Valley Possibilities—More Than Selling—He's Manager—So He'll Manage—

Charles Weeks, California colonization expert, is impressed with the possibilities of development in the Wichita valley, and may undertake a program for the settlement of 5000 or more acres in this area. Mr. Weeks is enthusiastic over what CAN be done here. He would be more interested if he knew what has been done in the last 20 years to transform this area from a bald prairie to one of the most productive sections of the state.

The program outlined here, that of placing several thousand acres in Mr. Weeks' hands for colonization, is the one which will eventually bring success, whether he enters into the work or passes the plan on to other persons. Centralized direction and exploitation, with commercial and civic groups in Wichita Falls giving such assistance as is needed, will bring settlers to the valley and lead to the intensive development possible here.

The long-discussed plan to colonize the Wichita valley with many small farms is unique from one angle in land development: Wichita Falls desires permanent settlers more than it desires land sales. This city and its leaders hope primarily that the men and women who come here to make new homes will succeed in their enterprise. It is this feature of the Weeks' program which makes it doubly attractive. Such a thought should guide any development undertaken here.

City Manager George D. Fairtrace takes over the operation of the city auditorium with a definite statement of policies for the future that should end the controversy that has involved the building management almost since the structure was completed. The auditorium is too valuable a part of the life of Wichita Falls to be under a cloud of suspicion or dissatisfaction, justified or unjustified. Mr. Fairtrace's policy of all contracts and operations open to the public should be eminently satisfactory to all.

To The Record News, it seems the real satisfaction to the average citizen should come from the knowledge that the city manager decided upon a course of action, then adopted it. Correctly or not, the public usually expects ACTION from a city manager. It doesn't even consider that the results of too precipitate decisions rest wholly upon the manager's head. Mr. Fairtrace warned Wichita Falls residents on his arrival that he "had no magic wand" for the city's ills, and that his decisions would be made only after he had arrived at all relevant facts in any given situation. But the average citizen, which includes this writer, expects a city manager to MANAGE, an expectation which Mr. Fairtrace leaves no doubt he intends to fulfill. —H. C. Y.

SEAL HUNTER SIGHTS PLANE OF EXPLORER

Man Tells of Seeing Lost Explorer Repairing His Wrecked Craft

REPORT INCOMPLETE

Amundsen Missing Since Flight to Rescue Nobile Party

LONDON, June 26. (US)—Roald Amundsen and his five companions are down on an ice floe southeast of Spitzbergen with a damaged plane, according to Exchange Telegraph dispatch tonight from Copenhagen. The dispatch was based on the story of an unidentified seal hunter who said he had seen the Amundsen party on the ice floe engaged in repairing the plane.

The Copenhagen dispatch stated that a telegram had been received there from Peter Freuchen, noted Danish explorer, who is now at Murmansk, announcing the report that Amundsen had been seen. According to Freuchen, the crew of a fishing boat just arrived at Murmansk said they had come across the seal hunter who reported sighting Amundsen.

The telegram from Freuchen did not explain whether the hunter had been able to communicate with the Amundsen party.

Amundsen, Lieut. Dietrichsen and Lieut. Rene Guilbaud and three French members of the French naval plane have been missing nine days after leaving Tromsoe, Norway, on a flight to Northeast land to search for the ten missing members of the crew of the dirigible Italia.

NOBILE EXPLAINS WRECK OF ITALIA

ROME, June 26. (AP)—In the opinion of General Nobile the dirigible Italia caught fire shortly after it was blown away after one of the gondolas was torn off the airship, says the official communique issued by the Italian government through the Stefani news agency this (Wednesday) morning.

Nobile said that after the dirigible in crashing against the ice cap and ripped off the gondola it drifted away a little later. Nobile and the group with him saw a small column of smoke several miles away. Nobile thought that this probably was due to a gasoline or oil tank catching fire.

Vincenzo Pomella, motor attendant, who was in the stern gondola, was crushed to death against the ice. His body was buried in the Arctic by Nobile and his companions.

NOBILE NEEDED FOR RESCUE DIRECTION

ROME, June 26. (US)—Need for General Nobile's directing hand to co-ordinate the work of the various rescue groups organized to aid survivors of the Italia disaster and the Amundsen airplane party, explains the taking off of the explorer ahead of his men, according to governmental authorities here today.

The welfare of General Nobile's companions on the ice floe, it is asserted, is assured by the supplies dropped from airplanes.

HOUSTON, June 26. (UP)—Officials of the American Federation of Labor attending the Democratic national convention here, actively engaged in promoting the candidacy of Major George L. HOUSTON, June 26. (UP)—Reports that he was about to quit his fight for the Democratic presidential nomination were denied in a formal statement tonight by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

BUSH TOO SMALL

Dry Plank Is Mere Alibi, Declares Dan Moody

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (UP)—Governor Dan Moody, predicting a dry plank in the Democratic platform, declared tonight the Republican prohibition plank for enforcement to be only an alibi.

"They are hiding behind a bush," Moody said, "and I do not believe the bush is big enough for two parties to hide behind."

If the question of an open session of the platform committee is raised, Moody said he would vote for an open session.

11 SIGN BOND FOR FATHER

Day Makes $5000 Bail In Shooting

J. T. Day, charged with assault to murder in connection with the shooting on the courthouse steps Monday afternoon of Bill Edgin was out of jail on bond of $5000 Tuesday and Bill Edgin remained in the Hargrave-Walker hospital, suffering from wounds in the groin and hip.

Eleven men of the Burkburnett and Wichita Falls area and of the Randlett, Okla., community signed the bond which released Day. The small, short Oklahoma father, refused to make any comment on the shooting.

Edgin Tells Story

Edgin, however, called a reporter to the hospital and entered a scathing denial to the story Day had told of events leading to the shooting.

Day had claimed that Edgin was responsible for the absence from home of the Oklahoman's daughter.

"He did not give me an opportunity to explain when he accosted me on the steps of the courthouse," Edgin declared. "Sunday I went to a singing convention near Burkburnett, where I once lived, and Mr. Day's daughter asked me to drive her to the house of a friend. I did as requested, leaving her at the friend's house before 10 o'clock Sunday night. I understand she is about 18 years old."

Day, who had come to Wichita Falls Monday morning looking for his daughter, told J. T. Cabe, county probation officer, that his daughter was 15 years old and had asked the assistance of Mr. Cabe and the sheriff's department in locating her.

Daughter 15, He Says

Edgin also declared that, although he was married, he and his wife had been separated for the last two years.

"I was on my way to the courthouse in response to a call from the sheriff's department at the time Mr. Day stopped me on the courthouse steps," Edgin said. "I tried to get him to step inside the building and let me explain the situation to him, but he said, 'No we'll settle this right here,' and then he started shooting."

Charles Gant, deputy sheriff, who talked to Day's daughter near her home in Oklahoma, said she told substantially the same story as Edgin.

He added that he still maintains a friendly contact with Arkansas minister as far as possible.

SINGER IS DEMO

Bowers Tells All

By WILL ROGERS

HOUSTON, June 26.—The show was called to order at 12:20, Jefferson time.

It took Clem Shaver 20 minutes of steady hammering to get order enough for them to listen to a prayer. They didn't want to listen to a prayer, it was an argument they wanted to listen to.

That's where he made his mistake. If I was chairman of a Democratic convention when I wanted it quiet, I would announce, "just one moment hyenas, if you will be quiet we will start a debate, and it has the possibilities of ending in a fight."

That will shut 'em up in a minute.

The meeting didn't hold long. It was the shortest Democratic gathering on record. Some man prayed. I didn't get his name, or political faith. But from his earnestness, I should say he was a Democrat. He not only asked for guidance, but he wisely insinuated for votes.

He read his prayers, ending with the Lodr's Prayer.

He read that too. The reason he read that, he may have had a different version of it for this occasion.

I am going to keep going to these conventions till I find a preacher that can pray from memory and practice. These that I have seen all act like it was their maiden prayers.

Well after he had finished asking for guidance and material sup-

COLONIZATION MEET TODAY

Settlement of Valley Will Be Discussed

The agricultural committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce will meet in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce this morning to work out definite plans with Charles Weeks, California small farm colonization expert, for the colonization of the Wichita Falls irrigated valley.

Plots of two, four and six acres and their multiples are favored by Mr. Weeks, who said that at least 5000 acres should be available to insure the success of the venture. It is hoped to attract 1000 new farmers to the district by this method.

Small Tracts Discussed

The value of one-acre farms and similar small plots if properly handled, was discussed by Mr. Weeks at a joint meeting of the Advertising club, the real estate board and the business council of the Chamber of Commerce at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

In speaking of his own one-acre tract in California, Mr. Weeks said: "I wouldn't take any 1000-acre or 10,000-acre farm for my little acre."

Following his talk, a resolution was adopted by the representatives of the three organizations present urging that the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce enter into negotiations with Mr. Weeks with a view to starting a colonization project here. It was suggested that 5000 acres be placed in Mr. Weeks hands for this purpose.

Marketing Important

Centralized marketing of ezes is one of the objects of the kind of colonization Mr. Weeks urges. Intensive farming is another end which he claims will react to the benefit of those who purchase the tracts.

J. A. Kemp made a short talk in which he emphasized the fact that land is cheaper here than in California and also that there are more advantages here than in California.

Fred Weeks, local attorney, said he believed Wichita Falls business men would back such a project if a man like the Californian could be obtained to put it over. Mr. Weeks said that co-operation and leadership are prime requisites in the success of such a proposition. To illustrate this he pointed out the signal success of a similar venture recently worked out by an Oklahoma City man.

Beer Raider Falls In Brew's Hiding Place

Two persons, a white man and a negro, were arrested and 405 bottles of beer seized in raids conducted by Noah Daves, L. N. McKelvey and Fred Fountain on two houses in Wichita Falls late Tuesday night.

The raid on the negro house bid fair to be fruitless until Daves stepped on a loose board in the floor, nearly falling into a vat beneath the house. The 120 bottles of beer were found in this vat and the negro woman was ordered to crawl into the vat and hand out the contraband.

DRYS FAIL TO IMPEDE MARCH OF AL SMITH

Mark Sullivan Declares That So-Called Wets Are Dominant

REED BELITTLES SELF

Missouri Senator Takes Step Downward In "Coalition"

By MARK SULLIVAN

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26.—The group which for convenience we call wet controls this convention as few factions have ever controlled any political conventions. There may yet be a struggle over the prohibition plank in the platform but if it happens it will be a surprise and a variation from the whole spirit of what is happening. The wets are so dominant and confident that they practice leniency toward the conquered. Indeed, one can hardly speak of the drys as "the conquered." They were not defeated because they were not able to make a fight. The first rank dry Democrats, such as William G. McAdoo, either did not come to the convention, or if they came resolutely refused to put any impediment in the triumphant path of Smith.

Reed's Downfall

A few subordinates among the dry leaders tried to organize a bloc to oppose Smith but got nowhere. Their only achievement, if it can be called one, was to cause Senator Reed of Missouri, in the late sixties of his age, to become a semi-convert to the dry position. Reed paid that price as his contribution to a union between himself and the drys to oppose Smith. After he paid the price the movement got nowhere. If the political deathbed conversion of Reed was a triumph for the drys, it was not one for Reed. The common judgment is that Reed has reduced his stature politically to a sensational extent. The drys had the air of not really participating in the convention.

Representatives of 31 dry organizations, such as the Anti-Saloon league and the W. C. T. U. met here the day before the convention and passed resolutions demanding dry action on the part of the delegates. They made no impression on the convention or on the crowd. It was not first page news. It had the appearance of something unimportant happening in the backwater and the eddies. The preaching of dry sermons by clergymen of Sunday was the same sort of thing, equally unnoticed by the convention. The listlessness or the dazed condition of the drys was even without sentiment or truculence. There was and is no talk of a bolt or a third ticket. There is not even any measurable talk of voting the Republican ticket. If that is a widespread possibility, it must develop later and among the public distant from the convention. There is no organized or general or otherwise important talk of it here.

Third Party Flops

As for a third party, the persons who a few weeks ago formally proposed that notion, are now in attendance here, and they admit in private conversation that they have abandoned the idea as impracticable. There is no more seed of a dry third party in this convention than there was seed of a farm third party in the Republican convention. Some of these drys arrive at compromise within their own minds by telling themselves they are not really beaten. They assure themselves that Smith is not necessarily wet. They hope the plank in the platform on prohibition will be a middle ground, which it probably will be, for the wets are lenient in their hour of triumph. Assuming the plank is not 100 per cent wet, the drys tell themselves Smith is not really an anti-prohibitionist.

The Houston paper owned by the dry Texan who is a kind of host to the convention, Jesse Jones, printed an editorial saying quite serously that the actions now being taken here do not constitute "an anti-prohibition program or any anti-prohibition candidacy."

In the lack of struggle by the drys there is, of course, some expediency by any dry Democrat leader who is still young enough to have a national career ahead of him, or to hope some day to be a presidential possibility hesitates to invite future unfriendliness by opposing

'G. O. P. Corroded'

Claude G. Bowers, New York editor, erstwhile of Indiana, delivered a stinging denunciation of Republican corruption in the keynote speech at the Democratic convention last night.

NOTED GANG LEADER SLAIN

"Big Tim" Murphy Mowed Down in Fire

CHICAGO, June 26. (US)—"Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader, mail bandit, and gangster extraordinaire was shot and killed by unidentified assailants as he stood on the front lawn of his home here tonight.

The slayers peppered machine gun bullets at Murphy and his brother-in-law, Harry Diggs, after the pair had answered a fake summons to their front door.

Murphy and Diggs were in the living room of the Murphy home listening in on the Democratic national convention at Houston. Both men have been active in political circles in Chicago for years.

There was a ring at the front door. Both men answered the summons. When they opened the door, there was no one there. They walked off the front verandah to investigate.

An automobile, containing four or five men, according to Diggs, was parked a short distance west of the Murphy home, headed east. As the two men emerged into the yard the automobile moved forward.

There then came the staccato rat-a-tat-tat of machine gun fire. Murphy fell mortally wounded. Diggs was not injured. Diggs carried Murphy into the dining room of his home, where he died just as Mrs. Murphy came in from a visit with friends.

Hoover Campaign Work Organized in New York

WASHINGTON, June 26. (AP)—A special Republican presidental campaign organization for New York state was set up today with Secretary Hoover's personal approval and an effort was continued to settle upon a party campaign manager for the western half of the country.

George K. Morris, Republican state chairman for New York, came to Washington with William H. Hill, of Binghamton, who headed the pre-convention fight for Hoover delegates in New York and lunched with the secretary and National Chairman Work.

BOWERS FLAYS PARTY'S ROLE AS 'IMMORAL'

Sinclair, Fall, and Harry Daugherty Named In Scandal Talk

QUOTES JIM'S SLOGAN

Devastating Oration Cheered by Convention Throng of 20,000

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
Universal Service

HOUSTON, June 26.—Denouncing Sinclair, Fall and Daugherty by name and condemning the Republican party for the corruption and scandals which "have made America a byword and a hissing in the very alleys of the world." Claude G. Bowers tonight brought the Democratic national convention to its feet with a thrilling demand for purity and common honesty in government.

"Turn the rascals out."

The dramatic slogan coined by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri tonight became the shibboleth of the Democratic party as the diminutive Bowers, author and historian, pilloried the Republican party and its leaders for their alleged loss of political morality.

21,000 Hear Talk

An audience of 20,000 people supplemented the thousand delegates gathered in the quadriennial conclave who elected Bowers temporary chairman of the convention

ON THE GRIDDLE

Claude G. Bowers' speech, said by news writers to be one of the most remarkable ever to be delivered from a public rostrum in America, is printed in full today. Turn to page 10.

and then heard him lash the party enemy with one of the most devastating philippics ever delivered from public rostrum.

The convention adjourned at 9:25 until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Two great demonstrations punctuated Bowers' speech. The first was his mention of Woodrow Wilson.

Pleads for Farmers

But when he demanded that the hard-hit western farmer be given a square deal and that the hand of favored eastern capitalists be taken off his throat, the audience rose spontaneously.

"We do not ask paternalistic privileges for the farmer, but we do demand that the hand of privilege shall be taken out of the farmer's pockets and off the farmer's throats," was the utterance that aroused the delegates to a frenzy of enthusiasm.

A mighty cheer resounded through the hall. North Dakota raised its standard and began a march around the hall.

Kentucky, Utah, Iowa, Nebraska and other corn-belt states quickly followed.

Kansas raised a great sun flower and joined the march. New York lifted its standard, entered the parade and the Smith delegation yelled a cheer of appreciation.

Shaver Helpless

Mississippi and the cotton states, headed by Senator Stephens swung into line as the electric spark of Bowers' appeal for the agriculturists fired the convention.

Shaver rapped futilely for order but the 48 states and all the territorial possessions were now in the parade. The demonstration lasted 15 minutes.

Salvos of cheers interrupted his thundering denunciation of alleged Republican dishonesty. Storms of applause swept through the convention hall while the lightning flashed from a nearby storm which shortly before had drenched the city.

Bowers concluded his keynote speech at 9:10 and another great demonstration followed.

Cheered to Echo

The diminutive historian was cheered to the echo for his valiant address.

The audience was again upon its feet. A dozen spotlights sprayed upon him. The band played "Dixie"

Engineer's Bravery Saves Lives Of 15 Americans Aboard Mexican Train

LAREDO, Texas, June 26. (AP)—Fifteen Americans are alive and unhurt as a result of the bravery of an engineer on a train from Mexico City to Laredo. An attempt was made to bomb the train between La Lace and La Fuente in the state of Hidalgo, early Monday, according to members of a crew and passengers.

The train took a siding to await another train which had been derailed and of which the engineer had been killed. The wait became so long that the engineer decided to reconnoiter. With the engine detached and advancing slowly a bomb exploded in front of it, going off prematurely.

The engineer went back immediately to hunt a second bomb which usually is placed in the center of the train. It was found under a Pullman where the Americans were sleeping. The engineer cut the fuse and a party was organized to hunt for the bandits, but no one was found.

Novelty Men Renovate Left-Over Jumbos and Clean Up

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (INS)—Put down your cross-word puzzle for a minute and figure this out. It's one on either the Democrats or the Republicans.

The novelty manufacturers vastly overestimated the demand for the little brown fur lapel elephants at Kansas City and found themselves in the red when the trek to Houston began.

Panic stricken a tthe first inventory of their remaining stocks, the big elephant men burned much incense before the shrine of the biological gods and at length got the answer.

They opened the elephants' rotund fur stomach, took out some sawdust, clipped him down about the girth, amputated his trunk and used it for a more luxurious tail, and so put out the niftiest red fur donkey a Democratic convention has seen for many a year.

They are selling today in Houston almost three times as fast as elephants at Kansas City.

The novelty men are very happy about it all, for they have heaps of sawdust left.

SECOND PLACE BOOMS WANE

Robinson Regarded As Sure V. P. Nominee

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (UP)—The vice-presidential nominee of this convention appears almost as certain now as the selection of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for presidential nominee.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic floor leader in the senate and permanent chairman of the convention, seems slated as second man of the ticket. He is acceptable to the Smith leaders and generally favored by other factions in the convention.

Robinson has been mentioned in the last few months for this post but it was thought at first the convention would turn to the middle west or west rather than the south. But leaders seem to agree now that Robinson, who supported the McNary-Haugen bill, would be just as valuable from an agricultural standpoint as a westener.

The vice-presidential nominee cannot be predicted too safely in any convention. Next to Robinson, Evans Woolen, Indianapolis banker, is most prominently mentioned. Talk of Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee and Senator George of Georgia, both presidential candidates, has practically stopped.

There are booms also for a woman, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former Wyoming governor, and for two former military men, Major George Berry of Tennessee and General Henry T. Allen, commander of the American army of occupation in Germany.

Drys Fail To Waver Smith

the forces that are so overwhelmingly in control of the convention. That accounts for a lot of individual silences. Older men do not need to take account of this condition. For example, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia publicly states he will remain off the bandwagon and will never vote for Smith in the convention. Glass would have acted on principle and conviction at any time of life, but his age illustrates the fact that a man can afford to stick to a conviction to the end after he has reached his late sixties.

Settles Problems

Those who are acting on expediency can justify their course by legitimate argument. The whole theory of this convention is to agree to let Smith have the nomination and then see what he can accomplish. If he wins the presidency for his party, well and good. If he loses, the problems associated with him will be over and his followers will have no cause for grievance. Thereafter in 1932, the party can have genuine harmony and can be taken back by its old leadership with real hope of success.

Destinies of Nation Decided In Melon Parlors for First Time

By ROYAL S. COPELAND
United States Senator From New York

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (US)—Houston excels in heat and "watermelon parlors." Until last night I never heard of watermelon parlors but I approve of them.

In this hot country the melons ripen early and the crop continues to flourish for several months. Enterprising citizens fit out shacks with tables and chairs. Here they serve this delicious food exclusively.

Perhaps these places have been used by local politicians, but I doubt if the destinies of the nation were ever settled in them before. But last night I saw a lot of delegates eating watermelons and discussing presidential candidates. The black seeds were used as counters in casting up probabilities.

Many Suggestions

Yesterday I said "Platforms are less important than candidates." Let no one think, however, that there are not many platform suggestions, covering almost every phase of human existence and activity.

Two planks are of particular interest. One relates to farm relief, the other to prohibition. The farm representatives are here in force and have established headquarters. There meet in these rooms men and women from almost every state in the union.

I inquired about the number of suggestions made to the resolutions committee relating to prohibition. You will be amazed. We have been taught there are two kinds of eggs—good and bad. But when it comes to prohibition it seems there are 40 different and distinct ideas. I am assured there have been presented fully this number of such planks.

Can't Be Done

It is because there are so many different views concerning prohibition that the Democrats have such acrimonious debates, debates in private, of course, but no less debates. It is just as impossible for the convention to formulate a plank universally acceptable as it would be for a housewife to plan a meal for 1100 persons, a meal that would fully satisfy the palate of every guest. It just cannot be done.

As a matter of fact, the amendment is here and, while men and women honestly differ as to its virtues, it is the law and must be enforced until legally modified, or until opposition to it has worn out. But there is such feeling about it —both ways—that it invites discussion and hoart burnings.

Whatever plank is adopted and whoever is chosen as the candidate, the laws of the land will be enforced just as vigorously as such laws can be. But, somehow or other, nobody appears to be satisfied until language is chosen to formulate a given idea on a single object of government.

Bowers Flays G.O.P. Rule

in honor of his southern birth. But he had the convention well in hand. He pounded the gavel once for order.

Justus Wardell of California moved the adoption of a resolution that all party platform planks be referred to the resolutions committee. The resolution was adopted.

Other routine resolutions for procedure were adopted.

A terrific storm fell upon the city shortly before the dinner hour when the delegates had begun to make their way from their hotels and headquarters to the convention hall.

Rain Pours In

Thunder boomed and flashes of lightning lighted the sky. The storm broke directly over the great wooden auditorium which had been erected at a cost of $200,000. So great was the fall of rain that it poured through the slab walls of the auditorium in places and some of the newspaper work rooms on the first floor beneath the platform were washed with rivulets of water.

The electric flashes cut off the city lighting system frequently and the auditorium was plunged into darkness momentarily. The rain entered the board roof and fell heavily upon the great press section branching out from both sides of the rostrum. The "silent" telegraph instruments, over which the news of the convention is clicked on the instant to the four corners of the world, were covered with iron pails and heavy bagging to save them from going "out."

Radio instruments were damaged and as the "reception" outside was impaired by the storm, the party leaders decided to delay Bowers' speech until the storm had cleared.

Taxicabs Scarce

Drenched delegates poured into the hall from 6:30 to 7 o'clock. Taxicabs were as scarce as hens' teeth in the crowd of 30,000 visitors and women delegates ambled along be's their male colleagues while the rain washed them from head to foot.

But it takes more than a mere storm to break the spirit of a Democratic convention. They are used to storms, anyway. The convention hall did a serviceable job and was dry and comfortable as a whole when the hour of the night session arrived. The storm passed along toward the gulf and sent back occasional flashes of lightning as a reminder of its visit.

Withal, Bowers struck a simple keynote designed to capture the country in the coming election. It was this:

G. O. P. Corroded

That the Republican machine has become corroded and broken in its minor parts by the downright corruption of Daugherty, Forbes, Fall and the scandalous campaign fund transactions of Sinclair and Will Hays.

That at the top it is dominated by bureaucrats of the Hamiltonian type, who believe that the government should be operated by a few chosen ones who will be careful to distribute the great patronage and benefits to their selfish backers.

Although 7:30 was the time set for opening the night session, the delegates were so late in arriving at the pavilion because of the storm that it was almost 8 o'clock when Chairman Shaver brought the convention to order. It was reported that inability to obtain a radio hook-up for Chairman Bowers' keynote speech before 8 p. m. also influenced the delay.

That the Democratic party, in this campaign, will be brave enough to follow the advice of Tilden to be always progressive and that it can win the election and practice Jefferson's faith in the common people.

At the very outset of his ringing speech, Bowers summarized the battle which will be waged to regain control of the Washington government.

"The American democracy has mobilized today," he said, "to wage a war of extermination against privilege and pillage.

"Carnival of Corruption"

"We prime our guns against autocracy and bureaucracy. We march against that centralization which threatens the liberties of the people. We fight for the republic of the fathers, and for the recovery of the covenant from the keeping of a caste and class. We battle for the honor of the nation, besmirched and bedraggled by the most brazen and shameless carnival of corruption that ever blackened the reputation of a decent and self respecting people."

And then what an oratorical blasting Mr. Bowers gave to those who, he charged, were engaged in the carnival of corruption.

The Republican party, he said, will enter the campaign with "a golden stream of slush money," contributed by the "little gilded group" who derive the tariff and patronage favors and without the embarrassment of a campaign debt—"Harry Sinclair has paid that off. It enters the campaign with his money in its pocket and his blessing on its head."

United States senators in company with Tammany leaders were keeping a grip on the convention tonight.

Talks Strategy

Before Chairman Shaver rapped for order an imposing group of national leaders had a series of conferences on the platform at the rear of the rostrum.

Pittman of Nevada, Walsh of Massachusetts, Robinson of Arkansas, Harrison of Mississippi, Gerry of Rhode Island, Wagner of New York, King of Utah, and Broussard of Louisiana engaged in the discussions on convention procedure and strategy.

Seated immediately at hand was Bernard M. Baruch, a powerful influence in the party, who is credited with uniting the Smith and Woodrow Wilson forces and of effecting an agreement for the nomination of Robinson for vice-president.

The convention got itself in out of the rain and Chairman Shaver began pounding the gavel for order at 7:50. Order is not the easiest thing to get in a Democratic convention.

At 7:55 the delegates had left the aisles, taken their seats and Shaver presented the pastor for the evening prayer.

North Carolinian Holds Hope for Al's Defeat

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, June 26. (UP)—Anti-Smith and anti-Tammany forces in the national Democratic convention are holding firm with more than one third of the votes necessary to prevent the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Frank A. Hampton, acting national committeeman for North Carolina, holding the proxy of Senator Simmons of South Carolina, said tonight. He did not reveal the states whose votes he was counting upon.

DEMOS SHAME BEN HUR MOB

Throngs Fight Way Into Sam Houston Hall

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (US) Thirty thousand perspiring Democrats are an active part of a mad scene here that makes the slaughter of the Christians in "Ben Hur" look like a Sunday school picnic and the battle scenes in "What Price Glory" and the "Big Parade" resemble a peace conference.

I thought until I attended the opening of the convention at least 29,000 of the number were in the lobby at the Rice hotel. Now I know I was mistaken. Most of them were on their way to try and get in the convention hall.

Demos Struggle for Entrance

If some of our eminent movie impressarios could have witnessed that struggle for admittance at the opening session of the Democratic convention they would have died of jealousy.

Southern colonels with flowing white goatees, who early in the game stepped aside to allow the fair flowers of the convention to pass in the elevators first, now forgot there is such a thing as women and children first. One of them in an excited moment shot a pistol into a hotel elevator to assure him of standing room. The women who insisted on equal rights are getting them.

The female star of this ever-moving panorama is Edith Bolling Galt Wilson, the widow of the late president. She wore a lavender frock with a dark hat at the opening session of the convention. She is surrounded by a daily court who seem eager to make her visit in Houston a matter of history.

Mrs. Wilson Stars

An extra commotion in the lobby at the hotel took the elevator grabbers in an opposite direction.

"It's Mrs. Smith," cried an excited female. One look convinced me it was not Mrs. Al E. Smith, who at the moment was sitting comfortably beneath an electric fan in her apartment at the Warwick hotel. The plump woman from Iowa or Wisconsin or maybe it was Minnesota, was in no hurry to deny her identity.

The Democratic stars of yesterday pass through the lobbies recognized by friends, but not getting the reception of this year's celebrities. Such is fame.

Kindly faced Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, in a long frock coat reminded someone that William Jennings Bryan, always part of every Democratic convention, will be missed this year. The commoner never forgot to be pleasant even when he had two or three planks in his waistcoat pocket.

'Peaches' Browning Again in Court— This Time to Get Dower Rights

NEW YORK, June 26. (INS)—"Peaches" and "Daddy" are in court again.

The youthful Frances Heenan Browning, who is still a minor although two years have passed since her romance with the elderly Browning, has started a fight for her dower rights.

Through her attorney, former Surrogate Daniel P. Cohalon, Peaches today applied to Supreme Court Justice Lyden for the appointment of her mother, Carolyn M. Heenan, as guardian ad litem.

Mrs. Heenan was appointed by Justice Lyden as Peaches' guardian.

Peaches has just turned 18 after a couple of seasons in vaudeville, following her brief romance with "Daddy" Browning. Her birthday was last Saturday.

The Browning estate, a share of which Peaches is determined to have, runs into several millions.

While the legal action was getting under way today, Peaches was in a hospital in Manafield, Ohio, recovering from an automobile accident suffered while en route from Cincinnati to Canton last Sunday. Her mother also suffered slight bruises.

Will Rogers On Dem Convention

port in November why a lady sang, and how,

Say she was good. The only thing stopped her was a man made a motion to adjourn. She had on an awful pretty big picture hat. I imagine from the way she was dressed that she kinder figured that she might be called on.

She opened up with the Star Spangled Banner. She had a dandy voice. And she knew the song, she didn't read it.

People applauded her for knowing the words, and before you knew it she just started right in singing another one, ad lib too. It was America. She did that because a lot of people don't know which is our national air, America or the Star Spangled Banner. So being a good Democrat she just took no chances on the party losing through not singing the right song, so she sang 'em both, and good, too. Well, when the audience realized that she knew all these old folk songs they applauded and by golly she knocked 'em off "Dixie."

Well, Dixie in Texas, is just as sure fire as a flask. H. L. Mecken, the undesirable element of literature, was sitting by me and he suggested she follow it with "Marching Through Georgia." I knocked him under the press table, before Captain Hickman, my Texas ranger friend could get out his gun to totally dispose of him. So it's as I say, we didn't have a thing at this convention but singing and praying. It was more like a revival than a convention.

There was no speeches made and a good time was had by all.

Its a wonderful hall, and everybody hopes it was not built in vain. It seats enough people to elect Jim Ferguson for president if they all voted alike.

But the big event was tonight. You know I have been telling you all the time about this fellow Claude Bowers. Every since last spring when he made a bunch of hungry Democrats quit eating and applaud at the Jackson Day dinner, he is kinder one of my protege's. Well, brother, I don't have to tell you. You had a radio, you must have heard it. If you didn't, you missed the treat of a lifetime. I thought Jim Reed could denounce. Why, Jim's denouncing would be taken as compliments after this baby got through.

And Hamilton, what a sucker he made out of Hamilton. Why if I was Andy Mellon I wouldn't even want to be known as the best treasurer since Alexander Hamilton.

And say, didn't he give Andy a dig, too? Why, he had no respect for men in high places at all. Why, here one time some of them said I had shown disrespect for our government by just imitating some of them, while here this little fellow gets up there, and what he calls 'em, and he wasn't joking about 'em like I was. He was on the level. It wasn't a keynote speech, it was a "lock and key" speech. And after he had finished, why this whole Republican party should have been put under lock and key.

It must be true, or they could sue him. Course him just being an editorial writer, he hasn't got anything. But Barney Baruch, and Jesse Jones, and Kenney, and Norman Mack, and them, they have got a little left over from the Democratic administration, and they put this fellow up to saying it.

Why, if I was a Republican I would be ashamed to go to the polls and collect my votes after that.

HOOVER HEARS CHEERING NEWS

Nominee Told He Leads In Big States

WASHINGTON, June 26. (UP)—New York and Indiana are safe within the Republican fold, Herbert Hoover, presidential nominee, was advised today.

George K. Morris of Amsterdam, New York Republican chairman, told Hoover the political situation was entirely satisfactory and that the Hoover-Curtis ticket would carry the state.

Senator Arthur Robinson of Indiana, told Hoover he would carry Indiana by 150,000 majority.

Morris said the New York state Republican organization is intact and laying a foundation for carrying the state by a good majority this fall.

Up-state sections of New York have been very strong for Hoover, Morris said, and the foreign language people of New York city are grateful to Hoover for his activities during the World war.

Senator Robinson conferred with Hoover for a short time on the farm situation.

Hoover understands thoroughly the urgent need for constructive farm relief in this country," Robinson said, "and I am confident he will co-operate to the fullest extent of his ability to bring about an effective solution of the agriculture problem."

Among Hoover's visitors today were Senator Smoot of Utah, James W. Good of Iowa, the Hoover pre-convention manager, and Hill, the New York campaign manager.

"Give me a sentence using the words 'avenue' and 'street'."

"We avenue baby at our house and it's street times as noisy as any I ever heard."—Judge.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the seeds for a laxative were not as grab as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

What Presidential Candidate Likes to Do

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26—When a man gets within one step of the presidency (if not closer) his life becomes as private as that of a transparent goldfish on display. But that is the price of candidacy.

So here's the low-down on Herbert Hoover's likes—gathered after talks with 'most everyone from Hoover down to a peanut vendor who has shifted his stand to a place near the White House.

Mr. Hoover likes—

To cook (when out camping) but he will not wash dishes.

To smoke a good dark cigar, but he can't stand a cigarette.

To eat cherries, and he has them all over the house during season.

To munch peanuts, carrying bags in each pocket wheresver the occasion allows.

To read detective stories, and work out his own solutions.

To use a pick and shovel out in his camp.

To build dams, wading in mud up to his waist.

To fish—and how!

To see a good mystery play, or light comedy.

To be a good listener.

To wear white oxfords in the summer time.

To fool around with his police dog—Tut. (His boys are too large for roughing up now.)

To relax in his study at home, with political science books and a radio at hand.

To sit on a back porch overlooking a beautiful garden.

To eat chocolate ice cream for his dessert.

Ramblin'

with

Marie Theresa

IT seems to me that a great deal of newspaper space is being afforded the question of Mae Murray's right to own a son. The boy is in evidence, if current news is to be believed, and personally, this column can't see that there is much to be said about the matter now. The latest is that the birth of the boy is not on record among birth certificates in Los Angeles, but we can't figure out that that will have much effect on the boy's being the son of his mother.

The story goes something like this—Mae Murray's son was born in Los Angeles some 16 months ago, and the glad news of his arrival is just now being published. The father of the child was fearful lest the fact that Mae Murray is the mother of a handsome son might affect her movie career, so he has kept the fact of his son's existence from the world.

Between Mae's son and Mary Pickford's cutting her long golden curls which have made her famous, we smell something like new publicity from filmland. The ladies are going to cut some of the more recent stars out of some glory. And let 'em have the glory—it seems that it takes personality of an unusual type to gain publicity from those two sources. After all that has been said about the long and the short of a woman's tresses for the past seven or eight years, if Mary can get her picture in the papers by having even a set of golden curls shorn, let her cut 'em. And if Mae Murray, after all the years she has been in the limelight, can get more space from the press because of a son, then I'm in favor of it, aren't you?

THE cool spell has sent me back into spring clothes and has put me out on the streets looking at fall hats and dark dresses. No, I didn't buy any, I've been fooled this way before. But the cool weather is helping out those department stores that are sponsoring sales of left-over spring clothes. Dark heavy garments were certainly being caught up and wrapped quickly Tuesday morning. I'd like to see the faces of some of the purchasers July 1. But maybe most of these buyers will be going to Colorado or some other cool climate for the next two months. Anyway, it's a sensible time of the year to do fall or spring purchasing, if one has the necessary forethought and.....

President's Widow Feted in Houston

HOUSTON, June 26. (AP)—Introduced as a "fair daughter of our beloved south," Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, democracy's dowager queen, began the opening day of the convention early, at a breakfast of Houston Daughters of the American Revolution, in the flower-decked halls of one of Houston's Country clubs.

Smiling and fresh after yesterday's rest, in a simple and becoming violet georgette gown, she greeted the 500 women who had risen early to see her, with only a word of thanks, making no references to the hopes for a "harmonious convention" that she voiced in her only other public pronouncement here.

"I wish that I had the ability of our charming hostesses," she said, "so that I might tell how overwhelmed I am by the hospitality that has been shown me."

Moire Fulfills Summer Needs

By MME. LISBETH

Coats of silk and satin are important in the more formal models for warm weather wear. Cashmere broadcloth and velveteen are also favorites of Paris houses. Black is one of the color leaders with biege a close second.

The coat chosen to illustrate today's fashion is fashioned of beige moire. The cape is attached to fall in graceful points below the hipline, and the skirt of the coat is smartly banded with caracul in the same shade as the coat. A fold of self-material at the hipline adds to the originality of the coat's design. Marceline Day posed.

For travel coats of higher waistline, achieved by self-stitching, is suggested in late models.

Donal Boley has just returned from Paducah, where he visited his grandmother. That's the how come of the picture this morning.

When he grows up, Donal is going to be a prominent physician, not a druggist like Daddy. Donal's father has seen to that, all details have evidently been taken care of judging from the elder's firmly planted decision as to the boy's future.

The baby is only eight months old.

No record can be found of Donal's hangout, but we are reasonably certain that he lives some place. He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Boley and has a vocabulary that is limited to "da-da."

Monotony of Daily Life Affects Women More Than Their Husbands

The Domestic Woman's Work Takes the Prize for Monotony Because It Is Done In Solitude With No Change of Scene; It Vanishes Into Thin Air, Leaving No Trace; And It Has No Reward, Either in Money or Glory.

"Why are women always complaining about the monotony of domestic labor?" demanded a man wrathfully the other day. "Don't they know that all work by which we make our daily bread is doing over and over and over again the same things thousands of times, millions of times?

"My wife sheds barrels of tears because she has to walk the same treadmill every day, cooking, getting the children off to school, sweeping, cleaning, scrubbing; but I can't see that her work is any more monotonous than mine. I am here to tell the weepy feminine world that there is no wild variety and hair-raising adventures in adding up columns of figures or laying brick or weighting out groceries all day.

"The novelty wears off any occupation after a little while, and then it gets to be the grind of daily labor where you go through the same motions and make the same gestures and put forth the same effort and say the same things in endless repetition. Smearing herself up with yellow paint and being rescued from the villain or vamping the millionaire must get just as monotonous to the motion-picture actress as cutting bread and butter does for the mother. Probably killing people gets monotonous to the gunman. Everybody's job is monotonous, but nobody complains about it so much as the housewife, and I often wonder why this is the case."

"It is true," I replied, "that what we call woman's work is no more monotonous than man's. There is no more thrill and excitement in earning dough than there is in making the bread, and if the wife wears a pathway between the kitchen and the nursery, so does the husband wear a rut between his front door and the office. Still and all, there are several good reasons why the monotony of a woman's work gets on her nerves more than the monotony of a man's work gets on his.

"In the first place, the domestic woman's work is nearly always done in solitude, while a man's work is done among his fellow creatures.

"The man who runs a machine may pull exactly the same levers hundreds of times a day year after year. His work may have far less variety in it than that of his wife, but he has had the break in the day of leaving home in the morning and mingling with the crowds on the street and seeing the passing pageant of the life of his community. He has had touch with his fellow workmen and heard the gossip of the shop. He will have his noon hour of talk, perhaps go to a restaurant for his lunch, and he will have again the change of going home in the evening.

"But the wife has had nothing to break her routine. She has stayed in her little house or flat, whose every flyspeck on the wall paper she is sickeningly familiar with. She has done the same tasks that she did yesterday and the day before that and the month and the year before that, with nobody to talk to, nobody to give her a new thought or idea, no companionship save the baby, and however much you may adore an infant its conversation is not stimulating.

"And women were built for talk. That is why housewives complain of the monotony of their work, while the women who sell things over a counter or who pound typewriters in offices never complain of the monotony of their work. Yet the one job is really no more monotonous than the other.

"And that is why in the old days, before the introduction of the telephone and the radio, country women, who wore holes in the floor rocking in the same grooves while they mended and patched and darned, furnished the largest quota in the insane asylums. But they don't do it now, since the monotony of their lives has been broken.

"Another reason why women complain about the monotony of housework is because it is the only work whose results vanish into thin air and leave no trace behind.

"The writer can point to his books, the painter to his pictures, the carpenter to the house he has built, the merchant to his prosperous store and say, 'I did that. This is the outcome of my labor, my skill, my industry, my intelligence.'

"But the housewife spends her time preparing meals that are eaten and forgotten; sweeping floors that will be tracked up the next instant; washing clothes that will have to be washed the next week; mending frocks that will be torn in an hour; finding caps that are lost; getting husband a clean handkerchief; tying bows; hearing lessons; fixing the baby's bottle; picking the spinach; interviewing the butcher—ceaseless labor, and nothing to show for it in the end but a family that doesn't know what mother does with her days nor why she considers domestic labor monotonous.

"Still another reason that women complain about the monotony of housework is because it is the only work that has no reward, either in money or glory. There must be some incentive to make work interesting. We must have some goal we are striving for in order to keep our ambition from flagging. It is hard to put our hearts and our backs into a thing and to get any kick out of doing it if we know that there is to be neither pay nor profit for us in doing it.

"The man worker may find his job dull and tedious, but he is cheered on by the thought of the pay envelope he will get on Saturday. The housewife knows there are no wages coming to her as the result of her work. Nor will she get the glad hand from those she has served so faithfully. Husband and children will gobble down, without comment, the dinner that she has spent hours in preparing. They will not even notice that their clothes have been cleaned and pressed and put away instead of left lying on the floor, and if they speak at all about her work it will be to find fault instead of to praise it.

"And this is why, Mr. Man," I said, "women complain about the monotony of housework, and if men want to make it interesting to their wives they will have to show them a little more appreciation and make it a better-paying job.

"No man would like to work for a boss who took all his labor for granted, who never noticed his faithfulness and loyalty, and when he had effected a saving or turned a clever trick, never gave him a word of praise, but who expected him to work for his board and clothes.

"He would find that kind of work monotonous, too, and complain about it." —DOROTHY DIX.

CHIC CHERIE

LATEST FASHIONS

Five times around the deck—and that's a mile or more. It must be. Cherie is tramping resolutely after this female in the pastel tinted felt hat with the brim quirked up on one side in front. What mortal woman can do, Cherie will do. She's being firm in a frock of white crepe with a cardigan jacket of rosy jersey—not the right sort of costume.

For being firm in, we mean. It suits the background nicely. As a matter of fact, it's hard for a girl with curly hair to look severe even in this sort of tailored wear. A coat, namely, of monotone woolen in a herringbone weave. The weave and the cut are stern enough, but the color is pastel blue. So is her hat, with a grosgrain band of yellow.

If you are no more interested in sea gulls than Cherie seems to be you may like to see what is happening to the felt sports hat this season. It has a wide drooping brim, a sort of scoop effect that comes well down over the back of the neck. It's likely to be pastel colored and if you can match it to a coat or dress you'll be extremely smart.

Fifty times around the deck, as Cherie is telling Dina. She may have lost count in the thirties, but she doesn't think so. Dina is wearing a sleeveless yellow slip-on over her sweater dress of grey and yellow. Cherie is wearing an ensemble of crepe frock and basket weave coat with great satisfaction—she must have taken off pounds today!

HOTEL LOBBY IS REAL SIGHT

Delegates Act in Manner of Comedians

HOUSTON, June 26. (UP)—Conventions are made in hotel lobbies.

Take a look, then, at the lobby of the Rice hotel. That, like everything else in Houston, belongs to Jesse Jones. It's the big hotel so much so that the promoters tried to pack all the trappings of the convention into it, instead of scattering them around town.

As a result, all is confusion.

Stand in the lobby any time from 10 a. m. until 1 a. m. The show does not begin until 10. Delegates are not early risers.

From 10 on you can feel the humanity in that lobby. Its congestion, odors and noises take on a personality all its own. Its like a big stevedore, perspiring, with his work clothes absurdly decorated with badges. It overwhelms you as you walk in from the comparatively fresh air of the outside.

The Old Tune

Four or five hundred persons packed into the space of a building lot. They are shoving, shouting and singing. A seedy looking man operates one of those one-man bands. He plays the "sidewalks of New York" incessantly from morning to night.

Two men pass by in pith helmets, giving a real tropical touch to a tropical town.

One delegate asks another delegate, "where's the barber shop?" The other delegate replies, "we haven't time to get shaved. Let's get a drink."

Important looking delegates wear more badges than G. A. R. veterans. Women are beginning to carry fans. They need them.

A vendor of canes drops his wares. They clatter noisily on the tile floor and passengers trip on them.

One woman, for some incredible reason, carries a small baby through the choking, steaming lobby.

Persons laugh and shout and swear.

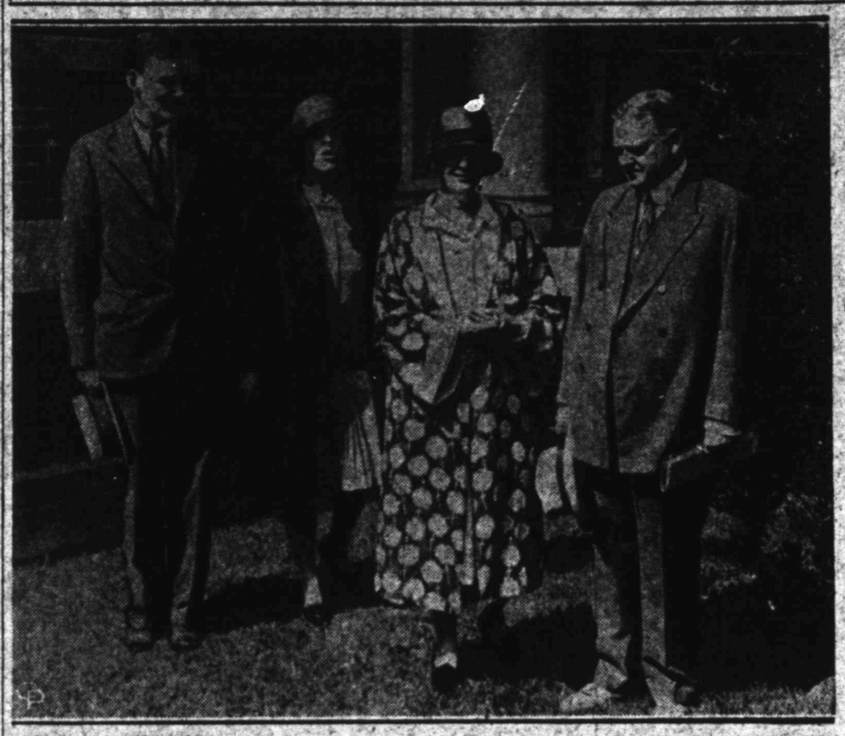

It all seems quite absurd. But it happens only once in four years. They like it.

GARY, Ind., June 26. (UP)—Mike Lorencz, enraged when his 18-year-old daughter refused to admit him to his estranged wife's bedside, shot and fatally wounded her and ended his own life.

Lorencz's two small sons, who stood behind their sister, witnessed the shooting.

PROMOTERS GET DANCE REWARD

Marathon May Clear $100,000 Each

NEW YORK, June 26. (UP)—Out of the "red" and with 20 dance derbyists still shuffling around Madison Square garden, Professors Milton Crandall and Tex Rickard executed a dance of their own today.

The two promoters of the misery marathon stand to make $100,000 a piece if the corn quadrillists can keep on their feet two days longer. If by some miracle the contest continues for the remainder of the week the takings of Rickard and Crandall should reach the fabulous figures that are tossed about after heavyweight championships.

None of the ten surviving couples showed any immediate signs of dropping out at 5 p. m. today, when the grotesque affair entered its 856th hour. They started "dancing" on May 10, two weeks and one day ago.

As the garden began to fill regularly with paying spectators, Broadway curiosity about the financial arrangements of Professors Crandall and Rickard began to burn.

Texas Guinan, one of the marathon habitues, gave Professor Crandall an admiring glance early this morning when it became known that the derby was already $30,000 to the good, at a time when it was evident to the most casual onlooker that the real money had just begun to flow through the turnstiles at $3.30 a click.

More than $5000 has already been distributed in prizes to the dancers. But the spectators have given it out in $10 and $20 bills—not the impresarios.

Political Pointers by Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

NOW THE DONKEY

There is a darkened auditorium in Kansas City and Herbert Hoover is the trainer of the elephant, the presidential nominee of the G. O. P. and standard bearer of the master minds, known as the big business chieftains of America and the rank and file of the party of Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge.

This goes without an argument.

A Republican administration, big business, federal office holders and the delegates from the solid south states controlled the national convention of the Republican party in 1928 as in all the bygone years. Better than any other element of society, the Republican farmers of the west realize that. They were thrown out and perhaps overboard by the combination that prevailed from start to finish in the city at the mouth of the Kaw river.

WILL THEY DIE HARD

Now the donkey will be given an inning or an airing in the city of Houston.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York has more than a majority of the delegates who will answer roll call at Houston. His friends claim for him votes sufficient to give him two-thirds of all the delegates and that he will be pamed on the second or the third ballot.

There were die-hards against Hoover at Kansas City, mostly farmers from the great agricultural west. Well, the die-hards lost. They were not only insolently ignored, but they were thrown out by orders of the master minds and those who obeyed their instructions.

There will be die-hards against the Smith nomination. Will they die hard or will they die easy? Will they block the nomination of Smith and after a long drawn out and acrimonious convention force the nomination of another?

This for the future to decide for the party of the donkey, the historic party founded by Thomas Jefferson, the party of the hard-fighting Jackson, rugged and ever fearless Grover Cleveland and last, but not the least, Woodrow Wilson, the war president of this republic.

Regardless of all guessing and all surmising and all peering into the womb of the future, the friends of Smith regard his nomination as virtually assured. According to the New York Times tentative plans for having formal notification of his nomination take place on the steps of the state capitol at Albany have been considered. Advisers of Gov. Smith regard the steps of the Albany capitol as an ideal place for the ceremony. Survey of the steps and the surrounding park have indicated that at least 100,000 persons would be able to see the governor, if he should accept the nomination there and his voice easily could be made audible to all of them by means of amplifiers, with the governor speaking at the top of the step and his audience grouped below him, the 100,000 persons expected to attend.

According to The Times, in the event of the nomination of the New York governor, it is expected that the notification ceremonies would be held some time between July 15 and 31 and that in his acceptance speech he probably would define his position on various issues, including farm relief and prohibition.

Again it is said that is not the intention of the governor to begin his campaign immediately afterwards. In his various state campaigns the New York leader has preferred a comparatively short, intensive campaign to a long one and is said to believe that it would be very difficult to carry on even a presidential campaign for more than two months without weakening at the end of it. This is his tentative plan—to start his regular speaking campaign in September on Labor day, and keep it up every day but Sundays until just before election day on November 6.

WIDE CAMPAIGN

It is forecast by The Times that the present plan of Smith campaign strategy calls for a wide use of the radio and his appearance in as many states as possible. He is to visit every section of the country, including the south, and much of the campaign will center in the farm states and New England, but other sections of the country will not be ignored.

Incidentally, it may be said that the managers of the Smith campaign expect him to have 700 votes on the first ballot at Houston and more than 100 in reserve, which can be thrown to him at any time. With only 734 needed to nominate under the two-thirds rule, these are more than sufficient.

Dinner Stories

AND HE MEANT IT

A colored soldier wanted to spend the night from camp, but couldn't get a pass. Attempting to steal out he was halted by the guard with: "Who goes there?" "It's me," growled Rastus, pulling his razor—"and dis heah blade am all de permit I has; but listen, nigger, Ah's got a mammy in heaven, a pappy in hell, and a sweetheart in the city, and I'se gwine to spend the evenin' wid one of them."

One-Minute Sermon

And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin.

And yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.

Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and to morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?—St. Matthew, vi, 28-30.

An Item From East Texas

A NEWS dispatch from East Texas, to be exact, from Jacksonville, tells of the moving of 100 cars from Jacksonville and nearby stations. Shipments? Why tomatoes. According to the news dispatch "the movement will continue for 10 days but will be lighter daily." Think of 100 car loads of tomatoes shipped to eastern markets in a single day from one section of "So Big Texas."

Ghastly Record of a Year

GENERAL W. T. SHERMAN, a federal commander in the war between the states, in his memoirs returned this verdict, "War is Hell." This told of the war of the sword, the rifle, the cannon and the torch. Now it has been figured that 26,000 lives were snuffed out by the auto in a single year with a $700,000,000 loss in lives and property damage. Why not submit the ghastly story to the League of Nations and ask for prompt consideration and decisive action?

How Battle Will Be Fought

NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, president of Columbia university, sees a close fight in November. He says the coming campaign is to be fought on two fronts. He says there will be one sort of battle on the eastern front "where the danger will be from the loss of the liberal element of the population," and another sort of battle on the western front "where the problem will be to satisfy the gravely discontented and offended farm population." Nicholas Murray Butler is a man of vision. Unless the signs are misleading the battle will be fought on two fronts, the east front and the west front and it is going to be some battle.

Now He Is a Doctor of Law

COLONEL CHARLES A. LINDBERGH is a very important personage. He is known to the world as the King of the Air. Now he should be known to the world as a doctor of law. Wisconsin university pinned the degree on the lapel of his jacket. The colonel was an engineering student while at Wisconsin university and left the institution to take up aviation that brought him world wide fame. A West Texas editor not long since accused the colonel of having a swelled head. Of course the West Texas editor was pushed into the daily headlines for 24 hours, the colonel laughed and said "nuffin" and this closed the feeble incident. A very modest man is the young colonel.

Miss Earhart's Victory

SOMEHOW, we can't help being a little bit glad that Miss Amelia Earhart was the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air.

She seems like such a wholesome sort of young lady. She didn't go about courting publicity; indeed, she tried to slip away unseen, and only the unusually sharp eyes of a Boston newspaper reporter foiled her plans. She went about the job much as Lindbergh did; no fuss and feathers, no blare of trumpets. Furthermore, she looks like Lindy.

Stultz and Gordon, of course, deserve the highest sort of praise. They, too, seem like likable airmen. It is inevitable that Miss Earhart should get the greater part of the plaudits, and doubtless they figured on that in the beginning.

Her period of triumph is just beginning. She has earned it. More power to the girl!

Cotton Statistics for All

ALL the people of Texas are directly or indirectly interested in cotton production. All are interested in the carry over. Bervard Nichols, editor of the Texas Business Review, has let it be known that for the first time since June, 1925, the amount of cotton in the United States is under 4,000,000 bales. On June 1 he says the supply was reduced to 3,980,000 bales, compared with 4,721,000 on June 1, 1927, and 5,372,000 on that date in 1926.

Now is the carry over real cotton?

Is it salable cotton? That is, what portion of it is real cotton, what portion worthless cotton and who are the holders of the cotton?

This would be interesting information for the producers of cotton, for the cotton factors of the country, for all concerned. Senator Smith of South Carolina, known to fame as Farmer Smith, is of the opinion that the Jardine estimates last year cost the cotton growers $400,000,000 and furthermore, he is of the opinion that the bulk of the carry over is worthless or useless stuff.

Is this true? Picking and ginning time is on in the Magic valley country. Picking and ginning time is coming in the Nueces river country.

Why shouldn't the farmer be given all the information, the information that has real value. Is there any way for him to get it?

Out Where the West Begins

EL PASO captured the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention for the year 1929. Mayor Robert Ewing Thomason and his delegation put one over all the contenders for the honor sending delegates from other sections of West Texas.

El Paso has grown from a Mexican village and frontier post to a city modern in all its appointments and containing a population of more than 110,000 inhabitants. Its boosters claim that their rapidly moving city is on the dividing line of "Out Where the West Begins."

There was a time when Palestine claimed the honor and John H. Reagan was the district attorney of all the country as far north as Red river, as far west as Gainesville on the north, Fort Worth, on the west and on the south almost to the fringe of the capital of the state.

Reagan, on muleback, made the journey from county seat to county seat and thus was given his start to a career which made him postmaster general in the cabinet of Jefferson Davis, later a senator from Texas and lastly the first chairman of the railroad commission of Texas.

"Out Where the West Begins" is really the California coast line of the Pacific ocean. It goes without saying that the western frontier has been pushed into the waters of the Pacific. And John H. Reagan died not many years ago.

Uncrowned Kings

By CLIFFORD McBRIDE

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK, June 26.—"What should I see in New York?" is the most frequent question put to me by inquiring readers of the Diary. An interesting answer is supplied by an Englishman who is making his first visit to the states.

"I think the Broadway car, the automat restaurants, the elaborate cinemas, Broadway, the skyline, the cheapness of pineapples and the hard time you have making headway in the crowds, are the things I'll remember most."

The visitor can see more of New York for a nickel from the above mentioned Broadway surface car than most of the regular sight-seeing buses show their customers for two dollars. The cars (southbound, they are marked "South Ferry"; northbound, "7th avenue and 59th street") are open and cool in summer. The person who takes one in 7th avenue between 35th and 45th street, which is the best place to get on and be sure of a seat, gets a slowly revealed view of the Times Square district, the canyon between 42nd and 35th streets, Herald Square and the great department stores, the wholesale and clothing manufacturing districts, Madison Square, Union Square, courthouse, municipal building, city hall, Woolworth building, financial district, Trinity church, Battery park.

The reason why the cheapness of pineapples impressed the Englishman escapes me. Probably he saw the pushcart market in Ninth avenue between 42nd and 34th streets, where pineapples may be bought for five cents.

Thrifty housewives from all sections buy in the various pushcart or public markets, where fresh foodstuffs are from 25 to 90 per cent cheaper than in regular stores. In Ninth avenue, beef is 20 cents a pound; strawberries, 10 cents a box; dressed chickens, 30 cents a pound; potatoes, 16 pounds for 25 cents; bananas, the same; tomatoes, four pounds for 25 cents; celery, five cents; other things in proportion.

Persons do more traveling now, and more of them make their homes permanently in hotel, so that the use of modern inns has increased greatly, but the number of guests who defraud hostelries has not goneup. Managers attribute this as much to the inherent honesty of Americans as to the more elaborate precautions taken by hotels.

Nevertheless, most hotels still have to charge off from two to five per cent of earnings to unpaid bills, thefts and damages. Lots of persons still have the idea that it isn't thievery when one walks off with towels, or ashtrays, or pincushions, or Bibles!

It used to be easy to pick out hotel detectives in the lobby. They usually were retired or former members of regular police forces, and they were conspicuous in their efforts to prevent possible wrong-doing. Now managers pick men without detective experience and train them. They look like ordinary hotel guests. The detective's job now is as much to find out whether guests are satisfied with hotel service, as to prevent in iniquitous practices.

What do you want to know about New York? Ask C. K., 2200 Times building, New York, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Convicted Indian Warns Tribe Against Drinking

PORTLAND, Ore., June 26. (UP) Sentenced to death for murder, Orville Davis, 23-year-old Klamath Indian, sent a message to his tribesmen today warning them against liquor and saying:

"Alcohol in an Indian reverts them to savagery." Davis killed Lawrence Walker, friend of long standing, with an axe while intoxicated.

Boy Killed in Touching Electrified Dog Pen

YAKIMA, Wash., June 26. (UP) Authorities are uncertain what action to take against Walter L. Blau, whose electrified dog pen caused the death of Oliver Wooten, 6. Blau said he electrified the pen wires to keep other dogs away from the enclosure. Oliver visited the pen and was killed when he touched its wires.

WHEAT HARVEST DELAYED

CARLSBAD, June 26. (UP)—A dispatch from Budapest says a good wheat crop is reported but the harvest is being delayed by unfavorable weather.

FACES

I derive an education
From the sidewalks that I pace.
There's a story or a moral,
Good or bad, in every face.

Though man shield his secret actions,
Hide his wrongs with greatest care,
Those same wrongs will mark his features;
They will leave their imprints there.

When a man has lived discreetly—
Lived his life with good and grace,
He is marked with noble feature.
Good reflects from out his face.

Useless, then, these masks of faces,
When employed to hide behind.
They are moulded just to fit us
By the workings of our mind.

So I wander on, just learning.
In life's university.
And the text books that I use most
Are the faces that I see.

Aid Sought in Hunt For Missing Sparenburg Boy

Special to The Record News

LAMESA, Texas, June 26.—A Dawson county boy is lost and his father is anxious to locate his son, Loyd Howell, age 15, son of G. A. Howell of the Sparenburg community, 15 miles south of here, went away to work at Pecos, leaving home the 23rd of May and has not been heard of since. It has been learned that the boy arrived at Pecos and worked two and one-half days and told some of his associates that he was home sick and started back home afoot, but the boy never arrived at home. A description of the boy follows:

Fifteen years of age, ruddy complexion, weighs 138 pounds, is five feet and seven inches tall, has auburn hair, has scar under hair, went away wearing blue overalls and work shirt. He is of a quiet disposition.

Information leading to the whereabouts of this young man will be distributed by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce or can be sent direct to his father at Sparenburg.

Boy Lover Believed To Have Slain Girl

MADISON, Wis., June 26. (UP) Belief that Erdman Olson killed his sweetheart, Clara Olson, was expressed in a report made to Governor Zimmerman today by Assistant Attorney General Joseph Messerschmidt, who has been conducting an investigation of the crime.

The Olson murder case was reopened recently by the governor at the request of Crawford county citizens. The murder never was solved. The girl's body was found in a shallow grave near Prairie du Chien, Wis., about two years ago and Erdman Olson disappeared.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service — by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

"You know, Virginia, I'm dead in love with Russell."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

NATHANIEL LANN, struggling artist, is in love with the beautiful VIRGINIA BREWSTER, daughter and heiress of a Wall Street financier. But NIEL'S model, CHIRI, is jealous of VIRGINIA and tells him that he will spoil his career if he marries a wealthy girl who cannot appreciate his art. He says that love will overcome obstacles and they are making happy plans until her father dies suddenly of heart failure and VIRGINIA is prostrated with grief.

It is revealed that BREWSTER had lost his fortune in speculation. NIEL urges an immediate marriage but his pleading is interrupted by FREDERICK DEAN, an old family friend, who persuades VIRGINIA to come and live with him and his daughter CLARISSA, who is a girlhood chum of hers. He wins her consent by saying that an immediate marriage would be disrespectful to her father's memory.

NIEL is furious when VIRGINIA tells him her decision, for he suspects DEAN'S motives, and does not like the shallow CLARISSA, who has just announced her engagement to RUSSELL WAINGOULD. He takes VIRGINIA to her new home and returns unhappily to his neglected studio, where he finds CHIRI, who has cleaned his apartment and has hot coffee waiting for him. Fearing that CHIRI will become a nuisance, he repulses her and she leaves in a temper. Next day he goes with VIRGINIA for a farewell visit to her old home and she selects a few personal articles to keep—"for remembrance." They meet CLARISSA and her fiance.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

Clarissa had introduced her fiance to Virginia and turned to address a casual greeting to Nathaniel. Then she turned back to Virginia to explain that she had brought Russell with her against his will. She realized in an instant, however, that such an explanation would partake of the nature of an anti-climax in view of the fact that he seemed to have lost his reluctance. He was quite frankly putting himself on pleasant terms with Virginia. And even if Virginia had felt his presence an intrusion at first she didn't mind it now, for when Russell Waingould wanted to be agreeable he could be very agreeable indeed.

But it must have been something more than what was actually happening, something that Russell's manner suggested, that brought the expression that so startled Nathaniel to Clarissa's beautifully made-up features.

Perhaps none but an artist would have caught the fleet unveiling, would have seen the stark nakedness of anger that bared itself for the tiniest fraction of a second in the hard blue eyes. But to Nathaniel's keen sight it was full confirmation of his first estimate of this friend of Virginia's.

And Virginia, too fine to suspect an existence of dross in the people she cared for, was going to live under the same roof with this girl whose eyes could light with rage for nothing at all!

The feeling he had been trying to shake off, the feeling that Virginia was walking into trouble, returned anew to Nathaniel on that look of Clarissa's and he was more than ever conscious that he was making a mistake in not insisting that Virginia should marry him at once.

But Clarissa's next words convinced him that anything he should say against her attitude in the matter would ring hollow. She was urging Virginia most earnestly to come along right off, in time for luncheon. Nathaniel found it difficult to reconcile her apparent sincerity with what he believed she really felt.

Virginia let herself be persuaded into hurrying her departure, but Nathaniel guessed it was to quiet Clarissa's clamor more than anything else.

When she had gone to her room to finish her packing there Clarissa crossed the room and rang the servants' bell.

"We'll see if we can't scare up some cocktails," she announced to Russell.

It was Mrs. Pike who answered the ring.

"Good morning, Pike," Clarissa greeted the housekeeper; can't we have a shaker of cocktails while we wait for Miss Brewster?"

"I'm sorry, miss; there's no one left to prepare them."

"What? Have the servants gone? Well, never-mind, we'll do it ourselves. Come along, Russell; I hope we find the essentials."

Mrs. Pike led the way to the pantry but Nathaniel remained where he was. For one reason, Clarissa had in no way included him in the invitation to accompany her and for another, he wouldn't have gone if she had. He hoped Virginia would not learn what her friends were doing.

He fretted in fear they would not finish their ill-timed indulgence before Virginia reappeared, but presently they came back, complaining that it was a fizzle.

"The butler or someone cleaned out the place," Clarissa accused. She was about to give further voice to her disgust when Virginia joined them, carrying a traveling case.

"Would you mind asking downstairs to have someone come up for these things?" she said to Clarissa. "I'll be down in just a minute."

She motioned Nathaniel to stay when he seemed uncertain whether to go with Clarissa and Russell.

A few minutes later, when she and Nathaniel entered Clarissa's car, Virginia felt like a person whose soul had been torn in twain. It seemed to her that a great part of herself had been left behind in those desterted rooms.

The Deans were one of the few old-time families still living in a house on Fifth avenue. It was soon reached from the Brewster apartment. On the way Clarissa invited Nathaniel to stop for lunch, but as the spirit of hospitality was entirely lacking from her words he declined.

At the door he said goodby to Virginia and promised to be at his telephone if she wanted him.

"I think I'll get to work and see if I can't bring our castle in Spain a little nearer," he told her, forcing himself to a cheerfulness that he was far from feeling. He looked behind her at the Deans' front door and it seemed to him a barrier that had risen between them, mocking his plans.

Mr. Dean was waiting to welcome the new member of his household and there was no lack of warmth in his manner. He drew her close with his hands on her shoulders and brushed a nice kiss on her forehead. Clarissa, standing nearby, allowed a queer smile to lift one corner of her mouth. She believed she was seeing things very clearly.

"Don't come down to lunch unless you care to," she told Virginia on the way upstairs with her.

"I'd rather not," Virginia admitted.

Clarissa saw her settled in her room and started to go but at the door she turned on a sudden impulse and remarked, seemingly apropos of nothing:

"You know, Virginia, I'm dead in love with Russell."

Virginia regarded her in surprise.

"I'm sure you must be," she said. "He's really very nice, Clarissa."

"Yes, he's attractive," Clarissa agreed, "but what might be more important, he's also rich. As rich I should say, as father, or he will be some day. Quite a catch if someone who needed to marry for money could manage to lure him away from me." She paused and laughed. "But such a person would find her path strewn with many difficulties," she added and laughed again, a laugh that bewildered Virginia because of its mirthlessness.

"Why, Clarissa, you talk as though you weren't sure of him."

"I'm not. No woman can ever be sure of any rich man while there are penniless women in the world," Clarissa returned slowly.

Virginia shrank as from a physical blow. "Penniless women . . ." she murmured; "penniless women . . ."

"Exactly, my dear," Clarissa said easily.

Virginia looked at her squarely. "But I should think you would believe in Russell if only because he has money," she said gravely. "He doesn't need to make a wealthy marriage. If you think all penniless people are also fortune hunters you might have reason to doubt him if he were poor."

"Yes, I have the satisfaction of knowing he isn't after dad's money," Clarissa acknowledged. "But to get back to the point, the fact that he will inherit a fortune only makes his latitude in the choice of a wife so much wider. He can afford to marry anyone he wishes."

"And he has chosen you," Virginia said softly.

"With my help," Clarissa appended frankly; "but that oughtn't to be startling to you, Virginia."

"How do you mean?" Virginia asked, truly at a loss to understand her friend's remark.

Clarissa eyed her silently for a moment, with the faintest hint of a sneer on her perfectly rouged lips. "Oh, well," she shrugged, "if you prefer the ridiculous pretensions of our grandmothers. But in that case I should say you are hardly being true to your convictions."

"Clarissa, you are talking in riddles."

"Really? Then tell me, is it consistent to pretend you still believe that men do the choosing and yet act as much a . . . modern as you have?"

"Is it modern to grieve for a father? Is that what you mean?"

"Well, I do think you haven't allowed your grief to cloud your judgment, Virginia. That's why I say you are modern even if you do refuse the language."

"I suppose you say that because I came here instead of marrying Nathaniel. You would understand, Clarissa, if you had lost a parent."

"Oh, of course I know you were devoted, you and your father," Clarissa admitted grudgingly. "But you know mother's divorce took her away from me just as much as if she had died. At least I felt that way about it. But I can't recall that it robbed me of my power to think for myself. However . . . it doesn't matter. I'm glad you're here, Virginia, for reasons of my own which I promise to tell you some day.

"Then you really are sincere about it? I was beginning to wonder, Clarissa, if you were as pleased as you said."

"Nonsesnse, dear; you're as welcome as Lindy. Only I'm glad we've had this little talk. I'm sure we understand each other now."

She kissed Virginia and went out, leaving the latter to ponder over the "little talk."

"If it weren't too utterly absurd I'd say she was warning me not to trespass with Russell," Virginia told herself. "I wonder . . ."

Further reflections were ended for the moment, however, by a rap on the door.

NOMINEE TAKES EIGHT YEARS

Both Hoover and Al Long Before Public

By C. BASCOM SLEMP
Former Secretary to President Coolidge

NEW YORK, June 26. (INS)—President Roosevelt once told me that it takes four years of consideration by the American people to make a nominee for the presidency. This rule or law has been demonstrated this year at both Kansas City and Houston. Hoover has been before the public as a presidential possibility for eight years and likewise Governor Smith.

The mistake the allies made in Kansas City and the mistake the allies are making in Houston is that they think they can undo the settling of the public mind which has been operating for all these years, in a few short hours at convention time. Hysterical meetings at midnight, ominous warnings given to the press never suffice to stop the current when it is backed up by public sentiment accumulating for years. So it looks like Smith.

Practically all the candidates have withdrawn except the old warrior, Senator Reed, who is staking his all on this last turn of the wheel, and he indeed is a pathetic figure. The remarkable success attending him on his last election to the senate seemed to have completely turned his head. He thought that he could go on the stump and stampede the American people into turning to him as a righteous saint—to purify the political world.

This is the end of Senator Jim. The Democrats have made up their minds to nominate Smith and take all chances.

Smith may carry New York. Having made up their minds to sacrifice all for Smith, they are trying to make a set-up that will not be too inconsistent with his picture.

The press carries the statement that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a tower strength to Smith. This, if true, is almost a perversion of the sainted dead. Tammany fought Woodrow Wilson all his life and that political expendiency would bring his hallowed memory to the support of this discredited organization is almost unbelievable.

Woodrow Wilson, if living, would have been found on the side of those who are fighting for principle and not for expediency. He was always elected without New York.

Negro Acquitted On Charge of Burglary

B. C. Meadows, negro, was acquitted of burglary by a jury in 89th district court Tuesday afternoon after Judge P. A. Martin had told him that the court could not promise him leniency on a plea of guilty.

Meadows first attempted to enter a plea of guilty, telling Judge Martin that "de tol' me de jedge would be easier on me if I plead guilty."

When Judge Martin questioned the man, Meadows hesitated a minute and said, "No suh, ah ain't guilty."

During the course of the trial, Meadows, arrested in Oklahoma, told the jury that his confession was given under pressure. The Oklahoma officers, he said, told him they would kill him if he did not give the confession.

The negro already faces the service of a three year sentence for burglary.

AL'S PALS QUIET

Derby Rush Fails To Move Tammany Group

HOUSTON, June 26. (INS)—The Al Smith "brown derby" splashed into the convention maelstrom today, creating excitement among everybody but the New York delegation.

Young Texans grabbed for the derbies when the venders brought them out in the wake of the arrival of Smith's own cahorts.

Other delegates started or cheered, but still the New Yorkers didn't.

Indeed, the entire Tammany delegation seemed to step out of the character assigned to it by Long tradition.

Berlin-London Flights Soon

Political Music Is Modernized

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (INS) Campaign music is not what it used to be since the metropolitan influence took the ascendency in the Democratic party. The brown derby era is characterized by the passing of the venerable march tempo, and the decline of the battle hymn theme. In their place is the new cadence of ritzy modern jazz.

The official Al Smith convention song, by Robert J. (Dinty) Moore, of Oklahoma City, is as slick a Charleston tune as ever inspired a lethargic foot. It has snap, drags, long willowy saxophone whines for personality steps, and the mysterious musical "it" which makes one look for the moon, dim lights, a Coney Island breeze—and you.

"From the streets of New York town,
"Came a man of renown.
"A greater man the party never —haaa-d," etc.

If you had not asked the young lady to dance with you by this time, your vote doesn't count. If you've either chilblains, sciatica or hardening of the heart, you're consequently immune to the spell of the chorus—

"For we're for Al,
We've had enough of Cal,
You'll never get rich
If you stay with the Republican party,
And now we say a-gin,
Our Al is sure to win,
So vote for Al
Your wonderful pal,
For pres-i-dent."

Shook and Pryor Held In $1000 Bond

Ed Pryor, Electra constable, and Tom Shook, former police chief at Electra, were still in the Wichita county jail in default of $1,000 bond Tuesday night.

The two men are charged with concealing a prisoner in connection with the escape and recapture of Henry Shumate, who is charged with the robbery of a hotel and a news stand at Electra early last week.

Shumate was captured by Sheriff W. G. Bralley and his deputies while the escaped prisoner was sleeping with Pryor early Monday morning. Shook was arrested at his home about an hour after the arrest of Pryor and Shumate.

Robert Moore and Jeff D. Witt, who escaped at the time Shumate left the county jail early Sunday morning, were still at large.

Electra Man Given Hearing by Lantz

H. D. Perry and R. L. McCullough of Electra, charged with the sale of whiskey, were brought before United States commissioner J. A. Lantz here Tuesday.

Perry pleaded guilty and his bond was set at $750. McCullough was given a $750 bond for hearing before Lantz Wednesday June 27. Neither of them made bond late Tuesday afternoon.

Both men were arrested last week at Electra by Chief of Police J. T. Taylor of Electra.

Fort Worth Worker Killed by Lightning

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 26. (UP)—One man was killed and three others stunned when struck by lightning today. J. T. Penn was instantly killed. The men had been digging sewer ditch and had just laid down their shovels when the lightning struck.

PRAYER OPENS DEMO CONCLAVE

Bishop Hay Delivers Opening Prayer

HOUSTON, June 26. (AP)—The Rev. S. R. Hay, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, delivered the following prayer at the opening today of the Democratic national convention:

"We thank Thee, Our Gracious Heavenly Father for that good providence that has kept us as a nation and as individuals to this hour.

"Thou who art the giver of all good—author of eternal life, send Thy blessings upon these Thy servants—men and women gathered here from all parts of our great country to perform a duty of patriotism—a duty of justice and right for the welfare of all our people.

"We bow before Thee with unreserved gratitude and acknowledge Thy supremacy and dominion over us.

"We believe that Thou art the creator of all things.

"We believe with unshaken faith that Thou didst give thine only son—Jesus Christ, to save us from sin and lead us into high and holy living.

"We ask that Divine wisdom may direct the deliberations of this national convention. We ask unbounded mercy for all citizens throughout the United States, that they may be preserved in union, and in that peace which is thine.

"And now, O Christ, we would pray together the prayer Thou didst teach Thy disciples to pray.

"Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name; Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven; give us this day our daily bread; and forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us; and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever.

"Amen."

Al Smith Exhibits Latest Edition Of Brown Derby for Newspaper Men

ALBANY, N. Y., June 26. (AP)—As the Democratic convention which will consider his name as the party's candidate for the presidency opened in Texas today Governor Alfred E. Smith tried on the latest edition of his never ending succession of brown derbies, the war bonnets that have featured every Smith campaign for the past quarter century.

The Governor greeted reporters with a smile in the executive office shortly before noon, but while he chatted with them freely he continued his policy of saying nothing about the convention or his own prospects.

"For the benefit of the newcomers," he said, "I think I'd better show the latest thing in brown derbies."

Walking across the room to a hat rack he took down a deep chocolate derby that had arrived as a gift by the morning mail and set it jauntily on his head.

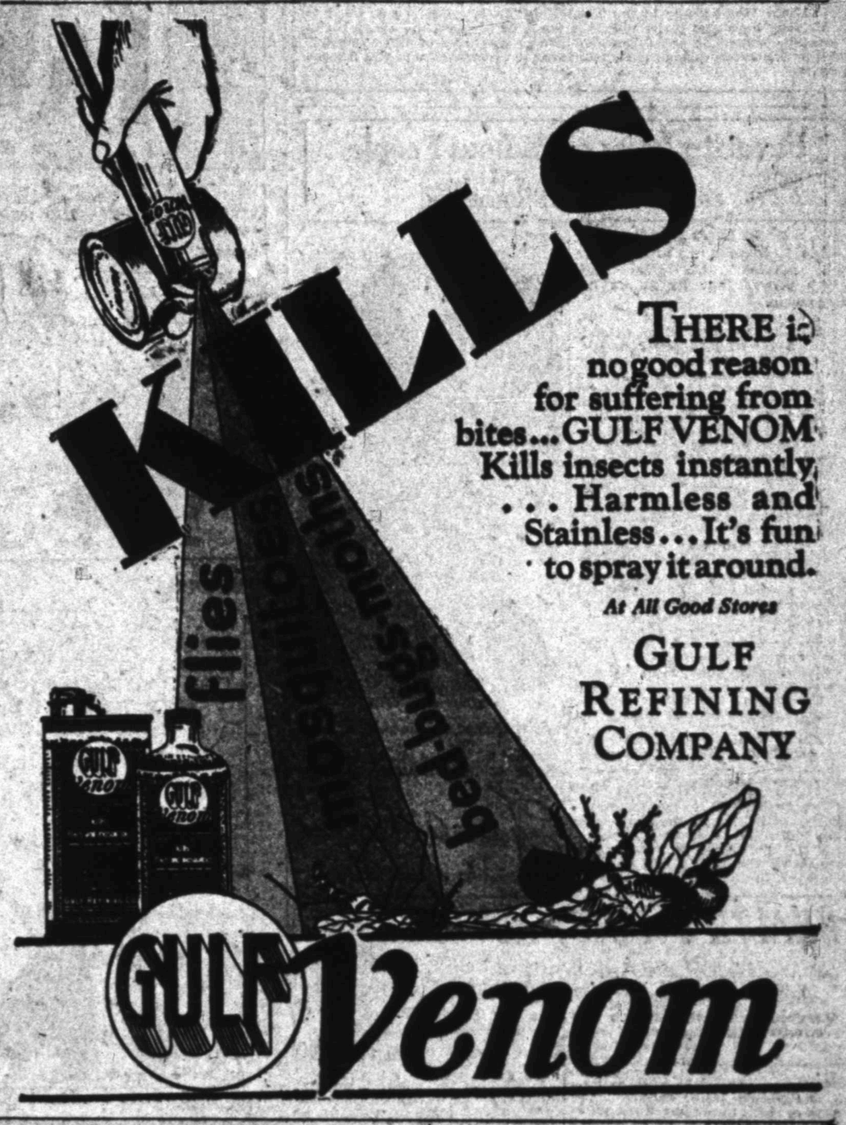

"How many of those do you get a day?" he was asked.

"Four so far today," he said, "but only one in a dozen is wearable. This one though, is good. This is official."

The governor said that he would listen to the keynote speech tonight on the radio in the executive mansion.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By QUIN A. RYAN

Quin A. Ryan is one of America's most famous radio announcers, which proves that he knows his condensers.

QUIN A. RYAN

Kentucky mountaineers, according to a recent newspaper article, are using the copper coils in their stills for radio aerials — which might be labeled Scotch thrift. It's a corking idea, but such a hook-up is all wet, because every song is "Comin' Through the Rye."

Please stand by for Ryan's favorite wheeze.

"My latest joke," he told me, "is the very last story of the thrifty Scotchman.

"He staggered into a barber shop, and, sinking into one of the chairs, gasped out: 'You—charge—ten—cents—to shave—live—men—don't—you?'

"The barber assured him that that amount was correct.

"'What—you—charge—to shave—dead men?'

"'One dollar,' the barber replied, wondering what he was driving at.

"'Then,' went on the Scot, weak and nervously, 'shave me—quick—doctor—said I—wouldn't last—many—more—minutes.'

"The barber set to work immediately. All through the shave the Scotchman had several sinking spells of an alarming nature, yet bore up to the end. When the last stroke of the razor was given, Scottie gasped, in tones of satisfaction:

"'That'll do — ninety — cents saved!' and immediately expired."

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

CONSTRUCTIVE VACATIONING

Many people take vacations to obtain a rest from their work and then discover that it takes about two months of work following the vacation to rest up from the effects of the vacation.

This is vacation time all over the North American continent. It is a season when the office seems dull and one has visions of the "great open spaces" with green trees, cool breezes and fishing pools.

Vacations are usually planned with only one object in view and that is to have a good time, with pleasant amusements. Frequently one finds, after resuming his customary daily grind, that he is much worse off than before in health and spirits, with sunburn and tired limbs. But there is no reason why there should be any unpleasant after effects of a vacation.

A change from the habits to which one is accustomed during the rest of the year should be productive of marked benefit. Here is a splendid opportunity for us to adopt a healthful regime which will prepare us for the heavy work of the coming winter.

It is advisable during vacation time to put aside all thoughts of worry. This is not as easy to do as to advise, but it is good to amuse yourself with simple pleasure such as swimming, rowing, or perhaps, fishing. The mental worker would do well to become an ardent physical culturist, turning his thoughts to physical development, taking long hikes, measuring the distance each day until he is walking five or 10 miles daily. It is a good time to perfect the new swimming strokes you have been so anxious to learn.

Do not labor under the delusion that during vacation time you can stuff your body with "hot dogs" and candies which you do not eat while doing your regular work. Dietetic discretions must be observed if one is to return to his regular work with a new lease on life. If you "feed up" too much at this time you will be months in recovering from the poisons you generated in your system through this foolish gormandizing, and diseases may start which will take a long time to cure, even with careful dieting.

This is the season to eat plentifully of fresh fruit, green vegetables and to cut down on heavy foods, such as starches and meat. Do not try to keep cool with ice cream. You will find that this food is very rich in heating materials, and will only cool temporarily. Drink plenty of plain water, neither too hot nor too cold, and thus give your eliminative functions a chance to flush out the excessive impurities and wastes.

Seek healthful amusements, but do not spend your time sampling the tempting confections at the corner drug store. If between your swimming and exercise period, time hangs heavily on you, it is well to rest under the green trees, reading light magazine stories of romance or adventure, but nothing too deep or philosphical.

Rest periods with an occasional short nap will refresh you and make you all the more eager to get back to some healthful exercise, but do not allow yourself to get that "lazy feeling," since physical rest is not as much needed as mental and physical diversion.

You can re-create yourself not so much by idleness and glutton as by participating in joyful games, and in the observation of the ways, powers and harmonies fo nature.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Subscriber asks: "What causes excessive nose bleed in a boy nine years old? Has continued since he was three years old. Never a day goes by without at least one."

Answer: Your child probably has especially sensitive nasal membrances and treatment may be necessary to bring about a firmer tone to these structures. Go to a doctor who uses the localized ultra-violet light treatment. This treatment consists in raying the inside of the nose with actinic light. It is just the same as using concentrated sunlight. If you cannot find a doctor who has this treatment, go to a nose specialist who can give you some remedy you can apply several times daily to toughen the sensitive membrances.

Question: Housekeeper asks: "Will you please print instructions for making the fruit whips in your menus?"

Answer: The fruit whips may be made of cooked apricots, peaches, apples, prunes, figs, etc., by first mincing the fruit and adding to the whites of well beaten eggs. Do not add sugar or any other seasoning. For a change, the whip may be placed in the oven and slightly browned on top.

Question: J. M. B. asks: "Can an inherited venereal infection cause insanity in a child? He is a strong, healthy child but gets strange at times and has terrible temper tantrums. His father died from an infection he thought cured in youth."

Answer: It is possible the boy's bad temper could be caused by a hereditary blood disease, but it is better to believe that his tantrums are caused from digestive disturbances as this is usually the case. If you teach him to eat correctly and live with other good habits, you will also have done everything you can to eradicate any inherited tendency.

Fish Unaffected When Shocked, Test Proves

AUSTIN, Texas, June 25. (UP)—What fish do when shocked was carefully noted by experts of the state fish, game and oyster department in a series of tests recently concluded in San Felipe creek, near Del Rio.

The tests were made in an effort to find a method of ridding streams of predatory fish.

A current from 330 to 440 volts was put into the stream. As the shocked fisch floated to the surface, the predatory ones were gathered and killed. The others recovered shortly from the shock and submerged. Turtles apparently went to the bottom at the first contact of the electric current. Snakes were brought to the surface with the fish.

Two wires were used in shocking the fish. One was zigzagged across the bottom of the creek over an area about 100 yards square just above the surface.

When the surface wire approached within about 10 feet of a fish it would splash and begin swimming on its back. The current seems to affect the respiratory organs. Bass were the most sensitive, next perch and then suckers.

There were no fatalities in the test. One bass lay on the wire four minutes. When removed it began breathing again in 5 minutes and in 10 swam away.

Howard Scores Both Runs; Darkness Halts Game

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26.—Joe Kiefer and Howard Fitzgerald combined forces today to defeat the Buffs in the opener of the series. Darkness preceding a heavy rainstorm halted play after the seventh inning, but the Spudders had tallied two runs, thanks mainly to Howard, while the new champions were held scoreless, thanks largely to Joseph.

Kiefer kept the Buffs' six hits scattered and except in the seventh, when they bunched two, never was in danger. Joseph's baffling delivery was particularly effective when Buffs were on bases.

Spuds Score in First

Fitzgerald scored both runs. Howard walked in the first after two were out, stole second and scored on Eldred's single to center.

Howard started the fourth with a double to center. Eldred flied to Powell. Jenkins grounded to Selph, Fitzgerald going to third. Swenson singled to center, Fitzgerald scoring.

Turgeon Features

The Spudders helped Kiefer defensively, playing errorless ball. Turgeon in particular scintillated afield, handling eight chances flawlessly. Heinie Schuble also turned in some fast fielding.

Littlejohn held the Spudders to four hits, Roetz macing the other blow.

Ritt's Ritticisms

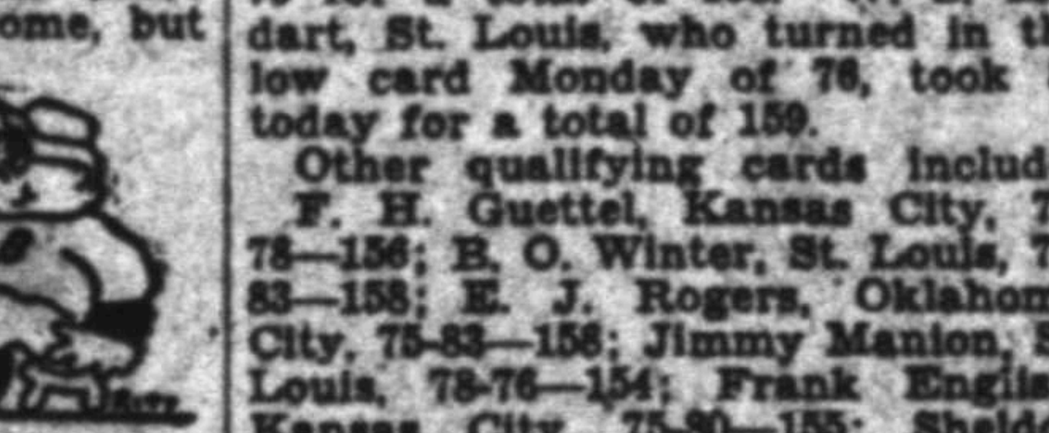

By BILL RITT

Uncle Wilbert Robinson is one of the few managers in baseball wearing specs. Maybe they are double vision and make his Dodgers look twice as good.

If Robbie should happen to look cross-eyed through his cheaters his troubles would be magnified.

He has been risking astigmatism for years trying to see a pennant, but all he gets is a second division cinder in his eye.

With his windshields in place Robbie may not be handsome, but he has dignity, which is almost as rare in baseball as intelligence.

Robbie had his Dodgers up at the top of the league early this season, but they didn't stay long. They got homesick.

But Uncle Wilbert isn't downhearted. He has hopes that if his club hits the bottom it might bounce.

However, if Brooklyn wins the pennant, it will be a great surprise Not even Robbie will believe it.

HENDRICKS DID IT

CINCINNATI, June 26.—The most remarkable rise in recent baseball history is that of the Cincinnati Reds. Pennant contenders today, they were around the bottom of the National league at this time last season.

Recalcitrant

Edd Roush, noted for being a persistent holdout, again has shown a disposition to kick over the traces. The outfielder has quit the Giants and has been suspended.

HALLAS VICTOR OVER PARELLI

Billy Wins Rough 3-Fall Match at Ball Park

Rough and tough Billy Hallas, Greek wrestler, proved too rough for Joe Parelli in the main event of the boxing wrestling show staged Tuesday night at Spudder park by Promoter Alec B. Ross.

Billy and Parelli gave one of the best shows that has been seen in the local arena in some weeks. The boys gave the spectators a sample of almost every punch and kick known in the wrestling game along with comic antics and faces.

Parelli introduced a stunt that has not been seen here before by appearing in the ring minus his shoes. Hallas was not at all pleased with the attire of his opponent. Ross ended the argument by barring the act of twisting toes and the match was on.

Hallas took the first fall after 21 minutes of rough going with a body slam.

Parelli caught the wily Greek napping to score the second fall in six minutes with a series of reverse headlocks and popping the Greek on the canvas near a dozen times in succession.

Hallas scored the decisive fall in 13 minutes of wrestling with a hard blow to the body followed with a headlock and left Joe squirming on the mat.

Tommy Barwise failed to appear for his scheduled six-round boxing bout with K. O. Shorty.

Johnny Owens conceded his bout to Alvie Anderson after the third round of a scheduled six-round boxing exhibition, claiming an injured side.

Tom Walton and Kenneth Adams pummeled each other for four rounds in the opening bout with Walton holding a slight edge.

Al Espinosa Takes Mid-American Golf

KANSAS CITY, June 26. (AP)—Al Espinosa of Chicago late today won the first annual mid-American open golf tournament here when he finished the 72 holes of play in 289.

He displayed a good brand of golf through smashing the course record with a 68, four under par, on his second 18 holes, featured by a hole in one. He shot the final round this afternoon in 33-39—72, par for the course.

Archie Compston, British ace, finished second, with a total of 294. He went around the final 18 holes in par 72.

Jack Burke of Houston, Texas, and Leo Diegel of White Plains, N. Y., tied for third place with 297.

Joe Kirkwood of Albany, Ga., went below par for the first time in the tournament this afternoon, getting a 71, which made his total 298, good for fourth place.

Ed Dudley, Los Angeles, shot 34-39-73 this afternoon for 299 that put him in fifth place. "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, Buffalo, N. Y., was sixth with 301. He shot 36-37—73 this afternoon.

Chester Beer, Bakersfield, Calif., and Anthony Manero, Fairview, N. Y., were tied for seventh place with 302 each.

Johnny Farrell, national open champion, "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn and O. B. Clark, Springfield, Mo., medalist, tied for eighth place with 303 each.

DES MOINES, June 26. (UP)—Arthur M. Bartlett, Iowa amateur won medalist honors in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament here today when he shot a par 74 for a total of 152 for 36 holes.

Odds on Risko-Godfrey Go Fall to Even Money

NEW YORK, June 26. (UP)—Crouching before a black giant weighing 235 pounds and measuring 6 feet 4¼ inches in height, Johnny Risko of Cleveland will have a chance Wednesday night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, to pound his way to hitherto unknown fistic fame and fortune.

Risko can establish himself as the outstanding heavyweight outside of champion and challenger by defeating George Godfrey, the sleepy eyed Alabama negro, in their 10-round bout.

The betting odds have shifted from 8 to 5 on Godfrey to even money within the last four days.

Publicity Men Ballyhoo Tunney And Heeney Go as Interest Lags

Colorless Champion and Challenger Cause Indifference to Battle and Rickard Tries to Save Situation

By GEORGE KIRSEY

NEW YORK, June 26. (UP)—The continued disinterest of the public in high class boxing bouts leads one to the conclusion that Tex Rickard is riding to his first hard fall in the promotion of the heavyweight title match between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney at Yankee stadium, July 26.

Only a month away, the public aparently is utterly indifferent to the first heavyweight championship fight held in nine years in which Jack Dempsey is not one of the participants.

Rickard, who has never gone wrong on a heavyweight title bout as long as he had Dempsey in one corner, predicts the Tuney-Heeney match will draw $1,500,000. His plans call for 90,000 seats at Yankee stadium and if he fills them all, the gate receipts will go slightly over the $2,000,000 mark.

Few expect the bout to draw more than $1,000,000. Heeney is a slow thinking, stolid individual. Tunney is a "lack lustre" champion who hates crowds any place but in $50 ringside seats and who demands seclusion in his training.

The public apparently isn't interested in either of them.

"Build Up" Experts Work

Rickard is trying to save the situation as best he can. He has hired a high-powered publicity expert, Steve Hannigan, to attend Tunney in training and drum up daily news about the champion.

Rickard never had to do this when Dempsey was champion. Francis Albertanti, assistant publicity director of Madison Square Garden, will be detailed to Heeney's camp at Fairhaven, N. J., early next month to discover some heretofore unknown punch with which the New Zealander will win the championship.

Rickard has guaranteed Tunney $550,000 with a percentage privilege if the receipts go over a million dollars. Heeney will get $100,000 as a minimum, with a share of all over a million. With another $100,000 for rental and incidentals, Rickard can't count a penny profit until he takes in $750,000.

The new federal tax will not help the situation any. For every ringside seat sold, the government will get $9.660, $8 going to the federal government and $1.660 to the state.

Last Bouts Lose Money

Rickard's best chance to come out on the bout is for the appeal of the spectacle to draw thousands who are not otherwise interested in the outcome of the actual contest.

The last big three championship bouts have been financial failures. Jim Mullen lost $15,000 on the Mickey Walker-Ace Hudkins bout at Chicago, "a natural" if ever there was one. Rickard lost money on the Sammy Mandell-Jimmy McLarnin lightweight title bout at the Polo grounds, and Humbert Fugazy failed to make a penny on the Tommy Loughran-Pete Latzo light heavyweight title match at Ebbets field.

The situation in New York is attributed to "too much boxing," by Abe Yager, press agent for Humbert J. Fugazy.

Yager believes the situation will be helped considerably when the federal tax of 25 per cent is imposed on all seats selling for $5 or over after June 29.

"The tax will drive the smaller clubs out of business and increase interest in the bigger matches," Yager said.

City Public Net Tourney Planned

Conclave Called for Today To Arrange Meet

The municipal tennis players of the city are to have a tournament. Plans for a city championship meet, to include men and women's singles and doubles, are to be made at a meeting this afternoon at 5:15 o'clock in the office of C. C. Frazee, city recreation director, in Memorial auditorium.

Players desirous of entering the tournament, which will be open to all residents of the city not members of private clubs, are urged to attend the meeting.

Fishing Chats with The Old Angler

More than a quarter of a million licensed anglers in some of the older and most populated states indicates the wide interest displayed by the average citizen in this red-blooded, health-building sport in open. The early season angling is for brook, rainbow and brown trout, the sportiest of all fresh water denizens. Real trouting under ideal weather conditions in the states above the Mason and Dixon line and those above the Ohio river and to the west, does not come until late spring, when the high, icy waters run down and the weather comes fully out of cold storage.

Even if the legal trout season in your state did open late in the spring, you have not missed much by delaying your ichthyic vacation until ideal weather and conditions arrive and good sized trout get into biting mood.

Early season trouting brings out hordes of anglers, but they get little save baby trout for their efforts, and trouting in uncertain April weather, wading icy waters in cold rains and occasional snow flurries seems more like a standing invitation to take on a bad cold or a dose of pneumonia than real sport.

Neal Defeats Art In Golf Feature

B. L. Neal and J. L. Art played the feature match yesterday in the first round of the all-city golf tournament at the Golf and Country club. Two extra holes were required before Neal won on the 20th green in their fourth flight match.

Charles Keirsey eliminated J. M. Bradshaw, 6 and 5 in a match in the second flight.

Matches in the first round in all flights are to be considered this week.

Lavender Sets Links Record at Brownwood

BROWNWOOD, Texas, June 26. (AP)—Dennis Lavender, West Texas champion and medalist in yesterday's qualifying round of the Brownwood Country club's invitation tournament, set a new course record here today when he shot a par 70 to eliminate Tom Walling of Temple, in the second round of match play.

The only major upset of the day was the defeat of Bob Scott of Colorado City in the first round by Russell Crownover of Abilene, 2 and 1. Dudley Raines of Stamford and Bob Alexander of Munday, two other favorites, came through as expected.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

"A FAN" WRITES IN and inquires for this writer's selection of an all-star Texas league club. That's a tough 'un, and only a matter of opinion, of course. But here's who I think comprises about the best of the athletes: Pitchers—Lindsey, Hallahan and Barnes, Houston; Hubbell, Beaumont; Wachtel, Fort Worth; Blankenship, Dallas. Catchers—Snyder, Houston; Gibson, San Antonio. First base—Shires, Waco. Second base—Selph, Houston. Third base—Hock, Houston. Shortstop—Flaskamper, San Antonio. Outfielders—Watkins and Worthington, Houston; Blackerby, Waco.

It will be noted that not a Spudder is on the above list. That doesn't mean that there isn't a Spudder who isn't a star. On the contrary, there is more than one Spudder who NORMALLY is the best in the league in his position. But injuries and illness eliminated such players as Turgeon, Swenson and Fitzgerald, and slumps prevented Payne, Steengrafe and Jenkins from being considered. Probably when the second half is concluded there will be a Spudder, perhaps two or three, on the so-called all-star team. But the selection for the way they played the first half does not include a Wichita Falls athlete.

STANTON COMES NEARER, in my opinion, to attaining a place than any Spudder. George has improved rapidly and except for Shires and possibly Walker of Houston and Grimes of San Antonio, is the most valuable first baseman in the loop. And if he continues to hit better (there is no doubt over his fielding) I wouldn't be surprised if he isn't the best first baseman in the league when the season ends.

THERE DOUBTLESS will be dissenting voice over what I regard as the all-star team. Possibly a change might be made in the pitchers, though I hardly see how that staff could be improved. There isn't any doubt that Snyder and Gibson are the class of the catchers. Except possibly for shortstop the infield looks like the best. Windle of Waco and Schuble of Houston are regarded by many critics as the class of the shortstops. But I don't believe the Buff or the Cub equal Flaskamper in all-around worth.

WATKINS AND Worthington are entitled to places in the outfield without argument. Blackerby's hitting gives him the third place, though there will be objection here in some quarters. Many hold Joe Bonowitz entitled to a place on a Texas all-star team but I don't believe the Fort Worth gardener would be as valuable as Blackerby. I think George's harder hitting would offset Joe's faster fielding, although Bonowitz himself is a timely batter.

NET STARS WIN AT WIMBLEDON

French Aces Extended As U. S. Hopes Easily Cop

WIMBLEDON, England, June 26. (UP)—William T. Tilden II, and George Lott of the United States Davis cup team advanced to the third round of the All-England championships today by winning their second round matches today.

Rain interferred with the progress of the tournament, preventing John Hennessey and Wilbur F. Coen Jr., the other two United States Davis cup players, from participating in their second round matches.

The second round had its terror for the French Davis cup team, whose members played unbelievably poor tennis. Rene LaCoste defeated the Australian Davis cup player, J. B. Hawkes, 6-3, 4-6, 5-3, 6-4, but was badly off his game. LaCoste had difficulty in solving Hawkes' spinning underhand shots.

Borotra Has Close Call

Henri Cochet eliminated Harry Hopman, Australian Davis cup player, 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, but showed nothing to indicate he is the same player who won the championship last year. Hopman's volleying was frequently superior and his sizzling drives and generalship repeatedly bothered Cochet.

Jean Borotra had a narrow call with G. P. Hughes, the Englishman, but finally won out, 1-6, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

The mediocre showing of the three French stars has raised the hopes of Tilden for victory.

Tilden's Foe Helpless

When Tilden unleashed his cannonball service and rifle-like forehand drives the veteran Siamese player was helpless. The scores were 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

Lott won from H. K. Lester, the young English star, 6-1, 7-5, 7-5, using his chop shots effectively as Lester was frequently trapped at the base line.

Miss Helen Wills, defending her women's singles title, will not play her first match until Wednesday. The match between Molla Mallory and Miss L. Bickerton was halted by the rain after the latter had won the first set.

Purchase of Giants By Rickard Rumored

NEW YORK, June 26. (UP)—The Daily Mirror tonight said announcement will be made in a few days of the purchase of the New York Giants baseball club by the Madison Square Garden corporation. Tex Rickard is reported to have negotiated the purchase at a price in the neighborhood of two million dollars.

The story said John J. McGraw, Giants manager, would be retained in his present capacity. Workmen are preparing a suite of office rooms at Madison Square Garden, according to the story.

BOWERS STRESSES ORIGIN OF MAJOR PARTIES IN KEYNOTE TALK

HAMILTON AND MELLON FLAYED

Keynoter Pleads for Recovery of Government

By Universal Service

The verbatim text of the keynote address before the Democratic national convention at Houston in which Claude G. Bowers, of New York, temporary chairman, sounded the Democratic call to battle for the 1928 presidential campaign and revealed the corruption of the Republican party is as follows:

The American Democracy has mobilized today to wage war of extermination against privilege and pillage. We prime our guns against autocracy and bureaucracy. We march against that centralization which threatens the liberties of the people. We fight for the republic of the fathers, and for the recovery of the covenant from the keeping of a caste and class. We battle for the honor of the nation, besmirched and bedraggled by the most brazen and shameless carnival of corruption that ever blackened the reputation of a decent and self-respecting people.

We stand for the spirit of the preamble of the Declaration that is made a mockery; for the bill of rights that is ignored; for the social and economic justice which is refused; for the soverign rights of states that are denied; and for a return to the old-fashioned civic integrity of a Jackson, a Tilden, a Cleveland and a Wilson. We stand for the restoration of the government to the people who built it by their bravery and cemented it with their blood.

We do not understand the enemy. The little gilded group that now owns and controls the government can pour a golden stream into the slush fund and make no impression on the fortunes they have legislated into their coffers. The enemy enters the campaign unembarrassed by debt—Harry Sinclair has paid that off. It enters the campaign with his money in its pocket and his blessing on its head.

For forty years the party in power has conjured with the name of Lincoln while following the leadership of Hamilton; and now, after eight years of successful privilege and pillage it throws off the Lincolnian mask. It could hardly keep the Lincoln mask on its face and Sinclair's money in its chest.

Thus at Kansas City, where they dramatized the issue, it was not Lincoln, but Hamilton who rode at the head of the procession.

Two Political Schools

Thus they frankly base their policies on the political principles of Hamilton; and we go forth to battle for the principles of Thomas Jefferson. The issues are as fundamental as they were when Jefferson and Hamilton crossed swords more than a century ago. To understand the conflicting views of these two men on the functions of government is to grasp the deep significance of this campaign.

Now Hamilton believed in the rule of an aristocracy of money, and Jefferson in a democracy of men.

Hamilton believed that governments are created for the domination of the masses, and Jefferson that they are created for the service of the people.

Hamilton wrote to Morris that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful; and Jefferson knew that no government is fit to live that does not conserve the interest of the average man.

Hamilton proposed a scheme for binding the wealthy to the government by making government a source of revenue to the wealthy; and Jefferson unfuried his banner of equal rights.

Hamilton wanted to wipe out the boundary lines of states, and Jefferson was the champion of their sovereign powers.

Hamilton would have concentrated authority remote from the people, and Jefferson would have diffused it among them.

Hamilton would have injected governmental activities into all the affairs of men; and Jefferson laid it down as an axiom of freedom that "that government is best which governs least."

Just put a pin in this: There is not a major evil of which the American people are complaining now that is not due to the triumph of the Hamiltonian conception of the state. And the tribute to Hamilton at Kansas City was an expression of fealty to him who thought that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful; who proposed the plan for binding the wealthy to the government by making government a source of revenue to the wealthy; who devised the scheme to tax the farm to pay the factory; and whose purpose was to make democracy in America a mockery and a sham.

Thus we are challenged once more to a conflict on the fundamentals; and a clear call comes to us today to fight anew under the Jeffersonian banner, with the Jacksonian sword, and in the Wilsonian spirit, and crashing the gates of privilege, make Jeffersonian democracy a living force again in the lives and homes of men.

The friendly enemy at Kansas City has rendered a clarifying service by proclaiming Hamilton as its father and beau ideal. This ought to awaken the Lincolnians among Republicans to a realization of what are the fundamentals of their party's faith. It was Lincoln who said that "the principles of Jefferson are the definitions and the axioms of a free society." What a comment on the confusion of the public mind on the elementals of American politics when a great party is able to claim a joint parenthood in Abraham Lincoln and Alexander Hamilton!

Why, you cannot believe with Lincoln in democracy and with Hamilton against it.

You cannot believe with Lincoln that "God loved the common people or he would not mave made so many of them," and with Hamilton that the people are "a great beast."

You cannot believe with Lincoln that the principles of Jefferson are "the definitions and the axioms of a free society," and with Hamilton that they are definitions of anarchy.

You cannot believe with Lincoln in a government "of the people, by the people and for the people," and with Hamilton in a government of the wealthy, by the influential and for the powerful.

There are Lincoln Republicans and Hamilton Republicans, but never the twain shall meet, not even at Kansas City, until you find some way to ride two horses going in opposite directions at the same time. We here propose to take our stand so uncompromisingly on the elemental principles of Jeffersonian democracy that liberals and progressives may fraternize with us in a common fight against the common foe in the common interest of the average man and woman.

Wilsonian Days

We enter the campaign no strangers to the public. The brilliant record of our eight years of power is as a splotch of glorious sunshine against the smutty background of eight years of privilege and crime. In those eight years we wrote more progressive and constructive measures into law than had been written by the opposition in 40 years of power.

One thing those eight years did—they buried beyond the reach of resurrection the ancient slander that the party of Wilson is incapable of constructive statesmanship.

They did one thing more—they destroyed the falsehood that Democracy means hard times.

They did another thing—they demolished the fallacy that the party that gave the federal reserve system to the nation is an enemy of business.

And those eight years did one thing more—they gave another immortal to the skies.

What a majestic figure was he who led us in those fruitful years! The cold even light of his superb intellect played upon the most intricate problems of the times and they seemed to solve themselves. He lifted the people to such heights of moral grandeur as they had never known before; and his name and purpose made hearts beat faster in lowly places where his praise was sung in every language in the world. And when at length, his body broken, but his spirit soaring still, he fell stricken, while still battling for his faith, there passed to time and to eternity and to all mankind the everlasting keeping of the immortal memory of Woodrow Wilson.

We submit that a party that stands for that democracy which is inseparable from the liberties of men, and has given a Jefferson, a Jackson and a Wilson to the services of mankind, has earned the right, in times like these, to the cooperation of independents and progressives in the struggle for the preservation of popular government, and the purging of the nation of that corruption which has made America a by-word and a hissing in the very alleys of the world.

Black Horse Cavalry

Sixteen years ago the late Senator Beveridge warned us of the "invisible government." That invisible government now feels strong enough to take on visibility. From the moment of the election of 1920, there was a mobilization of the black horse cavalry of privilege and pillage, and it cantered down Pennsylvania avenue, up and down from one end to the other. Strange creatures, new to the capital, put in an appearance. Desk room was found for one of these in the department of justice. The best minds established a temple of the new patriotism in the little green house on K street. Men who were the very symbols of privilege, whose fortunes had been made on the favors of the government, were put in possession of the instrumentalities of the state. Acting on the Hamiltonian theory that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful, the foremost of these was placed in a strategic public station that he might personally supervise the delivery of the goods. The representatives of special interest hastened to the capital with their receipts for campaign contributions, to be given a key to the treasury and a guest card at the patriotic club on K street where "there was a sound of revelry by night." Within five months the conditions in Washington had become a scandal and a stench. The reign of privilege and pillage had begun.

Privilege Enthroned

The moment the bell rang these men set to the task of undoing the work of Woodrow Wilson and to the commercialization of the government. In the midst of the usual scandal they hurried a tariff law upon the statutes at a cost of from three to four billions a year to the consumers.

They found the tariff commission, we created, an embarrassment—they ignored it. It was not facts they sought. They had promises to keep. When a little later they found it convenient to have a complacent commission to find the facts they sought—they packed it. From that moment the acoustics of the commission have been bad. The cries of the millions for relief cannot be heard, but the dulcet whisper of the pig-iron industry is enough to bring a fifty per cent increase in its loot.

They found the federal trade commission in the way—they packed it. They took the weapons we provided for the protection of the people against exploitation and turned them over to the powers of pillage.

Thus privilege was speedily entrenched in every department of the government; and privilege moved into the office of the attorney general to spike the guns of justice; and privilege took possession of the strategic points in all the departments and commissions; and when the machinery of this potential plutocracy had been completed, there, at the control, sat the very personification of the erstwhile invisible government, looking after the interest of his flock.

It is a tragic thing to find the government mortgaged to a little group that could be crowded into the directors' rooms of the Aluminum Company of America. Under the rule of this regime, the average man has had no more stake in the government, for which he may be called upon to die, than if he had never touched our soil.

Tragedy of the Farms

For example, what stake in government has the farmer of today? From the moment of the realization of the Hamiltonian state under the banner of the bloody shirt in the brutal days of reconstruction the American farmer has been but a hewer of wood and a drawer of water. During the 60 years of Jeffersonian supremacy the farmer was on an equality with every other industry, and it is no mere coincidence that his decline and degradation began with the triumph of the Hamiltonian state. In the Jeffersonian concept of society the farmer had a position of paramount importance; but in all the political writings of Hamilton the only reference to the farmer is a promise that in compensation for his submission to taxation in the interest of others, he may put his wife and children to work in the mills.

Thus while the little group represented by Mr. Mellon had found fine pluckings in the vineyard of the state, there have been nothing but thorns and thistles for the tillers of the soil. And the result is a condition of ruination that is a disgrace to our civilization. Millions of farms have been abandoned. Two million men have been driven from the paternal acres by economic necessity within the year. The hammer of the auctioneer knocking down farmlands has sounded like the continuous bombardment of a major battle in the west. Does the ruling caste want figures? Then take this—in five years of this administration there has been a depreciation in the value of farm lands and equipment of thirty billion dollars!

And what does the ruling caste say to this? It calls it "temporary depression." And what does it propose? It proposes that the farmers shall become better business men.

Now when it suits the pleasure of the privileged to legislate money into its coffers it is applauded by the claquers as patriotic statesmanship; but when the farmer demands his share in the unhappy game of paternalism they denounce him as a radical and a crank.

One day the head of the state by a scratch of the pen increased the tariff loot of the pig iron industry by fifty per cent; and the next day he delivered a homily to the farmers on the wickedness of expecting profit from a government act.

One day Mr. Mellon offered an argument against a farm relief bill; and the next day a Republican senator by substituting "tariff" for "farm relief," and "duties" for "equalization fee," converted the Mellon argument into a devastating denunciation of the very processes through which much of the Mellon fortune has been made.

One month ago the president bitterly denounced with contemptuous phrasing the revolving fund of a farm relief bill; and the next day he heartily approved the revolving fund for the favored shipping interest.

And then, with millions of producers on the verge of bankruptcy and despair, they contemptuously kicked their case from court and adjourned the congress with a cheer. Thus for eight long years they have stood in the midst of the wreckage of the farms and have done nothing—nothing to decrease the cost of transporting the farmers' produce to the marts; nothing to rehabilitate his lost markets across the sea; but they have added a billion a year to the cost of the things the farmer has to buy.

Now we do not ask paternalistic privilege for the farmer, but we do demand that the hand of privilege shall be taken out of the farmer's pockets and off the farmer's throat. We propose to tear down the system of privilege and put the farmer on an absolute equality with every other industry—that is Jeffersonian democracy. We do not propose that the most basic of all our industries shall longer be a door-mat for all the others to wipe their feet upon as they enter the temple of privilege.

Democracy and Business

Ah, but when we protest against the commercialization of government they say we are enemies of business. Well history refutes them. Thomas Jefferson was not an enemy of business. He merely objected to the use of the instrumentalities of the state to make it possible for a few men to pick the pockets of their fellowmen under the protection of the police.

Andrew Jackson was not an enemy of business. He discriminated between business and brigandage; and he was so much the friend of honest business that he fought to make it free.

Woodrow Wilson was not an enemy of business. In the eight years of his administrations we gave more intelligent legislative service to honest business than had been given it in a generation before.

We defy them to name a Democratic president who was an enemy of business.

But we differ from those to whom Mr. Mellon is sacrosanct in our definition of a business man. In every tax reduction measure of the last eight years the Democratic minority in congress has fought the battle of 95 per cent of the American business men against his 5 per cent.

We hold that the owner of a little shop, the proprietor of a store in an average town, is as much a business man as the barons of iron and steel. The man who owns and operates a ranch in Texas or Montana is as much of a business man as the banker in New York. The men who till the soil and feed the nation are better business men to the Jeffersonian than the most successful speculator in stocks and bonds. We cannot understand the regime in power for we are interested in the Babbits, and they in the bulls and the bears.

We wage no war on big business if it be honest business; we find no fault with fortunes, however large, provided they are not accumulated through the misuse of governmental power. But we do wage war upon the commercialization of government that makes for corruption and crime.

Corruption

Privilege and Pillage are the Gold Dust twins of normalcy. The Wilson administration is a green spot bounded on one side by the Mulhall mess and on the other by an oil tanker flying a pirate's flag.

The last seven and a half years have been pitrid beyond precedent. We make no charge—we follow the official record.

We have seen a governmental department designed for the legal protection of the people converted into a rendezvous for the barterers of illegal permits.

We have seen the agents of the department of justice sent forth at the nation's cost and with the administration's sanction on the infamous mission of "framing" a United States senator who had dared expose the criminality of its proceedings. Nothing more disgraceful blackened the days of the federalist sedition law. A baser and more dastardly prostitution of the judicial processes has not shamed the story of a civilized nation since the unspeakable Jeffries sat upon the bench. And he died, deservedly, like a miserable felon in the Tower.

We have seen the money appropriated for the care of the sick and wounded soldiers squandered on the pleasures of a drunken libertine. We have seen the nation's oil reserves, set aside by the prescience of Roosevelt, and sacredly guarded by the honesty and wisdom of Wilson and Daniels, bartered away by a member of the cabinet for a bribe in a little black bag.

"Addition, Division and Silence"

Shameful as these things are, more shameful far has been the cynical silence and indifference of the high functionaries of the state to whom the people had a right to look for the protection of the nation's property and the nation's honor. We submit in no spirit of political flubdubbery that it is a shocking thing that we have waited vainly for seven years for one word, one syllable, one whisper of the mildest criticism of these criminals and crimes from a single representative of the administration.

They heard La Follette's denunciation of Teapot Dome—and were silent. They saw the various processes in the alienation of the nation's property—and were silent. They heard the gossip of the capital that buzzed for weeks and months—and were silent. There was not a man among them with enough will power, or lung power, to blow a police whistle.

Nay, more: when a warning of the impending crime was sent to a member of the cabinet, but recently knighted by the golden wand, he sent the letter to Albert B. Fall with this notation: "I should be glad to convey to this gentleman any reply you may suggest."

I sometimes think that the virtues of silence may be overdone. Sometimes silence is golden—for the thief.

Some years ago a corruptionist de luxe phrased the shibboleth of the powers of pillage in these words: "Addition, division—and silence." When the pillagers got their loot, there was addition; when the faithless public servants got their share there was division; and from the men set by the people in the watchtower to guard their treasures, there has been the invaluable contribution of silence.

Imagine Andrew Jackson silent in the midst of such crimes; imagine Tilden; imagine Cleveland; imagine Wilson! Why, they would have thundered their denunciations from the loftiest station in the world and have scourged the rascals forth with scorpion whips tipped with consuming flame.

Do they tell us that all these things have been exposed and something has been done? This is our answer: If an attorney general of odorous memory no longer sits at the council table of the nation's chief, it is because a Democratic senator so exposed the crimes of his regime that public sentiment lashed him out; and if he was permitted to go without rebuke, and to march out with all the honors of war, it was not with the consent of the party of Thomas Jefferson.

And this is our answer: If the nation's oil reserves have been restored it is because the inquisitorial genius of Walsh of Montana exposed the crime and forced the proceedings that brought the restitution of the nation's stolen goods.

Division of the Spoils

And why the silence in the watchtower? Because the organization of the party of the men stationed there was a beneficiary of the crime. Not only did it know of the crime, and maintain silence—it knew of the division of the spoils and knew that a goodly part was being used to pay the party debt.

What a picture for American history! We see the erstwhile chairman of the national committee of the regime in power laying aside his duties as an elder of the church to slink into the office of Sinclair to get the tainted bonds. We see him sneaking about like a receiver of stolen goods to men of means to persuade them dishonestly to contribute these to the party fund under cover. We see him sending a portion of these bonds to the dictator of the administration, affectionately known as "Andy"; and thus we know that the high functionaries of the state knew that the party was to be a beneficiary of the crime. And the revered head of the treasury made no protest against the party taking its share out of the pot filled by the pillaging of the nation's property. Silence was golden—for the party chest.

And thus the campaign debts of the regime in power have been paid by Harry Sinclair, and now with pious platitudes it enters another campaign free from debt—because there was a Teapot Dome.

And why this strange insensibility to the common instincts of honor? Keep in mind the Hamiltonian theory that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful. There is no moral difference between selling legislation in advance for campaign funds and selling oil reserves; and it is not remarkable that he who practices the one may condone the other. Or that he who thinks that giving money to a slush fund is "just like giving money to a church" should play the silence end in the tale of the tainted bonds in the game of "Addition, Division and Silence."

And so we go forth to recover the government from those who pillage by law as well as those who steal by stealth. Even as a minority we dragged these loathsome crimes to light. We exposed the stealing, the perjury, the silences of the sacrosanct. We forced the restitution of the nation's stolen goods. We compelled the expulsion of Daugherty and the prosecution of Fall. Put us in possession of the government and we will turn the light on every crack and crevice and cleanse the Augean stables from mow to manger.

We have no legislation to put upon the auction block. No Harry Sinclair has paid our party debt. We are free. We unfurl the Jeffersonian banner bearing Jefferson's device: "A good government is an honest government," and we invite all enemies of corruption to fight with us beneath its folds for the redemption of the violated honor of the republic.

Myths

Now they hope to drug the conscience of the nation with the doped soothing syrup of a fake prosperity; and we want to know what prosperity they mean. They point to a few powerful corporations enjoying the pap of paternalistic privilege, and our answer is that you cannot judge the prosperity of a people by the earnings of a privileged monopoly.

Many years ago Thomas Jefferson advised a friend impressed with the evidence of prosperity in the homes of the nobility in Paris and Versailles, to go out into the country and look into the pots in the fireplaces of the peasants. That is our answer now.

Four million jobless men is not prosperity; a million abandoned farms is not prosperity; the utter ruin of the basic industry of America is not prosperity; the failure of 4000 banks in seven years of normalcy is not prosperity; the failure of 23,146 commercial houses in 1927 is not prosperity; and if this year's record is foreshadowed by the first four months there will be 28,000 commercial failures in 1928.

The difference between the prosperity of the Hamiltonian "nation" that they mean and the Jeffersonian nation that we know, is this: they could crowd their "nation" into one corner of this vast hall, and the nation that we know includes cities and towns and the countryside, and 118,000,000 people in the homes of men. Their prosperity is a spotted thing—an evidence of disease; and we want to spread it like a healthy glow over every element and section of our population.

Do they offer us their claim of the payment of eight billions of the public debt up to July of last year? Our answer is that six and a third billion of this amount was paid with the money or the cash assets of the Wilson administration.

Do they offer us their record of economy? Our answer is that with the elimination of the interest on war debts, the last three years of this regime has cost the people more than four and a quarter billion more than the last three peace years of the Wilson administration.

Mythical prosperity, mythical economy, mythical facts, mythical figures and mythical men, the last eight years may well be treated by the historian of the far future as the mythical age of American history.

Dollar Diplomacy

And mythical, too, their virile foreign policy that was promised. We hear about it but we see it not. It is an anaemic outcast stumbling blindly in the darkness of No Man's Land. They dare not face the world made over by the war and meet new duties called for by new occasions. They found us enjoying the moral leadership of all mankind, and they have made us the most distrusted and unpopular nation on the globe.

Thus through the stupidity of their dollar diplomacy we have stumbled into a petty war with Nicarsgua that is taking its daily toll of American lives. Just why we have the war no one seems to know; just how we came to have the war no one cares to tell. Do they tell us that we are there to guarantee an honest election? Why, not long ago we were unable to guarantee an honest election in the city of Philadelphia. Do they say that we are there to prevent rioting in the election? Why, at the time we were sending the marines to Nicarsgua we were campaigning with bombs in the city of Chicago.

Now we propose to end dollar diplomacy in Latin America in the interest of justice; but we propose it, too, in the interest of American business. We do not propose to sacrifice the future markets of our manufacturers and merchants to serve the interest of little groups of financiers and concessionaires. There, within a generation, loom our richest markets; and we are sowing the seed from which our rivals across the sea will reap the harvest in trade. We cannot submit a bill of lading at the point of a bayonet and make the Latin-Americans take it. We cannot write a bill of sale with a mailed fist. We cannot match a marine with a musket against a British or German salesman with a smile. We can serve the ultimate ends of business better through the noble spirit of the Mobile speech of Woodrow Wilson than they have done with their dollar diplomacy, backed by the muskets of the marines who are dying needlessly today in the swamps of Nicaragua.

Anti-Democratic State

Never in a century has there been such a call to us to battle for the faith of our fathers as there is today; and never has the control of government been so completely concentrated in the hands of a ruling caste as now. The dreams of the Hamiltonians have literally come true while the people slept. They wanted organized wealth in possession of the government—and we have it. They wanted the sovereign rights of state denied—and we have it. They wanted bureaucratic agents swarming over the land like the locusts of Egypt—and we have it. They wanted government made profitable to the powerful—and we have it. They wanted, through administration, to make a mockery of democracy—and we have it. The Hamiltonian state is necessarily a temple of gold resting on the bowed backs of peasants in other peoples fields—and we almost have that now. They would defy dollars and minimize men, limit self-government and centralize power, cripple democracy, empower bureaucracy, welcome plutocracy—and we will soon have that too.

Give the plunderbund but eight years more of such governmental cooperation and a combination of power companies will put a few men in control of the public utilities of a mighty empire. Make no mistake about it—that is the great Jacksonian struggle of tomorrow. And with that sinister possibility upon us, the people must determine whether they will entrust their interest to those who believe that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful, or to the Jeffersonians who believe that governments are created for the service of mankind. Once in possession and entrenched, the plunderbund of the power monopoly cannot be dislodged by the fighting force of a dozen Andrew Jacksons.

Back to the Fundamentals

And so we are going back—back to the old landmarks of liberty and justice in this campaign. Let me suggest a text for people grown cynical and confused. "Saith the Lord, stand ye in the ways and see, and ask for the old paths, which is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls."

We are mobilized to lead the people back to the old paths of constitutional liberty, and to the good way. We are going back—back to the old landmarks of liberty and equality when ordinary men had rights that even power respected; when justice, not privilege, was the watchword of the state; when the preamble of the declaration and the bill of rights had meaning; when the nation embraced every section and every class; and before the Pittsburgh Bratiano had decided to make Roumanian peasants of American farmers to fill the coffers of a purse-proud caste.

Our principles have been written in the triumphs of the people and baptized in the blood of our bravest and our best. Jefferson phrased them, Jackson vitalized them, Wilson applied them, and we go forth to battle for them now.

We face a foe grown arrogant with success. It were infamy to permit the enemy to divide us, or divert us, on the eve of such a battle. Issues are involved that go to the determination of the future of our institutions and our children. The call that comes to us is as sacred as the cause of humanity itself. From the grave at the hermitage comes the solemn warning that no party ever won or deserved to win that did not organize and fight unitedly for victory,—and we shall thus organize and fight. This is a unique campaign. The very precinct committeemen and the district captains become minute men of liberty in the reassertion of the principles of freedom.

And we shall win because our cause is just. The predatory forces before us seek a triumph for the sake of the sacking. Their shock troops are the Black Horse cavalry whose hoof-beats have made hideous music on Pennsylvania avenue during the last eight years. They are led by money-mad cynics and scoffers—and we go forth to battle for the cause of man. In the presence of such a foe "he who dallies is a damned." In this convention we close debate and grasp the sword. dastard and he who doubts is The time has come. The battle hour has struck. Then to your tents, O, Israel!

So This Is Houston

Here is dapper Jimmie Walker of New York, as he arrived at Houston, and looked over the sweltering throngs of Democratic delegates. Walker is Al Smith's floor manager and it is safe to assume that the Houston heat will more than wreck his generally faultless appearance.

One-Eye Connolly, famous gate crasher of the generation failed in his first attempt to break into the Democratic convention hall in Houston. Head Doorkeeper Barnes is bidding him a fond farewell, while State Policeman Andy Anders is escorting him away from temptation.

Runyon Undertakes to Inform Dems From California They 'Have Smith'

Millionaires Numerous at Houston in Contrast With Old Days; There's Feminine Beauty, Too!

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright 1928 by Universal Service, Inc.

CONVENTION HALL, HOUSTON, June 26.—California raised the first ripple in the meeting house this morning when a delegate came perspiring down the aisle lugging a blue silken banner that bore the name of Alfred Smith.

"Whoo-ee!" bawled a few delegates, absently. Then a couple of Californians started chanting:

"We want Smith! We want Smith!"

Possibly they were laboring under the delusion that they didn't have him. This may inform them that they've got Smith. I suppose I should add, and how!

A band, under Stetsons of the wide-open variety, made music.

There was another band on the other side of the hall, beating at stated intervals. Thus we had plenty of music.

Most of the gentlemen of the convention walked around in their shirt-sleeves. The ladies of the convention were more decorous in summery frocks composed of one thing and another.

Very Beautiful

You can't expect a political expert to also be an authority on crepe de chine, and this and that. But the ladies looked cool, I'll say that, and also very, very beautiful.

I am told that this is their characteristic appearance.

Some of the native Texans were around saying it was hot. No wonder. They wear linen clothes that lets the heat right through, besides assuming an accordion pleated aspect after a few hours.

The effete easterners, especially the Manhattan islanders, wear stout woolen garments that keep the heat out, and the cool in, save perhaps when a fellow is burned up by his own emotions. Thus the easterners felt more comfortable than the natives when they gathered in the meeting-house.

Millionaires, Too

It seems that there are many millionaire Democrats nowadays. Years ago they were very scarce, for democracy was not considered just the thing by the upper crust. Then a lot of Democrats became millionaires just through being Democrats, especially New York City Democrats, and then came the war, and the dawn, and the next thing we knew democracy was practically a vogue.

Mrs. Al Smith and a number of members of her family are present, possibly trying to confirm the rumor that the head of the house of Smith is to be nominated for the presidency.

Hall Decorated

The rafters and pillars of this political temple suddenly reared by Jesse Jones, Houston philanthropist, were draped with flags and bunting that stirred lightly in the gentle breeze that constantly swept the pavilion. The lone star of Texas was spattered through the decorations, little white beacon of historical import. Behind the speakers' stand against a huge standard of American flags was the coat of arms of Texas.

It was about this time, which is to say 12 minutes after high noon, that Mr. Clem Shaver, chairman of the Democratic national committee, began hammering a helpless block of wood with a huge gavel, trying to get order. Mr. Shaver is of West Virginia, suh. He has gray hair and a sharp, reddish nose.

At about this same moment, the movie men complained to the management that the diamonds on Mr. Raymond T. Baker on the platform were blurring their lights so they could'nt get any decent focuses. Mr. Baker only had on his Tuesday diamonds at that. If he had worn his Saturday set, the gentlemen of the cinema would have been plumb out of luck.

Charles Greathouse, executive secretary of the national committee, droned the convention call which began "to whom it may concern," and to which no one paid the slightest attention.

Then Mayor of Holcomb, a fine looking gentleman, stepped to the platform and bade the delegates welcome to his town.

Mayor Holcomb got quite neighborly as he invited 'em to come into Houston's kitchen and cut themselves a piece of cake and have a cup of tea.

For some moments a husky voiced old gentleman in the Indiana delegation had been bobbing up trying to get the chair's attention, and finally Shaver recognized him.

Moves Adjournment

"I move a recess until seven this evening," he husked. Somebody suggested seven-thirty, and while still somewhat dazed over a motion to recess before any steps toward the preliminary organization had been taken, Shaver had put the motion and it carried with a hi, hi. The delegates immediately tore for the doors, through this was the coolest spot in town.

Before the Indiana man got over his motion, however, Pat Halligan read a message from Congressman Joe Byrns presenting the convention with a gavel from wood that grew in the hermitage district of Tennessee, the old home of Andrew Jackson.

The present seemed appropriate in view of the fact that this was the aniversary of Jackson's election to the presidency—the 100th anniversary, to be exact.

Pat made rather a short shrift of the presentation business, a gavel to him is just a gavel.

Notables' Gallery

On the platform, somewhat absorbed by the radiance of Mr. Baker, sat a number of eminent members of the great old Democratic party. They included Senator Bob Wagner of New York, and Representative O'Connor of the same state.

Urey Woodson of Kentucky, who has fuzzy hair and is the oldest living member of the Democratic national committee, was also there. Mr. Woodson is voluntarily retiring from the committee. He has seen plenty.

Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thompson, wife of James Thompson, the New Orleans publisher, was in the press section, very handsome and youthful in a summer dress. Her father, the redoubtable old Champ Clark, once came close to the nomination for the presidency in one of these Democratic conventions.

Neff Present

The most notable absentee of the occasion, perhaps, was the man who beat Clark out of the presidency, the late William Jennigs Bryan, whose clarion voice is forever stilled. All the other old wheel-horses of the party still in the land of the living were present, or accounted for.

Pat Neff, former governor of Texas, who has a shock of Paderewski hair, and a Louie Mann collar, in spite of the weather, held an impromptu levee on the platform after the session, cheerfully mitting all comers.

Rally to Make World 'Chafe' For Democracy Opens

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26.—The convention opened at noon and lost the Mexican vote.

It opened with a prayer. They should have used a dinner bell. This is the last call for Democratic lunch.

The stalling has started. It looks as if the thing will last until July. They could speed up things by making hem mean no and haw stand for yes.

The hall is hotter than flaming whiskers. If the convention goes until Monday all the delegates will be biscuits.

Every delegate wants to make a speech. Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat, the Alamo had none—and the Democrats have too darned many.

Fashion note for the well dressed bum: It's so hot that the only stuff you can wear are clothes made out of cotton bags.

Jimmy Swinnerton bought himself an $8 set of coat and pants. He describes the material as concertina linen. The pants of a concertina linen suit run up your legs and play tunes on the way.

A man named Jones bobbed up as a candidate against Smith. Looks like they are trying to make a telephone book out of the Congressional Record.

Absolutely nothing was accomplished during the first session of the rally that is supposed to make the world chafe with democracy.

The keynote speech was delivered under cover of darkness. Looks like the Democrats are going to sneak up on the White House.

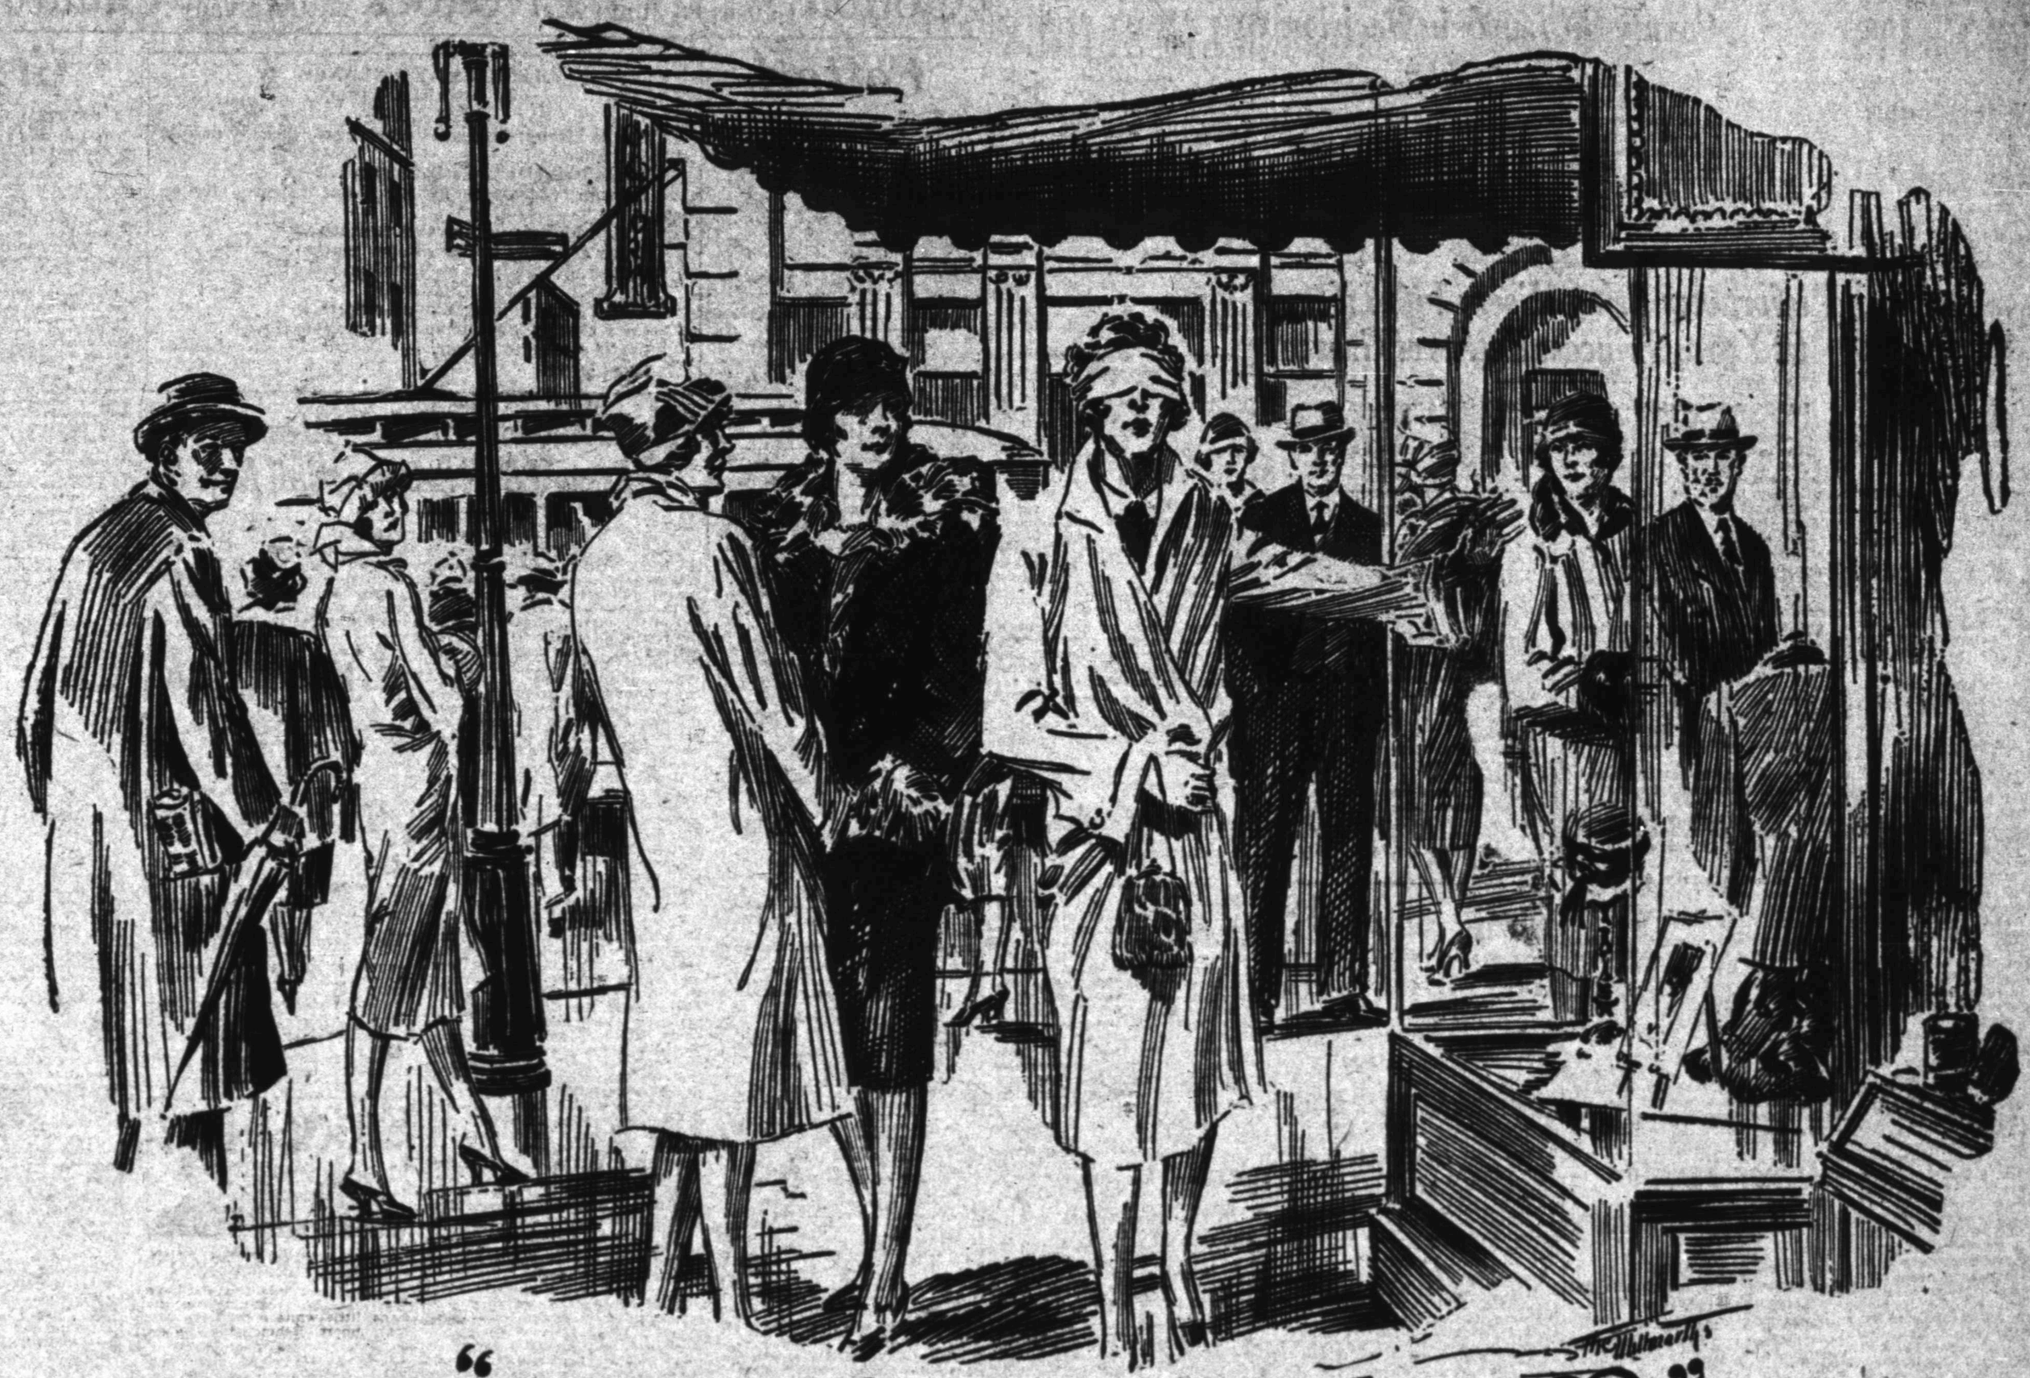

Rooms at the Hotel Rice cost $24 a day. That's more than I spent on my honeymoon.

Nothing will be said about the liquor question. The boys have taken their cue from Kansas City and decided to let well enough alone.

Nothing ever happens in a convention hall except badges and asthma. All the arguments take place in private rooms. You always could learn more through a key hole than you could through a telescope.

Father Suicides After Beating Girl to Death

OWENSBORO, Ky., June 26. (AP) Felix Murphy, 52, a fearmer, fatally beat his daughter today and then went to his barn and hanged himself. Murphy apparently had become enraged because the daughter, Mrs. Lila May Carr, 27, sympathized with her mother in a divorce suit and, after beating her with a fence rail, he shot her through the shoulder and head and then set fire to her clothes. The daughter died later today.

WOMAN STANDS BY DEMOCRATS

Wilson's Widow Cherishes Hope for Victory

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

HOUSTON, Texas, June 28.—As the Democrats go into battle for what they conceive to be their country's welfare, a woman will stand nearby, to give them cheer and pray for their victory.

She is the party's own devoted widow of its last great leader, Woodrow Wilson.

Today she has returned to the party, after long years of modest retirement, to lend such inspiration as her presence may carry to a renewed effort of the hosts which once enabled Wilson idealism and Wilsonian principles of government to be emblazoned on the pages of history.

Holds to Ideals

Edith Boling Wilson holds those ideals and principles very dearly. Her belief in their eventual prevalence and their eternal verity has never been dimmed.

She has seen lesser men carry—or try to carry—the torch that fell from the hands of the stricken leader of democracy and all of them have failed and passed it on perforce to say a new leader has arisen, to him goes the trust and opportunity.

Mrs. Wilson is attending her first national convention, sitting on the platform in a place of honor. This convention, as she sees it, will nominate the new bearer of the torch and send him on his way to lead the fight against the enemies, who harried the war president and broke his mind and body on the wheel of politics.

The new leader will go forth with the blessing, implied and explicit, of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Spot of Sunshine

The note that rang loudest and sounded farthest at this convention was the one on which Wilson keyed his presidential career of eight years.

"Eight years of glorious sunshine," Keynoter Claude Bowers called them in his address, "a splotch of glorious sunshine against the smutty background of eight years of privilege and crime."

Edith Wilson sits on the platform, leaders of the party paying obeisance to her as often as the proceedings will permit. Some time ago she came out of deep mourning and she wears a purple silk dress, a purple hat and gray shoes and stockings. The hall is hot: Mrs. Wilson is not thin. Perpetually she cools herself with a black fan. Perspiration is no respecter of persons.

Her Head Unbowed

Traces of beauty remain in her face. She is 56 years old now but she remains a handsome woman. If it were not for long, deep lines about her mouth she would be very handsome, indeed. Sadness does not possess her and she is able to laugh merrily and heartily at the occasional remark of a friend. But when the name of Woodrow Wilson and the tributes to his memory echo from the speaker's stand—as they often do—her face is inscrutably set, immobile, serious and deadly attentative, she does not smile, does not bow her head and does not weep.

What are the thoughts of Edith Wilson as Bowers tells of "that brilliant record—?"

"What a majestic figure was he who led us in those fruitful years. The cold even light of his superb intellect played upon the most intricate problems of the times and they seemed to solve themselves.

"He lifted the people to such heights of moral grandeur as they had never known before; and his name and purpose made hearts beat faster in lowly places where his praise was sung in every language of the world, and when at length, his body broken, but his spirit soaring still, he fell stricken, while still battling for his faith, there passed to time and to eternity to mankind the everlasting keeping of immortal memory of Woodrow Wilson."

What a tribute; what a mighty roar from the assembled democracy; and what must have been in the mind of Edith Wilson.

Parades of Past

Perhaps there flashed back to her memory of the days when she rode beside Woodrow Wilson through the Champs Elysees and other parade streets of Europe, when she received the frenzied homage of great mobs and of old world rulers, when she slept in the houses of kings and was greater than any queen, or perhaps to that fatal day in 1919 when he collapsed in paralysis in the midst of his great single-handed fight against his enemies and to those long subsequent months in which she tenderly nursed his broken mind and body.

All this can only be speculative, thoughts are of her own. Her hope for Democratic harmony, expressed briefly at the convention hall's dedication was her first public utterance in all these years. She is never interviewed. Respecting her [illegible] for limelight, her friends do not whisper her conversations.

One learns, however, that Mrs. Wilson believes the Democrats this year have a fighting chance. She prays for their success.

Her intense interest in the Wilson heritage led her to Geneva, where she saw the great institution of the league of nations. It has led her to encourage and help the National Woman's Democratic club in Washington, which he recommended to her before his death.

State Wins Title to Hutchinson County Oil Lands in Decision

AUSTIN, Texas, June 26. (AP)—A verdict carrying a judgment worth unestimated millions was returned for the state in its suit for more than 500 acres of Hutchinson county oil land by a jury in district court here this afternoon. The action was brought on the theory that the tract is vacant of valid title and therefore should revert to the state. The exact extent of recovery will be determined later by the court.

Some 60 oil companies and individuals, present holders of the area, are defendants. Motions for new trial probably will be prepared.

Nearly all witnesses were technicians, testifying about surveys made in the county.

The action is similar to another thus far won, asking possession of many acres in Harris county. In that case the judgment for the state was estimated unofficially at $8,000,000.

Misfortunes Bring Misery Into Life Of Young Princess Helene of Greece

PARIS, June 26. (UP)—Young, beautiful and the mother of a handsome boy-king, Princess Helene of Greece is nevertheless the most unhappy member of royalty in Europe.

Royal unhappiness is as common as royal pulchritude is rare. But Princess Helene admittedly has more than her share of both. The most miserable of her little son's subjects can hardly match her for misfortunes, whcih seemingly accumulate without end despite her efforts to do right as she sees it.

A six-year-old son like King Michael of Roumania should be blessing enough for most women. He is, in fact, his mother's one consolation in life.

With her own family scattered by the vicissitudes of after-war readjustments, her divorce from Prince Carol announced but subject to a revision by a succeeding government, her mother-in-law Queen Marie, apparently estranged since her visit to the United States, the unhappy princess has only her son left.

But even this is not left her to enjoy as a commoner might. Recent reports from Roumanian sources tell of sinister political efforts to diminish the importance of the "boy king" in the eyes of his own people.

"He is not normally developed," some have said. "He is deaf, does not know how to talk and stories of his brilliance are all false."

Princess Helene has tried to meet this situation bravely. At a recent reception at the royal palace, and at private receptions at the suburban royal residence, she has made a point of having the youthful ruler of the Roumanians at her side.

She has presented him to the diplomats of nearly all the continental countries and the Roumanian press has emphasized that the visitors have invariably been struck by the youngster's intellectual bent.

Former Senator Senses Victory

By ALVA ADAMS
Former Senator from Colorado and Noted Western Progressive

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (INS)—The Democratic party can elect the next president of the United States and a Democratic congress this year if it makes the good fight against a Republican corruption, for honesty in government and for the long needed and Republican denied relief for agriculture.

The Democrats of the West do not regard prohibition as a party question. In Colorado, prohibition is a fact. The only problem is enforcing it. We are disposed to concede to every man his individual view as to the future of what candidate Hoover described as a "great experiment." We believe that the oath of the Democratic nominee to enforce all laws, including the prohibition law, would be observed, regardless of his personal views as to the wisdom of the legislation. Consequently, we are not concerned as to the individual views of the candidate. He will be bound by the platform of his party and the oath of his office.

I am quite sure that the record, which the Democratic president will make in the matter of prohibition enforcement, will compare favorably with the record of the present administration.

The great issues in this campaign, as I see them, are the purification of American public life, and relief of the long standing and disastrous Republican discrimination against farmers.

REED HOLDS WAVERING LINE

Senator Continues Fight For Nomination

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (AP)—"Jim" Reed of Missouri fired away at the common foe of his party—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee—today as he held the trenches for the hopeful but wavering line of anti-Smith forces.

Herbert Hoover fixed prices of American farm products during the war, Reed charged, for the purpose of benefiting the "British and allied buyers."

Reed Undaunted

Undaunted by the increasing claims of the Smith forces the silver-haired campaigner turned loose his statement against Hoover today as part of his campaign for the Democratic nomination. He coupled with it a reiteration of his declaration for law observance, expressing amusement at the construction placed upon the claim that "I have changed my views with reference to sustaining the law and constitution."

While Reed was blasting away at Hoover, his allies in the battle against Smith, the drys from the south, were turning their attention to the platform contest. The band of southerners are still hopeful that the line-up of Reed and their favorite sons candidate can hold intact sufficient votes to block Smith, but they are more intent just now on getting their dry plank into the platform.

He's Main Hope

The hesititancy of the drys to accept Reed as their candidate in the anti-Smith campaign was believed by some to have been reflected in their continued silence, but Reed's friends feel he will be the ultimate rallying point if Smith is stopped.

The Missouri senator blamed the "desperate condition" of the farmers directly to Hoover as food administrator during the war and to the Fordney-McCumber tariff act which he said was "fully sanctioned and approved by Hoover."

Weinert Druggist Accidentally Shot

Special to The Record News.

MUNDAY, Texas, June 26.—Aubrey L. Smith, about 23, proprietor of the Ellands drug store at Weinert, Texas, near here, was probably fatally wounded in front of his store late today when a shotgun, which he was removing with some clothing from the rear end of a car, was accidentally discharged.

Smith was assisting Johnnie Scoggins, owner of the automobile, in removing clothing from the car. The trigger of the weapon is thought to have become entangled in one of the garments.

The victim was immediately rushed to a sanitarium at Stamford, Texas. His condition is regarded as critical.

DAN AND JESSE IN LIMELIGHT

Mrs. J. W. Akin Named As Officer of Texas Women Democrats

By L. B. DILBECK
Associated Press Staff

HOUSTON, Texas, June 26. (AP)—Two distinguished Texans—more than ever in the limelight since the Monday night caucus of the Texas Democratic delegation—worked full speed Tuesday on their primary missions in the national convention.

Governor Dan Moody conferred with representatives of at least 10 states on framing a mutually acceptable dry plank. Jesse Jones of Houston, who brought the convention to Texas, tired from lack of sleep, kept up a ceaseless activity on convention arrangements—seeing that the several thousand visitors to Texas are well provided for.

Meantime, Texas' 40 votes, wielded by 60 men and women, stood ready to be cast for Mr. Jones as president. Whether Governor Moody or some other state leader will offer Mr. Jones to the convention has not been decided.

Plank Favored

Governor Moody got the impression from a majority of his callers that they favor the Texas dry plank promulgated by the Beaumont state convention.

"At least it did not seem too arid to suit them," the governor laughed Tuesday night. "Some of them want to change the wording a little, perhaps."

Among the youthful executive's conferees were members of the convention platform committee from Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia and dry spokesmen from Tennessee, Florida, Pennsylvania, Utah, Idaho and Missouri.

Moody Gets Ovation

Governor Moody got a stirring ovation as he led the Texas delegation into the mammoth convention hall Tuesday noon, carrying a large Lone Star flag. As the visiting delegations saw whose reddish blond head was half hidden by the flag folds, they cheered and jumped to their feet. Even some of the "wet" Maryland delegation seated just in front of the Texans, cheered. One jeer came from the free state ranks. However, the demonstration was greater than the one for Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York.

Mr. Jones, now fully accredited as Texas' "favorite son," said Tuesday night at his suite atop the Lamar hotel, where Texas headquarters are, that he has had no report on his probable strength outside the Texas 40 votes.

Love Keeps Touch

State Senator Thomas B. Love, leader of the defeated Texas ultra-dry Democratic faction, which would have instructed Texas against Governor Smith by name, is much in evidence about the hotel lobbies.

He confers frequently with his chief lieutenant in the dry fight, State Representative George C. Purl, member of the delegation. Mr. Love is not a member.

The Texas Women's Democratic association has opened headquarters at the Rice hotel, where Texas women in town for the convention may register. Under supervision of the association officers, literature calling for a dry platform and dry candidate is being distributed. The officers are Mrs. J. Edward Hodges of Houston, Mrs. W. C. Edwards, Beaumont; Mrs. Wiles Williams, Corpus Christi; Mrs. Perry Hunnicutt, Bay City, and Mrs. J. W. Akin, Wichita Falls.

McBride Services To Be Held Today

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, June 26.—Funeral services will be held here Wednesday at 2 p. m. for B. R. McBride, oil well driller, 52, who died at his home here Monday morning. The services will be held at the First Baptist church with the Rev. F. H. Holmes, pastor, officiating, and with the officials of the local Masonic lodge, of which Mr. McBride was a member, in charge of special ceremonies.

The body is to be taken overland to Wichita Falls, where interment will be in the Riverside cemetery.

Wichita Negro Takes $800 Lesson in High Finance

Black Boy Turns Sleuth as He Searches for Missing Savings

A Wichita Falls negro is very much wiser Tuesday. He took an $800 lesson in experience from two other negroes Monday. And he learned about crooks from them.

Two negroes, "black nigger an' a high brown," accosted the financier on a Wichita Falls street Monday afternoon after the moneyed man had seen one of the two pick up a package on the corner of Eighth street and Ohio avenue. They invited him into an alley with them to see what the package they had found contained.

The eyes of the bystander bulged when he saw, after the newspaper wrapping had been removed, an envelope containing many bills and a big bundle of "liberty bonds."

"Boss," he told an officer investigating the story, "I seen that money good an' they was $100 bills and $20 bills and whole lot of money."

The three conspirators got together, with the "high brown" negro assuming the leadership, since he had picked up the treasure.

"My boss man buys bonds," the "high brown" revealed. "Maybe he can sell these."

The three men trouped off to where the "boss man" was alleged to be stopping.

The "high brown" left the other two negroes at the sidewalk and went to confer with his "boss man."

After about a 10 minutes' absence, the "high brown" returned to the trysting place.

"My boss man says he buys these bonds," he addressed the financier, "does yo'all show him you has enuf money to live on for a long time without spendin' any of the part yo'all gets for the bonds. He say us must split four ways. He say yo'all must show him yo'all has got $800."

The financier thought rapidly. Here was a chance for sudden wealth. There must have been at least $8000 in money and bonds in that bundle, he guessed.

"Boy howdy," the "black nigger" encouraged him, "just think, has yo'all got $800 it jumps to $2800."

The man of wealth took from his pocket a little black, much worn book. He carefully examined it.

"Yo'all waits here. I goes to the bank an' gets the money," he announced.

He went to a Wichita Falls bank and withdrew the $800 he had in a savings account. He wondered just a little why the boss man had settled on exactly the amount he had on deposit.

Returning to his friends, he handed the $800 to the "high brown."

"Yo'all waits here five minutes and I comes back with youah part of de bonds and the $800," the "high brown" assured him.

After a minute or two of waiting, the "black nigger" decides to go and get a cold drink. The financier, alone now, waits about 10 minutes longer.

The "high brown" doesn't return.

"Right den," the man of capital told investigating police officers, "I suspects that maybe I has been gypped."

A few minutes later he was pouring his tale of woe into the ears of the desk sergeant at the police station.

Two city detectives, detailed to look into the story, found that the negro had withdrawn $800 from a Wichita Falls bank at about the time he said he withdrew it.

The police found nothing else. They still were working on the case Tuesday and were assisted by the swindled negro, who has disguised himself as another negro. Secretly he is wishing that he had been another negro.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 26. (AP)—A further advance on the continued unfavorable character of weather and crop advices, carried cotton prices up $2 to $2.50 a bale today, all new crop positions going into new high ground for the season. October sold up to 22.31, an advance of 218 points from the low level of June 12, and 54 points from yesterday's closing quotation. Much realizing was encountered at this level, which was absorbed on moderate reactions, October closing at 22.22. The general market closed steady at net advances of 40 to 46 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 point on July, but generally 7 to 12 points higher on relatively firm cables and reports of showers or rains in the South. Circulation of July notices estimated at about 50,000 bales was accompanied by extensive near month liquidation which had an unsettling effect on the market, and after initial demand had been supplied at net advances of about 11 to 20 points, prices eased off under realizing.

July sold down to 21.41 or 18 points net lower, while new crop positions worked back to about yesterday's closing quotations, but there was a demand for July at a discount of about 35 points under October, and the price steadied later. As soon as July liquidatin subsided, the market seemed freer to respond to bullish features in the weather and crop news, and there was a broadening demand on the advance which followed.

July sold up to 21.99 and December to 22.18, net advances of 45 to 55 points on the general list, but realizing increased at these figures, while demand slackened somewhat, and there were reactions in later trading.

Exports for the day were 8798 bales, making 7,411,392 so far this season. Port receipts 7180. U. S. port stocks 922,454.

Cotton futures closed steady, 40 to 46 points higher; spot steady; middling 22.50.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 26. (AP)—After reacting from an early advance the cotton market strengthened on later trading under good trade and speculative buying induced by various bullish influences and rallied to levels approximately $3 bale over the previous close. The advance met realizing by early buyers and the market closed very steady at a net advance of 45 to 56 points.

October contracts, after trading up to 21.43 promptly eased off to 21.23. The subsequent rally carried the option to 21.83, or 61 points above the previous close. It closed at 21.74.

Liverpool cables were 3 to 11 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 2 to 11 points. Despite the circulation of notices for 7800 bales of July cotton here and for 50,000 bales in New York prices continued to advance after the start. July traded to 21.72, October to 21.43 and December to 21.40, or 19 to 23 points above the previous close. Realizing by satisfied longs, however, brought prices back to yesterday's closing levels.

Trading became more animated as the morning progressed under the stimulus of trade and speculative buying induced by the prompt stoppage of July notices, a forecast for unsettled weather in the western belt and increased weevil activity. By mid-session July had recovered to 22.01, October 21.75 and December 21.73, or 48 to 56 points above yesterday's close.

After easing off 7 to 41 points on some additional realizing, prices advanced again under another spurt of buying and before the demand had been supplied all months had made new highs for the season with July at 22.11, October 21.83 and December 21.81, or 58 to 64 points net up. A renewal of realizing accounted for a setback of 11 to 16 points, but July closed at 22.09 and December 21.71, 45 to 56 points higher.

Stocks Advance Slightly After Record Dull Session; Call Rate Up

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, June 26.—Stocks advanced in the face of 7 per cent call money today. Trading was just a little more active than in the record dull session of Monday but largely confined to professionals as the public held off waiting for the month-end money troubles to get out of the way. Delaware & Hudson scored one of the best gains for the session in a generally firm rail market but it was such industrials as Allied Chemical, Montgomery Ward and the copper shares that enjoyed the best buying. The banks called $30,000,000 loans and forced the higher call rate influencing expectation that an 8 per cent rate would be witnessed within the next week or so.

Wheat started a new upward movement on receipt of further unfavorable weather advances and pulled other grains higher. Cotton also was in increasing demand and registered a new high for the move.

Foreign exchange was extremely dull with price changes unimportant.

Bottom Registered

Continued quiet advance in industrials in face of the higher call rate was accepted as evidence that the weak selling is over and that several stocks have registered bottom. In so far as the weak selling that is witnessed at the start of every reaction is concerned, there is no doubt that such opinion is correct. However, there are numerous traders holding stocks and standing on the side lines whose actions will depend entirely upon the market itself for the next fortnight. Should it continue a quiet affair with such a firm undertone as displayed in recent sessions these "sold out bulls" will return in increasing number.

Should another sharp decline be experienced with rising money rates over the month end, the majority of such traders would hold off for another period of quiet markets during which prices would stabilize around real low levels.

Stock Split Rumored

Allied Chemical's advance was accompanied by revival of talk of recapitalization. A splitup of the stock has been rumored for three years and from all accounts is no nearer now than ever. In fact there is reason to believe it may wait on such action by the steel corporation in which it is a large stockholder. Anaconda's divided increase to a $4 dividend rate influenced better demand for all the coppers. It should be no surprise.

The steady improvement in copper conditions was first pointed out here several months ago when it was forecast that Anaconda, Kennecott and other leading producers would make larger payment to stockholders. A $5 dividend on Anaconda would not be unlikely if current improvement continued.

Rail Meet Disappoints

The Delaware and Hudson special stockholders meeting proved rather a disappointment as no announcement of special distribution as a result of sale of Lehigh Valley and Wabash stock was announced. Just what is planned is known by Mr. Loree alone, but it is felt in banking quarters usually aware of the activity of Loree and his group that special stock distribution will result from formation of the new D. & H. Holding company.

There was quiet but fairly good absorption of other carriers because of belief of upward trend in earnings as soon as the June reports are out of the way.

Good at Closing

The market rendered the best appearance in the closing 15 minutes. Word reached the floor about that time of Mr. Raskob's statement in which he expressed view that outcome of the election would not affect the market and shared the belief that the campaign developments should not affect the condition of general business. Concident therewith estimate of General Motors earnings for the second quarter was received, indicating that just under $5 a share would be shown for that period. This would mean close to $8 a share for the first half of the year and strengthen hope for another stock melon at the August meeting. General Motors held the leading place in the advance but other automobile stocks lagged. Dodge was not particularly affected by suit to stop the merger as most Dodge stockholders feel lucky at the chance offered.

STOCK-A-DAY

NATIONAL DISTILLERS PRODUCTS CORPORATION

The National Distillers Products corporation is successor to the United States Food Products corporation and owns subsidiaries engaged in the manufacture of industrial alcohol, maraschino cherries, glace fruits, molasses and lacquers.

It controls, with the Dupont interests, the Eastern Alcohol corporation which was formed to produce glycerin under a new process by means of fermentation of molasses. Quantity production of this product will be achieved this year. In 1927 the American Medicinal Spirits company was formed to acquire the whiskey supplies of a subsidiary of national distillers and several other companies, amounting to about 60,000 barrels, or 30 per cent of the legitimate whiskey supplies in the United States. The National Distillers corporation owns about 38 per cent of the preferred and common stock of this new company. The subsidiaries of the company have plants in Louisiana, Illinois, Maryland and Cuba.

Sales and net income of the company in the last two years have been unsatisfactory. The former declined from about $9,000,000 in 1925 to less than $5,000,000 in 1927. Net income was $58,973 in 1927, or the equivalent of 55 cents a share on the preferred stock. This compared with a deficit of $137,771 in 1926 and a net of $928,264 in 1925. The company has many subsidiaries.

Funded debt totals $3,143,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of 107,720 shares of $7 preferred of no par value, and 168,000 shares of no par common. Both preferred and common are in a voting trust which expires May 1, 1930. The preferred stock has no voting power except during the existence of the voting trust, when it has equal voting power with the common. But when preferred dividends are in arrears for a year, the preferred may elect a majority of the directors. No dividends have been reported on the stocks of the reorganized company.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, June 26.—Shorts in September corn were well hooked today, and there may be more trouble for them again tomorrow. The corn market was very strong and all the other grains also made gains.

Wheat at the close was up ⅝ to 1; corn was up 1½ to 2½; oats were unchanged to ½ higher; rye was ¼ to ⅝ higher.

All the corn futures appear to be oversold. Even the December. Because of the magnificent prospects for the new crop, that has been sold from above 90 cents down.

With the possibility of a corn crop way over 3,000,000,000 bushels this year, selling the December looked like a simple operation for profit. Perhaps it was too simple. Good things that everybody in the world can see often turn out to be wolves in lamb skins.

Wheat, after strength early today, suffered a decided sinking spell and then came back very strong and finished at about the best prices for the day. The market looked very strong at the close.

Tomorrow it may work higher. Even if it has weak spells, these may prove to be better opportunities for making purchases than for pressing the short side.

Rye appears to be in a very strong position. In the cash market wheat was steady; corn was unchanged to 1½ off; oats were steady; rye was dull; barley was steady to 1c higher.

LIONS GIVEN PARK STANDS

Club Wins Concession At Scotland Park

The Lions club was the lowest bidder on the concessions at Scotland park, accordihg to announcements made Tuesday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager.

The bid was on specifications sent out by the park department at the request of the city manager. Among the things specified was that "sody pop" will be sold for five cents, a nickle, a half dime and no more. The idea in this was to avoid profiteering.

Manager Fairtrace said he felt certain the Lions club would handle the concessions in a good way, and also that he felt the installation of stands in the park would be an added service to the public.

Vitaphone music is being introduced with a number of pictures at the Strand and is meeting with the general approval of the public. There is a volume and power to vitaphone music that shades former music with the pictures by a wide margin.

Audrey Ferris, one of the finds of the year, is appearing here in "Slightly Used" at the Strand. Miss Ferris was a pupil at the Virgil junior high school at Los Angeles last year and suddenly jumped to prominence.

The screen vrsion of the far famed "Gingham Girl," musical comedy, has one more day at the Olympic.

"Laugh, Clown, Laugh," the great modern tragedy, is in its last day at the Majestic. Chaney is a peculiar genius and has a certain faculty that makes one remember his shows long after others are gone and forgotten. "Laugh, Clown, Laugh" will likewise make an impression that won't be forgotten.

Monte Blue, Edna Murphy and Burr McIntosh are starred in vitaphone's latest, "Across the Atlantic," which opens at the Strand Friday. It is a romance of the air.

William Haines is to be seen in a new hit, "Telling the World," which opens Thursday at the Majestic. There is a lot of real excitement, love for a show girl whose acquaintance was picked up at a roadhouse during a raid, and a world of action. Polly Moran, Bert Roach, Eileen Percy and Anite Page also appear in this picture along with Haines.

Audrey Ferris and Robert Agnew in "Slightly Used," a vitaphone picture, at the Strand.

Remarkable Health Of 3 Generations

Record of Texas Family Shows Many Common Troubles May Be Relieved by Assistance Of Thedford's Black-Draught.

FORT WORTH, Texas.—"I think we owe the remarkable healthy record of our family to the use of Black-Draught," says Mrs. J. H. Luther, of 514 West Belknap street, this city.

"I was suffering from an attack of indigestion," she says. "Somebody recommended Black-Draught to me and I got some and tried it. I felt so much better, after I had taken it, that I used it the next time I was sick, and then the next. I soon found it to be a dependable medicine to use for my family.

"Whenever the children had colds, or an upset stomach, I treated them with a course of Black-Draught. I always use it for constipation and the ills that follow it. I gave Black-Draught to my children, and now I am giving it to my grandchildren.

"I have always believed in vegetable medicines, and after using it for years I have found that no bad effects follow the use of Black-Draught.

"Many a time I have taken Black-Draught for sick headache and indigestion, and I always felt lots better the next day. I tell my friends that it helps to keep me feeling young.

"I have told many of my friends and neighbors about Black-Draught and have started them to using it."
