House passes new Medicare bill for elderly

From staff and wire reports

Local health officials agree that a new Medicare bill passed by the House of Representatives will be advantageous for the elderly, but are unsure on how it will affect their facilities' operation.

The most dramatic expansion of government health care protection for America's elderly since Medicare emerged from the Great Society legislation of the 1960s is headed for the Senate after resounding approval in the House.

The 302-127 margin by which the House passed the catastrophic health bill on Wednesday — well above the two-thirds majority needed to override a possible presidential veto — reflected the bipartisan support for the measure that has emerged as perhaps the most popular domestic issue of 1987.

Although President Reagan has signaled his discontent with some details of the version that sailed through the House, the foundation for the measure was laid by the president himself last February when he proposed that the nation's 31 million Medicare beneficiaries be provided protection against the dread of financially debilitating illness.

A substitute that more closely tracked the Reagan proposal failed on a 242-190, mostly party-line vote that preceded the overwhelming vote for the Democratic version.

The new Medicare bill will be an improvement over existing legislation, but should not have too significant effect on West Texas elderly, according to Doyle Lamb, administrator at Malone and Hogan Clinic.

Lamb said that 34 percent of the clinic's patients use Medicare, so aside from a "slight lessening of the fee structure," the new bill shouldn't affect facility operation.

He added that he thought the new bill's debilitating illness section was a "good idea," and would save people from excessive medical costs due to catastrophic illness.

Charles Wigg, administrator of Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, declined comment until he could further examine the bill, but said that catastrophic insurance is a good idea for anybody, because "those types of illnesses can wipe a person out."

In simplest terms, the bill that was approved tells the elderly that

Health law provides more care, cap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are major provisions of existing Medicare law, the Democratic-sponsored catastrophic health expansion passed by the House on Wednesday and the Republican alternative that was rejected.

Cap on Annual Out-of-pocket Costs — Existing: none. Democrats: $1,798. Republicans: $2,150.

Annual Days of Fully Paid Hospital Care — Existing: 60. Democrats: 365. Republicans: 365.

Maximum Hospital Deductible (in 1988 figures) — Existing: $544. Democrats: $544. Republicans: $1,088.

Cap On Physician and Other Outpatient Services (in 1989 figures) — Existing: none. Democrats: $1,043, with or without hospitalization. Republicans: $2,150 if no hospitalization is required, reduced by amount of any hospital deductible.

Annual Days of Skilled Nursing Care — Existing: 100 with three days prior hospitalization rquired. Democrats: 150 with no prior hospitalization required. Republicans: Same as existing.

Prescription Drug Coverage — Existing: none except for organ transplant patients. Democrats: 80 percent after $500 annual deductible. Republicans: none under Medicare but some expansion of Medicaid to cover more of elderly poor.

Respite Home Care Coverage — Existing: none. Democrats: 80 hours per year to relieve unpaid care provider. Republicans: none.

Outpatient Mental Health Services — Existing: $250 per year with 50 percent copayment. Democrats: $1,000 per year with 50 percent patient copayment. Republicans: same as existing.

Financing (in 1989 dollars) of Additional Coverage — Existing: not applicable. Democrats: $2.10 increase in $23.40 flat monthly fee plus income-related annual supplemental premium on individual beneficiaries with income exceeding $6,000 a year. Republicans: $8.85 increase in flat monthly fee.

Stacy work progressing

Herald* staff report

Work is progressing at the Stacy Dam site, said Joe Pickle, secretary/treasurer for the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Pickle visited the dam site Wednesday afternoon and said Brown and Root contractors have dug a 300-foot-wide by 2,500- foot-long core trench.

When completed the dam will be 10,000 feet long — 1,000 feet of which will be a concrete spillway to control outflow, Pickle said.

About two dozen pieces of heavy equipment including tractors, scrapers and trucks to haul rock are at the dam site, he reported.

Contractors have dug to 30 feet in some areas and are removing dirt that will be replaced with an impervious foundation such as clay.

In about one month, contractors will begin cutting a tunnel and the spillway, Pickle said.

They also will have to divert the river around the spillway, he said.

"They're gradually gaining momentum," Pickle said of the work.

"By late fall, they'll be moving pretty fast."

Brown and Root began moving dirt at the site and clearing brush from the area in June.

Industrial idea needs more study

A $150-million industrial proposal for the Permian Basin that would include Big Spring is no more than an idea at this point and needs further study, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

Wofford received a video tape this month describing solid waste disposal plants that a San Antonio corporation hopes to install in Big Spring, San Angelo and Midland-Odessa.

He said company representatives have contacted him by mail and phone concerning the proposal, but said, "frankly, I do not have a lot of information about them."

Creative Energy Corp. President O.V. Perez said he was prompted to consider the Permian Basin for the project after hearing of the Garden City supercollider commission's efforts to attract industry.

The San Antonio corporation has proposed building three $50-million waste disposal plants designed after French and Japanese units, which use pyrolytic fusion.

Under such a process, garbage is burned at 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit in an oxygen-deficient atmosphere. The plant would be capable of burning 300 tons of garbage daily.

"I don't know if we have sufficient volumes of waste (in Big Spring)," Wofford said.

To his knowledge, there has been no on-site study concerning the possibility of locating such a plant in Big Spring.

"It'll take considerable investigation," Wofford said, adding that he doesn't know of any place that uses the pyrolytic process to dispose of garbage.

Although Wofford seemed critical of the proposal, saying, "These people are just out to sell something," he added "it's certainly something we'll look into."

Wofford said the $50 million needed for the project stuck in his mind when speaking to Perez.

"I don't have any idea where the $50 million would come from," he said.

According to Perez, the plant would be designed, constructed, financed and managed by Creative Energy Corp.

Financing would be repaid by the sale of electric power and steam generated during the process, he said.

Commissioner foresees state gas shortages

Herald* staff report

Americans may be shivering in their homes this winter, according to Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp, who predicts the state will experience massive natural gas shortages this winter.

Sharp was the keynote speaker at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission's semi-annual general membership meeting Wednesday at the Big Spring County Club.

Natural gas producers have little incentive to drill because companies can't get the gas to market, he said.

Sharp explained that most pipelines are full or committed to other suppliers, and some pipeline owners are not honoring their contracts, he said.

In addition, the price for gas is low to remain competitive with oil heating products, and natural gas can't be imported to augment the supply, he said.

Sharp noted that energy bankers are leery of loaning money for gas production, and said the windfall profit tax should be repealed.

The Railroad Commission is looking for incentives for natural gas production that might involve a controversial statewide prorationing of natural gas, Sharp said.

A proration program would require those who are pumping gas to reduce their production to allow additional companies to use the pipelines, he explained.

"People selling gas will be against it, but people not selling will be for it," Sharp said.

Sharp said the commission is operating with $3 million less in appropriations than what it had in December 1986, and will operate with approximately 500 fewer employees during the next fiscal year.

Nevertheless, the commission is becoming more efficient, he said.

"The economic and environmental issues in your communities will be protected, and we'll do it with a whole lot less money," Sharp said.

Sharp referred to a report by Arthur Anderson Co. of Houston, which recommended streamlining the commission.

The commission will consider reducing the number of divisions, and broadening the issues that each division deals with, Sharp said.

He also reported that the commission doesn't have enough funds to plug about 50,000 wells that could start leaking and pollute the water supplies.

It costs $6,000 to plug a well, he said.

During a Board of Directors meeting after Sharp's speech, the board approved a motion to appoint Fannie Woods of Big Spring and James Ramsoure of Midland to the Permian Basin Aging Advisory Council.

Members also recommended financing of West Texas Opportunities Inc.'s plan for service expansion of the section 18 Rural Transportation System. The system now serves Howard, Dawson, Gaines, Martin and Upton counties and would add service to Andrews County, according to the proposal submitted by Texas Opportunities.

The company provides rural transportation services to the general public and targets services to the handicapped and mobility impaired.

Victims face economic hardships

Editor's note: This is the fifth in a series of articles focusing on Big Spring victims of violent crimes. This one highlights economic losses.

Raymond Calderon has spent his savings traveling to hospitals and clinics in Oklahoma City, Lubbock, Abilene and Odessa.

Despite numerous visits, Calderon didn't see any doctors.

That's because Calderon is blind.

The Big Spring resident was blinded by a gunshot blast to the face during an Easter 1986 shooting at Comanche Trail Park.

His life has changed drastically since then.

He no longer works.

"I worked every day for 22 years," Calderon said during a recent interview.

Because of his blindness, he no longer can work as a roughneck, he said. Calderon attends a school for the blind in Austin and comes home each month to visit.

He praised the government-sponsored school that provides room, board and classes to blind people.

"Everyone there treats me well," he said. But he added, "Everyone in Austin thinks something is wrong with this town."

Calderon explained that employees at the school thought recent probation sentences for violent crimes committed in Big Spring were too lenient.

When home, Calderon said he listens to English tapes and practices reading Braille.

He said he often becomes preoccupied, however, with the fateful Easter shooting and the hardships, including financial obligations, that resulted.

Economic hardships are faced by many crime victims, according to Lisa Brooks, assistant director of the Rape Crisis/Victim Services center in Big Spring.

The list of expenses faced by crime victims could include loss of income, funeral costs, legal assistance, medical supplies and counseling.

Victims may not realize the economic ramifications until several months after the crime, she reported.

"Economic loss is the last thing they think about," Brooks said.

She assists violent crime victims in a four-county area apply for aid through the Texas Crime Victims Compensation Act. The other three counties are Borden, Martin and Glasscock.

Thus far, Brooks estimates $75,000 to $100,000 has been awarded to area victims from the compensation fund.

Calderon is one who's expected to receive the maximum amount allowed — $25,000, Brooks said.

Other local crime victims also have felt the financial pinch.

"Enormous responsibilities have become a part of my life," said Eva Rutledge, whose husband, Marc, died in February from a stab wound to the heart.

"My son is completely in my care," she said. In addition, she soon will give birth to another

Clements says 'no choice' but to sign

AUSTIN — A somber Gov. Bill Clements Wednesday, claimed victory in slowing the growth of state spending and said he had no choice but to sign tax bills totaling a record $5.7 billion that have alienated him from many Republicans.

"I reluctantly signed them. I'm certainly not happy about them," Clements said. "They are higher than I would have liked. They're higher than other people, other leaders in the Legislature, would have liked."

Clements said the $38.3 billion 1988-89 state budget, when compared to current state spending, represents an increase of only $900 million, or 2.4 percent for the two-year funding period.

"We have literally stopped the growth in Texas state government and I think our Texas taxpayers will be happy to hear that," Clements said.

His assessment is based on a $37.4 billion current budget, but the state comptroller's office said the current spending level likely will be closer to $37.2 billion when the fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

Clements last year beat Democrat Gov. Mark White largely on the basis of his "no-new-taxes" campaign. He repeatedly criticized White for signing into law $5.5 billion worth of fee and tax increases during the four years White was governor. But Tuesday night, Clements signed into law tax increases in the sales, motor fuel and other taxes that total $5.7 billion.

Meeting with reporters Wednesday, Clements deflected questions about his campaign promises against taxes. When asked what went through his mind as he signed the largest tax package in Texas history, Clements said, "that I was sleepy and I wanted to get to bed."

He then defended the tax package and the $38.3 billion budget.

"We did what we had to do," Clements said. "And I don't think we had any choice in the matter. And I would appreciate reading that in print somewhere or hearing it on televison. I don't know anybody that's happy about what we had to do but it was necessary.

"We had to open the schools," he continued.

C-City school board to plan budget

Herald staff report

COLORADO CITY — The Colorado Independent School District Board of Trustees has announced that it will participate in a workshop Saturday to determine the official budget for the coming school year.

Persons interested in attending the workshop should meet at the Administration Office, 534 E. 11th St., at 8 a.m. Saturday, according to Superintendent Charlie Uselton.

Uselton said that district officials would release a preliminary budget to Board members, and hopes to have a finalized budget prepared by August 20.

He said that with the district facing between $46 and $47 million in tax roll losses, the Board will probably "be cutting back in several areas."

Chamber cancels domino contest

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Annual Domino Tournament, scheduled for July 31 -August 1, has been canceled, according to Liz Taylor, Convention and Visitors Bureau Manager.

"We set the entry deadline for July 20, and needed about 40 teams to make a good tournament," Taylor said. "As of Monday, we had only received 10 entries."

This would have been the eighth year for the tournament, which was also canceled last year because of lack of entrants.

"Apparently, there isn't as much local interest to play in tournaments anymore," Taylor said, adding that the Chamber probably will not schedule a tournament for next year.

Romona Rutledge mentioned other financial burdens as a result of her son's death.

"I think about my grass that needs cutting ... Who will fix my car? Who will do all the hundred little everyday things that Marc did for me?" she asks.

Lea Whitehead of Big Spring reported she was a victim of a robbery about three years ago, which involved a $10,000 loss.

She hasn't forgotten the fateful day, she said.

After the robbery, Whitehead installed an electronic alarm system that costs $45 a month to maintain.

"For a long time I couldn't enter the house without fear that I would encounter someone there," she said.

"You feel like your own personal space has been violated. You think you can go to your home and you're safe, but you're really not."

Whitehead said she especially felt victimized because her mother had died one month before the robbery, and thieves stole her mother's jewelry — something that can never be replaced.

Medicare

their hospital bills will not exceed a set amount per year — $544 in 1988 — no matter how long they have to stay.

It also says their doctor bills will not exceed a certain amount per year — $1,043 in 1989 — no matter how much they are billed unless they choose a doctor who charges more than Medicare considers reasonable. In that event, the individual would remain responsible for the higher charges.

By contrast, existing Medicare law provides full payment for only 59 days of hospitalization a year, after a one-time deductible that is $520 in 1987 dollars.

There is no limit on how much a patient may have to pay for doctor bills. After a $75 deductible, Medicare now pays only 80 percent of doctor bills no matter how high they rise.

Although the president's proposal also set caps, albeit higher ones on out-of-pocket expenses, the predominant response was that it did not go far enough on a variety of fronts.

For example, neither the president's bill nor the one pushed by Democrats would provide long-term nursing home benefits.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee that played a dominant role in crafting the bill, acknowledged that the Democratic version, "while similar in structure ... costs twice as much and helps twice as many people as the president's proposal."

The most controversial addition is a provision that would have Medicare pay 80 percent of prescription drug costs after a $500 annual deductible. Medicare now covers no at-home drugs except for organ transplant patients.

Rostenkowski said he has some problem with the drug benefit himself because of uncertainty about how much it might cost in future years, and there is no such provision in the Senate Finance Committee version.

And Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., lead author of bill that cleared the House on Wednesday, observed afterward that his original version likewise contained no drug benefit.

Asked to assess how that particular benefit might fare in the Senate, Stark told reporters it would "be very difficult to eliminate it. It may well be made less generous."

The drug benefit has been the focus of the administration's opposition to the House plan and a threat issued by White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater on behalf of Reagan that he would veto the measure if it came to him with the exact House wording.

However, Fitzwater held open the possibility of compromise in those remarks Tuesday and, given the overall popularity of the catastrophic health issue, there seemed little inclination for either side to push the matter to a head.

Assessing that broad support for the basic legislation, Rep. Claude Pepper of Florida told his colleagues: "For the first time in my 50-year congressional career, the president, Congress and the people are all standing on the same square."

Rostenkowski emphasized early in the debate that the House bill contains a "new progressive financing mechanism paid through the income tax system."

Proponents, who insist on calling that a "supplemental premium" rather than a tax on the elderly, would result in about 40 percent of them bearing a major share of the costs for all.

The 60 percent of the elderly who do not have enough income to subject them to income taxes under current law would pay only a relatively small increase — $2.10 in the first year — in the flat monthly premium already assessed through a deduction in Social Security checks.

As originally proposed by Reagan, the catastrophic health coverage would be financed solely by an increase in the so-called Part B monthly premium imposed equally on all beneficiaries regardless of financial status.

Shultz says officials kept him in the dark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz testified today that other Reagan administration officials consistently kept him in the dark about key events in the Iran-Contra affair, and that he was "sick to my stomach" when he learned some of the details.

In riveting testimony at nationally televised congressional hearings, Shultz emotionally declared his loyalty to President Reagan, and said he waged a "battle royal" to make sure Reagan learned all the facts as the affair unraveled last fall.

Shultz said the late CIA Director William J. Casey and former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter were "on the other side" in that battle, and accused them of trying to persuade the president to "bail them out" with inaccurate public statements.

He said Casey even bypassed other high-level officials and secretly talked Reagan into permitting further arms-for-hostages discussions with the Iranians after the controversial earlier dealings became public last fall.

In an appearance that produced one dramatic disclosure after another, Shultz said he didn't know that American hostage Benjamin Weir's release from captivity in Lebanon came two days after Israel had sold U.S.-made weapons to Iran in September 1985.

He also said he first learned that the United States had sold weapons directly to Iran when he read about it in news reports published many months after the transaction took place.

Shultz made it clear that he and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger vigorously told Reagan in December 1985 they opposed any plans to sell arms to Iran.

He described one meeting in the president's White House living quarters where Reagan asked for their opinion.

"So he (Weinberger) gave it to him and so did I," Shultz said.

But the secretary said that it wasn't until he told Reagan a year later that Lt. Col. Oliver L. North's private emissaries were discussing obtaining the release of terrorists imprisoned in Kuwait that "I finally felt that the president deeply understands that something is radically wrong here."

Shultz spoke in a somber voice that belied the astonishing nature of his testimony, but he occasionally allowed a wry sense of humor to show through.

"I hardly know Col. North, although like everyone else in America I feel like I know him well by now," Shultz said of the former National Security Council aide who was the star witness at the hearings for a week.

Shultz was heavily criticized last fall for distancing himself from the arms sales when they were disclosed to the public, and there were calls for his resignation.

Bullock says budget balances at long last

AUSTIN (AP) — About 12 hours after Gov. Bill Clements signed a tax bill that exceeded the figure he had vowed to veto, Comptroller Bob Bullock said it was large enough to balance the $38.3 billion 1988-89 state budget.

The $5.7 billion tax package got Clements' signature late Tuesday, shortly after lawmakers approved it, and it got Bullock's crucial certification Wednesday.

In his 1986 campaign, Clements promised Texans no new taxes despite an increasing state deficit caused by declining oil prices. The tax measures he wound up signing added up to the nation's largest-ever state tax increase, according to an economist for the National Conference of State Legislatures.

"In a nutshell, you can say in absolute dollars, if you don't take inflation into account and if you don't take the size of the state into account, it is the biggest," said Steve Gold of Denver.

Clements said he was reluctant to sign the bills.

"I certainly am not happy about them. They are higher than I would have liked. They're higher than other people, other leaders in the Legislature, would have liked. But I also want to quickly add that we did what we had to do."

The budget battle ended Tuesday night after a hotly partisan battle in the Texas House. It took a complicated series of procedural maneuvers to get the plan approved.

"I am persuaded that the citizens of our state will be more than happy to pay an increased three-quarters of a cent on the sales tax. And I'm persuaded that the professionals will pay an increased $110 for their fees with a smile on their face. I don't think we overburdened any particular section of the economy," said Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio and tax-bill sponsor.

The comptroller's staff Wednesday prepared charts showing that even with the tax increase, Texans face a tax burden that is far below the national average.

The increase means Texans' annual tax load will be $53.76 per $1,000 in personal income. That is an increase of $3.36 per year. The national average is $74.11 per year.

Calculated on a per-person basis, Texans will pay $730 a year in state taxes, up from $667 in 1986 and below the national average of $973.

Clements said it adds up to relatively little.

"I think the people of Texas will understand that we had to balance the budget and that we have stopped the growth of government. That's my message this morning," said the Republican governor who had vowed to veto any tax increase above the $2.9 billion that would have been raised by keeping the sales tax at 5¼ percent and the fuels tax at 15 cents per gallon.

Sullivan urges blacks to speak out

HOUSTON — American blacks should speak louder for change in South Africa, said the minister who authored guidelines American companies use to combat that country's apartheid policies.

The Rev. Leon Sullivan also criticized President Reagan for not working hard enough to end apartheid.

"If the president did as much in South Africa as he did for the (Nicaraguan) Contras, we wouldn't have a problem in South Africa," Sullivan said in an emotional speech to the 77th annual conference of the National Urban League Wednesday.

The Sullivan Principles, announced in July 1978, are employment guidelines companies to use to help erode the apartheid social system of segregation through the corporate sector.

The principles, agreed to by more than 100 American companies operating in South Africa, call for equal pay for equal work, non-segregation of workplaces, the right for blacks to unionize and the encouragement of social reform.

4-year-old wounds mother with gun

SAN ANTONIO — A 4-year-old boy playing with a shotgun accidentally shot his mother who was trying to disarm him Wednesday, authorities said.

Veronica Ibarra, 35, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Brooke Army Medical Center after suffering a 10-inch laceration in the right side of her abdomen, hospital spokesman Steve Finley said.

"I shot mommy," Pete Ibarra IV, cried as he spoke with reporters shortly after the shooting.

The boy was playing with a single-barrel .410-gauge shotgun when the gun fired, said Mrs. Ibarra's son, Jesse Ibarra, 19.

The gun belonged to the children's father and had been stored in the parents' bedroom closet, Ibarra said.

Car thief parks next to the owner

SAN ANTONIO — A San Antonio woman said she had given up on getting her stolen car back when it pulled in next to her at a drive-in movie.

Martha Rojas said she bought the 10-year-old yellow and black Pontiac Firebird for $350 Sunday and it was stolen from a downtown hotel on Monday.

Mrs. Rojas and her family went to a drive-in movie the next night.

"I was surprised when the car pulled in during intermission," Mrs. Rojas said. "They had painted the fenders red, but it was my car."

Rojas said she sought the assistance of security guards at the drive-in.

Charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle was Alfredo Fonseca, 29, of San Antonio. Bond was set at $15,000, and Fonseca was being held at Bexar County Jail late Wednesday.

Deaf singers to serenade Pontiff

SAN ANTONIO — A deaf choir from Beaumont has been chosen as one of 15 groups to serenade Pope John Paul II in September, officials said.

Sounds of Silence, a group of about 30 deaf singers from Beaumont, will interpret some of the music for the deaf, said Cecilia Felix, chairwoman of the pre- and post-Mass program.

Opinion

Views of papers across the U.S.

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Says court continuance no surprise

The first term of the Supreme Court under Chief Justice William Rehnquist was a smooth continuation of the court under Chief Justice Warren Burger.

It was marked by a large number of 5-4 decisions, of generally conservative decisions — but also by reaffirmation of several significant basically liberal legal and constitutional ideas. ...

The Supreme Court by its nature is slow to change course. When it does, it usually happens almost imperceptibly. The new-departure decisions, like Brown vs. Board of Education (school desegregation) or Roe vs. Wade (abortion), are relatively few and far between. Reversals of recent decisions are even rarer.

So the continuity of the Rehnquist Court should be no surprise. The addition of a more conservative replacement for Lewis Powell, should Congress consent, might cause the court to come around more to starboard. But by how much — if at all — remains to be seen.

U.S. makes triple play in Angola

A high-ranking Cuban defector, Gen. Rafael del Pino Diaz, is providing some interesting insights into military and political affairs on Fidel Castro's island.

Del Pino, who was deputy commander of Cuban air defenses before he flew himself and his family to Key West May 28 and asked for asylum, is reported to have described mass desertions in the Cuban military, rampant corruption among the island's elite and an economy that is in chaos and shows little hope of recovery.

The general said that Castro's intervention in Angola is highly unpopular among Cubans. ... Furthermore, the general claims that the Angolan war has kept Castro from intervening more forcefully in Nicaragua because he knows that Cubans would not accept a massive infusion of Cuban troops into another country.

If del Pino's assessment is correct, the Reagan administration's support of the Angolan rebels deserves applause. It isn't often that a policy can at once help destabilize a Marxist regime in Africa, keep a large Cuban presence out of a Marxist-led country in Central America and indirectly stir up resentment against "Numero Uno" Castro in his Caribbean homeland.

Admiral's answers raise questions

Two cliches have dominated the debate over the Iran-Contra scandal: "loose cannon" and "smoking gun."

The loose cannon, it seems, is Rear Adm. John Poindexter. And the smoking gun is in Poindexter's hand.

President Reagan's former national security adviser told Congress ... that he had personally authorized the channelling of Iranian arms-sale proceeds to the anti-communist Contra guerrillas of Nicaragua. And he testified that he had deliberately done so without informing the president. ...

Even as Poindexter seemed to settle that issue, though, he raised another one: the possibility that the original sale of arms to Iran was an out-and-out ransom attempt — and that Reagan was aware of that fact. ...

In the minds of many Americans, the worst aspect of this scandal was the attempt to buy off a terrorist nation in blatant violation of the president's own public policy. By raising that issue to the fore, Poindexter raised new questions about Reagan's stewardship even as he answered others.

Cautions officials on pit bull issue

Angered and frightened by a steady stream of horror stories about pit bull attacks, several local communities are enacting or contemplating bans on the controversial dogs.

Although such laws no doubt provide quick relief with a highly charged issue, they are likely to prove a disappointment over the long run.

A common failing of present ordinances is that they frequently don't deal with vicious animals until after an attack. The Humane Society of the United States recommends that animal control officers be given the means to act against potentially dangerous dogs, whatever their breed. ...

In rushing to respond, officials need to be careful that they don't settle on a plan that simply causes careless owners to get rid of their pit bulls and to buy some other menacing dog.

IRS overplayed hand in seizures

The IRS has returned the $70.76 it seized from a 9-year-old girl's savings account. Carmin Fisher, a Portland, Ore., fourth-grader, had deposited pennies she collected over six years. ...

Collins divorce may set precedent

It's a case of life imitating art and fascinating for that reason. But there may be deeper significance.

With women assuming higher paying and more responsible positions in the work force, there are undoubtedly a growing number of wives whose incomes are larger than their husbands'.

That can lead to a situation like this, in which the estranged husband demands support from the wife, rather than vice versa.

If the court rules against Joan Collins, the decision may affect other cases — as well as the way society views husband-wife relations.

Jack Kemp's association with group questionable

By JACK ANDERSON
and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — As Gary Hart learned to his sorrow, presidential candidates are judged by the company they keep. Given the intense scrutiny now accorded to all the 1988 hopefuls, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., the impeccably conservative candidate, may become an unwitting victim of association.

Kemp's anti-communist credentials are beyond reproach. But his ideological zeal has led him to champion a controversial group called the Anti-Bolshevik Bloc of Nations, or ABN. Historians have linked some of its members to pro-Nazi organizations in Europe during World War II.

ABN leaders deny the charge. They claim that Eastern European exiles among its membership fought against Soviet expansion, but not alongside Hitler's troops — a claimed feat of logistics that leaves military historians dubious.

ABN was formed at the conclusion of the war by exiles from a variety of East Bloc nations.

Heedless of possible embarrassment, Kemp has repeatedly voiced his support for the anti-communist group. "You deserve praise and admiration for promoting the cause of liberty for all those struggling under the burden of communist totalitarianism," Kemp wrote in a message read at the ABN's annual meeting in Toronto last November. He has sent similar messages to other ABN meetings.

Kemp may not have known about the background of some of the ABN delegates when he wrote such fulsome praise. One, for example, was Ivan Docheff, a founder of the Anti-Bolshevik Bloc of Nations, who was the wartime leader of the anti-communit Bulgarian National Legion.

The legion has been described as "fascist" by the Bulgarian National Committee, an exile group based in Washington.

Docheff also published a newspaper during the war that featured a Nazi swastika on its masthead. He was sentenced to death in absentia by the postwar communist Bulgarian government for alleged pro-Hitler activities.

Jack Anderson

Docheff says he was a member of Bulgaria's anti-communist resistance, never a Nazi. "We resisted communist infiltration into our country," Docheff told Canadian journalist Howard Goldenthal last November.

According to Docheff, Bulgaria was never allied with Hitler in World War II, but merely allowed German troops to march through on their way to fight the Soviets in neighboring Romania. However, the fact is that Bulgaria declared war on Britain and the United States (though not the Soviet Union).

Docheff, who now lives in New York, said he has recently concentrated on helping elect Republicans to office. He has served on the GOP's ethnic-oriented Heritage Council, he said.

The Council's executive director, Radi Slavoff, said that Docheff had not been on the council in "many years" and was not "a positive element."

Other ABN founders, including its late chairman, Yaroslav Stetsko, have been accused of collaboration with the Nazis against the Soviets in the Ukraine. Historian Charles Allen, a specialist in Nazi collaborators, and others, have linked Stetsko and several additional Ukrainian ABN founders to the Nazis.

The Ukrainian Congress Committee, an exile group affiliated with various anti-communist organizations here, vehemently denies that exiles like Stetsko had any Nazi connection. The Congress claims that Hitler actually had Ukrainian nationalists imprisoned and that the SS secretly ordered their liquidation.

Upon Stetsko's death, Kemp paid a special tribute to him in the Congressional Record. A Kemp aide, Mary Brunette, told our associate Corky Johnson that the congressman supports the ABN goal of liberation from Soviet domination, but "certainly does not support anything that is anti-Semitic."

In 1984, Kemp's political organization, Campaign for Prosperity, received an illegal $1,000 donation from a Canadian, Stephen B. Roman, according to Federal Election Commission records. Rokman heads the Slovak World Congress, which was founded by former officials of the Nazi puppet state of Slovakia.

Campaign contributions from non-U.S. citizens are illegal. A Kemp campaign official said acceptance of the Roman contribution was an error, and that the money was returned after our initial inquiry.

Roman was in Canada during the wartime rule of Slovakia by Father Joseph Tiso, who was executed in 1947 by the Czechoslovak government as a war criminal.

In 1945, Roman coauthored a petition criticizing the arrest of Tiso and other Slovakian officials, saying they had acted under "duress and brute German occupational force." Roman did not return repeated telephone calls.

Brave deeds are required in gulf war

"They should know that we will set these flags on fire." — Iranian religious leader Mahdi Karrubi on U.S. reflagging of Kuwaiti ships.

"I don't think Iran will attack, but I don't know for sure. I have to take the threat extremely seriously." — Capt. William Mathis, commanding officer of USS Fox, one of the escort ships for the re-flagged tankers.

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

The debate over whether the U.S. should escort ships in the Persian Gulf has become moot.

As you read this, American ships of Destroyer Squadron 14 are situated between two Kuwaiti oil tankers and the coastline of Iran, a country that regards the U.S. as "the great Satan."

We provide this service because, since May 1981, 333 ships have been attacked in the gulf — most of them by Iran. Most of the free world's supply of oil passes through this area, making it extremely vital to our national interest.

President Reagan decided that, in order to guarantee access to this region, Kuwaiti oil tankers will fly the American flag, making them eligible for U.S. protection.

What Reagan has done is drawn a line across the Persian Gulf, which he has dared Iran to cross.

Whether we should place servicemen at risk in this unstable region is now academic, but the question remains: Are we doing the correct thing?

There is doubt among Washington officials as to the need for the U.S. military to assist Kuwait. Many see this as a case of the President needlessly agitating a delicate situation, and there always will be those opposed to sending U.S. troops into possible conflict.

There is, however, an overriding reason for U.S. — and other nations' — presence in the Gulf.

It is the need to isolate Iran from the civilized world.

Iran — under the fanatical regime of the Ayatollah Khomeini — has done more to destabilize affairs in the Middle East than any other country. If it can find any way to advance its queer beliefs, it does.

For the past several years — beginning with the taking of 52 American hostages in 1979 — Iran has supported terrorist acts to an extent that others such as Libya's Moammar Qaddafi have only dreamed of.

Iran's actions have become so disquieting to other nations in the region that even Syria — long a foe of Israel and the U.S. — is quietly reopening relations with Iraq, Khomeini's bitter enemy.

America and its allies are finally making a concerted effort to limit Iran's effectiveness at destabilization.

The U.S. is not the only country providing Gulf escort service. Britain and France both are providing protection for their ships in the region. Moderate Arab states, such as Saudi Arabia, are quietly helping American efforts.

Our allies and enemies alike are slowly realizing that madmen such as Khomeini cannot continue their actions with impunity; that they must be kept at arm's length from the world community.

The unfortunate part of this episode is that American seamen are on the firing line of our policy, thousands of miles from home and within range of hostile guns.

Those sailors realize, however, that they are protecting a vital interest with their actions, and are confident in their ability to do so.

"If they (Iran) were to launch a missile (at U.S. ships), that would probably be the last one," Capt. David Yonkers, commodore of the destroyer squadron, said in describing the Navy's attitude toward a possible attack.

Brave words. But let us remember that words alone will not deter the Madman Across the Water — only brave deeds.

So let us support the President's policy in the area — but also let us pray for the young men we have put in harm's way.

Infection dissipates

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — The source of an outbreak of a rare bacterial infection that killed three people in 10 days remains unknown, but the disease appears to be running its course, officials said.

State health officials confirmed a new case of hemolytic uremic syndrome Wednesday at a Salt Lake County group home where two of the fatal cases occurred, but that was the first new case since July 17.

The other fatal victim of HUS, which ultimately causes kidney failure, lived at the Utah State Training School. Both institutions are for the mentally handicapped.

Owner cited in blast

NEW YORK — The owner of a plumbing supply company was cited for illegally storing highly volatile fuels that exploded, killing four people and injuring 11 others, the city buildings commissioner said today.

"It clearly involved the illegal storage of propane and acetylene," Charles M. Smith Jr. said of the explosion in Brooklyn Tuesday that leveled three buildings, including one housing the 18th Avenue Plumbing Supply Co.

A fourth building was severely damaged and would be demolished by Friday, Smith said.

AIDS rules planned

WASHINGTON — Hospitals and other institutions will have to take steps to protect their health-care workers from AIDS under planned federal guidelines that will have the force of law, congressional sources say.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Labor Department officials were announcing the new guidelines today when they appear before a congressional subcommittee chaired by Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif.

Lantos' Government Operations subcommittee on employment and housing was scheduled to hear from John A. Pendergrass, assistant Labor secretary for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

North support booms

WASHINGTON — More than $1 million in public contributions have poured in to the Oliver North Legal Assistance Fund since the fired White House aide took the witness chair at the televised Iran-Contra hearings, fund officials say.

"It's just been an unbelieveable response," said Phil Huff, one of the three fund trustees, all of whom are former classmates of North's at the U.S. Naval Academy.

"When Ollie began his testimony, we had $101,000 on hand," Huff said Wednesday, but contributions now have topped $1.276 million, with literally bags of mail still unopened.

"We've gained $250,000 the last two days in a row," Huff said. "We had 75,000 pieces of mail just after the first day of testimony. The bank that's handling the mail-opening and keeping track of the money had to hire 10 additional people to deal with the volume over the past seven days."

91-year-old nears Mount Fuji top

MOUNT FUJI, Japan (AP) — A 91-year-old American neared the summit of Mount Fuji today and said she was "ready for the top" of the 12,385-foot dormant volcano despite stiff limbs, a strong wind and treacherous footing.

Hulda Crooks of Loma Linda, Calif., who is trying to become the oldest woman to climb Japan's tallest peak, will make her assault on the summit before dawn. She was scheduled to reach the top in time for Friday's sunrise (mid-afternoon today EDT).

"I feel fine," she said in an interview at a rest hut about 1,056 feet from the top as a chill wind whistled outside. "I had an hour nap — I'm ready for the top."

Bundled in a down jacket and heavy red socks, she added with a smile, "I'm thankful I can do it."

Each year, dozens of elderly Japanese climb the sacred mountain 60 miles southwest of Tokyo. Last year, 17 Japanese ages 90 and over made it to the top, according to officials at a summit shrine where the elderly record their feat.

Mrs. Crooks, who grew up in Canada, began climbing mountains in her 40s. Her late husband, a doctor, advised her to climb to regain her health. Since she was 66 years old, she has climbed 97 mountains, she said, including 86 of the Sierra Nevada peaks higher than 4,950 feet.

A vegetarian, she credits her strength to a non-smoking, non-drinking diet.

"If you do hard things, it builds character," Mrs. Crooks said.

Hiking with a walking stick, Mrs. Crooks made her way up a steep path of crumbling volcanic rock to her last rest stop.

"It's different from any mountain I've climbed," she said. "The footing is more difficult and is steeper" than the 14,495-foot Mount Whitney. "The wind was blowing hard, too."

The oldest woman to scale Mount Fuji was Mine Yajima of Kanagawa prefecture, who did it at the age of 90 in 1985, according to Dentsu Inc., the Japanese advertising agency that invited Mrs. Crooks to make the climb.

Keiichi Igarashi of Fukushima prefecture holds the men's record, having climbed the mountain last summer at the age of 99. He plans to repeat his feat at age 100 next month.

Upon hearing of Mrs. Crooks' attempt on Fuji, Igarashi said his advice to her was to go slowly, according to Igarashi's son, Toshikazu.

Mrs. Crooks, who is nicknamed "Grandma Whitney" for her 22 conquests of Mount Whitney in California, the tallest peak in the 48 contiguous United States, started up the narrow trail to Fuji's summit on Wednesday from the fifth station.

The fifth of eight stations marking the trail to the summit is located at a halfway point from the foot of the mountain and is where most climbers begin.

She spent the night on Japanese bedding on the floor of the primitive rest hut.

On Thursday, 380 employees of Dentsu began their ascent behind her on their 60th annual company climb. At a rest stop, "obachama," Japanese for "grandma," was on most of their lips.

Each year tens of thousands of Japanese climb the mountain. The trails are open year round but most people go during the official climbing season from July 1 to Aug. 31 and try to see the sunrise from the top.

The 91-year-old sure-footed lady from Loma Linda, Calif., reached the station for the final rest before resuming the climb to the 12,388-foot peak early Friday.

Soviets give proposal

GENEVA — The Soviet Union today formally presented a proposal for the superpowers to eliminate all their medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles worldwide and urged Washington to remove "artificial obstacles" to agreement.

The superpower delegations on intermediate-range nuclear forces met for one hour at the Soviet diplomatic mission. The Soviet delegation was headed by Alexei Obukhov and the U.S. delegation was led by Maynard Glitman.

Gorbachev backs plan

MOSCOW — The Kremlin's chief arms negotiator said today a Soviet proposal for a global ban on medium- and shorter-range nuclear missiles could bring an arms accord within 60 days and a superpower summit this year.

The Soviets reiterated, however, that any agreement on the missiles would require the destruction of U.S. warheads earmarked for use on West German shorter-range Pershing 1A missiles.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, in comments reported Wednesday, advocated publicly for the first time the "global double zero" arms control option, offering to scrap Soviet intermediate-range missiles in Asia if the United States agrees not to deploy 100 medium-range warheads in Alaska.

Storm death toll rises

SEOUL, South Korea — Record rains from the second major storm in a week caused floods and landslides that killed at least 92 people, officials said Thursday. They reported 31 missing, 170 injured and 60,000 homeless.

Government spokesmen said they expected the casualty figures to rise. Thousands of army reservists and relief workers dug through debris for the dead and injured in flood-stricken central South Korea.

Typhoon Thelma hit South Korea on July 15-16, killing 123 people and leaving 212 missing.

Singer dies at funeral

HELSINKI, Finland — Hugh Bryant, baritone for the jazz and pop vocal group The Delta Rhythm Boys, collapsed and died while singing a tribute at the funeral of the group's founder.

Bryant, 58, was singing the gospel hymn "He Will Understand and Say Well Done" Wednesday in homage to Lee Gaines, who died of cancer on July 15 at the age of 73. Bryant, who had lived in Finland for the past 15 years, apparently suffered a heart attack.

The Delta Rhythm Boys were best known in the 1940s and 1950s, when they recorded with such jazz greats as Ella Fitzgerald, Count Basie, Jimmy Lunceford, Charlie Barnet, Ruth Brown and Les Paul.

The group members began yearly tours of Europe in 1940 and moved to Europe in the mid-1950s, where they continued to perform.

Forget the road — they're playing for Big Spring

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Many a country and rock 'n' roll singer has sung about the miseries of the road. They sing sorrowfully about things like loneliness, bad gigs and fast food.

Denny McCullough and Shelton Castle, both Big Spring natives, know all about the on-the-road blues. That's why they did something about it.

"I've worked on the road about 18 years, and I've had enough of that," said McCullough, a crack steel guitar player.

When they'd had enough, McCullough and Castle bought The Brass Nail, on Hwy. 87 just south of town. They changed the name of their band from "Westwind" to "The Heart of Texas Band," and as the house band they provide some of the very finest sounds in Big Spring.

"We bought it so we wouldn't have to put up with all the club owners — they make promises they can't keep. And now we don't have to put up with that.

"We took a chance on buying the club instead of working for somebody else all the time," McCullough explained.

"It's more security as far as working," said Castle. "At least we know where we're going to play."

"We've all played all over the United States, and this is one of the best places we've ever played," he added with a laugh.

Castle said having a place to play has brought the band peace of mind, not to mention the opportunity to improve the members' music.

"Now we're tight enough to record; and we don't have to worry about if we're going to work next week and be able to feed our kids."

"We're working as a unit right now," added McCullough. "I mean it's solid."

The band plays every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and they are a two-stepper's dream. Although McCullough laughingly says the band plays "everything from Bob Wills to Bon Jovi," their roots lie closer to the Bob Wills end of the scale.

"Bob Wills started a tradition with country swing, and that's what we're trying to do, though it's not all we do," he says.

On the nights they play, the nightclub's huge dance floor stays packed with revelers doing their variations of the two-step and the Cotton Eyed Joe.

Meanwhile, the band's members concentrate on their music. They don't flop around on stage in the Bon Jovi tradition, but stand still, concentrating on their instruments.

The band members are: McCullough on steel guitar; Castle on lead guitar; Bee Haley on rhythm guitar and vocals; J.R. Hayes on bass and vocal; and Calvin Carnes on drums and vocals. Kevin Sneed, from Big Spring, is the sound man.

McCullough had played with Hayes at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, and he "imported" him and Carnes specifically to play in the band. Hayes is from Cleveland, Tenn., and Carnes is from Summerville, Ga. Haley's addition, which happened before that of Hayes and Carnes, was a piece of luck.

"The first night we started playing Bee came in and wanted to sit in," Castle remembers. Haley, from a small town in north Alabama, had moved here with a friend to work in the oil fields.

He had played in bands before, including a stint in Los Angeles, and quickly showed McCullough and Castle that he had the right stuff.

"I wouldn't do anything else," Haley says. "I don't know about the rest of 'em."

"You do know about us," interjected McCullough with a laugh.

"It's a way of life with us," continued Haley. "It's what we do for a living. I've been playing professionally since I was 13. All of us have been."

"I've been playing before I could even get my hand over the guitar," Hayes said.

Now that the band members have gotten a good feel for each other and are beginning to jell, they've got an eye on the recording studio. Castle said the band has plans in the "immediate future" to record three of their own songs at a Lubbockstudio.

Though they do have recording ambitions, McCullough insists the band is doing what it was meant to do.

"This is an association of people to do exactly what we do — entertain Big Spring.

"And we want to be sure to thank all of Big Spring for helping us. We couldn't have done it without their support," he said, happy to say goodbye to the miseries of the road.

It's birthday time for 'Snow White' and her dwarfs

Editor's note: Walt Disney's animated classic "Snow White" is celebrating its 50th anniversary, and it has aged well. You can see for yourself, while it shows at the Ritz Theatre.

By ALISHA GOLDMAN
Copy Editor

Walt Disney's rendition of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs is one film we never outgrow.

The story probably is as old as evil queens and beautiful princesses, but Disney made it a part of our culture in a way that no century before had ever known.

The film was the first, animated full-length film ever produced. The genius and skill of it are obvious throughout.

A watcher recoils into his seat as he feels the mysterious and evil power of the queen who worships herself. Truly vanity never was displayed so ominously.

The innocent Snow White is the epitomy of good as the creatures of nature become her faithful friends.

Sitting in the theater to watch the film once more, I couldn't help but compare it to another movie I had seen recently.

The theme was still good versus evil, but a supernatural beast was hunted in a jungle by an almost superhuman man. Perhaps it is fundamentally the same story, but the feelings evoked in Snow White are drastically different.

I relate much better to Snow White and the seven dwarfs.

She displays dreams and joys, fear and courage, and even sadness. Whether she is scrubbing the steps of the palace, or sweeping a cottage in the forest, she sings and dreams of her prince who will someday come — I can relate to that!

The seven dwarfs each represent various emotions we all know well — including Bashful, Sleepy, Happy, Sneezy, Doc's stuttering leadership and, of course, Grumpy. Who hasn't displayed the classic pessimistic attitude when everyone else is delighted?

Finally, there's Dopey. In a recent PBS documentary on famous Disney characters, it was said they couldn't find a voice that fit him, so he remained mute forever.

Yet he expresses himself in a magnificent way, from his charades-type description of the "monster" in the bedroom (who turns out to be Snow White), or the way he hiccups when he swallows a bar of soap.

Fifty years ago, these little men first captured the hearts of Depression-era movie-goers.

Confounding the skeptics who said no one would want to sit through a full-length cartoon, the film grossed more than $4 million in its first year — making it the No. 1 film of 1938.

Fifty years later, it's still capturing the hearts of movie-goers of all ages.

As adults, we smile as the dwarfs work, surrounded by gigantic diamonds, yet they seem content with just having work to be done. The diamonds are stored carefully and locked away — but the key is hung outside the door.

The dwarfs work hard, but know how to play, too.

The princess gives them an excuse to have a session of polka music and yodeling, with a few square dance steps. Their entertainment delights their guest, and the audience as well.

We feel as if we are there in the safe cottage, clapping our hands to the calliope music.

In reality, the security of the cottage is fragile. The evil queen succeeds in her malevolent plot to seduce the princess with a poisonous apple. We sit on the edge of our seat, hoping that the dwarfs will arrive in time to save her.

But Snow White has fallen into a sleepless death by the time they arrive.

Tears are in our eyes as they lay her in a glass coffin in the woods. The beautiful setting inspires a sigh. Perhaps it strikes a chord of a wish for immortality as we see her youth and beauty preserved even in death.

The magic of Disney has won us, heart and soul. Even adults find it easy to believe it is possible.

With spring, love appears in the form of the inevitable handsome prince on his white horse. He cannot resist giving a kiss to the maiden who has his heart, though she be dead. As we know, the kiss breaks the spell and they ride off into the sunset.

I wiped a few tears out of my eyes as I arose to leave the theater. The fulfillment of a dream of love and happiness are marvelous.

Also leaving the theater, a young viewer gave his short and simple review, apparently after his first viewing of the classic.

"That was a good show!," he said.

Indeed, it is.

Happy 50th birthday, Snow White and the Seven dwarfs.

Sledge hammers Jim Parker

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Bryan Sledge saved his best for last. As a result of that the Odessa Jim Parker All-Stars are out of the District III Little League Tournament.

Sledge pop a game winning, two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth inning to propell the Big Spring National League All-Stars to a 4-2 win over Jim Parker Wednesday night at the American League park. Sledge's hit knocked the defending champions out of the running for another District III title.

The National League second baseman's blast seemed to come just in the knick of time. At the time it looked like the Jim Parker All-Stars had turned the momentum factor around.

Behind the pitching of Wes Hughes, the Nationals took a 2-1 lead in the third and had kept it until Jim Parker's final bat in the top of the sixth.

Hughes, who fired a four-hitter, gave up two hits in the sixth. The costly one was a solo homer by Jim Parker center fielder Dusty Dennis, tying the game at 2-2. The other was a single by Justin Simpson. But he was left stranded when Hughes fanned Byron Sims.

Then it was time for Sledge to 'strut his stuff' at the plate.

Jim Parker pitcher Eric Louvin got Dennis Paulette to pop up to the catcher for the first out in the bottom of the sixth. Then Louvin walked leadoff batter Tony Taylor, bringing Sledge to the plate.

In his previous three trips to bat, Sledge had walked once and fanned twice. After working the count full, Sledge slapped Louvin's offering just over the right field fence, giving the Nationals their two-run margin of victory.

Sledge also did Jim Parker in with his glove. The smooth second sacker handled everthing hit his way, including taking away a couple of Jim Parker hits.

One time he went deep to his left to field a grounder, getting the lead runner at second. Another time he scooped a hot grounder that went through the pitcher's box, just behind second base, nailing the runner out at first. The Nationals also had key defensive plays from left fielder Ross Roberts and right fielder Paulette. Paulette turned a double play when he caught a fly, and gunned a runner down at the plate, trying to tag from third.

After a scorless first inning, Jim Parker scratched in the second. Dennis singled up the middle, and eventually scored on a single by Simpson.

The Nationals took a 2-1 lead when they answered with two runs in the third. Danny Wilson led off the inning with a bloop single to right field. Hughes walked and Klint Kemper's grounder forced Wilson at third.

With runners on first and second, first baseman David Park singled up the middle, scoring Hughes from second and tying the score.

Roberts walked, loading up the bases for Paulette. Paulette hit a slow roller down the third base line. The charging third baseman tried to get Kemper at home, but his throw hit Kemper in the head, and the Nationals led 2-1.

From then on the pitchers controlled the Local trapshooter Kelly Rogers just keeps on winning.

Last weekend Rogers participated in the Southwestern Zone Trapshooting Championships at Alamogordo, N.M. After all the events were finished, Rogers won the high overall AA at the club with a 679x700 score.

Approximately 50 competitors attended the three-day shoot at the Roadrunner Trap Club.

This weekend Rogers will be competing in the 24th Annual Topperwein Classic in San Antonio.

Big Spring High School senior Brian Mayfield competed in the Basketball Congress International Invitational Basketball Tournament in Houston this past weekend.

Mayfield, a 6-5 forward, played with the Lubbock Dr. Pepper Blue, one of 64 teams entered from all over the state.

All the players on the team were from Lubbock except Mayfield, Cedric Mason of Lamesa, one player from Floydada and two from Amarillo.

According to Big Spring basketball coach Boyce Paxton, teams were comprised of invitation-only players. The tourney is for the sole purpose of showcasing top Texas players with exceptional ability. Paxton said numerous college scouts were on hand for the action.

Mayfield and Dr. Pepper Blue put on a show for the crowd, winning six games on their way to the championship.

In their first game, Dr. Pepper Blue defeated Del Rio by 20 points. Mayfield scored 14 points in the contest. Mayfield had a good rebounding game in their eight point win over Corpus Christi in the second game.

Dr. Pepper Blue then defeated a Houston team by 11, San Antonio, 57-56, Paducah, 56-50 and Houston Po' Folks 55-33 in the championship game.

Capping off a great tournament, Mayfield was named to the BCI All-Tournament team.

This weekend Mayfied will play in a BCI tournament in Phoenix, Ariz. The tournament will field top teams from all over the United States.

Beach ball?

Rookie Chris Barber, a six-foot, 183-pound safety from North Carolina A&T, works out with the medicine ball at the Dallas Cowboys training camp in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Ditka lays down law to 'Fridge

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears Coach Mike Ditka says defensive tackle William "The Refrigerator" Perry could be the best at his position, but if he doesn't lose weight he won't even get into training camp.

"I'm not going to mess around with Perry anymore," Ditka said.

"If his weight is under 325, he'll be the best defensive tackle in football," Ditka said.

But he added, "You can book this. If his weight is not under 325, he will not be at Platteville," Wis., the team's pre-season training site.

"He can go back to South Carolina and do whatever ... he wants to do, and we will go on without him," Ditka said.

He said he hasn't been able to monitor Perry's conditioning program because the former Clemson player is building a home in Aiken, S.C.

"We called him the other day. Supposedly, he weighs 325. Heh, who knows? He's running twice a day — from the refrigerator to the bathroom," Ditka said.

"To be No. 1, you have to reach deep down in the gutsack and make it hurt. His rear should drag off the field daily. And anyone who gets in his way at training camp, he ought to knock them down."

Perry, who has forfeited thousands of dollars in bonuses for failing to lose weight, has a contract clause that nets him $40,000 for working out three times a week at the Bears' headquarters in Lake Forest.

Americans

One win away from championship

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

John Kennedy made the catch, Patrick Martinez worked the trickery, Jeromaine Gonzales made the hit and Jeremy Edens took care of the pitching as the American League All-Stars downed Odessa Salinas 6-2 to take the driver's seat in the District III Little League All-Star Tournament.

TONIGHT'S GAME
Big Spring Nationals vs. Lamesa, 8 p.m., National League park.

By winning Wednesday night's winners' bracket final, the Americans automatically advanced into Saturday night's championship game at National League Park. Should they win then, the tournament is over; should they lose, they'll play a winner-take-all battle Monday night.

Neither team threatened in the first, but the visitors loaded the bases with two outs in the second. Edens, relying almost exclusively on his sidearm curve, got Elizando Arellano to ground out to third to end the Odessa scoring bid.

In the second, Edens helped his cause by knocking a two-out double to the center field fence. Todd Parrish followed with a single to center that scored Edens, and the Americans led 1-0 after two.

Edens allowed a single by Joe Molina in the third, but struck out the other three batters to head into the fourth unscathed.

Martinez led off the bottom half of the third with a smash past the shortstop for a single, and two outs later, Gonzales came to bat.

Gonzales was intentionally walked all three times he came to bat Monday night against the National League stars, and he showed why last night. He crushed the ball high to left field, and a disbelieving crowd followed the ball as it cleared the fence, the light posts, the cars and the road behind the cars. The mammoth homer went at least 260 feet. Most importantly, the Americans led 3-0.

Edens struck out his seventh batter and got help on a good play by second baseman Tom Blankenship to keep his shutout going through four.

Leading off the bottom half of the fourth, Edens hit his second double in two trips to the plate. Parrish, as he did in the second, brought Edens home with a smash to center field.

Clark hits home run for deceased coach

By The Associated Press

After Jack Clark hit a two-run homer in the ninth inning to beat Los Angeles, he wasn't thinking about winning or losing.

Before Wednesday night's game, former major league pitcher Don McMahon, who served as a special assignment scout for the Dodgers for the past two years, died of a heart attack. He was 57.

McMahon suffered the heart attack at about 4:45 p.m., PDT — nearly three hours before the game began — while pitching batting practice. He was pronounced dead 90 minutes later at Queen of Angels Hospital.

The crowd of 33,665 at Dodger Stadium observed a moment of silence as a tribute to McMahon shortly before the game's first pitch and Clark dedicated his homer that gave St. Louis a 3-1 victory over Los Angeles to McMahon.

"It was tough under the circumstances, I played with him (McMahon) for six years," Clark said. "He was a good man and a friend. It's a tough situation. I want to dedicate the home run to him and his family."

Clark played for San Francisco from 1977 to 1984 when McMahon was the Giants' pitching coach.

Cubs 6, Padres 3

It was a night of milestones for Chicago. Rick Sutcliffe won the 100th game of his career and Andre Dawson hit his 250th lifetime homer as the Cubs beat host San Diego.

Astros 7, Expos 0

Mike Scott pitched a four-hitter, struck out 10 and drove in a run as Houston defeated Montreal at Olympic Stadium.

Scott, 11-6, increased his major league-leading strikeout total to 165 en route to his third shutout and fifth complete game.

"I was real happy with the way I pitched tonight," said Scott, who felt he had not been effective since a start in San Diego on June 25. "The velocity on my fastball was there, and I had decent control on my split-fingered fastball.

On May 8 at Montreal, Scott beat the Expos with a two-hitter.

Bill Doran had three hits, including a two-run homer for Houston.

Phillies 5, Reds 3

Juan Samuel hit his 19th home run, tying his career high, and drove in two runs as Philadelphia beat visiting Cincinnati.

Shane Rawley, 12-5, pitched 6 1-3 innings, allowing three runs for his fourth straight victory. Kent Tekulve and Steve Bedrosian relieved with Bedrosian earning his league-leading 27th save.

Mets 4, Braves 3

Lee Mazzilli's pinch RBI single capped a four-run sixth inning as New York rallied to beat Atlanta at Shea Stadium.

Zane Smith, 8-6, allowed just one hit over the first five innings and held a 3-0 lead. But after Tim Teufel and Keith Hernandez opened the inning with base hits, Darryl Strawberry, Barry Lyons and Rafael Santana had RBI singles to tie the score.

Pirates 4, Giants 0

Rick Reuschel pitched a five-hitter for his 23rd career shutout as Pittsburgh took two of three games at Candlestick Park.

Americans —

Parrish slid safely into third just after Edens slid safely into home.

Ryan Hamby, in his first at-bat, followed with a sacrifice fly deep to right-center. Parrish tagged and scored easily. With the bases cleared and one out, Raymond Ortega started another rally with a single up the middle.

Ortega would score this run on his own. He stole second with Martinez at the plate, and when Martinez hit a grounder to short, Ortega waited then raced to third. The throw went over the first baseman's head, and Ortega scampered home for the third and last run of the inning. The Americans led 6-0 after four, and Edens looked strong.

The Big Spring team flirted with danger in the fifth, and were it not for Kennedy's catch and Martinez's trickery, they would have been in real trouble.

Arrellano led off with a walk, and Jose Estrada followed with an easy grounder to short. Martinez easily fielded the grounder and appeared to have a chance at a double play, but he misfired to Blankenship at second. It was the second and last error of the night for the Americans, but it almost cost them.

With men on first and second and nobody out, Joe Molina popped out, giving the Americans a little breathing room. Donny Carrillo followed with a walk, loading the bases. Ryan Roman smashed a single to left, scoring Arrellano.

With the bases still loaded and one away, Jeremy Galinda hit the ball hard to right center for what had the looks of a two-run double. Kennedy, charging from his spot in center field, dove for the ball and made the grab, almost falling to the turf.

Estrada tagged and scored as Kennedy relayed the ball to Martinez. The sneaky Martinez pumped the ball to first, pulling Carrillo off the bag. When Martinez turned around with the ball, Carrillo was too far gone, and the American shortstop tagged him running to third. It was a one run, double play, and the Odessa team's one and only threat was over.

Edens went the distance, finishing off the Odessa team three-up, three-down in the sixth. He finished with eight strike outs and three walks.

The Americans got their six runs on eight hits and two Odessa errors. They left just three men on. Odessa scored two on four singles and two American errors. They left six on.

LAMESA 3, MIDLAND MID-CITY 2

Lamesa remained alive in the tournament by scoring two runs in the fourth inning to notch the win.

With the game tied 2-2, Lamesa won the game when Nate Scott walked. Scott scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Marty Martinez.

Lewis Marcias was the winning pitcher for Lamesa. He fanned seven. Tony Galan took the loss for Mid-City, he also fanned seven. Galan also hit a two-run homer for Mid-City's only run.

Athletics cage Tigers

By The Associated Press

The Oakland Athletics took a night off from batting practice, but once the game started it was another story.

"Today, we came out with a hungry attitude and everybody hit the ball," said Mark McGwire, who had four hits Wednesday night, including his major league-leading 36th home run. He led the Athletics to a 10-1 rout of the Detroit Tigers.

Mariners 2, Brewers 1

Mark Langston pitched a four-hitter and Rey Quinones singled in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to lead Seattle over Milwaukee.

Langston, 11-9, struck out seven to increase his American League-leading total to 159.

Ken Phelps began the seventh with a walk off Bill Wegman, 8-9. Jim Presley's single moved Phelps to second and pinch-runner John Moses scored when Quinones dropped a single in front of right fielder Glenn Braggs.

Wegman went all the way, allowing eight hits. He struck out one and walked one.

Angels 6, Red Sox 5

Brian Downing and George Hendrick knocked in two runs apiece as California built a five-run lead and withstood a comeback by Boston.

Winner Mike Witt, 12-6, gave up Jim Rice's 10th homer leading off the sixth, then was shelled in a three-run seventh.

DeWayne Buice replaced Witt and gave up an RBI single to Rice and a run-scoring double to Dwight Evans before ending the rally. Greg Minton, the Angels' fourth pitcher, recorded his eighth save after giving up Rice's RBI single in the ninth.

Twins 3, Yankees 1

Kent Hrbek and Kirby Puckett homered and Frank Viola pitched four-hit ball over eight innings as Minnesota defeated New York in a matchup of division leaders.

Viola, 10-6, struck out six and walked two. He is now 8-1 in his last 12 starts with a 1.85 earned run average.

Orioles 10, White Sox 5

Larry Sheets hit a pair of two-run singles and Ken Gerhart hit two solo homers as Baltimore beat Chicago for the Oriles' eighth straight victory.

Harold Baines hit his 155th career homer to set a White Sox record. Baines, who also extended his hitting streak to 17 games, had been tied for the club home run mark with Bill Melton, a Chicago third baseman from 1968 to 1975.

John Habyan, 2-3, relieved starter Mike Boddicker in the third inning and pitched 6 2-3 scoreless innings for the victory, retiring the last 19 batters in a row. Coming into Wednesday night's game, Habyan had a 6.84 ERA.

Royals 5, Indians 1

Jim Eisenreich, continuing his comeback against a rare nervous disorder, drove in two runs to pace Kansas City over Cleveland.

Frank White and Bo Jackson hit solo homers for the Royals.

Rangers 5, Blue Jays 3

Texas broke an eighth-inning tie with two runs on five walks, including two with the bases loaded by reliever Mark Eichorn, to beat Toronto.

Reliever Jeff Russell, 3-1, earned the victory with 1 1-3 scoreless innings in relief of starter Bobby Witt. Dale Mohorcic got the last two outs for his 13th save.

The two runs that were scored in the eighth were put on base by Gary Lavelle, 1-2, although Eichhorn came in and issued three consecutive walks that pushed the runners across.

With the score tied 3-3, Lavelle walked leadoff batter Pete Incaviglia, and with two outs walked pinch-hitter Mike Stanley. Eichhorn relieved and walked Steve Buechele to load the bases and Jerry Browne and Scott Fletcher to force home runs.

"Eichhorn was all over the place," said Browne, who got his first major league game-winning RBI with the walk. "I decided to work him all the way. I sure wasn't going to swing at any bad pitches."

Both Louvin and Hughes went the distance. Each fanned seven batters. Louvin walked seven and allowed three hits. But the last one was the most costly, Bryan Sledge made sure of that.

Top hockey amateur injured

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Festival hockey tournament, which is being used to select the core of the 1988 Olympic team, got off to a bad start as America's premier amateur player was injured.

Brian Leetch, a 19-year-old All-America defenseman from Boston College, was tripped by East forward Tom Fitzgerald only 40 seconds into the North's 4-2 loss. Leetch suffered sprained ligaments in the left knee and is expected to be sidelined for four weeks. He will, however, be invited to next month's Olympic team training camp at Lake Placid, N.Y.

"He was coming right at me and his knee hit mine," Leetch said. "It could be a lot worse. I'm happy that it isn't. I'll be back on the ice in three or four weeks. Hopefully, I will get my chance to play on this team and go to the (New York) Rangers after the Olympics."

Also sent home were four volleyball players from California who were suspended from the festival for dormitory infractions. They were Hugh Foster of Newport Beach, Samantha Shaver of Mount View, Cheri Boyer of Poway and Carl Henkel of Redondo Beach, according to the U.S. Volleyball Association.

Jay Barrs of Mesa, Ariz., scored one of the biggest upsets of the festival, winning the men's archery competition over two-time Olympic gold medalist Darrell Pace.

Trena King of Kentwood, Mich., won the women's title.

Jimmy Moore of Medford, Ore., pitched the second softball no-hitter of the festival. Moore struck out 10 and walked one as the North beat the South 4-0. It was Moore's 16th festival victory in 18 decisions.

The support for Michele Granger of South women's softball squad couldn't be much worse. Granger, a 17-year-old left-hander from Placentia, Calif., who pitched the United States to the world junior crown last week, allowed only one hit Tuesday. But that hit was a home run by JoAnn Ferrieri of Orange, N.J.

Granger, who struck out 11, has lost both of her decisions here. North pitcher Connie Clark of Phoenix allowed only two hits — singles to Kandi Burke of Covina, Calif., and Julie Smith of Glendora, Calif.

NOTICE AFFORDING OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC HEARING

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is planning the improvement of U.S. Highway 87 from Hearn Street in Big Spring to the Glasscock County Line. The proposed project will begin in the south part of Big Spring.
Improvements will be performed in two phases; the first phase extending from the northern project terminus to Ranch to Market Road 33, the second phase southward to the Glasscock County Line. The roadway will consist of four, twelve foot travel lanes and a median of variable width. The project is found in both rural and urban settings. The existing right-of-way width is 120 feet (minimum) with additonal 20 to 40 feet to be acquired along the east side of existing U.S. Highway 87. The project is approximately 10.4 miles in length.
Maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design, the environmental assessment and any other information about the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineer's Office on State Highway 350, north of the intersection of Interstate Highway 20 and State Highway 350 in Big Spring. Also the maps and drawings showing the proposed location and design have been placed on file with the County Judge of Howard County.
Information about the State's Relocation Assistance Program, the benefits and services for displacees and information concerning the relocation assistance office as well as information about the tentative schedules for acquisition of right of way and construction can be obtained at the Resident Engineer's Office.
Any interested citizen may request that a public hearing be held covering the social, economic and environmental effects of the proposed location and design for this highway project by delivering a written request to the Resident Engineer's Office on or before August 3, 1987. The address of the Resident Engineer's Office is P.O. Box 511, Big Spring, Texas, 79721.
In the event such a request is received, a public hearing will be scheduled and adequate notice will be publicized about the date and location of the hearing.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Spend the day and evening in a warm, charming and social atmosphere. Today is perfect for making new friends and being happy with your romantic interest.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use your creative abilities to your advantage. Showing more affection for your mate could improve the home scene.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Paying compliments to everyone you encounter today would be wise, but don't go overboard with it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your property, and find a way to add to its value. Find a way to invest small sums of money for a good return.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Spending just a little bit of money for personal reasons today would brighten up your mood considerably.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Finish your work for the day before pleasing your mate. Find something which will make you feel comfortable and happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get together with as many friends as possible today and make new contacts through them. Spend carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Dress well today and make a fine impression. Be sure you hand out plenty of smiles today. Ask favors if needed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Write letters which you've been putting off, especially those to old business contacts. Cultivate new friendships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Listen carefully to the views of others in any business affairs, or you'll overlook an excellent opportunity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be faithful in fulfilling your promises to an associate. Make a public appearance which helps your popularity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make your surroundings more functional and attractive. You'll be much more efficient in your duties.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure to handle important business affairs, but then cut loose and enjoy a favorite recreation with friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have much natural charm, but teach your child not to rely on this alone. The education should be slanted along the lines of entertainment, artistry and adornment. He or she will have a great interest in music, and also a superior musical ability. Encourage it.

Teasing husband's wife says oldies aren't always goodies

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband loves to tease me. He has two favorites he uses all the time. I know he's teasing, and he assures me that everyone else knows he's teasing, but I still feel uncomfortable when he repeats these old "standards." Furthermore, I dislike the implications in his statements.

He often says, "I'd like to die in bed getting shot by a jealous husband." And if another man pays too much attention to me, he'll ask him, "Are you trying to steal my wife, you horse thief?"

Everyone laughs, and I always smile and try to act amused, even though one of his little jokes assumes sexual activity in another woman's bed, and the other calls me a "horse."

I've asked him to please stop teasing me that way, but he keeps it up. Should I continue to smile and act like I don't care? Or can you give me a snappy retort I can use to retaliate?

HURT IN HOPATCONG, N.J.

DEAR HURT: Forget the "snappy retort," and don't smile and act amused when he tries to get a laugh at your expense.

When he's in a good mood, and you have plenty of time and his full attention, tell him that he hurts you deeply when he repeats these tasteless put-downs. And unless he retires those tired old jokes, you will know that he is deliberately abusing you.

DEAR ABBY: Today it happened again: The phone rang just as I put my key in the door. You might have been calling to buy something I had advertised in the paper, or I might have forgotten to pay a bill, or you needed my husband to unclog your drain, or perhaps you wanted to hire my son's band for a party you're having next week and you're as desperate as he is. Whatever the reason, you didn't wait for my answering machine to finish its message, and by the time I picked up the phone, you had already hung up. Perhaps it was your loss, perhaps it was mine. But remember, you called me!

Even if you don't leave a message, there may be someone on the other end. Say hello. If you do leave a message, I promise to get back to you as soon as possible. Please don't just hang up when you hear a recorded message. It's so very frustrating!

MISSING CALLS

DEAR MISSING: I appreciate your frustration, but please understand that some people are intimidated by "machines." Don't sweat it. If it was important, they'll call back.

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "I'll Never Smile Again," who opted for extensive cosmetic dental work as opposed to having all her teeth extracted for dentures, was correct but incomplete.

People should keep their natural teeth as long as possible because one's teeth act as a support for the jaw and prevent bone loss. Once the teeth are removed, the ridge of bone that once had the teeth begins to deteriorate.

This causes an ongoing cycle of ill-fitting dentures, and all too often ends in a complete inability to wear dentures at all, as there is no ridge of bone left to support them!

As an oral surgeon, I have seen this happen many times. A person who has all of his teeth extracted for the "convenience" and "savings" of dentures may well end up in my office years later for surgical implants.

Keep telling your readers to keep their natural teeth, abby.

SMILING IN EVANSTON

DEAR SMILING: I have consistently told my readers to keep their natural teeth. Furthermore, a dentist with integrity will do everything possible to save his (or her) patients' natural teeth.

CARLI ANN WISE
... wins title

Two-year-old wins Baby Petite title

Carli Ann Wise, 2, daughter of Morgan and Wanda Wise of Abilene, won the 1987 Texas State Baby Petite title at the "Our Little Miss Pageant" in Austin June 29-July 4.

Carli is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Wise and Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Scroggins, all of Big Spring.

In addition to being crowned Texas State Baby Petite, she placed first in talent, and third in both party dress and sports wear competition. She also was selected first alternate in the "Living Doll" competition.

Carli received crowns, banners, trophies, a $500 scholarship and an all-expense paid trip for two to Nassau in the Bahamas.

Those who would like to sponsor Carli's trip to the World Pageant in Orlando, Fla. on August 2-9, may contact the State National Bank of Big Spring or Coahoma State Bank in Coahoma.

Academia

Mary P. (Trish) Slape, Big Spring, has been named an Academic All-American by the National Secondary Education Council.

The NSEC has established the Academic All-American Scholar Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines.

Trish who attends Howard College, was nominated for this national award by Doris Huibregtse, head of the Business Department at Howard College.

She will appear in the Academic All-American Scholar Directory, which is published nationally.

Edward James Vidlak, Big Spring was among 33 students at the College of Architecture at the University of Nebraska—Lincoln (UNL) named to the Dean's List for the spring semester of the 1986-87 academic year.

Students named to the Dean's List in the College of Architecture achieved a 3.5 or better grade point average while carrying 12 or more graded credits, according to Dean W. Cecil Steward.

Group learns local history

The Elbow Extension Homemakers Club met July 16 at the home of Madred Bradley and Muriel Prokschl, with Ruth Morton, vice president, presiding.

Revision of the by-laws were discussed by the seven members who attended the meeting. The group also listened to a tape entitled "Tour of Big Spring," provided by the Chamber of Commerce that described the Potton House, the railroad in the early days, the first store in Big Spring;

The Record Shop, Shine Phillip's old drug store, the first school in Big Spring, the library, the Heritage Museum, Sandhill Cranes, Scenic Mountain, the ampitheater and the spring from which Big Spring took its name.

The next meeting will be August 6, when the group will travel to Midland for a shopping and sightseeing trip.

A noted preacher of a past generation said, "Only the redeemed will take a close look at the Bible doctrine of hell." There is some definite truth in that. The Bible describes hell as:"where one will burn with unquenchable fire, loss of eternal life combined with misery and perdition,outer darkness, weeping and gnashing of teeth, a furnace of fire, where those there shall receive the punishment due them for sin,everlasting punishment, where their worm dies not and the fire is not quenched, seperated from the presence of the Lord, drinking of the wine of the wrath of God without mercy, fire and brimstone, torment, second death." To deny this is not wise - to try to change it's truth is costly; to ignore it will be regretable - to refuse to believe it will be devastating. To profit by it's reality will be benefical - and to avoid it with God's help through Jesus Christ will be a blessing. The scripture says: "The wages of sin is death but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) Sin has a tremendous price to pay. Jesus paid a tremendous price to save you from hell.
