French troops begin return to war-torn Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A vanguard of 350 French troopers arrived in Beirut today, spearheading the reentry of U.S., French and Italian peacekeepers to shield weary residents from further bloodshed.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli government — bowing to waves of public protest — decided today to ask the Israeli chief justice to investigate last week's Beirut massacre of Palestinian refugees. But the justice, Yitzhak Kahan, delayed immediate acceptance of the post.

The Israeli government's decision came amid new reports that its army knew about the carnage by Israeli-backed Christian militiamen one day before Defense Minister Ariel Sharon claimed it knew.

The confirmed toll from the massacre mounted.

Relief workers reported discovering 16 bodies today in a mass grave inside a sports stadium near the Chatilla refugee camp, bringing the number of bodies recovered to 314.

The precise toll from the massacre may never be known.

"They (bodies) have been thrown into holes and bulldozed over (by the killers) so it's impossible to have a number," International Red Cross spokesman Jean-Jacques Kurz said Thursday. "There will never be a figure. One has to guess."

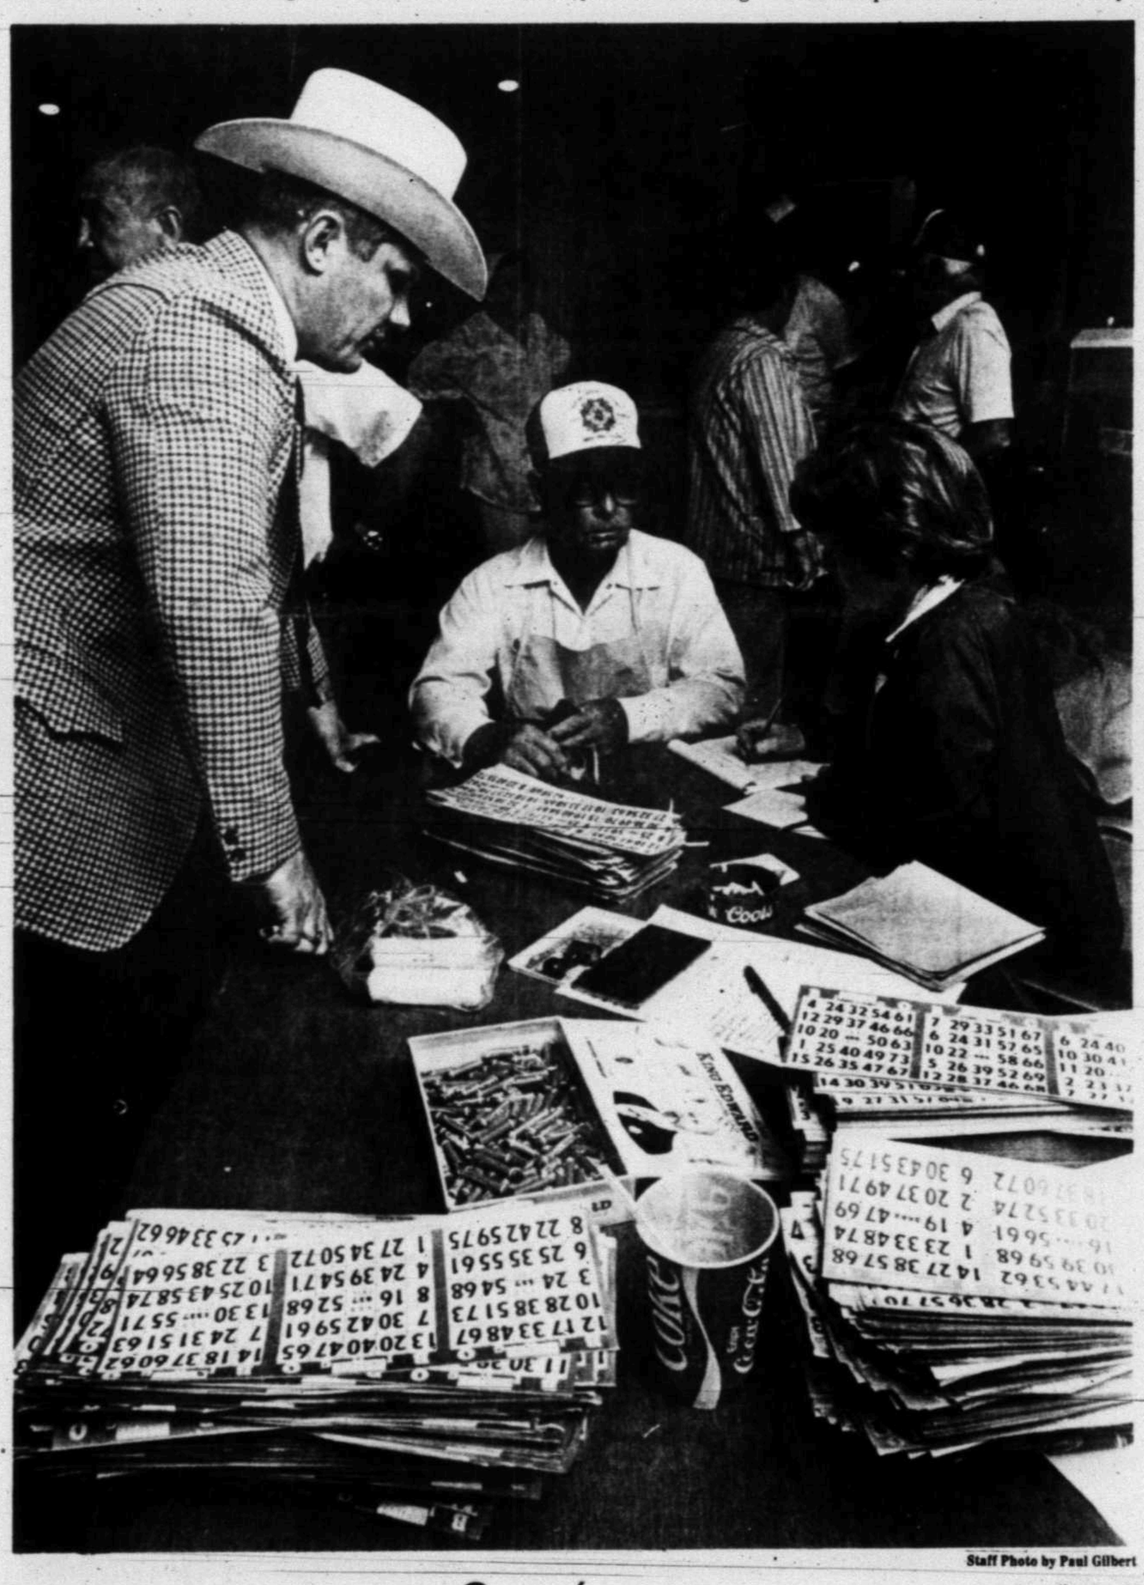

Some diplomats and members of the crews that conducted the search for bodies have estimated the toll was between 500 and 1,000.

Lebanese state and private radio stations said newly installed President Amin Gemayel took personal charge of the peacekeeping forces. The radios said Gemayel summoned the U.S., French and Italian ambassadors and their military aides and informed them.

Meanwhile, Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a Moslem, submitted the resignations of his 35-month old government to Gemayel. The state radio said Gemayel asked Wazzan to remain until a new Cabinet is formed.

The resignation had been expected under terms of Lebanon's constitution, which mandates the resignation of the government to allow a new president a free hand in appointing his own team.

French Ambassador Paul Marc Henry, at the port to oversee the arrival of the French troop transport Argens, told reporters the French paratroopers and infantrymen would not be deployed in Moslem west Beirut until the peacekeeping force is brought to its full strength of 3,000 men.

Game's over...

Texas Ranger Maurice Cook, left, and an unidentified agent with the State Comptrollers Office, right, talk with Walter H. Rankin, a member of VFW Post 7208, as they tally bingo cards and illegal "number-pull" tabs confiscated in Thursday night's raid of the Post, located at 1306 E. Taylor. The raid ended a year-long investigation that was prompted by several complaints, according to agents for the State Comptrollers Office, which coordinated the sweeping operation.

'Bullock's Raiders' close Midland VFW bingo game

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

"Bullock's Raiders" struck again Thursday night. But instead of closing down a business delinquent in sales tax remittances to the state, agents from Comptroller Bob Bullock's office shut down an illegal bingo operation at VFW Post 7208 on Midland's southeast side.

Accompanied by Texas Rangers, plainclothes officers from the Department of Public Safety, Alcohol Beverage Commission agents, investigators from District Attorney Vern Martin's office, and a large contingent of local reporters who had been tipped in advance, the officers swarmed into the club shortly after 8:30 p.m., netting some 150 bingo players — mostly bemused women and children — and confiscating $1,200 that would have gone to charitable causes.

No weapons were drawn and no one attempted to slip out the back door as Texas Ranger Maurice Cook took the microphone, identified the suit-and-tie-clad intruders as law enforcement officers and said: "Will all those connected with the operation of this game please stand to one side?"

About 10 persons did so, while those who had been playing at several large tables set up in the hall were told they would have to leave their names and addresses with officers stationed at the door before they would be allowed to leave.

"I'll bet you 99 percent of us didn't know bingo is still illegal," said one somewhat irritated woman who asked rhetorically as she departed: "Are they gonna close down the churches too?"

"I don't think they should do this," added Gladys Barnett of Midland. "We signed a petition. We thought that made it legal."

Unfortunately, the petition they and numerous other people have signed in recent weeks only calls on local officials to set up an election to determine if bingo should be made legal in the county, as pursuant to the "Bingo Enabling Act" signed into law during the last legislative session in Austin.

George T. Garland Jr., director of the comptroller's Bingo Regulation Division, said the raid capped a year-long investigation prompted by several oral complaints and one written complaint. VFW officials had been warned three times that they were in violation of state gaming laws by not having a bingo license, according to Garland.

"Over 300 local option elections have been held in the state," said Ron DelVento, legal counsel and assistant director of the Bingo Regulation Division. "It's not fair for those operators who went through the petition drive and are paying the fees and taxes to Man, 37, reports kidnapping

By BILL MODISETT
Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Big Spring man told Midland police Thursday that he was kidnapped at gunpoint inside Midland Wednesday and taken to an area west of Pecos before being left by his abductors.

Pete Campos, an employee of American Well Service at Forsan, near Big Spring, told police he was on his way back to Big Spring from Odessa about 2 p.m. Wednesday and stopped at the Colonial Food Store at the intersection of Front Avenue and Garfield Street in Midland.

While at the convenience store parking lot, two men came up to Campos and asked him for a light, he said. They then pushed him into his company vehicle and one of them stuck a pistol into his ribs.

Leaving Midland, the two men took Campos westward on Interstate 20 to a location west of Pecos where the Campos' vehicle ran out of gas. Campos said his kidnappers then got out of the vehicle and began walking in a westerly direction, telling him that if he got out of the vehicle they'd shoot him.

Campos told police it was starting to get dark at that time so he stayed inside the vehicle until morning. He then got out and was able to get enough gasoline out of a compressor motor to travel a few miles back in the direction of Pecos before running out again.

A passing motorist stopped and gave Campos enough additional gasoline to take him back into Pecos where he contacted police officials. Those officials told Campos to contact police authorities in Midland, he said.

So, Campos said he left his company vehicle in Pecos on the recommendation of his employer and hitchhiked to Odessa. From there he called his wife, who picked him up and took him to the Midland Police Department.

Campos described one of his abductors as in his mid-20s, 5 feet, 9 inches tall and slim with blond medium-length hair and a mustache. He wore blue shorts with a red stripe and a T-shirt, Campos said. The other was 25-30 years old, 5 feet, 8 inches tall, medium build, wearing blue jeans and a faded brown striped shirt.

There have been no arrests in the case, police say, but the investigation is continuing.

Regional airport to get federal funds

Midland Regional Airport will receive $500,000 in discretionary funding under the federal Airport Development Assistance Program, according to a spokesman in the office of U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Texas. The announcement was made Thursday.

Combined with $850,000 awarded last week under ADAP entitlement funds, this gives the city of Midland $1.35 million for expansion projects at the airport.

"This is good news," Col. Wilson Banks, aviation director, remarked. "I thought all we were going to get is the entitlement money," and he attributed the additional funds to the efforts of the City Council and the Washington representatives.

Projects at the airport for which the money could be applied include an air carrier parking ramp and some of the road work on expansion of the parking lot.

"The ramp is our highest priority. That's probably what the money will go for," Banks said.

By receiving the federal money it means that much less that the city will have to sell in certificates of obligation to fund the expansion work, according to Banks.

The grant was confirmed by the Federal Aviation Administration, said Banks. Total cost of the air carrier parking ramp is $2,202,454, and the remaining funds should come in 1983. The funding formula calls for Midland to pay 10 percent of the costs with the remainder to come out of this federal fund.

"This is $500,000 more than we expected," said Banks. "We're not going to look a gift horse in the mouth."

Controversy surrounding asphalt plant continues

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

The city of Midland has attempted to halt construction of an asphalt plant east of the city and residents opposed to the structure will meet Saturday morning in Kniffen Estates to determine what further action, if any, they want to take against the plant.

The Texas Air Control Board has granted opponents to the plant a right to hold a public hearing. But Jim Logan of 309 Irvin, who has been one of the leaders of the opposition, said Thursday he's not sure what the other residents want to do. A block party will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in front of his house to discuss the issue.

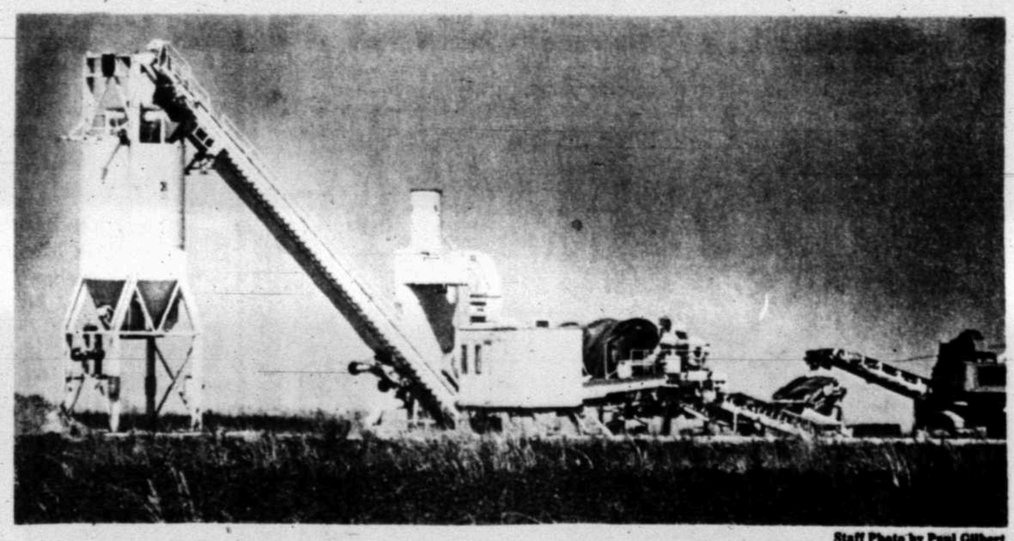

The problem, Logan said, is that it will cost $2,000 to $3,000 to obtain attorneys to fight the case.

Meanwhile, the city has requested construction of the plant be stopped. And an assistant city attorney acknowledged that the owners violated a city resolution by allowing work to continue on the plant after Sept. 21 when the City Council passed the ruling.

Petroplex Land and Development Co. had applied to the Texas Air Control Board for a permit to construct the plant on land east of County Road 1160 North. The permit was granted Aug. 11 and work began. The plant sits east of the road. Meanwhile, Kniffen Estates with homes ranging from $100,000 up sits west of the road.

Much of the machinery for the asphalt plant under construction in northeast Midland is already in place. According to an assistant city attorney, the owners of the plant violated a city resolution by allowing work to continue after the resolution was passed Sept. 21.

The Thouvenel String Quartet, top photo, plays Mozart for the annual Pops in the Plaza concert held at the First National Bank plaza downtown Thursday. The event, which also featured the symphony, has become a favorite among downtowners. It marks the Midland kickoff of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale's subscription ticket sales. Lunches are sold on the site but some Midlanders, like Rick and Breida Gessaman, make a real event of the lunchtime performance by bringing their own totally stocked picnic hamper.

'Pops in the Plaza' again earns place as favorite

Clear azure skies greeted Midlanders Thursday morning. The early morning crisp fall air signaled the senses that, while we are in the midst of an Indian summer, winter is coming. Almost no breeze rippled the treetops, or gusted around the buildings downtown, as offices opened their doors for the day's business.

It was a perfect day for an outdoor concert. And fortunately there was one to attend.

The annual Pops in the Plaza concert began at noon at The First National Bank's plaza downtown. The event, sponsored by The First National Bank, has become a favorite with those who have attended in the past and draws new fans yearly from among the area's newcomers.

It also marks the official Midland kickoff for the upcoming Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale's season, with a similiar concert being held on a different day in Odessa. The first subscription concert of the season is set for Oct. 4 and 5 when Anna Maria Alberghetti will be the symphony's guest artist.

The symphony, conducted by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, performed for an hour. Selections ranged from movie theme songs as in "Chariots of Fire," and popular television theme songs as in "M*A*S*H," to a classical number, the Molto allegro movement of the Mozart Quartet in G major, played by the Thouvenel String Quartet.

Those sitting close could hear the quartet: Many of those who weren't, couldn't.

Hohstadt explained to the audience that it was impossible to turn the speakers up any louder because they would pick up the sound of the wind.

By this time the wind had picked up and gusted around those gathered in the plaza. Although it was aggravating at times, it was also a relief to those sitting in the sun. The day had definitely warmed up.

Hohstadt explained that "chamber music" was designed to be played in an indoor setting, saying he hoped some of those there would avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the quartet in such a setting by attending the group's first concert of the season at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College.

A good suggestion.

Hohstadt also introduced the chorale's director, Dr. Stan Engebretson, who led the crowd in a sing-a-long which came close to the end of the concert.

Hohstadt mentioned the chorale auditions to the crowd, explaining there is always room for more singers. Laughter filtered through the audience when he added, "We have a few people well placed through the audience listening to you. They are going to write up a little report."

The crowd was a hodge-podge of ages with most appearing to be under 35. The songs in the sing-a-long — "Louise," "Me and My Shadow," "Margie," "Apple Blossom Time," "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" and "Singing in the Rain" — were not as familiar to them as more recent numbers might have been. Perhaps that's why, even though most had copies of the words, many didn't join in the singing. But they seemed to enjoy it, and gave Engebretson a rousing applause when he was through.

In fact, the crowd, which filled not only the plaza but also the walkways and the closed portion of Wall Avenue, enjoyed the day, the company and the music.

At least this member did and in this instance I feel I can speak for the others.

The concert closed with the national anthem, which is its traditional concluding number. Hohstadt suggested that those holding balloons might like to take this opportunity to release them.

Most did. As the balloons lifted skyward, those working in their offices above came to the windows to watch.

Maybe next year they'll take the time to come and listen. Because that's all it takes — time. The concert is free. Box lunches are sold by symphony guild members, so it's possible to eat lunch and enjoy music at the same time.

Those who weren't there missed a relaxing hour of music under West Texas clear blue sky.

Irishmen prefer good old Nashville music

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

EAST DURHAM, N.Y. (AP) — The most popular songs in Ireland these days are not Irish songs at all, but the down home Nashville sound of good old country music.

"Mother Machree" can't hold a candle in the auld sod to Dolly Parton, and the greenest jukebox lyrics you hear any night in the Emerald Isle have nothing to do with the hills of Killarney or the vale of Avoca, but emanate from the Johnny Cash recording of "The "Green, Green Grass of Home," a best seller on both sides of the troubled border.

Although I have observed the phenomenon myself in many hours of job related pub crawling in all of Ireland's 32 counties, my authority for this disturbing trend in Hibernian musical taste is Al Logan, the Belfast crooner who regularly commutes to the Catskill Mountains in New York to re-acquaint the immigrant sons and daughters of Erin and their offspring with their roots.

"Country music is emotional and sentimental," Logan explained as we both waited for the breakfast bell to sound in a lovely green glen of the "Irish Alps," as the northeast corner of the Catskills is called. "And the Irish are an emotional, sentimental people. They like their songs simple and direct, tugging a bit at the heart strings and maybe telling a story — a sad story, preferably."

The strange thing is that the Irish both at home and abroad have adopted such country favorites as "One Day at a Time," "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Oak Tree" and "By The Time I Get to Phoenix" as their own, while giving "Macushla," "Danny Boy" and "The Rose of Tralee" the bum's rush into ethnic oblivion.

THE YOUNGER generation, the colleens in particular, don't want to hear about "Delaney's Donkey," "Courtin' in the Kitchen" or "The Cottage With the Horseshoe O'er the Door." They suspect there is something degrading about the women in this and don't care a hoot whether Paddy Reilly ever gets back to Ballyjamesduff after all his gallivanting.

Mulligan's Stew

Their tastes in Irish music, when the country-western repertoire finally runs down, seem to center on maudlin latter-day rebel songs like "The Boys Behind the Wire" and a new wave of always-welcome raucous drinking songs like "Would You Like Your Old Lobby Washed Down."

Both in the Irish Alps and in the Wicklow Hills outside Dublin I have come across young Irish entertainers who didn't know the words to "Galway Bay" and "Danny Boy" or didn't have the sheet music for "The Mountains of Mourne" or "Dear Old Donegal" — or at least pretended they didn't. You'd have thought I'd asked them to play an early Haydn opera or an obscure Kyrie in Gregorian chant.

Al Logan, who croons like Bing Crosby in a slight Antrim accent and has been told he looks like Perry Como, has kept up with the times, but now and then sneaks in a John McCormack favorite or an immigrant song like "The Mountains of Mourne" or "Phil the Fluter's Ball" out of respect for the great Irish composer Percy French.

Among his personal favorites is "These Are My Mountains," and when he sings it nowadays the audience doesn't know whether he is lavishing lyrical love on the Catskills or the Mountains of Mourne back home.

A popular ballad singer on both Irish TV and the BBC and a mainstay in the clubs of Belfast before "The Troubles" resumed, Logan made his first appearance in the Catskills in 1971, when the old boarding houses in the Irish Alps near the towns of East Durham and Leeds were being upgraded to resort Hotels for a more comfort-minded second- and third-generation clientele.

"IT WAS A novelty in those days to have an entertainer direct from Ireland," Logan recalls, "and it still seems ironic to me that all the Irish action and the rebel songs should be echoing from Catskill mountain towns named for conservative, very British cities."

Now Logan has become a seasonal fixture at Gavin's Golden Hill House, one of a couple of dozen authentic Irish-American "houses," as the hotels are still called, arriving every spring and leaving just after Columbus Day for a winter round of engagements in whatever clubs and bars still survive in Belfast.

"The Catskills do remind me of the Mountains of Mourne," Logan confessed, "Green and purple, according to the mood of the clouds, and with a lot better weather. At least it doesn't rain all the time, but I can't stand the winter. I'm not a snow person."

Logan was born on the Falls Road in the heart of Belfast's Catholic ghetto, but used to sing in clubs on both the Catholic and Protestant sides of the so-called peace line until the violence and the bombings left most of the nightlife to the terrorists and the fire brigade. By then, the people had become so polarized no one ventured on alien turf for a bit of refreshment and music.

"A man came up to me one day in the Belfast airport," Logan recalls, "and said to me, 'My sister was a great fan of yours until she found out you were a Catholic.' I guess to her it was like losing my voice or something."

In New York's Irish Alps on any given night the audience is apt to include visitors and recent or long-time emigrants from all 32 Irish counties, both Protestants and Catholics, as well as Irish-descended tourists from Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Since the Catholics are no longer required to eat fish on Friday, it's no longer possible to determine who is a "left footer" or a "mackerel snapper," unless a Donnybrook breaks out when the band strikes up "The Boys Behind the Wire."

Students to race kegs to raise money

ODESSA — Students at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will have their work cut out for them as they participate in a benefit keg race for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Saturday.

The race, scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m. in the UTPB gym parking lot, will cover eight miles. Woody Kupper, director of student life, said the clubs and organizations on campus will be given a beer keg to get in good running condition before the race.

"The students will only get the keg; it is their responsibility to get it in some kind of fashion to make it roll," he explained. Students will begin the race at the university and the finish line will be at the Coors Distributing Co., he noted.

Students may still pick up support letters from the student life office. "Last year we raised $400 and would like to double that figure this year," Kupper added.

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for most of southern California, in a band to eastern Montana, the Ohio valley and most of the East.

Cooling trend forecast for Saturday

Although the first day of fall brought some summer-like temperatures, the National Weather Service is predicting a cooling trend for Saturday.

Thursday's high reached 91, eight degrees short of the record 99 set in 1933. The overnight low of 60 compares with a record low 49 set in 1975.

Tonight should be fair and cool with a low in the mid 50s and east-northeasterly winds clipping along at 5 to 10 mph. Saturday should be fair and cooler with the mercury only edging into the mid-80s. Winds Saturday should be east-southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph.

With no rain on the horizon, monthly and yearly rainfall amounts should remain anchored at 1.43 and 11.62 inches.

Sunset tonight comes at 7:43 p.m.; sunrise tommorrow is at 7:39 a.m.

Poll places Bentsen ahead of Collins

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has a 24 point lead over GOP opponent Rep. James Collins in the 1982 Texas Senate race, according to a recent telephone poll commissioned by the Bentsen re-election campaign.

The poll shows Bentsen leading 54-30 with 15 percent of the voters undecided and one percent supporting neither candidate. The survey was taken last week by Washington-based Democratic pollsters Peter D. Hart Associates.

The same pollsters last July gave the Texas senator a 22 point lead over Collins — 48-26. The number of undecided voters in that survey was 25 percent.

Dee Travis, Collins' campaign manager, called the Hart poll "ludicrous."

The Dallas Republican last month released his own poll that said he trailed Bentsen by just nine points.

"We're not even with Bentsen; there's no question about that," Travis said. "But the Republican National Committee considers this one of the five closest (Senate) races in the country. It will be a very close race, no matter who wins."

Dentist indicted on perjury charges

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A grand jury has indicted an Arlington oral surgeon on charges of lying during an inquest into the anesthesia-related death of a one of his patients.

Dr. Paul Edward Menton, 42, was expected to surrender today and post a $1,000 bond set in the case, prosecutors said.

Menton was named in an aggravated perjury charge, returned Thursday by a Tarrant County grand jury.

Menton and his former assistant, Sandra Smith, appeared before the panel last week to answer questions surrounding the death of Vickram Bajaj.

Bajaj, 18, lapsed into a coma in Menton's office June 26, 1981 after he was anesthesized for oral surgery.

The youth's parents later sued Menton, claiming the surgeon failed to monitor their son adequately. The suit is pending in state district court here.

The indictment accused Menton of lying in a sworn statement he gave to Dr. Nizam Peerwani, Tarrant County medical examiner, during an inquest last fall.

In the statement, Menton said he used an alarm-equipped device to measure Bajaj's blood pressure. But the indictment contended that the device was not used until Bajaj had lost all vital signs.

District Attorney Tim Curry said Menton was summoned before the grand jury last week after prosecutors in his office learned of discrepancies between the statement given Peerwani and a statement Menton gave in the civil case.

Menton said in the civil suit statement that the monitor was used only after the patient lost his vital signs, Curry said.

Curry said Miss Smith, 23, has been granted immunity from prosecution and will be the state's key witness against Menton.

If convicted, Menton faces up to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Media traipse after 'Bullock's Raiders'

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

The adrenalin was pumping and speculation ran high among a dozen or so reporters, TV cameramen and photographers who, tipped in advance, followed a large convoy of "Bullock's Raiders," Texas Rangers and other law enforcement officers south on Big Spring Street shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday.

"These are the top cops in the state," said one reporter. "This has got to be a major bust. They can't be after some restaurant or shoe store that didn't get their tax receipts in on time."

"That's right," chirped another reporter as he speculated where the unmarked caravan was heading. "Well, we just passed the... It can't be them. Maybe it's the...Club"

"No," snapped a photographer. "They're too well protected. It's got to be...on the south side. But they're pretty well covered too. I don't get it."

A southside raid seemed confirmed when the stream of cars turned left off Big Spring and headed east on Florida Avenue. But we had already passed the nightspot mentioned by the photographer.

"What could it be?" somebody asked. "Drugs, dice, prostitution, some joint watering down the booze?"

Earlier, an agent for the state comptrollers office had repeatedly refused to speak in other than very vague terms about the impending raid, which had all the outward appearances of a major bust designed to curb some sort of illegal activity that was significantly damaging the community, illegal activity that — for whatever reasons — local authorities had been unable to cope with.

After all, there was "the year-long investigation, some of it undercover" that had been spearheaded by the State Comptrollers Office. There were solemn-faced Texas Rangers and Alcohol Beverage Commission agents. There were two investigators from District Attorney Vern Martin's office. There was even a lawyer, his briefcase full of paperwork, from the comptrollers office in Austin.

"Jeez, it looks like Elliot Ness and company," said a reporter as he and his colleagues milled around the local comptroller's office on North Big Spring Street, trying to guess what was about to go down. "This is Gangbusters."

"I'm sorry," said a spokesman for the agency. "We want the publicity, but I can't even tell you what the violation of the law is. If I did, you'd know exactly where we're going and try to beat us there. You'll just have to follow us and take it from there."

So follow we did — a largely bewildered and somewhat apprehensive lot in whose heads danced visions of dramatic confrontaions, potential gunfire and somebody inevitably snarling: "You ain't takin' me alive, dirty coppers."

The confusion mounted as the caravan wound through the early evening traffic on Florida Avenue, then snaked south along Lamesa Road.

"The only thing down here is the VFW," said an incredulous photographer. "And the only thing they can be after is bingo."

"Are you crazy?" came the equally incredulous reply from a reporter. "All this time and money to bust somebody's grandmother?"

But to the collective groans of Midland-Odessa's crack newsmen, some of the top lawmen in the state sure enough swept through the open doors of the club, confronted children and little old ladies and announced, "Bingo!"

One state agent said Sheriff Dallas Smith hadn't been officially notified of the raid in advance because the club is inside city limits. But Chief of Police Wayne Gideon had been notified and invited to participate. "He didn't send anybody," the agent said rather pointedly. "I have no idea why."

Gideon could not be reached for comment, but, as one reporter quipped, "He probably had better sense than to get involved with busting kids and little gray-haired grandmothers trying to augment their social security checks."

VFW bingo operation shut down

have these illegal operations going on.

"This is the first bingo raid this year. It won't be the last. We want people to get the message that they need to turn out the lights and throw away the numbers until they get a license."

Saying he knew full well there'd be hell to pay for raiding bingo games, Garland said: "We got flak because of the sales tax raids too. But that's our job."

Commenting on one woman's complaint that if they were going to be raided the raid should have come before the games got started so they wouldn't lose their hard-earned money, Garland said female agents had infiltrated the hall and participated in the games, then called enforcement officers at the agency's branch office on North Big Spring Street to confirm that an illegal operation had actually gotten under way.

"We had to prove that an illegal game was going on," he added, noting that if there had been any financial malice in their hearts agents could have waited until the game was about to break up before conducting the raid.

"We feel like what we have been doing is for a worthy cause," said Erma Campbell, a cook and cleaning woman for the club who was helping conduct Thursday night's game. "Professional gamblers take their cut, while everything here goes for charity.

"Nobody comes through those doors asking for something that they don't get it. We've helped the families of veterans, the battered women's shelter, nursing homes, the crippled childrens home and the Allison Cancer Center."

Noting that the Bingo Enabling Act allows the proceeds of the games to go only for charity, Garland said:

"The legislative intent was to allow people to legally play bingo with a system of control — record-keeping requirements and audits — so we could be sure the proceeds go to charitable organizations, which is the only legal place the proceeds can go.

"It's a no-win situation. If we don't enforce the law, somebody is after us; if we do enforce it, somebody is after us."

Post Commander and former county commissioner Jack Leonard denied the group had been warned they were operating illegally. But among the items confiscated in the raid were two pamphlets outlining the new bingo law. The pamphlets were stamped: "Received Aug. 8, 1982."

No one was taken into custody. Instead, the operators were told to report to the district attorney's office today.

Operating an illegal bingo game is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine. Players are subject to misdemeanor charges.

In a statement issued from Austin late this morning, Bullock' office said: "Any other unlicensed games in the state can expect visits from the Comptroller's agents.

"These people (the VFW) have had three opportunities this year to have elections to legalize these games and they haven't done so. We have gone out of our way to warn these people."

U.S. aircraft crashes at sea in NATO maneuver

BOOSTEDT, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Marine aircraft crashed at sea during a NATO manuever early today, U.S. and West German spokesmen said.

There was no word on how many people were aboard the aircraft or if they bailed out before it ditched. It was also not clear where the plane went down.

U.S. Marine Capt. Dale Dye said the plane ditched shortly after 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT) while on maneuver with U.S., West German and other Allied forces.

Spokesmen at the Boostedt headquarters for the maneuver taking place on land and sea in northern West Germany and Denmark said they could confirm only that "a plane has crashed."

American sources said the plane was an AV-8 Harrier.

Paper: Military knew of killing same day

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's senior military command knew of the massacre of Palestinians in Beirut the same day the killings began, and not the day after as Defense Minister Ariel Sharon has claimed, the Jerusalem Post reported today.

The Post's respected military correspondent, Hirsh Goodman, reported that at 11 p.m. on the first day, the Israeli commander in Beirut received a report saying "until now 300 civilians and terrorists have been killed." The cable came from a Christian Phalange leader in the Chatilla refugee camp, the scene of some of the slaughter, Goodman said.

The military command in Tel Aviv deferred comment on the report to the Defense Ministry. Defense Ministry spokesmen could not be reached immediately for comment.

The massacre reportedly began on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 16.

The fire, which reports indicate was "probably set," began shortly before 3 p.m. and firemen had it under control in less than an hour. The one-story brick structure was extensively damaged by the fire, which firemen extinguished with 1,500 gallons of water.

Meier attacks Mattox's fundraising tactics

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

State Sen. Bill Meier called his opponent's tactics of requesting campaign funds "influence peddling of the worst kind" Thursday afternoon during a news conference at Chaparral Aviation.

The Republican is battling Congressman Jim Mattox for the state attorney general's post. Calling for "robust debates" between the two men to give the voters a chance to look at both sides, Meier contended that Mattox couldn't honestly sign the Texas oath of office if elected.

He handed out copies of a letter mailed to Democrats around the state on Mattox's congressional letterhead in which the Democrat asked for donations of $5,000 or $1,000. If that amount is given, the donor will be made a member of "the attorney general's leadership council."

"I need people who will raise and/or contribute money as well as attend a state and regional planning session each year to discuss the future of our State, the goals of the Attorney General's office and how best I can accomplish these goals....The Attorney General's Leadership Council will be limited to 400 members from across the state."

Deadine for charter membership is Sept. 30, according to the letter. For a $5,000 donation, the contributor is made a member of the executive committee. For $1,000, the donor is made a council director, the letter relates.

In attacking Mattox for this campaign tactic, Meier charged his opponent "has clearly overstepped the line between accepting campaign contributions and in offering a public office to an elite group of contributors, who may not be qualified to assist in making decisions for the lawyer for the people of Texas."

Claiming that the letter gives special interest groups a chance to "buy in," Meier added that he couldn't understand the significance of the Sept. 30 cutoff date.

He went on to claim that Mattox has received over $200,000 from labor organizations and Meier portended this means a day when right-to-work laws will be diminished in Texas.

"It is safe to say that labor will have a great deal to do with the day-to-day operations of anything Jim Mattox undertakes," he said.

Listing Mattox's campaign donations as amounting to $1.2 million, the Republican said, "Mattox is an all-time champ when it comes to raising money from special interest groups."

Meier contended that he has received "broad support" and about 1,800 different contributions which add up to about $600,000 to $700,000.

Adding that Mattox won't win the race, Meier pointed to the state's oath of office and said his opponent couldn't sign it because of the contributions.

It states that "I furthermore solemnly swear (or affirm) that I have not directly nor indirectly paid, offered or promised to pay, contributed, nor promised to contribute any money, or valuable thing, or promised any public office or employment, as a reward to secure my employment or the confirmation thereof."

He also called for a series of debates with Mattox, including one in West Texas, "to ferret out the truth."

Calling Mattox an "incompetent liberal," Meier said the "people of this state are entitled to have a good, solid look at the attorney general candidates."

The Republican recently took Mattox to court in Dallas over the Democrat's wording on his campaign literature. Instead of saying Mattox for attorney general it read Mattox: attorney general.

"The judge said that Mattox had been in violation but that the statute is unconstitutional. He said the candidate can misrepresent the truth in campaigns," said Meier.

The attorney general's office should represent the state in all cases, and this means even to oppose a governor's request to seek outside counsel on some cases, as happened with incumbent Mark White, according to Meier. "I would tell the governor that the people elected me to be attorney general and not outside counsel. The governor doesn't have a choice" even if he insisted, the state senator added.

In addition, he contended that the attorney general's office should emphasize fighting crime and making sure the death penalty is carried out.

Residents to discuss protest of asphalt plant

Kniffen Estates — opposed to the plant have written letters of objection to the board's legal department in Austin, and on Sept. 3 about 80 persons showed up at a protest rally on CR 1160.

On Sept. 21, the council passed a resolution prohibiting any construction of buildings that won't be single family residences or would not ordinarily be allowed under an Agricultural Estates zoning. This rule applies to all land that has been included on a first reading of an annexation move. The asphalt plant sits on land that comes under that annexation reading.

David Reagan, assistant city attorney, said the resolution was approved "to give us jurisdiction to preserve the status quo in that area being annexed."

Since the resolution was passed, Reagan said, the city sent a building inspector and code enforcement official to the site and told the owners to come apply for the necessary permits.

Involved with Petroplex Land and Development Co., Inc., is Clyde White. The land on which the facility is being constructed was formerly owned by Goodrich Hejl.

Reagan said the owners would have to apply for a building permit in the inspections department, and a temporary land use permit for one year through the zoning department.

"Both matters will have to go to the council since this is a use not permitted in the AE zoning," he said. Unless otherwise requested, land annexed by the city is zoned AE. It allows single-family homes, schools, churches or facilities for utility companies.

The double request should make it before the council in its Oct. 12 meeting, Reagan said.

The land use permit would require time to notify nearby landowners. And the Planning and Zoning Commission must look at the building permit request and make a recommendation to the council, he explained.

"The Oct. 12 meeting is the first date both could be considered," Reagan added.

"My understanding is that there can be no operation or further construction until this matter will be decided by the council. The resolution became effective immediately," he said. "In fact, it was retroactive back to the first reading of annexation," which came on Aug. 24.

If construction was started after that date, it was done illegally, he said.

And if construction hasn't been halted by now, Reagan said the city could file against the owners in municipal court or request an injunction from district court. Either way, the decision would lay with a judge, according to Reagan.

Prankster works for candidate

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Dick Tuck, the political prankster noted for his campaign tricks against Richard M. Nixon, will lend his talents to a Democratic candidate for Congress.

The candidate, former Santa Barbara County supervisor Frank Frost, is running against Republican incumbent Robert Lagomarsino to represent the district in which President Reagan is registered.

Frost said that Tuck would serve as an unpaid special consultant.

"Dick will look at our campaign, will look at the opposition, and suggest whatever he thinks appropriate in the way of special events," Frost said.

Asked if special events meant pranks, Frost said, "That's what the opposition calls them."

Tuck was working for U.S. Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas when she ran against Nixon in 1950 for a U.S. Senate seat from California. A professor, not aware of Tuck's tie to Mrs. Douglas, asked Tuck to make advance arrangements for a Nixon visit to Santa Barbara.

Tuck rented a large auditorium, invited a few people to attend and then, when introducing Nixon, asked the candidate to speak on the International Monetary Fund.

When Nixon was running for president in 1960, Tuck donned a conductor's cap during a Nixon whistle-stop tour and signaled the engineer to pull out before the candidate had finished his speech.

In a later campaign, Tuck once arranged for a group of apparently pregnant woman to appear at a rally carrying signs that read: "Nixon is the One."

Frost said it was "quite possible" that some of Tuck's special events could relate to Reagan. He said Tuck "was most fascinated that this is the congressional district where Ronald Reagan votes."

Lagomarsino said through an aide that Frost's announcement "indicates the caliber of campaign (he) intends to wage."

Frost said Tuck was a college friend from the 1950s at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Brewery to expand output

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The board of directors of Anheuser-Busch Co. Inc. has approved the doubling of the capacity of its Houston brewery allowing the brewer to produce more than 75 million barrels of beer a year.

August A. Busch III, president and board chairman, said earliet this week expansion would begin immediately to increase production from 5.2 million barrels annually at the plant to 8.8 million barrels.

The project, which is slated for completed for completion in 1985, will boost employment from 560 workers to more than 1,000.

"This expansion is a reflection of strong sales trends in the vitally important Texas marketplace and will better position Anheuser-Busch to keep pace with future Sunbelt growth opportunities," said Busch.

The brewer now operates 10 breweries across the country and plans to open another next year in Baldwinsville, N.Y.

The company also announced that its merger with the second largest U.S. producer of bread and bread-related products is proceeding on schedule.

An Anheuser-Busch spokesman said that a waiting period for the U.S. Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission to request additional information on the merger with Campbell-Taggert, Inc. of Dallas had expired.

Analysts say the merger would give world's largest brewer a second major distribution network that could provide an outlet for snack foods and other items.

Odessa school counselor files lawsuit

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

An Odessa school counselor who claims she was denied a promotion "solely on account of her race" — black — has filed a federal lawsuit in which she alleges discrimination and violation of her constitutional and civil rights by the administrators and trustees of the Ector County Independent School District.

The complainant, Mattie Elayne Hunt, an employee of the Ector ISD since 1958, says in her petition filed in federal court in Midland that she was "denied promotion to coordinator of special education" last July.

Instead, she alleges, the Ector ISD trustees "voted to hire a white female, recruited from outside the district for the position, who was less qualified than the Plaintiff Hunt for the position of coordinator of special education." The Ector ISD trustees hired Jane Huffman of Friendswood near Galveston as special education coordinator.

Ms. Hunt says the school officials conspired to deny her the job, which offered a $28,000-to-$36,000 annual salary range.

In addition to alleged discrimination based "solely" on her race, Ms. Hunt claims she was penalized for being a member and director of the National Education Association (NEA) and its state affiliate, the Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA).

In her suit, she is seeking exemplary and punitive damages, is asking the federal court to require the school administration to offer her the position she had sought or to pay her the difference between her present salary and the salary she would have received had she been named to the coordinator's post, and is asking the court to enjoin the administration from further discrimination against her.

Ms. Hunt, counselor for special education for 10 years and a classroom teacher for 14 years before that, says in the petition that she earned the master's degree in counseling and guidance from The University of Texas of the Permian Basin in 1978 and received the bachelor's degree from Paul Quinn College in Waco in 1954. Among honors she has received are being listed in the biographical dictionaries "Who's Who in America" and "Who's Who Among Black Americans." While she was teaching, she was named as an outstanding elementary schoolteacher.

Defendants in the suit are Ector County ISD Trustees Shirley Huffaker, president, and members Sam Gipson, John Quisenberry, Bob Clark, Bill R. Turner and Vickie Gomez; Ector ISD administrators, William M. Holm, superintendent; Gordon Madison, director of personnel; Keith A. Dial, assistant superintendent for instruction; Joe Starnes, assistant superintendent for administrative services; and Floy B. Hinson, director of special populations.

Services for Myrtle Beatrice Lindsay, 72, of 3208 Franklin, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ross Payne, minister of Cottonflat Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Lindsay died Thursday in a Midland hospital.

She was born June 17, 1910, in Brandon. She had lived in Midland 28 years, moving here from Fort Worth. She married James Thomas Gibson in 1925 in Brandon. He preceded her in death about 11 years ago. She was a retired employee of Billie's Cafe, where she had worked for 17 years.

Survivors include a daughter, Billie Hunt of Midland; a son, Tommy Gibson of Midland; six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be J.D. Atchley, Darryl Albrecht, Curtiss Fallin, Mario V. Torres, Dave Hoff and Allen Morgan.

Opal Warren

SAN ANGELO — Services for Mrs. Cecil (Opal) C. Warren, 66, of San Angelo, mother of Mrs. Jackie McDonald and Judy Warren and sister of Mrs. Bernie Cobb, all of Midland, were to be at 2 p.m. today in Johnson's Funeral Home chapel with Rev. Lindell Vaught, minister of music at the First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was to be in Lawnhaven Memorial Gardens directed by Johnson's Funeral Home of San Angelo.

Mrs. Warren died Thursday afternoon in a San Angelo hospital.

She was born May 13, 1917, in Jones County. She married Cecil R. Warren March 31, 1934, in Brownfield. In 1980, they moved from there to San Angelo. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Other survivors include her husband, a daughter, a brother, four grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Gaynell Mathews

SAN ANTONIO — Services for Gaynell Mathews, 87, of San Antonio, mother of Robert F. Mathews of Midland, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Porter-Loring Funeral Home chapel in San Antonio. Burial will be in Mission Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Mathews died Thursday in a San Antonio hospital.

She was born Aug. 3, 1895, in Bartlett. She had been a resident of San Antonio since 1925. She was married to William Randolph Mathews. He preceded her in death in 1957. She was a life-long member of the Methodist church.

Other survivors include a son, a daughter and six grandchildren.

Harold L. Helbert

Services for Harold L. "Shorty" Helbert, 66, of rural Midland, will be at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Hospital.

He died this morning in a Midland hospital.

Helbert was born Dec. 22, 1916, in Aubrey. He grew up in San Angelo, moving to Midland in 1935. He was employed in the cement finishing business. He married the former Jo Wilson in San Angelo in 1934. His interests in Midland included a sand and gravel yard, a trucking company and a ready-mix cement plant. He also farmed in Andrews County. He retired in 1980.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Eddie Helbert of Andrews and Larry Helbert of Tempee, Ariz.; a daughter, Billie Huckabee of Andrews; and four grandchildren.

Sarah Churchill dies at 67

LONDON (AP) — Sarah Churchill, the flamboyant actress daughter of Sir Winston Churchill who described herself as the "lamb who strayed from the fold," died today after a long illness, her family said. She was 67.

Her brother-in-law Lord Soames said she died in her sleep during the early hours at her London home. He declined to specify the nature of her illness.

"She was loved by all who knew her on both sides of the Atlantic," he said.

Sarah, Lady Audley, and her sister Mary, Lady Soames, were the only surviving children of Britain's wartime prime minister. Randolph Churchill died in 1968 and Diana in 1963.

Lady Audley served in the Women's Air Force and was an aide-de-camp to her father during World War II and accompanied him to the Tehran and Yalta conferences.

She was better known, however, for her stage career, her three marriages and her well-publicized drinking bouts. Her last husband, Henry, Lord Audley, died in 1963 and she was living alone at the time of her death, still writing prose and poetry.

Lady Audley once said she had "a lovely childhood but I suddenly knew around 17 I had to make a break. It was too comfortable, too secure."

She spent a year in Paris studying at the Sorbonne and sent her essays home for her father to read. After leaving school, she studied ballet and made her first stage appearance at London's Adelphi Theater at the age of 22 in the chorus line of "Follow the Sun."

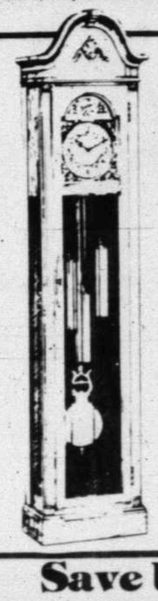

Despite her father's obvious distress, she ran away in 1936 to marry comedian Vic Oliver, an Austrian 17 years her senior whom she met in that show.

During the war, she worked in the photo intelligence department of the Women's Air Force. She also accompanied her father to the strategic 1943 Tehran conference with Franklin D. Roosevelt and the 1945 Yalta conference, during which Churchill, Roosevelt and Soviet leader Josef Stalin mapped out post-war plans. Her sister, Mary, accompanied Churchill to two other war conferences.

Jordan tells of Edward Kennedy's political blackmail

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Professor Jimmy Carter attributes his current station in no small measure to the 1980 nomination challenge of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Two years later, he's still getting even.

That goes double for Hamilton Jordan.

Lecturing at Atlanta's Emory University, the former president took a sharp cut into Kennedy's 1984 presidential ambitions. He said Kennedy might be a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination, but, "I doubt very seriously if the American people will give him a majority vote."

Carter is not exactly a disinterested observer; he's already endorsed his vice president, Walter Mondale, for the 1984 nomination.

At Emory, the former president cited Kennedy's refusal to drop out of the 1980 campaign before the Democratic National Convention as a major factor in his November election defeat by President Reagan.

Jordan says the same thing, but tougher. His book "Crisis," on the final year of Carter's one-term presidency, accuses the Massachusetts senator of blackmailing the president for campaign fundraising support as the price of active backing in the race against Reagan.

Kennedy's spokesman denies it.

That lingering Democratic feud has turned up now in the Massachusetts senate campaign, with Kennedy's Republican opponent — ever on the lookout for a catchy issue — demanding a public accounting of the fundraising episode.

"Considering that this is a charge leveled by a former president's chief of staff, and apparently supported by President Carter, it would seem necessary for the senator to personally answer it," said Ray Shamie, who is pouring more than $700,000 of his own money into a longshot campaign against Kennedy.

Kennedy won his last Senate race with 69 percent of the vote. But Shamie insists that Kennedy's not invincible and claims that new polls will show him gaining ground. He hammers at the Kennedy record and punctuates his campaign with gimmicks, chief among them an offer of a $10,000 reward to anyone who can get Kennedy to debate him.

So when Jordan's book came out, he promptly demanded that Kennedy answer "the very serious charges that his staff blackmailed a sitting president of the United States in an attempt to pay off the senator's campaign debt."

According to Jordan, Carter came away from a post-convention talk with Kennedy convinced that the senator was eager to help in the fall campaign. Jordan, then the campaign manager, was to handle arrangements with Stephen Smith, Kennedy's brother-in-law and campaign chief.

Jordan said the Carter organization would be looking for help in major states, with the emphasis on reclaiming support from Democrats who had backed Kennedy in the presidential primaries.

"That's reasonable," he quotes Smith as replying. "Let me tell you how you can help us. We're eager to campaign extensively on behalf of the ticket, but we have a sizeable debt from the primaries...For the senator to give you the time you need from him to campaign, we're going to need some help getting rid of this debt, because if we have to raise it ourselves, it won't leave us any time to help the ticket."

"You bastard, I thought, returning his grin," Jordan writes. 'You're blackmailing us. You'll campaign for us if we help you eliminate your campaign debt."

Jordan said the Kennedy camp wanted a written agreement on a joint fundraising effort. Carter's response, according to Jordan: "He's blackmailing us."

It is not unusual for a presidential nominee to help his defeated rivals pay off primary election campaign debts for the sake of party unity. According to Jordan, Carter was particularly angered at the demand for a written agreement.

Jordan's book does not include the agreement, but it apparently existed. Kennedy's spokesman, Robert Shrum, has said the senator campaigned for the president's re-election before it was signed. "The senator campaigned more extensively than any defeated rival had ever campaigned for a ticket," Shrum said. "It was just that while joint fundraising produced some money to help pay off the challenger's campaign debate, it produced nearly three times as much for the Democratic National Committee. We got $225,000; they got $775,000."

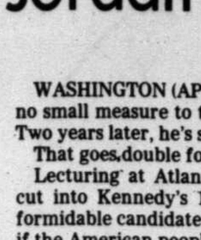

An Analysis

Jordan says the agreement included the assignment of a Kennedy campaign aide to the Carter campaign staff as liaison man and overseer of the joint fundraising effort.

And when the effort seemed to be lagging, Jordan writes, there were hints that Kennedy might not be available for campaign appearances in the final weeks before the election. To avoid that, Jordan says, he took out a loan, wrote a $1,000 check to the Kennedy campaign and showed it around Carter headquarters to get other staffers to cough up.

"I deeply resented Ted Kennedy and his millions coercing all of us to pay off his campaign debt," Jordan writes.

That inside story of political hardball may not do much for Shamie in Massachusetts this year.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Acetaminophen as effective as aspirin

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there any difference in effectiveness between aspirin and acetaminophen? I don't get any bad side effects from either one, but when I get a headache, I like to get rid of it fast. Which one would you recommend for something like this? — Howard, Altoona, Pa.

Dear Howard: A study by Dr. Hartmut Derendorf, of the University of Florida College of Pharmacy in Gainesville, has shown that both aspirin and acetaminophen are equally potent when equal doses of each are used. This conclusion was based on a study of 14 healthy volunteers.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I never suffered with varicose veins until I was pregnant with my first child. Now that I think I might be pregnant again, I'd like to know if there is anything that can be done about it. Do all women get varicose veins when they are pregnant? — Mrs. F.P., Dayton, Ohio

Dear Mrs. P.: As you have learned, pregnancy may cause varicose veins or may worsen an existing condition. One study of more than 3,800 pregnant women showed that more than 9 percent were affected by varicose veins, and that only 12 percent of these women had sufferd from varicose veins before they became pregnant.

Many of my patients find that the use of elastic stockings can be helpful. In addition, your obstetrician may prescribe a diet and exercise that would help alleviate the condition.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I don't know whether this question is simple or stupid, but if everyone knows that people with diabetes are more likely to get cataracts, how come doctors haven't found a way to prevent it? — Russ, Macon, Ga.

Dear Russ: There are a number of conditions that may be predictable but for which medical science has not found the answer. Sometimes a change in lifestyle, such as giving up cigarettes, is sufficient to prevent disease from developing; in other cases, treatment with drugs, such as to control high blood pressure, may be beneficial. But in many instances medical science has not yet come up with the answer.

However, research into the treatment of many diseases is continuing, and an answer to the specific question you raise may be forthcoming. Dr. Annette Beyer-Mears, of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, has reported that eyedrops now being tested may be able to prevent the formation of cataracts in patients with diabetes. The eyedrops have been found to be helpful with laboratory rats and are scheduled to be tested on humans.

As with any such form of treatment, the possible side effects will have to be evaluated very carefully. If the medication passes the clinical tests, it may be possible to use it both for the prevention of cataracts as well as for the treatment of cataracts if they do develop.

Midwife delivers first baby at MMH

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

When Vikki Baxter and her family moved to Texas from Idaho in search of work, she never thought Sandra Haldeman and Midland Memorial Hospial would remain etched in her memory forever.

In fact, she never heard of MMH until Sunday — the Baxters moved from Kermit to Elm Grove Trailer Park in Midland this past weekend.

On Wednesday morning, Vikki went into labor. Although Vikki had been examined, she has not been under the care of a physician. She is what MMH terms a drop in.

Vikki and her husband, Steve, moved to Texas about a year ago after Vikki's mother, who lives in Amarillo, said there was construction work in the area.

VIKKI BECAME pregnant. The Baxters have two other children, a boy 9 and a girl 8. During the past year, Steve worked as a roofer from the Panhandle to West Texas. She was ten days "overdue" when the Baxter family moved to Midland.

Vikki delivered her 7-pound, 12-ounce son at 4:51 p.m. Wednesday at MMH.

William Stephen Baxter Jr., and his mother are doing well. It was a normal delivery for Vikki, but not quite the routine delivery for MMH.

Vikki's son is the first baby to be delivered through MMH's new nurse-midwife program.

Sandra Haldeman, MMH certified nurse-midwife for the new program which began in July, was in the hospital when Vikki was admitted.

Vikki said Ms. Haldeman comforted and assured her everything would be all right through the labor and delivery.

"I KNEW IT was time," Vikki said, recalling the start of her labor. "My husband and I got to the hospital about 11 in the morning through the emergency room."

While holding her newborn Thursday, Vikki relived the event. As she lifted her head, her curly, brown hair rested on her shoulder and her hazel eyes widened:

"The pains were beginning to come three minutes apart — I just started crying. I'd seen a few doctors, but we move around so much.

"We walked into the hospital...we didn't know anybody. It's scary."

Vikki said she was apprehensive about going to MMH — she had had very little prenatal care. While waiting in the emergency room, memories of her daughter, who is now eight years old, clouded her thoughts as she tried to keep dry her tear-stained face.

"When I had my daughter in Arizona, I hadn't seen a doctor. When I went into the hospital, one doctor said he wouldn't do it (delivery)," she said remembering the frightening experience.

"WHEN THEY told me they had a midwife here, I stopped crying," she said smiling. "I always wanted to have a female deliver one of my children.

"The only time I had heard about a midwife was in the covered-wagon days...you know, when they (midwives) went to the home," she added.

A common misconception of a program such as MMH's service — the word midwife has been closely associated with home births — is that the nurse-midwife delivers only at the home.

But, Ms. Haldeman said the MMH program is an in-patient service at the hospital geared toward the indigent patient who have had prenatal care. She explained it is important for every woman who is pregnant to have prenatal care. The reason MMH's nurse-midwife was implemented was to cutback on the number of patients who do not see a physician during their pregnancy.

MS. HALDEMAN works with the obstetricians at the Midland City/County Health Department, educating, examining and preparing mothers-to-be for healthy, normal deliveries.

However, because Vikki was a drop in, she qualified for the program.

Although Ms. Haldeman said she has delivered infants for the past 18 years, William Stephen was her first delivery at MMH.

"I encourage participation on the part of the mother and father," Ms. Haldeman said. "Steve got right in there and coached Vikki with her breathing. He was very supportive through the labor and delivery."

It was a time for many firsts:

—Vikki's first almost medication-free childbirth attended by a nurse-midwife.

—Steve's first time to watch his child being brought into the world.

—Ms. Haldeman's first time to deliver an infant on the MMH nurse-midwife program.

—And the first time the Baxters and Ms. Haldeman experienced a birthing chair.

MMH's birthing chair, which was purchased by the hospital auxiliary in May, is a molded chair capable of being raised, lowered and tilted, allowing the mother to be positioned comfortably for her delivery.

"I THINK IT is a much more physiological position (in the birthing chair), rather than lying flat," Ms. Haldeman said. "It allows good eye contact with the patient so you can instruct her through the delivery."

"The birthing chair! That was something," Vikki exclaimed. "It was so much easier. You can have any position you want.

"I felt like I was going to space," she said, explaining that the birthing chair reminded her of a pilot's seat in a spaceship.

"You're just positioned into this mold and you don't have to keep flopping side to side to adjust yourself to ease the pain.

"This delivery was so different. With the other two, I had a saddleblock. And I hollered — a lot. This time it was natural and meaningful. I did holler some, but my husband held my hand.

"I CAN REMEMBER with the other two, they (nurses) cleaned the baby right away and stuck them in the nursery. But with William, Sandy put him on my stomach right away and he stayed there for a long time. And I can see him whenever I want to."

Because Steve had not attended the birth of the Baxters' other children, the team effort in the delivery of William Stephen will always be a very special memory.

"During delivery my husband was there every minute. While Sandy told me to breathe, Steve would rub my back...then Steve helped me breathe and Sandy rubbed my back. Everyone — Sandy, Steve, the nurses — everyone was just wonderful.

"Look at my baby. Isn't he beautiful?" she asked, bringing William Stephen close to her bosom. "I haven't even seen his whole body yet.

"Where's his legs," Vikki said, unwrapping the infant. "Look they're all curled up. Oh! Look at his toes. Isn't he beautiful?

"If I ever decided I wanted another baby, I'd look up Sandy. Yep, that's what I'd do."

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Celebrities sharing your birthday include: actor Mark Hamill of "Star Wars" fame, dancer Juliet Prowse, TV commentator Barbara Walters, Los Angeles Lakers backup center Bob McAdoo and New York Yankee great Phil Rizzuto. Also born on this date: Mississippi-born writer William Faulkner. Recent events make you more prudent in the months ahead. Look forward to receiving excellent returns from joint financial ventures. A promotion is linked to community achievements. Consider working with a former partner. Romance affects certain career decisions. Hidden resentments occasionally surface within the family circle. Be as candid as possible about your goals. A windfall is possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Settle any disagreements with loved ones so that you can spend a happy weekend together. Sports play a role in your plans. Protect your valuables if traveling.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Challenges to your integrity must be dealt with swiftly. Someone who is afraid you will outshine him/her is spreading rumors. You emerge on top when the truth comes out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An original idea wins you the attention of someone very influential. Be sure to keep a sense of humor when working out details. A family reunion brings joy to everyone involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Romance leads to a reconciliation with an old friend. The flames burn brighter than ever. A young person deserves more of your time and attention. Do not delay.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Slow down. You are racing your motor and upsetting those around you. Remember your real priorities. Loved one tries to tell you what to do. Avoid open conflict.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You take a renewed interest in an old hobby. Phone calls bring good news. A child is a source of inspiration. Encourage someone to make better use of his/her talents.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be careful not to make hasty decisions. Spend the afternoon with friends and think things out. You have an intimate tete-a-tete with that someone special this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Postpone making business decisions and investments. You could be risking more than you can afford to lose. Keep any promises you make to a young person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Those who have been away from home return to the fold. A job opening brings you out of a period of indecision or worry. Socializing sounds delightful later this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A fine day for tackling household chores or important business reading. Stay in the background as much as possible. Jot down new creative or artistic ideas before you forget them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A great day to get together with old friends. Take a walk in the country if you like. A search of the attic could yield "treasures" that can be turned into cash.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Listen to your sixth sense. Someone close to you could urgently need your support. Avoid overreacting to an unintentional slight. Perform more services for yourself to cut expenses.

No one was really happy to see Trump Coup Tommy make his reappearance at the bridge club. All of them had lost considerable sums as his partner when he indulged in his idiosyncracies. And their winnings when Tommy was at his best—on those occasions when trumps broke badly—were small consolation.

Tommy had hardly sat down at the table when this hand was dealt. No one keeps Tommy out of the bidding—it is almost a waste of time preempting against him. We don't blame North for getting excited about his hand. He was considerably disappointed to learn that his partner had only one of the three top trump honors. West's double was flirting with death.

West led a diamond and Tommy ruffed in dummy. He ruffed a club in hand and, had there been no double, he quite likely would have continued with a trump to the ace. But now he led the jack of hearts, covered by the queen and taken by the ace as East let go a diamond—to Tommy's delight!

Another club ruff provided the entry for a diamond ruff, and on the ace-king of clubs, Tommy discarded his remaining diamonds. This was the position:

Tommy led a club from the table and ruffed with the eight. West was helpless. If he overruffed, he would have to provide Tommy with an entry to his hand in either spades or trumps, and declarer would make the rest with a spade finesse. So East pitched a spade. But Tommy countered by taking the spade finesse, cashing the ace and then leading a club, on which he sluffed his last spade. West was forced to ruff and lead a trump into declarer's tenace. Making six-odd!

Answering the questions

The West Beirut massacre has focused intense attention on Israel by the world community. Many questions wait for answers from that nation which above all else cannot afford to stand quietly by.

Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon says Israel supported an operation in the Beirut refugee camps by Phalangist militiamen to flush out PLO terrorists hiding there, but never anticipated an attack on civilians.

The fact that the civilian massacre took place is graphically and horribly evidenced by the bodies of the dead. Confirmation of nearly 300 bodies had been made by late Wednesday, but estimates ranged as high as 1,400 by the Palestine Liberation Organization.

President Ronald Reagan was absolutely correct in his decision to have U.S. troops join French and Italian peacekeeping forces in Lebanon to prevent further bloodshed. The United States after all rightfully feels a moral obligation to the world in this matter because of its unswerving support for Israel.

While Israeli officials have assured that Israeli troops had no part in the massacre, that nation's complicity cannot be disregarded. When the Israelis moved into West Beirut, it was against U.S. objections.

Some observors are saying Israeli officers should have foreseen the possibility of a revenge attack by Christian Arabs. And some Israeli journalists have even claimed the army was slow in stopping the slaughter once it began. An investigation would answer those questions.

Guarantees cannot be given against the kind of violence witnessed in West Beirut in a time of war. The massacre might have occurred even with the peacekeeping force in place. But it's not enough to say you are sorry, that you will prevent such a slaughter from ever occurring again. Israel and the United States have a moral obligation to the world.

The hot debate over an inquiry in the massacre now taking place in the Israeli parliament should be resolved favorably so all the questions remaining are answered. And the Israelis should get out of Lebanon as quickly as possible.

Their continued presence there serves neither the nation of Israel or the cause of peace in the Middle East.

The ironies of Iran

The Iranian revolution has been replete with ironies, and they all come together in the life and death of Sadegh Ghotbzadeh.

The son of a well-to-do lumber merchant in Iran, he came from that comfortable middle class which has produced some of history's most fervent radicals. As a student at Washington's Georgetown University in the 1960s, he helped organize demonstrations painting the shah of Iran as a cruel tyrant who did not deserve the support of the United States.

Ghotbzadeh joined the exiled followers of the Ayatollah Khomeini in Paris, orchestrating political events that would undermine the shah's regime. He returned in triumph to Tehran at the side of the ayatollah in 1979, and when the government of the shah was toppled, he emerged as Iran's anti-American foreign minister, familiar as a spokesman during the agony of the hostage crisis.

Then the terror came. The Islamic fundamentalists around Khomeini took a course of ruthless suppression of dissent. Whatever the sins of the shah's regime, they did not compare with the bloody consequences of the new Iranian "justice." The U.N. Commission on Human Rights estimated that 4,000 political prisoners were executed or died from mistreatment in Iran last year alone.

The latest victim: Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, 46, convicted by an Islamic court of plotting to overthrow the ayatollah and install a secular government, executed recently by a firing squad in Tehran's Evin prison.

Another View:

Social Security reform

While congressional leaders have reportedly agreed to a special "lame-duck" session this fall on spending bills, we don't think the same kind of treatment is appropriate for Social Security reform. It seems preferable to make Social Security a top item on Congress' agenda when it reconvenes in January.

That would give Congress two advantages in considering the difficult and politically sensitive issue: A fully-elected membership, and a chance for members and the public to fully digest the recommendations of the president's National Commission on Social Security Reform, which are due by the end of this year.

Much evidence suggests the Social Security system is in need of a comprehensive review and overhaul to assure its long-term health in serving the nation's retired. A more immediate solution may be required for an urgent, short-term cash flow crunch.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., has urged President Reagan to take advantage of a "window of opportunity" by calling a special session on Social Security after the November elections when "political pressures would be at a minimum" and Congress would be free of other responsibilities.

Dole is to be commended for wanting to directly and specifically tackle Social Security problems, and his proposal deserves more than the rote rejection it received from House Speaker Tip O'Neill. But unfortunately it gives the perception of an attempted end-run around the public, ignoring that such a session would include retiring members of Congress and those defeated in November.

We can imagine few things more prone to backfire in generating support for any necessary changes in Social Security financing or benefits than considering the issue in a lame-duck forum not fully accountable to the people.

And consideration early next year would give Congress and the public time to discuss the report that the president's 15-member bipartisan Social Security commission is to start writing in mid-November. Perhaps it will open the "window of opportunity" by drawing fresh ideas into the debate.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Massacre cries out for Israeli explanation

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The assassination of Bashir Gemayel demonstrated the danger of a U.S. policy dependent on a single individual in an area where murders and coups are commonplace. Yet this is the position the United States has put itself in by the crucial role it assigns to Jordan's King Hussein in the Reagan peace plan for the Middle East.

The scary fact is that Hussein is nearly as vulnerable to violent overthrow as Gemayel was — and from many of the same sources. If anything, there are even more discontented elements that have reason to get rid of Hussein by any means available.

Both the CIA and the State Department consider Israel to be Hussein's gravest threat. Indeed, CIA sources told my associate Dale Van Atta the Israelis are believed to have tried in the past to terminate Hussein's rule and possibly his life.

Well aware of the Israeli menace, Hussein has formed a new palace guard of loyal Bedouins whose twin mission is to protect him from Israeli covert attacks as well as Palestinian terrorists. President Reagan, informed of the CIA's suspicions, is known to be upset at past Israeli attempts to oust Hussein and suspects the Israelis are still trying.

Israel's headstrong determination to pursue its narrow goal of retaining the West Bank, and its leaders' repeated statements that Hussein must go, are regarded by State Department experts as both simplistic and, in the long run, counterproductive. A recent secret department document summed up the situation this way in the wake of the Lebanon war:

"The Palestinian movement (could) disintegrate into radical splinter groups, which, in combination with other revolutionary forces in the region, would pose a grave threat to the moderate Arab governments in the region. Israel seems determined to vent this threat through the overthrow of the Jordanian monarchy, and can be expected to greatly expand its covert cooperation with revolutionary movements."

In other words, Israel is seen as willing to subvert the very Arab moderates who might eventually agree to a general peace in the Middle East — simply because these moderates want Israel to give back the West Bank.

Whether Hussein's revamped palace guard can protect him from his diverse enemies remains to be seen. But he has survived for more than 30 years now, through a combination of political skill, personal courage and a little bit of luck.

In July 1951, the teenage Hussein was standing beside his grandfather, King Abdullah, when assassins murdered the monarch at a mosque in East Jerusalem. Hussein escaped death when a bullet was deflected by a medal on his chest. A year later he became king when his father was removed because of mental illness.

Since that first miraculous escape, the diminutive king has survived at least 16 assassination attempts, and has also managed to survive his own death-defying stunts at the controls of high-speed cars, planes and helicopters. Some of his escapes have been bizarre. Once acid was substituted for Hussein's nose drops; but the royal sinuses apparently cleared up before he had to reach for the deadly medicine dropper. On another occasion, he strayed into Syrian air space in an unarmed plane, and eluded the pursuing MiGs by diving straight down and hugging the landscape all the way back to Jordan.

More than once, Hussein has snuffed out rebellion among his army officers by the gutsy expedient of appearing in their midst and daring them to kill him. His motorcade has been ambushed on a number of occasions, and though others in his party were killed, Hussein always came through.

The greatest threat to his regime came from the Palestinian guerrillas who flooded into Jordan from the West Bank after the 1967 war. In 1970, faced with anarchy, Hussein unleashed his loyal Bedouin-led army on the Palestine Liberation Organization forces and drove them out of Jordan.

Today, though Palestinians make up 65 percent of Jordan's population and dominate the major professions, Hussein "will not accede to PLO demands for an expanded presence in Jordan," according to a Pentagon intelligence report. Nor will he let the PLO use his country as a base against Israel. Despite this, the Israelis still want to get rid of the king.

Footnote: Any allegation that the Israeli government had or was attempting to overthrow or do bodily harm to King Hussein, said an Israeli Embassy spokesperson, is "nonsense."

ONWARD AND UPWARD: Minority businesses have been the hardest hit by the recession. But the federal agency that's supposed to help them has been devoting much time and money to a ludicrous attempt to cure its management problems with a training program that smacked of encounter-group therapy or a religious retreat.

Middle-level employees were summoned to seminars at three plush hotels, at an overall cost of some $175,000, which included the $220-a-day salary of a "systems management" consultant to lead the sessions.

A memo to employees of the Minority Business Development Agency explained the goal of the seminars metaphorically as beginning to "move the Northbound train down the tracks with more speed and a definite destination ..." and also as ensuring that "ALL —, repeat, ALL — agency personnel (from clerk typists to the senior executives) are playing from the same score in the MBDA symphony."

At the end of one session, participants were instructed to hold hands for 10 seconds of silence "to seal a commitment to move forward together."

INSIDE REPORT:

Autumn's breezes raising fear in GOP

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Autumn's first breezes have carried to the White House cold fear of severe Republican losses nationwide on Nov. 2, a prospect made more likely by no comprehensive campaign plan for the president — as witness bumbling in the Oval Office Sept. 16.

On that day, Sen. John C. Stennis, 81-year-old conservative Democratic patriarch from Mississippi, coaxed from President Reagan a commitment that he would not campaign for the 35-year-old Republican Senate challenger, Haley Barbour. Unintentionally delivering a solar plexus punch to Barbour, the president demonstrated the state of White House political disorganization six weeks before Election Day.

It is barely possible that an upset of Stennis in Mississippi might be needed to maintain Republican control of the Senate. But it is the House where disaster beckons. Presidential aides were non-plussed to read their own polls showing a 58-42 percent Democratic edge for Congress: Worse than public polls, that signals a loss of around 35 House seats — in short, a bloodbath.

Long faces at the White House quickly follow the late-summer euphoria. Republican wishful-thinkers, while acknowledging no chance of economic recovery before the election, had counted on two bulwarks to avoid the Republican recession disasters of 1958 and 1974: a much fatter campaign purse and the popularity of Ronald Reagan.

But big money's leverage diminishes as Election Day nears. As for the undeniable asset of the president's personal appeal, there is still no tactical plan to use it. He spent the past week in Washington, postponing a one-day trip to Ohio for reasons that remain murky. And he now appears to have ruled out any visit to Mississippi, where Democratic strategists see an excellent chance for a Republican upset. The Mississippi affair reflects the nonchalance that has characterized the White House senior staff's approach to the mid-term election.

Stennis was outraged when his wife, a resident of a nursing home, received a fund-raising appeal signed by Reagan in Barbour's behalf. He immediately requested and was granted the Sept. 16 Oval Office meeting.

Not one word in advance about the Stennis meeting was passed to the political office at the White House. As a result, Reagan was not briefed. "The president was blind-sided," one presidential aide confided. Reagan mumbled his apologies about the letter (contending he was unaware of it, according to one account) and granted the senator's request not to campaign against a conservative Democrat who had supported so many Reagan measures. Later White House assurances that the president still backs Barbour and never intended to go to Mississippi only helped a little.

Such bumbling may be less significant, however, than Republican waste of a superior war chest. The party's unified television campaign of 1978 has not been duplicated. The Senate campaign, led by liberal Sen. Robert Packwood, shuns Republican-Reagan institutional advertising. The House campaign's television spots are viewed as watery by operatives in the Republican National Committee and White House.

With neither president nor money fully harnessed, the message from current polls is that the recession threatens a Democratic landslide. Republican congressmen in marginal districts face unprecedented Democratic unity amidst a sick economy.

With sincere Republican predictions of rare mid-term gains scarcely died down, it is now GOP panic time. Party strategists believe the only answer is to mobilize The Great Communicator on television and the political circuit, promising to produce jobs, jobs and more jobs in the future.

Such presidential salvation is difficult considering the administration's own internal predictions for a most modest recovery in 1982 and the emphasis on austerity rather than growth in the current version of Reaganomics. It is made even harder by the lack of strategic planning at the White House. And it is downright impossible in Mississippi, where Reagan is now pledged to campaign not at all.

CHARLEY REESE

U.S. foreign policy seems contradictory

Whoever is making whatever our foreign policy is ought to explain it to us common folks because from out here west of the Potomac it seems downright strange.

Charley Reese

Take the Persian Gulf, for example. Two presidents have said it is an area of strategic concern. Presumably that means we would fight over it. The Persian Gulf has been used as the main justification for the Rapid Deployment Force, which still cannot deploy very rapidly for lack of transport.

Funny thing about that. We are not dependent on the Persian Gulf for oil. If the Persian Gulf closed down tomorrow, we would be inconvenienced but not seriously hurt by it. On the other hand, Europe and Japan are very much dependent on Persian Gulf oil but neither seems overly concerned about it.

Moreover, the Reagan Administration is lavishing a lot of energy and time on solving the Arab-Israeli dispute, which has nothing to do with the Persian Gulf. The last so-called Arab oil embargo was a failure and even the Arabs today admit they can't afford to try another.

On the other hand, the war between the crazy Ayatollah of Iran and the Butcher of Baghdad, Saddam Hussein of Iraq, does threaten to close the Persian Gulf tighter than a bank vault, yet Reagan and his Foggy Bottom Boys seem almost unconcerned about that.

Now, if you ask me about areas of strategic concern, I would nominate the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico. Cuba lies like a Soviet aircraft carrier facing the east and west entrances to the Gulf.

So far, however, about all Reagan has done is threaten to set up a radio station. Since Reagan has refused to fire the people at Voice of America who do not wish to offend the Soviets by doing something even as mild as reading exiled Soviet authors over the air, I presume Radio Marti would be equally bland.

In the meantime, Regan has said he plans to phase out arms sales to Taiwan in order not to offend the Red Chinese. Red China, which hates us, is bankrupt, and whose army cannot even whip the North Vietnamese, strikes me as a poor swap for the Nationalist Chinese who happen to sit astride the sea lanes between the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Reagan's betrayal of Taiwan is, of course, producing the effect he criticized Jimmy Carter for creating — presenting the United States as an untrustworthy ally. Watching us retreat from Vietnam and Taiwan, to say nothing of double-crossing the Somoza government in Nicaragua, the Israelis are understandably skeptical of Reagan's "commitment" to Israel's security. So, in fact, is every other non-communist nation.

Finally, if you can explain how we are going to help the Poles and Afghans by selling the Soviets wheat and by preventing the Polish government from going into default, I would greatly appreciate it. While you are at it, also explain why we want the Cubans out of Angola if we are willing to lend the Angolan communist government $80 million. Then tell me how we are going to combat international terrorism by rescuing the PLO and selling planes to Marxist Yemen, pro-Soviet Iraq, and the PLO's bankers, the Saudi Arabians.

Maybe we don't have a foreign policy, only overseas business policy. It's a scary thought to think that the people who lent $128 billion to Third World countries are running the U.S. government the same way they run their banks. I would say their greed exceeds their judgment by a considerable distance.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Sept. 24th, the 267th day of 1982. There are 98 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 24th, 1869, the "Black Friday" panic hit Wall Street after an attempt by financiers Jay Gould and James Fisk to corner the gold market.

On this date:

In 1968, the U.N. General Assembly opened its 23rd session and admitted Swaziland as the 125th U.N. member.

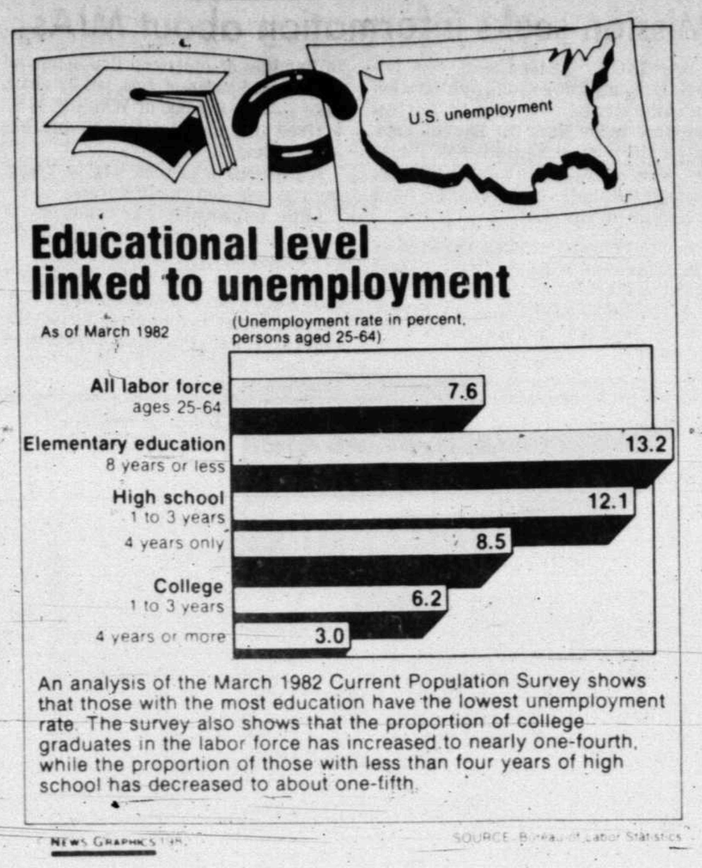

In 1974, the House of Representatives voted to suspend military aid to Turkey until substantial progress was made toward a settlement on Cyprus.

In 1975, the Senate Intelligence Commitee disclosed that the CIA for 20 years had been opening foreign-mailed letters to Americans, including many prominent figures.

In 1978, a mysterious explosion destroyed a 500-foot section of pipeline carrying natural gas from Iran to the Soviet Union.

Ten years ago: Polls showed Richard Nixon leading Democrat George McGovern by nearly 3-to-1 in the race for the presidency.

Five years ago: The United States and Soviet Union said high-level talks had narrowed their differences on a proposed agreement limiting strategic bomber and missile forces.

'Fannie Mae' to develop new mortgage financing

Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — "Fannie Mae" — the largest provider of residential mortgage funds in the U.S. — intends to develop new financing plans for home buyers to help revive a discouraged and disordered housing market in the 1980s.

With housing starts and sales at historically low levels, the Federal National Mortgage Association — known as Fannie Mae — plans to offer new mortgage schemes that will make housing again affordable for most Americans.

The decision to "refine Fannie Mae's current mortgage products and develop new ones" was made public this week by the corporation's officials as they unveiled a new Harris poll showing owning a home is still part of the American dream.

David O. Maxwell, Fannie Mae chairman, said the first nationwide survey of consumer attitudes toward home buying in the 1980s revealed Americans are largely uninformed about a variety of deals available on the market to help one own one's own home.

Maxwell said the corporation would develop new plans "which will work for consumers as well as lenders and which will provide the basis for renewed strength in housing as the economy recovers."

Fannie Mae is the nation's largest supplier of mortgage funds, its $65 billion portfolio making it the sixth largest corporation in the U.S. in terms of assets. It supports the mortgage market by purchasing mortgages from local lenders, thereby replenishing their supply of lendable funds and by issuing and guaranteeing mortgage-backed securities.

The Harris poll found a large number of Americans convinced that house prices and interest rates have made their dream less attainable.

It suggested that a major obstacle to potential home buyers is "their unfamiliarity with new kinds of mortgages" that can make a home affordable.

The poll found that the one-third of Americans who are aware of various mortgage schemes prefer a traditional fixed-rate plan at a low interest rate.

The survey showed, however, people willing to accept alternative mortgages once they are explained to them.

"The survey demonstrates that consumers are willing to adjust to economic change and have already begun to do so," said Maxwell. "Once the newer mortgage plans are explained to them, many consumers will use them to achieve their aspiration for home ownership."

"Clearly, all of us in the housing and home finance industries need to do a better job of explaining our products to the consumer," Maxwell added.

The study found that while fewer people expect to move in the next five years than had moved in the past, most plan to buy rather than rent when they move.

Americans generally preferred the traditional fixed-rate mortgage plan where interest rates and monthly payments remain the same for the duration of the mortage.

Several basic "creative" types of mortgages now also available are:

— Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM), in which payments start out cheaper than for the conventional mortgage and gradually get more expensive, levelling off over three to five years.

— Growing Equity Mortgage (GEM), where monthly payments rise with the rate of inflation, so that the loan may be paid off more quickly.

— Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM), in which the interest rate is linked to yields on Consumer Price Index or Treasury bills and adjusted at regular intervals.

— Balloon Mortgage, where the entire loan, usually held by the seller of a property or a lender, is paid off after three to five years, usually by obtaining another mortgage.

— Shared Appreciation Mortgage (SAM), where the lender offers a lower interest rate, in return for which the buyer must share the profit on any future sale of the property.

Flat rate tax not likely to succeed in 'pure' form

By ROBERT E. THOMPSON
Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — The flat rate income tax is a concept about which a lot of rhetorical steam will swirl in the months and years ahead. But ultimately the steam will evaporate and the momentum for revolutionary revision of the American tax system will fade away.

When the last wisps of steam drift off into the atmosphere, the tax code may have undergone some beneficial modification or simplification, but it still will retain most of the exemptions, deductions and progressive rates that a flat rate tax is designed to eliminate.

That assessment may sound rash in light of the fact that the debate over a flat rate tax is only beginning, with Senate Finance Committee hearings slated later this month and President Reagan promising to study the matter.

But few leaders in Congress see any possibility of a flat rate tax being enacted because it would inevitably increase taxes now paid by middle income Americans and reduce taxes made by upper income Americans.

A variety of special interest groups — the elderly, churches, charities, home builders, bankers, brokers, realtors, the timber industry and others — would wage all-out battle in Congress to prevent passsage of any law that would tax Social Security benefits and capital gains and eliminate deductions for mortgage payments and charitable contributions.

From a purely political standpoint, it would be very difficult for many members of the House and Senate to support an end to progressive taxation, under which tax rates increase as income rises.

Yet the concept of a flat rate tax is being discussed and debated more and more in Washington because of a growing feeling that the current tax system is too complex and inequitable.

A host of proposals have been introduced in Congress, ranging from a pure flat rate tax to the so-called "fair tax" plan of Sen. Bill Bradley (D-N.J.) and Rep. Richard Gephart (D-Mo.), which can best be described as a progressive flat tax, but is more popularly known as son of flat tax or bumpy flat tax.

The subject is being given serious consideration by serious people. There is, as Bradley said at a Washington Journalism Center seminar the other day, "a real yearning for a profound change in our tax laws."

While simplifying the tax code and eliminating several loopholes, the Bradley-Gephart proposal would retain most of the progressivity and a number of the exemptions and deductions of the current system.

To Rep. Barber Conable (R-N.Y.), ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, the Bradley-Gephart plan represents "a mildly progressive simplification of the current tax law." He sees it as a fairer proposal than the pure flat rate tax advocated by other members of Congress, including Sen. Dennis De Concini (D-Ariz.).

"The flat rate tax is not going to falter because of the equitable issue or because it's the wrong philosphy," says Conable, "but because of those who have a vested interest in the current system — such as churches, charities, realtors and the timber industry."

Conable, however, understands the appeal of a flat rate tax, which would permit all individuals and businesses to file their tax returns on a single card, listing their total income for the year and the amount of tax they must pay (based on a low across-the -board taxation of all income at, say, 14 or 19 percent.).

Conceding his personal skepticism about the flat rate tax, Conable describes it as "...one of those institutions that everyone sees in the light he wants to see it...the rich think they would pay less...the poor think the rich would pay taxes they do not now pay...the conservatives think it is fair because everyone would pay the same rate..and the liberals like it because they think it would eliminate all deductions."

Soprano to be honored

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Art Alliance will presents its 1982 Medal of Achievement to soprano Anna Moffo, Sept. 28.

She'll recieve the award at a dinner held in conjunction with the celebration of the "City of Brotherly Love's" 300th anniversary.

The Art Alliance was founded in 1915 to promote cultural activities in the region, and each year it honors an outstanding Philadelphian for his or her contribution to the arts.

Previous medalists have included singer Marian Anderson, conductor Eugene Ormandy, novelist James Michener and architect Louis Kahn.

House rejects legislation for armed forces pay raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would authorize a 4 percent pay boost for members of the armed forces has been turned down in the House.

Wednesday's 214-186 vote on the measure, which was brought to the floor under an expedited procedure that permitted no amendments, was 53 short of the two-thirds margin needed for approval.

The bill now must either be redrafted by the House Armed Services Committee or sent to the Rules Committee, which will set new procedures under which it may be considered again.

The pay raise would go to some 3 million active duty and reserve personnel, effective Oct. 1. It matches the 4 percent boost that Congress has earmarked for civilian government employees.

Mission seeks information about MIAs

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A private U.S. mission seeking information on Americans missing in action departed today from the Laotian capital for the northeastern town of Viengsay, where it hopes to talk to villagers who previously had contact with American prisoners of war.

A U.S. Embassy official contacted in Vientiane said a helicopter took off carrying the four-member mission and Lao officials, but it was uncertain whether bad weather may force it to turn back.

The mission of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, led by chairman George Brooks, of Windsor, N.Y., arrived in Laos 12 days ago and has since visited Vietnam.

A previous scheduled trip to Viengsay was canceled due to storms.

Little information has come out of Laos about what discussions on POW's in Viengsay might achieve.

A American official here said that nine Americans were captured by Vietnamese forces in the area during the Indochina war, but were repatriated through Hanoi in 1973 without being detained long in Laos.

Record number enroll at UTPB

ODESSA — Fall enrollment hit a record high at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin this fall as 1,819 students completed registration by the end of the late registration period.

UTPB president V.R. Cardozier noted the new figure represents an 11 percent increase over the previous record of 1,640 last fall, and a 15 percent increase over Fall 1980.

He noted an increase this fall is particularly significant because the enrollment for last summer, this fall and the coming spring semester will be used to determine the funding for the upcoming biennium. Fall 1980 figures, which were used in determining funding for the last biennium, stood at 1,580 students.

"We had hoped for an enrollment of 1,700 this fall and were much surprised when it exceeded 1,800," Cardozier said. "An increase of 11 percent is gratifying indeed.

"I believe the increase is due to two major factors," he continued. "First, some of our recruiting efforts of the last few years are beginning to pay off. Second, the recent increase in unemployment led some people to return to college who otherwise might be working full time."

UTPB director of admissions Robert Warmann noted the largest enrollment increase was in full-time students. Full-time incoming juniors increased by 41 percent while full-time graduate students increased by 31 percent.

Cardozier pointed out that he and other UTPB administrators have recommended other changes which, if approved, could boost enrollment even further.

"I have for several years said that UTPB could reasonably expect to reach an enrollment of 2,000 when degree programs that we have recommended have been approved," he said. "We submitted a proposal for a master's degree in geology six years ago and it was turned down."

He noted the same proposal has been resubmitted to the Board of Regents, along with recommendations for establishing a master's degree in psychology and a bachelor's degrees in marketing, finance, petroleum engineering, electrical engineering and mchanical engineering.

"If these programs are approved, it is quite possible for UTPB's enrollment to reach 2,100 as an upper-level institution," he said, pointing out that the proposals must first be approved by the Board of Regents, the commissioner of higher education and the Coordinating Board, State College and University System.

Further growth would depend on the outcome of the four-year issue, he said.

Cardozier said that UTPB's fall enrollment represents growth in each of the university's three academic colleges, with the largest growth, in the College of Management, showing an increase of 15.8 percent. The College of Arts and Education, UTPB's largest academic college, reported an 8.2 percent increase and the College of Science and Engineering recorded a 6.9 percent increase.

It's too easy for terrorists to get birth certificate, federal official says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrorists have no trouble gaining entry to the United States and other countries because the system for getting birth certificates is so easy, a top State Department official said.

"They (terrorists) don't have to counterfeit, have to steal or have to lie," said Diego C. Asencio, assistant secretary of state for consular affairs.

"The system for getting a birth certificate is so easy," he told a Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations Thursday. All a terrorist has to do is send his money and a name of someone to a state, he said.

His comments came in answer to questions by Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, about the widespread growth of terrorism and the ease with which it could be spread around the world.

"I think we could be at the beginning of a-terrorist cycle," said Asencio, who was held hostage for 60 days in Colombia in 1980. "We've been lucky. But they don't need to go through elaborate methods to get visas or passports."

Wide variety of fashions for fall

By JUDI HUNT
Hearst Feature Service

If you're as finicky as Morris the Cat when it comes to choosing clothes, you needn't worry this fall. There are more "looks" than hangers in most hotel closets.

Which may make it difficult to find the "real" you when shopping for outfits this fall. You can look as casual as a jogging buff, as elegant as a '40s movie star, as countryfied as those to the manor born — just to name a few possibilities.

But one thing is sure: you'll probably wear a hat sometime this year, if current fashion shows are any indication. Just about every female model has a hat on, ranging from knit tams and a man's styled fedora to the feathered and frilled millinery that suggests a return to the eras before World War II.

And you'll no doubt be wearing something colorful on your legs, whether they're bright opaque stockings layered with legwarmers to pull together casual separates, or the more sheer and almost just as bright stockings that go with more classic daywear or evening garments.

Chances are you'll buy some clothing in black, gray or navy, although you also may be tempted to try something brighter — red vests, blouses and jackets that look so good when teamed with the more somber blacks.

You most certainly will want to try something in the tuxedo look, which some think looks too masculine, but isn't when it's shown alongside a man's tuxedo. Then it's obvious that there really is a feminine version of this evening costume.

Although ruffles and frills are "in" for evening, you may or may not want one of the taffeta dresses — pretty to look at in their vivid teal blues and plums, but the full skirt, tight bodice and necklines rimmed with ruffles probably aren't for everyone. And even if you're not the type to carry off sequins, you'll have to admit that sequinned gowns invariably are a show stopper.

Do try on some of the wonderful print jerseys, especially those that are color blocked (splashes of color like curry, turquoise, plum and black in a geometric design). And don't let the idea of a suit throw you off, especially if you're more of a separates person. It is in suits that the menswear look stands out, especially when the jackets are double breasted and worn with a bow or regular tie.

Sisters' firm growing fast

By ELISSA McCRARY
AP Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sisters Elaine and Cheryl Lyerly started their public relations business in a one-room office they shared with a noisy electrical company.

Five years later, Eve Communication Services Inc. has become one of the fastest growing public relations firms in North Carolina, as well as in the Southeast.

The company has grown by an average of 45 percent annually. Eve's billings were up 51 percent this year over last fiscal year.

Elaine Lyerly, 30, Eve's president, says having her own company before she was 25 was her goal.

"I barely made it, since my birthday is on Nov. 26 and we opened our first office on Nov. 7," she said.

Elaine and Company Vice President Cheryl Lyerly, 33, decided to go into business on their own after working for a now defunct Charlotte public relations firm.

"It was just the two of us in the front part of the office, with the electrical company in the back," Elaine said. "Everything worked out pretty well except when forklift trucks brought equipment into the back. Then when we talked to our clients on the telephone, they thought we were in a phone booth on the side of the road, there was so much noise."

Four months later, the company had grown to the point that the sisters hired their first full-time employee and moved to offices in the downtown Charlottetown Center. Eve continued to take over more office space as its list of clients grew, and several months ago the company moved into a large two-story house converted to offices.

A third sister, Melia, joined the firm three years ago and serves as production coordinator and account representative. The company now has eight full-time and three part-time employees, including its first male worker.

The company's first big marketing project was selecting and promoting its name and logo — a red apple with a bite out of it.

"We wanted something that would stand out, something that people would remember, and we decided that Eve and the apple were what we wanted," Elaine said.

Eve handles all kinds of communications, from creating brochures for companies to setting up conventions and media coverage for their clients.

Telephone book gives only gay listings

By STEPHANIE SALTER
Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Like other telephone books, San Francisco's Gay Areas Directory tells its readers where they can get their microwave oven fixed. Unlike other telephone books, it tells them where they can get their microwave oven fixed by gay supporters in Seattle.

Begun here in 1979, the Gay Areas Directory is now in its fifth edition, with a sixth due for distribution in December. The current edition's 216 pages is the largest and most ambitious of its kind in gay communities.

The directory began four years ago when Robert M. Adams of Walnut Creek, Calif., agreed with a business associate that the time was right for a gay business directory. He has been publishing the directory and distributing it free of charge since.

"There was all the publicity about Anita Bryant, and all the gays were coming out of the closet," Adams said. "There was a story about gay purchasing power in one of the national magazines, and it just seemed like the right time. Certainly, this was the right place."

Adams put to work the experience he gained from publishing business directories for three California chambers of commerce, and the first Gay Area Directory was born. Limited to San Francisco, it had 18 white pages and 72 pages of classified. Advertising revenue was under $50,000.

Today, the directory — 35,000 copies were distributed this summer — has 500 advertising contracts from businesses throughout the West, and Adams said that revenue has increased 300 percent.

According to a letter by Adams in the current issue, all business and professional listings in the directory are "either gay-owned, gay-managed and/or gay-supporting."

The summer-fall edition of the directory has sections for the Pacific Northwest, Southern California and Northern California. It also features an eight-page color spread on the Russian River, 10 pages of community resources listings and two pages of gay businesses and organizations in Florida.

White-page listings are free and include individuals' home phones and addresses as well as organizations such as the Wonderful Old Lesbian Feminists in Santa Monica, the New York Wrestling Club in New York City, the Uncircumcised Society of America in San Francisco and three organizations of Concerned Lutherans in San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

Churches, counseling and health services, legal aid, political organizations and gay and lesbian newspapers also are listed. The periodicals range from the Transvestite-Transexual Newsletter in Santa Ana to a monthly Sacramento publication called "Mom. . .Guess What!"

Display advertising and yellow-page listings do seem to get results, just as Ma Bell has been telling its customers for decades.

"We've had quite a few referrals from the directory," said Carl Bruno, co-owner of The Woods resort in Guerneville, Calif. "A lot of people use the book, and it's going to get better as more and more gay people travel to this area."

"I'm handing out those books like crazy," said Rebecca Vincent, who owns Sappho's bar in Seattle. "We have about 30 of them here, and we've had very good response, especially from people from San Francisco. A whole lot of people have come here because they saw our listing."

Adams estimated that 65 to 75 percent of the directory's ad contracts are renewed with each edition, "and most of the ones that don't renew have gone out of business — there's a real turnover in new businesses."

Stepfamily Association to hold public forum

The Stepfamily Association of the Permian Basin and Family Services of Midland will sponsor a free public forum on stepparenting tonight from 7 p.m. — 9:30 p.m. at the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Building Conference Room, 2514 Pliska Drive, Midland Regional Air Terminal. Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Speaker will be James C. Offield, MSW, president of the Texas Region of the Stepfamily Association of America (a non-profit organization). He is also the director of the Family Service Center of Central Texas in Georgetown Texas.

The Midland stepfamily group was formed Aug. 30, 1982. It is a mutual support group for stepparents and their spouses. The situations unique to the stepfamily are discussed at the meetings.

The Midland group offers workshops on "Stepfamily Survival" during the year. In these workshops the myths, misunderstandings, problems and situations surrounding the stepfamily are explored.

For further information, call John H. Young, program coordinator, at Family Services of Midland, 683-4241.

DEAR ABBY

Fearful child molester seeks castration as cure

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am over 50, retired from the Army, and am currently on parole, having served a sentence for repeated child molesting. I have been attracted to little girls as long as I can remember. (I am a male.) I have gone through a sex-offenders program and have also had private counseling. Neither has had a lasting effect on me.

The desire for sexual relations with children has been with me all my life. I am now getting weary of the constant fear of once again molesting a little girl and going back to prison. I have grandchildren, and I want to be around them without the feeling that almost always comes over me when they are near.

I would like to be castrated, but I can't find a doctor who will do it. Can you help me?

If I don't get help soon, I'm afraid I may molest another child — perhaps one of my own grandchildren. Please address your reply to "G.D. in Seattle." Those are NOT my initials, and I do not live in Seattle, but I will know it's for me. Thank you. — G.D.

DEAR G.D.: My psychiatric consultant informs me that a drug is available that destroys the sex urge. It must be prescribed by a physician and administered under strict supervision.

If your physician is not aware of this drug, the generic name for it is "medroxyprogesterone asetate." Please acknowledge that you have seen this, and let me know what you are doing about it.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my young daughter and her girlfriend decided to exchange Christmas gifts. I thought they would exchange some inexpensive little gifts. Well, without my knowledge, my daughter took a gold chain with a religious medal out of my drawer, wrapped it and gave it to her friend. Abby, it was my mother's — she had given it to me just before she died.

Needless to say, I was heartsick. I finally got the courage to phone the girl's mother. I offered to buy her something else if she would return the chain and medal. (It really wasn't all that expensive, but it means so much to me.) She said she'd return it, but she never did.

When I see her on the street she turns away from me. Abby, if you have space in your column, please print this. Maybe she will see it, and realize how much this means to me. No names, please, as this is a small town. Thank you. — HEAVYHEARTED

DEAR HEAVY: And what if she doesn't see it? Please don't agonize over this any longer. Take her a little gift and ask her to please return the chain and medal.

DEAR ABBY: Re the 52-year-old divorced male who contracted gonorrhea from a 44-year-old divorcee who swore she had not been intimate with anyone since she left her husband 15 months previously: It IS possible that she was telling the truth, and you were right to advise the man to give her the benefit of the doubt.

Moreover, this situation is not peculiar to our times, as was illustrated in a case involving James Boswell, the biographer of Samuel Johnson. In 1763 Boswell acquired the second of his many gonococcal infections after an amorous affair with a well-known leading actress of the London stage. Like your correspondent, Boswell refused to believe that she had not been intimate with anyone else during or in the several months prior to their encounters. Not only did he dismiss the lady with an ungentlemanly note, he charged her for his medical expenses! — HAROLD VARMUS, M.D., SAN FRANCISCO

Hobo king retires, says life on 'road dangerous

Editors note: AP Photographer Bob Jarboe has covered the National Hoboes Days Convention in Britt, Iowa, for several years, and has bumped into the five-time King of the Hoboes, Steam Train Maury Graham, throughout his travels. Jarboe recently ran into Graham in Des Moines just prior to the start of this year's Britt hobo celebration.

By BOB JARBOE
AP Photographer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — "Hey! Aren't you King of the hoboes?" a passer-by yells.

"That's right, friend," says the man with the floppy black hat, checkered shirt and neckerchief, tipping his hat. He leans on a tree-branch staff, adorned with bits of colored yarn and the feathers of an owl's wing.

Only a few minutes earlier, the colorfully attired wanderer, Steam Train Maury Graham, had been chatting with Iowa Gov. Robert Ray, inviting him to the National Hobo Days Convention in Britt and teasingly urging him to join the hobo brotherhood upon leaving the Iowa Statehouse in January.

Hidden in the back of many a mind is the thought that if the rat race gets too frantic, one can always enter the carefree lifestyle of the hobo, traveling the country aboard railroad freights and living off stew spooned from old, tin cans.

But Graham, five times King of the Hoboes, dashes such daydreaming.

It is no longer safe to travel the country as a non-paying guest of the 'roads, he says. Drug-hungry gangs will waylay an unwary 'bo for his few dollars, and professional boxcar thieves are known to kill a man who might go to authorities if he stumbles onto their operation.

The king of the road now travels in a camper van with a comfortable bed, styrofoam ice box and a kettle for his stew.

He worries and has things to accomplish. He frets about that pinging engine; is the fuel line leaking?

He worries about being late for his next appointment. He's laying plans to consult country star Johnny Cash and Boxcar Willie about a charity fund-raiser to create a national hobo park in Britt, where the annual gathering of hoboes from around the country gets under way every year.

Behind the white whiskers that mask Graham's face is a hobo who is "giving" and not retreating into a "hand-out" life.

Before you're aware, he has hooked you like a fish on a line as he tells of his visits with inmates at the federal prison in Leavenworth, Kan., and shows the paintings and beadwork they craft for him.

He shares meals and tents with the Sioux and Tama Indians as he travels the country visiting hobo friends who are now mostly in rest homes and hospitals.

And he says that he can make better time by traveling in his van, donated by his Florida daughter, than by attempting to hop the grain and coal trains of today's railroads. Besides, a sore hip and knee make riding the rails uncomfortable for him.

At 65, he gets his biggest kick speaking to classes of school children, telling them about nature and about the silent swoop of the owl as it strikes its quarry.

The "black bones" he carries click out a rhythm, as he dances a little jig for the youngsters. He brings them a message about clean living and tells them of the prisoners he has seen in federal jails wearing diapers and being spood-fed because of a past drug dependency.

Why does a vagabond king retire?

With a wink, Graham says that he "sorta promised" a lady friend back on the trail that he would settle down this year.

Italians film U.S. celebrities' bootmaker

By EILEEN WELSOME
Hearst Feature Service

SAN ANTONIO — Jesse Garcia, veteran bootmaker, nonchalantly stroked the leather of an unfinished pair of boots while an Italian television crew prepared to film him in the next room.

A master craftsman and longtime employee of the Lucchese Boot Co., Garcia has fitted boots for stars like Gary Cooper, Bing Crosby, John Wayne and Will Rogers, but this his first time as a star attraction.

Was he starstruck?

"Not hardly," he responded. "Johnny Cash was in a few days ago, buying boots for his wife, daughter and brother-in-law."

Garcia and the Lucchese boots which he has been making for 47 years are part of the Italian government's attempt to show their countrymen what the American country and western scene is all about, said Lois Turel, associate producer of the government-owned RAI network. The Italian film crew has been in the United States filming country music stars such as Charley Pride, Kenney Rogers and Jerry Reed.

Glimpses of American life, such as Garcia and his bootmaking, will be spliced between musical numbers, said Turel, who got the idea of filming Garcia after reading an article about Lucchese boots in an Italian magazine.

Garcia, Lucchese's chief designer and quality control manager, was selected for the television spot because he is the only remaining employee who worked with Samuel Lucchese, an Italian immigrant who founded the company in 1883.

As filming began, Garcia patiently explained the craft of bootmaking to a horde of local television reporters, who were present to film the film company filming Garcia.

"These boots belonged to LBJ," he said, fingering a pair of nondescript, black size 11s.

U.S. diet cancer-causing

By NICK PROVENZE
Hearst Feature Service

Americans are more prone to cancer because they eat too well and don't eliminate enough waste each day, Dr. Denis Burkitt, a British surgeon and researcher, says.

The main deficiency in the American diet is "over nutrition" said the scrappy Burkitt, known worldwide for identifying a type of cancer prevalent among African children. The cancer that bears his name — Burkitt's lymphoma — is one of the most treatable.

Burkitt, an honorary research fellow at St. Thomas Hospital in London, touted proper nutrition and cancer prevention during a news conference yesterday at the 13th International Cancer Congress being held in Seattle.

Western diets — greatly lacking in fiber and overly burdened with things like white bread, sugar, red meats, and fat — play a major role in the high incidence of cancer of the rectum and bowel in the United States, Burkitt said. Colo-rectal cancer ranks number two behind lung cancer in this country.

A lack of fiber, contained in such foods as whole wheat breads and fruits and vegetables, also contributes to the problems we have with our bowels, he said.

The combination of the wrong kinds of food and the lack of fiber causes the wrong kinds of stools, he theorizes.

American stools lack bulk because of our low fiber diets. The need to pass large amounts of stool "is the last thing Americans know about," he said.

"We've totally lost the art of passing a proper stool," he said.

A high bulk stool dilutes the potentially harmful things we eat and passes them through the bowel before they have much of a chance to do damage, he said.

Eating whole meal bread is one of the best solutions, he advised. It takes considerably more fruits and vegetables to equal the amount of fiber in whole bread.

Eating more fiber also helps reduce constipation, he said.

But eating more salad won't necessarily do it.

In the 1960s, the 71-year-old Burkitt was eating a typical Western diet rich in fats and sugars.

"I lived on doughnuts and fish and chips until 15 years ago," he said.

Today, he eats oatmeal sprinkled with bran for breakfast in winter and bran cereals in summer. Eggs, bacon, and sausage should become only occasional treats.

For lunch, he has whole wheat bread and vegetables; for dinner, he has vegetables such as peas and broccoli, and as many as four potatoes. Eating a lot of starchy potatoes won't make you fat if you eat them with fiber foods, he said. His meat is generally fish or poultry. If he eats red meat he eats little and often slices it thin and puts it over his potatoes.

He predicted economic factors will cause red meat to eventually become a "condiment" in Western meals, and that can't be bad for our health.

Traditional decorating ideas live on

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

If some decorators are thought of as high-handed blame it on Elsie de Wolfe.

Probably the first decorator who was paid for her design services, she started the profession at the beginning of the 20th century.

Miss de Wolfe didn't invent high-handedness. But she advanced its practice. "When I draw up a set of plans, there is no second choice. There is only what I show you. The best," she told Henry Clay Frick when he asked to see an alternative scheme for his New York mansion.

"Instead of giving people what they thought they wanted, she gave them what she felt they ought to have and taught them to want it," explains her biographer, Dr. Jane Smith, adding that even though Miss de Wolfe has been dead for 32 years, her decorating ideas continue to have currency.

Some of her inventions — such as leopard skin upholstery (1919), dark-green lacquered walls with white woodwork (the 1940s) and flowered chintz slipcovers in the city (the 1920s) — are periodically revived by decorators who probably don't realize she was there long before.

THERE IS NO interior designer today as influential as Miss de Wolfe was. She was one of the stars of her day, an era which spanned five decades from the turn of the century to her death in 1950.

"Elsie knew and entertained both Sarah Bernhardt and Marilyn Monroe. Nothing better illustrates her remarkable longevity," according to biographer Smith.

Although she hobnobbed with the cream of society both here and in Europe and eventually married a titled Englishman, Miss de Wolfe started life as a middle class New York girl who decided to "be somebody" and have a career instead of marrying and having children. She first hit on acting, going from amateur theatricals to leading lady. But as an actress she was known mainly for her elaborate costumes which were more talked-about than her performances.

Her first decorating job was the one she did on the home she shared in New York City with Bessie Marbury, the famous theatrical agent. After their usual summer in France, she returned, took one look at the funereal atmosphere and heavy Victorian furnishings that were typical of the period and announced they wouldn't do.

In their place, she substituted pale-colored walls, painted white woodwork, lots of mirrors and a mix of 18th-century French antiques and modern furnishings. The house was an immediate hit with the society and theatrical people, the intellectual leading lights, and the political powers who frequented the Sunday afternoon "at homes" she gave each week. The result was that many requests came from friends who wanted to do the same radical surgery on their own quarters.

HER FIRST professional decorating job — for a $5,000 fee — was to decorate New York's just-formed Colony Club, the first large-scale private clubhouse for women in the country. In her decorating, which took two years, she discarded most of the decoration assumptions then current. Her use of flowered chintz slipcovers first floored, then enthused, her wealthy clients.

The club was widely described in the press and soon the name of Elsie de Wolfe became almost synonymous with good taste.

Over the years, she inaugurated many eventually popular and often-imitated decorating themes, including the use of bamboo furniture and trellis-work indoors. Many of her ideas had the aim of simplifying the ornate interiors that had predominated. She was the first to mass lots of pillows on a sofa. She hand-stitched mottoes on the pillows. One of her favorites was "never complain, never explain."

Although it took wealth to afford her rising fees, she had practical advice for the average person, too. Her watchwords were "simplicity, suitability and proportion." She taught people to pay attention to scale and to let the light into their rooms by simply taking down the heavy draperies covering the windows.

In a book, "The House in Good Taste," published in 1913, she introduced the concepts of space planning and the idea that you don't have to be rich to succeed in having an attractive home.

HER PRIVATE LIFE was as colorful as her public career. She lived with Miss Marbury for 35 years. Then she surprised everyone by marrying Sir Charles Mendl in France at the age of 60.

Heart drug may treat asthma, hypertension

NEW YORK (AP) — Help for asthma victims may be coming from a new class of heart drugs, according to preliminary research results published today.

The drugs, called calcium blockers, are used to treat a heart condition known as angina. New studies suggest they may be effective against asthma, high blood pressure and other disorders, according to a report in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. David Tinkleman of the Medical College of Georgia School of Medicine in Augusta, who is studying the use of the drugs with asthma, told the journal they "have some efficacy ... but we need to do a lot more work before jumping to conclusions."

Keneilel Patel of the Department of Respiratory Medicine at the Western Infirmary in Glascow, Scotland, is one of several researchers has has found that calcium blockers may help people with angina, the journal reported.

He described the drugs as "effective, but not as effective as other conventional asthma treatments."

One study in Italy has shown a marked reduction in blood pressure among 27 men with high blood pressure who either had not been treated or who had not been helped by other drugs, the journal said.

Two calcium blockers, verapamil and nifedipine, have been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for treatment of angina, a heart condition.

Now is the time to have your car or truck winterized for those cold months ahead. Take your car to Roberts Auto Supply and Machine Shop, 1003 E. Florida, for the best in service and the finest car-care products.

Winterize your car now

Paid Advertisement

Now that fall is here, preparation for winterizing your car will save you a lot of costly repairs and aggravation when winter weather comes.

According to Bruce Hart of Roberts Auto Supply and Machine Shop, there are several areas which should be checked in your auto to give you dependable winter driving. First, the cooling system should be checked; the radiator, radiator cap, belts, hoses and thermostats should be in good repair and if not, replace them. Check the anti-freeze, making sure it is at the proper temperature. Next, the battery should be checked, as a weak battery is very difficult to start on those cold, winter mornings. A tune-up is sometimes necessary to insure an easier start, so check your plugs and points.

Roberts Auto Supply has a complete selection of all you need to get your automobile ready for winter. There is a complete selection of Gates radiator hoses and belts; Stant thermostats and caps; UDS anti-freeze and Champ heater valves and heater control parts. Hart says they also carry a superior battery, The Continental. Beginning at $39.95, with a two-year warranty, this battery is guaranteed to give you good, dependable service.

Roberts recommend that you change your windshield wiper blades, also, in order to give your car windows a clean, close "shave" in snowy, misty driving weather. These tips should insure dependable starts and performance through the winter months.

Whatever you may need to keep your car in good running condition, Roberts has it. Roberts automotive machine shop also carries a complete stock of rebuilt crankshafts, short-blocks, alternators and water pumps, as well as a complete line of Kimco rebuild auto parts.

Come by Roberts Auto Supply and Machine Shop, 1003 E. Florida and winterize your car today.

Homestyle cooking at Cook's Pantry Buffet

Rising divorce rate of 1970s factor in growing poverty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the rising divorce rate in the 1970s is partially responsible for growing poverty it measured in the decade.

In addition, the increasing number of divorces accounts for the fact that blacks fell further behind whites in income during the decade, the bureau said in a report issued Wednesday.

"Overall, changes in family composition have accounted for 2,017,000 additional poor families," the bureau said in its new study "Changing Family Composition and Income Differential."

During that period the rising divorce rate led to a sharp jump in the number of one-person households and of families headed by women. Both types of households tend to have lower incomes than traditional husband-wife families, the bureau said.

Consumer safety agency to study dangerous goods

By JIMMY THORNTON
Copley News Service

Chain saws, smoldering furniture and smoke detectors are among products that will draw the intense interest of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in fiscal 1983.

Other areas the commission will investigate include:

— Heating equipment that can start home fires. The commission wants safer water heaters, solid fuel appliances (wood stoves) and kerosene heaters.

— Formaldehyde gas release from plywood and particle boards. The commission has determined that formaldehyde gas emissions from pressed wood products constitute a serious health risk.

— Drug safety. The commission will look into ways to reduce the chance of accidental poisoning of children who take drugs not intended for them.

— Dual-purpose drug lids. The commission will investigate how effective flip-flop lids are in preventing the poisoning of children. The lids can be used on either side — one side is child-resistant, the other is normal, for use by handicapped people and others who find child-resistant caps impractical. Child-resistant caps have been effective in preventing accidental poisonings in the last few years.

— School laboratory chemicals. The commission will work to increase awareness of dangers in the school lab where potentially dangerous chemicals are used by students and teachers.

— Chain saws. The commission estimates chain saws were associated with more than 123,000 injuries and 50 deaths in 1981. About a quarter of the injuries involved "kickbacks," the backward, upward kick of the saw when it bucks while chewing into wood. The commission has alerted the saw industry (as well as other businesses) that it expects voluntary solutions. There will be mandatory measures if industry fails to act.

— The exposure of children to carcinogens. Various rubber and plastic children's products may contain the potentially cancer-causing substances nitrosamines or phthalates, the commission reports. It will evaluate the extent to which children are exposed and look at alternatives to reduce the risk.

— Furniture and bedding. Each year, 80,000 smoldering-type fires result in 2,000 deaths and 9,500 injuries. The commission will conduct extensive tests on bedding and mattresses. As for upholstered furniture, the commission warns it wants 90 percent of it resistant to ignition by cigarettes.

Government, guerrillas reverse tactics in Guatemala

By DIAL TORGERSON
The Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

GUATEMALA CITY — The bloody battle for the Guatemala highlands, pitting government troops against leftist guerrillas, has become a new type of war, with both sides changing tactics.

A year ago, the guerrillas were attempting to convince the Indian peasants in northwest Guatemala to join them and the army was being accused of massacring civilians.

Now, the army's official policy is to avoid civilian deaths and "win back the civil population." And, in the embattled countryside, it is the guerrillas who are being accused of killing civilians.

The army has changed its policy under a government headed since a March coup by Gen. Efrain Rios Montt. It has trained and armed civil patrols in the towns considered pro-government and has begun to try to win more villages over to the government side.

IN RESPONSE, THE guerrillas turned their wrath on the civil defense forces and the pro-government towns. Village leaders and church pastors in the war zone told this month of the killings of whole families suspected by the guerrillas of having pro-government sympathies.

Casualties mounted as the tactics changed. Thousands of villagers fled from rebel areas into those under army control. With its program of "frijoles and rifles" — food for villagers and weapons for the civil patrols — the army is gradually winning more villages to its side.

Foreign military experts who have visited the fighting zone say that the army is sending troops into combat with a new "mode of conduct" barring the killing of civilians, and that it seems to be working. One expert said:

"A year ago, if a military convoy was ambushed, the next day there would be a bunch of dead civilians there, as a lesson. That sort of thing is becoming rare. There is no doubt that the army has dramatically changed its tactics."

REPORTS STILL reach the capital of civilians being massacred by soldiers, sometimes, it is alleged, by troops wearing civilian clothes. And there are other reports of peasants being killed by guerrillas dressed in the uniforms of soldiers. Outside the major provincial towns, the roads are lawless and death often strikes in disguise.

It can be as hard to tell who is winning as it is who is killing. But some proof of the army's new successes is visible in the war zone.

Manuel Estrada, 32, who lives in San Martin Jilotepeque, the last army post on a dirt road 30 miles northwest of the capital, said, "We wouldn't be here if we didn't trust the army."

At the town square one morning recently, 20 campesinos (peasants) from the Finca Peren (the Peren Farm) surrounded army Capt. Ricardo Diaz to ask what they should do about survival in the troubled town. The captain told them, "If you run, we may misunderstand your attitude."

THE RANCH FAMILIES were alarmed about the death of 25 people the week before near San Martin Jilotepeque, killings they blamed on guerrillas, and had come to the army post in the town to seek reassurance. Diaz told them to go back to their ranch. The army wants the villagers to return to their hamlets, into which it hoped to extend its control.

On army maps in Guatemala City, villages in the contested areas of the northwest are shown in red, blue and pink: red for guerrilla control, blue for pro-government, pink for disputed villages. In his office at military headquarters in the capital, Col. Pablo Nuila Hub, spokesman for the army, said:

"More and more towns are asking for civil defense groups. We organized more than 1,300 such groups in the past month. They are not just fighting the guerrillas, but are also organized to develop their villages, distributing food, building materials, setting up schools and health centers."

MANY OF THE 1,300 villages turned from pink to blue on the army map once the defense patrols were in place. Military experts say progress of the program can be measured in two ways: The number of people who have joined the patrols and the fierceness of the guerrilla attacks against the patrols and their villages.

The government shift in statistics says that 40,000 men have joined the patrols and even the most modest estimates say that the number is 25,000. And casualty tolls show that more people are being killed now in clashes between guerrillas and the civil patrols than in fighting between the guerrillas and the army.

"The guerrillas knew I was head of the civil patrol in Xetenamit," said Ricardo Plato, 33, deputy mayor of the hamlet, north of Chimaltenango and a two-hour drive from the capital. "As my father and I were walking through town, I heard leaves rustle and then saw eight men in army green uniforms block my way.

"They fired at me with a machine gun, and the bullets hit me here, and here and here." He pointed to his left shoulder, his upper left arm, and his right arm, still in a cast. "I ran, and ahead were five others. They fired again, and hit me in the mouth." He pointed to a missing tooth and to an exit wound on his jaw. "I ran, and hid in the bushes. They caught my father and killed him."

A PRIEST IN ONE of the front-line towns in Chimaltenango province — who asked that his name and town not be identified — traced the changes in the guerrillas' tactics:

"At first they just made attempts to convince the people and spray-painted their slogans on the wall. Then, about two years ago, they began to kill individuals they thought were sympathetic to the government, as an example. Now they kill whole groups, the heads of houses and also relatives and friends in a terror campaign to try to frighten people from supporting the civil patrols."

In his area the army killed 39 villagers last year, he said, but he has heard of only a handful of people being killed by the army this year, usually in fights in villages. "This year," he said, "the guerrillas have killed hundreds of persons, in their anger over the civil patrol. There are 600 widows in this city. Most of them lost their husbands to the guerrillas. It is the guerrillas who are now the widow-makers."

"WITHOUT A DOUBT," said a foreign military man assigend to the capital, "more massacres are now the work of the guerrillas. I know the president has really emphasized it to his officers that he is serious about halting the killing of civilians. He points to the villages which have been pacified, and tells his officers: Here are real results."

House OKs federal aid for students

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has overwhelmingly approved a bill that seeks to prevent the Reagan administration from cutting federal grants next year for college students from low- and middle-income families.

The bill, passed 381-19 on Wednesday, goes to a House-Senate conference. The Senate passed a similar bill a week ago Thursday.

The final compromise measure faces a possible veto by President Reagan, who considers it too expensive.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell has proposed new formulas that would sharply reduce federal Pell Grants for needy college students.

Doris Zepeda Woodward, second from left, of Waterville, Me., poses outside the house shewon in an 122-word essay contest on why she wanted to win a house.Former owner of the house, Jane Pieriboni, sponsored the contest in which the prize was an old Victorian mansion in Dover-Foxcroft, Me. Pictured with Mrs. Woodward are members of ther family from El Salvador.

Salvadoran immigrant wins Victorian mansion

By The Associated Press

It was all in the hands: One wrote an essay that won a 20-room Victorian mansion, and two others held onto 8-year-old used cars for 67 hours — and later steered the cars home.

Doris Woodward, a social worker who immigrated to the United States from El Salvador and needs a home for 14 relatives, wrote an essay, "Why I want to own a big, old house in Maine," to win the aging home in Dover-Foxcroft. The contest was sponsored by the home's owner.

In Grand Rapids, Mich., Sheila Rose and Greg Banfill are the new owners of 1974 Oldsmobiles after they clung to the cars in a "Hands-On Marathon."

Mrs. Woodward said her prayers were answered by the announcement Thursday that she won the Maine competition, which drew more than 800 entrants who each paid $50.

In her essay, Mrs. Woodward wrote, "Some of my family have come with physical scars of the war they have left behind, yet they are hard-working people."

Mrs. Woodward, a case worker for the International Christian Adoption Agency, said she would remain in Waterville after her family moved into the 90-year-old, three-apartment mansion 35 miles northwest of Bangor.

"It is more than a desire, it is an urgent need that I find a large house for my family," she wrote. "When my younger sister joins us this winter from El Salvador, I will have 14 of my immediate relatives here."

The owner of the house, Jane Pieriboni, received about $42,000 from the contest, her lawyer said.

Ms. Pieriboni, recently divorced, will use the money to pay off the $27,000 mortgage, find a new place to live and pay the costs of the contest, attorney James Austin said.

Ms. Pieriboni decided to stage the contest after her mortgage payments and maintenance bills became too expensive.

In the car contest, Mrs. Rose, a 32-year-old mother of four, and Banfill, a 23-year-old welder, stayed on their feet for 67 and 69½ hours respectively to win a car each.

The marathon began Monday afternoon as 37 participants geared up to car-cling at Dale Baker Oldsmobile-Honda Inc.

They were required to keep at least one hand on the car at all times — which meant staying awake.

"I said this is my car the minute I put my hand on the hood," Mrs. Rose said after the hand of her final opponent — Randall Backoski — slipped around 10 a.m. Thursday from the 1974 Oldsmobile Cutlass.

Mrs. Rose had said she would keep her hand on the car until she broke an unofficial world record of 78 hours, set in Colorado Springs, Colo., earlier this year. But about two hours after Backoski dropped out, "a bee began buzzing around Mrs. Rose's head," said Dave Petersen, used car manager for the dealer.

"The bee decided to make a pass in front of her face. She apparently has a fear of bees, and took a swat at it with both hands. That was it," he said.

Banfill, 23, outlasted Kevin Gannon, 25, to win an Olds Delta 88. Gannon took his hand off the vehicle around 1:30 p.m. — after 68½ hours — when he went to hug a family member, Petersen said.

Like Mrs. Rose, Banfill vowed to take a shot at breaking the unofficial record. But, "He reached out about 2:30 p.m. to touch his girlfriend, and took his hand off the car" when he lost his balance, Petersen said.

Banfill, who said it cost him about $100 a day to stay away from his job as a welder, explained, "It's not just the car, it's the challenge." He had been equipped with a portable television, a stereo tape player and a cooler full of provisions.

Burger brouhaha taken to court

MIAMI (AP) — The biggest whoppers from Burger King are in television ads planned by the fast-food chain, claim executives of rival McDonald's, who are doing a slow burn over criticism of their cooking method.

McDonald's Corp. filed suit here Thursday seeking an injunction to stop Burger King from broadcasting what it called "false and misleading" commercials. The ad campaign was to start Monday.

The ads cite a customer survey that concludes people prefer the taste of Burger King hamburgers to those of McDonald's or Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers.

John Weir, a spokesman for Miami-based Burger King Corp. reached at an advertising meeting in New York, defended the ads and said corporate attorneys were reviewing the suit by McDonald's, the nation's largest hamburger chain. Burger King is No. 2.

"We just found out about the thing," Weir said. "The campaign will be launched as scheduled." A hearing on the issue was scheduled today in U.S. District Court.

The controversy centers around the ads' contention that "consumers prefer the taste of flame-broiled hamburgers over the fried hamburger served at McDonald's."

McDonald's didn't say in its suit exactly how its burgers are cooked, but the manager of a local outlet insisted they are grilled, not fried.

The ads, created by the J. Walter Thompson U.S.A. agency in New York, cite a taste test of Burger King's Whoppers and McDonald's Big Macs.

"It was a blind, independent taste test with consumers who didn't know what they were eating," Weir said. "And the Whopper won."

McDonald's, however, countered that Whoppers are actually often steamed.

"The representation that Burger King's hamburger sandwiches are broiled while McDonald's are fried... are false and misleading because Burger King burgers are often steamed and then reheated or warmed in microwave ovens before sales to consumers," the suit said.

"Burger King has failed to disclose this material fact. Moreover, McDonald's hamburgers are not fried as Burger King's comparative representations are intended to convey."

McDonald's wants Burger King enjoined from broadcasting or disseminating any materials "which falsely describe the products in comparison with McDonald's."

The suit asked for unspecified punitive damages, court costs and attorneys' fees, as well as "corrective advertising to dispel the continuing and lingering effects on the public" if the commercials create the impression that McDonald's fries its burgers.

The ads also say Big Mac hamburger patties contain 20 percent less meat than Whoppers. But McDonald's said the two burgers can't be compared because the Big Mac contains two patties to the Whopper's one and costs 10 percent to 25 percent less.

A spokesman for Columbus, Ohio-based Wendy's International said the fast-growing competitor had no plans to join the suit but was waiting to see the ads broadcast. Wendy's, which in some commercials has made derogatory references to McDonald's without using the company's name, isn't named in the suit.

"We read the trades. We know people are talking about them," Wendy's Vice President Brian Padberg said of the ads.

Customers in line Thursday afternoon at a Burger King in downtown Miami couldn't clear up the burger brouhaha.

"They're all pretty much the same. I saw Burger King first. I was hungry, so I stopped here," said Jim Palisades, 22.

"I like McDonald's better, but there isn't one around here," said Patrick McKinley of Miami Beach.

"For burgers, I prefer Wendy's. They've got more meat," countered Chris Minton, 26.

"The onion rings here," said Mitch Fraser, on vacation in Miami from New York City.

Kentucky town goes bananas over banana festival

FULTON, Ky. (AP) — Jo Westpheling admits she must be "a little bananas" to serve as president of the International Banana Festival, but she wouldn't have it any other way.

After all, she's presiding over a four-day event that will draw an estimated 20,000 people for a parade Saturday, followed by free servings from a one-ton banana pudding.

The 20th annual festival also features a banana-eating contest, a banana bonnet competition and even a Governors' Brunch, to be hosted today by Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander and Kentucky Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

Fulton's affection for the fruit goes back to early this century, when the old Illinois Central Railroad hauled practically the nation's entire supply of bananas through this small town on the Kentucky-Tennessee border.

But by the early 1960s, the banana haulers found they could ship the fruit more easily by air or in refrigerated cars, which took another route.

In 1963 a group of local residents, including Mrs. Westpheling, held the first celebration. She's now serving a fourth term as president of the event.

The festival has drawn celebrities from around the world and has become something of a showcase for international goodwill. Ambassadors and student groups from major banana exporting countries in Central and South America have attended the festivities over the years.

The event also has improved relations between Fulton and its twin city of South Fulton, Tenn., according to Mrs. Westpheling.

"It's like our slogan says, 'One community — the best of both states,'" she said.

The event, of course, lends itself to fruity jokes and puns. Large contributors to the festival are members of the "Top Banana Club" and just about everyone sports lapel buttons claiming to be "just one of the bunch."

Mrs. Westpheling said the event costs about $30,000, and "we're always happy if we can break even."

This year's festivities began Wednesday with a contest where six youngsters dispatched 21 banana splits in 10 minutes. Mrs. Westpheling said the three members of the winning team figured they wouldn't eat another banana for at least a week.

After Saturday's parade will be the unveiling of the huge pudding, an annual feast made of 300 hand-sliced bananas, 250 pounds of vanilla cookies and 950 pounds of boiled custard.

After the governors' brunch, dignitaries from both states will compete in a banana shootout, in which contestants must split a pair of bananas with a bow and arrow.

A celebrity auction Saturday will feature two handmade dolls donated by Princess Grace of Monaco shortly before her death last week, Mrs. Westpheling said. Other trinkets or autographed photos have been donated by Paul Newman, Lawrence Welk, Lady Bird Johnson, Paul "Bear" Bryant, Arnold Palmer, Bob Hope and Phyllis George Brown, Kentucky's first lady.

At the local senior citizens' center Wednesday, 20 people entered a banana-bonnet contest, which featured hats made from lamp shades, placemats and thread spools. Alava Mai Kellams' creation — an umbrella hat adorned with crocheted bananas — was judged the pick of the crop.

"This is really my fishing hat," Mrs. Kellams admitted. "I didn't really crochet the bananas, a friend did. But the leaves are from a plant on my front porch."

Falklands-mementos auction raises $91,000

LONDON (AP) — An array of mementos from Britain's Falkland Islands fight with Argentina — including Prince Andrew's scruffy flying gloves and the ousted Argentine military governor's ceremonial top hat — brought the equivalent of $91,613 at a London auction.

The money raised at Thursday's "Great Falklands Auction" will be donated to the 1,800 residents of the South Atlantic archipelago and relatives of the 254 British servicemen who died retaking the islands from an Argentine invasion force after a 74-day conflict that ended three months ago.

Prince Andrews gloves, marked with "Andrew, Falkland Islands 1982," went for $875 to 26-year-old real estage agent Trevor Spiro, who said he might wear them at his wedding later this year.

The prince, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, wore the gloves as co-pilot of a helicopter that flew decoy missions over the British fleet to distract incoming Argentine missiles.

Ted Needham, chairman of the British-owned Falkland Islands trading company, bought the black top hat with two white feathers that Argentine Gen. Mario Menendez wore during his tenure as military governor of the islands.

Needham paid $8,750 for the hat left behind by Menendez after he surrendered his garrison June 14. Needham called the hat a "symbol of Argentine oppression" to the Falklanders.

Cindy Buxton, a British film-maker trapped on the Falklands dependency of South Georgia after the April 2 invasion, and a friend of hers together paid $4,550 for 50 acres of Falklands grazing land donated by the Falkland Islands Company.

Armed robbers blame their deed on Reaganomics

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lawbreakers sometimes claim that the devil made them do it, but two bank robbers had a more contemporary excuse.

The polite, neatly dressed gunmen took an undisclosed amount of cash from a Dixie Homestead Association after forcing several employees and three customers to the rear of the building, a police report said.

"Reaganomics made us do it," shouted one of the robbers as the men made their getaway from the holdup shortly after noon Wednesday. No one was hurt.

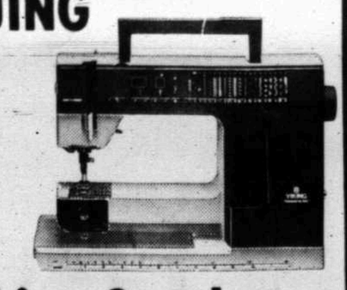

Police were seeking two men in their 20s.

Slowed inflation a sign economy is recovering, Regan says

By The Associated Press

The report that inflation slowed to a 3.3 percent annual pace last month is evidence that the economy is recovering from recession, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan says.

Regan said the figures showed "we're on the road to a sound recovery," and that the financial community should be convinced that soaring inflation will not soon return.

"For my friends in the financial markets, this is one more stake in the heart of inflationary expectations," he said Thursday.

Wall Street did not react greatly to the news. Stock prices fell modestly while bond prices edged slightly higher. Interest rates dipped a bit.

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, slowed last month to 0.3 percent, or a yearly rate of 3.3 percent. At the same time, the Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings, after adjusting for inflation, rose 0.1 percent in August after falling 0.2 percent in July.

But for the 12 months ending in August, inflation still managed to outstrip those earnings. The report said average weekly earnings in August were 1.3 percent below what they were in the same month of 1981.

In its report on inflation, the Commerce Department said the 0.3 percent increase in August compared with rises of 0.6 percent in July and 1 percent in May and June.

If prices rose for 12 months at August's rate, the yearly advance would be 3.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation than the individual monthly figures the department makes public.

For the 12 months ended in August, prices rose 5.9 percent, the department said. The consumer inflation rate was 8.9 percent last year and 12.4 percent in 1980.

The main reasons for August's slow pace were a 0.1 percent decline posted for gasoline prices and a 0.3 percent fall in food costs.

Despite the favorable news on prices, the Labor Department offered some troublesome figures on unemployment.

The department said that for a fifth straight week, more than 600,000 jobless people filed first-time claims for state insurance benefits, a worrisome sign of continued rises in unemployment.

Bitter battle halted; Combatants working on peace terms

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A pending peace agreement in a bitter corporate takeover war could save Martin Marietta Corp. from being swallowed by Bendix Corp. — and also put Bendix under the control of giant Allied Corp., it was reported today.

Executives of the three companies, their investment bankers and lawyers worked into the night Thursday to close the deal, which apparently would swap Marietta-owned Bendix stock to Allied in return for Bendix's Marietta stock, according to unidentified sources quoted today by the New York Times and the Washington Post.

Bendix started the fight last month when it launched a $1.5 billion takeover bid for Marietta, which retaliated with its own $1.5 billion offer for Bendix.

United Technologies Corp. and Allied also entered the fray, creating one of the most tangled merger fights in Wall Street history.

Spokesmen for Bendix, Marietta and Allied confirmed Thursday that negotiations were under way, but said official word on the tentative peace plan probably would not come until later today.

The sources quoted by the newspapers said the final settlement was being delayed by negotiations over terms of the stock swap, which also could include the exchange of some assets of one or more of the companies.

Allied would say only that its talks were "proceeding satisfactorily," while Wall Street speculation centered on a compromise that could end the four-way takeover shootout and allow Marietta to retain its independence.

The new negotiations opened Thursday after Allied backed away from an ambitious plan announced a day earlier to take over both Bendix and Marietta for $2.3 billion.

That deal soured when Marietta bought a 44 percent block of Bendix early Thursday and announced plans to keep buying Bendix stock until it got a majority of the company.

Later in the day, Allied spokeswoman Christina Pagano said Allied Chairman Edward L. Hennessy Jr. met late Wednesday with Marietta officials. She said she did not know the results.

Marietta's director of public relations, William Harwood, said he could not comment on the negotiations.

Marietta had enlisted the help of United Technologies, which is offering $1.5 billion for Bendix and has agreed with Marietta that if either of their bids prevails, they will split Bendix' assets.

Marietta is a big defense contractor with aerospace interests, while Bendix is a producer of auto and aerospace products. United Technologies is involved in a wide variety of high technology fields, while Allied is primarily an energy and chemicals concern.

Under terms of Allied's offer on Wednesday, it would offer $85 a share for about 55 percent of Bendix's stock and securities for the rest in a deal worth $1.9 billion.

Allied also had planned to spend about $400 million more to acquire the 30 percent of Marietta stock not already owned by Bendix. That would give it control of both Bendix and Marietta with a $2.3 billion deal that would more than double Allied's size.

Also, Allied said that under a separate agreeement, Bendix would sell to Allied its aerospace electronics group — not including its electrical connector business — for $800 million in cash.

Airlines are desperately cutting fares

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's major airlines are desperately cutting fares to attract passengers, even though they are en route to a third year of unprecedented losses, an industry economist says.

George James, chief economist of the industry's Air Transport Association, called the trend "not very hopeful."

The industry lost about $220 million in 1980, almost $500 million in 1981 and nearly $1 billion in the 12-month period that ended June 30. Reasons include the 1980 recession, fuel prices that quadrupled since 1978, a series of fare wars, and cutbacks and confusion from the air controllers strike 13 months ago.

The trend continues into the latter half of this year with no sign of improvement, James said Thursday. Airline revenue, for example, is running 5 percent below last year, which he called "a record loss year."

August traffic among the 12 lines in the ATA "major" category rose only 4.9 percent from August of a year ago. The controllers' strike began Aug. 3, 1981.

Even with a strong performance by some of the "national" airlines including Piedmont and Ozark, the overall industry could muster only a 6.8 percent August traffic gain over a year ago, James said. Things don't look encouraging for the winter, when most airlines try to coast on earnings from the peak travel months in summer.

Regional air fare wars have broken out all over the nation. This week, the major airlines all lowered transcontinental fares for a round-trip ticket between New York and California from $499 only a month ago to $238, or $119 one-way.

"It's a great bargain for the consumer," said David Frailey, a spokesman for American Airlines. "But it's kind of a battle now to see which airline can outlast the other." When Braniff filed for bankruptcy protection in May, analysts believed intense fare-cutting was part of the problem.

David Venz, a spokesman for Trans World Airlines, said Thursday the discounts should come as no surprise. "Looking at the advance bookings, they're absolutely awful," he said.

James Ashlock of Eastern Airlines said: "We're in the slump period. We're just trying to keep people flying."

The latest round of transcontinental cuts began Aug. 31 with Western Airlines dropping the coast-to-coast round-trip fare to $298 from $498 for mid-week flights. On Sept. 2, American, Eastern, TWA and United Airlines matched it.

Then on Sept. 9, Capitol Air, which sprang up after airline routes and fares were deregulated in 1978, dropped its transcontinental fare to $244. That was matched by the big airlines, some with varying conditions, including advance purchase and limiting the offer to 50 seats per flight.

The current restricted, round-trip fare of $238 was launched by Continental Airlines on Tuesday and was matched by the others.

The airlines say they cannot stay out of fare wars if they want to remain competitive, even if it means losing revenue. The alternative is to lose even more revenue as passengers flock to low-fare lines.

Analysts say further airline bankruptcies are not inconceivable if some airlines cannot maintain cash flow in the months to come.

House leaders fighting long odds

WASHINGTON (AP) — House leaders say they're fighting long odds in their efforts to win passage of legislation setting a national nuclear waste disposal policy before Congress adjourns next week.

Three House committees have approved some version of a nuclear waste bill, but they must resolve their differences and come up with a single bill to put before the full House.

"The odds are against us on any ordinary basis," Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said in testimony Thursday before the House Rules Committee, which must clear any compromise bill for floor action.

Donoghue's MONEY FUND AVERAGE(TM)
-(Averages for all 208 taxable funds)		37	9.6	9.8

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and thirty-day period. Past returns not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. (x) average term to next rate adjustment date. Reprinted in condensed form with permission from Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (TM) of Holliston, MA 01746, 617-429-5930.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 208 money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (TM) of Holliston, MA 01746 decreased $180.5 million to $223.2 billion for the week ending September 22, 1982.

The funds' 7-day average yield decreased slightly to 9.60 percent from 9.79 percent. The funds' 30-day average yield also fell, to 9.80 percent from 10.05 percent.

The funds' average maturity figure increased back to 37 days following a one week decline to 36 days.

Publisher William E. Donoghue says, "Although the assets of all taxable money funds declined slightly overall, the assets of the lower-yielding funds which invest exclusively in U.S. government securities saw an asset increase of $144.4 million proving that in this time of high unemployment investors are more concerned with safety and liquidity than high yields."

Bush to address oil and gas meeting

HOUSTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush planned to deliver the keynote address today at the 63rd annual convention of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

Between 500 and 600 petroleum industry leaders, representing all segments of the business, are attending the meeting, which began Thursday.

Bush joins Paul Thayer, chairman of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Dallas-based LTV Corp., on the agenda of the organization's general business session.

The vice president also was expected to speak tonight at a fundraising dinner for Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, of Dallas, who is seeking to unseat Democratic incumbent Lloyd Bentsen in the U.S. Senate.

What about my telephone service?

What will happen to my local rates? Is it true they're going to skyrocket?

I've heard the telephone company's splitting up. What's happening?

LET'S TALK

Let's Talk. You've probably heard about changes coming to Southwestern Bell. You may have questions about those changes. If so, we want to make sure you get answers.

Q. I've heard stories about "divestiture" and the telephone company splitting up. What's happening?

A. AT&T has agreed with the Department of Justice to separate itself from the local operations of 22 Bell telephone companies. So within 18 months of when the agreement goes into effect, Southwestern Bell will become an independent company.

Q. If Southwestern Bell is "on its own"—without AT&T behind it—won't the quality of my telephone service be affected?

A. No. You can expect the same dependable service you have now. And you'll have the same dedicated people standing behind it.

Q. What will happen to my local rates? Is it true they're going to skyrocket?

A. Rates are not going to skyrocket, but they will go up. Local rates will rise because of many factors, among them inflation and changes in accounting and financial procedures. In addition, Southwestern Bell has been subsidizing local telephone service with profits from long distance and other services. In the future, local service will have to pay more of its own cost.

If you've got other questions, let's talk. Just call 1-800-555-5000 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

There'll be someone to talk to. Somebody to get you information.

Corona found guilty of murder for second time

Juan Corona

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — A green, cloth-bound "death ledger" listing names of farm workers whose hacked bodies were found in orchards was the key evidence that convicted Juan Corona of 25 murders for the second time, the jury's foreman says.

"That's what did it," said Brian Douglas Hast, a 26-year-old tax attorney who also acted as the panel's spokesman, after the verdict was announced Thursday.

The ledger contained the names of at least eight of the 25 victims, with dates next to them, and witnesses testified the handwriting was Corona's.

The verdict, reached after 10 days of deliberations, ended a seven-month, $5 million retrial for the 48-year-old Corona, accused of killing the migrant workers and burying their bodies in orchards near Yuba City in 1971.

Corona showed little emotion as clerk Melissa Fowler slowly read off the 25 guilty verdicts. "He took it like a man," defense attorney Terence Hallinan said, adding that Corona was depressed by the outcome.

Another jury in 1973 reached the same finding, and Corona was sentenced to 25 life terms in prison. In 1978, a state appeals court found his defense had been deficient and ordered a new trial for Corona, who has spent 11 years behind bars.

Superior Court Judge Richard Patton set sentencing for Oct. 21, at which time he said he would consider a defense request for a new trial. The maximum penalty would be a reinstatment of Corona's earlier life sentence, since California had no death penalty when the murders were committed.

Corona is eligible for immediate parole consideration by the state Board of Prison Terms because of the length of time he has served.

In December 1973, Corona was stabbed 32 times by fellow inmates at a prison in Vacaville. His left eye was removed in surgery the next day, but a blade remains lodged behind his right eye.

The second jury listened to 212 witnesses, whose testimony filled 16,700 pages, and saw 1,300 exhibits. Prosecutors argued that Corona, a farm labor contractor, recruited his victims from the streets of Marysville, some 100 miles northeast of San Francisco, drove them to orchards, and killed them.

The jury foreman said dates in the "death ledger" seemed to correlate with testimony about the last time many of the victims were seen alive.

Authorities found the ledger in Corona's bedroom after his May 26, 1971, arrest and said the names were written with a six-color pen imported from Italy. Corona, who testified in his defense for the first time during the retrial, admitted owning such a pen, but denied writing the names and said the book was last used in a 1967 harvest.

Corona has always maintained his innocence, but, according to a copyright story in today's Oakland Tribune-Eastbay TODAY, he once agreed to plead guilty. He subsequently rescinded the offer, which he had made in a 1978 letter to a judge, the paper said. His attorneys said he mistakenly believed he would be released from prison if he pleaded guilty. Jurors at the retrial were not told of the letter.

Asked during the trial about a post-hole digger found in his garage covered with dried mud and human hair, Corona said he didn't remember seeing hair on it. He also said he didn't remember seeing any blood on a floor mat or throw rug found in his car.

By late last week, the deliberating jurors had unanimously rejected defense contentions that Corona's half-brother, Natividad, was a more likely suspect in the slayings, Hast said.

Grand jury subpoenas mob figures

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Police trying to "clean that mess up in Atlantic City," where an organized crime war has killed nearly 20 people, have served subpoenas on more than 30 suspected mob figures.

The subpoenas ordered the suspects to appear before a special grand jury investigating organized crime in the gambling resort.

"Our objective is that we're going to clean that mess up in Atlantic City," Col. Justin Dintino, in charge of intelligence for the state police, said Thursday.

Officials also want to see documents and records of people described as "mob associates."

"I'm very optimistic that this will culminate in indictments and convictions. We're not on a fishing expedition," Dintino said. "We cannot tolerate organized crime as it exists in Atlantic City.

"When I say Atlantic City, I don't want to refer to the casino industry, that's an unfair assessment," he added. "I'm talking about individuals that are in there operating."

Dintino said police had served from 30 to 40 subpoenas by Thursday requiring an appearance next Wednesday before the grand jury.

Among those subpoenaed were Phillip "Crazy Phil" Leonetti, a nephew and reputed lieutenant of the alleged boss of organized crime in Philadelphia and southern New Jersey, Nicodemo "Little Nicky" Scarfo, the officer said.

A task force to crack down on mob violence has been formed by the state police, the state divisions of Criminal Justice, Gaming Enforcement and Alcoholic Beverage Control and the Atlantic County prosecutor's office, Dintino said.

Dintino said he could not disclose the exact nature of the investigations, but said "we are going to look very carefully" at all activities of Scarfo's associates.

Authorities say the organized crime war started March 19, 1980, when reputed Philadelphia mob boss Angelo Bruno was shot dead as he sat in a car in front of his South Philadelphia home.

Since then, most of Bruno's suspected top lieutenants — including his heir apparent, Phillip "Chicken Man" Testa — have been killed.

Authorities have said Scarfo — exiled to Atlantic City when it was the dingiest outpost of Bruno's alleged criminal domain in the early 1960s — has emerged as the boss of the mob.

Investigators said Scarfo, 54, with the support of the Genovese family of New York, has moved to take control of mob operations in Philadelphia, Atlantic City, southern New Jersey, Delaware, and eastern Pennsylvania.

Dintino said the probe was launched because of "the recent homicides — culminated by the shooting of Joseph Salerno Sr.," the father of a witness against Scarfo.

Salerno, 62, was shot once in the neck by a masked gunman at his motel in Wildwood Crest. He recovered.

Salerno's son, Joseph, 34, now in the federal Witness Protection Program, has testified three times against Scarfo, including before the New Jersey Casino Control Commission and a U.S. Senate subcommittee investigating organized crime.

Bank executive slain in New York City hotel

NEW YORK (AP) — A bank executive found slain in a stairwell at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel may have met her killer as she was trying to find the way to her room on the opposite side of the hotel, police speculate.

Kathleen Williams, 30, an executive in the Chase Manhattan Bank's Mecico City office, was on a business trip to New York City and had checked into the hotel less than two hours before her body was discovered Thursday.

Police said she was still wearing earrings, a watch and a ring, but added that robbery could not be ruled out as a motive because it was not known whether she was carrying cash.

Miss Williams was found in a stairwell below the 19th floor on the opposite side of the hotel from her assigned room. Police theorized she had taken the wrong elevator and met her death when she followed an "Exit" sign into the stairwell in her effort to find her way to the other wing.

The slaying occurred while the hotel's normal heavy security force — beefed up after several recent robberies — was augmented by Secret Service agents guarding Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, who was staying in the adjacent Waldorf Towers.

The federal agents joined police in the initial stages of the investigation of the killing.

The city's chief medical examiner, Dr. Elliot M. Gross, said Miss Williams had suffered two wounds, a superficial stab wound in the lower left cheek and a fatal stab wound on the right side of the neck that cut her major blood vessels.

An assistant vice president for corporate banking in Mexico City, Miss Williams had been a guest at the Waldorf earlier in the week but had left for a four-day business seminar in Atlantic City, N.J.

According to Capt. Eugene Burke, Miss Williams was given a room on the 12th floor of the hotel's west wing. She went to the room, but was not satisfied and returned to the desk to ask for another room.

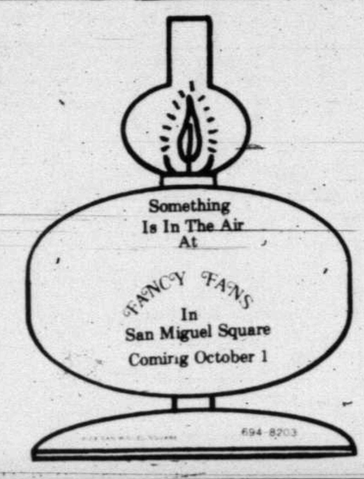

At her request, she was assigned a room on the 19th floor, where the Junior League, a women's service organization to which she belonged, had offices, Burke said.

The body was discovered by a hotel guard on routine patrol at 8:43 p.m.

Steven A. Rautenberg, a vice president for corporate communications at Chase Manhattan, said Miss Williams had been an employee of the bank since 1977.

Police said her mother worked as a teacher for the American embassy in Mexico City.

Lee Rebels host Odessa High in 4-5A opener

Close games highlight annual district slugfest kickoff rivalry

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

The intensity in tonight's football game should be higher than normal as Midland Lee and Odessa High open their 1982 District 4-5A season with an 8 p.m. kickoff at Memorial Stadium.

Being the opening district game of the season isn't the only reason intensity should be flying high, there is also history to contend with. Over the past several years the Rebels and Bronchos have played some close, hard-fought football games, and both coaches — Spike Dykes for Lee and Jerry Millsapps for OHS — are quick to point out that fact.

"Traditionally, it's a very intense football game," said Dykes. "Look back over the records for the last 10 years and there's been a one-point victory several times with some of those victories coming in the last minute."

"IT'S BEEN a real good series and for the most part the games have been very close," said Millsapps. "It's always a good, tough, physical game. I don't know whether it'll be any different this year, but last year they beat us 21-7 and until last year it hadn't been more than a touchdown or extra point that settled the game."

This year the Rebels look like they have the capability to score points with any team they face. In their final non-district game, they pounded out 362 yards rushing and threw for another 113 as they defeated El Paso Eastwood by a 42-13 count.

"We were pleased with our offensive performance," said Dykes. "We felt like we had our best game of the year as far as converting third down situations and I think another thing we did well offensively was we kept the ball for awhile, we kept it away from a darn good offense."

As to Odessa High, Dykes feels they too have strong offensive potential.

"They look explosive," he said. "They've got speed and talent in the backfield and they've got a good sized line. They look like, to me, they've been very productive in every way offensively except scoring a lot of points. But they've certainly managed to score enough points to win two of their games and had every opportunity to win the other."

ODESSA HIGH'S lone loss of the season came Friday night against Hobbs, N.M., a team that is "unbeaten, untied and unscored on this year," said Dykes, who also pointed out that OHS has only given up 19 points this season in compiling a 2-1 record.

"Defensively about Odessa, they have been very stingy giving up only 19 points in three ball games. Their defense is led by an outstanding secondary with all their players back from last year. They've got two or three linebackers returning from last year so they've got an outstanding neucleus to work with."

Millsapps agreed with Dykes about the secondary being the strongest part of Odessa High's defense.

"They started 10 games last year and three more this year," said Millsapps. "They have a lot of saavy and that should be our strong point."

But he also sees a strong threat to his team in Lee's offensive capability.

"Lee has thrown the ball very well this year," said Millsapps. "They throw the short action passes and they are very tough to defend. The reason they're so tough is you have to set up your perimeter in run support and that makes you vulnerable to the short pass."

EVEN THOUGH it gave up 301 yards against Eastwood, the Rebel defensive unit was able to stop the Troopers from scoring most of the night and that made Dykes happy.

"I thought our whole defense played well considering who we were playing," he said. "We gave up yards and we gave up points, but Eastwood has a good offensive football team."

And that sets the stage for the opening game of the 4-5A season, a good offense against a good defense on both sides of the field and 48 minutes to play.

Midland Lee wide receiver Damon Polk has scored eight points for the Rebels in the last two weeks, including a TD pass of 41 yards from reserve quarterback Teddy Joe Strambler. Polk is hoping to add to that total tonight at Memorial Stadium when the Rebs take on Odessa High in the first District 4-5A game of the year.

MHS revamps offensive lineup in hopes of breaking 3-20 jinx

Midland High's Alex Mata will drop the ball this week in a move to defensive end when the Bulldogs open District 4-5A play against Odessa Permian tonight at Ratliff Stadium. Mata leads the Bulldog rushers with 93 yards on 28 carries, but he may not add much to that total this week.

ODESSA — It appears that the Midland High Bulldogs have just about everything going against them as today's 8 p.m. Ratliff Stadium encounter against Odessa Permian draws near.

History says the Dawgs are in for a long night to open the district campaign. Defending District 4-5A champion Permian, 3-0 on the season, has won 20 of the 23 outings against the two schools, with MHS last winning in 1973 when this year's Bulldogs were in grade school. Permian has also been scoring basketball size scores, coming off a 51-point effort against Fort Worth Wyatt.

Midland High, on the other hand, is 1-2 while averaging only one TD per outing. The Bulldogs also will be without half of its starting backfield with halfback Ricky Madrid and fullback Raymond Chambers still suffering from nagging injuries.

IT'S HARD enough to beat history, but the Bulldogs aren't exactly heading into this game on an up note. Just when MHS thought they had a defensive unit they could point to with pride, it gives up 23 points to Lubbock Estacado and 268 yards rushing to Matador fullback Billy Harris.

And the Bulldogs also need to find a bus that is capable of travelling 20 miles west without breaking down. They barely got out of Midland during the first week of the season when the bus folded on a trip to Lubbock. It's been that kind of year.

Beleaguered MHS coach Pat Culpepper is searching for ways to put some punch to his Bulldogs and has made five changes in his offensive lineup, including the moving of halfback Alex Mata to defensmve end. Mata just happens to be the Bulldogs' leading rusher this season with just over 90 yards in three games.

RANDALL COLLINS, who has seen action, will start at halfback while junior Kyle Kitto, who had 60 yards on 14 carries last week after being called up from the junior varsity, will step in at fullback. Dodd Griffith and Jimmy Essman move into the offensive guard slots to free Gary Russell and Bobby Hillin for defensive duty only and Albert Reed will free tackle Clifton Hines for defensive duty also.

"Our continuing problem has been too many two-way starters and we hope these moves will help on both offense and defense, but Ricky Madrid and Raymond Chambers are big losses to our football team," said Culpepper of the changes. "Tommy Davis and Earl Phillips will be the only ones playing both ways because they seem to be less effected by going two ways according to our flims.

"The way things stand for us right now is that we are going to have to play near perfect football to stay in the game against some of these teams we play. I hope our seniors, who played so well against Permian last year, carry the load for us. We need an intense effort from our team and we are coming off a game we didn't play well on either offense or defense."

CULPEPPER SAYS his defense will have to keep the Bulldogs in the game and will have to play a conservative, close-to-the-vest type of game. "Watch out if Permian hits us with a couple of quick scores," Culpepper said.

"Every year it sounds redundant, but the Permian program is programed to win. They have structured players that come out of the same mold every year. Their quarterback (Brent Kelley) can throw better than any I've seen over there and Mike Troglin is a great running back. Their tight end (Roger Turner) is a better blocker this year."

But while old Mojo seems to be holding all four aces to go along with a wild card, Permian coach John Wilkins acts as if he is going against San Angelo.

"We're on the verge of collaspsing. It may not seem like it unless you are in our position, but we have six kids out who have played a lot for us — good quality kids," Wilkins noted. "I don't know how others are viewing this game, but we're playing it like this is for the district championship. It's a new season and we're all 0-0 at this point.

"Midland High can be a problem for you because they are an aggressive defensive team and one of our major problems this year is that we have had entirely too many turnovers. We haven't had much of that in the past. Our skill people seem to be better than last year, but turnovers and lack of consistency have us worried," Wilkins said.

Starting fullback Billy Rogers will miss tonight's game with a bad knee and flanker Kirk Strahan is out with a bad ankle. Defensive end Darrell Smith, not a starter, is out for the year with a broken ankle. Brent Biggs and Anthony Mills, two defensive players who have seen a lot of action, are two other Panthers who will probably miss tonight's game.

Colleges may fill pro void

By The Associated Press

The leaders of the opposing negotiating teams in the National Football League players strike are making plans to meet again, which is more than the NFL teams can do with the strike now in its fourth day.

CBS and ABC, meanwhile, are planning to fill the pro football void on television with college football.

The league announced Thursday that it had officially called off Sunday's 12 games, though no decision has been made on Monday night's Cleveland-Cincinnati contest. Later in the day, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, and Jack Donlan, head of the NFL Management Council — the league's bargaining arm — exchanged communications Thursday about resuming negotiations.

NO NEGOTIATIONS have been held since last Friday but Garvey sent a message to Donlan saying that the union is prepared to enter round-the-clock negotiations. Donlan's reply said, "We are and have been ready to bargain for months. We are prepared to meet with you at a mutually agreeable location. I will call you tomorrow (today) about establishing a site."

Even though the NFL's 28 teams will receive between $32 and $35 million from ABC, CBS and NBC for the next two weeks — whether or not any games are played — plans to televise college games Sunday are in the works. Tom Hansen, assistant executive director of the NCAA and the director of its college football television programming, told The Daily Oklahoman that ABC, CBS and Turner Broadcasting System were near an agreement with the NCAA which would call for the broadcasting of college games on Sunday afternoons during the NFL strike.

Jay Rosenstein, a spokesman for CBS, confirmed that such negotiations are under way and that any college games telecast on Sundays would be in addition to the Saturday games shown by the networks. ABC and CBS would alternate weeks on the Sunday telecasts, while TBS would not show any Sunday games but also must approve the deal.

"We had discussions throughout the past couple of months with the NCAA," Rosenstein said. "It remains a strong possibility that games will be moved to Sunday and we've geared it toward Oct. 3.

"It's accurate that these would be additional games (to the network packages)."

The expected announcement calling off Sunday's games came in a statement from league spokesman Jim Heffernan:

"The 12 National Football League games scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 27, will not be played because of the players strike. No decision has been made yet regarding the Cincinnati-at-Cleveland Monday night game that was to have completed the league's third regular season weekend."

The word "cancel" was not used, however, leading to speculation that games missed during the walkout might be made up when the strike ends.

THE NFLPA, hoping to head off the NFL in its attempt to block a series of union-sponsored All-Star games during the strike, filed suit Thursday in U.S. District Court.The 18-game series, tentatively scheduled to begin Oct. 10 at a still-undetermined site, will be telecast by Turner's new Cable Television Network.

MHS volleyballers set up shootout

The Midland High volleyball team set up a Tuesday District 4-5A shootout with San Angelo by defeating Odessa High in straight games Thursday, 15-12, 15-9.

The victory leaves MHS with a perfect 4-0 record, the same as San Angelo, the defending 4-5A champion. Odessa High fell to 2-2 in district play. The Bulldogs now own a 16-4 season record.

Meanwhile, Midland Lee fell from the winning ways it found Tuesday against Abilene by falling to Odessa Permian, 15-9, 2-15, 15-13. Lee is now 1-3 in the district campaign while Permian is 2-2.

"Our kids were really aggressive against Odessa High and I think they are ready for San Angelo," said MHS coach Linda Jolly. "I was missing one girl (Penny Griffin), but the bench did a super job for us again. The girls are just taking one game at a time."

Midland High won the junior varsity contest, 15-4, 13-15, 15-2, but the MHS sophomores fell to Odessa High by a 15-1, 4-15, 12-15 margin.

The Lee varsity dominated the second game with Permian with a 15-2 margin, but fell in a tight third game by a narrow 15-13 score.

Lee plays host to Big Spring Tuesday at the Lee gym in a 7 p.m. matchup.

Although the San Angelo-Midland High matchup will have a great bearing on the district title, the two teams seem to dominate the league at this point and two teams will earn playoff berths this year, instead of one as in the past.

Permian drops MHS Bullpups, 21-0

By CHAD PUERLING
Sports Writer

Thursday night the Midland High junior varsity dropped its' fourth game of the season, 21-0, to Odessa Permian. But it wasn't the loss that bothered Coach Rick Wood as much as the lack of progress his team made.

"We didn't improve this week," he said, "That's the disppointing part about the game. Every week we've shown improvement, until now."

One sign of the let down was the second half of play. In their last two games, against Midland Lee and McCamey, the Bullpups outscored their opponents after the half. But against Permian in the second half, the score was 14-0.

"It's hard to think of anything positive out there," Wood said, "All the bad things stick in my mind after a game like this."

Trailing 7-0 at the half the Bullpups held the Panthers scoreless in the third quarter.

On their first possession of the final stanza Midland had a second-and-eight on its own 42-yard line, but a turnover on second down changed the good field position to Permian's advantage.

The Panthers' loosened the Bullpups defense as they went to the air for two consecutive first downs. Then the running game took over and three plays later tailback Dal Watson went over from the three, making the score 14-0.

Even when the defense would seem to have the advantage something would break down and Permian would seize the opportunity.

With three minutes left in the game a short punt and clipping penalty left the Panther's with a third-and-eight from the 23, an ideal situation for the defense. But quarterback Alton Holloway rolled to his right and with pin-point precision hit Daniel Swaim in the corner of the end zone for the final score.

"We just had too many missed assignments," Wood said, "This is very disappointing."

The Bullpups will get a chance to break into the winners column next week when they travel to Big Spring in a Thursday night contest against the Steers.

Not all was bad news for the Midland High faithful as the sophomores beat thier Permian counterparts 21-6. Allen Forrest had a 70-yard kickoff return to spark the underclassmen's victory. The win improved the sophomore record to 2-1.

Meanwhile, Midland Lee's sophomores and junior varsity met Odessa High Thursday with the Stonewall Brigade coming out on top in both games. The Lee JV posted 24-15 win over the OHS JV while the Lee sophomores took a 12-9 decision. Both teams are undefeated this year with 4-0 records.

In the Lee JV win, Scott Hicks, Dennis Mata and Ricky Jackson scored on short TD runs and Gary Kennedy kicked two extra points. Kennedy was also credited with one of the two Lee safties recorded in the contest. Odessa High scored first in the game, making Lee on the short end of the score for the first time this year, but it didn't last as Lee rebounded with two safties and an eight-yard TD by Hicks.

In the Lee sophomore win, Earl Davis' 10-yard fourth quarter TD lifted Lee to another come-from-behind win. Lee led 6-0 at the half on a 35-yard TD by Tyrone Thurman, but OHS took a 9-6 lead in the third period before Davis turned it around for the sophomores.

Oklahoma gives up live USC telecast attempt

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The University of Oklahoma Thursday gave up on its attempt for a live telecast of the Sooners football game with Southern California despite a late attempt to break through the judicial line.

"The football game between the University of Oklahoma and Southern California will not be televised live," said Oklahoma Athletic Director Wade Walker, although it will be shown on a delayed basis in several parts of the country.

On Wednesday, a three-judge panel granted National Collegiate Athletic Association attorneys a stay of a lower court ruling that would have allowed the unprecedented live telecast of a college football game without the sanction of the NCAA.

Hours before Walker's statement, a motion to dissolve the stay was received by U.S. Circuit Judge Stephanie Seymour in Tulsa. She is a member of the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

The decision to drop attempts to televise Saturday's game against the Trojans was made because "we just ran out of time," said Mike Trepps, the Sooners sports information director.

"If they do go ahead and stay the order, it may leave next week's game open. It's getting so late that you can't do anything on it," Trepps said.

An Oklahoma City television station, KOCO, successfully bid for the right to televise the game and put together a 51-station network.

But stations began dropping out of the network as kickoff approached and uncertainty continued over whether the telecast would be allowed; said Mike Palmer, KOCO general manager.

Clampett, Broeck lead

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Bobby Clampett is hoping to do what good friend Johnny Miller did here in 1971, win his first Professional Golfers Association tournament.

And the 22-year-old Clampett, who had a run at winning the British Open earlier this year, is off to a good start.

Clampett fired a five-under-par 65 Thursday to share the lead with little known Lance Ten Broeck entering today's second round of the $250,000 Southern Open golf tournament.

"Johnny Miller won his first tournament here — he's a real good friend — and I'd like very much to win my first here also," said Clampett, who in his second year on the tour has earned $139,600, including a third place finish in the U.S. Open.

Miller, like Clampett a graduate of Brigham Young University, has won 20 more PGA tournaments since winning here and has earned nearly $1.7 million.

Clampett, however, hasn't fared badly, earning nearly $185,000 as a rookie last year with eight top 10 finishes, including four second places. He also finished second in the Greater Greensboro Open this year.

Earl Weaver: 'All we have to do is win nine out of last 10'

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles are in good position to win the American League East pennant, according to Manager Earl Weaver.

"All we have to do is win nine out of the last 10, and we're the champions," Weaver said after the Orioles lost 10-5 to the Detroit Tigers Thursday night. "It's as simple as that, no matter what Milwaukee does."

The Orioles, who trail Milwaukee by three games, play the first-place Brewers seven times in the last 10 games of the season, starting tonight in Milwaukee. The two teams finish the season with a four-game series in Baltimore.

The Orioles, in losing for only the seventh time in their last 34 games, didn't look like a pennant contender.

The Tigers pounded 15 hits, including a pair of two-run homers by Larry Herndon, a two-run homer by Howard Johnson and a solo shot by Mike Ivie. Meanwhile, Baltimore committed a season-high five errors and also ran into a bases-loaded double play on a foul fly ball after scoring five third-inning runs to go ahead 5-2.

"I'm not upset. Why should I be upset?" Weaver said. "We've played outstanding ball all year long. Now all we have to do is continue to do it."

Weaver, in his last season as manager of the Orioles, said the loss to Detroit simply made winning the pennant one game harder.

"If we had won, we would have only needed eight out of 10," he said. "Now it's nine of 10. It's not that hard if we do what we've been doing for the last 40 days."

Rangers 5, Angels 4

California came back from a 4-0 deficit to tie the game, but the rally went for naught as catcher Bob Boone's throwing error in the ninth inning allowed Texas' Nick Capra to score the winning run from third base.

With the loss, the Angels' lead in the West was cut to 2½ games over idle Kansas City.

Texas, which had scored four runs in the first inning on an RBI single by John Grubb, a two-run triple by Jim Sundberg and a balk, got the winning run with one out in the ninth off reliever Mike Witt, 8-6. Dave Hostetler singled and Capra, in to run for him, moved to third on Mike Richardt's single.

With pinch-hitter Pete O'Brien at the plate, Boone tried a snap-throw to third, but the ball was low and went into left field, allowing Capra to score.

White Sox 12, Mariners 4

Tom Paciorek, Harold Baines and Vance Law had three RBI each to power Chicago past Seattle.

Rudy Law had three hits, stole two bases and scored four runs for the White Sox, while veteran left-hander Jerry Koosman, 11-6, pitched seven innings to win his ninth game in 10 lifetime decisions against Seattle.

Paciorek's three RBI came on his 10th homer of the season, all of them on the road. Baines knocked in his three runs with a double, a single and a sacrifice fly, while Vance Law had a run-scoring single and a two-homer.

Mark Hill also homered for the White Sox.

Seattle's Bruce Bochte set a club record when he went 4-for-4, extending his consecutive hits to seven over two games.

Giants move into position for late run

By The Associated Press

In 1951, the New York Giants trailed the National League-leading Brooklyn Dodgers by 13½ games in mid-August ... and won the pennant with a magnificent stretch drive capped by Bobby Thompson's three-run homer in the ninth inning of the deciding playoff game.

In 1962, after the Giants had been moved to San Francisco and the Dodgers to Los Angeles, the Giants trailed by four games with seven to play ... and tied for first place on the final day of the regular season. Then they won the pennant by scoring four ninth-inning runs to win the third and deciding playoff game.

Now, it may be a trifle late for it to happen again, but ...

Frank Robinson's Giants bombed the Cincinnati Reds 11-7 Thursday, to creep to within four games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League West. The Giants now meet their old rivals in a three-game series at Dodger Stadium starting tonight.

"We have no fear of the Dodgers whatsoever," Giant catcher Bob Brenly said. "We have beaten them in their park. We have beaten (Fernando) Valenzuela (the Dodgers' Saturday starter). We're confident in our ability to go in there and play good baseball."

"We've got to go in there thinking sweep," Robinson said. "If we only get two out of three, we'll have to be satisfied.

"I feel like we're on the way up this time."

The Giants handed the Reds their 96th loss of the year as Bill Laskey, Reggie Smith and Brenly drove in two runs apiece. Atlee Hammaker, 11-8, relieved Laskey in the fourth and hurled two innings of relief for the victory. Frank Pastore, 8-12, took the loss.

The Giants also moved to within a game of second-place Atlanta, as both the Dodgers and Braves were idle Thursday. In addition to the series this weekend in Los Angeles, the Giants will end their season with three games at home against the Dodgers.

"You never have a 'laugher,'" said Brenly. "But it's good to win a game going into a big series, so everyone has the taste of victory in their mouths going into that first game."

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3

Mike Easler's RBI single and Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly gave the Pirates their winning runs and handed the Cards only their second loss in 11 games.

"If we can't win, we'd like to finish second and as high as we can," said Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner, whose club now trails the Cards by 7½ games. "It was a tough game for them to lose and a good game for us to win."

As a result of the Cards' loss and the Phillies' victory, St. Louis' magic number for clinching the NL East crown remained at six.

"I don't give a darn where we win it. We've got a long way to go," said Cards skipper Whitey Herzog. "We played good. We just couldn't get the hits."

Phillies 2, Expos 0

Gary Matthews drilled a run-scoring double into the right field corner to snap a scoreless tie in the 11th, and Bo Diaz added a sacrifice fly to lift the Phillies to the victory.

Matthews wasn't all that impressed with his hit.

"It wasn't that good, but it was in the right place," said Matthews.

Ron Reed, 5-5, pitched three scoreless innings for the Phillies. In the 11th, the Expos loaded the bases with one out against relievers Ed Farmer and Tug McGraw. Porfi Altamirano then retired Gary Carter on a pop-up and struck out Tim Wallach to earn his second save.

Mets 5, Cubs 4

Mookie Wilson doubled, tripled and scored twice to pace the New York attack. The triple was his ninth of the year, tying a Met record.

Ed Lynch, 4-7, checked the Cubs on seven hits, before Jesse Orosco hurled two strong innings to pick up his fourth save.

Orosco has allowed just one run in his last nine relief outings, covering 17 1-3 innings.

"The kid's just coming into his own, but in his last five appearances, he's been great," Met Manager George Bamberger said. "He's finally beginning to believe in himself. That's what happens to the young ones. They either get over the hump or they go to hell."

White battles LPGA rookie

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Donna White and rookie Cindy Lincoln shared the lead in the $175,000 LPGA Safeco Classic going into the second round, each firing a 5-under-par 67 in the first day of the golf tournament.

Seven players were tied at 4-under-par after opening-round play Thursday. Shooting 68s were JoAnne Carner, Nancy Lopez, Patty Sheehan, Sally Little, Hollis Stacy, Sandra Spuzich and Barbara Barrow.

The 5-foot-2 White was six under par through the first 11 holes, including an eagle three on the 497-yard ninth hole.

But she couldn't keep up the pace, falling back to tie with Lincoln.

"It's a tricky little course," White said of the Meridian Valley Country Club's 6,084-yard layout. "You have to hit it straight. The way I drove the ball today was a key thing."

The 28-year-old Wellington, Fla., player, who ranks 21st on the money list, stayed out last year to have a baby, Kristin, now 17 months and following her mother on the tour.

"If I can put time in on my game, I probably could be among the top five, but Kristin's the most important thing in my life," said White, who has finished second in two tournaments this season.

Lincoln started strong with birdies on three of the first five holes. She turned in 3-under-par 33 and birdied holes 10 and 11 to go five under.

The former University of Texas all-American from Austin hit 15 greens in regulation.

Archie Bunker's little girl grows up

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Bunker's little girl is on her own and Ricky Schroder moves from films to a television sitcom. Unfortunately for weekend viewers, Sally Struthers can't carry a show without the bigot or the meathead, and little Ricky isn't so adorable — or funny — on the small screen.

"Gloria," beginning Sunday night on CBS, is a sitcom spinoff for Miss Struthers. Cast as a veterinarian's assistant, Gloria and her son have moved to upstate New York after husband Mike left for a commune with another woman.

In NBC's "Silver Spoons," Schroder, who was Jon Voight's huggable son in "The Champ," is a mature 12-year-old living with his rich, nincompoop father. NBC hopes the kiddies who enjoy impish Gary Coleman in "Diff'rent Strokes" will stay tuned for Schroder in his series TV debut Saturday night.

But, while Coleman is convincing as a wise-beyond-his-years kid, Schroder is not. The warmth he exudes in the movies isn't transmitted in TV's intimate close-ups. He's an adult in kids' clothing, but when the child inside is called for, it doesn't come out. Nobody will believe he can really skin his knees.

Joel Higgins, who starred last year in ABC's "Best of the West," is the father who makes every day Christmas, like Dudley Moore in "Arthur." Edward Stratton III's mansion is equipped with king-size trains and when he's not playing Casey Jones, he's acting like Casey Stengel.

The best moments are when the childish Edward plays with his toys. Pac-Man noises punctuate his feelings, and railroad crossings are real hazards. You'll either love him or hate him.

Some of his baby-sitters are good, too: Erin Gray, model-turned-actress, is Edward's devoted secretary. Leonard Lightfoot is his lawyer.

This is NBC's second new show to play father doesn't know best. "Family Ties," about children of the '60s raising Reaganomics kids, is more sophisticated. But, for young audiences on Saturday nights, "Silver Spoons" isn't the worst thing around.

"60 Minutes" and "Archie Bunker's Place" are bound to turn audiences over to "Gloria." Industry analysts say "Gloria" will be one of the few new hits, especially since its hour-long competition is half over when "Gloria" starts.

But the program's success won't be on merit. It's not witty, and animal jokes went out with raccoon coats. Just because Archie's minority broadsides work doesn't mean jokes about gay dogs will be funny. And Archie's famous raspberry comes out very sour on Gloria.

Miss Struthers mugs too much for the cameras, turning Gloria into a whining, shrill woman. This overacting was less noticeable on "All in the Family." Obviously, Miss Struthers misses Rob Reiner and Carroll O'Connor, but only Michael is expected to show up, according to CBS.

In Sunday's episode, Burgess Meredith (of "Rocky I-III") does well as Gloria's new father figure, Dr. Willard Adams, the veterinarian who hired her. He's crotchety, but has softened his edges since CBS set up "Gloria" on an episode of "Archie Bunker's Place" last season.

Based on Sunday night's pilot, Meredith won't be the foil for Miss Struthers. Instead, that adversarial role falls to a female vet, angling to take over Dr. Adams' practice, and an incompetent — but young and handsome — assistant vet.

At least Gloria's son (Christian Jacobs) is cute — and he can act like a kid.

'Raiders of the Lost Ark' comes to TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — "Raiders of the Lost Ark" has come to television in the form of two network series. It's fine that TV executives go to the movies. Maybe next time they won't be out buying popcorn during the best parts.

ABC's "Tales of the Gold Monkey" began Wednesday. CBS' "Bring 'Em Back Alive" starts today. Neither will make us forget Indiana Jones and his death-defying escapades, although the CBS copy comes closer in style and disposition.

Both imitations take place in exotic climes before World War II. CBS found a piece of Hollywood that looks like Malaya, while ABC turned Universal Studios into some isles in the South Pacific.

Both borrow heavily from Humphrey Bogart films for characters and ambiance, and from the old serials for close calls and distressed damsels. "Bring 'Em Back Alive" mimics Peter Lorre and Sidney Greenstreet ("Casablanca"), while "Gold Monkey" swipes Walter Brennan's old rummy from "To Have and Have Not." But Brennan's lush had more charm.

There's a greater sense of fun about "Bring 'Em Back Alive." Bruce Boxleitner, a Robert Redford look-alike, is the swashbuckling animal hunter Frank Buck. Playing the role with his tongue playfully inside his cheek, Buck is a jet-setter in the prop age, capturing animals for the world's zoos and female hearts for his own scrapbook.

The makers got the feel of "Raiders" down fairly well in the first episode, with an authentic-looking tiger chase, diabolical Nazis, ceiling fans, sweltering heat, teeming streets, and wicker, wicker everywhere.

Every 15 minutes, just in time for a commercial, our hero gets to solve a perilous predicament. One time, the American vice consul drives her car into the swamp, followed by some slimy crocodiles. After a word from our sponsor, Buck rescues this breathless, blond beauty by grapevine — to the accompaniment of music resembling the "Superman" theme.

Patriotism and the blond (Gloria Marlowe) are always interfering with Buck's lifestyle. "Politics isn't my game," he says. But he eventually accepts his calling: "We've got a job to do for Uncle Sam."

This won't keep you on the edge of your seats, but it might keep you in them.

"Gold Monkey" won't be so lucky. It doesn't work as comic book satire or daredevil derring-do.

Melissa Manchester hits stars of beauty pageant

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If Melissa Manchester weren't married, she might well consider entering the Miss America pageant.

The new Miss America, Debra Maffett, sang her way to the talent crown with a song made famous by Miss Manchester, "Come In From The Rain." First runner-up Desiree Denise Daniels, Miss Tennessee, also trilled a Manchester hit, "Don't Cry Out Loud."

And Miss Manchester's current tune "You Should Hear How She Talks About You" was in the medley sung by all the finalists.

Mrs. America maybe?

'Tunes of the Twenties' playing at Museum of Southwest Sunday

"Tunes of the Twenties" is playing the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., Sunday beginning at 3 p.m.

Sunday's program is the second in a mini-series of free musical concerts, Music in the Galleries, being offered by the museum. The first in the series, "A Salute to Broadway," drew quite a crowd.

Performing Sunday will be Carol Schmickrath, Bonnie Hanssen, Steve Spain and the Ragtime String Quartet. Quartet members are Gloria Steelman, Eleanor Evans, Karen Walker and Vilia Walter.

Then on Oct. 3, "The Blues and All That Jazz" will conclude the series. Musicians for the day are Jane Huddleston and Bob Fennell.

All performances are free and open to the public.

Sheriff's reward: cement, garbage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Best believes that in his role as Sheriff Rosco Coltrane on "The Dukes of Hazzard" he's been kicked around more than any other actor.

"In the 3½ years I've been on the show," he said, "I've landed in the pond countless times, fallen in wet cement, been hit by explosions, had garbage dumped on me, had sand dumped on me, been squirted by fire hydrants, and run into haystacks."

Best's regular partner in getting dumped on is Sorrell Booke, who plays Boss Hogg on the CBS comedy-adventure about rural Hazzard County.

"Sorrell is such a pleasure to work with," he said. "I think we're psychic. We each know what the other will do. We work for the laughs of the crew. They're so terribly blase. If we can make them laugh I know it's working."

It's a knockabout, slapstick partnership for Best and Booke, somewhat like Laurel and Hardy. Interestingly, Booke trained at the Yale School of Drama and Best has his own acting school and is a much-in-demand dramatics teacher. He said, "It's strange. I've spent 35 years in this business playing rapist-killers and I wind up doing comedy."

Asked about the success of the series, Best replied: "It's the ingredients. You've got a grandfatherly figure, Denver Pyle, who gives it stability and honesty. You add three beautiful people, Catherine Bach, Christopher Mayer and Byron Cherry. Put in a Laurel and Hardy to play the cardboard heavies.

"I don't mean to compare Sorrell and myself to Laurel and Hardy. They were master actors. But I think Sorrell and I have been influenced by the masters. I think that's why we work so well together. We're both from the stage and we both studied that kind of humor."

He said, "It's a cotton candy show. You don't have to chew it. But it's very palatable."

Some wild animals make comeback

Thanks to wildlife management, our buffalo, elk, deer and antelope have made a dramatic comeback. Today there are 60,000 buffalo, at least a million elk, 500,000 antelopes and, at 12.5 million, more deer than ever before in recorded history.

Successful Hollywood firm loses $100 million in movies

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — There's a major movie and television production company that failed for the first time in years to sell a single new series to any network for the fall season and lost around $100 million in the last five years in an ill-conceived venture into feature filmmaking.

Yet by most measures it remains one of the most profitable, successful companies in Hollywood, with prospects for the greatest revenues in its history this year.

The company is Lorimar, best known for its television productions and series like "The Waltons," "Falcon Crest," "Knots Landing" and the No. 1 show in America, "Dallas." It also has racked up ratings and awards with a string of outstanding TV miniseries like "Sybil," "Helter Skelter" and "A Man Called Intrepid," as well as TV movies such as "Eric," "A Question of Guilt" and "Rape and Marriage: The Rideout Case."

The trauma grew out of several sources:

— In October 1981, Lorimar went public, forcing numerous changes in the way it does business. But president Lee Rich, chairman Merv Adelson and vice president Irwin Molansky still control between 81 percent and 83 percent of the company.

Midland arts groups plan to travel to Santa Fe arts festival in October

A trip to Santa Fe is being planned by the Midland College Art Department and the Midland Arts Association.

The trip will take place in conjunction with the Santa Fe Festival of Arts held annually in October. Dates for the weekend trip are Oct. 15-17.

Transportation will be provided by a 46-seat capacity bus which will leave the Allison Fine Arts Building on MC's campus at 5:30 a.m. that Friday. Cost of the transportation will run no more than $30 and could be less depending on the number of occupants.

Motel accommodations will be made at Motel 6 with rates varying according to the number of persons sharing a room. Top cost for lodging will be $16.26 nightly.

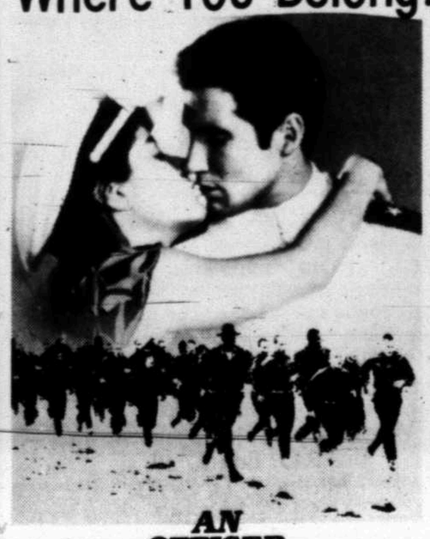

Money for the bus trip and the first night's lodgings must be paid to the art department on or before Monday. For more information call MC's art instructors, Warren Taylor or Jane Lunson.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals, addressed to the Mayor and City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, for the furnishing and installation of approximately 190 lineal feet of concrete curb and gutter and 6,380 square yards of 10" caliche base with 2" HMAC and 1,200 square yards of 8" concrete paving will be received at the office of the City Secretary, City Hall, Midland, Texas, until 2:30 p. m. on the 19th day of October, 1982 and publicly opened and read aloud at 3:00 p.m. on the same day.

Any bid received after closing time as stated above will be returned unopened.

Bid envelopes shall be plainly marked "Proposal for Project No. 222".

Information for bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file in the office of the Field Engineer, City Hall, Midland, Texas, and may be secured upon a deposit of FIFTY DOLLARS ($50) for each set as a guaranty of safe return of the plans and specifications. The full amount of the deposit will be returned to the contractor on submission of bid on the work, with such plans and specificaitions; or upon reutrn of the plans and specifications immediately after the examination of same and advising the Field Engineer that no bid will be submitted; otherwise the deposit for same shall be forfeited.

A bid bond or porposal guaranty is to accompany the bid, thereby guaranteeing the good faith of the bidder and that the bidder will enter into the written contract. The guaranty is to amount to five percent (5%) of the total bid and must be in the form of cash or certified check, issued by a bank satisfactory to the City of Midland, or a bid bond. If in the form of cash or certified check, it is expressly understood and agreed that the City of Midland is given the right to retain such as liquidated damages if such bidder withdraws its bid anytime after such bid is opened and before official rejection of such bid, or if successful in securing the award thereof, such bidder fails to enter into the contract and furnish satisfactory performance and payment bonds. If a bid bond is submitted, it shall be executed on forms contained in these contract documents by a corporate surety authorized to do business in the State of Texas, and acceptable to the City of Midland.

The City of Midland, Texas, reserves the right to accept or reject any or all proposals or bids, to waive technicalitites, and to make any investigation deemed necessary concerning the bidder's ability to perform the work covered by the plans and specifications, to award this bid by items and to accept what in the judgement of the Mayor and City Council is the most advantageous bid.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP AND TRANSFER OF ASSETS

Notice is hereby given that the partnership composed of GEORGE C. WILSON, JAMES P. WILSON, and BARNEY A. NOLL, heretofore doing business under the firm name of GEMINI CONTROLS at 500 B County Road 1297 South, Odessa, Texas 79762, was dissolved as of the 6th day of August, 1982, by the mutual consent of the partners.

Gemini Controls has become incorporated without a change of firm name, and will carry on its business affairs under the name of GEMINI CONTROLS, INC., a Texas corporation.

Notice is also hereby given that on the 6th day of August, 1982, the entire assets of Gemini Controls were transferred to the enterprise organized to take over and continue the business under the name of Gemini Controls Inc., a Texas corporation, whose registered office is 2404 Emerson Court, Midland, Texas 79701. The corporation's business office is located at 9905 County Road 129 West, P. O. Box 9878, Midland, Texas 79701.

The corporation has assumed all of the debts of the trasferor, and the transferor will receive nothing from the transaction except shares in the corporation, which will be subordinate to the claims of creditors of the corporation.

This notice is given pursuant to Article 1302-2.01 of the Texas Miscellaneous Corporation Law Act and the Texas Business and Commerce Code, Section 6.103 (6) and (7).

The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 9¼% for 90% loan-to-value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 14¼% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6-months Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage based upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. The 7¼% maximum increase can be more if the original loan principle exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the payment may be adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE APPROXIMATELY 16¼%
