Bilbao's Last Defense Line Falters

Insurgent Ships And Artillery Are Effective

More Than 200 Basques Killed In Hand-To-Hand Fighting; "Last Stand" Is Ready

(By The Associated Press)

SPANISH insurgent troops hammered at Bilbao's last line of defense last night with plans and heavy artillery as Basque defenders fought desperately to hold an iron ring of trenches with 30,000 men.

Insurgent infantrymen in hand-to-hand combat with bayonets and hand grenades swept the Basques from the heights of Mount Sollube, base of their defense lines about 11 miles from Bilbao.

Two Hundred Killed

Insurgent commanders said 200 Basques were killed and hundreds taken prisoner.

Basques battled fiercely to hold their positions as insurgent planes rained tons of bombs on their lines and villages near Bilbao.

The Basques said they were ready for a "last stand" defense of Bilbao. Yesterday 2,806 refugees, mostly children, were evacuated from the city to France, and several thousand others were to follow them.

Rebellion Continues

An anarchist rebellion, which was reported to have cost more than 400 lives with hundreds injured, continued in Barcelona. The revolt spread to towns and villages, with anarchists battling troops sent by the Spanish government at Valencia to restore order.

Government planes bombarded the insurgent-held city of Zaragoza. More than 76 persons have been killed there in two days, insurgents said.

Madrid mapped a new offensive against insurgents spread about the city. General Jose Miaja, commander of the capital's defense forces, said government troops were in shape to repel any insurgent attack.

Appointment Of Berry Cheered

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Leaders in the fight for the Roosevelt court reorganization legislation rejoiced today in the appointment of Major George L. Berry as senator from Tennessee. Berry is a supporter of the legislation.

Since many legislators say the senate is almost evenly divided on the measure and its provision for the possible addition of six justices to the Supreme court, the appointment is regarded as of great potential importance in the tremendous struggle.

As a leader in Labor's Non-Partisan league and the Committee for Industrial Organization, Berry, a Democrat, has been an aggressive champion of the court proposal since it was first advanced in early February.

His predecessor, the late Senator Bachman, had never committed himself on the bill publicly.

The addition of Berry's name to the list of those publicly supporting the measure brought the total to 30. On the same basis, the opponents of the bill numbered 37.

Twenty-nine senators had yet to state their positions.

The senate judiciary committee, a clear majority of which is opposed to the bill as it stands, will resume its consideration on the measure on Monday.

Latest Mad Dog Scare In City Declared Not To Be Serious

Reports Thursday that three persons had been bitten by a bird dog pup found to be mad failed to arouse fear in Lubbock citizens as no more bites nor suspicious dogs were reported to sanitation officials yesterday.

The pup biting the persons was "kept up" and died Thursday. Health authorities found the animal to be rabid.

Officials explained that there is no occasion for general uneasiness as recurrent appearances of hydrophobia are to be expected as the aftermath to the threatened mad dog epidemic of several weeks ago. They simply warned persons to be careful and to keep confined any dog which acts in unusual manner.

Second 'Money' Bill Goes To Conference

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 7.—The house of representatives passed its eleemosynary appropriation bill today, heading toward conference committee the major "money" bills.

The senate previously had approved an appropriation for the eleemosynary institutions, and both houses had passed bills providing for the judiciary.

The house eleemosynary bill totalled about $14,250,000, which was $150,000 more than the amount of the senate measure and approximately $3,500,000 more than the appropriation for the current biennium.

Pass Utility Board Act

The house also passed a bill providing for a state commission of three members to regulate utilities, but few expected it to reach a vote in the sente. The bill passed 105 to 16, with no discussion. Governor James V. Allred had advocated regulation.

Another investigation loomed with introduction of a resolution proposing to look into purported private professional activities of E. N. Stanley, chief enforcement officer in East Texas for the railroad commission. Consideration went over until Monday.

Returning from an inspection of the girls training school at Gainesville, members of a committee reported the institution was being conducted satisfactorily.

While Miss Perkins spoke, congressional committees were preparing for hearings next week on proposed wage, hour and child labor legislation. So far the administration has made no official pronouncement of its views on the legislation in question.

Soil Bill Is Sent Back To House

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, May 7.—The senate today returned to the house a plan for soil conservation in Texas considerably altered from the combination watershed-conservation bill recently approved by the lower chamber.

The senate reduced operation funds from a 10 to six cent diversion of the state ad valoreum tax with one-third allocated to a general fund to be administered by the state board and the remainder returned to the counties. Total diversion was estimated to amount to $1,500,000.

The approved substitute, by Senator E. M. Davis of Brownwood, eliminated the watershed feature but permitted two or more counties to cooperate in creating a subdistrict. The program would be on a county unit basis.

The Davis' substitute would provide optional participation in a farmer-controlled program with a governing board of six, one representative from a district composed of a number of counties. The counties would operate under elected directors from precincts.

Why Wrathful Duke Of Windsor Filed Suit On 'Coronation Commentary' Author Is Told By Glance At The Final Chapter

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

JUST what is there in Geoffrey Dennis' book, "Coronation Commentary," that caused the Duke of Windsor to file a libel and injunction suit against the author and his publishers?

Dennis, a distinguished English novelist, wrote this book—or most of it—a year or so ago. It was designed as a coronation-time specialty, apparently, and it was largely a review of the history of British kingship and British coronations, closing with a glowing tribute to the then king, Edward VIII.

Just as the book was finished Edward abdicated, and Dennis added a final chapter on the abdication. The book appeared, and the Duke of Windsor promptly sued both Dennis and the publishing house of William Heinemann, Ltd., for libel, asking also an injunction against further publication of the book.

The book then was withdrawn from sale in England, but the American edition has been released by Dodd, Mead & Co.

What is in it to stir the former king to such wrath?

The Reasons

YOU need only to read Dennis' chapter on the abdication to find out.

In it, discussing the reason why the British public refused to let Edward retain his throne and marry the American Wallis Warfield Simpson, Dennis says:

"She came too far below the clashed too crudely, with the nation's idea and ideal, dream and myth, of feminine royalty. Queen Elizabeth, Queen Victoria, Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary, the ladies of York, Gloucester, Kent . . . whichever standard, among these variant high ones, of English queenship your own might happen to be the new aspirant did not fit it. Ideals are ideals. Idols must be idols. She WOULD NOT DO. The come-down from Queen Mary to Queen Wally was too steep."

Ringside Seat Prices Drop In London

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, May 7.—Bad news for ticket merchants appeared today as prices for seats along the coronation route tumbled like ringside berths at a blighted prize fight spectacle.

For a mere $50 now, due to last minute cancellations, you can buy a perch with a fine view of George VI and Queen Elizabeth leading the empire line through the heart of London Wednesday.

For that much, instead of the original asking price of $250 you can have champagne luncheon, listen to the radio and enjoy everything except breakfast in bed.

Only Jules Bach, 75-year-old New Yorker, will have that last boon and still see the procession. His seats are in Westminster hospital stand. He's entered himself and family there for the night just as though they were patients.

The latest anyone else can reach the stands is 6 a. m. if they want to be sure of even a reserved seat, although the procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster abbey doesn't start until 9:30.

"Greatly reducted prices" was the cry through advertising columns as the Hindenburg disaster forced coronation news into the background.

One promoter built stands seating thousands on barges in the Thames where the parade winds along the river banks. But if the tide happens to be down at the wrong time and customers find themselevs facing blank walls, the promoter may have a complaint.

Germany Is To Rush Another Dirigible

Nazi Leaders Are Undaunted By Loss Of Hindenburg And Will Push Work

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, May 7.—Undaunted by the loss of the Hindenburg, the German government moved tonight to place another giant airship in service between Europe and North America as soon as possible, probably within three months.

After a conference with the veteran dirigible commanded, Dr. Hugo Eckener, the reich's air minister Col.-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, ordered the airship builders at Friedrichshafen to rush to completion the LZ-130, which was to have been the sistership of the Hindenburg.

Officials of the air ministry estimated General Goering's orders meant completion of the new dirigible soon enough to permit her to take the Hindenburg's place in the trans-Atlantic airlanes within three months.

In a proclamation addressed to the men of the German air service, General Goering announced his decision to speed up completion of the LZ-130 and added:

"Working shoulder to shoulder, we men of the German air service want to show the world that in spite of everything the idea and the enterprising spirit of Count Zeppelin persists, that airship communication between nations is a work of peace, binding peoples closer together and simple cannot be eliminated at this stage of world development."

GRAF TO BE GROUNDED

BERLIN, May 8. (Saturday) (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran dirigible commander, said tonight the Graf Zeppelin now in regular South American service "will make no more trips until the Hindenburg disaster is fully cleared up."

He was taken to his residence about 3:30 that afternoon. Shortly after 5 o'clock he was found dead lying on a bed.

Late Friday night funeral arrangements had not been announced, pending communication with relatives, said Rix Funeral home. Services probably will be read Sunday. He was the father of Mrs. W. T. Milam of 1107 Twenty-fourth street and grandfather of Mrs. K. T. Thomas of 3117 Twenty-first street.

Research Laboratory Plans Are Held Up

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Texas congressmen held up today efforts to get federal aid for a cotton use research station, pending passage by their state legislature of a bill providing for the establishment of such a project.

Rep. Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi, appointed to draft an amendment to the Bankhead-Jones act in the hope an appropriation might be had in a deficiency bill, said he telephoned Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodull in Austin today, suggesting that the state bill be amended.

He said it would enhance chances of federal participation if the bill state definitely that the station be placed under federal control, provided that it revert to the state if ever used for any other purpose.

Until the state law is passed, he said, little action can be taken here.

Capt. Lehmann Dies Friday Of Injuries

What Caused German Dirigible Hindenburg To Burst Into Flames Is Great Mystery

(By Staff Correspondent)

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 7.—Captain Ernst Lehman, stocky little veteran master of Zeppelins, joined 32 other victims of the Hindenburg holocaust in death tonight, even as federal authorities set out to establish if sabotage caused the fatal plunge of the great dirigible.

Before he died, Lehmann, who skippered the Hindenburg on her pioneering passenger trips here a year ago, echoed the views of the parade of aeronautical experts who have looked over the grotesque wreckage strewn over the U. S. Naval air station landing field.

"I can't understand it," he said. "I can't understand it."

Refusing To Be Downed

With the ugly reports of sabotage refusing to be downed, two authorities, Dr. Hugo Eckener, head of the Zeppelin company, and Senator Copeland (D-NY), chairman of the senate commerce committee were on record as saying this possibility of sabotage should be exhaustively investigated.

Meanwhile, the latest death toll of last night's flaming disaster released by the Zeppelin company placed the known victims at 32. The roll named 11 passengers, 20 members of the crew, and one spectator as dead.

Hearings Open Monday

The department of commerce took over complete charge of an inquiry already well advanced informally. Participating under direction of department officials will be representatives of the German government, Copeland's committee, the United States navy and the state of New Jersey. Public hearings will begin Monday.

Captain Lehmann, who flew Zeppelin raiders in the World war and was master of the Hindenburg on its ten trans-Atlantic voyages last year, died of burns and injuries at 5:55 p. m., central standard time, more than 22 hours after he stumbled dazed from the flame-ridden airship. His protege, Captain Max Pruss, who took over command for that fatal first voyage here this year, was still in critical condition from burns.

Rosendahl Speaks To Germans

About an hour before Lehmann's death, his friend, Commander Charles E. Rosendahl hero of American airships flights and commandant at Lakehurst naval base where the dirigible's skeleton lay, broadcast a report of the disaster to the German nation.

"In judging this disaster," he said, "it must be remembered that the Hindenburg was lost through fire. The ship had successfully completed her westbound crossing over the north Atlantic, was under normal control in every respect and was making a normal landing."

"Whatever may have been the origin," he continued, "the loss of the Hindenburg can be attributed only to one basic cause, namely, that of fire. Had this ship been inflated with the non-inflammable, non-explosive helium gas, such as is used in

The Woman's Angle

By Margaret Turner

MOTHERS DAY is built around sentiment and it is truly great that we pay tributes to living mothers, but, as Helen Welshimer points out in a thought provoking article, too often Mothers Day is also Memorial Day. Too large a percentage of the white flowers which will appear on Mothers Day are worn in memory of a woman who died in childbirth—died needlessly, men of science say.

When we realize that 16,000 mothers die in childbirth every year in our land, and two out of every three could be saved, we see the immensity of the challenge that is given to us. A list of lifesaving discoveries for mothers in childbirth has been presented by medical science in recent years. Doctors have learned to detect any serious complications of pregnancy as soon as they develop. They know how to relieve pain, how to make maternity safe and comfortable for expectant mothers, how to prepare for healthy babies.

Yet, every year the maternity death rate of the United States is second highest on the world list for civilized countries. Science has advanced but we have not kept pace.

THE Maternity Center association attributes this paradox to the fact that good care which is every woman's right is limited to the very few. A survey reveals that much lower rates of maternity mortality have occurred wherever good care has been provided for expectant mothers through the entire pregnancy period, a campaign to make such a program nation-wide is a worthy honor to render mothers on Mothers Day. As part of the Social Security Act, Congress has appropriated $3,800,000 for nation-wide maternity care and education. The states must equal the Federal outlay in dollars. If they only take advantage of this generous assistance!

IN THE MAIL

DEAR Margaret: We do not have as many varieties of birds in West Texas as are found in the more wooded sections of the states—however there is not the dearth of these feathered friends here that one might be led to believe. There seem to be as many winter as summer residents, although we have not kept an accurate check on this.

About the first of October come the white-crowned sparrows, sweet singers that nest close to the arctic circle; then the Harris sparrow and that gayly dressed fellow, the Towhee, sometimes called southern robin. Later will be seen groups of slate colored juncoes, then the robins, warblers, flicker and of course, our year around residents, the horned lark and lark bunting.

In the summer one sees the mocking birds, shrike, flycatcher, mourning dove, several varieties of wrens, an occasional orchard oriole and down at Buffalo Springs the red-winger blackbird. These are not all the birds but a larger number than listed in your column. I think perhaps there are 40 varieties here. A shallow bird bath and feeding boards will attract many of these friends, especially if one has shrubs and trees in the yard and not too many cats in the neighborhood. Sincerely, Your Friend.

PROFESSOR AND POET

GEORGE SMALLWOOD, who has tried to instill a love for poetry into the minds of his English classes for several years, writes poems in his leisure time. The plains of West Texas have been the inspiration for many of them, two of which we print below.

A DUST-BOWL SERVING

It was the ides of March on a Texas plain;
The air was calm and pure, and the sky serene.
The breath of Spring cajoled a dry terrain.
Yet wary Nature stayed her coat of green.

The air grew tense, the sky became pall;
Then came the rolling, swirling clouds of dust—
A seething, boiling, lashing, lapping squall;
Nor was it but the fury of a gust.

For hours it raged, and gathered as it went;
A pitch-black, midnight darkness ruled the day—
And when at last its howling force was spent,
It left a longing for the flowers of May.

A TWILIGHT AFTERGLOW

A loitering sun seems loathe to leave
The shimmering plain to shades of night.
The heavenly artist strives with might shades of beauty to retrieve.
The canvas of the eastern sky
He tints with hues from rose to blue.
The vestals trim their lamps anew,
And God in stillness passes by.
From gazing at the comely scene,
Intoxicated, I careen.
The timid moon still hides her face,
And softly twilight comes apace.
The mellow afterglow of day
Bids night resume her peaceful sway.

Open House Is To Be Continued Today; Well Attended Friday

By CECILE PARSONS

Dressed in peasant costumes of foreign countries, home economics students of Texas Technological college welcomed visitors from Lubbock and surrounding area to their annual open house in the home economics building Friday afternoon.

Open house will continue today from 8 a. m. until 2 p. m. at the main building and from 9 until 11 a. m. at the home management house.

Helpful hints for homemakers are to be found in every department. For instance, exhibits in household management in room 108 show dustless dusters made by dipping cloths in a solution of lemon oil and hot water. Economical cakes can be made, the students have found, by adding corn starch to all-purpose flour. Practically the same results are attained as with the more expensive cake flour, the exhibits show.

Unusual Effects Seen

Unusual effects in flower arrangement can be achieved through the use of ordinary containers such as jelly jars, ginger ale bottles and pottery vases containing wild or cultivated flowers. Tall blade-like iris leaves were shown alone in a blue pottery bowl. Beets, yellow squash, and curly mustard leaves in a twenty-five cent wooden bowl add a touch of color to buffets or dining room tables. The possibility of using yucca pods in floating arrangements was suggested by a flower exhibit.

House furnishings suited to various income levels were emphasized in Annex B where hand woven mats were shown. Students explained how luncheon sets could be made from scrim with borders of Bermuda fagoting for as little as eight cents each. The finishing, upholstering, and recaning of chairs was illustrated. Framed magazine covers and curtains with wooden spoons for curtain rods add to any home, the girls have discovered.

Barbara's Clothes Shown

Visitors who meet Barbara, 16-months-old darling of the practice home, may see her complete wardrobe in Annex E. Total cost of her clothing was $6.78 which provided all necessities including a winter play suit. Layettes made in class were shown. One exhibit showed educational toys which encourage initiative and manipulation on the part of the child. After driving wooden pegs through a board the toy could be turned and pegs driven in the opposite direction.

Costume designers-to-be buy material then design dresses suitable to the print, planning several suitable color schemes. Result of their efforts may be found in Room 106.

Collectors will find room 107 particularly interesting with its Russian samovar, Turkish coffee set, and exhibits of Wedgewood, Spode, Irish Belleek, and Dicken's Plate. Foreign foods cooked by foods classes include Swedish tea rings, Polish pancakes, Russian poppy-seed cookies and German bread (Kuchen).

On Second Floor

Second-floor exhibits are quite as interesting as first. A crafts exhibit in room 204 shows metal trays in the etching process and decorative boxes made by chip carving with a razor blade. Monograms etched on glassware excited comment as did stencils, block prints, batik, and tied and dyed work.

Complete with accessories were dresses, suits, and coats, made by students in clothing 232 found in a nearby room. Gay blue and green lined blouses will be sported by freshmen seamstresses next week, if the exhibit is any indication.

Rats Help, Too

Rats fed on experimental diets help students in foods and nutrition to learn their vitamin A, B, C's. The results of various diets may be seen in the room opposite the crafts exhibit.

Completing the exhibit is a group of unusual and higher priced groceries including foods such as canned corn-on-the-cob, canned brown bread, dates preserved in old-sherry, rose-apples (a type of whole pimento), and truffles. The latter is a kind of fungus growing under ground which, therefore, must be located by scent by trained leashed dogs or hogs.

Thus interesting information and practical knowledge is shared by home economics students with local persons and visiting high school students, demonstration agents, and 4-H club workers. All are invited to inspect the women's dormitory upon the completion of the tour.

The Weekly Sunday School Lesson

For May 9; Text: Genesis 18:17-32

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

WE have studied Abraham as a man of faith. Faith and prayer go together, though prayer is more instinctive than faith. A man who has little faith will pray in an emergency, and men who profess to disbelieve in God have instinctively called upon Him when they have been confronted by danger or tragedy. Prayer in its deepest aspect is that outreach of the soul toward some power or strength that is needed.

But prayer in its truest aspect is much more than that. It is associated with the reality of faith, with spiritual vision, and with the commitment of the soul in definite ways.

The man who cries to a God in whom he does not believe is, after all, making something of a mockery of prayer; but where a man has yielded himself to the divine will and the divine control, and his whole being is attuned to truth and righteousness, prayer is of a different quality. It was concerning such prayer that the ancient writer said that "the prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

IT is constructive and interesting to study this lesson in the light of these things. Abraham was making a prayer for Sodom and Gomorrah, that they might not be destroyed because of their sin.

What we have in this prayer is a conception of mercy and grace, so far in advance of conceptions of God that are more definitely related to the New Testament that one marvels to find such an expression in the Book of Genesis, which goes so far back in the history of the race.

"Wilt thou consume the righteous with the wicked?" asks Abraham. It is more than a prayer—it is a questioning; it is a reasoning; it is, in a sense, a trial of the God in whom Abraham believes. It is a striking and penetrative question. Are not the good and the innocent, even if they be few, to be considered as well as the guilty? "Suppose there are 50 righteous," said he, "suppose there are only five."

Compare the spirit of this appeal of Abraham with what has happened in history, and with what is happening even in our modern, supposedly scientific, enlightened, and humanitarian age. We have seen within our own day civilian peoples destroyed in war, women and children bombed with products of modern scientific destructiveness, with no regard for mercy or tenderness or justice.

The spirit of Abraham's prayer rebukes our modern day, and reminds us that if we really had the spirit of prayer, we would understand that there is grace and mercy with the Almighty, even as the narrative records the answer to the prayer.

A GREAT preacher once was asked what he would do if he found, after death, that instead of there being upon the throne of the universe a God of love, as he proclaimed, there was a mighty tyrant. He answered, "I should go up to him and say, 'Sir, I expected better things of you.'"

Abraham's prayer to God revealed the spirit of his own life and his own great discovery of the principle of mercy and justice. Would God that everywhere in the world there were the same regard for the security and right of the good, the innocent, and the true!

Helium Holding Interest Now

By JOHN McCARTHY
News-Globe Editor

AMARILLO, May 7. (AP)—An Amarillo industry may save the spectacular lighter than air craft of the world.

This industry also may skyrocket into overnight prominence in the treatment of asthma and tuberculosis.

The attention of the German nation and of the United States is now focused on the United States helium plant, seven and a half miles west of Amarillo, because it is the source of the world's supply of helium.

Production Is Controlled

Helium, first discovered in the sun in 1868, is a non inflammable, non-explosive gas with great lifting power, and is produced at comparatively low cost. Its production is controlled by the United States government under a wartime act of 1917.

After a 27-year search on earth for the gas, helium was discovered by a British scientist. Later it was found in gas wells near Dexter, Kansas. During the World war, plans were made by the government for a plant in Fort Worth, which later was abandoned in 1927 because of exhaustion of the gas field.

Plant Constructed In 1928

Experiments continued throughout the nation and in 1927 it was decided to establish the main helium plant for the government near Amarillo. In 1928 the plant was constructed. Fifty thousand acres of the Cliffside helium structure were leased by the government and set aside as a reservior for helium. The gas rights were later purchased.

The Amarillo plant, now the only helium plant in the world with the exception of small private plants of little significance, has a capacity production of 20,000,000 (twenty million), cubic feet of helium annually at an average cost of about $5 per thousand cubic feet. C. W. Seibel, chemical engineer, is in charge of the plant. It is estimated that a supply sufficient to last a century is located in this locality.

In recent testimony before the house military committee, Dr. Alvin R. Barach of Columbia university favored the sale of helium for medical purposes, mentioning specifically, the treatment of asthma. Dr. R. R. Sayers of the public health service testified helium is useful in treating tuberculosis and in helping babies whose lungs fail to expand normally at birth.

New Form Of Quinine Which Cuts Death Rate Of Pneumonia Cases In Half Is Revealed

Byy HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

PITTSBURGH, May 7. (AP)—A new form of quinine, which cut the death rate in 100 human cases of pneumonia by nearly 50 per cent in the winter just finished in Pittsburgh, was reported today by the Mellon institute.

The human treatment has been conducted with great secrecy for two years. The report revealed that in the previous winter another hundred cases were treated with results probably as good although the form of pneumonia in that year was not so deadly as in the present season.

The report was part of a symposium on recent progress of science.

The new drug is one of 78 forms of quinine produced by the institute in a six-year search for a better pneumonia treatment.

Since 1911 it has been known that a form of quinine called optochen kills the pneumonia germ. But optochen also caused blindness. The institute has been searching for a chemical which would attach itself readily to quinine and neutralize the blindness "factor" without removing the pneumonia germ killing power.

The drug reported today has not caused one case, nor even a suspicion of blindness in the 200 cases. It still has only a technical name—hydroxyethylapocupreine.

Necessity And Ambition Force Boys At Tech To Enroll In Home Economics Courses

Necessity and ambition are prime factors forcing boys to take home economics courses at Texas Technological college.

Many of the boys who are working their way through college are batching"; therefore knowledge of foods and nutrition is valuable.

"I've never been in love but I'm going to get married the day I get my degree and a job because I'm sure tired of cooking," one of the Tech "bachelors" said.

One freshman enrolled in "foods and nutrition" in the home economics division said. "I am going to take them all." He is planning on going "into food on a large scale." He plans to manage hotel dining rooms and restaurants.

Nearly all Tech eds who "feed themselves from cans" are certain that matrimony will solve the cooking problem—if they can supply the necessary money.

Liquor Law Violation Case Is Continued; Bond Forfeited In One Case; Jury Dismissed

A case against Les Cantrell, Sybil Rowder and Pauline Bowman, charging liquor law violation and scheduled for trial today in county court, was continued to the next term, said Judge J. J. Dillard.

Bond of Pete Clay, charged with liquor law violation and whose trial was scheduled for Friday, was ordered forfeited when he failed to put in an appearance. The instrument was for $500.

Gaston Cobb, who has approximately 15 days yet to serve in connection with a theft conviction, pleaded guilty of a similar complaint Friday morning and was sentenced by Judge Dillard to 15 days in jail and costs. Complaint alleged theft of shoes from Hemphill-Wells company.

The jury yesterday was dismissed for the term.

WTCC Directors Are Re-Elected

S. A. Wells, Walter G. Alderson and Chas. A. Guy were renominated bock directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at a called meeting of directors of the local chamber at the city hall Friday afternoon.

Mothers Honored In A. B. C. Luncheon

First annual Mother's day program of the American Business club, held yesterday noon at the Hilton hotel, had 25 women as guests of members. The club has decided to make the affair an annual one.

Rev. C. E. Hereford, First Baptist church pastor, spoke on "Mother's Apron String," in paying tribute to motherhood. "The idea of Mother's day is less than a quarter century old, but it has become a general custom," he pointed out. "All of us are tied to our mother's apron strings, more or less," he added. There are three things about them; first they are long enough, they will reach you wherever you go; second, they wear, mother's strings never wear out; third; they last."

Dr. M. M. Ewing, club president, opened the meeting. J. Ray Dickey, member of the program committee, introduced the speaker and also the special music numbers. Mrs. Venton L. Doughtie sang two numbers, as a part of the observance of National Music week by the Lubbock Music club. Her accompanist was Mrs. O. D. Groshart.

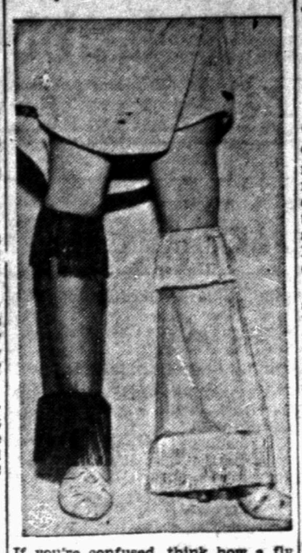

Albert Fortenberry and Edgar Shelton, high school band members, announced the coming band concert Tuesday night. They sold 17 tickets.

President Ewing announced the board of governors would meet Monday night. He also introduced E. H. Bergman, a new member.

LUCIANO LOSES APPEAL

It's Derby Day In Old Kentucky; Fast Track, Wide-Open Race Are Forecast

Three-Year-Old Stars, 20 Of Them, All Set

By ALAN GOULD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7. (AP) — America's most renowned horse racing extravaganza, the Kentucky Derby, will reel off its sixty-third showing tomorrow at Churchill Downs, in a glittering spectacle and a sufficiently wide open race to give visitors an exciting run for their money.

Twenty crack three-year-olds will carry the colors of the turf's foremost stables, from coast to coast, in quest of aggregate prize money of $62,575, restored to boom-time level after a four-year lapse, and the prestige that goes to the winner.

No Filly In Bunch

This number is two short of the record starting field of 1928, when Reigh Count won the richest of all derbies. This year's array is notable chiefly because not a filly is entered and the lack of any dominating favorite.

There appears sufficient class in the field to establish the winning wearer of the rose horse-shoe as a formidable contender for the three-year-old crown of 1937.

The 3 to 1 second choice, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' entry of Reaping Reward and Military, fared slightly better than the favorite, Samuel D. Riddle's War Admiral, in the draw for post positions.

War Admiral On Post

Listed at 9 to 5 in the pre-race books, War Admiral, the speedy little son of Man O' War, drew the No. 1 spot, next to the rail, where it takes a jack-rabbit break from the barrier to run clear of likely early interference. Military seemed better placed at No. 4, while the slower-starting but stronger-finishing Reaping Reward, ace of the Mars' entry, was placed well on the outside, No. 17 from the pole, with plenty of racing room.

Whether the luck of the draw has much if anything to do with the outcome, turf experts conceded at least a half dozen other colts better than an outside chance to upset the favorites.

Third choice, at 6 to 1, after impressing observers with a brisk half-mile workout this morning in 48 seconds flat, was Jerome H. Louchheim's Pompoon. Highly regarded, too, were prospects of the Wheatley stable's Melodist, the Waggoner brothers' Heelfly, hope of the big Texas delegation, both held at 8 to 1, and J. W. Parrish's Dellor.

Fair Weather Predicted

Skies cleared quickly after early morning showers and the historic mile oval at the Downs, heavy from downpours of the previous week, dried rapidly enough to warrant hopes of firm, fast footing by the time the Derby field parades to the post tomorrow afternoon around 4:45 (cst). The prediction was for fair and warmer weather.

The outlook for balmy conditions not only fortified the enthusiasm of gathering thousands and stimulated the city's colorful gayety but assured most, if not all of the field going to the post. Bernard F., one of the long-shots in the field, was listed as the only doubtful starter. E. R. Bradley's Billionaire and William duPont jr.'s Fairy Hill, neither of which likely would go on a muddy or heavy track, appeared sure to have the kind of footing they prefer.

Another Record Crowd?

Last year's record crowd of 65,000, from all indications, should be equalled or surpassed. Seating accommodations have been increased to 30,000.

Notables from all walks of life jotined the throngs in seeking entertainment and the latest "feed box" tips on the Derby winner. Prominent among the visitors due for the main event were Alf M. Landon, last year's Republican candidate, Postmaster General James A. Farley, James Roosevelt, the president's son, and Jack Dempsey, together with a host of celebrities of society, stage, screen, and the business world. Kentucky colonels banqueted tonight with customary hilarity.

"Darby" Too High Toned For Garner, A Derby Fan

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Vice President Garner, and a dozen senators departed today for Louisville and "the Darby."

"It's just plain Derby to me," Garner said, "but the crowd I'm going with says its produced Darby so I guess that's what it'll be. It still sounds pretty high toned to me."

Garner was in a party assembled by Senator Guffey (D-Pa).

Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, also was Louisville bound, with a "hot tip." He told friends it was Reaping Reward, on the nose.

Baylor Scores Seven Times In 8th To Beat Frogs 11-2

WACO, May 7. (AP)—The Baylor Bears put across seven runs in the eighth inning here today to defeat Texas Christian university 11-2 in a Southwest conference baseball game.

Jelly Sorelle limited the Frogs to eight hits while his mates clubbed Aubrey Linne for 14, including a pair of doubles by Shortstop Lloyd Russell. The Christians did not score until the eighth.

Davey O'Brien led the Frogs at bat, slamming out a pair of doubles and a single. The teams play here again tomorrow.

Mustangs Win Off Longhorns, 4-2

AUSTIN, May 7. (AP) — Towering Billy Dewell, Southern Methodist university's sophomore athlete, pitched the Mustangs to a startling 4-2 victory over the Texas Longhorns today.

The Steers rocked Dewell for 12 hits, 11 of them in the last five innings and seven of them in the last three but except in the fourth, when an error helped, the Texans couldn't produce.

Two runners perished on base in each of the last three frames. Working coolly, Dewell mowed down batters when hits would have meant runs.

The Ponies got all their six hits and four runs off Bill Hughes in the first 4 2-3 innings. Henry Ramsey retired the final Mustang in the fifth.

Fisticuffs Break Out In Owl Game

HOUSTON, May 7. (AP)—A brief, non-decision fist fight after the game was as close as the Rice Owls could get to the Texas Aggies in their Southwest conference game here today.

Coach Siki Sikes Aggies swept the series and retained their chance at the conference crown by taking a 12-2 decision over the Owls. The teams meet tomorrow at College Station.

The fisticuffs, apparently the outgrowth of the row between Johnny Morrow of A. and M. and Willis Orr of Rice during the basketball season, started as Morrow came in to the bench after the final out. A group of Rice athletes, mostly freshmen, had subjected Morrow to a razzing during the game. Orr, who was in the stands, took no part.

Quick work on the part of coaches halted the affair after a few wild swings.

Lefty Kyle Riddle was stingy with his hits, giving the Owls only three, none of which figured in the scoring. The Aggies made five errors. The Aggies combined nine hits, six bases on balls and six Rice errors for their tallies.

Hubbers Display Fine Attitude; Ready For Sudan

Mad as a bunch of hornets, seething with fury and pepped up like a football team, the Lubbock Hubbers have adopted "Show Them No Mercy" as a watchword, theme-song and motto for future baseball activities, beginning Sunday afternoon, this season.

After thinking it over, the Hubbers have come to the conclusion they beat themselves last Sunday, they're angry about that, and they're sore at criticism which has been aimed their way by fans and scribes.

The Hubber attitude since Sunday's reversal has been all that a manager could ask, and if it keeps up through Sunday, it's due to be a bad day for Sudan's ambitious nine.

First Visit For Sudan

The Sudan team comes here for the first time this season and for Lubbock's third game, to play at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Headed by a nifty battery, Scott Prather catching and E. Minyard pitching, the Sudan team boasts its share of the South Plains' better sluggers and fielders.

Just what, if any, changes will be made in the Hubber batting order will be revealed Sunday. Since they have been charged with "lying down on the job," certain members of the team have challenged the customers to come out and watch them some more, and suggest that they judge not too harshly, without giving the boys another chance.

The admission for tomorrow's game is 40 cents for adults, 15 for children.

Trade Movement More Uniform

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 7.—Trade movement for the week was more uniform, Dun & Bradstreet said today in the weekly trade review.

"Favored by auspicious weather and helped by special clearance events, retail distribution recovered some of the ground yielded in April," the report said.

"In wholesale market commitments were more generous as the price trend turned steadier, and the volume was further enlarged by the most numerous reorders in a month.

Shipments Overdue

"Proceeding at full stride more industries were forced to adopt faster operating rates, in an effort to expedite overdue shipments."

Sales for the country as whole were estimated at from 3 to 6 per cent over last week and 8 to 25 per cent over the 1936 comparative.

Sectional increases over last year were: New England 15 to 20 per cent, east 12 to 25; middlewest 18 to 25; northwest 12 to 22; south 15 to 30; southwest 12 to 18; and Pacific coast 8 to 16.

It Cannot Stop Man's Progress

WHEN the gods of fate reached down and crushed the great trans-Atlantic air liner, the Hindenburg, sending it crashing crazily to earth a mass of flaming wreckage, man learned another lesson.

Awful as was the mishap which took the lives of nearly two score persons, it will not, however, stop man's conquest of air, land and water. It may slow up the conquest—which is probably as it should be—until humans learn more of the various problems attendant upon flying. But man will go on, and on, and on until the dawn of an era when spanning land and water in the clouds will be commonplace and nothing more.

For whatever may be his faults, man is not a quitter.

When he starts on a job, he usually finishes it, surmounting obstacles which would confound and thoroughly discourage an animal of lesser breed. That's because man has a divine spark not given to other creatures; because the Great Architect intended that he be of the stuff that strengthens in the face of adversity.

As the German people—who have come closer to mastering the dirigible than any of the nations—sympathized with Texas in the recent disaster at New London, Texans will sympathize with Germany in the loss of the Hindenburg, in the loss of her citizens as well as our own and will hope for her a greater success with the great air giants as time goes on.

The Hindenburg disaster was a terrible thing and will be long remembered. But as it is remembered man will work ahead until some day he will completely conquer.

The One-Minute Sermon

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy.

But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you;

That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. — St. Matthew, V, 43 through 45.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

THE BLIND MECHANIC

Residents of Webb Mills, N. Y., say that even though Burt Pope, aged 61, is totally blind, he can do a better carpentry and plumbing job than other tradesmen who have their eyesight.

Twenty-seven years ago, Mr. Pope lost his eyesight when a mass of molten metal exploded in his face. For years he had a difficult time making a living, but gradually readjusted himself to the trades he knew before his unfortunate accident. Aided by his acute sense of touch, he built a kitchen on his house, even to the shingling on the roof. Then he changed all the plumbing, piped the cellar, installed the furnace, etc., and made a perfect job of it. He shaves himself, cuts his own hair, walks around alone very gingerly, and is now even digging his own excavation outside his house for a cesspool.

PHILIP HENDRY, Sybil's brother.

DOROTHY STARKE, Joan's girlhood friend.

CHARLES NORTON, California mining promoter.

Yesterday: Sybil learns that Joan once worked in Chicago and promptly she seizes that as a starting point from which to check Joan's past.

CHAPTER V

It was almost midnight when Sybil returned to her own home. She had left her uncle in a particularly jovial frame of mind, and she felt certain that he would relent in the matter of Philip. She decided to wait up an hour or so in case her brother did get home that night. It would not do for him to believe that she had let him down, because she meant to have him do something for her.

As a matter of fact, she rarely failed him. Philip was extravagant, impetuous and utterly irresponsible, yet he had a certain reckless charm which compelled her admiration. It might have been that she understood his faults because the same desires smoldered within her. If she were better able to control them than he was, it was because she viewed the world's tolerance with more calculation.

There was Uncle John, for one thing. Despite the trust fund which her father had left them, Uncle John was still an economic necessity, and his principles must be appeased. That task Sybil took unto herself and she handled it well.

Jennings, the butler, looked into the living room.

"I put your car in the garage, Miss Sybil," he announced sedately. "Will there be anything else."

"No, Jennings, nothing more." She picked up a magazine and settled herself on the divan. "By the way, did my brother call while I was out?"

"No, Miss Sybil. There were no calls."

"Thank you. Don't bother with the lights. I'm staying up a while."

Very well, Miss Sybil." He withdrew quietly, leaving an oppressive stillness about the room.

Sybil turned the pages of the magazine listlessly and listened to the hall clock tick off the seconds. The house seemed chilly, she thought.

Her own living room was a fitting background for Sybil Hendry. It was, as she was, smart, sophisticated. Modern furniture stood out strikingly against dull, off-white walls, skillfully brightened by concealed ceiling lights. The floor was completely covered by a warm chartreuse velvet carpeting, with luxurious small Chinese rugs, in the same tones as the furniture, scattered in carelessly correct fashion. The draperies were in old-blue velvet, their edges caught back in the same studied carelessness to show a lining of chartreuse satin.

Mirrors were used artistically—as table tops, as frames for the two large Chinese prints, and as panels down the entire length of the wall from ceiling to floor, to catch the reflection of windows opposite. Odd pieces of furniture in old ivory and gold held priceless lamps of Chinese porcelain and expensive smoking accessories.

The only striking note of color in the room was a huge vase of deep red roses, kept fresh through the thoughtfulness of Uncle John, which stood on a table in front of an enormous triple window.

Uncle John did not like Sybil's living room. He often intimated jokingly that its absolute perfection made him feel uncomfortable. One day, he told her, the room would learn that he'd been raised in the degradation of a mining camp and it would freeze him to death for bespoiling it.

Shortly before one o'clock Sybil heard Philip turn in at the driveway. She went to the window, watched him put the car in the garage, and heard him slam the doors violently. Evidently his day in jail had not left him in a very bright frame of mind. She hurried to the front door to let him in. She wished she had asked Jennings to prepare some sort of a supper. In all probability Philip hadn't eaten all day. However, she could fix up something for him.

"Hello, Philip," she greeted him flatly.

He looked up scowling, and did not return her greeting. Sybil closed the door behind him.

"I'm terribly sorry—" she began.

Philip's scowl deepened. "You should be!" he said scornfully. "That was a fine trick you let the old man pull."

"I didn't know a thing about it until this evening, Philip. Why didn't you call me instead of Uncle John?"

"I didn't call anybody. Those silly cops went through my pockets, I suppose, and found his card. Then the opportunity of talking to the great John Hendry was too much for them to pass up. I don't know what he told them, but today they wouldn't let me make another call."

Sybil helped him out of his coat. "Did you have anything to eat?" she asked solicitously.

"Eat! Don't be silly. Why would I want to eat that tripe they hand out?"

"Come on, then, I'll find you something." She led the way toward the kitchen.

"I need a drink first," he grumbled.

"All right." She opened cupboard doors, brought out a few dishes. Where does Jennings keep the Scotch?" she asked.

"First shelf, at the right," Philip offered.

Sybil took it down, poured out a generous portion, then went to the refrigerator for ice cubes. "Here's almost a whole chicken," she observed, and a bottle of milk. Want me to make coffee, Philip?"

"No. I'll take the milk. Got any tomato juice?"

"Half a jar of it, all nicely chilled."

Gradually, as the drink took effect, his spirits rose. He attacked the chicken eagerly, forgetting for the while that he bore a grievance. Soon he was telling Sybil about his day in jail—about the flat-footed guard who walked up and down the corridor lecturing them—about the three others who shared his cell—the roughneck, the penitent panhandler, and the dignified gentleman from Boston.

"Honest, Syb," he said affably, waving a cold chicken drumstick, "you'd have died laughing at that old duck. Never touched a drop of liquor in his life, so he said. Just had an attack of vertigo last night. He'd met a few business acquaintances in the Village and they offered him some nice lime drinks. Delighted drinks, he thought. The next thing he found himself out in the street beating up a cop with his cane. 'I was just walking down the street,'" Philip mimicked with a grin, "'when I felt an attack coming on. And this officer insisted that I was intoxicated. He insulted me. I tell you, when I get back to Boston—' Oh, when he gets back to Boston, he'll have the governor down to demand an apology."

Philip laughed at the memory.

"The devil of it was," he continued, "I think the old boy was sincere. Those old friends of his must have had a rare time spiking his lime drinks."

Half an hour later, Sybil said cautiously:

"Uncle John was upset about it, Philip."

Philip's good humor faded. "Don't talk Uncle John to me tonight," he snapped. "I'm getting fed up with his interference. I don't need him telling me how to live . . ."

Sybil sighed. "That's just the trouble, Philip. We do need him, very badly. I've a stack of bills now that are two months overdue. And I hate to remind you—"

"Don't bother! I remember, well enough. Sam Bowser has my I. O. U. for two thousand and he's getting nasty about it. Well, let me handle Sam Bowser. . . ."

Sybil shrugged, eloquently. Philip couldn't handle Sam Bowser, and she knew it as well as he did. And if Sam Bowser went to Uncle John, it would be difficult. Rubbed the right way, Uncle John signed checks with an ample hand, but get his back up and he was as hard as the rock of Gibraltar.

"Philip," Sybil pursued tactfully, "I'll make a bargain with you."

He looked at her suspiciously. "What is it?"

"I'll settle with Sam Bowser. I'll give him something on account and security for the rest. And if you'll do something for me. I'll give you $50 a week extra and expenses. It will take you out of town, too, so you won't have to face Uncle John. I'll tell him you've gotten a job, and by the time you get back, he'll have forgotten all about this."

"What do you want me to do? And where do I go?"

"Chicago."

"What for?" He offered her a cigaret, took one himself.

"To do a little detective work."

"Detective work? On what?" He held the match for her.

Sybil drew in the flame, inhaled deeply. "I want you to find out something about Uncle John's secretary—Miss Barrett."

Philip blew out the match impa-

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

FROM two shrewd European observers—Roving Ambassador Norman H. Davis and Financier Bernard M. Baruch—President Roosevelt has received confidential reports that the danger of another World war is fast receding from the international horizon.

Messrs. Baruch and Davis differ on certain details, but both agree that the principal factors in softening the erstwhile warlike mood have been the Anglo-French-American monetary alliance and the breakdown of the Franco-Hitler-Mussolini offensive against Madrid. The tri-partite monetary arrangement has demonstrated that economic isolation based on tariff barriers, exchange restrictions and commercial quotas doesn't pay in the long run. It is denting the Chinese wall erected by every country since the World war.

The Madrid affair, however, has been and even more effective deterrent. It has taught Europe's general staffs that, contrary to expert opinion, offensive weapons have not become so deadly that a major war can be won overnight. Modern tanks and planes have not eliminated the prospect of long, costly trench warfare. It so happens that the three nations most eager for war—Italy, Germany and Japan—haven't the economic resources for a prolonged conflict; they must smash through in a hurry or not fight at all. Madrid's courageous resistance has proved that there is no such thing as military magic. It has disproved all theories carefully evolved in staff schools on the basis of Italo-Japanese easy conquests of unarmed and untrained forces in Ethiopia and Manchukuo. In short, Europe is afraid to fight. • • •

DECISIONS: It is such memos as these—and his diplomatic pouches confirm their general content—that have changed the President's attitude toward holding another world conference. How to call it or to inspire another nation to convoke a parley is his present problem.

Mr. Baruch holds that the United States should first strike a military, naval, economic and commercial agreement with Great Britain. He believes that open demonstration of such an Anglo-American alliance would call any bluff indulged in by rival nations around the green cloth. Mr. Davis believes in a more indirect approach, presumably through cooperation with the so-called Oslo group of nations—Belgium, Holland, and the Scandinavian countries. As the worst sufferers in another crackup, they are keen for peace, and are seeking it on a cautious, practical basis.

Their spokesman, Prime Minister Paul van Zeeland of Belgium, will visit F.D.R. next month. How the world will emerge from its present mess—or if it will—may depend upon the sofa sottoes exchanged between Mister Roosevelt and Mister van Zeeland. Their conferences in the month of marriages may seal the fate of the born and unborn for decades hence.

ETHICS: Smart New Deal strategists are now directing their drumfire against Justice Owen J. Roberts, whose switch from conservative to liberal in recent decisions has enhanced the Supreme court's prestige and almost wrecked the President's "packing" program. The move is obviously designed to deprecate Mr. Roberts' recent role as judicial quarterback.

F.D.R.'s friends are spreading the story that, as a trustee of the Rodman Wanamaker estate, the Philadelphia jurist collected about $35,000 in fees after he donned the black robes of an associate justice. They intimate that the receipt of salary from such an assignment while serving on the high bench was unethical and improper. Previously he collected a $250,000 fee when he successfully resisted the government's attempt to collect estate taxes on stock shares which Mr. Wanamaker had given to his heirs before his death.

Incidentally, the individual who tipped off the New Dealers to the inside story is Mrs. Alexander Hamilton—a Wanamaker heir and now the wife of a nephew of J. P. Morgan. She has begun court action to break the will because the heirs have received no income since 1932, although the trustees and executors have dished out fees totaling $3,140,000. Mr. Roberts resigned as trustee in 1934—four years after he went on the Court. • • •

SHOOTER: Rural Electrification Director John Carmody—as predicted by Whirligig—has actually electrified American farms instead of making speeches about it. The hardboiled production manager from Pittsburgh has shaken this agency out of its blueprint inertia.

Before he took charge, R.E.A. chieftains allocated funds for electrification and then forgot about them; they thought that was sufficient. But legal and engineering squabbles often delayed construction for months and years. While jealous subordinates jawed, farmers went without light and heat and power. Mr. Carmody follows through: he insists upon action. He has demonted several lawyers and engineers who seemed to be too friendly to private power interests. He has set up a staff to see that construction work is started promptly. He will take no excuses for delay. Ballyhoo, in his opinion, is no substitute for building.

The result has been that he has erected more lines in three months than his predecessor—Morris L. Cooke of Philadelphia—started in three years. The private utilities don't appreciate this sort of aggressiveness, but Mr. Roosevelt seems to like it. He refers to Mr. Carmody as "Trouble Shooter John."

NEW YORK

ACCORDING to informed banking circles all evidence points to the fact that the British and American governments are cooperating in monetary and economic matters.

President Roosevelt took a whack at the rapidity of rising commodity prices. The British regime followed with a new tax program. Combined these two moves knocked the props from under speculative markets.

Then British banks started a drive to boost the ante required on carrying speculative accounts. To show his friendly attitude President Roosevelt followed with a letter saying that margin trading in securities most always results in losses.

The result was a crashing of world security and commodity values. It ran into the billions of dollars. While the two weeks decline is regarded in world banking circles as a "silent panic" they are pleased in that at no time did it reach the "pandemonium" stage.

The general belief is that the worst has been seen. • • •

DRASTIC: Few realize the depth of the recent stock market decline. Statisticians have calculated that the drop in value of United States Steel shares was $177,328,000. Those of General Motors declined $205,750,000. Anaconda's share value dropped $125,982,000. In the rails the market value of the Pennsylvania shares moved off $42,795,000. Standard Oil of New Jersey share values dipped $157,348,000.

Combined, the decline in market values of the corporations mentioned was $709,203,000. This is a pretty drastic correction considering that the huge figure represents only five corporations. It goes without saying that the decline in values of all listed securities ran into the billions of dollars. • • •

TIRED: Political sharps say that the country has entered a new phase. There was a time when the Big Bosses of the administration won the blessings of the people because it approved the attacks on private business heads—the so-called economic royalists. But the tide has turned.

Bankers say that the economic managers—those in Washington—will now be judged by their own accomplishments in directing affairs. If they don't succeed, the 1938 election will result in a Republican House. It is pointed out that the people of the country are past their "panic fright" and now want to see progress. They are tired of "Fireside Talk" promises.

In a word, political intrests say that the people of the country are not so sure that Roosevelt's New Deal administration has not failed. • • •

DEMAND: The LaFollette Senate committee investigating civil liberties is a boon to labor circles. Several "legal" murders have been admitted by Kentucky Harlan county deputy sheriffs. Those who died did so in the cause of unionizing coal miners.

On the strength of the testimony the C.I.O. and the American Federation of Labor are to demand of Congress that an amendment be added to the Wagner Labor law that those who prevent the unionization of labor be held for their crimes along the same lines as are now enforced under the Lindbergh law.

Side Glances---By George Clark

"If they ever open their door and catch you, I'm going pretend I don't even know you."

Letters To The Editor

Your Voice Is As Loud As Our Own

ON SIDEWALK SPITTING

Editor, The Avalanche: You have generously invited the public to express their views on subjects of interest to the general welfare and I am coming in to present my ideas on a matter seemingly to me of considerable importance.

It is my belief that the Anti-Spitting ordinance is still in effect, and if so let's take a look into the matter to the end that conditions may be greatly improved.

From what one sees when one passes along the side-walks of Lubbock, one would suppose that quite a number of people had forgotten if indeed they ever knew that there was such an ordinance on the city books. This habit of expectorating out straight ahead on the walks to my way of thinking is inexcusable.

If you hold your head high and resolve not to see these things you will likely step into something, and if you look down to "watch your step" what your eyes behold will make you feel like you could "throw up" your bunions. A few days ago I saw a man just after he had crossed the street in the business section, and gotten onto the side walk "defrost" his nose, first one side then the other. Now all this is nauseating to read about, to think about but to my mind is the only way to arouse the people to action, that the situation may be remedied. Some years ago after this ordinance was passed, the side walks were placarded with white-wash letters calling attention to it, and it would be a fine thing now to aid in improving this condition.

These scattering ideas are put forth with the intent that public health and civic cleanliness may take a step forward.

A Reader.

TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS, No. 96

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

That giant shadow, like some hideous phantom from another world, loomed up behind Tarzan and melted into the darkness of his own form. The ape-man felt the touch of a clammy skin. Strong, brutal arms encircled him. A low, sinister snarl sounded in his ear.

Through long years of jungle peril, Tarzan's muscles were trained to instant response. At the mere touch of that cold skin, he broke away, and as he sprang he turned to face his foe. Then another dark figure rose up, swinging a bludgeon at Tarzan's head.

The ape-man dodged the swishing cudgel, but he gained only a temporary respite, for now a score of club-wielding monsters sprang up all around him, as if they had been disgorged by the moldy earth. His only chance was a flying leap to a pyramid of stones.

From this vantage point he leaped over the heads of his foes, and started again for the decrepit temple. It would be easy enough to outstrip this small group. But in his path lay masses of ruins, and now from each pile rose a new horde of savage monsters!

Littlefield To Get New Hotel

LITTLEFIELD, May 7. (Special)—Plans have been started here for the erection of a 54-room modern, fireproof hotel. Plans are now being prepared, it was said.

Cost is estimated at between $60,000 and $70,000. There will be a banquet hall, ball room, sample rooms, etc., besides bedrooms. An out-of-town architect has the drawing of the plans, it is reported.

State Legislature

propriating $817,000 for each of two hospitals for the insane, one in East Texas and one in West Texas, with each item carried separately so that the governor could approve one and reject the other if he wished, was adopted by the senate. The house wasexpected to act on the report Monday.

Resolution Is Adopted

The senate also adopted a resolution requesting the governor to terminate Texas participation in the interstate oil and gas compact if after investigation he found this state was not receiving a fair share of the national market demand. The legislature recently authorized participation for another two years.

By a vote of 17 to 9, the senate declined to suspend a rule to permit a vote on a proposed constitutional amendment exempting from ad valorem taxes for seven years textile, mills, wool coursing and canning plants and paper pulp mills.

Other Bills Passed

The senate passed finally to house proposals among more important of which were bills to:

Permit cities under 2,000 population to pay mayors a salary up to $50 a month.

Limit campaign expenses of candidates for state representative to $750 with not more than $600 permitted for the first primary in counties over 100,000 population.

Exempt nursery stock from taxation.

Permit the railroad commission to force gas companies to use malodorants in distribution lines if investigation revealed it necessary and feasible.

Provide for elections to determine sharing of indebtedness of consolidated common and rural high school districts.

Provide for automatic incarceration in a state institution of defendants in criminal cases after being found insane.

Extend the state road bond assumption law two years.

LEADERS LACK VIGOR

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—A few specialties zoomed upward in today's stock market but most leaders lacked advancing vigor and the majority finished in a restricted area.

Dividends and earnings were still a stimulating influence for favored issues although cheerful news on the whole was ignored by most.

Rails tilted forward briskly at the opening. They stumbled and recovered at intervals, most holding small gains at the close.

Farm implements were given a play for a time, along with mail orders. These were none too confident on the final lap. Oils, steels, motors and utilities were indifference.

Activity was a little better than yesterday, but it was still far from pleasing to commission houses. Transfers amounted to 917,240 shares compared with 756,900 Thursday. The Associated Press average was unchanged at 69.1.

Cotton..

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, May 7. (AP)—Cotton prices drifted slightly lower today in desultory trading. The close was steady at net declines of 7 points.

Favorable foreign advices inspired a slight opening gain but after the demand had been supplied the list floated down a point at a time, mainly from lack of support.

Good crop weather was reported from over the belt which served to hold speculative buying in check and as there was nothing in the news to inspire traders one way or the other most floor brokers preferred to hug the side-lines.

There was some minor profit taking and a little evening up for over the week-end, but such business as developed was confined to near positions only. July contracts closed at 12.97, October 12.83, December 12.90, January 12.89 and March 12.88.

Spot cotton at New Orleans continued quiet with middling finishing 7 points lower at 13.38.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, May 7. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 13.35 cents a pound; average for the past thirty days 13.67 cents a pound.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—Cotton showed a tendency to sag from moderate opening advances today. July eased from 13.17 @13.08 and closed at 13.08 with final prices 3 points net higher to 4 lower.

The market opened 2 to 9 points higher influenced by steadier Liverpool cables and a little covering in May. There was some trade and foreign buying but demand as a whole was limited in the absence of fresh constructive developments.

Clear weather in the eastern belt and scattered showers in the west were regarded favorably. Easiness in wheat attracted some commission house liquidation and Chicago selling.

At the lows, prices showed net losses of 4 to 7 points and except for May in which there was some last minute covering, closing prices were generally lower.

Germany's Plans

of sabotage of the Hindenburg, Dr. Eckener said:

"The question of possible sabotage which I admit flashed into my mind at the first moment naturally will have to be seriously investigated.

"But in the light of later dispatches from America and in view of the excellent security measures of the American government, there is really very small likelihood in favor of such a theory.

"Far more likely is the theory that electrical phenomena probably connected somehow with weather conditions, played a role in this disaster."

Eckener, in a radio talk, added that the "ultimate answer, however, will as I have said have to await the outcome of the investigation."

Eckener expressed confidence that the German investigating committee which sails for the United States tomorrow will receive "unlimited support and cooperation of the Reports of more or less moisture where needed in domestic wheat areas southwest as well as in Canada had a bearish effect, and so likwise did prospective large deliveries on Chicago May wheat contracts. Why The Duke Sued ates in London with whom, he complains, Edward had cast his friendship. So there is this paragraph:

"The invaders, of course, were not beloved. They were as a rule no credit to the great country they had exploited and deserted, nor to the one in which they now were roystering and ruling . . . They were cock-a-hoop, and since Edward's accession were getting insolent and out-of-hand. There was but one more world to conquer. The first woman to sit in the ancient Commons was a divorced American, why not then also—?"

And this:

"England is proud, and minded seeing her throne provide a music-hall turn for low foreign newspapers . . . The country bitterly resented the other country's brazen delighted cheapening of its high possession—the tabloid press jeering, interfering—and in its anger naturally if ungratefully, ignored the correct and cordial tone of most Americans and of the good American journals."

And this:

"Much of those day's exciting news was evidently based on fact. What was not so evidently based did also its bit; the rumor and hearsay, fantastic . . . spies, crimes . . . Hitler—never surpassed in the rich long history of scandalmongering. Whether they were wholly true, or wholly untrue, or something in between, those stories heaped—already half in revenge—upon the head of a woman unable to defend herself sealed finally her fate. If such stories—true or not, no matter—were in circulation about you, you were not fit to be Queen of England."

Other Things

EVEN the working class, long friendly to Edward, consented to his departure, says Dennis:

"He left his land with kingly dignity We saw him go with love, and pity, and cynical relief. Was it so heartless of those South Wales film audiences, unemployed, entrance half-price, stonily not to cheer him? He was a tragic, broken man, but he was off to the sun, and the white snow . . . and they—"

In one place, Dennis discusses the common statement that Premier Baldwin never would have taken so strong a line with Edward "unless there were other things." He goes on to say:

"Unfortunately, there were. Things done and said in his infatuation; his lover's prodigality . . . In moments of recourse to other sources of courage as well . . . Papers curiously, neo-Kaiserishly, annotated. The affair of the Egyptian treaty. No sound understanding of the technique or limitations of necessary dignity of the office. Irregular hours, irregular habits . . ."

"Deficiency Of Pity"

YET it is not only Edward and the "set of fast trans-Atlantic wisecrackers" who come in for Dennis' condemnation. Admitting that there were "aspects not admirable" about England's reaction to the abdication, he says this:

"There was slander about, as well as sense, baseness as well as beauty. More smut than even the circumstances called for, and a fair amount of deliberate cruel lying. Amid such English good nature, a deficiency of pity . . . With no-un-English self doubting a good average display of English self-content. If hypocrisy not above average, thick calm smooth oceans of complacency. Complacency, COMPLACENCY."

our American airships, such a catastrophe would have been impossible."

Earlier in the day, the senate military affairs committee approved a bill which would liberalize commercial sale and export of non-inflammable helium, of which the United States has a monopoly. Dr. Eckener, heading a German inquiry commission ordered to America by the Hitler government, indicated the famous Graf Zeppelin, now operating to South America, may be grounded until Germany obtains helium.

German Investigators Coming

Germany, appalled by the loss of its $3,000,000 sky monarch—regarded as the crowning achievement of years of successful dirigible construction—sent its own investigators hurrying across the Atlantic.

They were headed by Dr. Eckener, veteran designer of Zeppelins, who wept when he heard the news.

As state, county and government boards assembled around the tragic heap of junk that once was a stately ship of the air with 21 safe crossings of the north Atlantic to its credit, it was agreed on all sides that the use of hydrogen gas was the secondary cause of the disaster.

What Ignited It?

The mystery lay in what ignited it.

A sudden spark somewhere near the stern as the gleaming air liner nosed toward its mooring mast at the end of the season's first voyage from Frankfort turned it into a blazing torch before the eyes of horrified spectators.

Some of those aboard jumped to the ground. Others were blown from their cabins by a series of dull explosions. Flaming from end to end, its gaunt aluminum framework already exposed, the 803-foot dirigible settled slowly to the ground, stern first.

Lasted Through Night

The horror and confusion at the scene lasted throughout the night. Naval authorities closed the station to civilians and definite official figures on the dead and missing still were unavailable. Daylight found the field fairly cleared and late today weary searchers thought all bodies had been removed from the wreckage.

The bare framework of the airship la, as it struck, awaiting official inquiry into the cause of the disaster.

Bodies of the dead—two more recovered during the day—were laid out in an improvised morgue. Many of them were horribly seared, making identification difficult.

Seek Missing Victims

Soldiers, sailors and CCC workers poked through the ashes and tangled debris of the wreck, seeking to account for those still missing.

Swarms of curiosity seekers were turned back miles from the saucer like air station which has housed so many ill-starred dirigibles—the Shenandoah, the Akron and the Macon.

The ghostly form of the retired Los Angeles, only large American airship to escape disaster, glinted dully a few feet from the shrouded bodies that marked the end of the greatest airship of them all.

The county began its investigation during the afternoon with a coroner's inquest.

Tech Freshmen Go On Annual Picnic Today

Approximately 400 freshmen of Texas Technological college will leave at 7 o'clock this morning by train for Crosbyton and from there they will go to Silver Falls for an all-day picnic.

They will be transferred from Crosbyton to the picnic grounds by trucks, said class officers last night.

Entertainment features of the outing will be swimming, skating and dancing. Meals will be served on the grounds by officials of the camp ground. Students plan to return to Lubbock about 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Arrangements have been made for a special train to take the students to and from Crosbyton.

Lonnie Langston, mathematics instructor and sponsor of the freshman class, will accompany the group.

It is sweet revenge for the freshmen of Texas Technological college today, and at the stroke of 12 last night they were on the warpath in search of their tormenters.

With their good-humored wrath loosed after suppression since early last fall, they took advantage of "freshman day"—the one time in the year when they are "kings for a day."

It was "at their own risk" that sophs, juniors and seniors appeared where the "lowly slime" was prepared to get even for all that passed.

As is customary, the freshman president was in hiding last night as a precaution against his being kidnaped by sophs. Plans were, however, for him to join the group in their annual picnic this morning.

BSU Banquet Is Held At Tech

Approximately 120 persons attended the Baptist Student union's tenth annual banquet at Doak hall at Texas Technological college at 8 o'clock last night.

The entire banquet hall was decorated to represent a pirate's ship. Paul Sparkman as "Captain Smollett" acted as toast master. A treasure chest was the menu and a ship's log the program.

An invocation (bon voyage) was by Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Tech. Other features of the program were: songs (mutiny of the crew) led by Raymond Robinson; welcome to visitors and guests (ship ahoy); a takeoff (scuttling of the ship); pirates' tests by James Litton, Dorothy Mann and Rex Webster; a pirate skit by Gene Rainwater and John Locke; installation of new officers (shifting of crews) by W. P. Clement; advice (charging the new crew) by Rev. C. E. Hereford of the First Baptist church; and benediction (report of the Great Captain) by Dean J. M. Gordon of Tech.

Officers Are Installed

Officers installed were: James Litton, president; Albert Bartel, first vice president; Louise McCrummen, second vice president; Ruth Allen, third vice president; Hoyt Eudaly, secretary; Paul Sparkman, treasurer; Melvin Ratheal, chorister; Imogene Webster, pianist; Dorothy McCuistion, reporter; Jim Roney, B. WPA Projects Are Inspected

Insight into the quantity and quality of work done by WPA labor in and near Lubbock was given to a group of directors and officials of the chamber of commerce who were escorted on a tour of inspection Friday afternoon by officials of the WPA and state highway department.

In a little more than an hour's time, the group traveled over more than a mile of streets in the city paved by WPA workmen, along eight miles of work now in progress toward the paving of the highly important highway 24 west of the city, and visited the reservoir a mile and a half northwest of Lubbock on highway No. 7 toward Littlefield which, engineers believe, may prove the early solution of Lubbock's domestic water problem.

Amazed At Work

End of the journey found members of the party expressing frank amazement as to the extent of the work, and enthusiasm for its quality. Projects actually inspected, they were told, represented only a fraction of that which has been done by the WPA. Time did not permit a more extended itinerary Friday afternoon.

Serving as guides for the party were J. O. Jones, district director for the WPA; W. E. Burke, district supervisor of operations; and George M. Garrett, district engineer for the state highway department. The trip was the first of several of similar nature planned, others to include other groups of business men, possibly from various civic clubs. That Friday and those in the future were explained as having as their objective the demonstration that work now done by WPA labor compares favorably in every way with that performed by any type of workmen on similar projects.

Visit Highway 24

Most important of the street and highway projects visited was that involving improvement of highway 24 which extends directly west from Lubbock through Carlisle and Hurlwood communities to the Hockley county line, a distance of approximately 11 miles.

Laying of a caliche base, along with grade and drainage work, has reached Hurlwood, within 2 7-8 miles of the Hockley line. Garrett explained that the first asphalt surfacing between Lubbock and Carlisle, 5 1-2 miles will be started Monday, and he predicted that all of the highway to the Hockley line will be finished by July 1. He expressed the further belief that the road will be surfaced, with exception of one 14 mile strip, from Lubbock to the New Mexico boundary by the end of the year.

Will Influence Extension

That progress it was explained, will lend impetus to agitation for road improvement in New Mexico so that the extension of road improvement there will tie highway 24 directly into paved highway systems of that state.

The 14-mile stretch for which no improvement provision has been made lies between Levelland and Whiteface, and efforts to secure its designation is in prospect after July 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year, visitors were told.

Start Surfacing Monday

The first asphalt surfacing on which work is to be started Monday, Garrett said, will provide an excellent highway with a life of about two years. Within that time, expectation is that a heavier surfacing can be laid.

Excavation work for the reservoir northwest of the city was revealed as having created a body of water approximately five acres in area. At a spot which for years was no more than a swamp fed by numerous springs. The excavation has involved the removal of huge quantities of earth from a winding bed, the work having progressed from spring to spring. The result is a winding reservoir, comparatively narrow in width but of water depth almost from bank to band of 10 feet. Already stored there are approximately 33,000,000 gallons of crystal clear water fed by an estimated average daily flow of approximately 1,000,000 gallons. As yet, no attempt has been made to tie the flow into the city water system, though that was explained as the eventual plan.

"I have reason to think that there is."

"What do you mean?"

"I know—and never mind how I found out—that there's something in her background which would not make a very pretty story."

Philip raised his eyebrows thoughtfully. "And you think that would finish her with Bob?"

"That depends upon what it is. But there's another angle for us to consider. Uncle John seems to be as much infatuated with her as Bob is, and he wouldn't be the first old man to leave a fortune to his secretary. A nice mess that would leave us in, Philip."

Philip smoked in silence for a moment. Presently he asked, "How do you expect me to go about it?"

Temporary Order In Aluminum Suit Is Extended 10 Days

PITTSBURGH, May 7. (AP)—Federal Judge R. M. Gibson extended a temporary restraining order for 10 days today holding up the government's prosecution of an anti-trust suit against the Aluminum Company of America.

He took under advisement a motion by Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson to quash the temporary order on the grounds that the government could not be restrained without its consent.

Drug Session To Be Invited To City

Lubbock druggists decided at a meeting at the chamber of commerce Friday afternoon to extend a formal invitation Sunday to directors of the West Texas Pharmaceutical association to hold their annual convention here next August.

Directors of the association are to meet in Sweetwater Sunday to decide on a place and an exact time of meeting. A Lubbock delegation, personnel of which will be named today, is to appear before the directors to press the invitation.

Lubbock already has been host to two conventions of the organization, in 1930 and 1934. The expected registration for the annual meeting this year is approximately 200 delegates.
