SOUTH TEXAS FLOOD DEATH TOLL IS 27

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

"This is certaintly a small world after all," said Wheeler Pearce, pressman at the Cisco Daily News Plant, when he received a letter from his brother who works in a newspaper office at Bar Harbor, Maine.... Because in that letter was a picture of the Cisco Daily News Plant, with the inscription: "A Live Texas Newspaper in a Live Texas Town".... and under the picture, "The Cisco Daily News"...

* * *

And on the other side of the sheet is an interior view of the Daily News plant with this inscription: "The above photograph shows the Duplex press as installed in the plant of the Cisco Daily News"...."The Cisco Daily News is considered one of the best equipped plants in the southwest. The Model A Duplex press permits the publisher to keep up the high standard of efficiency and continue the development of his publications."....

Yes, the world is indeed small ....we meet our friends and foes wherever we go.... if they are our friends they may be worth a great deal to us when they tell their friends of the acquaintanceship of the past....

If, on the other hand, they have not carried friendly remembrance of us in their recollections of the past, they might do us untold damage and greatly hinder us in our activities and usefulness, regardless of how much we may have reformed in our ways.... so it is if we have made mistakes and erred, it is best to go back and establish ourselves where the mistakes occurred. So that when we meet old friends of former years they will have a good work for us....

* * *

A great lesson of life was taught our young pressman in this little incident....He can't run away from himself or his former life ....He will be known in the far away rock-bound coast of Maine just as the Cisco Daily News had penetrated to that far place.... if his record is good it will be easy to establish himself because he will find some kind of contact there with his former reputation....

* * *

Someone of our friends calls our atention to the fact that many of us are negligent about trimming up our trees that grow across the sidewalks....

This friend says that he believes in trees....loves them, but sometimes he takes a night stroll for health's sake and often finds his

PANELS READY WHEN FRONTIER SHOW IS OPEN

EASTLAND, July 2 — The West Texas Chamber of Commerce building in which panels describing the resources of this section will be displayed and where motion pictures of many affiliated towns are to be shown will be ready when the Fort Worth Centennial opens July 18.

Fort Worth is not presenting a 'spite show'. The Centennial is state wide and celebrations are being held all over the state.

"There has always been competition between Fort Worth and Dallas, which is only natural. This will not be exaggerated during the Centennial Fort Worth will urge visitors to see the Dallas show and Dallas is doing the same for the Fort Worth event."

McCarty praised both events, describing Dallas' as educational and Fort Worth's entertaining.

LITTLE JIMMY NEVER KILLED ONLY DREAMED

CHICAGO, Ill — (U.P.) —Jimmy Thompson, 7, was freed today of all suspicion in the killing of his mother,, Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, pretty cabaret girl. At the same time police advanced a new theory to explain Jimmy's fantastic account of the murder.

Police Captain William O'Brien said:

"Jimmy's story is too fantastic and elaborate, especially in connection with his admission that he talked with the man who killed his mother and went back to sleep.

"My candid opinion now is that the boy never woke up at any time during the assault and that the killer never saw the boy. He is a little fellow and the room was dark.

I further believe that Jimmy's story is all a dream. I don't think he saw the killing as he said he did. He has an overdeveloped imagination.

SCHOOL TAXES MUST BE PAID SO SAY OFFICIAL COLLECTORS

Rex Ragan, who is conducting a special campaign for collecting delinquent school taxes, announces that the school board meant what it said when it announced that suits would be brought against those who were able to pay taxes and had not done so.

Both he and W. F. Walker, school secretary, say that many are now paying their taxes but many others are not doing so, and that suits are being instituted against those who fail to arrange for tax payments.

Schools are important factors in the community life and provisions have been provided for their maintenance through taxation, and unless property owners pay those taxes, schools could not carry on. No alternative is left but to sue where taxpayers do not respond, these gentlemen say.

EFFORRTS MADE TO SEPARATE SIAMESE TWINS

MEDFORD, Mass., July 2—(U.P.)— Surgeons prepared at Lawrence Memorial hospital for a rare and exceedingly dangerous operation today to separate Siamese twins, one alive and the other dead.

Not until plans for the operation were revealed, did it become known that the Siamese twins, both girls, had been born at 5:30 yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Diago Fiorenzo.

The larger and first born of the babies weighed seven pounds and died at ten o'clock last night; but today physicians reported the second infant, weighing five pounds, was "very much alive."

Physicians said the babies were back to back attached at the head.

Surgeons hesitated to operate because of the possibility that the infants might have common brain tissue and that the severing operation might prove immediately fatal to the surviving twin. The operation will be performed late this afternoon.

20-INCH RAIN AT LEESVILLE PLAYS HAVOC

By United Press

Receding flood waters revealed additional deaths and disolation Thursday in South Texas area where at least twenty-seven persons lost their lives in a series of cloudbursts and floods Tuesday night and Wednesday.

As communication was re-established over roads still partially covered with water, rescue crews learned that Leesville in the turkey breeding section of Gonzales was wrecked badly by a 20-inch cloudburst and flood Wednesday. All telephone and telegraph lines to the town still were down.

Rescuers were investigating a report that three members of a family living south of Leesville were swept away and drowned.

At the Low Hardys Bluff, south of here, four members of a family were drowned when a freshet from Sandies creek splintered their home and swept them downstream.

A woman who had been suffering from paralysis and was moved to a place of safety during the flood died at Leesville Wednesday apparently of shock.

First word of disolation in Leesville was brought to Gonzales early Thursday. A corps of 300 pipe line and WPA workers was organized to search wreckage in Leesville area for additional bodies.

Most of the houses and half a dozen stores of Leesville, 200 inhabitants, 18 miles west of Gonzales, were wrecked as the flood waters of O'Neal creek whirled ten feet deep through the town.

Flood waters of the Guadalupe river began receding slowly at Gonzales today although still at the 30 foot level.

NOTED WRITER TESTIFIES HE IS FUZZY EYED

CHICAGO, July 2 — (U.P.) — Charles MacArthur, whose hectic career as a newspaper man has become something of a legend, reluctantly admitted on the witness stand today that in 1920 he termed himself a "fuzzy eyed husband — fuzzy eyed from affection."

MacArthur tstified in the trial of a $100,000 alienation of affections brought by his first wife, Carol Frink, Chicago movie critic, against his second wife, Helen Hays of the stage and movies.

Miss Frink's counsel introduced letters written by the newspaper man playright to his first wife in the early days of their marriage.

"Yes that sounds like me in 1920," he admitted a triffle uncomfortably as one letter in which he signed himself "your fuzzy eyed husband—fuzzy eyed from affection," was read.

A Publicity Purifyer

Some time ago a person displeased with another preson tried to get even by putting a supply of bedbugs into the other person's apartment. The offender was arrested and fined. But the judge instructed the newspapers to withhold his name.

"What do you think would be the result," the writer asked a prominent attorney who has had lengthly and intimate experience with folks not particularly keen about conserving the social order, "if judges made a practice of withholding from the public the names of those who get themselves into the toils of the law? Would it strengthen a man's self respect to punish him and not publish him? Would he appreciate the consideration shown him? Would it incline him to take up again the threads of his life and sin no more?"

"It certainly would not!" the attorney burst forth. "It would plunge us into orgies of devilry. It would loose more meaness than even the most pessimistic has any idea exists. There are any number of folks itching to break the law. Their heads are full of things they wish they could do and that they would not hesitate to do but for fear of the story's coming out in the newspaper. They would be willing to take a chance with the courts, for they have money, they can buy talent, they can secure influence; they would feel that there would be quite a chance of getting off with a fine which they could easily pay, or with no fine at all. But the newspapers are what they are afraid of—those glaring headlines and crisp, unvarnished accounts of affairs make them shudder."

There you are. That is one man's opinion and his opinion is worth considerable because of dovetails with the opinions of others who have studied the same subject. England thought it was doing something quite nice and polished and refined when it decided to prohibit the newspapers from publishing the details of divorce proceedings. But the way dissatisfied married couples have flocked to the courts to have their bonds severed since that decision furnishes food for contemplation.

What do you suppose the crooked politicians would do to the public were it not for the newspapers' system of stating bold facts in plain language? Where the political grafter controls the wires that make judges jump and district solicitors solicitous, what has he to fear but the newspapers?

Of course there are some lengths of publicity to which it might seem unnecessary for some newspapers to go. There are certain lurid details of certain degenerate crimes which perhaps might well be kept from the 14-year-old-mind which the average newspaper reader is said to possess. But even that is a moot question. One thing is certain, two of the best agents of purification are light and air, and these elements are fundamentals of the policy of the press.

Why Gulf is the Gas for the Fourth

GROWN-UPS SHOULD CELEBRATE the Fourth too! Drive somewhere. Do things. But to get maximum mileage use a gasoline that's made specially for July weather conditions in this district. If you don't, part of your fuel will blow out the exhaust unburned, wasted. That Good Gulf Gas is "Kept in Step with the Calendar"—its chemical formula is suited to the season. That's why all of it goes to work, none of it goes to waste. Try a tankful!

CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS Relieve Pain
• My message to you is that a straight spine is the fundamental necessity for health. This is so because the process of life depends upon free nerve transmission. The branch off from the spine and if a spinal bone is out of alignment there is pressure on a nerve, and a failure of nerve transmission. As a result ill-health and disease follow.

SUPT. CLUCK TALKS ABOUT CISCO SCHOOLS

Superintendent R. N. Cluck, of the Cisco Public schools, brought the program at the Lions luncheon today when he told of Cisco's record during the past few years that has retained the affiliation of Southern colleges ranking us as one of the 25 leading schools in Texas regardless of size.

Lions T. C. Williams, Bobt. Grantham, H. L. Dyer, Frank Langston, and E. L. Smith gave brief talks on what they received from the Lions Convention here June 16-17. Each agreeing that the advertising to Cisco and the inspiration received of what it means to be a Lion, were the outstanding impressions gathered.

Mr. Cluck, who had no notification needed none since he was full of his subject and profuse with his praise for worthy work done by his teaching staff. He gave many statistics that were revelations to his listeners regarding Cisco's school system. A list of 40 credits does not mean that students must take them all he said, but it fits in with the program of fitting the schedule to the student rather than fitting the student to the course of study.

VIC GILBERT TO REPRESENT ICC IN TEXAS

Victor B. Gilbert, who recently retired from the race for state senator from this district to accept a federal job on interstate highway commission, is to be back in Texas as a representative of his department in the bus and truck division.

Mr. Gilbert dropped his campaign for senator when the I. C. C. appointment was proffered him. He had been a member of the state railroad commission's motor transportation division staff several years, after having served several terms in the state legislature from Eastland and Callahan counties, where he had practiced law.

Mr. Gilbert expressed his appreciation for the support voiced by many persons throughout this senatorial district, but declared he could not afford to turn down the I. C. C. post.

Upon assuming his duties with the federal government agency Gilbert was sent to Erie, Penn., for some special work. He wrote from that city that he would go from there into New York state, thence back to the national capitol and then to his home state to stay.

Pullman Company Great Housekeeper

CHICAGO, June 27 — The Pullman company, operators of sleeping cars on the railroads of America, annually "sleep" on the average of one fifth of the population of the United States, it was revealed today in a letter received by Harry G. Taylor, Chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives.

And with huge overnight sleeping population to care for, the company has become one of the greatest housekeepers in the world, despite the fact that it does not keep house!

The company has nearly four million towels on hand at all times. There are over two million sheets, one and three quarter million pillow slips, five hundred thousand blankets, a similar number of pillows, 250,000 mattresses, and the porter who tends these things has over one hundred fifty thousand white jackets on hand for his own dress.

In all, the linen stock kept on hand by the "world's largest housekeeper" totals close to nine million pieces!

After digesting this figure of nine million pieces of linen always on hand, add to that the figure 2,000,000 which is the annual number of replacements made to keep this huge stock intact.

This stock must be so distributed that each of the five thousand odd Pullman cars in service has the quantity it requires. And as the five thousand cars travel some 3,000,000 miles a day, allowances must be made for picking up this linen stock on the fly from over 100 railway supply depots located through the country.

Each car carries 400 towels in its lockers, 250 sheets, 200 pillow slips, 96 blankets and eight porter's coats. Simple multiplication will show the size of the washings.

The same operation will show why the Pullman company is believed to be the World's Largest Housekeeper, and with reduced rail-Pullman travel costs in effect since the first of June, creating increased rail traffic throughout the country the job becomes greater every day.

Millions Die in Grasshopper War

Grasshoppers by the millions perished in the fight waged against the plague by farmers of nine states, but millions more came on to take their places in the worst infestation since 1932. Here is seen a huge pile of 'hoppers caught on a farm near Emporia, Kan., by means of the "dozer," shown inset. The trap is dragged over fields, open end forward, stirring up the pests. When they try to leap over it, they hit the backboard, drop into a tray of oil, and die. From the Rockies to the Mississippi and from Canada to lower Kansas, the pest army swept forward.

BILL McDONALD SHAKES HANDS LOSES WEIGHT

"I'm taking my campaign to the people", writes W. H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland county, candidate for State Land COmmissioner.

"In some of the towns visited, folks have told me that I'm the first candidate for any state office they've seen this year. Even in a town as big as Texarkana, they informed me that only one aspirant for a state office had visited there.

"Most of the past week was spent in far East Texas, along the Louisiana line—Marshall, San Augustine, Nacogdoches, Lufkin, Jefferson and other towns. Newspapers in each city visited have been generous in the space they've given my candidacy.

"This week is being spent in Port Arthur, Beaumont, Houston and other south Texas points. Splendid support is being pledged in this great petroleum industry section because of my opponent's plank in favor of convict drilling crews—a plan which I have fought ever since the campaign opened."

McDonald said that he had shaken hands with more than 1,000 persons in a single day, that he had worn out two pairs of shoes and lost nine pounds, though conceding that he could stand to lose still more weight.

He reported running into several persons who had had the impression that the Bill McDonald in the race for Land Commissioner was Ratliff's genial electrician and plumber but who promised to vote for the one who is running when informed they were good friends.

Away out at Van Horn, not far from El Paso, McDonald gained a staunch supporter whe nJustice of the Peace Tex Matthews found that the candidate and Wade Swift of Ranger—whom the judge had known years ago in Arizona—were friends. The justice of the peace incidentally metes out justice in his barber shop, which is next door to a beer emporium known as the "Roy Bean Bar."

Texas Topics

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN, July 1 — Senaotr Wilbourn B. Collie of Eastland, in Austin last week, has just made a record as a "two-term" governor of Texas.

In his first term, he presided for one day as chief executive of the state. This week, he was governor for three hours, sa his second term. Senator Collie had the unique distinction of serving as governor, because of his having been president pro tem of the senate when both Gov. James V. Allred and Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul were out of the state on the two occasions.

BROOKS

The same unusual honor in the past 18 months has been accorded Senator Ken Regan of Pecos and Senator John S. Redditt of Lufkin.

On his first service his senate colleagues and other friends gave Senator Collie a junior inauguration banquet here, presided over by Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton.

The state's right to take a chance on getting much larger prices for oil leases, by accepting a cash payment and royalty plus a further share in oil produced, if any, has been sustained by third civil appeals court here.

The court upheld the action of Land Commissioner J. H. Walker in awarding a coastal lease to Tennial Oil corporation, based on its bid to pay a quantity of oil, in addition to the base bonus and rental sum.

In order to declare such a bid the best received by the state, officials must come to the conclusion that a tract will produce at least an estimated amount of oil. If it fails to produce that much, the state will lose part of its compensation but the state stands to win in that it receives offers for substantially large amounts, in case the production is found. The element of guess does not apply in ordinary royalty provisions, though thetotal revenue from a lease in uncertain. Each bidder offers to pay the royalty, usually one-eighth of all oil and gas produced.

West Texans have denounced a picture film of dust storms, credited to their area. The dust storms they pointed out, were general over nearly a quarter of the nation in 1935, and there was no reason to single out Texas for the adverse attention. The fact, as pointed out that the dust storms actually originated in the Middle West, and the obscuring curtain of dirt actually was the soil of Missouri ,Iowa, Minnesota of Nebraska.

T. L. Cooper Tells Why He Asks Votes

To the Citizens of Eastland County:

My friends, you, the voters of Eastland county, have, by your votes and the confidence and trust you have manifested in me, given me the inspiration and courage to seek greater and higher ideals; and in announcing my candidacy for the office of County Judge, subject to the action of the Democratic Primaries, I wish to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation for the honors you have conferred on me in the past.

I was born and reared on a farm near Gorman and have resided in Eastland county more than thirty years. I have lived in several conferent communities and engaged in varicus lines of business, having served you as County Treasurer and Tax Collector, during which time I attended courses of law lectures and devoted considerable time to the study of our laws; not with the intention of becoming a lawyer, but in order to become familiar with county affairs and render you better service.

From this source of study, I secured much valuable information concerning the affairs of our county and the problems that confront your Commissioners' court; which in addition to the knowledge and experience acquired in performing the duties of the offices referred to, I feel fully qualifies me for the office of county judge.

I realize that the dutics and responsibilities of this office are very great, but the years of depression have taught us that the needs and opportunities for rendering service to the people are greater than ever before and my eager and sincere desire to serve you is one of the prime motives that led me to seek this important office.

I shall always feel deeply indebted and duly grateful to you for your favors of the past, and am therefore interested in the welfare of every citizen in the county, and would welcome each and every opportunity to aid and assist you in solving your many vexing problems and where possible, reduce your tax burdens, which I know are very great.

We have spent millions of dollars on our roads and highways which are great assets to our county and which should be maintained, but I believe that we should also spend some to preserve and promote the health of our people. I would like to see Eastland county employ a good trained nurse in order that the boys and girls, who have defects or ailments and whose parents are not financially able to provide the necessary aid and assistance, may have fair and equal opportunities to arrive at manhood and womanhood in the bloom of health, which is most essential in the pursuit of happiness and every success in this life.

I have visited most every farm in Eastland county, many of which are rapidly depreciating in value and productiveness and which could be greatly improved by terracing; and if elected your County Judge, I would favor any feasible plan whereby every farmer could get his land terraced at actual cost by the county.

I believe in a fair, square deal to each and every person, with special favors to none but justice to all.

You are entitled to a fair, honest and efficient administration of the affairs of your county and I pledge you my word and honor that if you elect me, I shall conduct the affairs of this office on that basis.

Sincerely yours,
T. L. COOPER.

"I WOULDN'T RISK MY LIFE ON ANY OTHER TIRE"

Says Louis Meyer — Only three time winner Indianapolis Race 28 33 36

EQUIP YOUR CAR WITH

Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES for Greater Safety!

THERE is a reason why Louis Meyer won the 500-mile Indianapolis race this year—and why he is the only man ever to win this gruelling race three times. He always used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires and never experienced tire trouble of any kind.

Louis Meyer knows tire construction. He also knows that to drive for 500 consecutive miles over this hot brick track, negotiating the dangerous curves 800 times at the record-breaking average speed of 109 miles an hour, requires tires of super strength and greatest blowout protection, as a blowout on any one of the dangerous curves would likely mean instant death. By the Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process every cord in the tires on Louis Meyer's car was soaked and coated with liquid rubber, thereby preventing internal friction and heat. This is the secret of the extra strength and reserve safety built into Firestone Tires.

When you make your holiday trip this week-end, you of course will not drive 109 miles per hour, but at today's higher speeds you do need tires that will give you greatest blowout protection and will stop your car up to 25% quicker. Take no chances! Let us equip your car today with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, the safest tires built. It costs so little to protect lives worth so much!

WANDERING APE HUNTED

SYNTHETIC VOLCANO

CALISTOGA, Cal. —(U.P.)— California is tired of waiting for Mount Lassen and other local and presumably extinct volcanoes to spout. Contracts have been let with a large fireworks company to stage the best imitation possible from the crater of Mount Saint Helena on the Fourth of July.

ONION GIFT IRKS WIFE

LONDON, Ont.—(U.P.)—A London woman, charging her husband with non-support, told a magistrate here that all she had received from her erring spouse during the last months was "60 cents, a box of pansies and some onions." "And he sent me the onions on Mother's Day, too," she said.

CITY SAVES ON FIREWORKS

ORGVILLE, Cal — (U.P.)— There will be no official fireworks at the Fourth of July celebration here. The council decided to use the ordinary $200 appropriation instead for relief work projects that would entitle the city to match an appropriation of $800 of Federal funds.

HAWAII'S IDLE TO DROP

HONOLULU — (U.P.) — Federal relief rolls are expected to be cut substantially in Hawaii this summer when 30,000 men are given employment harvesting, hauling and packing the pineapple crop. Approximately $5,500,000 will be paid out in wages during the three month season.

TOWN MOVES TO RAIL LINE

LAKE CDESSA, Mich. — (U.P.) — Many Michigan towns have boomed and then vanished but few have ever picked up their foundations, moved and then continued to prosper. That, however, is the story of Lake Cdessa, which formerly was Bonanza. It moved from its former location in 1887 to be near a railroad.

Case Workers Talk On Relief Problem

The county's increasing responsibility in relief work was discussed Saturday afternoon at Eastland by case workers of the Eastland County Welfare association with members of commissioners' court.

Henry V. Davenport, president pro-tem of commisisoners court by the absence of Judge Clyde L. Garrett, stated discussion revolved on individuals who will not be eligible for old-age assistance and emergency relief cases.

It was brought out that Texas Relief commission aid expires July 1. Checks for June have already been received.

The county welfare association was formed recently by cooperation of Ranger, Cisco and Eastland city commissions with the county for distribution of federal surplus commodities and clothing.

Passage of the deficiency relief appropriation by congress recently will be an aid to local agencies in the relief problem, it was indicated by commissioners.

Commodities will be distributed from a truck which will make the towns in the district and distribute to individual relief clients, said Miss Elsie Glehn, case worker for Cisco.

Pig Crop Increase Is 1936 Forecast

WASHINGTON, June 29 — (U.P.)— The federal crop reporting forces today forecast an increase of 29 per cent in the 1936 spring pig crops over 1935.

The board also estimated approximately 14 per cent more sows would be farrowed this fall than in the fall of 1935. Total farrowing in 1936 would increase 24 per cent over the 1935 total.

ITINERANT PRINTER ON ROAD AT 102; HOPES TO WORK 10 YRS. MORE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29 —(U.P.)—Col. James B. Handcock, 102, claiming to be the oldest if not the last of the oldtime profession of itinerant printers, has just reached San Francisco after a jump from his last working place at Salt Lake City.

When he has worked all he wants to at San Francisco, he says he will move on to Sawtelle or Yountville an dthen to Seattle, where, true to the old-time ethics of the profession he is always assured of temporary work as a "tramp" printer.

Colonel Handcock's title is as genuine as the bullet in his leg which he has carried ever since Gettysburg.

Born in Scotland, he served for several years with the British army in India. Then he came to the United States and became a journeyman printer on the Boston Transcript. That continued until the Civil War. His military training and patriotism called him into active service then. He fought throughout the war, rising to the rank of colonel.

With the close of the war, Handcock returned to his trade as an itinerant printer.

He seemed always sure of a job and always sure of travel. When modern mechanization produced the automobile, Handcock bought one and continued as an itinerant printer "de luxe."

One of the hardest moments of his life came recently when he fell ill at Salt Lake City, and physicians insisted he would have to quit driving the car. However it has not prevented him from continuing his travels.

He seldom stays in a place more than 10 days, and turns his job over to the next printer who comes along, provided the younger man suits him.

Handcock insists he is known in enough printing offices now all over the United States to be sure of certain work for the remainder of the ten years he has given himself to live.

EIGHTH STREET MAKES GROWTH FOR HIGHWAY

"Watch us grow", is the slogan of Eighth street merchants as they point out the improvements just completed and in process of construction on their street since the highway has been definitely placed on that thoroughfare through Cisco.

They point to the modern new service station of Ed Huestis, completed, and to the improved and modern front of the City Drug company just about complete; the Texas Service station addition and remodeling now going on and lastly to the work of removing the little lunchstand on the Mayhew property, preparatory to the erection of a modern brick Humble service station on that corner, under contract to the Cisco Lumber and Supply Co.

"Rents are going to run us smaller fellows off of this street," said A. S. Nabors this week in speaking of the improvements on Broadway and the probability of the remodeling of other buildings on the street.

During the building boom of a few years ago, a number of buildings were erected on Eighth street, used for a few years, and then abandoned or rented at low rentals. Many need repair and remodeling. The demand for locations on the highway through Cisco will naturally bring these buildings in to prominence as locations and hence their remodeling for firms whose success demand a highway location.

Cities change as do individuals. Change is good. It revives new hopes and aspirations, said Nabors, and it will keep us from settling into a rut that means decay and death.

JULY 4 PICNIC TO DRAW LARGE CROWD, REPORT

Letters to candidates inviting them to speak at the Cisco July 4 celebration have been mailed and commitments from many have already been received accepting the invitation. Minor details for entertainment have been arranged, bathing revue sponsored by local merchants, and old fiddlers contest scheduled.

Plenty of ice water will be available and a fireworks display will form part of the attraction for the night program. A water carnival to include surrounding towns will occupy a part of the day features.

There will be entertainment for all ages, the committee announces, and owing to the varied program and the fact that Cisco has become noted for its large patronage for Fourth of July picnics, a record crowd is expected.

One of the most attractive events of the day will be the political speakings which include Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, Clyde Garrett and Fred O. Jaye, the later opponents of Mr. Blanton in the race for congress.

DONKEYS ON DIAMOND

DALLAS, Texas. — Donkey baseball games will be played at the Texas Centennial Expositon for a week beginning June 30. The donkesy will not play, but their stubbornness makes the game highly difficult for their riders. A Babe Ruth not only has to hit a home run, but persuade his donkey to run around the diamond, which is some thing else again.

JUSTICE IN HIGH GEAR

BUTTE, Mont.—(U.P.)— Municipal Judge Louis A. Buckley believes he has the world's record for brevity of a court session. He convened court, accepted the guilty plea of a man and sentenced him to 30 days; suspended the sentence because the man had a job, and adjourned court—all in one minute.

VACATION RAIL TRAVEL TO SET TEN-YEAR PEAK, ROADS BELIEVE DUE TO LOW FARES AND SPEED

By HENRY D. RENNWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, June 27 —(U.P.)—Railroad passenger traffic men are looking forward this year to what promises to be the heaviest vacation travel of any time within the past decade.

Several factors enter into their optimisite outlook. Chief of these is that the Eastern lines, after a long fight, finally have been forced to reduce passenger fares to a base comparable to that in effect on Western roads since 1933.

Another is the super high-speed trains running west of Chicago. Travelers from the East have the opportunity of going to the West Coast on a two weeks' holiday without spending the major portion of the trip on the train as in days gone by.

Officials believe alarming increases in highway accidents will draw many motorists to train travel because of their safety record. The carriers point proudly to their record of 1935 when millions of passengers were carried without a single fatality.

Three Services Offered

Western vacation fares again are quoted at the level of last season, when three types were offered to the Pacific Coast—tickets good in coaches only, tourists car tickets, and standard sleeping car tickets. A round trip making a complete circle of the coast, for example, starting at Chicago, thence to New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and returning to Chicago, can be made for as little as $52.775. First class tickets for the same trip sell for $86, with Pullman space extra.

Previously, a flat rate of $32.70 was charged between Chicago and New York. Now, however, a coach rate is in effect, making the cost of a ride between the two largest cities in the nation $18.20. First class tickets are $27.25, Pullman fare extra.

Ten years ago the fastest trip by rail from New York to Los Angeles required 92 hours.Today, the same journey can be made in 56 hours, 15 minutes. Most of the saving in time, has been effected on the Western roads with the Sante Fe and the Northwestern-Union Pacific running once-weekly trains between Chicago and Los Angeles in 39 hours, 45 minutes. On June 17 another fast streamliner was put in service over the Northwestern-Union Pacific-Southern Pacific to San Francisco on the same schedule.

Time Cut to Denver

Latest of the vacation time savers is the addition of overnight service between Chicago and Denver on the Burlington route and the Northwestern-Union Pacific. These roads now supply trains making the trip from the Windy City to the Rocky Mountains in 16 hours. The distance on the Murlington is 1,034 miles, and on the Union Pacific 1,048 miles. The average speed of the flyers is 65 miles an hour and 65.5 respectively. By using either of these trains, passengers with a two week holiday, may spend 12 days in the Rocky Mountain region, or 10 days in Yellowstone Park, allowing for the additional days' travel between Denver and the park. And one day each way to th eEeast, and it will be sen that passengers as far away from these playgrounds as New York can now use the railroads and still have over a week in the mountains. The same ratio applies to those who wish to go to the West Coast.

Persons desirous of going to the Southwest also are given the benefit of better than a day's additional pleasure by the re-arrangement of schedules and cutting of time on Southwestern lines running out of St. Louis.

Time Saved to Mexico City

The Illinois Central and the Alton Road offer 4 hour, 55 minute service to St. Louis from Chicago and the Missouri Pacific has slashed hours from its Sunshine Special, which speesd between the Mound City and Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. Twelve hours has been eliminated on the run between St. Louis and Mexico City on this train.

For the benefit of Midwesterners the Northwestern and the Milwaukee road have added "fishermen's specials" sections to the 400 and Hiawatha, sevn hours flyers running between Minneapolis and Chicago. These trains run into the famous Wisconsin lakes region.

With virtually all cars on all trains now air-conditioned with low fares, an dmeals served to coach passengers for as little as 90 cents a day on the Western lines, it appears as if the forecasts of the passenger men for a banner year in railroad travel will be realized during vacation time.

CISCO SCHOOLS RECEIVE ADDITIONAL AFFILIATION

Supt. R. N. Cluck of the Cisco public schools received word Friday night from the state department of the granting of five and one-half extra affiliated credits to Cisco school making a total of 40 credits in all now.

This additonal affiliated credits makes Cisco one of the very best school in Texas for any thing like our size. The wide range of credits allow for much freedom in the selection of courses for the students", said Mr. Cluck. "It is needless to say we are delighted," he continued.

Mr. Cluck emphasizes the importance of transfers being made to Cisco where students expects to attend school from adjoining communities. These transfers must be made during July.

List of additional affiliated credits for Cisco high school obtained this summer.

Uncle Doss Rogers Visits Here and Recalls Early Days and Ambitions

D. L. Rogers of Maypearl, Texas, has been visiting in Cisco for the past week.

He is a former Ciscoan, being called affectionately "Uncle Doss" by his intimate friends, and will be remembered by the old citizens of Cisco.

"Uncle Doss" is more than 85 years old, and is one of the first settlers of Texas, having come to Cisco in 1883, where he moved with his family on the east side. He built a beautiful home where the Owen filling station is now located on East Sixth street.

He was a member of the city council for four years, and was elected by the voters for another term, but refused office.

"Uncle Doss" says his sole purpose in locating in Cisco was because he liked the location and had a purpose in mind of making, or helping to make, Cisco one of the best towns in the whole state. He immediately associated himself with those who had the welfare and beautification of Cisco at heart, and began his bit in earnest.

He was instrumental in building two churches and one parsonage here, and donated more than $1,000 to the town for its improvement. After building these churches and parsonages, his health failed and his activities were turned over to Dr. Owens.

Mrs. Rogers died in 1917. They had three children, all of whom died in childhood. A cousin of Mr. Rogers and his wife died, leaving a tiny baby girl, whom "Uncle Doss" took and reared as his own. Minnie Rogers will be well remembered by the old timers of Cisco as one of Cisco's talented younger set at that time. Miss Minnie Rogers married the Rev. Gardner, a minister, and they have two children. "Uncle Doss" makes his home with them in Maypearl, Texas.

During the time of the cyclone in 1893, he and his wife were alone. He instructed her to lie flat on the floor, which she did. The wind struck the house, blowing her into another room, and taking the roof and walls away, leaving only the floors. Mrs. Rogers was blinded in one eye by flying splinters, and a splinter was also thrust into Mr. Rogers' back. Portions of the splinter were taken out by a physician, but two years later parts of it were still in the flesh.

Mr. Rogers expects to return to Maypearl sometime next week, but still likes Cisco so well he will again come here for a few months' visit later in the summer.

AAA Head to Speak At Short Course

COLLEGE STATION, June 27—H. R. Tolley, newly appointed head of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will be one of the chief speakers on the A. and M. Farmers' Short Course program to be held at College Station July 20 through 24.

Tolley was born on a farm in Howard county, Indiana; graduated from high school at Converse; attended Marion Normal college; received his A. B. degree at Indiana University; and taught school for the first few years after graduating.

In the position of assistant administrator of AAA and director of the unit called the division of program planning, he developed the regional and land-use plans which are now being used in working out the programs under the new Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act.

Tolley, who is director of the Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics at the University of California, has done his AAA work on leave of absence from the Foundation.

He will speak in Gulon Hall at 11 o'clock on Friday, July 24, during the Short Course.

Project House for A & M College Boys

On June 13th a group of boys interested in attending A. & M. college this fall met in the Court House, Eastland, at which time a committee was elected to go to A. & M. College and get information on the school and determine advisability of organizing an Eastland county project house at A. & M. college this coming term.

Following is a report from this committee to the twenty boys who have expressed an interest. Any other boys interested are invited to attend the meeting here Saturday afternoon, une 27th, or report to county agent, Elmo V. Cock, Eastland.

TO ALL PROSEPCTIVE A. & M. COLLEGE STUDENTS:

The committee composed of Wesley Lane, Walker Henry, and Jack Morris made the trip to A. & M. college Monday, June 22, as scheduled and has asked me to make the following report for them:

1. Boys who stay in a project house can expect to go through the first year at A. & M. for total expenses not to exceed $231. As there are two sepaarte semesters of 4 1-2 months each, a boy who could arrange for 100 would be able to at least go through the first semester. The fixed expenses necessary to pay each semester are tuition and medical fees of $30. Additional expenses the first semester would be about $10 for uniform and incidentals and $8 for books. It would not be necessary to buy uniform and books the second term. The other expenses would be project house expenses amounting to $12 per month or less.

1 1-2 miles from College was located and is suitable for a group of 12 to 24 boys. The place is isolated and a good place to live and study with places to keep cow and chickens.

4. Any boy wishing to carry canned meats, vegetables, and fruits will receive credit for all he furnishes his project. This lessens the amount necessary to pay for house expenses.

5. The committee was so well impressed with the school that they are hardly able to realize how an opportunity to attend is available at so small an expense.

6. Every boy planning to attend A. & M. college is urged to immediately write The Registrar, A. & M. College, College Station, Texas, for applications blanks for entering college.

7. All boys interested are urged to attend a meeting in the county court room, Eastland, at 10 a. m. Saturday, June 27th and bring any parents interested. Each boy who wants to enroll with the project group should be ready Saturday to make a definite statement.

Gov. Allred Accepts Opponent Challenge On Social Security

AUSTIN, June 27 — (U.P.) — Governor James Allred will accept the challenge of opponents to make the social security program the chief issue of the State's campaign. Literature has been prepared showing his participation in program. He is expected to follow this up in his opening campaign speech at Waxahachie Tuesday.

Fletcher Fischer, Tyler, an opposing candidate for Governor spoke here tonight critically of the Governor's part in the old age assistance movement. Fischer advocated taxes on natural resources to pay cost of adequate old age pension.

Tom Hunter, Wichita Falls, was first of three opposition candidates to speak at state capitol. Senator Roy Sanderford, Belton, was second. Both found fault with the pension program of present administration. They called administrative costs too high and benefits too restricted.

Give Child Chance To Enjoy Summer

The State Health Department, headed by Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer, which department will participate in the program at Lake Cisco July 4, will speak along the line of Giving the Child a Chance to Enjoy Summer, which is the time of greatest growth because of sunshine and exercise. His department will emphasize the importance of the swimming pool and water events.

"The civic, moral, and educational value of developing the natural talents of each child," Dr. Brown said, "has a far-reaching influence on the health, knowledge, and character of the future men and woman of this state. The child need not be directed in each little act that he performs. Let the summer vacation season be the time when the child has a chance to develop his own individuality. Many an artist, statesman, or competent executive has come from humble surroundings. But looking back of this, we probably will find that this outstanding individual had a chance to develop his natural talent.

"It has been observed that children grow faster during the summer months than at any other time. This is explainable, perhaps, because it is then that they are out in the sunshine and fresh air. Good health is essential to physical and mental growth. The prime factors of good health ar ecare of the body, nourishing food of the right kind, regluar habits, sufficient sleep, rest and play, and a happy state of mind.

"Of course, where the child lives and under what condition, means a great deal as to the type of recreation he will find during the summer. The city child will look forward to trips to the country or hours spent in the play ground and swimming pools. The child living in the country will have many things to do that will keep him in the sunshine most of the time.

"Let us all work toward the end that each child may feel at the end of summer that he has worked out some of his own ideas and dreams, and still developed his physical and mental capacities during these few months of play."

Lobo Band to Have Busy Concert Week

Robert L. Maddox, and his band members report a splendid time at the Ballinger golden anniversary reunion when Maddox visited his old home town with his band that made them sit up and take notice, giving two concerts, playing in the parade, announcing his own July 4 celebration and enjoying the barbecue and double helpings of ice cream served his band after the afternoon concert.

The Lobo band formed in the parade Monday morning and gave a concert at the band stand at the courtyard before noon after which the bands and old settlers, about 1,200 strong, were fed barbecue, stew beans, and all the trimmings, followed by ice cream.

Again at 2:30 the Lobo band gave another concert and Bandmaster Maddox announced the Cisco July 4th. celebration and extended all an invitation to be Cisco's guests that day.

The Ranger Tickville band and Coleman bands were present and gave concerts, also announcing their celebrations.

The Lobo band has accepted an invitation to play at Stamford, July 3, and they will play at Cisco on July 4.

One school bus and the following furnished transportation to Ballinger: Jack Stephenson, Mrs. J. D. Lauderdale, Mrs. J. B. Hunter and Mrs. James Haynie.

Black-Draught Good Laxative

Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headache, dull, tired feeling, biliousness."

"And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for headache. It certainly is good."

When a man says "Black-Draught is good," it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed.

WE—Raise the body completely off the chassis with contact jacks, which jacks contact the frame at the center.

WE—Pull the spring leaves back into their natural curl—we call it "Temporary Re-arching."

WE—Put the proper lubricants where the ACTUAL WEAR takes place—the highest points of friction.

WE—Do thorough lubrication, which means more than pumping grease through high pressure guns INTO OPEN CAVITIES.

WE—Permit 100% lubrication, apply grease while the car is in motion and while the weight of the body is on the MOTORSWAY.

WE—Locate that HIDDEN BODY SQUEAK; we detect impaired parts.

WE—Spread spring leaves to acutally put lubricants between the leaves—not just smear on the outside.

WE—Free frozen shackles without the aid of a "Crow-Bar". The use of a "Crow-Bar" is DANGEROUS.

WE—Examine and refill shock absorbers which can only be done with MOTOSWAY. (Optional, at slight additional cost.)

WE—Lubricate "Knee-Action" cars. See it work, it's perfect while the parts are all in motion—"floating action."

WE—Lubricate the "Enclosed-Springs." How else can you do it? Only with MOTO-SWAY.

WE—CHANGE YOUR OIL IN THE CRANKCASE WITH MOTO-SWAY; all old oils and sediments come out thus keeping repair bills away.

WE—Make old cars ride like new ones, keep new ones riding like NEW—We prove it.

WE—Challenge any other means of lubrication; the old stationary method has become obsolete. The MOTO-SWAY method is the only CORRECT WAY TO LUBRICATE YOUR CAR.

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

"This is certainly a small world after all," said Wheeler Pearce, fireman at the Cisco Daily News plant, when he received a letter from his brother who works in a newspaper office at Bar Harbor, Maine.... Because in that letter was a picture of the Cisco Daily News Plant, with the inscription: "A Live Texas Newspaper in a Live Texas Town".... and under the picture, "The Cisco Daily News"...

Yes, the world is indeed small ....We meet our friends and foes wherever we go.... if they are our friends they may be worth a great deal to us when they tell their friends of the acquaintanceship of the past....

If, on the other hand, they have not carried friendly remembrance of us in their recollections of the past, they might do us untold damage and greatly hinder us in our activities and usefulness, regardless of how much we may have reformed in our ways.... so it is if we have made mistakes and erred, it is best to go back and establish ourselves where the mistakes occurred. So that when we meet old friends of former years they will have a good work for us....

A great lesson of life was taught our young pressman in this little incident....He can't run away from himself or his former life ....He will be known in the far away rock-bound coast of Maine just as the Cisco Daily News had penetrated to that far place.... if his record is good it will be easy to establish himself because he will find some kind of contact there with his former reputation....

PANELS READY WHEN FRONTIER SHOW IS OPEN

EASTLAND, July 2 — The West Texas Chamber of Commerce building in which panels describing the resources of this section will be displayed and where motion pictures of many affiliated towns are to be shown will be ready when the Fort Worth Centennial opens July 18.

This was announced Thursday at Eastland by Milburn McCarty vice president of the WTCC and chairman of the exhibit committee, who conferred this week with D. A. Bandeen of Stamford, manager of the chamber. Bandeen was returning from Stamford to Fort Worth, where he is aiding in operations at the WTCC building.

Explaining that Fort Worth officials have provided approximately $20,000 to the regional chamber for presentation of its resources in a graphic manner to the shows' visitors, McCarty added that it is this building in which souvenirs of the late humorist Will Rogers will be displayed.

"There is positively no competition between the Fort Worth and Dallas Centennial," McCarty stated.

Fort Worth is not presenting a 'spite show'. The Centennial is state wide and celebrations are being held all over the state.

"There has always been competition between Fort Worth and Dallas, which is only natural. This will not be exaggerated during the Centennial Fort Worth will urge visitors to see the Dallas show and Dallas is doing the same for the Fort Worth event."

McCarty praised both events, describing Dallas' as educational and Fort Worth's entertaining.

Judgment Rendered County by Court

Judgment of $138.17 was rendered for Eastland county and the State of Texas against Carrie Waters and husband, D. E. Waters, of Cisco, by 91st district court Tuesday.

The $138.17 judgment represented what the court determined the reasonable taxes for the 1924-35 period.

FARM CROPS SCORCH FROM LACK OF RAIN

WASHINGTON, D. C.— (U.P.) — Nearly a billion acres of the nation's most fertile farm lands, approximately one-third of the country, scorched under a searing sun today.

Located in the 24 states recovering a major portion of the country's agricultural products, the billion acres supply food and clothing for most of the nation and "decent livings" for more than fifteen million persons who live on nearly four million farms in the area.

Government officials, heartened by the reports of scattered rain in a limited section of the drouth area hastened plans to relieve distressed farmers.

LITTLE JIMMY NEVER KILLED ONLY DREAMED

CHICAGO, Ill — (U.P.) —Jimmy Thompson, 7, was freed today of all suspicion in the killing of his mother., Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, pretty cabaret girl. At the same time police advanced a new theory to explain Jimmy's fantastic account of the murder.

Police Captain William O'Brien said:

"Jimmy's story is too fantastic and elaborate, especially in connection with his admission that he talked with the man who killed his mother and went back to sleep.

"My candid opinion now is that the boy never woke up at any time during the assault and that the killer never saw the boy. He is a little fellow and the room was dark.

I further believe that Jimmy's story is all a dream. I don't think he saw the killing as he said he did. He has an overdeveloped imagination.

MEDFORD, Mass., July 2—(U.P.)— Surgeons prepared at Lawrence Memorial hospital for a rare and exceedingly dangerous operation today to separate Siamese twins, one alive and the other dead.

Not until plans for the operation were revealed, did it become known that the Siamese twins, both girls, had been born at 5:30 yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Diago Fiorenzo.

The larger and first born of the babies weighed seven pounds and died at ten o'clock last night; but today physicians reported the second infant, weighing five pounds, was "very much alive."

Physicians said the babies were back to back attached at the head.

Surgeons hesitated to operate because of the possibility that the infants might have common brain tissue and that the severing operation might prove immediately fatal to the surviving twin. The operation will be performed late this afternoon.

20-INCH RAIN AT LEESVILLE PLAYS HAVOC

By United Press

Receding flood waters revealed additional deaths and disolation Thursday in South Texas area where at least twenty-seven persons lost their lives in a series of cloudbursts and floods Tuesday night and Wednesday.

As communication was re-established over roads still partially covered with water, rescue crews learned that Leesville in the turkey breeding section of Gonzales was wrecked badly by a 20-inch cloudburst and flood Wednesday. All telephone and telegraph lines to the town still were down.

Rescuers were investigating a report that three members of a family living south of Leesville were swept away and drowned.

At the Low Hardys Bluff, south of here, four members of a family were drowned when a freshet from Sandies creek splintered their home and swept them downstream.

A woman who had been suffering from paralysis and was moved to a place of safety during the flood died at Leesville Wednesday apparently of shock.

First word of disolation in Leesville was brought to Gonzales early Thursday. A corps of 300 pipe line and WPA workers was organized to search wreckage in Leesville area for additional bodies.

Most of the houses and half a dozen stores of Leesville, 200 inhabitants, 18 miles west of Gonzales, were wrecked as the flood waters of O'Neal creek whirled ten feet deep through the town.

Flood waters of the Guadalupe river began receding slowly at Gonzales today although still at the 30 foot level.

CRUELTY COSTS FOUR YEARS

COLDWATER, Mich. — (U.P.) — Pulling out a cow's tail cost Geo. Washington, 33-year-old negro, a four-year reformatory sentence. Washington was arranged before Circuit Judge Russell McPeek on a charge of cruelty to animals.

NOTED WRITER TESTIFIES HE IS FUZZY EYED

CHICAGO, July 2 — (U.P.) — Charles MacArthur, whose hectic career as a newspaper man has become something of a legend, reluctantly admitted on the witness stand today that in 1920 he termed himself a "fuzzy eyed husband — fuzzy eyed from affection."

MacArthur tstified in the trial of a $100,000 alienation of affections brought by his first wife, Carol Frink, Chicago movie critic, against his second wife, Helen Hays of the stage and movies.

Miss Frink's counsel introduced letters written by the newspaper man playright to his first wife in the early days of their marriage:

"Yes that sounds like me in 1920," he admitted a triffle uncomfortably as one letter in which he signed himself "your fuzzy eyed husband—fuzzy eyed from affection," was read.

SCHOOL TAXES MUST BE PAID SO SAY OFFICIAL COLLECTORS

Rex Ragan, who is conducting a special campaign for collecting delinquent school taxes, announces that the school board meant what it said when it announced that suits would be brought against those who were able to pay taxes and had not done so.

Both he and W. F. Walker, school secretary, say that many are now paying their taxes but many others are not doing so, and that suits are being instituted against those who fail to arrange for tax payments.

Schools are important factors in the community life and provisions have been provided for their maintenance through taxation, and unless property owners pay those taxes, schools could not carry on. No alternative is left but to sue where taxpayers do not respond, these gentlemen say.

A Publicity Purifyer

Some time ago a person displeased with another preson tried to get even by putting a supply of bedbugs into the other person's apartment. The offender was arrested and fined. But the judge instructed the newspapers to withhold his name.

"What do you think would be the result," the writer asked a prominent attorney who has had lengthly and intimate experience with folks not particularly keen about conserving the social order, "if judges made a practice of withholding from the public the names of those who get themselves into the toils of the law? Would it strengthen a man's self respect to punish him and not publish him? Would he appreciate the consideration shown him? Would it incline him to take up again the threads of his life and sin no more?"

"It certainly would not!" the attorney burst forth. "It would plunge us into orgies of devilry. It would loose more meaness than even the most pessimistic has any idea exists. There are any number of folks itching to break the law. Their heads are full of things they wish they could do and that they would not hesitate to do but for fear of the story's coming out in the newspaper. They would be willing to take a chance with the courts, for they have money, they can buy talent, they can secure influence; they would feel that there would be quite a chance of getting off with a fine which they could easily pay, or with no fine at all. But the newspapers are what they are afraid of—those glaring headlines and crisp, unvarnished accounts of affairs make them shudder."

There you are. That is one man's opinion and his opinion is worth considerable because of dovetails with the opinions of others who have studied the same subject. England thought it was doing something quite nice and polished and refined when it decided to prohibit the newspapers from publishing the details of divorce proceedings. But the way dissatisfied married couples have flocked to the courts to have their bonds severed since that decision furnishes food for contemplation.

What do you suppose the to the public were it not for t ing bold facts in plain lang grafter controls the wires that make judges jump and district solicitors solicitous, what has he to fear but the newspapers?

Of course there are some lengths of publicity to which it might seem unnecessary for some newspapers to go. There are certain lurid details of certain degenerate crimes which perhaps might well be kept from the 14-year-old-mind which the average newspaper reader is said to possess. But even that is a moot question. One thing is certain, two of the best agents of purification are light and air, and these elements are fundamentals of the policy of the press.

Youth 21 May Vote Without Exemption

Persons who becomes 21 years of age after Feb. 1 and prior to elections will be eligible to vote even though they did not obtain an exemption certificate before Feb. 1. according to George H. Sheppard, comptroller of public accounts, who sent the county tax assessor an interpretation of a conference opinion by Attorney General McCraw.

Chief Deputy Clyde S. Karkalits pointed out the following part of Sheppard's letter which applied to this county:

"Young persons not residing in a city of 10,000 inhabitants or more, and who become 21 years of age prior to Feb. 1, 1936, should have obtained an exemption certificate prior to that date in orde, to vote.

"If they have become 21 years of age since Feb. 1st, or will become 21 years of age prior to elections during the year in which they offer to vote they will be entitled to vote even though they did not obtain an exemption certificate prior to Feb. 1."

SWAY SQUEAKS AWAY WITH Moto-Sway
LUBRICATION UNDER ACTUAL DRIVING CONDITIONS
.... DRIVE IN---SEE IT WORK ....

WE—Raise the body completely off the chassis with contact jacks, which jacks contact the frame at the center.

WE—Pull the spring leaves back into their natural curl—we call it "Temporary Re-arching."

WE—Put the proper lubricants where the ACTUAL WEAR takes place—the highest points of friction.

WE—Do thorough lubrication, which means more than pumping grease through high pressure guns INTO OPEN CAVITIES.

WE—Permit 100% lubrication, apply grease while the car is in motion and while the weight of the body is on the MOTORSWAY.

WE—Locate that HIDDEN BODY SQUEAK; we detect impaired parts.

WE—Spread spring leaves to acutally put lubricants between the leaves—not just smear on the outside.

WE—Free frozen shackles without the aid of a "Crow-Bar". The use of a "Crow-Bar" is DANGEROUS.

WE—Examine and refill shock absorbers which can only be done with MOTOSWAY. (Optional, at slight additional cost.)

WE—Lubricate "Knee-Action" cars. See it work, it's perfect while the parts are all in motion—"floating action."

WE—Lubricate the "Enclosed-Springs." How else can you do it? Only with MOTO-SWAY.

WE—CHANGE YOUR OIL IN THE CRANKCASE WITH MOTO-SWAY; all old oils and sediments come out thus keeping repair bills away.

WE—Make old cars ride like new ones, keep new ones riding like NEW—We prove it.

WE—Challenge any other means of lubrication; the old stationary method has become obsolete. The MOTO-SWAY method is the only CORRECT WAY TO LUBRICATE YOUR CAR.

We are Giving you this Guaranteed and Certified Moto-Sway greasing and lubricating service at NO EXTRA COST.

BILL McDONALD SHAKES HANDS LOSES WEIGHT

"I'm taking my campaign to the people", writes W. H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland county, candidate for State Land COmmissioner.

"In some of the towns visited, folks have told me that I'm the first candidate for any state office they've seen this year. Even in a town as big as Texarkana, they informed me that only one aspirant for a state office had visited there.

"Most of the past week was spent in far East Texas, along the Louisiana line—Marshall, San Augustine, Nacogdoches, Lufkin, Jefferson and other towns. Newspapers in each city visited have been generous in the space they've gievn to my candidacy.

"This week is being spent in Port Arthur, Beaumont, Houston and other south Texas points. Splendid support is being pledged in this great petroleum industry section because of my opponent's plank in favor of convict drilling crews—a plan which I have fought ever since the campaign opened."

McDonald said that he had shaken hands with more than 1,000 persons in a single day, that he had worn out two pairs of shoes and lost nine pounds, though conceding that he could stand to lose still more weight.

He reported running into several persons who had had the impression that the Bill McDonald in the race for Land Commissioner was Ranger's genial electrician and plumber but who promised to vote for the one who is running when informed they were good friends.

Away out at Van Horn, not far from El Paso, McDonald gained a staunch supporter whe nJustice of the Peace Tex Matthews found that the candidate and Wade Swift of Ranger—whom the judge had known years ago in Arizona—were friends. The justice of the peace incidentally metes out justice in his barber shop, which is next door to a beer emporium known as the "Roy Bean Bar."

AUSTIN, July 1 — Senaotr Wilbourn B. Collie of Eastland, in Austin last week, has just made a record as a "two-term" governor of Texas.

In his first term, he presided for one day as chief executive of the state. This week, he was governor for three hours, sa his second term. Senator Collie had the unique distinction of serving as governor, because of his having been president pro tem of the senate when both Gov. James V. Allred and Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul were out of the state on the two occasions.

BROOKS

The same unusual honor in the past 18 months has been accorded Senator Ken Regan of Pecos and Senator John S. Redditt of Lufkin.

On his first service his senate colleagues and other friends gave Senator Collie a junior inauguration banquet here, presided over by Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton.

The state's right to take a chance on getting much larger prices for oil leases, by accepting a cash payment and royalty plus a further share in oil produced, if any, has been sustained by third civil appeals court here.

The court upheld the action of Land Commissioner J. H. Walker in awarding a coastal lease to Centennial Oil corporation, based on its bid to pay a quantity of oil, in addition to the base bonus and rental sum.

In order to declare such a bid the best received by the state, officials must come to the conclusion that a tract will produce at least an estimated amount of oil. If it fails to produce that much, the state will lose part of its compensation but the state stands to win in that it receives offers for substantially large amounts, in case the production is found. The element of guess does not apply in ordinary royalty provisions, though thetotal revenue from a lease in uncertain. Each bidder offers to pay the royalty, usually one-eighth of all oil and gas produced.

West Texans have denounced a picture film of dust storms, credited to their area. The dust storms they pointed out, were general over nearly a quarter of the nation in 1935, and there was no reason to single out Texas for the adverse attention. The fact, as pointed out that the dust storms actually originated in the Middle West, and the obscuring curtain of dirt actually was the soil of Missouri ,Iowa, Minnesota of Nebraska.

HOUSE OF SHADOWS

CHAPTER I

IT was a week after her father's funeral. Claire Fosdick stood in the luxuriously furnished library and looked about her with a shudder. Almost as though she half expected some menacing horror to reach out from the familiar shadows and clutch her. Then she jerked herself together with an effort. Over there, by his favorite lamp, his body had been found, slumped forward in an unnatural, twisted position. She could see it yet, though she had tried to forget. The death certificate had said heart trouble, and there had been no autopsy. Nick Baum had managed that for her. But always in the back of Claire's mind would be the question—why had her father died so unexpectedly? He had seemed as well as usual when she bade him goodnight and left him chatting with Nick. And Nick had said that when he left at 11 o'clock Mr. Fosdick walked to the door with him and seemed in the best of spirits. Yet he was gone, and now Claire was alone with the wreck of the family fortune. This city house and the mountain property were about all that was left, and she knew only too well that Nick Baum had claims on both. Her father's words came back to her.

"We must pay Nick by this time next month, Daughter."

"But, Daddy," she had exclaimed. "Surely Nick will—"

"You don't understand, child. Nick has been more than lenient. I couldn't ask him to extend the time again. We've got to find the money somehow."

But how? Wearily Claire inventoried again her chances of supplying a large sum of money in a limited space of time. Trained for nothing but a society life, lacking money that seemed as far distant as the snow-capped mountain peaks, what could she do?

As though in answer to her problem, the door behind her opened and a tall young man came eagerly toward her and took both her cold hands in his.

"Nick! I—I didn't know you were here. I didn't hear you come in."

"Because I came through the garden. Cut across from the garage. The maid opened the French window for me. Are you glad to see me, Claire?"

He kissed her fingers as he spoke, then stood looking down at her, his flashing dark eyes admiring every line of her. "You're prettier every time I see you."

* * *

THE girl freed her hands with an uneasy little gesture. "Of course I'm always glad to see you, Nick," she answered. "You've been awfully good to me. I don't know how I could have gone through everything without you, but—"

She jarred back against a small table, crashing a delicate Dresden figure to the floor. It lay shattered into bits. She gazed down at it dazedly. It was like her own world—the world that had always been so beautiful and safe. Smashed into broken pieces.

"But what, Claire?" he persisted. "You know I'm crazy about you and want you to marry me. Why won't you say you will? You're the loveliest girl I've ever known—and the coldest. Can't you like me a little, dearest?"

Claire looked regretfully at him. Certainly he seemed everything a girl could desire, as he stood there pleading with her. Handsome, young and ardent. Yes, she was a fool, yet—

"I do like you a lot, Nick." Her voice was sincere. "I like you but—oh, don't ask me now. I don't know—I'm—I'm so uncertain about everything. I'm going up to the mountain house for a few days. Maybe when I come back—maybe later, Nick, dear—please!"

With a choked sob she turned and ran out into the hall and upstairs to her own room. Crumpling in a heap before her dressing table, she pressed small, clenched fists to her cheeks. "I can't—I just can't! I must find some other way out." The words ended in tears.

"Claire, honey!" An elderly maid's startled face appeared around an open closet door. She hurried to the girl and put her arms about her.

"Tell Hannah all about it now, child." She smoothed Claire's rumpled curls as she had done years before when she was nurse to the motherless little girl. "Anyone been pesterin' you?" She poked her cap to a belligerent angle, her seamed, weather-beaten face glaring defiance.

Claire laughed shakily. Dra[w]ing Hannah's head down, [k]issed her. "Don't frown [f]iercely, old dear. Anyone w[o] think you were still fight[i]ng Apaches out on your ranch in [t]he early days. Some scrapper [y]ou aren't you?"

* * *

HANNAH nodded. "You sai[d] honey. I am when any[-]goes tryin' to drop a loop over [m]e if you ain't willin'. Go on [a]nd tell me. Is it that Baum fe[l]low again?"

"Yes." Claire answered slo[w]ly. "He's awfully nice and he l[o]ves me, but—"

"But you don't want to m[a]rry him." Hannah finished the [s]entence for her. "Well then, [y]ou don't have to."

"But I know Daddy hope[d] would, Hannah. Nick was [v]ery close to him, had even loaned [h]im a lot of money, and we can't [p]ay it back."

"Listen, child," Hannah b[e]gan in. "Your father was the [f]inest man in the world, bar none, [a]nd just because he was so darn g[o]od himself, he was a mere babe [i]n arms when it came to some of [t]he things. Now you've got your [o]wn life to live, and he's gone. It's [a] bosh bein' tied up by dead fol[k]s' wishes. Nobody oughter try [t]o run the affairs o' the living fr[o]m the grave. How about tryin' [t]o unearth that blasted jewel y[o]ur Uncle Lyman said he hid in [t]he house in the mountains? Would [t]hat help, Claire?"

"I was just thinking of t[h]e jewel, Hannah." Claire looked up [e]agerly. "Oh, if I could only find [i]t! But we've gone over every [i]nch of the place hundreds of times. Daddy had about decided it was just Uncle Lyman's delirium when he was dying. You know he spoke [o]f it again, but couldn't tell [w]here it was. But if there really [w]as a jewel, and I could find it, [e]verything would be all right. I [c]ould pay Nick and—"

"Then your father didn't know [w]hether he got all your uncle's [j]ewels or not?"

"We've never been sure, Hannah. You know Uncle had so many wonderful stones. He was an authority on such things and bought them all over the world on his various travels. But he was always boasting about his 'Jewels of the Rockies,' as he called it. He spoke of it again as he lay dying. Said it was hidden in the house, and that we must never let it place go out of our possession. But after we looked and looked without finding anything, I weren't sure whether it was just a fancy or not. You know Uncle was dreadfully eccentric."

(To Be Continued)

Illustrated by E. H. Gunder.

"I was just thinking of the jewel, Hannah," Claire said. "Oh, if I could only find it! Everything would be all right."

CHAPTER IA

HANNAH shrugged. "Plain locoed, if you ask me. That he could put up with that trifling Susie Spratt for housekeeper proves enough. Then look what he called his outlandish house—the House of Long Shadows. Nobody but a crack-wit would ever put such a brand on that kind of a place. All carved walnut woodwork to catch the dust, and those gosh-awful high ceilings! That house wouldn't be much of a loss, if you did have to let it go. And I don't envy Eb Spratt and his sister, Susie, tryin' to take care of it for you, either."

"But it was the pride of Uncle Lyman's heart, Hannah. He spent a small fortune copying the eastern mansions he'd known. He thought nothing was too grand to build in his beloved mountains. That house and his jewels were the passions of his life."

"Yep, the Fosdicks always were up in the air about some fool thing. Your Uncle Lyman was the worst o' the mess, but even your own father was a dreamer. Rest his soul. Lucky for you that your mother was a real western woman with her feet on the ground and her head full of horse sense. Or you might be goin' 'round, too, with your ideas in the clouds. What you goin' to do now?"

Claire had jumped to her feet as though she had come to a sudden decision. "I'm going up to the House of Long Shadows right now, and start looking again. If there's anything hidden there I'm going to find it. I've got to! Help me into my riding clothes—there's a dear!"

"But, Claire, it's past 9 o'clock. You can't go galavantin' up to the mountains alone at this time o' night. You wouldn't get there for hours. It's 50 miles from here."

"Nonsense, Hannah. Remember, I'm going in my car. Not on horseback. I'll be a heap sight safer out on the road than here, wasting precious time. Besides, the Spratt family is there. They'll take almost as good care of me as you would."

Still Hannah shook her head doubtfully. "Well, if you're set to go—but this Nick Baum. Does he know about this—this jewel or whatever it is, Claire?"

"I don't know," the girl replied. "We haven't known Nick so very long, you know, but Daddy was awfully fond of him, so he might have mentioned it."

"Um." Hannah reluctantly held out Claire's coat. "I'm tellin' you, I got a hunch about all this that I ain't likin' any too well."

"Hannah! Your hunches—you're worse than an Indian medicine man. Go on to bed and forget it. I'll send you word tomorrow that I'm all okay. Probably Eb Spratt'll be coming down or can send the man." Claire pulled on a pair of driving gloves. "Remember you taught me yourself never to be afraid of anything. Besides, what on earth could happen in such a peaceful old place as the mountain house? It's an event if even a peddler finds his way up there from the village." She dropped a light kiss on Hannah's nose, and without waiting for any more objections went downstairs.

AS she passed the library she halted a minute and softly closed the door which was half open. She had been pretty hard on Nick. And he had done so much. Why couldn't she love him as she had always hoped she would love the man she married?

She let herself out into the garden and hurried to the garage. Here she got her own little car and soon was threading her way through the traffic of the city, headed for the road that ran straight as an arrow toward the mountains.

The way was too familiar to make the trip at night seem an undertaking. Hadn't she driven it more times than she could remember when she and her father had gone to the House of Long Shadows to spend the week-end? She settled down to a steady pace which would bring her to her destination long before midnight.

After half an hour the houses began to thin out and small dry farms took the place of suburbs. The cool evening air of the open country blew against her cheeks. As always, a tingle of anticipation ran through her when she entered the foothills, with the high peaks hunched dimly behind them.

Illustrated by E. H. Gunder.

In the uncertain light of a half moon the House of Shadows loomed gloomily against the dark background of the mountain.

The mountains invariably h[e]ld that attraction for Claire, no m[a]tter how familiar she was w[i]th them. For her, nothing could e[v]er take the place of their changing moods. All the mad, colorful l[o]re of the hardy seekers for gold, their tragedies and romances, s[u]ccesses and failures, seemed e[m]bodied in the towering snow-capped crags that jagged against the skyline.

That was why going to the [o]ld house in the mountains had [a]lways been an adventure to [t]he girl. The House of Long Sha[d]ows—the very name her uncle h[a]d given his home made it a house of dreams. Here she could live again in imagination, the exciting days when the little mining town near by had been a blaze of hectic life. When fortunes were won or lost in a night and the haunting quest for gold turned the heads of the steadiest of men.

* * *

NOW the road began to wind sharply upward, coiling about the rugged side of the mountain. Higher and higher went the car, each succeeding loop in the road lifting it above the plains below. Soon the city became a miniature twinkling fairyland, its streets outlined in rows of tiny points of light. Claire never tired of this picture. She threw back her head and filled her lungs with the bracing air, a sense of exhilaration sweeping through her.

Unconsciously she pressed on the accelerator. The car leaped forward with a sudden spurt of speed that sent the gravel flying down the steep side of the mountain. Instantly she jerked back from the danger of taking the curves too fast. She knew only too well how narrow the strip of road was that lay between her and a hurtling death into the dark depths below.

Now she was coming to the narrow, twisting road that led from the main highway up to the House of Long Shadows. As she turned into it, another car passed behind her, going along the main road. In just a few minutes she would be at her destination. She sat back in the seat and relaxed her grip on the wheel.

There was a sudden grinding crash as the car hit a huge log that lay directly across the narrow road. Instantly the lights went out, and splintered glass showered about her. The machine lurched tipsily and stopped. Claire fell limply forward over the steering wheel.

Quick footsteps sounded dimly behind her and the last thing she knew she was being lifted in a man's arms.

"This week is being spent in Port Arthur, Beaumont, Houston and other south Texas points. Splendid support is being pledged in this great petroleum industry section because of my opponent's plank in favor of convict drilling crews—a plan which I have fought ever since the campaign opened."

McDonald said that he had shaken hands with more than 1,000 persons in a single day, that he had worn out two pairs of shoes and lost nine pounds, though conceding that he could stand to lose still more weight.

He reported running into several persons who had had the impression that the Bill McDonald in the race for Land Commissioner was Ranger's genial electrician and plumber but who promised to vote for the one who is running when informed they were good friends.

Away out at Van Horn, not far from El Paso, McDonald gained a staunch supporter whe nJustice of the Peace Tex Matthews found that the candidate and Wade Swift of Ranger—whom the judge had known years ago in Arizona—were friends. The justice of the peace incidentally metes out justice in his barber shop, which is next door to a beer emporium known as the "Roy Bean Bar."

AUSTIN, July 1 — Senaotr Wilbourn B. Collie of Eastland, in Austin last week, has just made a record as a "two-term" governor of Texas.

In his first term, he presided for one day as chief executive of the state. This week, he was governor for three hours, sa his second term. Senator Collie had the unique distinction of serving as governor, because of his having been president pro tem of the senate when both Gov. James V. Allred and Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul were out of the state on the two occasions.

BROOKS

The same unusual honor in the past 18 months has been accorded Senator Ken Regan of Pecos and Senator John S. Redditt of Lufkin.

On his first service his senate colleagues and other friends gave Senator Collie a junior inauguration banquet here, presided over by Senator Roy Sanderford of Belton.

The state's right to take a chance on getting much larger prices for oil leases, by accepting a cash payment and royalty plus a further share in oil produced, if any, has been sustained by third civil appeals court here.

The court upheld the action of Land Commissioner J. H. Walker in awarding a coastal lease to Centennial Oil corporation, based on its bid to pay a quantity of oil, in addition to the base bonus and rental sum.

In order to declare such a bid the best received by the state, officials must come to the conclusion that a tract will produce at least an estimated amount of oil. If it fails to produce that much, the state will lose part of its compensation but the state stands to win in that it receives offers for substantially large amounts, in case the production is found. The element of guess does not apply in ordinary royalty provisions, though thetotal revenue from a lease in uncertain. Each bidder offers to pay the royalty, usually one-eighth of all oil and gas produced.

West Texans have denounced a picture film of dust storms, credited to their area. The dust storms they pointed out, were general over nearly a quarter of the nation in 1935, and there was no reason to single out Texas for the adverse attention. The fact, as pointed out that the dust storms actually originated in the Middle West, and the obscuring curtain of dirt actually was the soil of Missouri ,Iowa, Minnesota of Nebraska.

CHAPTER 1

IT was a week after her father's funeral. Claire Fosdick stood in the luxuriously furnished library and looked about her with a shudder. Almost as though she half expected some menacing horror to reach out from the familiar shadows and clutch her. Then she jerked herself together with an effort. Over there, by his favorite lamp, his body had been found, slumped forward in an unnatural, twisted position. She could see it yet, though she had tried to forget. The death certificate had said heart trouble, and there had been no autopsy. Nick Baum had managed that for her. But always in the back of Claire's mind would be the question—why had her father died so unexpectedly? He had seemed as well as usual when she bade him goodnight and left him chatting with Nick. And Nick had said that when he left at 11 o'clock Mr. Fosdick walked to the door with him and seemed in the best of spirits. Yet he was gone, and now Claire was alone with the wreck of the family fortune. This city house and the mountain property were about all that was left, and she knew only too well that Nick Baum had claims on both. Her father's words came back to her.

"We must pay Nick by this time next month, Daughter."

"But, Daddy," she had exclaimed. "Surely Nick will—"

"You don't understand, child. Nick has been more than lenient. I couldn't ask him to extend the time again. We've got to find the money somehow."

But how? Wearily Claire inventoried again her chances of supplying a large sum of money in a limited space of time. Trained for nothing but a society life, lacking money that seemed as far distant as the snow-capped mountain peaks, what could she do?

As though in answer to her problem, the door behind her opened and a tall young man came eagerly toward her and took both her cold hands in his.

"Nick! I—I didn't know you were here. I didn't hear you come in."

"Because I came through the garden. Cut across from the garage. The maid opened the French window for me. Are you glad to see me, Claire?"

He kissed her fingers as he spoke, then stood looking down at her, his flashing dark eyes admiring every line of her. "You're prettier every time I see you."

* * *

THE girl freed her hands with an uneasy little gesture. "Of course I'm always glad to see you, Nick," she answered. "You've been awfully good to me. I don't know how I could have gone through everything without you, but—"

She jarred back against a small table, crashing a delicate Dresden figure to the floor. It lay shattered into bits. She gazed down at it dazedly. It was like her own world—the world that had always been so beautiful and safe. Smashed into broken pieces.

"But what, Claire?" he persisted. "You know I'm crazy about you and want you to marry me. Why won't you say you will? You're the loveliest girl I've ever known—and the coldest. Can't you like me a little, dearest?"

Claire looked regretfully at him. Certainly he seemed everything a girl could desire, as he stood there pleading with her. Handsome, young and ardent. Yes, she was a fool, yet—

"I do like you a lot, Nick." Her voice was sincere. "I like you but—oh, don't ask me now. I don't know—I'm—I'm so uncertain about everything. I'm going up to the mountain house for a few days. Maybe when I come back—maybe later, Nick, dear—please!"

With a choked sob she turned and ran out into the hall and upstairs to her own room. Crumpling in a heap before her dressing table, she pressed small, clenched fists to her cheeks. "I can't—I just can't! I must find some other way out." The words ended in tears.

"Claire, honey!" An elderly maid's startled face appeared around an open closet door. She hurried to the girl and put her arms about her.

"Tell Hannah all about it now, child." She smoothed Claire's rumpled curls as she had done years before when she was nurse to the motherless little girl. "Anyone been pesterin' you?" She poked her cap to a belligerent angle, her seamed, weather-beaten face glaring defiance.

Claire laughed shakily. Dr... ing Hannah's head down, ... kissed her. "Don't frown ... fiercely, old dear. Anyone w... think you were still fight... Apaches out on your ranch in ... early days. Some scrapper ... aren't you?"

HANNAH nodded. "You sai... honey. I am when any... goes tryin' to drop a loop over ... if you ain't willin'. Go on ... tell me. Is it that Baum fe... again?"

"Yes." Claire answered slo... "He's awfully nice and he l... me, but—"

"But you don't want to m... him." Hannah finished the ... tence for her. "Well then, ... don't have to."

"But I know Daddy hope... would, Hannah. Nick was ... close to him, had even loaned ... a lot of money, and we can't ... it back."

"Listen, child," Hannah b... in. "Your father was the ... man in the world, bar none, ... just because he was so darn ... himself, he was a mere babe ... arms when it came to some o... things. "I was just thinking of t... Hannah." Claire looked up ... gerly. "Oh, if I could only find ... But we've gone over every ... of the place hundreds of ti... "Then your father didn't k... whether he got all your un... jewels or not?"

"I was just thinking of the jewel, Hannah," Claire said. "Oh, if I could only find it! Everything would be all right."

CHAPTER 1A

HANNAH shrugged. "Plain loco-ed, if you ask me. That he could put up with that trifling Susie Spratt for housekeeper proves enough. Then look what he called his outlandish house—the House of Long Shadows. Nobody but a crack-wit would ever put such a brand on that kind of a place. All carved walnut woodwork to catch the dust, and those gosh-awful high ceilings! That house wouldn't be much of a loss, if you did have to let it go. And I don't envy Eb Spratt and his sister, Susie, tryin' to take care of it for you, either."

"But it was the pride of Uncle Lyman's heart, Hannah. He spent a small fortune copying the eastern mansions he'd known. He thought nothing was too grand to build in his beloved mountains. That house and his jewels were the passions of his life."

"Yep, the Fosdicks always were up in the air about some fool thing. Your Uncle Lyman was the worst o' the mess, but even your own father was a dreamer. Rest his soul. Lucky for you that your mother was a real western woman with her feet on the ground and her head full of horse sense. Or you might be goin' 'round, too, with your ideas in the clouds. What you goin' to do now?"

Claire had jumped to her feet as though she had come to a sudden decision. "I'm going up to the House of Long Shadows right now, and start looking again. If there's anything hidden there I'm going to find it. I've got to! Help me into my riding clothes—there's a dear!"

"But, Claire, it's past 9 o'clock. You can't go galavantin' up to the mountains alone at this time o' night. You wouldn't get there for hours. It's 50 miles from here."

"Nonsense, Hannah. Remember, I'm going in my car. Not on horseback. I'll be a heap sight safer out on the road than here, wasting precious time. Besides, the Spratt family is there. They'll take almost as good care of me as you would."

Still Hannah shook her head doubtfully. "Well, if you're set to go—but this Nick Baum. Does he know about this—this jewel or whatever it is, Claire?"

"I don't know," the girl replied. "We haven't known Nick so very long, you know, but Daddy was awfully fond of him, so he might have mentioned it."

"Um." Hannah reluctantly held out Claire's coat. "I'm tellin' you, I got a hunch about all this that I ain't likin' any too well."

"Hannah! Your hunches—you're worse than an Indian medicine man. Go on to bed and forget it. I'll send you word tomorrow that I'm all okay. Probably Eb Spratt'll be coming down or can send the man." Claire pulled on a pair of driving gloves. "Remember you taught me yourself never to be afraid of anything. Besides, what on earth could happen in such a peaceful old place as the mountain house? It's an event if even a peddler finds his way up there from the village." She dropped a light kiss on Hannah's nose, and without waiting for any more objections went downstairs.

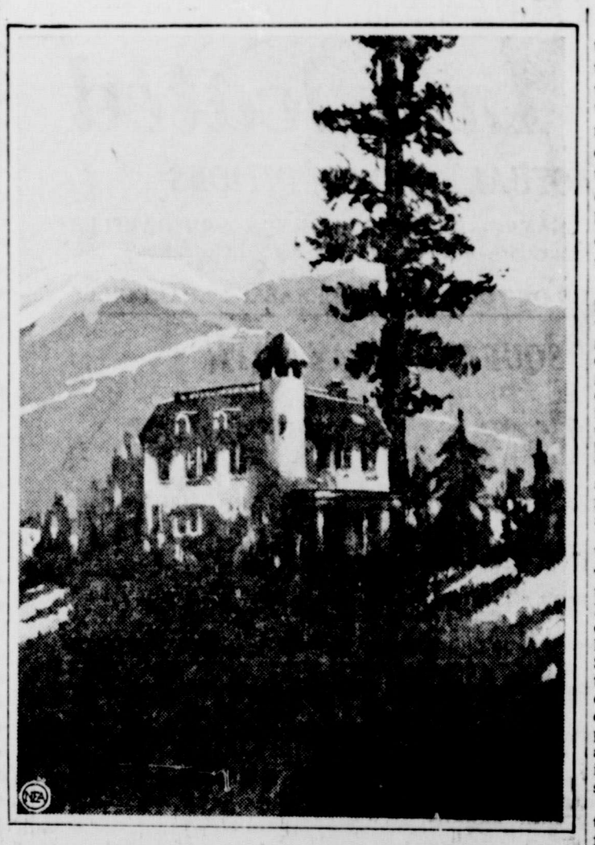

* * *

AS she passed the library she halted a minute and softly closed the door which was half open. She had been pretty hard on Nick. And he had done so much. Why couldn't she love him as she had always hoped she would love the man she married?

She let herself out into the garden and hurried to the garage. Here she got her own little car and soon was threading her way through the traffic of the city, headed for the road that ran straight as an arrow toward the mountains.

The way was too familiar to make the trip at night seem an undertaking. Hadn't she driven it more times than she could remember when she and her father had gone to the House of Long Shadows to spend the week-end? She settled down to a steady pace which would bring her to her destination long before midnight.

After half an hour the houses began to thin out and small dry farms took the place of suburbs. The cool evening air of the open country blew against her cheeks. As always, a tingle of anticipation ran through her when she entered the foothills, with the high peaks hunched dimly behind them.
