Local and county stock show plans set

The annual Lockney stock show will kick off at 9:00 a.m. Saturday morning. The barns at the fairgrounds will be open all day Friday for the convenience of those parents who wish to bring their children's animals to town. The barn will be locked up at 10:00 p.m. on Friday night and will be opened at 6:30 a.m. on Saturday morning.

The weighing in of the animals will begin at 5:00 p.m. on Friday with the pigs and lambs. The steers will be weighed in at 8:00 a.m. Saturday morning.

Serving as swine superintendents for this year's show are Herbert Dudley and assistant Keith Phillips. Clar Schacht and John Quebe, assistant, for the lambs; David Foster will be the superintendent of the steers. All weight classes and breed classes will be categorized at the discretion of the superintendents for each breed. As in years past, there is no entry fee for the Lockney show. Anyone enrolled in FFA or who is a member of the 4-H may enter animals in the show.

The show a junior showmanship contest will be held at 9:00 a.m. Saturday morning if there are enough interested youngsters. Otherwise the show will begin with the pigs, then sheep, and finally the steers. There is no planned break for lunch.

The judge for this year's show is Scotty Windham, who is the agriculture teacher from Abernathy.

The Lockney Stock Show will use the same basic weight guidelines that are used for the county show. The minimum weights for lambs are 80 pounds for Southdown breeds and 90 pounds for all others; there is no top weight. For pigs the minimum weight is 200 pounds and top is 260. Steers will weigh a minimum of 900 with no top weight.

As in years past there will be selected citizens in the audience who will be judging the showmanship in each of the three animal divisions. Belt buckles will be presented to the showmanship winners in each of the divisions. Belt buckles will also be presented to those who show the grand and reserve grand champion animals in each of the three divisions.

Cash premium money will be paid to the exhibitors.

Though the number of animals has diminished this year, approximately 60 pigs, 50 lambs, and 12 steers are expected to be shown this year.

Bank sponsors cotton options seminar next week

The First National Bank of Lockney is sponsoring a cotton options seminar for area farmers. Conducting the seminar will be Ron Roesler of Stotler and Company of Lubbock. The seminar will be held at the Lockney High School Ag building on February 12 from 6:30 to 10:00 p.m. Anyone wishing to learn more about cotton options is urged to attend.

Cotton options are one of the new tools available to farmers for the risk management of the cotton price fluctuations. Options to buy or sell cotton futures contracts open a wealth of new hedging strategies built around the new options contract. The advantage is that buyers of options can have an absolute price protection in the event of unfavorable price moves, while still sharing in the economic benefits of favorable ones.

Producers may, at first, view these newfangled "options" with skepticism and doubt. However, they do indeed "work", and they will play an important role in the producer's strategy in marketing the cotton that he has not had before.

In the true sense, an offsetting futures position, as opposed to a long cash position, is a "passive hedge".

County Show
The Floyd County Junior Livestock Show and Sale has been set for February 15 and 17 this year. The show was changed to the weekend because of the new laws governing the days students may be out of school.

The deadline for entry fees for the county show is Friday, February 8, at 5:00 p.m. and may be turned in to the county agent's office in Floydada. The fees for the show this year will be $3.00 per animal entered for pigs and lambs and steers are $5.00 each.

The county show barn in Floydada will open on Friday, February 15, for the convenience of the exhibitors at 4:00 p.m. on that day. Pigs and lambs will be weighed and sifted Friday evening at 6:00 p.m. Steers will be weighed and sifted on Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m.

The county show will begin at 9:00 a.m. on Saturday morning with the showing of lambs and then pigs at 2:00 p.m. The steers will be shown on Sunday afternoon beginning at 3:00 p.m.

The judging contest is scheduled for Monday morning at 7:45 a.m. and the annual buyers luncheon will be at 11:30. The sale will follow at 1:00. The sale is being held on Monday, which is an inservice day for Floydada teachers and a comp day for the Lockney schools.

The animals will be weighed and sifted and divided into weight and breed classes at the discretion of the superintendents of each of the three divisions.

Superintendents for this year's county stock show include Joe Neil Rexrode, barrows; Kenneth Brosech, sheep; and Laron Fulton, steers.

Judges for the show will include Jerry Hawkins, who will judge barrows and lambs and Richard Spencer, judge of the steers.

Officers for this year's county stock show include president, Michael Hinsley; vice president, Jerry Williams; secretary treasurer, Jon LaBaume; and Larry Barbee. The general superintendent is Jerry Williams, assisted by Tommy Hancock, Randall Robbins, Ritchie Crow, Benny Butler, and Rodney Purswell. Tom Assiter will serve as the announcer; auctioneer will be Kenneth Gregg.

Capping off the Annual County Stock Show will be the banquet which is scheduled for 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, February 19, at the Lockney Elementary Cafeteria. The banquet is sponsored by the Floyd County Farm Bureau.

This means that once the futures position is entered into, the producer is theoretically unaffected by market movement, basis risk aside. If he is long cash cotton and short futures, his overall position is unaffected, whether the market rises or falls from the time he institutes the hedge. For this absolute protection, he sacrifices profit on his long cash position in favorable market moves, but does not suffer loss on his long cash position in unfavorable market moves. Options, on the other hand, when used to offset cash cotton, are a "dynamic hedge". The producer has the right, but not the obligation, to sell the futures contract at a predetermined price. Thus, to hedge a long cash position, the purchase of a put option would give him the right, but not the obligation, to sell a futures contract at a predetermined price in the event the market drops, which would protect the value of his long cash position. However, if the market rises, remember, he has the right, but not the obligation, to sell a futures contract. With the market rise, he can let his option expire and realize full market value of his cash position. But there's no such thing as a "free lunch." The premium costs

SCHOLARSHIP SIGNING—Coach Bob Purser, James Poole, and Coach Bob Mazie look on as Scott Poole signs the scholarship papers from Southwestern Oklahoma State University at Weatherford, Oklahoma.

Poole signs scholarship

On Friday, February 1 Lockney senior Scott Poole signed a one year renewable scholarship to play football for Southwestern Oklahoma State University at Weatherford Oklahoma.

SOSU head coach Bob Mazie was on hand to sign Scott to the scholarship. Scott will be upholding a family tradition of sorts as Mazie also coached his father, James Poole, in 1965 and 1966.

The scholarship is renewable for one year at a time and may be renewed for the next four years provided Mazie is pleased with Poole's progress as a football player, his grades remain good, and Poole wishes to continue to attend SOSU and play football.

Scott has received several football honors in the past two years that include honorable mention to the All District team his junior year. As a senior Poole was named the Plainview Daily Herald's Player of the Week after the Dimmitt game on September 14, 1984.

Anderson resigns position as president of FNB

On Friday, February 1, 1985, Carroll R. Anderson announced his resignation as President and Director of The First National Bank in Lockney.

Anderson stated, "I have enjoyed my last six years at First National Bank in Lockney. It was fun watching the bank grow by $10 million in that period of time. The staff at the bank has been a pleasure to work with; I appreciate everyone of them, and I'll miss them.

"It is not without regrets that I leave Lockney, but I feel that now is the time in my life and career to make a change. I know before I even start looking for another town to live in that it will be difficult to find one that cares any more than Lockney. The thing that I noticed first when I came to town was the friendliness that was exhibited everywhere, and most of all, the time that adults were willing to devote to the youth of Lockney. The young people and money, and this money must be paid "up front."

A premium is nothing more than the "deductible" on an insurance policy. Purchasing options is considered hedging if it is offsetting another risk -- a long or short cash position. The transaction, like futures, tends to be equal and opposite to the position in the cash market. One drawback to the purchase of options is that it is capital intensive. It costs money to buy options, whereas the use of futures is a commitment of capital, but not necessarily a cost.

If options are purchased for hedging purposes, they are designed to be unprofitable. When purchased properly, options are insurance policies, and insurance policies are costs on which one hopes never to collect.

Roesler will be speaking generally about options and how the producer might use them in his hedging operation. Options are not a cure-all. Nothing yet has been invented to better the true hedge of the futures market. The option

He was also named to the All District first team as the center on offense and as a lineman on defense. He also made the All South Plains team, the only player selected for both offense and defense.

In high school Scott, in addition to playing football, has been involved in band, basketball, and track.

James commented "It's great for Scott to get this opportunity to further his education and to continue to play football. We are very excited for him".

As for Scott, he is already making plans to attend the university including a diet and physical routine to prepare himself for the change to college football. Scott commented "Many of the things I have accomplished in football and the recognition I have received for playing football comes from the coaching I have received from Coach Bob Purser and his staff. Without the excellent coaching I have received, I could not have gotten this far."

the school spirit have always impressed me so much. Lockney has a lot of good people, young and old. I wish luck, health, and prosperity to the citizens of Lockney and hope that five years from now when I look at First National's deposits, the bank will be another $10 million dollars stronger."

Don W. Long, Vice Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, stated, "We certainly regret Mr. Anderson's decision. All of the officers and employees of the bank want to wish him the utmost success in the future.

"Even though Mr. Anderson is leaving FNB, the bank is intent on continuing to provide its customers with the best service possible. The First National Bank in Lockney is very excited about the future of the bank and the community. The bank is working hard to provide new and better ideas for your progress and success."

is the "second best" alternative to the futures market. The producer may choose the option market to hedge his production over the futures market because he needs to be protected from a drop in market prices, but he doesn't want to be subjected to the cash requirements (margin calls) in the event of a market price increase. The producer may also choose the option market over the futures market so that he can participate in a market price increase while forfeiting only the premium paid for his hedge positions.

There are two ways in which the producer may use the option market to hedge his production. There are several others, but they require a degree of understanding of options not held by most beginners in the option market.

1. Buy Puts To Protect Anticipated Production

The producer has several choices to make before taking his position in the options market. First, he must decide what floor price he wishes for his

Lockney Oil and Butane honored by Rotary Club

Featured as the Lockney Rotary Clubs Business of the Month for February is Lockney Oil and Butane, owned and operated by N.H. (Ham) and Mildred Gammage.

The business was opened by George Webster and Henry Hodel in 1950 and went by the name of Lockney Butane Company. Gammage has been working for National Butane Co. in Plainview which was the supplier for Lockney Butane Co. He helped Webster plumb the storage tanks which are still in use today. He also trained Webster to deliver butane and had helped him with the service work.

The Gammages purchased 1/3 interest in the company in 1952 and moved to Lockney from Plainview to manage the business. In 1955 Webster bought Patterson Grain and sold his 1/3 interest in the company to Hodel and Gammage. Hodel retired in 1962 but retained 1/3 interest in the company. At this time the business was renamed Lockney Oil and Butane. Shortly after Hodel's death in 1968 the Gammages bought Thelma Hodel's interest and became sole owners in the company.

Gammage was raised in Collingsworth County, Texas which is between Memphis and Wellington. He moved with his family to a farm west of Plainview in 1938. Mildred was attending high school in Plainview when they met the following year. In 1940 after her graduation from high school, Mildred moved to Tucumcari, New Mexico, to live with her sister and attend a business school. Gammage entered the army in June of 1940, and they became engaged that same year. Married in April of 1942 they lived in El Paso while Ham was stationed at Fort Bliss.

Ham spent from May of 1943 to August of 1945 serving in Australia, New Guinea, the Admiralty Islands, and the Philippines. After his discharge they moved to Plainview and then to Lockney in 1952. Their first child, a daughter, was born in 1943. Their second child, a son was born in 1954. Both of the children, Linda and Ronnie, graduated from Lockney High School. Linda attended ACC in Abilene and Methodist Hospital School of Nursing in Lubbock. She married Greg Roberts of Plainview. They have three children and presently live in Lubbock where Linda works for the City of Lubbock and Greg works for LP&L.

Ronnie attended LCC and graduated from Texas Tech University with a degree in finance. He married Shelley Collins of Lockney and they have one child. Ronnie is presently the vice president of Hale County State Bank; Linda is an officer at Summit Savings and Loan.

The Gammages are members of the Main Street Church of Christ and both have been Bible class teachers. Ham has served as a deacon and has been an elder for several years. They are also both on the Board of Development for LCC and have worked at fund raising for the University. They also helped establish the Blue Haven Youth Camp in Las Vegas, New Mexico.

Active in local school and civic activities, both said they "have been very happy living in Lockney for the past 32 years."

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

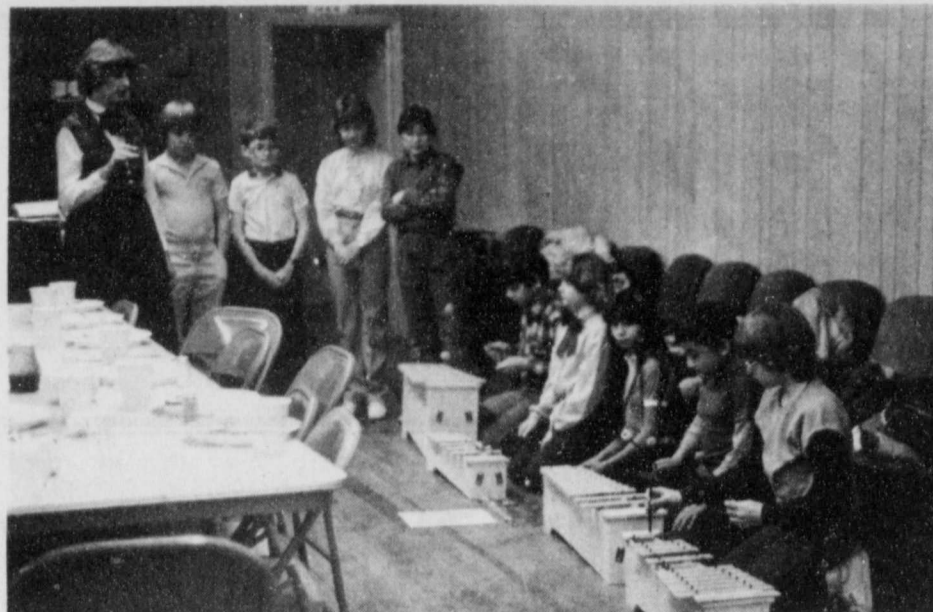

A ship that sank off southern Turkey 3,400 years ago when King Tut ruled Egypt is now yielding to Americans archaeologists the most extensive collection of Bronze Age artifacts yet found. The discovery of the vessel was reported on December 4 at a National Geographic Society press conference.

The vessel was laden with ingots, seeds, a gold goblet, ivory jewelry, weapons, pottery, and other everyday articles. The rotted 65-foot-long ship was found by sponge divers. Excavation began last summer and is expected to take five years. Recovered items include hunks of cobalt-blue glass, the earliest known examples of the material. Experts date a pottery cup to 1375 B.C. The Bronze Age lasted from 3500 B.C. to 1000 B.C.

American and Turkish scholars speculated that the ship had taken on cargo in Cyprus and Syria and was headed toward a port in Turkey or Greece. It probably sailed along historical trading routes in the eastern Mediterranean when it ran aground and sank in water 145 to 175 feet deep.

Team leader George Bass of Texas A&M University called it "the most important and exciting" wreck to be found in the Mediterranean.

STUDENTS GIVE PROGRAM—Ten students from Amy Thorntons 5th grade music class presented the program last Friday to the Lockney Rotary Club.

Il Penseroso meets at Mosleys

The Il Penseroso Jr. Study Club met January 24 in the home of hostess Lisa Mosley. Co-hostesses for the meeting were Robin Stoerner and Lynda Gant. The meeting opened with an interesting program by Kathleen Thornton. She told about how to look for antiques. She gave tips on how to determine real antiques from reproductions. Mrs. Thornton also showed several pieces of antique glassware from her collection and she told how each got their name.

The business meeting opened with a prayer by Kay Martin. Further business on the bridge tournament was taken care of. The craft show was discussed, reservations are already being received. It was decided that for consignment stores wishing to rent booths a fixed fee of $35.00 would be set.

Due to the cancellation of the 1985 fair, the club fair quilt will be raffled off at another time. Lisa presented the suggestion of helping the Art Association present a children's play. The club decided it was not feasible due to the cost of the play.

Other suggestions for their funds included buying a film on child abuse and a project called Helping Hands. The club decided to purchase the child abuse film. It will remain at the school and it can be shown each year. The Helping Hands project is being looked into for more information. The Senior Citizens Center is being looked into. Nominations for Man, Woman, and Family of the Year were chosen. Different club members volunteered to write the letters of nomination to the Chamber of Commerce. Sharron Vickers from Floydada gave a short program on her new business "Balloons by Sharon." She makes and delivers helium filled balloon bouquets. These bouquets are for all occasions and gifts can be attached.

Members present for the meeting were: Lisa Mosley, Robin Stoerner, Lynda Gant, Treena Aston, Cathy Barnett, Cynthia Bybee, Sandra Cummings, Lesca Durham, Cindy Ford, Julie Ford, Judy Jackson, Jessie Johnson, Kathy Kellison, Kim Lambert, Linda Marr, Kay Martin, Rhonda McCain, Sherry McDonald, Patti Purcer, Reeda Cay Smith and Karen Quebe.

Refreshments of chicken crepes, salad, cheeseballs and banana split cake were served to the members and guests.

out like common garbage without even giving it a second thought. Once the elderly's resources and usefulness has been exhausted by our society, they are discarded, not only in our community solely, but in other communities throughout the nation. It is very sad to think of the years to come when we too will be reaching that age, where we too will be discarded just as my parents were, by corporations/establishments to whom we devoted our lives to.

Sincerely,
Shari Carthel

Lockney Care Center Capers

By Linda McCullar

Monday started out our week of fun. We all enjoyed the John Francis group. We really appreciate these fine people. Tuesday we went on a bus ride to Matador. Eleven residents taking the trip were treated to ice cream and cokes at Matador.

Wednesday was a little slower pace with all playing dominos in the afternoon.

Thursday we had a film, "Directed by John Ford." This was a good film. We also ate popcorn and drank lemonade. The residents enjoy the films.

Friday we all said good-bye to Estella Castro. She resigned her position at the center. We will all miss her. During our party the residents were playing Bingo. Jaylana Taylor and her sister, Kathie, called Bingo and served refreshments to the residents.

The Care Center would like to invite everyone to come see the improvements we are making. We have new blinds in the lobby. We have a new Food Service Supervisor, Tina Nuncio. We are glad to have Tina with us. We have three nurses aides that completed their training and received their certificate.

We are proud of them. Cinde and I will be going to Lubbock for an activity directors meeting. This gives us more education on activity. We also enjoy this meeting. Don't forget to visit the Care Center.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I would like to share my feelings with the community regarding the termination of my parents at a local establishment. On 1-16-85, it was called to our attention by a personal friend of the family that my parents were to be terminated. During this telephone conversation, our friend stated that he had heard this at a local gas station. I will admit that, prior to this, I, too, had heard of this at another local establishment, but gave no second thought to this, believing it was only gossip.

I am appalled that an establishment such as this would not have other means of informing their employees as to when they are to be terminated, other than by letting everyone in the community know prior to notifying that employee. I feel that this was handled in a very unprofessional manner, and the employees feelings were not even taken into consideration.

Justification for termination was stated to them as "they were getting too old to carry out their responsibilities. They would be replacing them with a younger couple." Older people on social security that want to work and earn their own living are mistreated and robbed of their dignity by corporations such as these!

My parents were never informed, although they did ask if any alterations/improvements were needed in their job performance. If they had been informed, I am positive that it would have been corrected immediately since my parents do take pride in their work. My parents have been very loyal to this establishment, and this was not even taken into consideration when deciding on their termination. Many times my father has called it to the attention of the staff, errors that should not have been, thus saving them valuable time and possible expense.

Did they even consider the times my parents went to the establishment on Sunday mornings prior to church services to complete work as needed (i.e., replacing lighting, re-doing windows)? I hate to think of what will happen to other employees in this establishment who are getting on in their years. Will they end up the same way as my parents?

I used to think that this was an outstanding community, but this is not the first time that incidents such as this have happened. There are other establishments who terminated my father due to a related work injury which was not compensated for, because the establishment had no employee insurance coverage.

I also recall another incident where he was terminated due to church preference. This establishment knew prior to job placement that our religious beliefs and church preference was different than theirs.

My father was born and raised in this community, has given a great deal throughout his 76 years, and it is unfair that he be shunned by three different establishments that consider themselves outstanding. How soon they all forget of the 17 years of dedicated and devoted services as deputy sheriff which he served in our community.

Although I am not asking that this decision be reversed, I only wanted to make the community aware of how our so called "pillars" in the community are treating our elderly and throwing them production (strike price minus premium paid). After making that determination, he must decide the length of time he needs coverage. The option he selects must not expire prior to the end of the time he needs coverage. After making these decisions, the producer can determine the total cost for the coverage he desires. He needs to realize that this cost is continually changing as the futures price changes, so that the timing for purchasing his "price insurance" is important.

Cotton option seminar ...

When the producer is satisfied that he has the protection he needs at a cost that is reasonable, he would purchase the number of puts needed to cover his anticipated production. He may, if he chooses, purchase only a portion of the puts needed in anticipation of purchasing more at a later time for a better price until he has purchased the total needed.

The puts are then held until the producer sells his production in the cash market. At that time, he could sell his puts for whatever the premium value is at that time. If the market price had dropped, the premium value of the puts should have increased providing a profit to offset the loss suffered in the cash market. If, on the other hand, the market price had risen, the premium values will have dropped, but the increased market price should offset the premium loss or more. Remember, the premium value must increase enough or the cash market price increase enough for the put option position to be profitable (covering the cost of the premium bought). Remember also that the basis (difference between the cash price and the futures price) is not taken into consideration in this hedge strategy. The futures price may go up or stay the same, resulting in a loss in premium value, while the cash price drops giving a loss on the cash market at the same time. This exposure leads to the second hedge strategy for the producer.

II. Forward Contract Or Sell And Then Buy Calls

This choice for the producer becomes very attractive if he has no opportunity to hedge his production at a satisfactory price prior to harvest, or if he wants to lock in the basis. This type of "hedge" fixes a floor price, fixes the basis, and allows the producer to participate in any increase in futures price subsequent to his selling his production in the cash market. This opportunity does not come without a cost. The cost is the price of the options that the producer elects to purchase to replace the cotton that he has sold.

Since the producer has no cash position after he contracts or sells his production, he does not have to take any

Lockney Local

Dr. Gary Mangold and his wife Brenda were in Tucson, Arizona, January 20 where Dr. Gary ran the 26-mile Tucson Marathon.

Also completing the marathon were Dr. Gary's brother and wife, Dr. Bill and Carol Mangold.

Three hundred entrants began the marathon at the scenic Vintana Canyon Resort. The race went through the Tucson area foothills and the university campus before concluding in downtown Tucson.

Dr. Gary and Brenda visited in Tucson several days before returning home via Ruidoso, New Mexico, for two days.

Circle meets for annual pledge

The Ruth-Wesley Circle of United Methodist Women of Lockney met Monday, January 28, in the home of Hazel Johnson for their annual pledge service to missions.

Mrs. Johnson presented the program, "The Theology of Giving", using scriptures from both the Old and New Testaments with practical applications for Christian stewardship.

Present were Mae Willis, Jewel Thompson, Mary Ansley, Grace Colson, LaVerna Sams, Helen Huffman, Betty Counts, Opal Blount, Olive Myers, Bernice Barker, Edna Cox, Lena Hawkins, Eleanor Schacht and the hostess.

position in the option market, realizing that he is protected from a down move, but also precluded from participating in an up move in the market price.

Commented Roseler, "It is my understanding that IRS considers the marketing plan described above as a true hedge for tax purposes. In other words profits or losses derived from the option market are taxed as ordinary profits or losses, as long as the calls are purchased within 30 days."

As stated previously, there are several other strategies for hedging production which are more efficient and cost effective than the two strategies above, but they require better understanding of the option market. Each incorporates a short position (selling or writing) in puts or calls. This requires close management, but has the advantage over the two strategies discussed above because the "time decay" becomes at least a partial asset instead of a total liability.

Roesler will be discussing the options market and will have a question and answer session at the close of the seminar for all area farmers that are interested in learning more about this new tool open to farmers. Anyone needing more information about the seminar may contact the First National Bank at 652-3355.

FUNDRAISER UNDERWAY—Hard at work making decorations for the Floyd County Arts Association's "White Elephant and Art Auction" are Peggy Roberts, Helen Teeple, decorations chairman; Connie Johnson, Carolyn Marble and Sue Givens. On Saturday, February 23, at 7:00 p.m. the Massie Activity Center in Floydada will be turned into "Chinatown" for this gala fund-raising event. On the agenda for the evening will be a buffet dinner, a professional magician, and a wide variety of auction events scattered throughout. A special feature of the evening will be a rare performance by the acclaimed Floyd County Cultural Ballet Troupe. All in good fun, this evening is the big fund-raising event of the year for the Arts Association. Donated art and "White Elephant" items will be auctioned off, with proceeds going to help fund Arts Association programs and projects throughout the coming year. Tickets are $7.50 per person and may be obtained by calling Jackie Walls [983-2329] or Gleyne Earle Cummings [652-3771]. The deadline for ticket sales is Thursday, February 21. Seating is limited, so don't delay. So, dust off your rickshaw and come on out for this evening of "fun-draising." We guarantee you've NEVER been to an auction like this one!

What was 1984 like?

What was 1984 in Lockney like? In general, things looked good for Lockney in 1984. Cotton produced this year more than doubles last year's yield.

The building permits for Lockney were up 84% over 1983. The increase in the permits came, in part, from the new housing units being constructed. The permits for these new units totaled $667,789.00. Without including the housing units, the building permits for Lockney increased $142,288.00 over those issued in 1983, a significant increase. In 1984 for present home renovations, moving homes into Lockney, and mobile home permits showed an increase. One new construction permit was issued in Lockney.

The businesses in Lockney also reported a good year. Claude Brown of Brown's Department Store reported that his business showed an overall increase for 1984. When asked how he could account for the increase, Brown said "Everyone seemed to have an optimistic outlook last year and spent more money."

Carl Lee of White's Auto also reported an overall increase in his business. He said he had "sold more appliances" last year and "home furnishings were up slightly."

Opening in July, the City Connection is a merchandiser of women's and children's clothing and jeans in all sizes. When asked if this had been a good year to open a business in Lockney, Lisa Mosley said "Everyone told us this would be a bad year, but we went ahead anyway and have had a very good year. We have had steady business since we opened. The support of the local people, as well as many out-of-town customers, has convinced us that it was a good year to open."

By not having a PIK program this year many other businesses experienced an increase. They include seed dealers, fertilizer companies and also those who do aerial spraying, some experiencing an increase of up to 5 times the business they did last year.

The First National Bank of Lockney also showed an increase with $26,743,000.00 made for the year's total deposits, for an increase of $520,023.00 over 1983. Last year's deposits totaled $26,222,900.00. Carroll Anderson, president of the First National Bank, commented "I realize that part of the increase is due to good yields of the farm commodities even though prices were down this year." He also said, "From what I have read, I feel that there will be a strong economy in 1985, but I am afraid that this will not spill over into farming." He said he thought that commodity prices would be down in 1985 much like they were in 1984.

BY DON & SARA PROBASCO
No one gets too old to learn a new way of being stupid.
Wisdom is knowing what to do next. Skill is knowing how to do it. Virtue is doing it.
A great violinist of the past century was once called a genius by a famous critic. "Genius!" the musician snorted, "For thirty-seven years I've practiced fourteen hours a day, and now they call me a genius!"
The dividing line between success and failure can often be expressed in five words: "I did not have time."
A farmer can learn more about economics from one good West Texas dust storm than from four years in college.
Sign in a loan company window: "Now you can borrow enough money to get completely out of debt."
Parents who want their children to do well in school, but who don't respect learning are deluding themselves.
