LABOR DAY HORSE RACES ANNOUNCED BY VETERANS POST

THOUSANDS EXPECTED FROM AREA

Program Adopted for September 5, 7 Meet Here

Horse races, expected to attract state-wide interest, will be held here September 5 and 7, observing the Labor day holiday season.

A fast program of seven races, changed in some respects from the last event, was mapped out this week and has been approved and signed by five horse breeders and owners who are expected to furnish the majority of entries.

Programs will be mailed out at once to race men of other localities in order to secure outside competition and immediate action toward a publicity and advertising campaign to draw thousands of people here from other localities, will be launched. It is expected that from 2,000 to 4,000 persons will witness the race meet during the two days.

No Sunday Races Saturday, September 5, is Trades day in Midland and will be the opening day of the racing program. There will be no races Sunday, September 6. Monday, September 7, is Labor day. Members of the retailers committee of the chamber of commerce, at a meeting last week, voted to close for that day in the event the race meet was held.

The programs on each of the two days will begin at 3 o'clock, with 20 minutes between races, assuring a fast and interesting meet. Spencer Jewell, Clarence Scharbauer, E. W. Floyd, Byron Bryant and Tom Nance, expected to contribute the majority of the entries, approved and signed the program of seven races. The program, adopted by the Brooks W. Lee post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will not be changed and copies are being sent to race men over the country.

Show Purses Division The first race, a quarter mile event for ranch horses, non-winners, to carry 150 pounds, using stock saddles, will draw ten per cent of the purse.

The second race will be a quarter mile event, free for all, carrying 115 pounds, drawing fifteen per cent of the purse.

The third race is the jelly-bean race, started at the recent July 3 and 4 events and proving to be one of the principal drawing cards. Heads of civic organizations will compete, no part of the purse being placed on the race.

The fourth race is three-eighths of a mile, for two year old half bred horses, carrying 115 pounds, drawing fifteen percent of the purse.

The fifth event is a three-eighths race for three year old horses and up, half breeds, drawing fifteen per cent of purse.

DEPARTURE OF FALL FOR JAIL KEPT A SECRET

EL PASO, July 18. (AP)—The exact hour of his leaving kept a secret, Albert B. Fall's departure for the New Mexico state prison appeared imminent tonight.

The former secretary of the interior's family has withheld information as to when the journey will begin.

Federal indictment papers have arrived at Santa Fe.

Stubbeman to Address School

Frank Stubbeman will deliver the main address at the opening of the Stokes school Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

The school opens in the summer, then closes during the height of the cotton picking season so the children may aid in gathering the crop. The school will continue its summer term about three and a half months, adjourn for about two and a half months, then resume work in the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Watford, teachers, invite patrons of the school and visitors from Midland. Stubbeman will speak at 9 o'clock. Watford took a collection of the Lions club magazines from the chamber of commerce office to place in the school library.

Remembers Scharbauer for Failure to Observe Night

Clarence Scharbauer was sitting at the southwest corner of the hotel, feeding a dog, late Saturday evening. A stranger approached, was greeted by Scharbauer and sat down to wait for an eastbound bus.

"This town shore has changed in twenty years," he remarked. "I've been looking around for a fellow named Clarence Scharbauer that I used to work for down on the Diamond outfit. They say he built this big hotel."

POST PREACHER FILLS PULPIT AT BAPTIST CHURCH

The Rev. M. C. Bishop, of Post, Baptist pastor, will preach at the First Baptist church here today at both morning and evening services.

The visiting preacher will take for his morning subject, "Partial Discipleship," and in the evening, "Love that Saves."

The Rev. Bishop has been in Post as Baptist pastor for five years, serving five years in the same work at Colorado prior to that time. He has lived in West Texas most of his life, having moved to Winters in 1889. He was educated in Simmons and Baylor universities and at the Southwestern Theological seminary.

Two Services a Day at Revival

Revival services at the Church of Christ will include both morning and evening services this week, and through July 29, it has been announced.

The Rev. J. A. McCall, for nine years pastor of the Polytechnic, Fort Worth, Church of Christ is doing the preaching. He is a former TCU divinity student and was connected with the Fort Worth post office. He is an able speaker.

It was then that Scharbauer told Deering his own name whereupon the former resident grasped his hand and wrung it warmly. He said he didn't remember many people here as he stayed pretty close out at the Diamond. His brother, Will Deering, worked there at the same time. He lives now at Wilcox, Arizona, and was en route to Stanton and other points in the vicinity of Midland.

W. A. Francis of Ballinger Is Ill

W. A. Francis of Ballinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Francis and a brother of Mrs. C. M. Goldsmith, Sheriff A. C. Francis and John Y. Francis of this city, was reported seriously ill Saturday, with little hope for his recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Francis and A. C. Francis left here Friday on receipt of news that the Ballinger man was sinking. He had been ill for several months, suffering from high blood pressure, and recently underwent a tonsil operation. He had lost consciousness Saturday.

John Y. Francis planned to leave for Ballinger late Saturday after receiving news that his brother had shown no change for the better.

Instruction Free To Swimmers Here

With the announcement that all strokes will be taught, scouts and others are expected to enroll large numbers in the swimming classes that begin at Pagoda pool Monday.

Life saving will be taught, also. Marcos J. Williamson, field representative of this area for the Boy Scouts of America, will be in charge. Guy Brenneman, in charge of arrangements, gave some of the swimming requirements necessary for a first class scout.

"A first class scout, before he becomes of that rank, shall have swam 50 yards under test. He must have jumped into the water, fully dressed, disrobed under water and then swam out. In rescue work, he must approach the "drowning victim," let the distressed one catch him by the hand, then break this hold and bring him to the shore. Another test requires the swimmer to let the "victim" catch the rescuer with both hands."

Brenneman said every hold known to the rescuer will be taught. Tests will be given and Red Cross badges presented those who complete the work. Special prices to scouts have been made by the pool management. Mornings will be given over to scouts, evenings to the public. Instruction costs nothing.

DECIDED TO STAY

Nights in Midland were so cool and delightful to a Detroit traveler and his family who stopped at Hotel Scharbauer one night last week that he remained three nights so he could sleep well. He declared Midlanders would have to go to the mountains to beat this for pleasant summer weather.

WAITSEKA, Ill., July 18. (UP)—Fearing mob violence, officials of two counties today heavily guarded the jail where they were holding three bandits who, late yesterday, robbed a bank at Buckley, killed a deputy sheriff and were captured after one of the most exciting man-hunts in the history of Illinois.

The men held were Joseph Mulchowski of Chicago, Pierce Lanigan of New York and Jake Byrnes of New York.

Mulchowski and Byrnes were wounded after a chase in which an airplane, automobiles and more than 500 men participated.

The trio yesterday entered the Buckley State bank and escaped in an automobile with $5000. Mrs. Henry Ennen, wife of the deputy slain, saw the bandits leaving the bank and sounded the alarm.

Ennen and Mulchowski met in a culvert where the bandit was hiding. Ennen emptied his gun, and surrendered. Mulchowski shot him through the heart.

A posse then arrived and captured Mulchowski. An airplane joined the search and directed from the air. The other bandits were captured on a farm after gunplay. Crowds threatened to lynch the bandits when they were brought here.

KILGORE FIRE COSTLY; MAN IS THOUGHT DYING

KILGORE, July 18. (AP)—Flames threatened this entire town this afternoon when a battery of oil tanks caught fire within 300 feet of the new $30,000 city hall.

Earl Renwick, 34, employe of the Pace Petroleum company was thought dying from injuries received in the fire.

The fire spread to a nearby gin, destroying a number of cotton seed silos. It was under control late in the day.

Kinsman Midland Man Is Impressed

A visit to Midland in the home of his cousin, E. N. Snodgrass, together with watching the loading of cattle at Metz, inspired R. L. Gillen of Sparta, Tennessee, to write a long article which was published in that paper.

The writer was in Fort Worth, where he watched the handling of cattle in the stock pens. But he found prices too high to please him, so he came to Midland, from which place he went to Metz. He described the loading of McElroy ranch cattle there.

'Coondog,' Famous Horse Of Midland, Shot to Death

"Coondog," one of the best known rodeo horses in the country, is dead. He was shot to death last week when a wire cut on the right hock failed to heal.

Known everywhere by his owner, Allen Holder, noted roper went, the horse was one of the most talked-of animals ever associated with rodeos of the west.

The Holder family tended the horse carefully, just as a child, following his injury. Gerald Bloss, veterinary surgeon made regular trips to attend him. But the horse, after being able to walk on the leg again, fell and injured the place so it was necessary to kill him. The family asked L. B. Hankins to dispatch the animal, and came into the city to avoid hearing the shot.

Mrs. Holder gave the following "obituary" on the horse: "Coondog was born July, 1921, died July, 1931. He was raised by Walter McConigle of Lovington, N. M., and was branded an apple on the left fore leg. Allen Holder purchased him from Bill Lusk of Lovington, at the age of four years.

JOINING OF PLANS POSSIBLE

Compromise Seen as Only Solution To Problem

PARIS, July 18. (UP)—Definite assurance that Italy will participate in the statesmen's conference here tomorrow on Europe's economic problems was received today when it was announced that the country would be represented by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and Count Manzoni.

Preliminary conferences between America, British and French statesmen continued in an effort to assure success of the five-power parley this week end.

Secretary of State Stimson and Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, conferred with Premier Pierre Laval on a plan to permit granting the long term loan Germany desires.

Jeers and cheers from the crowd were mingled as German representatives Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius arrived here this morning.

Compromise Hope

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—Compromises between French proposals and several other suggested plans were considered by American officials tonight as the possible solution of the problem of emergency relief for Germany.

America and Great Britain rejected France's project that interested creditor nations guarantee a $500,000,000 loan to Germany.

Three other French plans were advanced. Some opined consolidation of the plans will bring an agreement.

Dr. Klein Holds Up City as Norm

Midland was held up as a national example of the smaller city which continued to grow and expand despite the swallowing up of many other towns by larger cities, in a radio address delivered June 28 by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the United States department of commerce.

Dr. Klein is delivering a series of lectures over the Columbia broadcasting system. He is probably the best known business lecturer in the world, certainly the best known in America, business leaders say. The use of Midland as an example of achievement of outstanding importance in the nation for maintaining its identity and continuing its progress, particularly as an air center, is of invaluable assistance to Midland as a publicity boost.

Meanwhile, Gary appears in perfect health and continues to gain weight in the hospital.

Free Crossing Over Three Bridges Up River

AUSTIN, July 18. (UP). Governor Sterling today requested members of the highway commission and J. R. MURRAY WINNING

DENISON, July 18. (AP)—Governor Murray's action in opening free bridges on Red river between Texas and Oklahoma appeared tonight a coup d'état which found right of way in legal channels that seemed likely to meet hastily the goal sought.

Within 48 hours after Murray's highway shock troops barricaded the Oklahoma end of the Denison-Durant bridge, the battle between Murray and Governor Ross Sterling of Texas apparently had turned in the former's favor.

The situation found three bridge 70 miles up the river carrying traffic previously passed over toll bridges.

legality of a contract made by the bridge owners with the highway commission.

Defiance Continued

DENISON, July 18. (UP)—Adjutant General W. W. Sterling, Captain Tom Hickman and Rangers W. H. Kirby and Jim Huddleton today continued to defy Governor W. H. Murray of Oklahoma by maintaining guard at the south end of the Red river free bridge.

Sterling said he was here to keep the bridge closed and planned to remain indefinitely. A warning sign, torn down by Oklahoma highway workers at Murray's order, was reconstructed by rangers who were keeping night and day guard.

Additional destruction of the highway by Oklahoma, between Durant and the north bridge head, prevented use of the parallel toll bridge. Motorists were forced to detour east and west of here and Durant. Merchants of Denison and Sherman were protesting, saying that closing of the bridges hurt tourist trade.

INVESTIGATION INTO OIL GETS START SATURDAY

AUSTIN, July 18. (UP)—Legislative investigation of conditions in the oil industry began in the house of representatives this morning with Representative Bailey W. Hardy questioning Chairman C. V. Terrell of the state railroad commission.

The questions developed the history of the commission's connections with the industry, experiences with proration and the methods of administering oil and gas conservation. The inquiry was to last eight days.

Cowden Family Here To Complete Deal

Members of the W. H. Cowden family are spending the week end here after completing work of counting out cattle and turning over ranch interests in Crane county. W. H. Cowden Jr., who sold certain land holdings in Crane county and bought a ranch near Kent, purchased the cattle from other members of the family. Rounding up has been under way and the cattle have been shipped to Kent.

Those here yesterday were Mrs. Hallie Day of San Antonio, Jax M. Cowden of San Angelo, Gilbert H. Cowden of Crane, W. H. Cowden Jr. of Kent, J. Eugene Cowden of Kerrville and George Cowden of Pearsall. Jax Cowden Jr. was here from San Angelo and Bill Tom Cowden from Crane.

Curb Costs in Basin Lowered

The cost of administering proration in four West Texas districts has been reduced about $1,300 per month by consolidation of Winkler, Yates, Crane-Upton and Ector areas under one empire, who has consolidated office equipment in Midland.

To carry on work of combined areas, a general West Texas advisory committee, composed of the chairman of each of the four districts has been created. Local advisory committees in each of the four districts continue to function in handling matters pertaining to the individual pools.

L. E. Barrows, manager of Texas company's West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona division headquarters in Fort Worth, is chairman of the Crane-Traan advisory committee and was named chairman of the general West Texas advisory committee. Other members (See COSTS LOWERED page 6)

MIDLAND'S ADOPTION OF SPORTS

Never in the history of Midland have there been so many citizens engaged in or interested in sports or games. It is estimated that at present a third of the population is either indulging in some form of sports or is backing some athletic team or aggregation.

Golf has been a favorite sport here for several years, although there are more people playing the game now than formerly.

Last winter, an industrial league of basketball was started, resulting in the reviving of athletes who formerly had played with schools or colleges and who discovered that to lose their athletic form is not necessary.

From the basketball season, leagues of playground ball were organized, resulting in the formation of enough teams to keep this sport under way on from two to three ball grounds five days out of the week, with both daylight and night games. Women took up the sport, organized a league and are among the most ardent followers of the game. Hundreds of automobiles are parked about the grounds for each of these games.

Baseball continues to be played by two or three Midland teams, attracting good teams from over the country and providing sport for players and fans. Elmer Bizzell, farmer, preserved for Midland a baseball park by purchasing a park here and moving it to his farm adjoining the city on the south.

Midland has become a tennis center of note. In a recent tournament, four state champions appeared and the event was said to have been the best ever held in West Texas from the standpoint of competing players. A well-organized and active tennis club, in addition to privately owned courts, keeps the game active throughout the season.

Swimming attracts its followers daily at a local pool and the crowds are reported to be growing steadily.

Horseback riding has come into vogue. In a town where a great part of the citizenship is composed of ranch people, former ranch people or those who have ridden a great deal, the absence of horseback riding in or near the city long has been noticeable. At present a riding club is operating and crowds are increasing morning and evening. Horse racing has been a stimulus to this sport and continues to furnish thrills for fans from time to time.

What does this increase in sports mean? It means that Midland citizens are living more normal lives than they were a few years ago. Without the excitement attendant upon booms and sudden development, energetic people need an outlet for healthy energy. There is ample time for athletic sports or for watching the various contests, now that the days are long, and the manner in which these sports are being indulged in reflects a spirit of optimism, of confidence and of enthusiasm on the part of the people.

Encouragement of all forms of clean sport is admirable.

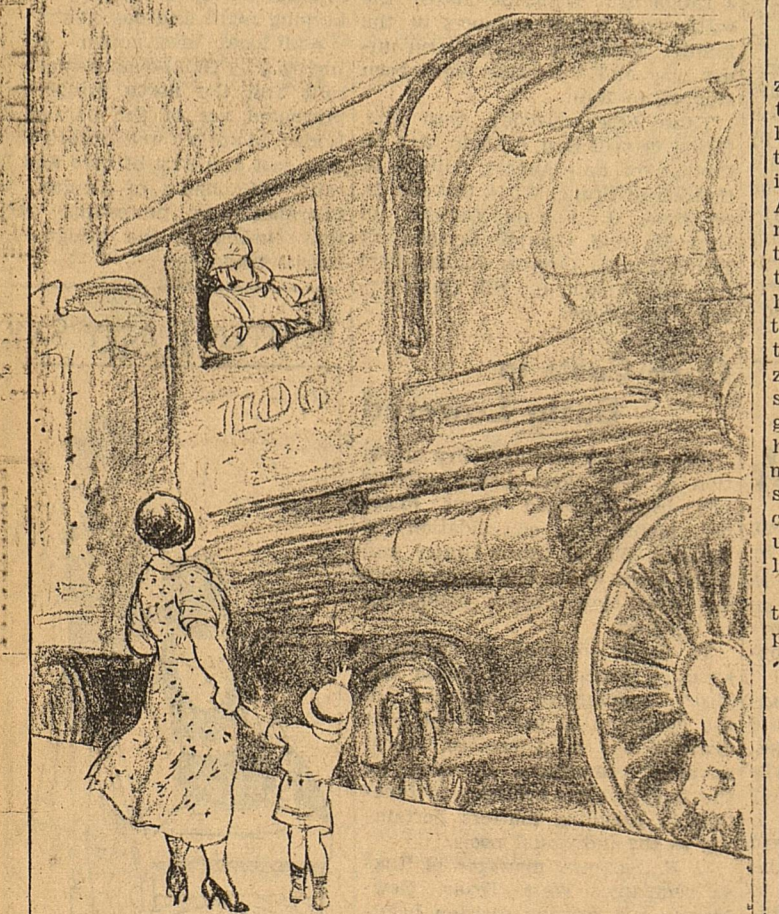

A HAZARD OF THE GAME

According to the Pennsylvania superior court, being hit by a golf ball is just one of the hazards of the game, and a player who is injured that way cannot collect damages from the driver of the ball that hit him.

This dictum came when the court refused to permit a litigant to win the damages he sought from another player in Philadelphia.

Most golfers probably will agree that it is sound common sense. A flying golf ball can be a dangerous missile; yet, after all, the uncertainties of the game are such that the driver can hardly be held responsible. Golf balls do erratic things sometimes. Even a skillful player can cut loose with a wild hook or slice unexpectedly. The duffer, in the nature of things, does it all the time. It would seem to be up to each player to look out for himself.

Another Luther Man of Hour in German Affairs

BY MILTON BRONNER

European Manager, NEA Service

BERLIN.—Another Luther is now the man of the hour in Germany. Just as Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the church door at Wittenburg 400 years ago and argued half of Christendom into Protestantism, his remotely related descendant, Dr. Hans Luther, now faces the heroic task of pulling the nation out of bankruptcy.

As president of the great Reichsbank, or Bank of Germany, he holds one of the three most important positions in Germany in the present crisis. The others are those of Chancellor, Heinrich Brüning and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius.

When it comes to getting things he wants, Dr. Luther is as determined as was his famed ancestor. His hurried airplane trips to various European capitals in quest of loans to save Germany from tottering over the brink stamp him as a man of action.

As head of Germany's great bank, Dr. Luther faces a national condition that is desperate but easy to understand. It is simply this: in the years just after the war, Germany decided to regain its position as a world trade power by modernizing its factories thoroughly and producing goods at a tremendous rate on a low-cost scale.

That part succeeded and all might have gone well if the worldwide depression hadn't come along. The depression hit Germany hard. More and more goods were being produced, but the market had vanished. Great quantities of unsold goods began to pile up.

Naturally factories began to close down with resultant unemployment. Lots of these factories stand dark and silent in Germany today. Many of them are practically new, the new paint glistening on the idle machines.

Germany, like the rest of the world, was organized on a high production basis that meant it was producing more than it could sell or consume.

Under such conditions, closing of banks was inevitable.

But Germany looks with hope toward Dr. Luther because he has a way of solving financial crises. Eight years ago it was chiefly he who ended the chain of disasters that followed the collapse of the mark, when the bottom fell out of the money market and it took half a billion paper marks to buy a loaf of bread. Since the foundation of the German republic, Dr. Luther is the only man who, as chancellor, was able to present a governmental budget with expenditures less than receipts.

So, today, he is the man of the hour. Germany is confident that he can pull the nation out of the hole, and has always been; last spring, for instance, when he was made head of the Reichsbank and the successor of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, prices of stocks went up immediately as a reflection of national confidence.

Perspiration is Frequent Cause of Summer Skin Infections—Repeated Washing, Use of Creams, Powders and Porous Clothing Help Control Irritation.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor Journal of American Medical Association and of Hygiea, the Health Magazine.

Physicians who practice in tropical zones insist that the constant high temperature has the tendency to hasten maturity and to stimulate the glands of internal secretion. It is pointed out by Steffansson, the Arctic explorer, that Eskimo girls mature very early. The reason for this is that living for six months of the year in huts which become so hot and so humid that the conditions resemble those that exist in the tropics. Men from the temperate zone who go to the tropics find very soon a stimulation of the endocrine glands. This wears off promptly, however, to be followed by several months by a depressive action. Most season when summer weather first comes on, glandular action is stimulated but tends to be depressed later.

Because of the constant perspiration and moisture of the skin, people are more likely in hot weather to have skin infections than in cold weather. These take the form of the ordinary blackheads and pimples, but there are also considerable amounts of what are called fungus infections, resulting in soft places between the toes, in the groin and similar places where skin surfaces touch, and also in the condition commonly called "athlete's foot," which spreads rapidly to other parts of the body.

Any irritation of the skin in hot weather is best controlled by repeated washing and by the use of appropriate creams and powders to prevent irritation and rubbing of adjacent surfaces. Irritations break the surface of the skin and make it easier for bacteria to enter.

The use of porous clothing tends to keep the surface of the skin dry and in that way to prevent the maceration that comes with constant moisture.

Because of the effects of various chemicals on skin that has been irritated, cosmetic preparations must be used with greater care in the summer than in the winter.

Infants and small children must be kept cool in summer, but care must be taken to see to it that they are properly covered at night, particularly with changes of weather during the night. Colds are not frequent in the warm season, but the likelihood of catching cold is always present and resistance is certainly enhanced by proper protection. In days of excessive heat the small child may be clad merely in a diaper and allowed to lie in its crib in the shade near the open window.

Daily Washington Letter

The Fate of Youngsters for Offending Prohibition Laws Depends Largely on Discretion of Judge—Juveniles as Young as Seven Held as Federal Prisoners.

WASHINGTON.—When a child is brought into federal court to face charges of helping father tend a still, delivering a bottle of bootleg liquor, stealing an automobile or robbing a postoffice it makes a lot of difference what kind of judge is on the bench.

Some federal judges told investigators for the Wickersham committee, during its study of the "child offender" and his treatment by Uncle Sam, that they saw no good reason for making distinction between child and adult offenders. Others said they refused to try children when they were within juvenile court age and a local juvenile agency would take care of the case.

Inequality of treatment of juvenile delinquents is also intimated in the committee's report where it asserts: "In some districts the policy is to commit almost all to institutions, in others to commit none." One judge said he sentenced minors as a rule only when they came from ignorant and impoverished families, as that would enable them to learn a trade. Some go on the theory that a federal correctional institution is a "superior type of boarding school" and others regard it as a last resort for a "hardened" offender.

In Court at Age of 7

In some districts no young children are prosecuted for prohibition violations, on the principle that the adults are to blame for the offense. But in one case three brothers, aged 13, 15 and 16, were sentenced for three years and the father and an older brother sentenced to a penitentiary after conviction for manufacturing liquor on their farm.

Children under seven years have been brought before United States commissioners, it was found, and others of similar age are detained in jail awaiting outcome of cases in which parents face immigration charges.

Among 303 young federal prisoners whose cases were studied in 10 institutions there were found two aged 10, three aged 11, three aged 12, 10 aged 13 and eight aged 14. The report doesn't name the offenses for which these kids had been sentenced, but 155 of the group were in for violating the Dyer automobile theft act, 44 for prohibition violations and 39 for offending against the postal laws.

Of 2243 boys and girls under 18 held on federal charges in the last half of last year, however, 14 per cent were involved in prohibition cases, 22 per cent in immigration cases, 17.5 per cent in automobile thefts and 5 per cent in postal cases.

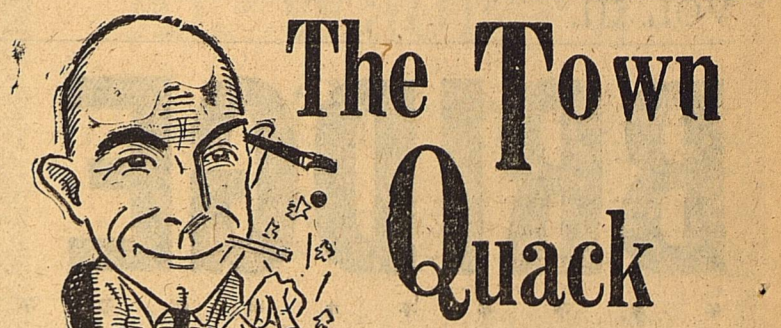

There is no legal age limit beneath which a child cannot be prosecuted under federal laws, although the Wickersham commission found no federal prisoner anywhere under nine years of age (its assertion indicates that Uncle Sam has a nine-year-old boy cooped up somewhere) who had actually been sentenced and committed. Under the federal judicial code the child offender is on the same footing as the adult and there is no definition of juvenile delinquency as there is in laws of all states except Maine. Hence the wide use of discretion by the judges.

In Court Without Parents

Courts also use their discretion as to whether parents should be notified when children are brought before the court. In many instances it appears the parents do not know the date of trial and children frequently are committed when neither a parent nor a lawyer is present. In some federal districts careful attention is given to children's cases by judges. In others judges may dispose of 70 or 80 cases in half a day and children are led out almost as soon as they can be sentenced.

In other communities, it was found, juvenile courts were hearing and disposing of cases of child offenders against federal laws "by arrangement."

These interesting facts about the way federal judges and prosecutors act toward children were generally obscured in the mild sensation caused by the Wickersham commission's charges of harsh disciplinary measures in federal institutions and very bad

What do you think about the controversy between Texas and Oklahoma over the Red river bridges? Texas has sent rangers to one side of the stream and Alfalfa Bill Murray is threatening to send state troops to the other side. If a war between the states gets under way it will relieve the army of unemployed, maybe.

What concerns me is that we may have a mutiny of our own citizens if Texas and Oklahoma go to war. There are Jimmy Noland, Arthur Yeager, the Jackson boys and a bunch of former Oklahoma citizens who may outlaw and make trouble here, even this far from the river. We'd better watch 'em.

100 EXPECTED TO TEE UP BALLOON BALL IN ODESSA TOURNEY

Lions List Jockeys and No Horses; Floyds Give Horses, No Jockeys

RECEPTION COMMITTEE PLANS DAM SUPPER FOLLOWING PLAY; TROPHIES ANNOUNCED; ODESSA COURSE HARD

BY RALPH SHUFFER
Odessa News-Times

ODESSA, July 18, (Special)—From 80 to 100 visiting golfers, representing clubs from Colorado, Stanton, Big Spring, Midland, Seminole, Lamesa, McCamey, Fort Stockton, Texon, Alpine, Pecos and Wink, are expected to be here Sunday for the first invitational golf tournament to be given by the Odessa golf club, according to a statement by C. W. Pegues, secretary.

Qualifying rounds were played Saturday afternoon and were to be resumed Sunday morning and the tournament proper will start this afternoon at 1:30.

A driving contest will probably be held after the tournament, it was indicated.

This is the first invitational tournament to be held by the Odessa club, and everything is to be done to make the affair a success. Prizes worth playing for will be offered for first and second medal score honors in each of four flights. The tournament will be over the 18 hole route. The Odessa course, while having no artificial hazards, is rather tough because of its extra distance (3,263 yards) and because of the extremely hazardous "rough" and the narrow fairways. It offers a real test of golf, and to play it anywhere near par figures you must hit 'em straight and far.

Some stiff competition in the first flight is expected, since Ellis Cowden of Midland, as well as one of the Pecos and one from the Fort Stockton club have shot under 80 in tournament play recently, and Neill and Henderson of the local club are each apt to break 80 if they have a good play.

Following the tournament, the golfers and their guests will repair to the Gist ranch, where they will be entertained with one of the famous "dam suppers" over which Marcus Gist presides in an inimitable style. Barbecued beef, "gentleman from Odessa stew" and trimmings are promised.

MIDLANDERS TO GO
Approximately 20 golfers from Midland were expected to tee off in the qualifying round of 9 holes in

Stanton Wins From Co-Eds

Another Midland-Stanton one-point decision was played in cushion ball Friday, when the Betty Co-Eds journeyed over and lost 18-17.

Coming to bat in the last frame, the little girls were trailing eight scores! Two runs clicked the scoring pan, then two batsmen went down. With two outs against them, the little ones started hammering the ball to various and sundry positions over the orchard, chasing in five more before the last batter folded her timber.

The game attracted a good crowd, and kept up Midland-Stanton playground ball tradition that games are won by a single point. Three such games had been played earlier this season, Midland winning the games played here, Stanton those played here.

Stanton will return the engagement Thursday afternoon.

Midland Tennis Players to B'Spring

Midland tennis players go to Big Spring this afternoon for a three-cornered meet. Lamesa is the third city entered in both singles and doubles matches.

W. S. Lanham and Theo Ferguson will be paired in one team. W. Godbey and Frank Stubbeman in another.

Each will be entered in the singles later in the afternoon. Lanham will play a special match with Miss Ruby Smith of Big Spring.

A French railroad is experimenting with rubber wheels for its rolling stock.

PUBLISHER LOSES HIS FIRST RACE

He and Polo Saddle and Spring Second Best IN DECIDING FATHER-SON ARGUMENT

Son prevailed over father in the first race held Wednesday afternoon at Cowboy park.

Jay Floyd, who had argued with "Timberline" Floyd, his father, about the speed of Red Wing, rode that mount under the wire, a foot of "daylight" separating her from Spring, T. Paul Barron up. The father had said Spring would outrun Red Wing.

Both mares are five-year-olds. In the second race, Barron on Maude F won by about the same margin as the first race from Pete Patterson, up on Fatima, a two-year-old.

Both races were over the quarter distance. The first race marked the first experience of the "publisher-jockey" in a polo saddle and he couldn't get his horse off well. He said Jay showed him up in getting away to a good start then holding it.

In the second race, Barron rode against Pete Patterson. About 200 saw the two race.

MIDLAND BOWLING CLUB, FRESH FROM LOSS TO WINK, WILL TRY TO RECOUP IN MATCHES TO BE PLAYED IN ODESSA

Bowlers of the West Texas Bowling league, taking in about 10 towns, will meet this afternoon in Odessa for a tournament.

Midland, winner of two tournaments recently, last week lost to Wink at that place.

Though there were only five teams represented in the bowling tournament held there, it proved to be a very interested time.

The drawing for the team names placed Mentone and Odessa together and Midland and Cameron Lumber company of Wink together.

This left the regular Wink team to play one of the winner of the first two matches.

Mentone defeated Odessa, and Midland eliminated the Cameron Lumber company team.

Wink drew for the privilege of playing either Mentone of Midland. It drew Midland. In a good game, Wink eliminated Midland. This automatically placed Midland in third place, the same place Wink gained at Midland just a week before, after being defeated by Midland and then in turn defeating Odessa.

Then Mentone and Wink played for first and second position. Wink gained the lead in the first game, but went into a slump in the start of the second game and lost the second game margin. It came back strong in the third, overcame Mentone's lead and won the match by nine pins. A more interesting game has rarely been witnessed in Wink.

SPORTS REPORTS

BY R. C. HANKINS

The state of Texas won't give up the days of old. Although the buffalo and longhorn are gone. The Wink editor saw reproduced from a mesquite root, dug up on the Wink golf course, by T. W. Kilmer, the natural form of a longhorn and a buffalo.

Many old Texans will look with wonder at this mesquite grub that represents our long gone by days. Looking at it from a left angle the face of the longhorn is faithfully reproduced, even to the ear and mouth and the horn, while the right side is just as faithful reproduction of the buffalo head.

Golfers won't be surprised. They have seen things more strange than that. And, if they haven't, they reserve the right to say they have.

Here's a note we found on our desk—with a request that it "run as is":

HORSE LAUGHS
One Scotchman who haw the races Friday laid a bet on one horse's nose and on the other's tail so he would be sure to break even.

Jay Floyd said he had his hands full every time a pretty girl fell off her horse, but sacrificial Jay doesn't mind that.

Do you remember that old sway-back horse that Harold Lloyd used to ride in his comedies? Somebody said that's the kind that Jim Nolan and Doc Ryan ought to ride, as it's already ruined.

One man said these Midlanders who are missing so much fun by never going to the horse races at Cowboy park wouldn't go even if Lady Godiva circled the track. Another said the stay-at-homes might go if Lady Godiva got her hair bobbed.

The shortage of Bickmore's Gall Cure which was so acute when riding started here a few weeks ago is no longer felt, i. e., the shortage isn't felt.

Pete Patterson knocked the florists, slow music makers and honorary pall bearers out of a lot of work when Paul Barron won the last race Friday.

Riding is becoming a fashionable and popular sport for the young society women of Midland as well as for sportsmen. However, so far only two classes of girls have ridden—blondes and brunettes.

The vogue of mantle eating is dying out after several weeks of training by most of the riders at Cowboy park.

The races were free Friday. All the Sandies, Mc's and kilties in town were there. Even with the races free, Timberline wanted his money back when the riders were a little slow in getting started.

One man got restless and said he wished the riders would use a stove to warm up their mounts instead of taking so much time trotting them around the track.

The horse laugh will be on everybody who doesn't see the races next Wednesday when the Lions club stages a racing program for only two-bits, every quarter of which will go to their wading pool fund.

MYSTERY IN RACE ARRANGEMENTS INTERESTING

WHEREAS jelly bean race men are entering riders, the Floyd stables are entering horses, with riders as a secondary matter, in the benefit racing program Wednesday afternoon at Cowboy park. Proceeds from the 25 cent gate fee will be applied on the cost of constructing the Lions club wading pool at Cloverdale.

Jelly beans entered are Chas. Yonge, attorney; James S. Nolan, oil man; T. Paul Barron, newspaper publisher, and Dr. D. K. Ratliff, dentist. Names of horses to be ridden have yet to be given out.

No Names Given
The Floyd stables, who accepted the challenge of jelly beans to make up a race program, are entering names of horses, including Maude F, Red Wing, Spring and Fatima, with names of jockeys yet to be announced.

The program will comprise either three or four races, beginning at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Two Floyd entries will run against two jelly bean entries for a quarter mile. Then two other Floyd entries will run against two other jelly beans for the same distance.

Several Races
The first Floyd entry from each race and the first jelly bean entry from each race, on four entries, will run off the final heat for one-eighth of a mile.

It is planned to stage a matched race as a fourth number, interspersing it between the two quarter races and the finals.

Under Lion Colors
The jelly beans will run in the name of the Lions club, it was announced yesterday. Three of the four jelly bean entrants are members of the club. The wading pool at Cloverdale will be dedicated by the Lions at a picnic the evening of the race meet.

YOUR PLUMBER

HE'S A WATER HEATER EXPERT

Your plumber knows more about water heater installations than any one else in the community. His suggestions are valuable because he's in business to stay and he wants his customers to be satisfied.

Let your plumber explain the difference between a Self-Action Gas Water Heater which keeps a tankful on hand at all times... for dish washing, cleaning, bathing, etc... and the old auxiliary heater which requires summer fire tending. He can give you an accurate estimate of the tank size best suited to your family and the actual operating cost.

NO MORE WATER Fabens jail prisoners would drink lemonade in place of water if a suggestion made at a meeting of county commissioners is carried out.

A $44 water bill was presented for approval of the commissioners. The statement covered water for the jail during 1929, 1930 and part of 1931. "Why not shut the water off and take what occasional prisoner the jail gets a pall of lemonade once or twice a day," County Judge E. B. McClintock suggested. "It would be cheaper."

Horse Races--

Three year old horses and up, half breeds, drawing twenty per cent of the purse.

To Stage Relay The seventh race is the cowboy relay race, three horses to the team, riding stock saddles, mile and a half total distance, drawing twenty five per cent of the purse. Relay cinches will not be permitted.

In each race, entrance fee will be $5.00 and the total entrance fee will be added to the purse for that particular race. Sixty per cent of the total gate receipts will go to the purse, to be paid to first, second and third winners on a basis of 60-30-10 in each race. The other portion of the gate receipts goes to defraying expenses of the meet, to the Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

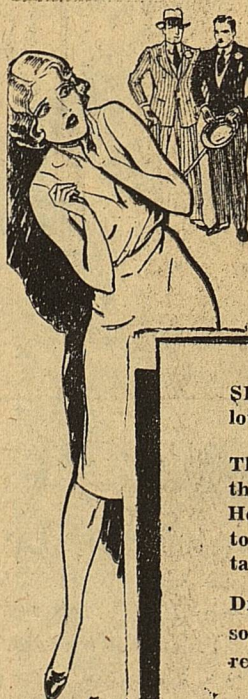

A gate fee of fifty cents will be charged, as in the recent race meet, and no passes will be issued. All officials, horse owners, jockeys, committeemen and other will pay at the gate.

Noland Is Chairman

Decision to sponsor the racing program was acted upon unanimously Friday night by the Veterans organization. James S. Noland, commander of the post, will be general chairman with Clarence Scharbauer, T. R. Abbott and B. H. Grube members of the general committee. Scharbauer is an honorary member of the post. Other committees will be named for the various assignments in connection with the event.

Members of the general committee are E. G. Allen, production superintendent of Shell Petroleum corporation's southwestern headquarters, who is also chairman of the Winkler county advisory committee; John R. Suman, Humble Oil and Refining company, chairman of the Yates pool committee, and W. L. Todd, chairman of the Ector county advisory committee.

A. B. Capers, formerly umpire in Winkler and Ector counties and later in the Lathrop pool of Gregg county has been made umpire of the four combined areas in West Texas with offices in Midland. Capers will have two assistants to carry on details of the proration work.

An invitation to the Howard-Glascock advisory committee to participate in the combined West Texas group was not accepted. M. B. Sweeney is chairman of the Howard-Glascock advisory committee and E. E. Andrews is umpire.

The consolidation permitted abolishment of field proration offices maintained in each of the four districts and proration in each pool formerly was administered by one umpire and an assistant.

Barrows was chairman of the Winkler county advisory committee, but with his selection as chairman of the general advisory group, operators elected Allen to equalize the committee duties.

PAUL LUKAS, WHO PLAYS OPPOSITE KAY FRANCIS, IS A DUAL TYPE MAN

Paul Lukas, according to the verdict of fandom as interpreted by John Cromwell, director of "The Vice Squad," is neither a ladies man nor a man's man—he's both.

It is this quality which has brought Lukas to the edge of stardom, according to Cromwell.

"Many players either dodge the 'menace' type of roles or become permanent screen villains," says Cromwell. "Lukas, like William Powell, has risen to heights from a start as what we call a 'heavy.' The two are among the very few who have done so. There is an appeal to a man who breaks women's hearts and does dastardly deeds, if he is a great enough actor and has charm and appeal besides. Fortunately, Lukas has qualified. An excellent villain, outside the bewhiskered, ugly brute type, attracts women and appeals to men because it takes a manly sort of chap to make it worth while for the hero to give him a thrashing."

Coondog--

Stock show on several occasions. He had been to rodeos in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Arizona and several other states.

"Coondog had several narrow escapes from death. Twice he had been thrown out of his trailer, once when Holder was taking him to Mason, Texas. The trailer came loose from Holder's car, the tongue sticking in the road betd. The horse was thrown to the ground, but when he scrambled to his feet Holder only had to open the gate of the trailer and the horse climbed right back in.

"Once, in Kansas, he was thrown completely over the top of the car, and landed in a sunflower bed. When Holder got to him he was up cropping the top of a sunflower, unscratched. Again, he obeyed his master when told to get in the trailer.

"In Del Rio, in 1926, Holder was intending to use Coondog in a rodeo in a matched contest between Holder and Walter Babb. The roping was scheduled to be held the second day of the show. The night before the roping, someone unknown to Holder and the authorities, discovered where the horse was kept, and, using a large stick, punched, scratched and beat him all over—almost killing him. He had to be brought

CC Directors to Talk on Farm Fair

Directors of the Midland chamber of commerce are asked to come prepared Monday night at 8 o'clock at the regular directors meeting to elect a successor to John Bonner to serve the remainder of the fiscal year which ends February 1, 1932. The new man named will serve about seven months. The other matters of business on the program, such as the farm fair will require but a few minutes.

Kids Get Dainties After Seeing Show

With the opening of a new serial film, "The Mistry Trooper," at the Ritz theatre, the Kiddie-club was entertained Saturday by the management.

Frozen refreshments were served. The picture will be showed once a week, on Saturday, for 10 weeks, Bill Paara said.

Paara Returns to Oklahoma Theatre

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Paara, here for the past few weeks in charge of the Ritz theatre, left last night for Cushing, Oklahoma, where he is in charge of the Griffith Amusement company interests. Paara came here to manage the business until Bill Blair of Berger arrived to succeed John Bonner as manager.

Crane Man Weds Miss Agnew Here

The wedding of Miss Imogene Agnew of Midland to Mr. Frank Varner of Crane was pronounced by the Rev. Howard Peters, pastor of the First Christian church, Saturday evening at 6 at his residence.

The couple left immediately afterward for Crane where they will live. They were accompanied by Mrs. Varner, mother of Mr. Frank Varner, and Miss Simmons of Crane.

back to Midland for treatment of Dr. Wm. Bloss. For several weeks he suffered greatly.

"The animal attracted attention everywhere from horse lovers, because of his gentleness and his ability to handle stock in the arena. "He was absolutely safe for children to ride. He seemed to love them and was always careful about stepping about when a child came near him."

Editor's note: It is related that Coondog even planted himself between other horses and children when the latter came to look at him, shifting about so as to protect them while other horses snorted and acted up.

"Holder had been offered much money for the horse, several times being offered in excess of $1,000. He always held the horse at a figure out of reason, however, so that no one would buy him. He never wanted to sell his horse. In the fall of 1929, he was offered $1,500, but refused.

"At the Chicago rodeo and roundup in 1928, Coondog was pictured in the picture 'King of the Rodeos,' with Hoot Gibson. He was one of the horses shown in the calf roping contest. This picture was showed in Midland about eight months later.

"After the accident here recently, Coondog lingered about four weeks before a mercy bullet was fired into his head. He showed remarkable patience with those who dressed his wound, keeping still even while his muscles jerked in pain. His executioner said that, when looking down the gun sights at him just before pulling the trigger, the horse seemed to know what was going to happen. He shook his head slowly, appeared to take just one long look at his master's home—then looked at the man with the gun right in the eye until the moment the gun sounded.

"When he slipped quietly to the ground after the shot he went down with the same gentleness that characterized his performance in the rings before the thousands of admirers. He moved only once—pulling his right forefoot up, as though trying to pull himself around toward the door he had seen his master come from so many times.

"This 'obituary' is the account of a dun horse that never was too tired to serve his master."
