

Farm Implement Co.
Host To County
Farm Families

Entertainment, which includes lunch and a matinee is extended free to every farmer and the members of his family by Powell-Cavanaugh Truck and Tractor Co. of Santa Anna and Coleman on Wednesday, April 8th. Don't miss this good time. They are expecting you and will be disappointed if you do not attend.

They have carefully planned something interesting for the entire day. Begin to plan right now for this big day.

Lock, Byrne and Binion Re-elected

At a recent meeting of the Board of Education, Mr. J. R. Lock was re-elected as principal of the high school. Mr. Lock is completing his fourth year in Santa Anna Schools, having been promoted to high school principle this year.

Mr. D. D. Byrne, who is completing his first year in Santa Anna Schools as principle of the elementary school was re-elected for the ensuing year. Since coming to Santa Anna, Mr. Byrne has been actively on the job and has endeared himself to the pupils and patrons.

Mr. J. M. Binion, who has directed the vocational agriculture in our high school for the past three years was re-elected for another year. The agricultural department continues to grow and a greater interest and enthusiasm has been manifest on the part of the farmers at the evening school, the Farmers' Short Course, and the poultry exhibit, all of which have been actively directed and supported by the agricultural department of the high school.

The action of the Board in re-electing faithful and efficient teachers will meet the hearty approval of patrons who are interested in seeing the schools of our city go forward. Good schools are built and maintained through employment of faculties in which there is a minimum turn-over each year. Long tenure of capable servants in the primary pre-requisite of continued growth.

MERCHANTS TO CLOSE
AT 6:00 O'CLOCK

We the undersigned Merchants agree to close at 6:30 p. m. Beginning Monday 23. With the exception of Saturday.
J. L. Boggus & Co. Helpy-Selfy, Marshall Mercantile Co., B. T. Vinson, Peggly Wiggy, Hunter Bros., W. R. Kelley & Co., Blue Hardware Co., Santa Anna Feed Co.

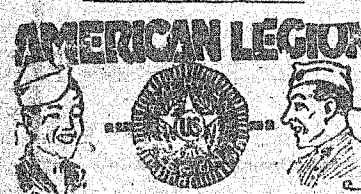

Messrs Manley Blanton and Johnnie Mullis of the Cleveland community were business visitors here Monday.

Sam H. Collier, left Monday for Farwell, on abusiness trip.

Miss Louise Purdy, returned to her home here Sunday night after several days visit with friends in Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Turner, Jr. of Midland, announce the birth of a daughter, Dorothy, March 10.

Friends will be interested to know that Mrs. A. C. Watson, who has been on the sick list is improving rapidly.

Jack Laughlin Post of the American Legion, meets on the first Tuesday night of each month. All ex-service men are earnestly requested to be present at these meetings, as they will get information that will be of benefit to them. They should come out and learn what the Legion is doing for ex-service men in the way of getting them Government aid. Everything that has been done for them has been sponsored by the Legion and they should get behind it and help all they can for the Buddies need their assistance. Come!

SPUDDERS AT WORK WITH ONLY ONE STAR IN ABSENTEE CLASS

Wichita Falls, Texas, March 17 The Spudders with Milton Sten-grafe, veteran pitcher, as the only absentee, today began to take on more of a semblance of a Texas League baseball club. All of the infielders, outfielders and catchers, with the exception of four men in training with St. Louis Browns, were hustled into action by Manager Carl Williams for the usual Morning workout that ended in an infield workout with Geygan and Garms at third, Hassler and Pullen at short, Scharein and Allred at second and Martin at first.

The first string, outfield at present consists of Morris Badgro, Herbert Kelly and Robert Fuss, all of whom have shown up well in their first few days in camp.

Messrs Nelson, Ryan and Bill Harvey, were among the Coleman visitors Sunday.

SAFETY DEVICES NEEDED AT RAILROAD CROSSINGS

That it is necessary for the Santa Fe Railway officials to install something in the way of Safety devices at the three principle crossings in Santa Anna, is the general opinion of the citizenship.

The death of Bob Gardner, prominent ranchman and citizen of Santa Anna, Monday evening March 9, when his car was struck by an east bound passenger train, whose loss is so keenly felt through out this entire section brings again to mind the three similar tragedies within the past five years.

The fact that the School children cross these tracks four times daily raises the hazard.

WHON NEWS

On the account of the heavy rain fall Saturday night, the Baptist Minister, Bro. McDonald did not fill his regular appointment here Sunday.

The Whon P. T. A. has increased rapidly we have now sixty three members. The parents gave a very interesting program Monday night, "School Days". There were about thirty parents in the play. We are glad to report such good co-operation in the community and school.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cheatham from El Dorado, were the guests in Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Cheatham home Sunday and Monday.

Miss Margie Johnson, spent Monday night with Miss Mary Frances Herring.

Miss Louise Cooper was in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Featherston, Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gill and James M. Gill, attended the Fat Stock Show in Ft. Worth last week.

Miss Ethel Wynn spent Sunday night with Miss Tyna Black. Mrs. C. J. Bengel and Ida Lou Herring, spent Thursday afternoon with Ida Lou's sister, Mrs. Clifton Straugeton and baby boy Bobbie Edd of Rockwood.

Miss Ida Mae Day, teacher in Brownwood Junior High School, was a guest this weekend, in the home of her sister, Mrs. E. M. Tisdal.

Miss Cora Mae Davis, spent Sunday night with Mrs. Glenn Gill.

Mr. Baxter Rice was a Brownwood, visitor Saturday.

A TEXAS TREE
By Leola Christie Barnes

I'm sure the world will never see

A more exquisitely fashioned tree,
Than the petite Texas Mesquite,
Swaying gracefully at our feet;
While super-regally she reigns,
O'er vast domains of fertile plains.

"Mong lacy leaflets, birds of blue,
Sought a lover's rendezvous;
Sturdy cowboys their sweet hearts met,
In shadows of her silhouette.
When sweet spring spies the dainty tree,
Arrayed in embroidered filigree,
She courtsies in a graceful whirl,
And artfully her skirts unfurl!
In subtle, shimmering dances,
That feminine finesse enhances.

Ultimately the world will agree,
That God's own artist produced this tree.
Aesthetic art is most complete,
In the graceful Texas Mesquite tree.

Library Association To Have Quilt Fair

At a meeting of the Library board last Friday afternoon it was decided to have a Quilt Fair, Saturday, March 28, from one to five o'clock in the vacant Crum building. Old quilts and new quilts, home made counterpanes, coverlets etc desired for this display. Prizes and ribbons will be awarded.

A door admittance of ten cents will be charged and there will be some good eats for sale. Much interest in this affair is being manifested and a large attendance is expected.

For further information, call or see Miss Josie Baxter. Every lady in the entire community is asked to please help with this Fair by lending any quilts they have that would make a good display.

C. W. Hamilton spent last week end in Abilene.

BROTHER OF SANTA ANNA MAN FATALLY BURNED

Waco, Tex., March 13.—The body of a man believed to be T. Whitlow was taken from a burning frame house here early today. E. D. Johnson owner of the house said he had rented it to Whitlow. A letter found in the house indicated the tenant's wife and daughter were in Santa Anna.

Two patrolmen found a burning mattress in front of the house. Whitlow's body was found on a bed without a mattress. It was believed he had carried out the burning mattress, re-entered the house and had been overcome by smoke.

According to a telephone conversation with Santa Anna this morning Mr. T. L. Whitlow mentioned above had relatives at Santa Anna, and his wife and daughter were visiting them. He has a brother, Oscar Whitlow, who resides at Santa Anna and with whom his mother lives. It was in their home where the family was visiting at the time of Mr. Whitlow's death. —Brownwood Bulletin.

The Queen Theatre's change of programs today brings that excellent actor, James Gleason, in the Tiffany all-talking production of "Swellhead," directed by James Flood and recorded by RCA Photophone.

Johnny Walker, Marion Shilling, Natalie Kingston, Paul Hurst, Lillian Leighton and a lot of other good artists support Gleason in this A. P. Younger story of a young fighter who achieves success through the support and encouragement of his friends and then gets so swelled headed that he loses his friends, loses his confidence, loses his girl—and nearly loses his title of champion.

How he regains all that he has lost and holds onto his title is said to provide "Swellhead" with all that goes to make good entertainment—comedy, suspense, action, romance and thrills.

When big business methods were adopted by gangsters and racketeers of the underworld, gang crime suddenly became one of America's greatest problems.

Organized crime became the terror of citizens and city officials. The lawless gangs became too big and operated with too well-oiled machinery to cope with.

What has happened since big business methods were introduced into a big city's underworld is vividly depicted in "The Doorway to Hell," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone melodrama of rackets and racketeers at the Queen Theatre the first of next week.

Open warfare machine gun battles and organized systems of the vicious rackets with killer leaders at their heads—all are portrayed in this dynamic film. And through this maze of crime is woven a love story deep in raw human emotions between a youthful gangster and a woman who took him only to betray him.

Garms May Play
Third For Spudders

Wichita Falls, March 14.—One of the first youngsters to gain attention in the training camp of the Wichita Falls Spudders is Debs Garms, who for two years has been out on option. In his search for a third baseman to fill the shoes of Walter Euler, Manager Carl Williams believes he has found the man in the former Howard Payne College flash.

Garms played shortstop until last season when he was moved to third base by the Topeka club of the Western League. The youngster hit .347 for the first half of the race at Augusta in the South Atlantic League and .315 in the last half at Topeka. If he makes the grade he will be one of the fastest men in the League.

Debs Garms is a brother of W. A. Garms of Santa Anna.

CHICAGO'S PERFECT MAN
JUST BORN THAT WAY

Chicago, March 15.—The "perfect man" has been discovered in Chicago.

He is Jim Phillips, 22 blond, blue eyed, intelligent, manly, whose career is running an elevator.

Phillips fits every dimension and qualification offered by the allors of America, who recently broadcast the weight and dimensions of the "perfect man." His height is 5 feet 8 inches, weight 140 pounds, hips 37 inches, arms 18 inches, legs 32 inches.

"How did you get to be perfect?" an interviewer asked Phillips.

"I guess I was just born that way," he answered modestly.

PIONEER BELLES

Another pleasant social affair for the members of the Pioneer Belles, was the meeting last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. T. Perry.

Many stitches were made on lovely pieces of handwork, amid a constant hum of lively conversations.

Little Misses Billie B. Neva Jo and Winnie Jean Steward favored the guests with several songs.

A salad course was served. Club members and invited guests included: Mmes: Wallace Kirkpatrick, J. R. Banister, B. A. Creamer, Ed Wallace, Don Ewing, W. R. Kelley, J. W. Steward, J. M. Childers, S. L. Weaver, B. F. Rothermel, C. W. Hamilton and H. T. Caton.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Burns and family of Coleman were Sunday guests in the O. C. Cartwright home.

NOTICE

To my Friends and Patrons

I have purchased Mr. Keelings interest in the Queen Theatre. I wish to thank everyone for his past attendance and assure you that I will have good entertainment and new pictures. Don't fail to visit the Theatre while in Santa Anna. Again I thank you.—J. L. Dodgin.

Baptist Young People
Give Temperance Program

Sunday, March 22, will be observed all over the state of Texas as Temperance Day at which time the young peoples organization are putting on special program and signing a temperance pledge.

This program will be rendered in the main auditorium preceding the sermon on "Temperance" at the night hour. We should fill the auditorium to hear this program. It is well prepared and will be an inspiration to you. Come and hear these young people and see how many sign the pledge. We hope to have one hundred in our Union Sunday night.

SCOUT NEWS

Last week on Wednesday afternoon the Scouts met and had a meeting as usual. We had a visitor, Dr. Morrison, who made us an interesting talk on intelligence. She also showed us some very effective exercises for the back and neck. After Dr. Morrison's talk, Patrol No. 111 gave a short program which everyone seemed to enjoy.

Girls! We surely are having a good time; So wouldn't you like to join us?

CITY FEDERATION MEETING

The City Federation of Women's Clubs, met Tuesday afternoon in the city hall with a fine attendance and an enthusiastic meeting. The Ward School P. T. A. came into the Federation. The plant exchange recently fostered by the Federation was declared a success and another one will be given Wed. April 15 at the City Hall.

The cemetery Association representative gave a fine report. The cemetery has recently been put in fine condition. Other representatives gave fine reports. All present officers were re-elected.

Mrs. E. A. Freeman was here Sunday for a short visit with her mother Mrs. J. T. Pope. Her sister Miss Clara Pope returned home with them for a visit.

COLEMAN COUNTY HAS FINE STOCK

Village Girl, 8th was sold at the auction sale at the Fort Worth Fat Stock Show last week to James Brooks & Son of Brady for $250. She was one of the several beautiful animals taken to Ft. Worth, last week from the Dibrell Echo Ranch.

V. F. W. have changed meeting nights from Wednesday to 2nd and 4th Monday nights. All ex-service men with foreign service are cordially invited to join. Be at the City Hall, next Monday night at 7:30.

A Just Recompense For Labor

EVERY farmer is entitled to a recompense for his labor, which is a safe margin of profit from the land he cultivates.

ONE CROP never has and never will give him a just return for his labor, but a variety of crops, suited to his soil and needs will give him a chance to make money and some measure of independence for himself and his family.

IT'S TIME to think about home gardens. Let's have more and bigger ones this year. It's always time to think about cows, hogs, chickens and the feed to feed them.

THE EARNEST hope of this bank is that each farmer in this community will so plan for the coming months that the harvest will bring him a sure and just recompense for every hour of labor.

FINAL INSTALLMENT

They could hear the rending, grinding sound of Maggie sobbing bitterly, deeply, as a child sobs and as if her heart would break.

The three exchanged glances and presently Elizabeth said slowly: "It seems like we have the worst luck of any family in this city."

Her mother took the theme up readily.

Pop, up to this point, had been silent, as Pop generally was.

Now, suddenly, he rose to his feet and dashed to the ground the striped tea cloth he had been using as a napkin.

"Maggie! he shouted. Immediately she was in the kitchen.

"Maggie, we've had enough of this!" said Leonard Johnson, in a loud, authoritative voice. "I can't stand no more of it, and I ain't a goin' to! You take that towel there and wash your eyes and fix your hair. And, Liz, you pack your sister some clothes! She's got seventeen minutes—if that clock's right—to catch the steamer, and she's goin' to catch it! She's goin' to get married on board to-day, or maybe in San Francisco or Los Angeles to-morrow or next day—you help her out there, Ma. Quick, now—while I phone for a taxi!"

"Len, are you crazy?" Ma began royally. But Pop, crazy or not, was at least unafraid.

"You quit talking, Minnie," he said sharply, "and get up and stir yourself." Pop said tenderly, solicitously, to Maggie, guiding her to the sink, switching on the cold water, the furious glare in his eyes as he looked at the other women in curious contrast to the gentleness of his voice when he addressed her. "In this envelope is my half-month's pay dearie," he said—"You keep your mouth closed, Elizabeth, till I give you leave to speak!" Pop interpolated fiercely—"and you can get your self some clothes first place you stop. Hurry up there, Ma—the taxi's liable to get here any minute."

"Len—it seems like I'm going to faint," said Mrs. Johnson, pausing pathetically in the act of rushing Maggie's black silk dress and her new clothes into a suitcase and adding Elizabeth's best nightgown and the Chinese wrapper she herself had won at a fair.

"Well, you faint then, but let me get Maggie off first!" Len said briskly and heartlessly.

"Len, don't yell that way!" Ma said, weeping as she put on her black-velvet hat.

"And we ain't going to miss you, Maggie, and we ain't going to slump," Len interrupted the frightened chorus to say loudly. "Now, you come on out—put your gloves on in the taxi—we ain't got but fourteen minutes."

Laughing, crying, but always clinging tight to this newly found and amazing parent, Mary Margaret had only time to leave a hysterical goodbye with the dog and the cat and the beloved, despised, shabby kitchen, with its cooling coffee and congealing sausages and lump dish towels and greasy sink.

Then they were all four jammed into a taxi, and racketing through the Saturday morning streets, past the schoolhouse way—among the warehouses—

Their talk was incoherent—inconsequential—monosyllabic.

"Can he make it?"

"He says he doesn't know. Depends on the traffic on the River street."

"This ain't exactly an ideal weddin', dearie."

"Ah, don't Pop. You'll make me cry!"

"Driver, we goin, to make it?"

"How much time have we?"

Lean forward there, Pop, and see can you see the clock at Rubenstein's?"

And then, down outside the big free market, suddenly the agony of a halt.

An officers imperative whistle and a blue-coated figure approaching.

But ma, even though speechless, was not entirely without resources. She dismounted from the taxi, met the policeman, and as an interested little crowd gathered, and before that officer could speak, fainted from sheer emotion, heavily, into his arms.

"She's all right—go on," Pop said in an undertone.

Maggie sat back on the seat, holding Liz's hand, beginning to breathe again.

"Pop, can we make it?"

"We could dearie, if nothing else happens," Pop was beginning doubtfully, when—another whistle, this time a soothing long breath, as of relief, interrupted him and the driver muttered something unintelligible that sounded like a prayer, turned in to a curb, stopped the car and uttered aloud the single disgusted word "Flat."

Elizabeth Johnson had sprang from the machine hailed another taxi, pushed her father and sister into it, and shouted feverishly: "To the Allegria. Dock Seventeen. Quick, now! I'll stay here and pay this man, Pop, she said, hurrying them on, "Good-bye, Maggie darling, forgive me if I've been mean to you, and have a good time and don't worry."

Then Maggie and her father were rushing on again; they had reached the piers at last; Pier thirteen—still so far to go! And they could see the big clock saying that the hour had come and gone. It was three minutes past eleven.

Maggie turned deadly white, but she managed an agonized smile of reassurance for her father.

"That's all right, Pop. We did our best!"

"Maybe they didn't sail on the minute," said the new driver encouragingly. "I've seen 'em twenty minutes late!"

"Oh, go on, then—go on!" the girl said feverishly.

"I can't go no faster than this lady!" the driver said, hurt. "There ain't many of these cars can jump over or under trucks, you know. You'd do better to take your little suitcase and run for it."

"Do that, Maggie!" said the newly authoritative and decisive man who was her father. "I'll stay with him, dear. Look out where you go—ah, God bless you, my darling!"

"God bless you—and thank you, Pop dearest!" she whispered.

Then Maggie was running—running like mad toward the big arched entrance that said "Pier Seventeen." A baggage boy had caught her bag and coat and was running along beside her.

"The Davenport Line, miss?"

"No—the Allegria!"

"Oh—" And his feet stopped, and hers, too, and they stared blankly at each other. "She's sailed, miss; she went out on time, this morning," the boy said. "That's her—out there in the bay."

As in a dream, Maggie stood still, on the rough, thick splintery boards of the dock and looked through the great arched opening, and saw the vessel, balanced like a beautiful great swan, not moving now, but far out on the blue water.

"The pilot's going to drop her any minute, now miss. Ain't that a shame!" said the baggage boy sympathetically.

The girl did not stir. Her eyes were fixed on the Allegria, her hands clasped.

Somebody touched her on the arm, and she looked up and saw it was Joe's father. With him was Joe's mother; she had been crying and his father's face looked grave, and his lashes were wet, too.

But Maggie did not cry. She gulped, and her wan little face twisted into a smile as she said simply:

"I was going with him. I couldn't—I couldn't bear it. But it seems—he's gone."

"You were going with him!" his father said, sharply.

"Here!" Where are the launches, boy?—Mayne's launches—they're somewhere around here! This girl and boy aren't going to be any use apart, Lillian," he said to his wife, smiling, yet blinking tears from his eyes. "Let 'em both go off to Japan and console each other!"

He was hurrying them along the dock, and Maggie found her hands filled with big green bills from Joe's father, and found her self kissing him, and liking the firm, fatherly embrace, and much more amazing! received a perfumed, powdery, half-crying kiss from Joe's magnificent mother, too.

She was helped into a dancing little launch, the dirty surface of the water was bubbling close beside her. They were cleaving a straight track toward the big liner and Maggie, leaning over the bow of the launch, was straining toward it, was clapping

In the Land of Opportunity

Pioneers in the dependable and widespread distribution of electric service, the West Texas Utilities Company has, in a comparatively short span of years, built here in central West Texas one of the major electric light and power systems of the Southwest.

Motivated by a sincere faith in the brilliant future of this rich West Texas empire, nearly fifty millions of dollars—a sum larger than the total gross revenue for the eight-year period—have been brought in from the outside and invested here in generating stations, transmission lines and other physical properties necessary to the production and distribution of electric and other utility services. Virtually all of this new money has been provided through the financing agencies of the Middle West Utilities System.

The earnest resolve to conduct itself in such manner as to merit the friendship and confidence of the people it serves, plus a constant effort to deliver more service at ever-decreasing rates have been ideals toward which this company has pointed since its inception.

Operating under a Texas charter, with its officers and employees seasoned West Texans—"Bring on the job"—a loyal band of 1,300 men and women strives always to render that type of utility service which has made transmission line service the accepted standard throughout the nation.

As a corporate entity, the West Texas Utilities Company was organized on January 1, 1923, for the purpose of producing and distributing electric and other utility services. Like many other West Texas institutions with but modest beginnings, its growth and development has paralleled that of the West Texas territory as a whole.

Today the company is rendering service to 50,000 customers—carrying the advantages of dependable, efficient and inexpensive electric power to 120 cities and towns, and to hundreds of rural communities, farms and ranches. Its over-all average rate for electricity per kilowatt-hour consumed is, today, more than fifty per cent LOWER than the old average rate charged throughout the territory before the organization of the West Texas Utilities Company.

Adults Contract Children's Diseases

Adults can, and do, contract many children's diseases. And, usually, they suffer from them much more than children do. For instance, many adults contract worms, an ailment usually associated with children. Sometimes they suffer intensely and take expensive medical treatment, without realizing that worms are the cause of their troubles. Yet, the symptoms are the same as in children, loss of appetite and weight, grinding the teeth and restless sleep, itching of the nose and anus, and abdominal pains. And, the same medicine that surely and harmlessly expels round and pin worms from children will do the same for adults — White's Cream Vermifuge, which you can get at

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Coleman County—Greetings:

You are hereby Commanded to summon Ira Deakins, Pearl R. Deakins, G. N. Tompkins, Susan Tompkins, Western Land Corporation, a private corporation and the stockholders of the Western Land Corporation, a defunct corporation, South Texas Mortgage Co., a corporation, and the stockholders of the South Texas Mortgage Company, a defunct corporation, and the heirs of the following named deceased persons, to-wit: Ira Deakins, Pearl R. Deakins, G. N. Tompkins and Susan Tompkins, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Coleman County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Coleman, Texas, on the second Monday in April A. D. 1931, the same being the 13th day of April A. D. 1931, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 2nd day of March A. D. 1931 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 4853, wherein W. H. Bush, D. B. Beal and W. J. Smith, Trustees of the Goldsboro Common School District No. 64 in Coleman County, Texas, said Trustees being a body politic and corporate in law under and by the title and name of District Trustees of District No. 64 and County of Coleman, state of Texas, are plaintiffs and the above named defendants are the defendants in said cause; and a brief statement of plaintiff's cause of action, being as follows:

That heretofore, to-wit, on the 1st day of March, 1931, plaintiffs were the owners of and in possession of the following described lands and premises situated in Coleman County, Texas, owning and holding the same in fee simple from and under the sovereignty of the soil, to-wit: The East 1-2 of block 103 in the town of Goldsboro, according to the map of said town and of said block, of record in Vol. LB, pages 2 and 3 Plat Records of Coleman County Texas, to which reference is here made.

That afterwards and on the day and dates last aforesaid and while plaintiffs were in possession of said lands and premises, owning and claiming the same as aforesaid, the defendants unlawfully entered in and upon said lands and premises and unlawfully ejected and dispossessed plaintiffs therefrom and unlawfully withhold from plaintiffs the title and possession thereto, to plaintiffs' damage in the sum of $1,000.00.

That in addition to their title in fee simple aforesaid, plaintiffs are the owners of said lands under the five years statute of limitations in this: That plaintiffs and those under whom they claim have had peaceable and adverse possession of said lands and premises, using and enjoying the same and paying all taxes thereon, claiming under deeds duly registered, for more than five years next before the institution of this suit and next before the 1st day of March, 1931, and plaintiffs here plead said five years statute of limitations as grounds of their title to said land.

WHEREFORE, premises considered, plaintiffs pray the court that the defendants be cited to appear and answer this petition, and that upon hearing hereof plaintiffs have judgement for the title and possession of said lands and premises and for costs of suit and for such other and further relief general and special, as they may be entitled to in law and equity.

Herein Fail Not but have before said Court, at its next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and seal of said Court, at office in Coleman, Texas, on this 2nd day of March A. D. 1931.

S-A-H-S SCHOOL TROPHIES

The class of 1931 patriotic, en-thusiastic and reverential resp-ect for antiquity has become a part of us. Just to prove that we're Irish through and through and proud of it too; we wore green ties on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Were we attractive? Why, there's not a colleen sweat-er where the River Shannon flows!"

The Amateur Gardener Starts His Spring Exercise By Albert T. Reid

In order to put out a better paper by giving more time for proof reading a change has been made in the matter of collect-ing news. Heretofore the news has been turned in between ten and twelve o'clock Tuesday thus giving only a few minutes for proof reading. Hereafter it is necessary to have the news in the hands of the editor-in-chief or someone appointed by her by Monday afternoon. Another plea is being made to the student body for cooperation.

S-A-H-S SCHOOL GUEST MONDAY

Dr. Hardy, president of Baylor College, Belton, visited us Mon-day and gave a very inspirational address on "The Value of a College Education." He left all of us with a greater desire to continue our education, espe-cially the Senior girls to whom he made a special plea.

Miss Anna Grace Butler of Coleman, spent the week-end with Miss Bernie Vinson.

Misses Osa and Maurine Jack-son, were Santa Anna, visitors Saturday.

S-A-H-S REPORTS FROM CLUB

The Secretary of each club should report at least once a month and give it to Irene Mc-Creary to have it published. Let the people know what you're doing.

Be sure to turn your articles in to Irene by Monday afternoon so she can take them down to be published.

PLAY THE GAME

"When the great scorer comes to write against your name He writes not if you won or lost but how you played the game."

As the time of the Annual In-terscholastic League, approaches it is very important that the above quotation be remembered. Of course, victory is sweet and everyone should strive to win, but if you should lose, play the game. Look the world in the face, smile and be determined to win next time.

No matter where you are or what you are doing be a sport. May it be said of Santa Anna High School, "they played the game fair and square."

S-A-H-S SCHOOL TROPHIES

School trophies are those which every school should be proud to own, and to display be-fore distinguished visitors. They should never be thrust aside and forgotten, but should come first in every school. School trophies tell a story of interested students teachers, and a worth while school. School trophies represent the school. Come on, students, let's fill the vacant spaces in our trophy case and represent our school as it should be.

S-A-H-S TIME AGAIN REIGNS

The student body was thrown from joy to sorrow(?) when we returned to school Monday morn-ing and found "Old Faithful" on the job. For the last month classes have been run by sever-ally different watches. Hence one class was long and the other short. Thrills and heartaches. Well, one consolation every study period will be as long as usual and will get out at four o'clock. Three cheers for "old faithful."

S-A-H-S
Dorothy Baxter, 1928 Alumna of S. A. H. S. who is a Junior in Simmons University this year, is making an excellent showing on speech arts. Recently she played a leading role in the "Merchant of Venice" presented by the Simmons Players. She had been selected to play a difficult part in a drama to be presented by the Simmons Players, in a college tournament to be held in Brownwood in the near future. We note with a feeling of pride

S-A-H-S ADVENTURES OF A SOPHOMORE'S LATIN BOOK

What a life. From day to day I lie idle, except during Latin class, then I am rushed through and grappled with, for forty-five minutes, then I am abandoned until the next day. But what is this? My inconsistent owner has carelessly left me under her desk and even after class is over I still keep my same position under the desk. Hours pass. This is not unusual for me to lie idle this way. I'm used to it. Now the noon hour is over and a class of "dignified" Seniors come, stomping hilariously into the room. An I am discovered! A Senior grasps me in his large firm hand and turns me over to Mrs. Pieratt, saying, "Here's a absent minded Soph's 'Julius Caesar.'" I don't know why he called me "Julius Caesar" rather than "Latin II Text" but Seniors have a way of wanting to appear

THE USE AND ABUSE OF GOD'S GIFTS

Luke 12:16-21, 41-48

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D. Though the lesson text does not deal directly with the subject, the quarterly temperance lesson must be pressed with special earnestness. Therein we have one of the liveliest topics of the day. Test this out by reading the daily paper for a week seeking down to date news on this subject.

In parable form Jesus tells the people in Perea about the man who thought only of his personal gratifications and desired to do as he pleased regardless of any influence on others. In story form a rich gormand was portrayed.

as having a magnanimous vocabulary. Mrs. Pieratt, took the book calmly, as if used to returning Soph's lost books, saying "Thank you. I shall return it to its owner." The very ideal! Oh, well! of course Mrs. Pieratt never forgets, so back I went to Rebecca Turner. Now to resume my life! But such is the life of a Sophomore's Latin Book.

trayed. This man was headed for the gout, judging by his objectives in life. He had productive fields which yielded far more than enough for his needs.

When the climax was reached all were startled by the question which Jesus asked. What will you do with more things when thy soul is required of thee this night? That inquiry brings each one face to face with the Judgement Seat of God.

Peter brought forth the next story and we have the parable of the steward who was unfaithful to his trust while he thought the owner was far away. Thinking power was taken away by the indulgence in strong drink.

When in that condition the supposedly trustworthy man harmed his fellow servants and also himself. Society can never be safe when rightmindedness is taken away by any habit forming drug. The corrective is made very clear in the Golden Text: "Be not drunken with wine wherein is riot, but be filled with the spirit." Ephesians 5:18. The Government will be increasingly effective in stopping commercial violations of the law. The Sunday School must meet the non-commercial violations through education.

Get The Best Planting Seed Obtainable at Drought Territory Prices

I have made arrangements with H. Conrads, originator, Grower and Breeder of Quality Pedigreed Cottonseed, of San Marcus, Texas, to distribute his fine, 99 1-2 per cent pure planting seed at special low Drought territory prices.

Scientifically Balanced

These are the one and only original Qualla Pedigreed Seed, no better planting seed can possibly be secured. Qualla Pedigreed Cotton is a variety that is scientifically balanced. It produces a good, hard, strong premium staple, with a lint turn-out of 39 per cent to 44 per cent, and an exceptionally heavy yield per acre. It also has large bolls, is drought resisting, matures early and grows a stocky short jointed stalk.

Special Drought Territory Price

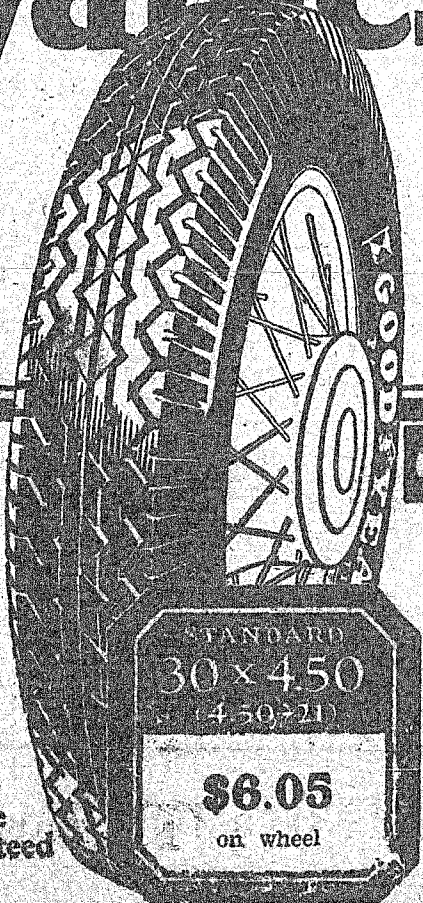

Because of the co-operation of Mr. Conrads, I am able to offer these seed at a special low price, that is in effect only in Drought territory. It is only—

$1.25
per Bushel

This unheard of price is for genuine, pure, Pedigreed Seed direct from the Breeder. Seed are culled, sacked in branded bags and CERESAN TREATED. Take advantage of this opportunity to get some good seed. See me at once.

ing her two hands over her head to attract its attention, to hold it one minute—one half-minute more!

The pilot's tug was alongside, ready to cast off from the sheer great side of the steamer; a rope ladder dangled from the high steerage deck of the one, to curl loosely among the hatches and marlin spikes of the other.

And everyone who could find a place at the long rails, first cabin, steerage, tourist cabin, all alike, saw a launch racing out from the city, and a small girl standing bare-headed—in the long rails, first cabin tourist, cabin, steerage alike, saw a launch racing out from the city and a small girl standing bare-headed in the launch, an aureole of gold blowing about her head and her hands clasped high above it, like the hands of a small martyr at the stake.

And suddenly, in their own ranks, on the steamer's decks, there was a corresponding commotion, and a tall, lean boy, with a desperate and anxious look upon his face, broke through them, ran down a companionway and another companionway to the break in the railing where the pilot's ladder hung and shouted:

"Wait a minute down there! I've got to go back! Don't take that ladder down—wait a minute!"

Then—so quickly that even during the whole long voyage with the blissful young bride and groom affording a reminder before their very eyes, some of the passengers couldn't remember in exactly what order it all occurred—then the flying launch had reached the pilot's tug, and the boy had descended the rope ladder, and the girl had sprung from the launch to the tug, and there was a double scream of "Maggie!" and "Joe!" and the two young things were in each other's arms, and crying—not but what everyone else was crying too.

They stood there on the rocking tug for whole minutes—minutes—minutes, and the world looked on, and laughed, and wiped its eyes, and they neither knew nor cared. And it was only when the great Allegria actually blew her whistle and the little tug blew hers that Joe put his arm about Mary Margaret Johnson and said, dazedly and happily, without moving his hungry eyes from her exquisite and radiant face:

"Come on, darling, we've got a lot to do—we've got to start to Japan, and get married, and have lunch, and talk, and every thing!"

And then they negotiated the rope and plank ladder, and the passengers made an aisle across the deck for them.

"We're going to have a wedding, some time this afternoon," Joe said excitedly, and proudly and youthfully, to the lingering groups that simply couldn't disperse in the face of this fascinating drama and comedy in one. "And you're all invited!"

"Oh thank you—thank you—thank you!" Maggie whispered. And Joe showed her boats and ropes and writing rooms and dining rooms and a Japanese baby in the steerage and his own cabin—their cabin, with its bath.

"You'll hear the bugle for lunch soon," he exulted, as the cool sweet ocean airs began to blow over the ship, and she careened slightly, and the colour was whipped into Maggie's face, and the gulls and the city dropped farther behind—and farther behind—and farther behind. "You don't mind that rocking? You're a wonder! You're going to love it."

"I shouldn't wonder if it's the ideal life, Joe said Mary Margaret."

THE MOUNTAINEER

Fern: "Life is just one thing after another. I wonder what love is."

Bessie: "Just two things after each other."

Eppie: "Do you think genius is hereditary?"

Fred: "I don't know. I have no children."

Mary Oakes: "If you were condemned to die, what kind of death would you choose?"

Neva Rea: "Death from old age."

Mr. Lock: "When your wife starts to talk, does she know when to stop?"

Mr. Scarborough: "I don't know yet. I've only been married nine years."

Miss Land (in General Science class): "Does the moon affect the tide?"

Brownlee Hunter: "No, only the untied."

Then there's the Scotchman who left off brushing one tooth because he was going to have it pulled the next day.

Speaker: "If I have talked too long it is because I haven't my watch with me and there is no clock in the auditorium."

Voice in the Audience: "There is a calendar behind you."

Mr. Lock (taught student smoking): "Smoking, hey?"

Fred Faulkner: "Nay, tobacco."

A. G. Weaver, a curious little boy was watching a car being loaded at the station and later inquired: "Why do they call it a shipment when it goes in a car and a cargo when it goes in a ship?"

Alton Blevins was gazing pensively at a gooseberry bush.

"What's the matter, darling?" asked his mother.

Alton: "Have gooseberries any legs, mother?"

"No, darling, of course not."

Alton became more pensive than ever.

"Then I guess I must have swallowed a caterpillar."

Miss Land: "Who is the smartest man living?"

John David: "Thomas A. Edison. He invented the phonograph and the Radio so people would stay up all night and use his electric light bulbs."

Mr. S: "And what are you going to be when you grow up, my little man?"

Clifford W.: "Well, after I have been a minister to please mother and a lawyer to please father I'm going to be a policeman."

A girl to be stylish to-day, must powder her face and neck—Myrtle McDonald.

Clovie: "Can you think of anything more unnecessary in rainy weather than silk hose?"

Neva Rae: "Yes, the things that stand on the streets and inspect them."

Miss Hays: "You should place your hand over your mouth when you yawn."

Helen: "What! and get bitten?"

Booky: "Will your people be surprised when you graduate?"

James G.: "No, they have been expecting it for several years."

Jaunita K.: "Do you think you could be comfortable with five thousand a year?"

Armenta: "What, men, or money?"

Chink: "Did you say that you are a track man?"

Audius: "Am I? Why, I've got bruises all over my chest from breaking tapes."

PLANT A GARDEN

Recently W. R. Beatti, Senior Horticulturist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, in a nationally broadcast radio talk on the farm garden, stated that in every economic crisis through which the agriculture of any section of the country has passed the home garden and other sources of home supply have saved the day.

When the boll weevil struck the cotton growing sections, Mr. Beattie pointed out, one of the first steps taken was to start a campaign for vegetable gardens, poultry, pigs and cows on every farm so that the land would at least provide a means of livelihood. Things haven't changed much and the same principles apply today. The farmer, however hard times may be for him, who plants and cultivates his own garden has a form of insurance against privation that is denied the city worker. In this respect he is far better off than the thousands of unemployed in the cities. Many of whom left the farm at the time of industrial prosperity and are now looking wistfully back at the land.

"If everybody engaged in farming," Mr. Beatti, said in his address, "will produce plenty of fruits, vegetables, milk and butter, poultry and eggs, home grown and cured pork, also fresh meats to some extent, they can at least have a good living at home and that is more than a lot of people who are out of employment have today. But," says the pessimist, "that only increases the difficulty and reduce the market for foods that are grown in a large way for sale. Perhaps, provided the farmer has the money with which to buy the food, but suppose he does not have the money, what then? As a matter of fact, it is good business and economy to produce most of the living for the farm family and the hired help right on the farm."

In all parts of the country there are farsighted agricultural leaders who are in agreement with Mr. Beattie in preaching the advantages of making the farm as much as possible a self sufficing unit; not only in these times of agricultural and general economic depression, but as a permanent agricultural policy. In South Carolina, Virginia, Arkansas and other states, statewide campaigns to bring about the planting of farm gardens are being actively pushed. In these campaigns the agricultural colleges and states home demonstration agents are taking a leading part.

A well planted and cared for half-acre garden will produce more vegetables than the average family can eat, during the period when the crops are maturing. Carrots, late cabbage, beets, onions, parsnip, potatoes and turnips can be grown and stored for use during the winter thus cutting the winter food bills. One acre of garden was worth as much as 65 acres of cotton on a farm in Texas last year whose owner figured that the acre yielded a profit of $400.

It is not only from the point of view of cutting the family food bills, however, that the vegetable garden deserves a place on every farm. So much has been said and written about vitamins during the last few years that practically everyone knows they are essential to good health. Fresh, green vegetables are among the best sources of these invaluable vitamins, but entirely too frequently the farmer, busy with his money crops, feels that he has no time to bother with a garden even though his wife and the older children may easily be able to take care of it once it is ploughed.

A vegetable garden planted this spring will return ample dividends in health and in helping to make the farm family self-sufficing, able to weather any economic storm.
