Rain to 3 Inches Breaks Midsummer Drouth

The county's mid-summer drouth broke Saturday, August 17 as rain fell in scattered points through the area, followed on Monday night by still more rain.

The moisture is still spotted and a general August rain the county always gets lies ahead, but almost every part of the county has received some rainfall to boost cotton and feed crops.

Communities on opposite sides of the area, Marella and Arlie, got the heaviest falls, around two inches, and Lone Mound, on the north side of the county, had three.

The rainfall also broke the heat wave that has seen temperatures climb above 100 degrees for most of the days during the last month.

Wellington measured .71 in. during the week. Northeast of town, however, in the Bean Hill section, only .3 inch fell. From one-half to two inches fell in the general Dodson area, Ed Crowder reported.

Tom Birchfield, northwest of that town, got 1.25 inch, south of town down the Hollis road, moisture measured from 1.5 to 1.9. It was lighter on toward Hollis and also northeast of Dodson. A good rain fell about three miles due west of town.

At Arlie, John Sherman received 1.8 inches in a short time Saturday afternoon and T. Wyrick has had 1.97 since Friday.

Crops were reported good throughout that section.

Samnorwood measured .7 in., but southwest of there two or three miles, around two inches fell, Cecil Brown reported.

Lutie received .6 according to Ernest Rountree, and about the same amount fell east and northeast of there. West of Lutie about three miles, two inches was reported.

Around an inch fell south of Lutie on Salt Fork.

James Throckmorton said Dozier received .8 but north of there, Lone Mound got the heaviest fall reported in the county, three inches.

Abra community received an inch and a half and the Sam Seago farm east of Dozier measured 1.25.

Quail received around .4 on Monday night, Mrs. G. T. Stephens told The Leader. West of there, however, Delbert White and the Wilson and Allen ranches received around an inch.

1.7 and 1.8 was measured at the James Ross and Fred Bourland ranches west of Marella. Monty Mitchell reported .9 east of Marella.

ROADSIDE PARK IS MIDDLE OF TEXAS

A roadside park some twenty miles north of Brady on US 377 is the geographical center of Texas.

It will be so designated when the Highway Commission erects a brilliant aluminum "Heart of Texas" marker.

Other $600 aluminum markers are scheduled for Pilot Knob in Travis county, location of the state's only exposed submarine volcano; the Llano Estacado in Garza county; and Old Tascosa in Oldham county. The latter is famed for its Boot Hill Cemetery.

Commission figures each marker will earn more than 10 times its original cost in added tourist revenues.

The County Fair Is Us — Let's Put it on With Pride

Developments for Collingsworth County's sixth Free Fair are shaping up well, and all indications are that this will be one of the outstanding county fairs in this part of the state for the 1963 season.

It is at this point that the Fair is our job. Its success lies in the participation of the people of the county in its many divisions. We have the quality products, in spite of dry weather, for an outstanding event. Our getting these products there is what it will take.

We feel the heat, but when we look at our crops, they are good. Outstanding specimen are to be found in some part of the county for every class of the agricultural division.

By the same token our other divisions can be as outstanding . . . whether it is a Youth Project Show pig a piece of art.

The two horse shows are truly outstanding. The Quarterhorse show is approved by the American Quarterhorse Association and the Appaloosa show by the Texas Appaloosa Association.

These mention events at random. Besides the Fair itself, there will be the related events . . . the Old Settlers Reunion . . . a beauty contest . . . a square dance . . . a style show . . . a terrapin race . . . a barbecue . . . a carnival and of course the big parade that opens the whole thing.

Beyond a doubt, the 1963 edition of the Fair is one big showcase of the wealth and productivity of Collingsworth!

Now there is more money, but the old idea of thrift has been abandoned . . . Of course the example for all of this is set by government, which insists that it must spend, regardless of resources. Government says it's all right to let the national debt pile up; just borrow more money for what is being purchased this year and to pay the interest on what was borrowed.—Pittsburgh, Pa., Liberty Ledger.

Profits . . . are the keystone of the American economy, although since the early days of the New Deal there has been a persistent effort to denigrate them. Without profits, no capital investment. Without capital investment, no jobs, no dividends or interest. In the long run, no tax revenues. —Dunsmuir, Calif. News.

In view of national surpluses for many basic food crops, it seems that unified withdrawal of new reclamation would be in order. —Ontario, Ore., Argus-Observer.

It was the Ford car that first carried us from the country to the city, from the city to the country. It carried a man to see his neighbor, a boy to see a girl, and whole families to see places once hidden by horizons. It became, in short, a part of life, and its ignition key became the key to an unprecedented personal freedom—Ford Times.

LOOKING AHEAD

by Dr. George S. Benson

LISTING THE CULPRITS

Some of the columnists, including Edith K. Roosevelt, have been looking into the background, activities and apparent intentions of a so-called "educational" and "research" organization that has been operating for more than a year in Washington, D.C.

Columnist Roosevelt became interested in this "educational" and "non-profit" organization, Group Research, Inc., when she discovered that it held a dossier on her with information that she had "discussed the folly of shipping foreign aid to India."

She found, despite an icy reception and orders to leave the premises, that listed along with her was an eminent company of writers, scholars and educators of world renown. These included Dr. William Roepke, the widely respected conservative scholar who helped keep the West German economy free for an amazing postwar economic recovery.

Others having to do with Young Americans for Freedom and publications like Modern Age, a scholarly but conservative journal, were fully disoriented.

The Usual Smear

An office chart, she related, listed a dozen organizations opposed to Communism, such as the Farm Bureau Federation, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, and even Harding College. Above the list were found such smear labels as "racism," "book-burners," "bogey-of-inflation—the balanced budget," "pro-military," "anti-Cuban extremists," "anti-semitism," "anti-medicare," "states rights primitives," and "anti-federal aid to education."

She also found some of the officials of Group Research Inc.

to be presently or formerly associated with the National Farmers Union and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Certainly the latter is known as vigorously opposing anything that looks like dossiers on fellow-travelers or pro-Communists. An official, asking her to leave, explained that the organization did not want publicity. We can understand why. Open and free discussion is not in this group's best interests.

Uses of Democracy

It now develops that among the best customers of Group Research Inc., is labor's Committee on Political Education, and other labor union publications. COPE has in fact urged labor officials to use this outfit's materials to "head off" and "dry up" anything that looks like "right-wing" or "extremist" activity before any damage is done.

It urges preventive action "to alert democratic groups to the possibility of trouble."

This democratic approach calls for smearing and discrediting conservative speakers and writers before they have had a chance to have their say.

M. Stanton Evans, writing in "The National Review" has reported a few examples of the use of this material by "liberal" figures in Congress, mostly involving attacks on conservative groups and individuals, such as Americans for Constitutional Action and the publication "Human Events."

He points out that its findings are being put to political uses, that it freely uses the guilt-by-association techniques, and that it is far less educational than many of the groups it calls "extremist."

Who Is Behind It?

Earlier, Mr. Evans said of Group Research, Inc.: "A nationwide blitz is underway via all available media to expose conservatives as the minions of 'hate.' He who opposes statism at home and appeasement abroad is to be portrayed as the familiar anti-Semites, blackhearted tormentors of school teachers, and devotees of the anonymous phone call. The effort is being made to connect all conservatives and anti-Communists with the most deranged specimens of political eccentricity and so to bring them all down in common ruin."

One wonders if it is mere accident that this activity is synchronized so well with other efforts to smear anti-Communist activity and to dry up interest and financial support for any effective anti-Red groups.

It may not be a mere coincidence that this and other developments have come about since the November 1960 summit conference at Moscow of the 81 Communist parties throughout the world, including Gus Hall and the American communists, who got their orders there to enlist every resource in battling anti-Communism.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I note that public life is pretty burdensome at times, like Supreme Court Justice Douglas coming back from winter duty in the Constitutional jungle to find his wife getting a divorce.

Seems like a man doing a real conscientious job in the Governor business or the Justice business may be cramped for time to keep his home fences in repair.

And, most likely due to his being so busy with deep thinking, after Justice Douglas' earlier wife liberated him, it took him three or four days to find another one, and then he had to settle for one of the grand-daughterly type.

I see a news picture in the papers which shows Mr. Averell Harriman and Mr. Khrushchev happily hugging each other after making their deal to slow down the cold war.

Of course this is the up-to-date diplomatic etiquette for occasions where it is desired to show the bonehead public that everything is now hunky-dory.

My backwardist neighbor says maybe the North and the South wouldn't be digging up the Civil War over and over, if General Grant and General Lee had gone into a jovial clinch when they closed it down.

I see where the Department of the Interior is spending $27,500 to find out if National Park visitors last year feel like they didn't see enough bears, or saw too many bears, or saw about the right amount of bears.

My fact-addict neighbor says this could work into an annual project, as the tourists' taste for bears may fluctuate from year to year.

And he figures another good idea for the disposal of surplus money would be a survey on whether the bears are satisfied with the number of tourists they see.

I see where there is still some worrying being done about how our national deficit hit such a slump last year, and only got up to $6.2 billion where as we were shooting for $8.8 billion.

Our Head Economicspert Mr. Heller says a planned deficit is a deficit of strength, so obviously a slipped deficit shows our economy is getting weaker.

My career deadbeat neighbor says he leaves a bigger deficit every place he moves away from, and reckons this makes him very strong economically, as he always plans it that way.

LIQUOR AND TOBACCO INPUT UP

Texas State Treasurer Jesse James reports that July revenue from cigarette, liquor and wine stamps was almost $1,000,000 above June's $8,600,000 take.

County Man Enters Army

The following registrants were forwarded to the Armed Forces Induction Station on Aug. 7 by Texas Local Board No. 20 serving Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Hall and Briscoe counties. These registrants were to be inducted into the Army.

Charles D. Strange, Silverton; Danny Ray Lee, Memphis; Raymond Eugene Fike, Wellington.

Holland Sells Registered Bull

R. J. Holland of Dodson has reported the sale of a registered Horned Hereford bull to James H. Taliaferro of Pine Bluff, Ark.

Holland is one of the pioneer Hereford breeders of the Collingsworth county area.

Return From Nation's Capitol

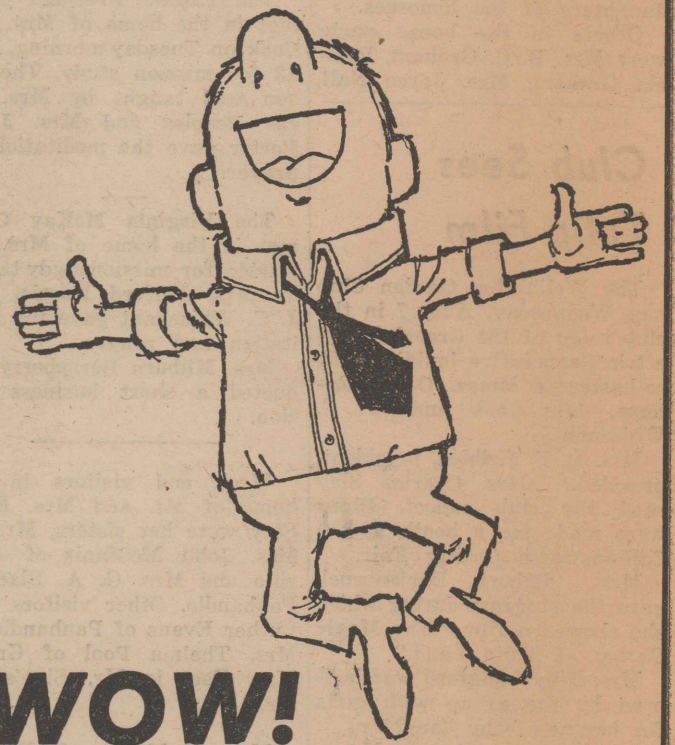

Mrs. Bessie Winters returned recently from a trip that took her to Washington, D.C., with stops at other points of interest en route.

She accompanied her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Winters and sons, Larry, Freddy and Kelly of Fort Worth.

Winters, a Prudential Insurance salesman, won the trip to the company's national convention in Washington. They visited all major points of interest in the Capital city.

The trip to and from Washington took them as far north as Illinois and Iowa and as far south as Mississippi and Arkansas.

Recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hunt were their children, Mrs. Maurine Carmen and children of Warner Robins, Georgia; Mrs. Betty Conant and children, Roanoke, Virginia; Mrs. Billye Sue Houchins, Altus Oklahoma and Randolph Hunt, Plainview.

NEWS LETTER

from Congressman
WALTER ROGERS

SPENDING IS BEING SUBSTANTIALLY CUT

Congress is making a fair record this year in reducing government spending. Spending is being substantially cut, although I have been on the losing side of several efforts to bring even larger reductions.

The latest tally of House appropriations actions shows that the House had pared $3,378,212,726 from budget requests totaling $72,780,351,251 — or about three-fourths of the total amount to be appropriated before the session ends.

The Nation's defenses require two-thirds of the $69 billion approved. The House voted $47,082,009,000 in one defense appropriation bill. Other defense money bill will raise the total being spent this year to approximately $53 billion.

That $47 billion appropriation for the Defense Department was cut by nearly $2 billion from the original budget request. The remaining $1.3 billion slash in government expenditures was made all along the line.

Not a single appropriations bill escaped without some cutting. To show you how massive was the sum appropriated for the Defense Department compared with sums for other governmental departments, I cite to you these totals approved in other House bills:

For the Treasury and Post Office Departments, $5,997,026,000; for the Labor Department and Department of Health, Education and Welfare $5,449,981,000; for the Departments of State, Justice and Commerce and to maintain the Judiciary $1,851,269,000; for the Interior Department $922,625,200.

There are still several major appropriations measures to be acted upon. It is possible that when the actions are completed the budget will have been cut by $5 or $6 billion. Those of us in the Congress who work for substantial but realistic budget cuts may be able to note some real accomplishments before the year is out.

One of the big annual appropriations battles is shaping. It's the fight that comes each year over the Foreign Assistance Program — foreign aid. The first round ended when the House Foreign Relations Committee reported a foreign aid AUTHORIZATION bill calling for a ceiling on expenditures of approximately $4.1 billion.

This is about half a billion dollars less than the President recommended in his revised request. The bill would not provide the appropriation — only the authorization for one. Thus, foreign aid must cross hurdles in House and Senate action on both authorization and appropriation bills. I predict that cuts will come.

I have consistently opposed foreign aid — both authorization and appropriation bills.

Foreign aid was sold to the American people and the Congress as a weapon to help the United States and the free world stand against communism in underdeveloped nations.

Every American would wholeheartedly support such an admirable purpose. My quarrel with foreign aid is that as a weapon it has been entirely too costly for the results it has produced.

The proof of this is so very obvious in many parts of the world where underdeveloped nations have been the victims of communist infiltration. Our defense spending obviously HAS been effective in the Cold War. Despite my opposition to foreign aid, there is little doubt that it will be approved by the Congress. The reason is that it has wide support in both political parties and by American big business and labor.

The support of the latter two groups is undoubtedly due to the fact that 80% of the dollars spent on foreign aid remain in the United States — and constitute a giant subsidy to both big business and labor.

I have received a number of inspiring letters on the topic "I Say YES! To America," the subject of what I hesitate to call a "contest." The purpose is to encourage patriotic expression, to encourage Panhandle citizens to think deeply and then express their feelings about their country. To each person who writes a letter I will send booklets explaining our legislative process and aspects of our government.

To those who write the five best letters in four age categories — grade school, junior and senior high school and adult — I will send books containing inaugural addresses of all U.S. Presidents and explaining communism and the menace it poses.

First place winners will receive U.S. flags which have been flown over the Capitol. Letters should be postmarked by midnight, Aug. 25. I have had some wonderful letters — and several that sadden me, such as the one from a resident who wrote: "I have nothing to be proud of in America. I am ashamed to the core."

I liked these two sentences from another letter: "Old Glory will continue to wave. Free men, in the sight of God, will have it no other way."

Highway Dept. Struggles With Grass Problems

AUSTIN.—A research program is helping the Texas Highway department solve two contradictory problems: How to make grass grow better, and how to keep it from growing at all.

Plant scientists from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Transportation Institute at Texas A&M College are working with the department's engineers and landscape architects on such problems.

They are studying improved planting materials and techniques to establish vegetation. Permanent vegetation is needed along highway roadides to keep soil from washing on deep cuts, high fills and ditches. It also curbs wind erosion, while serving a safety function in delineating the edge of the highway.

At the same time researchers are seeking better ways to prevent growth of grass and weeds on paved shoulders. Unchecked growth of Bermuda grass and other plants can cut the life expectancy of paved road shoulders from 20 down to 3 years.

Varied soils and climates of Texas require a wide variety of plants for roadside erosion control. Range and pasture grasses like green sprangletop and buffelgrass are being tested for use as highway plantings instead of slower-germinating Bermuda grass, which to now has been commonly employed alongside Texas highways.

As better grasses are developed by agricultural scientists, especially for drier regions, they will continue to be tested for planting under highway conditions.

The cooperative research effort on grasses doesn't fore-shadow replacement of colorful roadside flowers now enjoyed by travelers in Texas. To the contrary, the trend is toward even greater use of many kinds of landscaping plants for safety — they reduce driver fatigue — as well as beauty.

Nevertheless, plants which invade and grow within paved areas of highways are a costly nuisance for engineers and maintenance personnel.

Thursday, August 15, 1963
THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER

Cooperative research has pointed the highway department to the use of several agricultural herbicides to prevent growth of grass and weeds through pavements.

Viewed either way, the two-sided problem of plants along highways is a grassroots one. Today's research points to ultimate solutions which will result in better, more economical and safer highways for Texans on the go.

In Computer Age

PIGEONS HELP TEACH UT ENGINEERING STUDENTS

AUSTIN.—University of Texas mechanical engineering students, educated in an age of computers and reactors, are working with a covey of far more humble research tools — pigeons.

Under the direction of Dr. B. H. Amstead, the sophomores are training the birds to inspect mass-produced parts.

The project is aimed at teaching engineering students "to think creatively about new ways to solve human problems," Dr. Amstead said. He pointed out that the trend toward specialized research has sometimes led engineers to forget that "their purpose is to help people."

The pigeons perform their chores in a small wooden box known as a "work station." Through a window in the box they view pennies mounted on a revolving wheel.

The pennies represent mass-produced parts. Most of them are mounted with "heads" showing, signifying good parts, but a few others show "tails" and are the equivalent of parts with flaws.

The pigeons' job is to sort the "bad" from the "good." When a bird sees a part with a flaw it pecks a reject switch. As a reward a few grains of food are dispensed automatically to the hard-working pigeon. If, however, the pigeon errs and pecks the reject switch when a good part is in view, the bird is punished by 20 seconds of darkness in the inspection booth. Unlike some of its human counterparts, the pigeon is upset by such work stoppage.

After training, the pigeons work with a high percentage of accuracy, Dr. Amstead reports. No long-range statistics have been compiled, however, since the project only began during the 1962-63 Long Session.

Dr. Amstead, who is mechanical engineering professor and assistant dean of the College of Engineering, noted the advantages of using pigeons for research. The four feathered workers were purchased for only $1.50 each. They are inexpensive to feed (food and water are supplied in the birds' cages by an automatic device controlled by a timer) and easy to train. They are long-lived (about 20 years) and possess good vision. And perhaps most important of all, the pigeons' nervous systems are simple and they are not as prone to breakdowns as machines.

UT Publication Gets Honor

AUSTIN.—"Basic Information on The University of Texas," a developmental and financial reference manual, has won an award in the 1963 honors competition of the American College Public Relations Association.

The manual, prepared by the development board for distribution to university administrative officials and development leaders, was one of two college entries judged "best" in a management-of-programs category.

James S. Triolo, development board executive director, serves on the ACPR board of trustees and recently was elected to the association's executive committee.

Motorists Urged to Observe Zoning

AUSTIN.—The Texas Safety Association urges motorists to observe speed zoning, especially when traveling in unfamiliar areas. Roads and streets which have been zoned "down" for maximum limits are not safe if traveled at greater speeds. Zoning is done for protection—not for annoying drivers.

Don Roark, Lynn McClain, Craig Bergvall and Bryan Hatch spent the week end at Six Flags Over Texas, near Arlington, and in Denton.

REFORM SCHOOL GRADUATES PROBLEM

AUSTIN.—Texas Youth Council's parole division will triple in the next six months or so. But the problem of trying to help "reform school" graduates become useful citizens is still great.

Until Sept. 1 five state parole officers are responsible for some 1800 juvenile parolees spread over 169 counties. That's a ratio of one parole officer to about 357 parolees, compared to national standards of one officer to 40 parolees.

Staff will increase to ten on Sept. 1—a ratio of one to 178. On March 1, 1964 when five more are added, ratio will be down to one parole officer to 119 persons, spread over the Lone Star state.

Biggest number of parolees is centered in big cities where the general rate of crime is always higher. More than a third of the paroled children are in Dallas, Harris and Bex-

Food Needs Change With Age, Activity

A high degree of expert salesmanship is required to get people to change and improve their eating habits, an Iowa nutritionist told Human Nutrition Workshop participants at Texas A&M College.

"These needs are constantly changing," she said.

Dr. Ercel Eppright, who taught in three Texas universities prior to going to Iowa State University at Ames, said that people consider food a highly personal matter and they resist change. Techniques for teaching nutrition were described by the educator.

She emphasized that people need to adjust their food habits to their ages and degrees of activity—and these changes must be made throughout one's life span.

Dr. Eppright said doctors and nutritionists are more successful in motivating highly deficient or ill persons to improve their eating habits than in convincing those who are apparently well, but who may be deficient in several food areas.

"Many people are complacent," she said, "because the people of the United States are considered the best fed group in the world, and certainly we should be. But how do we relate our nutrition program to the high incidence of heart disease among our men, the high rate of dental caries or tooth decay among virtually all ages, and the still-too-high infant death rate?"

Mrs. Florence W. Low, assistant director for home economics with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and president of the 28,000 member American Home Economics Association, presided at the closing workshop session attended by 36 key county home demonstration agents from throughout the state.

The extension home economists will apply the nutrition teaching techniques and latest research information learned to foods and nutrition programs in their counties.

NEW ANNEXATION ACT FOR TEXAS CITIES GOES INTO EFFECT

AUSTIN.—About 200 city attorneys, city engineers and city councilmen gathered in Austin to hear a Texas municipal League explanation of the Texas Municipal Annexation Act, which is effective Aug. 23. Annexation act sets out "extraterritorial jurisdictions" dictating the extent of a city's growth in any 3-year period. For cities of less than 5,000 population, the extraterritorial area extends a half mile beyond city limits; cities 5,000 to 25,000, one mile; cities 25,000 to 50,000, two miles; cities of 50,000 to 100,000 population, three and a half miles; and cities 100,000 and up, five miles.

But a city would not have to expand all the way around its rim. It could swing arcs or "fingers" out to "desirable areas for growth," and obtain the annual area allocation of 10 per cent of its square acreage in these areas.

For example, officials of a city of 20,000 acres could annex up to 2,000 acres of "desirable" land one year; 2,200 acres the next, etc., without ever annexing undesirable new territory.

There are in the county many fine agricultural products of a quality that will enhance the Collingsworth County Free Fair says Jake Tarter, chairman of the agricultural and horticultural crops and community products division.

He reminded that it is not a day too early to begin selecting individual vegetables and fruits to be entered.

Tarter has announced the following rules and classes in which entries may be made.

Community exhibits are open to all rural communities and applications for booths must be placed with the chairman of booths and advertising, George Shadid, or with Tarter, by Aug. 29.

Drouth Resistant?

Lost Pines of Central Texas Remain a Naturalist Mystery

COLLEGE STATION.—Every plant and animal has a natural habitat and few survive for very long in conditions unfavorable to their growth. This is why the Lost Pines of Central Texas are a mystery to naturalists, says Bill Smith, extension forester at Texas A&M College.

The Lost Pines, located principally in Bastrop, Caldwell, Colorado and Fayette counties, are isolated 50 to 100 miles west of the main pine area of East Texas, he says. They are growing in areas where the annual rainfall is about 35 inches or nearly five inches less than the minimum moisture required by pines in East Texas.

One explanation for these "odd-balls" of the forest growing in scattered blocks south-east of Austin, is that many centuries ago the area had a higher rainfall which encouraged the pines' spread into Central Texas, says Smith.

When the rainfall dropped to its present level, a few of the more drouth resistant trees survived and reseeded themselves, producing the Lost Pine area.

Another idea suggests that these pines grow in soils with great water holding capacity and extended into the Austin area from East Texas. Then, by the clearing of land, the pines were left isolated in the Austin area.

Smith says that the Lost Pines played an important role in the history of Texas. Lumber from this region was used

Fire Causes Record Loss During 1962

COLLEGE STATION.—Farm fire losses in the nation during 1962 reached an all-time high of $175 million, according to estimates of the US Department of Agriculture.

This is 7% above the $163 million for 1961 and a million dollars higher than the previous record set in 1959.

The estimate, made by US DA's Economic Research Service, was based on the farm fire-loss experience of a sample of 226 farmers' mutual fire insurance companies in 27 states and on the valuation of farm buildings as furnished by the crop reporters.

The volume of insurance carried by these companies amounted to approximately $11 billion at the end of 1962, and their fire and lightning losses totaled about $16.9 million last year. For 1961 and 1962 combined, their loss rates averaged about 15 cents per $100 of insurance.

Farm fires continued to strike about two out of 100 farms each year. The "burning rate" (percent of value destroyed) for farm and rural property is about six times that for urban property, according to annual reports of state fire marshals in three midwestern states.

Buildings and their contents accounted for 85% of fire losses paid by the sample companies. Dwellings and contents accounted for 42%; barns and their contents, 27%; and other buildings including rural churches and schools, 16%.

Personal property, chiefly machinery and equipment, livestock and unstored produce, accounted for the other 15% of losses paid. About 80-90% of the losses paid on livestock were due to lightning.

ATTY-GEN. RULES ON HIGHWAY SPEEDS

Attorney General Carr has ruled that a recently passed bill by Rep. Forrest Harding of San Angelo gave the State Highway Commission authority to alter maximum speed limits. Commission could set them as high as 70 miles per hour.

Also it could set minimum speed limits on controlled access highways, whether within or without a city's limits, regardless of any speed limit set by city ordinance.

Better Harvesting

BOOKLET TELLS HOW TO GET MORE QUALITY LINT AND SEED

COLLEGE STATION.—Careful management of mechanically harvested cotton is necessary to get top quality lint and seed, a new US Department of Agriculture publication points out.

"Preserving Quality of Mechanically Harvested Cotton" (L-522) emphasizes the importance of maintaining cotton quality and says growers share with ginners the responsibility of producing top quality cotton.

This 8-page illustrated leaflet discusses cultural practices, defoliation, time of day to harvest, harvester operation, and loading trailers. Because cultural recommendations vary from area to area, the publication suggests that growers check with their State agricultural experiment station or county agent for advice on selection of varieties; insect, disease and weed control; fertilizer recommendations; and irrigation requirements.

It is important for growers to have moist cotton ginned as soon after harvest as possible, the publication says. The quality of trailer-stored seed cotton can deteriorate in one day if its moisture content is 12% or more. Other pointers include the importance of keeping harvesting equipment properly adjusted and in good operating condition.

Single copies of the leaflet, points out B. G. Reeves, cotton ginning and mechanization specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, may be obtained from Office of Information U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C.

MILLION

... has been spent

Recently published figures of industrial expansion in our service area reached a huge $28 million.

Add to that another vast expansion figure and you have an even more impressive total.

$27,000,000 was spent on new commercial construction and for expansion of existing businesses in the same time period, in the same WTU service area. This is why we say "The Center of the Southwest" is one of the Nation's fastest growing regions.

Such industrial and commercial expansion, plus civic and other improvements, strengthen our conviction that this region faces growth unlimited.
