CAF: Election is over; headquarters can move

From staff reports

The Commemorative Air Force announced Friday that the election regarding the 2013 proposed amendment to the bylaws has concluded with a 75.1 percent vote in favor of the proposed amendment.

The membership vote for approval of the bylaw amendment clears the path for the CAF board of directors to build a CAF National Airbase that will become the organization's headquarters.

The CAF constitution and bylaws require an approval of three-quarters of the voting membership in order to make the change.

"With this amendment change the CAF Board of Directors can now narrow its selection and negotiate with the potential locations that provide the best site for the future CAF National Airbase" said Stephan C. Brown, CAF president and CEO.

Diane Fenner — wife of Hal Fenner, one of the founding fathers of the CAF museum board — said Friday that she was not pleased with the final decision.

"(Brown) has destroyed all the relationships that he would or could in the Permian Basin, and now he just wants to get out of Dodge," she said.

Relocation requires approval of nine of 11 General Staff members, who narrowed the list to six airports in the Houston, San Antonio or Dallas metropolitan areas. The board will make a final selection next year within the first or second quarter, according to the CAF.

Here's how year unfolded:

■ May: The CAF announced its intention to elevate its national presence by relocating administrative offices and establishing a new air base in a larger metropolitan area.

■ July: State Rep. Tom Craddick — who fights for funding each legislative session for the CAF American Airpower Heritage Museum — called on the general staff to "right the ship." Craddick said the CAF broke committments to individuals and foundations who brought CAF to Midland in 1991.

■ August: The world's only flying B-29 Superfortress, "FiFi," returned to Midland to a dogfight over her permanent home. Craddick said the CAF lived up to an agreement to construct a hangar to house the B-29 in exchange for donations and state and federal transportation dollars, while Brown said FiFi's permanent home was tour as part of the CAF's flying museum.

■ September: A prominent Midlander withdrew financial support for the CAF and called on the general membership to cast ballots against the amendment. Joe

TREACHEROUS TRAVELS

Midland police and other law enforcement responded to multiple accidents around the area, like this one-vehicle rollover on Loop 250 on the Thomason overpass.

Icy weather makes driving in Midland difficult

By Rachael Gleason
rgleason@mrt.com

Officials are warning Midland drivers to be careful on slick roadways as an arctic cold front sweeps through the area, bringing light snow, sleet and 30-degree temperatures.

Icy bridges caused about 30 wrecks — mostly minor spin-outs on Loop 250 — before 8:45 a.m. Friday, according to Sara Higgins, the city's public information officer.

"It started to look more like normal numbers after the morning commute was over," she said.

About five major wrecks occurred Friday night over the course of two hours, with two forcing police to divert traffic from Interstate 20 at Rankin Highway and Midkiff Road.

Authorities responded later to a one-vehicle rollover and second minor wreck at Loop 250 and Andrews Highway, followed by a rollover and entrapment at Highway 191 at County Road 1275.

The city, which uses trucks filled with brine water to de-ice local roads, expects road conditions to worsen this weekend, Higgins said. Midland police are asking Midland drivers to avoid Loop 250, if possible, or drive slowly.

"The ground was warm today due to high temperatures yesterday," she said. "We expect to have to work harder this weekend."

The city's transportation department coordinates with the Texas Department of Transportation on possible road closures during periods of inclement weather.

TxDOT's job is to keep roads passable, said Gene Powell, public information officer for the Odessa district.

Crews were out at 4 a.m. Friday and started placing a number of de-icing agents — some prevent ice from forming — on major roadways by 5:30 a.m., Powell said. Extra crews are on standby and will focus on keeping Interstate 20, Loop 250, Highway 191 and Farm-to-Market Road 1788 bridges drivable over the weekend.

"We had to wait for ice to start to form and freezing weather to hit before can start fighting it," he said. "It's never an exact science. We can't be everywhere, and we can't prevent all ice."

Powell said drivers should make sure their vehicles can handle winter weather with tires, brakes, hoses and lights that are in good working condition. Drivers should also be comfortable driving on slick roads — leaving plenty of cushion room for others — and prevent crowding, he said.

"All it takes is a foot of ice to change someone's life dramatically forever," Powell said.

The Texas Department of Public Safety urged drivers to follow weather alerts, travel slowly and increase stopping distance, watch for downed trees and power lines and keep vehicles properly gassed.

"With the upcoming Thanksgiving holiday, many travelers may be heading to holiday destinations," said DPS

Midland unemployment remains stable at 3.1 percent

By Mella McEwen
mmcewen@mrt.com

Midland unemployment continues to remain low as the year's final quarter began.

The Texas Workforce Commission on Friday reported unemployment data for the Midland metropolitan statistical area. The reports that had been delayed a month because of the partial government shutdown in October.

Midland's unemployment rate in September was 3.3 percent, down from 3.2 percent in August, and dipped to 3.1 percent in October, the same as October 2012. The Tall City, which this week was reported to have the nation's fastest growing personal income, continues to have the state's lowest unemployment. Odessa, at 3.6 percent, continues to have the state's second-lowest unemployment.

"This is a job-seeker's dream," said Willie Taylor, chief executive officer of the commission's Workforce Solutions Permian Basin. He said his agency receives calls daily from people interested in moving to the area for work.

The Workforce Commission said Midland added 900 jobs from September to October for a growth rate of 1 percent. For the 12 months from October 2012 to October 2013, Midland added 4,300 new jobs for a growth rate of 5.2 percent.

Midland's labor force was 95,977 in October, up from 95,893 in September and 92,439 in October 2012.

The labor market remains stable, Taylor said, with steady wages and fewer people filing unemployment claims. The portion of mining, logging and construction — the industrial sector that dominates Midland's industry composition — rose to 30 percent in October, up from 27 percent earlier in the year and 29 percent in August, he said. The sector added 800 jobs from September to October and has added 3,000 jobs from October 2012 to October 2013.

Financial activities, professional and business services, education and health services and government each added 100 jobs from September to October, while manufacturing, trade, transportation and utilities, information and other services were unchanged.

The only industrial sector to lose jobs was leisure and hospitality, which lost 300 jobs from September to October and lost 100 jobs from October 2012 to October 2013.

Texas Board of Ed rejects Great Hearts charter bid

The Texas Board of Education has rejected Great Hearts Academies' charter school application to operate in Dallas.

With a 9-6 vote Friday, members reversed the state commissioner of education's recommendation that the Arizona-based charter operator be allowed to expand into Texas.

That followed lengthy debate, during which members raised questions about Great Hearts' past student retention rates, and whether it would truly serve economically disadvantaged students as promised.

The board used to have sole responsibility for approving charters. But a new law only lets it veto the commissioner's recommendations.

Last year, the Nashville school board defied a recommendation from the Tennessee Department of Education and rejected Great Heart's application.

Some feared the school was being located in an affluent part of Nashville, to cater to affluent families living nearby.

Extradited Zetas boss appears in Texas court

Authorities say a high-ranking Zetas cartel member arrested last year in Mexico has been extradited to South Texas in a drug and money laundering case.

Ivan Velazquez Caballero, also known as "El Taliban" or "50," appeared in court Friday in Laredo. A detention hearing and arraignment are set for Dec. 3.

Velazquez Caballero, who's from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, was arrested by Mexican officers in September-2012. He was transferred Thursday to Laredo on charges of conspiracy to possess with the intent to distribute drugs and launder money. Velazquez Caballero faces life in prison if convicted.

He's among 34 suspects named in an indictment that alleges kidnapping, drug and firearms conspiracies, trafficking, money laundering and conspiracy to kidnap a U.S. citizen in a foreign country. Fifteen people have been convicted.

He was arrested by Mexican marines in the northern city of San Luis Potosi. At the time of his arrest, there was a $2.3 million reward for Velazquez Caballero, who was said to be leading one of the Zetas' factions warring for control of valuable territory in northern Mexico.

The arrest of Velazquez Caballero followed a string of arrests of high-profile Zetas leaders. The then-leader of the organization, Heriberto Lazcano, was killed in October 2012 in a shootout with Mexican marines. The body of Lazcano was stolen by gunmen hours later from a funeral home. Last July, authorities in Mexico arrested Lazcano's successor, Miguel Trevino Morales in the border town of Nuevo Laredo Mexico.

TxDOT to out habitual toll violators monthly

Texas aims to bring more pain to toll-road freeloaders by publishing a monthly list of habitual unpaid toll violators.

A statement Friday from the Texas Department of Transportation said TxDOT will publish updated lists of the state's top 25 toll-road scofflaws, starting Dec. 2.

The TxDOT statement said the department already has entered into payment discussions with 11 of the top 10 violators publicized last month, and six of those are now in good standing.

TxDOT finance chief James Bass said the department collected $1.3 million in unpaid tolls and fees in just the past month.

Updated lists will be posted to TxDOT.gov and TxTag.org. Violators who fail to contact the department can have their vehicles banned from toll roads, ticketed by law enforcement or impounded.

Arizona debacle spotlights child-welfare agencies

Associated Press

PHOENIX — A scandal in which 6,000 child-abuse complaints in Arizona were filed away and never investigated illustrated what advocates say is a tragically common problem across the U.S.: Many child-protection agencies have crushing workloads and inadequate oversight.

In some cases, those flaws have led to deaths and criminal charges against social workers.

"This is a system that years ago was dubbed a poor system for poor people, and very often the resources are not there to do this very difficult and very important work," said Dr. Howard Dubowitz, a pediatrician who studies child protection policies at the University of Maryland Medical Center.

"The notion that this is a system that is nicely equipped to fulfill its mandate is often a dream that some of us are hanging onto."

Arizona officials promised prompt action after it was disclosed Thursday that over the past four years, a team at the state Child Protective Services agency tried to cope with the heavy workload by overlooking thousands of complaints to the statewide child-abuse hotline.

Under state law, all reports generated via the hotline must be investigated.

So far, authorities reexamining the cases have identified at least 125 in which children were later alleged to have been abused. No deaths have been connected to the lapses.

Clarence Carter, who as director of Arizona's Department of Economic Security oversees CPS, called the situation "cause for grave alarm," and Gov. Jan Brewer has ordered an investigation.

CPS has long suffered from what defenders say is understaffing and overwork.

The number of abuse and neglect reports requiring investigation has risen 16 percent in the five years ending in March, according to the agency, while the number of children in foster care or other out-of-home oversight has surged from about 9,000 to nearly 15,000.

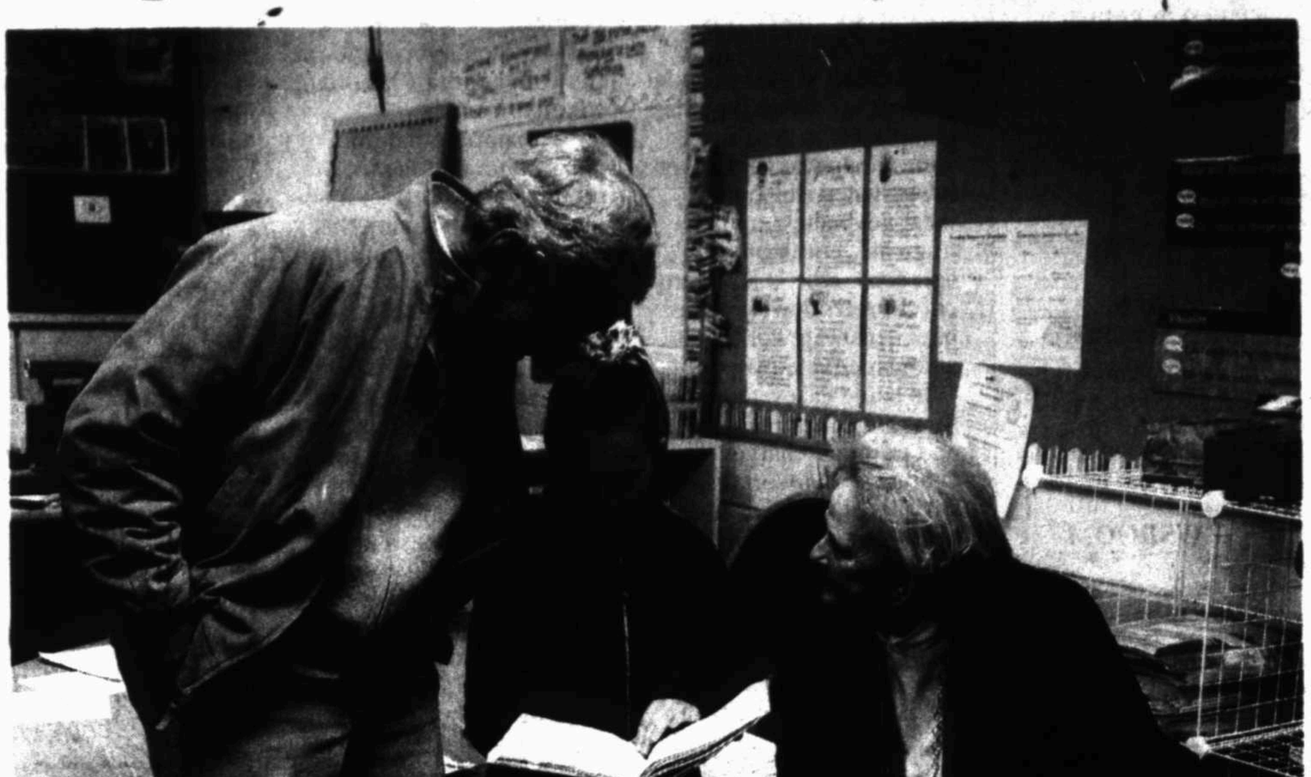
Speaker: Grandparents share role in raising kids

By Meredith Moriak
mmoriak@mrt.com



Sarah Green/Trinity School

Trinity School fourth-grader Adelle Hinson reads with her grandparents Perry and Caroline Bolger on Friday morning during the school's annual Grandparents and Grand Friends Day.

In addition to a heartwarming old-fashioned gospel concert and visits to children's classrooms, those in attendance at Trinity School's annual Grandparents and Grand Friend's Day received a little advice on raising children.

Midland native Steve Baskin, owner of Camp Champions in Marble Falls and son of former Chamber of Commerce President Joan Baskin, encouraged attendees to share family stories with children.

"Pick your stories well. Choose ones that will fill their heart and frame their lives," said Baskin, who shared thoughts on multi-generational parenting with hundreds in the school's Beal Gym. Baskin mentioned his mother, whom he affectionately calls "the silver fox," multiple times throughout his speech, and credits her with teaching him about life and parenting.

"Kids carry the stories from their grandparents with them as they navigate through life," Baskin said. "The best stories are the ones you show with your legs, your heart and your actions."

Because it takes a village to raise a child, Baskin encourages grandparents to take an active role in their grandchildren's development and to reinforce the parents' values.

"As parents and grandparents, it's important to give our children good narratives," Baskin said.

Baskin cited research that proves children who know about their family's history — both happy things, such as how their parents met, and also low points, such as financial struggles — will be more resilient when they experience failure personally.

"Children who knew more about their families were more emotionally happy. You have an idea of yourself from time and space and you know you're from times of struggle and resiliency," Baskin said.

Baskin estimates he's worked with more than 5,000 families in the last 20 years and has noticed a common thread among the adults he dubs "super parents."

"They're the ones with three or more children, each of whom are loving, quirky and living their own lives. The one commonality among all these parents is they value partners," Baskin said. "They value teachers, coaches, ministers and anyone who shares their values."

Grandparents must absolutely be in agreement with their children about the goals of parenting their grandchildren, Baskin said.

"Our goal is to create individuals who are loving, independent, self-reliant and contribute to society. They value what makes them special," Baskin said.

While grandparents have a job, Baskin said it is also important that parents reinvigorate their own parents so children will see their grandparents as wise, intelligent individuals who are worthy of great respect.

"My children were raised to think of their grandparents as wise individuals," Baskin said, recalling stories of his father, the late Judge Pat Baskin, fighting for desegregation and his mother volunteering with every organization in Midland. "You need to make sure your children are raised to value your parents."

Children have become technology-minded and as a result, often feel superior to their parents and grandparents who many not operate a cellphone or iPad quite as quickly.

"There's an ongoing theme in teen shows that shows all ideas flow from the lips of the 12 year old and the adults are fools," Baskin said, noting that parents need to reverse the societal myth of the adult idiot.

When trying to connect with children and share stories about one's family history, Baskin suggests placing children in new surroundings that allow the adult to "have the home field advantage" and get kids outside of their comfort zone.

"The 'silver fox' may not be able to get on Snap Chat, but she knows what stop at the subway to get off at," said Baskin, giving an example of ways children will gain respect and admiration for their grandparents.

"When kids are outside of their comfort zone, they become a sponge and will remember stories that are shared with them," Baskin said.

Judge gives initial OK to end Arkansas school suit

Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — After decades of court battles and $1 billion of government aid, one the nation's most historic school desegregation efforts might finally be nearing an end.

A federal judge gave preliminary approval Friday to a settlement in a Little Rock desegregation lawsuit that would phase out special court-ordered payments after the 2017-18 school year.

The end would come 60 years after the eyes of the nation first were riveted on Little Rock, when President Dwight Eisenhower in 1957 ordered federal troops to ensure safe passage for nine black students walking through angry crowds into the doors of the predominantly white Little Rock Central High School.

U.S. District Judge Price Marshall said Friday that the settlement appeared to be legal — an important hurdle. He set a hearing for Jan. 13-14 to determine whether it's fair to the state, the school districts, the children and educators involved in the case.

"This is not the end," Marshall said. "But I hope this is the beginning of the end."

For at least some of those who were there for the beginning, Friday's court action rekindled decades of powerful emotions of distrust and frustration.

"Wow! That's interesting — I wasn't aware they were at that stage," said Terrance Roberts, one of the original Little Rock Nine escorted into Central High in 1957. But Roberts wasn't rejoicing Friday. Rather, it's "business as usual," he said.

Roberts, who was a high school junior when he helped integrate Central High, later returned as a desegregation consultant for the Little Rock School District in the late 1990s and early 2000s. He said he was relieved of his duties before all of his proposals were implemented.

"Even though on the surface they gave the impression that they were willing to follow the dictates of the federal government to desegregate, there was not only a great reluctance, there was an unwillingness to really move in that direction," Roberts said in a telephone interview from St. Louis, where he was attending the screening of a documentary about the federal judge who ordered the desegregation of Central High.

The lawsuit moving toward a settlement is not the same one that spurred the school's integration. But it still has deep roots. It dates to 1982 and has resulted in more than $1 billion of state spending on desegregation efforts in the Little Rock, North Little Rock and Pulaski County school districts.

and Van Mabee, of the J. E. and L. E. Mabee Foundation, said it took decades of time, money and emotional investment to build the organization's Midland presence.

"They used almost the same criteria to move to a base as they did to move here: open air space, airport, lengthy runways, visibility, room to grow," Van Mabee said. "I mean they are describing Midland right here again. It's the same thing. They're saying we don't have any of this, and we have it all."

■ September: Mayor Wes Perry negotiated a deal between the City Council and CAF for $50,000 from the hotel and motel tax fund for this year's annual AirSho.

The agreement requires the CAF to hold its annual AirSho, maintain the CAF museum, allow the local High Sky Wing to operate the complex, accept payment of $710,650 in state funds by reimbursement instead of one lump sum and exhibit the B-29 Superfortress FiFi in Midland three times a year.

Not all Midlanders were pleased with the negotiations. David Smith, executive director of the Abell-Hanger Foundation, said the CAF lost its institutional memory and fundraising attempts by the organization are doomed to fail.

"This is a question of character. You can have all the contracts you want, but if there's no character behind the people or organizations who sign them, they're pretty worthless," he said at the City Council briefing session.

■ October: As the CAF's fleet of about 159 warbirds — including FiFi and B-24 Liberator Diamond Lil — took to the skies, eligible colonels attended the general membership meeting and voted on whether to relocate CAF headquarters. About 6,000 voters nationwide could either cast ballots at the meeting or by absentee ballot up until the postmark deadline of Nov. 12.

■ November: After the CAF released unofficial results, Perry said he believed the CAF would honor its agreement with the city.

"If that changes, I'll be really disappointed," Perry said Thursday, noting the city will work to keep the CAF accountable.

Diane Fenner — wife of Hal Fenner, one of the founding fathers of the CAF museum board — said in September that members have become reactionary following the CAF's decision to relocate its headquarters.

"We don't know what's going on until it's done," she said. "As a members we are frustrated with all the decisions that have come down the pike."

Oncor did not respond to any major electrical ages Friday night, but the electrical provider is monitoring weather conditions, and crews are on standby for possible disruptions, said Sue Mercer, Oncor's electric delivery manager.

Midland Fire Department and volunteer crews in Greenwood responded to a number of lines down calls Friday night. That's happens when snow and ice weigh down tree branches, Mercer said.

"As ice accumulates, it makes them heavier and can cause them to break," she said.

Icy patches in streets also make it more likely for drivers to slide into electrical poles, causing disruptions, she said.

Craddick to run for re-election

From staff reports

State Rep. Tom Craddick will seek another term as representative of an area that includes Midland.

On Friday, the former speaker of the Texas House filed papers to seek re-election to the Texas House of Representatives for District 82. Craddick has served as a representative since 1969. His tenure includes parts of six different decades.

"My paperwork to run for re-election as state representative of House District 82 was filed with the Republican Party of Texas today," Craddick announced. "In 2015 when the state Legislature convenes for the 84th legislative session, there will be numerous issues to address and tough policy decisions to make. I am proud to serve the people of Crane, Dawson, Martin, Midland and Upton counties and look forward to continuing to advocate for the district's needs in the Texas Legislature."

Craddick serves as a member on the House Committee on Energy Resources, along with the House Committee on State Affairs.

"Next session, as lawmakers consider and debate a state budget, I will focus on seeing that our area receives every dollar of state funding it needs, especially when it comes to money for roads and transportation infrastructure. Additionally, I will work to see that UTPB receives resources to construct facilities for an engineering school," Craddick said. "My legislative agenda also includes passing a statewide texting-while-driving law to make our roads safer for drivers and all Texans."

Craddick is a business development representative for Rapid Drilling and Chem Rock, an oil field supply company, owns Craddick Properties and is president of Craddick Inc. Craddick and his wife, Nadine, live in Midland. They have two grown children and three grandchildren.

Craddick is seeking the nomination in the Republican primary on March 4.

employers are challenged to fill staffing needs, which is one reason his center has given grants to Midland College and Odessa College for oil field workforce training. He said the schools were asked to identify areas where training was needed, and he encouraged them in finding ways to provide that training or retraining for existing employees.

"We're just trying to grow our own employees," he said.

"It makes sense," he said, with Ector County Independent School District having record enrollment of about 30,000 students and Midland Independent School District having enrollment of about 26,000 students.

Employers want to attract talent to the region, something he said may be getting easier as housing availability and pricing appears to be stabilizing, he said.

"With the longevity of this boom, if you don't have all the infrastructure — housing and other infrastructure all play a critical role in growing our workforce."

Statewide, the unemployment rate fell to 6.2 percent from 6.3 percent in September. The Workforce Commission said Texas had an estimated total nonfarm employment of 11,232,700 jobs, an increase of 267,400 jobs over the year. Total nonfarm employment in Texas rose by an estimated 7,400 positions in October following an increase of 36,400 jobs in September, a total of 43,800 jobs added over the last two months.

While Midland had the state's lowest unemployment, the highest was reported in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission at 10.1 percent.

'A Storybook Christmas' seeks donations

By Meredith Moriak
mmoriak@mrt.com

Just as they've done every year for the past 22 years, local members of Delta Kappa Gamma are seeking donations from Midlanders to help provide every first-grader in Midland County with a book as part of "A Storybook Christmas."

The annual event was established in 1991 by the Zeta Xi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, a professional honor society of female educators, and is funded entirely by donations from chapter and community members.

"There's about 25 of us in the chapter who work every year to raise funds for this project," said event chairwoman Ann Andrews, who taught 35 years.

The organization sends letters seeking support to past donors and also to professionals members deal with, such as plumbers, dentists and doctors, Andrews said.

The organization plans to distribute more than 2,500 books this year and needs about $10,000 to pay for the books, she said.

Books will be delivered to all public, private and charter schools in Midland County between Dec. 9 and Dec. 20, Andrews said.

Though called Storybook Christmas, the books are never religious or associated directly with the holiday, Andrews said.

The organization started by asking residents, companies, clubs and associations for books and monetary donations but now asks only for money so all students can have the same book.

The organizations accepts donations for Storybook Christmas year-round. They can be mailed to A Storybook Christmas, P.O. Box 8769, Midland, TX 79708. For more information, call Andrews at 694-9886.

MPD: Teens fall asleep with weed, guns

From staff reports

Two Midland teenagers were allegedly caught sleeping in a vehicle with marijuana and firearms Thursday morning in front of Parker Elementary.

John Michael Garza, 19, and Isaac J. Salazar, 18, are being held on a third-degree felony charges of unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon and misdemeanor charges of possession of marijuana less than 2 ounces in a drug-free school zone.

Midland police found the duo parked at the intersection of Godfrey Street and St. Andrews Drive — about 1,000 feet from the elementary school — with the engine running at about 8 a.m. Thursday.

One of the officers observed a mason jar allegedly containing a plastic baggie with marijuana next to the passenger's leg and seized it through an window before awaking the subjects, according to their arrest affidavits. The officer also observed a handgun on the floorboard.

Both subjects are convicted felons, and Salazar had outstanding warrants and marijuana in his pockets at the time of his arrest, according to the affidavits.

If convicted, Garza and Salazar face up to 10 years in prison for each third-degree felony charge of unlawful possession of a firearm.

State Dept: American detained in NKorea

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Friday that North Korea acknowledges it is holding an American citizen but hasn't granted diplomats consular access so the person's identity is not yet confirmed.

It is expected to be Merrill Newman, of California. The 85-year old Korean War veteran's family said he was detained at the end of a tourist trip to North Korea last month.

Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki said that Sweden has been informed by Pyongyang that it is detaining an American citizen. The U.S. has no diplomatic relations with North Korea. Sweden oversees consular issues for the U.S. there.

Despite weakened filibuster, rules give Republicans options

■ ANALYSIS

By Michael Doyle
McClatchy-Tribune

WASHINGTON — Two Californians proposed for the federal bench and two Texans offered as U.S. marshals are collateral damage, at least for now, in the suddenly escalated Senate confirmation wars.

Expect more of the same.

Senate rules provide other ways beyond the now-curtailed filibuster to obstruct nominees. Hearings can be boycotted. Routine procedural approvals can be withheld. New Capitol Hill ambushes can be plotted, perhaps with tactics not yet seen. For a truly motivated minority, losing one weapon means it's time to pick up another.

"My sense is the Republicans are going to be putting up whatever roadblocks they can, though they don't have the main roadblock they used to have," Russell Wheeler, a judiciary expert at the Brookings Institution, said in an interview Friday.

Republicans already flexed their muscles Thursday, the same day Senate Democrats weakened the filibuster by a 52-48 vote. Under the new rules, executive branch and most judicial nominations will require only 51 votes to proceed rather than the 60 required for legislation and Supreme Court nominations.

Using the prior filibuster rules, Republican lawmakers thwarted nominees, including Goodwin Liu, a University of California, Berkeley, law professor nominated to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. After falling short on a 52-43 Senate vote, Liu withdrew his nomination and now serves on the California Supreme Court. More recently, Republicans used the 60-vote margin to block three nominees to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

Some believe the diminished filibuster will encourage presidents to nominate more controversial candidates. For nominees, the rules change will certainly mean quicker approval.

Republicans didn't need the filibuster, though, to impede 10 nominees Thursday morning. The unhappy Republican senators simply ducked a committee meeting, thereby frustrating a planned Senate Judiciary Committee vote.

No specific controversy shadows Los Angeles-based attorney John B. Owens or San Francisco-based attorney Michelle T. Friedland. Friedland even clerked for former Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, a Republican who showed up for Friedland's confirmation hearing. Both were nominated Aug. 1 to the 9th Circuit, which handles appeals in nine Western states. Both sailed through their recent confirmation hearings.

M. Douglas Harpool, a Springfield, Mo., attorney nominated to the bench in Missouri, and Edward G. Smith, an Easton, Pa.-based judge proposed for a federal court seat in eastern Pennsylvania, likewise, appear noncontroversial.

And Texans Robert L. Hobbs and Gary L. Blankinship, nominated to serve as U.S. marshals, have similarly excited no partisan rancor.

Nonetheless, the nominees are now hostages of the Judiciary Committee's eight Republicans. Members of both parties have practiced the no-show tactic, but its deployment Thursday reminded all that even a weakened minority retains arrows in its quiver.

"The Republicans have gotten a lot more aggressive in fighting nominations," Wheeler said.

Data compiled by Wheeler shows that judicial vacancies are filled much more slowly in states with one or two Republican senators; suggesting, he said, that Republican lawmakers may be "simply slow-walking" the nomination process.

Richard Painter, a law professor at the University of Minnesota, cautioned in an interview Friday that Republicans should hesitate before they make "too big of a stink" over nominees, because of public discontent with a dysfunctional Congress. At the same time, Painter, a former chief ethics lawyer in President George W. Bush's White House, noted that old-fashioned deal-making can work wonders.

"What you can do is say, 'If you want Republican votes on anything else, like a treaty, then talk to us about judges,'" Painter said.

Another potential tool for Republicans is the Senate Judiciary Committee's long-standing but still fluid "blue slip" tradition, by which the committee seeks a go-ahead from a state's two senators. Committee chairmen decide how much weight to give the blue slips.

President Barack Obama, for instance, nominated at-large Circuit Judge Alison Renee Lee to a Columbia, S.C.-based federal judgeship in June. South Carolina's two Republican senators have voiced some hesitation about Lee. No hearing has yet been set, though no one is saying the blue slips are being withheld.

But underscoring the potential for delay, Los Angeles native Rosemary Marquez is still awaiting a hearing for a U.S. District Court seat in Arizona for which she was first nominated in June 2011. At least some of the past delay has been caused by problems in getting the requisite blue slips from Arizona's Republican senators.

If more Republicans start withholding blue slips, the Senate Judiciary Committee chairman could, in theory, eventually modify the tradition. That, in turn, could prompt yet another GOP escalation.

Supreme Court nomination tactics, the most consequential of them all, could escalate in several ways.

Individual senators, inflamed against the party in power and perhaps entranced by the spotlight, may now actually be more motivated to undertake a Supreme Court filibuster and less hesitant to break Senate comity. The willingness of Republican Sen. Ted Cruz earlier this year to obstruct a government funding bill underscored the increased clout today's Senate grants a zealous politician.

Another result, now that the genie is out of the bottle, could be still more confirmation changes in the future.

"The silver lining is the day will come when roles are reversed," predicted Sen. Charles Grassley, of Iowa, the senior Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee. "When that happens, our side will likely nominate and confirm lower court and Supreme Court nominees with 51 votes, regardless of whether Democrats actually buy into this fanciful notion that they can demolish the filibuster on lower-court nominees and still preserve it for Supreme Court nominees."

What Texas' senators had to say

Sen. Ted Cruz

Today's unfortunate vote damaged the Senate and was designed to try to change the topic from the millions of Americans losing their jobs and their healthcare because of Obamacare. Just like President Obama promised, "if you like your plan, you can keep it," so too Harry Reid repeatedly promised he would not use the "nuclear option" to change the Senate rules. Both, sadly, ignored their promises and broke their word. And, in yet another partisan abuse of power, the Democrats are now shamelessly working to pack the D.C. Circuit so that President Obama's lawless disregard of our statutes and Constitution will not be held to account by an impartial judiciary.

cruz.senate.gov

Sen. John Cornyn

The Democrats' attempt to pivot at a time when we should be focused on protecting the American people from dropped health care coverage makes their true motives clear. They will do anything to take the attention off the failure that is Obamacare, even if it means breaking the rules of the Senate in a raw exercise of partisan political power.

US rig count down 1 this week to 1,761

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. decreased one this week to 1,761, according to a report released Friday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,387 rigs listed as searching for oil, up two; 369 as searching for gas, down one; and five as miscellaneous, down two. A year ago this week there were 1,388 rigs searching for oil, a difference of one, and 428 rigs searching for gas a difference of 59.

By trajectory, there were 418 vertical drilling rigs, down 10; 1,127 horizontal drilling rigs, up 13; and 216 directional drilling rigs, up down four.

A year ago this week there were 1,817 rigs in the U.S.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Texas increased six this week to 831. At this time last year there were 853 rigs in Texas, a difference of 22.

The Permian Basin ended the week unchanged at 470 rigs, a difference of 17 rigs compared to a year ago this week, when there were 487 rigs. The Eagle Ford added three rigs for a total of 226. The Barnett lost three rigs for a total of 33. The Granite Wash was unchanged at 61.

Rounding out the top five states by rig count were.Texas; Oklahoma with 172, down four; North Dakota with 167, up two; Louisiana with 110, up one; and New Mexico with 79, down two.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, West Virginia was up five rigs, and Kansas and Wyoming added on each. California lost five rigs, Pennsylvania was down three and Arkansas and Colorado lost one apiece. Alaska, Ohio and Utah were unchanged.

In the U.S. there were 1,685 listed as on land, unchanged; 19 as in inland waters, up two; and 57 as offshore, down three. There were 55 rigs in the Gulf of Mexico, down three.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada dropped 33 this week to 368. There were 200 rigs listed as searching for oil, down 34; 168 as searching for natural gas, up one; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. There were 387 rigs in Canada a year ago this week.

The total number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in North America — which includes the U.S., Canada and the Gulf of Mexico — decreased 34 this week to 2,129. At this time last year there were 2,204 rigs in North America.

WASHINGTON

Wind energy company pleads guilty to eagle deaths

The government for the first time has enforced environmental laws protecting birds against wind energy facilities, winning a $1 million settlement from a power company that pleaded guilty to killing 14 eagles and 149 other birds at two Wyoming wind farms.

The Obama administration has championed pollution-free wind power and used the same law against oil companies and power companies for drowning and electrocuting birds. The case against Duke Energy Corp. and its renewable energy arm was the first prosecuted under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act against a wind energy company.

"In this plea agreement, Duke Energy Renewables acknowledges that it constructed these wind projects in a manner it knew beforehand would likely result in avian deaths," Robert G. Dreher, acting assistant attorney general for the Justice Department's Environment and Natural Resources Division, said in a statement Friday.

NEW YORK

Oil slips but stays higher for the week

The price of oil slipped to just under $95 Friday but still finished the week with a gain of $1 a barrel.

Benchmark U.S. crude for January delivery fell 60 cents to close at $94.84 in trading in New York. The weekly increase from $93.84 a week ago was largely because of an improving U.S. jobs picture, which would mean more drivers making the daily commute.

Brent crude rose 97 cents to $111.05 in London. Brent has risen 4 percent since Tuesday as nuclear talks with Iran have dragged on without a deal that could relieve sanctions that have kept a substantial amount of Iranian crude from world markets.

Meanwhile, gasoline prices in the U.S. are in the midst of an unusual increase for this time of year.

The average price of a gallon of gasoline rose 2 cents Friday to $3.24 according to AAA, OPIS and Wright Express. The price has risen 5 cents a gallon over the last 10 days, but is still 10 cents cheaper than a month ago and 20 cents cheaper than a year ago.

Tom Kloza, Chief Oil Analyst at GasBuddy.com, says the rise may continue for a few more days, making travel a bit more expensive for holiday drivers next week. But he doesn't expect the rise to last long, or be very dramatic.

"This has nothing to do with the holiday," he said.

A handful of refinery problems in the Gulf Coast have slowed output, an increase in exports has reduced supplies, and the price of ethanol, which is blended into gasoline, nearly doubled over the past two weeks.

In Geneva, negotiators are trying to reach an agreement that would limit Tehran's atomic program. In exchange, the U.S., Britain, France, Russia, China and Germany are offering a gradual easing of sanctions that has prevented Iran from selling as much oil as it wants. A senior U.S. official has told reporters that Iran is losing $5 billion a month in oil sales.

In other energy futures trading on Nymex:

- Wholesale gasoline slipped 2 cents to $2.73 a gallon.
- Heating oil rose added 3 cents to $3.04 a gallon.
- Natural gas rose 7 cents to $3.77 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Mexican cartel leader's son arrested at US border

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The son of one of the world's most-wanted drug lords was arrested at an Arizona border crossing to face drug-trafficking charges in the United States, authorities said Friday.

Serafin Zambada, 23, was arrested Wednesday afternoon while crossing the border from Mexico in Nogales, Ariz., accompanied by his wife in a pedestrian lane, said Kelly Thornton, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in San Diego. The wife was detained and released, Thornton said.

Zambada's father is Ismael "El Mayo" Zambada, who survived decades of turf wars and rose to the top of Mexico's underworld through savvy deal-brokering. Ismael Zambada is considered the strategist of Mexico's Sinaloa cartel, more involved in daily operations than his better-known boss, Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman.

Serafin Zambada, a U.S. citizen, was scheduled to appear before a federal judge in Tucson, Ariz., on Monday to determine if he is eligible for bail. Prosecutors plan to ask that he be sent to San Diego to face federal charges of conspiracy to import methamphetamine and cocaine, and criminal forfeiture.

The younger Zambada's attorney, Saji Vettiyil, said his client would fight the charges.

"My client is looking forward to the day when he can clear his name in a court of law. He has absolute faith in the legal system," Vettiyil said.

Serafin Zambada, also called "Sera," is not known in Mexico for involvement in the drug trade. His indictment filed under seal in San Diego on Sept. 27 offers little detail, saying only that he conspired to bring at least 500 grams of methamphetamine and 5 kilograms of cocaine to the U.S.

Lee Univ. students apologize for blackface costumes

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Two students at Lee University in Tennessee have apologized for wearing blackface when they dressed up for a rap-themed party last week.

The costumes included long white T-shirts with the title of a popular rap song by YG that includes a variation of the N-word.

The costumes became a public controversy after someone posted a photo of them online Saturday.

Vice President of University Relations Jerome Hammond said the students, Kerri Klenkel and Laura Jones, have apologized. He said they did not realize how offensive their costumes might appear.

Klenkel posted the apology on Twitter. It reads, "Our intention was not to offend anyone in any way. Therefore we are deeply sorry for those we have upset."

Lee is a private Christian school of about 4,500 in Cleveland, Tenn. The school is 83 percent white.

Hammond said the school's leadership team is discussing how to address the issue in a larger way.

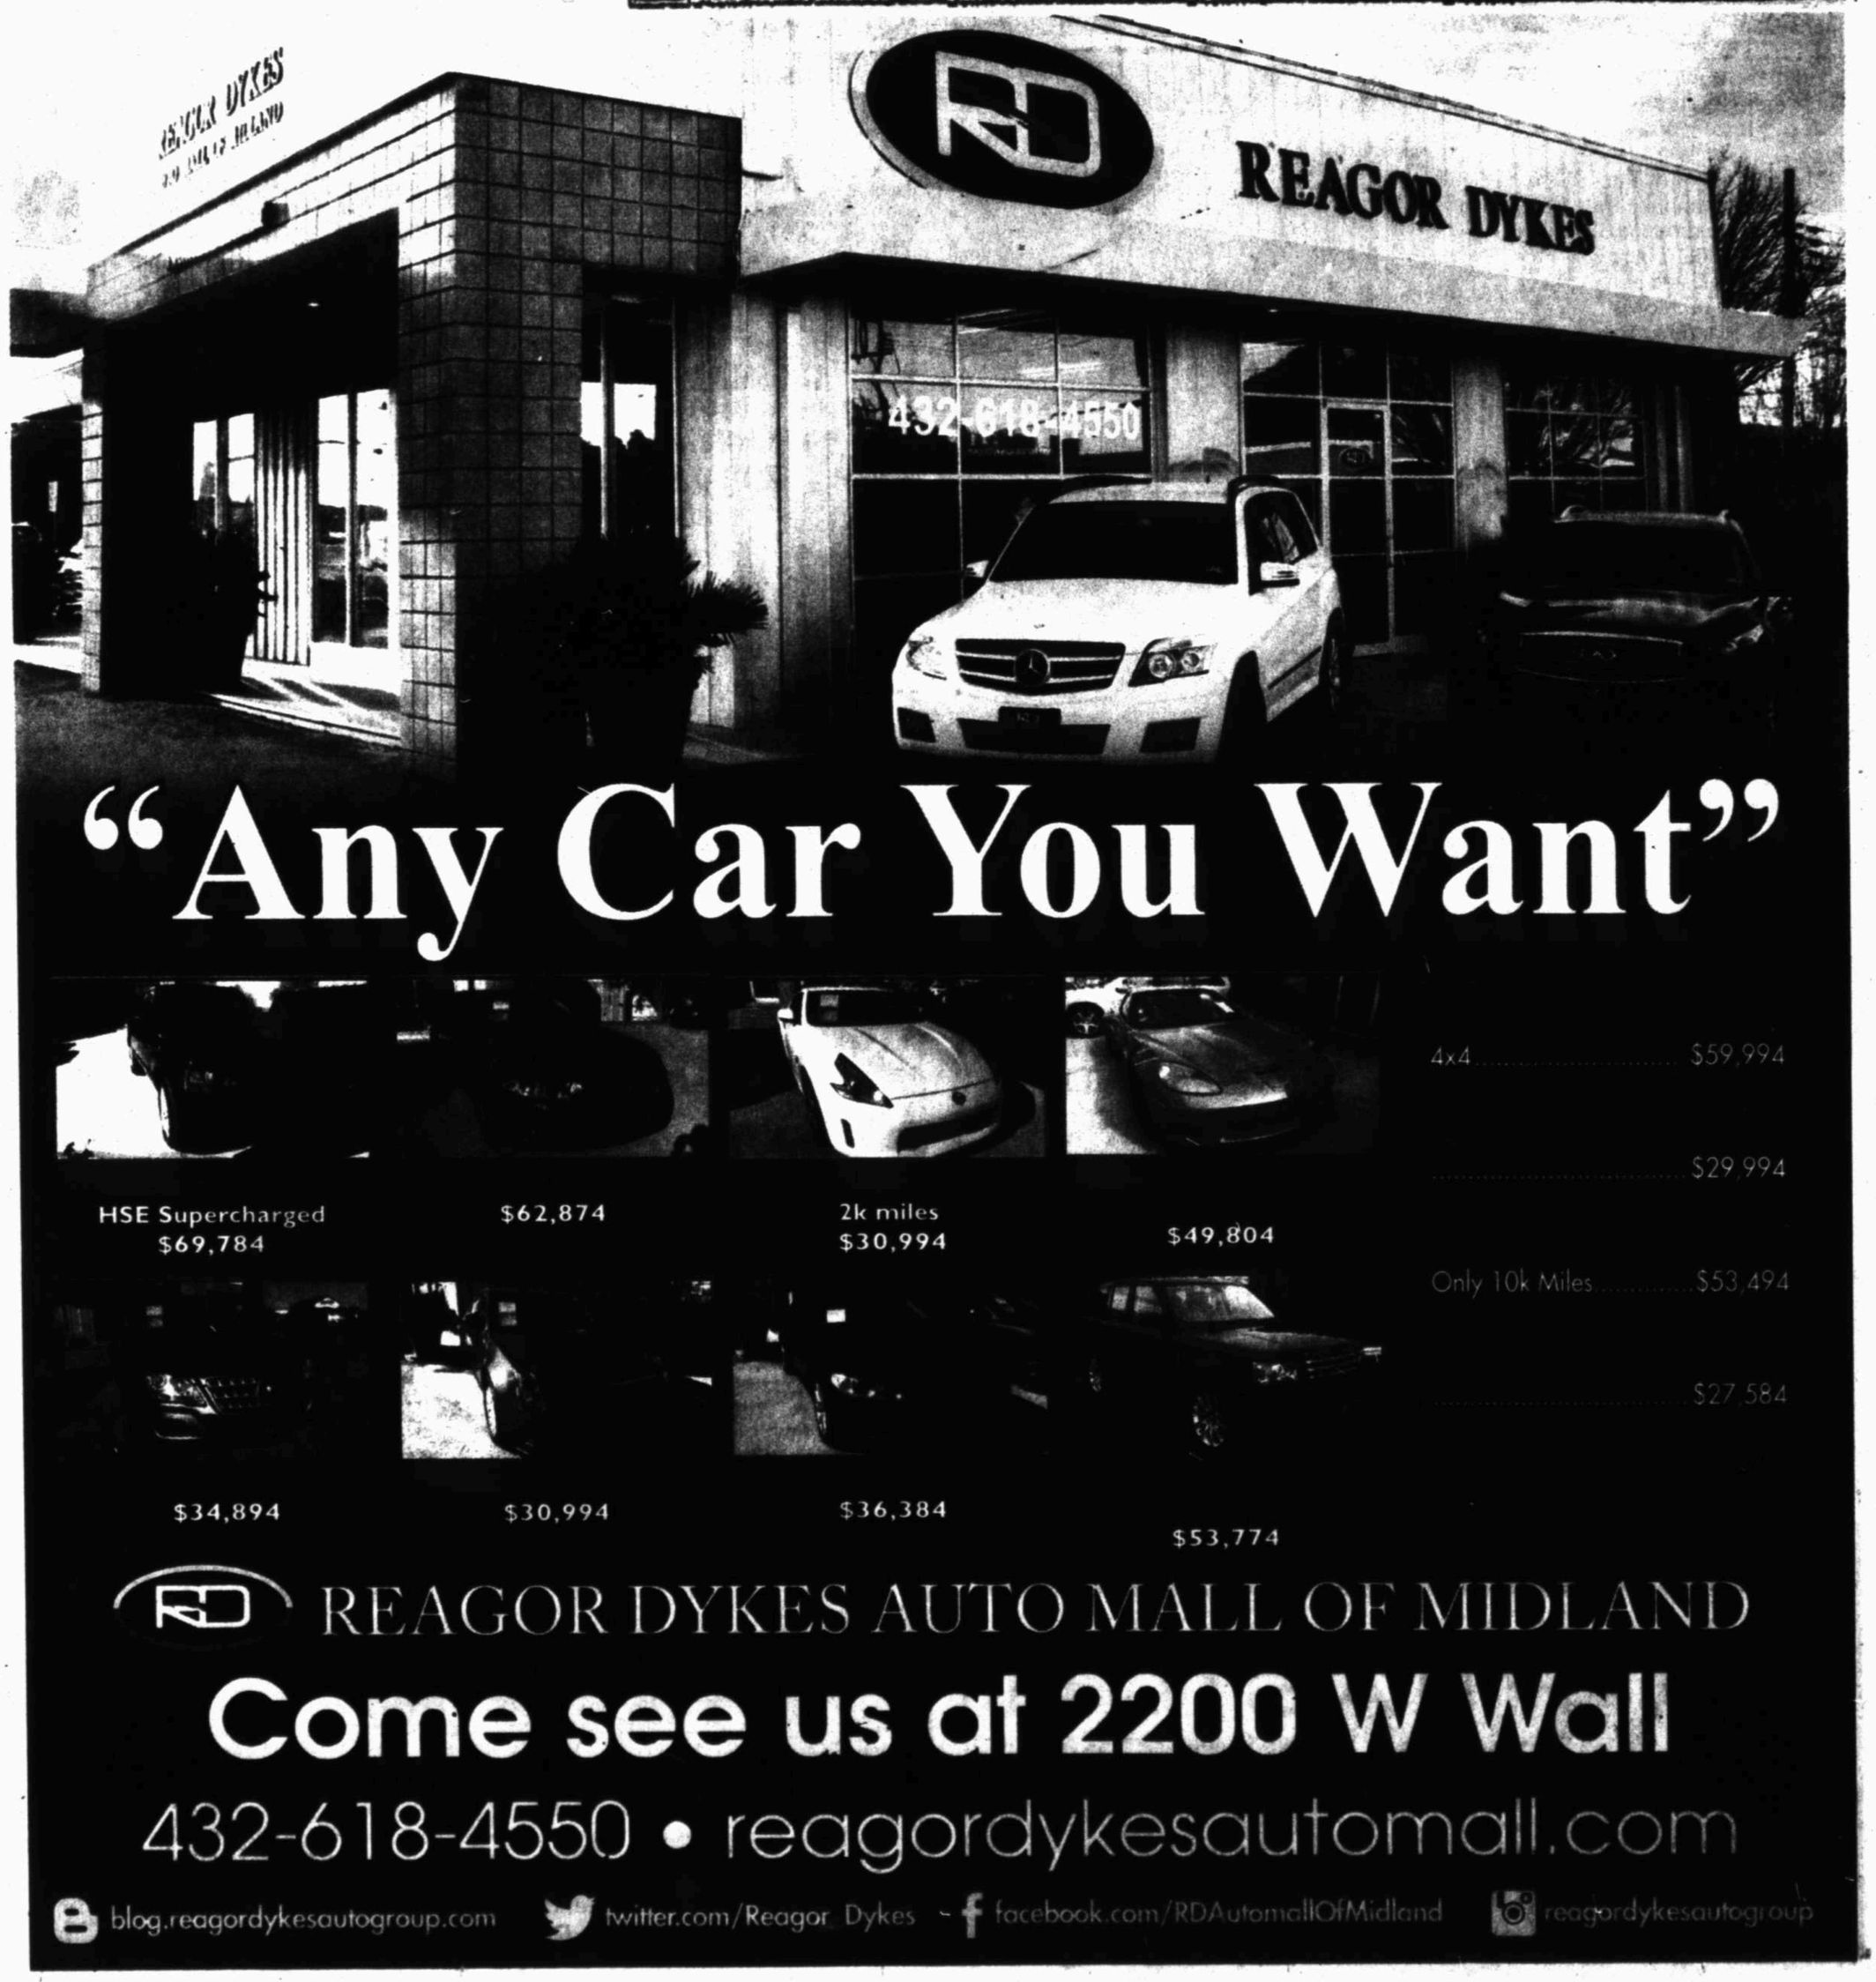
He said college students in general are "in the process of becoming citizens of the world," and that does not happen overnight.

"They are part of the grown-up rule book and they haven't read through it," he said. "Who is going to educate them on why this is the wrong this to do? Well, unfortunately for them, the world is."

The students join a number of others who have recently issued apologies for blackface costumes including actress Julianne Hough.

Blackface was common in minstrel shows in the 19th and early 20th centuries where white performers played stereotyped black characters.

Hammond said he was positive the students did not know the history of blackface.



Hooper, Brown become key contributors on MCS' defense

Midland Christian's Britt Hooper, left, blocks a player on a pass play during practice Wednesday at Mustang Field.

Elias Aguirre and Jarrod Koym are known commodities for Midland Christian's secondary.

The senior duo have been defensive backs since they were sophomores and have seen plenty of time, even though this year is the first year for Aguirre to officially start. Entering this season, though, the Mustangs were left with two key holes to fill at safety and cornerback, and a few questions.

As the Mustangs get set to take on Dallas Parish Episcopal in a TAPPS Division II regional-round game at 6 p.m. today at Bulldog Stadium in Clyde, those two slots have been filled nicely by Britt Hooper and Reagan Brown.

Hooper, a senior, returned to the football field for the first time in two years this fall, and was thrust into a starting cornerback position after playing the majority of his career at linebacker. Meanwhile, Brown, a junior, is playing safety and also seeing significant time as a receiver in the Mustangs' high-octane offense.

The two have been solid additions for a team that has been shutting down opponents all season long.

"We've worked to get better each week," said Brown, who has 40 tackles and three pass break-ups this season. "They've had a good tradition of defensive backs at our school, and we've got some guys going both ways. But we love doing it."

Aguirre, Koym and Brown are all receivers for the Mustangs, and have produced significant numbers this season. Koym just recently broke the school's career record for receiving yards, while Aguirre has a shot to do the same himself. Brown is also contributing as well with eight of his 30 catches going for touchdowns to

Dragons demolish Rebels

Lee's Relandus Swann is brought down by two Southlake Carroll players during their game Friday at Chisholm Trail Stadium in Fort Worth. The Rebels' season ended after a 51-7 loss to the Dragons.

Turnovers haunt Lee in blowout loss to Carroll

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Dragons	51
Rebels	7

FORT WORTH — Lee never really gave itself a chance against Southlake Carroll on Friday night, but the Dragons never really allowed Lee to have many chances either.

The Rebels needed to play near-perfect, or even perfect, to beat the No. 8-ranked Dragons, but when they turned the ball over three times in the first quarter on a frigid, wet night the Rebels provided way too many opportunities for a team with the firepower of Southlake Carroll. And the Dragons took advantage and never let up.

The Dragons (11-1) scored 45 first half points and went on to a dominating 51-7 victory at Chisholm Trail Stadium in a Class 5A Division I area round game. Carroll scored points on all eight of its first half possessions, and three of those started in Rebel territory after turnovers.

Overall, the Rebels threw three first half interceptions, two by Caden Coots, and had a fumble by running back Simeon Mayberry, who was filling in for injured junior Aron Dobbins.

"I feel like we started getting down with the turnovers, but I feel like in the second half we got together more as a unit," Lee senior defensive end Nathan Bailey said. "They ran everything we saw, but it comes down to making plays and that's something we didn't do."

Lee's longest playoff run since 2007 ended with another blowout loss to the Dragons and a 9-3 record. Carroll (11-1) will take on the winner of today's game between Euless Trinity and Mansfield Timberview at 4 p.m. Friday at AT&T Stadium.

"It's one thing to get a turnover, but then you've got to respond to the turnover," Carroll coach Hal Wasson said. "Our defense got turnovers and our offense always responded with points. It's always critical to do that."

The Rebels' put together a promising opening drive where they drove to the Carroll 34-yard line before being forced to punt.

The Dragons didn't waste much time after that punt, though, as they put together an impressive — and speedy — 12-play 87-yard drive that ended with a 9-yard run by running back E.J. Ezzard.

Then on Lee's next possession, just barely halfway through the first quarter, things began to unravel.

Mayberry's fumble at the 6:31 mark of the first quarter was the first of three turnovers on three consecutive possessions

ODESSA — Hunter Hill said his Big Spring football team didn't want to take any chances against rival Andrews in their Class 3A Division I area playoff game at Ratliff Stadium. As it turned out, the Steers didn't really have to in what was a runaway victory.

Behind four touchdowns by Hill, a strong rushing attack and stellar defensive play, the Steers rolled past Andrews, 56-7, in front about 200 brave souls on a frigid Friday night. It was a rematch of a Sept. 20 game

Happy-Grady game postponed

From staff reports

Grady's Six-man Division I regional matchup against No. 8 Happy was one of the many high school football games postponed Friday due to the cold front that overtook the Panhandle and West Texas.

The game originally set for 6 p.m. Friday at Buffalo Stadium in Petersburg has now been tentatively scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday in the same location.

Webb back on the court after knee injury

By Jonathan Hull
jhull@mrt.com

Paris Webb has a lot of fond memories playing basketball at Chaparral Center. But she's also got one she's not too crazy about as well.

A little more than a year ago, Webb was playing point guard for Central Arizona College in the championship game of the Midland College Women's National Invitational Tournament at Chaparral Center, competing on the same court where she became the career steals and assists leader for Midland High.

Late in the first half, Webb went down suddenly, grasping for her right knee. It turned out she sprained her medial collateral ligament, ending what had been a promising sophomore season for the former Lady Bulldog.

On Thursday, Webb, donning a brace on her right knee, returned to the court where she suffered what could have been a devastating injury, resuming her point guard duties for second-ranked Central Arizona College in this year's Midland College WNIT.

"It was a little intimidating being back on this court where the injury happened," said Webb after CAC suffered an 80-77 loss to No. 1 Trinity Valley on Thursday. "It brought back that memory, but I knew I had to go out there and play for my team."

It's her teammates, Webb said, was the main driving force in pushing her to get healthy and come back strong.

go with 577 yards.

On defense, he's found a spot at safety.

"It's great when you play both ways, you see both sides of it," Brown said. "We know what defensive back are thinking and what receivers are thinking, and that's helped our football IQ a lot."

Hooper, though, is a one-way player that was shocked when he found out he would be playing cornerback this season, and even starting.

Hooper didn't play football last season to concentrate on track, and helped the Mustangs to a boys state title in track. But as a senior he wanted to play football again, and wasn't sure where he would play, or whether he would play much this season.

So when he was slated to start at cornerback the beginning of two-a-days in August, it was a surprise.

Hooper's transition did take a few weeks as Hooper said the first few opponents the Mustangs faced didn't throw the ball much.

Now, he's become an integral part of a secondary that has allowed 92 yards passing this season, while also helping to hold teams to just over 53 yards rushing.

"We had talked about it through the summer when we were playing 7-on-7," said Hooper, who has 39 tackles and four pass break-ups this season. "During 7-on-7, I had a hard time playing man coverage and getting off the line. When we got to actual football, I was nervous about."

Both Brown and Hooper said Aguirre and Koym have been a big help in playing on defense, but the biggest help has been facing off against one of the area's best passing games on a daily basis.

The Mustangs' receivers and defensive backs go through fade and slant drills before nearly every practice on the goal line. That drill is a major reason the Mustangs have been so good in the passing game and defending the passing game this season.

And luckily for the Midland Christian secondary, it is possibly the best passing game they will see all season.

"The type of routes that they are running and the schemes they have, we see how that falls in and how defensive backs are supposed to cover the schemes," Brown said. "When we are doing our job nobody gets past us, and if they catch it low we are making sure they have to pay for it."

TAPPS DIVISION II REGIONAL

MIDLAND CHRISTIAN VS. DALLAS PARISH EPISCOPAL

When/where: 6 p.m. today, Bulldog Stadium, Clyde

On the web: www.midlandchristianschool.org; www.bit.ly/mustangslive

Records: Midland Christian 11-0, Dallas Parish Episcopal 8-3

Last game: Midland Christian 56, Tyler Grace Community 0; Dallas Parish Episcopal 30, Grapevine Faith 27

Last meeting/series: Midland Christian beat Dallas Parish Episcopal, 28-16, in the only meeting between the two teams in 2012 in the TAPPS Division II regional round.

Weather forecast: A temperature around 35 degrees is expected at game time with a chance of rain and freezing rain and winds out of the north at 15 mph.

Five things you need to know

■ Friday's win was the eighth time in 11 games the Mustangs have scored 50 more points. Midland Christian is averaging 52.8 points a game this season. The win was also the Mustangs' sixth shutout this season.

■ Dallas Parish Episcopal finished second in TAPPS Division II District 2 this season. The Panthers' three losses this season have come to Dallas Prime Prep, Dallas Hillcrest and district rival Dallas Christian.

■ Coach Greg McClendon said the Panthers are young this season on both sides of the ball, but still use a run-oriented offense that uses the rare double-wing formation. Parish Episcopal's top rusher is Dominic Williams, who has 1,190 yards and 12 touchdowns this season. "They are going to run a cross between a wing-T and a wishbone, and little bit less of the double-wing," McClendon said. "They are extremely physical, and it requires our defense to be extremely disciplined."

■ Midland Christian's defense held a team to under 100 yards rushing for the eighth straight game as Tyler Grace had 71 yards on 27 carries, averaging 2.6 yards a carry.

■ If Midland Christian wins they will take on either Dallas Christian or district rival Fort Worth Christian in a state semifinal at Bulldog Stadium on Nov. 30 at a time to be determined.

for Lee that allowed the Dragons to kick it in gear and put the game away early.

Carroll turned a 7-0 lead midway through the first quarter into a 24-0 lead by the end of the opening 12 minutes. Ezzard scored on a 10-yard run with 6:06 left in the first. Drew Brown nailed a 47-yard field goal at the 4:16 mark as that drive started with an interception on a trick play pass by sophomore Hunter Coleman.

The first quarter scoring barrage ended when Agnew connected with Luke Timian on a 9-yard pass for a 24-0 Carroll lead, which also started because of a Coots interception, and the rout was on.

"I think they were down, no doubt about it, but they came back before the half ended up and defensively we played better," Lee coach James Morton said. "We just couldn't consistently do anything offensively holding onto the ball."

Lee only had one turnover in the second quarter, but the Dragons stayed on the accelerator. Steven Bergmark scored on a shovel pass on a fake field goal at the 10:20 mark, and Agnew connected with Timian again, this time for 5 yards with 4:52 left in the half. Agnew completed the first-half onslaught with a nifty 14-yard TD run with just over a minute to play.

The Dragons outgained Lee 312 to 129 in the opening two quarters, and 403-236 for the game, but the difference was the turnovers in the first half that led to 31 Carroll points.

Meanwhile, Lee's offense which was averaging more than 400 yards a game had 23 yards rushing as Mayberry had 26 yards on 14 carries, and Coots completed 20 of 34 passes for 213 yards and two interceptions.

"They came in and had a good game plan, and made a couple of plays early, and that's playoff football," Wasson said. "But you've got to get into the end zone and our defense bowed their neck a little. After that our guys were acclimatized to what they were doing and made plays."

PITTSBURGH — Sidney Crosby scored with 1:16 remaining to give the Pittsburgh Penguins a 4-3 victory over the New York Islanders on Friday night.

Crosby's 12th goal of the season was also the 250th of his career, and the Penguins' captain also had an assist. Chris Kunitz had two goals and an assist, Evgeni Malkin had a goal and two assists, and James Neal added two assists.

Jeff Zatkoff, playing for the first time since Nov. 2, stopped 32 shots in his fourth NHL start.

Thomas Vanek scored twice for the Islanders in his first game after missing five with an upper-body injury. Vanek has three goals and two assists with New York since being acquired from Buffalo in October. Colin McDonald also got his second of the season for the Islanders.

Kevin Poulin made 30 saves for the Islanders.

CANADIENS 3
CAPITALS 2

WASHINGTON — David Desharnais scored his long-awaited first goal of the season, and Montreal took an early three-goal lead and survived two goals from Washington's Alex Ovechkin.

Desharnais, whose scoring drought even attracted the attention of Montreal's new mayor, perched in front of the net to redirect Josh Gorges' drive in the first period. The goal stood after a video review to determine whether Desharnais had scored with a high stick.

Travis Moen also scored his first of the season, and Daniel Briere added a goal for the Canadiens, who have won two straight.

Ovechkin scored on a last first-period power play and again in the third period to give him an NHL-leading 19 goals.

Mario is a very sweet 1 to 2 year old Pekingese mix. He is a very affectionate boy who needs a very quiet home where he can be close to his human. He will need a warm lap to sit on. He would do best in a family with older children or a Senior couple who has lots of time to spend with him. Mario does get along with other dogs his size.

Phillip is a 6 month old kitten who has had a very rough start in life. He was found with injuries that caused him to not be able to move his back legs or tail. He was not expected to recover, however he has made a full recovery but for the fact he cannot completely raise his tail. He is a very affectionate boy with the prettiest green eyes.

Decatur ends Big Spring's season in straight sets

From staff reports

Lady Eagles 3
Lady Steers 0

GARLAND — The Big Spring volleyball team saw its season come to an end Friday after Decatur beat the Lady Steers in straight sets, 25-12, 25-22, 25-10, in the Class 3A state semifinals at Curtis Culwell Center in Garland.

The Lady Steers struggled to get into a consistent rhythm with their serve-receive, and also committed several service errors, snuffing out most of their chances at sustained rallies.

Big Spring was down, 8-3, early in the opening set, but some key serves by Julianna Rodriguez and Ebony Zavala got the Lady Eagles off-balance enough to allow Big Spring to within 12-9. But Decatur ended up scoring the final 10 points of the first set to win it 25-12.

It was Decatur that appeared discombobulated in the second set, allowing the Lady Steers to go up, 16-12. But following a timeout, the Lady Eagles put together a 6-0 run, taking an 18-16 lead they wouldn't relinquish. They eventually won the second set, 25-22.

Decatur methodically pulled away from the Lady Steers in the third set, and then won nine of the set's final 10 points for a match-clinching 25-10 win.

Big Spring, which finishes the season at 32-14 after making its first state tournament appearance since 1977, was led by Erin Pollard's 11 kills, while Morgan Seaton added seven hills and 3.5 blocks.

Cooper Martin had 13 kills to lead Decatur with Makayla Mayfield coming through with nine kills, nine digs and two aces. Caroline Lowery had five of Decatur's 10 aces, while the Lady Steers were guilty of 10 receiving errors and 10 service errors.

Decatur (40-7) faces Bellville (41-7), which defeated College Station in four sets in the other semifinal, in today's Class 3A state championship at 2 p.m.

Phillips responds to Reed's criticism of Texans

Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Defensive coordinator Wade Phillips believes his scheme with the Texans works just fine, despite what Ed Reed says.

Reed is a nine-time Pro Bowler who was released by the Texans on Nov. 12 and signed with the Jets. He said Wednesday that the Houston defense "is not a good fit for a lot of people who are still down there" and singled out Phillips as a big reason for his departure.

Phillips responded to Reed's criticism on Wednesday.

"I think a lot of players have fit into it real well," Phillips said of his defense. "I just let the record speak for itself. We've got seven guys on defense that have been here since I've been here, and I feel like they've played real well within it."

Houston defensive end Antonio Smith brushed off Reed's comments.

"You just have to take it for what it is," he said. "Everybody has their opinion ... I like the scheme."

Houston is mired in a franchise-record eight-game skid, but the defense is allowing the fewest yards in the NFL.

The 35-year-old Reed was signed to a three-year, $15 million contract in the offseason after he spent his entire 11-year career with Baltimore. The Texans courted him in an effort to beef up what they saw as an elite defensive unit that needed an upgrade in the secondary to make an expected run at the Super Bowl.

But Reed never showed the playmaking ability he had become known for in Baltimore and had just 16 tackles with the Texans.

He missed the first two games after hip surgery and was relegated to a backup role before he was released. A few days before he was cut, he expressed his displeasure at not starting. After his last game, he publicly criticized the team and said they had been outplayed and outcoached in a game where Phillips coached in place of Gary Kubiak, who was recovering from a mini-stroke.

Reed said Phillips didn't really talk to him when he was cut and just "basically just made sure I was leaving." He added that he thinks Phillips is the reason he isn't with the Texans anymore.

Phillips said that he found Reed in the training room the day he was released, shook his hand and told him thanks and that it was an honor to coach him. Phillips didn't take any direct shots at Reed on Thursday, but did mock one of his comments from a day before.

On Wednesday Reed said: "The truth is the truth. You've got to put your players in a position to make plays."

Phillips parroted his "the truth is the truth" quote the end of his comments about their last interaction before breaking into a wide smile.

He also questioned the way Reed is handling this situation.

"There's players cut, coaches fired. There's disappointments in this league and in life," said Phillips, who was fired as head coach of the Cowboys in 2010. "I believe the way you deal with those things tells a lot about what you are and who you are."

Despite their differences, Phillips still views Reed as a Hall of Fame player and said it's time for the team to move on.

"I don't think he's going to ask me to induct him into the Hall of Fame, give the Hall of Fame speech for him," Phillips said with a laugh. "But when he does go into the Hall of Fame, where ever I am, I'm going to be clapping my hands and saying, 'Hey, well deserved.' Because he's been a great, great player in this league."

Jones gives himself high marks as Cowboys GM

Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones gave himself a major pat on the back Friday for his work as the club's general manager and said he plans on continuing in that role for years to come.

"The facts are, I really do think that the way that things have rolled out, that I'm getting to do some of the best work I've done, relatively speaking, in my career, these last several years," Jones told Dallas' KRLD-FM during his radio show.

Jones' positive self-evaluation flies in the face of facts that likely would cost any other GM his job. The Cowboys are 5-5 this season, 133-133 since 1997, haven't been to the playoffs since 2009 and have won only once one playoff game since 1996.

Still, Jones, 71, said he plans to run the show for another 15-20 years.

"A lot of people just need to hear me say I know it's in the best interest for us to operate the way we have," Jones said. "It's unfortunate that over these last five or six years we haven't had a few things turn right for us at the end of the season, needing to win one out of two games to get into the playoffs, having a healthy quarterback, all of those things. But we've been a lot closer than it seems."

The Cowboys won three Super Bowls during Jones' first seven seasons as owner, but that's when the team had then-coach Jimmy Johnson evaluating talent.

Injury report: Sunday's game with the New York Giants will mark the return of two players that have missed the last three games with hamstring injuries: receiver Miles Austin and cornerback Morris Claiborne.

Both were listed as probable on Friday's injury report.

"I feel better now than I did coming into the beginning of the year," said Claiborne, who has also battled knee and shoulder issues.

Said Austin, "I'm just excited to be playing again. I'm from Jersey, so my family will be there. So I'm just fired up."

Two defensive starters who have missed games recently — safety J.J. Wilcox (knee) and tackle Jason Hatcher (neck) — are also probable. Same goes for defensive end DeMarcus Ware, who reaggravated a thigh injury in the loss to New Orleans on Nov. 10, Dallas' last game before last week's bye.

Linebackers Sean Lee (hamstring), Justin Durant (hamstring) and DeVonte Holloman (neck) were ruled out.

Amendola shrugs off comparisons with Welker

By Howard Ulman
Associated Press

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — Danny Amendola heard the comparisons when he joined the New England Patriots.

He was taking over at slot receiver for the player with the most catches in the NFL over any six-season span. Could he even come close to matching Wes Welker's production?

"I don't really think about it too much," Amendola says. "I've been watching Wes for 10, 12 years. It's old news."

Amendola will be watching Welker again Sunday night when the Denver Broncos' leading receiver faces his former team for the first time since both changed sides as free agents.

Welker has 61 catches and nine touchdown receptions and is listed as probable after suffering a concussion in last Sunday night's 27-17 win over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Amendola has just 29 receptions with one touchdown and missed four games with a groin injury and a concussion. But he's played in the last three games with 13 catches for 182 yards and a touchdown.

"I feel really good right now," Amendola said. "I'm really amped up."

The comparison with Welker is hardly surprising.

"You should have heard it when I was in college," Amendola said.

It goes back to his days at Texas Tech, where he was a freshman the season after Welker's last year there. Both were outstanding receivers in college. Both returned punts. Both were under 6 feet tall.

So where was Amendola asked more questions about Welker, in college or the pros?

"About equal," he said.

Welker holds the record for most career receptions at Texas Tech. Amendola has the mark for most by a senior.

But neither was drafted.

Welker signed as a rookie free agent with the San Diego Chargers in April 2004 and lasted just one game before being waived and picked up by the Miami Dolphins. Amendola spent his rookie season in 2008 on the Dallas Cowboys practice squad, then joined the Philadelphia Eagles practice squad for the postseason.

Both have come a long way since.

Welker caught 672 passes with the Patriots, with more than 110 in five of his six seasons. With the St. Louis Rams, Amendola had 85 receptions in 2010 and 63 in 2012 when he missed five games with injuries. He caught five passes in the 2011 opener, then missed the rest of the season with an elbow injury.

Amendola got off to a promising start with the Patriots when he caught 10 passes in the season-opening 23-21 win over the Buffalo Bills. Playing with a groin injury, he had three receptions on the drive that led to Stephen Gostkowski's winning 35-yard field goal with 5 seconds left.

Reports: Incognito meets with NFL investigator

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

DAVIE, Fla. — Suspended Miami Dolphins guard Richie Incognito met with NFL special investigator Ted Wells for a second consecutive day Friday to discuss the team's bullying scandal, multiple media outlets reported.

WTVJ-TV in South Florida videotaped Incognito arriving at the Dolphins' complex for the meeting accompanied by four other people, including the team's security chief.

On Thursday, Incognito agreed to postpone his grievance hearing challenging the suspension until Wells completes his investigation. In a statement, Incognito said he would cooperate fully with a goal of rejoining the Dolphins.

Tackle Jonathan Martin alleges he was harassed daily by teammates, including Incognito. Martin left the team Oct. 28.

Incognito was suspended indefinitely for conduct detrimental to the team Nov. 3 and will miss his third consecutive game Sunday when the Dolphins play the Carolina Panthers. Miami might be without a third starting offensive line because center Mike Pouncey is doubtful while recovering from a stomach ailment.

Wells met last week with Martin in New York and has been interviewing Dolphins players, coaches and staff this week. The NFL hasn't said how long his investigation is expected to take.

Martin, a second-year pro from Stanford, has said he wants to play football again. He has been with family in California undergoing treatment for emotional issues.

Wells will determine the role of coach Joe Philbin, his staff and Miami management in the case, and his report will be made public. Dolphins owner Stephen Ross said changes are needed and formed two committees to study the team's locker room culture.

Arlington Martin 52 Odessa High 2

ARLINGTON — Arlington Martin brought a resounding halt to Odessa High's season Friday, routing the Bronchos in a Class 5A Division I area playoff game at Maverick Stadium.

Martin had mounted a 45-0 lead before Odessa High managed to get a safety in the fourth quarter for its only points.

As a consolation, Odessa High senior running back C.J. Eddison broke the school's single-season record for rushing yards.

Martin (10-2) moves on to play the winner between Coppell and DeSoto in the regional round, while Odessa High finishes the season at 6-6, a year after going 1-9.

No. 1 Ira 40 No. 3 Garden City 38

ROBERT LEE — Several point after attempts ended up costing Garden City in a loss to No. 1 Ira on Friday.

The No. 3 Bearkats failed to convert on five of six point after kicks, which are worth two points in six-man football. Garden City didn't make an extra-points kick until after their final score with 41 seconds remaining.

Garden City attempted an onside kick following Shawn Walker's 12-yard TD run with 41 seconds left, but Ira recovered it and was able to run the game clock out.

Walker finished with two TDs and 49 yards on seven carries, while Ismael Ramirez led the Bearkats with 120 rushing yards and two TDs on 14 carries.

Ira's Lance Morris totaled 338 rushing yards and four TDs on 36 carries. However, all four of Morris' scores came in the first half. The Bulldogs were held scoreless in the second half until Jared Cotton finally broke the the goalline with 4:51 left in the game on a 3-yard run that put Ira up 40-30.

Earlier in the fourth quarter, Garden City had a chance to tie after a 9-yard TD run by Ramirez, but the Bearkats failed to take advantage of the opportunity by missing their fifth extra points kick.

Ira moves on to play the winner between Water Valley and Crowell in the state quarterfinals. Garden City finishes the season 10-2.

Keller Fossil Ridge quarterback Jacob Gnacinksi has thrown 315 times to go with 2,337 yards, 23 TDs and 14 interceptions.

WEBB

From 1B

"I knew I had to be there for my teammates," said Webb, who took a medical redshirt last season. "I wasn't going to let them down."

Webb did much of her rehab in the Tall City at the City of Midland Aquatics Center. She said spending last year watching her teammates instead of playing allowed her to gain a better understanding of the game.

"It was like being a player-coach," said Webb, who said she's gotten interest from multiple four-year colleges. "I learned a lot from just watching and being able to tell my teammates what I saw from the sidelines. I tried to help them as much as I could still."

Webb's injury last season forced Central Arizona to scramble to find a primary ball handler as Webb was the only true point guard on the team. The same could be said of the Vaqueras this season as well.

"Losing Paris hurt a lot last season," Central Arizona coach Denise Cardenas said. "We had to try to move a girl who wasn't a natural point guard into being our point guard. You can't win a national title without a true point guard.

"She's a major part of everything we do offensively and defensively. Paris is key to what we're trying to do this year and that's win a national championship."

And there's nothing Webb wants more.

"I came back to win a national championship," Webb said. "I'm not leaving (Central Arizona) without one."

Big Spring

From 1B

won by Big Spring in Andrews, 61-48.

The Steers now face Stephenville, the defending Class 3A Division I state champion and a 63-21 winner over Springtown on Friday night, in a Class 3A Division I regional playoff game at 2 p.m. Friday at Abilene Wylie.

Big Spring (9-3) scored on its first five possessions of the game and took a commanding 35-7 halftime lead. Quarterback Tobyn Tannehill accounted for three of the touchdowns (two rushing), while Hill added scoring runs of 49 and 72 yards in the half.

"We've been talking about this for a long time," said Hill, who had 134 of the team's 390 yards on the ground. "We want to go far. The coaches told us that next time they're not going to be so easy, so we went in with strong minds and made sure we got touchdowns and defensive stops."

As for his long touchdown runs Hill said, "The offensive line is just amazing. They just opened up those holes and I saw clear daylight. I just made a couple of people miss and it was amazing. It was tiring, but amazing."

Big Spring coach Phillip Ritchey said his team executed the game plan perfectly by getting off to that dominating start and not letting Andrews get back in the game like in the previous meeting when the Mustangs charged back from a 47-14 deficit in the third quarter.

"Because of the last time we played them, I was really worried about this game because they do a good job," Ritchey said. "They've got a good team, they've got a good coaching staff. We just made some big plays and took the air out of them."

Andrews coach Ralph Mason felt the way Big Spring dominated the line of scrimmage was key in the Steers' fast start.

"We didn't establish the run game like I hoped to early, and we were going into the wind," said Mason, whose team finished the season at 5-7. "We were also having a tough time stopping them. They're so balanced and Tannehill does such a good job. You've got to give them a lot of credit because they're a good football team."

The Mustangs had trouble moving the ball consistently all night and they were held to 153 total yards, plus turned the ball over three times.

"(Big Spring defensive coordinator John Wright) is an amazing coach, he makes sure we're going to have a shutdown defense," said Hill, who also had an interception. "Defense was great for us tonight."

Even though Big Spring had such a strong first half, the Mustangs felt like they had a chance if they would have stopped the Steers to begin the third quarter. And they almost did.

After the opening kickoff of the second half, the Steers started from their own 1-yard line and later faced a fourth-and-11 from their own 27. However, Andrews was called for roughing the punter and it gave the Steers a first down on the personal foul penalty. Big Spring then capitalized when it drove the length of the field and took seven minutes, 36 seconds off the clock, culminating with an 18-yard TD run by Tannehill for a 41-7 lead.

That drive proved to be the ultimate backbreaker for the Mustangs.

"Those things are the kind of things that can kill you in a game like this," Mason said.

Added Ritchey about the third quarter drive, "They had the momentum right there but we just kind of took the air out of them on that drive."

While they enjoyed the dominating night, the Steers were a little surprised by the 49-point margin of victory.

"I thought it was going to be a very close game," Hill said. "They kept fighting until the end. I'm glad they kept fighting because we're going to be playing some very tough teams in the playoffs."

It doesn't get any tougher for the Steers as they face the 10-1 Yellow Jackets.

"What more can you ask for," Ritchey said. "You play the defending state champions in a third round playoff game on Thanksgiving weekend. That's what you play for — for these kind of moments. We're going to go and give them the best shot that we can, and if we play well, then I think we have a chance."

Rios camp confident against Pacquiao ahead of bout

By Chris Lines
Associated Press

MACAU — Robert Garcia, the trainer of Brandon Rios, said Friday that Manny Pacquiao is showing signs of coming to the end of his career and vulnerable in the WBO welterweight title fight.

Pacquiao is coming off two losses and has not fought since his devastating knockout defeat at the hands of Juan Manuel Marquez almost a year ago. Garcia said he's noticed subtle signs of decline in the Filipino boxer, once considered the best pound-for-pound fighter in the world.

"Everybody's end comes someday and it could be this fight," Garcia said. "He does have a lot to lose in this fight, and that's pressure not only for him but his trainer and everybody in his camp."

"There are things I've seen in his last two fights that maybe a lot of people who haven't fought don't see. I went through those things and I already see them ... A lot of fighters go through the same things, they don't even tell their wives, but I can see it in him."

Pacquiao's trainer Freddie Roach bristled when told of Garcia's comments. There has been no love lost between the two camps since a physical altercation between them in the training gym on Wednesday.

"When does he watch my guy? Does he see my guy train every day, does he see the sacrifices my guy goes through, does he see the roadwork we do every day?" Roach said.

"If Manny shows any sign of slippage in training camp I'd be the first to tell him it's time to quit, and it's not time yet for sure. I hope they are overconfident because Manny is going to destroy this guy."

The undercard for the fight at The Venetian casino in Macau begins Saturday night, followed by the main event about 3 hours later. It begins early Sunday local time.

Pacquiao's contentious points loss to Timothy Bradley, followed by his frightening knockout against Marquez had raised questions about whether he could ever get back to his top form, with Garcia among the doubters.

"The Manny of three, four years before should have beaten Bradley," Garcia said. "Marquez is 40 years old and Pacquiao was supposed to beat him, to knock him out. Pacquiao got tired and he got knocked out, it wouldn't have happened three or four years ago. He hasn't dropped anybody since 2009."

No. 3 Baylor visits No. 11 Oklahoma State

Associated Press

The Game

BAYLOR AT OKLAHOMA STATE
When: 7 p.m. today
Where: Boone Pickens Stadium
On TV: ABC

STILLWATER, Okla. — The Big 12 Conference championship will be at stake when No. 3 Baylor visits No. 11 Oklahoma State today.

The Bears (9-0, 6-0 Big 12), powered by the nation's most dynamic offense, will try to claim the school's first Big 12 title and first non-shared conference championship since winning the old Southwest Conference back in 1980. They're also maintaining hopes of landing a spot in the BCS national championship contest.

For Oklahoma State (9-1, 6-1), having the opportunity to contend for the Big 12 title seemed improbable after a 30-21 loss at West Virginia on Sept. 28. But the Cowboys, after changing their quarterback and primary running back, have won six straight, including last week's 38-13 rout over then-No. 23 Texas.

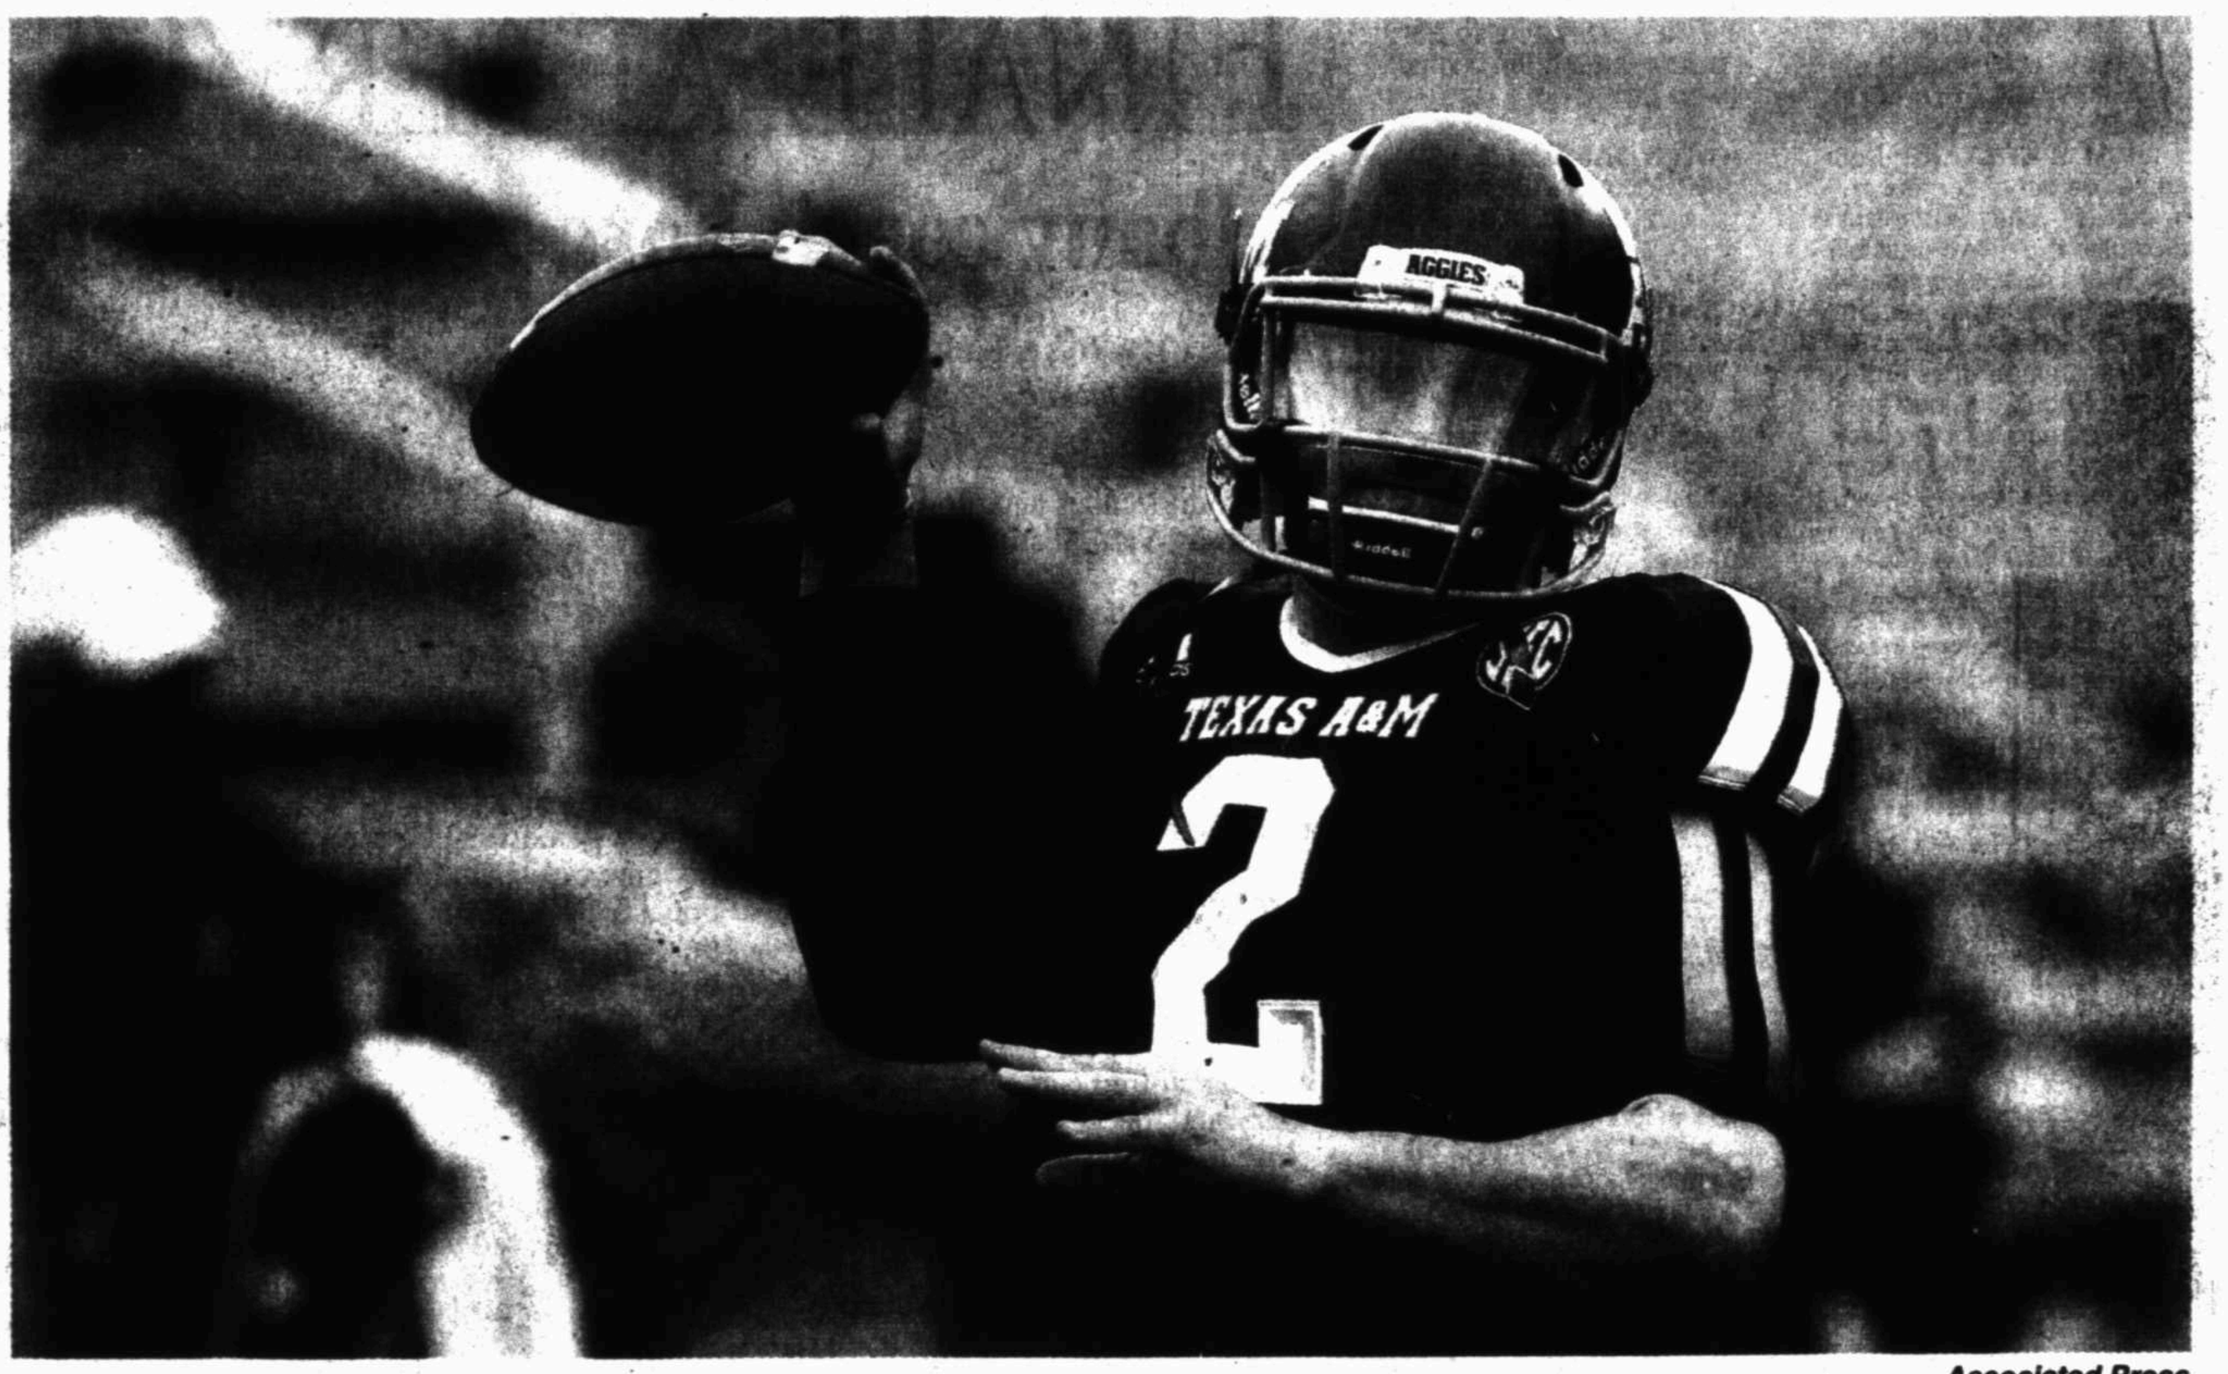
Now each school will play its biggest game of the season in the national spotlight.

"Stuff doesn't always work out for you, and you've got to be able to play through the adversity," said Oklahoma State offensive lineman Parker Graham. "What happened with us against West Virginia, we could have gone down and lost a couple more games, but we decided as a team to push ourselves through it and that's what's gotten us here."

Baylor will face TCU and Texas after this weekend.

"We've got to play real clean and we've got to be real sharp with our focus," said Bears coach Art Briles, whose squad attempts to snap a 10-game losing streak in Stillwater. "I think we're going in there without question a more mature football team than any other time."

READY FOR THE ROAD



Associated Press

Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel warms up before the Nov. 9 game against Mississippi State in College Station. The Aggies hit the road today for a game against LSU at Tiger Stadium.

Manziel, Aggies face tough test at LSU

Associated Press

The Game

TEXAS A&M AT LSU
When: 2:30 p.m. today
Where: Tiger Stadium
On TV: CBS

BATON ROUGE, La. — Another season filled with memorable scrambles, long touchdown throws and gaudy statistics has Johnny Manziel in contention for a second straight Heisman Trophy.

It could come down to how well Manziel plays in two tough road games at the end of the regular season, starting today with Texas A&M's visit to LSU.

"Performances by our complete team and by him to close out the season are going to have a lot to say about awards for all kinds of folks and where we're going to be in the bowl conversation," Aggies coach Kevin Sumlim surmised this week.

The final two weeks will say a lot about how good the Aggies (8-2, 4-2 Southeastern Conference) really are. After visiting LSU (7-3, 3-3), which is 5-0 in Death Valley, Manziel and Co. travel to SEC East-leading Missouri.

No. 9 Texas A&M and No. 18 LSU are already out of the SEC championship picture, but retain goals of double-digit victories and significant bowl bids — the hallmarks of elite programs.

Sumlin, who has never coached at Tiger Stadium, recalled seeing LSU coach Les Miles on television after big home victories, saying that Death Valley is the place where opponents' "dreams come to die."

"We're trying to keep our dreams alive," Sumlin said.

The Tigers are trying to help Miles become the first LSU coach to have four straight 10-win seasons, which can be accomplished with victories over A&M this week, Arkansas next week, and a bowl opponent after that.

"If we get 10 wins it will be a successful season," running back Jeremy Hill said. "We're still motivated. ... I'm sure if we win these next two games there will be a bowl that we can get pretty excited for."

What to watch for

NO COMPARISON: While the matchup features two of the top three quarterbacks in the SEC, LSU's Zach Mettenberger scoffs at the notion that he'd try to measure himself against Manziel. "Yeah, I'm going to compare myself to a guy who's 6-foot and runs a 4.3 (40-yard dash)," the 6-5 Mettenberger said sarcastically. "I mean, he does a lot of things I could never dream of doing and I think I can do some things he couldn't do." Mettenberger is the SEC's third-leading passer with 2,733 yards and 20 TDs. Manziel ranks first with 3,313 yards and 31 TDs. He also has rushed for 611 yards and eight TDs.

ROAD SWEET ROAD: The Aggies take a 10-game road winning streak into today's game. It is the second-longest in school history and the longest since they won 11 in a row in 1939-40. The Aggies haven't lost on the road since a four-overtime, 53-50 defeat at Kansas State on Nov. 12, 2011. Sumlin hasn't lost on the road in 15 games, having won his last five road games as Houston's coach before taking over at A&M. "It's all about preparation," offensive lineman Cedric Ogbuehi said. "Knowing that where we go, it's going to be loud, so stay focused on the task at hand and win the day. It's more fun to quiet the crowd. That's the challenge."

BILETNIKOFF CANDIDATES: The Aggies and Tigers each field a semifinalist for the Biletnikoff Award, given to the top college receiver in the nation. For A&M, it's Mike Evans, who leads the league with 1,263 yards and 12 TDs. For LSU, it's Odell Beckham Jr., who has 1,051 yards and eight TDs.

WHAT A START: Texas A&M has made a habit of starting fast under Sumlin. The Aggies have scored at least nine points in the first quarter of nine straight games and have scored first in 22 of 23 games. They've also scored on their first offensive series in 18 of 23 games, with 17 touchdowns.

SHOOTOUT?: LSU ranks a respectable fourth in total defense, allowing 353.7 yards per game, while Texas A&M ranks last, yielding 454.4. But LSU's inexperienced defense has struggled against some of the SEC's most explosive offenses, giving up 525 yards to Mississippi and 494 to Georgia. So the potential for a high-scoring game exists.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Texas/Big 12

NO. 3 BAYLOR (9-0, 6-0 BIG 12) AT NO. 11 OKLAHOMA STATE (9-1, 6-1), 7 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: Baylor by 9 1/2.

SERIES RECORD: Oklahoma State 18-13.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Big 12 championship could go to the winner. Baylor still has conference foes TCU and Texas on its schedule, while Oklahoma State still must face its cross-state rival, No. 22 Oklahoma, but this contest will determine who is in control going forward.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Baylor: QB Bryce Petty is the offensive catalyst, leading the nation in yards per attempt (12.8) and QB efficiency rating (206.23), while sitting fifth in both passing yards (332.4 per game) and completion percentage (65.2).

Oklahoma State: CB Justin Gilbert is enjoying a great year, both on defense where he is third in the nation with six interceptions and has returned two for touchdowns, as well as on kickoff returns, where he ranks 11th in average return (28.2 yards) with one TD.

NO. 9 TEXAS A&M (8-2, 4-2 SEC) AT NO. 18 LSU (7-3, 3-3), 2:30 P.M. (CBS)

LINE: LSU by 4 1/2.

SERIES RECORD: LSU leads 28-20-3.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Both teams are out of contention for the SEC title but still aim to maximize their bowl possibilities. Texas A&M also seeks a school-record 11th-straight road win, while LSU aims to avoid its first four-loss regular season since 2008 and keep alive a chance to help coach Les Miles make LSU history with a fourth straight 10-win season.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Texas A&M: WR Mike Evans, who is 6-foot-5, 225 pounds, is Manziel's favorite target and the only SEC receiver to have more than 225 yards receiving in a game twice this season (287 vs. Auburn, 279 vs. Alabama).

LSU: WR-KR Odell Beckham also has been named a semifinalist for the Biletnikoff Award. He has 51 receptions for 1,051 yards and eight receiving touchdowns, and ranks third nationally with 24 catches for 20 or more yards.

NO. 22 OKLAHOMA (8-2, 5-2 BIG 12) AT KANSAS STATE (6-4, 4-3), 11 A.M. (FOX SPORTS 1)

LINE: Kansas State by 4.

SERIES RECORD: Oklahoma leads 71-18-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Both teams are trying to improve their bowl prospects. The Sooners can still reach 10 wins by beating the Wildcats and then winning the Bedlam game Dec. 7 against rival Oklahoma State. Kansas State is going for its fifth straight win with rival Kansas looming next week.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma: RBs Brennan Clay and Roy Finch, and WRs Jaz Reynolds and Durron Neal. All of them will be counted upon to make up for the suspensions of RB Damien Williams, who has 553 yards rushing, and WR Lacolton Bester, who has 20 catches for 279 yards.

Kansas State: QBs Jake Waters and Daniel Sams. The duo has gotten into a nice rhythm while shuttling in and out of the lineup. Waters is a passer who can also run, Sams a runner who can also pass.

Top 10

CHATTANOOGA (8-3) AT NO. 1 ALABAMA (10-0), 1:05 P.M. (PPV)

LINE: None

SERIES RECORD: Alabama leads 11-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Not much. Alabama doesn't figure to get much of a challenge from FCS Chattanooga in a game that should amount to a warm up for the Iron Bowl against No. 6 Auburn. The Mocs, though, will have an eye on another game. They'll get an automatic bid to the FCS playoffs as Southern Conference champions if Elon upsets Samford.

IDAHO (1-9) AT NO. 2 FLORIDA STATE (10-0), 2:30 P.M. (ESPNU)

Line: Florida State by 57.

Series record: First meeting.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Second-ranked Florida State is three victories from a likely berth in the BCS championship game. Each win puts them a little closer to the third national championship in school history. Idaho is playing for pride and a $900,000 payout.

INDIANA (4-6, 2-4) AT NO. 4 OHIO STATE (10-0, 6-0), 2:30 P.M. (ABC)

Line: Ohio State by 32.

Series Record: Ohio State leads, 68-12-5.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Indiana must win its final two games to become bowl eligible. Ohio State has lots of streaks on the line: a nation's best 22 games in a row, needing another to set a school record, plus a 17-game win streak against the Hoosiers. The Buckeyes can also clinch a spot in the Big Ten championship game with a win.

NO. 5 OREGON (9-1, 6-1 PAC-12) AT ARIZONA (6-4, 3-4), 2:30 P.M. (ABC AND ESPN2)

Line: Oregon by 20 1-2.

Series record: Oregon leads 24-14.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: With an outside shot at playing in the BCS championship game, Oregon can't afford a letup in its final two games. The Ducks, at No. 5 in the BCS standings, will need help, but it's still a possibility if they beat the Wildcats and rival Oregon State. Arizona is trying to bounce back after frustrating losses to Washington State and UCLA.

CITADEL (5-6) AT NO. 7 CLEMSON (5-6), 11 A.M., ESPN3.

Line: No line.

Series record: Clemson leads 30-5-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Clemson's seeking a third straight season of double-digit victories, something last accomplished by the program in four straight seasons from 1987-90. Citadel of the Southern Conference has lost 15 straight to Clemson and is 0-16 against nationally ranked teams from the Football Bowl Subdivision.

NO. 8 MISSOURI (9-1, 5-1 SEC) AT NO. 24 MISSISSIPPI (7-3, 3-3), 6:45 P.M., ESPN

LINE: Missouri by 2 1/2

SERIES RECORD: Missouri leads 5-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Missouri has a clear path to the SEC's Eastern Division title but must win its final two games against Ole Miss and Texas A&M. If the Tigers lose, South Carolina will make the trip to Atlanta for the league's title game. Ole Miss has won four straight and has already matched last year's win total.

CALIFORNIA (1-10, 0-8 PAC-12) AT NO. 10 STANFORD (8-2, 6-2), 6 P.M. (FOX SPORTS 1)

LINE: Stanford by 31 ½

SERIES RECORD: Stanford leads 58-46-11.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Stanford lost control of its Rose Bowl hopes with a loss at Southern California last week. The Cardinal need a win and Oregon to lose one of its final two games against Arizona or Oregon State to represent the Pac-12 North in the conference championship game. California is closing out a dismal debut season for coach Sonny Dykes and is hoping to get some kind of positive momentum out of the 146th edition of the Big Game rivalry.

Associated Press

Retiring University at Albany head football coach Bob Ford poses on the field that bears his name Wednesday in Albany, N.Y. The 76-year-old Ford ranks first among active FCS coaches with 265 career victories and fourth all-time. And the school believes he's the only coach to take a team from the club level to Div. III, Div. II, and Div. I at one institution.

FINALE AFTER 44 YEARS

Albany coach Ford retires after long tenure

By John Kekis
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — It began more than four decades ago. To Bob Ford and Rudy Vido, it still seems like yesterday.

Ford was the new coach of the fledgling club football team at Albany, hired in 1970 to resurrect a sport that had been discontinued in 1924 after one win in three seasons.

The four shutouts that final year by a combined score of 105-0 were apparently the last straw.

Vido was the star of Ford's first class at 6-foot-2, 255 pounds and capable of a 4.7-second 40-yard dash. Vido had enrolled at Albany despite interest from over 100 colleges, including Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Maryland, because he wanted to stay close to his upstate New York home.

The Great Danes, part of New York's state university system, went 2-4 in Ford's first year and improved to 4-4 the next — mostly without Vido. He was kicked off the team his sophomore year after missing a practice.

"He's the best football player on the squad, and I cut him," Ford said. "It was the best thing I ever did."

Vido didn't know what to think.

"It was a shock," he said. "OK, I'll be fine. He's going to let it go. He didn't. It wasn't mean-spirited. I acted like I didn't care. I just wasn't thinking things through well. I was free to come back, but I had to change.

"It was a wakeup call. I found out it wasn't about me. Everything wasn't all about natural talent. He taught us how football parallels life."

Ford has been spreading that message since then. With one game left in his last and probably most forgettable season, the 76-year-old Ford ranks first among active FCS coaches with 265 career victories and fourth all-time. And the school believes he's the only coach to take a team from the club level to Div. III, Div. II and Div. I at one institution.

Not bad for a guy who likes to joke that at 26 he was the youngest head coach in America when he took over at St. Lawrence University in northern New York in 1965 and four years later the youngest to get fired.

"We were told we'd start as a club team at Albany, and if we had success we could be a varsity team after four years," said Ford, who won his first game, beating the Rochester Institute of Technology 30-21 after opposing coach Tom Coughlin, now the New York Giants head man, helped line the field.

"My father used to tell me, 'Leave the place better than you found it.' I thought he was talking about the kitchen and bathroom. But really he was talking about everything one's involved with."

Bob Ford, Albany football coach

Notching 12 wins the first three seasons was enough. The Great Danes fielded a varsity team in 1973 that finished 7-2 and Ford, whose head coaching record stands at 265-190-1, was on his way.

Albany moved to Div. II in 1995 and was Eastern Football Conference champion in 1997-98, going 21-2, before jumping to FCS in 1999 and joining the Northeast Conference (NEC). The Great Danes won six titles in 14 seasons, with Ford winning NEC coach of the year honors four times, before the powerful Colonial Athletic Association (CAA) beckoned.

Instead of retiring, Ford opted to coach one last season to guide the transition. With 25 fewer scholarship players than the rest of the league, Albany has struggled to a 1-10 mark, 0-7 in the CAA, and winless in its new home — Bob Ford Field.

"I think it gave me a major dose of humility going out the door," said Ford, who served a term as president of American Football Coaches Association and leaves behind a sparkling new $19 million sports complex that seats 8,500. "I am totally humbled right now. Losses hurt more. I don't know why. You try not to take it personally. It's not who you are."

Ford is proud more than 100 of his former assistants are currently working in the professional, college or high school ranks.

Taking a stroll around the Albany campus with a smiling Ford, everyone who passes says hello to the man in his trademark felt hat. A glance at his office door defines much of what the coach is all about.

A giant photo shows former star defensive end Eddie Delaney and Ford whooping it up. Even though Delaney was born without a left hand and is diabetic, Ford gave him an opportunity. The result: Delaney morphed into a three-time All-Northeast Conference selection — only the second Albany player to accomplish it — and piqued the interest of a few NFL scouts because of his tenacity.

"Coach never misses an opportunity to teach a lesson, and he's such a man of values and integrity that you can't help but learn from him," said assistant coach Bill Banagan, who played for Ford in the early 1980s. "I've really never heard anybody say anything bad about coach the way he does things and the way he carries himself."

That includes Vido, now 61, who returned to the team after his fallout with Ford and led the 1974 squad to the school's only unbeaten season.

"It's uncommon what happens to him," said Vido, now a program director at the Millview Brain Injury Program in suburban Albany. "You can't help but love that man."

Ford's final game is today on the road against Stony Brook, and the opposing coach will be Chuck Priore, who also played for Ford.

Nobody wants to think about it.

"What he's done for the game, what he's done for this university, it's going to be a sad day for me," Banagan said. "I think the day will be more of a celebration than it will be a farewell because that's just the way he is. He doesn't want to draw attention to himself. He's always been about the kids from day one. That's going to be the hardest for him — saying goodbye to the kids."

Ford's career has come full circle — in as the youngest coach, out as the oldest.

Couldn't be scripted any better.

"My father used to tell me, 'Leave the place better than you found it.' I thought he was talking about the kitchen and bathroom," Ford said. "But really he was talking about everything one's involved with. I sincerely hope I left this program in good shape.

"My grandmother used to have a tremendous saying: 'Things work out best for those who make the best of the way things work out.' For me, that became totally true."

MICHIGAN

Michigan State returns to site of 'Mousetrap' trick play

EAST LANSING — After he made his move to pick up the first down on "Charlie Brown," Michigan State punter Mike Sadler found himself in the middle of a throng of huge people.

"They just kind of lifted me up like Simba and took shots at me," joked Sadler of last week's fake field goal against Nebraska, referring to the Disney movie "The Lion King." "I guess you could call me the lion queen on that one. But whatever."

Coming off another huge win featuring another risky and successful Mark Dantonio trick play, the No. 13 Spartans (9-1, 6-0 Big Ten) can clinch the Legends Division today at Northwestern (4-6, 0-6) — site of one of those famous fakes.

A comeback win over the Wildcats on Ryan Field in 2010 — en route to the program's first Big Ten title in 20 years — wouldn't have happened without "Mousetrap," a fake punt with punter Aaron Bates throwing to Bennie Fowler for a first down.

Earlier that season, Bates helped establish the tradition with "Little Giants," a touchdown pass on a fake field goal to beat Notre Dame. Dantonio has tried several other tricks on kicks over the years, with the only miss coming in 2011 at Notre Dame. Earlier this season, a Sadler run on a fake punt at Iowa — "Hey Diddle Diddle" — was key in that win.

"It shows he's in it to win it," Sadler said of Dantonio. "He kind of has a stigma as a defensive coach. And typically when you think of defensive, it's risk-averse, but that's not at all how it is ... he's willing to take chances to help us win games in crucial moments. It means the world, we want to win a Rose Bowl here. And we're not gonna be content until we do that."

Sadler said he improvised on the play at Nebraska and went up the middle, even though it was supposed to go right. Dantonio said Tuesday it was supposed to go up the middle. Told that, Sadler smiled.

"If he says it was supposed to go up the middle, it was supposed to go up the middle," Sadler said. "I'm not gonna argue with that one."

And he had new respect, after watching the film, of the help he got from freshman kicker Michael Geiger on the play.

"I wouldn't call it a block," Sadler said. "I'd say he set a moving pick that (Tom) Izzo wouldn't be proud of. But whatever it was, it was effective. In all seriousness, though, without him, that play doesn't work. If he doesn't breathe on that guy, he tackles me, and it's not a positive gain. So kudos to him."

OHIO

Buckeyes take on Hoosiers and history

COLUMBUS — No. 4 Ohio State isn't just playing Indiana today — it's also taking on history.

The Buckeyes carry a 22-game winning streak into their one-sided series with the Hoosiers (4-6, 2-4 Big Ten), and if the Buckeyes win they'll eclipse the school record set by the 1967-69 Ohio State teams.

Even coach Urban Meyer, who runs screaming from just about anything other than the X's and O's of the next opponent, said it would be an impressive accomplishment.

The Buckeyes (10-0, 6-0) can also clinch a division title and a spot in the Big Ten championship game.

CONNECTICUT

Harvard still has chance at Ivy title vs. Yale

NEW HAVEN — If only they still had ties.

Harvard would have a chance at winning the Ivy League title outright today if college football games still ended in ties, like they did 45 years ago when the Crimson famously "beat" Yale 29-29. Instead, after Harvard's triple-overtime loss to Princeton on Oct. 26, and the best that the Crimson can do now is defeat their archrival in New Haven and hope the Tigers lose their season finale.

That would lead to, of all things, a tie for the Ivy League championship.

That would be a fitting result on the 45th anniversary of the most famous entry in one of college football's oldest rivalries. In 1968, Yale jumped to a 22-0 lead in the matchup of unbeaten teams and still led 29-13 before Harvard scored 16 points in the final 42 seconds. The Harvard student newspaper, The Crimson, trumpeted the result with the headline, "Harvard Beats Yale 29-29."

This year, Harvard (8-1, 5-1 Ivy League) can only win the conference title with some help from Dartmouth.

But first the Crimson need to beat their archrivals at Yale (5-4, 3-3).

FLORIDA

No. 2 Florida St. could get QB Maguire early snaps

TALLAHASEE — Florida State coach Jimbo Fisher may get quarterback Sean Maguire extra snaps against struggling Idaho today.

Maguire played the entire second half last week in another blowout win by the second-ranked Seminoles. Fisher has been able to give backups playing time throughout the season because of lopsided victories.

But it could be especially important for Maguire.

The redshirt freshman needs the work in case Jameis Winston is charged at the end of an ongoing sexual assault investigation. Winston could be suspended, leaving Maguire as the starting quarterback for an undefeated Florida State team closing in on a berth in the BCS championship game.

NORTH CAROLINA

UNC will qualify for bowl with win over Old Dominion

CHAPEL HILL — North Carolina is on the verge of completing a remarkable comeback.

The Tar Heels (5-5) can turn their miserable start into bowl eligibility today with a nonconference victory over Old Dominion (8-3).

Coach Larry Fedora said his team didn't worry when it faced a 1-5 start that came against one of the nation's toughest early-season schedules.

He says the staff held steady and "were able to show the kids that there's no reason to panic."

Now they're on the brink of returning to the postseason after an NCAA-mandated one-year absence.

The Tar Heels have reeled off four straight wins on the strength of a defense that has forced more turnovers and an offense that has continued to click despite a season-ending injury to senior quarterback Bryn Renner.

HOUSTON

Aggies and Sun Devils to meet in 2015

Texas A&M and Arizona State will meet on Sept. 5, 2015, at Reliant Stadium in the AdvoCare Texas Kickoff game.

The first installment of this game was played this season when Oklahoma State beat Mississippi State 21-3. LSU and Wisconsin are scheduled for next year's matchup on Aug. 30, 2014.

Jamey Rootes is president of Lone Star Sports & Entertainment, which puts on the game, and president of the Houston Texans. He's excited about bringing Texas A&M to Houston, which is just 100 miles from College Station and says:

"They have an incredible tradition overall and you add to it the excitement that's been generated by the success that Kevin Sumlin and his staff have orchestrated with the move to the SEC ... so it was really a great addition."

Teen knows from experience that cutting won't end pain

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. Recently I made a new friend, "Mandy," and confided to her about my dark past of depression. When I explained how I used to cut myself, she burst into tears and told me she had cut herself the day before. I didn't expect that response.

I know from experience that what Mandy is doing is not a good way to handle things. What stopped me from cutting was getting a permanent scar from it. Although plenty of people told me that cutting was no way to deal with my pain, the only one I listened to in the end was myself.

I really want Mandy to stop. I told her not to do it, but I'm afraid she will anyway. She's an amazing person, and she doesn't deserve the pain she is causing herself. How can I help her? — BEEN THERE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR BEEN THERE: Continue encouraging your friend to stop cutting, but if she's not able to, she may need professional help to quit. It is nothing to be ashamed of.

A counselor at school might be able to help if Mandy is willing to talk to one. But if she isn't, then tell your mother about this so she can let Mandy's mother know what's going on. Cutting can be a sign of serious depression, and secrets of this kind are destructive.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 19 and in college on a scholarship. I have decided to declare an art major. I have found a part-time job that will give me a little extra income — figure modeling for some of the art classes. This would include both clothed and nude modeling.

It isn't the only job I plan on taking, but it will help me out for the time being. Studying the human figure is essential for any art student, and it is something that has been done for centuries. When I told my parents, it was not well-received.

My mother strongly disagreed with my choice and handed the phone to my sister, who told me if I want to take my clothes off I should be a stripper. This hurt me deeply. My dad is worried that it will ruin my reputation. I find it hypocritical because my mom was an art major and her portfolio contains nude figures she drew.

I'm not looking for my parents' approval, but I wish they would attempt to understand. What would you suggest? — SERIOUS STUDENT IN VIRGINIA

DEAR SERIOUS STUDENT: Having studied figure drawing myself years ago, I can attest to the fact that models of all ages were used — both nude and clothed. There was nothing lurid or sexual about it, and the models were not posed in a suggestive manner or being ogled.

If you wish to display your body in the context of an art class, you shouldn't have to justify it to your parents or your sister. Your mother appears to have a short memory, and your sister's comment was out of line.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old son still calls me Mommy. My daughter, who is two years older, calls me Mom. I don't want to hurt my son's feelings, but I think at his age he should transition to calling me Mom. What do you think? Should I just give it time, or is there an age limit for calling one's mother Mommy? — JUST MOM IN FLORIDA

DEAR JUST MOM: I think you should keep your mouth shut. There is nothing shameful or wrong about a son calling his mother Mommy if that is what he has done all his life. Frankly, it's rather sweet, and it's far more loving than some of the names people have written to me when referring to their mothers.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 23, 2013:

This year you appear more willing to take risks and step into new territory. You will choose experiences that broaden your mind. You also will let go of a rigid mindset. If you are single, you could meet someone from a different culture. By interacting with this person, you will see a new style of living. If you are attached, the two of you might opt for a special vacation together. You will want more one-on-one time as a couple away from your obligations. The two of you also might consider taking a class or learning a new hobby together. Count on LEO as a friend.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ Your presence at a party allows others to relax, because they know it will be a success. Your attendance affects many situations. You are the factor that makes everything flow today! Others feel the difference you make. Tonight: Time to let your hair down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Listen to news within your immediate circle and decide just how far you want to go with a personal matter. You might decide that you'd be happiest letting sleeping dogs lie for now. Your time will come. Confusion surrounds your finances. Tonight: Invite friends over.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You might not realize how inquisitive you are. Sometimes observing and listening might be more effective. People will relax and speak more freely. Stop by and catch up on a friend's news. You could be overwhelmed by everything you hear. Tonight: Hang out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ You might want to have a discussion that is way overdue, but the other party could shy away. Handle a money matter directly. A parent or older friend could do the unexpected. Check in on this person. Tonight: Having fun does not mean breaking the bank.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Your spontaneity attracts many people. Make plans to get away from the immediate issues in your life. Go to a movie or a museum, or meet an out-of-town friend halfway. Confusion could surround meeting places and times. Tonight: Whatever you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Sometimes taking a day off feels right. You have handled a lot of responsibilities in the past few weeks, and you deserve a break. Kick back and hold off on taking any action for now. You might be overserious and need to lighten up. Tonight: Work on being a couch potato.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ You could see a personal matter differently after a surprising conversation. An interaction about money could be very intense and might end up in confusion over some minor detail. Postpone this conversation if possible. Tonight: Find your friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ You have surprising energy. A conversation could clear the air, or it could cause a problem. Confusion seems to filter through the air right now. Unless you are sure you can establish a strong, clear connection, postpone this talk. Tonight: The spotlight is on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ You will remain even-tempered, even with a loved one acting erratically. You might wonder what to do in face of this person's behavior. Make an important call to someone at a distance. Tonight: Be as clear as possible in order to avoid a misunderstanding. Listen well, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ You might want to examine what is happening with a loved one and his or her finances. You also might be looking at your own spending habits. A surprise could cost you. Make sure to double-check all expenses and count your change. Tonight: Let someone else pick up the tab.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ You could be full of energy, especially after you touch base with a favorite person. Listen to someone's concerns with extra care. You might want to echo what you have heard, as misunderstandings could emerge today. Tonight: Sort through invitations, then decide.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★ Get into the holiday spirit, whether it be decorating, raking or sharing with a story about Thanksgiving. Others will respond to your enthusiasm. You inadvertently could help someone past some sad feelings with your spirit. Tonight: Take a brisk walk with the dog after dinner.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
As soon as my kids could toddle, I immediately grabbed the classifieds and bought them tricycles. Now as they grow, I'm buying them bicycles with training wheels. I couldn't be more excited. I even found a newer road bike for myself at a great price. I've always had this beautiful image of my family taking bike rides to the beach, cruising along the boardwalk and stopping for ice cream. The other day, however, that image faded. My wife was teaching the kids how to ride, but didn't have a bike for herself. So I surprised her with a cute beach cruiser that someone was selling. She took one look at it and said, "No way!" Apparently she fell off a bicycle in college and swore off riding forever. I've been unable to convince her otherwise. As my dreams of family bike rides slip away, I thought I'd see if you guys have any advice. Is there anything I can do to get my wife on a bike again?

Cash: Normally getting over a fear is like riding a bicycle, but that metaphor doesn't seems to be working for you. How does she feel about in-line skating?

Carry: Kidding aside, the fact of the matter is that your wife had a traumatic experience while riding her bike in college. That can take some work to get over.

Cash: Although she has chosen to avoid riding as her way of coping with the incident, she is bound to miss out on many fun adventures with her kids. Hopefully, that may encourage her to try and overcome her fear.

Carry: The best thing you can do is continue to be supportive. If she would consider seeking professional help, then that would assist her in overcoming the trauma as well.

Cash: Since you seem to be quite handy at finding various bicycles, there is another option as well. There are three-wheel bikes that are very stable. Not only would it help ease your wife's feeling of falling off, but she might be the envy of people on the beach. Some of the bikes are very cool!

Carry: The important thing is that you both keep trying until something works. As she begins to have positive experiences around bike riding, things should start to change.

Cash: It's possible your dream of riding down the boardwalk can come true. Just remember that when it happens, bring enough money for ice cream!

Fast Facts

Over the Top

In 1817 an inventor came up with a two-wheeled device made entirely of wood that you push with your feet. It was nicknamed the "hobby-horse". Although there were many variations on the device, the true "bicycle" didn't develop until around 1870. By this time stronger metal parts were available that afforded new designs. Inventors realized that a smother ride could be achieved with a larger front tire. Unfortunately, that design also allowed the rider to flip over if they hit a bump in the road, thus coining the phrase, "taking a header".

Changing Gears

Ever since the bicycle's invention, people have been pushing the limits for the biggest and the best. For example, in 2007 more than 1,900 cyclists gathered in Taipei City, Taiwan to form the largest bicycle parade. Back in 2002 a group of mechanical engineers in the Netherlands built the world's longest bicycle at 92' 2". In Germany Didi Senft built the largest bicycle with a height of 12' 2" and a length of 25' 7". All of these records are giving the term " bicycle enthusiast" a whole new meaning.

Birthday Brake

I admit it. Being a dad isn't always easy for me. Sometimes I don't choose the best way to explain things to my child.

When I gave my son a bicycle with training wheels, I took him outside to give it try. At first I held onto the handlebars. After a few steps, I let go and ran alongside. As he picked up speed, I stopped running and shouted, "step back on the pedals and the bike will brake." He nodded in agreement, but ran straight into the bushes at the end of the driveway.

As I rushed over to brush him off, I asked why he didn't push back on the pedals.

Proving my point he replied. "You said if I did, the bike would break!"

(Thanks to William B.)
