API Plans Program on Repressing

A program reportedly designed especially for the average citizen will be presented at the last 1948 meeting of the Panhandle Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute Tuesday night at the City Hall Palm Room.

The program will deal with present and proposed secondary recovery operations in the Panhandle oil field, it was said. It will begin at 8 o'clock.

Guest speaker for the evening will be Fred Westlake, pool engineer of the West Pampa Re-pressing Area. He will discuss the fundamentals of gas injection and the results being obtained in the area.

"All citizens in the Panhandle area are cordially invited to attend the one-hour meeting which will include a period of questions and answers," an official said. "Light refreshments will be served after the discussion."

Authorities now estimate that secondary recovery operations, a conservation measure, can increase the expected oil recovery from the Panhandle field as much as 15 to 20 percent, and may extend the productive life of the field by as much as 10 to 15 years.

J. W. Crisler, 42, N. Cuyler, employee of the Tip Top Cleaning Co., was injured yesterday morning when his hand became caught in the fan belt of the cleaning company's truck he was repairing.

He was taken by a Clegg Funeral Home ambulance to Worley hospital, where his physician said a bone in the middle finger of his right hand was broken and several other fingers were deeply lacerated.

Folsom Rites Set Tuesday

The body of Sgt. Kenneth Merle Folsom will arrive here at 7:14 a. m. Tuesday for funeral services at 2 p. m. the same day. Sgt. Folsom was killed in line of duty on March 2, 1945, at Geleen, Holland, by a delayed-action mine in a bombed building he was helping to tear down. He entered the service on March 5, 1943, just three days less than two years before being killed.

He was buried in an Army cemetery at Mergraten, Holland. A member of Co. B, 187 Combat Eng. Bn., he graduated from Bell High School, Bell, Calif. He was at McCurtain, Okla., on May 28, 1923. He was employed by the Tulsa Engineering Co. at the Pampa Army Airfield prior to entering the armed service.

Surviving are his father, Eugene J. Folsom, his mother, Mrs. Cora Folsom, his brother, Eugene J. Jr., and four uncles, E. C. Dudley, Ray Dudley, Frank Addington, and A. M. Parker, all of Pampa.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Duengel-Carmichael Funeral Chapel with military graveside services in Fairview Cemetery.

Cooperate With The News Carriers

"Come back tomorrow," many News subscribers are telling the carriers to go to collect. The circulation manager said this will make the boys' jobs more difficult as the winter months bring bad weather.

Besides, he said, the boys operate on a "merit" plan; they pay for the papers they get from the newspaper office; and they depend upon prompt payment for their profit.

Also, said the circulation manager, "it is pretty tough for a fellow in his teens to pick up over town delivering papers. That is why your carrier boy will appreciate your having the correct change on hand when he drops around Friday evening or Saturday morning for his money."

Window Broken By Playful Boys

Two small boys, running and playing in front of the Rex Theater early last night, jostled each other into the show window of the Ricketts Jewelry Store, 320 W. Foster.

A passerby told police he saw the two kids playing and that one pushed the other into the window, breaking it. Neither of the boys were injured, but a large pane of the broken window leaned inwardly until the management arrived and boarded it shut.

Borger Rape Suspect Found In Phillips

An intensive and wide hunt for an armed robber who allegedly assaulted and robbed a 21-year-old Borger housewife Wednesday came to an end Friday morning when Borger Police and officers from the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Department arrested Winston James Lemmons, ex-convict, at his home in Phillips.

Shortly after his arrest, Lemmons was identified by the Borger woman as her attacker. Charges of rape and armed robbery were filed against him.

The suspect's trail started on Wednesday when he allegedly attacked the young woman and fled in her car. Borger police reports said the suspect had forced his way into the woman's car and, seated in the back seat with a pistol against her, made her drive to a secluded spot on the Phillips cut-off road where, the woman said, he attacked her and fled using her car.

Later reports coming out of Oklahoma stated an armed man had forced his way into two rural Oklahoma homes. In the one home, the suspect was reported as having beaten the housewife when she refused to produce any money. Another housewife, near Lawton, also was a victim of an unidentified gunman demanding money. Her screams made him flee.

Lawton officials reported the man was driving a Texas licensed car. Borger officers said they believed Lemmons was the man involved in both Oklahoma robberies.

The gun and a box of shells, believed by authorities to have been used in the Borger assault, were found Friday on an oil lease near Phillips. The car, taken from the woman, also was found near the scene of the alleged attack.

Authorities Silent About Death-Probe

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Authorities maintained official silence in the investigation of the suicide of a University of Arkansas Freshman who left a note implicating himself in Texarkana's "phantom" killings two years ago.

Arkansas and Texas officers were to check the fingerprints of the student, H. B. (Doodle) Tension, 18, Texarkana, Ark., with the prints they had that might have been left by the mysterious slayer.

In addition, they faced the task of trying to determine since early in 1946, when the "phantom" shot and killed five persons and wounded another within a six-week period. Police here took fingerprints of Tension before Coroner Edmond Watson released the body to his family. It was sent to Texarkana and private funeral services were yesterday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jimmie Tension.

Coroner Watson said Tension swallowed poison in his room Friday night and died of it. He left a number of letters and messages. One of them, taken from a strongbox in the youth's room, "condemned" slaying two high school students and a farmer and attempting to kill the farmer's wife.

Three deaths and two others had been attributed to the "phantom" who kept the Texarkana community in a state of "nerves" for weeks.

The note gave no motive for the acts.

In Texarkana, the brothers of Tension, J. E. Tension, Jr., and Craig Tension, both of Memphis, Tenn., described their brother's "confession" as "fantastic." They expressed belief it all developed from "reading too many comic magazines," but added they were ready to cooperate fully with authorities in getting the matter solved.

Firemen Answer Trash Blaze Call

Firemen were called to the airport at 6 p. m. yesterday to extinguish a minor trash fire. No damage occurred. Fire Chief Ernest Winborne said.

At 10:25 a. m. Friday firemen answered an alarm at 318 N. Starkweather. The house belonging to Sam D. McDonald ignited as a result of defective wiring. However, no damage was done to the house, Winborne said.

WE HEARD . . .

That old-time Panhandle plowmen very early in life learned the knack of developing a ridge just above their eyes and two prehearse muscles above their ears to hold their hats on. It's too bad that the rise of an effete Eastern civilization on the prairie has killed the incentive toward such extraordinary accomplishments. After Friday we could use a few lessons.

RELATED CRACKUPS PUT THREE IN HOSPITAL

Two crackups—the one an indirect result of the other—sent three persons to the hospital and six vehicles to the repair shop within the space of approximately 25 minutes early Friday night.

Injured and taken to Pampa Hospital were: Mr. and Mrs. Arba Z. Shelton, Elk City, Okla., and their son, Donnie Shelton.

Mrs. Shelton suffered a deep laceration of the forehead, at the hairline, and other possible injuries. Mr. Shelton suffered injuries to both legs. Donnie suffered a deep cut across the finger, almost amputating it.

The Elk City people were injured in the first crash, 2 miles west of Laketon on State Highway 102, about 6:55 p. m., when their pickup truck and another pickup towing a truck-tractor piled up on a curve between two hills.

The second crash occurred when a Clegg ambulance, on its way to the wreck, and an automobile collided at Cuyler and Francis at 7:10 p. m.

State highway patrolmen, investigating the highway accident, said that Shelton, driving a 1948 Ford pickup, was traveling toward Pampa, and a 1946 International pickup truck, towing the truck-tractor, was traveling east toward Laketon. The patrolmen, reconstructing the wreck, said the truck-tractor apparently started to sway or jackknife as the oncoming pickup approached. Patrolmen and Virgil E. Hubbard, 39, Wheeler, driver of the other pickup, said they believed the oncoming pickup struck the left front fender and the gas tank of the truck-tractor, piling all three vehicles across the highway. The road was fully blocked for two hours before highway patrolmen could be reached, sent to the scene of the wreck, and direct moving of the trucks onto the shoulder of the road.

Boys on their way to a football game were hailed by Hubbard and asked to call for ambulances and police.

That was where the second crash came in. Calls were placed to the Duengel-Carmichael Funeral Home and for the Clegg ambulance. Duengel-Carmichael said they received the call at approximately 7 p. m. and sent two ambulances. A few minutes later the two Clegg ambulances were called and left for the scene.

As James Clegg, driving the white emergency ambulance, came through the intersection of Cuyler and Francis with his red light and siren on, he was struck on the left front fender by a 1941 Nash traveling west on Francis and driven by Walter Don Emmons, 18, of 318 N. Warren. As Warren's car struck the ambulance it careened off to the southwest corner of Francis and Cuyler. It piled into the parked 1938 Dodge of William C. Posey, 301 S. Banks.

There were no injuries in the three-car crash, but damage to the ambulance and the Nash was estimated by City Police at $250 or more to each vehicle. Posey's car, police said, suffered about $50 damage.

State Highway Patrolmen had made no estimate of damage to the three trucks, but described them as "badly torn up with damage ranging very high."

The Sheltons were on their way to Pampa to visit Mrs. Shelton's mother, Mrs. D. B. Brown, 318 S. Barnes. Mrs. Shelton was, thrown completely out of the car, but was conscious when found by the ambulance drivers, lying alongside the road.

Drive Nets Near $4,000

Approximately $4,000 had been contributed to the Pampa Girl Scout Association by noon yesterday, Jimmy Massa, general chairman, said.

The tenth annual Pampa Girl Scout drive for funds to carry on the ensuing year's program, was started Oct. 28 a. a. kick-off breakfast in the Pampa Room, City Hall.

Aubrey Steele, general business drive chairman, said the 75 volunteer civic club and Girl Scout members have contributed many hours by taking contact cards to all business establishments in Pampa.

Ken Meaders, public relations chairman, aided the drive by painting "Support the Girl Scouts" on downtown store windows.

The funds will be used for all phases of the Pampa Girl Scout program, Massa said. Included will be maintenance of the Girl Scout House, maintenance of Camp Sullivan, professional help, office help, postage, telephone and telegraph, national quota and charter fee, adult training, program material and insurance.

Various Pampa troops have installed Girl Scout Week window displays at Pampa Hardware, Thompson Hardware, White's Auto, Wilson's Drug and Berry's Pharmacy.

Armistice Day Observance Set

One minute of observance will constitute Armistice Day here Nov. 11, the American Legion has announced. Buglers will sound taps at various positions in the downtown area, and the sirens at the fire stations will be sounded at 11 a. m. on that day, the day and the time in 1918 when WW I came to an official end.

The observance here this year still commemorates those of both big wars.

Officials have asked merchants to close their stores about five minutes until 11. Employees have been asked to step to the streets and face west, as a gesture of homage.

At 31 the observance will begin, and last for one minute.

If it's crystal, it's Heisey's. Get it at Lewis Hardware.

Open House Planned at High School

An open house for parents Tuesday night will be the main event in Pampa High School's observance of American Education Week which starts today, Frank Wilson, principal, said.

Tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. KPDN will carry a recorded program entitled, "There Were Voices in the Land." Material of the broadcast is based on National Education Week.

At 7 p. m. Tuesday, parents will be invited to inspect the classrooms and observe the multi-tone redecoration of each room. Student guides will assist the adults by answering questions. Wilson recommends that students accompany their parents during the tour of the building. Faculty members will be stationed in their rooms to greet the parents.

After Wilson welcomes the parents in the auditorium at 8 p. m., the A Cappella choir will present three numbers, supervised by Kenneth Baumgardner. The student program will be under the direction of Miss Thelma Henslee, speech teacher. Gene Garrison will serve as master of ceremonies.

Helen Blocker will sing "Love Somebody" and will be followed by Lowell Stark, who will present two trumpet solos, "Honey Suckle Rose" and "Stardust." His accompanist will be Nancy Brummett.

Theola Reim will give a short talk on the history and purpose of American Education Week. Also, during the program the boys' quartet, composed of Jack McPeak, Don Taut, Dick Oden and Bob Brown, will sing "Kentucky Babe," "The Whifflepoof Song" and "Now Is the Hour."

At approximately 9:15 p. m., those present will be invited to the school cafeteria for refreshments.

Student guides at the open house will be student council and class officers. They are: Don Taut, council president; Gene Garrison, vice president; Betty Joyce Scott, secretary; Patty Bolin, class president; Jack Williams, vice president; Johnnie

229 Less Claims Filed With TEC

The month of October showed 229 less claims transactions at the Texas Employment Commission than in October 1947, L. P. Ford, manager of the local office of the commission, said yesterday.

During October 1947, 336 claims were transacted as compared with 107 during the same month in 1948. However, during October 1947, the local office placed a total of 244 persons as against 902 this year.

During the month a year ago, 1,213 people contacted the local office for all purposes, while October 1948 showed an increase of 773 with 1,986. This is accounted for by a great increase of transient applicants who came from various other states. Ford added.

Outside construction was slowed down temporarily during the past week because of the heavy rains, he concluded.

Highway 60 Trip Delayed

J. C. McWilliams, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Highway Commission, received word yesterday from the U. S. National Highway 60 Association that the trip to California had been temporarily postponed.

McWilliams, E. O. Wedgeworth, Chamber of Commerce manager, and J. L. Swindle, editor of The News, plan to represent Pampa in the Highway 60 tour to California.

The trip will start Jan. 12 at Enid, Okla., with the first luncheon stop in Pampa. The trip was temporarily called off because of the illness of Highway Commissioner Lewis M. Tuttle of Oklahoma City.

Making the trip will be members of the Oklahoma State Highway Commission, Highway 60 officials and delegates from towns enroute. The group will travel over Highway 60 enroute to California and Highway 66 on the way back.

W. H. Marlin Struck at Intersection

William Henry Martin, 78, N. Duncan, was struck and killed by a car as he attempted to cross at the N. Ballard and E. Browning intersection about 6:25 p. m. last night.

The aged man, employed by John Bowers, 1009 Christine, was apparently on his way home with a bag of groceries and was crossing Ballard on the north side of Browning when a 1937 Dodge Tudor, driven by Leon Gilbert Stubeberg, 34, of White Deer, traveling south on Ballard, struck him. Captain E. G. Albers, who investigated, reported.

He was pronounced dead on arrival by physicians at Worley Hospital where he was taken in a Duengel-Carmichael ambulance. Physicians, who examined the body, said they believed Martin had lived only a few minutes after he was hit. They added, he had suffered severe head injuries, possibly skull fractures, and injuries to his arms and legs.

Attendants at Duengel-Carmichael Funeral Home spent a hectic two hours scouring the city for Martin's address and relatives. Their only lead was his burial insurance receipt that listed a post-office box number, but no street address. The burial insurance policy, taken out with Duengel-Carmichael, also failed to show any relatives, or whom to notify in case of death. His name did not appear in the city directory or the telephone directory. Finally police made contact with the Bowers' family by whom he was employed. But conflicting stories still came

Committees To Meet on Holiday Plans

Two "Flight of Santa Claus" committee chairmen have called committee meetings in the early part of this week. Alan Nicholas, general chairman of the community-sponsored Christmas program, said yesterday.

The School Bands and a Cappella Choir Participation Committee, under the leadership of Frank Wilson, will meet at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow at Wilson's office in the high school. The Registration Committee, with Mrs. Alan Nicholas, chairman, will meet at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Besides the Courthouse lawn scene this year, the Christmas program will include a 30-foot Christmas tree which will be put up on the northwest corner of the City Hall lawn. The tree will be given a coat of silver paint before being decorated with colored lights.

Approximately 50 persons representing local churches and other organizations met in the Palm Room Thursday night to work out plans for the Home Decorations Committee. Mr. Jimmy Massa, chairman, presided over the meeting and presented Nicholas, who gave a report on the overall program.

E. O. Wedgeworth explained the details and regulations in the various divisions of the home decorations contest. Grand prize is a plaque to be awarded the home, judged best decorated. Seventeen prizes will be awarded making a total of $100. The houses will be judged on the following basis: general artistic effect, 30 percent; originality, 20 percent; ingenuity in utilizing surroundings, 10 percent; conforming to the spirit of Christmas, 10 percent.

Gallup Accepts Invitation; to Bring Own Crow

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Although President Truman turned down a turkey meal at the Washington Post's proposed crowd-eating dinner, one of the pollsters who was offered a crowd has accepted the invitation.

George Gallup even offered to bring his own crowd.

The Gallup Poll was one of many to predict a Dewey election victory.

When the ballot results overturned the pollsters, The Post sent Mr. Truman an invitation to a dinner at which those who called the election wrong would gnaw on tough old crow, while the President ate turkey.

Mr. Truman said he didn't want to crow over anybody, but Gallup said he'd be delighted to attend, "at the President's convenience."

"In our business," the pollster's wife said, "we could undoubtedly use Mr. Truman's forecasting ability, but since he has another position for the next four years I would personally like to present a bouquet to him at your eat-crow dinner."

"Will bring own crowd."

Ike, Churchill Teamed Again

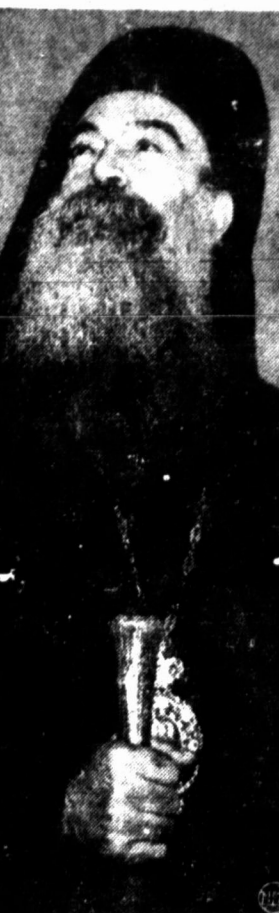

Gen. Eisenhower and Britain's Winston Churchill, colleagues in prosecuting the war in Europe, have teamed up again.

The two wartime leaders recently contributed oil paintings, by themselves, for exhibition in aid of the Urban League Service Fund.

When the show opened in New York City's Associated American Artists galleries, places of honor were occupied by an oil painting made expressly for the occasion by Gen. Eisenhower and a landscape by Churchill.

The general's donation was a painting of the head of an Indian in a broad rimmed hat against a pale sky.

If Indian Summer Exists, What Is It

CHICAGO — Nobody can be definite about Indian summer, because there is no all-round expert on the issue. And each partial expert's definition varies, depending on whether he is a meteorologist, biologist, artist, outdoors man, gardener, hunter, schoolboy, or interested bystander.

In general, however, all agree that Indian summer doesn't come until well after the first real frost, and possibly as late as the end of November.

The encyclopedia defines Indian summer as a period of "calm, transient atmosphere and mild, low sunshine in late autumn."

The dictionary says it's a period of "warm or mild weather in late autumn or early winter."

Vincent E. Jaid, regional director of the weather bureau, translated this to mean "still weather when the temperature is above normal and the air is filled with tiny dust particles from decaying leaves, causing a haze."

China Fails To Obtain Any Stability

By RUSSELL BRINES
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

TOKYO — Japan has not yet reached stability, but it appears almost rock-rigid by comparison with China.

This is the conclusion I drew from a month's vacation on the continent. The din of clamorous China was still in my ears on returning to the outward calm of this occupied country.

The differences between the two countries are even greater now than they were a year ago, when I made another swing across China.

In Japan the ideological war is continuous and so are the battles for political power. But under the occupation they are being fought in the bloodless arena of argument and political maneuvering.

Even in Shanghai and Hong Kong, far from China's civil war fronts, it is impossible to escape the violence of China's struggle.

The Japanese at times appear restless under the occupation. But none except the Communists show any marked anti-foreign feelings or betray any attitude which might jeopardize American aid.

In Shanghai the hostility toward foreigners seems to be part of the atmosphere. American business men in China are extremely pessimistic. They say Chinese policies are crippling them, even though the Chinese themselves admit they need both foreign business and foreign help.

The Japanese have just been shocked by a bribery scandal. But it appears minute alongside the corruption of many Chinese officials.

Japanese industrial production is increasing, despite many complications. War and unrest have restricted China's industrial output, which always has been smaller than Japan's.

As for inflation, prices of essentials remain fairly stable in Japan. Everyone knows what happened in China before the government took steps to check runaway inflation. Now there are signs the new gold yuan, issued as a stabilizer, is beginning to slip.

Contract Let for Alcoa Smelter

HOUSTON — A $10 million contract for construction of the first unit of the Aluminum Corporation of America smelting plant at Port Lavaca has been awarded to Consolidated Western Constructors, Inc., Houston.

Announcement was made by Thomas D. Jolly, vice-president of Alcoa, Pittsburgh, Pa.

When completed, the Port Lavaca plant is expected to cost approximately $25 million.

Watt C. Houston, consulting architect and engineer for the project, said initial construction will include erection of a series of "pot plants" and that additional contracts will be let at a later date.

The plant is expected to be in operation late in 1949 or in early 1950.

Jester Re-Forms Fuel Commission

AUSTIN — Reactivation of last year's emergency fuel commission was announced by Gov. Beauford H. Jester as a "precautionary" move.

The Governor also called a meeting here for Nov. 23 of all Texas butane producers and dealers for a survey of butane gas supply and demand.

The Governor's commission functioned last year during the butane shortage, persuading producers to divert gas from industrial to domestic use.

Railroad Commissioner William J. Murray was again named chairman. John H. Winters, Dr. George W. Cox and Homer Garrison Jr., all state officials, were also named to the commission.

Kumpel said his figures represent the loss to employers plus the cost to the injured.

LEVINE'S DEPARTMENT STORE, 101 S. Cuyler, will hold its formal opening tomorrow in commemoration of its remodeled front.

Levine's Open House Tomorrow

Tomorrow will mark the formal opening of Levine's Department Store with its clear vision front, Leo Udashen, manager, said yesterday.

Construction was started on the store front during the latter part of August, but completion was delayed because of wiring complications.

"The store now has one of the most modern fronts in the Panhandle," Udashen said. The entire store is a show window, since passers-by can look inside the store from the windows. Plans are being made to completely remodel the interior of the store to go with the front.

Udashen has managed the store for the past two years. Levine's has been in operation in Pampa since 1926 and is now attempting to progress with Pampa, he said.

Cigar Salesmen No Longer Pals

CHICAGO — Two cigar salesmen, Jesse Cartwright, 35, and William Panick, 38, are no longer pals.

Their friendship ended here when Cartwright, hiding in a closet, heard Panick making love to Cartwright's wife, Vivian, 34.

Cartwright came out of hiding and blacked both of Panick's eyes. Then Cartwright called police and Panick was arrested.

The husband-told-detectives Panick called one afternoon at his home while he was absent during the day.

When Panick called the Cartwright home the next day and told her he was coming over, Cartwright hid in the closet.

Panick is married and has two children.

Lots of Football Player

Pacific northwest college coaches eye Don Johnson, a 17-year-old center, and don't have any trouble seeing him. The youngster stands six feet two, weighs 335 pounds. When he isn't playing football with Gresham, Ore., High's undefeated team, he's tossing 100-pound sacks of grain around in his father's feed store.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

NEW YORK (AP)— The political pollsters say they are going to try and check into what's wrong with their polls. This is a fine idea. But Noah didn't wait until after the flood to buy a rain gauge. He started building his ark in dry weather.

The pollsters presented in their election forecasts what they termed a cross-section of America. But they must feel now it was a double-cross section.

What America would like to see is a cross-section of a few pollsters. It shouldn't be hard to get. At the moment any section of a pollster is likely to be pretty cross.

Perhaps the most depressing aspect of the whole situation is the number of horrible puns that are springing up like dandelions. Such as:

"Now that the election is over we must all poll together."
"You can tell a politician's drowning if he grabs at any straw vote."

"It wasn't the donkey's back that was broken by the last straw vote."

"Barber poles are still red, white and blue—but the election polls were read, wrong and blue."

"The Republicans are still asking, 'Where's Elmo?'"

Give a candidate enough Roper and he'll hang himself."

"Harry is the first President to lose in a Gallup and win in a walk."

BETTER BOWLING

By BILLY SIXTY

RIGHT HAND SPARES: It is easy to understand that in bowling for spares on the right side of the alley—the 3, 6, 9 and 10 pins—your starting position will be well to the left of the usual stance position.

The angle of the ball will be from left to right, naturally, and you take this position on the left so matter what delivery you are going to use; straight, hook or reverse.

No matter what the situation, the feet and body are pointed at the pin or pins, so that the arm swings in a straight line (See illustration). As always, the stride (footwork) must be straight, because the smallest deviation will throw off your direction.

You'll have to make an allowance, in this case, because the stride is from the left side of the alley, and the weight of the ball swinging on the right side has a tendency to throw the body weight to the right more than anticipated. Therefore, you'll have to learn to stand facing slightly to the left when you are lining up. Practice will show how much body angle to allow.

Rushing to the foul line is a mistake any time, but in picking up these right hand spares, it's even more harmful. Begin the stride even slower than usual. Let's put it that way. It is necessary to get a complete follow-through, so make sure you start slowly enough to get a full push-away, a good swinging action, and a real finishing slide to go with the follow-through.

Never force or hurry the swing. Think only of swinging the ball forward so that your arm will be reaching out for the pins after the ball is released. Flawless style and precision are the secrets of getting those right hand spares.

UN's Prize-Winning Poster

First prize in the international contest for the United Nations' Poster of the Year was awarded to this entry. The work of Armando Paz Torres of Argentina, it features child's blocks spelling out the Latin word for peace, with the flags of many member nations as growing flowers. Torres won $1500 for the poster, which will be displayed by the UN throughout the world.

Men Who Never Flew a Plane Bring 'Em in by Scores With GCA Radar

By RICHARD O'MALLEY
BERLIN —(AP)— A quiet-spoken young Missourian at Berlin's big Tempelhof Airport lands airplanes at the rate of one every three or four minutes, but he has never flown an aircraft.

Master Sgt. Richard O. Wilson of Kansas City is in charge of one of the radar-controlled approach crews—the men who "talk" the airlift planes down to the landing field when weather makes visibility impossible.

The operation, known as Ground Controlled Approach (GCA), has made it possible for thousands of planes to land on a field all day long, blanketed by fog, rain or low hanging clouds.

Wilson sits with his crew in a little closed truck in the center of Tempelhof. Before him and each of the other crewmen are black-draped radar screens.

A plane, loaded with supplies, approaches the blockaded city. When it gets within seven miles of the airport, the pilot hears Wilson's calm, reassuring voice take over.

Keeping his eyes on the screen and with mathematical advice from his assistants, Wilson begins to fly the plane. In a constant flow of words he tells the pilot whether his altitude is too high or too low, whether his speed is too fast or too slow. He gives him the wind direction.

Wilson watches the radar screen intensely for he must tell by the clouds on it how the incoming plane is doing. As it approaches he checks its altitude, speed and direction. He even tells the pilot when to let down his wing flaps and landing gear. Then, as the plane gets to the edge of the runway, he tells the pilot his exact position and turns it back to him. Sometimes, however, when the field is totally blacked out, he brings the plane on down to the runway and lands it completely.

"A tough job?" he says. "No, not if you stay on the ball. It is interesting work, and it actually is not so difficult when you work with pilots like the men flying the airlift. They are extremely cooperative, and obey instructions."

To a layman the GCA truck is a weird mystery of garbled radio noises, three screens swept by an eerie blue light, and tiny blobs which indicate where aircraft and installations are.

One screen gives altitude, another direction, and another the heading which a plane is taking. When the weather is good and pilots can see their approaches, the GCA men make a minimum of 20 landings a day just to keep in practice.

The million-dollar set of radar equipment which is the latest to be installed at Tempelhof, is on the job constantly. All operators keep their hands in by landing aircraft throughout their work shifts.

Farmers' Prices Drop Third Month

AUSTIN —(AP)— Prices received by Texas farmers dropped for the third consecutive month and were 3 percent lower than a month earlier, the Oct. 15 mid-month local market price report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture revealed.

There were sharp drops in prices of meat animals and corn and moderately lower prices for cottonseed, sweet potatoes and butterfat. This decline was partly offset by limited price gains for other grains, poultry products and wholesale milk, the USDA said.

Jane Russell Plays Male in New Western

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— In Republic's latest western, "Montana Belle," Jane Russell dresses up in masculine attire and every one in the picture thinks she's a boy. All I say is the audience better be nearsighted. "Half an Angel," originally slated for Lana Turner, has been turned over to the Riskin Brothers' Everett and Bob, who will produce the picture with Irene Dunne in the starring role.

Economy note: Ad in a Hollywood trade paper: "Adrian Gown. High Fashioned. Spectacular. Never worn. Will sacrifice."

Until another movie role comes along, Michael North is selling insurance in Beverly Hills. Television screens better get bigger. Andy Devine is headed for video via 12 comedy shorts titled "My Country Uncle."

POPCORN PLOT
Jane Wyman doesn't say a single word for her role in "Johnny Belinda." I know. It's all a big plot so audiences can make all the noise they want while eating popcorn. . . El Brendel, the comic, is making a comeback in the new Betty Grable picture, "The Beautiful Blonde From Bashful Bend."

It's going to see Lionel Barrymore walking on the set of "Down to the Sea in Ships."

Ray Milland and Paramount have kissed and made up. He was taken off suspension to co-star with Betty Hutton in "The Broadway Story."

The Hollywood AFL film council wants Hollywood to slow down on releases as the proper means of putting zing back into the box office.

Seattle was the third city to ban showings of "Rope." It was also nixed in Chicago and Memphis. . . Frank Sinatra and Jimmy Savo will be co-starred in Perry Charles' independent venture, "Barnaby."

SUMMER AND JUDY
"Good Old Summertime" will be Judy Garland's next at M-G-M. Van Johnson will co-star. . . Ida Lupino and 20th Century-Fox are talking a term deal. . . Adele Jergens and Columbia have called it a day. . . Harold Lloyd is setting up a deal to release a number of his old pictures on television. Among them are: "Grandma's Boy," "Safety Last," "Girl Shy," and "The Freshman."

Elsa Lancaster was skipping rope for a scene with Margaret O'Brien in "The Secret Garden." She caught her heel in the rope and had a nasty fall. Elsa turned to director Fred Wilcox and said: "Where'd you get this rope, from Alfred Hitchcock?"

Letter from a Western Union employee in Walla Walla, Wash. "Just saw RKO's 'Mystery in Mexico.' Bill Lundigan rushed in to a telegraph office and the manager showed him his files. Then Lundigan was given a description of a person who had filed a telegram and told where to find him. Doesn't Hollywood know that to get such information from a telegraph office one must have a court order? Telegraph business is confidential and if not kept so the informer is liable for a fine and even prison."

Lady, Hollywood is a place where grandmas are glamor girls, handsome leading men wear toupees, Gallant Bess is a male horse, and buckshot doubles for caviar. Anything is possible in Hollywood.

nesday. It directed the company to "withdraw and withhold" recognition of the union in atomic plants in Schenectady.

The AEC said the action was "necessary" because union officers had refused to take non-Communist oath under the Taft-Hartley law.

This picture should give the National Safety Council the jitters. The new Alvis Special Sports Tourer, a British car exhibited at London's International Motor Show, features a cocktail bar built into the door. For years the National Safety Council has campaigned against drinking while driving. Maybe it should open a London branch.

Special Election Called to Fill Rep. West's Term
AUSTIN —(P)—A special election has been called by Gov. Beauford H. Jester for Dec. 4 in the 15th Congressional district to name a successor to the late Rep. Milton H. West.
West died last Thursday.
The successor named in the special election will serve out West's unexpired term, which ends in January. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., has been elected to the new term starting then.
Texas laws and the Constitution make it mandatory for the Governor to call a special election whenever a vacancy occurs in the national House of Representatives.
Counties in the 15th District are Cameron, Dimmit, Frio, Hidalgo, Jim Hogg, Maverick, La Salle, Medina, Starr, Webb, Willacy, Zapata and Zavala.

Applicants Don't Fit Jobs Open
AUSTIN —(P)—The Texas Employment Commission said it has 65,000 jobs open and 80,000 job applicants.
The big trouble, officials said, is that the applicants don't fit the jobs.
For example, they point out, some 1,000 jobs are for aircraft mechanics. In the 80,000 unemployed workers there are only 100 aircraft mechanics. Most of them live in small communities, own their homes and dislike the idea of moving to the cities where the jobs are open.

Bob Hope May Plan Video Show

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD —(P)— Now that Bob Hope is immobile with a sprained leg, I figured, 'tis a good time to corral him on his Fernando Valley home. Hope was standing on crutches by the front door.
"I've been in bed for three days—longest I've been in one place in my life," he said. "This sort of thing has got to go, television plans."

When I arrived at his den he hobbled into a car and said he was going to take a treatment in the training room of the L.A. Rams pro football team. As we drove over, he explained that the lame leg was due to his over-acting. He had to scramble up a gangplank for a movie scene and on the seventh try his leg folded up. The film is witty, "Easy, Does It."
"Crosby said my hurting my leg taught him a lesson," Hope snorted. "What a laugh! Crosby never moves that fast. The only time he really moves is when he goes to the bank."

"What about video?" I interjected, having heard he had passed up an offer from General Motors for four videocassettes at $50,000 per shot.
"I just didn't have time to do it," he explained. "But I'm free from Paramount and my air sponsor to do whatever I want on television and it won't be long now."

When we arrived at the Rams h.q., Hope was examined by the trainer and his ailing pin was dunked in a warm tub. A stream of water was directed at his calf. "You'll be all right in no time," assured an onlooking Rams player. "You know what our coach says when we have an injury? 'It's just self-pity.'"
"This guy must think I'm a quarterback," said Hope.
We got back on television and Bob said that Hope Enterprises would prepare a number of video shows, along novelty lines. One would star rapid Robert himself. "I'd like to do a full hour. Imagine what you could do on television! On radio, people complain if you try to milk an audience with 'sight' stuff. (The trick of grimacing, etc., at the audience to get bigger laughs.)
"But on video, everything is 'sight.' I could throw the script out in the audience and have them throw it back."
As a matter of fact, the script would just be a prop, since video stars will have to memorize their lines. "And I'll be interested to see how some of the radio performers get along without a script," said Hope, who has an amazing memory.
Hope thinks that bigtime television will be coming next fall. "I believe it will be an easy transition—by doing a radio and television show at the same time," he said. "The air audience will have to picture how it looks."

Union Plans 18 Legislative Aims

AUSTIN —(P)—The Texas State Industrial Union Council (CIO) formed 18 legislative aims. The program the council plans to urge on the 61st Legislature includes the following: abolition of the poll tax; tax on natural resources; prison reform and rehabilitation; creation of a state department of labor; reconstruction of "Texas oppressive labor laws"; improved industrial code; increased unemployment benefits; adequate pay for teacher. Improved rural roads, electric and telephone service; increased aid to the aged, needy and dependent children; reappointment of Senatorial and legislative districts; annual salaries for state legislators; no sales tax; expanded state health program; soil and water conservation; protection of migratory workers; expanded educational program; good neighbor relations; adequate state buildings. statistics which show a fast turnover among unemployed workers. The 80,000 out of work today are not necessarily the same 80,000 who were out of work yesterday. TEC finds.

He Smells Roast, And Loses 13 Cows

STUART, Fla. — (AP) — A dairy hand investigating a smell of roasting meat at the Pennock plantation pasture near here found 12,000 pounds of it smoldering in a heap.

Lloyd Minear, manager of the dairy which has one of the finest Jersey herds in Florida, said 13 of his pedigreed cows — each about to calve — apparently walked into, or were attracted by sparks of a 2,300-volt power line which fell into the pasture.

All were found piled together being cooked electrically.

Skelton Reviews Texas Oil News

By MAX E. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. — (AP) — Oilmen, like most other people, are wondering just what the 81st Congress has in store for them. The new session had been expected to take up where the 80th Congress left off in June, but Tuesday's sweep by the Democrats gives the situation a new look.

New figures will head committees, new congressmen will have their say, and many veterans of former sessions will be missing.

There was a minimum of petroleum legislation enacted by the 80th Session but the oil industry received constant attention from Congressmen.

At no time in past history, including war years, was the industry subject to so much inquiry by Congressional Committees as in 1947 and 1948.

There was a minimum of petroleum legislation enacted by the 80th Session but the oil industry received constant attention from Congressmen.

At no time in past history, including war years, was the industry subject to so much inquiry by Congressional Committees as in 1947 and 1948.

Problems still pending when Congress adjourned in June included a national petroleum policy, state or federal ownership of the tidelands, and amendments to the National Gas Act.

The National Petroleum Council is drafting a national policy and is to make its report in January.

The council's chairman, Walter S. Hallahan, is a Republican National Committeeman.

Tied with the over-all national policy are the problems of supply and demand, steel requirements, and exports and imports of crude oil and refined products.

President Truman once vetoed a bill calling for state ownership of the tidelands and has given no indication he will do otherwise in the future.

The Democratic National Convention turned down a motion that state ownership be included in its platform. The Republicans campaigned for state ownership.

But a fight can be expected. Many Democrats were active in the prolonged state ownership hearings this year and most of them return to Washington in January.

Practically every petroleum association in the nation has endorsed the controversial Riley-Moore Bill which would amend the National Gas Act by exempting from Federal Power Commission control the activities of producing and gathering natural gas.

The bill passed the House this year but received an adverse vote from a Senate Committee.

When Congress resumes work the authors of the bill will be missing. Senator Moore did not seek reelection, and Rep. Riley was defeated for the Senate. Both are Oklahoma Republicans.

Other problems include possible changes in the European Recovery Program, proposals for aid to the Mexican Government in producing oil, federal aid to synthetic motor fuel projects, and the Reciprocal Trade Act.

After this week's election developments, it would not be surprising to find changes being made in two speeches to be made in Chicago Wednesday before the 28th annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

Senator George W. Malone (R-Nev.) speaks on "Congress looks at the petroleum industry," while Frank M. Porter, Oklahoma City, President of the Midcontinent Oil and Gas Association, speaks on "The petroleum industry looks at Congress."

Imports-Exports: Bureau of Mines figures show imports of crude oil and refined products increasing 11.1 percent during the first eight months of 1948. Exports decreased 22.4 percent.

Imports totaled 117,956,000 (M) barrels, an increase of 11,956,000 (M).

Stocks: All-time high above-ground stocks of fuel oils continue to mount.

American Petroleum Institute places gas oil and distillate fuel oil stocks for the week ending October 30 at 81,593,000 (M) barrels, as compared with 82,749,000 (M) a year earlier. Residual fuel oil stood at 81,299,000 (M) barrels, as compared with 57,259,000 (M).

Crude oil production averaged 5,604,100 (M) barrels daily, to set a new record for the fourth consecutive week.

THE DRILLER'S LOG

By KEN BENNETT

Last week this column expressed the hope that something could be reported on the Sinclair-Lippe well in Roberts County, a deep test well. Rumors had been prevalent that a real strike was soon to come on that well.

Equipment was moved into the area to take care of any eventuality. From our best sources of information, which we'd like to say are not official by any means, we learn that the test produced only a salt water formation. Cement was poured to wall off this level and drilling is being continued. The depth... around 9000 feet.

What happens now with Phillips and their deep test well? All rotary equipment has been removed from the Carruth well, but the derrick is still there. Their next try is in Sherman County, Section 8, Block 3, GH & H Survey. To be official 1979 from south and 1997 from west on the Kathryn A. lease. Other rumors have another deep test being attempted by them near Dalhart in Dallam County.

Of course there are many reasons to believe that they will soon try again in the neighborhood of the Jenkie. This feeling is expressed because of the fact that Phillips is continuing to pay rentals on all leases in that area, and also due to the fact that some of Phillips leases in that area will expire soon if further development is not forthcoming.

Other deep test reports... The Gulf-Porter in Lipscomb County is now down to about 9629 feet. The Huber Jasper number 2, Hutchinson County is drilling at about 6930 feet. The Pure-Langford well in Hartley County is down to around 7270 feet.

Here's a reminder to all API members, all associated with the oil industry, and to all business men in the area who are interested in learning what the future for this approximate district is in the oil business. At 8 p. m. next Tuesday at the Palm Room of the Pampa City Hall Fred Neisage, an authority without peer on repressuring, will explain in detail all practices and efforts being made to add to and develop oil production in the Panhandle field. All of you will enjoy this talk and you will benefit a great deal if you attend. The API chapter urges you to come and hear Fred give this explanatory discussion so that you can be more familiar with what goes on here at home. Don't forget. Tuesday 8 p. m. the Palm Room.

A Trip Back to Scenes of Your Childhood Reveals Good Things, Says Analyst

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AF Foreign Affairs Analyst

Did you ever have an overpowering urge to return to the scenes of your childhood?

Well, I did, and that's what I was doing when I played hooky from this column the last fortnight of October. I went back to my native Vermont to try to renew acquaintance with a place largely severed for a generation.

I'm not quite sure what impelled me to make this trip, but I felt that I had to get back to the old days among the mountains and lakes where my dad was a Methodist clergyman in various parishes.

I crossed Lake Champlain on the ferry from the New York side, and arrived in Northern Vermont amidst a burst of Indian summer which surely had been prepared for the prodigal.

A glorious blaze of color filled the countryside—an amazing medley of gold and browns and reds and yellows and greens. It looked as though God had been painting a variegated picture and had dropped his palette upside-down.

That was an auspicious welcome, and it was followed by a warmth of greeting throughout my tour of the state. We haven't space to go into all my reunions, but among them was one with Charles E. Crane, the Green Mountain philosopher who daily broadcasts his news and views to Vermonters. Then there was Fred Peters, who abandoned newspaper work to grow apples on South Hero Island in Champlain with vast success.

As I renewed acquaintance with Vermont and her people I was struck by the discovery that while she had kept step with progress, she hadn't changed greatly physically or in her attitude towards life during the past generation. She is the same kindly, upright (though never austere) personality.

I decided that the proper place of enactment of boyhood days was at his birthplace, and so in due course I arrived in the sweet village of West Burke, among the hills of Northern Vermont. I didn't know anyone there, but the little church to which my father had been attached still plays its part in the life of the community, as it has for scores of years. And you don't need to know people to encounter friendliness in Vermont—or in any other state of our grand union, as my experience has shown me.

My native West Burke frequently is referred to as the most photographed village in Northern Vermont and this probably is due to the fact that its physical features have been altered little by passing time.

I found this lack of change was true in the majority of small places I visited. The residents are quite abreast of the times, but they live in the same houses I used to know. However, I encountered one sharp reminder that the eyes of childhood magnify.

In Wilmington, for example, I was surprised to find that what I once regarded as a long, steep hill—opposite my home was nothing but a gentle incline. The river which had been a raging torrent to me was just a babbling trickle. It makes one wonder how many times we blame the poor youngsters for exaggeration when they are only telling us truly what their inexperienced eyes see.

In West Berlin, where my father died, I made a surprising discovery. His church had been renamed the "Mackenzie Memorial Methodist Church." I tried the front door and, finding it unlocked, went in. There looking down on me from high on the wall behind the pulpit was a life-size head-and-shoulder portrait of my dad.

Then there was another town where I was principal of the "high school" after I got out of university. I won't name this place because it had a tough element and wasn't typical of Vermont. Anyway, I had to fight a hulking farmer-student with my bare fists before I could hold my job. The boys surrounded me during the first recess and the farmer challenged me to combat. So I had to beat him up, but he gave me an awful mauling.

Then I visited Brattleboro, where the great Rudyard Kipling lived in my day and was a friend of my family. The next time I saw the famous writer was at a wedding reception in London about 1930. It was in Brattleboro, too, that in the nineties I saw my first "horseless carriage" which was steered with a tiller and headed the Barnum and Bailey Circus parade. Those also were the days when lecturers toured rural districts, exhibiting that amazing "contraption," the "Talking machine"—ten cents admission.

And so ran my journey, with a lot more of the same kind of thing, for my family lived in many parts of the state. It was a successful and pleasant revival of the old days, but what impressed me most—and I have encountered the same thing in many other states—was the wholesomeness and high purpose of the people.

It makes a fellow proud of his national birthright.

'Pullet Poll' Proves Accurate

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — The "pullet poll"—a hen-house test on White House preference—turns out to be so accurate it was ashamed to announce the results.

Last July a milling company started a poll on the presidential race. It put its poultry feed in two kinds of sacks, one labeled "a vote for the Republican candidate," the other "a vote for the Democratic candidate."

The first week Democratic sacks outsold Republican sacks by eight percent. By Sept. 1, Truman had a 54 percent edge in the "pullet poll."

Thomas W. Staley, president of the company, took a look at the Gallup and Roper polls and decided his was falling flat.

"Sure," he said when the "pullet poll" story came out, "we had more than 20,000 votes in by that time (Sept. 1), covering Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Illinois but we thought the figures were completely out of line."

The rose was one of the first flowers to become domesticated. More than 200 species have been discovered and named.

This is a scene in Europe where a youthful victim of war displays a clothing kit packed by Girl Scouts of the USA and sent overseas in their 1948 project "Clothes for Friendship." The young lady above is wearing a dress made by American Girl Scouts and shows her mother and brothers the remainder of her kit, one of the first to be received overseas. American Girl Scouts have a goal of 100,000 kits this year. They are featuring this project during Girl Scout Week, Oct. 31-Nov. 6.

Burglar Believed What He Read in Ad

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. — (AP) — Gus Nestle, manager of the Palace Theater, is convinced—the hard way—of the power of advertising.

Nestle, plugging a give-away show next week, posted a sign proclaiming: "Money is free at the Palace." Next morning he reported to police that somebody broke in and swiped $1,000 from an office strongbox.

New records every month!

Month after month since 1941, Humble's Baytown refinery has established new records for the volume of crude oil it has processed. Now, to cap the record, the refinery is processing an average of about 250,000 barrels of oil a day.

It's Baytown's answer to your increasing demand for oil; to your increasing need for oil.

Looking backward, Baytown was a rice field in 1920. Five years later, the refinery handled 42,000 barrels of crude oil daily; in 1935, 101,000 barrels; as late as 1945, crude runs were 185,000 barrels daily.

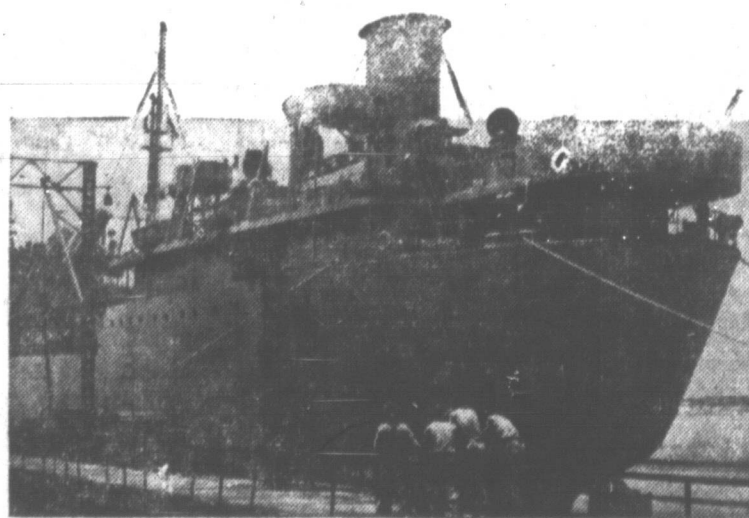

Baytown's record-breaking story is the story of your increasing need for oil, your increasing need for petroleum products of greater variety and higher quality. It is also the story of an earnest effort to supply your need, a story of the scientific development of new methods, the building of new equipment, the training of a small army of workmen in the complex duties of refinery operation. And it is a tribute to the men and women of the refinery who work in shifts around the clock to put every possible barrel of oil through each unit.

But the climax to the story hasn't yet been reached. Your growing need for petroleum products is urging Baytown's scientists to devise new methods to get more of the products you use from every barrel of crude oil; to extend present facilities and to develop new ones; to supply you with finished products of higher quality and greater efficiency.

1. Close control of every process has enabled Baytown refinery to make its substantial contribution to your need for petroleum products. This is the control panel in one of Baytown's two catalytic cracking units, called "cat crackers." They enable Baytown to get more finished petroleum products from crude oil processed at the refinery.

2. Oils from Baytown reach northern furnaces by tanker. During the cold winter of 1947-48, Baytown shifted its production schedule to supply more heating oils than gasoline.

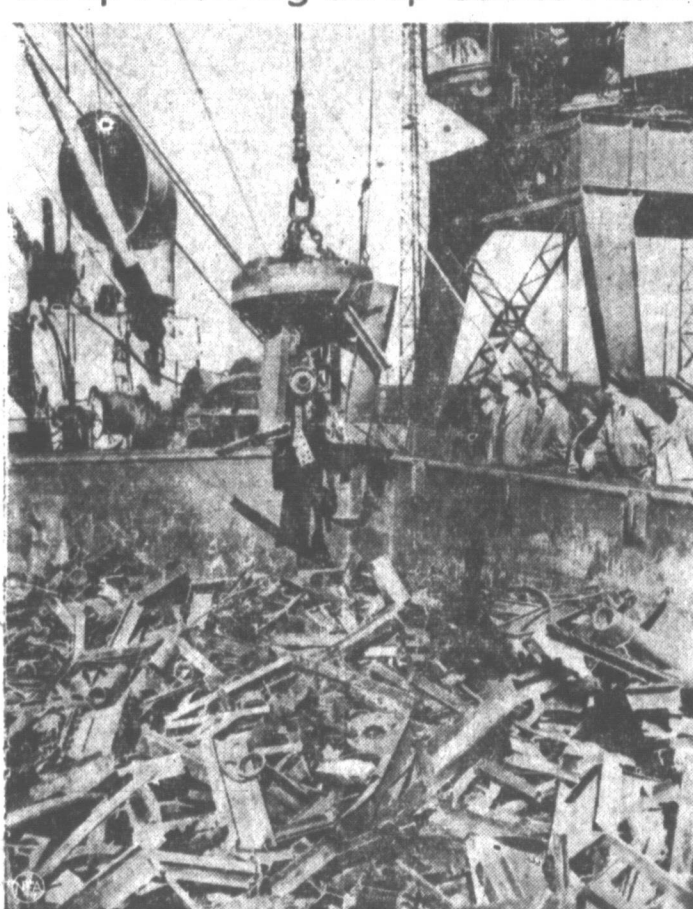

3. The laboratories are the brain of Baytown refinery. In the research laboratory experiments are conducted which may result in new and more efficient refinery equipment, or a petroleum product of higher quality for your use. A new and even more complete research laboratory is now under construction. Other laboratories check and control every step of the refining process.

Scrap From Big Scrap Comes Home

Something over three years ago this steel scrap was shipped from the U. S. to Germany in the form of canfion, shells, tanks, trucks and other material that helped lick the German Army. Now it's coming home to help cure the critical scrap shortage in America's steel mills. This cargo, first of 200,000 tons to come, is being unloaded at Port Richmond, near Philadelphia.

SOVIETS

Racial forces would have to withdraw from recently won positions in Greece as well as the Negev. Vishinsky said Greece was out to destroy the Greek partisans "by any means, including toxic gases." He added that the Greek delegate, Panayotis Pipinellis, has shown "he was well acquainted with toxic gases."

"This is no accident," Vishinsky said. "His government with the knowledge of the United States and Britain, is preparing to take such action."

The Russian delegate said the newspaper of Constantine Tsaldaris, Greek foreign minister, advocated last August that the Greek government use gas against the guerrillas.

Referring to a statement by Dulles that the U. S. had stopped disarming because of the world's fear of Russia, Vishinsky asked: "Who is threatening you? How is the Soviet Union threatening you?"

He said the United States is the one who is threatening. He said the U. S. has 228 bases in the Atlantic area alone.

"If the U. S. doesn't dream of world domination," he asked, "why build all these bases all over the world? What is the use of all these bases?"

Turning to Dulles, he said: "To say that you do not want world mastery is a story for small children."

Both Vishinsky and Katz-Suchy chided Dulles on the Republican defeat in Tuesday's election, which dashed Dulles' hopes of being secretary of state.

out as to his actual residence. A report coming to police said he lived in the servants' quarters of the Bowers' Christine street home and another report emanating from the funeral home placed him on N. Duncan.

Identification cards found on the victim showed he was a member of the Masonic Order.

Marks on the car that hit him showed a dent, believed by police to have been made by his head, on the left top side of the engine hood. The glass on the left headlight was also broken. Smears, of what may have been made by broken eggs, also appeared on the car's fender. No blood spots were visible in the dark under flashlights.

According to several persons, who passed by several minutes after Martin was hit, the ambulance was forced to back up, creep forward and inch around to get the man to the hospital because it was hemmed in by parked cars of the morbidly curious who jammed around the intersection to see what happened.

This was the city's first traffic fatality for 1948, but the second in less than a year. The last person to be killed on the city streets was Joe Sargent, 64, who was killed at 6:22 p.m. Dec. 12, 1947, while pushing a cart along E. Frederick.

Up until press time last night a list of survivors was unavailable.

The body was taken to the Duonel-Carmichael Funeral Home where funeral arrangements are pending.

Price Again Heads Rodeo

W. L. Price, local rancher, was selected president of the Top of Texas Rodeo and Horse Show and Fair Association Friday night at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Price led the organization through one of its most successful shows last summer and the records reveal the organization is in good financial shape.

Thirty of the 33 directors were present at the meeting and tentative plans were made for next year's show.

Paul Crouch, manager of the Panhandle Packing Company, also was re-elected. He again will serve as vice president while John O. Pitts and E. O. Wedgworth were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively.

The 1949 Top of Texas Rodeo and Horse Show will have a Palomino show, two quarter horse shows, an official American show open only to registrations in the American Association, and an open show to registration in both the American and National Associations.

An attempt will be made, to provide sufficient stall space so that all show animals can be housed on the show grounds at the same time with the horses remaining in the stalls throughout the period of the rodeo, Price said.

Special work committees will be appointed at an early date and final details will get underway, he said.

Newly elected directors taking office Friday night to serve three-year terms are: Orval Christopher, Ernest Crane, J. W. Graham, Frank Lard, Joe Looper, Clayton Mathis, Dr. M. C. Overton, Arthur Rankin, Jack Sullivan, Fred Thompson and Pinky Vineyard.

Pride of possession —

To possess something and to be proud of that thing is a praiseworthy human goal. It is a worthy goal because we ourselves profit mentally and spiritually. And the closer the connection between ourselves and that thing in which we take pride, the greater will be the benefit we enjoy.

That is why your home, beautifully furnished, means so much to your esprit de corps. It is simply because the connection between you and the home in which you live, is extremely intimate and as much a part of you as your clothes or any inanimate object can be.

That is why good furniture, beautiful furniture—furniture in which you can take genuine pride, is supremely worth while — an investment that will pay you great dividends in the sheer "joy of living."

OPENING SHOT—Political winds do change fast; as fast, in fact, as the winds that whip in upon the Panhandle country. What I mean is that prior to Tuesday there were a number of Dewey supporters around town, but the next day it was found that, as the cigar ads go, more people voted for Truman than for any other brand. ... Too bad there's just one postmaster's job in the community, and it's taken.

GENERAL BARRAGE—Young daughter of the Dr. Ashbys proved that all kinds of accidents happen in the home. She pulled a china closet over on herself and broke a leg ... and speaking of doctors, it seems we have a new one in town—Dr. John Foster Ellis, who is hereby welcomed among us! ... when winsome Peggy Stevens marries in the near future and moves to West Virginia, Pampa will have lost one sweet girl ... returning from Mississippi a few days ago, the Dunns brought back a little keepsake—one all-white Scottie ... Mrs. Paul Crouch did a lot of entertaining this past week in her new home ... Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Boyd are attending the Lumbermen's convention in Miami, Fla. ... all this talk about home decorations has got me planning, folks. Next week I'll describe my design ... Little Sarah Gordon is ill with pneumonia in the hospital. ... Blessed evening! Dr. and Mrs. R. D. Falkenstein ... ecstatically happy over their new daughter, Penelope, are Opal and Leonard Beldon ... the city hostess is becoming very popular with newcomers: maybe it's because Mrs. Edwin Givens is such a charming person herself ... rumor has it that Catherine Culberson will be humming the popular Mendelssohn tune, come Thanksgiving ... Mrs. G. A. Snell and baby are visiting Mrs. Snell's parents at Vernon.

PEG'S WEEK, ET CETERA—Monday: Seems like general confusion had the town ... general comments were "Who you gonna vote for?" and "How'd you like the style show?" ... from what I heard (and saw) it was hard to tell the spectators from the models—everyone was really dressed up. Maybe some of the people came to prove that what they were was in vogue! ... Is it true that Chris Atkinson is wearing that gorgeous diamond Bobby Cushman modeled in the show? What a beautiful ring! ... Tommie Stone said the show topped a similar one presented by Neiman-Marcus last spring. Take a bow, girls of ESA ... TUESDAY: Not too many people were voting when we went to the polls ... All I heard was "I'm not working for 30 cents an hour anymore, if I can help it." And I don't believe they will ... Women are versatile, and in spite of politics, etc., we go right on with home-family and chubbing. Mrs. M. C. Overton's bridge club met for luncheon and bridge at the CC ... Heard that the Varietas Club had a beautiful tea in the Club Rooms ... Mrs. J. G. Doggett was a most gracious hostess and with her heading the group you can understand why it was called a "friendship tea." ... I'm off on hate again, but they demanded all the attention ... Mrs. Ed Weiss who presided at the Silver Tea Service wore a hat of brilliant pink feathers that caught your eye when you entered the room. ... Mrs. H. T. Hampton wore a hat of cocoa brown felt with the brim trimmed, covered in soft ostrich feathers of deeper brown ... Mrs. Luther Pierson also had on a striking red-felt hat with plumes of the same color ... novelty centerpiece at the tea resembled a flower garden with a fountain of running water continually flowing ... Faye Price was the originator of this masterpiece ... WEDNESDAY: What a day! It's an upset, say the radio commentators and the newspapers. It hadn't happened for 36 years ... I saw a grinning fellow who had made lucky bets, and were they mopping up! ... No fabled genial Roy Lewis buying lots of coffee ... Saw a lovely little white-headed lady, Mrs. M. Miller, wearing a gray hat of multi-colored feathers ... THURSDAY: A friend confided to me that a certain party was "ketchin'" my glory on being Peg ... Tsk, tsk ... also same day, the editor called me to say that someone told him if he could masquerade behind an 80-year-old voice as the "mystery voice," he probably was Peg of Pampa, to boot. He was a little mad about it, because, he said, he couldn't describe hats (I think that was a barb). ... Margie Gaylor and John Schwind were wed at the Catholic Church ... FRIDAY: Mrs. Clay and Lena Hood left for Baylor University to visit their sons in school there ... While in Waco, they will attend the game between Texas U. and the Baylor Bears ... leaving for Clovis after a fast return from Tulsa, gadabout G. F. (Pinky, our good friend) Branson ... SATURDAY: Getting out my Western logs for the dance tonight ... Dr. and Mrs. M. McDaniel are visiting friends over the weekend ... Doc has been attending school in Dallas, and they plan soon to return to Pampa to live. We say "Welcome." ... I should have put my name in the football pot ... Mrs. Kelley Kitchens leaves today for Temple ... SUNDAY: Thanks, American Legion Auxiliary, for the invitation received at The News office and passed on to me by the editor. It's today, folks: unveiling and dedication service of a Memorial Book Shelf at the City Library. At 3 this afternoon this shelf will be unveiled in memory of Veterans of the two World Wars ... Thanks. I had relatives, closer than you might think, in the last war.

TONGUE-IN-CHEEK—I have one more to unfold here, and then I won't be around for another seven days, or so ... At the Sunday School picnic, Elder Fuller noticed one of the young teachers slip away from the crowd. He followed, and discovered her sitting on a log weeping bitterly. "Something wrong?" he inquired ... "Yes," she sobbed. "It's about Raymond. We're engaged, and I just found that he simply can't bear children." ... "There, there," soothed the elder. "After all, you mustn't expect too much of a husband."

(P. S.: I didn't expect him to win, either!)

June Hanks, Glen Day Wed In Afternoon Ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Day

Miss June Hanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hanks, 855 E. Kingsmill, became the bride of Glen Day, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Day, Alameda, Oct. 24, in an afternoon ceremony at the First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Hal Upchurch read the double-ring ceremony before an altar arrangement of white tapers in candelabra, palms, fern, and baskets of white gladioli tied with blue and silver ribbons.

Maynard Rafferty sang "Oh, Promise Me" as a pre-nuptial song, and "I Love Thee," accompanied by organist Mrs. R. Virgil Mott who also played the traditional wedding marches.

Ben Day, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Leonard Husted and Bill Morris. The candelights, Misses Elva Jean Anderson and Kathie Payne, wore similarly styled dresses of blue and black. Their white garden corsages were tied with silver, accenting the silver-tipped tapers.

Miss Mary Lou Hanks, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an aqua crepe dress with a black belt and a black feather hat. Her ruby-toned necklace and matching earrings were a gift of the groom. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid, surrounded by maline and tiny white flowers with silver streamers.

The bride wore a dark gray satin suit, fashioned with a bustle back effect. A shoulder-length veil was attached to her soft blue feather hat. Her ruby-toned necklace and matching earrings were a gift of the groom. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid, surrounded by maline and tiny white flowers with silver streamers.

Shower Honors Mrs. Schwind

Mrs. John C. Schwind, who until her recent marriage was Miss Marjorie Gaylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Gaylor, was honored with a pre-nuptial shower last Sunday afternoon in the home of Miss Vivian Lafferty, 922 E. Francis. Mrs. J. Harold Smith and Mrs. Ross Corneliussen were co-hostesses with Mrs. Lafferty.

Mrs. Gaylor, Mrs. Schwind, and Mrs. George Austin of Denver, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Joe Schwind and Mrs. Margaret Dial, greeted guests at the door. Members of the house party wore corsages of yellow and white mums.

Miss Betty Schwind presided at the guest register. The serving table, covered with a lace cloth, was centered with yellow candles in crystal candelabra placed on a large circular mirror. Yellow pompon mums encircled the mirror.

Small wedding bands tied with white ribbons lettered "Marjorie and John" were place favors. Refreshments of checkerboard and pinwheel sandwiches, nut bread and coffee were served to more than 60 guests during the afternoon.

Only five more rehearsals of Handel's "Messiah" will be held before the performance to be given in Pampa sometime during the first or second week in December. Mrs. Mae F. Carr, accompanist said Friday.

Prof. F. D. Kerns, director, urged the members to attend the remaining meetings even though they may have participated in the "Messiah" for some of the past 12 years it has been presented in Pampa.

Those singers who are familiar with the work and are irregular in attendance because they feel they do not need the rehearsals, are of course justified from their standpoint," he said. He however, sent an appeal to all Pampa singers who have sung the "Messiah" previously to come to the rehearsals as an act of service, in helping the newer members who are not so familiar with the score.

It is expected that Amarillo, Borger, Canadian and Phillips groups will join the Pampa choir when they will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the First Methodist Church. Soloists are being selected and final plans made at these last meetings.

Miller-Kersey Exchange Vows in Church Chapel

Arrangements of yellow and white mums, palms and candelabra decorated the church for the wedding of Miss Patsy Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Miller, 1033 Charles, to Vincent de Paul Kersey, son of Mrs. Addie Kersey of Madison, Wisc. and Mr. Briggs Kersey of Dalhart.

Dr. Douglas Nelson performed the ceremony at 7 p. m. Thursday evening in the chapel of the First Presbyterian Church, before members of the family and a few close friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a steel gray slipper satin skirt with blending dove gray chiffon blouse. A gray off-the-face knitted hat and gray sandals completed the costume. She carried a white Bible, topped with a white orchid. The tradition of "something old, something new," was adhered to.

Miss Beverly Candler was maid of honor. She wore a plum suit, yellow blouse and gloves and black accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Bridesmaid Miss Carole Miller, sister of the bride, was attired in a royal blue velvet suit with white blouse and black accessories. She wore a halo of yellow carnations.

Charlie Ryan was best man. Richard Miller and L. C. McMurry were ushers.

Bill Hutchinson sang "Because" and Ken Bennett, organist, played the traditional wedding marches.

Mrs. Miller, mother of the bride, wore a chocolate brown suit with brown lizard accessories and a feather hat. Her corsage was of yellow carnations.

A large copper bowl of mums centered the serving table and baskets of mums were used throughout the room.

For going away the bride chose a moss green and white wool jersey bolero suit with gold mesh hat and black accessories. After a wedding trip to Oklahoma City, the couple will be at home at 400 Rose, Pampa.

The bride wore a brown tulle street-length dress with red accessories and corsage of red roses.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Shaw, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom.

REPORT GIVEN AT CLUB MEET

Parent Education Club members were guests Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Joe Tooley, 1318 N. Russell. Mrs. Farris Oden was nursery hostess.

Roll call was answered by members on "My Favorite Book." A paper on "Family Reading," prepared by Mrs. Joe Gordon was read by Mrs. E. L. Biggestaff, who also discussed "Magazines for Children."

Mrs. Gordon's paper defined good book reading as the reading of books which truly serve their readers. She said a love for reading must be caught from the atmosphere of the home and the interest and practice of the parents.

In developing the desire to read in children, she said that when there was no time to sit down with a book, the parent should tell a story. She suggested making it up or telling about your own childhood.

She also suggested applying Mother Goose, Eugene Fields and other familiar books to daily conversation in order to keep the ideas before children.

"Reading, like any good, can become an evil," Mrs. Gordon said. She warned against allowing too much absorption in the friends of the book world, lest the child fail to make the social contacts he should also develop. Refreshments were served to 16 members.

Gaylor, Swind Are United In Double-Ring Ceremony

Mrs. John C. Schwind

Soft candlelight illuminated the church for the wedding of Miss Marjorie Gaylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Gaylor, 923 E. Francis, when she became the bride of Mr. John C. Schwind, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Schwind.

The double-ring ceremony, performed in the Holy Soul's Catholic Church at 9 a. m., Nov. 3, was read by the Rev. Otto J. Meyer, before an altar decorated with white chrysanthemums, palms and candelabra.

Mrs. J. W. Garman sang "Ave Maria," accompanied by organist Mary Keough.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white slipper satin wedding gown with fitted torso bodice and full skirt ending in a semi-train. Long sleeves ended in hilly points over the wrists. The full-length Irish linen covered table. The all-white tiered wedding cake topped with white mums, was served by Patsy Dunigan. Mrs. Waddell presided at the silver coffee service.

For traveling, the bride chose a gray wool semi-tailored suit with pink accessories. After a wedding trip to Oklahoma City, the couple will be at home at 1125 Charles.

Mrs. Schwind was graduated from Pampa High School in 1945 and attended Hill's Business University in Oklahoma City from 1946-47.

Mr. Schwind was graduated from high school at the Price College in Amarillo. He served three years in the U. S. Army. Among the guests at the wedding were C. D. Gaylor, Oklahoma City, uncle of the bride, and Mrs. Mary Lane and son, Billy, Perryton. Mrs. Lane is John Schwind's sister.

Mrs. Gaylor, mother of the bride, was attired in a rose wool crepe dressmaker suit. She wore brown accessories and a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Schwind, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue wool crepe dress suit with black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the home of the bridegroom's parents. Gold and white mums, flanked by gold and white tapers in crystal holders formed the centerpiece on the Irish linen covered table. Now It's Smart to Be Middle-Aged

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Maybe you haven't noticed—it's been happening gradually—but the movies and magazines have stopped selling the idea that life ends with the 30th birthday.

The people who had slipped past that fatal birthday never believed all their fun, romance and productive years were behind them. But if they trusted what the short-story writers and the films told them, they should have been set for a porch and carpet-slippers routine.

Seems like it was only yesterday that the classic heroine of magazine fiction was a fresh young maiden on the threshold of the twenties. She, and she alone, was allowed to find Real Romance. Romance with a boy a couple of years older. All such stories ended when he finally broke down and proposed.

All this has changed. Indeed some of our most popular fiction heroines today are boldly presented as having known more than 30 summers. Many are even permitted to be young widows with children. Just the other day I read a short story about a wizened old girl of 40, with a couple of kids, who met up with a senile widower of 45. And they were allowed to fall in love, just like that.

Take a look at our movie stars. Most of the popular ones are the same people who were around 10 or more years back. No one tries to pass off Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Spencer Tracy, Jimmy Stewart, Cary Grant, Clark Gable or Charles Boyer as juveniles, but there they are, making a play for the heroine and often as not winding up the picture in a clinch with her. And they don't try to cover up the fact that they've sprouted a gray hair here and there—or have a little trouble hanging onto the tath.

There's Katharine Hepburn, Greer Garson, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, Ginger Rogers to pick a few at random—and none of them is trying to make like she's fresh out of high school.

Furthermore, lots and lots of movies are written about mature people. No longer does a film mandatorily revolve around the tired boy-meets-girl theme and end with the sound of wedding bells and the whisper of white satin. Many's the popular picture about adults pursuing adult courses of life.

All this is very hopeful to those oldsters among the population who remember back when the talkies came in and Roosevelt's first administration. It's made a lot of the kids, who ordinarily would scorn as aged and ultra-conservative anyone past 25, look forward to living the full, happy life of the middle years.

But mostly it's given us older folks a feeling that life can be

WE, THE WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer

In many homes today there's not much money left for recreation and entertainment, because higher costs for the "necessities" of life aren't leaving much for family fun. That fact was recently pointed out by the National Recreation Association.

But, says the association, with careful planning such families may still maintain their recreation standards and may even end up better off than before.

Of course they can. There may not be money for evenings out for Mother and Father and the price of a baby-sitter for the kids.

There may not even be enough money for Dad to pursue the hobby of his choice.

TWO REQUIREMENTS
But there can be family recreation, provided—
The family has enough imagination to change its recreational pattern from being entertained to entertaining itself.

They are willing to get their recreation as a family group.

Those are two ideas that the modern family has grown away from. And it may be significant that the habit of "buying" most of its entertainment and taking it separately—this treat for the kids, that fling for the grown-ups—has gone right along with the diminishing importance of family life.

Having to cut down sharply on the money it can spend on recreation, the American family is left unless they're depended for so long on paying someone to entertain them they've lost all power to entertain themselves.

Western Europe to Have More to Eat

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Western Europe will have more to eat this winter than any time since pre-war days, the food chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration said.

Dr. D. A. Fitzgerald told a news conference the food situation is "very, very, much better than a year ago."

This improvement is due almost entirely, Fitzgerald said, "to the bumper crops all over Europe."

Music Lessons Can Be Fun For Junior

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
Music can be fun. It all depends on how you approach it with Junior.

The idea is, says Henry L. Scott, concert pianist and humorist, to make music lessons fun instead of a chore for children.

Mr. Scott, who first introduced fun into classical concerts at such places as Carnegie and Town Halls, lays down five rules for pleasant learning:

1. Teach children one popular piece along with their classics each week. Popular music is a valuable asset developing understanding of rhythm, and is not incompatible with classics.
2. Do not demand tedious practice on scales and arpeggios. Progressive teachers now know that technique is best developed from the actual composition to be studied.
3. Encourage several short periods of practice during each day, instead of demanding one long practice period.
4. Do not force Junior to play for others, but encourage him to do so.
5. Expose Junior to the best of all kinds of music. If you are a musical snob, don't let him know it. Be sure he has an opportunity to know that music can be fun, and let him choose the kind he likes best. As he grows musically, so will his tastes.

A unique book in the field of music has just come to hand. It is called "A Child's Guide to Records" and contains a complete descriptive listing and appraisal of recorded stories, songs and music for children of all ages. The authors are Dr. Philip Eisenberg, research psychiatrist at Columbia Broadcasting System, a specialist in children's programs, and Hecky Krasno, who has written and made a number of children's record albums.

The book is divided into two sections. The first tells what children like about records, and why. The second is a critical evaluation, by age groups, of what is now on the market.

Another fine listing of books on and about music for children from kindergarten to grade 9 is to be found in the new 1948-49 edition of the "Annotated List of Books" which has just been published by the Children's Reading Service of New York.

Edited by Dorothy Kay Cadwallader, educational consultant and principal of the Robbins School, Trenton, N. J., it contains, in addition to music subjects, a list of over 1,000 children's books, arranged by topics and school grade levels.

School teachers, librarians and principals can obtain copies without charge by writing to the Service at 106 Beekman Street, New York 7, N. Y.

The Loves of Carmen

By SOPHIE KERR
Copyright, 1948, MFA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Don Jose, owner of a fashionable Spanish restaurant, falls victim to the charms of the bewitching gypsy, Carmen. He kills his commanding officer in a sword-fight over her and is sentenced to die in a prison. Carmen, who is the head of a gang of gypsies, who are the enemies of the police, is sentenced to die in a prison. Carmen, who is the head of a gang of gypsies, who are the enemies of the police, is sentenced to die in a prison. Carmen, who is the head of a gang of gypsies, who are the enemies of the police, is sentenced to die in a prison.

THEY were both instantly happy. But as Jose's fame as a bandit increased, his value to himself decreased. As his notoriety spread like a sick wind, so did the simple honor in which he had once held himself disappear, until there was no self-respect left to hold him together. As the degradation of a once honest man fed upon his soul, as his face grew coarse, hard and older-looking, as he stooped to cruelty and greed, each vicious act became a token of the bitter self-hate that tortured him.

mercy, but still he could not always think of himself this way. He would tell himself then that he had been trapped by an irrational fate into this nightmare of blood and brutality, that although these things were said to have happened, they had happened only to Jose el Navarro, not molesting Don Jose Lizarrabengoa. This was his illusion, but each day it grew harder to maintain. And at night, when he could no longer indulge in self-deception, he knew what he had become.

At night he sat sleepless, his hands clenched within each other, staring at Carmen who slept in a rooming house, when he would implore her for a sign which might promise his release.

LATE one afternoon, the hot wind coming behind them into the valley, the bandits stopped a stage coach. The passengers, terror-stricken under the menace of drawn guns, piled out. Their hands were raised high over their heads.

Don Jose shoved them, prodded them, and spoke gruffly in a cold, business-like way. This had become a day's work to him. "Line up. Keep your hands over your heads and no talking."

He stopped at the last passenger, a uniformed dragoon, descended. Don Jose went white at sight of the fine-looking young soldier—the very counterpart of what he used to be. Their eyes met and the dragoon's eyes widened as he recognized the bandit.

Don Jose's face set with fury. He hated the soldier for reminding him of the past. "Dance, get the luggage! Pablo, keep your gun on these screaming pigs." Then he went to the dragoon. "All right, hand it over."

The dragoon removed a little pouch of money from his pocket and held it out contemptuously to Don Jose. The gesture was too much to stand. Don Jose brought his gun down on the dragoon's hand viciously. The soldier dropped the pouch of money, flinching at the pain, but the contemptuous look on his face remained. Don Jose turned away. His rage, turned toward himself, mounted within him.

Political Suit Decision Pending

FORT WORTH —(P)— A decision in the injunction suit which seeks to halt the purge of anti-Trumanites from the Democratic Party, will be handed down early this week, District Judge Morris said Saturday.

Morris said the issues are "so complex, and important," that the decision will require several days of preliminary study.

Gillis Johnson, lawyer for the Tarrant County conservatives, who brought the suit, and Ernest May, lawyer for the defendants, who won control of the State Democratic Convention here last September, were conferring.

ATHENS —(P)— The Greek government has been busy playing politics instead of effectively fighting the Communist guerrillas, Sophocles Venizelos, deputy leader of the Liberal Party, said Friday night.

Venizelos is the man pushing the expected resignation of the government led by Prime Minister Themistokles Sophoulis. He said in an interview that he would withhold a vote of no confidence until debate on the Greek situation is ended in the United Nations.

Venizelos claims enough votes from his followers in the Liberal Party and opposition groups to defeat the government in Parliament.

"The present government," said Venizelos, "is not efficient and party politics."

Jobs Are Held By More Than 60 Million Americans

WASHINGTON —(P)— The number of Americans with jobs stayed above 60,000,000 in October for the fifth month, the Census Bureau reported.

The total was 60,134,000. Although this was a drop of 178,000 from September, it was 930,000 higher than in October last year.

Unemployment, meanwhile, dropped 297,000 to an October total of 1,642,000, lowest point of the year, the bureau said. That was 45,000 under a year ago.

The return of young workers to school was largely responsible for the small dip in employment, the bureau said.

Secretary's Wires Sent at Own Expense

WASHINGTON —(P)— Air Secretary Symington says he paid out of his own pocket for the congratulatory wires he sent to all Democrats elected to Congress.

Rep-elect Jacobs of Indiana objected Friday that the wire he received was paid for by the government. He talked of cutting Air Force telegraph funds.

There is no excuse for failure to reach a solution against the guerrillas. There is a lack of coordination among the ministries and ministers have been playing party politics."

"Exclusive But Not Expensive"

For two days, Philadelphia social worker Margaret Kane read 270,000 names from the telephone directory to an amnesia victim found wandering in the park. After 658 pages, more than half-way through the book, she read one that caused him to leap off his hospital bed and remember that he was James McMenamin. Philosophical about it, she says, "After all, his name might have been James McMenamin."

Six Brazos River Dams Suggested

DALLAS —(P)— Six more dams for the Brazos River flood-control project have been recommended by the Army engineers' district office here.

Col. Henry Hutchings, Jr., district engineer, announced he had approved his engineers' recommendation that the dams be built and had sent it to the Army chief of engineers. If approval carries through Congress, the Brazos watershed will be lined up for eight flood-control units.

The Whitney Dam near Whitney, Tex., on the Brazos is being built now. Work will begin Dec. 9, Hutchings said, on the Belton Reservoir north of Belton on the Leon River.

He estimated the total cost of the additional dams at $2 million. The six dams and reservoirs would be for flood control and other purposes, Hutchings said. He listed them as:

1. Waco Reservoir on the Bosque River at the Waco city limits.
2. Proctor Reservoir in Comanche County on the Leon River, upstream from the town of Proctor.
3. Lampasas Reservoir on the Lampasas River five miles southwest of Belton.
4. Laneport Reservoir on the San Gabriel River near Granger.
5. Somerville Reservoir on Yegua Creek at the edge of Somerville in Burleson County.
6. Ferguson Reservoir on the Nevasota River ten miles east of Bryan.

Hutchings said the recommendation included installing hydroelectric equipment at the Belton Reservoir. This would increase the cost of that project an estimated $5 million, he said.

Channel improvement of the Lampasas River at Lampasas, at an estimated cost of $865,000, also was recommended. Another recommendation was for a $2,725,000 levee improvement job on the Brazos from Bryan 40 miles downstream, Hutchings said.

These recommendations, including the six additional dams, would raise the total to $100,890,000.

Hutchings said the recommendations will go from the chief of engineers to the Board of Engineers of Rivers and Harbors. If the board approves the recommendations, they will be turned over to Congress.

Oil Hearing on Gas Flaring Set

The commission said it would also consider at the hearing a request for a reduction of allowable for the field.

Application for hearing was made by J. W. Baldwin, E. P. Green, E. K. Burt, Coast Oil Corporation, T. A. Kirk, T. C. Mann, Jr., and R. W. McKissick, the commission said.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(P)— Post-election notes:

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey probably stirred the emotions of his followers more deeply in defeat than he ever had in victory.

He took one of the most crushing upsets in American political history with real sportsmanship. In his post-election press conference—a 13-minute farewell to his national political aspirations—he gave no excuses for his defeat. And he indulged in no self-pity.

He wore the air of a champion who had given the best of what he had to give—and he didn't run for public office again if he blame anybody. There were a number of red-eyed members of his staff at the conference, and Dewey, a man who rarely demonstrates personal emotion, brought tears to their eyes as he thanked the efforts made in his behalf.

He showed that he does have in some measure a gift of leadership that some observers have doubted the ability to inspire affection as well as loyalty. Many will long remember what he said of his wife, who remained by his side all night as for a second time in four years his dream of being president ebbed.

"She has been through this before," he said. "We have won and lost at various times—and all in good fun."

Many staunch friends of Dewey find it hard to believe he will carry out the desire he expressed privately on several occasions during the campaign—never to run for public office again if he were defeated. He is only 46 and few men his age have ever had such meteoric political careers. His present term as Governor lasts through 1950.

Although he is the only unsuccessful candidate ever renominated by the Republican Party, there is plenty of precedent if he should change his mind and toss his hat in the ring a third time. Norman Thomas has tried six times for the Socialists. Henry Clay was a presidential aspirant in almost every campaign between 1824 and 1848 and died unreconciled to failure at 76. William Jennings Bryan was the Democratic standard bearer three times—and was willing to take the draft again any time.

Perhaps it was their example that led Dewey to conclude two strikes were enough.

There are about 137,000 clergymen in the United States.

Man Shoots Self; Ticket-Fixing Scheme Broken

DALLAS —(P)— A city jail supervisor who, Police Chief Carl Hanson said, shot himself in the chief's office, was in serious condition in Parkland Hospital.

The shooting followed by a few minutes City Manager Roderic B. Thomas' announcement that a ticket-fixing scheme in Corporation Court and the jail had been broken up.

Hanson said Jail Supervisor C. W. Barrett, 48, drew his service revolver and shot himself above the heart just after he said he had been suspended indefinitely. Barrett had been a member of the Police Department for 23 years. Hanson also suspended another jail supervisor, W. E. Douglas, L. Engledow, an employee in the Corporation Court for 18 years, was discharged by Court Clerk James Dunn.

The city manager said he was told ticket-fixing began in 1937. Its result, he said, was that hundreds of Dallas citizens who have never been in jail have records of having served jail sentences for traffic violations. The scheme saved the violators the cost of the fines.

"So far as we can find the racket was not extensive—perhaps involving only an average of one or two tickets a day," Thomas said. He added, "we have not found so far that anyone received any payment for the ticket fixing."

Lionel Barrymore Walks Again

For the first time in ten years, screen actor Lionel Barrymore leaves his wheelchair, with the aid of crutches. Henry Hathaway, left, director of Barrymore's current film, helps him. Doctors say that, if he loses another 20 pounds, the veteran actor will be able to walk without crutches.

Non-Voters May Set the Trend

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(P)— There's a lesson in Tuesday's election if you're one of the 48 million people of voting age who didn't vote.

It's simply this: By not voting you can let a tiny minority of voters, organized into a third party, actually pick your government for you.

Roughly, about 48 million people voted Tuesday. There are 94 million of voting age. So 48 million didn't vote.

President Truman won around 23,080,000 votes, or almost 2,000,000 more than the 21,085,000 Governor Dewey got.

But Henry Wallace and his Progressive Party were in the race, too. He got only about 1,965,000. But—

If he had received only about 100,000 more votes in a few places he would have offset Mr. Truman's 2 million lead over Dewey and thrown the election to the Republicans.

No one knows, of course, what would have been the vote of those 48 million people who didn't vote.

But, for the sake of illustration here, although it's an exaggerated example, let's say most of them would have voted for Mr. Truman.

Then the desires of those 48 million who didn't vote for him, plus the desires of the 23,080,000 who did, could have been frustrated by a mere additional 120,000 votes picked up by Wallace.

His victory would have gone to the Republicans—who got only 21,085,000 votes—and the wishes of 71,080,000 would have meant nothing.

That didn't happen this time. It may next time, or some other time—in the future if there is a small and active third party in the field.

And that would mean government run by a minority in the field.

Christmas Seals Being Mailed

Members of the National Secretaries Association started to fold and address letters containing 1948 Christmas seals Friday, Mrs. H. M. Stokes, president of the Gray County Tuberculosis Association, said yesterday.

The age-old attempt of children to catch a glimpse of Santa on Christmas Eve inspired the picture for this year's seal which arrived in Pampa last week.

Barry Bart of South Kent, Conn., painted the picture after he had watched his young nephew hurry silently downstairs one Christmas Eve and set up his vigil near the fireplace.

Bart is a well-known American artist and illustrator. Born in Paris, he began the study of architecture and painting there and continued at Milan, Florence and Rome.

"This year's brightly colored red, yellow and blue seal will be particularly decorative on Christmas cards and packages," Mrs. Stokes said.

Gray County's seal sale is part of the nationwide 42nd annual Christmas seal sale. Proceeds will be used for the 1949 tuberculosis control program of Gray County's Tuberculosis Association.

New Doctor in Practice Here

Dr. John Foster Elder, who spent the final year of his hospital residence specializing in surgery, arrived in Pampa this week to begin his association with Dr. Richard D. Falkenstein.

Dr. Elder received his medical training at Southwestern Medical College, Dallas, and completed his internship at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth.

He served two years as an Army medical officer, 18 months of which were spent in Germany. He met his wife, a native of Silver City, N. M., overseas while she was serving with the Red Cross, and they were married in Copenhagen, Denmark. They have one child, a 16-month-old boy.

Following his discharge from the Army, Dr. Elder returned to Harris Hospital, where he served a year as resident physician, before coming to Pampa.

Berlin Airlift Is Tough, Routine 24-Hour Grind Through All Weather

By WES GALLAGHER

BERLIN —(P)— Would you like to take a ride on the famed airlift to Berlin?

First you drive a few miles out of Frankfurt to Rhein-main Airport. It is one of the largest airports in the world and probably the busiest.

Besides the hundreds of planes handles a half-dozen commercial Army and Navy transatlantic traffic.

In the main operations hut a major checks your papers. Not every one can ride the airlift. There isn't room for human beings. Coal and food are more important.

To avoid accidents, planes are flown in "blocks" of the same type and speed. They take off at three-minute intervals, fly at different altitudes and land in the same order at Berlin.

In the briefing hut you are assigned to C-54 "5677" and meet the crew.

Pilot is Captain Stephen Wysocki, 28, who wife lives in Chicago. Captain Henry A. Reynolds, 25, is copilot. He has a wife in Sacramento, Calif.

The third crewman is Sergeant Marvin S. Miller, 27, engineer from Vallejo, Calif.

Climbing into the big plane you find your load is about ten tons of coal in 100-pound sacks. It takes up only a small portion of the space.

"This is a tough trip for these planes," Wysocki says. "We have to put full power to the motors to get these heavy loads off.

the approaching planes and verbally directs them in to a landing.

The weather is not bad enough for GCA but it is being used for practice purposes because this winter it will be used extensively.

"Come down to 750—you are right on the glide path—you are on the center line" continues the soothing GCA voice.

The field is rushing at you now. Right below are some trees. 5677 is headed right down the center line of the runway.

"Pull up a bit, pull up, you are about 50 feet low" the quiet voice continues. Wysocki pulls the nose up.

By the time he does, 5677 is on the runway and landing.

One by one the C-54's take their position on the runway, gun their motors and start rolling.

There is no waste time or motion in or out of the plane. Wysocki and his crew have become precision instruments in a complicated airlift mechanism.

Wysocki brings the plane up to his assigned 8,000 feet, heading north toward the opening of the 20-mile corridor over the Soviet Zone.

No. 5677 is now in one of the three air corridors leading to Berlin.

In a few minutes you hear the Tempelhof Tower in your earphones.

They are picking up control of the approaching planes. Wysocki comments they are using GCA (Ground Controlled Approach). This is a radar device by which a man sitting on the ground in front of radar screens picks up

Moron Makes Best Driver

EVANSTON, Ill. —(P)— "A high-grade moron makes the best automobile driver."

That's the opinion of the research director of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute, James Stannard Baker.

Baker said that other things being equal, persons with very high intelligence or with very low intelligence are the poorest drivers.

The intellectuals, Baker said, "take driving too easy" and don't keep their minds on it.

On the other hand, the driver with the extremely low IQ "tries to learn, but isn't up to it," Baker stated.

But the man who is "not too bright," he said, "if he has a good training, keen eyesight, is alert and fairly mature, is the safest most careful of all drivers. His mind is not highly stimulated; he is less subject to daydreams, and is less likely to become bored with the mechanics of driving than the man with the superior mind."

Then Baker adds a word of encouragement to the type he terms a "high-grade moron."

"He plays an important part in our society," Baker said, "and is as necessary and desirable as the highly intellectual person."

Humorist Gives Movie Appeal Rules

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD —(P)—What's funny in the movies? You might answer "nothing," but the question is not directed at you. I'm asking a question of a man who gives the impression of being slightly mad as he directs and writes very funny and very successful movies ("The Great McGinty," "Miracle of Morgan's Creek," etc.).
"I don't know what's funny," Sturges answers indignantly. "When a humorist tries to analyze humor, he ceases to be a humorist."
But then he admitted some trade secrets:
"As white light contains all colors, so it is with situations. Each situation contains all the emotions. See the fun, and you are a humorist."
"Reversing the customary reaction made $300,000 for me. I took the standard hero of American fiction and the standard villain, and switched them. The result was my play, 'Strictly Dishonorable.'"
Sturges has some rules for box-office appeal, and I think you'll find they give interesting insight for U. S. films:
A pretty girl is better than an ugly one.
A leg is better than an arm.
A bedroom is better than a living room.
An arrival is better than a departure.
A birth is better than a death.
A chase is better than a chat.
A dog is better than a land-scape.
A kitten is better than a dog.
A baby is better than a kitten.
A kiss is better than a baby.
A prat fall is better than anything.

King Dispenses With 'Archaic' Birth Custom

LONDON —(P)—King George VI has decided to dispense with the presence of a cabinet minister at the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby.
The King dismissed the custom of having a cabinet member in attendance as an "archaic" survival with "no legal requirement."
The announcement said Home Secretary Cuthbert Ede will not be summoned to the palace personally but will be advised as soon as the birth occurs. The royal heir's arrival is expected in about 10 days.

Mystery Disease Attacking Beef

CHICAGO —(P)—A puzzling disease is sweeping into the younger beef cattle population of the country, and so far has been recognized in 26 states.
Veterinarians don't quite know what to make of it. They're sure it has no connection with the dread foot-and-mouth disease south of the Mexican border, and they are fairly certain it cannot be transmitted to man.
But the stuff was so puzzling at first, it was designated only as "X" cattle disease. Since there are other "X" diseases in other kinds of livestock, this one finally was named hyperknotosis.
R. C. Klusendorf, of the American Veterinary Medical Association, says this means "thickening of the skin." Forty percent of the infected cattle—particularly calves and yearlings—die. Half the remainder are in such bad shape they can only be sent to a rendering plant, Klusendorf added.
He said the disease first was reported two years ago in New York and New England. Usually whole herds are not affected, but some beef herds reportedly have been so severely hit that owners were forced out of business.
Illinois is one of the most recent states to have the disease crop up, with five infected herds reported.
Neither the cause nor cure has been found. It affects beef cattle nine times more frequently than dairy types. Usually the malady starts with a watery discharge from the eyes and nose. Then comes loss of condition, loss of hair, thickening of the skin, sores around the mouth and esophagus, and general weakness, perhaps death.

Fulfilling Promises Next On President's Schedule

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(P)—Even if the country's still in a fever over President Truman's election, a cold little question creeps up and says:
"How's he going to do all the things he promised?"
For example, repealing the Taft-Hartley Labor Law and getting his civil rights program for Southern Negroes through Congress.
You can look for most of the 22 Southern senators to work together to block the civil rights program.
In 1947 a number of Democrats joined with the Republicans to pass the Taft-Hartley Act. There still are enough of the act's supporters in both parties to vote down any attempt to repeal it.
In the end Mr. Truman may have to accept a compromise to repeal only those parts of the act which labor hates worst. He owes labor a debt for the support it gave him in the election.
He has promised other things, too, including government help to education and a public housing program. Those things cost money. And that brings up a very important point.
In 1933 the public debt was only about $19,500,000. By the time Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to a third term in 1940 the debt had been increased to around $42 billion. It seemed like an enormous debt then.
But by the time Mr. Truman inherited the presidency from Mr. Roosevelt in 1945 the public debt had leaped to around $260 billion, because of the cost of World War II.
A few billions of that have been paid off since 1945. But this year the Republican Congress cut taxes. And now the government again is taking in just a little less in taxes than it is putting out for expenses.
The government's expenses are running around $42 billion a year — which was the size of the public debt in 1940.
But more money may have to be spent on helping Europe and increasing the armed forces next year or the years ahead.

If that happens, the government probably will run deeper into the red.

That would mean increasing the public debt or more by borrowing money—unless taxes were increased.

And if that happens how can Mr. Truman put over new programs that cost money?

Trying to figure that out will be one of the ways Mr. Truman earns his salary the next four years.

Air Force Forms Research Group

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The Air Force announced creation of a non-profit corporation of scientists to help it relate scientific theory to practical military uses.

The work actually has been underway for more than two years as an Air Force project, managed under contract by the Douglas Aircraft Company. But henceforth, the program will be operated by the "Rand Corporation" (the word Rand was coined originally from Research and Development—a wartime scientific program).

A statement by the new organization said "The Rand Corporation is not a government corporation nor a government-financed corporation. It is a private non-profit organization performing research for the U.S. Air Force on a reimbursable basis."

It added that a board of trustees, drawn from "leaders of science and industry" will manage the new projects. The announcement mentioned no names.

Texas Congressmen Now in Strong Committee Posts

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The democratic sweep in the Nov. 2 election puts Texans in strong positions in the nation's capital.

Three in top spots are Attorney General Tom Clark, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn and Senator Tom Connally. All stuck by President Truman during the campaign.

The tall and friendly Clark was the only one of the old timers in the President's cabinet who got out and actively stumped for his boss. Two newcomers, Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan and Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin, also made campaign speeches for Truman.

The talk around here of cabinet changes, therefore, doesn't include mention of the former Dallas lawyer.

However, there has been some speculation that Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy might retire because of his health, and Clark be appointed to fill the vacancy.

Bonham's Congressman Rayburn is almost certain of reelection as speaker of the house when the 81st Congress convenes Jan. 3.

It is recalled that only the pleading of his Texas colleagues, led by Rep. Wright Patman of Texas, caused Rayburn to take the minority leadership of the House two years ago when Republicans won control of Congress. Otherwise Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts would have been chosen and now would be the logical choice for the speakership.

Connally is due to resume chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He and the present chairman, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), have cooperated closely on the bi-partisan foreign policy and can be expected to continue working in harmony.

The shift in control of Congress will mean a lot of moving, even for the members who are staying on. For example:

Rayburn will pack up his files and move back to the ornate Speaker's Room just off the House chamber. He also takes over the spacious and more elaborate rooms in another section of the Capitol which he surrendered two years ago to Speaker Joe Martin (R-Mass.). It again will be simply a case of the two men swapping office suites.

And when Rayburn returns to the speakership his salary will go back to $20,000 a year and he'll get a government limousine with driver. The salary of ordinary members of Congress is $12,500 plus a non-taxable $2,500 expense account.

Silver-haired Tom Connally once more will occupy the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Room in the Capitol. He also will have his present suite of offices in the Senate Office building.

There will be many changes in office suites of members of the House. As they gain seniority they are entitled to the more desirable suites. Some of them will be vacated by departing members.

As majority members, Texans will regain prestige and power on their respective committees. Patman will head the House Small Business Committee, now that the Republicans are out of the driver's seat. Most of the Texans will rank high up on other committees.

Report Shows State Rivers Low

AUSTIN —(AP)—The State Board of Water Engineers reported that Texas rivers continued to run low through another month of droughty conditions last month. Decreases were also reported in major reservoir levels.

The Neches, Sabine, Guadalupe, Trinity, Colorado and other rivers were listed as showing drought effects.

East Texas rivers were said approaching an all-time low. Water storage decreases were reported in Bridgeport, Eagle Mountain, Lake Dallas, Buchanan and Marshall Ford reservoirs. Red Bluff reservoir was reported with increased storage, mainly because of decreased irrigation. There was no change in the Possum, Kingdon reservoir, Medina reservoir near San Antonio remained empty.

China Prepares National Defense

NANKING —(AP)—Nationalist China drew its defense lines closer to Nanking as its leaders hoped for some miracle to save the country from the threat of Communist conquest.

Faced with a cabinet crisis, economic collapse, and the loss of numerical superiority over his Communist foes, Chiang Kai-Shek appeared determined to carry on the fight against the Reds.

A demand for an end of the struggle and a coalition with the Communists which is openly favored by many as an unhappy but the only remaining solution of the nation's problems—still has not figured in the government's plans.

It appeared that the government's last remaining forces in Central China were being moved into position to block Red Gen. Chen Yi should he attempt to thrust in strength past Suichow, 170 miles north of the national capital.
