Fulton gets ACND okay for concession stand at new pier

By Ted Norman

The commissioners of the Aransas County Navigation District granted a lease to the City of Fulton to build and sublease a 16 foot by 20 foot concession stand on property currently leased from the ACND that is adjacent to the new Fulton pier.

Elgin Dietz came before the commissioners at their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night, June 1, with a request for the permit to build and lease the building.

Dietz presented a set of plans showing several elevation drawings of the proposed building and told the commissioners it would be located at the foot of the south side of the pier and would face south.

During the request for the permit ACND Chairman Bobby Landrum asked for discussion. There was no discussion and Commissioner Hal B. McKnight said, "I can't think of any questions I need to ask."

Landrum then called for a vote and the request was approved with Commissioner Kirk Holman abstaining.

After the voting, audience member Katheryn Winkleman asked the board what the rate was for the lease and it was explained that the land the building would sit on was leased to the City of Fulton for $1 per year for 99 years.

The City of Fulton plans subleasing the concession building.

Earlier in the meeting the commissioners opened sealed bids for lots number 94 and 95 in Cove Harbor.

Hooking Bull Marine Inc. of Rockport was the high bidder with a bid of $2001 per year for the lease.

Other bidders included J.E. Lawhon Jr. of Rockport with a bid of $1500 per year. Mark B. Meador with a bid of $1200 per year and Wesley Forehand of Portland with a bid of $1850 per year.

In their bid Hooking Bull Marine Inc. asked for a five-year option and rights to sublease the property during the primary or extended term.

Commissioner Maguglin said he didn't feel Hooking Bull Marine should have a guaranty to sublease the property. He later made a motion to accept the bid as the highest bid and award the lease to Hooking Bull Marine Inc. The motion was seconded and passed.

The board then listened to Harbor Master Bernie DeForest explain that the previous lease holder was unable to remove the pilings from the harbor in front of lots 94 and 95.

Audience member Bill Johnson said there is about six feet of rock in the area and said he believes it will take a pulling rig to remove the pilings.

For run-off elections

Light turnout predicted

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. this Saturday for the Democratic run-off election, but if absentee voting is any indication, the turnout will be light.

As of June 1, the close of the absentee by personal appearance voting period, only 35 votes were cast in the county clerk's office. Four votes by mail ballots had been sent out on request.

This Saturday's election will see only one local race decided, for County Commissioner, Pct. 4-4A. Incumbent J.M. Spriegel faces Mike Womack for the commissionership. Spriegel received 125 votes to Womack's 146 in the May primary.

At the state level, the attorney general's run-off will pit Jim Mattox and John Hannah against each other for the party candidacy. Hannah led Mattox 569 to 410 in the Aransas County primary totals.

Pete Snelson and Gary Morrow are challenging each other for the commissioner of the general land office spot. In the court of criminal appeals, Place 1, John E. Humphries and Charles Campbell Jr. are in the run-off. In Place 2, run-off candidates are Charles Chuck Miller and Bill Black.

Aransas County Democratic polling places are:

Precinct 1A, Aransas Pass polling station; Precinct 1, VFW Hall, Rockport; Precinct 2, East lobby, Aransas County Courthouse; Precinct 3, Faith Baptist Chapel, Fulton; Precinct 4, Fulton Elementary; and Precinct 4A, Lamar Fire Station.

Fulton to consider city zoning ordinance Tuesday

By Pat Blair

FULTON — A city zoning ordinance appears likely for Fulton, with consideration of the matter scheduled for this Tuesday's, June 8, meeting of the Fulton council.

Also scheduled on the agenda will be consideration of a 16-by-20-foot concession stand — which will sell bait, fishing tackle and fishing licenses as well as food items and soft drinks — adjacent to the city's L.E. Casterline Public Pier.

And the new city secretary, selected as the result of an executive council session at 6 p.m. this past Tuesday, June 1, at Fulton City Hall, will be sworn into office.

The matter of a zoning ordinance for Fulton was scheduled on next Tuesday's council agenda following the appearance last month before the council of Fulton resident Charles Belaire requesting such an ordinance.

At the council's May 11 meeting, Belaire said he and others are concerned about uncontrolled growth and developments in the city saying, "We think it would be worthwhile for the city to consider a zoning ordinance."

Alderwoman Katherine McLester said at that time, "I think the request is needed."

At Tuesday's meeting, the council will consider procedures for drawing up and adopting such an ordinance, including possible appointment of a committee, if needed, to study the matter.

Consideration of a concession stand adjacent to the pier was brought up and approved in this past Tuesday's meeting of the Aransas County Navigation District — from which Fulton officials are leasing the land on which the public fishing pier is located.

Plans presented by Fulton officials call for the stand to be operated by a concessioner under contract to the Fulton city council. Council members say they want the concession stand to provide someone at the pier in an attempt to prevent valdalism and misuse of the facility.

The June 8 meeting is expected to be opened with announcement of hiring and administration of the oath of office to Lucille Hinson who will assume duties of Fulton city secretary. The position pays a salary of $200 per month.

The new secretary is expected to have office space at City Hall which, officials have said, will be open from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. Mondays through Fridays following Hilson's assumption of duties.

Hinson replaces Cindy Tilden who resigned the secretary's post effective May 1 of this year.

Bondholders' decision expected on ACMUD debt adjustment plan

LAMAR — The bondholders' decision on a plan that could provide at least some financial relief to the indebted municipal utility district serving Goose Island Lake Estates residents is expected at Monday night's, June 7, meeting of the district's directors.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the office of Aransas County Municipal Utility District (ACMUD) No. 1 in Lamar.

The nine-point "debt adjustment plan" was adopted by the ACMUD board of directors in their May 10 meeting but cannot go into effect until it has the approval of the holders of the district's $1.6 million in bonds.

Herman Little, attorney for the district, was to present the plan to bondholders with the hope that he would have a favorable decision on the matter by this coming Monday's meeting.

Recommended by First Alabama Securities, one of the bondholders for the district, the debt adjustment plan as a first step calls for adoption of the maximum (40 percent) general residential homestead tax exemption for 1982, '83 and '84 in the district.

Step 2 calls for payment of all bond maturities in each year as they come due, including $15,000 due in August this year on Series 1977 bonds.

Payment of half of all bond interest would be postponed during 1982, '83 and '84.

All principal and interest due in 1982 on tax anticipation notes (TAN) would be postponed and the Series 1981 TAN principal and interest would be postponed for an additional two years.

Half of the principal on Series 1980 and 1980A TAN would be paid in 1983 and '84. Half of the Series 1981 TAN principal would be paid in 1985 and '86.

Payment of interest of all series of TAN would be made in 1987.

All postponed bond interest would be paid in 1988, 1989 and 1990. No interest would be paid on any postponed interest payments.

The plan is based on an assumption that, after adoption of the 40 percent exemption, a tax rate of $3.69 per $100 will be adopted for 1982. Little estimated that after the district tax roll of $4,275,282 has been adjusted for the homestead exemption, the $3.69 tax rate would produce revenues of $157,758.

The utility district's indebtedness stems from the sale in 1977 and 1978 of a total of $1.6 million in bonds to finance construction of water and sanitary sewer facilities to serve residents of Goose Island Lake Estates.

Subsequent bankruptcy of the developers of the Estates and failure to attract the anticipated numbers of residents to the development resulted in insufficient tax revenues to amortize the bonds. The 1981 audit showed that the district's expenses had exceeded its revenues for every year since and including 1979.

Suit against RYSCO set for trial Aug. 2

A lawsuit against Rockport Yacht & Supply Co. (RYSCO), alleging breach of warranty, is set for jury trial at 10 a.m. Aug. 2 in the 156th District Court of Judge Rachel Littlejohn in the Aransas County Courthouse.

The suit, filed by AJM Inc. of Aransas Pass, asks for $160,000 in damages and loss of income as the result of the sinking in September, 1977, of a fishing trawler built by RYSCO for AJM.

The case was brought before Judge Littlejohn for jury trial this past Tuesday, June 1, but was rescheduled for the Aug. 2 date.

The lawsuit was filed by AJM Inc. on July 28, 1980, and alleges that about Feb. 10, 1977, RYSCO contracted to build a steel hull fishing trawler, 83 feet long with 23-foot beam and draft of 11 feet, 10 inches for the Aransas Pass company.

On Aug. 10, 1977, the trawler, "Kokina," was delivered to AJM and was warranted by RYSCO free of defects in design, materials and workmanship.

On Sept. 19, 1977, the suit alleges while

More bad news from Washington

There is more disturbing news from Washington concerning disparity between the United States and the Soviet Union in weapons arsenals, specifically nuclear arms.

Rapid growth of Russia's military strength during the past 17 years prompted a statement by outgoing Deputy CIA Director Bobby Inman that this growth is due in large measure to theft of secret U.S. technology.

He said this, along with other elements in an extremely complex situation, has put the U.S. in grave danger. "I believe the (arms) buildup has brought us to a perilous state," Inman said.

There is a great degree of distrust of the Soviet Union in the U.S. and the other Western nations, which have found it difficult over the years to negotiate an acceptable arms agreement with Soviet leaders.

The Rockport Pilot does not believe a workable disarmament plan can ever be devised by the U.S. and Soviets as long as Soviet leaders refuse to bargain in good faith and continue their well-known practice of ignoring agreements and treaties when these stand in the way of carrying out communism's grand design.

We are almost convinced the U.S. should arm itself to the point that the cost of an enemy attack would be prohibitive. Another school of thought advocates we should continue trying to negotiate with the Russians; that as long as the two superpowers are talking, they aren't shooting.

Inman's "parting shot" was disturbing because of his former position in the government. Information gathered by the CIA from over the world helps formulate and guide U.S. foreign policy, and influences to a large degree government decisions affecting domestic policy.

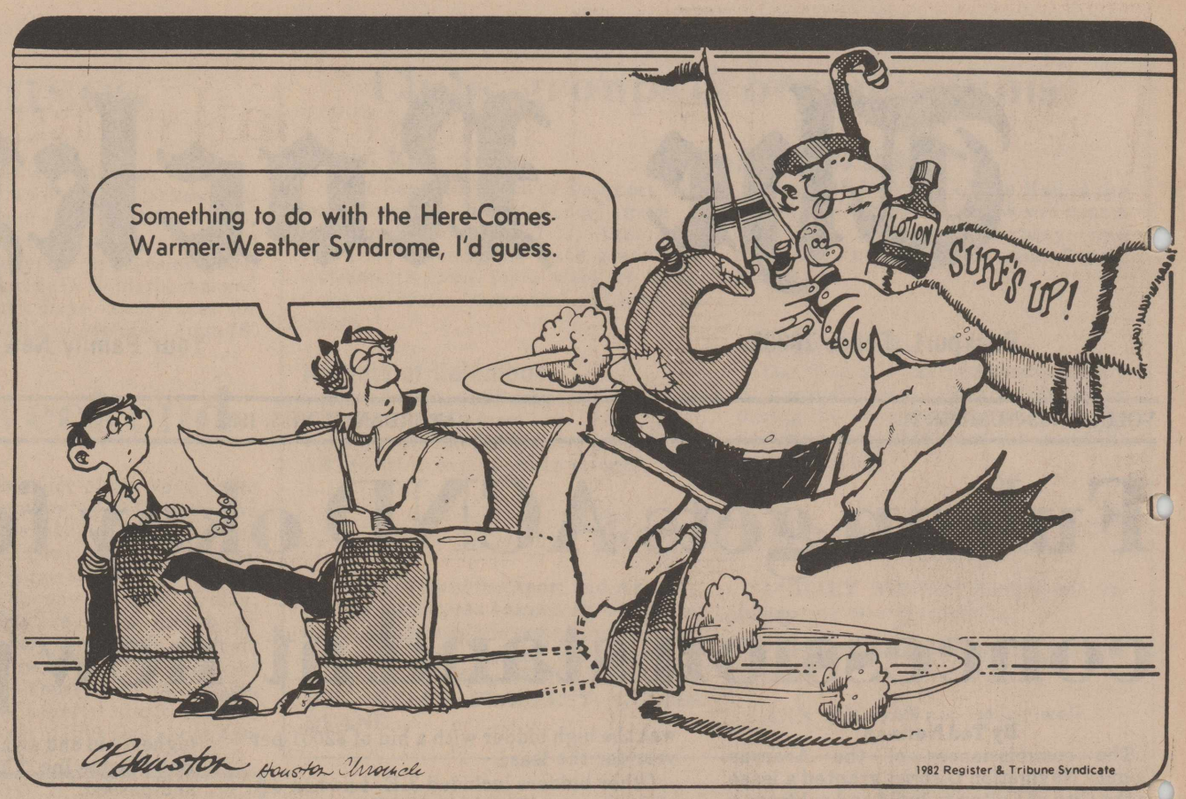

Inman testified at hearings on purchase and theft of militarily useful high technology by Soviet spies. His warning came in response to questions by members of the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

U.S. technology, he said, helps build sophisicated weaponry and improve fighting power of Soviet armed forces at lower cost and greater speed. "We still have a very long way to go in our own rebuilding," Inman said.

About 30 years ago, he told the committee, Soviet armed forces were primarily defensive and able to operate only within 300 miles of their own borders, but by the 1970s, they could operate anywhere in the world.

Soviet leaders remained "cautious," Inman said, until the "watershed" year of 1979 when the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan. "In the next decade, Soviet leaders may not be as cautious as the old Bolsheviks," Inman warned.

At the same time, he urged caution on any new legislation that could result in curbs on publishing basic research by U.S. Scientists. "There may be a need for some additional legislation," he added, "but I would go slowly in that category where one is dealing with open publication of basic research."

Congress should take a look at the NATO arms problems

If you are among those who oppose spending billions on national defense, as proposed by President Reagan in his current budget, you might want to hear what the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) says about the Soviet Union's military capabilities.

The Western Alliance has revealed a detailed comparison of its own and Warsaw Pact armed forces, showing the Soviet-led pact ahead in nearly all elements of military power.

However, there is one bright spot in the assessment: the West's nuclear strength still "ensures deterrence" of war, NATO officials claim.

Even so, President Reagan views the Western Alliance document as exposing a dangerous trend that must be reversed "if we are to safeguard interests of the United States and its allies" and induce the Soviet Union to negotiate arms reductions.

Plans are in the formative stage for summit talks on arms and other issues between the U.S. and Soviets, possibly in June, although Russia's Brezhnev has indicated he would oppose a freeze proposal by the U.S. on offensive weapons while negotiations are in progress.

With hints by the Soviet Union that it would like to reopen arms negotiations with the U.S., foreign affairs analysts are predicting a thaw in East-West relations that have remained cool since President Reagan took office.

The 71-page document, prepared by NATO in Brussels, was commissioned a year ago by NATO defense ministers encountering resistance to their pleas for improved defenses in the European sector. In that area, the study said, the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies face NATO with four million troops under arms while the alliance has 2.6 million.

In one of most comprehensive calculations of relative numerical strengths ever published by NATO, the analysis gave an accounting of virtually every item of conventional and nuclear equipment on each side.

The Warsaw Pact leads by large margins in land combat divisions, tanks, anti-tank weapons, artillery, armored personnel vehicles, combat aircraft, anti-aircraft weapons, intermediate-range nuclear forces and strategic, or intercontinental, nuclear forces.

The West leads in total numbers of military helicopters but trails in the armed, attack types, is about equal in fighter-bomber planes, has a diminishing numerical advantage in warheads for strategic missiles, and excels in numbers of battlefield missiles and artillery pieces that can fire nuclear shells.

The numerical balance of forces has moved slowly but steadily in favor of the Warsaw Pact over the last two decades. The Rockport Pilot is convinced this alone is enough to dictate a course of action for Congress as it wrestles with President Reagan's multi-billion defense budget.

Texas is growing despite the woes of the national economy

Texas, California and Florida acounted for more than half of the nation's total growth in population since the last federal census in 1980, the Census Bureau reports.

The nation's population growth continues to concentrate in the Sun Belt, with southern and western states accounting for more than 90 percent of the increase since the national head count.

New Census Bureau estimates indicate population in the U.S. has increased 2.8 million, as of April 1, 1980, to 229,397.-000. Of that increase, 2.6 million was in the South and West.

The fastest-growing states were Nevada, Florida, Wyoming, Utah and Texas. Florida, Texas and California — each adding more than 500,000 people — accounted for more than half of the nation's total growth since the last census. Arizona, Colorado and Alaska also had substantial growth among western states.

Meanwhile, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, South Dakota and the District of Columbia recorded population losses. Overall, the nation posted an annual growth rate of one percent over the 15 months, down slightly from the 1.1 percent annual rate of the 1970s.

That minor decline was reflected in the Sun Belt, said the Census Bureau. The annual growth rate of the South during those 15 months was 1.7 percent, down from 1.8 percent in the 1970s. In the West it was 1.8 percent, down from 2.1 percent annually in the previous decade.

According to the Census Bureau report, the Northeast has begun picking up population again, at a rate of 0.3 percent over the 15-month period, after remaining stagnant throughout the 1970s.

However, population in the North Central states, among the hardest hit by the nation's sagging economy, rose only 0.1 percent, down from 0.4 percent annual increase of the previous decade.

It was also interesting to note in the census report that there will be fewer teenagers and young adults (to age 25) in the 1980s than in the previous two decades. The number of persons between the ages of 15 and 24 will decline from 42 million (about 19 percent) of the population in 1980 to 35 million (14 percent) of the total population in 1990.

We are heartened by the report that Texas' population continues to increase rapidly despite economic conditions plaguing most other states. This indicates the state's economic climate is still healthy and growing, a fact we can be proud of in the face of worsening economic troubles in other parts of the nation and the world.

Refusing a raise is not an easy job for Congressmen

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr farm comes to the defense of Congress this week, in a manner of speaking.

Dear editor:

Being a Congressman isn't easy.

For example, how do you explain to the voters back home that you voted for a $19,000 tax break for yourself without knowing about it?

Somebody around midnight — Congressmen claim they don't know who it was — slipped a rider on a bill designed to aid coal miners with black lung disease. The aid bill passed overwhelmingly, but next morning Congressmen discovered they'd passed the rider too, giving them $19,000 apiece in tax deductions. It was like a dream come true.

That created the soul-searching problem of explaining their carelessness to the voters back home, few of whom ever have the opportunity of being so careless.

But that's just half the problem a Congressman faces. the other half is: should I take the tax break?

Here I am, a Congressman tells himself, the beneficiary of a bill I'm opposed to, didn't know I was voting for, but $19,000 is $19,000, even in these inflationary times. Should I take it?

With a problem like that, no wonder Congress can't take time to pass a budget. First things first.

Now as to how many Congressmen will take the money, how many will refuse...that's a matter hard to get at. Some, who must have had at least one eye open when the bill was passed, are taking only two-thirds of the money, thus leaving one-third of yourself intact. Others are taking all of it, betting voters will forget about it before the next election. Some are refusing all of it, although there's a loophole available if they want to use it: they can turn it down on this year's income tax report, then next year amend that report and take it retroactively. Others won't say whether they're taking the money or not, saying a tax return is confidential and it's un-American to be asking a Congressman such an important question.

You may think I'm poking fun at Congress, but look at it this way. We've got to ease the cruel effects of inflation. Right? And we've got to start somewhere. Right? So, if you're a Congressman, why not start with yourself?

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Hard work is rude return to reality

Austin At Wharf

THERE IS NOTHING like a bit of hard work to return one to reality. Home now for nearly a week I spent almost two full days mowing and trimming grass, grass so high that if first needed chopping with the weed-eater before it could be mowed.

After that, to work laying bricks to cover the enclosed patio, a job that has been waiting since sometime in March. Still it seems but yesterday that our plane rose from Ft. Walton to 20,000 feet and then began a long glide into New Orleans. Then a nearly two-hour wait, adequate to visit the oyster bar and indulge in a platter of crayfish.

Airports are seldom places to expect good food but I am obliged to admit that the sauce over those crayfish was exceptionally tasty and spicy. Then on to Corpus Christi with a brief stop in Houston where we departed in the last of a crimson sunset.

WITH ME IT HAS been a long-standing principle to remain at home on holiday weekends — even though it doesn't always work. By staying at home I mean precisely that, even to the extent of avoiding trips to an ice house, but this morning I found myself obliged to do a couple of errands.

The streets were crowded, not to mention shops. My thoughts went back to Horn Island in Mississippi Sound. Peace, quiet, beauty. Only days ago "April's" anchor was dropped in a broad cove, then another anchor was lowered into the dinghy and I rowed it ashore and set it in the sand so the Skipper and the rest of the crew could winch the boat into shallow water.

The skipper was bent on going over the side and scrubbing "April's" bottom, never mind the 75 degree water temperature. Wisely, conscious that mutiny might result, he appointed himself to the task.

Doc and I dinghied ashore bent on exploring the island but because he was barefoot he gave up. The sandy beach was fine for bare feet but away from the sand one encountered pine cones and otherwise rather rough going. I pressed on, bent on walking across the island to the beach on the gulf side.

Horn Island, as I have mentioned earlier was the home of the recluse artist Walter Anderson for many years. Today it is a wildlife refuge and bird sanctuary. I have for a long time wanted to visit the island.

Three years ago I almost made it, but the temperatures in Biloxi, Miss., dropped to 45 degrees. No place for the sloop, "Karma!" Go south young man, go south!

HORN ISLAND IS APproximately 12 miles long and nowhere more than a mile wide. Extending east and west there are a couple of button hooks on each end, scarcely a stone's throw in width. I climbed a high dune and was at once under the tall pines, and wading through scrub palmetto.

In short order I found myself in a swampy area and had to retrace my steps. Shortly I learned that the way to avoid the low ground was to stick to the high tree lines and so, within a quarter of an hour, I saw high dunes ahead through the pines, and the roar of the gulf.

Walking through the palmettos I was at first cautious, fearful of snakes. The suspicion passed from my mind. I saw a few wild goats that bleated at me, then stared. The same with rabbits. Birds were everywhere. I enjoy birds as I do flowers. I like to watch them but not seriously enough to carry a bird guide and binoculars for close examination. It is enough that they are there. So with flowers. I enjoy them in your garden, but I'm dashed if I want a part in their cultivation!

I climbed a last high dune and paused. The gulf poured in on the steepest white beach I can recall every having seen. I descended to the water's edge. No beach for wading. Before each wave broke I could see to a depth of perhaps 10 feet. A salt-whitened log made for a good seat and resting place, a log that had perhaps drifted northward, up through the Yucatan Channel after beginning its journey from the banks of some tropical river.

I didn't know how long I rested in that peaceful spot, but the lowering sun hastened my return across the island and to "April's" cockpit where the rest of the crew had already begun to splice the main brace.

There we might have lingered through the evening, but the heavy dew sent us below. The moon was just past full that night and under its light the beach and dark trees were magnificent. I could understand Anderson. Yet if I turned away, looked toward the distant mainland I could see the bright glow of the industrial city of Pascagoula.

Shucks, there just ain't no way to get away from it all anymore! Well, maybe the polar regions — which are no place for flying fish sailors, a breed only at home in tropical climes.

Speaking Out

Dear Editor:

I want to thank everyone who supported me in my race for Texas Land Commissioner. I am not a professional politician. I am a rancher who is concerned about the quality of our state-owned lands.

One of the main issues that concerns me is the possibility of nuclear waste dumping in Texas. I am also concerned about current exploitation of our natural resources. We must safeguard our public and private lands so that future generations will benefit as we have from our oil, natural gas and minerals that are abundant today in many areas of Texas.

I believe with better, more efficient management of the General Land Office, we can maintain the beauty and character of Texas while enjoying the benefits of the income from our state lands. Had I been elected Land Commissioner, these issues would have been my priorities.

The runoff for Land Commissioner will be June 5. I have chosen to support Garry Mauro for Land Commissioner because he shares my concerns on all these issues that I have discussed in this letter and also the other eight bona fide issues of this campaign. It is a privilege as citizens of the United States to choose who we want to serve us in public office. I hope you will join me in exercising this privilege on June 5.

With best regards,
s/George Fore

Editor's note:
Although we are glad to publish Mr. Fore's letter-to-the-editor, the Rockport Pilot is not endorsing any political candidate for Land Commissioner or any other office.

Next season he will get a byline

By Ted Norman

All publications including newspapers rely on contributing writers, people who for one reason or another are not on the staff but submit articles on either a regular basis or on a periodical basis.

Most of these people have written for the Pilot so long they are almost accepted as staffers and not contributors. But there is one contributing writer who has done a marvelous job and he didn't even receive a byline or a spot in the staff box for his efforts.

If you have been following the soccer season in the Pilot sports pages then you have been reading some of his work.

Terry Cody makes his living working at the Texas Parks and Wildlife marine lab near the Rockport Harbor. But he has spent a large portion of his spare time covering the soccer games and writing articles about the games for the Pilot.

Cody, like some of the other contributing writers, delivers his copy to us in person and like the others I must go over it and edit the work and make it ready for the typesetters. That is where the similarity ends

His copy is always clean and typed on new, unsoiled white paper and there is almost never a misspelled word, an uncrossed T or an undotted I. I could save a lot of work and send the copy back without editing it with the exception that it is so much fun to read I enjoy taking time to edit Cody's work.

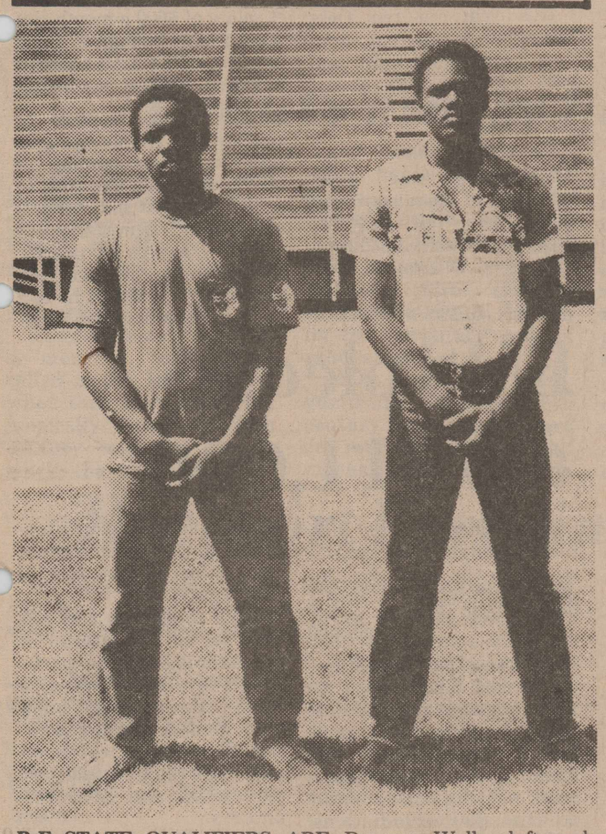

Soccer season is over for the year and I will miss Cody's articles and I am certain many readers will also. Each of us at the Pilot will miss having him deliver his work to the office because this very nice, young man is always a welcome sight and we eagerly look forward to his smiling face.

Writing is a difficult and time-consuming job for most people and I'm sure it isn't easy for Terry Cody and after all the work he did and all the effort he put forth without even receiving a byline those of us at the Pilot would like to say, thank you, Terry, hope to see you and the articles again soon.

What's your opinion?

A&M to hold basketball camp

COLLEGE STATION — Three weeks of girls' summer basketball camp at Texas A&M University headed by women's basketball coach Cherri Rapp will be open for girls ages 10-18.

"The camp will feature a week of basketball instruction stressing fundamentals," says Rapp. "We plan to study all aspects of the game but we also will include lots of fun."

The girls will live and eat in Cain Hall, the athletic dorm, on the Texas A&M University campus. Rapp said there will also be vacancies in the camp for those who want to commute.

The camp will feature daily basketball games with the girls grouped according to age and ability. The girls will also receive individual instruction from Coach Rapp and other outstanding coaches and players.

Three sessions will be held: June 20-25, June 27-July 2, Aug. 1-6. Cost for the week is $195 with day camper rate at $145. Special team rates are available for groups of five or more. In addition, a full scholarship to one week of camp is being offered by the Women's Sports Foundation.

TP&W accepts publishing firm

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has accepted the bid of Collectors Covey, a Dallas publishing firm and wildlife art gallery, for design and marketing of the state's 1982-83 waterfowl stamp and prints.

The firm, which also was a successful bidder for the state's initial waterfowl stamp prints last year, submitted a minimum guaranteed royalty of $350,000.

The artwork sponsored by Collectors Covey this year was rendered by Ken Carlson of Missoula, Montana, depicting a pintail drake and hen. Carlson's work has been published in a variety of publications, and one of his paintings was runner-up in the 1976 federal waterfowl stamp competition.

The 1981-82 Texas waterfowl stamp was the largest selling waterfowl print ever published by a state or the federal government. Collectors Covey officials said the prints, which earned more than $750,000 for the Parks and Wildlife Department's waterfowl programs, also were believed to be the largest selling signed and numbered limited edition prints of any kind every published.

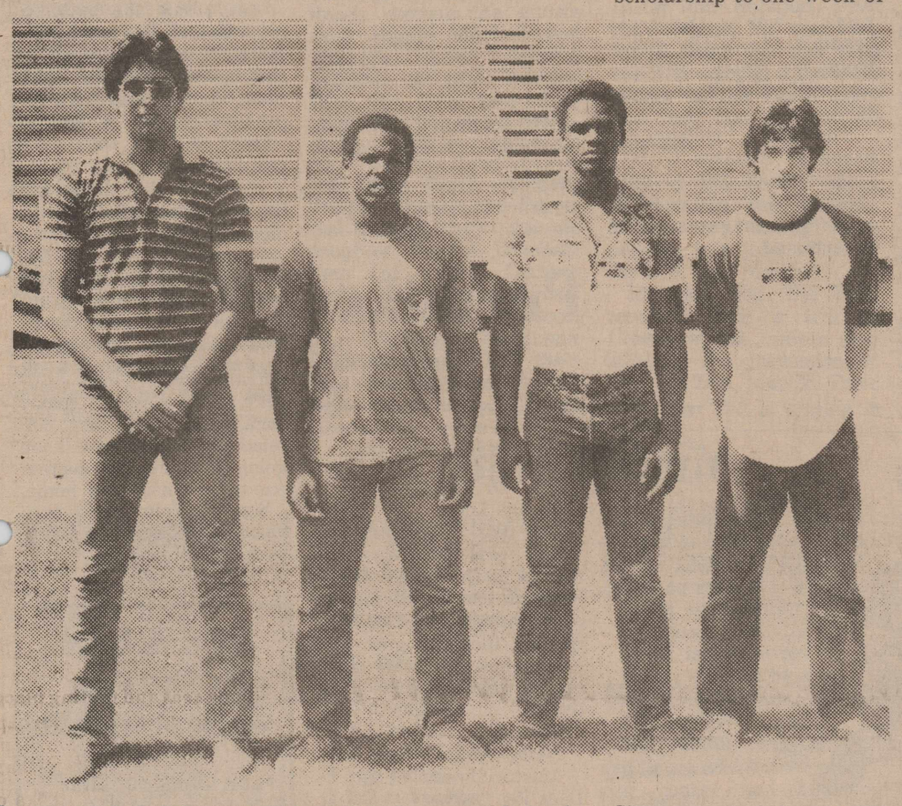

Commission member Ed Cox Jr. of Dallas stressed that selection of the artwork on a guaranteed royalty bid basis represents an effort by the commission to carry out a legislative mandate to maximize revenues from stamp and print sales. "We (the commission) believe we have the responsibility to obtain the most revenue possible from this program, since all of the funds will go to benefit Texas' waterfowl and their habitat," Cox said.

Collectors Covey agreed to pay the department 28.5 percent of the retail price of each duck stamp print, or $35.63 per print. Sales of the $125 prints are expected to exceed 9,000, officials said.

The $5 state waterfowl stamps are required as well as a valid hunting license for anyone hunting waterfowl in Texas. The 1982-83 stamps will be available from department offices and hunting license outlets prior to the opening of waterfowl hunting seasons. Federal law also requires hunters to have a federal duck stamp, which may be obtained at post offices.

New Coleto reservoir facilities near completion

New facilities are approaching completion at Coleto Creek Reservoir and Regional Park, south of Victoria off U.S. 59. Construction will soon be completed on a pavilion erected near the park's campground. Also, in cooperation with area ski club and the Guadalupe-Blanco River Authority, authorization for construction of a slalom ski course has been granted.

Construction on a group picnic pavilion is nearing completion. The 20' x 40' open air structure, located near the park's campground, includes 10 picnic tables and a large BBQ grill. The pavilion is capable of serving up to 80 persons and is available for family gatherings, meetings, and parties on a reservation basis. A $25.00 fee will be charged for reserving the pavilion. Reservations and additional information can be obtained by contacting park headquarters, P.O. Drawer 68, Fannin, Texas, (512) 575-6366.

Port Aransas Tourney slated

Once again it is time for the outboard fishermen to meet in Port Aransas for the fabulous Seventh Annual Outboard Fishing Tournament sponsored by the Ladies Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary of Port Aransas.

Registration will be Friday, July 16, with actual fishing on both July 17 and July 18. Anglers will fish for 19 species of fish. Trophies will be awarded for the largest individual fish of each species caught. (First and Second Place.)

Fees this year are $30 per entry, with pre-registration of $25. Registration fee includes Chip and Dips on Friday and Buffet Dinners on Saturday and Sunday. All guest tickets are $8 per night. Free beer and soda are included each evening.

To pre-register sent a letter postmarked no later than midnight July 12, with check for $25 per contestant enclosed, made payable to Outboard Fishing Tournament, P.O. Box 541, Port Aransas, Texas 78373.

The Port Aransas Outboard Fishing Tournament is the only fishing event on the Texas Gulf Goast for boats powered exclusively by outboard motors.

AUSTIN — Texas Parks and Wildlife biologists have counted 16 young bald eagles produced this year — double that of last year.

John Smith, biologist at Rockport, counted the eagles on an aerial survey of the 16 known aeries located in the Coastal Bend and in Northeast Texas.

Four of the known sites failed to produce for the sixth straight year.

This nesting year has been the best for Texas' bald eagles since the department began researching eagle populations in 1971 and probably as far back as 1950, Smith said. Symbolically, this year, dubbed "year of the eagle," celebrates the 200th anniversary of the bald eagle being selected for the national seal.

Smith listed production in Victoria, Goliad, Calhoun, Refugio, Colorado, Brazoria, Matagorda and Fort Bend Counties along the Coastal Bend. Unproductive nests were reported in Goliad and Brazoria Counties along the Coastal Bend and Red River County in Northeast Texas.

Bald eagles prefer to build nests in the tops of tall trees located near rivers, streams or lakes to be near their preferred foods which are fish, aquatic birds and mammals.

Give roses lots of sunshine

By Ted Brice
The Garden Editor

In picking a location and preparing the bed, remember roses need at least one half day of sunlight and they do not like wet feet. Roses are classified as shallow rooted plants, therefore they need proper drainage.

Here I suggest that rose beds be raised up to 12 inches above the ground level by using cross ties, bricks, concrete blocks, etc. Place a one inch layer of gravel at the bottom of a 12 inch bed for drainage. Then fill the balance of the bed with sand, peat moss and perlite or vermiculite in equal amounts.

When digging the hole for the bush be sure to dig it large enough that the roots can be spread out and not bunched together. Do not dig a two-bit hole for a five dollar plant. At the bottom of the hole mound a small hill in the center for the rose to sit on with its roots spread out on all sides. Then fill in with your planting medium to within one half to one inch of the bud union.

The bud union is the large knot between the root system and the canes. Roses are grafted on different root stock than what appears above the ground. Usually the root stock is the Hawaii cultivar.

There are two ways to purchase roses, bare root and canned roses. You may plant canned roses any time of the year by simply cutting the can away and placing the rose with soil intact in the hole in the bed. The bare root roses can be planted only in the spring of late fall. Which is the best is a matter of personal opinion.

Roses are graded by standards such as No. 1, No. 1-1/2, No. 2, and No. 2-1/2. The number one grade rose has at least three canes with the canes one-half to three-fourths inches in diameter. Remember, you may save money on your initial purchase by buying a rose which is of quality less than a No. 1 but you will spend as much or more on fertilizer and care and still you will not have a No. 1 bloom.

After planting, I recommend a good application of humic acid as this lessens the shock of transplant. Humic acid is not a good root stimulator. The first year rose must be kept well watered and not allowed to dry out. They are building their root system.

After the first year, a bush needs two inches of water per week. Here I recommend you place a coffee can in your bed to keep track of the water weekly, especially if Mother Nature does not furnish the needed rain.

This is where a good mulch comes in handy. A one-inch layer of cedar mulch helps conserve your moisture. Cedar mulch has been proven to retard nematodes and restore nitrogen to the soil.

Roses should be fed twice a year, the first year with a well balanced fertilizer such as 20-20-20 water soluble. Remember that your fertilizer has to get into a liquid form before your plant can use it.

Roses go dormant in the winter in the Northern states. Pruning is done in the spring after the last freeze. You should cut the canes back to within 15 inches of the ground. This is done on all the different varieties except the climbers.

The new blooms are born on old growth on the climbers. A climber is pruned only when needed to control the growth after the blooming season is over. This lets a climber produce new canes before going dormant.

The biggest problem with roses is powdery mildew and blackspot which can be controlled by regular spraying of a fungicide such as benlate. If you already have powdery mildew, this can be eradicated by the use of P.M. Acti Dione. Red spider on your roses can be controlled by the use of an insecticide such as Isotex. If you should have aphids, you can control them by the use of Malathion.

Your garden editor hopes this helps you with your roses and that you will have beautiful roses this year.

Summer reading camp on tap

Registration for the Summer Reading Camp is now in progress at Aransas County Public Library. "Space Capers" is the theme of the reading program which is designed for elementary and junior high students.

Various facets of the space theme will be highlighted including space exploration, the stars, planets astronomical phenomena, astronauts, amateur stargazing and science fiction, according to Librarian Eunice Hamon.

The program will blast off at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, June 8. Del Edwards will present a magic show at 10 a.m., registration will continue and goals and objectives will be established, Mrs. Hamon said. Thursday, June 10 the program feature will be a feature-length film, "Robinson Crusoe On Mars".

All programs will be scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday of each week, beginnng at 9:30 a.m. and ending at 11:30 a.m. The library is located at 318 N. Church Street.

All programs are free.

Families overwhelmed with debt find a way out

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

More than 600 families overwhelmed by indebtedness find a way out short of bankruptcy each year in the Coastal Bend through the services of Money Management Counseling and Services. This is important to the region's economy, as well as to the families themselves, as it means businesses are repaid hundreds of thousands of dollars that they would have lost.

David C. Melton, executive director, says most families find ways on their own to meet a financial crisis when it arises. But when a family is unable to work out arrangements to pay off its debts, Money Management provides alternatives to bankruptcy.

Usually the alternative can be counseling the family in ways to resolve its own problems, and if necessary, making contact with the creditors and finding acceptable schedules for repayment of debts. In the most extreme cases, the agency accepts responsibility in what is called Debt Management, one case out of five. Under this program, the client's funds are maintained in a trust account and disbursed monthly on a basis agreed to by the client's creditors until the family is free of debt.

The problem of outgo exceeding income is being seen more frequently in the region. People are losing jobs or do not receive raises or income increases which they expected and had built into debt schedules. Families have less savings and many of them no cushion to meet any type of emergency. The staggering cost of a medical emergency can destroy the security of a family that had been prudent.

Melton says many finance companies are not making loans now, so cash is hard to obtain to meet an unexpected expenditure. However, retail credit is still available and with consumer credit families go further into debt. When income decreases, many families don't choose the alternative of reducing their life style to compensate. Instead, they use credit to maintain their existing way of life.

As the economic situation becomes tighter, some families are going uninsured. This means they are even more vulnerable to disaster.

Shelter has become for many a dilemma. Previously, when house payments were too high, families were advised to sell and move into inexpensive rental facilities. Now, there are no such available, so this is no longer an alternative.

The average client at Money Management is a man and his wife in their 30's with two children, who have been in a medium income bracket. Anyone can call the agency for advice without identifying himself. Melton says some of the anonymous calls he receives are apparently from people in high income brackets who are concerned about their financial situation.

Last year, in the Debt Management program, more than 1,000 debts were paid back in full, with almost $570,000 repaid in behalf of 275 families.

Financial problems breed others, playing a part in the breakup of families, wife and child abuse, crime, suicide, substance abuse, and low employee productivity.

Young people, drawing a salary for the first time, have no experience in judging how much debt they can handle. A salary of $600 a month can appear large enough to buy a new car with a $250 a month payment. Melton is working in every way possible to reach young people and give them an understanding of how to use credit and what to avoid. He goes into schools and responds to invitations to speak to groups of people. Melton finds prevention programs are effective if he can begin at the junior high level.

EMS pledges top $11,000

More than $11,000 has been pledged or contributed to the fund for the new Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) building this past week, according to Chief Paramedic Bill Aston.

Among the latest contributors, Aston said, have been Dr. and Mrs. Bill Kemmerer who donated $500 — along with several other smaller contributions for which we are grateful," he added.

Also in the more recent donations was $217.80 contributed by the Allegro Club.

Goal to pay for the new building — which has already been ordered — is $34,000. Aston said the prefabricated metal building will be installed on grounds adjacent to Enterprise Clinic and will contain some 1,800 square feet of floor space.

Once it arrives and has been set up, the interior of the building will be partitioned into office space, a combined storage and bunk area, medical storage facilities, a bath and workshop and classroom space for paramedics and EMS volunteers.

The facility will also have an ambulance bay.

Aston said the building must be installed and ready for use by around Aug. 1 — the date at which the EMS must move out of its present offices in Enterprise Clinic.

He added that donations to the building fund are tax deductible.

Plane crashes into trees

A Lake airplane owned and piloted by C.L. Reeves of Austin crashed into trees shortly after takeoff from Aransas County Airport about 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, June 1.

No one was injured but the wings and fusilage of the plane were reported damaged, possibly totalled following the crash. As of Thursday morning, there was no word on whether damage to the craft could be repaired.

A spokesman for Rockport Aviation at the airport said Reeves was taking off on Runway 08 when he had engine failure. The plane came down in the trees "exactly across the street from the entry into the airport," the spokesman said.

The plane, which was based at Aransas County airport was being kept there as of Thursday while extent of damage was being determined.

Dr. Hap Lutz

Dear Dr. Lutz,

Our dog is not only our family pet, but also the mascot of the entire neighborhood. He is an indoor-outdoor dog, too. The mosquitoes, flies and gnats are driving him crazy. My question is what can I do about them?

Signed,
Harbor Oaks
Mascot Owner

Dear Pet Owner,

Because all insects have variable life cycles, an eradication program is needed to take place throughout the entire year. The most efficient method for killing these various insects around your premises is an electronic unit that kills all flying insects. These units plug into a regular home outlet. They operate continuously for pennies a day. They all have a small black light that attracts flying insects; and kills the varmints instantly on contact - day or night. There are no chemicals to spray, no noxious odors to breathe. You can enjoy a bug-free environment without harming it. Why use pesticides? I have been using one unit on the patio downstairs, and one upstairs on the deck. They work. You can purchase them in most hardware stores, Sears, Handy Dan, etc., and they are relatively inexpensive. I am going to purchase another one to use inside my home.

Signed: Your pet's best friend, the one with a warm heart for cold noses.

Police Report

Three Corpus Christi residents were charged with theft of a boat trailer in Rockport within minutes after the trailer was reported missing last Friday, May 28.

The three, Jill Foote, 17, Michael A. Johnson, 18, and Christopher Barrow Hough, 18, were under $1,000 bond each after they were arrested about 9:35 p.m. Friday on Fulton Beach Road at Traylor Ave.

The boat was reported taken from the residence of John Schmidt on Pearl Street sometime between 5 p.m. and 8:40 p.m.

Also during the busy holiday period, police investigated incidents ranging from thefts and burglaries to intoxication arrests.

Three persons were arrested on charges of public intoxication — all on Saturday, May 29. And Afranrean Garza, stopped for a traffic offense on S. Young Street, was subsequently arrested on the basis of three outstanding public intoxication warrants and ticketed for displaying fictitious license plates and not having a driver's license, according to the police report.

That incident occurred about 5:25 p.m. Tuesday, June 1.

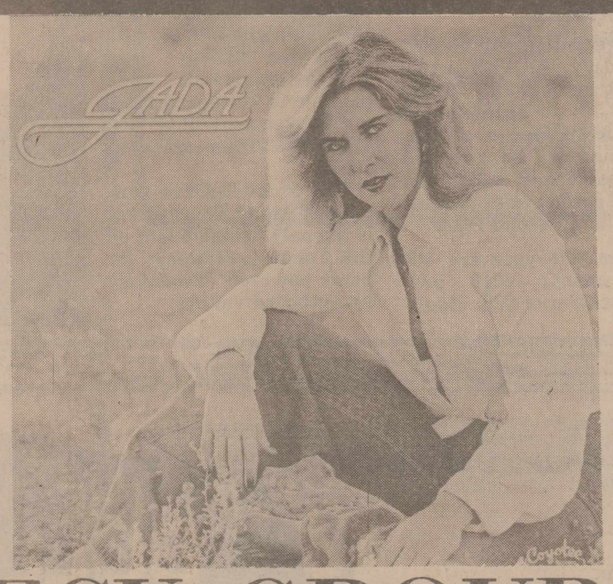

The Rev. Antonio Vega, pastor of Mt. Sinai Church on Cornwall reported burglary of the church and theft of two amplifiers, totalling $1,000 in value, between 7:31 and 10:35 p.m. Thursday, May 27.

Linwood Bland reported someone slashed all four tires on his car, a total of $1,450 in damages, between 8 p.m. May 29 and noon Sunday, May 30.

A.L. Van Buren Jr. called police to report theft of four ties, valued at $525, from a junked vehicle south of his residence on South Church Street. Theft occurred between 5 p.m. Monday, May 31 and 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Jimmy Anders told police two batteries, a two-barrel carburetor and a four-barrel carburetor had been taken sometime between 8 p.m. Friday, May 28, and 11 a.m. Monday, May 31, from vehicles locked in a compound at Anders' repair business.

Mark Luigi reported theft of two surfboards, valued at $300 each, between 10 p.m. May 30 and 8 a.m. May 31. The boards were tied on top of Luigi's car, according to the report.

Adams' art featured in Cuero

CUERO — Buchel Bank and Trust of Cuero is featuring the art work of Rockport artist Mary Belle Adams this month.

Mrs. Adams, who with her husband Gene lived in Cuero for some 14 years, began painting about four years ago. A lover of roses, she took lessons from well-known artist Macera Carradine. Mrs. Adams' first workshop with Carradine was on painting roses. Roses remain Mrs. Adams' favorite subject and are well-represented in the Cuero exhibit.

Mrs. Adams and her husband moved to Rockport in 1955 after living in Cuero. The couple owned and operated the St. Charles Bay Cottages and Marina for many years. Mrs. Adams also ran the Gallery Antique Shop. She is now an independent appraiser of antiques and estates.

The exhibit of Mrs. Adams' work will be open during regular banking hours through June 30.

Beauty marks have an interesting place in history of cosmetics

Marie Antoinette and Madame Pompadour wore them. Jean Harlow, Ginger Rogers and Marilyn Monroe wore them. And today, they're again enjoying increasing popularity.

They're beauty marks, or "mouches," as they were called in the 18th century when they first appeared. Ironically, though the 20th century considers beauty marks the symbol of Hollywood sex goddesses, mouches were originally designed to cover skin blemishes. However, they soon became a must for dedicated flirts and an essential makeup flourish for the Beautiful People of salon society.

Make of specks of black, gummed silk or paper, 18th century beauty spots were cut into tiny full and half moons, little stars and hearts. A series of moons increasing in size from the tiniest to the largest might be affixed to the outer corner of the eye. A few stars at the corner of the mouth were supposed to give a smile added charm and there were also patches of a larger size — suns, doves, cupids. These were called "assassins," because of their devastating effect on the heart.

How important these mouches were can be seen in the current "18th Century Woman" exhibit at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, sponsored by Merle Norman Cosmetics. There, costume curator Stella Blum has sprinkled as many as 16 beauty marks across the face and bosom of a single mannequin.

"The mouche is returning because 18th century colors are basically low-key," says Nina Ansley, fashion director of Merle Norman. "The mouche adds extra interest, extra definition to the face."

Ansley hastens to point out that today's beauty marks — simple dots made with black eye pencils — are much more natural and subtle than the hearts and cupids of yesteryear. "If you happen to have a mole, so much the better," she says. "Otherwise you can place a mouche near your best features...the eyes or mouth."

Some claim placement of the beauty mark conveys special meaning. Near the corner of the eye, it will incite passion. Near the corner of the mouth, it asks for a kiss. Planted in the center of the cheek, the mouche is said to indicate a somewhat playful and flamboyant personality. "In fact, the beauty mark can be customized according to a lady's mood," says Ansley.

And, in affairs of the heart, they still may be "assassins."

Wilson is TOPS

Donna Wilson was TOPS of the Week at the TOPS 849 meeting on June 1.

Runners-up were Thelma Ketchum and JoAnn White.

The club will see a film at their next meeting, on June 8, entitled "For Tomorrow, We Shall Diet."

Bon Appetit

By Ann Thomas

Hi everyone! This week and next we'll have frostings and fillings. It seems that everyone has favorites when it comes to cakes, but quite often the icing becomes a problem.

We tend to get tired of the same old icings! New ones seem to add pizzaz! Have fun trying these!

COCONUT CREAM FILLING

Best for a 3-layer white cake with Seven-Minute Frosting and coconut topping.

3 T. flour
3T. cornstarch
2/3 c. sugar
1/4 t. salt
2 c. scalded milk
6 egg yolks
1-1/2 t. vanilla
1/2 c. coconut

Mix flour, cornstarch, sugar and salt, add a little of the scalded milk and stir vigorously. Add rest of milk and cook in top of double boiler until thickened and smooth, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolks, add a portion of the hot mixture to them and stir vigorously. Turn into double boiler, stir hard and cook and stir two minutes longer. Cool slightly, add vanilla and chill. Stir in coconut and fill cake.

PRIZE LEMON FILLING

Grated rind of 1 lemon
1/2 c. sugar
1 t. flour
1/4 c. lemon juice
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/4 c. cold water
1 t. butter

Mix lemon rind, sugar and flour. Add lemon juice, egg, water and butter. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cool.

SEVEN-MINUTE FROSTING

A popular frosting with several variations. This recipe will frost the top and sides of a 3- or 4-layer cake, or can be used as filling and frosting for a 2-layer.

2 egg whites
1-1/2 c. sugar
1-1/2 t. light corn syrup or 1/4 t. cream of tarter
1/3 c. cold water
Few grains salt
1 t. vanilla

Place ingredients, excepting vanilla, in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water and beat with rotary or electric mixer until mixture forms peaks. Remove from heat, add flavoring, and beat until frosting has spreading consistency.

Chocolate Seven-Minute Frosting. Fold in 3 ounces unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled, before spreading.

Marshmallow Seven-Minute Frosting. Add 1 cup quartered marshmallows when you remove frosting from heat. Beat by hand until spreadable.

Sea Foam or Brown Sugar Frosting. Use packed measure of brown sugar instead of white. Omit corn syrup or cream of tarter.

WHIPPED CREAM FROSTING or FILLING

Gelatin is added to make the cream stand up longer.

2 t. plain gelatin
2 c. heavy cream, chilled
1/2 c. sugar
1/2 t. vanilla

Soften gelatin in 2 tablespoons cream for 5 minutes. Dissolve over hot water. Cool slightly. Whip cream until stiff. Add sugar gradually, then add gelatin and beat until mixture stands in peaks. Flavor with vanilla. Frost cake immediately. Chill.

ORANGE CUSTARD FILLING

Very orangey, a delight for sponge or any plain light cake.

1 c. sugar
2-1/2 T. cornstarch
1 c. orange juice
2 T. lemon juice
2 eggs, beaten slightly
Grated rind of 2 oranges

Mix sugar, cornstarch and fruit juices. Cook in the top of a double boiler until very thick, stirring constantly. Cover and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Add eggs with orange rind to filling, mixing quickly. Cook 2 minutes longer. Cool.

Healthful hints

by Jean Glowka

Q. I was in a health food store the other day just looking around and reading labels. One of the things that confused me was the measurement terms used for vitamins. What is the difference between a mg., a mcg., and a gram?

A. That can be confusing for someone new to nutrition. Here's the way it goes:

1,000 mcg. (microgram)= one mg. (milligram)
1,000 mg. = one gram

A gram is a lot; a milligram (mg.) is the one you see most often; a microgram (mcg.) is a very small quantity, relatively speaking.

Q. I'm trying to start using brewer's yeast powder. I mix it with water, and it tastes horrible. What can I do to make it better?

A. Water?! I guess it does taste horrible! Try mixing it with your favorite juice or milk (skim milk, if you're counting calories) — eight to 16 ounces. Whether you use milk or juice, adding a tablespoon of papaya concentrate and/or blending in some of your favorite fruit also does wonders for the taste. Add vanilla extract (or other flavoring) and honey to taste. If you play around with it a little, you'll come up with something you like or, at least, can tolerate. Also, you will get used to the taste of yeast. Especially if you keep remembering how very good it is for you.

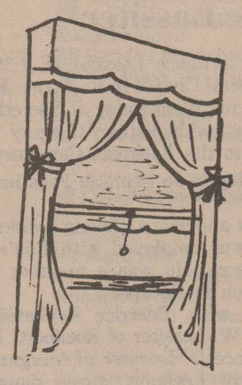

Remember that it's best to start slowly on yeast. Begin with one half to one teaspoon; increase by one half to one teaspoon daily until you're getting two to four tablespoons daily.

Until next week, Folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Local women enjoy European tour, especially Floriade in Amsterdam

"A delightful trip." That's local resident Anita Griggs' description of her recent European journey with her friend Mrs. Walter Boehnke of Aransas Pass.

The two women were among 35 Texans on a tour of the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, northeast France, West Germany's Black Forest and then back to Amsterdam.

"Mrs. Boehnke was planning to go and when her husband found out I wasn't working, he made the arrangements for me to take the trip," explains Mrs. Griggs.

The highlight of the 11-day trek was the return to Amsterdam for the Floriade, a once-every-10-years international flower show, the most famous in the world. "There's no words that can describe the beauty of it," says Mrs. Griggs.

"We were fortunate that we hit it at exactly the right time," she says. "It had been rather cold and rainy but when we arrived it was sunny. They said that the Texans brought the sunshine. The flowers were at their peak and so were all of the flowering trees."

The Floriade concluded the 1500-mile motor coach trip for the tour. In Amsterdam also, Mrs. Griggs was able to visit with her daughter, Joyce Ann Lott of Aberdeen, Scotland, who had flown in to see her.

Coffee, Tea, and Cornplasters

There aren't many of us left who remember Sixbey's General Store. It was more than a store; it was a gathering place, a news bureau, a bright spot in a boy's summer afternoon.

You would come in from the hot dusty street and the shaded store was cool. Immediately you encountered a tantalizing blend of scents—apples, licorice, spices and smoked ham. Grown-up conversation enhanced your feeling of excitement as they viewed and reviewed town happenings. You always took a long time to decide between a chocolate or a lemon drop, so that this exciting visit could be prolonged.

Our town has changed since then. For those of us whose memories linger in Sixbey's Store, it hardly seems the same place.

Yet one thing's the same. At the corner of Elm and Main, St. Mark's steeple still points skyward. Man's need for God never changes. And the Church remains constant as it teaches the truths of God's love and presence.

The Shepherd's Staff

By the Rev. Barret Renfro
First United Methodist Church

I have had occasion to observe most of our government employees in action my two years in Rockport. It seems that these people get very little recognition. So I'm going to use this space to say thank you to the Rockport Police, the Aransas County Sheriff's Department, the Fire Departments of the area, the County Commissioners, the City Council, the Sanitation Departments and all employees of government agencies.

All these people serve us in what are usually thankless jobs. They get a salary, but many times are the receivers of anger from irate citizens.

I'm not saying they are all perfect and make no mistakes; what I am saying is they have hard jobs and deserve occasionally to hear a word of thanks.

Thank you, folks! Keep working at it and we the citizens with you will make this area a good place to live and raise children.

Scout barbecue success

The annual Boy Scout Troop 49 Bar-B-Q was a "smashing success" with more than 950 plates of barbecue served during a four-hour period last Saturday, May 29, according to Troop 49 Scoutmaster Curtis Kovacs.

"It shows a marvelous community support," said Dr. Kovacs, who added, "I want to formally thank all of the people who bought tickets" to the event.

The annual barbecue is Troop 49's big fundraising effort for the year and the money raised is used to support what the scoutmaster terms "a very active outdoor program."

In addition to camping one weekend each month, the members of Troop 49 attend a week-long summer camp each year. This year's camp will be the Bear Creek Camp near Hunt.

He said the troop has grown from 15 members to 43 during the past year.

Maritime center plans cited

Texas will have a maritime museum and it will be located in Rockport.

That's the word from Bill Christian, president of the Texas Maritime Museum Association Inc., who is scheduled to announce plans for the proposed museum at next Wednesday's, June 9, meeting of the Rockport Rotary Club.

Also scheduled on the program at that Rotary meeting is Deke Slaton, one of the first seven American astronauts. Slaton is now retired from NASA and is with Space Services.

A membership drive is under way by the Texas Maritime Museum Association which has already secured option to lease the former Wee Putt Golf site from the Navigation District as the location for the proposed facility.

Purpose of the museum, Christian emphasized is not only to show artifacts and displays from Texas' long history as a maritime state — including a proposed Texas Navy Room — but also will highlight present-day maritime activities in such industries as shipping, petroleum and fishing as well as the recreational uses of the state's coastal areas.

In addition to Christian, other officers of the TMMA include Loyce Ogle, secretary, Peggy Bloch, treasurer and Al Barnes, vice president. These three are also chairmen of the membership, finance and building committees respectively.

Also on the board of directors are Gordon Stanley, museum committee chairman, Jerry Beattie, publicity chairman, and Tony Thorne, Milton Sorem and Pat Brown.

A TMMA Charter Advisory Council has also been formed with Delo Caspary, L.E. Casterline, Carl Krueger, Tommy Smith, James Sorenson and George Taggart as members.

A LITTLE WD-40 and she'll be ready to go...This barnacle-encrusted mass is a bicycle which, according to a local bait-stand owner was thrown into Rockport Harbor some three years ago and resurfaced last week when a fisherman snagged it with a hand line. According to one bystander, "This is about the best catch anyone around here had had lately..

Padre Island National Seashore plans naturalist programs

CORPUS CHRISTI — Padre Island National Seashore has announced its 1982 Naturalist-Conducted Summer Programs at the National Seashore.

The programs, according to Chief Naturalist Bob Whistler, are for all visitors to the park to better understand and enjoy the many natural resources of the National Seashore.

The schedule contains evening slide presentations, campfire programs, recreational demonstrations, laguna shore walks, discovery walks and special programs on weekends.

These will begin Friday, June 4 and run through Saturday, Aug. 21. There is no charge or reservations necessary.

Participants are urged to wear comfortable clothing and to be prepared to wade.

For further information, call the Malaquite Beach Visitor Center at 933-8068. The center is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. till 6 p.m.

Part of the summer's programs include the Turtle Watch, which will commence as soon as the turtle hatchlings emerge and are ready for imprinting on the beach. Individuals should contact the park's recording at 933-8175 for information concerning the program. The recording will state whether a release or program is to be scheduled for the coming day.

Says Chief Naturalist Whistler, "We encourage all visitors in the surrounding community along with those in the park to visit and enjoy these presentations anytime throughout the summer."

942 Texas youths will attend Boys State at University of Texas this month

AUSTIN — Nine hundred forty-two Texas high school juniors will converge on Austin and assemble on the campus of the University of Texas June 5 for the 42nd session of American Legion Boys State, State Commander Lee Guy of Breckenridge announced.

The Boys State delegates will arrive in Austin on Saturday, June 5, and begin registration at 1:30 p.m in Jester Center. That evening the new citizens of Boys State will attend their first meeting in their assigned mythical Boys State City to start the week-long program that teaches responsibilities of citizenship in an actual "Learn By Doing" type of workshop.

The political caucuses and conventions of Boys State are as exciting as any in real life. The secret ballot of the general election instructs the young citizens in the finer arts of being a gracious winner and a good loser as they learn from their experiences of campaigning.

The 942 boys will be housed in 21 Boys State Cities with each city further divided into two precincts, one for the Federalist and one for the Nationalist political party. They will run for office or work for appointments as they organize city, county and state governments. Climax of their effort is the election of a Boys State Governor, a Legislature, Supreme Court and other state officers.

Jack W. Flynt II of Lubbock American Legion Post 575 is chairman/assistant director of this year's program.

"Boys State is one of the outstanding youth training programs of the American-ism Commission of the American Legion," Commander Guy stated. "Not only do the youths learn more about the functions of government but they also see the importance of the role played by each good citizen in discharging his basic citizenship responsibilities in voting. They discover that each individual citizen is an integral part of, and responsible for, the character and success of his government."

On Friday, June 11, the citizens of Boys State will visit the State Capitol and actually sit in chairs of the office to which they were elected and mythically run the state government for one day.

Boys State enrollment for Texas this year brings the total to 25,705 high school juniors who have attended in the past four decades, since 1940, when Boys State was first inaugurated in Texas.

WEIGHT LOSS DISCUSSION

In response to many inquiries, on Wednesday, June 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the office of J. Curtic Kovacs, M.D., P.A. Hwy. 35N and Airport Rd., Dr. Kovacs will present recent medical advances in weight loss.

Key Allegro resident found dead in home

Alfred Harold Crossett, 69, of 14 Jamaica, Key Allegro, was found dead in the shower at his residence about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 2, the victim of a single gunshot to the head from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Crossett's widow told deputies she left the house about 9 a.m. Wednesday and when she returned home, she found a note, apparently from Crossett, telling her to get someone to remove his remains from the downstairs shower.

Deputies responding to the call found the body half in and half out of the shower. Entry and exit wounds were reported under the victim's right jaw and at the top of the head.

The body was taken to Marshall Funeral Home and was subsequently reported taken out of town for burial. As of Thursday afternoon, no inquest had been held in the man's death.

Deputies reported Crossett was a terminal cancer patient and said death appeared to be self-inflicted.

Troy Casterline arrested

Deamus Troy Casterline was released on three bonds of $500 each after being charged with public intoxication, disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, reckless conduct and possession of marijuana.

The incident occurred about 7:15 p.m. May 27 at the youth's residence on Griffith Road.

Jeep top taken

Thieves netted an $1,800 fiberglass Jeep top and speaker in a theft on an area beach and took fishing gear in a burglary in Aransas County recently.

The Jeep top and speaker were reported taken during a two-hour period Sunday, May 30, from a Jeep owned by Laura Bates of Medina. Bates told deputies she left the vehicle on the beach south of Hopper's Landing unattended and unlocked and when she returned two hours later, she found the top removed and it and the speakers missing.

A fishing rod valued at $50 and a rod and reel valued at $20 were taken when the residence of Weldon Nabors was burglarized sometime between May 1 and May 28.

Entry was gained into the mobile home after the rear window was broken out.

Texas A&I news

KINGSVILLE — Joseph Walter Barlass, Donna Gay Janota and Tracy Lynn Sparkman are among 131 students listed this spring semester on the Texas A & I University Dean's List.

Dean's List students must have at least a 3.65 (out of a possible 4.0) grade point average for all work completed during the semester with at least 15 semester hours completed.

KINGSVILLE — John Daniel Jr., Texas A&I University sophomore from Corpus Christi, has been named "student of the year" by the University's speech communication, theater arts and journalism department.

Other recipients include graduate students Dolores Godinez of Mathis and Kingsville's Janet C. Taylor and seniors Betsy Gorton of Rockport and Victor Salazar of Kingsville.

University Theater Outstanding Service Awards were presented to Kingsville's Brian Sanders and Sandra Galvan of San Benito, both sophomores, and Randall Christilles, La Coste junior.

Consumers can beat the heat this summer

Consumers can get more from their "beat-the-summer-heat" dollar. Take some simple, no-cost steps immediately to maximize cooling.

Raise the air-conditioner to the highest comfort level possible. This will reduce energy consumption from three to 10 percent for each degree the thermostat is raised.

When it's excessively hot outdoors, turn the thermostat up even higher to keep from overworking the air conditioner.

Greatest efficiency results when a difference of no more than 15 to 20 degrees is maintained between inside and outside temperature.

Fans, used either by themselves or with air conditioning, can enhance summer comfort while saving energy.

For every dime it costs to operate a one-ton air conditioner, a fan costs less than a nickel.

Fans won't make any change in the room's actual temperature, but the constant breeze they provide will make you 'feel' much cooler.

In fact, set the air conditioner at 82 degrees F., use a fan to circulate the air and experience the same comfort as if the air conditioner were set at 74 degrees F.

Windows and glass areas transmit most of the radiant heat they are exposed to. So block out heat on those sides of the house that get direct sun exposure. Draw shades or draperies on the east side in the morning and on the west side in the afternoon to reduce the heat load the air conditioner must remove.

Since dust-clogged filter restricts air flow and makes the machine work harder, change it frequently.

Of course, there are energy-saving features you can add which do cost money. You can view these steps as "investments," because they will result in sizeable long-term energy benefits:

•Adequately insulate floors, walls and attic space.

•Weatherstrip doors and windows and caulk cracks to reduce air infiltration.

•Exterior sun-control devices, such as awnings, shutters, and reflective film to protect windows and glass areas.

•Properly sized air-conditioning equipment with a high-efficiency rating, and

Austin planning a fun-filled summer

A new calendar of events for summer activities in Austin has just been released by the Austin Chamber of Commerce, Tourism Department. The Calendar, entitled "Summer Fun for Everyone", gives the name, date, place, and cost of almost 200 events throughout the summer.

The first listing is "Summer Hillside Concert" which is June 1 in one of the public parks. This concert is outdoors and is free. During June, there are six other concerts and performances, free and outdoors, in various city parks.

Symphony Square is a special outdoor theatre in downtown Austin. The ampitheatre is surrounded by three restored historical buildings. The stone and earth seating area is tiered, and separated from the stage by Waller Creek. On Saturday evenings, performers will entertain under the title "Catch a Rising Star." Sunday evenings are devoted to the Classical Sunset Series and every Wednesday morning is children's day at Symphony Square. Costs vary from $2.50 to $6.

During June, four different live dramatic productions are scheduled at St. Edwards University and Zachary Scott Theatres. Five nationally known entertainers such as Kenny Rogers and John Denver will be in Austin in June.

The Austin Summer Calendar also contains information on area rodeos and festivals. June rodeos will be held at Lakeway, Llano and Georgetown. Some of the festivals listed are the Peach Jamboree, Great Llano Chilifest, Fritztown 4-Wheeling Dutchman Weekend and the State Arts and Crafts Fair.

For a free copy of this calendar, write the Austin Chamber of Commerce at: Summer Fun, P.O. Box 1967, Austin, TX 78767.

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.

He sold very good hot dogs.

He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.

He stood on the side of the road and cried:

"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"

And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him out.

But then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?

There's a big depression.

The foreign situation is terrible.

The domestic situation is worse."

Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.

And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.

"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

S.S. DISCOVERY

Donna Bolton

Welcome Aboard

S.S. Discovery is in full sail, with plenty of estate sale items, arts and crafts and gifts and collectables to sell.

Owned by Seymour and Gladys Leff and managed by Donna Bolton, the ship-shape shop is located at Highway 35 and Shaver Road across from City-by-the-Sea.

A little bit of everything can be found at the shop, including old and new furniture, all in good shape. Tables, chairs, couches, end tables and other furniture and accessories can be found.

Some small appliances, craft items and knick-knacks are in abundance, too. Says manager Bolton, "Sometime people come just looking for a small knick-knack and they end up with a larger piece of furniture."

Prices on most items vary according to the piece itself, but everything is reasonable. Linens and sheets are on sale, sheets for $2, towels for $1 and 75 cents for face towels. Bedspreads can be found for $7 or $8.

Business hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m.-6 p.m. and 1-6 p.m. on Sunday.

So, come aboard and make your own discovery of the values at S.S. Discovery.

"PORTABLE WRECKERS FOR SALE"
How much money did you lose last year because you did not have a wrecker for your business???? Probably a lot!!! The reason you didn't have one is probably due to the extremely high cost; [approximately $25,000 to $40,000]. Today however there is a new wrecker available that will begin putting more money making potential in your back pocket immediately, and the cost is only $4,000!!! The best part about it is that it can pay for itself in a very short period of time. Why not give it a try??? [We also need a few select distributors for this revolutionary new product!!!] For more info, write: Texas Wholesale Wrecker Distributors, 3606 Hialeah Dr., Arlington, Texas 76016.

Four plead guilty in district court cases

Four persons pleaded guilty to charges brought against them in district court Tuesday, June 1 — and a capias warrant was issued on another man who failed to appear in court because he reportedly escaped while being transported to Galveston.

The capias warrant was issued against Tomas De La Garza, scheduled to appear in Judge Rachel Littlejohn's 156th District Court in the Aransas County Courthouse on charges of burglary of a house and rape with enhancement. Bond against De La Garza was increased to $100,000.

A probated sentence was given to Richard N. Watkins who pleaded guilty to a charge of rape of a child. The sentence was originally set at 10 years in the Texas Department of Corrections (TDC) then probated.

Freda Gail Johnson, a.k.a. Freda Gail Wilhoite, pleaded guilty to a charge of felony theft with enhancement and was sentenced to three years in the TDC.

A three-year sentence was also given to Johnson after she pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery.

Jose Luis Perez Garcia pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated assault. The charge, originally a felony, was reduced to a misdemeanor and Garcia was sentenced to one year in the Aransas County Jail, with sentence being probated, and a $1,000 fine.

Two trials, those of Andrew L. Deason III, charged with unlawful delivery of cocaine, and Camilo G. Romero, charged with rape, were reset for 9:30 a.m. Monday, June 28.

Traffic accidents mar holiday weekend

Four traffic accidents kept police busy Memorial weekend but no injuries were reported and tickets were issued in only two of the incidents, according to reports.

Gary Neal Williamson of Houston was ticketed for no driver's license and no proof of liability insurance after he reportedly clipped a parked pickup while backing from a bait stand in Rockport Harbor. That accident occurred about 11:05 a.m. Sunday, May 30.

And also Sunday, James H. DeAtley of Victoria was ticketed for passing in a no passing zone after his car was in collision with a car driven by Elaine LeBlanc Vandeveer of Rockport. Both vehicles were northbound in Rahl, at the Maple intersection, at the time.

Visual obstruction was blamed for a third accident that occurred Sunday when cars driven by Anthony S. Thorne of Palm Harbor and Robert O. Dosch of Houston were in collision.

That accident occurred about 11:50 p.m. on Water Street about 100 feet north of Market. Police said Dosch pulled onto the shoulder of the road to let another vehicle pass and was pulling back onto the roadway when he clipped Thorne's car.

In one accident Friday, May 28, cars driven by Tracy Kent Wells and Irma Riojas Salinas, both of Rockport, were in collision on Liberty about 23 feet west of Live Oak about 4:05 p.m.

Local Chamber calls for Malaquite pavilion restoration

The Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce, along with the cities of Rockport and Fulton and a number of other organizations, has voiced its opposition to the National Park Service's handling of the Malaquite Beach Pavilion on Padre Island.

Last December, the Park Service, the division of the United States Department of the Interior in charge of the Padre Island National Seashore, proposed to tear down the beach pavilion, which had sustained damage during Hurricane Allen.

In the time allotted by law for public comment, the Corpus Christi Tourist Bureau and various private individuals voiced opposition to the plan.

The Park Service's response to the situation was a recent decision not to tear down the pavilion but to leave it in its damaged condition.

Chamber of Commerce member Jerry Beattie, also a director of the Corpus Christi Tourist Bureau, explains, "They decided to just let the place die a natural death. We didn't like that approach."

The Tourist Bureau has again come out in opposition to the Park Service plan and according to Beattie, is "only one of many" organizations doing so.

The Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce, the City of Rockport and the City of Fulton have each sent letters of protest to the Park Service.

The letter from the Chamber begins "This is to advise that the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce is opposed to the recommendation of not restoring the pavilion at Malaquite Beach on the Padre Island National Seashore to its pre-Hurricane Allen condition. Furthermore, we believe it should maintained properly in the future."

According to Beattie, the pavilion is used primarily by tourists — "7,000 of them used the pavilion last year —" and for that reason, many area residents are not concerned with its demise.

"This whole thing has been kept real quiet. That's the problem — local people just don't use it as much as the outside tourists. You can see why the more tourist-oriented businesses are interested in keeping it open," he said.

Beattie added that the Corpus Christi Tourist Bureau has formed a special committee to deal with the Park Service and their management of the pavilion.

The Park Service has designated June 6 as the deadline for comment on their latest decision.

Letters of comment can be mailed to William M. Lukens, Superintendent, United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service, Padre Island National Seashore, 9405 South Padre Island Drive, Corpus Christi, TX 78418.

said he had a dragline and would be able to pull the pilings.

In other business McKnight said he had revised the plans to add new boat stalls in the Rockport boat basin and he said the permit application was ready to be submitted. The Navigation District has been struggling for some time in an effort to add about 32 new boat stalls to the Rockport Harbor.

Under new business the commissioners voted to give Don Douglas — builder of the condominiums on Key Allegro — a 30-year lease and allow him to assign adjoining boat slips to condominium purchasers.

They also gave Phil Hill permission to extend his present pier at 19 Riviera on Key Allegro because of a shoaling that keeps Hill from putting his boat in the slip in its present configuration.

The ACND commissioners also approved a new 30-year lease to Bill Johnson, owner of Fulton Boat Yard in Cove Harbor.

Johnson submitted a letter to the board saying he planned to make about $300,000 in improvements to the leased property and expects to hire about 75 new employees.

Maguglin made a motion that the lease be granted. Commissioner Hillis Dominguez seconded the motion and it was passed with Commissioner Holman abstaining.

After the board approved the lease Johnson appoached the table and addressed the commissioners, saying that this board and the one before it has done a good job and if it wasn't for the members of the ACND having the foresight to build Cove Harbor, "The area would still be a swamp and would belong to the environmentalists."

fishing approximately 40 miles southeast of Ocean City, MD., the "Kokina" took on water and sank. AJM alleges that the reason for the sinking was defective work in the propeller guards and hull and that the boat was, in fact, defective in design, materials and workmanship.

AJM is asking for an award from the court of $100,000 in damage to the vessel and $60,000 in loss of time and income as a result of the sinking.
