Base closings spark 'boos' and 'hurrahs'

By the Associated Press

Mothers with young daughters cuss them. Merchants love them and city fathers generally waffle both ways. But nobody really gets vocal about the hometown military installation until Uncle Sam threatens to close it down or build it up.

That's the case in El Paso, where Fort Bliss is listed for possible troop movements, and San Angelo, where Goodfellow Air Force Base is listed for possible closure.

"Frankly, I think it will come to a political confrontation before we see the final answer," said San Angelo Mayor Tom Parrett, adding that the anticipated fighting may ultimately show the amount of clout West Texas wields in the political arena.

San Angelo realtor James Bunyard agreed with Parrett, adding, "the first to feel the pinch would be the rental properties and middle-priced to less-expensively-priced housing." Bunyard said he doesn't think the community will suffer drastically but would welcome a final decision either way. Banker Frank Junell was convinced San Angelo "isn't going to roll over and play dead" if the base closes.

Goodfellow was built in the 1940s as a pilot training base. However, in the late 1960s, it was turned over to Air Force Security Services and became a Cryptological Sciences training center that is used by all four branches of the military.

The current population of the base is about 2,500.

Fort Bliss, however, is currently home to 35,000 men and women. A significant troop reduction in that West Texas city would be felt in all civic sectors.

But El Paso is more concerned with just the opposite. In announcing the suggested closures Tuesday, the Pentagon said Fort Bliss is on the list for possible reduction, then hinted that it is also being considered as a site for the Army's 2nd Division now based in Korea.

That prospect has touched off the collective fuses of West Texas environmentalists. Members of the El Paso Sierra Club, the El Paso Trans-Pecos Audubon Society and El Paso Archaeological Society protested the proposed troop additions at a public hearing earlier this week.

Sierra Club spokesman Gayle Eads reminded the audience of El Paso's "critical problems" with water resources, lack of sufficient water treatment facilities and suggested that large numbers of new military personnel can do nothing but worsen the situation.

Community leaders hailed the coming of the 2nd division. William Barnett of the chamber of commerce said, "We feel El Paso has established a reputation as being the best Army town in the U.S."

County Attorney George Rodriguez, speaking as a representative for U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said with the Fort Bliss centennial coming up in 1979, "it would be fitting" for the division to move to El Paso.

'Irreparable damage,' warns governor

'Betrayed' by Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Harold Brown today proposed closing, reducing or consolidating 107 military bases in 30 states and said $337 million a year in savings could be used to strengthen U.S. combat readiness.

The move, already drawing fire in Congress, would result in a net reduction of 23,200 jobs — 14,600 of them military and 8,600 civilian. While some bases would lose personnel, others would gain in the proposed shuffle.

It was the Carter administration's first attempt to streamline the military base structure, and Brown said the actions would "insure the greatest possible efficiency in defense spending for the taxpayer."

Under the law, the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines will have to conduct extensive studies and prepare environmental impact statements in each case before making final decisions. That will take many months.

The new effort to prepare bases comes two years after the Ford administration acted to realign and close 160 bases to save an estimated $248 million annually.

The Carter administration apparently delayed announcement of the politically sensitive base cutbacks until after the Panama Canal treaty ratification by the Senate a week ago, to avoid losing votes.

Congressmen began protesting the projected base reductions when they were briefed by Pentagon teams earlier this week.

"Betrayed," said one congressman whose district would lose an Air Force base.

"Irreparable damage," warned a governor.

"Appalled," said a senator.

"We are deeply concerned," said two senators.

The comments came Tuesday — a day before the Pentagon was to announce what it wants to do with some military installations scattered around the country, in at least in 20 states.

The objective is to save about $300 million a year by closing some bases, cutting back manpower at others and consolidating training camps and other activities.

As an overall goal, the idea of increasing military efficiency and cutting back on waste isn't very controversial. But when the goals turn to action — as in closing a base in a congressman's district — the problems begin.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., was one of the first to speak out. Seven of the targeted bases reportedly were in California.

Cranston said that would mean a net reduction of 11,720 personnel in California, 2,333 of them civilians. He said he expects "the federal government to make every effort to ensure the continued employment of the civilian personnel affected. I expect to see the government live up to its full responsibility in this case."

Hearing of the planned closing of the training center at Fort Jackson, S.C., the South Carolina House quickly approved a resolution requesting Congress and the Army to affirm the fort "as an advantageous, effective and beneficial training center and a permanent military installation."

Estimated 2,200 at Goodfellow

SAN ANGELO — An estimated 2,200 persons, 400 of them civilians, are assigned at Goodfellow AFB, said to be on the Pentagon's list for possible closure.

Of the 1,800 military personnel at the base, upwards of 750 are students.

Many of those affected by a decision to close would be transferred to other bases.

Hill blocks $8 million prison land purchase

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General John Hill today blocked the $8 million purchase of a 6,740-acre prison site near Edinburg by saying it would violate a provision of the 1978-79 appropriation bill.

Hill said a rider in the bill required any purchase of prison land to be made with funds raised from selling the prison system's Blue Ridge Farm property in Harris County.

He then cited a 1955 law saying any proceeds from sale of the farm could be used only for purchasing other land within 75 miles of Huntsville.

"When the rider and the 1955 statute are construed together as they are required to be, the utilization of the Blue Ridge proceeds is mandated," Hill said.

He said the appropriations bill allowed the use of general tax money for a land purchase only after all the Blue Ridge proceeds are spent.

Hill said this disposed of the issue without his having to decide the whether the Hidalgo County site violated an appropriation bill rider that required any new prison to be located in West Texas.

The State Board of Corrections had voted to spend $8 million for the property, with an option to buy another 7,760 acres from the same owners, Big Five Farms, for $6 million.

The approval board for prison land purchases delayed action, however, until Hill's legal opinion could be obtained.

An April 1 expiration date on the state's deal with Big Five Farms also could have blocked the purchase, but this never was clearly resolved.

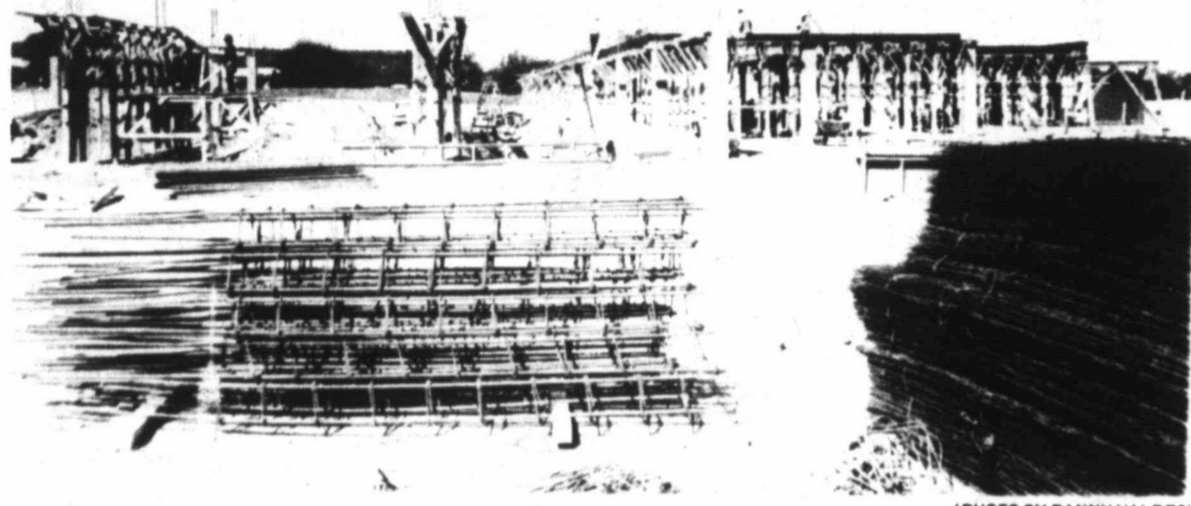

Purchase of the land also was clouded by reports that the previous owner, Wallace Groves, had a prison record and was associated with the late Meyer Lansky, an organized crime figure.

But prison board chairman James Windham said the previous ownership did not obscure the fact, as he saw it, that the purchase was a good deal for the state.

Mark White plans visit here Friday

Mark White, democratic candidate for attorney general, will be in Big Spring Friday.

A coffee and reception will be held from noon to 12:30 at the Chamber of Commerce location at 215 West 3rd Street. Local campaign coordinator, Glynn Mouton is inviting the general public to attend and meet the candidate.

CANTERBURY CLIMBING — The apartment complex called Canterbury, being constructed locally by St. Mary's Episcopal Church at the intersection of W. 17th and Lancaster, has been going up rapidly in recent weeks. The complex will almost full up 3.1 acres at that location and will embrace 120 units.

Juvenile killed, three officers hurt

High speed chase ends in death

ALMA, Texas (AP) — One runaway juvenile was killed and three law enforcement officers were injured in a collision following a high speed chase through North Central Texas Tuesday night.

The chase was along Interstate 45 south of Dallas and reached speeds up to 95 miles per hour, a Department of Public Safety trooper said.

It ended when a pickup truck, carrying two juveniles, collided head-on with an Ellis County Sheriff's patrol car carrying a sheriff's deputy and two Ennis police officers.

A third juvenile in a car had barely avoided the patrol car moments earlier. A highway patrol car traveling 80 miles per hour in pursuit of the truck was about 20 yards behind it when the collision occurred. The troopers went through the accident scene before they could stop.

The juveniles were believed to have stolen as many as five cars as they ran away from Southeast Texas Tuesday.

One youth in the pickup truck died of injuries suffered in the crash. His friend was injured.

Also injured were Ellis County Deputy Sheriff Steve Smith and Ennis police officers John Overall and Jerry Green. They were hospitalized in Dallas.

Trooper Mike Price of Corsicana gave the following account:

Price and Trooper James Baird received a call from RE-ACT, a Citizens Band public service group, that a truck traveling at high speeds had tried to run a motorist off the road.

The DPS unit intercepted the vehicles three miles south of Corsicana and followed them about five miles but did not observe anything wrong. A check was made to see if the cars were stolen but at that time there was no such report in the DPS files.

The truck and car were later determined to be stolen from near Centerville, about 65 miles south of Corsicana.

The troopers dropped back and were stopped by a motorist who said he was run off the road and would file charges.

Price and Baird caught up with the truck about six miles north of Corsicana and tried to pull them over.

The truck slowed and veered toward the shoulder of the road but instead of stopping, sped away.

The chase reached speeds of 95 mph. The truck then slowed, crossed a bar ditch and got on the Interstate 45 northbound service road about a mile south of Alma in Ellis County.

There it rejoined the other car driven by a juvenile. The two vehicles took off again with the DPS in pursuit.

Price said he notified Navarro County officers to tell alert Ellis County officers.

"As we approached Farm Road 85 intersection, I observed the El Camino veer off the roadway to the right and into the grass. I caught a glimpse of the Ellis County unit (patrol car) in his lane. He dodged the El Camino and the pickup truck veered into his lane and met head on," Price said.

"We were behind them about 20 yards at that time we were probably running close to 85. We drove through the accident before we could get stopped."

Trans Regional's ax due to fall today

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Aeronautics Commission gave notice today it will consider a final order at its next meeting cancelling Trans Regional Air's authority for air service between Big Spring and Dallas.

The route has been suspended since May 6, 1977, at the request of the airline which said Big Spring had not generated sufficient traffic to support the service. Trans Regional has not asked that the suspension be lifted.

Former DA Green guilty of lewdness

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today upheld the public lewdness conviction of former District Attorney Billy Ray Green of Palestine, who was arrested with another man in a peepshow here.

Green was assessed a $400 fine and a 10-day probated jail sentence following a jury trial here.

He was disbarred and removed from office as district attorney of Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties in February by a district judge at Palestine. His lawyers said they would appeal that action.

At Green's public lewdness trial in Austin, a plainclothes policeman who took part in his Jan. 18, 1977, arrest testified he saw Green perform fellatio on a man in a booth at the Mr. Peepers Book Store.

Green denied this and said he had merely bent over to insert a quarter into the peepshow machine when the policemen burst into the viewing room.

Green's appeal said he was denied a fair trial because the judge did not charge the jury to decide whether Green knew he was in a public place and knowingly engaged in a sex deviation.

ESCORTED TO OPERA — Joan Kennedy, escorted by Richard Linzer, head of Massachusetts Arts and Humanities Foundation, arrives at Hynes Auditorium in Boston Tuesday night for performance by the Metropolitan Opera. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's office denied reports in two New York newspapers Tuesday that his wife, Joan, has moved out on him.

Action/reaction: No credit yet

Q. Is the Internal Revenue Service offering any credits to homeowners who have insulated their residences? I read last year that tax cuts up to $225 had been allowed for such improvements.

A. No credit yet. The legislation which would have authorized it hasn't come out of the conference level, although the IRS reserved two lines in the 1977 Form 1040 for reporting insulation expenses. If an energy tax credit is passed and made retroactive, the IRS will inform taxpayers how to claim the credit. Meanwhile, save your receipts.

Calendar: Political forum

THURSDAY

Candidates for Howard County elected offices and district judge will be featured in the last of the political forums presently scheduled by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The forum will begin at 7 p.m. at the Amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park.

Beautification Committee of Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, meets, 3 p.m., Chamber Conference Room.

Show for triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. John Best, Coahoma Elementary School Cafeteria, 7:30 p.m.

AFSA Chapter of ex-enlisted personnel of the Air Force Chapter 1001 meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the American Legion Post.

Offbeat: Peanut kids

NEW YORK (AP) — "I didn't know school was like this," 4-year-old Stefanie Burdick whispered shyly on her first day of school.

She had just won a sack race and received plenty of free peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, plus two peanut plants of her own.

Stefanie and about 70 other youngsters from Manhattan preschools each received peanut seeds and a flower pot in which to plant them. They'll return in August to collect prizes for the best-decorated pots and the best-looking peanut plants.

The peanut day Monday was sponsored by the Peanut Association, representing Georgia and Alabama peanut farmers, and the city Parks and Recreation Department.

Tops on TV: 'Siege'

The premiere showing of "Siege," the 8 p.m. movie on channel seven concerns a community terrorized by a neighborhood gang. Or, for news buffs, former President Gerald Ford talks with John Chancellor about international relations during his administration and their effect on Carter administration policies. The news special begins at 9 p.m. on channel two.

Inside: 'Children in Crisis'

LEGISLATORS SPOUT OFF about child abuse but won't vote the funds to do something about it, a county commissioner has told lawmakers. See p. 8A.

JOSEPH AND EDNA REYES will be buried today beside the son they loved more than life. Despondent after their 17-year-old son, the couple committed suicide. See p. 3B.

Willie's 'Amazing Grace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Yup," agreed Willie Nelson, with a grin that'd stop a truck. "Big beer joint."

Classiest one in his 30-odd years of beer joints, he figured. The White House. Not bad for Willie Nelson.

He'll bring his guitar, a scarred-up old Martin with musicians' names etched in the wood, and he'll probably do "Amazing Grace," just so the boss can catch up on choir practice.

Jimmy Carter, known as the country boy who brought Vladimir Horowitz to the White House, is playing host to Willie Nelson, live and in concert, next September.

Not to knock Horowitz, the classical pianist, but some of the 12,000 folks who heard Nelson, the country picker, and two top Carter aides do "Amazing Grace" on stage Monday night at the Capital Centre auditorium probably think Willie at the White House is a step in the right direction.

The aides were Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, and Frank Moore, the Carter's chief Capitol Hill lobbyist. Seems they had a beer or two. And Moore missed his 8:15 a.m. appointment Tuesday with the president.

Carter phoned, a bit unhappy, to find his errand aide.

"It was a Bloody Mary morning," groaned Moore after taking Willie; his wife, Connie; sickieck Wayland Jennings' wife, Jessi Colter; Jennings' son, Buddy, and a guitar player to lunch.

"And you can't get 'em (Bloody Marys) at the White House mess."

Jennings, who'd probably heard the White House is no beer joint at all, stayed away.

"He's loose on the town," said Moore, ruefully.

After touring the executive mansion where he'll entertain in the fall, Willie Nelson, toggled in blue jeans, a red and black checked lumberjack shirt, tan boots and a canvass hat, encountered Jimmy Carter in a dark suit and matching tie.

"Missed your voice at choir practice last night," said Willie.

"I know all the words," said the president.

Polio victim shot by cops

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Police Chief Wesley Smith said today his department will conduct an internal investigation to determine whether two officers were justified in fatally shooting a 44-year-old Fort Worth man on crutches Tuesday night as he stood in front of a residence.

They fired 10 shots at Charles R. Martin, 44, hitting him four times.

He was pronounced dead shortly after 8 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Richard Self. An autopsy was ordered, but preliminary indications were he died from a wound near the heart. Martin reportedly was a polio victim.

Detective Lt. Arnold Landgraf said he understood Martin was visiting his sister in San Angelo. Police investigated, he said, after a neighbor called police shortly before 8 p.m. Tuesday and complained that Martin "was shooting up the neighborhood."

Martin, standing on crutches, was armed with a 22-caliber pistol, Landgraf said.

"The police told him to put his gun down, but he didn't. They shot him cold," a neighbor said.

The police chief said his officers told him they advised Martin repeatedly to drop his weapon.

"Rather than complying with the officers' request, the subject fired at the officers and the officers returned fire, wounding the subject," Smith said in a news release to the news media.

Martin was taken to Shannon Hospital, where he was pronounced dead shortly after 8 o'clock by the justice of the peace.

The police chief released few details about the shooting but said his department will be making a routine investigation into the matter. Other agencies will not be involved in the probe, he said.

AMM to step up lobbying

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Delegates to the American Agriculture movement convention have approved plans to establish a permanent lobbying office in Washington and to continue holding down crop production.

The basic priority of the movement will continue to be a 50 percent cutback in crop production, or the most the farmer can handle economically, farmers decided.

Burn seminar is scheduled In amphitheater Thursday night

The Permian Basin Regional Seminar, "The Burn Patient" will be held Saturday, April 29, at the Odessa College Student Union Building.

The seminar is sponsored by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission in cooperation with Regional Burn Demonstration program and A. Webb Roberts Center.

It is jointly sponsored by the University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas and Baylor University Medical Center.

There is a registration fee of $4.50 which includes lunch and the seminar begins at 8:30 a.m. lasting until 4 p.m.

It is especially geared to train persons in what to do about burn patients. The Permian Basin region has many burn victims in the oil field.

The course includes such discussions as acute wound care, acute problems of burns and families, fluid resuscitation, respiratory injury and emergency care and transportation of burn patients.

It is believed by the sponsoring group that lives may be saved by knowledge about burn victims. Physicians, nurses, P.T., O.T., EMT paramedics and others are urged to attend.

For additional information, write Burn Care Seminar, PBRPC, Box 6391, Midland 79701 or contact J.P. Anderson at 563-1061.

Voters will have the rare opportunity to quiz Howard County candidates and district judge hopefuls at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the amphitheater in Comanche Trail Park.

Candidates invited to make brief talks and answer written questions at the open forum as listed on the Democratic ballot are: District Judge: 1. James Gregg; 2. George Thomas.

County Judge: 1. Billie Carr; 2. Milton Kirby; 3. Bill Tunc; 4. Frankie Boyd; 5. Jack Buchanan.

Art works will be on display

A special showing of the western works of Justin Wells and the sculptures and paintings of Jim Thomas will be held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ron Cohorn tonight.

On Friday, the artists and their works will be featured at a display at Security State Bank with the showing to continue on Saturday at Ye Olde Pottery Shoppe.

The public is invited to the Friday and Saturday showings to see outstanding works of western art, according to Mrs. Sherry Wenger, who is sponsoring the three day show.

NOT A CANDIDATE — Scott Crownover of Denton was at the Airport Monday with his grandmother, Mrs. Myra Robinson, waiting for Ray Hutchison, gubernatorial hopeful for Dallas to arrive. Scott was getting almost as much attention from the visiting Houston press with his new pet horned toad as the candidate was receiving. But Scott doesn't intend to turn his horned toad loose to run for anything.

New structure is completed

The Coors Wholesale Distribution Center and hospital room is completed at their location on the South Service Road off IS 20.

Roy Collins, manager, said the open house will be held next month on Saturday, May 27 from 2-7 p.m. At that time, company officials will be present and refreshments will be served during the afternoon.

The facility is already being used for some occasions and will be one of the meeting places for the District Lions Club meeting this weekend.

Emzie Huletty on probation

Emzie Huletty Jr., 28, Detroit, was sentenced to seven years probation on charges of auto theft.

Huletty entered his guilty plea in 118th District Court Tuesday. He was indicted on the charge in March by a Howard County grand jury.

Included in the sentence handed down by District Judge Ralph Caton was restitution of $3,500 to Shroyer Motor Company.

Probated term is revoked

Daniel Ortega Diaz, 23, 511 NW 8th, was revoked from probation for five years in the Texas Department of Corrections. Diaz, who had been placed on probation for burglary, was revoked for failure to report to his probation officer.

The revocation took place in 118th District Court Tuesday under District Judge Ralph Caton.

College rodeo teams in front

The Howard College rodeo teams are leading the region with just one rodeo left in the season and stand in good position to be among the top two teams, eligible to compete at a national level at Bozeman, Montana.

In the rodeo over the past weekend at Hardin Simmons, the girls came in second as a team with Pam Mitchell placing first in the goat tying and Tere Teague won the breakaway. Both of these girls are leading these events at a regional level.

Hank Adams got second in the calf roping. Jess Knight, won the saddle bronc riding and got fifth in the bareback event. He is leading the region in saddle broncs.

The final rodeo for the year will be at John Tarleton May 4-6. Skipper Driver coaches the college rodeo team.

Damage suit transferred

An $800,000 lawsuit for damages was transferred from Garden City to Big Spring in 118th District Court on a plea of privileged Tuesday.

Styled Gwendolyn Hunter, individually and as survivor of the estate of John Leslie Hunter, vs. Paul Adams, Bob Covington, B.J. Waldrop, doing business as Wildrop Co., the suit asks for damages due to alleged negligence in the death of Hunter.

He was overcome by hydrogen sulfide fumes while working at a well owned by Waldrop Co. in 1975 near Midland.

Voters can quiz candidates

County Commissioner, Precinct 2; 1. Ikie Rupard; 2. Curtis Crabtree; 3. Paul Allen; 4. Bill Bennett.

County Commissioner, Precinct 4; 1. Bill Westbrook; 2. Terry Hanson; 3. Merle Stroup; 4. James Baird; 5. David Barr.

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 2; 1. Jerry Roach; 2. Bob Smith; 3. Gus Ochotorena; 4. Lewis Hefflin.

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2; 1. Lula Adams; 2. Robert McIntosh.

Written questions may be submitted in advance at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce office, 215 W. Third St. The forum is sponsored by the governmental affairs committee of the chamber. Bob Taylor of KBYG radio station will be moderator.

Texas is now one of the easiest states for voters to register.

That's one of Secretary of State Steve Oaks' brags, says Mrs. Dorothy Moore, chief deputy, Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector.

If you are from out-of-state, or from another county, just go down to the courthouse tax office 30 days before any election to register.

Mrs. Moore suggests bringing your old registration card with you, so Howard County vote officials can notify your former voting place of the change.

If you did not register by April 6 you will have to skip the state primary, May 6. Voters must be registered in the precinct they vote. So get ready to sign up for the general election in November.

There are 14,558 registered voters in Howard County.

Absentee voting is brisk with 134 votes cast Tuesday afternoon. Absentee voting will continue through May 2 in the office of County Clerk Margaret Ray. The polls are open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Mail ballots which are returned by the time the polls close on May 6 will be counted.

How much money does it take to wage a political

Center studies recovery plan

Members of the Ohio State University Disaster Research Center are in Big Spring to study its disaster recovery plan.

According to a letter sent to City Manager Harry Nagel, the center is funded by the National Science Foundation, and studies cities across the country to see how they plan to react and have reacted to natural disasters that have struck.

Studies cover disasters as diverse as tornadoes and dangerous chemical emissions from train wrecks.

Several other Texas cities are currently under study by the group, according to its representative here, Quinten T. Johnson. So far Johnson has interviewed Nagel, W.D. Berry, Big Spring Civil Defense director, and members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Incumbent Gov. Dolph Briscoe is running even with Attorney General John Hill for the Democratic nomination. Former Gov. Preston Smith is far behind, but will probably win enough votes to force a Briscoe-Hill run-off. Briscoe is backed by all of labor (including the UAW which leaned to Hill, but Hill has most liberals and considerable momentum.

"In the GOP race, former Deputy Defense Secretary Bill Clements has promised to spend up to $1.3 million of his own funds to defeat former GOP State Chairman Ray Hutchison."

Studies' faculty includes BS pair

The 5th annual Permian Basin Regional Institute on Alcohol and Drug Abuse Studies will be held this year at Midland College May 19.

Sponsors include the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, Governor's Committee on Aging and the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council.

The faculty will include Clyde and Evelyn Alsop from the Big Spring State Hospital. Clyde is program director for Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program at the hospital and Evelyn is senior counselor.

Others on the faculty will include Dr. Carl Anderson, Texas Tech; John Fenner and Mike Ross from Permian Basin MH-MR; Dr. Gene Seale, medical director at Starlite Village in Kerrville; Brenda Shepherd, Texas Commission on Alcoholism; Richard Smith, Permian Basin Community Centers and Carol Stapleton, Texas Tech.

Discussions will include counseling the alcoholic family, "How to Turn Your Kid Into a Junkie" group dynamics, alcoholism and special populations, alcohol and aging, female with a problem, detoxification and long-term sobriety, and other courses.

Registration fee prior to May 19 is $6 and $8 at the door. Lunch is an additional $3.

Burglars break into school

Sheriff's deputies are investigating a breaking-and-entering at Elbow Elementary School Tuesday night. The intruders apparently entered the building by breaking the window on the south side of the building.

They broke glass in a window leading into the secretary's office and kicked in a panel in the door into the principal's office, but other than the damage and clean up costs, no loss was sustained by the school.

Damage was estimated at approximately $100.

Cub's meeting set Thursday

Boys 8, 9 and 10 years of age, especially those residing in the Moss Elementary district, are urged to come with their parents to a Cub information meeting Thursday. It will be at 7 p.m. in the Phillips Baptist Church recreation hall at Fifth and State.

Wm. T. McRee, who is seeking to help organize a pack, said that Guy Burrow and Lee Lowery are assisting with two groups, and that he hoped possibly one or two more dens might be set up.

"This is a parent-boy relationship," explained McRee, "so it is necessary to have mother and dad, or one at least, attend with the boy." He said the program will not interfere with other activities, and that attempts will be made to organize before the end of school, maintain some activity during summer, then step up action in the autumn.

Five legged lamb

with Marj Carpenter

Mrs. Don Mincey of Big Spring reports that her father, M.L. Wood of Crews, has been getting a lot of attention over a five legged lamb.

M.L. Wood has been living on the same Runnels County stock farm since he was born and has raised sheep most of his life.

A livestock weekly recently pointed out that since rain has been woefully short, he uses feed of "his own raising" to feed his lambs.

That to him, is just routine, and he has always battled drought with hard work.

But he has gotten more attention over the five legged lamb than he has all of his 50 years of raising sheep.

The lamb is a Rambouillet-Columbia Cross, and was born in a set of triplets Oct. 15.

Eskimos win injunction

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's Eskimos won a federal court injunction temporarily blocking government plans to allow mining and related development in 30,000 square miles around their village at Baker Lake, in the Northwest Territories.

The Inuits, taking their first action against the federal government on the basis of aboriginal rights, claimed the proposed development would drive off the caribou herds on which they rely for food. They plan to seek a permanent injunction.

M. L. WOODS
With five-legged lamb

The lamb's mother had never seen anything like it either and simply walked away and left it lying on the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood raised the lamb on a bottle. The fifth leg is on the right side and serves no useful purpose. The lamb has a certain amount of control and can move it, but it throws him off balance and results in most of his weight going to the left foreleg.

Wood said, "The extra leg is relatively little hindrance to him in his get-along."

Though Wood is not a big sheepman as measured by the large ranches, he keeps 200-250 ewes. He breeds most for fall lambs and has about 400 acres of cultivated land and 200 of pasture.

"Part of it's rocky," he admitted, "but it's our old home place and I've always made it — growing wheat, oats, milo and hay and raising lambs." He gave up cotton in the '60s because he got tired of battling with the oil weevils.

The scholarship is awarded each year to a freshman journalism student entering Angelo State. A student receiving the award as a freshman journalism student entering Angelo State. A student receiving the award as a freshman is eligible to apply for renewal each year providing the student maintains good academic standing and makes significant contributions to the ASU journalism program.

Students selected for the Cope scholarship must enroll in ASU as journalism majors and must agree to work as staff members on one of the campus student publications.

At least four awards are made each year by the scholarship selection committee with awards going to freshman,

J.W. Wood, who were the grandparents of Big Spring's Mrs. Mincey, settled on the place about 1901. The first sheep on the stock farm were M.L. Woods 4-H lambs.

From that start, he built up a flock which at times has 275 ewes.

Woods is thinking about selling the five-legged lamb. He's had several offers. But he has become kind of attached to the lamb.

In fact, he hasn't been that attached to a lamb since the days he raised 4-H club lambs.

Wood used to pen the ewes at night during lambing but in recent years he has been letting them lamb on pasture or fields without his help. He sort of lets nature take its course but puts plenty of feed out for the ewes.

But if nature had taken its course, the five legged lamb would be dead. Because the mother simply went off and left it.

And M.L. Woods feels like this is his very own lamb — out by a fence in Runnels County that has long belonged to the Woods clan.

Weather

Storms rumble in West Texas

By the Associated Press
Thunderstorms were expected to rumble across West Texas today. Forecasters said there was a slight chance of widely scattered thunderstorms in the western half of the state.

Some thunderstorms were reported during the night in Southwest Texas, but the rainfall amounts were light. Marfa, for example, got only .21 of an inch while Wink had only .05 of an inch.

Early morning fog reduced visibility to near zero at Brownsville and other dense fog was reported along lower sections of the Texas coast.

Forecasters called for partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures statewide. Afternoon highs were expected to be mostly in the 70s with readings reaching the 80s in Southeast Texas and in the lower 90s in the flatland area of Big Bend country in Southwest Texas.

Before you put your 1977 Form 1040 out of your mind, take a moment to be thankful you live in Texas.

"All of the other major industrial states have both a corporate and a personal income tax. Texas has neither. Texas needs neither. And as long as I'm Governor, Texas will have neither."

April 15th could have been a lot worse. Because in every other major industrial state, taxpayers face a second tax form painfully similar to 1040 — a Tax bill for around 5% right off the top of their annual gross income. People living in these states are paying the price of a state government that spends beyond its means, creating budgetary havoc that can only be resolved by placing an added tax burden on every citizen.

Other states — and the Federal government — would do well to follow the example Governor Briscoe has set in Texas. Under his leadership, Texas has had a government of fiscal responsibility. With firmly established policies of restraint in state spending. Coupled with encouraging new industries to move to Texas' outstanding climate for investment. The resulting economic expansion has helped create greater economic prosperity and improved state services — without new taxes. For the last five years, Governor Briscoe has worked hard to restrict governmental spending. And he has kept our budget in the black.

In contrast, his most active opponent in this year's Democratic Primary has said "yes" to the demands of virtually every spending lobby in Texas. And in the process this opponent has made one overriding promise to the people of Texas: If he is elected and his spending promises are kept, there will be new taxes — most likely a state income tax — imposed on Texans in the near future. This would be bad for the state, burdensome to our taxpayers, stifling to our economy and a direct contributor to inflation.

Instead Governor Briscoe wants to give our taxpayers an additional break. He will propose to the next session of the legislature that we use at least half of our current revenue surplus to repeal the State Sales Tax on utility bills and to provide meaningful tax relief for the homeowner and the family farmer.

Briscoe For Texas
John Hill For Taxes

A vote for Governor Briscoe on May 6th is a vote for fiscal responsibility, economic prosperity and April 15ths without a state income tax.

Nation having problems with oil glut

We are at a unique time in history. Energy experts tell us we are fast running out of oil, yet we are glutted with it.

More of the black gold is showing up in California than can be handled. The Alaskan oil fields and pipeline are productive beyond expectations. Consequently, the oil arriving on the west coast can't be distributed fast enough.

The Alaskan wells are producing 1.1 billion barrels a day — twice what the California refineries can handle.

As a result, California-produced petroleum — ten per cent of the national total — is being pushed out of its own market.

THE PRODUCERS in Alaska are getting a little disenchanted. They're not reaping the profits anticipated. Ships which formerly stopped at west coast ports are now being routed through the Panama Canal to refineries along the Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi coasts. The big hangup now is a shortage of tankers, and that escalating costs for moving the precious fluid.

The situation in America is a matter of some concern in the Middle East. Saudi Arabia, for one, is restricting its own production in hopes of firming the market for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

As a group, the alliance's nations are producing more oil than they can sell. That might indicate a price reduction. In reality, it bids to have the opposite effect. OPEC hopes for another price hike, needing only an affirmative vote from Saudi Arabia.

THE MIDDLE EAST oil potentives are rightfully pictured as people with too much money who have to have five or six of everything. However, the countries themselves are strapped for cash and have been boosting production, without a thought about tomorrow, beyond what the world markets can absorb. Some price discounting, not much, has been taking place. The oil from Alaska's North Slope isn't the best quality. We know of refiners who do not want it. Many processors prefer Indonesian oil when they can get it.

Our problems in energy are going to remain with us unless and until our country can come up with a workable energy policy, one of long-range planning and conservation. Sooner or later, some kind of regulatory body may have to be set up to control distribution of oil on a worldwide basis because the present glut cannot long continue and scarcity of the commodity means its flow will be controlled by priorities.

American way?

Bob Burton

Around the rim

"No man is an island," wrote John Donne a long time ago. But some people never cease to try.

Big Spring residents are apparently going to be treated to the latest version of this nonsense as public roads paid for by you and me become private roads for the use of those who live on them.

The bone of contention appears to be the gate to Comanche Trail Park where Whipkey Drive gives access from Wasson Drive through to the Tennis Center and Comanche Trail Park near the big spring. Don't know where I mean? Go drive down Wasson, and instead of turning into the main gates of Comanche Trail Park, turn in and go past the main gates down past Belvedere Drive. The road to the left leads to the Tennis Center. The road straight ahead leads to the Big Spring and the park. You are sitting on the bone of contention.

APPARENTLY RESIDENTS of the suburb on your left (I assume you are still sitting in front of the gates) resent the through traffic passing from over near the First Baptist Church on FM 700 through their rear via Coronado Drive. They get rabid over everything from speeding trucks to speeding teenagers who zip through their quiet streets on their way to the park. They want the two rear gates closed.

Another element supporting closing the gates, although for different reasons, is the city. Under the "Master Plan," which city officials admit is closer to a fruit salad of ideas than a main course for the future, the gates would be closed "under a long range plan to close that street and alleviate traffic problems."

The city holds that the bend in Whipkey to your rear (still facing the twin gates?) is dangerous to speeders, and accidents have occurred there.

What the city wants is a wall, fence, curtain, right across the road where you are. Traffic to the tennis center would have to enter and exit through the main gates to the park, and reach their destination by shuttling past the big spring and down the road to the tennis center.

What the residents want is some relief from the traffic near their homes.

What I want is FM 700, which forms my front yard, put completely underground by the city so all those stinky cars and trucks won't make noise, smell, or otherwise endanger my peace of mind. I want tulips planted on top. That doesn't mean I'm going to get it.

I suggest that if the residents of the suburb on your left (still there, are you?) decide through traffic is not acceptable, they wall themselves in with a gate across Belvedere. Let them inconvenience themselves rather than everybody else.

THE CITY'S SOLUTION, the blockaded road, will only mean that persons cutting through will have to drive 20 yards further to get into the park. Surely they will continue their offensive ways.

And although blocking Belvedere would mean the rest of the city might have less contact with those shut in (surely a good thing), it still amounts to us paying to keep them living in the style to which they are accustomed. When they moved in, they got a deed, not a marriage license. They knew the park was there. For utter quiet, better not to live cheek-by-jowl with the other 29,000 residents of this city.

And the city's solution seems to me not to have the sense God gave a soda cracker. If every road which has accidents on it was closed, we would hike to work on Mondays. And the intersection which makes Whipkey look silly, that of Wasson and FM 700, would have to bear the additional traffic.

In short, you can start your car now and drive away, confident that the best route will not be followed, and that Donne's island will be funded by your pocketbook. But isn't that the American Way?

Verdict on Carter

Evans, Novak

SPRINGFIELD, Neb. — Voters of both parties in this farm hamlet were diagnosed what they think ails Jimmy Carter's presidency as follows: incompetence and indecision.

Whether this diagnosis points to terminal political illness, however, is an open question. The President retains a large measure of good will. Thus, although only 16 of our 55 voters rate his presidential performance "good" or "excellent," and 39 say "fair" or "poor," fully one-half say they still have a "favorable" opinion of him as a person.

But the down-to-earth criticism of one retired farmer, a Democrat, hints that time may be running out. "I don't think Carter is big enough for the job." One of 17 Carter voters in our survey of political sentiment here (25 backed Jerry Ford, and 13 don't recall or would not say how they voted in 1976), this farmer says he now wishes he had voted for Ford.

FOUR ADDITIONAL voters who backed the President in 1976 now say they wish they had not, an unusually high defection rate. Only one Ford voter who answered our questionnaire, prepared by Pat Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, wishes he had voted for Mr. Carter.

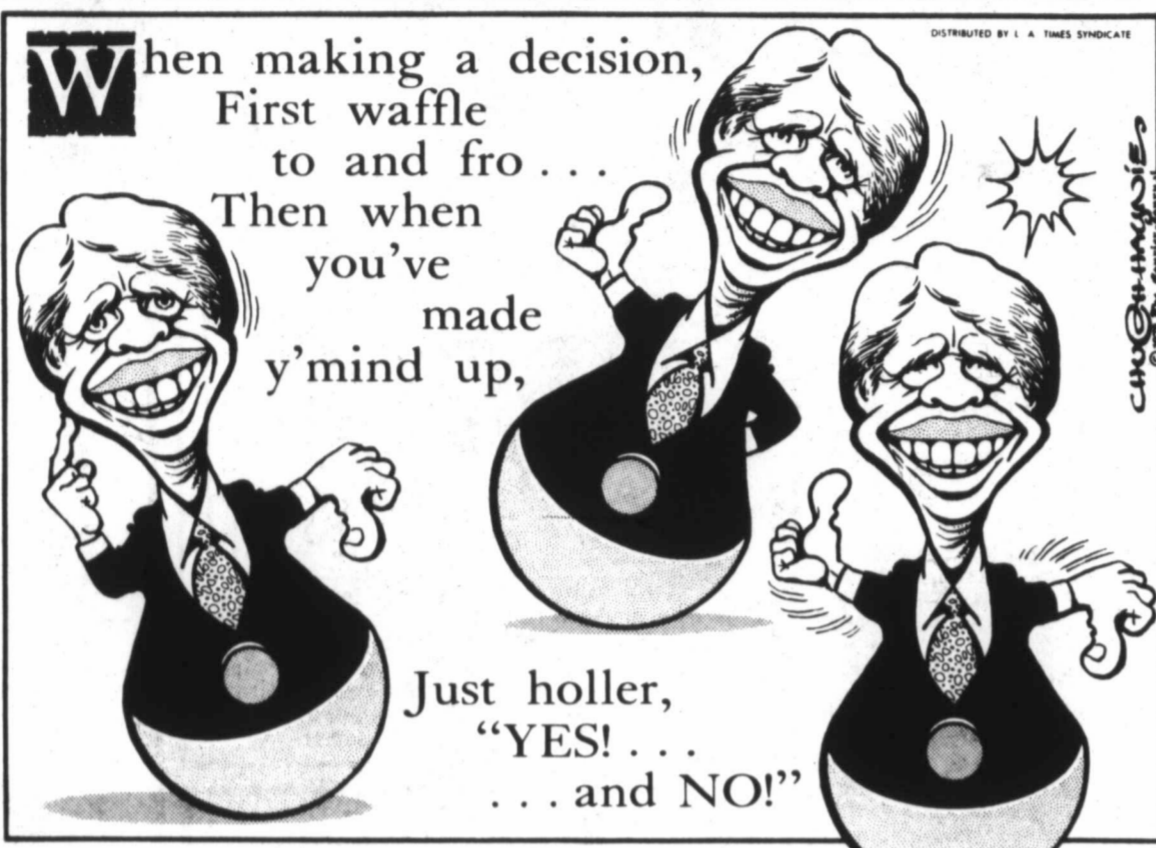

On one major issue after another — inflation, farm policy, handling the Soviet Union, defense spending — our scouting expedition produced failing marks for the President on general grounds of incompetence and waffling. The sole exception: his efforts to settle the Arab-Israeli struggle in the Middle East, which gained solid 2-to-1 support.

Behind that praise for Mr. Carter's dealing with the Middle East may lie a lesson for the President: the political importance of follow-through. Ringing doorbells with three Caddell field representatives on a day of rain, snow and frigid winds on the bleak Nebraska prairie, we found high praise for Mr. Carter's consistency in trying to mediate between Arab and Jew. On other issues, he is charged with lacking conviction, receiving less than 50 per cent approval even for "trying" to solve the energy crisis.

THE DOMINANT theme was struck by an attractive, 36-year-old waitress. "If the man would just say something and stick to it!" she blurted out. "That would make a difference." She backed Ford in 1976, but only "as the lesser of two evils." A 35-year-old computer maintenance man, whose job is 30 miles east of here in Omaha, agreed. He voted for Mr. Carter and would vote for him again today but called him "too hesitant" on decisions. "There are so many things he said he would do and he hasn't shown that he can do any of them."

By far the major worry here is inflation, along with other economic problems. Thirty-one of our voters listed inflation as the "most important" issue. Indeed, the prevailing lack of confidence in Mr. Carter bodes ill for his new anti-inflation program and might turn Ambassador Robert Strauss's silver hair gray. Only 19 voters "generally approve of the way Mr. Carter is trying to handle" the inflation disease (against 31 who disapprove and 5 who do not know). But the President's new anti-inflation program, using Strauss's virtuoso jawbone as his principal weapon, appears singularly unconvincing in Springfield: only 4 voters think it will work, 22 say it will not work and 29 are dubious.

Neither Springfield nor Nebraska as a whole represents majority opinion in the U.S. This is hawkish country, built on a farm economy. Thus, by almost 2-to-1, our respondents "generally disapprove" of Mr. Carter's handling of Moscow. On questions whether he is "too tough" or "too weak" on the Soviets, and whether he is spending "too much" or "too little" on defense, an identical 31 voters say "too weak" and "too little."

Breathing problem can be laid to allergy

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has had a swelling on his face, his lips, his cheek, and sometimes on half his tongue. He also may get welts on his buttocks. He has had this for the past 10 years.

The last time, he awoke in the middle of the night and his whole tongue was swollen and he had trouble breathing. He had to be taken to the hospital for shots of adrenalin and Benadryl. They called it angioedema, an advanced allergy.

He has been in the habit of having a bedtime snack of a cereal and milk. I don't know if that is the problem. What do you suggest? — Mrs. M.A.C.

The periodic swelling may be due to an allergy to food or to a drug such as aspirin. I needn't tell you how serious this can be when it affects the air passages, for you have had a firsthand encounter.

It seems unusual that he has had this problem for 10 years without getting some advice. You should start right away keeping a diary of foods or medicines taken eight hours before an attack. You may not have to look further than the bedtime snack. Both wheat and milk are prime allergic offenders. This would be true even if the attacks are not every night. Nerves are frequently very much a part of the picture with hives. A particularly hectic day at work is sufficient to reinforce a natural allergy and bring them on. You may be able to correlate the attacks with emotions.

Benadryl (diphenhydramine) and the Adrenalin (epinephrine) are commonly used in attacks. The former is an antihistamine and the latter acts on the nervous system. The swellings are caused by a release of histamine in the body. You should ask your doctor if you should not have some medicine on hand in the event of another serious attack.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am married to a traveling man. This means that we spend several months to a year in one state, then move to another. My problem is the continual switching of doctors. God knows how I've been able to keep things straight up to now. But it is always an ordeal, beginning afresh with treatment, diagnosis, etc. I have had peculiar menstrual problems, which do seem under control by this doctor. Who knows about the next? How do I break the ice with a new doctor and get the record straight? — Mrs. H.H.

Simple. When you make the next move tell your present doctor in advance. He may even be able to recommend a colleague in the next town. At any rate, you can tell him he can be expecting some communication from a new physician about your situation. It would be simpler, of course, to have the present doctor prepare a brief medical history before you leave. He can also transfer your records to the new doctor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am in my mid-30s and have arthritis. I am also pregnant. I have heard that the arthritis has a chance of easing up during pregnancy. Is this true? Also, will the improvement, if any, last after the pregnancy? What are the chances that my baby will also have arthritis? Is it hereditary? — Mrs. J.E.

Some arthritis patients do improve during pregnancy. Sorry to say, the symptoms usually return afterwards. The reason for the improvement is not entirely clear, but it is thought to be due to the increased steroid hormone production in the body that comes with pregnancy.

run-off...through perseverance, determination and a driving desire to represent all of us. This is not my observation, but that of the "pros"...the political writers whose job it is to follow the campaign trails.

I've traveled with Jim Baum. I've seen him go door-to-door asking for votes one at a time because he knows they're counted one at a time. I've seen him go into the pastures and visit with farmers and ranchers. I've seen him visit with businessmen and housewives...I've seen this man in action and when a man of Jim Baum's calibre goes door-to-door, business-to-business and pasture-to-pasture, that's action...action that's paying off all across these 33 counties. Don't tell ME he can't win. He CAN...but not without the support of each of us.

I imagine I represent many Howard County residents. I've never been a winner in a contest of any sort. But let me assure you we can ALL be winners by voting absentee now or in the Democratic Primary May 6...for Jim Baum. Then we won't have to ask "What ever happened to Big Spring?"

Ronnie Schmidt
1106 Birdwell Lane

Dear Editor: Unfortunately, it continues to be true that our youth are hastily and frequently condemned but too seldom praised.

Last Thursday and Friday, the students and faculty at Big Spring High School set an example for their parents and all other adults to follow. These kids are subject to "chickenitis" just like anybody else. A needle going into your arm doesn't feel any better at 17 than it does at 65. These students overcame that fear and donated 123 pints of blood. That represents the largest high school Bloodmobile ever conducted in West Texas.

Saturday and Sunday there will be a communitywide Bloodmobile conducted in Big Spring. I wonder if the adults of Howard County want to accept the challenge that the Big Spring High School has given them? In reality, the humanitarian act would have to come from the patients in the local hospitals who require blood or blood components to actually save their life or to hasten their recovery. On their behalf, however, let me express thanks to a group of outstanding students of which we can all be proud.

BLOOD SERVICE

Dear Editor: I am writing this letter in regard to the 17th District Congressional race for United States Congressman and specifically in support of Big Spring Jim Baum, a candidate for the position to be vacated by the retiring Omar Burleson.

Jim and his family have lived in Big Spring since 1965. He is a man who has four children in the public schools, a man who has served his community whenever called upon in order to make Big Spring a better place in which to live.

Since Jim announced his candidacy Sept. 23, 1978, he has heard periodically "I'm going to vote for Jim, but I don't think he has much of a chance."

I'd like to answer to teh contrary. After some 27,000 miles of driving and some 900 miles of walking door-to-door in the District's 33 counties, an area that covers 30,000 square miles, this man, who started virtually at the bottom of the political ladder, now has an excellent chance of making the

Mailbag

Dear Editor: Your coverage of candidates' views has been followed with great interest by the voters, but little has been heard from the candidates for District Judge. This is a very important office, and one that will have a direct impact on the lives of many voters here in Howard County.

I believe that the voters would be interested in hearing how these two men feel about the many important issues involving the District Court.

For instance, the new "Speedy Trial Law" is largely a mystery to the layman, and its interpretation and implementation should be explained. Another area of concern is the selection of grand jury members and petit jurors — the same people seem to serve again and again, which limits participation by other citizens.

Other questions of critical importance are the timely disposition of criminal cases in District Court, delays in civil cases (such as divorces) and plea bargaining.

I would like to suggest a public debate between the candidates for District Judge so that their individual viewpoints on these and other issues can be fully aired. The planned Public Forum is a good idea, but by nature limits the candidates to a few minutes each for a statement of their background, experience and basic positions.

How about it, Mr. Thomas and Mr. Gregg — just how do you stand on the issues?

Ms. Sandra Sawyer

Who's investing?

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have reported on the buying of America by Arab oil potentates and other foreign tycoons. We recently disclosed, for example, that European businessmen have siphoned funds through dummy corporations in the Dutch Antilles to snap up choice American acreage.

The federal government may have seriously underestimated the number of farms that are winding up in foreign hands. According to official U.S. figures, foreign purchasers were involved in less than 21 percent of all farm sales in this country last year. But private experts tell us that the actual total was nearly twice that high.

Gerald Jackson is president of the American Real Estate Exchange (AMEREX), which is the largest real estate combine dealing with foreign clients. He estimates that overseas buyers were behind at least 40 percent of the land sales last year. His company alone transacted $100 million worth of farm sales to buyers from abroad. Foreign money is the "dominant force," he said, in U.S. agricultural investment today.

THE NATION'S biggest banks are now bidding to get a share of the rural real estate market. They have set up special divisions to lure foreign capital, and they are rapidly expanding investments into agricultural lands.

A major factor behind the foreign takeover is the soggy state of the U.S. dollar compared to other currencies. The decline of the dollar on the international exchange has been triggered by our soaring balance of payments deficit. This has been caused, in turn, by our heavily expensive imports of oil from the Middle East.

The oil dollars have been accumulating like autumn leaves around the world. So the European money marts are now unloading their piles of dollars for American farmland, one of the soundest investments.

European capitalists are also spurred by the hot breath of the communists to invest their money in America. Prior to the recent French elections when a turn to the left was anticipated, AMEREX had 32 French customers eager to buy land in this country. All but two lost interest after the voters retained the more right-wing coalition government of Giscard d'Estaing.

Not long ago, AMEREX sponsored a conference in Zurich, Switzerland, to push American real estate. Billed as a conference for "confidential discussions," it attracted hundreds of buyers and sellers. On the buyers' side were Arabs and Europeans; on the sellers' side were real estate dealers, property owners, private lending institutions and banks.

One American developer came in search of foreign capital to develop former ranch lands now being incorporated into the Dallas city limits. He found plenty of development money through a Swiss bank representing Kuwaiti clients, with secret bank accounts.

The foreign purchasers are looking basically for safe, long-term investments. They have their eye principally on the Sun Belt, Jackson told us, including California's fertile Central Valley and the rich Mississippi delta.

The inevitable result is that land prices are soaring out of sight in these areas. According to Bud Klein, a long-time farmer in Stockton, Calif., nearby land that once went for $700 an acre now sells for $1,100. "I have people in my office all the time wanting to buy my land," he told our associate Hal Bernot.

Wealthy Italians recently bought a 5,000-acre ranch in San Joaquin County for over $6 million, using a Lichenstein corporation as a front. Italians and Germans are investing heavily, with French buyers now appearing in the market.

REAL ESTATE dealers are in rapture over the land rush, and big farmers have found it a boon. The latter have discovered that after they sell out and become overnight millionaires, they can turn around and rent the land back from the foreign buyers and continue their farm operations.

But small farmers seeking to buy land are being squeezed out of the market. "A small farmer is dead as long as the pressure of the European dollar is pushing the price of land upward," Klein summarizes. Young farmers, who have dreamed of a place of their own, find they can no longer afford the heavy loans they must take out to acquire property.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How does the crucifixion relate to us, since the Bible tells us to "follow" in the footsteps of Jesus? Should Christians seek to be martyrs? Or is it just symbolic? — S.D.

DEAR S.D.: There are two Bible references relating to your question. First, the Bible says: "To this you were called, because Christ suffered for you, leaving you an example, that you should follow in his steps" (1 Peter 2:21, New International Version). Also, remember that statement of Jesus in Mark 8:34, NIV, "If anyone would come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." Probably no phrase from the Bible has been as misused as "to bear one's cross." It most certainly does not mean to grit your teeth in the face of irritation or distress. It does not refer to enduring some frustration or obnoxious pressure.

As Jesus used the term, it meant a higher and more significant act than the cessation of physical life. It meant the surrender and denial of self — that is involved in the conversion experience. It meant the new life of faith, which by God's power would put sin to death.

QUIET WEDDING — Princess Caroline of Monaco will be married to French financial advisor Philippe Junot on June 28 in private ceremonies in the royal palace in Monaco. It will be a quiet family-only wedding, unlike the publicity splashed entrance into royalty of her mother Grace Kelly of Philadelphia.

Princess to wed Junot in private ceremonies

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Two quiet, "strictly private" ceremonies are planned for June 28 and 29 for Princess Caroline of Monaco and French financial adviser Philippe Junot.

The family-only wedding for the 21-year-old princess will be in contrast to the publicity-splashed entrance into royalty of her mother, former American movie star Grace Kelly of Philadelphia.

A palace statement said Monday the brunette beauty will marry Junot, 38, first in a civil ceremony, then in a Roman Catholic ceremony the next day.

The low-key wedding YMCA offers lifesaving

The YMCA will offer a 22-hour course in lifesaving to members and non-members who want to be certified for lifeguards. This will be YMCA and Red Cross regular courses, but will be intensified in order to get the necessary hours in a shorter period of time.

The course will meet if there are 10 or more registered by April 28th. Fees will be $15 for a Y member and $20.00 for a non-member. It covers tuition, certification, films, and textbooks.

Lessons will be at least twice a week, but will not be scheduled until the minimum of 10 students have registered.

Instructors will be Jan Robertson and Mike McCracken, who will be glad to answer any questions about the course. Call the YMCA for further information: 267-8234.

preparations apparently reflect the widely reported displeasure of Princess Grace and Prince Rainier III for the match because of Junot's age and reputation as a playboy.

Lions ladies to have show

Marian Cauley, Ella Morrison and Evening Lions Auxiliary member Billie Harris were guests at the Downtown Lions Auxiliary luncheon meeting on April 19 at Lee's Chinese Garden.

Plans for the District Lions Convention to be held in Big Spring beginning Friday were completed. The auxiliary is providing decorations for the Lions Queens' luncheon at the Holiday Inn at noon, Saturday, and the reception-banquet at the high school cafeteria on Saturday evening.

Ladies' activities during the convention include a coffee on Saturday morning at the Cactus Room of Howard College, followed by a style show by Swartz at 10 a.m. and a book review by Annie Matt Angel at 11. Roberta Shive is handling style show arrangements at which Shirley Shroyer will serve as moderator. Pianist Betty Newman will provide background music.

Another coffee is planned from 9 to 11, Sunday morning, at the Tumbleweed Room of Howard College.

Assisting with preparations and convention activities are Louise Conley, Lynn Phillips, Maxine Riley, Calla Mae Perkins, Dorothy Smith, Linda Holmes, Lata Wiley, Linnie Keese, Terry Bradbury, Carrie Mae Barber, Sara Boyd, Averill Quigley, Doris Huihretgse and Billie Harris.

infiltrating business world in own feminine way

Asian women quietly leave the kitchen

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Shunning the aggressive styles of some of their Western sisters, women in Asia are making large strides out of the kitchens and nurseries and into executive boardrooms, government chambers and professional offices once reserved for men only.

Singapore's prime minister Lee Kuan Yew has said that were he going to be born a girl, he would choose the island republic as the best birthplace. In Hong Kong, one woman publishing tycoon claims the status of women there is even higher in professional, technical and commercial fields than in the United States.

Women among the urban elite of Japan, the Philippines, Thailand, Hong Kong and Singapore have in a generation or less obtained better, higher-paying jobs and narrowed some of the inequalities in traditionally male-dominated societies.

Women own roughly a third of registered business firms in the Philippines. In Vietnam, where women's unions are second only to the Communist party in membership, they make up half of the agricultural and industrial work force and hold down 35 per cent of government jobs, according to official statistics.

But despite this progress, international and government agencies warn that among the Asian rural masses, literacy, technical skills and other tools of development have been picked up largely by males while women are being left farther behind and forced to struggle harder.

The agencies stress that women are the most underutilized resource in the developing countries of Asia.

"There is substantial evidence in support of the contention that the subordination of women is intensifying as economies modernize," says a report last year from the U.N. Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific.

The report shows literacy rates are lower for women than men in 21 Asian nations. In Nepal, for example, 56 out of 100 boys go to school but only 8 girls out of 100 attend. Governments in India and other countries have found that rural women often have less access to health services and have shorter life expectancies than men, a reversal of worldwide trends.

Interviews and reports on the status of Asian women bring out differences among countries and within the social strata of each.

A Hong Kong businesswoman, dressed in trendy Western fashions, can comfortably argue profit and loss, with a male colleague, while millions of women in the Indian subcontinent can barely venture beyond their doorsteps, and spend most of their hours shielded by the purdah, or veil.

Men in predominantly Moslem Indonesia, where polygamy is widespread, can still say "I divorce you" three times to a wife and send her packing to the home of her closest relative. But in Japan, officials say millions of yen have been paid by employers found violating equal pay for equal work legislation.

There are some angry women in Asia who advocate marches and protests and talk about raising consciousness — but not many.

"We're doing it our own feminine way, slowly and politely," says Mrs. Ypuha Udomsak, a leading Thai educator who helped pass key women's rights legislation.

Despite some protests to the contrary, the fight for greater women's rights in the United States and Western Europe has its influence in Asia along with such international efforts as the United Nations Women's Year in 1975 and its follow-ups.

'Good' Girl Gets Bad Reputation

DEAR ABBY: I am a normal 16-year-old girl with very strict parents. The only time I get away from home is to spend the weekend with my girlfriend, and then I run with a pretty wild crowd. I've never been busted for pot or gone all the way with a guy, but most of my girlfriends have, and I know that a girl is judged by the company she keeps.

I finally got a date with a decent boy for a change, and I acted as nice as I knew how. All he got from me was a good-night kiss. After two dates, he stopped calling me. He must have heard about my reputation and it scared him off.

Abby, how can I let him know that I'm really not that bad and that I have a bad reputation only because of my friends? I like him very much and wonder if you can help me get him back?

BROWN EYES BLUE

DEAR BLUE: Unfortunately, a reputation can be damaged overnight, but it can't be repaired that fast. You earned your reputation, so now you'd better set about living it down and building up a new one.

Only by consistent good behavior and strictly staying away from "bad" company can you prove to people that you aren't the kind of girl they thought you were.

DEAR ABBY: We were given a dog as a gift, and everything is just fine, except for one matter.

After we have dinner, my husband gives the dog his plate to lick clean.

I think this is a disgusting practice that could be dangerous to our health. My husband says that as long as all the dishes go into the automatic dishwasher and are rinsed in boiling water, it doesn't make any difference. What do you think about this?

SQUEAMISH

DEAR SQUEAMISH: Tell your husband that if "it doesn't make any difference," you'd just as soon have your own dishes and let the dog have his.

DEAR ABBY: Tom and I have been married for two years. (No kids.) Another young couple moved in near us, and we liked them at first. But once I got to know the fellow (I'll call him Frank), my feelings changed.

Frank is the type who never stays home. Of course, it was none of my business, except when he started coming over here and getting Tom to go with him. I finally found out where they went when the two of them took off—they would steal, just for the fun of it. Or rather Frank would do the actual stealing and my husband would "help" him. Frank sells this stuff, and he and Tom split the profit.

Tom never stole a thing before he met Frank. I told my husband if he got caught, he would be as guilty as Frank, but he doesn't believe me. I also told him I hate Frank, but he said Frank is his friend, not mine. I worry all the time, but there is nothing I can do. Please help me.

TOM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell your husband to choose between his friendship with Frank and his marriage to you. And if he chooses Frank, consider yourself lucky to be rid of a bad deal before there are children to consider.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

If friend is gay, he needs your help

Dr. Wallace,

I need your help badly. I'm 14 and have been dating this guy 15 for six months.

We used to have great fun together, but lately he has been acting strange. He won't talk to me about it. I asked him if he wanted to break up but he said no.

One of my friends told me he was gay and he had proof. Now I feel like killing myself. My mom always tells me to "hang onto him because he is such a good young man."

I don't know what to do. Please help.

H.B., El Centro, Calif.

Dear H.B.,

The only person who knows if your boyfriend is gay is your boyfriend. Go to him and share what you heard.

Shouts of 'Hallelujah' greet vote announcements

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Voters repealed the gay rights section of St. Paul's human rights ordinance Tuesday, approving an initiative by about 2-1.

With 140 of the city's 161 precincts counted, there were 46,530 votes in favor of the initiative and 24,989 against.

The vote deletes from the human rights ordinance a four-year-old amendment prohibiting discrimination in housing, employment, education and public accommodation on the basis of "sexual and affectional preference."

Shouts of "Hallelujah" and "Praise the Lord!" greeted announcements of vote totals at Temple Baptist Church, where about 200 proponents of the initiative gathered after the polls closed.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Richard Angwin, was a leader of the repeal effort. He said the vote means homosexuals "will have to keep their sin quiet."

In a victory address 90 minutes after the polls closed, Angwin called the amendment, approved by the City Council four years ago, "a travesty that the people of St. Paul would never have stood for had we been given the opportunity to vote."

Kerry Woodward, campaign manager for St. Paul Citizens for Human Rights, said Angwin and his followers based their campaign on "fear, hatred and deceitful tactics."

"The people in this city do not realize that gay people are their own children, coworkers and next door neighbors," she said. "Gay people are ordinary people deserving of basic human rights."

"Citizens Alert for Morality," led by Angwin, got the initiative on the ballot and campaigned for repeal with pleas similar to those that singer Anita Bryant's "Save Our Children" group used successfully in Dade County, Fla., last year.

(AP Laserphoto) SOMBRE LOSERS — Supporters of the Gay Rights ordinance show an assortment of expressions of disappointment Tuesday night as they listened to their leaders of the St. Paul Citizens for Human Rights announce the defeat of the drive to stop repeal of the ordinance. St. Paul voters voted to repeal the ordinance for a 2-1 margin.

Banquet date is moved to May 24

Fred Hoster, general manager of the Dallas Torando Soccer Club, will speak May 24 at the annual Zales-Herald Youth Achievement awards dinner in Big Spring.

The date was changed from May 23 to May 24 this week when it was discovered that Coahoma has graduation on May 23. Big Spring and Forsan have graduation on May 25 and Ackerly on May 26, so the date was the only one left in the week.

The event will honor high school senior finalists for outstanding senior in the four county high schools. Entry blanks are in the Big Spring Herald. Zales Jewelers and the Big Spring Herald annually sponsor the event.

Hoster heads the oldest franchise in the North American Soccer League. Professional soccer is the fastest growing spectator sport in America now. More than three million sports fans watched NASL teams in action in 1977, an increase of nearly twenty per cent over 1976.

In Dallas, attendance at Tornado soccer games has tripled during the past two seasons. During that same time span the Dallas Tornado has also been one of the winningest teams in the NASL. In 1977 the Tornado won the NASL Southern Division championship, winning 18 of 26 games and scoring 56 goals — both club records. Dallas had the highest point standing in the entire league last season.

The Tornado is off to a great start again in 1978, having won its first three games in a row. Besides selling soccer, Hoster also devotes much of his spare time to the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He is a noted distance runner and participated in the 1976 Boston Marathon.

Before joining the Dallas Tornado, Hoster served five years as Executive Director of the SMU Mustang Club, developing the club into one of the top athletic fundraising organizations in the country.

Prior to coming to SMU, Hoster served as Assistant to the President of Miami University. A native of Columbus, Ohio, the 39-year-old Hoster received undergraduate and master's degrees from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. Hoster and his wife Sue Ann have two children: Amy Sue 11 and Lara Lynn 10.

Lions' District 2-A1 convention upcoming

The Downtown Lions, the Evening Lions and Webb-Spring Lions will serve as host clubs for the Lions International District 2-A1 Convention scheduled here this weekend.

Approximately 400 Lions and their ladies are expected to attend the convention, which will be conducted by District Gov. J.E. McLean of Sweetwater.

District 2-A1 is the third largest of the 15 districts in Texas. The District covers 25 counties having an area of 27,951 square miles. The Lions have 74 clubs in the district with 3,389 members.

The Big Spring Downtown Lions will celebrate 50 years of service next year. They were sponsored by the San Angelo Downtown Lions. The Big Spring Downtown Lions sponsored the Evening

Lions who, in turn, sponsored the Webb-Spring Lions.

Four Past District Governors live in Big Spring. They are Joe Pond, D. Schley Riley, Jim Lemons and Russell DeVore. Another Past District Governor from Big Spring, Louis D. Carothers, now makes his home in Dallas. The presidents of the local clubs are M.A. Barber, Downtown Lions; T.G. Harris, Evening Lions; and James E. Boyce, Webb-Spring Lions.

Lemons is the district convention chairman and Dan Conley is the queen's contest chairman.

Facilities of both high school at Howard College will be used for the convention. Registration begins Friday.

ALTON, JO TAYLOR

Local couple attend orientation seminar

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Alton and Jo Taylor of the Best Western Mid Continent Inn, located in Big Spring, recently attended an Orientation Seminar for new Best Western owners and operators.

The seminar was held at the chain's new International Headquarters complex in the foothills of the Phoenix Mountains.

While in Phoenix, the new Best Westerners toured their International Marketing and Reservations Center and attended sessions on Best Westernizing their properties. Subjects included quality control maintenance, housekeeping requirements, the toll-free reservations system, advertising and marketing, wholesale supply and equipment purchasing, and credit card procedures.

Executives and staff members from Best Western's International Headquarters conducted the sessions and exchanged ideas and information with the attendees.

At each of the meetings, heavy emphasis was placed on maintaining Best Western's outstanding reputation by providing travelers with friendly service, personal attention, and clean, quality accommodations at a reasonable price.

Best Western, the world's largest lodging chain, has 2,052 properties located in all 50 of the United States, and in Canada, Mexico, the Caribbean, Guatemala, New Zealand, Australia, Great Britain and Southern Africa.

Annual lightbulb sale slated Monday by Lions

Sunset will be an hour later Monday, but Big Spring Downtown Lions will be around that day seeking to help stretch light for a lot of people.

The occasion will be their annual Spring lightbulb sale which supports sight conservation and blind work, together with teletype communications for deaf persons, free camps for crippled and diabetic children. Also benefiting from the sale will be vocational training of blind, if they require local help to get to the Kerrville center, other aid for blind, as well as local youth programs.

During the past year, the club has provided more than 100 pair of eye glasses, mostly to needy children but also some adults who otherwise could not see well. This is, explained Jerry

Texas legislators spout off about child abuse, won't vote

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators spout off about child abuse but won't vote the funds to do something about it, a county commissioner has told lawmakers.

"We get a great deal of rhetoric in the legislature, but the funds are not forthcoming," said Ann Richards of Austin, who once served as a legislative aide herself.

"It appears that pornography has to be an element if we are to be able to take care of those children," Mrs. Richards said at a legislative forum on "Children in Crisis" on Tuesday.

The 1977 Legislature initiated studies on child pornography but cut funding for the child abuse program operated by the Texas Department of Human Resources, formerly the state welfare department.

Austin Police Capt. John Vasquez expressed outrage at the lack of protection given battered children.

"I know of hundreds of child abuse cases but only about a half dozen were prosecuted, and don't hand me the bull that the welfare department is pulling the family together. They are so flooded with work they only work with major cases," he said.

John Albach, executive director of the Texas Council on Crime and Delinquency, said white middle class youngsters have "a whole range of alternatives to the juvenile justice system" if they get in trouble.

But poor children, both white and minority, have no such options as military academies and psychiatric counseling, he said.

"We should provide the poor the options that always have been available to the middle class," Albach said.

He also said schools are part of the problem insofar as they "are operated for square pegs who fit in with the school system."

"To the degree that we don't provide every child with the opportunity for some success, the schools are contributing to delinquency," he said.

Among legislative proposals offered by Albach were:

—Repeat the law allowing juvenile judges to send "status offenders" — such as runaways and truants — to reform schools.

"Taking a child who is a runaway and sending him 100 miles from home doesn't cure his running away," Albach said.

—Faster diagnosis and treatment of learning disabilities, which he and other witnesses said contribute to delinquency, and creation of alternative forms of education.

—State inspection of juvenile detention centers.

—"Do something about the thousands of kids who are locked up in antiquated county jails" in places without special centers for holding juveniles.

Bad sport...

You may have caught the replay on the tube Monday night of Saturday's melee between the California Angels and Minnesota Twins.

The white knuckles began to fly when Angels' Bobby Grich "didn't like" a pitch Roger Erickson hurled his way. Grich, then, looking as menacing as he does in the accompanying pic, charged Erickson and began a bench-clearing free-for-all that eventually had the phlegmatic Grich thrown out of the game.

He should've been benched for a month. There is no room in any sport for the type of physical anger Grich showed. And the pitch didn't even hit the big-mouthed tatar. The only good thing you can say about him is that he at least threw down his bat before he went after Erickson.

Unfortunately, the "beanball" is a standard pitch among the major league pitcher's repertoire. There was supposed to be a new rule this year to cut down on this gutless practice. Theoretically, if a pitcher throws at the head, the ump is supposed to eject him from the game.

However, the owners raised so much stink that a warning is given now to the first hurler, and if any other pitcher involved in the contest, (including the opponent's hill man), tries a brusher or reprisal pitch, that pitcher and the manager gets thrown out of the game.

Therefore, everyone gets mad at everyone else, when the second pitcher is expelled and the first pitcher, who started the whole thing, gets off scot free. Earl Weaver, who is in as many flareups as anyone, summed it up best when he said, "What we need is some umpire with the guts to throw out the first guy."

I'D BE MAD TOO. Finally found out what got Garden City so up in arms. Seems like a few years back, when the Bearkittens won the state title in track, the Herald sports department really slighted the girls' accomplishment.

Cub reporter Carla Walker, who was then a worker in the backshop, remembers that the Gee City coach came in personally and waited and waited while the then-sports editor (no longer associated with this paper) talked on the phone to someone else.

After waiting a rather long time, the coach said, "We've just won state in track, I've got a car load of tired girls. Do you want any information on it?"

The ex-sports head is reported to have said, rather rudely, "Oh, we'll get something on it," and returned to his call.

Sure enough, the next day there wasn't anything on it, and a big story about a Forsan girl's fifth-place finish just added gasoline to the smoldering fire. After a week, there still wasn't anything in the paper, and finally, a short little piece appeared.

That would also make me rush to the nearest window, throw it open and yell at the top of my lungs: "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it anymore!"

Well, what can I say. I wasn't even in Big Spring at the time. So don't hold a grudge against me. This very afternoon, we're in Bearkat land taking as many pictures as possible. Let's just keep the channels of communication open, and that incident of a few years ago will never be repeated.

INDISCRIMINATELY SPEAKING. When lightweight champion Roberto Duran, through his interpreter, was asked about what he thought of the Canal vote, he replied: "What canal?"

REMARKABILITIES. "Doesn't Lyman realize what a dangerous precedent this is? They're liable to drum him out of the players' union. Which reminds me. On the same day Bostock made his historic offer, the four Yankees fined $500 for failure to appear at a charitable luncheon filed a grievance against the ballclub. I'm glad. It keeps the public from getting the impression the players might be getting reasonable." — DICK YOUNG, re Lyman Bostock's refusal to accept his paycheck if he doesn't break out of hitting slump.

"The only thing Reggie can do better on the field is talk." — ROD CAREW, when asked if he thought Reggie Jackson deserved the most valuable player award instead of him.

Lemongello wiggles Padres

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston right-hander Mark Lemongello said he learned a lot from his rookie season in the National League.

Lemongello, who didn't win his second game last year until July 17, scattered six hits to pick up his second victory in four decisions this year as the Astros turned back the San Diego Padres 4-3 Tuesday night.

"The difference between this year and last year is experience and knowing not to make many mistakes," said Lemongello, who suffered through a 1-11 start in 1977.

"I feel good about getting No. 2. It takes a lot off my mind. Last year when I came to the park I wanted to hide in the corner but those days are surely behind me, at least I hope so."

Houston took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on an RBI grounder by Enos Cabell, but the Padres came right back to tie the game with a run in the fourth on a run-scoring grounder by Oscar Gamble.

Joe Ferguson's fifth homer of the season, a solo blast off losing pitcher Randy Jones, 1-1, keyed a two-run Astro rally in the fifth as Houston took its fourth straight win over San Diego this season. Cabell drove in the inning's other run with a single to center following a base hit by Roger Metzger and a sacrifice by Lemongello.

Dave Winfield blasted his fourth home run of the season into the left field seats in the sixth to cut the Astros' lead to 3-2, but Houston regained its two-run lead in the bottom half of the inning on a single by Jose Cruz, a stolen base, catcher Bob Davis' throwing error and a single by Art Howe.

San Diego added a ninth inning run on doubles by Winfield and pinch hitter Gene Tenace.

San Diego manager Roger Craig says his team has not been getting enough timely hits.

Steers squeeze blood out of Rebels' turnip

By DANNY REAGAN

It was the stuff of which worthwhile memories are made. In the bottom of the 10th inning, with the score knotted at one apiece, scrappy Steer second sacker Tony Rubio stood at the plate. Teammate Mike Evans, his uniform covered with dirt after swiping two consecutive bases, fidgeted along the third base line, hugging the bag.

Coach Tom Collins, a few feet away from Evans, signaled the sign for "squeeze." He immediately wiped it off, however, anticipating a pitch-out. The ruse worked. Rubio took the outside throw, as the Midland Lee battery's "squeeze" defense fell wasted.

With the Reb infield thinking "squeeze play" for the next two pitches, Collins let Rubio rip away at the ball, hoping for an RBI. And then, with two strikes on the local batter, Collins gambled again.

He signed the real "squeeze" to Rubio and caught the visiting marooners crooning in their shoes. Before the ball met Rubio's bat, Evans was halfway home. TAP! A perfect bunt down the first base line. Evans scores. Game ends. Steers win 2-1. Team goes wild.

"That was a super call by the coach," said Evans, who scored both Steer runs and belted out three gray singles. "Waiting 'til the second strike fooled everybody. I'm glad I'm not the coach."

Evans also offered the beefy crowd a bit of excitement when he found himself in the "hot box" between second and third in the final frame. Somehow, he out-guessed and out-ran four Lee defenders to slip past to second untouched after getting caught on a one-way lead. "I almost jumped out of the stadium," said Collins, referring to that incident.

Rubio, whose bunting skills have him locked solidly as number two in the batting order, attributes his textbook dribble to numerous team drills and practices. "The pitch was sorta outside," he recalled,

"but I just reached over and got it." Senior pitcher Charlie Vernon, who went the entire 10 innings (his career longest) and whiffed 11 batters, seemed to improve in direct ratio to the length of time he spent on the mound. "I was feeling good," said the big right-hander. "I was ready to go some more. I wasn't really tired at all."

Vernon, who admitted he was worried several times during the contest, liked his curve ball the best. "I felt pretty good with it. It was breaking down a lot. The wind might have had a lot to do with that," Vernon has pitched against many of the Rebel stickmen since he was a freshman.

The Steers, who also had hitting aid from David Manley, Tony Mann and Kevin McLaughlin (all singles), broke the ice early as Evans scored with the bases loaded before the last out of a double play that Vernon hit into.

Lee tallied its lonely run in the fifth off a three-single effort, and they threatened many times, but were cut short in the opening frame on one of the locals' two double plays, and Vernon hand-cuffed them in the 7th, 8th and 9th after they advanced runners to scoring position. "I can't say enough about what these guys did," exclaimed Collins after the game. "They kept digging themselves out of holes. Since I've been here, this is the first win in a key, close game that I can remember."

Spurs stay alive, 116-105

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs looked death in the face and ran away.

And ran, and ran, and ran, until they crushed the Washington Bullets, 116-105, Tuesday night to stay alive in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Bullets lost left they still ahead 3-2 in the series and needing to win only one of the two remaining games. The next contest is Friday night at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., where the Spurs have never won in two NBA seasons.

But San Antonio refused to end its season here Tuesday night.

"We have to keep running to win," said George Gervin, who tossed in 27 points for

San Antonio. "If we have an 11-man effort in Washington on Friday like we had tonight, the Bullets are in trouble."

The Spurs running attack, which had stalled in the previous three San Antonio series losses, lurched to life in the opening minutes of Game 5 and never slowed.

With 8:56 left, San Antonio was comfortably ahead by 17 points, 95-78, and still running.

The Bullets, who ran away from the Spurs in winning Games 2, 3 and 4, cut the lead to nine, but could get no closer as the Spurs' Mike Green slammed two shots and tipped in another in the waning minutes.

Green, starting his second game of the series at forward, hit for 10 points in the final period and finished with 18 to trail only Gervin in San Antonio's balanced scoring parade.

Larry Kenon added 17 points for the Spurs, followed by Billy Paultz' 14 and Mike Gale's 12.

The running and passing attack that led the Spurs to the Central Division title re-emerged, and with it Gervin's teammates found themselves getting open shots. The Spurs, who hit less than 50 percent from the field in the three losses, hit 52 percent Tuesday night.

"We played excellent offensively, defensively and off the boards," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "We had the movement tonight on offense which we haven't had since the first game."

"The important thing was the way we won tonight," Moe added, referring to the running game.

"We have to run to win," added Green.

Dick Motta, the Washington coach, said Tuesday's was "the best game San Antonio has played in this series."

"At the half (trailing 57-55), I thought we were in great shape. This loss puts a great deal of pressure on us," Motta said.

If the Bullets do not end the series Friday night at home, they will have to return to San Antonio for the deciding match Sunday.

Jenkins 'sleeps' Kaycee

DALLAS (AP) — Texas catcher Jim Sundberg can go to the head of the class in crystal ball gazing.

Notified in the off-season that the Rangers had obtained 35-year-old Ferguson Jenkins from the Boston Red Sox in a trade, Sundberg predicted "he'll be the sleeper of the year. He knows how to pitch better than anybody."

Jenkins, who won 25 games in Arlington Stadium in 1974, proved Sundberg a prophet for at least Tuesday night, as Jenkins flirted with a no-hitter in a 4-1 Ranger victory over the Kansas City Royals.

"He threw the ball just like he did in 1974," said Sundberg. "He had good velocity and his slider was coming in like a fastball and then dropping off the table."

Jenkins retired 18 consecutive batters before Willie Wilson led off the top of the seventh inning with a solid single to center.

Then the Ranger right-hander lost his shutout in the ninth inning on Wilson's double and Hal McCrae's single.

"You have to be mighty lucky to get a no-hitter," said Jenkins. "I was getting mighty tired those last two innings. I came close to getting a no-hitter playing for Texas when then Oakland's Bert Campanaris beat out a bunt single."

Jenkins, making his fourth start of the year after four relief appearances, earned at least another start in manager Billy Hunter's rotation.

Cards zap Rapp

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was inevitable. The St. Louis Cardinals were in last place in the National League's East Division after a six-game losing streak; player-manager relations were strained, and an argument between Manager Vern Rapp and all-star catcher Ted Simmons became public.

Twenty days into his second season, Rapp was stripped of his job by club management.

"Things like this happen in this profession," Rapp said after Tuesday's announcement. "I was in a business where people in my category are very expendable."

General Manager Bing Devine and team President August A. Busch Jr. termed the action "inevitable."

"The climax could have been averted, but it did appear more or less inevitable," Devine said. He had flown to Montreal to inform Rapp of the club decision and to name third base coach Jack Krol interim manager.

"Frankly, it was a problem, a continuing problem. When it became apparent, we decided, 'Why wait for something you can't solve any other way?'" Devine added.

Steers squeeze blood out of Rebels' turnip

By DANNY REAGAN

It was the stuff of which worthwhile memories are made. In the bottom of the 10th inning, with the score knotted at one apiece, scrappy Steer second sacker Tony Rubio stood at the plate. Teammate Mike Evans, his uniform covered with dirt after swiping two consecutive bases, fidgeted along the third base line, hugging the bag.

Coach Tom Collins, a few feet away from Evans, signaled the sign for "squeeze." He immediately wiped it off, however, anticipating a pitch-out. The ruse worked. Rubio took the outside throw, as the Midland Lee battery's "squeeze" defense fell wasted.

With the Reb infield thinking "squeeze play" for the next two pitches, Collins let Rubio rip away at the ball, hoping for an RBI. And then, with two strikes on the local batter, Collins gambled again.

He signed the real "squeeze" to Rubio and caught the visiting marooners crooning in their shoes. Before the ball met Rubio's bat, Evans was halfway home. TAP! A perfect bunt down the first base line. Evans scores. Game ends. Steers win 2-1. Team goes wild.

"That was a super call by the coach," said Evans, who scored both Steer runs and belted out three gray singles. "Waiting 'til the second strike fooled everybody. I'm glad I'm not the coach."

Evans also offered the beefy crowd a bit of excitement when he found himself in the "hot box" between second and third in the final frame. Somehow, he out-guessed and out-ran four Lee defenders to slip past to second untouched after getting caught on a one-way lead. "I almost jumped out of the stadium," said Collins, referring to that incident.

Rubio, whose bunting skills have him locked solidly as number two in the batting order, attributes his textbook dribble to numerous team drills and practices. "The pitch was sorta outside," he recalled,

"but I just reached over and got it." Senior pitcher Charlie Vernon, who went the entire 10 innings (his career longest) and whiffed 11 batters, seemed to improve in direct ratio to the length of time he spent on the mound. "I was feeling good," said the big right-hander. "I was ready to go some more. I wasn't really tired at all."

Vernon, who admitted he was worried several times during the contest, liked his curve ball the best. "I felt pretty good with it. It was breaking down a lot. The wind might have had a lot to do with that," Vernon has pitched against many of the Rebel stickmen since he was a freshman.

The Steers, who also had hitting aid from David Manley, Tony Mann and Kevin McLaughlin (all singles), broke the ice early as Evans scored with the bases loaded before the last out of a double play that Vernon hit into.

Lee tallied its lonely run in the fifth off a three-single effort, and they threatened many times, but were cut short in the opening frame on one of the locals' two double plays, and Vernon hand-cuffed them in the 7th, 8th and 9th after they advanced runners to scoring position. "I can't say enough about what these guys did," exclaimed Collins after the game. "They kept digging themselves out of holes. Since I've been here, this is the first win in a key, close game that I can remember."

Spurs stay alive, 116-105

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs looked death in the face and ran away.

And ran, and ran, and ran, until they crushed the Washington Bullets, 116-105, Tuesday night to stay alive in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series.

The Bullets lost left they still ahead 3-2 in the series and needing to win only one of the two remaining games. The next contest is Friday night at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., where the Spurs have never won in two NBA seasons.

But San Antonio refused to end its season here Tuesday night.

"We have to keep running to win," said George Gervin, who tossed in 27 points for

San Antonio. "If we have an 11-man effort in Washington on Friday like we had tonight, the Bullets are in trouble."

The Spurs running attack, which had stalled in the previous three San Antonio series losses, lurched to life in the opening minutes of Game 5 and never slowed.

With 8:56 left, San Antonio was comfortably ahead by 17 points, 95-78, and still running.

The Bullets, who ran away from the Spurs in winning Games 2, 3 and 4, cut the lead to nine, but could get no closer as the Spurs' Mike Green slammed two shots and tipped in another in the waning minutes.

Green, starting his second game of the series at forward, hit for 10 points in the final period and finished with 18 to trail only Gervin in San Antonio's balanced scoring parade.

Larry Kenon added 17 points for the Spurs, followed by Billy Paultz' 14 and Mike Gale's 12.

The running and passing attack that led the Spurs to the Central Division title re-emerged, and with it Gervin's teammates found themselves getting open shots. The Spurs, who hit less than 50 percent from the field in the three losses, hit 52 percent Tuesday night.

"We played excellent offensively, defensively and off the boards," said San Antonio Coach Doug Moe. "We had the movement tonight on offense which we haven't had since the first game."

"The important thing was the way we won tonight," Moe added, referring to the running game.

"We have to run to win," added Green.

Dick Motta, the Washington coach, said Tuesday's was "the best game San Antonio has played in this series."

"At the half (trailing 57-55), I thought we were in great shape. This loss puts a great deal of pressure on us," Motta said.

If the Bullets do not end the series Friday night at home, they will have to return to San Antonio for the deciding match Sunday.

For the record

In Tuesday's report of the Big Spring City Council meeting, the Herald misquoted Earl Dean, Howard County Tax Appraiser. Rather than saying that 10 per cent of all personal property and 50 percent of real property is taxed, Dean was referring to the cost schedule. "All real property and most personal property is on the tax rolls," Dean explained, "but using the 1958 cost schedule as we have to now, real property is taxed at an average of 50 percent of its market value, while personal property is taxed on the average, at about 10 percent of its market value. "I was referring to dollars, not numbers. To get those figures, it must be understood that some property is taxed at 200 percent of its market value, while other property may be taxed at 10 percent of its value. I am strictly speaking in rough averages.

"We are working toward, and just beginning to achieve a viable equalization program. The principle problem is that we are still required to use the 1958 cost schedule," Dean explained.

Bible class plans trip

The Bible Class at the high school will take a spring trip this weekend, going to the Canyon and Amarillo area. The group plans to visit the Palo Duro Canyon and the new Discovery Center in Amarillo. It also will visit on the campus at West Texas State University in Canyon and ride horseback at Palo Duro.

The group recently met to hold a round table discussion on drinking problems.

Assistant AGs named by Hill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General John Hill announced the appointment Monday of two assistants to his South Texas regional office at McAllen. Craig Vittitoe will replace Gloria Vera, who quit to enter private practice in McAllen, and Israel Ramon will transfer from the attorney general's San Antonio office. Vittitoe is from Paturrias and Ramon is a native of Weslaco. Both will work in the consumer protection division at McAllen.

They loved son more than life

HOSSING, N.Y. (AP) — Joseph and Edna Reyes will be buried beside the son they loved more than life. Despondent after the drowning of 17-year-old Jose, the parents committed suicide Sunday in the garage of their rented two-bedroom, basement apartment by hooking a hose to their car's exhaust pipe. Friends had been invited to dinner, but when they arrived, they found a note telling them to look in the garage. They found the Cuban emigres slumped together in the front of the family Volkswagen, dead of carbon monoxide poisoning. Until last June, when Jose died in a boating accident at Silver Lake, the Reyes were a joyful, loving family, friends say. "Before he died, his mother always laughed a lot," said Marsha Passos, 18, a neighbor. "She told jokes, and the both of them used to kid around a lot." Jose "was going to be somebody," Miss Passos said. His parents were laborers: Joseph, 49, worked for Hudson Wire Co., and Edna, 44, was a seamstress for Charles Sportwear Co. The money they saved was put aside for Jose's college education. "He was real smart. He'd get 90s and 100s," Miss Passos said. Architectural plans he drafted were found in their home. Dolores Jackson, a next-door neighbor, said, "Their aim in life was to see him succeed in life. They did everything for him. When he died, it was like their death." For 10 months after Jose's death, his mother wept. His father brooded and was absent from work frequently. He avoided office gatherings.

"Since the time he died they have been living like crazy people," said Alba Llano, the dead man's sister. "Everybody who knew them tried to convince them not to commit suicide."

On Dec. 2, the Reyes went to St. Augustine's Cemetery to purchase plots next to their son. Last Saturday, they returned to the cemetery and placed white flowers on the grave.

"They sat there for a long time, talking," said cemetery superintendent Richard Garrett.

They will return again today, accompanied by mourners from the Mass at St. Ann's Church, to be buried beside Jose.

"He was brilliant, beautiful and his parents couldn't live without him," said Ms. Llano.

CAN'T LIFT IT — Tresa Stabeno, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Stabeno, couldn't lift the "rocket-full" of toys she won recently in a drawing at Anthony's. Tresa was undecided about what to do with all the 20 pounds of toys, but said she would share with her sister and a new-born cousin.

More crime in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — There was 7.1 percent increase in serious crime reported in Houston the first three months of the year, the police department said Tuesday. The largest increases were for rape, auto theft, and robbery. Reported rape cases increased 43.4 percent, from 175 in 1977 to 251 this year. The number of cases solved increased 40.5 percent, the department said.

Auto theft cases were up 22.2 percent, from 3,034 cases to 3,707. The clearance rate was said to have increased 31.2 percent. Robbery cases were up 15.2 percent, from 2,454 to 2,823 cases. The number of solved cases was up 9.3 percent. Murder and non-negligent homicide cases increased 4.6 percent, from 87 cases to 91. The clearance rate was down 12.9 percent.

AFSA chapter plans meeting

Ex Air Force enlisted personnel are invited to the AFSA Chapter 1001 meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the American Legion Post. A special invitation is extended to all former Air Force enlisted personnel who are interested in the organization. The group attempts to help protect benefits and privileges of veterans as well as active Air Force enlisted personnel.

Active membership is open only to active and enlisted personnel and former enlisted personnel of the Air Force. The local chapter is now comprised entirely of former enlisted personnel of the Air Force, having lost all active duty members with the closing of Webb AFB. Every eligible individual is urged to attend by chapter officials.

Energy Sharp increase noted

DENVER, COLORADO - In the first three months of 1978 a total of 11,475 wells drilled for oil and gas were reported as completed. This is an increase of 18 percent over the first quarter in 1977, according to Petroleum Information, Denver.

Continuous emphasis on drilling for natural gas was demonstrated by the completion of 2,915 new gas wells during the first quarter. This is 35 percent more than were completed in the like period of 1977.

New oil wells completed through March totaled 4,724, up 10 percent from a year ago. Completions for the period accounted for 54.4 million feet of hole, up 13.6 percent from last year's first three months.

Petroleum Information noted particularly the increase in new field wildcats... wells seeking oil and gas at substantial distances from established production. A total of 1,731 completions in this category represents an increase of 12.7 percent over the 1977 period.

And, 313 discoveries were made, a success rate of 18.1 percent, up from 17.4 percent in the first quarter of last year. The discovery total was higher for natural gas, but slightly lower in the case of oil discoveries.

Other exploratory wells those seeking undiscovered accumulations near or related to existing production... totaled 1,135. Of these, 210 found oil and 307 produced natural gas. Both figures are higher than in 1977.

Among the states Texas was again the leader by a wide margin with 4,293 wells completed in the first quarter of the year, an 11.3 percent increase from the state's total through March of 1977. Oklahoma was second with 1,407 wells reported complete and Kansas was third with 1,147.

Texas had 112 new fields discovered during the period, Oklahoma had 26 and Kansas has 81. The Texas and Oklahoma totals were about the same as for the first quarter of 1977, but the Kansas total was a substantial increase from the 36 reported during the first three months of last year.

Petroleum Information, a wholly owned subsidiary of A.C. Nielsen Company, Northbrook, Illinois, offers reporting services, data and data analysis services, maps, logs and technical exploration and engineering services to the petroleum and related industries.

Completions for the period accounted for 54.4 million feet of hole, up 13.6 percent from last year's first three months.

Petroleum Information noted particularly the increase in new field wildcats... wells seeking oil and gas at substantial distances from established production.

A total of 1,731 completions in this category represents an increase of 12.7 percent over the 1977 period.

And, 313 discoveries were made, a success rate of 18.1 percent, up from 17.4 percent in the first quarter of last year.

The discovery total was higher for natural gas, but slightly lower in the case of oil discoveries.

Other exploratory wells those seeking undiscovered accumulations near or related to existing production... totaled 1,135.

Of these, 210 found oil and 307 produced natural gas. Both figures are higher than in 1977.
