Big Drive Delayed

More Troops And Guns Coming From Japan; Bare Activity On Front; New Batteries In Chinese Trenches

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16. (Tuesday)—Japan withheld her big drive today, apparently determined to wait for still more guns and troops in order that there might be no repetition of the bitter experience at Chapei, where outnumbered Japanese bluejackets were repulsed by a suddenly bellicose Chinese army.

Fifty thousand Chinese soldiers have been concentrated in the trench lines and fortifications in Shanghai and at Woosung. Latest official estimates put the Japanese strength at 25,000 with additional men already on the way. Tokyo reported that still more units might be dispatched in view of the threat that the Chinese will refuse to give in until they are overwhelmed.

Artillery Is Heard

During the last 24 hours there has been just enough activity by the Japanese guns to keep the Chinese aware there was an enemy army in the field. At Dusk Monday heavy artillery blazed away against the Chinese lines at Chapei. A weak response came from trench mortar batteries. After an hour or so the tumult subsided. Shanghai resounded to the tramp of marching men all day Monday as Japanese units were moved off to Chapei and Woosung fronts. Other outfits were landed from troop ships and sent to Japanese cotton mills, factories and warehouses which have been taken over as concentration points.

The Chinese improved their status so far as artillery is concerned. New howitzer batteries were put in the line, and the infantrymen worked desperately to strengthen their secondary defenses.

Defenses Improved

At the same time approximately 10,000 men of the foreign garrison—including the Americans, British and French—improved the defense they have raized around the inter-

Plot To Kill Pope Or Mussolini Is Revealed Through Mysterious Cable

Deadly Bomb Found Near Altar In Cathedral

(By The Associated Press)

ROME, Feb. 15. — A mysterious message from America revealed the existence of a deadly bomb near the central altar of St. Peter's cathedral in a supposed plot against Pope Pius XI or Premier Mussolini, who appeared there last week, it was learned today.

The bomb was found Saturday under a massive bronze lion, but not until today was it disclosed that a cablegram from across the Atlantic had directed Vatican authorities to the exact spot. Safely exploded by Italian officers, it went off with a terrific blast.

Thoroughly Inspected

Plotters who hid the explosive in the famous bastlica, it was believed, having failed in their aim against the life of either the premier or the pope, chose to reveal the bomb's presence rather than have it explode later and possibly kill persons against who the conspirators had no design.

Vatican officials in charge of the basilica had it thoroughly inspected last Wednesday, the day before Premier Mussolini visited St. Peter's after calling on the pope for the first time in his career. They said the bomb was not there then. Hence, it either was placed there the following day, when Il Duce knelt and prayed at the central altar, or the next day when the pope appeared to celebrate the tenth anniversary of his coronation.

Premier Mussolini was deeply interested in the discovery of the bomb and kept in close touch with the munitions experts who examined it.

CALEXICO, Cal., Feb. 15.—Tom Mix, cowboy film star, and Mabel Hubbell Ward, daring young circus aerialist, were married here today—"sudden like," in the language of the range country where Mix was born and gained the experience that made him the greatest cowboy film star.

The couple, with a wedding party of four, included the actor's nine year old daughter, Thomasina, and Monte Blue, film star, and his wife, left Hollywood yesterday, spending the night at Palm Springs, California desert resort.

Headed For Yuma

Early today, they drove on, originally headed for Yuma, Ariz., the west's Gretna Green, but when the party reached the border here, Mix said that was far enough and with his bride-to-be he went across the line to Mexicali for the marriage.

Following the ceremony, Mix and his party left for Agua Caliente, border resort near San Diego, where they planned to spend the night and then returned to his home in Beverly Hills tomorrow.

Mix is 52 years old and his bride is about 28.

They met some months ago while Mix, after leaving motion pictures was touring the country with a circus. She is the actor's third wife. He was married first some Instead they returned with three gallons of whisky. Now they are searching for the man who lives at the farm. He is reported to have gone to Tahoka.

Demo Proposal For Relief Is Brushed Aside

Senate Clears Way For Clean Vote On Plan For Direct Aid To Needy; Measure Expected To Come Up Today

Opposition Ready

Total Of $375,000,000 Would Be Given States For Work On Roads; Other Substitutes Also Defeated

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Brushing aside the Democratic substitute, the senate today cleared the way for a clean cut vote tomorrow on the La Follette-Costigan plan for direct federal aid to the needy.

The Democratic bill, sponsored by party leaders, was knocked down by a 48-31 vote. Designed to avoid direct relief, it proposed an appropriation of $750,000,000 to be divided equally between road construction and loans to the states.

Authorizes Gifts

The La Follette-Costigan bill carries the same amount and has the same provision for road construction, but would authorize gifts to the states.

Several other substitute and compromise bills were defeated or withdrawn. These included a $375,000,000 plan offered by Senator Hatfield, (R., W. Va.), for which $100,000,000 would have been used for public works.

Leaders were confident that the long awaited vote on the La Follette-Costigan bill would come tomorrow, and administration spokesmen were equally sure it would be defeated.

Demos In Quandary

The vote on the Democratic substitute came today before crowded galleries after more than two weeks of debate on the various relief plans.

It left many Democrats in a quandary over their vote on the direct relief bill.

Balloting on the Democratic plan was largely along party lines, though eight Democrats broke away from their leadership. Some favor the La Follette-Costigan measure, and others are against either plan.

Hot Political Fight May Be Assured By Ferguson Entry

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 15.—The Dallas Times Herald today said: "Texas was assured of another bitter gubernatorial campaign Monday when it was learned from authentic sources that Mrs. Miriam A Ferguson intends to enter the lists before the week is out. It will be her fourth attempt, only one of which has been successful—her election as governor in 1924."

In 1930 Mrs. Ferguson led the first primary, her vote being 242,959 out of a total of 833,442 cast. R. S. Sterling was second with 170,754. In the run-off, Sterling received 473,371 votes and Mrs. Ferguson, 384,402.

Considerable Gossip

The Times Herald says further: "There has been considerable gossip to the effect that if Mrs. Ferguson runs, former Governor Dan Moody would get into the race, with Governor Sterling remaining out of it. This, however, is discounted by most observers over the state. A consensus of their judgment is that Sterling will run again, with Moody supporting him, just as he did in 1930."

Lieutenant Governor Edgar E. Witt of Waco also has been mentioned as a candidate for the governorship, although he yet has not committed himself either way.

Two Others Out

Two announced candidates, already are in the field. They are Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls and Scott W. Hickey of Cleburne.

When Mrs. Ferguson, wife of "Parmer Jim" Ferguson, was elected in 1924 the Democratic party was split by the Ku Klux Klan issue. Mrs. Ferguson opposed the Klan while Felix Robertson, her opponent in the runoff primary had its support. In the November election, Mrs. Ferguson's majority was considerably less than the usual Democratic margin.

Supreme Court Seat Is Given To A Democrat

Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, Of New York, Is Selected For Place By Hoover; Approval By Senate Expected

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The supreme court seat vacated by the venerable and beloved Oliver Wendell Holmes was given today to Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, chief judge of the New York court of appeals.

Hailed in the senate by leaders of all groups as a liberal worthy of carrying on the traditions of Holmes, he was assured of confirmation by a universality of endorsement.

In his twenty years on the New York state court benches, Judge Cardozo has claimed national attention by his decisions. He has been urged for the supreme court by his friends on several previous occasions.

Democrat And Jew

President Hoover chose the 62 year old New York justice, who is a Democrat and a Jew, after weeks of convassing the nation for a man of the Holmes legal and political philosophy. He reached his decision today after a round of conferences with senate leaders and advisers. Assured of support by the senate chieftains, the nomination was promptly submitted for confirmation.

In selecting Cardozo, President Hoover disregarded sectional and political lines. New York already had two of its citizens on the supreme court—Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Harlan F. Stone.

The political makeup of the court now becomes five Republicans and four Democrats. Justice Holmes was a Republican.

Whisky, Car And Prisoner Are Seized Here On Monday

The sheriff's department seized 47 gallons of whisky and a Buick coupe and arrested one man on highway No. 7 just inside of Lubbock county late Monday. Charges of transportation and possession of liquor will be filed against the man today.

The liquor was being carried, it is believed, from Clovis to Lubbock. A party from the sheriff's department was waiting northwest of Shallowater on the highway. The automobile will be confiscated. The man arrested formerly lived in Lubbock but had moved to Clovis, Sheriff Wade Hardy said. The liquor seized was in half-gallon fruit jars packed in card-board cartons.

Cotton Picker Hurt In Fight

I. B. Freeman Is Injured When He Seeks To Be Mediator At Posey; Younger Man Is Held In Jail Here

I. B. Freeman, 62, cotton picker, who sought to intervene in a fight between two younger men at Posey at about 11 o'clock Sunday night, suffered four broken ribs, a broken collar bone and a severe scalp wound when one of the pair wrenched a shotgun from Freeman and attacked him with it.

The attacker, who is 20, is held without charge in the Lubbock county jail. He was arrested by Shorty Wicker, Slaton deputy sheriff, and Chief of Police Tom Abel of Slaton.

The altercation between the younger men resulted over attentions paid to a girl, Wicker said. When Freeman sought to end the dispute with what Wicker said was an unloaded shotgun, the weapon was taken from his hands and used as a club. Freeman was treated for his wounds through the City-County Charity association and removed to Posey. He and members of his family had been picking cotton near Posey. They were said to be enroute from Hamilton county to California. Abel said the man in jail here was employed at a Posey garage.

AUSTIN, Feb. 15. (AP)—Road and bridge construction projects estimated to cost $392,000 today were added by the list of contracts to be awarded by the Texas highway commission February 29 and March 1. Federal Reserve System Will Be Bulwarked With Huge Sum Of $750,000,000 In Gold Of U. S. Treasury

Secretary Mills Says Measure Has Ten Billion Dollar Credit Power; Quick Issuance Of Notes Possible

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. —The Democratic house today responded quickly to President Hoover's call for legislation to help the business man obtain the credit he needs and voted overwhelming approval of the new emergency banking measure.

After but three hours of debate and without an amendment, it passed and sent to the senate the Glass-Stegall bill to bulwark the federal reserve system with $750,000,000 of treasury gold and loosen the banks' rediscounting restrictions.

Opposition Weak

The vote was 390 for the measure to 15 against. The opposition led by Representative McFadden mustered eight Republicans and seven Democrats to its cause.

The senate will take up the bill as soon as it has completed its present discussion of direct relief to the unemployed. A vote on the latter probably will come tomorrow, and if not then, certainly on Wednesday.

Senator Glass of Virginia, a Democrat and co-author of the measure, will take the lead in seeking its approval. Final passage may come in time for the president to sign the bill by the end of the week.

Rules Are Suspended

At the request of Chairman Stegall of the house banking committee Speaker Garner today invoked for the first time in this congress the drastic right of the house to suspend its rules to accelerate action.

The bill has a potential credit power of $10,000,000,000, according to a statement of Secretary Mills before the house banking committee. In freeing $750,000,000 in gold it makes possible the quick issuance of $1,875,000,000 in federal reserve notes.

Destined to restore confidence in the nation's economic life and to dispel the fears of bankers and depositors alike, the legislation makes immediately available funds for banks that now have no paper ell-

Coleman Bank Is Reopened Monday

COLEMAN, Feb. —(AP)—This city of 6,000 inhabitants had banking facilities today, for the first time in more than four months, with the opening of the First Coleman National bank, an institution with a capital stock of $100,000 and surplus and paid-in profit of $20,000.

It is successor of three local banks which closed temporarily last October 9. Stockholders of the old institution furnished capital for the new setup, so that no depositor of any bank will lose a cent.

A crowd of 2,000 attended the formal opening of the First Coleman national this morning, and long before the doors opened, customers were in line to make deposits. J. P. McCord is its president, S. H. Gray executive vice-president and E. C. Edens cashier.

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

IMPORTANT people overlook anonymous communications but so far this angler has failed to reach such heights. Anyway, the communication this morning was of such a nature that it can't be ignored.

It serves as one of these milestones of life, being the first outright hint of this nature. So, even though it is unsigned, it must not be passed by without remarks. The missive is a Valentine—at least there is a red heart placed over in one corner and someone got up before breakfast to mail it on Sunday morning. The address is printed and, being no character analyst, it is hard for me to tell who sent it.

Entitled "An Old Maid," it has a charming verse:

"Sweet withered flower, come be your age,
Rouge cannot hide a wrinkle;
You need a cat and joys like that
And gosh, don't try to twinkle!"

Up at the top there is a picture—mine, I presume—along with that of a black cat that gazes coyly at the spinster who is tripping along Naturally, I hadn't realized I looked like that and was of the opinion that these tresses are of the ochry shades, but the photographer has them black. He has my thanks for making them a definite color after all these years of uncertainty.

That "all these years" is back to the point. It isn't fair, you know, when one is verging on spinsterhood to send out reminders of the thing. And that "don't try to twinkle" right on the heels of the influenza! If you've had it you know how hard it is to even attempt twinkling. There are other aspects to the thing, too, that birthday coming up this year and the decision just made to start back down the line instead of progressing to higher numbers, and another Leap Year.

It would have been so much more subtle, for instance, and vastly more helpful, if the one who sent this letter had sent a jar of tissue cream, a little volume titled: "Winning Ways for Wooing Women" or "Bashing the Bashful Bachelor."

This is an awful experience. Even a contribution to aid in buying a cat would have been more help than an anonymous communication. It is hard to fall heir to a cat and joys like that" when one must toil for a living. Goodness knows, it would be a lot easier to sit around and bask in the sun and look back on a long and well spent life than it is to dash around trying to make a living and getting wrinkles trying to think up something to write about every day. And do old maids have to be reminded to "be your age!" Evidently, someone doesn't observe things with much care. Don't worry, this angler is being her age. She is practically hoary today.

However, she hopes no more reminders will be sent in. If the faults must be corrected, something constructive will be a great deal more helpful.

FOR OTHER EXES

THE good old days of blue chambray—Parkhill's imperial—are going to be recalled around the banquet table Wednesday evening by those of us who have attended the College of Industrial Arts and this is a sort of open letter of invitation.

It isn't often that the exes out here get together but there are a lot in Lubbock, Lamesa, Slaton, Tahoka, Abernthy, Crosbyton and the rest of the towns around here. Invitations can't very well be sent out and, anyway, this is just an old family gathering. So if you are one of the old Chambrayites, come out Wednesday evening.

This is a good time to do some reminiscing and that includes uniform. As one who has worn uniform, this angler wants to put in a recommendation. People who have never spent a few years on a campus where there was a uniform can't know the sentiment that one can attach to a piece of blue chambray. Also, those who have never worn dress such as the blue and white of C. I. A. can't know the convenience of the thing. There are other advantages, too; the democratic spirit, the cleanliness, the comfort and, actually, since I'm waxing sentimental, the beauty of it all.

It was that beauty or something that made all the assembly speakers of my day and the days prior to that stand up in front of the nearly 2,000 girls and, forgetting the speech they had prepared, burst into eloquence about "These bright and shining faces . . ." But, of course, you haven't slept through whatever speeches followed.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15. (AP)—Trading was fairly active in today's session but prices fluctuated without definite trend. Following an early gain of 5 points on overnight buying orders, the market gradually eased off 10-11 points in sympathy with early declines in stocks and due to considerable hedge selling. There was a gradual recovery of 4-6 points during the afternoon owing to a moderate recovery in stocks. The close was steady, the general market showing 3 points net down to 1 up for the day.

The textile statistics for the month of January made rather a favorable showing, the sales totaling 45.2 per cent above production and unfilled orders at the end of January showed a gain of 31.5 per cent. March closed at 6.72, down 3 points net for the day, May at 6.92 or net unchanged and July at 7.09, or 1 point net higher.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (AP)—A further advance of 5-9 points in cotton at the opening today was followed by reactions under southern selling and realizing.

May contracts which had sold up to 7.06 at the start on a continuation of the buying movement which developed toward the end of last week, declined to 6.88 but recovered part of the loss, closing at 6.93 compared with 6.91 at the close of Saturday. The final tone of the market was steady with prices net unchanged to 2 points higher.

Stocks Take Step Backward; Theory Of Profit-Taking Manifest In Trade

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 15. (AP)—Stocks took a step or two backward today in conformance with the very practical theory that profits were safer in the pocket than on the books.

Urgent needs of the shorts had been so well satisfied on Saturday that further support from this source was not forthcoming and the market thus found itself vulnerable to realizing sales. However, Wall street professed its satisfaction at the day's showing, for the net loss of 2.4 points approximated only 25 per cent of the advance made last week, there was little or no snap to the reaction after the first half hour which accounted for one-quarter of the volume.

Opening lower, the market extended its decline to 1-5 points in the early trading, reduced these losses by a point or so, sagged again and then moved horizontally to an uninteresting close. Final quotations were above the early minimums. Transactions totaled 1,975,494 shares, well below the turnover in Saturday's short session.

Grease goes—dishes shine

Millions wash them this easy way

YOU KNOW what a work-saver Rinso is on washday—how it gets clothes much whiter and brighter without scrubbing or boiling.

Well, it's just as wonderful for dishwashing! Grease soaks off by itself in thick, creamy suds. Just soak your china and glassware for a few minutes—rinse in hot water—and let them drain dry. Wash greasy pots and pans this easy way, too.

And Rinso is economical, too. Granulated, compact—it gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Rich, creamy, active suds, even in hardest water. No grit.

Use Rinso for tubs, basins, floors, woodwork. Get the BIG package.

Rain Reports

slowly falling rains. Early planting and pasturage was assured by the rains, plus the underground season given by previous precipitation.

Rain was falling slowly at Crosbyton at 10 o'clock. Abernathy also reported a small amount of precipitation, with mist and cloudy weather all day.

Rain estimated at approximately an inch fell between Spur, Dickens and Ralls last night. The fall started about 7 o'clock and continued for two hours.

Roads were very muddy and soft, owing to the fact that on the detour in Blanco canyon a grader had recently filled the ruts with soft dirt. No serious accidents were reported. Traffic was light. Between Ralls and Idalou the fall was considerably lighter, there being very little rain between Idalou and Lubbock.

"Ma" Ferguson

general election in 1924 was Dr. George C. Butte of the University of Texas, now vice governor of the Philippines. Dr. Butte polled 294,970 votes to 422,558 for Mrs. Ferguson, it was the best showing a Republican gubernatorial candidate in Texas has ever made.

Denied Second Term

In 1926 Mrs. Ferguson was denied the usual second term when she was defeated for renomination by Dan Moody in a bitter campaign.

Ferguson has been in politics for many years and has few equals as a stump campaigner. He was elected governor in 1914 and re-elected two years later. In 1917 he was impeached and removed from office. In 1922 he went to the run-off in the United States senate race in which Earle B. Mayfield was the victor.

"Farmer Jim" has done most of the campaigning for his wife in past races, and political observers expected him to take to the hustings again.

The 1930 runoff race was heated with personalities emphasized and brought out the largest vote ever cast in a Texas election.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 15. (AP)—Dominated by stock market recoils, grain prices took a general downward course today, altogether wheat displayed absorptive power on breaks of a cent a bushel.

Houses with eastern connections were heavy sellers of wheat at times, and much emphasis was placed on statements from trade sources calling attention to "the sore spot in the market," the "enormous block" of United States government financed wheat and to "threatened legislative attacks on the grain exchanges." Considerable late selling was also associated with improved weather in domestic winter wheat territory southwest and with Washington reports that widespread prolonged drouth was ended.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-4, 1-8 under Saturday's finish, corn 3-8, 1 down, oats 5-8 off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents decline.

gible for rediscount.

Life For One Year

The bill's life is for one year, as it passed the house, although an effort is to be made in the senate to make it possible to extend the act for a second year if necessity arises.

It provides that groups of five or more independent banks may borrow money on demand or promissory notes from the federal reserve banks upon the approval of a majority of the federal reserve board.

Government obligations, both bonds and short term securities, are made eligible for re-discount purposes, but foreign securities are barred.

Any bank members of the federal reserve system that have no paper eligible for re-discount purposes or acceptable assets available to obtain credit accommodations may borrow on time or demand promissory notes from the system on the approval of a majority of the board.

national settlement and the French concession.

Indications that the United States authorities feared disorders in other parts of China were seen in an announcement that Americans living along the lower Yangtze valley had been advised to evacuate. Other foreigners also were reported to be getting out of the interior.

The American consulate said it has advised evacuation of interior cities of China within 100 miles of Shanghai. The 100 United States citizens living in Soochow were told it would be better to move, and about 65 Americans living in Wusih, Changchow, Kiangyin and Changchu received the same advice. These persons were informed they would be safer within the Shanghai international settlement.

Apology Is Given

The Japanese consul general apologized to United States Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham for the attack last week on Arthur Ringwalt, American vice consul, and Mrs. L. Young, an American citizen.

Mrs. Young, a Chinese woman born in Los Angeles, and Mr. Ringwalt, whose home is in Omaha, Nebraska, were set upon by a mob of Japanese when they entered the Hongkew section to get Mrs. Young's baby from a family of her kinsfolk.

The Japanese consul general assured Mr. Cunningham that the attackers would be punished and promised that in the future authorized foreigners would be permitted in the Hongkew district without molestation.

was chosen to the state house of representatives, where he served one term. His contacts at Austin brought his appointment as chairman of the state board of pardons during the administration of Governor W. P. Hobby.

Served As Mayor

Returning to his home town in 1921, he again took up his private law practice, with the late M. E. Rosser as partner. Shortly after the death of Mr. Rosser he formed a partnership with J. M. Harris, which remained intact until 1927, when he succeeded W. P. Leslie, elected judge of the court of civil appeals at Eastland, as district attorney. During the 1921-1927 interim he served Snyder as Mayor for two terms. Among the major projects accomplished during his administration was paving of highway No. 7 through Scurry county and a local paving project.

He was twice married. His first wife died in 1905. Three years later he was married to Miss Clara Dodson of Snyder, who survives him. Four sons also survive, as follows: Tracy Smith, city attorney of Big Spring; Fritz R. Smith jr., and Coleman Smith of Snyder, and Dodson Smith, a student in the University of Texas. One brother, Ben F. Smith of Snyder, and three sisters, Mrs. D. P. Lane and Miss Elisabeth Smith of Snyder, and Mrs. W. R. Stone of Wellington, Kansas, also survive.

Funeral rites were held at the First Christian church of which Judge Smith has been a member for many years. Burial was in the Snyder cemetery.

It is estimated that one-third of the airplane passengers in California are women.

Testimony In Case To Start

Pitso Lambert, Negro, Today Will Go On Trial In 99th District Court For Murder Of J. E. McKnight

Testimony in the trial of Pitso Lambert, negro, charged with murder, will be started in 99th district court before Judge Clark M. Mullican at 9 o'clock this morning.

Jurors were selected Monday. The twelfth juror accepted was the last of the special venire drawn for the trial. The defense used 12 challenges, the state 2, and 2 were challenged for cause. Jury members are A. Holtkort, J. K. East, Jerry Leverett, E. L. Banks, T. J. Day, W. R. Gentry, Fay Gilliam, L. F. Moore, E. E. Gilleon, R. L. Ewing, Joe Boyd and E. I. Thornton.

J. E. McKnight, 50-year-old negro, a packing house employe, died last October 18, after being shot by a high-power rifle as he rode in a taxicab with A. D. Robertson, negro driver. After his arrest as a suspect in the slaying, Lambert indicated he had mistaken McKnight for another negro, Burton S. Burks, assistant district attorney, reported.

Lambert is to ask a suspended term if found guilty. Queries put to prospective jurors were to determine whether they were prejudiced against the negro race and against the laws of self-defense and suspended sentence.

Convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated, B. H. Jones' punishment was set by Judge Clark M. Mullican in 99th court Monday at a fine of $150 and costs. Jones waived trial by jury. Tom Garcia waived a jury and was found not guilty of chicken theft.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; over-crowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Drink plenty of water. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

4 Try, particularly, to avoid catching cold. Colds lower your resistance to disease germs. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin; remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. And if you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this relieves the soreness, and it usually reduces the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Taking A Sane Position

IN declining to work himself into a lather over the questionnaire mailed him by Rev. J. Frank Norris and in declining to rush an answer to the militant fundamentalist, Dr. Paul W. Horn is exercising the sane judgment which has characterized his administration over Texas Technological college.

It does not behoove Doctor Horn or any other free American to skip a rope at the snap of Doctor Norris' famous whip; the Ft. Worth Baptist pastor is no dictator, after all.

Whether Doctor Horn answers the Norris questionnaire or whether he does not, makes no difference to The Morning Avalanche. We consider the matter none of our affair.

But we are pleased to learn that the president of our great state educational institution is taking his own good time in the matter and refuses to be stampeded by the entrance of Doctor Norris into the late, lamented controversy.

Doctor Norris has the same right to inquire into the workings of a state institution as has any other taxpayer and citizen within Texas' borders; but his right in any public matter does not exceed that of any other citizen. Doctor Horn's reply to Doctor Norris—if he cares to make any at all—need be no different than any reply he might make to questions asked by plain John Smith, of Lampasas.

If Doctor Horn has the time and cares to answer Doctor Norris' queries, all well and good. If he doesn't get around to answering the questionnaire until next week or next month, that's all well and good, too. Just because Doctor Norris has become the leader of a certain group of people bound together by religious beliefs, does not mean that he deserves any special attention from those appointed to serve the public as a whole.

Doctor Horn is working for the State of Texas and his labors are under the direct supervision of the Board of Regents, appointed to oversee administration of the college's affairs. His first task is to preside over the college—if he has time to answer questionnaires he certainly possesses the judgment necessary to answering them and to knowing when to answer them.

ANOTHER BUM ARGUMENT

"Are China and Japan now actually at war?" questions an Associated Press dispatch, and continues: "The question, causing great discussion among authorities on international law, finds conflicting answers.

"The League of Nations Shanghai commission reported to the league council in Geneva that 'a state of open war' exists at Shanghai.

"Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, said in an address: 'Japan and China are not at war because neither has expressed intention to make war'."

The problem doubtlessly gives the learned of the world an opening for a lengthy discussion, pro and con, but to most of us in West Texas it is "much ado over nothing." Whether one refers to the Chinese-Japanese trouble as "war" or as "tit-tat-toe" makes little difference. They're fighting over there and that's the point.

Terrific bombardment of the native settlement at Shanghai and the wrecking of Chinese forts nearby have taken a heavy toll of life. Hand-to-hand settos between Chinese and Japanese troops have resulted in the death of countless others. Airplanes and warships have been pounding away and, if it isn't war, it can hardly be referred to as peace.

The Morning Avalanche imagines that any one of the soldiers or noncombattants killed during the fiasco in the Far East is just as dead as he would be had he been killed in a "war" that was scientifically labeled as "war." We doubt seriously, if the people made homeless and penniless by the assault are better off than they'd be had their dispossession taken place as the result of a regulation "war."

The important thing about the Chinese-Japanese trouble is, as we see it, "when will it stop?" We don't consider the term to be applied to it as important at all. Wise men may debate about it as much and as long as they desire, but wiser men will apply their knowledge, efforts and hopes to halting the fight.

The man who said the automobile of 20 years ago had no accessories probably overlooked the back seat driver.

Practical Health Problems

THE RESTLESS CHILD

CHILDREN who are unusually restless constitute a serious problem for their parents. Dr. H. S. Lippman has called them hypertonic infants, because they are over-active, fussy, restless, cry most of the time, vomit considerably and have frequent loose actions of the bowel.

Various suggestions have been made as to why such a condition develops in an infant, one important one being that the child had at birth some imbalance in its nervous system, and the other that some injury to the nervous system was caused at birth.

Dr. Lippman studied 63 infants with these symptoms.

Restlessness and crying occurred in 82 per cent during the day, and in 51 per cent during the night.

In handling these infants it was found to be possible through the prescribing of preparations of atropin, which causes relaxation of the muscles through control by the nerves, to bring about a quieting process. Atropin is a powerful and dangerous drug and can be used only on a physician's prescription.

In some instances, however, it was not possible to produce relaxation even with this drug. In these cases it was found that much of the nervousness in the infant was due to the fact that it regularly swallowed air when at the breast.

BECAUSE of the restlessness of the child it does not nurse automatically but consciously.

It is unable to co-ordinate properly and swallows large amounts of air. After nursing, it has distress and vomiting because of the air in the stomach.

Many of the emotional difficulties from which children suffer as they grow older seem to be due to the period of restlessness in early infancy.

The baby that is fussy requires constant attention. It is picked up, carried about, patted on the back, rocked, fed and changed much more often than if it were a normal infant. The parents became overcollicitous and soon develop an abnormal attachment to the child. The child learns of the power that it possesses through exhibition of its nervous performances and learns to produce these frequently.

IN OTHER instances parents resent a restless, fussy infant, the mother becomes antagonistic to it, and the infant soon appreciates this attitude of the parent.

Under the circumstances, it is not well for parents to permit an unusually fussy infant to go without attention. Prompt medical advice will result in the use of measures that will produce a suitable relaxation.

Removal of the child from the home to the hospital will give the mother an opportunity for rest and a chance to develop a proper emotional relationship to the child.

Garner Is Not Remote

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—For John N. Garner, as a good choice for the Democratic presidential nomination, there is this to be said:

Garner did not have to suggest himself. He was suggested.

John Garner

Once suggested, he has not had to cultivate, water and tend the suggestion, either. It has grown of itself—with extraordinary vigor. It may bear fruit.

Technically, the claims advanced by at least eight or ten Democratic presidential eligibles, or by their friends, in their behilf, are entitled to consideration ahead of the qualifications of the Texan.

In fact, the potentialities of the others HAVE been examined ahead of his.

That's the trouble. Flaws have been detected in all of them.

Governor Roosevelt seems semi-satisfactory to so many different and conflicting elements as to make wise politicians wonder whether he will prove satisfactory enough to any of the number. Al Smith already has demonstrated that he can be beaten. Perhaps injustly, Owen D. Young is sure to be accused of representing big money. Newton D. Baker is a corporation lawyer, who once was a radical; he is consequently regarded askance alike by progressives and conservatives.

It is painful to have to admit it, because he is personally so likable, but Governor Ritchie of Maryland has several serious handicaps.

From things he not only has said, but rubbed in, it is hard not to class him as pro-power. He is wet, and while Governor Roosevelt has expressed himself equally so, most drys appear to "understand" the New Yorker—but not Ritchie. Popular sentiment today plainly is anti-internationalistic, and the Marylander professes Wilsonian principles.

And so on.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson is too dry. Ex-Senator James A. Reed is too old. Governor George White of Ohio is only a favorite son. James M. Cox is a back number.

WITHOUT necessarily having abandoned all thought of any of these candidacies Democratic leaders pause, as their eyes rest on Speaker Garner. Then their mobile countenances reflect the processes of lively cerebral activity.

There is something exceedingly presidentially obvious about the Texan.

Of course the speaker of the house of representatives, occupying a position which many folk hold to be second only to the presidency in importance, always is mentioned in connection with the next presidential nomination by whichever party he is affiliated with.

John N. Garner was so mentioned, as soon as it became evident that he was about to attain to the speakership, even before he actually had been elected to it.

At first, to be sure, it was a tentative sort of mention.

Indeed, Garner's best friends were doubtful how well he would make good in the speaker's chair. As minority leader, they had recognized him as a fine disorganizer of the opposition's forces. They realized that it remained to be seen how successful he would be in the role of majority organizer—a mighty narrow majority, within which existed threats of friction of a highly dangerous character.

With the revelation that he possesses the gifts for the direction of large scale operations, as well as those of a dashing guerilla leader, naturally the stock of the Lone Star statesman advanced decidedly.

SUCH WAS the auspicious psychological moment—remarkably well hit, on—chosen by William Randolph Hearst to give the initial impulse to a genuine Garner-for-President movement.

There was not an immediate response of any great proportions.

Still, it was pretty fair for a beginning—a kind of a quiet but almost unanimous acknowledgment that, "After all, Garner wouldn't be a bad selection"—though no one then expected much of a landslide to start in his direction.

Even yet it is not an avalanche, but, for all that, it is gaining bulk and impetus.

There is, in short, a formidable logic back of it.

EVERY presidentially-mentioned Democrat down to Garner has some gravely qualifying "if" or "but" hitched onto his candidacy.

Garner hasn't.

The Texan is "safe and sane," but mildly satisfactory to progressive-ism. Without being a jingo, he is adequately nationalistic. He voted against the eighteenth amendment and is not deemed overly friendly to prohibition, but, representing a dry region, has kept his mouth shut on the subject and supported dry legislation in moderation.

He has all-around ability, political acumen in particular, and courage.

Folk like him at first sight.

Texas is as much a western as a southern state and Garner knows the whole country anyway. Emphatically he is one of the "people"—without even a college education.

THUS FAR Speaker Garner is not exactly in the group of secondary presidential possibilities (secondary to Governor Roosevelt) but he is not an impossibility by any means.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray virtually is an impossibility.

It would not, really, be surprising if the Democrats should nominate Garner; it would be, if they should nominate "Alfalfa Bill."

Nevertheless, the Oklahoman will be an important factor at the party's June convention.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives, particularly AUNT ELLEN, who has kept house for him, are hostile to Gypsy. They snub her. Aunt Ellen moves to a cottage of her own. MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancee, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and news comes that Brock Phillips has been killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about her financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees Marcia frequently. Gypsy is aware of the situation and worries. She tries to talk to Jim but cannot. One day in a beauty parlor she hears an unseen woman say, "Have you heard about Jim Wallace? He's going to leave his wife."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Gypsy sat perfectly quiet. She could not raise her eyes; she could not even seem to breathe.

The voice of the unseen speaker continued "Why, I heard it at the country club. It's all over town now! Jim's leaving this girl he married in New York and is going to divorce her. And here's Mercia Phillips back, a widow, with all that money—! Well, I guess you can see for yourself. Personally I think it's priceless. I never heard anything like it!"

There was a flutter of soprano laughter. A second voice with deeper tones put in something that was an inaudible murmur.

"I suppose you're right," the first speaker agreed, "only honestly everyone knows about it—" Then the conversation in the next booth swung to a coming house party. There was no more mention of Jim Wallace.

The beauty parlor operator was combing out Gypsy's waving hair.

"Now if you'll show me how you wear it," she said, "I'll put the pins in."

Gypsy struggled to master her voice. "I—I think I'd rather do it myself, if you don't mind," she said. It seemed to her that someone else had said the words.

"Certainly not. Here—I'll get you a mirror." The other girl disappeared and a moment later was back with a large black mirror. She handed the mirror to Gypsy and was gone.

Gypsy confronted her reflection in the mirror. Her cheeks were flushed. She wondered if the hair dresser had noticed the color come into her face. Of course the girl had overheard. Did she know who Gypsy was? She had called her "Mrs. Wallace" but there were a dozen different families of Wallaces. What did all that matter anyhow? What did she care about hair dressers or who the woman on the other side of the curtain might be?

Was it—could it be true? Would Jim do such a thing? Was it because of Marcia?

A tiny, defending voice arose in the girl's consciousness. "I won't believe it," the voice said. "It's only gossip. They're trying to make trouble. I won't believe it's true."

But the tiny voice was not loud enough to be convincing. It was such a very little, pathetic murmur—nothing to cling to in this everwhelming sea of doubt.

Gypsy realized she still held the comb and that she had not started to arrange her hair. She ought to begin. Someone might come and would think it queer of her to be sitting there, staring at herself in the mirror. She had forgotten about the finger wave, about her eagerness for her hair to be fluffy and soft about her face. She screwed it up into a tight knot at the base of her neck, jammed the hairpins in crosswise. It was only important now to get away from this place before anyone should recognize her.

She was pulling on her hat when the hairdresser reappeared. "Oh!" she said reproachfully, "you're all ready to go! Is the wave the way you wanted it?"

Probably she hoped Gypsy would remove her hat so that she might inspect her work but if so the girl disapponted her.

"The wave is very nice," Gypsy said. She had not even noticed what it looked like. "I pay the girl at the desk, do I?"

"Yes, Mrs. Wallace."

At the name Gypsy colored again. As quickly as possible she left the shop and got out on the street. Then she was undecided what to do next. Her first impulse had been to go to Jim and ask him if what she had heard was true. Now she knew that she could not do that.

This was a private affair to be discussed only between herself and Jim. She could not go to his office where there were clients, other members of the firm, stenographers. She must wait until they were alone at home.

Waiting was very hard. Gypsy turned homeward. She walked past the corner where she should have taken the street car without noticing it. When she realized this she had gone so far that she decided to walk the rest of the distance. At least she was spared the curious glances of other passengers. She had the feeling that faces were peering at her from behind curtained windows of houses she passed and that people were saying,

"There she is! That's the girl Jim Wallace is going to divorce. Everyone in town knows about it!"

At least she arrived home. She opened the front door and sniffed the faint, delicious odor of Matilda's baking. The kitchen door must have been left open against orders. Even so the smell was delicious.

Everything about the house was orderly, exactly as it should be. Preparations for dinner were almost complete. Sam had departed for the day, leaving word that he would be on hand early next morning to scrub the walks and porches.

"Mr. Wallace came home. I think

Abilene Christians Drub Matadors; Play At 8 Tonight

Pop Warner To Teach At Tech Coach School; Grid Rules Are Changed

Wildcats Find Tech Goal For 46-22 Victory

Matadors Off Form To Muss Up Passes And Shots In First Game Of Series; Pippen And Cheves Lead Scoring

The Texas Tech Matadors reverted to early season form last night to give the Abilene Christian College Wildcats a squad workout and a 46 to 22 victory as the two-game series opened at the Tech court. The teams meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the second and final game of the series.

Coach Del Morgan tried an even dozen men in a vain attempt to find a lineup which could even catch the ball as it was thrown hither and yon. Long before he had given up hopes of finding a scoring combination. Try as they might the Matadors couldn't hit the basket, and the Wildcats gave them every opportunity in the rule book.

At no time was the situation tense or even in doubt. Usually the Matadors find themselves later in the game and sometimes in the first half they show a spurt, but last night was their worst night of the season.

Pippen And Cheves Lead

Led by Brit Pippen, forward, and Chappie Cheves, guard, who scored 12 points each, the Cats were off to a big start and a bigger ending. The defensive and tip-off work of Worth Watkins featured the otherwise listless contest.

Had Coach Morgan chained a Matador on top of the goal post last night for the purpose of dropping the ball through the opening below, Tech still would have lost because the chained one, in all probability couldn't have caught a pass from one of the four on the floor. Nor is it likely that the passer could have thrown the ball straight or hard enough or high enough so that the one on top could reach it.

After chewing up a couple of chairs and starting on the players' bench while he looked on with eloquent disgust to see his proteges muff the big ball again and again, Coach Morgan hit the key note when he warned one of his boys in the ostensible act of receiving a pass to "let that ball alone; it might knock your teeth out." The ball might have been covered with grassburrs, so apparently afraid of it were the Matadors, or it might have been a leaden ball, judging from the way they threw it in the general direction of the basket.

Better Game Tonight

Tonight's game is certain to be better. It could hardly be any worse, if as bad, as last night's exhibition. Both sides were off-side half the time and the Matadors the other half.

Worth Watkins controlled the tip-off at center every time the ball went up. Once in a while a Tech player controlled the tip on a tie-ball but he invariably batted it to a waiting Wildcat and the scoring went on and on.

Clarence Hodges, the usual scoring ace of the Tech side, led the Matador scoring last night with six points, and he fired enough broadsides at the backboard to win two ordinary ball games. Leon Fisher was just as far removed from the form of which he is capable, but that is citing just two of the twelve instances.

Honor To Visitors

No honor is to be taken from the Wildcats, whose shots were right, whose passing and pass intercepting was great and whose general style was above reproach. They took advantage of Tech's 23 personal fouls for 18 points. When the Matadors found they could not attack the ball and the opponents' goal they began attacking the visitors themselves. It proved costly, and Referee Hambright was just as regretful as anybody else.

Watkins' work was almost sensational, although he failed to score a single field goal. He fired at the basket five times from the free toss line and five points went on the scoreboard. Cheves and Pippen tallied four free goals each, also four field goals. Charles Reynolds was no slouch when it came to firing away and his seven points were better than any Matador could do.

There was not an outstanding Tech player on the floor last night because Coach Morgan didn't leave one in long enough for him to become outstanding and because, at the rate they were going, not one probably would have been outstanding. Hodges and Fisher and Crews fired away, kept up a continual barrage from afar and near, but they might have been shooting blanks so far as their effectiveness was concerned.

Spudders Set For Big Year

Browns' Texas League Farm To Do Good Business, If You Ask Spudder Bosses; To Get Help From St. Louis

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 15. —Officials of the Wichita Falls baseball club, a farm of the St. Louis Browns, want it distinctly understood that the 1932 club of Wichita Falls will be in the pennant running.

The current Wichita Falls playing roster is not impressive. When you mention this fact around the local baseball office you get this answer:

"We will receive some assistance from the Browns prior to the opening of the season."

Just what players these will be has not been announced as yet.

The returning hurlers are Roland Flinn, Howard Taylor, Doyle Taylor, Fred Vincent, Lester White, Richard Florrid and Forrest Pressnell. Lester White with 17 victories and 14 defeats and Forrest Pressnell with 11 wins and 13 defeats were the leading pitchers among these holdovers. Fred Vincent worked in 19 games, won 4 while losing 8. Florrid worked in 28 games, won 5 and lost 4. Howard Taylor worked in 12, won 2 and lost 2. Roland Flinn worked in 42 games for Wichita Falls and San Antonio. He won 7 and lost 19.

Outstanding new prospects are Dorris Byram, a giant right hander, formerly of the Marines, and whose record in a semi-pro league on the pacific coast is nothing short of sensational. Another is Floyd Iskite who is a southpaw without professional experience. In the timber league, a fast semi-pro circuit in the northwest country, he won 19 out of 21 games.

Thomas J. Colan, a right hander, is another promising prospect. He was signed by the Cardinals while pitching for St. Mary's college but later was turned adrift. He was with St. Joseph and Springfield for a while last year.

Wichita Falls catching troubles of 1931 are over. The 1931 catching staff promises to be one of the league's best. Arthur Bradbury, who worked in 104 games last season for the Spudders and batted .251, seems sure of a regular job this year.

Wichita Falls new manager is Henry Severeid who started a professional career in 1909 and has been a star catcher for several years. He was with Hollywood last year in the Pacific Coast League. He has played with numerous major league teams and should make the Spudders a winning manager.

The new manager is expected to take over the first string catching job. He worked in 94 games last year, batted .347 and fielded .968.

The Spudders infield has one holdover. He is Arthur Scharein who can play shortstop or second base, batted .269 last year. The other infielders are Roy Sabine, first baseman; Harlan B. Clift, Gerald Levey, Arthur Green, first baseman and outfielder.

Three regulars will return for outfield duty. All are south-side hitters. Debs Garms, Robert Fuss and Morris Badgro are the three.

National Committee Makes Six Drastic Changes In Rulebook; Dangers Are Thought Lessened

Aggressive Use Of Hands And "Flying Wedge" Eliminated By New Rules; Flying Block And Tackle Are Taboo

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—To safeguard school and college football from the mounting toll of casualties which reached an unprecedented number last season, the National Football Rules committee today announced the most drastic revisions the game has known in a quarter-century.

Chief among six major changes in the playing code for 1932 are regulations which abolish the dangerous "flying wedge formation from kickoff, and outlaw the aggressive use of hands on the defense, with severe penalty for violation.

Liberalise Sub Rule

Going further in its sweeping move to root out the sources or causes of gridiron injuries and deaths, the rules-makers decided to liberalize the substitution rules, to permit the re-entry of any withdrawn player in any subsequent period; to abolish the flying block and tackle, recently developed by many high-powered offensive systems; to make the ball "dead" when any part of the ball-carrier's body touches the ground, except his hands or feet; and to alter the player equipment, with greater safety and protection in view.

Not since the forward pass was introduced, paving the way for the modern "open" game, has the gridiron code been given a more severe shaking-up.

The committee's decisions, jointly announced a three-day session at Hanover by Chairman Edward K. Hall and Secretary William S. Langford, were hailed today by leaders all over the country as the solution to manifold troubles beseting the sport. Hall expressed the conviction that these ills had been properly diagnosed and the remedies applied to accomplish a "great forward step" in reducing the changes of player injuries. Leading coaches and officials collaborated with the committee in framing the changes that apparently cover all factors blamed for the heavy toll in youthful lives.

Under the new kickoff rule, hte ball may be put into play from its customary spot on the 40-yard line by any one of three methods—kickoff, punt, or as formerly, the placekick. On the defensive side, at least five men must remain on their own 45-yard line until the ball is kicked. This provides for more strategy on the kickoff, besides preventing a mass formation to protect the ball-carrier, who will nevertheless be given an opportunity to make a fair catch.

The new rule covering use of hands on the defense deals with what many coaches considered the most serious factor in injuries on the line. "Players on defense are forbidden to strike an opponent on the head, neck, or face with hands, wrist, fore-arm or elbow," the new regulation provides, adding; such players may hereafter use the palms of their hands on the head of an opponent to ward off or push such opponents in order to get at the ball or the player carrying it."

This apparently, will call for some fine arts of discernment by officials, charged with the task of distinguishing between legal and illegal use of hands. The penalty for violation is disqualification of the individual and loss of half the distance to the offending team's goal-line.

Abolition of the flying block or tackle, with a five-yard penalty for violation, extracts something from the defensive but it appears offset by the rule making the ball "dead" at any time the carrier's body touches the ground, excepting his hands and feet. This is aimed at dangerous "piling up," the source of numerous injuries.

Under the new rule affecting substitutions it will be possible for one player to enter and leave the game four times, instead of twice. The withdrawn player can go back in any subsequent period.

Billy Fiske Leads U.S. Bob Team

American Team Is Winner Again On Bob Run

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Billy Fiske, a little bit of a fellow with just the trace of an English accent, closed out the 1932 Winter Olympics games in final triumph for the United States today by driving his four-man bob sled to his second consecutive Olympic championship.

Paying no attention to the storm of ill-feeling and argument that has hung over the bob run down the side of Mt. Van Hoevenberg since European members of the international Olympic bob sleigh committee wiped out most of its terrors, Fiske carefully nursed the lead he established in the first two heats yesterday to beat young Hank Homburger's crew by 2.02 seconds in total time for the four heats of the championship.

Only one of the five European teams in races, thrice postponed and finally tacked onto the end of the program after the Olympic games officially closed Saturday afternoon, was able to keep within hailing distance of the two United States teams. That sled was the German combination, sole survivor of the original three entries and piloted by Capt. Hans Kilian.

Kilian put together four heats for a total time of 8 minutes, 4-100 seconds, almost five seconds back of Homburger's 7 minutes 55 70-100 seconds. Fiske's total time was 7 minutes, 53 68-100 seconds.

The remainder of the field was badly distanced.

The bob sled victory of Fiske, with Eddie Eagan of Yale and Oxford, 1920 light heavyweight Olympic boxing champion, riding as pivot; Clifford "Tippy" Gray, songwriter at number 2; and Jay O'Brien, chairman of the United States Olympic bob sleigh committee, and once one of America's finest gentleman steeplechase jockeys, at the brakes, gave the United States the greatest victory in the 12 year history of the winter Olympics.

In the unofficial team point standing, the United States finished with 103 points. Norway, hitherto supreme in winter sports, was second with 77. Only Japan and Great Britain, of the 17 nations entering 331 Athletes, failed to score. Canada counted 49 points, Sweden, 28, Finland 25, Austria 15, Germany 12, France 10, Switzerland 9, Hungary 7, Rumania 4, Poland 3, Italy 3, Belgium 1, and Czechoslovakia 1.

Famous Stanford Mentor Will Teach His Popular Wing-Back Style Here; Thornhill Comes

Cawthon Receives Warner's Acceptance As Proof That School Will Be Successful; Faculty Is Completed

Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, head coach at Stanford University, will teach and demonstrate his famous "wing-back" football formations before what is expected to be the largest gathering of coaches in America at Texas Tech's second annual summer coaching school here in July. Warner, who recently signed a 5-year contract as head coach at Stanford at an approximate salary of $15,000, will be assisted by Tiny Thornhill, line coach who has worked with Warner since he has been on the coast.

Announcement of Warner's agreement to the Tech coaching school proposition was made yesterday through the offices of Pete Cawthon, director of athletics and head football coach at Tech. Cawthon and his assistant, Russell T. "Dutchey" Smith, are promoting the second annual school here. More than 300 coaches from various parts of the country attended the first school here last August.

Faculty Complete

The coaching school faculty was completed with Warner's acceptance. Heartly "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame, assisted by Marchmont Schwartz, all-American halfback, and Jack Meagher of Rice Institute, former Notre Dame star, are the other coaches who will direct football. Dr. Forrest "Phog" Allen of Kansas and Clyde Littlefield of Texas will teach basketball and track respectively.

Coach Warner has been rated as one of the foremost coaches of modern times. His single- and double-wing-back formations are the most widely accepted theories in use by prep school and college coaches today. Warner has been in the business about as long as the modern coach, his teams at Carlisle Indian Institute having been famous in early day football. Jim Thorpe, all-time, all-American gridster, was developed by Warner at Carlisle.

During the past week news services have carried stories dealing with a new system which Warner plans to carry out this fall. When he accepted the five-year contract the other day he made a statement to the press regarding his ambition to develop in the next five years "the strongest team that Stanford has ever had."

Plans New System

Warner also announced he plans a new double-spinner attack for the Stanford football offense next fall. Warner said it provides for two spinning fullbacks instead of one, the quarterback acting with the fullback. It is likely that Warner

The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD
This is a patented construction, and the two extra cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and 26% greater protection against punctures and blow-outs. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

Quiet, Safe, Long-Wearing Non-Skid Tread
Tough, thick rubber specially compounded for long, slow wear. Effective non-skid gives greater traction and safe, quiet performance.

10—Tailors, Hatters, Dyers

Bill Bray—
Says he has run out of "Soap" for his advertising copy, but wants to tell the people of Lubbock and the South Plains that they can still get that same good Service that Bray's is famous for.

NOTICE
"I went by Bray's, and what do you know, I ran him all over his plant trying to find out how he got so much business . . . I tried to make him own up that he was cuttin' prices, but I've convinced myself that he has built his mammoth business on QUALITY and SERVICE . . . then, Price.

First Man—"Where do you have your cleaning and pressing done?" Second Man—"Is there another tailoring plant, in Lubbock, besides BRAY'S?"

Someone asked Bill Bray, the other day, about the Depression.

"What Depression?" said Bill.

"WE LEAD . . . others try to follow"

Blackmer Fine Being Upheld

Former Colorado Oil Operator Loses Fight In High Court To Set Aside Fine Totalling $60,000 In Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. (AP) — Harry M. Blackmer, former Colorado oil operator, today lost his fight in the supreme court to set aside fines totaling $60,000 for his failure to return to this country to testify in the Sinclair-Fall prosecutions arising out of the Teapot Dome oil scandals.

By its action, the court upheld the contention of government lawyers that the federal courts have the authority to compel witnesses to return to this country.

Blackmer went to France in 1924, just a year before Sinclair and Fall were indicted by a grand jury on criminal charges growing out of the Teapot Dome oil lease.

Blackmer was reported to have information on the operations of the Continental Trading co., which Sinclair helped organize to dispose of naval reserve oil.

He was subpoenaed in 1927 and 1928 but he refused to appear and was held in contempt of court and fined $60,000 on two counts.

Rains Fall In Texas Sections

DALLAS, Feb. 15. (AP) — Rains which almost amounted to cloudbursts yesterday at Dallas and Fort Worth continued today in scattered sections of Texas.

The United States weather bureau forecast cloudy weather and local rains tonight in East Texas and partly cloudy weather for West Texas.

Nearly an inch of rain at Fort Worth during the week-end brought the month's total to 1.43 inches. Alpine reported the first rain today since the early part of December. The rain was general over the Big Bend section and ranchers hailed it as a boon to winter pastures.

Other points reporting rainfall were Houston, .09 of an inch; Denton, 1.08 inches; Corsicana, half an inch; Gainesville, 71; Brownwood, 35, and Longview, steady rainfall since 7 a. m. today.

Brownwood reported the rain was general in that section and heavier westward from there.

Father Kills Three Children And Then Takes His Own Life

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 15. (AP)—Fear that his children might be hungry and cold and that they might not be "saved" if they lived longer in "this wicked world" led a deranged father to kill three of them with a hatchet and to critically injure three others. He then committed suicide.

The bodies were found yesterday by relatives. Bolton E. White 46, the father, and his two daughters, Louise, 14, and Joan, 4, were dead. James, 11; Kathleen, 9; Malcolm, 7, and Hilda, 1, were stiff and cold and bleeding on the floor. Hilda died soon after reaching a hospital.

All states except Virginia showed declines in total international revenue in 1931.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of HEART HUNGRY, etc.

he's upstairs." Matilda announced.

Gypsy looked at the clock on the mantelpiece and saw that it was not yet five. Jim was home early. Wondering what this might mean, she went up the steps to dress.

The first reaction from hearing the shocking news had worn off. The walk had tired her but it also had been soothing. Gypsy slipped out of her street dress and into a thin negligee. She changed her high-heeled slippers for a pair of satin mules and sank to the cushions of the chaise lounge. Then she lay back and closed her eyes.

Minutes passed and Gypsy still lay there. Presently she heard a low knock at the door.

"Who is it?" Gypsy called.

It was Jim who answered. "May I come in?" he asked.

"Of course."

She started to rise but the door opened before she was on her feet. Jim, immaculate in whit flannel trousers and blue coat, appeared.

"Don't move!" he protested. "Just thought I'd come in and talk a moment. You look as though you were all in! Have a big day?"

Gypsy sat up. She caught the negligee about her more securely. "I'm not tired," she said. "I went down town this afternoon and decided to walk back instead of taking the car. It was foolish, I guess. It's pretty warm—"

"You should have telephoned the office," he reproved her. "I could have brought you in the car. When you're down town around four o'clock or after you ought to let me know."

"I will next time," she smiled. There was something reassuring about Jim's presence. He seemed so big and strong and sure of himself. Slowly her doubts began to loosen.

Jim inquired about preparations for the dinner next evening. He seemed to be in unusually good spirits, told her that Harrison had been pleased with the invitation and chatted about his day's work.

Presently he asked, "How about driving out to see Abbie and Charles Manley after dinner? Been promising to get out there for a long while."

"I'd love to go," Gypsy said. "Oh, I must start dressing! Matilda will have everything on the table." She went to the dressing table, seated herself.

Jim edged toward the door. "Guess I'll glance through the paper," he said. "Will you be down soon?"

"In 10 minutes!" Gypsy declared. She had her hair down and was combing it out vigorously. There was color in her cheeks now but it was not from humiliation. Gypsy fluffed the soft waves about her face. The beauty parlor operator had done her work splendidly.

There were a half-dozen crystal jars and bottles on the dressing table. Gypsy dabbled in one, then another, rouging her cheeks, dusting them with powder and touching her ear lobes with fragrant scent. She moved quickly. Soon she was slipping out of the negligee and getting into a pale yellow, ruffled cotton frock. It had a full skirt and sash. The ruffles stood out crisply cool, giving Gypsy the look of a quaint young lady on an old-fashioned valentine.

She turned and ran down stairs, arriving in the living room just as Matilda entered to say that dinner was ready. Twice during the meal Gypsy had the impression that Jim was eying her admiringly. She could not be sure.

They drove to the Manley's home later and remained until nearly 11 o'clock. During the drive home in the cool night Gypsy formed a resolution.

She would think no more of the gossip she had heard in the beauty parlor until Jim himself brought up the subject. She had faith in his honesty. If Jim had decided on some drastic course of action he would tell her about it.

It was comparatively easy to resolve these things; much more difficult to put them into practice.

For one thing, though Jim was gay that evening, Gypsy had the feeling he was too gay. Everything he said and did seemed to be with the conscious purpose of appearing genial and careless. She remembered this and waited.

The dinner for Mark Harrison was an evening Gypsy liked to think of afterward. The day had been warm but by five o'clock a faint breeze was stirring. Sam put leaves in the table on the porch and Gypsy got out the finest damask in the collection of linen. She put tall white tapers in the silver candle-sticks and in the center of the table a low bowl of pink roses. They were from the garden, freshly cut and sweet.

Gypsy wore the chiffon frock with its bright colors against a creamy background. She was a very attractive young hostess as she greeted the gray-haired lawyer. Jim was in his most charming mood.

"Glad to see you, my dear," Harrison said heartily. "Glad to be here. It's thoughtful of you young folks to bother with an old man."

"We've wanted you to come to see us for a long while," Gypsy told him.

"Did you? Well, I should have come. Nice place you've got here—yes, a fine old home!"

He looked up at the high ceilinged walls, sighed as though he might be thinking of days when he had sat in that room as the guest of Jim's father. Instead of being gloomy he smiled and began an amusing anecdote.

They went out to the porch and Matilda began to serve the meal. Harrison enjoyed himself. He seemed delighted with the outdoor dining room, praised the garden and promised to return some day to see it in the sunshine. He told stories that were delightfully humorous and he talked seriously.

They lingered over dessert. At last Gypsy led the way back to the living room and for two more hours Mark Harrison entertained them. When he finally rose to go he took Gypsy's hand in his.

"She's a fine girl, Jim," he said, smiling. "I envy you. Take good care of her!"

After the lawyer was gone Gypsy went to the kitchen to have a last look and see that all was well there. She was feeling almost happy a little later when she climbed the stairs.

The mood continued throughout the morning next day and until early afternoon. Then as Gypsy stepped out to bring in the letters the postman had left she saw Marcia Phillips coming up the walk.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Chico Evidently Is Peace Loving

Chico, in Wise county, does not have a constable, a justice of the peace or any other peace officer, Mark Marshall, director of motor transportation for the Railroad Commission of Texas, told attorneys and truck men here during the recent hearing. Some of the attorneys had called the attention of others to the fact that the director was a former Wise couny man.

"Yes," he replied, "Chico does not have a constable or a justice of the peace. The town is not incorporated. It has about 1200 to 1400 people.

"Chico has furnished more presiding elders of the Methodist church than any other town in the state if not in the entire south. It also has furnished more doctors than any other town of 10,000 population in Texas."

One of the attorneys questioned the director on his future plans. "When I am through with this job I am going back to Chico and farm," he declared.

Mr. Marshall was engaged in business there for many years and has made that town his "home" even though residing in Austin.

Farmers Aided By Co-Op Body

Texas Association Handling About 2,000 Bales Daily; Murray Points Out Values Offered Farmer

"We are handling about 2,000 bales of cotton a day and so far have handled over 450,000 bales of the 1931 crop," R. J. Murray, general manager of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, said in an interview here. "I expect the association will handle at least 100,000 more bales this year."

The big thing the T. C. C. A. has done this year, according to Mr. Murray, is the classing of 2,500,000 bales of cotton for non-members.

"By classification of cotton, the T. C. C. A. has added to the value of each bale of cotton for Texas farmers, between $5 and $7.50," he stated. "The charge is made that we had nothing to do with the increase. I want to say that if the Texas Cotton Cooperative had not been buying from farmers, the cotton growers would have received not over three cents a pound.

Membership Gain

"Our membership is now in Texas around 49,000. This is a gain of six or seven thousand members. We are gaining members all the time and this year I hope that our increase will show that the farmers of Texas who are growing cotton, there are over 200,000 of them, are behind cooperative marketing.

"There has been a better morale among the members of this association. We have had better cooperation with merchants and bankers and farmers than we have ever had."

Mr. Murray says a number of changes were made in the handling of business for the association and that the benefits were passed on to the members.

"Ninety per cent of the crop of cotton we handled in 1931-32 went direct from the farmer to the mills," Mr. Murray stated. "That is the dream of all cotton farmers, to be able to sell to the consumers. Well, the Texas Cotton Cooperative association has accomplished it.

"We take the cotton from the farmer, classify it, ship it to the ports, sell it to mill buyers and deliver it to the mills."

Tells Good Story And Has Evidence

FT. LAUDERDALE, Fla., Feb. 15. (AP)—Jay Gould told a good fish story here today and exhibited the fish—all 5,000 pounds of it—to prove it.

Gould's fishing party took the monster, a manta or "sea bat," off the coast here after a terrific tussle in which everyone of the group lent a hand. Gould's hands were cut and his right arm bruised in the battle.

The fish, he said, towed his boat five miles, sternward against the engines, before it was finally subdued. The city crane was used to lift it from the docks.
