City Commission Authorizes More Work On Streets

Improvement Gives Greater Traffic Lanes to North and West Portion Of City; Costs $75,000

Street Improving

Building to North Part Of Lubbock Indicated By New Structures; $100,000 Paving Now Under Way

Announcement was made Friday, that the city commission has ordered approximately 15 blocks of paving on Tenth Street, from Avenue K to College Avenue, at a cost of about $75,000.

This paving is in addition to the $100,000 now being expended for street and alley pavements. It will improve traffic facilities to and from the business section and greatly relieve congested conditions on Main and Broadway, when completed.

The event of this stretch of paving is, most of all, an indication that the town, in its continual expansion is more and more paying attention to filling in of vacant spots left in the older portions when new additions were started. It tells, also, of the fact the city is yet crowded and becoming more pressed for additional traffic space. As the town builds and grows, demands for paved thoroughfares increase.

Street Experiences Growth

The past few years has seen a growth of the city to the west and south. Pavement has been put down on through streets to the south of Main and Broadway. This includes that on Thirteenth, Sixteenth and Nineteenth and part of Twentieth streets. During the past year there

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—Petitions bearing more than 4,000 names asking commutation of the death sentence against A. J. "Pete" McKenzie, for the murder of Chief of Detectives Sam Street of San Antonio, were presented to Governor Moody today.

The petitions were brought to Austin by Rev. Rolfe P. Crum, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, and the Rev. W. H. Joyner, pastor of the Beacon Hill Baptist church, both of San Antonio.

Judge's Wife Signs Papers
They contained signatures of Rt. Rev. W. T. Capers, Bishop of the Diocese of West Texas, Episcopal church, many ministers and lawyers, and that of Mrs. W. W. McCrory, wife of the judge who sentenced McKenzie.

The case was also laid before the board of pardons by the Rev. Mr. Crum and the Rev. Mr. Joyner.

Legislators Are To Stay at Work Throughout Today

For First Time This Session, Lawmakers Spend Saturday at Jobs; Probe Groups Plan Work

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—Both houses of the legislature decided today to stay on the job tomorrow, and work for the first Saturday of the session.

There is some question, however, whether the house can muster a quorum, although Speaker Barron said he had promises of enough members to assure a working majority.

Committees appointed to investigate the land office, the highway department and board of control will begin work in earnest Monday, the chairman announced.

Committee Awaits Opinion
The sub-committee named to go to Hidalgo county, to take testimony in the Smith-Montgomery case, still is awaiting tonight an opinion from Attorney General Polard as to its powers.

It is known that the Attorney General has doubts that the committee will have authority to go in to ballot boxes or compel attendance of witnesses, but he has reserved his decision until tomorrow, he said.

Another investigation was brewing, with a joint resolution, by Representative Woodruff of Decatur, calling for a committee of five to inspect the eleemosynary institutions and inquire into actions of the agencies.

Terracing Work To Be Held In County

Increased interest in terracing farms, evidenced among Lubbock county farmers of late, is responsible for the action of the county commissioners' court in appropriating $300 with which to pay the salary of a terracing expert for three months, it was learned yesterday. The commissioners voted the appropriation at their meeting Thursday.

County Agent D. F. Eaton stated yesterday that there are about 30 or 40 requests on file in his office at this time, for assistance in planning a system of terracing for as many farms in the county.

On February 11, Mr. Eaton will lead a group of farmers from this county on an inspection trip to the Spur experiment station for the express purpose of studying results obtained there in terracing.

House Engrosses Bill Licensing Realty Salesmen

Amendment Claimed To Have Destroyed Effect; Board of Examiners Created By New Measure

Prevents Fleecing

Measure Is Designed to Put Ban On The Real Estate Sharks and Crooks In Texas; Argument Hot

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—The bill licensing real estate brokers, agents and salesmen was engrossed by the house today—after an amendment probably had destroyed its effect, its sponsors claimed.

Representative Sinks, Giddings, got over an amendment exempting from its provisions any real estate operator who does not go beyond his home county to sell, rent or trade land.

Representative Kemble of Fort Worth described the bill as designed to stop the "depredations of real estate sharks," and said adoption of a similar law by other states had caused the "real estate crooks" to flock into Texas to "fleece the public."

Chastain Motion Lays
Chastain of Eastland, lost a motion to strike out the enacting clause after he had charged the bill would create "a monopoly and place it in the hands of a few," and "deprive many an honest man of making a living." He said it was a scheme proposed by the real estate association and that "they are here lobbying for it."

Wallace of Teague, lost an amendment which would have provided what he said is a constitutional right of "private contract."

Representative Morse of Houston, said to adopt that amendment would "kill the bill" since every contract is a "private contract."

Provides Examining Board
The bill provides for an examining board to work under the land commission.

Two Texas Fliers Believed Crashed

Love Field Officials Fear For Safety of Pair; Ice Forces Kelly Field Pilot Down at Austin

DALLAS, Feb. 1.—Love Field officials tonight expressed fear for the safety of Lieutenant Thad V. Foster, army flier, and his companion, Sergeant Hodges, who took off from here at 2 p. m. for San Antonio and were long overdue at their destination.

Lieutenant Borden, also of Kelly Field, who took off at the same time, was forced down near Austin due to ice forming on his plane's wings. In a telephone conversation with Lieutenant Harry Weddington, executive air officer here, Borden said he had seen nothing of Foster or Hodges since early in the flight.

Search To Start Today
Unless the fliers are located by daylight a party of searching planes will leave here to traverse the route, Lieutenant Weddington said.

Austin airports had heard nothing of the fliers tonight and Waco also reported no knowledge of their whereabouts.

Lieutenant Borden, was returning alone from Pawhuska, Okla., he left Oklahoma, Okla., Friday morning, stopping here. Later, he arrived safely at San Antonio.

Rewards Totaling $750 Offered For Information Concerning Girl

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—Governor Moody tonight offered a reward of $250 for information as to the whereabouts of Miss Fannie Lee Minter, 16, Texas University student, who disappeared Tuesday, and for arrest of Jack Griffith, alias Jack Freith, charged with kidnaping. The governor's reward is in addition to one of $500 offered by the Minter family.

Charges of kidnaping were sworn to by the girl's mother, Mrs. T. I. Minter, before a justice of the peace today and a warrant was issued for Griffith, who left home the day the Minter girl disappeared, according to his bride of one month. She said her husband told her he was going to San Antonio on a business trip.

Louisiana Gallows Claims Mrs. Lebouef And Dreher

FRANKLIN, La., Feb. 1.—The first white woman to be executed in Louisiana and a physician went to death on the gallows here just after noon today for the murder 18 months ago of the woman's husband, James Lebouef, Morgan city electrician.

Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef, 38, and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, 56, died protesting they were innocent, and with whispered prayers. Dr. Dreher seemed calm but Mrs. Lebouef called "mother" several times and exclaimed "isn't this a terrible thing." She struggled as the black cloth was fitted over her head.

Each talked from the steel gallows trap to the small group of male witnesses seven feet below. Each requested the hangman, his face shielded by a red bandana handkerchief, not to let them strangle to death.

The neck of each was broken as the metal trap swung open.

The grim business was dispatched in the small, brick towered village jail in a twelve by twelve corridor. Jailers went about their work quietly but their nerves gave away after it was over.

Mrs. Lebouef was the 25th woman to be executed in the United States. Desperate efforts were made to save her and Dr. Dreher but Governor Long declined to interfere after state and federal courts and the United States supreme court had refused to act.

Called At Noon
Sheriff Charles Peot went to Mrs. Lebouef's cell at noon and told her to come with him.

She was sitting on the edge of a cot, dressed in a plain pink linen slip dress and white silk stockings. Sheriff, you know I am innocent, why do they want to hang me?" she asked.

"I know, Mrs. Ada, but we have done all we can, come on," said Peot.

Arthur Mariel, the jailer, reached down to put on her patent leather black pumps. When his hands fumbled she fastened the straps.

Must Change Life
She hesitated a moment and looked at Father J. J. Rousseau, pastor of the church.

Clothes For Southland Are Refreshingly New

By LUCIEN LELONG
Special Cable to Central Press and The Avalanche

Many of you are enjoying the sunny southland, and those who are winter-bound in the north are hearing a great deal about clothes that you like to hear about. These warm-weather clothes I have created for wear at winter resorts?

The first thing that everybody wants to know when I make a collection is: "What are the style changes?" It would be disappointing if I were to say that these new southern fashions are not so very different from what has gone before. I don't want to disappoint you but I must insist that while they are different enough to be refreshingly new, they are not radically unlike what you have seen. I cannot promise hemlines down to the ankles, or, in fact, anything so out of the motif of life as that. If I did, you would not want them. Side by side, a new frock I have made for the southern resort this winter, and one made earlier in the season, would strike you as quite unlike, although both would be young, slim in line, and simple in effect. This is because fashion today is an evolution and not a revolution.

Ensemble Changes And what are some of the changes in these styles that go south? I have just been looking at certain ensembles which have, instead of the coats you wore lately, little sack jackets of silk. The kind of wrap that alters the silhouette by making it a bit more youthful and informal. The dress, too, looks different because of a change in the lines that gives a drooping movement of the mid-silhouette toward the back, and that concentrates some of the fullness at the back of the skirt. These are two alterations that would strike you if you were to see the new southern clothes.

There are also a good many simple sports dresses of transparent wool and of chequer silk or crepe brocade for the southland, dresses that are one and not two-piece, and dresses that have alterations of detail, such as graceful diagonal panels merging into short, floating bands. Very subtle colors are brought out for the south; new greys, new blues, new greens and new apricot-beiges. There are also new fabrics. Sweaters knitted and designed in a different way complete some of the smartest.

Look for these changes which reflect the changing life, and then you will become sensitive to the day-by-day evolution of fashions and understand it.

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST: Baked winter pears, cereal, cream, raised buckwheat pancakes, country sausage, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Stuffed onions, whole wheat bread, apple, celery and nut salad, carrot pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Boiled fish with egg sauce, broasted potatoes, glazed parsnips, macedonite vegetable salad, canned peaches in orange jelly, coconut cake, milk, coffee.

Too few housewives serve boiled fish and it's one of the easiest and most delicious ways of serving many varieties of fish. Add lemon juice or vinegar, and one tablespoon each of minced carrot, onion and celery to the water in which the fish is to be cooked. Add the vegetables to the water while it's cold and bring slowly to the boiling point to bring out their flavors. Add fish and lemon juice when water is boiling rapidly but reduce heat and just simmer until fish is tender. Drain thoroughly before serving.

Carrot Pudding One cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup grated raw potato, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted shortening, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1-4 cup shredded citron. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons flour over raisins, mix grated carrot, potato and sugar. Mix and sift flour, salt, soda and spices. Melt shortening in the mold in which pudding is to be steamed. This greases the mold as well as prepares the shortening for the pudding. Combine all ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Turn into greased mold and steam three and one-half hours. Serve warm with hard or lemon sauce. This pudding can be reheated and served the second day.

Mrs. W. H. Donnelly of Lorenzo was a business-shopper here Friday.

wreck the home, according to the theory of some of the most hectic prohibitionists. They may—or may not be—interested in some figures recently released from the domestic relations court of one of our largest cities, proving that divorce cases in which drunkenness is given as cause on one side or the other have not decreased but increased since prohibition.

This is probably just the same old story of the devil juggling figures as well as reading Scripture to suit his purpose. There has been a vast increase in population since prohibition, a corresponding increase in divorce, and a natural increase in the number of marital troubles explained by any cause.

BABIES AND WITCHCRAFT On the subject of figures, the Children's Bureau reports that witchcraft and forms of medieval superstition explain the mortality rate of about 64 women out of every 10,000 maternity cases. One could complacently murmur, "it's these foreigners," to such an observation, it being true that such superstitions are part and parcel of the immigrant problem.

WHAT'S BEING ONE A more pertinent reaction would be the wonder what America is doing in the way of giving the superstitious immigrant mid-wife a little more light. Insisting on licenses, for one thing. But somehow the problem goes deeper than that. Insistence on a mere license without making the witchcraft-ridding one understand why doesn't mean much. Enlightenment and education come first.

How to Achieve Beauty

It is impossible to have a good, pliable waist and firm hips unless you develop a good posture. Remember, when you are setting about to develop a good posture, that the spinal column is not straight but has a gentle arch inward at the small of the back.

Mrs. Rubinstain

The common position, in fact one that we see hundreds of times a day, is that in which the chest and diaphragm are thrown forward, with an exaggerated arch at the back. Nowadays there has been so much talk on the subject of posture, I have noticed a tendency to go to extremes. Where the small of the back is pulled in, and the lower part, or buttocks, out, which is called the old-fashioned "sway back." While this induces a more or less straight abdomen, you must remember that you are throwing the muscles out of position. The pelvis bone should not be thrown backward, but be in a forward position, inclining slightly upward. This means ribs up, buttocks in and down in the back. You should have no surplus fat at the waist. It is a mistake to think that a woman's body is naturally soft and flabby around this part. Bending and circling from the waist, as I described yesterday, is excellent for reducing. Instead of the arms upward, and then touching the floor, exercise, a good variation is to relax the arms, bend from the waist, and describe a wide circle with your finger tips, the body swinging in an arc from the waistline. Another good exercise is as follows: Lie down on a mat and slowly bring your body upward, bending forward from the waist as far as possible. You may begin the exercise by sitting upright on the floor first, and bending far forward. Then gradually, as your muscles grow stronger, lie flat on the back.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton
©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

The best way to teach a young child generosity—and it must be taught young—is to have him give something to somebody he likes. Usually their children are selfish. Do they want to give a toy, part of a cake, a ride on their kiddy car? They do not.

A certain mother decided to use this plan in teaching her little girl to be generous.

She started on a cookie. "Give Mother half?" she begged. "Two-year-old Rosie considered. No? Yes. She made a sudden decision. She held it up and mother took a large bite.

"Now give Snappy a bite." Snappy Quite Approves Snappy's color gas brought out and looked hungry but his small mistress stuck the cake into her own mouth. It looked as though for that time, at least, Snappy would do without his daily sweet.

Her mother, being a tactician, did not compel her to give up. She must come from the baby. Suddenly the child held out the cake. Snappy snapped it up greedily. Rosie giggled delightedly. Snappy licked his lips.

But all Rosie liked Mother and she liked Snappy. Would she be so generous with Bobby, the stormy petrel next door, whom she didn't care for so much? Moreover cookies were only cookies. Rosie knew there were several dozens of them in the cake-box.

There were two psychological points still to be gained. One, to give to people she didn't particularly like; the other, to give away things she wanted very much for herself.

A Display of Wisdom Her wise mother worked out one thing at a time, however. Rosie was induced to give Bobby half of her cookie one day. Her mother had Bobby in to play every day after that and every day she consented to make Rosie's offering to him of the value.

Then she began to invite other children in, always seeing to it that there was something to be divided or given away. And she had Rosie make the offering with her own hands. Another excellent point, by the way. Rosie did learn to be really generous.

But remember: generosity should be taught young.

Matadors Pile Up Early Lead To Down Hill Billy Five Schmeling Scores Technical Knockout Over Risiko In Ninth Round Of Bout

Daniel Baker Cagers Come Back In Final Period with Scoring Attack That Falls Short by Single Point

Personal Fouls Send Tech Mainstays Off Floor And Goats Bombard Basket to Threaten Lead

A garrison finish that all but wrecked the comfortable lead held by the Tech basketeers in the opening frame, fell one point short last night at the Tech gymnasium as the Matadors eked out 47 to 46 win over the Daniel Baker Hill Billies in a contest that furnished thrills a-plenty for the spectators. After three mainstays of the Tech quintet had left the floor via the personal foul route in the final period, Coach Blair's sharpshooters bombarded the hoop with the monotony of a machine gun to seriously threaten the Tech margin.

Only the savage tenacity of the trisomic basket loopers staved off the defeat at the hands of the Brownwood five. Led by Clarence Hodges, the Tech basketeers stayed on the heels of the Goats doggedly in the final minutes of the game, when the minutes seemed like hours to the Tech supporters. Just when it seemed inevitable that the Billies should take the lead, Hodges, Dalton or Tadlock slipped through for a counter or sank one from long range.

Losses Chance to Tie Game With the score standing 47 to 45, Taylor of Daniel Baker was fouled by Hodges under the basket, giving him an opportunity to knot the count, but the second toss from the line rolled off the side of the hoop as Tech rosters mopped their brows and relaxed. The ball had hardly reentered on the next tip-off when the final gun sounded, giving Tech the game.

From the outset it was evident that Hodges was "right." On the first advance into defensive territory he looped one from close range. Pace followed with a free toss and a field goal, the Matadors scoring six points before the visitors were able to find the basket. Ransom Walker's floor work and long range shooting was the outstanding feature of the Matador's first half attack. His unceasing dribbling put the ball in scoring position time after time as they came in for shots. Shooting from outside the defensive circle, Walker sank four beautiful baskets during this period.

Come Back Strong Trailing 25 to 17 at the half, the Billies came back stronger in the second frame and aided by the absence of Walker, Vinzant and Pace in the lineup, scored 29 points while the Matadors were counting 21. With a far superior passing attack than was displayed in the first half, Coach Blair's team worked the ball through the Tech defense consistently.

Miller, rangy Daniel Baker guard, sank 9 field goals and 11 free tosses for a grand total of 29 points to carry off scoring honors while Hodges of Tech was not far behind with 24. Both Hodges and Miller sank any number from points near the center.

"It's Sure Been A Surprise To Me," Says Amarillo Farmer "I Never Saw Anything In My Life That Gave Such Quick Relief As Orgatone," Declares Doyle

"It's the honest truth before I had taken this Orgatone a week, I was feeling so well and strong that I hardly knew myself," said John Doyle, a well known farmer residing at 904 N. Arthur St., Amarillo, Texas, the other day.

"I had a very bad case of stomach trouble and liver disorders," he continued, "that knocked me out so I hardly felt like working at times. My stomach was in such an awful fix every thing I would eat disagreed with me and made me miserable all the time. I would have heart burn so I could hardly stand it and, in fact, for a whole month before taking Orgatone I just felt completely worn out."

"I commenced to read in the papers about several Amarillo people who have been taking Orgatone and getting a world of good out of it, so I got me a bottle to try. Well, Sir, it sure surprised me, for I began to feel better right from the very first dose and before the week was out I was feeling more like my old self and had been getting along in fine shape every since like nothing had ever been the matter with me. I never saw anything in my life before to give such quick relief as this Orgatone and I haven't had a single symptom of my trouble since I started on it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Lubbock exclusively by the Bowens Drug Store under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public.

Coughs...

PERTUSSIN is made by a special (Taschner) process to relieve coughs quickly by removing the immediate cause. This cause usually is accumulated mucus, dust, inflammation or irritation. PERTUSSIN, by helping nature to expel the phlegm, and by soothing the irritation, quiets the cough. It is entirely free from harmful drugs. That is why Doctors have prescribed it for a quarter of a century. At all drug stores.

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR FEB. 3, 1926

General Topic: The Holy Scriptures.

Scripture Lesson: Ps. 19:7-14; 2 Tim. 3:14-17.

Ps. 19:7. The law of Jehovah is perfect, restoring the soul: the testimony of Jehovah is sure, making wise the simple.

8. The precepts of Jehovah are right, reeking the heart: the commandment of Jehovah is pure, enlightening the eyes.

9. The fear of Jehovah is clean, enduring forever: the ordinances of Jehovah are true, and righteous altogether.

10. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the droppings of the honeycomb.

11. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: in keeping them there is great reward.

12. Who can discern his errors? Clear thou me from hidden faults.

13. Keep back thy servants also from presumptuous sins; Let them not have dominion over me: Then shall I be upright, and I shall be clear from great transgression.

14. Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Jehovah, my rock, my redeemer.

2 Tim. 3:14. But abide thou in the things which thou hast learned and which have assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them;

15. And that from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16. Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness:

17. That the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work.

Time: David's life (Becher) extended from B. C. 1022 to B. C. 1023. Paul wrote 2 Timothy A. D. 66.

Place: David wrote his Psalms in Jerusalem. Paul wrote 2 Timothy in prison in Rome.

Golden Text: Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.—Ps., 119:18.

Introduction.

"The Bible is sometimes referred to as a whole library, or as a great literature. This is all true, but we should never lose sight of the Bible's unity, and one unfolding purpose: to reveal to men the mind and will of God, that is, Jesus Christ; and that through him they should be saved. Thus the Bible is a most practical book: in its details, for the whole round of existence, and in its supreme teaching, life through Christ. The term Guide Book may appropriately be applied to it—in a high sense of that term. There is the old saying, 'The Scriptures are given to teach us, not how the heavens go, but how to go to heaven.'"

"... the chart and compass that over life's swirling sea still guides, O Christ, to thee."

The Nineteenth Psalm.

In the first part of the Nineteenth Psalm, the psalmist sings of the revelation of God in nature, chiefly a revelation of power; in the second part of the psalm, our lesson today, he sings of the revelation of God in the Scriptures, chiefly a revelation of holiness.

This brings us naturally to the prayer for deliverance from sin and for such a character as will be acceptable in the sight of Jehovah.

The Second Part of the Lesson.

The second passage is an appeal to Timothy to abide in the teachings of the Scriptures, which he had learned in boyhood, and which reveal the true wisdom that leads to salvation through faith in Christ.

The last verse sets forth the divine inspiration of the Scriptures, and their value for human life. The reference is of course to the Old Testament, the only Scriptures then in existence, but the New Testament, being a fuller revelation of God, is even more valuable.

Variety in the Scriptures.

Our English word "Bible" is derived, through the Latin, from the plural form of the Greek word for book. Thus while our word is singular, it represents a plural idea; the Bible is primarily a collection of books. This collection contains practically every form of literature: history, biography, poetry, oratory, fiction, drama, etc.

Unity of the Scriptures.

One of the most remarkable characteristics of the Bible is the unity that runs through all its various books, notwithstanding the difference in authorship and the differing periods in which they were written. This unity justifies our thought of the Bible as one book, even though it contains many books; and this is one of the best evidences that it is not a merely human production but came from God.

The Bible Not a Book of History.

The purpose of the Bible was not to teach history. It contains history, to be sure, just as it contains other forms of literature; but there is no evidence that the Holy Spirit, or the writers themselves, paid any attention to historical accuracy. No lover of the Bible, therefore, need be disturbed at finding some apparent discrepancies in historical accounts, such as between Kings and Chronicles.

The Bible Not a Book of Science.

The purpose of the Bible was not to teach science. The writers of the Bible knew no science, in the sense in which that term is employed today. God could have revealed it to them, if he had chosen to do so, but there is no evidence that he did. The Bible writers used the language of appearance rather than that of twentieth century science. They had to use the language and the ideas of their contemporaries in order to be understood. There has been a great deal of discussion of the first chapter of Genesis. Doubtless all will agree that the chief purpose of the writer of Genesis was to declare that the universe owes its existence to God. That is surely a much more important fact than the manner in which he made it. Interpretations of the Scriptures and interpretations of science vary at the years go on, but there can be no real conflict between facts. Both the theologian and the scientist should always be ready to welcome facts, from whatever source they come.

The Bible Reveals the Nature of God.

The purpose of the Bible was to reveal the true nature of God. The fact of God is revealed in the natural world. Men have always believed in a god, or in many gods. But nature does not reveal the holiness of God and the love of God. The god of nature inspired men with awe by the manifestations of his power, but he never inspired with love by the manifestations of his grace. There was need of a higher revelation than could be afforded by nature.

The Bible Reveals the Will of God.

The purpose of the Bible was also to reveal the will of God. This practical purpose pervades the book throughout. God's will is his nature in action. Because he is holy, he wills that men should be holy. Because he is gracious, he wills that men should be gracious. Because he is loving, he wills that men should be loving. "Ye therefore shall be perfect, as your Heavenly Father is perfect."

The Bible Reveals the Plan of Salvation.

The main purpose of God toward men is that they shall be saved from sin and brought into full fellowship with him. So the climax of the revelation in the Scriptures is the knowledge of the plan of salvation through Jesus Christ. He is the center of the Bible. No matter how much we know about the Bible, its profundity of thought, its literary beauty, its imaginative power; if we do not find Christ there, we have missed the heart of the book.

The Sacred Writings. 2 Tim. 3:15. "And that from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings." Paul did not hesitate, as so many modern scholars do, to call the Bible "sacred." He did not put it on a parity with secular literature, but clearly recognized its unique and divine origin and nature. Paul recognized, also, the inestimable value of early training. As soon as a child is able to understand, he should be told the Bible stories and instructed in the Bible truths.

"Philo, a contemporary of our Lord, says: 'They are taught, so to speak, from their swaddling clothes by their parents, masters, and teachers, in the holy laws, and in the unwritten customs, and to believe in God.'"

"Wise Unto Salvation."

"Which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." There is a wisdom which is not "unto salvation," but has to do only with this world and the physical life. The Bible is profitable for time but also for eternity; it blesses the soul as well as the body; its chief benefit is the salvation from sin which it brings. Faith in Jesus Christ is the essential element in this wisdom. All our Bible study, in private or in the Sunday school, should have salvation for its main object.

"Every scripture inspired of God." "Inspired of God" is a single word in the Greek. The old translation, inserting "is," is placed in the margin of the Revised Version, but the thought is virtually the same. Indeed, it may be regarded as a little stronger to assume the inspiration of Scripture, as here, than to assert it, as in the Authorized Version. "It is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness."

"Holy Scripture teaches the ignorant, corrects the evil and prejudiced, corrects the fallen and erring, and trains in righteousness all men, especially those that need bringing to fuller measures of perfection."

The Bible.

"When I am tired, the Bible is my bed; Or in the dark, the Bible is my light; When I am hungry, it is vital bread."

Third reduction in two years is effective Feb. 1

ONE good reason for using "long distance"—if you are not already familiar with its pleasant and profitable uses—is to be found in its constantly decreasing cost.

Hereafter calls to points 130 to 1500 miles away will cost 5 to 25 cents less. In some cases, the reduction is even more.

The decrease applies on all calls except station-to-station calls made after 7 p. m.

STUDENTS' WEATHER

The dean of one of the popular summer schools in this country recently asked the U. S. weather bureau for information as to the average temperatures for June, July and August in seven of the leading educational centers.

The figures gave Cleveland the lowest average, St. Louis the highest. For some reason, Berkeley, Calif., was not mentioned, although the University of California has a rapidly developing post-graduate school and summer session.

Now, before these various schools begin advertising their mean temperatures or trying to conceal them, as the case requires, there should be some expert investigation of the effect of temperature on the brain of a student.

Humidity must be considered, too. Perhaps the whole question cannot be answered accurately until comparative statistics are compiled showing the grades of winter students and summer students.

Possibly, in the future, those athletes for scholastic degrees will seek not the best equipped school or the best known teachers, but the institution that meets all the various weather tests of temperature, humidity, altitude, sunshine, and so on.

Even the Texas Technological college was not mentioned in this list of important educational institutions, and if the climatic conditions are going to be taken into consideration as well as the other things that go along with the inducements to attend the summer schools, the Texas Tech will have the edge over all of them.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SENATE HAS TROUBLE HOLDING SESSION Q. T. By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington Correspondent for Central Press and The Avalanche ASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—One of our leading associations engaged in the dissemination of Washington news takes great credit to itself for discovering how the senate voted recently, in secret session, on the confirmation of President Coolidge's appointment of Roy O. West to his cabinet, as secretary of the interior.

Tush! Every newspaper man in the capital knows, to the last detail, what happens at all the senate's secret sessions. He knows rather more about the secret sessions than he does about the open ones, because he makes it especially his business to find out. Occasionally a correspondent is accidentally absent from the press gallery during an open session and misses something interesting, but he never neglects to investigate thoroughly when the door is kept shut in his face.

However, ordinarily it is not considered etiquette for our correspondent to broadcast these secret votes. A little make-believe guessing, as to a few senators, is permissible—but not the revelation of every darned senator's vote, showing that really there is no more secrecy about an executive session of the senate than there is about a radio announcement.

The reason for this blurring is obvious enough. All present at one of these secret sessions are shown to keep the whole thing mum. Publication of virtually a stenographic report quite strongly suggests that somebody must have fractured a more or less solemn oath.

There undoubtedly were senators, too, who would have liked to avoid advertising their votes on the Roy O. West proposition any more widely than was absolutely necessary.

Anyway, there was a big majority against making the proceedings officially public. A senator may not care what the correspondents think of his vote—yet prefer not to have his home folks told. Correspondents are comparatively few and—if they can be kept muzzled—harmless. How folk can make trouble.

In addition to being in doubtful form for a correspondent to reveal all that has been concerning the senators' star chamber deliberations, there is some question if it is not slightly risky.

People have been slammed into jail for "contempt of the senate." This news association took a chance on it, nevertheless.

It was not much of a chance, at that. Several senators are pretty sore and would like to give the culprit a taste of the rack and thumb screws if they could, but they realize that they would only be making a bad matter worse if they raised a row.

The fact is that the day for such ostentatious secrecy on Capitol Hill is past.

No doubt we may care what the correspondents think of his vote—yet prefer not to have his home folks told. Correspondents are comparatively few and—if they can be kept muzzled—harmless. How folk can make trouble.

Executive sessions of the senate are a picturesque but anachronistic survival from the olden days when Alexander Hamilton, maybe George Washington and other benefactors believed that the less common pests knew about the government's insides, the better for all concerned.

Not that there are not plenty of statesmen who think the same thing yet, but today it simply is impossible to plug up the leaks, and then perhaps it could be done.

OPEN-WEAVE CLOTH BEST FOR SUN BATHING Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and Hygiene, the Health Magazine

During warm weather all over the country and in resorts in California and Florida, sun bathing has become a popular tonic.

Most people have learned by now that the ultraviolet rays are not transmitted through ordinary window glass. Few people realize the difficulty of securing sufficient ultra-violet while outdoors, unless the rays are permitted to strike an unadorned skin.

The Bureau of Standards, through Drs. Coblentz, Stair and Schoffstall, has recently completed some investigations of the ability of ultraviolet rays to pass through fabrics of various types.

The investigators rightly point out that there is no doubt whatever that, under proper medical supervision, regular exposure to ultraviolet radiation is most beneficial. But on the fact that adults have lived fully clothed and in health for many years prior to the present discussion of the subject, it seems likely that it requires but a small amount of ultraviolet rays to keep the body in health.

Until we know more about the biologic effects of excessive amounts of ultraviolet rays, one should be careful about overexposure. Furthermore, apparently

Q.—Is mercurchrome as effective as iodine as a first-aid measure for wounds? A.—Apparently there is little choice between mercurchrome and iodine in their effectiveness.

The iodine smarts somewhat more than the mercurchrome, and in the case of very severe infection may be somewhat more efficacious.

The chief purpose of the ultraviolet rays is to produce vitamin D within the body, and this is also had in many other ways.

To prevent overexposure from sunlight persons living in tropical countries or places where there is much available sunlight may wear garments of closely woven white fabric. This has high reflecting powers and prevents transmission of the rays.

To prevent heat radiation from falling on the head, it is recommended that the inside of the headgear be painted with aluminum paint, suitable preparation having been made for ventilation.

SO THINK WE

We think there is one at the newspaper man has over the tax assessor. The latter never gets to talk to a rich man.

The wooden wedding anniversary is about the only one that the husband really puts any figure in the way of the wives have it figured out.

We think it is non-ethical for men of the same political faith and belief to talk about each other till after the election. But it will be perfectly all right for republicans to begin bawling each other out now.

We think if it is true that the kaiser did not have anything to do with starting the war, he is thoroughly ought to be congratulated for not having had anything to do with stopping the blame thing.

We think that Georgia school teachers who eloped with the seven-year old school boy, must have at least taught him the first lesson of school—to love his teacher.

January was a hard month for denominational educational institutions. Two of them sustained fire losses of over $400,000.

We think the members of the high way commission of Texas and the board might just as well pretend that they enjoy their department being investigated, for the public is going to have it done anyway.

We think that a great many men make a bigger mistake at operation a small family than they do at operating a big business and they go broke in their business.

We think those New Mexico folks have to say a lot for gasoline especially when there is a five cent tax attached, but they have better roads where they can air out on it.

We think criminals are getting a rather hard deal these days, and about the only thing that they can do in order to escape punishment is to quit their meanness.

We think that Louisiana pair that got their necks cracked yesterday at about twelve o'clock probably realized that they had committed a crime that they could not get away with. This thing of wives killing their husbands in order that they can take another one does not sit well with the average jury.

We think that Lubbock could have about three times as many street lights if the city plant is paying such a large dividend every year. Why not put some of the profit into giving the people more lights on the streets.

The Way Of The World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

The football season has been over for some months, save for the big California game. Baseball will be under way for a new season soon. Looking back over one season of major athletics and contemplating another, one wonders whether the American people aren't a little off balance, a little warped and cramped as to perspective in the matter of athletics.

This attitude is by no means wholly the fault of the boy. Teachers think and talk too much about sports. Parents think and talk too much about sports. Everybody knows there should be enough exercise to keep the body in good order. Everybody believes in whetting the spirit and the mind by means of contest, but to make athletics first is to miss the main point of education and character building.

ASK OURSELVES QUESTIONS The man who innocently believes anything he reads is as gullible as the sunfish that attempts to digest anything offered him from a piece of red flannel to a juicy worm without the slightest care for a possible hidden hook.

Knowledge may be acquired thru reading more rapidly than in any other manner. There is no doubt of this. Still, the wise reader stops a moment when some unusual statement appears, to ask himself whether or not he is grasping for brain food or whether there may not be a hidden hook in the statement.

THIS HAS HAPPENED ASHORETH ASHE, returning from a trip to the West Indies, has gotten herself engaged to her former employer, HOLLIS HART, rich beyond a poor girl's wildest dreams.

Her happy homecoming is almost ruined. Before she has a chance to tell her mother, MAIZIE, of her engagement, she learns that MONTY ENGLISH, who had to his her sweetheart is flying over from New York to see her. Hollis is also flying over. Ashoreth is alarmed, lest they travel together—her fiancé and her ex-sweetheart. There is no illing, of course, what might be divulged under such circumstances. There is, also the unpleasant suspicion that they may arrive at her flat together—and that would be decidedly awkward.

But, worse than Monty's dreaded appearance, is the fact that Maizie has befriended a common little adventuress named SADIE MORON, who was formerly in Hollis Hart's employ. Sadie has already cured money from Hollis. Now he announces her further intention of blackmailing him.

Ashoreth is horrified. Of course, neither her mother nor Sadie realize that Hollis is her fiancé. But Maizie protests, as a matter of common decency. And Sadie turns to Ashoreth.

"Do you blame me, Ash?" she demands. "A guy as rich as him—"

The telephone rings shrilly. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI "Excuse me, please," said Maizie, with her best company manner, and rose to answer.

"Who's No. 1234?" she asked. "Nobody here by that name," Ashoreth's insides rose and fell, and rose again, in that peculiar fashion of insides, when their owners are in great mental distress.

"I guess you got the wrong number," concluded Maizie affably. "And Ashoreth's stomach was curiously soothed.

She put her hand on her heart and decided it would probably slow down in a minute. Her stomach felt like an empty cavern. And that was something.

"I thought maybe it was Monty," said Maizie, smiling. "And Ashoreth, standing near Sadie, lovingly. "I wonder what time he'll get here."

"Monty?" shrieked Sadie. "Is Monty coming to Boston?" "Maizie's flying over," announced Maizie proudly.

"Gee, I wonder how much that costs? There's a guy that don't count his pennies," approved Sadie.

She smiled at Ashoreth. "Guess he must be crazy about you, Ash."

But Ashoreth could not return the smile. She looked at Sadie coldly.

"You don't really mean," she demanded, "that you are going to sue Mr. Hart?"

"Certainly not!" Sadie laid down her knife and fork, clattering. "And what's it to you?" she asked.

"But Sadie, it would be so dishonorable! Besides, you signed an agreement to leave him alone."

"An agreement?" she said, frowning. "What do you mean, Ashoreth?"

Sadie crimsoned, and shoved her chair back from the table. "That's right!" she yelled. "Spill the beans!"

"Doesn't mother know the whole story?" Ashoreth abandoned all pretense at eating. "It's your own fault, Sadie. If I've given something away, I'm sure I don't know what you've been telling."

"Why, she told me, began Maizie hesitantly—

But Sadie cut in sharply. "Oh, let's talk about something else."

"You began it," pointed out Ashoreth.

"Yeah. Well, we'll drop it now." Maizie rose to take the dishes away, scraping them at the table, and gathering up the silver.

"If you can't have apple pie," she instructed, "keep your forks. We got some lovely chocolate pudding, with whipped cream. I think maybe you'd rather have that. The pie's just a little doughy-looking. Maybe the oven was too slow. . . . We'll have another cup of coffee? There's a whole half jar of nice heavy cream left."

a bird," wailed her mother. "Just peck at your food, that's all."

"Well, I'll eat a big helping of pudding," consoled Ashoreth, "with clews of whipped cream."

"There's a swell program on the radio tonight," announced Sadie, sipping her coffee.

"I just got the batteries charged," contributed Maizie. "Monty wrote, and said he'd get me an electric one. But I wasn't going to let the boy pay for batteries and I knew he'd never send me a bill."

"What time is Monty getting here?" Sadie was making conversation politely, and with apparent effort. "Do you know what time he left New York?"

Ashoreth shook her head. "No, I don't. He wired mother that he was arriving by plane, and that he was immediately. It sounds sort of mysterious."

Maizie smiled wilyly. "It sounds sort of like he was in love," she speculated shrewdly. "Don't you think so, Sadie?"

"Who-me? Oh, you bet." Sadie folded her napkin carefully. "Now don't you two do the dishes. I'm going to run down to the store. I'll be right back. Want me to take your letter, Ash?"

Ashoreth was confused. "No, thanks," she said. "It isn't quite ready yet. But don't wait. It isn't awfully important. Tomorrow'll be time enough."

"Now, honey, you got right in and lie down," ordered Maizie gently, when Sadie had gone. "You look all tuckered out. I'll just clear the table, and pile up the dishes. And we'll let them go till morning. Sadie's real good about helping. . . . And don't you pay any attention to her talk about Mr. Hart dear."

"You don't think she means it, mother?" "Oh, she means it right enough." Maizie's mouth closed grimly.

"But I went down to see Mr. Corum yesterday, and I gave him a good piece of my mind. Blackmail—that's all it is."

"I told him Sadie was under my protection, and I wasn't going to stand for any monkey tricks. Not from him, nor nobody else. I told him, from all I ever heard, Mr. Hart was a good, decent man. And Sadie herself wouldn't ever say he'd been anything but a gentleman to her."

Maizie lowered her voice. "Do you know, dear, what those two were cooking up—Sadie and this lawyer of hers? Well, you'd never guess."

Maizie shoved her daughter into a chair. "Sit down," she ordered affectionately, "and take a load off your feet."

"What was it, Mums?" . . . Ashoreth wondered if she should keep the excitement out of her voice. "Well, it seems—Maizie bent a little nearer, as though she was imparting a secret, and the very words had a ring of mystery about them. Mr. Hart's office that he got off somewhere with some woman. And this Dan Corum—he's a terrible unscrupulous man, Ashoreth—

he figured, if he could get any proof, they'd be able to blackmail Mr. Hart. Well, I don't know exactly what Sadie had to do with that part of it. But she's been snooping around his office, trying to pick up some information. I suppose—"

"And, then there's something about a hired girl at Mr. Hart's assistant's house. She isn't really a hired girl at all, but a detective from Corum's office. She's trying to worm things out of the assistant. I suppose, maybe she's opening letters, for all I know. It's an awful dirty mess, Ashoreth."

"But, mother!" "Sh, child," cautioned Maizie. "And be careful, lamb, that you don't let Sadie know what an old sleuth you got for a mother."

Maizie chuckled richly. "Wouldn't she be surprised though?" "Why, mother, it's dreadful."

Ashoreth took her mother's hands, and held them tightly. Her own were like ice. "Don't say worry, dear. I got Sadie under my wing now, and she's not going to get in any trouble. What that girl needs is a mother's eye on her. The trouble with you young people," pronounced Maizie, "is you forget your mothers. I know it all before you. Sadie now—she thinks I'm an old fogey, and innocent as a babe unborn. Talking with a girl like her wouldn't do you any good, so I just took things in my own hands, and acted accordingly."

"But, Mums, she'll go right ahead. You can't stop her. Besides, you don't know everything she told Corum."

Maizie's lips tightened. "All I know," she said, "is that little snip of a Sadie Morton is playing right in the hands of a blackmailing—that's got more brains in his little finger than Sadie's got in her whole head. And that's not healthy for Sadie. No girl living

HOLY INNOCENTS Sleep, little baby, sleep. The holy angels love thee, And guard thee from all harm. A blessed watch above thee, No spirit can come near. Nor evil devil to harm thee: Sleep, sweet, devoid of fear. Where others need alarm thee, The Love which doth not sleep, The eternal Arms surround thee. The Shepherd of the sheep In perfect love hath found thee. Sleep through the holy night, Christ-kept from snare and sorrow, Until thou wake to light And love and warmth tomorrow. —Christina G. under my roof is going to get mixed up in anything that's not decent and above board. "I told Corum I'd go straight to the district attorney, if he didn't drop the whole business. I asked him what Mr. Hart ever did that was wrong to Sadie. And I asked Sadie the same question. Sadie says herself he was perfectly decent all the time she worked for him, and I believe her. But this Corum--he intimidated things. "Now, what I think, Ashoreth, is this--they're planning, between them, to dig up some dirt on Mr. Hart--and maybe it'll be true, and maybe it won't. And they'll ask him for some hush money, and say they'll tell what they know, if he don't give it to them. Perhaps it's true--about this woman they say he's with now. Maybe he'll want to protect her name. "But if he stands up on his two feet, and says he won't give them a thing--then this Corum is going to wobble Sadie into filing out a paper, swearing that Mr. Hart did things to her..."

"But he never did, Mums, I know he never did." "Of course he didn't honey," Maizie comforted her child, caressing her adorably. "You feel about it just like I do, don't you, dear?" "You and mother'll take care of Sadie. She's a foolish little girl, and she needs somebody like us to sort of watch over her... Sh!" Maizie lifted her hand warningly. "Here she is now, dear." Ashoreth sprang to her feet. "Maybe it's Monty," she said. "Maybe it is..." Maizie smoothed her apron, and put her hands to her hair... "I'll run out, and turn the gas on under the coffee pot. I'll bet he feels just like a good cup of hot coffee. And some brownies--Monty loves my brownies." She was in the kitchen, when the door opened. (To Be Continued.)

Real tragedy in the next chapter. A dreadful, dreadful thing happens.

Bulls Continue To Top Stock Market; Call Money Rises

Banks Calling $40,000,000 To Meet Government Payments; New Bond Offerings Total Much

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Asst. Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (P)—The bull movement in the rails went through its second day under full steam on the stock market today, drawing with it a wide assortment of industrial and specialties.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent, but was stepped up to 8 as banks called $40,000,000 to meet the dividend and interest checks sent out overnight. Six per cent call money is looked for again next week, however, when the payments return to the banks. The jump in call money was attributed in part to the underwriting of new bond offerings during the week, which amounted to more than $137,000,000.

The fact that the reserve bank announced no further ear marking of gold to offset the renewed flow from London was cheering to the bull contingent, and an easier undertone in time money was interpreted as auguring some improvement in the credit situation.

The day's news included a further 1-4 cent increase in the price of domestic copper, more orders for report that Atlantic Refining's earnings for 1928 will be about 5 times the 1927 showing, announcement that International Cement earnings gained about 16 per cent last year, reports of January sales by Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck showing gains of 37 and 21 per cent respectively over January 1927.

The Associated Press Index of 50 industrials reached a new high at 217.2, and of 20 rails, at 140.6, nearly 5 and 6 points, respectively, above their levels at the beginning of January. The Utilities sagged slightly on profit-taking.

Radio having been some time in retirement, made one of its spectacular appearances. It shot up about 28 points to 398, fell back to 386 in a short-lived reaction caused by the advance in the call loan rate in the afternoon, then rebounded again to '03, or 17 points under its record price.

In the rails, Canadian Pacific shot up more than 10 points, while Atlantic Coast Line, Central of New Jersey, Chesapeake and Ohio, Illinois Central, Pere Marquette, and New Haven mounted 5 to 9 points mostly to record prices. New York Central touched 204, the highest ever.

Motors turned heavy. Packard and Chrysler losing about 3 points and General Motors closing about a point lower.

Commodity markets were steady to firm. Wheat mounted nearly 2 cents a bushel on further reports of unsatisfactory winter crop, and corn improved as result of its good export position. Cotton was dull.

Business Gain Is Retained In 1929

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (P)—Dun's review tomorrow will say: After a full month of the new year, points of gain in business remain the predominant place. Contrasts similar to those previously witnessed are shown, but a simultaneous advance was not to be expected, and it is a significant fact that some of the major lines have had a progressive expansion. Unusual pressure of demand is disclosed by high steel mill operations, with the situation further strengthened by sizeable purchases of railroad equipment, and continued activity in this field has a constructive bearing on commercial conditions generally. With the present exceptionally favorable trend in the great basic industry, reflecting forward movements in various allied branches, the unsatisfactory aspects in some other quarters are modified. Mainly, the negative phases are limited in scope and influence, and depression in commodity prices, while accentuated in certain instances, has only a restricted effect.

Talk Of Improved Position Rallies New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (P)—Early declines under continued liquidation were followed by rallies in the cotton market today on trade buying and covering and talk of an improved technical position. May contracts sold up from 19.58 to 19.86 and closed at 19.85. The general market closed firm at a net advance of 3 to 7 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 2 to 8 points in response to rather disappointing cables, and sold about 9 to 13 points net lower in the early trading. There was a little southern and local selling on the decline. This carried prices off to 19.68 for spring months and 19.03 for new October contract. The bulk of the pressure, however, was attributed to further liquidation. After initial offerings had been absorbed, there appeared to be comparatively little pressure. Some local traders regarded this as indicating that liquidation had about run its course and that the technical position of the market was likely to result in week-end rallies, such views prompted covering. There may have been some buying for an upward reaction.

While fluctuations during the afternoon were somewhat irregular, the best prices of the day were reached in the late trading. March sold up to 19.84 and the new October contract to 19.24 or about 5 to 8 points net higher on the more active positions.

Closing prices were within a point or two of the best on most months. There was moderate volume of business on the early decline, but trading later in the day was comparatively quiet.

No fresh news of importance was mentioned in connection with the rally from the early low level. The weekly statistics came in for comparatively little comment. Fear of possible labor troubles in Lancashire may have had some influence on the opening decline and a tendency to restrict buying on the advance which followed.

A cable from Manchester said that order lists in the cloth market were running down and that the market was flat. Private cable advices from Liverpool reported continental buying and covering in the market there but said business in cotton cloths with India and the Near East was restricted and that yarns were inactive.

Exports today 45,382, making 5,669,111 so far this season. Port receipts 22,639. U. S. port stocks 2,222,178.

Fort Worth Market Has Light Trading

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1. (P)—All classes of cattle and calves sold about steady on the livestock market here today. While the supply was about in line with the same day last week, it was only about half the number that came on the corresponding day last year.

Trading in steers for slaughter purposes limited to about three straight loads. Sales at 2.25 to 10.50 or about steady. The demand for steers was very narrow but values steady.

A few packages of bulls changed hands during the day with the better heavy bulls at 8.00 to 8.50 and common light ones around 6.50.

Very few slaughter yearlings and heifers included in the day's receipts—odd head and package lots of the common and fair kind. Values about steady.

Except for a few loads of very good cows, sales consisted mostly of mixed loads. Values on call classes considered about in line with yesterday's trading. A 3 car lot sold at 8.25, while other loads sold at 7.25 to 8.10. The light supply of canners and cutters sold at 4.50 to 5.75.

Nothing especially good in calves included in the day's offering with local packer buyers taking the bulk of the supply. Values fully steady, quality considered. A car in the southern division sold at 10.50 and a few packages of medium calves up to 11.25. Cull calves at 6.00 to 6.05.

The light sheep supply sold fully steady to a good demand. Woolled feeder lambs and yearlings sold at 14.50 and woolled wethers at 10.50, and fall shorn feeder lambs at 14.25.

Hogs considered around a quarter higher, rail top 9.50 and truck top 8.85. Bulk 175-250 pound butchers at 8.40 to 9.50; packing sows at 7.50 to 8.25.

"Uncle Billy" Clark announced Friday that he had performed the wedding ceremony for H. P. Norris and Mrs. Roena Austin, at his home Thursday evening, this making the 24th marriage at which he has officiated since taking office as justice of the peace.

Marriage licenses during January exceeded suits for divorce, as filed with the district clerk here, by 45, there having been 69 marriage licenses issued and 24 divorce suits filed.

Weekly Statistics Gives Aggressive Touch To Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1. (P)—An early decline of 9 to 12 points met a good trade demand and short covering in the cotton market today and although there was a slight reaction at noon the market fired up in late trading making new highs for the day and closing steady at net advances of 3 to 10 points. May after trading down to 19.05 advanced to 19.24 and closed at 19.21, or 4 points net higher.

Liverpool cables were slightly easier and first trades here showed losses of 3 to 4 points in sympathy. Selling continued somewhat aggressive after the start on fears of bearish weekly statistics. Some of the offerings were probably execution of overnight selling orders. March dropped to 19.04, May 19.05 and July 19.08, or 9 to 12 points down from yesterday's close.

This dip attracted fair trade buying on scale down orders and there was more or less concern about shorts which developed a scarcity of contracts. Just before noon March recovered to 19.17, and May and July to 19.20, or 12 to 15 points up from the lows and 5 to 4 points above yesterday's close.

At midday there was a flurry of selling when Secretary Hester's pointer for the week proved slightly bearish in character and on the subsequent reaction prices lost 5 to 7 points of the gain.

Receipts 32,740; for week 171,923; for year 7,951,377; last year 6,770,335. Exports 37,382; for week 167,550; for year 5,501,041; last year 4,515,989. Stocks 2,283,418; last year 2,354,978. Stock on shipboard 134,831; last year 129,198. Spot sales 16,107; last year 20,660.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 1. (P)—(U. S. D. A.)—Sharply higher prices were affected in the hog market today with values ranging from 30 to 40 cents over Thursday's level. Choice lightweight offerings scored 19.10 at St. Louis for the day's extreme top. Broad shipping orders and relatively light receipts were the main factors which influenced the stronger undertone. Total receipts were 79,550, against 128,154 last Friday and 152,528 a year ago.

Fat lambs sold on a generally steady to 25 cents higher basis at most markets, with choice closely sorted fed lambs reaching 17.25 at Chicago for the day's high mark. Some weakness was in evidence on matured classes and fat ewes sold on a steady to 25 cents lower level. Desirable fat ewes sold largely from 10.00 down. Offerings totaled 25,250 as compared to 38,412 a week ago and 38,126 a year ago.

Limited arrivals of fed steers and yearlings at all markets was responsible for a slight reaction in values. Most points reported steady to strong prices, while light weight steers and yearlings at Chicago were 15 to 25 cents higher. Nothing choice was offered, with the best selling at 13.75. Butcher classes held at steady to strong levels, with the demand moderate.

Trade in stockers and feeders closed dull all around the loop and closing prices were unevenly lower in sympathy with the decline in killing classes. Liberal holdovers were reported at the river markets. Total receipts were 10,325 against 9,882 a week ago and 10,187 a year ago.

Poll Tax Receipts Expected to Reach Around 6,000 Mark

Although 1929 is an "off year" politically, it is expected that by the time a complete check-up of poll taxes has been made, it will show a fair percentage of Lubbock county citizens were sufficiently interested in their county to pay their $1.75 for the privilege of voting this year.

Last year there were upwards of 7,200 poll taxes paid, and approximately 5,000 to 6,000 are expected for this year.

Beginning yesterday morning all taxes not paid were increased by a penny.

Asks Careful Inspection Woodruff's resolution called for a "careful inspection" and inquiry into criticisms which had been made to the end that "mistakes and irregularities," if any were made or exist, might be corrected.

It was proposed that results of the investigation be reported to the special session, in the event one is called.

The house adopted a resolution by which the board of control to accompany the board of control to investigate feasibility of purchasing 2,000 acres adjoining the state juvenile training school which the state now is renting.

Main street has seen a number of new business buildings, particularly for automobile establishments, constructed the past year, and, with the new Hilton Hotel at the old Merrill hotel location, a movement of building expansion to the north part of Lubbock is indicated.

Double Hanging

of the Church of Assumption, seated in front of her. "Oh, well, I suppose I must change this life for a better one," she said.

She walked from the cell with her left arm around the neck of Jailer Martel. She had only seven feet to walk from her cell to the two steel, double doors, extending out from her cell tier, making the death trap.

Her eyes were covered by a handkerchief and she did not see the rope, hanging from a steel eye in the roof to the corner of an adjoining cell as she took her place on the top. As she stood there, with the allers trussing her hands behind her back, and her legs at the knees with a clothes line, she exclaimed:

"My mother! My mother! Oh, my God, isn't this a terrible thing? Don't let me hang there too long. Don't let me suffer. God forgive everybody. Isn't this a terrible thing? This is awful. This is murder itself."

Cowl Placed Overhead

The black cowl was placed over her head. The rope was adjusted with the knot at the right ear.

"That rope is too tight around my neck," she protested. Then as her knees gave way, and she struggled with the jailer, the trap was sprung.

The body swung for eleven minutes, and at 12:15 the physicians pronounced her dead. The body was cut down, the prayer beads with the cross were twisted from her fingers and she was carried to a cell cot by four men.

Meanwhile, Dr. Dreher was held a few feet away in a cell behind a solid steel door. He could see nothing but could hear all.

Dreher Is Brought In

The trap was released, the rope readjusted, the solid door was drawn out by Sheriff Peot and his assistants. Dr. Dreher had both hands around the neck of Dr. J. A. McCormack, minister of the Franklin Methodist church, following him in prayer. The doctor turned quickly, stepped forward, grasped Sheriff Peot by the hand, and then Jailer Martel's.

"I don't blame you, I forgive everybody," he said. He walked vigorously out of the cell, up ten winding stairs to the trap followed by his minister praying aloud. As he mounted the stairs, he added:

"Poor Mis Ada has gone. God have pity on her soul. God have pity. Oh, my God."

Bill Introduced by Pope Asks Control On Buses

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. (P)—Regulation of motor bus transportation would be taken from the railroad commission and placed with the highway commission under a bill prepared by Representative Pope of Corpus Christi today.

His bill declares this to be "contrary to sound public policy and violative of the meaning and spirit of the constitution and statutes of the state and United States with reference to trusts and monopolies."

OCTOPUS TRAPS

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Scotland Yard is considering the adoption of a novel trap for bandits in motor cars. The device consists of a mat of steel tenacles and wire chains, placed across the road. When the bandit car crosses the mat, the wires and chains grip the chassis and entangle it in such a manner that a fast-moving car is stopped in less than 100 yards.

Rainbows may mean the approach of either good or bad weather.

Big Water System Is Being Planned For Eleven Towns

Distribution Line From Quitaque Creek Proposed; Project to Be Considered At Childress Feb. 7

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Feb. 1.—A gigantic water distribution system is being planned for a number of cities and towns in the lower Panhandle section according to a statement here, by W. A. Ross of Childress.

It is proposed to lay a pipeline of large size from Childress to the Quitaque creek waterfalls at the edge of the Caprock, eighty miles west of Childress. A line of smaller capacity is planned from Childress eastward through Quanah to Vernon, Ross said.

Towns to be touched by the pipeline, or served with feeder lines, would be Turkey, Estelline, Hinkland, Goodlet, Acme, Chillicothe, Tolbert and Medicine Mound. The total length of the line would be 150 miles.

Childress has a large lake that supplies the city but, due to rapid growth, a larger supply of pure water must be obtained according to Mr. Ross. Quanah also has outgrown her supply received from wells along the Red river valley basin.

Quitaque creek has a natural flow of 7,000,000 gallons of pure spring water daily it is said. The project will be considered further at Childress on February 7.
