HAIL STORM STRIKES

Loss In Wichita Is Slight; Many Watch Cyclone Clouds

Special Dispatch to Record-News

LOVELAND, Okla., May 23.—Two residences were destroyed and several other buildings damaged here today when the tornado that visited northwestern Oklahoma, dipped down on the edge of this city. The fact that practically the entire citizenship had sought refuge in storm cellars, is believed to have prevented loss of life.

The residence of R. H. Norton was completely demolished and one other small building was also wrecked beyond repair. A number of structures were unroofed by the winds.

The cyclone clouds passed on to the north after striking here and blew themselves out before causing any extensive damage.

THREE GRANDFIELD BUILDINGS DAMAGED

GRANDFIELD, Okla., May 23.—A small cyclone that struck on the edge of town, overturning one building, moving two others from the foundations and killing a number of chickens visited Grandfield Wednesday afternoon and then moved on to the north. Rain in the immediate vicinity of Grandfield was not heavy, although considerable precipitation was reported north and west of here.

Norton Home Hurt.

The heaviest damage caused by the winds was at the home of Van Norton, living on the edge of the city, when a barn was demolished and one wing of the residence blown off its foundation. The usual freaks accompanying such storms were evident, a big wagon bed disappearing completely in the wind, while a small child's hat, hanging on a support in the barn, was not even blown to the ground. A team of mules escaped without a scratch.

Furnishings Damaged.

The furnishings and fixtures of the house were considerably damaged when the wind picked up the north wing and moved it around to the east. Some chickens on the place were killed but otherwise no loss was incurred.

At the Twin-6 Refinery on the edge of town a galvanized iron building was turned over on its side but no damage done otherwise.

The brunt of the wind struck about four miles west of the city and cut a clean swath about 30 feet wide for a short distance. The characteristic funnel-shaped cloud could plainly be seen as it dipped down to the ground, cut through the earth for a moment

CHIEF REVENUE MEASURE LOSES BY 64 TO 50 VOTE

All Day Session Ends With Close Balloting On Proposition

DEBATED SIX HOURS

Many Claims Supporting And Condemning Bill Advanced

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 23.—The Dinkle income tax bill was killed by the house late today when that body, by a vote of 64 to 50, indefinitely postponed further consideration of the measure. A motion to reconsider and table prevailed 57 to 50, preventing further discussion of the bill. Action was taken after more than 6 hours of debate.

Long Debate Held.

Various claims and contentions were made by members who spoke regarding the Dinkle bill during the long debate. Consideration of the measure started shortly after convening this morning. The first action was the motion by Representative Jennings to indefinitely postpone consideration of the bill. An effort to move the previous question on the motion failed when the vote stood tied 56 to 56. Speaker Seagler declared the motion for the previous question lost.

Bell Supports It.

Representative Bell of Coryell county was one of the principal speakers in favor of the income measure. He declared that certain financial interests in the state have incited numerous communications to members from over the state opposing the bill. He further said the majority of the people, have not expressed an opinion on the measure and that he believed ther favored enactment of an income bill.

Representative Pope of Nueces county made the closing argument against the bill. He said the Dinkle measure had been so fashioned as to protect the corporations and place the tax on the people now bearing the burden of taxation.

The claim of a large deficiency in the next two years is untrue and the state is not on the verge of bankruptcy, Representative Lewis T. Carpenter of Dallas told the house. He produced a volume of statistics to show that the state deficiency will not be larger than $4,000,000 without considering revenue from the new inheritance and delinquent tax laws.

Representative Patman of Cass county, closed the arguments in favor of the bill, declaring that other revenue measures have been turned odwn and that the appropriations cannot be cut sufficiently to meet the revenues.

The German police say the strikers are organized into units, each of 100 men, and are well supplied with automatic pistols.

Many thousands of strikers attended mass meetings today in Dortmund, Bochum and other towns in the mining district and passed resolutions to use every effort to extend the strike throughout the Ruhr and the Rhineland. It is estimated that 60,000 men have quit work in the Dortmund district. The strikers are demanding a 50 per cent increase in wages because of the high cost of living and the depreciation in the value of the mark.

Speakers at the meeting today said the men were on a "hunger strike." They cited prices to show that the cost of living had doubled in the last few days.

The note offers on behalf of Russia the conclusion of a convention giving Great Britain fishing rights outside the three-mile limit off the Russia coasts, but still insists that an international conference is necessary to settle the territorial limit question.

Woman To Lure Slayer Of Man Officers Believe

International News Dispatch

MADISON, Wis., May 23.—Motherhood joined the law this afternoon in its hunt for John L. Whitfield, accused of murdering a Cleveland policeman when Marie Price, who said she had lived a year and a half with the mulatto fugitive told police here from whom he escaped she would bear a child in July. They were on their way to Milwaukee to be married when Whitfield was taken here last night and then escaped, she said.

"He's not guilty; he didn't kill that policeman," she said hotly. "He'll come back to me. He loves me. He wants to marry me."

The Price woman, who is white, established with her story that it really was Whitfield who wriggled out of the grasp of two Madison policemen and fled to safety, leaving her behind.

Police, holding her with no charge against her, believe she and the child she expects will be the bait that will tempt Whitfield to come into their grasp. The woman said she was confident the murder suspect would not desert her in present plight.

minor before roll call had gotten good started.

The last day of the convention culminated in a grand finale of business and pleasure and it was the unanimous opinion of the thousands of visiting delegates that San Angelo began and held a pace for entertainment and glad-handing which will make a difficult mark for future towns entertaining the great assembly to shoot at.

The morning executive session marked the paying of unsullied tribute to three members of the West Texas chamber of Commerce executive board who have been with the organization since its mention. Those honored were: A. B. Spencer, Crosbyton, re-elected president, J. A. Kemp of Wichita Falls and L. J. Wortham, Ft. The feature of the afternoon was the three-mile parade which offered a variation of entertainment from the queen of every representative town and city in West Texas to cowpunchers and prairies cowpunchers, supplemented with 20 bands. A number of cities within a radius of 50 miles came in with banners saying the stores had all been closed and the town was present 100 per cent.

Daniel Cupid, inconsistent as he is, could not resist the urge to get in on the big doings at San Angelo and his presence was immediately noted, when it was learned that a lady from Midland, Miss Annie Mae Petterson and Guy Cowden, also of Midland, went to the home of a local minister after the parade and were married. They left at once for the Davis mountains on their honeymoon.

received at the weather bureau that a 3.38-inch rain at Smith Center had put the Solomon river out of its banks there and that the river was but three feet below flood stage at Kirwin, with a prospect that the river would overflow down the entire valley to Solomon. A stage of 25 feet is predicted for Beloit, or three feet above the flood stage.

Unofficial flood warnings were sent out from Concordia this afternoon because of a big rise coming down the Republican river. Reports to Concordia were that a rain of from three to seven inches had fallen along the river route, and put the Republican out of its banks north of the Nebraska line. The weather bureau here had received no reports as to condition of the Republican.

Bottom-land farmers along the Cottonwood and Neosho rivers in Morris, Lyon, Chase and Coffey counties were preparing to move out on short notice today. Heavy rains at the source of both rivers, which join just below Emporia, it was feared, would cause them to overflow. They were rising rapidly today.

and then lifted again, only to fall later at points far north.

DRENCHING RAINS AND HEAVY HAIL IN WICHITA

A terrific downpour of rain and hail in Wichita Falls and a small cyclone that did but little damage in Southern Oklahoma was Wednesday afternoon's weather contribution—one that was at least distinctly different from the combinations of heat, wind and dust that have played about this territory for the past week. Aside from possible crop damage, a few buildings overturned at Grandfield, Okla., and a plentiful supply of smashed automobiles in this city, actual property loss was light.

City Scared

Apprehensions were aroused here early in the afternoon when an ominous, funnel shaped cloud could be plainly seen to the north of the city. Fears that a cyclonic wind was coming this way were speedily dispelled, however, when the cloud disappeared. During the brief period in which it was visible, thick blankets of dust picked up by the tail could easily be seen and fears were expressed that heavy damage would be caused in Oklahoma.

Although it lasted only for a short time, the cloud was an apprehensive-looking affair. Inky black, it extended far across the sky with an unmistakable "funnel" dropping out of the eastern end and growing gradually smaller as it approached the ground. Thousands of persons in this city, Iowa Park, Electra, Burkburnett and southern Oklahoma towns watched it.

Several Cyclones

Reports from the Oklahoma territory last night stated that there were really five or six mild cyclones centering around the main one which formed shortly after noon. The tail of the funnel followed the Red river bed for a considerable distance near Bridgetown, finally lifting and moving off to the north, dipping down on the edge of Grandfield and then blowing itself out still further to the north.

Heavy rains and some hail accompanied the gale around Walters.

No Wind Here

Locally, the element of wind was not present but hail stones peppered intermittently for an hour. Drenching rain also fell between 2:30 and 6 o'clock, giving the city the first real soaking it has had for weeks.

The hail stones first hit the business district and for 20 minutes or more kept the streets clear. The stones, some of which attained the size of large walnuts, did a surprisingly small amount of damage considering the rate at which they fell. The windows of the Marion hotel on Eighth street were broken out and a few auto tops punctured.

More Freaks

While this storm was at its height in the business district that section of the city lying west of Brook street reported that the sun was shining as brightly as ever and that no rain was falling. A little later, however, the clouds moved on to the west and the hail came down, but with more moderation. The rain that began to fall at 4:30 and that lasted until 6 o'clock treated all parts of the city alike. It did not extend beyond the southern or eastern edges.

The rain gauge kept by George Simmonds showed a total of 1.3 inches during the afternoon.

Persons coming into the city from Electra and Iowa Park, stated that the rain and hail reached only as far out as the Panhandle Refinery and that at a point near that place it was almost possible to see the line where the rainwstopped.

An electrical display of some intensity prevailed for a short time.

LITTLE RAIN OR HAIL FALL IN DEVOL VICINITY

DEVOL, Okla., May 23.—Little rain and practically no hail visited Devol Wednesday afternoon, although the storm clouds which visited Grandfield and sections to the north could be plainly seen from here. Brisk winds prevailed throughout the day but not with sufficient intensity to cause any damage.

Reports of hail falling were received from points to the north but it is not believed that the damage, if any, was great. The rain was not sufficient to be of any material benefit.

HEAVY WIND AND DUST AT BURKBURNETT

BURKBURNETT, May 23. — A terrific wind and sand storm held Burkburnett in its grip for several hours Wednesday afternoon, causing a great deal of discomfort but doing little actual damage. The small cyclone that visited Oklahoma was plainly seen her and the sand stirred up from the river bed swept over the city in clouds. Old residents here stated the sand storm feature was one of the worst they had ever seen.

Very little rain fell at any time and practically no hail.

MARLOW VISITED BY HEAVY WIND STORM

Associated Press Dispatch

MARLOW, Okla., May 23.—Several houses were unroofed, small buildings razed and a number of plate glass store windows blown in by a wind storm that struck this city last night. Rain which came with the wind has continued and streams are overflowing. No one injured.

LITTLE TROUBLE AT WALTERS WEDNESDAY

WALTERS, Okla., May 23. — A wind storm that came in from the southwest about 1 o'clock today, did slight damage here and reports that a tornado had struck this part of Oklahoma were not regarded seriously. A heavy cloud accompanied the wind and some rain fell.

Fosdick Is Baptist.

In the sermon, entitled "Shall the Fundamentalists Win?" he compared the argument of liberal and conservatives on the question of the virgin birth of Christ, the inspired origin of the Bible, vicarous atonement, bodily resurrection, the miracles of Jesus and other controversial theological subjects.

Dr. Fosdick is NOT a Presbyterian, but a pastor of the Baptist church, filling the First Presbyterian pulpit occasionally as supply minister.

Bible Followed

The resolution adopted by the general assembly tonight also re-affirms the deliverance of the gospel assembly of 1910, that it is the essential doctrine of the church that the Holy Spirit inspired the writers of the Bible to keep them from error; that Jesus Christ was born of the Virgin Mary; that He offered Himself to atone for the sin of His followers; that He arose from the dead with the same body in which he suffered; and that He showed His divine power by working miracles.

Only 3 Years Needed To Create Mummies By Some Seminaries

BOSTON, May 23.—Although it took Egypt eight centuries to produce her mummies, some theological seminaries seem capable of obtaining the same result in three years, Rev. Franklin C. Southworth said in an address before the Berry street conference of Unitarian ministers today.

He said that many seminaries spent too large a portion of their time on studies dealing with the past and too little on studies concerning the present.

OIL MILL MEN MEET

A further abuse of the parental privilege is revealed by the twins, Sudden Death and Jolly Death. Mr. Ware named his little girl "China" and Mr. Gentle has his christentd "Always.' Several days ago when the names of subscribers to a government loan were received in Washington, one from Oregon was that of Ten Million." A letter sent to address given, sharply informed the sender that bonds could be registered in real names only and no further attention would be given to his subscription unless his real name was given. A letter soon came from Mr. Million written upon a printed letterhead of the firm of Million and Million reiterating that his own nome was Ten Million and that he had brothers and sisters named. One, Two, Three, Four Five, Six, Seven (his partner) and so on respectively. As the Million children grew up, he admitted, that most of them had modified their names, the Misses One and Three Million becoming Una and Trio, while he himself, was commonly known as Tenis, although legally his name still remains unchanged.

Automobiles Have Hard Time During Wednesday Storm; Many Damaged

It was a bad day for automobiles here Wednesday.

No accurate estimate could be found last night on the actual number of cars that came to grief on slippery pavements, but that the number damaged in some form or other reached a dozen or fifteen is conservative.

Probably the most serious accident came about 3:30 when a loaded gravel truck emerging from the alley between Ohio and Indiana avenues sideswiped three machines on Eighth street. A small Ford truck, a Ford coupe and a touring car sustained broken wheels, bent fenders and punctured radiators.

Charges of reckless driving were filed at the city hall against the driver of the sand truck.

At Eleventh and Lamar a coupe and a touring car collided with extensive damage to both. Reckless driving charges were lidged against each driver.

A new Ford coupe mixed up with a larger car at Brook and Tenth, with two broken front wheels resulting to the Ford. It was hoisted off the pavement and deposited neatly in the front yard of the R. O. Harvey home.

At Denver and Ninth two machines bumped each other without serious damage and at Eighth and Travis two expensive cars, each driven by a woman, locked fenders and struggled back and forth for several minutes. The irate pilots scolded each other, greatly to the amusement of a fair-sized crowd of onlookers, but nothing more serious happened.

Cars without number were stuck in mud holes on various unpaved streets during the afternoon.

The most harassed husband lives in Illinois. He has had his wife put in jail to keep her from killing herself. The most indignant husband lives in Pennsylvania. His wife borrowed a woman's young baby telling him it was their own to satisfy his desire for an heir. At that he may have been unreasonable, or failed in understanding.

CLARA—

was regarded by local officials today as a "trap" to mislead them.

The opinion was expressed at the district attorney's office that Mrs. Phillips is attempting to shield others by claiming Carsen engineered her flight. Officers here regarded Mrs. Phillips' story, told to Under Sheriff Gene Biscailus and Deputy Sheriff Hunter at Tegucigalpa, skeptically.

Says Carsen Sawed Bars.

In her story to the officers, Mrs. Phillips declared Carsen sawed the bars to her cell from the outside and lifted her to the roof of the jail building from which she fled to an automobile in the street below. From there, she claims, Carsen took her to a house in Whittier boulevard where she remained in hiding until she and Carson left for New Orleans.

It was stated at the sheriff's office that a close examination of the sawed bars in Mrs. Phillips cell convinced experts that the bars were sawed from the inside. The position of the cell window, it was pointed out, would have made it impossible for the bars to have been sawed from the outside.

Stayed In Hollywood.

In her story Mrs. Phillips refused to divulge the name of the woman at whose home she stayed in Whittier boulevard. Authorities declared this part of her story may be true, as it is known Carsen at one time conducted a grocery in Whittier boulevard. Officials here also declared Mrs. Phillips did not remain in Whittier boulevard until she left for Mexico, as they have positive information that she was kept in a Hollywood house by three men for a time after her escape.

Fall Of Mark Brings Out New Currency

Associated Press Dispatch

PARIS, May 23.—The rapid increase in the cost of living in the Ruhr district and an anticipated further drop in the value of the German mark, may make necessary the issuance of the special currency which the allies have had in view for the Ruhr and the Rhineland, it was said at the foreign office today.

Finance Head Sees Better Conditions For Cattle Raisers

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 23.—An encouraging estimate of business conditions and a promise of further help by the war finance corporation, were contained in a statement made today by Fred Starek, acting head of the corporation, after a conference with President Harding.

Mr. Starek declared that despite the impression in many quarters, the corporation was making no effort to force liquidation of the loans of many millions of dollars it has outstanding, and predicted that congress would be asked at its next session to pass additional legislation for the relief of cattle interests in the Southwest, whose herds have been taken into Mexico for grazing.

IS PROHIBITION GAINING?

With all the stories about smuggling from Canada and the West Indies the United States is not overrun with imported liquor. A considerable part of Canada is also dry, and the New York Evening Post prints figures showing that exports of English and Irish spirits to Canada have decreased more than 50 per cent in 10 years. While exports from the West Indies have increased, the entire quanity produced there would not amount to one per cent of our consumption of liquor of prohibition. The United States, which used to be an enormous manufacturer of booze, is no longer. Is prohibition gaining? Well, what do you think.

OLD SONGS, AND THE NEW.

The centennial anniversary of "Home Sweet Home" finds this famous old ballad not on the lists of the people's songs committee's "best loved songs." It was written in the day when ballads constituted popular music instead of something-or-other Blues. Most of these ballads were real music, and the words rymed. Some old ballads still remembered for their beauty are Sally in Our Alley, Baby Mine, Silvery Threads Among the Gold, Juanita, Maryland My Maryland, I Stood on the Bridge at Midnight; and such rollicking themes as Down Went McGinty, and Fifteen Dollars in My Inside Pocket. Wet, the highbrows of that day didn't think these were good enough. Contrast these fine old songs with a recent "song hit" which has this for a chorus:

Yes, we have no bananas. We have no bananas today.

We have some nice red onions and scullions and cabbages.

And say.

We have some nice ripe tomatoes, Long Island potatoes.

Yes, we have no bananas. We have no bananas today.

The Movies by Josephine Fisk

OLYMPIC—Milton Sills and Marguerite de la Motte in "What a Wife Learns."

EMPRESS—Helene Chadwick and Richard Dix in "Quicksand."
MAJESTIC—Gladys Walton in "Crossed Wires."
GEM—Franklin Farnum in "The Man-Getter."

Thrilling Border Romance in This—

Richard Dix and Helene Chadwick are appearing together in "Quicksands" now showing at the Empress. They make an ideal screen pair and in their new picture they are meeting with immense popularity. Dix, as a first lieutenant of a military post near the border, makes a visit of inspection to a "cantina" across the border in Mexico—a resort frequented by drug smugglers—where he sees a little Mexican belle mingling with the sinister crowd.

He is struck by her beauty and her curious resemblance to the girl who has promised to marry him. Under dramatic circumstances, he learns that she really is his sweetheart. The horror of her presence in such a place, her gaiety and beauty, her laughing eyes, her blase disguise sickens him and without stopping to think, to reason, he takes it for granted that she is a dope. Giving up his commission, he goes away to forget—and leaves behind him the plucky little American spy, in real danger. Go and see the wind-up for yourself; the characterizations are wonderful, the pciture is rich in romance, heart-interest, pathos, keen suspense, and has powerful grip.

Step up Miss Twentieth Century, speak up, Mrs. Modern Wife. Can the narrow circle of a wedding ring hold both a husband and a career? Should Friend Husband repress his wife's ambition to carve out for herself a niche in the world of achievement?

Can a woman run a home and a job too? Mrs. Benjamin Harrison (ex-president's wife) says, "A woman can not have a successful career as a business woman and bring up her children properly and make a desirable and successful home at the same time."

Amelita Galli-Curci, who so many of us Wichitans met recently when she came here on her concert tour says, "I believe positively that a woman can have both a career and a family. To my mind it is purely a matter of individuality and temperament—the woman who will neglect her children will do so regardless of whether she has a career or not; in fact many children are neglected for something much less worthy than a career."

The "Career vs. Home" question has focused the attention of millions of men and women in every section of this country. Have you seen "The Literary Digest" lately?

Filmland has been discussing it too, and the master producer, Thomas H. Ince has just released a powerful drama with this as the theme.

Was "Shelia Russell" justifed in the course she took?

Radio Midnight Frolic Over WKAF Saturday to Celebrate Completion Of New and Stronger Station Here

WKAF, the broadcasting station of the W. S. Radio and Auto Supply company, can now be heard in the most distant parts of the continent due to a new theory made practical by Tehnician Zeigler.

To celebrate this achievement a seven-act vaudeville program has been arranged, comprising the most brilliant talent North Texas affords. The program is being rehearsed under the direction of Tom Wear and promises to include everything heard in vaudeville but that which is spectacular. Bathing beauties, oriental dancers, acrobats and clowns being necessarily omitted.

The program includes such celebrities as A. C. (Ace) Elliot of first base fame; Josephine Fisk, H. Stellars Rogers of "Cameo Girl" fame, and numerous other artists whom everyone will be pleased to hear.

H. S. Baldwin, a pianist, who with Mr. Moore, a baritone, are new comers to Wichita Falls, from New York City are to have their little act which promises to be something like real "big time."

With several three-piano numbers, dialogues, violin solos, etc., still in process of "brewing," the entire troup is busy wiring and writing friends and relatives, some in Canada, California, and even in old Mexico, to listen for WKAF.

The usual hour of this program will facilitate its being received at distant points, owing to the fact that most of the other large broadcasting stations will not be operating.

The overture and curtain promptly at 12 midnight. All fans are warned to tune in for the midnight frolic Saturday midnight, May 26.

Wichita Needs Zoo, Lions Club Says and Puts Forth the Big Idea

Wichita Falls needs a zoo.

That at least, is the opinion of the local Lions club and expressions voiced at the weekly meeting Wednesday noon indicated that the club wanted to convince the rest of the town about it.

The matter was brought up by Dr. A. D. Patillo, president, who stated that a well equipped zoo in Scotland park would be a source of never ending attraction. He declared that every other city of this size in the state boasted of a zoo and that there was no reason why Wichita Falls should not be similarly blessed. Several sides of the question were discussed and a committee consisting of P. B. Curd, Joe Hatchitt and L. R. Buchanan appointed to consider the matter further and make recommendations.

Irene Davidson, local newspaper writer, appeared before the club with a number of entertaining poems of her own composition.

County Must Again Appoint Man To Map County For Tax Assessor

Although an appointment was once made by the county commissioners court of an expert to thoroughly map the county for the conveniences of the tax assessor and collector, the action is not legal and must be taken all over again, according to County Auditor E. P. Walsh. Mr. Walsh stated Wednesday that the matter would probably be brought up again at the commissioners court meeting next Monday.

The work to be done included a complete blocking of the entire county and a map drawn showing the location and ownership of every piece of land in the county. With this done, the assessing of taxes would be greatly simplified.

However, Mr. Walsh points out that under present arrangements, the work would require two years or more and that by that time much of the oil land from which taxes would be derived might be at least far less, if not absolutely valueless. Thus, it is necessary that some other system be devised by which the work can be done in months instead of years.

Mr. Walsh also states that the appointment by the court was not made in legal form, citing as proof the statutes which say that any contract work of this kind in which an expenditure of over $2,000 is to be made must be advertised for and bids received.

What changes will be made is a matter of conjecture, but Mr. Walsh declares that some remedial measures must be taken.

TAKE CARE OF YOUR CHICKS

Care Must Be Given To Keep Them Healthy, Expert Says

By AL OLSTON.

Do not experiment with your chickens' ailments. No chicken will do well when bothered or tormented with lice or mites. This is the kind of weather that will bring these pests out of their hiding places.

Lice and mites do their most harm at night, but where there is lots of them they also come out through the day. One of the greatest faults beginners have is the idea that it does not take work to raise chickens, that all they must do is to feed them and gather up the eggs. These uninvited external parasites will always make their appearance whe ngiven the least bit of a chance.

Mites are what we call the nighthawk parasite, as they work mostly at this time. They are blood sucking wonders, leaving the birds so weakened that they are easily subjects to all diseases. I have often seen them drive a setting hen off her nest. Remedy: remove all fixtures from the hen houses, spray them throughly with Toroline or any good disenfectant, being very sure to get into all cracks and crevices. Kerosine or Gasoline will only deaden them for a time. You must use something to irritate them to death.

Often mites cannot be detected with the common eye sight, it is therefore well for you to spray your premises now, as this will most likely prevent them for the whole summer.

Lice cling to the body of chickens at all times and have very stout mouth-biting parts.

In baby chickens, they are the cause of many cases of diarrohea and often they die very quickly. The infected chickens will go around usually drooping with lowered wings and ruffled feathers. Older fowls, though heavily effected, will not show any ill effects at first, but a little later, egg production drops off, weight is lost and often many die. When we wait for them to show up at this stage of the game, we not only lose birds and money, but a battle is on.

The blue bug, or as some call them the chicken tick is a most harmful pest to poultry in these southern states. No flock can thrive properly where blue bugs are present. Young chicks are stunted by them and their vitality taken completely away.

Hens thus effected, will cease laying for months, and often times when she does want to lay will leave the nest on account of them.

Keep your birds from roosting outside, in trees or on buildings. All extra lumber of no value, burn at once, spray the entire hen house making doubly sure of the cracks. If possible, hatch your own chicks. If you patronize a hatchery, be sure that you know that it is blue bug free. Eliminate as many cracks as possible by building your roosts and nests away from the wall and make swing-affairs out of them.

Ge rid of the idea that chicken raising is no work and all play. Your chickens will repay you for the interest taken in their welfare.

TWO GROUPS OF COUNTIES

Undisputable facts, as disclosed by the records according to Gus Reininger of Comal, would show that there are two groups of counties in the state, namely the low percentage assessed counties and the high percentage assessed counties.

The low percentage assessed counties are composed of a group of 95 which have only increased their assessment 101 per cent over their assessment of 1906, the year prior to the enactment of the so-called full rendition law.

The high percentage assessed counties which group consists of 159 counties, have for the same period increased their assessment 232 per cent.

This is the constitutional requirement, "Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

Is it?

Let those who make the laws answer.

Let those who pay the taxes listen.

The people are the masters.

They make and unmake laws.

They make and unmake public servants. Why not comply with the constitutional requirement—

"Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

ON HIS WAY

Governor Prues of Minnesota resigned his office to become Senator Prues and to take the late Knute Nelson's seat in the American senate. Knute Nelson was an alien. He was of the Scandinavian race. Prues is an alien. He is of the Scandinavian race. Knute Nelson won and held a high place among American statesmen.

Prues for years was his private secretary. Nelson trained him. Prues became governor of Minnesota. He has two terms to his credit and another in sight. Knowing that death was near, Knute Nelson whispered to his lieutenants that Prues had the stuff in him necessary for a real American lawmaker.

Then came the demand on the part of the people for Prues to resign as governor and to go to Washington as the successor of their old chieftain. Nelson had character as well as distinguished ability. Prues has character. He has been a servant of the people. He was trained by a master and some day he may rank with the leading statesmen of America.

Opportunity has something to do with the making of man.

"THE GREAT DEFEATED"

William Jennings Bryan will go down in history as the "great defeated." He aspired to the office of moderator of the 135th general assembly of the Presbyterial church. He aspired but he went down in defeat. He hoped to be given the chairmanship of the important committee on bills and overtures. This prize was tossed in the lap of another. Then he decided he would like to be vice moderator. A Philadelphia lawyer took it away from him. Then he was tendered and refused to accept the chairmanship of the committee on home missions.

Then the Florida delegation named him as a member of the committee on education. The silver-tongued orator of other years has a new paramount issue. He is to devote all his time to the fight against the Darwinian theary of the origin of the species against the preaching of any doctrine which denied the virgin birth of Jesus Christ or the other fundamental interpretations of the Bible. For 30 years Bryan has been more of a crusader than a politician. He would have made a magnificent Peter, the Hermit, in the ages that are gone. As a crusader he has never had an equal in America and he has, to his credit, the honor of having been the pioneer preacher and advocate of many of the remarkable reforms that have taken place in the political world.

MANUEL, THE BOLD

Manuel Herrick of Oklahoma, a former congressman, has again broken into the front page. A Washington woman accused him of disorderly conduct. He was fined $5. Is that all it costs a former congressman convicted on a charge of annoying a Washington woman? In the old days that was the price of a plain drunk. Manuel Herrick isn't a plain drunk. Those who know him best say he is a plain something else.

United States Senator William E. Borah of Idaho has made the discovery that the league of nations and the world court are identical. Then all the Wilson democrats should get in behind President Harding and his world court plan. To run true to form they must get in behind him.

ANOTHER UPRISING

By Albert T. Reid

NO-MAN'S-HAND

By Hugh MacNair Kahler

Charlotte Grey, who has taken up the case of Bobby Rackham, just paroled, after serving three years of a term in prison on his confession that he had embezzled $8,000 from the firm he worked for. Miss Grey, however, ascertains that

Alfred Bleeker, a wealthy, somewhat miserly and pompous man, has taken a great interest in Corcoran. He overhears a telephone message and sees a note, each of which convey a threat of death to Phil. He tells these incidents to Olaf Larsen, chief of detectives. Larsen ascertains that Corcoran's business and dealings and affairs of the heart have made him a great many enemies, a number of whom could be considered to menace his existence. Rackham assures Larsen (who, by the way, is another member of the "justice syndicate") that the vengeance he contemplates will not be a violent one. Nevertheless Larsen reiterates a warning to Bleeker that Corcoran should leave town. Corcoran has refused to leave, hinting at a business deal which will bring him in considerable money. Bleeker summons Larsen to his house one night, and while they are discussing the case, a shot is heard and they find Corcoran dead in the library, shot through the mouth, as, apparently, he had leaned over a smoking tabouret to light a cigar. Larsen finds Rackham concealed under a settee in the library. Rackham denies any guilt, saying he had been summoned there by Corcoran who had given him $1,000 in part payment on the embezzled sum.

Carol Bleeker, young and beautiful wife of Alfred, is seen leaving the library immediately after the shot. Her coldness and calmness, and Larsen's inability to find the pistol which Bobby, if guilty, must have used, leads the officer to ponder over the possibility that Mrs. Bleeker, herself, had killed Phil. She, however, scornfully suggests that Larsen's men look in the fireplace of the library, and there they find the pistol. It seems almost conclusive evidence against Rackham.

Charlotte Gray's intuition tells her that Mrs. Bleeker knows something more than she has told.

Larsen learns that the bills Corcoran gave Rackham were obtained originally by Carol Bleeker from a jeweler. He visits Bleeker and comments on the fact the high priced cigars that the humidor contained have been replaced by a cheap variety. Bleeker says he kept the Cormas only for Corcoran.

One Chance In a Million.

"Mrs. Bleeker impresses me as a remarkable woman, sir." Larsen felt the need of manufacturing conversation to cover the wait for Charlotte's arrival. "She controls her emotions more completely than any one else in my experience."

Bleeker seemed to regain a little of his normal dignity. "Mrs. Bleeker is extraordinary in many ways," he said stiffly.

Larsen was tempted to persist in the game of this bluff.

"I was inclined to think that she did not regret Corcoran's death exceptionally," he ventured.

"You were mistaken in that inference. She regrets him as keenly as I do. I am sure of this. Let us not discuss it further, please."

Larsen apologized and subsided. There was an uncomfortable pause, broken with Charlotte's arrival with the camera she had borrowed to use as does a professional.

She greeted Larsen with a curt deference which had no trace of intimacy. She barely took cognizance of Alfred Bleeker's presence. Under Larsen's seeming direction, she made a number of exposures of the interior. She helped him measure and record the distances.

"Eight feet four inches," she announced, after one of these dimensions had been ascertained. "That's too far for the gun to have been thrown by mere inflex action, I suppose. It couldn't have been suicide, then."

Larsen chose to administer a snub, relishing the opportunity to rebuke the girl without fear of an immediate counter-attack.

"You are employed to take photographs," he said avidly. "We are not interested in your speculations."

He saw her flush and risked a grin, past Alfred Bleeker's shoulder. Bleeker started. His sense of proprieties had been horribly offended.

"My dear young lady, let me assure that your suggestion interests me very much indeed! If you have any other ideas like that, pray be so kind as to advance them. We cannot all be professional detectives, but the least of us are surely entitled to an opinion."

And he turned an expression of high disfavor on the offender. It was Charlotte's turn to grin over his shoulder. She spoke with becoming meekness:

"I thought it might have possibly been suicide, that's all. I heard your testimony at the inquest, and it seemed to me that it gave room for that explanation; you said that Mr. Corcoran had been depressed and anxious, that you had noticed it for sometime before the event. And I couldn't help thinking that if young Mr. Rackham were lying, he'd have told a better lie than he did! So that it seemed to me as if—"

Bleeker straightened. "I believe you've hit the explanation!" he declared. "That theory is perfectly sound. And as for the possibility of my good friend's having thrown the gun into the fire by reflex action after the shot, this seems entirely plausible to my view. In the throes of sudden death the muscles are capable of surprising reactions, I know very well. And there was no doubt that poor Corcoran was deeply depressed."

He caught himself, but his glance at Larsen completed the sentence eloquently. He meant to remind the detective that he had sought him out before the killing on the strength of Corcoran's peculiar behavior.

"I don't say that it's possible, sir. But it seems improbable. From Rackham's story, there was no indication of it. Why should Corcoran be so fearful to scrape a $1,000 together for him if he meant to kill himself? Why—"

"It is exactly the sort of thing he would have done!" interrupted Bleeker. "As I understood it, in case there was some ground for Rackham's belief that he had been badly treated, Corcoran, contemplating suicide, would have done precisely that quixotic deed as a sort of dramatic farewell. Oh, this suggestion opens enormous possibilities. I am inclined to believe it on what I already know."

"Well, it's for young Rackham and his attorneys to prove, anyway," said Larsen. "And I don't envy them their job. The state's case looks airtight to me!"

"Then your intention is to convict the unlucky boy, if you can?"

"That's my duty, sir—under the district attorney of course. And he'll press it. He believes in suppressing crimes of violence with particular vigor, on the theory that punishing these has a strong deterrent on those contemplating crimes of deliberation. I think he's right. Anyway, he's made a fine record on homicides."

"I think that's simply barbarous!" regarding a boy, who may be innocent, to the electric chair, not because he thinks the boy is guilty, but because he wants to make a record for himself! It's worse than murder. It's killing in cold blood, without malice, for a price in political preferment. I won't help in it. I'll smash my negatives before I—"

"Don't lose your wits, Miss Gray," Larsen cut in coldly. "This has nothing whatever to do with you."

"I think Miss Gray's attitude is highly commendable, sir!" Bleeker drew himself erect. "I believe her theory is sound. And I shall do what I can to help young Rackham prove it. It is quite clear that poor Phil bore him no malice—that he even desired to help him. I should feel false to my friendship if I failed to see that a possibly innocent protege of his received the full benefit of every reasonable doubt."

"Well, if you feel that way, you'd better see Walter Enfield—Rackham's counsel. I understand that the youngster hasn't a penny, and Enfield can hardly afford to do much for him on the fee that the court can allow. I'll tell you this: If the fellow gets off it'll be by spending quite a bit of money. We're going to spend all we like. The district attorney will make a kind of example out of this case. He feels very strongly about it. He thinks that if we let Rackham off lightly, other men, with a real or fancied grievances will try to take the law into their own hands! There's something in that. Rackham will be lucky if he gets off with a life sentence!"

Bleeker's resolution seemed to weaken at the prospect of expense, just as Larsen, whose speech had been designed to test the philanthropist's sincerity, had anticipated.

Noble sentiments were part of Alfred Bleeker's existence, but he was careful to select those which may be held without an outlay. Now he looked pensive.

"You really think that they will convict the boy without evidence?"

"I'd like to bet on it," said Larsen unfeelingly. "He's got one chance in a million."

For some reason Charlotte Gray came to his support. "That's perfectly true, Mr. Bleeker. The state can spend any amount it pleases to convict him. And evidence, true or false, costs money. That's the blazing injustice of our criminal system. The poor man hasn't much chance!"

"You said that the attorney's name was Enfield?" Bleeker leowed more thoughtful. He made a note of the address which Larsen supplied.

"I shall take the first opportunity of calling on him," he announced. "If it is a matter of money, the poverty of the accused shall not be permitted to handicap him. I shall—I shall raise a fund among my friends—"

Even Charlotte Gray's eyes flickered with amusement as Larsen met it. Alfred Bleeker was bound to be noble, at any cost—so long as somebody else met that cost!

Larsen chuckled over it as he and Charlotte rode back downtown together.

"The old boy's a curious bundle of contradictions," he said. "He's got a lot of the finest kind of impulses, but he just can't bear to pay for carrying them out. He compromises with 'em. He'd love to have fine books, beautifully bound. He satisfies himself with tooled backs pasted on a plank. He'd love good old furniture; he buys cheap, modern imitations. He wants his wife to have splendid jewels, and he gives her paste! And now he wants to do the noble thing by Rackham, but somebody else must put up the cash!"

"We're all contradictions, I suppose. Don't those psychoanalysis fiends call it a conflict of impulses and inhibitions that determines conduct? What's that about paste jewels? How did you find that out?" Popfield told me with some reluctance. "And now I suppose you are sure that Mrs. Bleeker did it. It isn't safe to give you all the facts Charlotte."

She shook her head. "Wrong. I'm perfectly sure she didn't now. I wasn't till you told me that. I can come pretty close to the real answer, Olaf."

"Go on: let's hear it. I'm resigned. Suicide. I suppose: a broken heart because the lady would nay blackmail but wouldn't love him, eh? A sweet little romance—"

"Well, you're partly right. Philip Corcoran killed himself, I think. But it wasn't for love. There—that's all I'll say until I know more. But remember that I said it, Olaf. And," she added, sulkily as he chuckled, "I won't let you forget that you laughed at me for saying it!"

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

"IN ACCOUNT WITH LIFE"

A newspaper man of great ability and usefulness recently died in New York at the age of sixty.

For more than a week he had been certain that the end was near

But he was not afraid.

"I wish," he said one afternoon, "that I could have ten more years. There are a great many things I would like to do. I have undertaken a lot of work I would like to finish.

"But lying here, and feeling certain that I shall never leave this room alive, I have been looking over my account with life. And I find that it is all in my favor. Life owes me nothing; I owe it a great deal.

"In the first place, it has given me opportunity and opportunity has brought me happiness. I haven't begun to do as much as I would like to do, but there are one or two little things in my life work that have given me satisfaction. Once I stopped a gang of legislative crooks from enriching themselves at the expense of the poor people of a state. That was satisfaction—to me, anyway.

"I have had a chance to travel about the world, and have seen that it was beautiful. I have made many friends in whose company I have always enjoyed myself.

"I have had no children of my own, but there have been many of them in the families of my sisters and brothers, and I am always happy when I can see and talk to children, who are more nearly natural than any other creatures I know about.

"On the other side, I have been ill now and then; often disappointed; never successful, as far as money is concerned. I shall have nothing to leave when I go.

"Once I was ambitious to be distinguished, and I never became distinguished. Perhaps that was because I was lazy. But I cannot attribute my own laziness to the wrong side of the ledger. It was my own fault.

"Taking it altogether, I am ahead and a long way ahead. I would, as I have said, have been glad to have those ten years more, but life did not owe them to me, and I had no right to expect them.

"I will finish with a profit in happiness and that is all I ask."

If every man, on examining his account could find that it was so satisfactory, this would be a happier world. Yet this man died ahead of the game because he had always put all that he had into it. He had played fairly with life, brought to it all that he had to bring. Life was the loser by his going, but despite the fact that it gave him a great deal, it profited as much as he did while he was here.

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

Aspects of slightly adverse nature rule until 1 o'clock, after which the vibrations change from the better, making it a good time for business, shopping, correspondence, social matters and romance.

A child born today will be clever in the arts, and should be given every advantage to develop its talents.

Some days are well balanced and this is one of them. It carries a kind and noble disposition, magnetic and fanciful with decided talent. It is a day that usually leads up to positions of trust and if today is your birthday, you should rise by your own merits, undoubtedly to considerable eminence. You may not attain great wealth, though the stars promise success.

You are gifted with a great personal charm and find no trouble in making lifelong friends. You are sympathetic and have a rich and diverting sense of humor, so that you can even appreciate a joke that is on yourself.

You are a shrewd judge of people and have almost a psychic power of discovering their most hidden motives. You are similarly sensitive to your surroundings and find it almost impossible to stay in some houses in which tragedies have occurred and for this same reason you are constantly changing your surroundings in search of harmonious relations.

Your point of view is always innocent and patient with weakness, but this will not always be recognized—others will frequently consider your forbearance a weakness. Eventually, however, they will see you as you really are, fine and determined, and utterly incaapble of being swerved from a purpose in which you have put your faith.

You are fond of the arts and music and have a distinct talent for the later.

Your tastes are primarily aesthetic and you are sensitive to all the finer shades of meaning in pictures, poems and music which the average person fails to notice.

Your marriage will be fortunate from a material standpoint, but psychologically and spiritually unhappy, especially if you are allied to a native of a grossier sign.

SPRING—By A GOLFER

To make the grass grow lush and tall
Doth Nature now endeavor,
So if I slice or hook a ball
It vanisheth forever.
And though I strive for self-control,
Hot rage doth wilt my collar,
For with the ball I lose the hole—
And eke, belike, a dollar.

When on the ball mine eye is set,
Spring's evilest invention—
The vagrant, idle violet—
Distracteth my attention.
The club obeyeth not my will;
Above my head it flutters,
Then passeth clean above the pill.
"One stroke," the caddy mutters!

The blackbird sitteth on a limb,
His blithesome spirit voicing,
And I perforce must list to him
And mark his vain rejoicing.
Although I seek to be serene,
The tumult never ceaseth,
My putt is putted off the green,
And still my score increaseth.

Fair spring (as poets say thou art)
Thou mayst deserve the praises
They give to you—but for my part,
I wish thou'dst go to blazes!
Thy starry blooms and feathered choir
Excite my execration,
Thy beauties I will not admire—
Golf needeth concentration!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Why Is It That Some Soils Are Full of Alkali and Others Are Not?

The amount of alkali found in a soil depends mainly upon what kind of rocks formed the soil and the climatic conditions of the country in which the soil is found.

All soils come from the disintegration of rocks. Certain rocks contain quite large percentages of such elements as sodium, potassium and magnesium. These are the alkali-forming elements and are always found combined with other elements or combinations of elements.

Sodium is often found combined with chlorine (a poisonous greenish gas) and is then called common table salt. Sodium also combines with carbon dioxide (the gas that makes soda water bubble) and forms baking soda.

Potassium forms compounds similar to those formed by sodium. Magnesium combines with sulphur and forms Epsom salts.

All of these compounds are called alkalis and are found in soils. They are all soluble in water; that is they all dissolve in water. Therefore in countries where the rainfall is plentiful these alkala salts are removed from the soil by the water.

Alkali soils must first be formed by the disintegration of rocks containing the alkali-forming elements and then they must be deposited in a comparatively dry climate. That is the reason why alkali soils are generally found in the arid portions of the West and why the soils here are comparatively free from alkali.

Elaborate Luncheon Given By Choral Club Closes Year's Work

One of the most elaborate as well as enjoyable affairs of the spring season was the luncheon given by the Womens' Choral club for its members and guests at the Wichita club Wednesday at 1 o'clock, closing the season's rehearsals. The tables arranged banquet fashion, were attractively centered with pink roses and larkspur and butterflys hovered on the bouquets and above the tables. Pink lighted candles in silver holders tied with fluffy orchid colored maline, added further to the colorful setting, as did the orchid and gilded butterflies that held the place cards.

Mrs. Fred Barron acted as toastmistress, and Mrs. E. C. Huckabee gave the invocation. After making a short talk of appreciation in behalf of the club of the new president, Mrs. R. A. Lyle, Mrs. Barron introduced her, and she very graciously toasted the director, Mrs. Louella B. Thompson. Mrs. George Wilson, Jr., in a clever original bit of verse, toasted Mrs. R. E. Strange, the vice-president, and Mrs. Strange in turn toasted the club accompanist, Mrs. E. H. Gipson, who, after making a charming talk of appreciation of Mrs. Lyle, was joined by other members of the club who sang her praises in a clever parody, afterwards including in the song other officers and director, Mrs. Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson, in a few well chosen words, toasted the Choral club and gave a short sketch of her year's work with the organization as director.

Between courses, members and guests introduced their neighbors, and following the menu, a delightful informal program included a music memory contest conducted by Mrs. Bebb and Mrs. J. S. Pitman with Mr. Pitman playing popular airs at the piano; a music memory contest in which Mrs. Fred Barron was fortunate in guessing the titles of the most numbers played and was rewarded for her efforts with a what was described by Mrs. Pitman as a "sweet present" proving when opened to be a large stick of candy decorated with a rosette of red ribbon.

Music was furnished by members of the club with Mrs. Lambreth Hancock at the piano and a burlesque on the director was given by Mrs. Barron and Mrs. Huckabee, both numbers provoking much merriment.

Mrs. Pitman gave a group of popular melodies, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Pitman, and also by the Dixie quartet composed of Messrs. Vaughn Ray, Sid Gaines, Ivan Murchison and Grover Bullington.

A delicious four-course luncheon was served and covers were laid for Mesdames J. Brown Hopkins, J. Warren Sparks, C. A. Stuckey, J. S. Frocks For Wear When Weather Says "Coats Off"

By ELOISE

A cloth frock is a handy thing to have in one's wardrobe when the weather grows too warm for a wrap. It is an excellent garment for those undecided days when it is too chilly for light clothes and too warm for wraps. The one piece frock with a light fur scarf is ideal for street wear. Light tans and cocoa shades as well as browns and navy are the colors which are popular just now.

Here is a very smart trotteur frock brought over from Paris. It is made of navy kaska cloth in long, straight lines. It is a combination style of the coat frock and the slip-over style. Silver braiding in a small design at the neck line and again at the elbows of the sleeves is the only trimming. A silver belt with long tassels ties low over the hips and hangs down the front as all the best Egyptian models advise. Note the odd slashed cuffs on the sleeves and the soft collar arrangement. This frock is particularly good for the traveler as it may be worn any place a suit is and is easier to pack.

"I COULD SHOUT FOR JOY!" DECLARES TEXAS WOMAN

Mrs Biondolillo Was Miserable Till Friend Told Her About Stella Vitae—She's Like a New Woman Now.

"I just took Stella Vitae to please my friends who recommended it, for I never expected it to do me much good; but I was simply astonished at the way it ended my troubles and made a well woman again," said Mrs. Carmelo Biondolillo, who lives on Route 4, Box 129, Houston, Texas.

"The fact is I had taken so many different kinds of medicine that I had lost confidence in everything, for no matter what I took I seemed to be getting worse all the time.

"I had been in a badly rundown condition for some time and never wanted to eat anything, and what little I did force down soured on my stomach and made me miserable for hours afterwards.

"Those awful splitting headaches would almost drive me distracted and my nerves were in such a wretched state that the least little thing would upset me and I would simply go all to pieces.

"After a miserable day I would go to bed hoping to sleep and get a little rest, but instead I would pass most of the night rolling and tossing from one side of the bed to the other and hardly getting a minute's peace. Then in the morning I was worn out so it was all I could do to put my feet to the floor and get up.

"I reckon I would be in that awful fix yet if I hadn't listened to what one of my friends told me about Stella Vitae and got me to try it. I sure was surprised at the way I began to improve soon after I started taking it. By the time I had finished my second bottle I was feeling like a new woman and I was gaining in weight right along. I am now strong and hearty and feel good all the time. Stella Vitae is the best tonic for weak and ailing women I ever saw and I could shout for very joy for what it has done for me."

Note.—Stella Vitae may be obtained from any druggist and is sold upon the positive guarantee that the purchase price will be refunded if it fails to bring relief. Miller's Drug Store, Tipton's Drug Store.—Adv.

RAIN AND HAIL CHEAT BEARS AND SPUDDERS OUT OF FINAL GAME; HOUSTON IN TOWN TODAY

Bears Maintain Their Undefeated Record Over Salm's Men—Buffs Have One Game to the Good Over Locals.

By "DINK" ADDINGTON

Raging elements which swooped down upon the city a couple of hours ahead of game time, prevented the Spudders and San Antonio Bears from playing the last game of their series yesterday afternoon. The Bears, who had won both games of the visit, departed for Fort Worth and the Spudders will be hosts to the Houston Buffs this afternoon.

Nobody was very sorry to see the Bears leave for they held an unbreakable jinx over the Spudders. They were hitting any and everything that came up to the plate and while the Spudder pitching might not have been the greatest in the world, there was some flashes of good twirling dished up to the Brutes but they hit just the same.

Buffs Have Edge.

The Spudders have met the Buffaloes but once and were beaten 16 to 1 when Jack Knight let them down with three hits. They have a splendid pitching staff and the club is going at a fast clip. There will be no soft stuff for the Spudders and they'll have to bear down heavy to make an impression in the coming series.

Manager Salm has not yet disposed of Pat Flaherty and Rabbit Darrough, whom he is cutting off the squad. With Carlson due to join up today, another slice will have to be made but the boss is allowed five days in which to look over new men.

Mr. Grover Control Alexander

When Grover Alexander's proud parents selected Cleveland as his middle name they made a mistake. They should have called him Grover Control Alexander.

For this master of batters has just stood the pitching records on end again with the most remarkable exhibition of accurate hurling in the game's history.

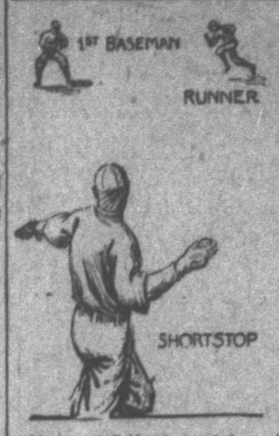

When this was typed Alex the Great had hurled 51 consecutive innings without issuing a single base on balls. Consider that, mates. For five and two-thirds games this steady armed veteran had failed to issue four balls to one batsman. He had tamed the elusive horsehide to such an extent that not even the most exacting umpire could call four balls, high, low or wide, while one batsman pitted his skill against Alex's cunning.

And this achievement does not take the cake by an inning or two. Babe Adams held the previous record—a mere 36 innings.

Control has been Alexander's long suit since the third year in the big show.

Alex started out with the Phillies in 1911 as wild as the average pitcher—if not wilder. In 1911 and 1912 he allowed a total of 236 bases on balls while working 677 innings, an average of 3.14 bases on balls to a game. Jim Bagby, former Cleveland flinger, and many other star pitchers made a much better showing in their early years. But Alex found th. plate. The very next year he allowed 75 walks over a stretch of 306 innings or 34 full games—an average of but 2.21 passes per nine-inning game.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

Must an infielder be a judge of speed?

Answered by
CHARLES HOLLOCHER

Shortstop and captain, Chicago Cubs, the man who led in fielding all National league shortstops who played in more than 40 games in 1922.

It is to the advantage of an infielder, handling a grounder, not to hurry his throw to first base any more than he has to. This means that he must be a good judge of the batter's speed, and must time his throw accordingly so that the ball will get there just enough ahead of the runner to make it a sure putout.

Memphis, Fort Worth, Atlanta and Galveston Women Still In Race

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, May 23.—Memphis, Fort Worth, Atlanta and Galveston cornered the women's Southern Golf title as a result of todays play at Rivercrest. Memphis and Fort Worth each have three players remaining in the top flight, Atlanta one and Galveston one.

Favorites won their way through in all cases, only one thrill coming in the way of near-upset. This was when Mrs. Dooley of Memphis, took Mrs. David Gaut of the same city, to the seventeenth green before losing to the western champion. Had Mrs. Dooley negotiated a three-foot putt she would have carried her opponent to the home green, perhaps into extra holes.

Mrs. Clyde Maddox of Fort Worth, furnished the spot thrill when she defeated Miss Dorrance of San Antonio, on the nineteenth hole.

Mrs. Lowndes, defending her title, again ended her match the thirteenth when she eliminated Mrs. Rhodes of Dallas.

Mrs. Gaut was plainly off her game.

On 17 Mrs. Dooley sliced her drive into the rough, just short of the 200-yard marker. Mrs. Gaut launched a beauty down the middle beyond the 200-yard posts Mrs. Dooley, away, came out of the rough into the far edge of the green, while Mrs. Gaut's approach was short barely on the green.

Mrs. May Whitley, Fort Worth city champion, gave Miss Priscilla Rogers of Galveston, a magnificent battle. Down all the way from number one green, a half on 16 green ended the match. Miss Rogers made mistakes.

WACHTEL BREEZES ONE BY BUFFS

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, May 23.—Wachtel was in rare form today, while Bill Petrica was a bit wild, and Fort Worth won four to two. Phelan's double in the first frame with two down and two on, Calvo's single following a double by Wachtel in the second and Sear's home run over the right field fence in the fourth accounted for the Cat runs. Sears, Phelan and Stellbauer, made great fielding plays. Score:

WALSH REVIEWS PENNANT RACE

West Is Happy Hunting Ground For New York Clubs

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, May 23.—Casting a casual eye over the baseball pennant races at the moment, the impression will not down the reputed strength of the west is very weak. The Yankees for example, took the late Horace Greeley at his word an dare now willing to concede that the old gentleman played an inside tip. The west is proving the happy hunting ground of ambitious baseball clubs.

In successive series with the Indians, Tigers, Browns and White Sox the Huggins outfit won 10 out of 11 games, the Tigers being responsible for the lone defeat. The league champions have two more games with the Sox but regardless of what may happen there the trip must go down as one of the most successful the Yanks have ever known.

They started the tour with fear and trepidation, duly warned of the dire fate that awaited them west of the Alleghenies. But they found the Indian bubble in a state of collapse, due to unsteadiness in pitching and weakness at first base; the Tigers trying to cover up a rapped hole in the middle of the infield and the Browns helpless without Sisler.

Seven successive victories have fallen to the Yanks in the west. The Athletics, bearing a singular resemblance to a ball club, have won six straight from western clubs. So much for that.

In the National league the Giants have been almost equally successful in their inter-sectional games at the Polo Grounds. The Pirates, playing indifferent baseball exrept in the game that Babe Adams pitched, dropped two out of three. So did the Reds who seemed to be laboring under the handicap of a wild-eyed defense in and around second base. The Cubs flopped two times in three starts and the Cardinals, the only western entry running to form, were beaten with painstaking thoroughness in the opening game of the series yesterday.

Even the Dodgers who were kicked around the east with careless familiarity during the first three weeks of the campaign, have been fattening at the expense of the western invaders and have advanced from last place to within striking distance of the Reds and the top of the second division.

The Braves, figured to take a dive with all the ease and grace of a finished performer, have done as well as might be expected leaving the funny Phils as the only eastern club that is losing with almost daily consistency.

Retail Merchant Association Cup Goes to Powers

A handsome silver loving cup, emblematic of the state championship for high school tennis singles, has been presented to Bill Powers of the Wichita Falls high school by the Retail Merchants association.

The cup is to come up for annual competition and will come into the permanent possession of any player who wins it three times in succession. Powers waded through the other entries of the state and won the championship in the recent meet at Austin and will hold the cup until the meet next year when it will go up for competition and Powers will not be in the running as he graduated this year.

This cup is now on display in the club house of the Wichita Falls Country club.

Curing Your Golf Troubles

By Jim Barnes

"Dear Mr. Barnes: For several years I have been slowly eliminating some of my faults in golf, but so far have been unable to reach a point where I successfully follow through, owing to a tendency to stop my swing with the impact. This is especially true of brassie shots, and I will appreciate your advice as to how to correct this fault.—H. P. Y."

Answer: You are probably chopping or slapping at the ball rather than swinging the club, and are likely bringing the club too straight down on the ball. If this is true, try to turn the body of pivot around toward the right more freely on the backswing. Also keep the weight a little more back on the right leg and foot and don't let it shift forward too soon, but rather swing the right shoulder and side around as the clubhead strikes and follows on after the ball.

If you are chopping, you are more than likely bending the arms too much at the elbows at the top of the swing. Try to keep the left arm, particularly, as straight as possible at the top of the swing, and keep both arms straightened out in hitting the ball. It may help you to make a point on trying to send the club on through and out along the line of flight.

Your trouble may also be due to the fact that you are starting to speed up the swing too soon. In other words that mentally you are beginning to apply the hitting force almost as soon as you start the club down from the top of the swing. Remember that the club should not be started down in too big a hurry but should pick up speed gradually, and the effort to apply the real hitting power should not start until the hands are down to about the level of the waist. If you can get a picture in your mind of not trying to do any real hitting until the clubhead is within 18 inches or two feet of the ball, you will continue the swing on through without any effort.

(Jim Barnes will suggest a remedy for your golf faults. Write him, care of the sport editor, enclosing stamped envelope if you want a personal reply.)

Harvey Buys Pitcher Harold Carlson From Pittsburgh; Due Today

Veteran Right Hander Added To Local Pitching Staff

Harold Carlson, righthand pitcher of long exeprience, has been purchased by the Spudders from the Pittsburgh Pirates and is due to report here for duty today. This news was contained in a telegram received by Manager Salm yesterday from President R. C. Harvey who closed the deal in St. Louis where he met Carlson. The purchase price was not announced.

Carlson was with the Pirates as far back as 1917 and has had plenty of experience. Since it seems that experience is what is needed to pitch winning ball in this Texas race, Carlson should be able to prosper with the Spudders.

Carlson left St. Louis yesterday and President Harvey is expected to go on to Chicago in search of more material.

Records show that Carlson varied with his work in the National league. His high mark was .519 and his low record .333. He averaged around 3 earned runs per game during his career in the big show. Bits of his record follow:

Year	Games	Won	Lost	Pct.	Earned Runs

NEW GEMS BY O. HENRY

A Treasure Trove of Humor From His Newly Discovered Newspaper Writings.

A MATTER OF DIRECTION.

"Do you mean to tell me," gasped the horrified gentlemen from Boston, "that this man you speak of was shot and killed at a meeting of your debating society, and by the presiding officer himself, during the discussion of a question, simply because he arose and made a motion that was considered out of order?"

"He certainly was, sir," said the colonel.

"This is simply awful," said the traveler. "I must make a note of this occurrence so that the people of my state can be apprised of the dreadful lawlessness that prevails in this section—a man shot down and killed at a social and educational meeting for the infringement of an unimportant parliamentary rule. It is awful to contemplate."

"That's whatever," said the colonel reflectively. "It is for a fact. But you might state, in order to do justice to our community town, which is, as it were, the Athens of Texas, that the motion made by the deceased was in the direction of his hip pocket.

Nothing to Say.

"You can tell your paper," the great man said,
"I have refused an interview,
I have nothing to say on the question, sir
Nothing to say to you."

And then he talked till the sun went down
And the chickens went to roost;
And he seized the coat of the poor news man
And never his hold he loosed.

And the sun went down and the moon came up,
And he talked till the dawn of day;
Though he said, "on this subject mentioned by you,
I have nothing whatever to say."
And down the reporter dropped to sleep,
And flat on the floor he lay;
And the last he heard was the great man's words;
"I have nothing whatever to say."

FRIENDS NOTICED IMPROVEMENT

Wonderful Results from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bethel, Wis.—My female trouble was brought on by overwork. I had worked in stores and had to do heavier work than my strength could stand, and had to be on my feet most of the time. Finally I had to give up this work entirely and stay at home. Doctor's medicine did not give me much relief, and my mother wanted me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took a couple of bottles of it and thought it did not help me as much as it should, so I gave it up to try something else. Nothing I took helped me much, so I finally decided to give the Vegetable Compound another trial and to take enough of it to make sure it would help me. I have taken it over a year now and it has brought wonderful results. I have gained from 93 to 110 pounds and am keeping house now. My friends all notice the change in my health. I will be glad to answer all letters that women write to me about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. G. MONSON, 1515 Park Ave., Beloit, Wis.

STOCK PRICES SWING UPWARD

Recovery Considered Correction Of Oversold Condition

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 23.—Prices continued their upward course at the opening of todays stock market in response to further short covering and a moderate amount of new buying attracted by the recent low prices. The recovery, while generally regarded as a correction of an oversold condition, undoubtedly was aided by the statement of the advisory council of the federal reserve board setting forth that business conditions were sound and that there was no immediate prospect of an increase in federal reserve bank rates.

The rally was checked in the late dealings, however, by another bear attack on the steel shares which was founded on the announcement that the claim of the Bethlehem Steel corporation for $8,500,000 alleged to be due under wartime contracts had been tentatively disapproved by the shipping boards claims committee. Bethlehem Steel dropped to 52, a new low record for the year, and then moved back to 52½, where it was off 1½ on the day. The general level of closing prices was higher than that of yesterday, although the volume of sales, was considerably lower.

The weekly steel and iron trade reviews report no change in that situation, but emphasize that the test of prices is ahead and that the falling off of structural work as well as in oil field drilling will be factors.

California Petroleum was one of the outstanding strong spots, touching 104 5-8 and then easing off to 100 7-8 where it was up four points on the day. The ready absorption of all offerings of this stock indicated accumulation by important interests. Some good buying was noted in Marland Oil, which crossed 47 and then eased off to 46½, up 2 on the day.

Call money opened and renewed at 5¾ percent, but softened to 4½ before the close. The demand for time money continues quiet with occasional maturities up to four months arranged at 5 percent, bankers asking 5 1-4 for the longer dates. New commercial paper is being received in fair amount, the bulk of the prime names commanding 5 percent.

Trading in the foreign exchange was quiet with the continued continental selling causing a slight drop in some of the principals. Sterling held fairly steady around $4.63 and French francs around 6.66 cents. Norwegian kronen dropped 10 points to 16.05 cents, a new low. German marks advanced slightly to .0019 cents.

COFFEE MARKET.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 23.—The market for coffee futures was very quiet again today. The close was a little off from the best on near months, but was five to 15 points net higher on others. Sales were estimated at about 7,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 10.05; July 9.38; September 8.44; December 8.08; March 8.00; May 1924, 7.95.

Spot coffee quiet: Rio 7s 11 5-8 to 11½; Santos 4s 14½ to 15.

COTTON SEED OIL.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 23.—Demand from May shorts combined with light pit offerings lifted cotton seed oil early, but the subsequent break in other commodity markets and in Wall street resulted in scattered liquidation and final bids showed net losses of 6 to 15 points sales 7,400 barrels. Prime crude 9.75@10.00; prime summer yellow spot 11.00; May 12.00; July 11.33; September 11.08, all bid.

WHEAT DECLINES ON SPECULATION

Market Unsteady At Close; Half to One-Fourth Cent Off

CHICAGO, May 23.—Wheat declined in value today chiefly owing to lack of speculative interest and to slowness of export demand. The market closed unsteady, half to 1 1-4 cents lower, with July 1.17½ to 1.17 5-8 and September 1.15 3-8 to 1.15½. Corn lost 5-8 to 1 1-8, oats 1-8 to 3-8 cents, and provisions 2 to 12 cents.

Notwithstanding reports of decreased acreage in the northwest and of crop deterioration in the southwest, the wheat market failed to develop any aggressive buying and prices finished at almost the bottom figures of the day.

Talk of probable enlarged arrivals of corn here from Iowa had some bearish effect on the corn market. Prices, however, were steadied by a good export demand in the late trading. Oats followed corn.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provisions market.

Rainfall Frequent Throughout Belt During Past Week

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The weekly crop and weather bureau issued today by the department of agriculture for the week ending May 22 covers the southern field as follows:

The first half of the week was generally cool in the cotton growing states, but the latter half was somewhat warmer; the temperature for the week as a whole averaged two or three below normal, except in much of Texas, where the weekly rains were normal or slightly above. Rainfall was frequent in nearly all sections of the belt, in most of Texas rainfall was heavy in many localities. The week was decidedly unfavorable for cotton because of wet weather and cool nights, except that fairly favorable conditions prevailed in most of Texas and in the Carolinas. Weevils were appearing in the Lower Grande Valley region of Texas, where cotton is blooming.

This represented a recovery of not less than 387 points from the low levels reached on the decline earlier in the month, and evidently attracted heavy realizing. CORPUS CHRISTI, May 23.—Willie LaRue, charged with having improper relations with 11-year-old Mary Cavender, was given a sentence of 15 years at hard labor in the penitentiary by the jury in the criminal district court of Nueces county. Trial was concluded late Monday and the jury was out all night before the verdict was returned.

LaRue received his sentence from Judge A. W. Cunningham, waiving all right to a motion for a new trial or to an appeal of his case to the higher courts.

Eleven-year-old Mary Cavender was the only witness used by the state in the case Monday, while LaRue, his mother and a number of character witnesses were placed on the stand by the defense.

State's attorneys had asked for the death penalty for the defendant, while LaRue, pleading guilty to the indictment charge against him, had asked for a suspended sentence.

How to build up your Weight

Increase your Red-Blood-Cells. That's the sure way; S.S.S. builds Blood-Cells; this means strength!

Do you know why insurance companies refuse to insure a great many men because they are under weight? Simply because to be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus energy, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Hollow cheeks fill out. You stop being a calamity-looker. You inspire confidence. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them. Take S. S. S. It contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size is more economical.

Only well-developed, healthy men and women enjoy the best in life.

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again

TRAFFIC BLOCKS FIRE FIGHTERS

Fire Whistle Will Be Silenced To Prevent Crowds

In an effort to combat the growing menace of congested traffic around fires, Chief McClure has issued instructions that the fire whistle on the Denver roundhouse be silenced. With this strident information bureau as to the location of a blaze elimipated, the chief hopes to be able to get fire-fighting equipment to the scene of necessary action before a dozen or so carloads of inquisitive ones arrive at the same place.

"Unless we could beat them to it, it was next to impossible to get to a fire," Chief McClure declared Wednesday. He then went on to point out motorists listened to the whistle's alarm, consulted their fire cards, and set out in that direction, getting in the way of the trucks, hindering the stringing of hose and causing themselves to be a general nuisance to the firemen.

At a recent fi , breaking out after midnight, Chief McClure said that a number of autos reached the blaze before the fire department and were then hemmed in by the leads of hose strung to the blaze. When they tried to get away, the only routes lay over the hose. Several hundred feet was thus ruined.

It is to combat such troubles as these that the fire whistle is to be eliminated.

NEGRO MAY LIVE

Eddie Doty, negro, who was seriously injured last Friday night on the Henrietta road in the same automobile accident in which Carter B. Rahl was killed, showed an improvement last night for the first time since the time of the accident, according to reports from the General Hospital. The injured man is suffering from a fractured skull and for the first time since the accident was able to converse yesterday.

Family Row Over Use Of Car Aired In Court

A family fight that ended when the feminine element thereof took a shot at her lesser half because he remonstrated with her about using the automobile, caused most of the excitement in the city police court session Wednesday morning. Other business taken up included the assessing of fines against a few vags and traffic violators.

The shooting scrape took place sometime after midnight Tuesday, the woman said, but resulted in no damage being done. Both participants were fined $10 each on charges of disturbing the peace.

Free Aerial Ride For Holders Of Fidelty Policies

Policy-holders of the United Fidelity Life Insurance company in Wichita Falls an dother west Texas towns will have an opportunity of enjoying air flights as the guests of the company, according to announcement of plans made recently.

It is the plan of the company to visit Wichita Falls early next week, with D. Eeasly Waggoner, vice-president and general manager, and A. R. Epperson, field superintendent, flying the "United Speed Boy," the plane used by the company in reaching policy holders in rush time to pay policies.

The plan, which is in line with the company's system of keeping in touch with policy holders, is that all policy holders who desire may have flights free. Towns visited will be Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Electra, Vernon, Breckenridge and Kirkland. The plane will arrive in Wichita Falls next week, the exact date to be announced later according to J. B. Blaylock, local manager of the company.

Youthful Wayfarers, 7 and 9, Motor And Hoof It Here From Childress

What was probably the youngest pair of wayfarers that ever hit the long trail in these parts landed in Wichita Falls Wednesday morning, a bit weary after a trip by auto, wagon and on foot from Childress. Their ultimate distination, Dallas, was still a long way off, but that made no difference. Their mother was at the other end of the line and it was a real "get there or bust" spirit that was displayed by the youngsters.

The boys were Vaugon and W. G. Buster, aged 7 and 9 years, respectively, and they said they wanted to see their mother, Mrs. Mary Buster, at Dallas. They left Childress yesterday morning before noon, they said, rode part of the way to Vernon in a car, walked from there to Harrold and were then picked up by a man passing in a wagon.

They said they spent the night with the stranger and then came on to Wichita Falls, arriving here about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

It developed that the boys had once lived in this city and had relatives and friends here. Once in the city, they went straight to the home of George Dobson, city street superintendent, and were later taken to the home of an uncle, Oscar Sturman, 1617 Elizabeth. Their mother was notified of the youngster's escapade and is coming for them.

That boys of this age, and both are small, should start out on such a trip and come as near succeeding as they did, created considerable interest in their case among those who heard of it here.

Off again, on again, Finegan—City hall reports we're without a dog catcher again for the time being.

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, is expected back today from the West Texas chamber of commerce convention at San Angelo.

A new Ford coupe went wandering during the height of the storm and ended up in R. O. Harvey's front yard at Tenth and Brook. It wasn't hurt—much.

After waiting patiently for a month for some new parts for the No. 3 fire truck, wrecked recently, the fire department has straightened up the old ones and put them back in service.

Walter Cline and Mrs. Cline and the little Clines, leave today for Louisiana plantation. Mr. Cline goes on to Washington and then back home, while his family remains for the summer.

Wichita Falls graduates from the small town class, Chief of Police Hodgins believes. Traffic cops and everything on the street corners promises some high tone stuff.

EXTRA! METEOR FOUND

W. G. Rucktashel, route 5, Nocona, postcards as follows: In regard to meteor which was seen Sunday. It was observed to fall in north Montague county, close to the Williams well. R. A. Cunningham says he knows the spot where it fell. We of the oil fraternity think it is a good location for a well.

Johnnie Upchurch, civil engineer of Montgomery and Ward, local engineering firm, has gone to Leonard, Texas, to supervise some installation work of a sewer system.

Jennie May McLeRoy, Dallas girl who established a marathon dancing record here, writes friends she is leaving for St. Louis to win a $5,000 grand prize in a national marathon dance if she doesn't "drop dead" in her attempt. Her sister is now in a marathon at Ranger, Texas.

Margaret, 14-year-old daughter of A. M. McPherson, brought her father a hail stone which went through an automobile top during yesterday's storm. The pellet was compared to a half dollar, but the coin failed to cover it by half an inch.

T. P. Duncan, general manager of the Wichita Falls Mill and Elevator, left yesterday for Fort Worth to attend a meeting of grain men to discuss methods of handling this year's wheat crop. He is representing shippers of this section in the conference.

And now the Lions club proposes a zoo for Wichita Falls. Some brilliant minds of the organization offered to stock it the first day when the matter was brought up for discussion, but the stock consisted mostly of rattlesnakes, prairie dogs, mosquitoes and mice.

Guy Jones, county farm agent, is willing to take oath that Texas weather is the most marvelous in the world. He says one could see the line on the Iowa Park road paving Wednesday afternoon where the rain stopped and the dry spots began.

A pleasant remedy for reducing is suggested by writing the names of luncheon guests backward on the place cards and let 'em hunt for their plates at a long banquet table. One guest at a recent local affair, hinted that she walked several miles in a short length of time in this way, the exercise proving beneficial as well as enjoyable.

HELPS

Trials, temptations, disappointments, all these are helps instead of hindrances, if one uses them rightly. They not only test the fibre of character, but strengthen it. Every conquered temptation represents a new fund of moral energy. Every trial endured, if weathered in the right spirit, makes a soul nobler and stronger than it was before.—James Buckham.

Then She Dozed Again Our "Oh Henry" Special

In the midst of the hail storm yesterday afternoon, a pretentious sedan crept up to the curb on Indiana avenue piloted by a bobbed-haired little miss of the flapper age.

Terror was plainly written on her pretty face as the hail stones crashed against the windows of the car. As the wind grew stronger and the icy missels came down with ever increasing force and size, the youthful motorist was observed to relax from the tense posture she had kept. She grew motionless.

Presently, who had been driven to cover in a store, became uneasy at the girl's actions. One gallant "Launcelot" rushed into the fury of the storm regardless of the havoc it would play upon his Valentino trousers, tore open the door and wildly shook the motionless maiden.

Quickly she came out of the coma and with a very bored look, drawled, "What in the dickens did you wake me up for? It's still hailing."

Foltz spoke at the Baptist church in behalf of the disabled soldiers of the World war, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion will hold a poppy sale in the business section Saturday. The proceeds of the sale will be used to purchase games and photographs for the entertainment of disabled veterans in army hospitals, and to assist in the maintaining of welfare workers in the camp.

TRAFFIC COPS GO ON CORNERS

They Will Be Stationed In Business Section Of Town

Traffic cops stationed at the intersections of all the principal downtown corners are included in plans for a rearrangement of traffic conditions now being made by Chief of Police George Hodgins. The complete list of changes must be submitted to the city council for approval before it is put in effect, Chief Hodgins states, but he has announced that the traffic cop feature is to be included in the list.

Attempts have been made at various other times to establish a system of traffic regulation through such officers. Chief Hodgins, believes, however, that the traffic situation here now is sufficiently congested to warrant such regulation and he proposes to at least test out the idea thoroughly to ascertain whether or not it is feasible.

COBB RESTS EASY

Reports from the hospital last night said that E. C. Cobb, who narrowly escaped fatal injury Wednesday at noon when he was caught in the elevator at the J. I. Staley building, was resting easily and would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Mr. Cobb was attempting to alight from the elevator car on the ground floor when the car started upward and he was caught between the car and the elevator facing, causing him to be badly bruised about the head. A defect in the control of the car was responsible for the accident and it was necessary to turn off the current before the car could be stopped.

'Y' CAMPAIGN HERE HALTED

Action Will Await Completion of Y. M. C. A. Drive

A proposed drive for a new Y. M. C. A. for Wichita Falls has been temporarily discontinued, it was announced Wednesday, until such time as the Y. W. C. A. campaign is completed.

Plans for the Y. M. C. A. had been in process of formation for some time following the visit of a district representative and it was expected that some definite action on the matter would soon be taken.

With the announcement, however, that the local Y. W. C. A. was to launch its drive for building funds, those sponsoring the other movement concluded that it would be better to wait until this was over.

FISH FOR LAKE

The first shipment of fish with which to stock the main storage lake of the irrigation project arrived in the city Wednesday from the state fish hatcheries at Dallas and were immediately taken to the big dam and released. Sixteen huge cans of bass comprised the shipment.

Other consignments from both state and federal hatcheries are expected from time to time by irrigation officials and it is planned to make the big lake one of the most attractive fishing spots in this section of the state.
