DON'T TRUST INSTINCTIVE PREJUDICES

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

We never admit that we are prejudiced. We say we dislike this, that or the other person, and set ourselves up in judgment presumably for the shortcoming or character lack of his own.

All the while, most likely, the trouble is with us. For no reason at all we make it plain that we have no use for him, and take every opportunity to shout to our friends that there must be something terribly wrong with John Smith so thoroughly incur our dislike and distrust.

Very likely John Smith is a likable and guileless sort of a chap who can't for the life of him understand what he has done to make us treat him so casually. If we were to take the trouble to know him a little better, very likely we would be ashamed of the instinct that has led us astray.

Think how often it has happened in your life, this snap judgment of people that proved to be wrong upon closer acquaintance. Rarely do we dislike people after we know them well. We may not approve of them thoroughly—we may question the things that they do, and the things that they say, but even so we lose that childish trait of transferring our dislike of an opinion to the person who holds it, after we know him well enough to call him friend.

We do not realize what an immature thing it is at best, this business of announcing that we like this of that person or that we dislike him. Big people with big interests who are doing big things in the world have learned early to separate their dislike of a course of action from the person who pursues it, of their disapproval of an opinion from the person who holds that opinion.

They know how silly and futile it is to harbor a grudge against the man who does not agree with them, and make a personal issue of it.

Political enemies meet amicably in a social way, rival heads of big business do not personally discredit each other. Religion and science, those realms so full of diverse opinions and differently construed knowledge—what progress would they make if their grins at their heads turned its power and insight into personal animosity toward each other and all who refuse to follow?

Yet we free ourselves from prejudice.

AN IDEA OF YOUR CHARACTER IS REVEALED BY ORDERLINESS

There is no surer key to character than orderliness. Show me a person's room and personal belongings, and I can tell you something of his personality.

Orderliness may, of course, be bought and paid for, but in the average house it is mother's back that bends for every bit of carelessness usually. If each member of the family sees it that his own belongings are kept in place, it takes an infinitesimal fraction of his time and makes housekeeping a far less burdensome thing.

Once I visited in a home where the bought-and-paid-for variety of orderliness prevailed. The house was exquisite and in wonderful taste. Transient servants kept it in a state of perpetual perfection—yet not one person in the entire family made the slightest pretense of being orderly.

The two sons shook their cigars ashes any place it suited them to do so, caramel papers and fluted paper caps of chocolate littered the floor by the time bedtime came. Indeed, the living room was littered unbelievably—everything thrown around, everything out of place.

Those boys now are married; they are on modest salaries, they are without their father's means, and keep so servants. I can guess how their wives must be picking up after them.

A woman had two girls for house guests. Her home in the environs of Philadelphia is one of the country's show places. She and her husband

Author Decries Women's Lack of Charm

Claims That While Modern Girl Was Busy Finding Herself, She Lost Art of Being Lovable

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS

NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—There was never a time in history when women had so much beauty and so little charm according to Margaret Banning, author.

Says she "Beauty is a drug on the market. So too are spectacular feminine careers—women who can fight their own way and pay their own checks—women who can hold their own in arguments and burst into print about their emotions and sex experiences—women who can do everything but fascinate men."

"Where," she asks, "is the charm of the woman who could launch a thousand ships—or even one?"

In discovering themselves getting the vote being modern and uninhibited Mrs. Banning believes women have lost something in the shuffle that is infinitely more precious quality of loveliness some potent lure that brought men to their feet.

"Nervous and Irritable" Quite frankly Mrs. Banning who is a prominent club woman in Duluth, and intensely interested in politics as well as in writing, went back to Vassar College her own alma mater, and accused college women of being lacking in charm.

"Women lack poise," she says. "They have become fighters. They argue too much and resist too tenaciously. They are overly conscientious about living—nervous and irritable about it. They take their bumps hard and are constantly on the lookout for more like fear-mongers. They are glittering and hard, still and articulate, but in their frantic getting they have lost the art of accepting gracefully and letting men do things."

Mrs. Banning questions our hawking of husbands, fathers and sweet hearts.

"The truth is we don't need men as we once did for support, companionship or leadership. We have practically reduced man to a checkpayer, and that is less obligatory than it was once with women making as much money as men.

"Tastefully, we show men how unnecessary they are, and drive them from us. Someday there will be a completely different type of man to deal with, one that may not be nearly so chivalrous and generous as today's model, and it will be our own fault. While we were finding ourselves, we lost our lovers. While we were too busy to be charming and lovable, we lost the art."

If the modern woman is disillusioned, she begs us to remember that women probably have been disillusioned in ages before, but they were

are collectors of unusual furniture, silver, and rugs. The room she gave her guests was a museum of treasures. She told me of the litter they kept it in until the servants complained. She said the rug was almost ruined with the powder, and cosmetics, dropped on it. She said also that half the things in the room were nearly ruined with powder.

It is to be hoped the visitors will always be fortunate enough to have bought-and-paid-for orderliness. But if they don't, you may well guess the kind of housekeepers they will be.

Margaret Banning

A bit more sporty about it. "And men are even more disillusioned than we," she laughed, "particularly the young men. They probably yearn for the glamorous woman who had charm and grace, even though she may have lacked the brilliancy and surface wit of the modern women."

Prove By Fiction Mrs. Banning recently wrote a novel, "The Women of the Family," in which she showed how a highly intelligent heroine was practically wrecked when she found herself unable to hold her husband.

She believes that the woman who gets everything she wants by her own hard efforts and struggles, finds when it is too late that she would rather be loved and cherished—and supported. While she does not expect to see women go back to the Victorian type, she does believe women should not make their progress at the expense of their charm and their power over men.

"Why," she queries, "sacrifice what has always given us our greatest pleasure?"

COOKING BEANS

Fresh beans and peas should be cooked gently in boiling water with the cover partially off the saucepan to allow the steam to escape.

WITH VEGETABLES

Beet cubes added to the water in which vegetables are cooked gives them a rich satisfying flavor.

KEEPING LETTUCE

Lettuce and asparagus can be kept fresh by standing the root ends in a pan of cold water.

PREVENT WASTE

Cereals spoil very easily, so it is advisable to keep only a small supply on hand and replenish often.

WOOL FOR POLISHING

Use woolen cloths for waxing, oiling or polishing floors. Wash them when they become dirty in boiling water and soda.

NO SUGAR

Never put sugar in prunes. If you cook them slowly they will be quite sweet enough without any sweetener. Prunes and apricots are delicious cooked together, and a few raisins thrown in for good measure add to the flavor.

HELPS TASTE

Ham, corned beef, tongue and all meats that are not to be served hot are all improved if they are allowed to cool in the water in which they are boiled.

USE DEEP FAT

Frying is the least healthful of all methods of cooking and should be employed sparingly. Frying in deep fat is preferable to the ordinary way of using a thin layer of grease.

CARE OF ICE BOXES

Any food spilled in an icebox should be wiped up at once to prevent odor. It should be wiped out weekly with lukewarm water in which borax or soda has been placed.

GIRL IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO TODAY

A little girl some nine or ten years old was run down by an automobile at the intersection of Broadway and Avenue R shortly after noon today, and while there were several witnesses to the accident none of them got the child's name or the names of the three girls who ran over her. Officer Lem Chesher saw the accident, and said it was a case of negligence on the part of the girl driving the car, and she was going at a fair rate of speed and made no attempt to slow up until after she had knocked the child down and the car had passed over her.

There were three girls in the car—all in the front seat, he said. They were driving an Essex car. Officers are trying to locate the child and also those responsible for the accident.

Mr. Chesher instructed the girls to take their victim to a doctor, but at 2:30 in the afternoon no trace had been found of her. She was not taken to a hospital and doctors with downtown offices know nothing of the accident. Mr. Chesher says that it is possible that she was taken home as she was begging to be carried to her mother. Officers are investigating and any information will be appreciated.

Interest At High Pitch As Turkey Day Clash Of Aggies And Longhorns Nears; 40,000 Fans Expected At Game

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 15.—With all of the Southwestern conference games played except those scheduled for turkey day, the eyes of Texas are now turned toward the $500,000 memorial stadium in Austin, where the Longhorns and the Aggies will meet in the traditional Thanksgiving game which probably will be seen by a colorful throng of 40,000 people.

Although the Aggies and the Longhorns are both out of the championship fight, interest in this game, which is far more than just a football contest, has not waned in the least. The maroon and orange jerseyed athletes will fight as hard this year in the Thanksgiving game as they did in the championship game. The traditions of the schools, the homecoming events of the two state institutions, the ardent but friendly rivalry, the cadets, the Longhorn and the Aggie bands, the Orange Jackets and the Cowboys and the mammoth crowd all go to make this game the focal point of the college year. It has the same significance to the gridiron in Texas that the world's series has to baseball in the major leagues.

Many Fans Expected At the Thanksgiving game at Austin there will be representatives from virtually every town in Texas. This contest will be a topic of conversation during the next few days from the plains of Dakota to the mountains of North Texas. The big cities, the small towns, the villages, and the country are all interested in this game.

In this battle "dope" means nothing. A history of the games shows that in some years when both A. and M. and Texas had strong seasons, they would flash an offensive line, present a defense on Thanksgiving day that would match that of any team in the south. The players achieve superhuman heights in this game, and the unexpected is the order of the day. Furthermore, it is not infrequent that the team with the better record during the season is defeated in this memorable contest. A check of the last six seasons, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924 and 1925, shows that the team that was picked to win rarely came out of the battle the victor.

Go Contrary to Dope In 1926 both schools had good teams but the Aggies were the favorite to win. During the first half of the game the contest ran true to "dope," but in the last few minutes of play Texas scored a touchdown and won 7 to 2.

In 1921 Texas had a "wonder" team, with such stars as Tom Ivens, "Rats" Wilson, Key Ham, George McCullough, "Swede" Swenson, "Punk" Stacey and many others. The Longhorn were picked to win by at least 14 points. But the game ended 6 to 0, and the Aggies won a moral victory. Texas' great talent went for naught against the determined Aggies, playing on their own Kyle field. Up to this time A. and M. had never lost a game to Texas on Kyle field, and there seemed to be something about the Kyle field jinx that the Longhorns could not overcome with brilliant football players.

Coach Berry Whitaker met Coach Dana X. Bible on Thanksgiving day for the last time in 1922. Texas had an even better team in 1922 than in 1921. Coach Whitaker had so many star players that the great Oscar Eckhardt was forced to remain on the side lines. Earlier in the year a rival coach admitted said "At Texas it is just a fight to see who will make the team." That year the Longhorns virtually slaughtered the Aggie team while the Aggies barely nosed out a victory. Using this game as a comparison, fans said the Longhorns, playing on their home grounds, should win by three or four touchdowns. The entire University of Texas student body expected such a decisive victory. The Aggies came to Austin with the banners reading "There Shall Be No Regrets." And there were no regrets, for A. and M. the Aggies winning 14 to 7.

Runs to Form in 1923 The year of 1923 saw the Thanksgiving game run nearer to form than usual. This season marked the coming of E. J. "Doc" Stewart, who had been coaching the little Clemson college eleven in North Carolina. Coach Stewart had started the southwest by outplaying and winning from Vanderbilt, and his team had a record of no defeats for the year. However, the Longhorns had looked poor in their game with Baylor at Waco, which resulted in a tie. The Aggies had not won a conference game, and A. and M. had one of its poorest teams in several years. The Longhorns were heavy favorites to win. The University of Texas won the game, 6 to 0, but only after the Aggie quarter back had fumbled a punt and Lane Tynes picked up the ball and dashed for a touchdown. The Aggies were not past the 50 yard line during the game and failed to make a first down. But by remarkable fighting they held the greatest team in the history of the University of Texas to 6 points.

Next Year Sees Reversal The next year saw a reversal of affairs. The Aggies had a splendid team, and had been rolling along at a merry clip. The Longhorns had gone through with one of their poorest seasons in history. On Thanksgiving day the Longhorns had won but one conference game, and had played good football only against Florida. The Aggies had showed their great power against Sewanee and all other opponents. But to the surprise of all, the Texas lads snapped out of it in this game and upset the "dope" when "Stookie" Allen nabbed a pass and raved for a touchdown. The game ended, Texas 7, A. and M. 0.

Last year the Thanksgiving game determined the championship. Both the Longhorns and Aggies had not lost a conference game on Thanksgiving morning. Critics generally believed that Texas had the superior team, and many picked the Longhorns to win. But two consecutive defeats at the hands of the Longhorns were too many for the fighting Aggies. Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Florida and Littlefield will meet in Littlefield on Friday to settle the Class B championship of the north part of the South Plains district. Neither club has lost a class B game this season.

A good crowd of Whitefield fans will no doubt accompany their club to Littlefield on that day.

Only one game remains in front of the Ponies for a clean slate for the year. The Thanksgiving game with the Devil Frogs in Dallas promises to be the most grueling grid performance for the celebrated day.

And the intense rivalry with its touch of color and atmosphere will give a wonderful display for thousands of fans.

How about that special train to Amarillo for the Westerners? Let's show Amarillo that the town is square by helping the local high school graduates and accompanying the bunch to the scene of the Sandie-Lubbock game in Amarillo Saturday.

A reasonable rate has been quoted to us for the train—now if there are plenty of people who desire to ride the train to Amarillo on that day—there will be no trouble to get the train.

Coach "Duckie" Allen lost his fight with the Westerners Saturday but admitted to the fact that the Lubbock crew was much stronger. Allen said, "You just beat us and beat us bad, in as clean a fought game as we have played this year, good sportsmanship all the way, we have no alibis."

"Big O" and "Hug" are working with the Matadors in preparation for the Yellow Jackets. The Jackets have an awful sting—and penetrate fast into the skin—28 to 0 has not been forgotten by the "bull-fighters."

The Brownwood club was the only team to put over a victory on the Matadors last season.

"Big O" Eckhardt, mentor of the W. T. S. T. C. Buffs, was in Lubbock Saturday and officiated the Lubbock-Devil Frogs game. He stated to Free-land at the time he was here that he could promise but one thing for sure and that was "the bunch would wrap and scrap Tech hard."

The winner of the Floydada-Littlefield clash will meet the Baton Theres winner of the South part of the conference for the district championship. Miller's crew is a winning combination. It has a fighting eleven and one that will battle a hard game.

PIRATES UNDER BUSH SHOULD BE COLORFUL TEAM Aggressive Leader Donnie Bush, recently appointed manager of the Pittsburgh Nationals, is a player and plenty of color. If the Pirates catch his fighting spirit, it will be an interesting team to watch.

Aggressive and courageous, Bush as a player was a veritable peppercorn. He kept up a constant chatter to his pitcher and the rest of the infield, and at times didn't overlook the opposition.

Bush in the early days of his American league career was perhaps 25 pounds lighter than he is today. It was always funny to see him, in all seriousness, get after some of the six-foot members of the Tigers' pitching staff, among them Bill Donovan, Eddie Willett, Eddie Summers and George Mullin.

He feared no base runner. The harder they came into second the more deftly he seemed to put the ball on them.

Skull Practice Of a nervous temperament, Bush as a player never polished the conference. It is customary to hold prior to each game.

With the ball players these conferences are facetiously referred to as "skull practice." At such meetings the strength and weakness of the opposition is thoroughly discussed.

Penn's Eleven

K. R. WESTON

Despite defeat at the hands of Notre Dame, Captain K. R. Weston of Penn State is confident that he will lead his team to a successful season. Weston has been playing a fine game at all times.

Penn State, while green, shows much promise. Coach Hugo Bedenk, now in point for Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh, two teams he is very eager to beat.

Before he tried to escape from third one day on a home fly to Tex Speaker. He was a rather easy out at the plate. As a matter of fact he was out so far that Bush just couldn't believe it was true.

Coach "Duckie" Allen lost his fight with the Westerners Saturday but admitted to the fact that the Lubbock crew was much stronger. Allen said, "You just beat us and beat us bad, in as clean a fought game as we have played this year, good sportsmanship all the way, we have no alibis."

NATIONAL LOOP STRONG FOR USE OF RESIN, CLAIM

HEYDLER COMMENTS ON SPECIAL RATE OF $3.30 ROUND TRIP OFFERED BY SANTA FE

(By Special Service) ASHVILLE, N. C., Nov. 15.—The National League is entirely satisfied with results obtained during the 1926 baseball race from the use of resin permitted its pitchers. John Heydler, president of the senior circuit, during a visit to this city, outlined results obtained from use of resin by its pitchers.

"Resin helped the National League wonderfully," said Heydler. "I cannot say whether it improved our pitching or whether it cut down our hitting, but it did eliminate a terrible lot of useless wrangling between rival batters and the opposing pitcher, and the umpire."

"Not once all season long ere my umpires forced to halt a game and inspect a ball. No charges were flung at a rival pitcher by the batsman, and nothing like cheating or using anything like a corked ball."

"Before we passed the resin rule, games often were held up several times in an afternoon. The batter, missing a pitched ball, would get the umpire to look at the ball. Then those disgusting rows would take place. They didn't help baseball; they looked unbecomingly on the game."

"We had none of that last year. For that very reason use of resin helped our league. It speeded up the game by eliminating useless delay and arguments. We are perfectly satisfied with the resin ruling and we're only sorry we did not adopt it a long while ago."

Heydler then was asked whether the ball in use during the 1926 playing season was livelier or deader than the ball in use during the two or three previous years.

He was prompt to reply: "We had the best ball now I think we ever had. Of course, perhaps it isn't quite as lively as some of them we've used in other seasons. But it's lively enough."

"When men like Fournier, Ruth, Meusel and Hornby get hold of that ball, they get some terrific drives out of it. But I'm satisfied that the ball of 1926 is the best ball we've ever had in my years of connection with the game."

In a talkative mood, the National League head was asked if football's growth or the increase in popularity of the game was eating into baseball's popularity.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR AMARILLO GAME IS LIKELY

SPECIAL RATE OF $3.30 ROUND TRIP OFFERED BY SANTA FE

Due to the interest being shown in the Panhandle championship of the Class A schools, which is between Lubbock high school and the Amarillo high school eleven many of the Westerners are wanting a special train to Amarillo on Saturday.

The general feeling of the student body and faculty of the school is quite favorable to the train; an exact count will be made on the matter in the high school by Wednesday.

The Santa Fe Railway company has made a price of $3.30 for roundtrip ticket for the occasion. This price is cheaper than one way fare and is much cheaper than one could make the trip via automobile.

The game will mean much to the Westerners and a great representation is expected to attend. The high school band and pep squad had already made preparations for attending the contest, and is quite probable that these two bodies will board the special train.

If any one wants particulars of the trip and further information phone 14 or 15.

PADDOCK UP AGAIN BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The amateur status of Charley Paddock came under scrutiny today at the time that the convention of the amateur athletic union considered ratifying the Californians' spring application for a world record of 9.5 seconds for 100 yards.

It seems that Coach Zippie of Illinois insists the deception is brought about by the elbow pads used by the Penn. squad, rather than the indeterminate passing of the ball. He claims the pads are similar to a football in size and the leather of the same color.

The contention made that by following the arms across the chest in a certain manner, it makes it appear as if every member of the team had a football tucked away in his arm.

Quaker jerseys are black, forming a fine background for the yellow elbow pads, thereby increasing the deception.

Site Selected For Pro Golf Tourney

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The professional golfers' association voted today to hold its 1927 championship tournament at the Cedar Creek country club of Dallas early next November.

Delegates from 22 districts of the association gathered here for the three-day annual meeting of the organization, participated in the balloting on the selection of the course, which will take the title event to the south for the first time.

The championship was staged this year at the Salisbury country club near Garden City, N. J. and was won by Walter Hagen.

It is said that the Penn innovation has been sanctioned by the rules committee, which would put the stamp of legality on the stunt.

Without desiring to take a definite stand in the matter, on the theory that the Penn coaches would not resort to unsportsmanlike tactics, it certainly seems as if the schemes as worked would tend to make it far more difficult to locate the ball carrier.

However, the idea of using certain color pads to make it harder for the opposition to pick out the man actually carrying the ball is not entirely new. It has been done before very successfully.

A number of years ago, when the Carlisle Indians trotted on the field at the Harvard stadium to meet the "Crimson eleven," Coach Glenn Warner had pads on the jerseys that closely resembled a football in size and color.

On offense the Indians so carried their arms that an optical illusion resulted. It seemed if Carlisle had eleven men, each with a football tucked under his arm.

The Harvard coach immediately offered strenuous objection, and I am told that Coach Warner had the pads removed at once.

It was the same Glenn Warner who years previous had a trick stunt of obtaining the ball under the back of a player's jersey, then having all the Indians drop their arms to the side and the man with the ball ran for a touchdown.

Billy Evans Says

Football is getting to be a game of tricks, if we are to believe some of the coaches. There is no telling how far the camouflage is to go.

The hidden ball strategy of Pennsylvania started the mystery stuff. Coaching staffs of the future probably will have hypnotists, magicians and psycho-analysis to add to the deception of play.

So far this season Penn has mystified the opposition with its hidden ball attack. The ball is passed around considerably in the backfield and the opposition have had much trouble picking out the ball toter.

Gridiron Strategy It seems that Coach Zippie of Illinois insists the deception is brought about by the elbow pads used by the Penn. squad, rather than the indeterminate passing of the ball. He claims the pads are similar to a football in size and the leather of the same color.

Minstrel Staff From the Pacific coast comes a new form of strategy that makes interesting reading, even should it prove the bunk.

Howard Jones, resourceful coach of the University of Southern California, is credited with the latest form of camouflage, something entirely new.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING UP and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—I don't pretend to understand the geographic psychology of styles. New York shops love to announce that such-and-such a hat comes from Paris and such-an-such a garment comes from London.

Going up to a window I was bowled over by a great display of wide-brimmed hats from the great open spaces of Montana, while a huge window card advertised "Chapeau au Tom Mix."

The latest links a portion of her entertainment with the financial success of that heroic veteran, "Able's Irish Hero." Anne Nichols who wrote it, and has retired on her income, was able to supply the quently bed upon which Marie slept. Also a $2500 tablecloth came out of Able's profits.

It is printed daily and quotes the day's prices in Scotch, gin, champagne, wine and liquor. Delivery is guaranteed and the card reads, "Goods guaranteed or money refunded. Confidential—Caterer."

Broadway at last is learning to recognize the sound of the curfew. And there is much waiting and gnashing of teeth. Broadway is not a highway easily harnessed to regularity.

During the winter months, so says the new city edict, the naughty night clubs and cabarets must close at 1 o'clock. The prophets continue to insist that it will be a good trick if they do it.

Already various methods of evaluation are planned. New clubs blossomed out in the guise of private clubs with memberships. "Members" must hand cards at the door, but once the places begin operation, these cards will doubtless be as easy to obtain as Scotch highballs. This, of course, will add to the expense of the average visitor since an entrance card will have considerable sale value.

WASHINGTON LETTER

MRS. WILSON APPEARS AT TEA BUT THAT DOESN'T MEAN SHE'S BACK IN SOCIETY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson back in Washington society? The capital has been asking itself this question ever since her appearance at a tea given just before election by the Women's Democratic Club, of which she is honorary president.

It was a real sensation for nobody ever lived in stricter retirement than Mrs. Wilson has done since leaving the White House. Her husband's illness kept her in seclusion up to the time of his death. The period since then has been one of mourning, even informally, from personal friends, entertained none at all, and when she did venture out, went in a closed automobile and took the utmost pains to escape attention.

It was a social tea as well as a political one. It was an invitation affair and a very swell one. In effect, it amounted to a reception for Mrs. Wilson. At any rate, social Washington is wondering if Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is a part of it once more it's intensely interested.

Mrs. Wilson, to tell the truth, never appeared particularly fond of society. She never went in for it before her marriage to President Wilson, she shared only in the most formal way in the necessary White House social activities, and since her husband's retirement and death, has seemed actually to shrink from contact with any but her closest intimates, of whom she has but the merest handful.

Whether interested or not in society, Mrs. Wilson does take a very obvious interest in politics. She's a regular attendant in the gallery either of the senate or the house of representatives when congress is in session. That has been about the only place where it was possible to see her. She steps directly from the door of her house into an automobile, and at the capital, directly out of her automobile into the midst of a crowd of policemen and attendants, who guard her so jealously to the waiting elevator that it's hard to catch a glimpse of her.

Mrs. Coolidge herself has nothing like so formidable an escort. Mrs. Wilson enjoys listening to congressional proceedings, which are not enjoyable, as a regular thing to anybody who takes no interest in politics.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

Red Shouldered Hawk

A GOOD MEMBER OF A BAD FAMILY

BY ARTHUR N. PACK President, American Nature Ass'n. It is the present custom to regard all hawks as destructive, and birds to be destroyed whenever possible. This practice is founded mainly on prejudice, based on the fact that a few of the species live mainly on smaller birds.

General condemnation of hawks is unjust. A few hawks are destructive; some have habits that are mainly friendly to man, from their constant destruction of man's rodent enemies. All species are interesting in many ways.

Among the more interesting and beneficial species, the red-shouldered hawk stands high in the list. He should be called the singing hawk, especially in the nesting season, for singing is then his most characteristic attribute.

It is his custom to return each spring to the scene of his last year's nesting, usually some grove of lofty trees commanding a fruitful hunting ground.

His winging is no commonplace affair. High in the air he circles, uttering his screaming notes, some of which are so like those of the blue-jay that the less discerning of that tribe must often be deceived.

Suddenly he swoops toward earth, now varying his repertoire with a melody of music. Again he mounts and circles and dives and suddenly perches beside the home of last year, his wings a-flutter, his throat tremulous with his serenade. "What lady could resist such art?"

MONOTONY OF MACHINES IS HEALTH PROBLEM

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. The development of great manufacturing plants in America has given rise to specialists in manufacturing processes whose tasks are seldom varied.

The mechanic or carpenter of an early day was likely to vary his work many times in the course of a week. In modern industry, one man may spend all of his time performing a process as simple as the inserting of a bolt and the fastening on to it of a nut.

This process repeated thousands of times day after day seems to have a special effect on the nervous system of the person concerned, and thereby to bring about unsatisfactory results eventually in the work itself.

An Egg Smelter There was for instance in one British bakery a girl whose duty it was to smash each egg that was opened before it was used. After one hour of this employment, the girl found it impossible to continue the work.

Another factor in monotony is that the worker seldom sees the completed product and has no creative interest in the employment. A worker who feels the monotony is likely to seize every opportunity for leaving his work and to become as unutilized as possible without losing the job.

Others develop sensations of tiredness and complain of vague pains in the eyes, head or stomach. Still others become sufficiently disturbed to have all of the symptoms of mental disorder.

The development of mechanical tools for machinery, the shortening of working hours, promotion with change of occupation and the use of rest periods tend to mitigate the difficulty.

It is, of course, possible that the suggestion of monotony tends to make the worker dissatisfied and thereby to cause a cycle which intensifies the effects of simple repetition of some easy task. The element of compulsion tends to intensify monotony and fatigue.

Constant nagging by an over-anxious foreman or forewoman and bad hygienic conditions soon create a feeling of strain or worry, and even the most interesting work becomes irksome and burdensome.

The mental atmosphere, if free and interesting, compensates for a lack of interest in the job. Alternation of employment is not popular in factories, either with workmen or with foremen.

It is an interesting fact that the man seeking does not complain of monotony nearly so much as women who have recently come into industry.

REMEDY FOR TOO MUCH COTTON IN GROWERS' HANDS While we are searching around for artificial means to mend the fences of agriculture we might profitably study the great Southern editor and orator, who died thirty-seven years ago. The advice he gave to the farmers of his native Georgia and the South many years ago is as sound today as it was when uttered.

One particular gem of his has been often republished is of particular significance just now. It applies equally to all sections of any agricultural country, provided the principal money crop of any particular section be substituted for "cotton" where it occurs in the original. Gladly said:

"When every farmer in the South shall eat bread from his own fields and meat from his own pastures, and disturbed by no creditor and enslaved by no debt, shall sit among his blooming gardens and orchards and vineyards and dairies and barnyards, plucking his crops to his own wisdom and growing them in independence, making his cotton his clean surplus and selling it in his own time and his own chosen market and not at a master's bidding—getting his pay in cash and not in receipted mortgage that discharges his debt but does not restore his freedom—then shall he be breaking the fullness of our day."—Plainview News.

DAILY MARKET

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK FUTURES
NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady; December 12.51; January 12.52; March 12.73; May 12.84; July 13.14.

NEW ORLEANS FUTURES

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15 (AP)—Cotton opened steady; December 12.51; January 12.52; March 12.73; May 12.84; July 13.14.

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 2 to 5 points, active months showing net losses of 3 to 7 points after the call under southern hedging, liquidation and local selling promoted by relatively easy late cables from Liverpool.

January cables off to 12.50 but there was buying of near-months by spot interest and the market steadied up 4 or 5 points from the lowest before the end of the first hour.

The market was steadier after the initial selling orders had been absorbed. Continued buying of near months by spot houses brokers seemed to bring in a little covering in later months and active months sold about 5 to 9 points not higher before the end of the morning.

At mid-day, January was ruling around 12.62, compared with 12.50, the low level of the morning, and 12.57 at the close of last week.

The early afternoon market was steadier owing to continued demand from spot houses for near months and covering promoted by the apparent absence of selling orders from the south.

January sold up to 12.65, or 8 points net higher, while December was relatively firm, advancing to 12.63 or 14 points above Saturday's closing quotations.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15 (AP)—Cotton opened easy owing to lower cables than due and first trades showed losses of 5 to 9 points. Prices eased off further after the opening call on liquidation, December traded down to 12.48; January to 12.54 and March to 12.68 or 9 to 12 points below Saturday's close.

The general rains indicated by the map and the presence of a tropical disturbance near the Yucatan channel caused shorts to cover near the end of the first half hour and prices rallied 4 to 5 points.

The market improved during the morning on covering by early sellers which was helped by rainy weather and uncertainties attending the tropical disturbance south of the Yucatan channel.

December traded up to 12.54, January to 12.64 and March to 12.74, or 9 to 10 points up from the lows and 2 points down to one up compared with Saturday's close.

The market was quiet with prices 2 to 4 points under the highs. The market improved during the afternoon owing to short covering and scarcity of offering contracts.

Prices for active months made new highs with December at 12.60, January at 12.68 and March at 12.78. Around the middle of the afternoon the market was steady and at or near the highs.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Mixed price movements ushered in the new week in the stock market. Initial price changes, as a rule, were small, with a point gain in Coca Cola and a point loss in Baldwin among the early features.

Coppers pointed upward in further reflection of the recent statistical improvement in the industry. Prices gathered strength as trading progressed with demand embracing a number of the steel, motor, equipment, chemical, copper and chain store issues.

The upturn was accompanied by increased activity with professional traders apparently furnishing most of the buying power. General Motors was quickly run up 1 1/2 points but Dupont, which owns large General Motors holdings and is expected to distribute part of the recent extra cash dividend declared by the latter to its own stock holders, was heavy.

The demand for rails centered at first in Atchafalpa, Rock Island and Frisco companies, each of which were bid up a point before the end of the first half hour. Pullman quickly moved up over four points, Woolworth 2 1/2 and U. S. Steel, American Locomotive, Jordan and U. S. Smelting were among the many issues to sell a point or so higher.

Large dividend and interest payments being distributed today, the demand for funds was heavy, and call money renewed at 4 1/2 per cent. Foreign exchanges opened firm, demand sterling falling above $4.84 1/2 and French francs around 3 1/2 cents.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE
NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP)—Foreign exchanges irregular; Great Britain demand 4.84 1/2; cables 4.85 3/4; 60 day bills on banks 4.80 1/2; France demand 2.24 1/2; cables 2.25; Italy demand 4.10; Belgium 13.93; Germany 23.74 1/2; Tokio 49.06 1/2; Montreal 106.14 1/2.

Grain Market
CHICAGO TRADING
CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Unfavorable crop reports from Northwest Argentina tended to bring about early up turns today in wheat. Advises indicated that cutting of wheat in that district would show considerable damage by frost and drought.

Corn, oats and provisions were firmer, corn opening 1-5c to 1-8c higher, and then continuing to ascend.

FEAR DELAYING PROBE OF RAID OFFICERS SAY

HOUSTON, Nov. 15 (AP)—Fear is handicapping the state and sealing the lips of an eye witness who might identify the participants of the raid last Wednesday night on the Blissett Biskely ranch which resulted in the death of three negroes, officers declared Monday.

Somewhere in the "bottom land" around Clodine and Gaston Station is Frazier Holmes 50 year old slave time "darkey," who was the only occupant of the cottage to be allowed freedom by the white men who fired the place.

Holmes walked out of the cottage into the circle of men lighted by the blaze. He may have seen them well enough to know them, officers say.

Say Won't Accuse White
But officials of Fort Bend county in charge of the investigation predict that the old negro will never take the witness stand and point the finger of guilt against a white man.

Busy Sunday Spent By Police Officers

Members of the police department spent a busy day Sunday and as the result some twenty citizens of this city were asked to "tell it to the judge."

A formidable cause, more trouble than anything else, that "jakes and corn" come in for a close second place. Four drunks paid off today, and several others will appear later to explain their acts.

One vagrant was fined and ordered to move on. Four speeders, and three drivers who insisted on driving over stop signals also paid fines.

By the time all defendants have sounded themselves with the city, approximately 20 fines will have been paid.

Brother Of Catholic Bishop Dies Today

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15 (AP)—John R. Lillis, 59, former member of the board of fire and water commissioners of the city, died here today.

He had been sick about a year. Mr. Lillis was a son of Colonel James Lillis, a railroad contractor, who built many important early day railroad lines in this part of the country.

He was associated with his father in business and later engaged in the manufacture of paving brick at DeGrafter, Mo.

Another brother, Jere, died here last week.

Continuance Sought In Blaffer Oil Suit

AUSTIN, Nov. 15 (AP)—A motion for continuance in the Blaffer suit, involving title to valuable oil land in the Humble field in Harris county was filed by the defense today in the 3rd district court here. The state is seeking title to the land.

Fails To Open Today Kansas City Bank

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Waldo State bank, a small neighborhood institution, failed to open its doors here today.

It was the third bank to close within three days. The Federal Trust company, a down town bank with total assets of $2,000,000 closed Friday and the Terminal Trust company, smaller bank which had part of its cash reserve in the Federal Trust company closed Saturday.

Federal Men Take Up Probe Of Bank

INDEPENDENCE, Kans., Nov. 15 (AP)—Federal authorities took charge in the alleged faked robbery of the Montgomery County National bank of Cherryvale which took place on May 23, and arrested G. C. Robertson, ex-president of the bank as he walked in the corridors of the county court house today for his case to be called on a state charge.

The federal warrant charges violation of the banking laws and conspiracy on three counts. The case in Montgomery county against Robertson has been continued to the May term of court.

Why You Should Own Your Home

By T. B. MUNROE
Director, Celotechnic Institute of America

The home owner occupies an enviable position in the scheme of things. He enjoys the security of the independent and the respect of his community his state and his nation. There is no comparison between the status of the home owner and the renter and there are so many advantages in home ownership over renting that it is hard to believe so many people are listed as renters.

The renter who hangs his hat in temporary quarters is subject to the desires of his landlord and is usually classed as a "floater", whether or not he is one at heart. From the practical side, the most important reason why you should own your home is that it is actually cheaper to own a home than to rent. Thousands of renters do not know this, but it has been proved thousands of times. The family that wants a home badly enough to save $1,000 for an initial payment, can buy a home costing $5,500 in eleven and a half years and save $2400, assuming that they would pay $85 a month rent for a similar home over the same period of time.

Here are the costs during 11 7-12 years of buying and owning on $5,500 home on which $1,000 was the initial payment.

Interest, diminishing annually with principal payments, during period at 6 per cent.....	$ 2923
Taxes at $100 a year, approximately.....	1159
Repairs at $150 per year, approximately.....	1737
Insurance at $25 per year, approximately.....	289
Heat at $100 per year, approximately.....	1159
Interest at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually on original investment of $1,000.....	989
Total cost for 11 7-12 years.....	$ 8247
Cost of Renting Same Home
Payments of $85 per month for 11 7-12 years.....	$11,815
Deduction From Gross Rent
Interest compounded semi-annually on average total amount disbursed each month by owner, in excess of rent, assuming that the renter puts this amount, approximately $21 out at 6 per cent interest each month.....	$ 1,175
Net cost of renting.....	$10,640
Comparison in Dollars and Cents
Total cost of renting for period.....	$10,640
Total cost of owning for period.....	8,247
Total saving by owning.....	2,393
Average saving per month.....	$ 17.22
In owning a home on the above basis, the money distributed each month would be $106. This includes the monthly payment of $75 and the pro-rata share of taxes, insurance, etc., which must be paid in addition and which all together results in $21 more than the rental. However, this is not to be confused with actual cost, as a portion of the monthly payment is applied as a reduction of the principal amount.

Therefore, assuming when renting that you would save this $21 per month and receive interest therefrom, which is rather unlikely as most people have trouble in saving consistently unless forced to do so, you would still save approximately $2,400 actual cost by owning a home.

In the ownership of homes lies the foundation of wealth. The renter rarely saves or invests in other securities, but experience shows that the home owner does. In saving for his home, he has laid a foundation of wealth that he carries throughout his life. He has learned to save and he continues to do so. He sees before his eyes the result of his first attempt to save a considerable sum. He realizes what his effort has brought him and statistics show that from then on, he is usually classed as a good patron of his bank.

The home owner is bound to continually add to the value of his home. He makes additions and improvements, paints a little, plants trees and shrubs and thus increases the equity in his property. The renter has the same leisure hours in which this work could be done, but of course he is not interested in improving something that does not belong to him.

In addition, the home owner secures business opportunities that the renter cannot obtain. He is more likely prospect for loans or a partnership or share in a business. Furthermore, many organizations engaging a new man or promoting an old employe, ask "Do you own your home?" If the answer is yes, the employer knows that this man can be depended upon, that he is not likely to move or change his position. He knows that he must be grounded in the principles of thrift or he would not have been able to secure his home, and this means that he will probably be careful with the firm's funds.

Renters are regarded as floaters and often have little status socially. There is no question but that the home owner enjoys more social prestige than the renter. If you move into a new community and buy your home, no matter how modest, the people living there will feel that you are to be a permanent addition to their community. They will want your co-operation in many civic matters in which your ownership of a home will give you voice, and they will welcome you wholeheartedly.

shape the entire future of your children—make or mar their success. Children who are moved from one rented abode to another are to be pitied, for they grow up without attachment to any particular spot, any particular neighborhood, without any friends that they can know and with whom they can grow up as the years pass. And aside from this is the importance of your children's health. In modern times the renter usually lives in the city in a flat. His children are deprived of fresh air, sunshine and a place in which to run and play. Own your home so your children may be sturdy and grow up into useful citizens.

There is no satisfaction greater than that of making yourself independent, and the first step to real independence is to own your home.

MARIE WILL GO HOME TO SPEND HER CHRISTMAS

ROYAL PARTY TO SAIL FROM NEW YORK ON DECEMBER 11

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Christmas day, the Christmas holiday that brings thoughts of home to millions from queens to the humblest commoner, will find Queen Marie under her own roof tree in Bucharest instead of on the bleak Atlantic.

At the request of King Ferdinand of Roumania, his royal consort has cancelled a portion of her American trip so that she and her children, Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas, may be with their own people on December 25.

To Sail December 11
They will sail from New York on December 11, instead of December 24 as originally planned. Part of a contemplated southern trip will be abandoned to meet the earlier sailing date.

The same cable that brought the king's request to Queen Marie, also detailed the sovereign's speech in opening parliament in Bucharest, in which he referred to the imposing manifestations which have marked the queen's visit to America with great gratification. Roumania, he said, never has stood so well in her relations with foreign countries and the situation at home was improving steadily. Other dispatches from the Roumania capital said that negotiations for various foreign loans to the Balkan kingdom were reported in rapid succession the last week. Among these were a reported loan of $100,000,000 from an American group and 20,000,000 pounds in London from an Anglo-American consort. Leading financial circles, however, professed to know nothing concerning an American loan.

Six Face Charges
Three men and three women distributing handbills, attacking the queen's presence there yesterday were arrested. They were booked on charges of disorderly conduct and distributing hand bills and were released in bond of $50 each. The pamphlets charged workers are imprisoned and murdered in Roumania and spoke of "extravagant orgies" in the royal court. The distributors made no attempts of violence.

Quitting Chicago, which she inspected yesterday from Gold coast to Ghetto, Roumania's royal visitor today faced a schedule which carried her to Gary, Indiana.

Movies Of Humans Better Than Lecture

ROCHESTER, Minn., Nov. 15 (AP)—Motion pictures of vital areas of the human body may replace class room lectures in medical schools, says Dr. Walter C. Alvarez of the Mayo Clinic. "More actual learning can be accomplished by having students observe a 15-minute run of movie film than by giving the same students ten lectures," he declares. "The advantage to the student who studies physiology is that he actually sees the function of the body in motion pictures and can learn more in that way than by numerous lectures."

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

Bill and Frances Warren had visited very seldom in the late home through the popular brother and sister children of a wholesale druggist, had been glad to draw the gay, beautiful, clever little Cherry into their circle. Every town has its circles within circles of "society," and the Warrens moved comfortably and freely in the second circle. Ambitious Mrs. Warren had high hopes of snaring off the lovely, fragile, silver-blond little Frances to George Pruitt or young Ralph Cherry, grandson of the old man to whom Cherry was engaged.

Both Faith and Cherry knew quite well that Frances Warren had consented to be a bridesmaid at her wedding because it would throw her into contact with both the Pruitts and the Cherrys—leaders of the holy inner circle—and knew equally well that Selma Pruitt would never have accepted Cherry's invitation to serve as bridesmaid if her brother, George, anxious to befriend Faith, had not insisted on her doing so.

But Cherry bothered her curly, scheming little head not at all with causes, so long as the results pleased her. She was ecstatic over the fact that she herself would become, by marriage with old Mr. Chery, a "charming young matron" of the innermost circle, and that her wedding party would reflect credit upon her own pre-nuptial status.

Faith looked at Bill Warren curiously as he tapped a Turkish cigarette upon the polished nail of a fine, strong hand. Why did they all bother to shield Cherry? Somehow she had summoned Bill Warren to her rescue, after her father had seen her in Chris Wiley's sonnet.

"Have one?" Bill Warren grinned, as he extended his cigarette case toward Cherry.

She took one, put it between her lips, and leaned forward to light it at Bill's flaming mouth.

"No," Faith snatched sharply, snatching the cigarette from Cherry's lips. "You know you promised Dad you wouldn't. You've caused him enough heartaches for one night. Cherry, don't encourage her to do things she shouldn't. Bill!"

"Oh, bother it!" Cherry cried angrily. "Everybody smokes. Thank God, I'm getting married and I can do as I please then. Oh, say, Faith, sit down, and don't look like a Christian martyr. There's oceans to tell you. I suppose Dad raised the roof? Just my luck to have him on a West Tenth street car for probably the first time in a year."

"Why do you do such insane things?" Everybody knows you're engaged to Mr. Chery, and yet you throw yourself wide open to scandal by being seen two or three times a week with Chris Wiley."

"I guess Long's been tattling," Cherry flamed. "I didn't really have a date with him. He just was me walking along on Chestnut street and offered me a lift. Of course we got to quarreling about my wedding, and he simply refused to take me home. That's how Dad happened to see us out by the end of the car line with him out on the pike at Ye Old Lodge Cabin—the grandest, fried chicken you ever tasted. Faith!"

"I take off my hat to Chris if he can make you do anything," Faith interrupted bitterly. "It's more than your father or mother or sister can do. Well, go on. You're saying up something to shock me with. I can tell."

"Oh, what an evening!" Cherry shuddered, but her eyes were bright with excitement. "Faith, can you feature this—we were followed. Shadowed?"

"Shadowed? Oh, Cherry, by a detective. Oh, I wish you would believe yourself! We'll all have nervous prostration before you're safely married!"

"I'm getting an awful kick out of it!" Cherry laughed, shrugging her shoulders. "I'm positively thrilled to death! Fancy being important enough to be shadowed!"

"How do you know you were followed?" Faith spoke naturally, conquering her impulse to slap Cherry's lovely, flushed cheek resoundingly.

"Oh, my dear!" the light, tinkling laugh rang out. "There was no doubt at all. I began to get wise last week when I kept seeing a funny looking man everywhere I went. Why do they pick out such homely scoundrels? He certainly has a face you can't forget. Positively monkey-like! And he always needs a shave. Short, thick, bow-legged, groovy haired, pig eyes, isn't he like that, Bill?"

"Check!" Bill Warren laughed rather uncomfortably for Cherry's high spirits in the face of certain scandal were grating on him as well as on Faith.

"If I went into a shop, he hung around the door. If I had lunch with—well, with anybody, she flushed, and dropped her eyes before Faith's steady troubled gaze, "he'd be Johnny-on-the-spot! The most efficient little shadower you ever saw! Like a detective in a slap-stick comedy, really."

"He trailed us to Ye Old Lodge Cabin tonight and ate the two dollar chicken dinner at the very next table to ours. I suppose he's on expense account and doesn't give a hang about the cost. Chris and I danced, of course, and we saw him making notes on a greasy envelope."

"I'll bet Chris Wiley hired him himself," Faith exclaimed, as if she had suddenly seen a great light. "And I'll bet it's Chris Wiley that has been sending those anonymous letters!"

Before the last words were cold on her lips she bit her tongue, for she was sure that Cherry had not told Bill Warren about the four scurrilous black-mail epistles.

"Anonymous letters?" Bill jumped to his feet. "Good heavens, Cherry! You didn't tell me that! I don't want to be dragged into this mess!"

"Pipe down!" Cherry snatched at his coat, her small face coldly contemptuous. "You're all wet, Faith! Guess who met my boy friend, the sleuth, under the verandah of the cabin?"

Faith's heart gave a wild leap of terror, but she did not cry out, she could only question Cherry mutely with her great, frightened brown eyes.

TOMORROW: Faith makes a secret decision to confront Bob Hathaway with Cherry's suspicions concerning anonymous letters.

NEW ORGAN
HONOLULU—A new organ costing in the neighborhood of $20,000 and said to be one of the 12 largest in the United States, was recently presented to Kawaiahao church here by C. Brewster and Co., a sugar firm. The Kawaiahao church, built of coral rock, and one of the oldest religious institutions in Hawaii, has a congregation strictly Hawaiian.

A bridge one foot long was erected in six hours in Italy recently.

Speeds Into Job

Miss Virginia Crumbliss, pretty leader of Knoxville (Tenn.) young society, sped right into a job behind a candy counter the last time a speeder stopped her. For her dad refused to pay any more fines. "I'll go to work," said Virginia when the judge said "ten dollars."

Memphis Scimitar Is Sold To Scripps

MEMPHIS, TENN., Nov. 15 (AP)—Sale of the Memphis News Scimitar, afternoon newspaper, to the Scripps-Howard Daily, Mr. Cohn said. Paul Block of New York was owner of the News-Scimitar. The transfer is expected to be made within a few days.

Gulls Detail Only Few Of Number To Accompany 1 Ship

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP)—Gulls covering the long breakwater at the mouth of the Chicago river provide an interesting spectacle as they rise, cloudlike, to greet an outgoing ship and detail a few of their number to accompany it across Lake Michigan.

As the huge double span Michigan Avenue bridge, last barrier over the murky stream, rises and moves unobscured skyward in response to the thrifty warping of the vessel, moving slowly northward, swarms of gulls leave their resting place and begin to circle the ship.

They escort the boat some distance into the lake and then, as if previously arranged, the greater number return to the breakwater, leaving a few of their companions to make the trip. They seem to feel that food to be picked from refuse of the ship is not enough for the entire flock. The gulls in the winter depend largely on food they can pick from the Chicago river as it flows backward from the lake.

San Antonio Votes On Big Bond Issue

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 15 (AP)—San Antonio voters went to the polls today to ballot on a proposed $3,600,000 bond issue, almost all of which is to be used in building. If passed, the expenditure of millions of dollars of private capital in building projects is understood to be dependent upon passage of the bond issue, which will mean improvements in public works in all parts of the city.

gone to sleep. She forced herself out of bed and reeled against the dresser with her vertigo of extreme fatigue. When it passed away she went through the dark hall into the bathroom and washed her face in icy water.

She went back to her room and dressed. The light was beginning to break in the sky. She sat down on the bed to wait for it and then went down the stairs on tiptoe to the sound of a snoring duet. The houseman in his chair and the cook in hers were dead to the world.

Picking her way across the hall between them, Judith softly unlocked the front door and went out. The dawn had come, but faintly, with a face like that of a fever patient.

MOTHER-IN-LAW CAUSE OF VERY FEW DIVORCES

COURT RECORDS SHOW THAT OLD ADAGE IS MUCH IN ERROR

(By the Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—The picture of the mother-in-law as a cause of domestic war is all wrong, concludes Charles E. Frast, who cites a record of his divorce cases to prove that the mother-in-law rarely enters into a law suit as to almost negligible.

Big Crowd Grets Sunday Afternoon Matinee At Palace

The Palace theatre was filled to overflowing Sunday afternoon, for Lubbock people, looking for entertainment, took advantage of Manager Lusk's hospitality when he arranged a free show, "People's Choice," to open the theatre on Sunday. Mr. Lusk said: "But I had no way of knowing how many people would be interested. Sunday I gave them a show, and I will say that I was surprised at the number of people who were present."

Electrician Held In Plot On Man's Life

BREMERTON, Wash., Nov. 15.—An attempt to murder by electrocution is charged against W. G. Walker, 42, Bremerton electrical engineer, who was brought before a court here today to stand trial.

Electrician Held In Plot On Man's Life

Walker is accused of plotting to end the life of Herbert J. Kenniston, a painter, by wiring the latter's home so he would receive the shock when switching on a light.

Electrician Held In Plot On Man's Life

The arrest of Walker on the night he perfected the plot prevented its consummation, the state says.

Despite poor business conditions in Spain, railways are more profitable than last year.

reasons being entirely sentimental. Some of the characters are drawn from real life, Devon folk whom the novelist loved and who are no more, and he shrinks from the idea of seeing them on the stage. Mr. Phillpotts sends the members of the cast wines and other gifts whenever another "burnt night" is reached.

London is forsaking the tango.
