that figure could climb.

However, GM is regarded as the industry price trend-setter, and Ford might limit its increase to the figure chosen by GM.

Robertson Resigns Position At WTC

Gene Robertons, Dean of Occupational-Technical Education at Western Texas College, has submitted his resignation, Dr. Robert Clinton, WTC president, said.

Robertson will become chairman of the mathematics department at the South Campus of San Jacinto College in Pasadena, Tex., where he served as director of Technical-Vocational Education before joining the staff of WTC as one of the original administrators in January of 1970.

Rex Hopkins, director of Continuing Education and Evening School at WTC, has been named acting head of the WTC Occupational-Technical Education division until a new dean can be selected.

"Western Texas College has been fortunate to have had the benefit of Robertson's experience and enthusiasm in setting up an outstanding occupational-technical program," Dr. Clinton said. "About 44 per cent of our students were enrolled in these programs last year, and Robertson has done an excellent job in planning and coordinating the program. We wish him well in his new position."

Robertson holds the bachelor of science and master of education degrees from West Texas State University and taught mathematics and science in several secondary schools before becoming a mathematics instructor at San Jacinto College. San Jacinto is one of the largest community colleges in Texas with an enrollment of about 8,000 students.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson and their four children will be moving to Pasadena shortly.

"Deacon" Jones Slain

HOUSTON (AP) — Three shot gun blasts early Tuesday ended the life of a man who once said he could never live down his violent past.

William Daniel "Deacon" Jones, a former outlaw member of the Bonnie and Clyde gang, was shot to death as he stood outside the door of the home occupied by the man police say killed him.

Officers said Jones, 58, and a girl friend, Lydia Johnson, 28, approached an acquaintance in northeast Houston early Tuesday and asked the man to put the girl up for the night.

The man refused, and fired his shotgun three times at Jones when Jones advanced toward him, the man told officers.

Authorities charged George A. Jones, 33, unrelated to the dead man, with murder. His bond was set at $20,000.

From December, 1932 until September, 1933 Jones drove for the Bonnie Parker-Clyde Barrow gang. He served six years of a 15-year sentence for his part in the 1934 slaying of a Fort Worth deputy sheriff.

"I guess now the only ones left from that crime era are me and Floyd Hamilton," said J.C. Sullivan, a protege of Jones who drove for Bonnie and Clyde, John Dillinger, and Pretty Boy Floyd.

Sullivan, 66, has been on the right side of the law since his Christian conversion in 1939. In 1968, he sold a successful chemical business and now heads Nu-Way Foundation, which provides vocational and job placement help to parolees and ex-convicts.

Sullivan said in Fort Worth that he had met Jones when Jones was, with Bonnie and Clyde, but he had had no contact with him for many years.

"I guess he never really straightened up," Sullivan said Tuesday.

Sullivan added, "Jones was the boy in the movie that Clyde picked up at the [illegible] station, but of course that didn't [illegible] his name. Jones didn't [illegible] up to [illegible] Hamilton. That was Henry Methvin."

Cost Of Living Higher In July

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose eight-tenths of a per cent in July despite an easing in the increase in food prices, the government said today.

The July report marked only the second time this year the monthly increase in the government's Consumer Price Index has been less than 1 per cent.

The July increase would amount to an annual rate of inflation of 9.6 per cent, still ahead of last year's 8.8 per cent inflation rate.

Prices as of July 31 were 11.8 per cent higher than in July 1973, the government said. That is the biggest 12-month jumped since the year ending September 1947, when the increase was 12.6 per cent.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said, however, workers managed to gain ground last month in their race with inflation.

Spendable earnings, after taking account for inflation, moved up by two-tenths of 1 per cent.

But since it was only the second monthly increase this year, real spendable earnings were 5.3 per cent less than a year earlier.

The major factors pushing up prices in July, the department said, were higher interests costs for home buyers and higher prices on cars, medical care and restaurant meals.

The increase in prices for regular gasoline showed from six-tenths of a penny in June to a two-tenths of a cent jump in July. The latest national average price worked out to 55.8 cents a gallon.

Food prices actually rose by one-tenth of one per cent. But because they usually rise much more in July, the Labor Department adjusted the change for seasonal variation. The result was a four-tenths of one per cent drop as far as the government's index is concerned.

Grocery store prices increased on poultry, pork, sugar and sweets and cereal and bakery products.

However, the food price sluggishness in July did not reflect healthy increases already working their way up to the grocery store level.

The government had reported earlier this month a whopping 6.4 per cent increase in prices for food and farm products at the wholesale level. This rise is expected to work its way to the consumer level over the next few months.

Turkey Ready To Negotiate

By The Associated Press

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said today Turkey is ready to negotiate "reasonable" changes in the demarcation line carved out by Turkish forces on Cyprus, and that he is "more optimistic than before that Cyprus negotiations can start again."

He said he and British Ambassador Sir Horace Philips met for 45 minutes in Ankara and discussed possibilities for restarting the talks and that Britain is contacting all the parties involved.

Ecevit told newsmen he is willing to meet with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis "anywhere, anytime."

Ecevit said Turkey has made an open call to all parties —Greek Cypriots, Greece and Britain—for immediate negotiations on a Cyprus settlement.

"Until the final status is settled chaos will reign on the island," he said. "The Greek Cypriots will suffer from this at least as much, in fact more than the Turks."

Ecevit said there is an absolute need for separate areas for the Greek and Turkish Cypriots because of ethnic, religious and cultural differences.

"There is no concept of a Cyprus nation on either side. No one can speak of a Cypriot nation. If they live separately but side by side they will find the possibility of an agreement," he said.

The Turkish Cypriot community on Cyprus numbers 120,000. The Greek Cypriots number 520,000.

MEAT DEMONSTRATION—Dr. Frank Orts (left), meats specialist, Texas Agriculture Extension Service, College Station, and Dr. Gilbert Hollis, swine specialist, Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Lubbock, are measuring the rib-eye area of a swine carcass. The animals were evaluated on foot Tuesday morning. The measurements of carcass length, back fat, rib-eye area and estimated per cent lean cuts were taken Wednesday morning at the Town and Country Meat Center. A two-day swine evaluation meeting attended by area swine producers was to be concluded today.

VICTORY FOR FORD

House Trims Transit Bill

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a victory for President Ford, the House has voted to cut a $20 billion mass transit bill to the $11 billion he requested.

The House passed the bill Tuesday 324 to 92, after the funding authorization was reduced by a 257-155 vote.

The bill would authorize the first federal operating subsidies to hard-pinched mass transit systems, as well as money for buying new equipment.

Similar bills are pending in the Senate.

Ford consistently had opposed operating subsidies as a congressman but told mayors during his first days in office last week that he would take a broader view as President.

However, he warned the House through his congressional supporters that he wanted the bill cut nearly in half to help him reduce the federal budget and thereby fight inflation.

When Democrats tried to keep funding at the $15.8 billion level, Republicans led by Rep. William H. Harsha, R-Ohio, offered the lower figure and the House accepted it.

The House also deleted a section of the bill which the American Automobile Association said was a long-sought goal of the trucking industry: To permit heavier and longer trucks on the nation's highways.

The amendment to knock it off the bill, offered by Rep. Edward I. Koch, D-N.Y., passed 259 to 159.

Supporters of the original proposal argued it was to compensate for trucks being penalized by federally imposed speed limits of 55 miles per hour.

Mass transit funds would be allocated by four categories based on need.

The largest—$5.9 billion—would provide funds for cities with existing subway or fixed-rail systems or those under construction. Nine cities now are eligible: Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Atlanta, Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

The second category of between 240 and 270 cities with 50,000 population or more would be allocated $1.7 billion.

They also have the possibility of getting $2.9 billion more from a third pot to be distributed on a city-by-city basis at the discretion of the secretary of transportation.

The fourth category would be the first federal funds for mass transit systems in small towns and rural areas, with $500 million authorized.

Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., a sponsor of the $20 billion bill, said more money might be authorized in a House-Senate conference.

Even if not, "I believe it is a basic victory. The big thing is that for the first time the federal government has affirmed that both operating subsidies and capital investment funds will be provided for mass transit," she said.

Kirchhoff Says People See Problems

PLAINVIEW—"The people of West Texas are keenly aware of the various problems we face on the national, district, and state level," declared Mary Kirchhoff, candidate for State Senate, 30th District. "We have just completed a tour of the district with the Candidates' Caravan where we had the privilege of talking with our people, and listening to what they had to say.

"The theme of the Caravan was 'In the interest of the people.' We dealt with issues important to our district. As candidates, we need to know what our people want most. That way, we can project their ideas rather than our own when we get to Austin."

Pointing out that it has been sometime since an entourage of state candidates had covered the entire state, Mrs. Kirchhoff indicated that both large cities and small communities were included in the itinerary. An entire month was spent in making the tour, which began in Houston on July 18 and concluded August 16 in Austin.

Mrs. Kirchhoff will be participating in the Texas Positive Action Committee workshop August 24 in Dallas. Included among topics for committee discussion will be always to directly involve "grass roots" thinking in planning and decisions.

"As the campaign progresses, we realize even more the need to keep in close touch with the thinking of our people," she emphasized.

SAYS PRESIDENT FORD

No Compulsory Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has pledged not to seek wage-price controls, saying recent experience makes it clear that compulsory controls would be most undesirable.

He made the statement on Tuesday as Congress was completing action on his request for legislation to re-establish a wage and price monitoring agency. The new agency would depend on investigation and disclosure of increases that threaten to feed inflation. It would have no authority to impose controls.

"I will do my best to see that the new price and wage monitoring agency works effectively to combat inflation," Ford said.

"There will be no mandatory wage and price controls."

The President added that he wanted to get this message to labor and business leaders so they can act accordingly.

Ford also moved to set up a steering committee to prepare for an economic summit conference scheduled for late September or early October.

He has promised to preside at the economic summit, which also would include representatives from Congress, management, labor and consumer groups.

The bill setting up a Council on Wage and Price Stability, in effect a revival of the old Cost of Living Council, was the first specific legislation Ford asked for.

The House took the final action approving it on Tuesday, 369-27. The Senate already passed the bill.

While many congressmen, especially Democrats, have publicly expressed skepticism about the efficacy of an agency without mandatory control powers, the overwhelming inclination was to give the new President's proposal a chance.

The council is to have eight full and four advisory members, all named by the President, who also designates the chairman.

It is to analyze industrial capacity, demand and supply, to seek better data on which wages and prices are based, to obtain reports on wages, costs, prices and related matters, and to review government programs to see how they may be contributing to inflation.

The council is to encourage productivity improvements and encourage wage and price restraint. It is authorized to conduct public hearings.

Ford Will Ink Education Bill

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford plans to sign today a $25 billion education bill extending Great Society school aid programs and imposing new busing curbs.

Ford scheduled a trip across town for a 2 p.m. EDT public ceremony at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In what was reviewed as a peace-making gesture, major education organizations were invited to witness the bill signing. Many had battled with former President Richard M. Nixon over his not infrequent vetoes of education money bills.

Ford, who has labeled inflation "public enemy No. 1," already has warned Congress against spending at levels authorized in the new bill through 1978.

But he told a joint session of Congress on Aug. 12 that his reservations about the measure "fade in comparison to the urgent needs of America for quality education."

In implementing its provisions, however, Ford said he will "oppose excessive funding during this inflationary crisis." The bill authorizes $7.2 billion next year alone.

A compromise between the House and Senate versions prohibits federal courts from ordering the busing of a child beyond the closest or next-closest school to achieve desegregation, unless necessary to protect the constitutional rights of minority children.

A House provision requiring courts to reopen desegregation cases which called for longer bus rides was dropped.

Fashioned during two years of tough wrangling in Congress, the bill builds upon the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act which pumped billions of federal dollars into schools across the country to help poor and black kids catch up in the classroom.

In a basic departure, the new bill revises the formula for distributing funds for the educationally disadvantaged, giving proportionately more to rural and suburban areas at the expense of big cities.

The bill also protects the privacy of childrens' school records from inspection by credit bureaus, prospective employers and police without a subpoena, but gives parents and pupils access to the records and a chance to correct errors.

The toughest negotiations involved selection of a new formula to distribute $1.9 billion a year for the compensatory education of six million children in 14,000 school districts.

Congress finally adopted a poverty standard of $4,250 a year based upon 1970 census data, and threw out the old formula which made any child eligible if the family earned less than $2,000 a year or was on welfare.

Dear Abby

Should she conveniently "forget" the Pill?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: John and I have been married for 14 months. He had a 3-year-old son by a previous marriage. We had no trouble getting custody of the boy because his mother didn't want him. (She hasn't come to see him once.)

I am 29 and John is 35, and I want to have a child of our own. John's son, whom I honestly couldn't love more if I had given birth to him, would dearly love a little brother or sister, and I desperately want one, but John says no. His excuses are lame. ("The world is in such a sorry state, we shouldn't increase the population now. We have one healthy, normal child now, why press our luck?")

I am on the pill, and could conveniently "forget" to take it a few mornings, but I hate to be dishonest. If I were to get pregnant, he couldn't force me to have an abortion, and I'm sure that after the child was born he would grow to love it like he loves his son.

Please help me sort out my feelings, Abby.

TORN IN CHICAGO

DEAR TORN: About your scheme to "conveniently forget" the pill: Forget it. (The scheme, not the pill.) Ideally, you and John should get some counseling together. Most clergymen are well equipped; also Chicago has many expert marriage counselors. If John refuses to go, you can't force him, but do go alone. You need some sound, objective counseling to help you resolve this knotty problem

DEAR ABBY: A writer was unhappy about her flat chest and asked you whether breast implants were considered deceitful and therefore sinful in the eyes of the Lord.

You suggested that she ask her clergyman for a ruling.

I disagree. Every clergyman cannot keep abreast of new developments in plastic surgery; some clergymen are big busts as advisers on these points.

The writer should look behind her breast—where her heart is—for the answer. Whom is she trying to deceive or please?

"Capping" one's teeth for cosmetic reasons has been an accepted practice for years. Are teeth more important to beauty than breasts?

BEVERLY HILLS M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Only to those who have trouble keeping their mouths shut.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHIRLEY: I agree. Something is wrong. Maybe he gave at the office.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

VFW Opposes Amnesty

CHICAGO (AP) — The Veterans of Foreign Wars national convention has voted unanimously to oppose amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters.

About 4,000 delegates approved without dissent on Tuesday a resolution opposing amnesty.

The vote came one day after President Ford chose the VFW convention to announce a review of policy toward the estimated 50,000 Americans living abroad because of draft resistance or desertion.

The VFW resolution urged that deserters and draft evaders be made to face the judicial process. It read in part:

"... We sustain total opposition to general and selective amnesty for draft dodgers and military deserters. And ... they should be required to stand trial for their crimes and shall pay such penalties as the laws prescribe."

The resolution declared the VFW will continue to pursue its no-amnesty doctrine without amendment.

Hairy Issue

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — The Court of Appeals here has ruled that a school headmaster can suspend a pupil with long hair.

The court dismissed an appeal by writer James Edward of Auckland whose son Philip refused to comply with school regulations on hair length.

Charles J. McCarthy, headmaster of Onehunga High School, told 100 pupils that hair should not be over the eyebrows or collar or below the bottom of ears.

Though some students required a second directive, only 14-year-old Philip refused to have his shoulder-length hair cut.

After several refusals, Philip was suspended, and his father took the matter to court.

Edward argued that hair length was outside the headmaster's powers. The court disagreed, ruling that a headmaster had the power of suspension and it was up to him to decide whether Philip had been disobedient and whether it was a bad example for other students.

Necessity Gives Birth To Language

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — "Widowese — a new language — born out of necessity."

So observes W. Scane Bowler, chairman and chief executive officer of a national financial services organization with headquarters here.

"Women who face entering the ranks of widowhood — too often with relatively little preparation or knowledge of financial matters — need a vocabulary all their own," Bowler says.

The pioneer Western executive suggests a starting lexicon of "widowese":

Family allowance: An allowance out of the estate provided for by statute and granted by the court to help tide over the surviving spouse and-or children during the period the estate is in process of settlement.

Joint return: A surviving spouse with a dependent may take advantage of federal joint income tax rates for two years.

Annuity: A contract that provides the widow with an income for a specified period of time or for life.

Letter of instruction: A personal letter spelling out exactly what to do in case of death. It alleviates confusion — even helps lessen the blow of sadness.

Tenancy in entirety: Property jointly owned by man and wife. At the death of one, all property passes to the surviving spouse. Tenancy in common is jointly owned property — it is partitioned so that the spouse's share may be willed to whomever he designates.

Estate tax: That which is levied by the federal government on an estate. The state levy is called an inheritance tax.

Marital deduction: A marital deduction automatically reduces the estate tax if everything is left outright. It can still be done with a trust — but make certain that the trust is set up by a professional.

Adjusted gross estate: The gross estate minus funeral costs, administration costs, and debts of the estate. Up to one-half of the adjusted gross estate may go to the surviving spouse tax-free — no matter how much is involved.

Taxable estate: What Uncle Sam looks at and taxes — if it amounts to enough. This is what is left after subtracting funeral costs, legal and executor's fees, whatever debts owned, the marital deduction, charitable bequests — plus a flat $60,000 exemption.

Testamentary trust: One that is part of the last will and testament. If a will does not exist, your spouse will have died intestate and will have surrendered the privilege of disposing of property in keeping with his own ideas.

The more "widowese" a wife is familiar with — the better.

"A husbandless future is grim enough without having financial problems as well," Bowler points out.

Air Force Hostess Welcomes Dignitaries

ANDREWS AFB, Md. (AP) — To a majority of people at Andrews Air Force Base, it is a little known room in the Air Terminal. But within the walls of the moderately yet stately furnished Distinguished Visitors Lounge, some of the most influential people in the world have gathered.

One day the DV Lounge may be used as a transient waiting room for a foreign head of state; the next day, it may be the scene of a press conference for a cabinet member.

"The DV Lounge is a place for full colonels and above to sit and relax with a cup of coffee or work at a desk while waiting for their flight," explained Lt. Col. Robert L. Thomas, Wing Protocol Officer. "It is also the location of special receptions or honor ceremonies, such as the arrival of a head of state."

Whatever the occasion — the arrival of a Code 1 such as Prime Minister Kirk of New Zealand or the routine passing through of a Code 7 (colonel) — TSgt. Wana Archer, assigned to the Protocol Office from the 2nd Composite Squadron, is usually on hand during the week to make them feel welcome. Whether it be serving coffee, coordinating messages or just talking to them, she makes their stay at Andrews a little easier.

"We have to be resourceful and everyone in our office usually gets in on the act," Thomas said. "You don't always know what to expect. One minute you may be greeting the leader of a country, the next carrying the luggage for one of his aides."

"Before Brezhnev (Leonid I., General Secretary of the Soviet Union) arrived last year, we planned and replanned the arrival ceremony. However, we still remained flexible. We've learned to expect the unexpected and everything went smoothly."

The job of hostess-receptionist isn't new to Sgt. Archer. She cross-trained from the administration career field to that of stewardess when she reenlisted for her second term. "I almost got out of the Air Force," she recalled. "My job as an admin clerk at Tinker (AFB, Okla.) wasn't too appealing because I wanted to travel and meet people. It was my supervisor who talked me into cross-training and staying in."

During an eight-year span, she accumulated 5000 flying hours and would have had more except that Air Force stewardesses were grounded because of the Vietnam War. "The only alternative for me to meet people after that was to become a recruiter," she said. "That's how I got to Washington, D.C."

When Sgt. Archer reapplied for a stewardess career field she was turned down because there were no vacancies. "That's the only part I miss about this job," she said. "I've always been intrigued with travel."

Although she doesn't travel any more, Sgt. Archer does get to view other lands through their representatives. She and other members of the protocol staff were on duty when the Shah of Iran arrived at Andrews. "I didn't get to meet him personally," she said, "but I was working that day. He received a red carpet greeting."

In addition to the many foreign dignitaries such as King Hussein of Jordan who have visited Andrews, Sgt. Archer has met several American statesmen. She has talked with Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Speaker of the House of Representatives Carl Albert. "Once last year, I served coffee to 70 congressmen. Some of them were travelling overseas and the rest were seeing them off. I guess I've spoken to many congressmen at one time or another, but the most impressive statesman I ever met was Secretary of State Henry Kissinger."

Even though Sgt. Archer has been a hostess for dignitaries varying in international importance, she still looks at her job on an individual basis. "It's not a matter of rank to me," she confessed. "I try to show as much consideration to a Code 7 as I would to a Code 1. They all worked for their position, they're all VIPs and I try to do my best for all of them.

"I've learned to relax while doing my job and not let it bother me. But," she continued, "I always try to present a favorable impression. In some cases, I'm the first and last impression someone has of the Air Force and the military in general."

Parents Can Help Children Adjust

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The first day of school can be a frightening experience for a young child, says a nationally-known child psychologist who adds that parents can do a lot to help their children adjust to new surroundings.

"Prepare your young children by taking them to school for a few hours before the first day," advises Dr. David Elkind, professor of psychology at the University of Rochester. "Give them a chance to meet the teacher and to explore the classroom. Talk about going to school and explain what's going to happen so that your children get used to the idea."

How children react to the first day of school depends on their individual backgrounds, according to Elkind, who has written two books on adolescent psychology. "If a youngster has been to nursery school or has had considerable experience with strangers, the separation will probably not be very traumatic," he explains. "Should the child begin to cry as the parent leaves the school, it's best to let the teacher handle the situation, as most teachers are trained to deal with such problems. The best thing for the parent to do is decide to leave — and then do it."

Fortunately, Elkind notes, most children in the United States receive their first exposure to school in kindergarten, which he describes as "a buffer, or transition, between home and school." He adds, "There is not clear-cut data on when a child is ready for school," and favors a "try-it-you-might-like-it" approach.

If the child is old enough for admission to school, he says, "it's worth trying for a few weeks. The child who relates well to others and has a general use of social skills is probably ready; the one who clings to the parent and plays with toys more appropriate for a younger age level probably needs to be introduced more gradually, perhaps spending a little less time there initially." For these youngsters, Elkind suggests that some preparatory experience, such as day care, nursery school, or even being left with a baby sitter, may help children to take separation from mother in stride.

Fathers play an important role in motivating children, Elkind notes. He says, "In the case of boys, in particular, it's helpful if the father can take the child to school or visit the classroom occasionally." The UR psychologist also believes that "the more fathers read to their children, the better." He says, "Our observations have shown that early readers had this kind of experience more often than other children."

Elkind urges parents not to worry if the child doesn't plunge immediately into school activities. "It takes many children a few days or weeks to become friendly with new people and to warm up to a new situation," he says.

Once children have become comfortable at school, parents often ask what they can do to encourage them to learn. Elkind suggests that "children learn best through example. Parents who read and discuss newspapers and books, read to their children, spend time talking and playing with their children, and take them on walks and trips provide models of intellectual interest and curiosity that motivate their children to follow their example."

The University of Rochester psychologist believes more parents should take time to talk with the teacher about their child's progress. "Most parents don't do that enough," he observes.

Once the first day is past, parents may feel that the worst is over. "Not so," says Elkind. "In fact, years later, the transition to junior high school can be almost as big a change as the first day of school." Elkind's advice to parents of upcoming junior high students is similar to that for first-graders: "Talk about what's going to happen, visit the school if possible, and recognize that for some young people, the transition may be rough for a while."

Going away to college resurrects many of the same problems in new forms, Elkind notes. "Separation from loved ones is part of life, and going to school is usually the first of many such separations, not the last."

Ways To Refinish Furniture

COLLEGE STATION—One easy way to restore the finish on some used furniture only involves cleaning–but cleaning with a reconditioner cleanser, according to one expert.

She's Patricia Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Before stripping and refinishing, try a cleanser conditioner to restore natural grain and color of wood, conceal scratches and retard crazing or checking.

"It will also remove cloudiness caused by smoke, grease and dust, and will recondition wood dried from overheated rooms," she advised.

Turning to specific directions for making the cleanser conditioner, the specialist said to mix in a bottle one part gum turpentine with three parts of boiled linseed oil.

"Cover the mixture tightly and shake well–it will keep indefinitely."

To apply, pour enough cleanser conditioner into a dish of hot water to cover the surface. Do not stir.

Dip a cloth into the floating oil mixture–the hot water makes the oil easier to use. Apply to a small area at a time and avoid getting too much moisture in joints or glued areas.

Rub the surface with the oil mixture. If there is a build up of dirt, dip grade 3-0 steel wool into the mixture and rub lightly.

Wring out a clean cloth with clear warm water and wipe the furniture surface.

Discard the mixture when the water cools. Do not reheat because the mixture is flammable and becomes gummy.

"If you use the cleanser conditioner on shellac finishes, use it sparingly and wring the rinse cloth dry," the specialist said.

Rockefeller Family Built Dynasty Based On Wealth

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the spring of 1720, Johann Peter Rockefeller left his home in the German Rhineland and settled in the then-wilderness of New Jersey. He was a man of little wealth and his name meant nothing.

Seven generations later, the Rockefeller name is synonymous with power and wealth, with public service and with philanthropy. The second son of that seventh generation, Nelson A. Rockefeller, was named on Tuesday by President Ford as his nominee for vice president.

In a country not given to titles and ruling class, the Rockefellers have perpetuated a dynasty of great influence on economic affairs and now political life.

Family members are spread through corporate, industrial, banking, real estate and international business ventures. The Rockefeller Foundation and other organizations annually dispense millions from family endowments and gifts. In the past decade and a half, Rockefellers have found a new role in the political arena.

It is a dynasty based on wealth, and the origin of that wealth can be dated with precision.

On Jan. 10, 1870, the Standard Oil Co. was incorporated in Ohio with John Davison Rockefeller as president. He was called a robber baron by many. He gave away $530 million before he died. He was Nelson Rockefeller's grandfather.

The early generations of Rockefellers had survived in America as tradesmen and farmers, neither spectacular successes nor failures. The family now dates its history from the birth of John D. Rockefeller in 1839. His father was an itinerant salesman who sometimes used the name "Dr. Rock" to peddle patent medicines.

John D. Rockefeller had a knack for acquiring money and a willingness to give it away. He was imaginative and ruthless in his business dealings, pious and utterly correct in his private life. His attributes have become trademarks of a family that considers wealth a public trust and waste a sin.

Under his direction, Standard Oil acquired control of the oil industry through mergers, favorable railroad rates, rebates and other practices, many now illegal. By 1885, the company controlled 95 per cent of the nation's oil refining capacity. At the turn of the century, John D. Rockefeller's annual income was estimated at $50 million. He was called the richest man in the world.

The break-up of Standard Oil in 1911 under new federal anti-trust laws had little effect on the family fortune. John D. Rockefeller had retired from active business life.

His most trusted adviser, a Baptist minister named Frederick T. Gates, had warned him, "Unless you distribute your vast fortune quicker than it grows, it will crush not only you and your children, but your children's children."

With the aid of his son, John D. Rockefeller Jr., the senior Rockefeller spent the rest of his life giving away money and polishing his public image. He died in 1937, three months short of his 97th birthday.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. spent his life in the shadow of the family fortune. He was a shy, retiring man with little taste for the world of business and finance. He seemed almost apologetic about the family's wealth and spent most of his life giving part of it away.

In 1913, he organized the Rockefeller Foundation. By the time he died in 1960, the foundation and other family-funded agencies had given an estimated $2.5 billion to education, medical research and other social and charitable causes.

Despite such philanthropy, the children of John Jr. inherited considerable fortunes. A daughter and five sons, Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller included, seemed to wear their millions more comfortably. While their father was content with the quiet bankrolling of philanthropy, they have acquired a taste for active control and public leadership.

John D. Rockefeller 3rd, 68, eldest of the brothers, has been a leader in efforts to assess and deal with world population problems as founder and chairman of the Population Council.

Nelson Rockefeller, 66, spent much of his life in government service and politics.

The third son, Laurance Rockefeller, 65, has combined an interest in conservation with business as developer of resort hotels in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and elsewhere. Like the others of his generation, he has been willing to use the family wealth and influence in matters that concern him, such as environmental quality.

Winthrop Rockefeller, who died in 1973, displayed another trait of this Rockefeller generation, a willingness to move outside the family base in New York. He was twice elected governor of Arkansas after serving eight years as chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission.

Youngest of the five brothers is David Rockefeller, 59, board chairman and chief executive officer of Chase Manhattan Bank, third largest in the country. He has gained a worldwide reputation as a powerful spokesman for the banking and business community.

A fourth generation of the dynasty now waits in the wings. There are more than a score of them, the children of Nelson Rockefeller and his generation, and they are already active in the arts, sciences, politics and the family's business and financial enterprises.

Castro To Be On TV Special

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro has agreed to participate in a television special on author Ernest Hemingway to be filmed on location in Cuba.

"I placed a long distance telephone call to Castro and after a brief explanation to one or two of his aides, I found myself speaking directly to the prime minister," producer Dick Foster of Bob Banner Associates said on Monday.

"Hemingway is held in great regard by the Cubans," said Banner. "The house where he spent several months each year is now a public museum and several bars he frequented have Hemingway plaques on the walls."

The television show will be called "The House of Hemingway" and portions also will be filmed in Spain, Africa, Key West, Fla., and Ketchum, Idaho, where Hemingway's widow Mary lives.

Junior Editors' Quiz on ROUGH RIDERS

QUESTION: Who were the Rough Riders?

* * *

ANSWER: A regiment of volunteer cavalry in the Spanish American War was popularly known as the Rough Riders. The official name of the regiment was the First United States Volunteer Cavalry. There were about 1,000 men in the unit and they were skilled marksmen and good riders. It was a rather strange collection of fighters composed of ranchers, cowboys and Indians from the far west and prominent athletes from the eastern universities. Col. Leonard Wood, formerly an Army surgeon, and Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy under President McKinley and later to become president himself, were in command. Roosevelt resigned his Cabinet post to become a Lt. Colonel.

The Spanish American War of 1898 resulted from political discontent in Cuba, a revolt of the Cubans against their Spanish rulers. The United States intervened in the dispute after the Maine, an American ship, was destroyed in Havana Harbor. The Rough Riders distinguished themselves at San Juan Hill and this catapulted Theodore Roosevelt into the limelight.

Tigers Scrimmage Wildcats Friday

The Snyder High School football candidates have ended two-a-day drills, and Coach Maurice (Mo) Hodges summed up progress thus far by saying that "Attitude is our strong point."

The grid candidates began working out Aug. 12 and have been in pads since Aug. 16. Workouts today and tomorrow will be held at 4:30 p.m. Next week, when school begins, the squads will work out once daily at 3 p.m.

Friday, the varsity Tigers meet Clovis, New Mexico's Wildcats in a scrimmage at 5:30 p.m. on Chapman Field in Lubbock. Hodges said to get to Chapman Field you turn right off University, onto Twenty-first Street and go about two blocks. The Tigers also will scrimmage Midland High's Bulldogs there Aug. 30.

"We were picked to finish first in the district this year," said Hodges, "Probably because we're just coming out of 4-AAAA competition."

Snyder will again compete in District 3-AAA this season after a two year period in 4-AAAA.

Coach Hodges said there have been some muscle strains and a lot of soreness at this stage of development, but that there have been no serious injuries.

"The boys are working real hard and have an excellent attitude," Hodges pointed out.

There are 33 varsity candidates, 23 junior varsity hopefuls and 28 trying out for the sophomore team. The main weakness is inexperience, but Coach Hodges said several boys off a fine junior varsity team will be a big help this year.

There are only seven lettermen returning. Offensive regulars include tackle Bobby Wall, guard Tim Sonnier, tailback Welton Cobb, fullback Ricky Howell and halfback David Mayes. Cobb also was a defensive starter at linebacker. He will be joined on defense by linebacker Roy Lee Carter and safety Dennis Young.

The varsity schedule follows:

VARSITY

Sept. 6–At Monahans.
Sept. 13–Midland Lee.
Sept. 20–Big Spring.
Sept. 27–At Andrews.

Little League Pitchers Shine

By BOB WARNER
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The winning pitchers in the opening games of the Little League World Series, including one who tossed a one-hitter, said they were not overwhelmed by their twin shutouts.

Right-hander Bob Trauger, a 12-year-old from Tallmadge, Ohio, gave up seven singles Tuesday in his 8-0 win over Athens, Greece, the European champions. The team is composed of children of American military and diplomatic personnel.

"They were hitting me pretty good," he said after the game.

Lin Wen-Hsiung, another 12-year-old, pitched the one-hitter to lead Kao Hsiung, Taiwan, to a 16-0 victory over New Haven, Conn.

Lin gave up three walks, blaming them on nervousness. Despite giving up only the one hit, he said he hoped to do better in the next game.

For Taiwan's remaining opponents in the 28th annual series, that can mean only bad news. Teams from the Asian island have won three straight Little League titles, and after Tuesday's game the islanders are favorites again this year.

Lin and three teammates each smacked home runs to lead Taiwan's 10-hit attack. They racked up 10 runs in the first two innings and coasted the rest of the way as Lin struck out 13.

New Haven's Lorenzo Vincent, who started on the mound and took the loss, led off the fourth inning with a double to spoil Lin's no-hitter. But he was stranded on third by an infield grounder and two strikeouts.

Trauger, tapped to pitch after Ohio's top two hurlers were reported too tired to play, said he didn't feel nervous until late in the game.

"I just wanted to go out and do the job," he said. "The rest of the team backed me up."

Pros, Owners Still Warring

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Kermit Alexander, an aging veteran and vice president of the National Football League Players Association, became the latest tug in the continuing war between the players and owners Tuesday.

One side contended that Alexander, who was given permission by the Philadelphia Eagles to negotiate with other teams, was an aging veteran, while the other side stressed he was the union vice president.

This latest disagreement between the players and owners indicates that even though the 14-day cooling off period in the NFLPA strike reached the halfway point today, passions once again are approaching the boiling point.

Alexander, an 11-year NFL veteran, was told by Eagles Coach Mike McCormack Tuesday that he no longer fit into Philadelphia's plans.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, called Alexander's case "another blatant example to discriminate against the union," while McCormack said, "Kermit's standing on the strike had absolutely nothing to do with my decision."

Alexander, a veteran safety who has played sparingly for the Eagles the past two seasons, joined the club as a free agent in 1972.

Elsewhere on the dispute agreement front Garvey said his side had kicked the ball over to the owners with their new offer of Saturday night; now the owners have to do something with it.

However, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, which rejected the union offer last Sunday, said:

"The players' 'bottom line offer' contained two totally new proposals, which we had never discussed before," Terry Bledsoe said in a New York telephone interview.

"The owners have not put any offer on the table," Garvey said in a Minneapolis press conference Tuesday. "The time has come for the owners to do something."

To that point Bledsoe replied, "We have put things on the table. I think the players are ignoring the fact that on July 19 we put a total offer on the table. If the terms of that offer had been satisfactory to them, we'd have a settlement right now."

Bledsoe admitted that the burden is now on the owners to make the next move. "As a practical matter we're going to respond," said Bledsoe, who revealed that the executive committee of the NFLMC was to meet today in New York to draft "a more detailed response" to the union's latest offer.

New NCAA Cage Policy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — More than one team from a conference will be eligible to participate in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament in the future, according to action taken Tuesday by the NCAA Executive Committee.

The committee, which held its annual meeting here, announced a policy change which permits a team other than the conference title holder to be eligible for one of the 12 "at large" berths in the national tournament.

Sixteen of the 32 tournament spots go to conference champions and four others are taken from regional tournaments conducted by the East Coast Athletic Conference.

Under the new policy, however, no more than two teams from a conference may play in the national tournament.

Tickets for the 1975 tournament will cost more than before, the NCAA said. Ticket prices for early-round action will go up from $4 to $5 and prices for the finals—to be held in San Diego—will go up from $10 to $12. The price for admission to the 1976 finals in Philadelphia will go up to $12.50.

The policy makers also announced that a 1974-1975 operating budget of $2,495,000 had been approved. The budget includes $200,000 for use in enforcing the NCAA's recruiting rules.

Also adopted was a rule requiring coaches to open their locker rooms to newsmen 10 minutes after the end of a game.

Davis Cup Play Set

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — The United States' Davis Cup team will start North American zone play Oct. 11-13 against the Caribbean team in Nassau's Paradise Island, officials announced Tuesday.

The Caribbean team has yet to be chosen, but it is expected to include Leo Rolle and John Antonas of the Bahamas and Richard Russell of Jamaica.

Miller, Irwin Will Return To Action

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — New fathers Johnny Miller and Hale Irwin, two of the young men who have dominated the pro tour this year, have called an end to their summer vacations and will return to action this week in the $250,000 Westchester Classic.

The 72-hole chase for a $50,000 first prize has lured one of the strongest fields of the year to the 6,614-yard, par-72 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

The lineup includes Jack Nicklaus, defending champion Bobby Nichols, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf, Hubert Green and Dave Stockton.

Major absentees for the Thursday start of this event are Lee Trevino, No. 10 money-winner Rod Curl, former champion Julius Boros, John Schlee and Forrest Fezler.

Trevino rarely plays well on this hilly, heavily-wooded course and is taking a break. Curl, who won the Colonial National, withdrew because of continued trouble with tendonitis in his left hand.

Miller, the season's leading money-winner and holder of five 1974 titles, and Irwin, who won the U.S. Open championship at nearby Winged Foot, both have acquired new offspring.

Miller has played but once in this country since the U.S. Open and Irwin hasn't competed in seven weeks. While their credentials are among the best on the tour this year, their long absences make them something less than the top choices.

Storm Seeks First Win Amid Rumors

By The Associated Press

The Florida Blazers play the Portland Storm tonight, but they have Georgia on their minds.

"Everybody is asking about a possible move of the team," said Blazers Coach Jack Pardee Tuesday. "Nobody is asking about Portland."

If they did, they'd find out that Portland is winless in six games, while the Blazers have won five of six.

Portland is in last place in the Western Division and Florida is in first in the Eastern Division, but the Blazers are also in limbo, with persistent rumors of the franchise shifting to Atlanta.

And that kind of talk made preparation difficult for tonight's World Football League game against the Storm.

"If we play like we practiced today, we'll be embarrassed by 40 points," Pardee said.

On the other hand, Portland's practices and games have both been the same—unsuccessful. Last week, the Storm was embarrassed by 22 points, losing to the New York Stars 38-16.

In tonight's other WFL action, the Hawaiians are at Memphis, Southern California is at Philadelphia, Birmingham at Jacksonville and Houston at New York.

In Thursday's nationally-televised game, the Chicago Fire, 5-1, will battle the Detroit Wheels, who have lost their six games.

In Jacksonville, the Americans, 6-0, have the best total offense and the best record, but the Sharks, 2-4, have a new coach—Charlie Tate—who was greeted by a standing ovation from his new charges.

Tate, who took over as Jacksonville coach from Bud Asher last Saturday, expects to start either Reggie Oliver, a rookie with a pass-run option style, or Kay Stephenson, a National Football League veteran who uses the drop-back passing style at quarterback.

The Americans will go with George Mira, who set a league record with a 95-yard scoring bomb to Alfred Jenkins last week.

Hawaii, 1-5, will be facing the formidable threesome of J.J. Jennings, Willie Spencer and John Harvey, who have averaged 176.8 yards rushing per game, and veteran quarterback John Huarte when they meet the Southmen, 4-2, in Memorial Stadium.

The Southern California Sun matches a 3-3 record with Philadelphia at John F. Kennedy Stadium. King Corcoran, the WFL's leading passer, will call the signals for the Bell while rookie Tony Adams is expected to lead the Sun.

The Stars, looking for their fifth straight victory, will match the best rushing offense in the WFL against the Texans, who boast the league's top rushing defense.

Squires Sign Aulcie Perry

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Assocation announced the signing of 6-foot-10 Aulcie Perry.

Perry, 24, played at Belknap College in Center Harbor, N.H., and Bethune-Cookman, where he averaged 24 points and 16 rebounds a game as a sophomore and 29 points and 15 rebounds as a junior. He did not complete his senior year.

Calhoun In Hall Of Fame

By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Assistant track coach Lee Calhoun of Yale University has been chosen for the new National Track and Field Hall of Fame in Charlestown, W.Va., a Yale spokesman said Tuesday.

Among Calhoun's achievements are Olympic gold medals in the 120-yard high hurdles in 1956 and 1960 and a world record in the event which stood 13 years.

He and 19 others including Jesse Owens, Babe Didrikson and Cornlius Warmerdam will be inducted Aug. 30.

Cage Hosts

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky will host the first round of the NCAA Mideast Region Basketball Tournament on March 15, 1975, Harry Lancaster, the university's athletic director, said Tuesday.

Top Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — JoAnne Carner is the top winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, winning $63,489 so far in 1974.

Jane Blalock of Manchester, N.H., is Miss Carner's nearest rival, with earnings of $62,928.

The Memphis Basketball franchise in the American Basketball Association is being run by former commissioner Mike Storen.

Connors Has Way, Wins Net Match

By The Associated Press

Wimbledon champion Jimmy Connors usually gets his way on the tennis court, and Tuesday was no exception.

After threatening to withdraw from the Eastern Lawn Tennis Open at South Orange, N.J., unless the number of officials was increased for his first-round match, the top-seeded Connors polished off unranked Scott Carnahan in straight sets, 7-6, 6-4.

In the second game of the second set, Connors demanded that Carnahan be given credit for an ace that had been called long. Three volleys later, Carnahan attempted to return the favor but head umpire Ted Reed refused.

After the first point was played in the third game, both men started to walk off the court. Connors shouted at Reed, "Either you get linesmen on all the lines, or I quit."

After an argument, a 20-minute intermission and a conference, two extra line judges were brought out.

Carnahan defended Connors' action as justified, saying, "He's not being an ogre this time."

The No. 2 seed in the $50,000 event, Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union, also won his first-round match Tuesday. Metreveli started slowly but then rallied to beat Manuel Santana, the 35-year-old Spaniard, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Elsewhere, all the top seeds won their first-round matches Tuesday in the 47th U.S. Professional Tennis Championship at the Longwood Cricket Club in Brookline, Mass.

Stan Smith, Tom Okker, Guillermo Vilas, Manuel Orantes, Marty Riessen and Jan Kodes all advanced.

Vilas, making his debut in this tourney, has been the hottest player on the Association of Tennis Professionals summer circuit. The sixth-seeded Argentine breezed past Canada's Mike Belkin.

Top-seeded Smith had little trouble defeating Australia's Ross Case, but Okker, the No. 2 seed, needed a first-set tiebreaker to overcome 46-year-old Torben Ulrich, 7-6, 6-4.

At the $30,000 Women's Grass Court Championships at the Newport Casino in Newport, R.I., Chris Evert breezed to her 48th consecutive victory, a 6-0, 6-1 decision over Kristy Pigeon.

"The grass was perfect and I didn't get a bad bounce all day," said Miss Evert.

In the 75th annual Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships at Haverford, Pa., defending champion Candy Reynolds and fourth-seeded Marcy O'Keefe were upset Tuesday in first-round play.

In the $25,000 men's event, defending champion Mike Estep of Dallas posted a pair of close victories to advance to the third round.

Mine Workers Calling For Ouster Of Day

By The Associated Press

The United Mine Workers union has called for the ouster of federal mine safety administrator James M. Day, saying he has failed to enforce laws designed to prevent mine casualties.

And a Republican senator, Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania, says he thinks there's a good chance President Ford may dump Day in favor of someone more acceptable to labor.

Led by UMW President Arnold Miller, more than 1,000 coal miners marched from a rally at the union's headquarters in downtown Washington to the Interior Department on Tuesday to demand Day's resignation.

Meanwhile, miners planned rallies and memorial services today in at least three states. Much of the attention focused on Birmingham, Ala., where an estimated 1,000 miners were expected to march in protest of imported coal.

Other rallies were scheduled in West Frankfort, Ill., and Ludlow, Colo.

The scheduled events are part of the UMW's Monday-to-Friday work stoppage in memory of the more than 100,000 miners who have died in mines this century.

The UMW claims that 115,000 miners in 12 states, who dig 75 per cent of the nation's coal, are involved.

The coal industry has complained the work stoppage is a thinly veiled effort to deplete supplies at power plants and steel mills before contract bargaining time.

The current three-year contract expires in mid-November and any reduction of coal stockpiles would strengthen the UMW's hand at the bargaining table.

At the Washington rally the miners, carrying anti-Day placards and chanting "Day out now," accused Day of favoritism toward the coal industry and of showing lack of concern for their problems.

"We're not satisfied with the loss of life among our membership .... It's time we take a firm position," Miller told miners.

He said if government and industry don't respond to the union's pleas for more mine safety, "then we'll make it so costly to them that they'll have to respond."

Schweiker, also speaking at the rally, proposed a number of mine safety reforms and called for "a mine safety program run by professionals—not by politicians."

He later told reporters he believes President Ford will withdraw Day's nomination.

Day was nominated by former President Richard M. Nixon to be administrator of the Interior Department's Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration but has not been confirmed by the Senate.

But an agency spokesman said Day has no intention of stepping down. The spokesman also denied the UMW's allegation that the agency has been lax in enforcing mine health and safety laws.

UMW spokesman Lloyd Baker said the primary purpose of today's march at Birmingham was to protest South African coal purchases by The Southern Co., a parent organization of Alabama Power Co. and three other Southeastern utilities.

Rocky Sees Ford Running In '76

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller is going on duty as White House understudy with a pledge to do President Ford's bidding and a forecast that his new boss will be running for a full term in 1976.

Rockefeller, at 66 a durable if unsuccessful presidential campaigner, took pains to emphasize that he understands and accepts his subordinate role as Ford's vice president-designate.

He said that what he does now is entirely up to the President.

Rockfeller underlined that theme by declaring that he expects Ford to top the Republican ticket in 1976, while declining to talk about his own political future. The former New York governor has sought the GOP nomination three times, twice as a declared candidate. He was widely regarded as a likely entry in 1976.

Ford's candidacy would foreclose that last chance. And Rockefeller said he is convinced the President indeed will run for the office he now holds by appointment and succession.

"He has every intention of it," Rockefeller said Tuesday as he called on the congressional chairmen who will supervise the vice presidential confirmation process. "That was my impression, that's what I urged, that's my assumption."

As vice president, Ford had said he would not be a candidate for president in 1976. But after Ford succeeded to the presidency, a spokesman said the chief executive had not decided whether to seek election to a full term.

Rockefeller also said that he will be on the road campaigning for Republican candidates this fall. He said he had discussed that 1974 campaign role with Ford and is delighted at the prospect.

But a one-time political adversary warned that not all Republicans are going to be delighted with Rockefeller. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who beat Rockefeller in a bitter contest for the GOP presidential nomination a decade ago, said the vice presidential nominee "is not going to sit well with the conservatives in the Republican Party."

Goldwater said he had warned Ford of that prospect, and "I am sure he understood." He also said Rockefeller is eminently qualified, and had been one of the names on his list of suggestions for the vice presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's background, experience and easy manner were major assets at the polls, although he never managed to convert them into nominating strength at a GOP national convention.

Ford evidenced no concern that Rockefeller might upstage the president. He said Rockefeller would be a good teammate and partner. For his part, Rockefeller emphasized his role as No. 2: " ... To preside over the Senate of the United States and to otherwise simply carry out any assignment ..." from Ford.

For, said Rockefeller, "the role of a vice president totally depends on the President. If the President wants to use him, wonderful. If he doesn't, fine."

Storms Hit Midwest

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms and high winds hit parts of the Midwest early today but most of the nation had clear skies.

Winds up to 70 miles per hour flailed Rock Rapids, in northwestern Iowa, during a storm. No injuries were reported.

Thunderstorms were scattered from the upper Mississippi Valley to the southwestern Plains but brought little rain. The most was one inch in six hours at Williston, N.D.

Showers also ranged along the Gulf of Mexico and the southern Atlantic Coast.

Fog cut visibility to less than three miles in the Appalachian Mountains and the upper Ohio Valley.

Some other reports: Anchorage 54 clear, Atlanta 70 clear, Buffalo 68 clear, Chicago 73 clear, Cincinnati 71 clear, Cleveland 67 clear Dallas 82 clear, Denver 65 clear, Detroit 68 clear, Honolulu 79 partly cloudy, Indianapolis 68 clear, Kansas City 78 clear, Los Angeles 66 clear, Louisville 69 clear, Miami 78 clear, Minneapolis-St. Paul 81 light thundershower, Nashville 71 clear, New York 72 clear, Philadelphia 68 clear, Phoenix 88 clear, Pittsburgh 68 clear, St. Louis 73 clear, San Francisco 56 clear, Seattle 57 cloudy, Washington 73 partly cloudy.

Search Pays Off

GEORGETOWN, Del. (AP) — They kidded Melvin L. Joseph when he headed for Florida more than a decade ago on his first treasure hunt.

But no one was laughing in this rural town Tuesday as he deposited an estimated $2 million worth of jewels, Spanish gold doubloons and other treasure in a bank.

Joseph, 53, and his partner, Melvin A. Fisher, 52, of Key West, Fla., collected the treasure over the past 11 years in a search they said has led them to a sunken Spanish galleon that may contain the largest treasure ever found.

Tuesday's deposit was collected from 23 sunken wrecks off the Florida coast and only recently released by the state, which claims 25 per cent of all finds.

Both men say that, in their search of Atlantic waters, they have found the jackpot—a sunken Spanish galleon that has eluded treasure hunters for centuries.

Although the state of Florida, which licensed their operations, has neither confirmed nor denied it, the partners are convinced they have located the "Atocha," a Spanish galleon that sank in a 1622 hurricane with a reported 50 tons of gold and silver on board.

At today's prices, the treasure could bring about $400 million, Fisher told a reporter.

He said the treasure retrieved from the Atocha site so far is still in possession of Florida's Division of Archieves, Records and History Management. Fisher estimates the value at $5 million to $6 million, and he says he expects it to reach the hundreds of millions before salvage is completed in the next few years.

Strauss Claims Move Mistake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss says the labor-backed move which caused a walkout at the party's charter commission meeting was a mistake. But he says some members of the reform wing took unfair advantage of it.

Strauss said in an interview that he opposed the effort to remove some reform rules from the party's new charter, to be debated and adopted in Kansas City in December.

"I wouldn't have supported that," he said. "I would have been the first to rise in opposition."

An amendment offered by Doris Hardesty, wife of an AFL-CIO official, would have deleted several specific reform regulations for the selection of national convention delegates, including a ban on unit-rule voting.

This sparked a walkout by black members, women and white liberals which broke up the meeting in Kansas City Sunday. The walkout dumped the remaining charter work over to the December meeting, which will be a mini version of the national convention.

Mrs. Hardesty said after the blowup Sunday that she had not meant to wipe out such things as the unit-rule ban but had included it in a parliamentary blunder.

However, she said she will argue in December against the item she was really after, a requirement that national convention delegates "reasonably reflect the division of preference of those Democrats who participated" in the delegate selection process.

The labor-conservative-regular bloc wants this language out because they say it smacks of the quotas which ripped the party apart in 1972. Minorities, particularly blacks, say it is the last defense they have against discrimination.

None of the proposed Hardesty changes, or modifications proposed in another key article, however, would actually affect the selection process. The same rules remain in the party's by-laws which are binding on delegate selection for the 1976 convention.

But striking the reforms from the charter would make them easier to defeat in the future. Amending the charter would take a two-thirds vote, while changing the bylaws takes only a majority.

Strauss said he nows expects the article to be adopted in December as written, with all the reform rules intact. He also indicated he hopes to work out a compromise on the other key controversy, a section requiring the party to take "affirmative action" to include minorities but specifically dropping quotas.

Strauss said he will reassure minority groups that they should not take the weekend's events as a signal they are unwelcome at the December conference.

"By the time we get to Kansas City," he said of the charter, "we'll have language that 85 per cent of the delegates can accept."

BEACHCOMBERS—Don Veach, 36, and his wife, Judy, 34, gave up lucrative jobs in Houston to move to Port Isabel and become beachcombers. They grew tired of the rapid pace of the city, packed up and left for the island. Happy and carefree now, they take tourists on trips along the isolated stretches of beach in their four-wheel vehicle and gather driftwood and debris during their beachcombing expeditions. (AP Wirephoto)

'Dropouts' Happy On Beach

PORT ISABEL, Tex. (AP) — Two years ago, Don Veach, then a 36-year-old land surveyor, sat in his Houston office thinking depressing thoughts about the crowded Gulf Freeway he would soon have to fight to get home. He made up his mind to chuck it all and get out.

Now his bearded face sports a happy smile as he guns his four-wheel-drive power wagon through the soft sands of Padre Island, carrying passengers on yet another beachcombing jaunt.

Don makes his living on the beach, wearing sneakers and shorts, and he loves it. So does his attractive wife, who left a lucrative position with Eastern Airlines to drop out with her husband.

Although they aren't saving any money—"that's not the point," says Judy Veach—their beach trips bring in enough cash to keep them going without undue hardship. They live in a cluttered flat-roofed bungalow in Port Isabel, surrounded by fascinating loot—driftwood and debris—hauled in from isolated stretches of Padre Island.

They're happy, carefree people who seem to have completely discarded urban ways.

"I feel 10 years younger than I did 10 years ago," Judy said recently after wrestling her four-wheel-drive truck for six hours along Padre's beaches. A fast-talking sophisticated woman of 34, Judy grew up in Irving, worked for the Dallas Theatre Center, handled public relations for Eastern Airlines in Washington and then became an in-flight executive before changing lifestyle.

She and Don offer what they say is the only beachcombing expedition on South Padre Island. At $15 a head, they haul tourists 26 miles up the island to the Port Mansfield Channel, providing a running historical commentary along the way. Most of the trip is through the unspoiled stretches of the island, where shelling and beachcombing are good. Don also takes out fishing parties occasionally.

"When we left Houston we had no idea how we would make a living," Judy related. "We just knew we had to get out of the rat race."

"It was just guts," said Don, a strongly-built man with a no-nonsense air about him.

The Veaches drove their truck and rented trailer to Port Isbael, a favorite vacation spot, in the early part of 1972. They ran into trouble after renting a cheap house for a month.

"I couldn't get a job, not even cleaning fish," Don said. "It got pretty tight. We had paid off all our debts in Houston, and had no money left over. We ate fish three times a day, and I caught it."

In desperation, they applied to the Port Isabel school district and were accepted as substitute teachers. This work kept them going until the beachcombing trips started, and began to pay off.

"We want to do things on our own terms," said Don, who has rejected suggestions that he buy more vehicles and haul more passengers and make more money. "For too many years we did what other people wanted us to do. Now we're not going to get involved with projects, or with other people. We want to keep it simple."

Judy feels other people should have the courage to break away, too. "We should have done it sooner. People shouldn't just sit on their dreams." She and Don, who also is a native of Irving, were married three years ago in Houston.

Don was asked if he offers trips on holidays. "Naw, it's a bit too crowded those days. We leave the beach to the poor people who have to work for a living."

Why Job Facts Are Essential

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: I was thinking of becoming a laboratory technician. My science teacher got me started on the idea, such as a blood testing technician. Since I like to cook and try to watch my weight, my parents think I would make a better dietitian. Could you please tell me which field is more in demand and which one's pay is better? I need help on which classes to take. – D.C., Klamath Falls, Ore.

Bouquets to your science teacher for being alert to career education. Your parents may have a good idea, too. The decision, however, is yours. And to make an intelligent one, you need facts about occupations and jobs.

Dr. Robert Hoppock, emeritus professor of counselor education at New York University, suggests reasons; here are several:

* The choice of an occupation may determine whether one will be employed or unemployed. (Even in very mild recessions there are striking differences in the rates of unemployment among different groups of workers. In April 1961, for example, 18 percent of construction workers were unemployed, but only 6 percent of those in transportation and public utilities, and only 2 percent of those in government were out of work.)

* The choice of an occupation may determine success or failure. (People differ in both the nature and level of their abilities, and occupations differ in abilities required for their acceptable performance. By choosing an occupation which will utilize one's strengths and make only minimum demands upon one's weaknesses, one may increase the probability of one's success.)

* The choice of an occupation may determine whether one will enjoy or detest one's work.

* The choice of an occupation influences almost every other aspect of life. (It determines the persons with whom the worker will associate during much of the day and thus affects one's choice of friends . . . It helps determine both the economic and social status of the entire family. It may affect the worker's health, frequency with which the worker sees his/her family, and the amount of leisure time worker enjoys, and more.)

SINCE we can't choose what we don't know, it would be revealing for you to make a report on both career fields – perhaps compiling notebooks with printed information, along with information you gather through personal interviews with workers in each field. (Why not use a tape recorder?)

To get started, medical technology employs about 5 times as many people as dietetics, and so has thousands more job openings each year. Dietitians earn somewhat more than medical technologists. There's maldistribution of personnel in both fields (some parts of the country have too many workers, others don't have enough).

For information on dietitians, write: American Dietetic Association, 620 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60611. For information on medical laboratory workers, write: Board of Registry (ASCP), Box 4872, Chicago, Ill. 60680; and American Medical Technologists, 710 Higgins Rd., Park Ridge, Ill. 60068.

In high school, you can prepare for both fields by studying science and math; also take home ec courses in case you eventually decide to become a dietitian.

15-Car Pileup Injures 22

SEALY, Tex. (AP) — A 15-vehicle pileup on Interstate 10 west of here left six injured motorists in hospitals today.

State police said the crashes Tuesday at the San Bernard River bridge about 40 miles from Houston involved a Continental Trailways bus, seven automobiles, four semi-tractors trailers and three pickup trucks. A total of 22 persons suffered injuries.

Only one person was reported in serious condition. He was Edwin Wyatt, 62, of San Antonio and he was admitted to a hospital at Columbus.

A spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said a grass fire along Interstate 10 caused heavy smoke, slowing cars as they approached the San Bernard bridge.

"It was a sort of chain reaction after that," the spokesman said. "The rest of the vehicles just piled up."

The bus and a truck burned and another vehicle was damaged by fire.

Most of the injured were taken to the Sealy hospital. Administrator Dale Dycus said the injured were not in serious condition. Five persons were admitted and the rest treated and dismissed.

Dycus listed the five patients as Madlyn Sneider of San Jose, Calif.; Imilda Soliz of Texas City, Martha McCquade of San Antonio and her husband John, and Kellie Liesmann Small of San Antonio, who was hostess on the bus.

More than 130 million visits were recorded at zoo collections in the United States last year, surpassing attendance at national football and baseball games combined.

Ten Oil Companies Will Repay Overcharges

By CHARLES J. LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten oil companies have agreed to repay some $103.7 million in alleged overcharges to their customers, the Federal Energy Administration reports.

In addition, agency officials said on Tuesday that four other oil companies have been notified they are suspected of overcharges totaling some $90.7 million.

The overcharges stem from violations of the FEA's pricing regulations.

Of the 10 companies, four were ordered to bar price increases and to roll back prices and take other steps until overcharges totaling $58.2 million are made up. The FEA identified the firms as Ashland, Charter, Conoco and Koch.

The other six companies, which the FEA refused to name, voluntarily agreed to roll back prices totaling $45.5 million without a formal order from the agency. These companies had been accused of illegally increasing diesel fuel prices and service station rents and incorrectly computing base prices, product costs and product-exchange agreements with firms in other parts of the country.

An FEA spokesman said that in many instances the violations were inadvertent because of the complexity of the pricing regulations.

The victims of the overcharges ranged throughout the distribution chain from large terminal operators to consumers, and virtually all petroleum products were involved, the spokesman said.

The actions were taken during the first six-month study of oil company operations, which ended June 30, by the agency's refinery audit review program. The FEA said its 90-member field staff is in the midst of its second round of audits.

The four companies suspected of overcharges of $90.7 million have been given an opportunity to explain their procedures.

Jets Approach Queen's Plane

RAMSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — Queen Elizabeth's jet was en route to Bali in March when it was approached by four Phantom jets, the U.S. Air Force has disclosed.

A spokesman for British Airways in London said the Queen's pilot reported the incident at the time and said the fighter planes were never close enough to the monarch's VC10 to constitute a "near miss."

The Air Force's European headquarters in West Germany said on Tuesday that the incident occurred during a NATO maneuver over Karlsrume and the pilots were keeping strictly to their prescribed routes.

Nixon's Home Improvements To Be Re-Checked By GSA

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is going to re-examine all publicly financed items installed in Richard M. Nixon's Florida and California homes with an eye to recovering what it profitably can, according to the head of the General Services Administration.

Arthur F. Sampson said his agency will "look at every item" installed while Nixon was President, and then decide what should be done with them now.

From Nixon's 1968 election until mid-1973, the government put $1,156,075 worth of equipment and capital improvements into Nixon's homes at San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla. Other, larger sums were spent on adjacent offices and administrative facilities.

Sampson said on Tuesday the examination will be to "determine what is in the best interest of the federal government."

He said it wouldn't be in the government's interest to dig up $3,000 worth of wiring if the salvage value was only a few dollars. But other items no longer needed and easily removed could be reclaimed.

The GSA was heavily criticized when details of its spending at Nixon sites emerged through news reporting and congressional hearings during 1973. The government claimed most of the expenditures were required for security protection.

Sampson said he is considering what to do at Key Biscayne if Nixon sells either or both of his homes there. As President, Nixon used one house for a vacation residence and the second for an office. The government leased two others in the compound for administrative and security offices.

"We are looking at those leases now," said Sampson. He believes the government would have to do some work to restore the homes for residential use. But he said he believes the government would not be obligated to do any work at the home Nixon used for an office.

He said security protection continues at Key Biscayne the same as when Nixon was President.

As long as security requirements continue, many of the government-financed installations at Nixon's homes may have to be retained.

He said Nixon's aides have expressed informally Nixon's intent to make the former Western White House compound at San Clemente his permanent office.

Nixon is entitled to office support funds for six months under the Presidential Transition Act, then for the remainder of his life under the Former Presidents Act.

His three principal aides now working in San Clemente are still on White House salaries.

Nixon is entitled to $450,000 for other expenses of his presidential transition, but the money hasn't been appropriated yet.

As a result, there's been no money available to buy stationery to answer more than 200,000 letters sent to San Clemente, Sampson said.

After six months, Nixon will be entitled to $96,000 a year for salaries of aides. He additionally will receive allowances for office space, postage, some travel and some communications.

Franco Improved

LAR CORUNA, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco, 81, has so completely recovered from three weeks in the hospital that his health is now "better than a normal man his age," his doctor says.

The dictator, who has ruled Spain for more than 35 years, was treated in July for thrombophlebitis.

Sugar Profits Are Sweeter

NEW YORK (AP) — The profits of sugar refiners have jumped to record levels while the price of sugar in the supermarket has soared in a year from 79 cents to $2 for a five-pound bag.

Refiners say crop failures in recent years have stimulated world bidding for the scarce commodity. And the United States, which imports more than half its sugar from Latin America, the Philippines and other foreign sources, is in the competition.

They also say the tight supply situation has given them the opportunity to raise their profit margins on the once-abundant but low-profit item.

Amstar Corp., the nation's largest sugar refiner with more than $1 billion in annual sales, reported a 110 per cent increase in annual profits to $31.4 million for the year ending June 30.

In the fourth quarter alone, Amstar's profits were $15.2 million, compared with $5.9 million the previous quarter and with $5.2 million for the previous year.

Sucrest Corp., which last reported profits for the quarter ended March 31, showed earnings of $758,000 for that quarter, compared with a deficit of $61,000 for the same quarter of 1973.

Holly Sugar Corp., which reports profits only on a yearly basis to Feb. 28, said profits last year rose to $5.3 million from $2.6 million in 1973. Sales last year were $111.7 million.

In the first quarter of this year, Holly Sugar's sales reached $60.4 million, more than half of the previous year's total. The company would not say what its quarterly profits were.

"The cost of raw sugar is more than 80 per cent of today's refined sugar prices, and that price has risen from 12 cents a pound last year to more than 32 cents a pound today," said an Amstar spokesman.

Amstar and other sugar companies say poor crops in Russia and Cuba in recent years and in Western Europe and the United States this year have aggravated the world supply and sent prices up sharply.

"In recent months, prices have been sent further up by persistent buying of available supplies by the dollar rich Arab countries, and also by inflation," the Amstar spokesman said.

He said returns also have gone up since price controls ended.

Coed Prison Success

HOUSTON (AP) — The warden of the federal government's first long-range coeducation prison unit at Fort Worth, Tex. says he was skeptical at first but now terms the experiment "something of a success."

"There is a wide consensus that new and different things in corrections need to be tried and that removing people from the way society is, usually is counter productive," Federal Warden Charles Campbell said.

Campbell, appointed to head the unit in 1971, spoke Tuesday at a session of the 104th Congress of the American Corrections Association.

At Campbell's facility, women have a separate dormitory where they sleep. All other prisons activities are coed however, he said.

Campbell said candidates for coed facilities should be carefully screened to exclude the more violence proned inmates and concentrate on prisoners nearing release from prison.

The warden said the coed concept has not been without incidents of sexual contact but he said the evidence shows it is not a main preoccupation.

Campbell cited 26 cases of known attempted sexual contact at his institution in the past two years, despite the fact it is strickly forbidden.

In another session of the Congress, the auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of San Antonio said the recent Huntsville prison escape attempt should be a source of remorse to church leaders.

The Most Rev. Patrick Flores said churches often fail to accept poor persons from the wrong side of town and particularly those in trouble with the police.

He said one such person could have been Fred Gomez Carrasco, who died along with another inmate in the escape attempt.

"Was he, perhaps, turned away?" Bishop Flores asked. "Did this convince him church people wouldn't lend a helping hand?"

Foxx Denied Quick Divorce

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Comedian Redd Foxx has lost a bid for a quick divorce and a later property settlement with his wife Betty Jean.

Foxx, star of television's "Sanford and Son" series, moved for a summary judgment, but it was denied on Monday by District Court Judge Keith Hayes. A hearing was set for a later, unspecified date.

Foxx testified he and his wife were incompatible.

"We just don't get along. She wants to go out at night and I'm too tired," said Foxx, 51.

Braniff To Leave Love Field

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International has decided to leave Love Field here and consolidate its Dallas-Fort Worth service at the two cities' new regional airport.

Braniff President C. Edward Acker said the Tuesday decision to stop 13 intrastate commuter flights from Love Field Sept. 1 and add 10 flights at the regional facility was the best way to serve the greatest number of travelers in the Southwest metroplex.

Acker said Braniff now will fly to Houston from D—FW every 30 minutes during peak traffic periods. Flights department on the hour will go to Houston Intercontinental Airport and on the half-hour to Houston Hobby Airport, he said.

A Braniff spokesman said the change will mean a net gain of one flight to Houston, including 17 to Intercontinental and 10 to Hobby.

Braniff will add one daily flight to San Antonio from D—FW but drop two Love-originated flights for a total of 16.

Austin will have a total of six flights when Braniff adds one D—FW flight and drops three from Love Field.

Braniff's decision to leave Love Field withdraws the airline from commuter flight battle with Southwest Airlines and Texas International at that airport.

A southwest spokesman said his airline would have no comment on the Braniff pullout.

A spokesman for Texas International said at the company's Houston headquarters that service to Austin from Love Field would continue as long as that field is open for commercial flights. The company does not fly from Love Field to either Houston's Hobby or San Antonio.

The spokesman had no comment about any expansion of TIA's service from Love Field.

Crated Eclipse Fresh As Wind

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — An Eclipse windmill found in its original crate in an old mercantile store about 150 miles west of Amarillo may become a prized attraction in a Smithsonian Institution display of the Old West.

J.B. Buchanan, who farms at the north edge of Hutchinson County, said recently that the Smithsonian was interested in his Eclipse because of its original condition.

"There are others around," Buchanan told Hal Marsh of the Amarillo Globe-Times. "But this is the only one they know of that has all of the original parts. All of the others have been rebuilt."

Buchanan has seven windmills in his collection, including another Eclipse which he rebuilt.

Gene Ostroff of the Smithsonian inspected Buchanan's windmills recently as well as several others in the area. Ostroff then headed farther West looking for more items.

"I found the Eclipse still in its crate in an old mercantile store near Santa Rosa, N.M., in 1965," said Buchanan.

"The son said his father had bought the windmill and the crate had been in the store ever since he could remember. The son has since died."

Buchanan erected the windmill with its 12-foot wheel on a tower he moved from near Stinnett.

Patents on the Eclipse expired in 1920, Buchanan said, so he estimates the windmill was manufactured about 1900.

The other Eclipse in his collection, Buchanan said he believes, originally was operated on the XIT Ranch, one of the truly big spreads in Texas.

"But I had to rebuild that one," Buchanan said of the machine which has a wheel 18 feet in diameter. It is located atop a 60-foot tower.

Buchanan, 68, is a native of this Panhandle country.

"If it hadn't been for the windmill, this country wouldn't be settled yet, Buchanan said in an earlier interview. "Settlers without a windmill didn't last long."

He recalled that "There were 102 gates from Spearman to Amarillo back before the days of the highways. We had to cross the Bivins and Sneed Ranches to get there and I think there was an Eclipse at every gate. We watered out Ford and ourselves at every one of them. How wonderful they were on a hot, dusty day. I guess the Eclipse is the granddaddy of them all."

Texas leads the U. S. in natural fiber production, according to Marilyn Brown, consumer education-clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. Texas produces 97 per cent of the mohair, 30 per cent of the cotton and 20 per cent of the wool used in the U. S.
