Death of a legend

LOS ANGELES — She was one of the last of the Hollywood glamour queens, the shapely sweater girl who inspired the legend that aspiring actresses could simply come to town and get discovered at a soda fountain. Lana Turner died Thursday at 75. Page 11A.

Kremlin purge

MOSCOW — In a stunning Kremlin purge, President Boris Yeltsin fired three top security ministers Friday for the botched handling of a bloody hostage-taking by Chechen rebels in southern Russia. The shakeup, aimed at defusing Russia's worst political crisis since tanks fired on the White House in 1993, all but ensures the government of triumph in Saturday's no-confidence vote in parliament. Jackson gears up

WASHINGTON — Eager to remove an obstacle to a possible third presidential run, Jesse Jackson is calling past supporters and allies seeking help retiring his 1988 campaign debt. The sudden urgency to eliminate the seven-year-old debt comes as Jackson intensifies his criticism that President Clinton has turned his back on blacks and other traditional Democratic constituencies. Officials ask residents' help in fight against vandalism

By Katherine Potest
Staff Writer

Law officials are asking for the community's cooperation in combating a recent sharp increase in vandalism in the city and on school property.

"Although we traditionally have an increase during the summer months, we feel that the numbers this year are outrageous," Czech said during a press conference Friday.

Czech said the number of reported incidents from the end of May until June 28 was 160, up about 40-50 over the previous month.

During that same time, the school district suffered about $3,000 worth of damage from vandalism, according to Midland Independent School District Police Chief Dan Walkenshaw.

Czech said the vandalism in the city had occurred primarily on the northwest side and primarily to vehicles, especially those in retail parking lots and those parked in front of residences.

The vandalism has occurred between 11 p.m. and 3 a.m., Czech said. Most of the incidents involved windshields and mirrors being knocked out with golf clubs that have been stolen.

Walkenshaw said vandalism at the schools also was mainly broken-out windows, either with guns or rocks.

The schools that have been hit are Bush, Parker, Long, Henderson, Burnet, Lamar and Bonham elementary schools and both high schools. The most damage — $800 worth — was done at Bush Elementary School on June 3, when several windows were broken out.

Czech and Walkenshaw both said that officials believe the vandalism is the work of juveniles.

"We caught the kids who had vandalized Bush about three times, and they were eight years old," Walkenshaw said.

"These acts cost taxpayers many thousands of dollars and are absolutely senseless," Czech said. "They also display a complete lack of responsibility by the juveniles committing the crime and lack of responsibility of the parents who are allowing their children to run the streets without any idea of what they are doing or where they are at."

In Texas, parents can be held responsible for crimes committed by children

Base closure pressure hits White House

■ Clinton must decide if he will accept or reject committee's recommendations, which include closing of Kelly AFB.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As the independent base-closure commission formally presents its list of recommendations to President Clinton, the White House is being pressured from all sides.

Californians are clamoring for Clinton to reject the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission's list. Prominent House Republicans, meanwhile, are urging Clinton to adopt the recommendations and forward them to Congress.

In the past week, White House and Pentagon officials repeatedly have expressed "concern" about the list, particularly the recommendations going counter to the Defense Department's suggestions.

The commission's chairman, former Illinois Democratic Sen. Alan Dixon, weighed in Friday, on the eve of the formal presentation of the recommendations to the White House.

"It's a prudent, sensible list, arrived at openly and fairly, and we're proud of our work," said Dixon, warning that the administration would jeopardize $19.3 billion in savings if the list is rejected.

Dixon went to great lengths to defend the commission's two most controversial decisions — to close two of the Air Force's five depots, Kelly AFB in San Antonio and McClellan AFB in Sacramento, Calif.

He dismissed arguments that the depots' closure would leave the Air Force perilously close to full maintenance capacity. "If you close two, I would submit that you still have plenty of capacity," Dixon told a news conference.

The mixed impact of the recommendations on Texas has left state leaders in a quandary.

Seven Texas House members wrote the president this week, asking him to reject the list.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said Friday he would like the president to remand the list to the commission with the narrow request to reexamine only the Air Force depot issue.

But, Gramm cautioned that if the list goes back to the commission, the panel theoretically could revisit other decisions, including its recommendations to spare Red River Army Depot in Texarkana and Brooks AFB in San Antonio. The Pentagon had requested the closure of both those bases, which were saved only after hard-fought battles by community and congressional leaders.

"I think if the president rejects the list that we will have to be prepared to go back and refigure each and every battle because everything will be subject to reconsideration," Gramm said.

But the senator said he isn't opposed to a new battle.

"I'd love to get another crack, espe-

Appeals court ruling upholds restrictions for 'indecent' programming on radio, TV

WASHINGTON (NYT) — A sharply divided U.S. appeals court Friday upheld regulations that prohibit radio and television stations from carrying sexually oriented "indecent" programs between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m., a legal defeat for broadcasters and civil liberties groups.

The 7-to-4 decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit essentially preserves restrictions that Congress imposed in 1993. The court emphatically rejected arguments by broadcasters that the restrictions were too broad and said the government had a "compelling interest" in shielding children from steamy programs beamed over the airwaves.

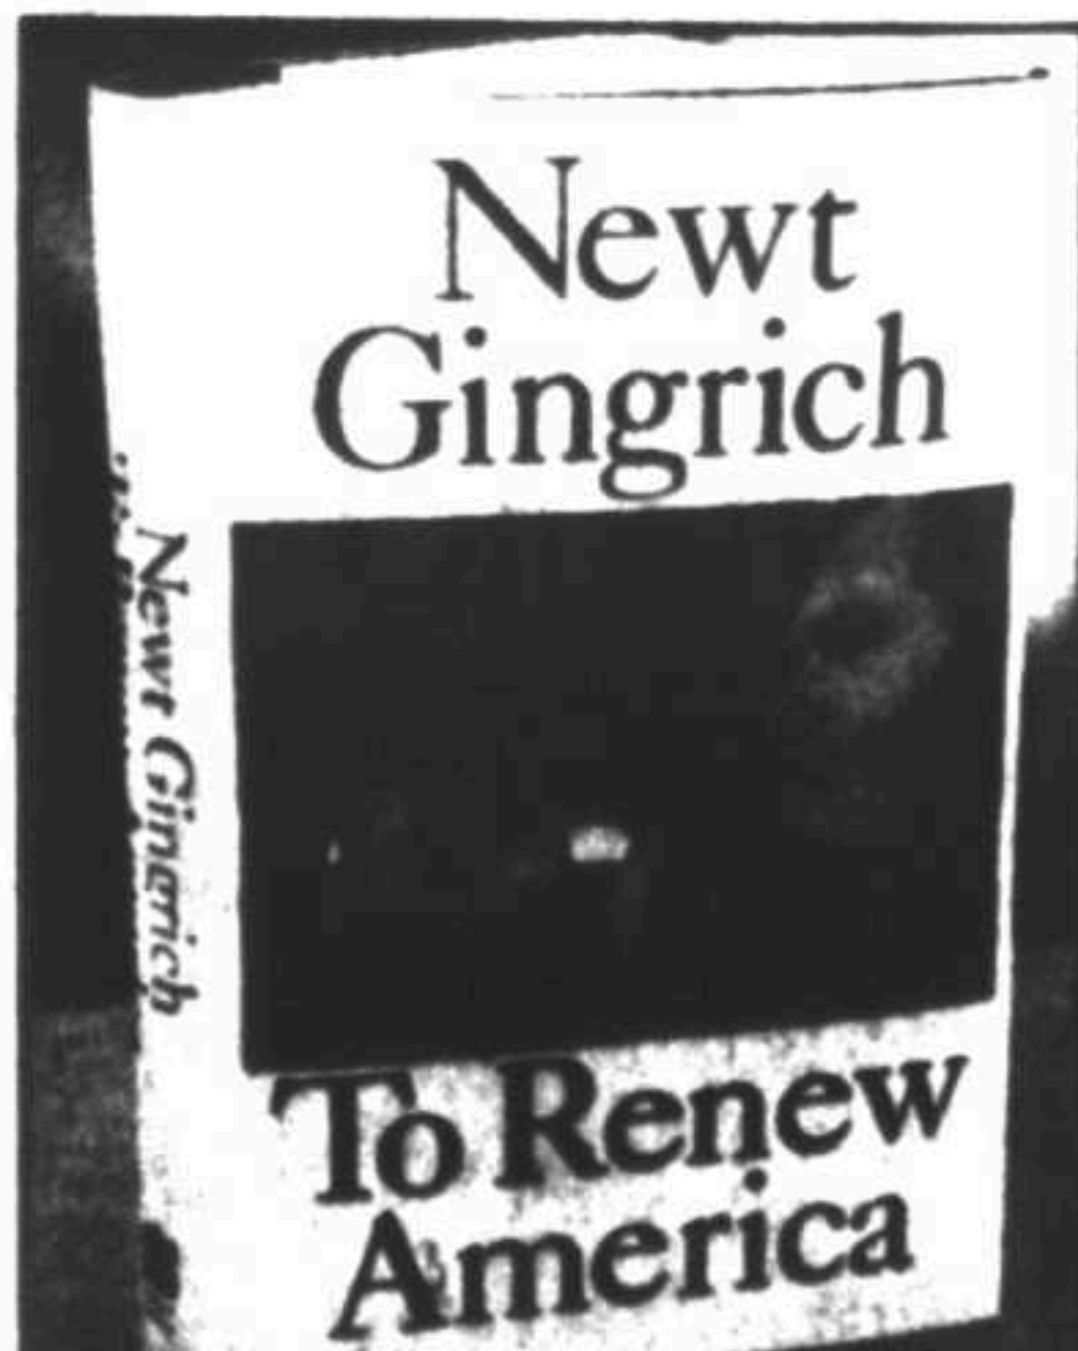

"It is fanciful to believe that the vast majority of parents who wish to shield their children from indecent material can effectively do so without meaningful restrictions on the airwaves," said the opinion, written by Judge James L. Buckley.

The decision is a turning point in a tortuous eight-year legal battle over steps by Congress and the Federal Communications Commission to clamp down on steamy programming. Twice in the past eight years, the same appellate court has rejected efforts to expand earlier restrictions, saying they were too broad to be constitutional.

Friday's ruling comes at a time when Congress has aggressively sought to impose new restrictions on sexual material over television and computer networks, and when presidential candidates like Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the majority leader, are making

Gingrich's book reveals thoughts on leadership

By Jill Lawrence
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — At long last, The Book. No, not the one about the pouting sex kitten. This is "To Renew America," in which a teen-aged Newt Gingrich concludes he has "no moral choice" but to become a leader — and then grows up to be speaker of the House.

Born in controversy over a $4.5 million advance, which the author regrettably declined, the book is not exactly a beach read.

It is more of a primer on the flower of provocative thinking, a look into the active brain of a political figure credited with reinvigorating both the speakership and the Republican Party.

Much of the book is drawn from lectures and speeches Gingrich has given in his political role and to students in his "Renewing American Civilization" course. His familiar gurus — the "Future Shock" Tofflers, management expert Edwards Deming and conservative author Marvin Olasky — are in evidence, as are his familiar causes — zoos, Habitat for Human-ty, Earning for Learning.

Gingrich does reflect briefly on the 1994 elections and the GOP congressional takeover. He first realized he would be speaker nearly two months before the election, he says, and initially drafted a biting speech to deliver upon his ascension.

But Gingrich says a congressman's "powerful sermonette on the spirit of reconciliation" at a church service that morning so moved him that he rewrote his remarks even as the

WEATHER WATCH

Midland could see rain this weekend

Staff Report

More cooling rain may be gracing the West Texas landscape this weekend and through the nation's Independence Day celebration on Tuesday.

The National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is projecting a 20 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms today and a 30 percent chance of additional rainfall tonight.

The sky is to be partly cloudy.

Today's winds are to be southeasterly at 10 to 20 mph, and the temperature is to be in the mid-80s.

Tonight's low temperature is to be in the mid-60s.

For Sunday, the NWS is calling for a 20 percent chance of late-afternoon thunderstorms. The high temperature is to be in the lower 90s.

The NWS is forecasting a slight chance of mainly afternoon and evening thunderstorms on Monday and on Independence Day on Tuesday. The daytime high temperature on those days is to be between 90 and 95 degrees. The overnight low temperature is to be in the mid-60s to the upper 60s.

Friday's peak temperature was 80 degrees, and the overnight low temperature was 61 degrees.

The record high temperature for June 30 is 106 degrees in 1994, and the date's record low temperature is 56 degrees in 1982.

STATE

A cool front gave many Texans relief from the summer heat Friday, but many areas experienced the scattered storms that came with it. Skies across the state, except in the Big Bend region, were partly to mostly cloudy, and most of Texas faced at least the chance of rains, some heavy.

Temperatures remained in the 80s throughout most of West and North Texas during daylight hours, while readings inched into the 90s in some South Texas points. Del Rio recorded the highest temperature at 93 degrees.

cially at Kelly because I think we've got a very strong case there," he said. "If (the commission) could be directed just to relook at the Air Logistics Centers, I'd obviously be happy about it."

In addition to Kelly, the commission recommended closing Reese AFB in Lubbock and Bergstrom Air Reserve Base in Austin. It spared Red River, Brooks, Laughlin AFB in Del Rio and Corpus Christi Naval Air Station. Some 15,000 jobs would be lost in Texas under the commission's current scenario, 13,000 in San Antonio alone.

Even as lawmakers in California — which is vital to Clinton's election hopes — are pressuring the president to reject the list, some Republicans are exerting their own pressure.

"Rejection of the commission's recommendations for overt political reasons will raise serious questions about the integrity of the entire process," House Majority Leader Dick Armey of Irving and House National Security Committee Chairman Floyd Spence, R-S.C., wrote the president.

'I'd love to get another crack, especially at Kelly because I think we've got a very strong case there.'

— Sen. Phil Gramm

Armedy authored the legislation establishing the base closure process.

Clinton has until July 15 to accept or send back the current list. Once Clinton accepts it, Congress can only reject the list in its entirety. Otherwise, the recommendations are final.

White House deputy press secretary Ginny Terzano denied a report in Friday's Washington Times that the White House already has decided to send the list back to the commission.

"The president has yet to see the report, yet alone review it," she said. "You should expect no decision by the White House before the end of the Fourth of July weekend."

In order to combat vandalism, Czech said residents should remember to lock their vehicle doors and park in secured places. In addition, he said more than 80 percent of the vehicles that are stolen have their keys in the ignition.

"The bottom line is that the police department needs your help in stopping these senseless crimes and parents must assume responsibility for their children's whereabouts and their children's actions," Czech said.

RULING: Court upholds 'indecent' programming restrictions attacks on such material a prominent part of their campaigns.

But the court itself was split; all seven Republican appointees supported the rules, while the four Democratic appointees issued lengthy dissents. The suit was brought by broadcasters and an alliance of civil liberties groups, led by Action for Children's Television, a nonprofit organization. The plaintiffs are virtually certain to appeal to the Supreme Court.

The new ruling by a full panel of the court will bring little immediate change to what people see or hear over radio and television, and it does not apply to all cable television. But it is likely to lead to tighter restrictions, because the court ordered the government to expand the prohibition from 10 p.m. to midnight. As a result, media experts said Friday, the decision could affect shows like ABC's hit series "NYPD Blue," which usually airs at 10 p.m. and periodically contains profane language and nudity.

"Parents and the public are the winners," said Reed E. Hundt, chairman of the FCC, after Friday's decision was released. "The court's action," he added, "serves the goal of confining this material to the hours when minors are less likely to be exposed."

Broadcasters and other opponents of indecency restrictions said the decision was a major defeat.

"It's very disappointing, and it is a sharp departure from the approach reflected in earlier court decisions," said Timothy Dyk, a lawyer here who represented the major television networks and argued the case in court.

Peggy Charren, head of Action for Children's Television, said the decision was chilling. "Too often we try to protect children by doing in free speech," she said. "Indecency to some people might be sex education, and that's the problem. Who defines indecency? The censors define it."

Government restrictions against "indecency" over television and radio have been a quagmire for policy makers. In 1973, the Supreme Court ruled that the government had a right to restrict indecency in broadcasting, and initial definitions were largely couched in terms of the famous "seven dirty words" described by the comedian George Carlin.

Afternoon accident

A Midland driver, Jean Goodwin, was transported to the hospital about 3:30 p.m. Friday after being involved in an accident with a pickup driven by Odessa Billy Talley. Preliminary police reports indicated Ms. Goodwin was traveling southbound on the Loop 250 service road; Talley was eastbound on the Andrews Highway service road.

Egypt, Sudan maintain verbal hostilities

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Sudan fired off a new verbal barrage against Egypt on Friday and staged military maneuvers beside the Nile. But the two angry neighbors confined themselves largely to boasting and kept their guns muzzled.

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak has called Sudan's leaders "a gang of criminals" and accused them of orchestrating the attempt on his life in Ethiopia. Sudanese officials say they are ready to defend "anything, even the invasion of Sudan."

Since Monday, when gunmen fired on Mubarak in the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa, the rhetoric has steadily heated up. But only one or two skirmishes have erupted along the countries' disputed border. Three people were reported dead.

The verbal abuse was the worst in years, but Sudan-Egypt relations have been deteriorating since 1989 when Lt. Gen. Omar el-Bashir took power in a bloodless coup and established an Islamic fundamentalist government.

Egypt has regularly accused Sudan — which is on the U.S. list of terror-sponsoring states — of backing the Egyptian Muslim militants trying to topple Mubarak's secular government and install Islamic rule.

By Friday, after a series of not-so-veiled threats from Mubarak, the Sudanese were talking as if they expected Egyptian forces to come storming across the border at any moment.

El-Bashir attended military exercises at a camp on the Nile River and one Islamic group asked for a "general mobilization" of citizen volunteers to ward off any aggression.

State Minister Ghazi Salah-Eddeen told a Lebanese daily that Mubarak had better not carry out any threats against Sudan.

"Any attack on the Sudan by Egypt will result in a big massacre for the invading army," he declared.

In fact, Egypt's military is more than double the size of Sudan's. It has a standing force of 440,000 and reserve units of 250,000. It is supplied with U.S. military gear and fought in the 1991 Gulf war on the American side.

GOP leadership delays Laughlin's appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House's newest Republican, Texas Greg Laughlin, heads off for the Fourth of July congressional recess as a man without an official committee assignment.

The Republican leadership will wait until the House reconvenes July 10th before bringing legislation to the floor allowing the four-term West Columbia lawmaker to join the influential House Ways and Means Committee.

Democrats have been in an uproar since Laughlin defected to the GOP earlier this week, becoming the fourth congressional Democrat to jump ship since last November.

The Democrats' ire was stirred after Republicans promised Laughlin a prized seat on Ways and Means but refused to boost Democratic representation on the panel.

After keeping the House in a rare all-night session Wednesday night to display their anger, Democratic leaders warned of further disruption unless their demand for a Ways and Means seat is met.

That threat apparently prompted Republicans to temporarily delay their seating of Laughlin on Ways and Means. The 232-member House GOP caucus on Thursday unanimously approved his assignment to the panel.

More state news/14A

Not wanting to push the tiff into the night Friday — delaying the start of a nine-day recess — House Majority Leader Dick Armey took to the floor Friday morning and said Laughlin's committee seating wouldn't take place until after the House returns to business July 10.

Republicans predict Democrats will try to obstruct passage of the necessary legislation allowing the GOP to boost the Ways and Means Committee's size to a 22-15 Republican-Democratic ratio.

"We expect that they will use a lot of procedural motions in the course of that day to express their frustration," said Ed Gillespie, an Armey spokesman.

A spokesman for House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri didn't immediately return a telephone call.

In deciding to delay the vote, Gillespie said: "The question was do we keep everybody here until midnight to do this fairly routine house-keeping chore or do we let members go home after a long week for the Fourth of July vacation?"

"We came down on the side of allowing members to be with their families."

The feud over Laughlin's assignment has prompted bitterness not seen in the House in quite some time. Democrats parading "Not For Sale" stickers on their lapels charged that Laughlin sold out for the promise of a Ways and Means seat.

Laughlin termed that accusation "offensive" and said he was driven to the GOP by his desire to best represent his conservative values.

His chief of staff, Bob Grasso, said Friday that Laughlin has no problem returning to the district without his official committee assignment in hand. "The floor action's a formality," Grasso said, adding that his boss has been swamped with requests to make appearances in the district during the recess.

Armey and other Republican leaders have said they will not bow to Democratic calls for another seat on Ways and Means, which is charged with drafting Republican plans to cut taxes and reshape Medicare and welfare.

"There is no justifiable reason for the Democrats to get another seat," Ways and Means Chairman Bill Archer of Houston said Thursday, adding that Republicans are well within historic ratios on the committee.

Agencies brace for employee cuts, some announce layoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — Responding to a cost-cutting order from the Legislature, state agencies are bracing to trim payrolls by up to 8,500 employees, and some already have announced layoffs.

This week, the Texas Department of Human Services, one of state government's largest employers, announced it will eliminate 750 positions in the coming months.

"We are going to try to preserve as much direct-delivery staff as possible," said DHS spokesman Mike Jones. "A lot of our cuts are going to come in support staff."

The cuts are the result of a 1996-97 state budget that funds 3,500 fewer positions than the current budget, which ends Aug. 31.

In addition, the Legislature ordered agency chiefs to trim operating budgets by another 1.26 percent. Lawmakers ordered that at least half of those cuts come through "reductions in salary and personnel expenses." If agency chiefs comply, that would mean the loss of up to 5,000 more jobs.

Officials said the cuts are necessary to offset increases in other areas. The two-year, $79.9 billion budget is 6.2 percent above current spending.

"The appropriations bill passed by the Legislature and signed by Gov. (George W.) Bush reverses the trend of growth in state government for the first time in a long time," said Bush spokesman Ray Sullivan.

That reversal will mean lost jobs, said John Barton of the Legislative Budget Board.

"It's fair to say a number of agencies are considering or implementing reductions in work force," Barton said.

Some agencies, such as DHS, already have announced layoffs. Some are working on plans that could include jobs cuts. Others addressed the problem with hiring freezes enacted earlier this year.

Fewer workers may mean less service, according to the Texas State Employees Union.

"It's always front-line workers who deliver the services who get cut," said Sylvia Meyer, president of the employees union. "Plans to downsize state government make great sound bites, but what they really mean is that all Texans lose."

POLICE REPORTS

Robbery

Two Hispanic men in plaid flannel shirts robbed Buck's Convenience Store of money and beer at 5:20 a.m. Friday at 3314 N. Loop 250 on Midland's north side, according to Midland police.

No one was physically harmed in the holdup in which one man, about 18 to 20 years old and sporting a buzz haircut, brandished a handgun in threatening store clerk Daniel Kersez, 20. The suspect took an undisclosed amount of money. His accomplice, wearing a ponytail, went to the store's alcoholic-beverage area and picked up three 18-bottle packs of 12-ounce Bud Light beer, police said.

The suspects left the store and ran toward the east.

While Kersez was at the store counter, another employee, Keith Reker, 32, was in an employee room within the store at the time of the robbery, police said.

Dramatic rescues punctuate desperate efforts after store collapse

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Trapped in rubble, convinced he was going to die in the darkness, Hong Sung-tae entrusted a last wish to a stranger he couldn't see.

"He told me that he wasn't likely to make it, and asked me to deliver his will to his family," said Kwon Eun-jong, who was trapped near Hong in the rubble of a shopping mall that collapsed Thursday night, killing at least 113 people.

"He asked me to find two bankbooks in his school desk and hand them to his wife and son," said Kwon. Heavy concrete slabs and steel rods surrounded Hong, and his ankle was pinned. The smell of broken liquor bottles from the basement supermarket where Kwon, a 22-year-old former aerobics instructor, had worked was heavy enough to keep her awake.

More easily reached by rescuers than Hong, Kwon was carried out 15 hours after becoming trapped. She told Hong goodbye and could faintly see him waving back in the light of the rescuers' flashlights.

The poignant tale captured the nation's attention and galvanized efforts to make sure that Hong, a 40-year-old teacher at the Foreign Language High School, did not need the will he had dictated.

There already had been too much death and heartbreak, and with 246 people reported missing, there would be more to come. At least 910 people had been injured.

Twenty-seven hours after the tragedy began, Hong was carried out in a stretcher. Fireman Chi Jong-won said rescuers used a car jack to help lift the final cement block off Hong.

"He was conscious, he answered our questions. But he was clearly near exhaustion," Chi said. "Getting his leg out was the tricky part, we weren't sure whether we would be able to do that."

TV cameras showed Hong being rushed into a hospital, his eyes open and an oxygen mask on his face. His condition was described as good.

Television showed his family hugging, smiling, laughing and crying. His wife tightly held her youngest child, a 5-year-old son.

Hong's was one of about 40 dramatic rescues of bloodied and battered victims on Friday. Work continued into a second night under occasional thunderstorms as high-tech sound equipment brought in by the U.S. military tried to spot other survivors in the tangled debris.

Three women in their 20s were pulled out alive early Saturday, including one who had been trapped 36 hours. Several other survivors were believed still trapped in the debris. One was a child.

Rescuers — three of whom collapsed during the night and were hospitalized for dehydration and smoke inhalation — managed to dig through to the center of the basement area. Rescuers were trying to dig a hole to a basement section where several were thought to be, but had to give up because rubble started to fall. They worried that the rain would further destabilize the shaky wreckage.

Up to two inches had fallen by 4 a.m., and the forecast called for as much as three inches more during the day, although dawn brought sunshine under partly cloudy skies.

Kwon said she could talk with Hong and several other victims trapped in the rubble and that they encouraged each other, although the darkness meant she couldn't see how badly they were injured.

Other survivors told similar tales. Two women sang to raise each other's spirits and pounded on a wall to attract rescuers. They were freed after a hole was cut through a concrete slab underneath them.

Relatives posted notices on hospital walls with photos and descriptions of the missing. Officials blamed the disaster at the upscale Sampoong Department Store complex on shoddy construction — the latest in a string of accidents attributed to slipshod workmanship.

Two deadly gas explosions this year killed 113 people, and a bridge collapse in Seoul last October killed another 32.

Police said the store's operators apparently knew for hours that the top floor of the five-story mall — which housed a food court — was crumbling, but failed to warn anyone.

Rescue workers watch a crane dig to search for survivors Friday in the rubble of the Sampoong Department Store which collapsed late Thursday afternoon in Seoul, South Korea.

Yeltsin shakes up Cabinet with dismissal of three top security ministers MOSCOW (AP) — In a stunning Kremlin purge, President Boris Yeltsin fired three top security ministers Friday for the botched handling of a bloody hostage-taking by Chechen rebels in southern Russia.

The shakeup, meant to defuse the country's worst political crisis since tanks fired on the Russian White House in 1993, all but ensured the government of triumph in today's no-confidence vote in parliament.

It also produced the first major political victims of Russia's widely criticized, half-year-old war against breakaway Chechnya. The three Cabinet members — Interior Minister Viktor Yerin, Federal Security Service chief Sergei Stepashin and Deputy Prime Minister Nikolai Yegorov — were all leading members of what had been dubbed the government's "party of war."

The embattled defense minister, Pavel Grachev, a long-time Yeltsin ally, was the only one of the so-called power ministers to survive the high-level layoffs. Like the three others, he had offered on Thursday to resign at Yeltsin's request.

The sacking of the hawkish trio could signal a Kremlin shift toward more moderate policies on Chechnya and other security issues in advance of upcoming elections — for Parliament in December, for president next summer.

Replacements weren't immediately announced.

Also ousted was Gov. Yevgeny Kuznetsov of Russia's Stavropol territory, where Chechen rebels reportedly bribed officials at roadblocks in order to reach the city of Budyonovsk June 14 and seize thousands of hostages.

The firings appeared timed for maximal political effect and minimal media fuss.

Yeltsin's press secretary, Sergei Medvedev, announced them in a statement released Friday evening on the eve of the no-confidence vote, but after lawmakers had gone home and weekend newspaper deadlines had passed.

The dismissals were "a hard decision" for the president but took into account the men's "miscalculations and shortcomings," the spokesman said. A videotape of Medvedev reading the statement was shown on the late evening news.

Several leading lawmakers were noncommittal in their initial reaction to the moves, according to the Interfax news agency. Grigory Yavlinsky, an outspoken critic of Yeltsin, gave it a lukewarm endorsement, saying it "can be considered as the start of a search for compromise with the president."

The firings capped intense political maneuvering meant to defuse today's vote in the State Duma or lower house of parliament. Several lawmakers had predicted it would fail, but government vote-counters evidently determined the margin was too close to take a risk.

Yeltsin has threatened to dissolve parliament instead of the Cabinet if it forces his hand by declaring no-confidence.

Legislator Mikhail Lapshin, whose Agrarian Party was one of the largest backing no-confidence, told Interfax that several members had decided to vote with the government as a result of the sackings.

Already castigated for the unpopular war in Chechnya, the government came in for a firestorm of criticism publicly and politically in the Budyonovsk tragedy, in which at least 123 people were killed.

Legislators blamed the government for both the bloody failure of attempts to storm the hospital where the hostages were held and the getaway negotiated by the Chechen terrorists.

The Duma voted no-confidence on June 21 in a vote which was non-binding — unlike the vote today. That set up the biggest political showdown in Russia since October 1993, when Yeltsin disbanded the previous parliament, then used tanks and troops on its hard-line holdouts.

Friday's ousters represent the most sweeping changes since the forced departure of Prime Minister Yegor Gaidar and other reformers beginning in late 1992.

They allow both sides to save face. Legislators can claim clout and Yeltsin, who authorized the use of force in Budyonovsk, can fix blame while getting rid of officials who had become a magnet for criticism.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Nick Burns said it would be inappropriate to comment on Friday's shakeup except to say: "We continue to have a very deep interest in stability in Russia to see the democratic and economic reform process continue."

Soldiers test new hand-held locator in Balkans

CAMP ABLE SENTRY, Macedonia (AP) — The struggles of U.N. peacekeepers in Somalia and the challenges of the Balkans have given birth to a high-tech U.S. military device for pinpointing the location of soldiers without a word.

The hand-held gadget, dubbed "Soldier 911," is designed to let a soldier send out an emergency signal without having to speak, a plus in multilingual U.N. operations. It is being tested by American troops with the U.N. peacekeeping force in this former Yugoslav republic.

The simplicity of the device also will be an advantage in emergencies. It could have helped Air Force Capt. Scott O'Grady, whose F-16 was shot down over Bosnia several weeks ago, be found and rescued earlier, officials say.

In addition, it has been programmed to warn American peacekeepers when they get close to Macedonia's unmarked border with Serbia.

The Army says the device will get distress calls to evacuation units quicker and cut down on the time needed to determine the location of a soldier in distress.

"It gives you his exact location to within a distance of 15 meters (yards)," said Lt. Col. Robert W. Kocher, the system's program manager at the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency in Arlington, Va.

"Wherever the forces may be, he's one button away from support. And if he's lost, we can go and find him," said Kocher, who came to Macedonia in early June to introduce Soldier 911.

The device is being field-tested by the 3rd Battalion, 12th Infantry Regiment, of the U.S. Army's 1st Armored Division, based in Baumholder, Germany. The 540 Americans — the only U.S. ground troops in former Yugoslavia — are part of a 1,100-soldier U.N. force deployed in an effort to prevent the Bosnian war from spreading south.

Soldier 911 weighs only 2 1/4 pounds and looks like a regular two-way radio, except for the flat, playing card-size satellite receiver on top.

It is a smaller version of "global positioning system" equipment that lets U.S. Army troops keep track of their position on the ground by fixing on satellite transmissions. The difference is that it is also a transmitter, with a maximum range of 100 miles.

Pressing a red button sends out the emergency signal. If able, a soldier may press a series of other buttons or use the device's radio to give other details, including information to confirm the soldier's identity if necessary.

Kocher said the apparatus "absolutely" would have helped in a quicker rescue of O'Grady, who was on the ground six days before a NATO plane picked up one of his radio transmissions.

The system also will help U.N. forces coordinate their communications and movements and allow the commander to know exactly what is happening, he said.

"Forty percent of communications are 'Where are you? What's going on?' If it's automatic, you don't have to worry about languages," Kocher said in an interview.

He said the need for a device like

Soldier 911 became obvious during the Somalia mission.

"One issue we had in Somalia was, 'Where was everybody?'" Kocher said.

He cited one incident in which Nigerian peacekeepers were caught in a firefight with Somali gunmen, but other U.N. troops did not know what was happening, despite being able to hear the nearby gunfire.

The system may prove particularly useful in Macedonia, where the unmarked frontier with Serbia, the largest of the two remaining republics in Yugoslavia, has already caused trouble. Serb troops temporarily detained a U.N. patrol of Swedish peacekeepers last year, accusing it of violating their territory.

Soldier 911 will emit warning beeps if U.N. troops get too close to the border.

Judge bars television cameras from Susan Smith trial to prevent intimidation

UNION, S.C. (AP) — A judge on Friday barred TV cameras from Susan Smith's trial on charges she drowned her two young sons. He said small-town witnesses might be intimidated by the attention.

"There is an absolute likelihood that broadcast coverage in the courtroom would interfere with the due process of this trial and pose a risk to this case," Circuit Judge William Howard. The trial begins July 10.

Howard had allowed live TV coverage as well as still cameras for all previous hearings. But he agreed with Ms. Smith's attorney, David Bruck, who said broadcasting the trial in this small town would make witnesses afraid to share intimate information necessary for his client's defense.

Bruck has indicated that his defense will be based on Ms. Smith's mental state both before and at the time of the killings. Her boss' son had recently broken off their affair, and as a teen-ager she was molested by her stepfather.

"The actors in the O.J. Simpson case were to a large extent just that, actors, Hollywood people who live in Hollywood because they wanted to be in the public eye," Bruck said.

"But the witnesses in this case were until now, have been until now, private people who live in a small town and really asked nothing more than to be able to live their lives ... in peace and quiet."

Ms. Smith, 23, could get the death penalty if she is convicted of killing her sons, Michael, 3, and Alex, 14 months.

Howard said broadcast coverage could make witnesses uncomfortable and interfere with the court's efforts to get at the truth.

"I also have to consider the possibility of community hostility for witnesses that might testify in this trial," he said.

For nine days in October, Ms. Smith claimed that a black car-jacker had abducted her boys. Then on Nov. 3, she confessed to strapping them into their car seats and sending her car to the bottom of a lake.

The ruling bars all cameras, still or video, and microphones from the courtroom. Reporters will still be allowed inside to cover the trial.

South Carolina court rules give trial judges wide latitude in deciding whether to allow cameras, and specifically discourage appeals.

"We're not inclining to appeal it," said Steven Brill, founder and chief executive of Court TV. "This is a very special case, and I think the judge decided on narrow and understandable grounds."

The trial was one of six or seven cases Court TV was considering covering in August.

Liberal stall passage of spending cuts in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a prelude to months of combat, two lonely liberals blocked Senate approval Friday of spending cuts in social programs while Republicans celebrated passage of their plan to balance the budget.

Parting company with President Clinton and other party elders, Sens. Paul Wellstone of Minnesota and Carol Moseley-Braun of Illinois prevented a final vote on a bill to cut $16.4 billion from previously enacted spending while funneling aid to victims of the California earthquake and other disasters.

"The people of my state would not want to see me just lay down on this railroad track and get run over without saying anything," said Moseley-Braun. She and Wellstone objected to cuts in job training, heating assistance for the poor and other domestic programs.

An irritated Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas shelved the measure, at least until lawmakers return from a week-long Independence Day break.

The gridlock on the floor stood in contrast to a news conference where Dole, House Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia and other GOP leaders hailed Thursday's congressional passage of a plan to eliminate deficits by 2002.

"We're reversing a trend as far as crushing debt. We're reversing a trend as far as crushing taxation," said Dole. "We believe the American people will be proud of it because we kept our word."

The budget outline, which cleared over solid Democratic opposition, calls for $894 billion in savings, much of it from Medicare, Medicaid, education and welfare, and calls for a $245 billion tax cut.

While the president's signature was not needed on the budget outline, his assent will be required to put the follow-up measures into law. Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., predicted Clinton would use his veto repeatedly to try to force Republicans to abandon "extreme" proposals.

Ironically, Daschle and most other Democrats supported the spending cut bill on the Senate floor, noting it was a follow-up to a measure Clinton had vetoed.

The replacement measure, devised through negotiations between Republican leaders and the White House, restored $772 million for education, environmental and other programs favored by the White House. That was offset by $794 million in cuts, about half of it from travel and administrative costs throughout the government.

"It's better than half a loaf," Daschle said.

Clinton, in a written statement Thursday night, said: "The new bill achieves the same amount of deficit reduction as the previous bill, but it does so the right way — by protecting investments in children, education, national service, job training and the environment that Congress wanted to cut."

That's not how Wellstone and Moseley-Braun saw it. Exercising their prerogative, they blocked Dole's efforts to bring the measure to a final vote.

The measure cleared the House on Thursday night despite significant Democratic opposition that reflected the gulf between Clinton and many of the members of his own party in Congress.

Wellstone said the measure would hurt some of the "most vulnerable" citizens of his cold weather state with its cuts in energy assistance, housing and other programs. "I'm going to be an advocate for these people," he said.

In a reference to a string of spending cut measures ahead, he said: "What I'm saying is if this is a glimpse of what's to come, I'm not going to be silent. It would be wrong."

While liberals pulled in one direction, conservatives tugged in another. House Republicans released a letter to Clinton saying they would vote against any measure to raise the debt limit until the government is on a "true glide path" to a balanced budget by 2002 or sooner.

The issue is important, because the Treasury is expected to reach the limit of its borrowing ability in mid-October, and legislation would be needed to extend it.

On the Senate floor, Dole noted that the spending cuts measure provided earthquake relief and money to rebuild the Oklahoma City federal building blown up by a bomb this spring and said Wellstone and Moseley-Braun were "doing a disservice to hundreds of thousands of people across America to make a political point." He suggested that Clinton prevail on the two Democrats to let the measure go through.

Ironically, the struggle came on a bill that was itself the result of political combat Clinton waged with the Republican leaders of both houses.

He vetoed an earlier version, saying it paid for "pork" while cutting important domestic programs. While Clinton suggested that federal courthouse construction be reduced to restore money for social programs, that idea was dropped in negotiations due to objections from Democrats in Congress.

In all, the revised measure would cut $16.4 billion and spend $7.1 billion. Most of the spending would go for disaster relief, the bulk of it for California's earthquake victims. Also included was $290 million to rebuild the Oklahoma City structure and fight terrorism and $275 million in debt relief for Jordan that the administration sought.

The measure also includes a provision designed to speed timber salvage operations on federal lands by lessening the regulatory burden on logging companies. In a concession to the White House, the provisions were moderated, and permission for the sales would expire Dec. 31, 1996, nine months earlier than in the vetoed measure.

Agency seizes teen-ager's stash of radioactive material

By Yuri Kageyama
Associated Press

DETROIT — A homemade Geiger counter. Jars of acids. Radioactive elements salvaged from old smoke detectors and lamps.

A stash of radioactive material, chemical charts and other equipment was removed this week from a backyard shed housing the laboratory of an ambitious 18-year-old.

The teen, whom the EPA refused to name, had found slightly radioactive materials from common household items that were burned and crushed until concentrated.

"He was trying to isolate all the elements on the periodic table," said Jack Barnette, a radiation expert with the Environmental Protection Agency. "He was a pretty bright kid."

The government spent about $50,000 on the cleanup in a quiet neighborhood in Union Lake, about 25 miles northwest of Detroit. An EPA team in protective gear took the shed and its contents away in 39 55-gallon drums from Monday to Wednesday.

The material will be shipped to a radioactive waste dump in the Utah desert.

"He didn't think he was doing any harm," Barnette said.

Over four years, the teen isolated such material as thorium, from old lamps, and americium, from smoke detectors, both of which could be harmful if inhaled or digested. The youth declined a checkup.

He also had some radium. "It's not clear where he got that from," Barnette said.

To help his search for radiation, the teen had put together a simple Geiger counter. He separated gases and concentrated some acids in jars. He also collected rocks.

"He was using fairly crude methods," Barnette said. "It doesn't look like he was anywhere close" to gathering the more dangerous uranium or plutonium, or building a bomb.

Authorities learned about the teen's experiments in August, when police pulled him over on suspicion of theft, opened the trunk of his car and found tin-foil packets containing mysterious cubes of ash.

The teen said his car contained a bomb and nuclear items, said Dave Minnar of the Michigan Department of Public Health.

"It turned out the bomb was a hoax, but the radioactive material was not," Minnar said.

Barnette said it took 10 months before the material was removed because officials needed time for tests and to make arrangements to store it. Because the shed was in a fenced yard there was no immediate hazard and no need to hurry, he added.

The EPA has yet to decide if it will ask the teen or his family to repay any of the cleanup costs, spokeswoman Heidi Valetkevitch said.

The Nation in brief

Chinatown gunfight injures seven

SAN FRANCISCO — A gunfight between gangs erupted on the streets of Chinatown on Friday, injuring seven people, two seriously.

Shots were fired as one group of youths chased another, police Cmdr. John Martel said. At least one bystander, a pregnant woman, was among the victims.

The shooting began after five or six youths standing on a corner were approached by another group, Martel said. The first group fled, but it wasn't clear which group opened fire.

A 23-year-old man wounded in the abdomen and a 16-year-old boy shot in the groin were listed in serious condition at San Francisco General Hospital. Four others were in stable condition at the hospital.

The other person was taken to St. Francis Memorial Hospital. No other information was immediately available.

Police charge woman with murder

LENEXA, Kan. — A woman found wandering along a highway in a daze near her home was charged Friday with decapitating her 6-year-old son.

Phung Kim Dang, 27, was jailed on $200,000 bail on a murder charge.

Police said they have no motive in the slaying of Jonathan Bui and are not certain what kind of weapon was used.

The boy's father, Hoang Thinh Bui, came home from his job at a manufacturing plant early Thursday and found the body on the couple's blood-soaked bed, police said.

Dang, who is five months pregnant, was stopped by police near the couple's apartment three hours before her husband found the body.

She told the officer who stopped her that she was pregnant, so he called an ambulance. She was taken from the hospital to the police station for questioning after medical workers said she did not need medical attention.

Dang barely spoke during her five-minute hearing, answering "yes" to questions from District Judge Stephen Tatum about whether she understood what was happening.

Police had not been called to the apartment before for any problems.

Ex-prostitute testifies about trips

LOS ANGELES — An ex-prostitute testified Friday that Heidi Fleiss sent her to Paris, Athens and Washington for $1,000-a-day sightseeing, shopping and sex junkets.

Kristina Wotkins said Fleiss in 1992 sent her on a seven-day Greek cruise with two other prostitutes, to Paris for a weeklong tryst with a Saudi Arabian client and to the nation's capital for two days in which she didn't leave her customer's hotel.

"I kept 60 percent and I gave 40 percent to Heidi," Wotkins said under government questioning in Fleiss' money laundering trial.

The defense, however, suggested that Wotkins, 25, isn't trustworthy because she didn't pay taxes on her own share.

Oklahoma drifter faces execution

MCALISTER, Okla. — Roger Dale Stafford, a drifter who landed on Oklahoma's death row after two brutal mass murders in 1978, had his last meal and visited with his wife Friday as he waited for his execution early today.

The state Court of Criminal Appeals rejected an appeal asking for a delay to allow Stafford to become an organ donor. The court also affirmed a decision earlier this week denying Stafford's request for a stay of execution. The U.S. Supreme Court also denied Stafford's emergency application for a stay of execution.

Stafford was set to die for the ambush killings of three members of a San Antonio family. They were shot to death three weeks before six people were gunned down in the meat locker of an Oklahoma City steakhouse.

Hollywood remembers legendary Lana Turner

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — She was one of the last of the Hollywood glamour queens, the shapely Sweater Girl who inspired the legend that aspiring actresses could simply come to town and get discovered at a soda fountain.

Lana Turner died Thursday at 75. The funeral will be private, her daughter said.

She was legendary from the beginning of her movie career, when she was spied in a malt shop playing hooky from Hollywood High.

Her seven marriages and dozens of romances, including the one with the gangster her daughter killed, consumed a forest of newsprint.

Except for the wrenching tragedy of the Johnny Stompanato death, Lana wore her stardom with equanimity. She never sought publicity. It always came to her. She was always candid with interviewers.

She once told this reporter how she acquired her sobriquet as Sweater Girl in her first role, in the 1937 "They Won't Forget."

"They had me wear a sweater and walk down the street. When you're young ... they bounce," she said in 1953.

Often lost among all the publicity, both trivial and lurid, was the fact that Lana became a talented actress. Of course she traded on her startling looks through the apprentice years in Andy Hardy and Dr. Kildare movies and mindless musicals. But with her role as the tempter of John Garfield in the 1946 "The Postman Always Rings Twice," she proved she could act.

That was confirmed with "The Bad and the Beautiful" in 1952, when she played a troubled movie star. Her closeup scene of driving recklessly and risking suicide on a stormy night was a masterpiece of raw emotion.

Later she was able to lend conviction to such potboilers as "Peyton Place," her only Academy Award nomination; "Imitation of Life;" and "Madame X."

Lana was always news. So many news people covered her fourth wedding, to millionaire Bob Topping in 1948, that this reporter was appointed to be the pool person watching the ceremony inside a Sunset Boulevard mansion. After the vows, Lana murmured, "This time it's for keeps."

Lana was always optimistic and never seemed bitter, though she was piqued at how her MGM bosses treated her after 17 years as a box-office star. She had been cast in two dismal costume pictures. "Look, I'm a modern-type girl," she said. "The good pictures I've done should have proven that. But they wanted me to do costume pictures. So I did the best I could — and took the blame for them."

As her film career was sliding in the late '60s, Lana refused to go along with the newfound frankness in films.

"You wouldn't believe the filth that I find in scripts that are sent to me nowadays," she said at the time. "It makes me physically ill to read such things. I feel sorry for the girls who think they have to play such parts just to keep in front of the public."

In 1970, she took a big step: her first appearance on stage. She was booked for a tour in "Forty Carats."

"I won't have butterflies in my stomach," she predicted. "There'll be eagles, flapping and clawing."

She survived the tour and did more. She also appeared on television, spending a year as a regular cast member of "Falcon Crest," which starred Jane Wyman. But the two veteran glamor stars reportedly proved incompatible, and Lana was dropped.

Lana's last appearance before the bright lights came last year at the opening of the musical "Sunset Boulevard." She wore a short-length, fitted, brocade suit, all white, her most attractive color.

Jackson works to retire debt in preparation for 1996 campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eager to remove an obstacle to a possible third presidential run, Jesse Jackson is calling past supporters and allies seeking help retiring his 1988 campaign debt.

The sudden urgency to eliminate the seven-year-old debt comes as Jackson intensifies his criticism that President Clinton has turned his back on blacks and other traditional Democratic constituencies.

Jackson also is preparing for a meeting next week with ballot-access experts to discuss the hurdles to mounting an independent candidacy, the option he currently favors should he decide to enter the 1996 race.

"Retiring the debt gives me clear title and deed to my options for 1996," Jackson said in an interview. "The debt must be retired to move on and people are responding to help."

Federal Election Commission records show the debt is just below $150,000, most of it owed to firms that provided legal and accounting advice to Jackson's unsuccessful 1988 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. He also ran unsuccessfully in 1984.

In the interview, he said his desire to run has been increased by Clinton's decision to offer what Jackson called a "Republican Lite" balanced-budget plan and to conduct a review of federal affirmative action programs.

"He is reading the polls as opposed to providing true moral leadership," Jackson said. "He has the pulpit from which to make the case to challenge Americans to be better but so far he has decided to review and referee from the safety of the skybox instead of coming down to the field to lead."

Many Democrats, including longtime Jackson allies, attribute his recent stirrings to anger that Clinton has ignored him.

They predict Jackson ultimately will decide against running in 1996. However, one past ally who spoke with Jackson this week, said Jackson left him with the impression he had already decided to run as an independent.

Jackson said he had not made any decisions.

A top adviser said Jackson would wait until fall. The adviser, Frank Watkins, pointedly referred to upcoming congressional hearings on the Clintons' Whitewater land investment and related controversies and said it was still possible Clinton could face a Democratic primary challenge.

"Democrats in Congress may decide that Clinton has declared himself an independent, third-party candidate and they may decide to select a candidate for their own party because Clinton appears so uncomfortable in it," Watkins said. "We wouldn't hesitate at all to join others in a Democratic primary."

But Watkins said Jackson was highly unlikely to challenge Clinton on his own in the Democratic primaries.

Billionaires target oilman T. Boone Pickens' Mesa in takeover effort

DALLAS (AP) — Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens, a brash corporate raider who tried to take control of Gulf Corp. and Phillips Petroleum Co., has himself become a takeover target.

Two billionaire investors are challenging Pickens' control of Mesa Inc., which has floundered under its own debt and stubbornly low natural gas prices.

Dennis R. Washington and Marvin Davis, who together own 9.4 percent of Mesa's common stock, disclosed Thursday that they want Mesa's board to form a committee of independent directors to explore selling the company.

Mesa hopes the experience of the 67-year-old Pickens, who earned millions of dollars through his pursuit of big oil companies, should help it fend off the challenge.

"What their goals and intents are remain to be seen. But I do imagine we will move rather swiftly in dealing with this matter," Mesa spokesman Jay Rosser said Friday.

Mesa is working on a response and an increase to the company's value in hopes of winning over shareholders, Rosser said. Mesa is one of the nation's largest natural gas producers.

Bryan Dutt, an analyst at Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs in New Orleans, agreed that Pickens' background leaves him well-prepared to deal with the attempt to usurp his control of Mesa.

While Pickens' efforts to buy several huge oil companies in the 1980s were unsuccessful, the financier was able to make millions of dollars from the attempts by buying up stock, then watching its value rise because of his takeover intentions.

His most prominent effort was the 1984 bid for Gulf, followed by plays for Phillips Petroleum and Unocal Corp.

Pickens has his share of critics. Unocal sued Mesa, claiming Pickens' company made an illegal profit from Unocal stock. It won a $42.8 million settlement with Mesa last year.

Pickens doesn't much like the "raider" label. He insists his offers were sincere and has kept a much lower profile in the 1990s than a decade ago.

Efforts to fend off the challenge to Mesa may not be easy.

"The people that he is up against are not exactly neophytes," Dutt said.

David Batchelder, former president of Mesa and Pickens' lieutenant in oil company takeover bids, is advising the investors.

"Historically, he has been one of the financial brains behind the Mesa empire," Dutt said.

Students, teachers claim success after challenging Cuba travel ban

HOUSTON (AP) — A group of 34 students and their adult leaders have risked possible jail time and fines to challenge a 13-year-old travel ban to Cuba.

However, the students, two of whom are Chelsea Clinton's schoolmates, and their guardians appeared Friday to have made it through U.S. Customs handily. According to many in the group, they were just "waved through" even though it is illegal to travel to Cuba.

Three students were en route to Miami on return home from the trip, part of a two-year protest waged by the Freedom to Travel Campaign, said the group's spokeswoman, Teresa Walsh.

Meanwhile, at Houston's International Airport, the rest of the 39 group members — most wearing T-shirts bearing the red, white and blue Cuban flag — boarded flights home without hassle.

"It was worth it!" said Nathalie Miller, 13, of Berkeley, Calif. "It was fun. I think it should be our choice whether we can go to Cuba and not the government's choice."

Richard Newcomb, director of the Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control, had sent the participants a warning letter threatening 10 years in jail and up to $250,000 fines.

Sixteen-year-old Sarah Park and Jody Avirgan, 14, both students at Sidwell Friends School of Washington, which is attended by President Clinton's daughter Chelsea, and trip coordinator Pamela Montanaro, went through U.S. Customs in the Bahamas.

They were detained briefly in Nassau, where their passport documents were copied and they were talked to before being allowed to continue on to Miami.

"We really don't know what to expect," said Jerry Park, father of Sarah Park. He said his daughter most likely benefited from the trip.

"From what we've heard, it sounds like they had a very interesting time," he said.

The students say the trip is an attempt to show that the ban is unnecessary and dated.

When asked if the trip will lead to the end of the travel ban, Jade Rivera, 17, of San Francisco, said she was confident it would.

"Hopefully. That's what we came to support," Miss Rivera said. "I came to see the culture and stand up for my constitutional right to travel."

It was Avirgan's mother who inspired the group to make the trip.

Liquor orders

A company that operates an easy-to-use Internet site where computer users can order liquor deliveries almost anywhere in the world said Thursday it is toughening the ordering process to make it harder for minors to use the service.

The company, 800 Spirits Inc. of Hackensack, N.J., said its Internet ordering service has been changed so information is requested about the age of the person receiving a liquor order. In addition, any order placed over the Internet will be double-checked by calling the person placing the order.

In no way, shape or form do we want to have any involvement with children," said Robin Ruckl, executive vice president of 800 Spirits Inc.

The new ordering procedures come after the Globe sent a two-year-old New York City boy a bottle of Stolichnaya vodka through the Internet ordering service. Several companies offer similar services, although 800 Spirits is the largest of its kind.

Not nearly as scary as it used to be

By Sana Shwlop
N.Y. Times News Service

You've decided it's time to gain control of a household budget gone berserk. As the first step, you grab the latest version of Quicken, the best-selling personal finance software from Intuit Inc.

Quicken, you've heard, is the most user-friendly product of its kind. Then doubt creeps in as you start to pore over its 300-page user's guide.

No need to fear, though. In just an hour or so, you can get the hang of the software and use it to print checks, pay bills and — starting sometime this fall — even do your banking from home.

Spend a few more hours tinkering with Quicken, and you'll see its wide range of investment tools, not used to full advantage by nearly 40 percent of buyers.

Now accounting for almost 80 percent of the market for personal finance software, Quicken long ago outran its competitors, including Microsoft Money, which will soon introduce a new version. A distant third in the market is Managing Your Money, recently acquired from H&R Block by Nationsbank and Bank of America.

Since last fall, Quicken's market lead has been enhanced by certain budgeting, forecasting and tax planning features added to the program. Intuit's goal is to help users understand not only where they have already spent their money, but also where their money will go down the

CYBER COPS

Parents — not politicians — should patrol the 'Net

By Dwight Silverman
Houston Chronicle

Every community has its seamy underbelly. No matter how placid or shiny a place appears on the surface, there's guaranteed to be something going on behind the scenes that you'd rather not know about.

Why should cyberspace be any different?

All the neat things you've heard about the Internet and on-line services are true, and so are some of the uglier things.

You can find breathtaking graphics created by talented individuals, but there's also pornography of the most despicable kind. Some people will bend over backward to help you, but there are others trying to lure you into harm, both physical and financial.

Where there is altruism, passion, loyalty and courage, there's also bigotry, greed, rudeness and violence.

The good news is that the positive far outweighs the negative, despite the image often painted of a wild, horrific frontier.

That image is being exploited by politicians seeking to paint themselves as moral saviors. They are urging the passage of laws that would ban certain kinds of speech and images from electronic transmission and storage.

On one level, this is nothing new; those running for public office have long loved to push the buttons marked "obscenity" and "indecent."

This time, though, there's a big problem. The Internet, national on-line services and even grass-roots computer bulletin board systems are at the forefront of nothing less than a revolution in communication.

This change is flourishing largely because it extends freedom in an exciting new way. One person can talk to and pos-

Britannica, Time Warner team to create Pathfinder

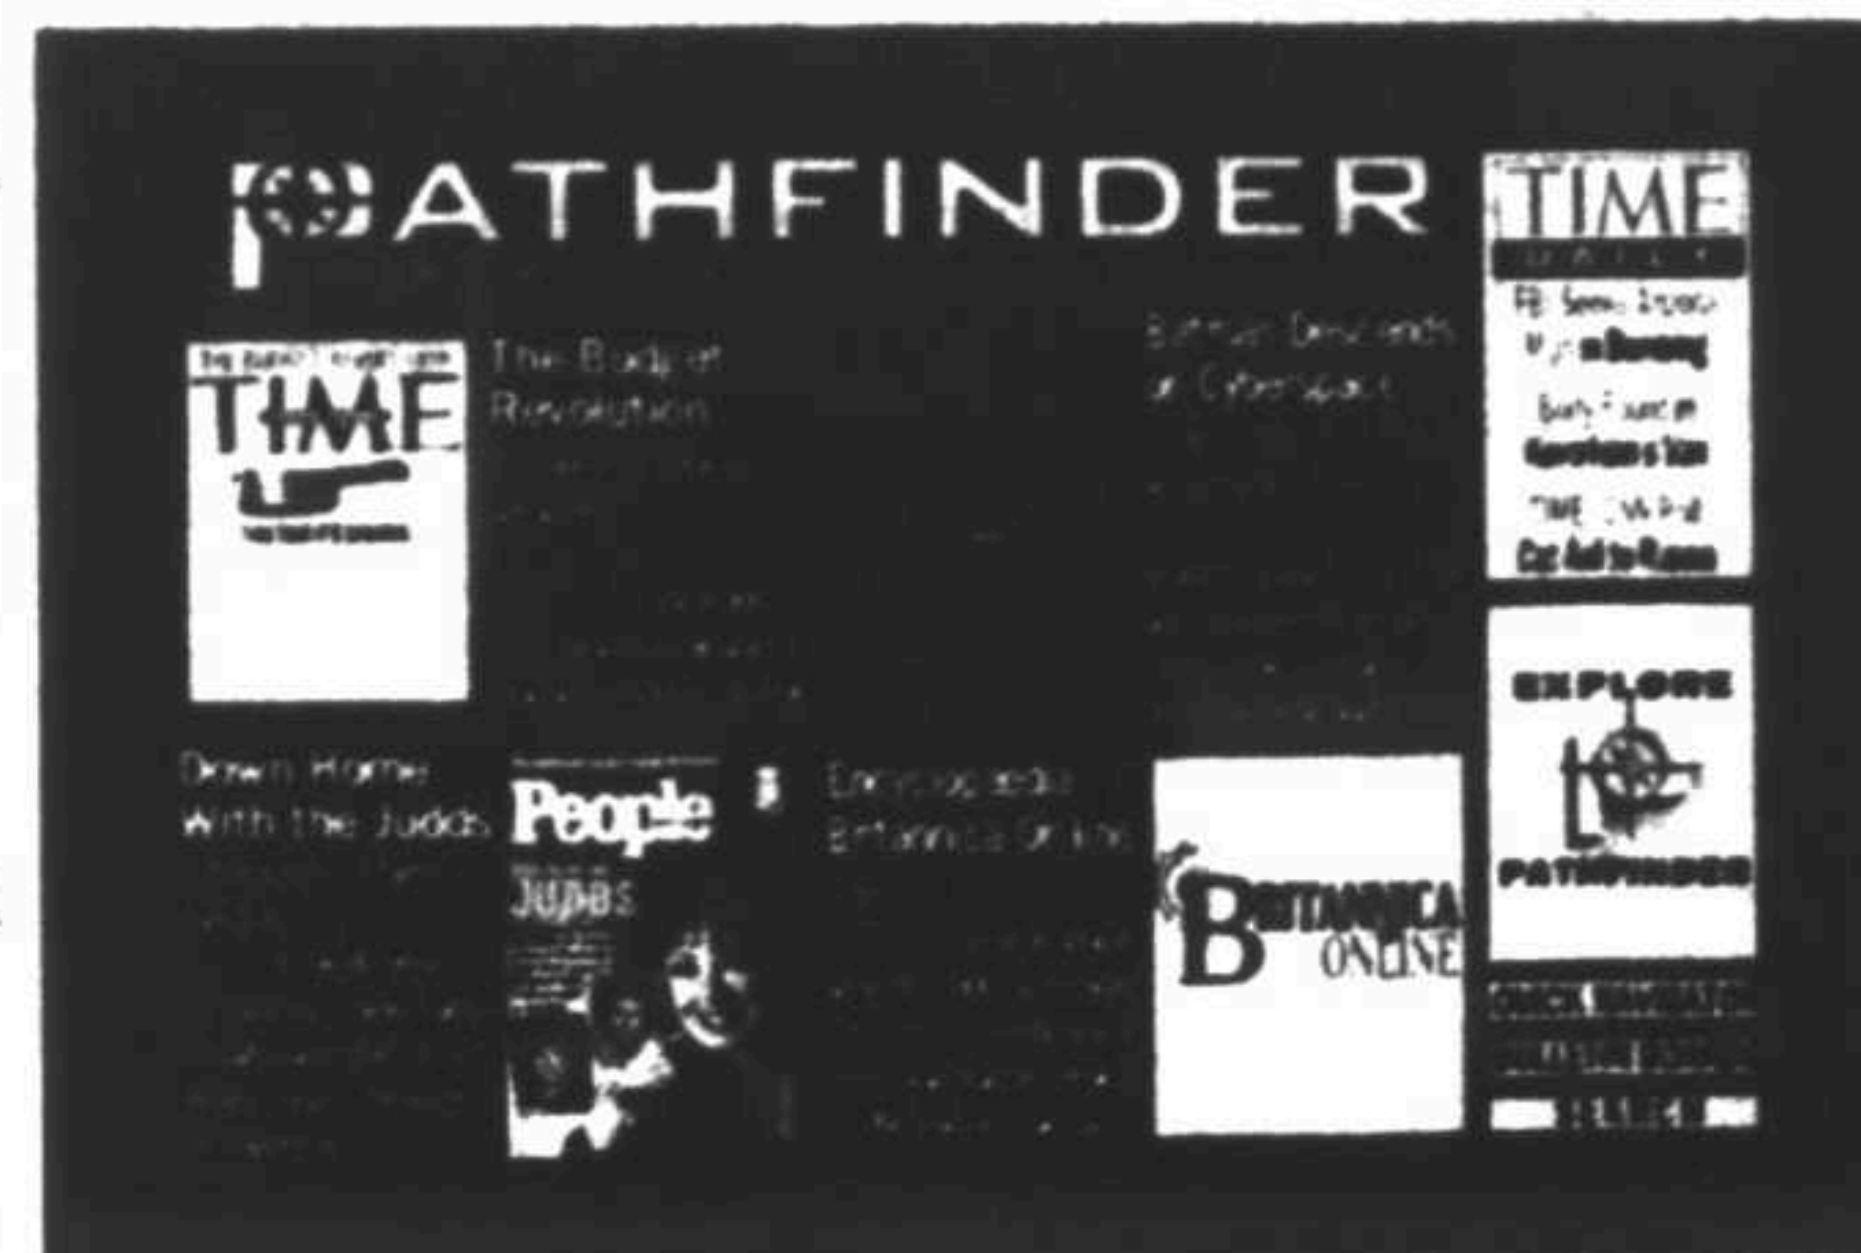

By Heather Green
Bloomberg Business News

CHICAGO — Encyclopedia Britannica Inc., the venerable encyclopedia company, is teaming up with Time Warner Inc. to put everything from "aardvark" to "zygote" at the fingertips of computer users.

The 227-year-old publisher of the most authoritative encyclopedia in the English language picked Time Warner's Pathfinder, one of the most heavily used on-line services on the Internet, as home for its Britannica Online. For two months, Encyclopedia Britannica will give computer owners free access to the service in hopes of hooking new subscribers.

For Chicago-based Encyclopedia Britannica, the move comes as its struggles to adapt to the electronic age and just one month after reports that it would be sold if the company's owners couldn't find investors to help it create new products and marketing strategies.

"We have spent a lot of time trying to craft strategy," said Joseph J. Esposito, president of Encyclopedia Britannica North America. "They were ready and we were ready at the same time."

Want to find out how DNA works? Or what really happened when Apollo 13 exploded? For the first time, consumers can cruise the Internet and find those answers using Britannica On-line. As part of an alliance with Time Warner, Britannica will make its 44-million word database available free for the next 60-days to consumers via Pathfinder, Time Warner's home page. Canton Becker helped develop a program that allows musicians from all over the world to jam together in cyberspace. Becker and friend Matt Moller realized their program could be applied to on-line communities. Their invention frees musicians from having to be in the same room — or any room — since in a virtual jam, hundreds of musicians can play together using an on-line service and a musical synthesizer.

The beat goes on-line

By David Dishneau
Associated Press Writer

EVANSTON, Ill. — Step into the computer-age answer to a smoky after-hours joint, where musicians thousands of miles apart gather for a virtual jam.

In London, Tim Bran lays down a bass drum beat with a calypso feel. Sheldon Hatch in Toronto adds a shaker. Canton Becker works out an edgy piano part in Evanston, four chords in C minor. Matt Moller, sitting beside Becker, slips in a counter-melody, a space organ riff in a higher octave.

They're groovin' in cyberspace, thanks to Becker and Moller's invention enabling musicians to jam on the Internet, the global web of computer networks.

Their program permits musical collaborations undreamed of just months ago. An international "virtual band" is already working on an album that will challenge music industry conventions.

"It's SO cool," Moller, 24, said as the swelling sound swirled among heaps of musical and electronic gear in Becker's bedroom in the student ghetto near Northwestern University.

"We've got this guy in Norway, Ulf, who's a really serious musician and a really cool, sort of funny guy, and it's so cool to have him and this guy Eric in San Francisco and these guys in London and New York — totally cool guys but also really hot musicians — and actually play stuff together."

Moller and Becker are musicians and Internet surfers who found a way to combine their passions.

Becker, a pony-tailed senior studying cognitive science at Northwestern, wrote a program two years ago that composed music for Internet users. Moller,

Giving a little breathing room to your system

By Michael Putzel
N.Y. Times News Service

When I bought my first IBM-compatible computer little more than a decade ago, I debated whether to buy a whole box of ten floppy disks, wondering whether I would ever really use that many.

The machine operated on two disks at a time, one for the program I was running and the other to store my data: the letters, stories, address files and whatever else I might produce.

Each of those 5 1/4-inch floppy disks could hold 360,000 characters,

QUICKEN: Overview retrieval speed a drawback to software road. Users can now create forecasts for specific financial situations — like the purchase of a new minivan. Before, Quicken offered forecasts for only five matters, including saving for college and refinancing a mortgage.

While Quicken has never given technophobes much reason to moan, the latest version is clearly more user-friendly, offering everything from advice on how to use a computer mouse to an icon bar that you can customize to go to a frequent transaction.

A new "snapshot" feature allows users to get an instant picture of their bottom lines with a single keystroke. This eliminates the task of having to run a series of financial reports and charts.

So where do you start with Quicken? Like most products of its kind, Quicken just about installs itself. Users are ready to go in less than five minutes.

After that, it's worth hooking into the 10-minute overview. The best way to get a quick read on Quicken's investment prowess, though, is simply to set up an investment account and start generating financial reports or charts with it.

Try creating a "where am I spending my money?" report, as outlined in the "101 tips and tricks" booklet that comes with the new version, Quicken Deluxe. It will sort your financial transactions from the largest expenditure to the largest source of money.

Quicken still has one serious drawback: There is no very fast way to get an overview of what it can do. Instead, you have to scan the instruction manual, pull down each menu option and explore.

Intuit is trying to address the problem. For now, the best way to learn about Quicken's uses is to go to the "homebase," a feature that was added last fall and that offers information on popular features.

To avoid wasting time, remember that everything put into Quicken needs to go into one of six basic "accounts."

One account is for banking transactions (for checking, savings and money market purposes), and the other accounts are for credit cards, cash, assets, liabilities and investments.

While a single data file in Quicken can hold 255 related accounts, anyone who wants to use the software for both personal and business finances might be better off keeping separate files, each with separate accounts. To save time, assign a "quick key" to zip into an account used often.

Quicken does have a number of relatively underappreciated features. For example, its loan planner can help you compute monthly mortgage payments, compare adjustable-rate loans, figure out the tax advantages of a mortgage, determine when a mortgage will be paid off and even make a mortgage fit a budget by making adjustments in other spending areas.

Quicken still can't compute them for you. But it does contain a tax planner that lets you move tax information from Quicken to an external file that can be read by a tax-specific product like Intuit's TurboTax.

Quicken Deluxe also comes with a guidebook from tax experts, as well as a feature for assigning tax line items to various categories to make tax preparation faster and more accurate.

To make the most out of Quicken's financial help, it's worth plunking down an extra $20 for Quicken Deluxe. While the standard version of the product is the one that Intuit claims is geared for investors, anyone looking for even simple portfolio management help would be better off sticking with the deluxe version.

In addition to new tax tools, it contains a home inventory feature that tracks household goods and can generate detailed reports for insurance purposes.

If you have a modem, Quicken Deluxe is also handy for retrieving the prices of more than 100,000 stocks, mutual funds and options, by either accessing a special 900 phone number or using the basic services account on CompuServe. A portfolio can be updated daily.

Quicken Deluxe comes in a CD-ROM version as well. Spring for it and you'll get not only multimedia tutorials on Quicken, but also a mutual fund selector that can be tailored to your financial goals.

Or, if you prefer, use the CD-ROM to enter a computer-generated "conference room" and get interactive advice from the tiny, seated images of two personal finance gurus, Jane Bryant Quinn and Marshall Loeb. How's that for hand-holding?

When it comes to more complex investment information, however, Quicken has its limits. It doesn't keep track of every change in tax law, for example, nor does it track aspects of certain sophisticated transactions like commodities trading.

As for the mutual fund selector, while it keeps tabs on the historical performance of a fund, it can't be updated on-line. Instead, users have to buy quarterly updates on floppy disks at $13.95 each, or $39.95 for four.

To get the most out of Quicken's investment abilities, keep in mind that the best advice isn't in the hefty user's guide but in the tips booklet that comes with Quicken Deluxe. There, you'll find hints on recording stock buyouts and spin-offs, as well as tracking foreign currencies, employee stock options and family medical expenses.

As you grow ever more confident with Quicken, you may look for new financial territories to conquer. One option might be to wait until this fall, when the next version of Quicken comes out. Or you could spring for Pocket Quicken, the pint-sized version used mostly by traveling business people to track travel expenses and to generate expense reports.

Pocket Quicken is loaded into one of the new devices called personal digital assistants and does not have any investment features. Data can be transferred, however, to a parent Quicken at home. Come fall, Pocket Quicken will be available on its own handheld unit.

SYSTEM: Making backups can take hours which I calculated to be nearly 200 average-length newspaper stories. A box of them would last years.

(From 1B)

Today, as I contemplate replacing the crowded hard disk drive in my computer for the fifth time, I wonder how I could have been so naive.

The stories are about the same length, but the number and size of the programs and files stored on the disk have grown exponentially. Before I'd had the machine a year, I was flipping floppies faster than a flapjack cook in a logging camp.

The hard disk inside my computer today holds as much as 1,500 of those now-obsolete floppies, and the CD-ROM added a couple years ago has even greater capacity. A single CD, if loaded only with text, could hold a respectable library of about 600 books.

Yet there never seems to be enough storage space. Digitized sounds, pictures and even video are now stored routinely on disks, but they take up many, many megabytes. (A megabyte is roughly equivalent to 1 million characters.) And there is no limit to what software developers will think of to sell in digitized form.

I have what purports to be a directory of every listed residential and business telephone number in the United States — on five CD-ROM disks. We're back to flipping floppies.

Packard Bell recently introduced a desktop personal computer for the home with two built-in CD-ROM drives, and Gateway 2000 has a top-of-the-line machine with a three-CD stack. There's no end in sight.

Moore's Law, set down 30 years ago by Gordon Moore, chairman of Intel Corp., the leading maker of microchips, holds in its most recent, abbreviated form that computing power doubles every 18 months or so while decreasing in cost. Disk storage capacity doesn't follow that path precisely, but the trend is quite similar.

One rule of thumb when choosing a hard disk: calculate the amount of space you think you'll need, double it and buy the next larger size.

Even if you get a computer with a hard disk big enough to last a while, however, the storage crunch strikes when trying to move files in and out of the computer.

That old 360-kilobyte floppy has been replaced in recent years by a 3 1/2-inch high-density floppy disk that can hold 1.44 megabytes (MB) of data in a rigid plastic case. Even with modern compression technologies that enable you to squeeze more information onto a disk, however, this standard floppy is inadequate today.

Making backups to protect against the failure of a hard drive can take hours and literally dozens of disks, discouraging people from performing one of the absolute necessities of computing life. Windows 95, the new version of Microsoft's basic computer operating system scheduled to go on sale in late August, will come on about 17 floppy disks — or on one CD-ROM for those fortunate enough to have a computer equipped with the appropriate drive.

Because CD-ROMs transfer information one-way only — the ROM stands for read-only memory — the search is on for a new portable device to replace the current floppy disk.

Iomega has recently introduced a tremendously successful $200 Zip drive that can store 100MB of data on disks that sell for $20 each. Compaq Computer Corp. just announced plans to introduce a 120MB successor to the present 1.44MB floppy. It will fit in a drive that can read the old disks as well as the new.

Seeking to capitalize on the initial success of its Zip line for both Macintosh and DOS/Windows machines, Iomega announced yet another product that could provide a breakthrough in the constant search for more capacity. The Jaz drive is expected to go on sale before the end of the year with removable 1-gigabyte cartridges that hold 1,000 megabytes each and run faster than most internal hard drives.

A drive with one cartridge will enter the market at about $500 and can be installed inside a computer or as an external accessory. Additional cartridges will sell for $130 each or as little as $100 if bought in quantity.

The Iomega approach raises the prospect that each person in a household could make the family computer his or her own by keeping each member's programs and files on a single disk that could be popped in and out at will. That could solve all sorts of problems, from changing the look and feel of the computer for each person, to reconfiguring the system for particular uses and to safeguarding data for both security and privacy.

At a dime a megabyte, down from several dollars not long ago, the new drives are bargains for computer users trying to keep up with software inflation.

PATHFINDER: Britannica hopes for steady revenue

(From 1B)

Pathfinder is Time Warner's on-line service that lets people use personal computers to browse through some of the New York-based media company's publications, such as Time magazine. The service, which is free, logs 4 million requests a week for information and counts 100,000 registered users.

Britannica Online will be the first outside company to appear on Time Warner's Pathfinder.

The two companies are also putting together a service that would link their articles. A Britannica Online subscriber could search for information about the Ebola virus, which recently caused almost 2,000 deaths in Zaire, and could find Time magazine listings of articles about the virus.

For Encyclopedia Britannica, the move is part of the troubled company's ungraceful attempt to hop on the computer age bandwagon. Over the past year, Encyclopedia Britannica launched a slew of electronic products, from research services to CD-ROMs, as part of a plan outlined two years ago. The products, though, suffer from a well-known Encyclopedia Britannica ailment — uncompetitive prices.

The CD-ROM version of its encyclopedia, launched in July, costs $995, a price more suited to a family heirloom than an encoded piece of plastic. By comparison, Redmond, Washington-based Microsoft Corp.'s Encarta CD-ROM encyclopedia sells for less than $100. Encyclopedia Britannica's bound volumes also cost much more than those sold by competitors. The company's traditional encyclopedia sells for between $1,500 and $2,000, compared with about $150 for a set sold by New York-based KIII-Communications' Funk & Wagnalls unit.

The company, which has been discounting prices on its printed version, is hoping that the consumer on-line service will produce a much-needed and steady revenue stream. "Our revenue base is primarily the consumer product market," Esposito said. Britannica Online, launched in October, was test marketed at universities. About 39 universities subscribe, including Stanford and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The price of the service for consumers won't be set until after the trial period is over because the company wants to collect information about potential subscribers.

sibly influence millions. That same person can get information instantly from some of the best minds on the planet.

To have the government come in and begin placing restrictions on what can and cannot be transmitted across the Internet is a notion that's not only dangerous to this revolution, but to the very concept of free speech itself. Those who defend free speech make the argument that the ugly must be allowed, so that beauty may proliferate.

However, all of that sets the

JAM: Hundreds can play simultaneously

(From 1B)

a lanky graduate student in music technology, realized Becker's work could be applied to virtual communities, and the Distributed Real-Time Groove Network was born. It went on-line in April.

Their invention frees musicians from having to jam in the same room — or in any room.

"Any musician with a portable computer and a cellular phone can jam from a beach in Hawaii with a musician in New York, another in Tokyo and a similarly equipped musician in an Antarctic ice cave," said Becker, 23.

Previous long-distance musical collaborations, such as Frank Sinatra's duet albums or a transcontinental David Bowie-Mick Jagger performance at the 1985 Live Aid concert, required satellite hookups or specialized technology.

In a virtual jam, hundreds of musicians can play together, each using only a computer linked to an on-line service and a musical synthesizer, for the cost of a local telephone call.

The players agree to meet at a certain time in a Groove Network "room" on the Internet. The room contains instruments, represented on the computer screen by the words "drum," "piano," "guitar," etc.

The musicians play the instruments using synthesizers or computers with synthesizer capability. A speaker plays back the combined sounds.

One major drawback: on-line improvisation is impossible due to the tiny time lag in phone-line transmissions. So the musicians work out their parts off-line and insert them into the on-line mix.

The music is composed in segments of, for example, four bars that repeat in a continuous loop. Musical loops can be strung together into a song with a beginning, middle and end.

Vocals are out, except for sampled, repeated phrases like those heard in some rap, techno and industrial dance music.

When artistry and technology converge, commerce is never far behind. Professional London-based musicians Tim Bran and Willy Marshall, who met Becker and Moller on the Internet, are using the Groove Network to produce an album by a "virtual band" with hundreds of members around the world.

Hanshall, a member of the pop group London Beat, hopes to have the album ready for release this fall.

Becker said the Groove Network enables Internet users to communicate in a new way.

"The phrase we use is meeting at a soul level," Moller said.

stage for a big dilemma: What about children?

I have two little girls, ages 4 and 7. And while I want to see the information revolution continue unabated for their sake, as a good parent, I also want their innocence to continue unabated for as long as possible.

And I want my children — and as many other young people as possible — to experience cyberspace. But I don't want them to see things that may not be appropriate for them.

So how does a good parent reconcile these issues? By being a good parent, that's how.

While it's obvious that adults can't track their children's every movement, they can take an interest in what their children are doing on-line — just as they should in the 3D world. You caution your child not to talk to strangers on the street, so similar admonitions about dealing with adults on-line are a good idea.

With younger children, it's easier to control on-line access. My older daughter has expressed some interest, and I indulge her by finding things I think she might like and directing her to those. But I don't allow her to click on World Wide Web hypertext links with abandon.

That's hard to control with older children, particularly if they have computers in their own rooms. One solution might be a home network, with the child's computer connected to the adults'. If your young cyberkid knows the system administrators — a.k.a. Mom and Dad — can scan all the hard drives in the house, there probably is less chance something verboten will be stored there.

Software that allows a parent to lock out specific sites in cyberspace will soon be available, if it's not already. It works by looking for keywords; for example, you can forbid anything from any of the Usenet newsgroups that start with alt.sex from coming into a computer.

The best cybercops are individuals exercising their own good judgment, not politicians telling us what we can and cannot see.

Amazing New Tune-Up Guarantees Your Air Conditioner Won't Break Down...Or This Is FREE!

No One Else In My Field Makes You This Bold Guarantee!

Permian Basin - Now you can have your air conditioner rejuvenated to "Factory Fresh" condition, and I guarantee it won't cost you a penny! In fact, you'll make a profit.

As you already know, your air conditioning system gets dirty, out of alignment, less efficient, and wears out about twice as fast as it should! In fact, most air conditioning systems die in "middle age" and use 30% to 50% more electricity than they need to.

I've created a fascinating solution to this problem that will make your home more comfortable, safer and save you a lot of money...with a special offer I hope you'll find irresistible.

$129 Worth of Service For Only $79

Now, I know what you're thinking... "What's the catch? Where's the gimmick? Are you completely nuts?" But, there's a method to my madness. I have two reasons for letting you get this much service for 50 cents on the dollar.

First, my business is normally slow during spring time, and I decided that rather than lay off my top technicians, (and add to the unemployment statistics) I would strip out everything but raw cost and keep my technicians busy. Second, I'll actually make money on this in the long run anyway. Most people who sample my service like it so much they use me again at normal prices (which, by the way, are great compared to my competition). So, both of us win. You'll just win sooner than I will. Anyway, doesn't it just make sense to get this service so your family doesn't have to live with the uncertainty of a system break down on the hottest day of the summer?

Double Risk Free Money-Back Guarantee

Get your air conditioning system restored to "Factory Fresh" condition for only $79 and here's my guarantee to you:

Guarantee #1. If your air conditioning system breaks down this summer and needs repairs for any reason, I'll refund your $79...no questions asked!

Guarantee #2. If this amazing tune-up doesn't save you at least $89 (giving you a profit) in lower electrical usage this summer I'll also refund the $79 with no hard feelings.

Since it can cost thousands of dollars to replace your system, and when you consider the electrical savings, and since you have absolutely no risk, doesn't it just make sense to give my tune-up a try?

It's easy, just call my dispatcher William, and he will schedule a Champion Technician to your home.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JULY 1, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Heed the practical advice of your mate or partner. An expert's financial suggestions begin to pay off. New career or business opportunities beckon early in December. An affair of the heart could reach a turning point next spring. Plan a vacation for April or May of '96. Special accolades will bring fame and fortune. Remain true to your ideals.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Karen Black, track star Carl Lewis, actor Jamie Farr, cosmetics executive Estee Lauder.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Diplomacy and patience are vital when discussing sensitive domestic issues. Do your part around the house. Sports are the perfect cure for the blues. Join friends for a special outing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Those around you today could be unpredictable. Better batten down the hatches! This is no time to let personal whims interfere with family fun. Widen your social circle to include someone recently widowed or divorced.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Family duties and property matters are in the spotlight. It should be easy to gain approval for a special program. Stick to your diet. Romance is a source of great delight. Be a good listener.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make this an enjoyable day for people in your immediate vicinity. Plan a delicious dinner and imaginative entertainment. A negotiating session ends on a positive note.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Despite your desire to be on good terms with your loved ones, crosscurrents indicate certain problems. Try not to be annoyed if others hog the limelight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Welcome a chance to help those who are ill and in need of companionship. Married couples must learn to compromise. Defer to mate's wishes when entertaining or visiting your in-laws.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 21): A mistake could leave you feeling inadequate. Try not to brood. You will have many more chances to prove your mettle. Evening hours favor the pursuit of romance. Go ahead and reveal your long-felt admiration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do some research if thinking about joining a family business. A romantic relationship could become too hot to handle. Slow down. Spending time with other people gives you a chance to put things in perspective.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A disagreement over money could get the day off to a slow start. Get together with longtime friends and neighbors tonight. Someone who recently retired should be encouraged to play a role in community affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Dwelling on worrisome topics is a waste of time. Handle a dependent's problems with your usual efficiency. Your instincts are right on target when it comes to a newcomer's motives. Protect your financial reserves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emotions run high where a financial matter is concerned. Try to remain objective when listening to conflicting claims. Treating the elderly with respect is a must. Do nothing to undermine an older relative's self-esteem.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accepting strangers at face value could be dangerous now. Avoid discussing private matters in public places. Someone you admire may soon seek your help. Give it unstintingly. A kind gesture will be repaid.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Ordination scheduled

ODESSA — The Rev. Dean Keim, senior pastor at Redeemer Lutheran Church, will ordain and install Paul L. Willweber as assistant pastor Sunday.
A single worship service is planned for 10:30 a.m. which includes the ordination and installation and the church's annual Patriotic Festival.
A catered barbecue will follow the service at the church, 824 E. 18th St.

■ 'Freedom Sunday' set

Memorial Christian Church, 1001 Andrews Highway, will have its annual "Freedom Sunday" worship service Sunday at 10:30 a.m.
The service is held in the courtyard outside the sanctuary, and all are invited to dress casually.
"The service remembers a cornerstone of the Christian faith — the freedom Christ gives us — and one of the hallmarks of our country — freedom of religion," said a release from Memorial Christian Church.
Following the worship service, there will be a barbecue dinner served in the Fellowship Hall. Guests and visitors are invited to share in both the special worship service and the dinner.

■ Sermon topic set

"Freedom" will be the topic of the Rev. David Marx's sermon Sunday at 10:55 a.m. at Trinity Presbyterian Church.
Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. with an intergenerational class for all children, youth and their parents as well as adult classes on the Book of Philippians and on the Church Lectionary.
Also, the church is hosting a community Fourth of July picnic in the church's fellowship hall at 4 p.m. Tuesday. Those attending are asked to bring their own hot dogs, buns, chips and cookies. The church will provide drinks, condiments and a grill for the hot dogs.

■ Praise team performs

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church will be having special weekend services today when the Praise Team from Lubbock performs on the church parking lot, 3308 W. Cuthbert Ave., at 7:30 p.m.
Also, following the morning worship Sunday, the youth of the church will serve a spaghetti dinner for church members and guests. Cost is $4 per person.
A slave auction will follow the Sunday dinner. Youth will be auctioned off to the highest bidder to do work.
The youth will use the money they raise for summer trips.
For transportation to the services call 694-1645.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

(From 7B)

Call him "Air"

HOUSTON (AP) — Steve "Air" McNair can keep the rights to his nickname, according to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office.

The government agency has ruled an application from three employees of a San Diego television station wanting to capitalize commercially on the nickname "Air McNair."

The rookie Houston Oilers quarterback received word Thursday McNair was out of town Friday and not immediately available for comment.

The patent office's ruling said the nickname was too closely associated with McNair's name and that any commercial use is prohibited without his written consent.

And with that, it was back to the drawing board for KGTV-TV sports anchor Bill Griffin, producer Chris Phell and former intern Kevin Nagley, who paid a non-refundable $245 application fee.

Jefferies signed

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers have signed veteran wide receiver Haywood Jeffries to a ninth season with the team, the club announced Friday.

The Oilers had released the eight-year veteran out of North Carolina State after the 1994 season.

Jeffries has 454 catches with the Oilers, with whom he has played his entire career. He is 26 behind Drew Hill, the team's all-time leading pass-catcher.

He tied fellow wide-out Webster Slaughter for the team lead in receptions last year with 66.

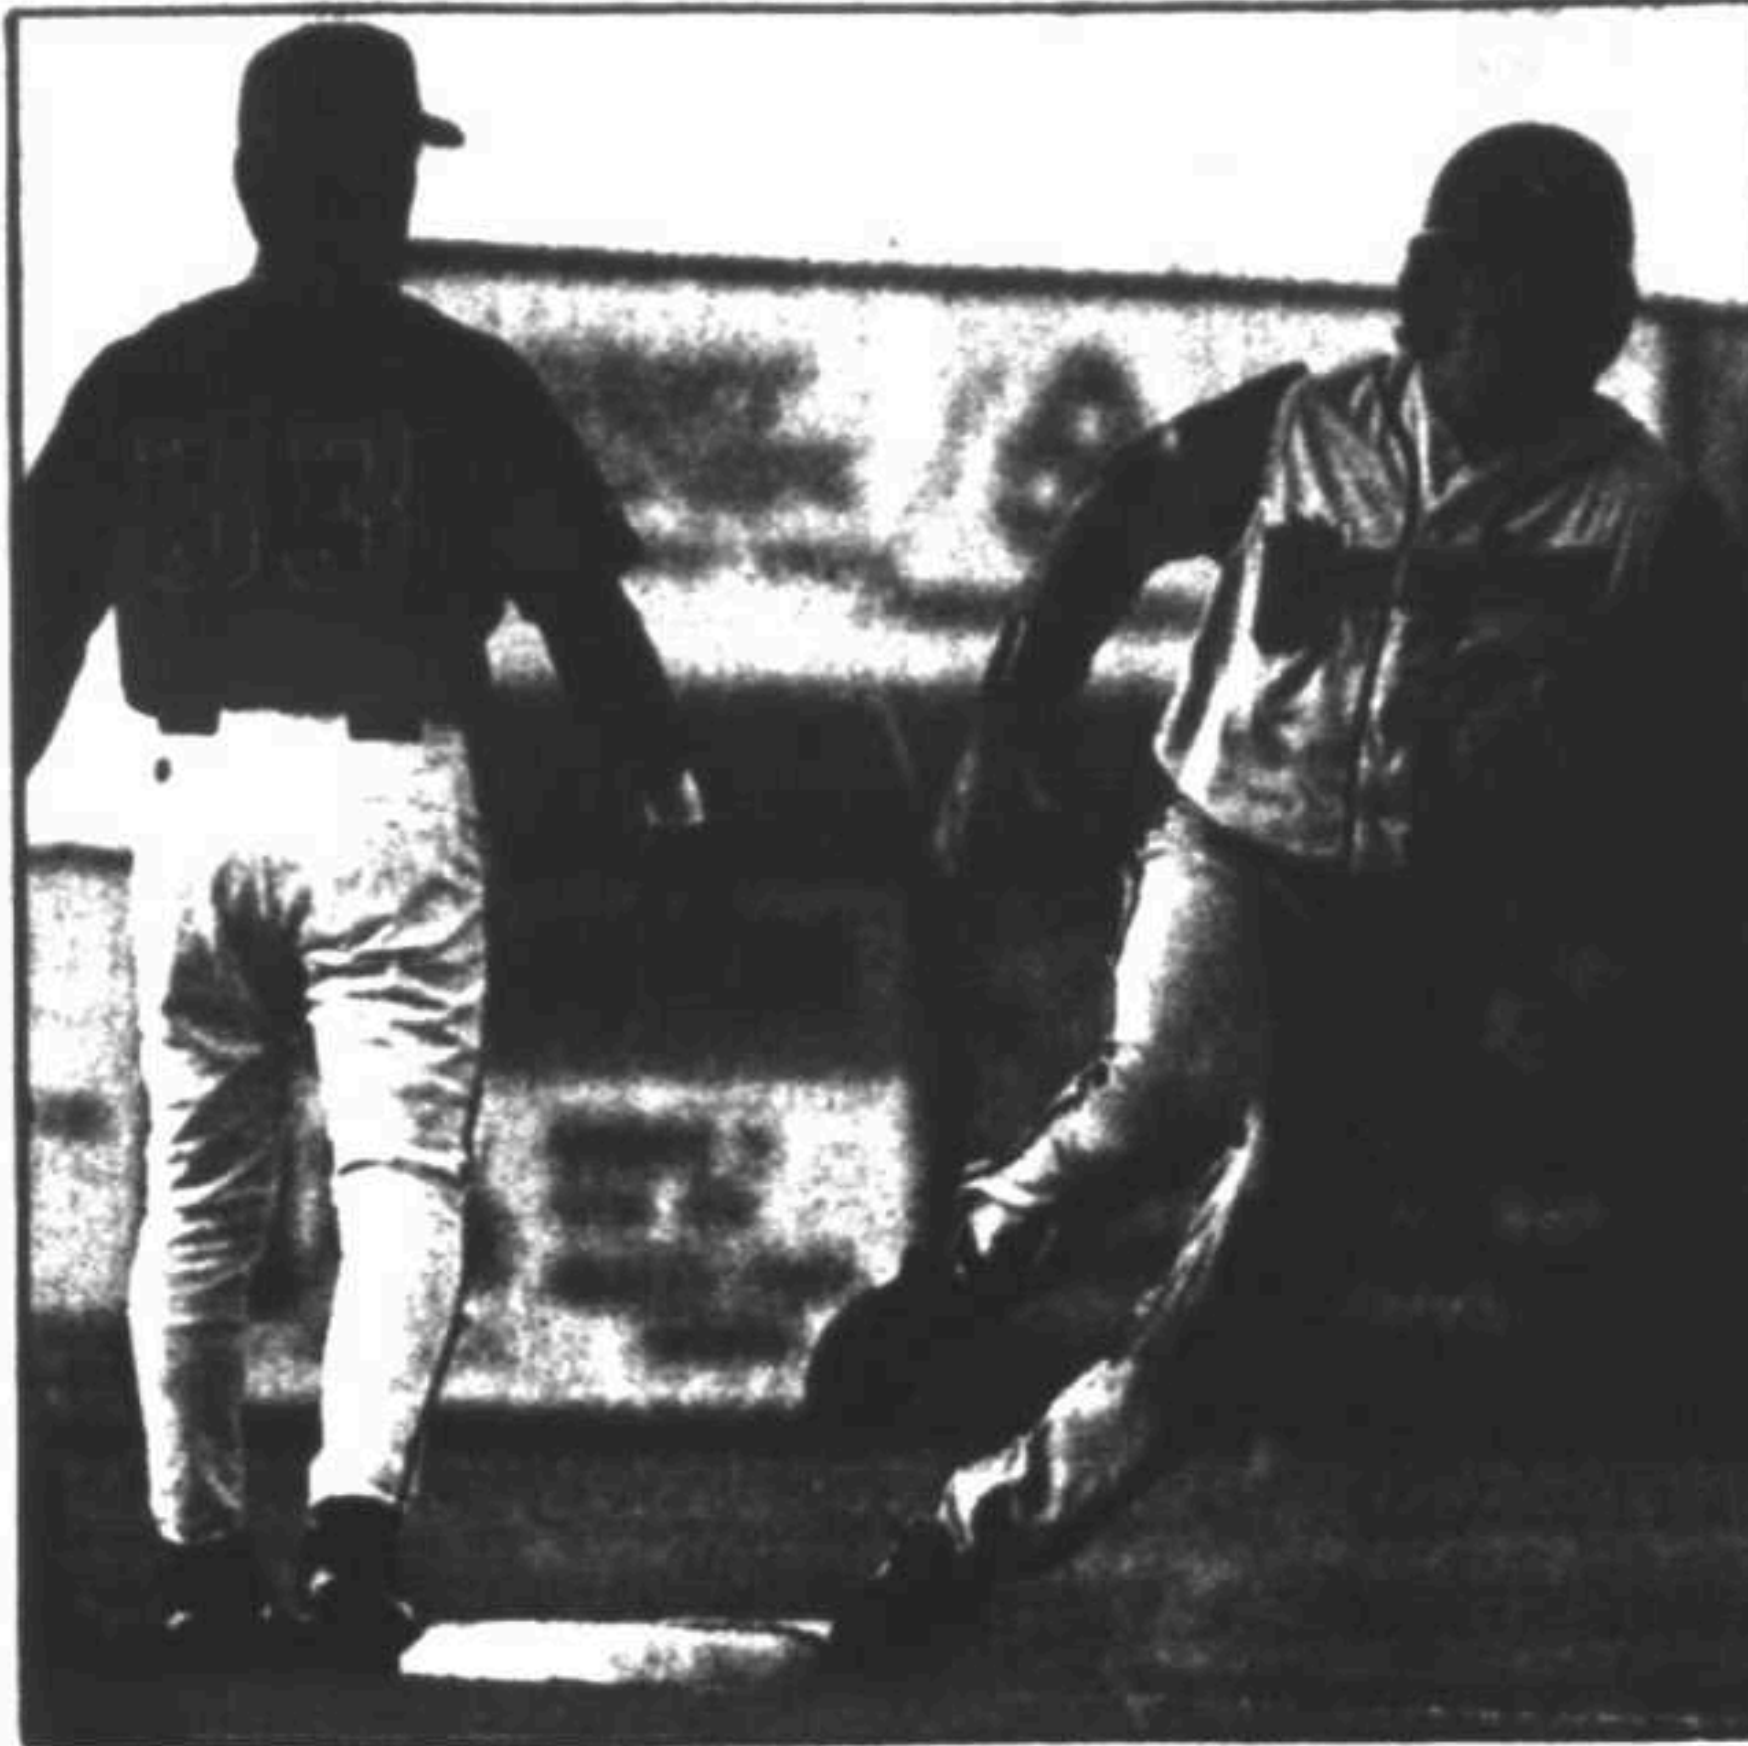

In addition, the Oilers signed defensive tackle Willie Jennings, a practice squad player for the team last year. The Oilers also agreed to terms with former Texas A&M line-backer Jason Ableson.

Toth stifles Angels

■ Wichita right-hander spreads out eight hits in complete game win over Midland.

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

Wichita manager Ron Johnson and pitching coach Gary Lance had a bit of a problem after the Wranglers 8-1 win over the Angels Friday.

The two didn't know whether to frame winner Robert Toth's pitching chart or burn it.

"I ought to take a picture of this chart," Lance said as he called out the numbers behind Toth's complete game dominance of the best hitting team in the Texas League. The right-handed Toth (7-3) struck out 10 batters and didn't issue a walk until two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

But once Lance finished calling out Toth's figures — ahead on strikes on 30 of 35 hitters, 40 fastballs for strikes and 11 for balls, 39 change-ups for strikes and eight for balls — Johnson had another idea.

"Get rid of that chart," he said, "or he'll get called up tomorrow."

The Double A Wranglers might prefer their major league affiliate Kansas City not know too much about Toth. He came into the game with the second best ERA in the Texas League (2.20) and certainly brought it down Friday at Christensen Stadium to stop the Wranglers three-game losing streak.

"He came here in the bullpen and he's just one of those guys in the organization's eyes that up until now people haven't said 'wow' because he doesn't have an over powering fastball or a change-up that falls off the table," Johnson said. "But he goes out and throws nothing but strikes."

Toth's complete game win was just what the Wranglers (4-6) needed in more ways than one. The team has lost five pitchers on their current road trip, three bumped up to Triple A and two injured. They entered Friday's game with two hurlers in the bullpen.

WIMBLEDON, England — On a sweltering day truly for mad dogs and Englishmen, a tennis turncoat waving a Union Jack in the midday sun took a step toward knighthood.

Greg Rusedski, branded a mercenary and defector on both sides of the Atlantic since he abandoned his native Canada for England in May, was dubbed Sir Gregory by suddenly grateful Brits when he drilled 36 aces Friday to set up a fourth-round match against Pete Sampras.

No. 1 in his former country and now No. 1 in his adopted land, which has yearned for a Wimbledon men's champion since Fred Perry won his third straight title in 1936, Rusedski beat Olivier Delaitre 6-7 (8-6), 6-4, 6-4, 7-6 (7-3) in a feverish match in 106 1/2-degree heat — the hottest day ever recorded at Wimbledon.

Rusedski's change of countries angered Canadian tennis officials who felt he had deserted them after years of support, and upset British players annoyed that he simply moved in and took over the top spot from Jeremy Bates. Chris Wilkinson, one of Britain's best players, was one of Rusedski's harshest critics, refusing to play Davis Cup with him.

But the Wimbledon crowds haven't shared that feeling, and have instead wildly embraced Rusedski as one of their own during his first three victories.

"I think the crowds won me the last few matches," said the 21-year-old Rusedski, who has lived in England for four years and has a British girlfriend. Born in Montreal, his mother is a native of England and his father is of Polish-Ukrainian descent, and Rusedski insists his move has nothing to do with the potential for much more lucrative endorsements in Britain.

Rusedski has done his best to win over the British crowds, tossing his sweaty wristbands and shirts into the stands after matches, waving the Union Jack and bouncing around the court in buoyant triumph to the fans' applause.

Rusedski, who had never gone past the third round in six previous Grand Slam tournaments since his first Wimbledon two years ago, faces his biggest test Monday in his first match ever against Sampras.

Sampras, the two-time defending champion, showed some vulnerability to a big server when he dropped a set Friday against Jared Palmer, but then rallied to win 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 with 18 aces to offset nine double-faults.

"I just played one loose game, and you can't afford to do that at this level," Sampras said of his first-set loss. "My serve wasn't that great today. I can play better than this."

Sampras anticipated a match against Rusedski that will be low on strategy and high on aces. Rusedski sounded eager to get it on.

"I'd love to play Pete," Rusedski said. "I practiced with Pete before the Australian Open this year. We split sets in practice. I think it would be a great Locked Out!

Sports' untouchable hit by work stoppage

By Wendy E. Lane
AP Basketball Writer

NEW YORK — The NBA, enveloped in the same labor turmoil that hurt baseball and hockey, will lock out its players starting at 12:01 a.m. Saturday, beginning the first work stoppage in its history.

With the league unable to reach a new labor deal with its players, NBA commissioner David Stern said the NBA was taking a painful but necessary step.

It was the third work stoppage to affect major league sports in the last 12 months. Baseball players went on strike last Aug. 12, and NHL owners locked out their players Sept. 30, forcing the cancellation of 468 games and a delay in the season.

The NBA had been operating under a no-strike, no-lockout agreement reached last Oct. 27 with its players. But that pact, already extended when the playoffs ended, was set to expire at midnight Friday.

The two sides seemingly had a deal 10 days ago, but opposition to the proposal by Michael Jordan and other big-name players divided the union and scuttled a ratification vote.

The lockout prohibits teams from negotiating or signing contracts with free agents and the rookies selected in Wednesday's draft. No summer leagues or tryouts will be conducted, and players will not be permitted to work out at team facilities.

Despite the lockout, Granik said the league is willing to continue labor negotiations, while Simon Gourdine, the union's executive director, said he still thought an agreement was possible. No talks between the league and the National Basketball Players Association were scheduled, however.

On June 21, the league and the union announced a tentative deal on a new col-

Murray joins baseball's elite

Eddie Murray of the Cleveland Indians broke the 3,000 hit barrier on Friday against the Minnesota Twins.

■ Eddie Murray becomes the second switch-hitter in history to accumulate 3,000 hits in a career.

By Jeffery Shelman
Associated Press Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — Eddie Murray became just the second switch-hitter to reach 3,000 hits and only the 20th player in baseball history when he singled in the sixth inning Friday night.

Murray joined Pete Rose, the career hits leader with 4,256, as the lone switch-hitters to reach 3,000. He made it to the mark by grounding a single through the right side for the Cleveland Indians off Mike Trombley.

Murray, who got his 2,999th hit Thursday night but went hitless in his last four at-bats of the game, drew a walk from Trombley in the second inning and flied out in the fourth.

After his historic hit, Murray, 39, shook hands with Cleveland first base coach Dave Nelson and Twins first baseman Scott Stahoviak. They were then joined by the rest of the Indians, led by Dave Winfield, who later took pictures from the dugout with a camera.

Winfield was the last player to reach 3,000 hits, doing it on Sept. 16, 1993 — also at the Metrodome — while with Minnesota. Murray and Winfield are the first teammates with 3,000 hits since Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins all played for the 1928 Philadelphia Athletics.

While the crowd stood and cheered, a series of Murray's career highlights played on the Metrodome scoreboard. Murray, who rarely shows any emotion on the field, raised both hands over his head twice to acknowledge the ovation.

Murray does not speak to the media often, and held no major news conferences leading up to the event. He said he would hold one, however, following the game in which he got his 3,000th hit.

Team walks Darryl in protest

■ Strawberry's road to majors starts out with five intentional walks.

The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Darryl Strawberry isn't getting any help from the Detroit Tigers in his bid to make it back to the majors.

Strawberry was intentionally walked every time he came to the plate — five in all — in Friday's game between the New York Yankees' and Tigers' teams in the rookie Gulf Coast League.

Detroit general manager Joe Klein admitted he gave the order to walk Strawberry each time he batted. He contends Strawberry, an eight-time NL All-Star now on a rehabilitation assignment with the Yankees, should not be playing in a league where some opponents are only 17 years old.

"I guess I'm guilty," Klein said. "I hope the next time we face him, he walks five times again."

"He's not going to hurt any of my players, especially any of our pitchers."

Yankees coach Clete Boyer said he had never seen anything like it in four decades in pro ball. He might see it again, though, when the teams play Tuesday in Lakeland, Fla.

"This is embarrassing for their organization to do this," Boyer said. "These kids want to watch Darryl hit. If you strike him out, it's a thrill."

Klein said he thought Strawberry should at least be in the more advanced Class A Florida State League, playing for the Yankees' Tampa team, instead of in a league meant for players who have just turned professional.

"Quite frankly, I don't think he should be here," Gulf Coast League president Tom Saffell said.

"It's nothing against Strawberry. It's just that I don't think major leaguers should be rehabbing in this league," he said.

Hot Phillies rally in seventh; Braves fall four behind

The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Tony Longmire singled home the go-ahead run as the Philadelphia Phillies got three straight RBI singles with two outs in the seventh inning to beat the Atlanta Braves 3-1 Friday night.

NL Roundup

behind victory increased Philadelphia's lead in the NL East to four games over the second-place Braves and made the Phillies 5-0 against Atlanta this season.

John Smoltz had limited the Phillies to only one hit entering the seventh, but he walked Charlie Hayes to open the inning. Kevin Stocker struck out and Tyler Green bunted Hayes to second.

Len Dykstra, who broke up Smoltz' no-hit bid in the sixth, singled Hayes to third, and Mickey Morandini's single drove in Hayes. Dykstra then scored on Longmire's single, and Morandini came home on Dave Hollins' single that chased Smoltz (7-4).

Tyler Green (8-4) got his fourth straight victory, allowing only one run on five hits in 7 2-3 innings.

Norm Charlton relieved Green, who struck out four and walked two, and got the final out in the eighth.

Heathcliff Slocumb struck out three in the ninth for his league-leading 20th save.

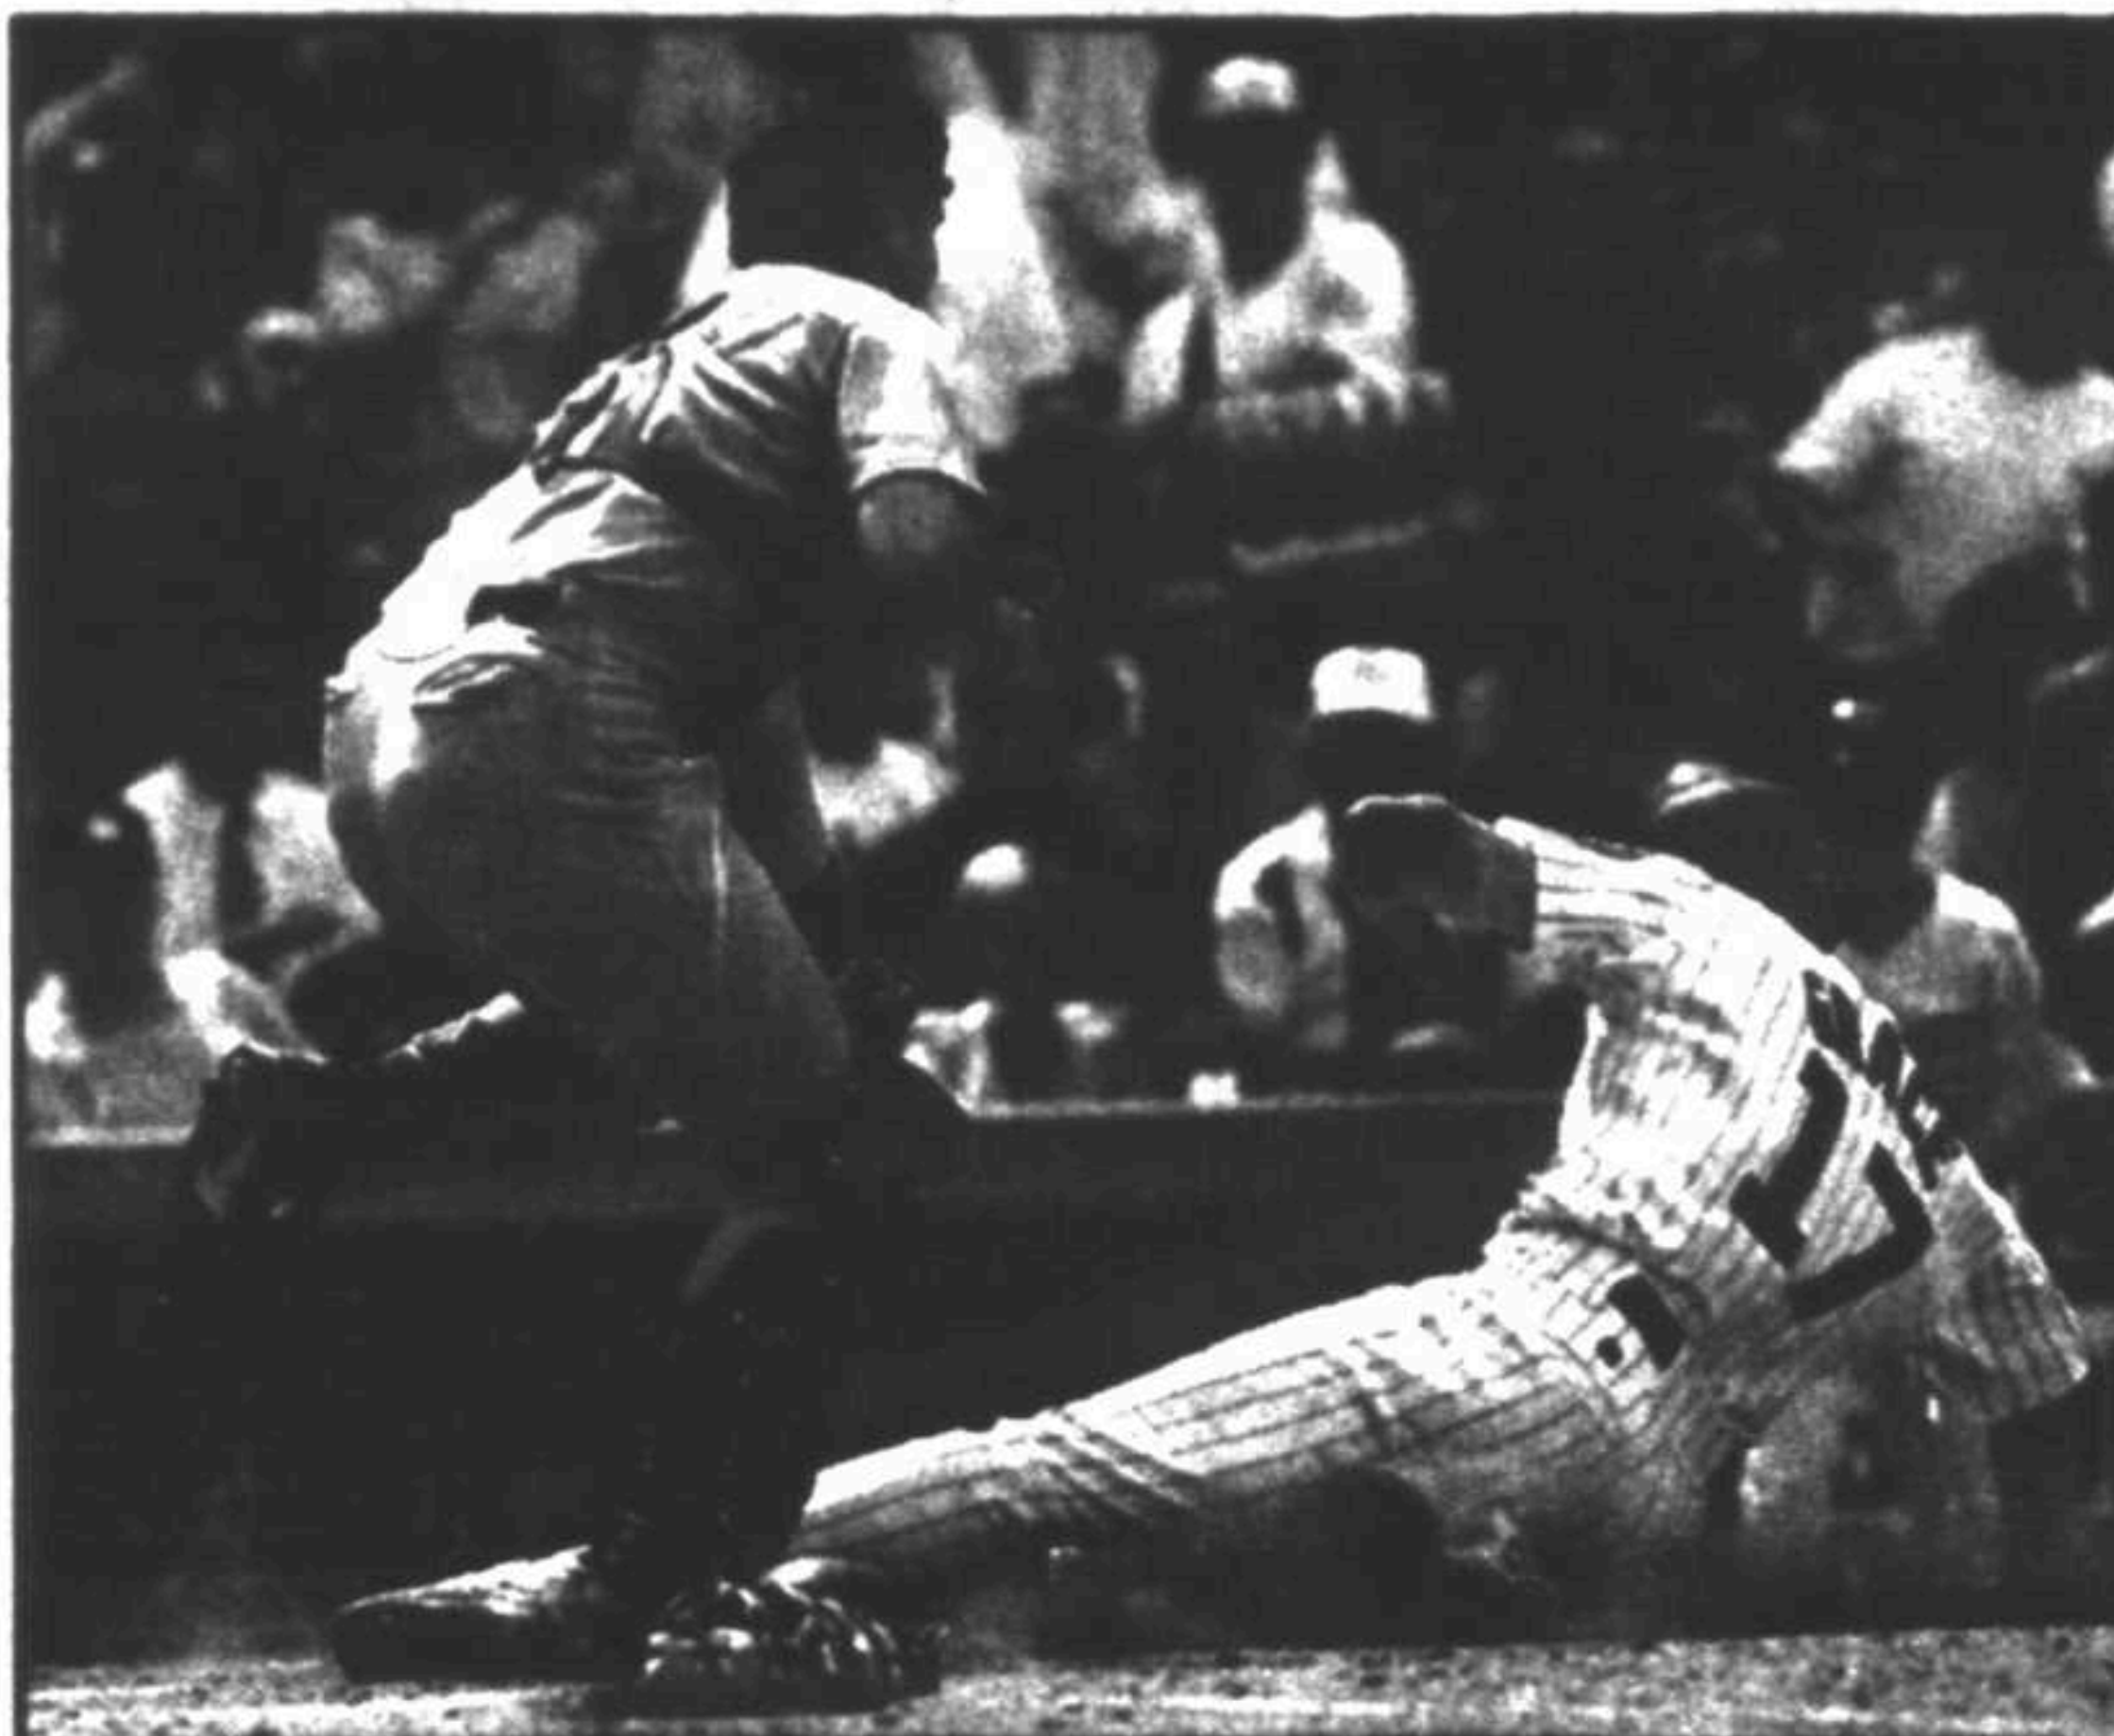

Astros 12, Pirates 9
HOUSTON — Dave Clark had four of Pittsburgh's season-high 17 hits and the Pirates hammered Darryl Kile for eight runs in two-plus innings in a victory over Houston.

Pittsburgh, which has won seven of its last nine road games, snapped the Astros' four-game winning streak. The 2 runs also were a season-high.

Esteban Loaiza (5-3) won for the fourth time in his last five starts despite allowing six earned runs and 11 hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Kile (3-7) dropped to 0-6 at home this season. He gave up eight hits, leaving after the Pirates loaded the bases with none out in the third. It was the shortest outing of Kile's 4 1/2-year career.

Jay Bell and Don Slaught had three hits apiece and Bell had three RBIs for Pittsburgh. Milt Thompson had three doubles and four RBIs for Houston.

Chicago Cubs' first baseman Mark Grace (17) slides into home plate as St. Louis Cardinals' catcher Tom Pagnozzi fails to make the tag during their game at Wrigley Field. St. Louis won the game 3-1.

After Kile was chased in the third, Loaiza grounded to Jeff Bagwell at first, who threw home for forceout. Tony Eusabio's return throw to first for an attempted double play went into right field for an error, allowing another run to score. Brumfield's run-scoring groundout and Bell's triple made it 8-0, and Johnson's homer made it 9-0.

Marlins 10, Expos 1
MIAMI — Jeff Conine hit two of Florida's four home runs and the Marlins had a season-high 19 hits in a victory over Montreal.

Conine was 4-for-5 with four RBIs to raise his average to .328. Greg Colbrunn had a two-run homer and three RBIs and rookie Charles Johnson hit his fifth homer of the season.

Chris Hammond (5-2) allowed six hits in eight innings with seven strikeouts and no walks. He struck out five of the first nine batters he faced.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 1
CHICAGO — Pitcher Tom Urbani hit his first major league homer and earned his first victory in two months as St. Louis beat Chicago.

Urbani (2-3) hadn't won since April 30 and was making his seventh start since that victory over the Mets. The left-hander allowed eight hits, walked two and struck out two in six-plus innings.

Tom Henke pitched the final 1 2-3 innings for his 16th save in 16 chances.

Mets 7, Reds 6
NEW YORK — Rico Brogna's two-run homer in the seventh inning capped a comeback from a three-run deficit as New York won its season-high third in a row, beating Cincinnati.

Todd Hundley also had a two-run homer and Bobby Bonilla had a solo homer and a sacrifice fly as New York collected 10 hits off four Cincinnati pitchers.

Mets starter Dave Mlicki left the game after six innings with stiffness in his right elbow. Blas Minor (3-2) relieved and got the victory.

Rockies 2, Dodgers 1
LOS ANGELES — Colorado beat Los Angeles for the first time in five tries this season as Kevin Ritz and three relievers combined on a five-hitter.

The Dodgers slipped a half-game behind the first-place Rockies in the tightly contested NL West.

Ritz (6-3) allowed three hits over six innings and escaped a bases-loaded jam in the fourth.

Curtis Leskanic struck out the side in the eighth, Darren Holmes got one out in the ninth and Mike Munoz got the last out with runners on first and third.

Indians take out Twins 4-1

The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Eddie Murray reached 3,000 hits with a single that set up the go-ahead run Friday night, sending the Cleveland Indians past the Minnesota Twins 4-1.

AL Roundup

Murray, 39, joined Pete Rose as the only switch-hitters to get 3,000 hits, and became just the 20th player overall to make it to the mark. He drew a walk in the second inning and flied out in the fourth before pulling a single through the right side in the sixth against Twins starter Mike Trombley.

Murray's single came after Albert Belle led off the sixth with a double. Belle then scored on a grounder by Manny Ramirez for a 2-1 lead off Trombley.

Dennis Martinez (7-0) gave up five hits in eight innings and Jose Mesa pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

Cleveland increased its lead to 4-1 in the seventh. After Tony Pena flied out, Kirby hit his eighth homer of the season.

Dave Stevens relieved Trombley (6-3), and Omar Vizquel singled and stole second. Belle followed with an RBI single before Murray grounded out to the shortstop.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 5
TORONTO — Alex Gonzalez singled home the deciding run with one out in the ninth inning and Toronto beat Baltimore for its first three-game winning streak of the year.

Candy Maldonado opened the ninth with a single off Terry Clark (0-1) and Mike Huff sacrificed. Jesse Orosco relieved and hit pinch-hitter Lance Parrish.

Armando Benitez entered, and Gonzalez's third hit of the game scored pinch-runner Domingo Cedeno.

Danny Cox (1-2) got the last out in the ninth for the win.

Brewers 12, Yankees 6
MILWAUKEE — Joe Oliver homered and drove in five runs as the Milwaukee Brewers ended a seven-game losing streak with a victory over New York.

The Brewers' ended their drought one night after venting frustrations in a ninth-inning brawl with the Chicago White Sox at County Stadium, a fight that started when Rob Dibble zipped a 95 mph fastball past Pat Listach's head.

Several Brewers said the fistcuffs would fire them up and help the team break out of its sluggish ways. Milwaukee wasted no time, scoring seven runs in the first three innings, five on Oliver's two-run double and three-run homer.

Tigers 6, Red Sox 5
BOSTON — Travis Fryman's RBI single broke an eighth-inning tie and gave Detroit a lead it could hold as it beat Boston.

Detroit led 3-0, 5-1 and 6-3 before Jose Canseco answered a brush-back pitch with a solo home run in the sixth. Troy O'Leary and Tim Lincecum singled and scored to make it 6-4.

But the Tigers took the lead in the eighth when Ken Ryan (0-4) walked two batters and Stan Belinda gave up Fryman's single. Joe Boever (4-3) earned the win with three innings of scoreless relief and Mike Henneman pitched the ninth for his 14th save.

Royals 1, White Sox 0
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mark Gubicza pitched two-hit ball for seven innings as Kansas City snapped a four-game losing streak in beating Chicago.

Gubicza (5-6) struck out four and walked a season-high five in getting his fifth win of the season. Billy Brewer and Hipolito Pichardo, who got his first save, combined with Gubicza on a four-hitter. Chicago had won six straight.

Weiskopf is just having fun

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf is having a delightful time this week dabbling in his favorite hobby.

Weiskopf shot his second straight 3-under-par 69 Friday and shared the lead with Tommy Aaron after two rounds of the U.S. Senior Open. Bob Murphy, Dave Stockton and Graham Marsh all shot 70s and were one stroke back.

Weiskopf started with consecutive bogeys before moving up the leaderboard. It was an impressive performance, especially for a guy who spends more time these days designing golf courses than playing on them.

"My first priority is not playing tournament golf," said Weiskopf, who has skipped eight events on the Senior Tour this year. "It's really more or less a hobby. I just don't have the time to play full-time."

Aaron, who shot a 68, and Weiskopf reached the halfway point at 6-under 138. Their closest pursuers have excellent credentials: Murphy and Stockton are three-time winners on the Senior Tour this year and Marsh ranks 10th on the money list.

"You look at the leaderboard, and for the most part those are the proven players of the game. Those are the veterans," Weiskopf noted.

The big names extended well beyond the top five. Hale Irwin was two shots back after shooting a 68, tied with Isao Aoki, who had a 70.

Tom Weiskopf turns to Lee Trevino after making a birdie putt at 17. Weiskopf is the leader after two rounds at the U.S. Senior Open.

Lee Trevino (68 Friday), J.C. Snead (73) and Brian Barnes (72) were at 141.

Jack Nicklaus (71) and Raymond Floyd (72) were in a group at 142.

Club pro Larry Ringer, who shared the lead with Snead after shooting a bogey-free 68 in the opening round, could not pull off a proper encore. He had five bogeys, a double-bogey and a triple-bogey en route to an 80.

"Yesterday I played as well as I could," Rinker said. "Today I played as badly as I could play."

McGann, Parker lead with 65's

WARREN, Ohio (AP) — Michelle McGann and Katie Peterson-Parker each had a 7-under-par 65 Friday and shared the lead after the first round of the $550,000 Youngstown-Warren LPGA Classic.

Rosie Jones shot a 66 and was second, while 11 golfers were at 69 to tie for third place. The co-

Peterson-Parker said she took advantage of a tip from Deb Richard, the 1992 winner who missed this year's event because of a bad back.

"I put a quarter on top of my putter and I swing back and through it," Peterson-Parker said. "You want the quarter to come off at the point of impact. If it does, that means your speed is right where it should be."

McGann, 25, birdied three of the first four holes in her bogey-free round. Her first victory came two months ago at the Sara Lee Classic.

"I'm very tired and my feet are soaking wet," McGann said. "It was hard to get a feel for the greens at the beginning. I can't imagine how it was this morning. Nobody likes to play a course that wet. But what can you do?"

Jones finished with eight birdies and two bogeys and said slow greens were to credit for the low scores.

"Now it's like a dart board. You can throw it right at the pin. Obviously, quite a few people were making putts out there," Jones said.

leaders tied the tournament record for one round on the 6,300-yard Avalon Lakes Golf Course.

Play was held up for 90 minutes as an early morning rainstorm made the course unplayable. Players with later tee times appeared to have an advantage, as the course dried considerably with the afternoon sun. The top three finishers all teed off after 1:30 p.m.

Peterson-Parker, 28, made five straight birdies and had one bogey. She shot a 5-under 31 on the back nine, needing just 12 putts. Her best finish in her five-year LPGA career was a tie for third at the Standard Register-Ping tournament in March.

Weather leaves PGA's St. Jude Classic flooded

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A thunderstorm dumped 2 1/2 inches of rain Friday afternoon and suspended the second round of the FedEx-St. Jude Classic with less than half the field finished.

Jim Gallagher, playing in the sixth group off the 10th tee, came within a putt of walking off the TPC at Southwind course with the early lead. He stood at 14 under through 35 holes with an 8-under-par 63 Friday and faced a 20-footer for birdie when play was stopped at 12:13 p.m. CDT.

Caddies and spectators huddled under the clubhouse overhang for about three hours until PGA Tour officials suspended the round.

The thunderstorm concentrated around the course with no rain falling just miles away. The downpour left the course's 93 bunkers filled with water and overflowed a lake onto the fairway on No. 9.

The storm passed within a couple of hours, but a steady drizzle continued through the afternoon.

Ben Nelson, PGA Tour tournament director, said the second round will resume Saturday morning. He said the course will be ready Saturday to finish the second round and start the third round by 3 p.m. CDT.

First-round leaders Glen Day and Mike Standly, who each shot a 9-under 62 Thursday, had not yet teed off. Jay Delsing set a course record of 29 on the front nine before finishing with a 63 and a two-round total 132.

Gallagher said the suspension interrupted a good streak of golf. He started the second round tied with six others at six under, and he survived a second round that saw him counter seven birdies and an eagle with a bogey and a shot in the water.

He won the Kmart Greater Greensboro Open in April and finished second the next week. But he has struggled in his past four tournaments, missing the cut once and not finishing higher than a tie for 40th.

Lyle shoots 64, then signs wrong scorecard

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Sandy Lyle of Scotland shot a course-record 8-under-par 64 Friday in the second round of the $1 million BMW Open golf tournament, then was disqualified for signing an erroneous card in the opening round.

Meanwhile, lucky loser Marc Farry of France equaled his first round 67 and took the lead at 10-under 134.

Farry was given a last-minute spot when Roger Chapman of England withdrew because of illness.

Frank Nobilo of New Zealand was runner-up at 136 after a second-round 69. Eoghan O'Connell of Ireland, who shot a 65, and Jarmo Sandelin of Sweden, with a 69, were tied for third at 137.

Lyle was not informed until after his record-tying round that he had signed his scorecard verifying he had a four on the 14th hole in Thursday's first round, one stroke less than he actually shot.

Lyle's first round was previously recorded as a 75.

moment for me to be able to walk on to Centre Court and play Pete Sampras. It would be a dream match for me."

Fourth-seeded Goran Ivanisevic, a two-time Wimbledon finalist, served 22 aces in beating Arnaud Boetsch 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Ivanisevic, who has 71 aces in his first three matches, won 96 percent of the points in which he put in his huge first serve. He served at an average speed of 113 mph, with a fastest delivery of 129 mph, and had two games with four aces.

It was the hottest day of the year in London, with the Centre Court temperature at 3:30 p.m. measured at 106 1/2 degrees — topping the previous record of 106 set in 1976.

On some courts, ballboys held umbrellas over players' heads during changeovers to protect them from the broiling sun. Players threw water over their faces and held ice to the back of their necks to try and stay cool. One woman in mixed doubles defaulted because of heatstroke.

Ivanisevic will next face another big-server, 14th-seeded Todd Martin, who rallied from a break down in the final set to beat fellow American Derrick Rostagno 6-3, 4-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Martin had 21 aces in the match.

In the featured women's match, second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, playing the best grass-court tennis of her career, ended Zina Garrison Jackson's Wimbledon singles career with a 6-1, 6-2 triumph on Centre Court.

Known as a baseliner, Sanchez Vicario looked like a different player as she used an aggressive all-court game to beat Garrison Jackson with surprising ease in 64 minutes. Defending champion Conchita Martinez continued her easy march through the early rounds, beating Shaun Stafford 6-1, 6-1 in 51 minutes. Martinez has lost only 11 games in three matches.

No. 8 Gabriela Sabatini rallied from 0-5 down in the first set to beat Nancy Feber 7-5, 6-1. Chanda Rubin, who won the longest women's match in Grand Slam history on Wednesday, lost 6-2, 6-4 to No. 9 Anke Huber.

Glazer wants to bring winner to Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — After officially becoming owner of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, investor Malcolm Glazer said Friday he was ready to make good on his promise to make the ailing NFL franchise a winner.

"We are thrilled to have the matter come to its fruition," Glazer said. "As we've been saying, it's a new day in Tampa Bay. This purchase fulfills a life-long dream of mine."

Glazer's sons Joel and Bryan have moved to Tampa to help with the administration of the club.

The deal, estimated to be worth $192 million, was finalized late

Bengals' owner very serious about move

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals president Mike Brown said Friday his threat to move the team to Baltimore had been real, and that he had no second thoughts about forcing the issue in order to be guaranteed a new Cincinnati stadium.

"I don't regret that. I don't think that was a bad thing to do," Brown said at a news conference at the team's Riverfront Stadium offices. Just before midnight Thursday, the City Council voted 5-4 to go along with Hamilton County on a $540 million project to build new stadiums for the Bengals and the Reds by 2000.

"It established our future," Brown said of the vote. "We are staying. That's what this was all about. It was a real deadline."

He told reporters — without being specific — that the offer by the Maryland Stadium Authority to move to Baltimore was potentially more lucrative than he could receive by remaining in Cincinnati. And, Brown said he accepts the risk that irked Cincinnati taxpayers could succeed in a referendum to kill the county sales tax increase that would pay for his new stadium.

John Moag Jr., chairman of the Maryland Stadium Authority, had said he anticipated the Bengals would decide to stay in Cincinnati because of Brown's deep roots in Ohio where his father, the late Paul Brown, built his football reputation and the Bengals began play in 1968.

Mike Brown rejected criticism by Cincinnati opponents who said they thought he was bluffing — or at least imposing an arbitrary deadline — when he demanded a written commitment by Thursday for a new arena to replace 25-year-old Riverfront Stadium.

Brown, 59, said the Bengals had been prepared to distribute a farewell statement to Cincinnati if the City Council had refused to support the new stadium project.

The Bengals and Reds are co-tenants in Riverfront Stadium. There were discussions at one point of renovating Riverfront for the Bengals and building the Reds a new stadium. But Brown said a rebuilt Riverfront would not generate enough money from skyboxes and luxury seats to keep the team profitable in the NFL.

Brown said it is still possible that a domed stadium could be built for his team if that decision is made in negotiations, but he strongly prefers an open-air arena with a grass field.

Nelson is latest in Knicks' coaching saga

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks are having serious discussions with former Golden State coach Don Nelson about their vacant coaching job, general manager Ernie Grunfeld said Friday.

Grunfeld met Thursday in New York with Nelson's attorney, John O'Connor, but said no job offer had been made. The Knicks are searching for a replacement for Pat Riley, who resigned June 15 with a year remaining on his contract.

"There's no done deal," Grunfeld said of the talks with Nelson and O'Connor. "There is interest on both sides."

Grunfeld met last week in Milwaukee with Nelson, 55, who resigned from the Warriors under pressure in February after a tumultuous season. Nelson had coached the Warriors for 6 1/2 seasons.

His downfall came after a feud with 1990-91 NBA rookie of the year Chris Webber forced Golden State to trade Webber to the Washington Bullets. Nelson also clashed with Latrell Sprewell, and the Warriors' mounting losses eventually landed Nelson in the hospital with viral pneumonia.

The Knicks also have talked with ex-Boston coach Chris Ford, and Grunfeld refused to characterize Nelson as the team's leading candidate.

Riley resigned after four seasons with the Knicks, citing the team's refusal to give him more power over personnel decisions. Team president Dave Checketts said money was the cause of Riley's departure.

The Knicks had offered Riley a five-year contract extension worth $19 million.

Thursday in Charlotte, N.C. Management was transferred to the Glazer family from a three-member trust overseeing the estate of former Bucs owner Hugh Culverhouse, who died in August.

Glazer bought the team in January but delayed closing on the deal. He indicated he wouldn't help pay for a new stadium.

Last week the city and county agreed to a plan: If attendance at Buccaneers home games falls below an average of 55,000 for the 10 games, the team gets a break on stadium rent. The pact is good for two years.
